AUTOS BETTER THAN THE DRIVERS

A Truth-telling Article that is Wholly Worth Reading.

The last issue of The Literary Digest contains an excellent letter presented by Dr. Julia Seton in the Outlook, Santa Monica, Cal., concerning the present speeding of automobiles, as to which the Digest says, as a preface to the letter—"Cars built for an intelligence that their drivers do not possess; 50-mile-an-hour cars run by 20-mile-an-hour people; a public 50 percent of which is incompetent to drive a car at all—these are things that are making our automobiles juggernauts, and our highways places of slaughter."

We trust that our readers will take the time to read the following paragraphs from the Dr. Seton letter; "We are prone sometimes to wonder at the faith of men which keeps them going on over the death-dealing thorough-fares. There are many causes of accidents. Drivers can find a hundred excuses, no matter what happens, and every day almost, there is some new law, and some new instruction to motorists. These do little good—the toll goes on in spite of sign and instruction.

"When we look carefully at the world on wheels we can find one great underlying cause which seems to have been overlooked. This cause is not in bad driving. Not inattention to signals, lack of control, speeding, discourtesy; none of the so-called causes are enough to explain it. But much deeper is the root from which all these accidents spring—the undeveloped quality of consciousness at the wheel. The drivers of automobiles are unfit, both in mentality and application. The mass of people have had automobiles thrust upon them before they were qualified to use them.

"The genius of those who build and put our cars has been able to produce in a car a highly developed quality of intelligent mechanical action, far beyond the intelligence of the public that drives it. Their whole thought is to produce the most intensified mechanical intelligence and response, while they never give a thought to the dull, unrelated mentality of those who will drive it.

"The cheap price of cars places them within the reach of almost any one. There are hundreds of motor owners and drivers with more money than brains, and these are a danger to the public—the car has its own response which it gives to the driver. In an emergency there is no mind in control—the car acts much too quickly—the slow-moving mind of the operator has no power to direct the mind of his motor—he is at the mercy of something quicker than himself.

"There are marvelous cars today of every make which jump at the touch of the man at the wheel, like an Arab horse springs to the whip. What chance has the ordinary untrained intelligence to play safe with a car that is a better man than he is?

"There are turns too quick for the mind at the wheel to calculate; there is space so subtle that the 30-mile brain never comprehends. The daring car—primed to make 65 to 80 miles an hour—what hope is there when it has a 30 or 40-mile intelligence to run it?"

All of this is excellent. We never read anything better, and the remedy that follows, is also good, but it will never be used. In few words, it is that schools should be established where motor education is taught, and that no one should be allowed to own or operate a car until he passed a 100 percent efficiency test—and is required to demonstrate it—the compulsory elimination of the untrained driver.

Hess-Bushey Reunion.

The second annual reunion of the Hess-Bushey family was held at Piney Creek Presbyterian Church, on Wednesday, July 27. At 10:30 A. M., the members of the various families began to arrive and by noon all the families were represented, which numbered about two hundred. A very pleasant time was spent renewing relationship until 12:30 P. M., when a basket parade was started and very soon the long table which was built by the Arrangement Committee was heavily laden with everything that tempts the appetite.

About 2:00 P. M., everyone entered the Church where the following program was rendered, Hymn, "Faith of our Fathers", Prayer, Rev. Chas. W. Hess, Brunswick, Md.; Sec. and Treas. report, Geo. W. Hess; address, Rev. William Hess, Hagerstown, Md.; Historians report, Mrs. Effie Hess Belt, Westminster.

In looking over the list it was found that we have eleven additions by marriages and births, and losses by death of the two oldest members, H. David Hess, Harney, and Samuel F. Hess, Woodbine, Md.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres., George W. Hess; Vice-Pres., John C. McKinney; Sec., John S. Bushey; Treas., Elmer S. Hess; Historian, Mrs. Effie Hess Belt; Hymn, "God be with you till we meet again." Benediction, Rev. John H. Hess, Wheeling, W. Va.

The third annual reunion will be held at the same place, the last Wednesday in July, 1928.

BARN FIRE NEAR TANEYTOWN

Originated in Straw Stack last Monday Evening.

On Monday evening shortly before 5 o'clock the straw stack on the farm of Dr. Steiner Englebrecht, near town (formerly the Geo. M. Fogle place) was discovered on fire and the Fire Company summoned as soon as possible. When they arrived the barn was beyond saving, even had there been plenty of water. The firemen directed their attention toward saving the dwelling and several small buildings, which was accomplished.

The barn was an old one, but still serviceable. A hog house, chicken house and several small buildings were also destroyed with their contents of farming implements, lot of hay, harness, etc. also a calf and a shoat. The wheat had just been threshed and the last load brought to town the afternoon of the fire.

Mr. Engelbrecht was painfully hurt by being pawed by a mule that he saved from being burned, and had to be brought to town for surgical attention. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A small amount of insurance was carried in the Dug Hill Company.

A Zimmerman Gathering.

The descendants of the late J. A. J. Zimmerman was held on the premises of Robt. L. Tyler, on the 24th inst., the old homestead of the late J. A. J. Zimmerman, near Bethel Church and Yellow Springs. Those present of the survivors of the family; Mr. and Mrs. John Luther Zimmerman, of Taneytown, one son, wife and two children; two daughters and their husbands and children; a son-in-law and a number of the immediate family (14) and 14 members of Mrs. Zimmerman's brother's family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. George Albaugh, their sons and wives and grandchildren and a few outside friends, making a total of 33 present.

And after a visit to White Rock they returned and partook of refreshments and enjoyed themselves in picnic style in the shade of cedar and maple trees planted by Mr. Zimmerman 50 or 60 years ago and were entertained with violin music of youthful days by one of the old residents. And after spending several enjoyable hours at the old home, they then paid a visit to Bethel Church in time for service there, and also a visit to Zion cemetery near Charlesville, on their return home.

Mr. Zimmerman represents a family that was once prominent in this section and was closely related with the Stull's, Firestone's, Martz's and Shankle families.

"Other men our streets will fill
Other men our lands will till
A hundred years from now."

The Roop Family Reunion.

Arrangements are being made to hold a reunion of the Roop family at Meadow Branch Church, near Westminster, on Sunday, August 14, 1927.

All the descendants of the three brothers that came down to Carroll County, (then Frederick county) from Lancaster County, Pa., about 1780-85 are invited to be present, also any other Roops that cannot trace back to the three brothers, as well as friends of the family will be welcome. The three brothers were:

John Roop who married Catherine Royer and lived near Meadow Branch Church on the farm of the late Samuel Roop.

Joseph Roop who married Mary Noffsinger and lived near Pipe Creek Church, on the farm now owned by Mrs. Annie Roop Stoner near Uniontown.

Christian Roop who married and lived near Pipe Creek Church, near Uniontown, on the Jordan farm now owned by William Bowers.

A program will be given at 2:00 P. M. and any friends knowing anything concerning these early settlers are invited to attend, and such information will gladly be received.

Kindly make arrangements to bring your lunch as no refreshments will be sold on the grounds.

To Members of the Fair Family.

This is to remind you that the 4th. annual reunion of the Fair family will be held at Twin Bridge Park, 9 miles out the Harrisburg road from Gettysburg, on Thursday, August 4, 1927. You are cordially invited to be present, and we ask you to invite any other persons whom you may know who are eligible to attend.

We hope to make this the most successful reunion the Fair family has yet held and to do so we earnestly solicit your co-operation and presence.

C. W. FAIR, Pres.

C. A. FAIR, Chm. Exe. Com.

An Appreciation.

We have noticed a number of congratulatory comments in our exchanges on the recent 33rd. birthday of The Record, and have received several by mail, the latest being from Birmingham, Alabama. We do not care to make a public display of these comments, but do want to let our friends know that their kind expressions are appreciated.

Trial for neglect of duty is faced by teachers in public schools of New York City who absent themselves from school in order to marry or to take a wedding trip. Such action, according to a recent general circular to the schools, is regarded by the superintendent of schools and the board of superintendents as inexcusable and a neglect of duty.

FREDERICK CO. HALTS 4 ASSESSORS.

Their Work too Low in Frederick
City and Brunswick.

The State Tax Commission on Thursday ordered the County Commissioners of Frederick County to halt the work of four assessors until a further decision has been rendered, the charge being that property in Frederick and Brunswick has been assessed far below the actual value.

The resignation of the assessors has been asked for, and a large meeting of property owners in Frederick severely criticized this action. The assessors have refused to resign. The controversy in Frederick is one of several that the Tax Commission has had this year, in their efforts to largely increase the basis of taxation in the counties.

The specific charges in the case seem to be based on the work of these assessors mainly in Frederick and Brunswick; while the assessors assert that property values in these places, as a whole, have depreciated, as well as farm property in the districts.

It is said to be the aim of the State Commission to add about $80,000,000 to the assessable basis of the state by the assessment this year. In a general way it may be truthfully said that this is not a favorable time to boost the tax basis anywhere, no matter how desirable this may seem to tax officials in order to meet increased demands for roads and schools.

The singling out of Frederick and Brunswick for an increase, may represent the idea of securing increases from all towns, as it is pretty generally conceded that farms in most sections are taxed too high on the present basis; but except on account of new improvements in the towns, there is no more on old properties, than on the farms, except perhaps in cases in which locations for business purposes may have become more valuable.

Worth Knowing by Farmers.

Under any plan of feeding hogs, free access to good, pure, water and a mineral mixture containing salt, is necessary at all times.

A good quality of alfalfa, or clover, is the best kind of hay for growing calves. Calves should be taught to eat a little hay at an early age.

There is no practical advantage in adding water to the grain ration, because of the large amount of saliva and other digestive fluids secreted by a dairy cow.

In building a poultry house it is safe to allow about 4 square feet of floor space per bird. The lighter birds, such as Leghorns and Anconas, usually require less floor space than Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, and Wyandottes.

Almost any green crop can be made into silage successfully. Corn is the crop most commonly used wherever it can be matured. The sorghums, such as amber cane, orange cane, kafir, feterrita, milo and Sudan grass, also make good silage. In localities where the season is too cool or too short, sunflowers have been used. Other crops include peas and oats, pea vines, beet tops, rape, cane tops, beet pulp, apple pomace, Russian thistles, and corn husks from canning factories.

Flavors and odors in milk result mainly from four causes: (1) The internal or physical condition of the individual cow; (2) highly flavored feeds; (3) odors absorbed by the milk after production; (4) biological changes in the milk. Feed flavors may be avoided by feeding highly flavored feeds immediately after and not just before milking. Pastures should be cleared of weeds which cause objectionable flavors and odors in milk. Until this is done it is advisable to remove cows from infested pastures as long as possible before milking.

The presence of flies is an indication of uncleanness, insanitary conditions, and improper disposal of substances in which they breed. Flies are not only annoying, but actually dangerous to health, since they may carry disease germs to exposed foods. Means of ridding the house of flies include the use of screens, fly papers, poisons, and fly traps. Information on this subject including explanation of methods of eliminating breeding places may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Health on Wheels.

Since the first of June, the healthmobile of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health has parked in over forty places in Prince George, Charles, St. Mary's and Calvert Counties. In each place visited, health conferences for the babies and young children of the neighborhood have been held under the direction of the local health officer by the physician in charge of the health bus, assisted by the public health nurses. During June, 629 children, 507 white and 122 colored were brought to these conferences. The healthmobile will spend some time in Anne Arundel County next and then will visit Queen Anne and Kent Counties. The regular child health conferences are being held as usual during the summer throughout the rest of the state.

THE SCHOOL BOND BILL.

Will be Voted on at a Special Election in September.

The general public does not seem to be talking much about the school bond issue vote that is to be taken on Monday, Sept. 26. Perhaps they have already made up their minds about it, or it may be that they know about it and are putting off its consideration until later.

At any rate a vote will be taken on a bond issue bill, in a special election, that empowers the County Commissioners to borrow upon the credit of the county, a sum not to exceed $600,000 and to issue and sell coupon bonds therefor, for the erection and equipping or the enlargement or repair, of public school buildings, not to exceed the amounts as follows:

Union Bridge	$ 60,000
Sykesville	75,000
Westminster	250,000
Manchester	50,000
Winfield	25,000
Mount Airy	25,000
Charles Carroll	10,000
Uniontown	5,000

New Windsor for the erection and equipping of a new building, or for the purchase of the buildings and grounds of Blue Ridge College, which ever shall be determined by the Board of Education—amount not to exceed $100,000.

The bonds are to be issued in the denomination of $1000 each, to bear interest at a rate not exceeding 5 per cent, payable semi-annually.

"Inside" Information for Women.

Whipped cream is not only a pleasantly luxurious addition to a dessert, but a food in itself. It is not needed after a rich, hearty dinner, but is appetizing and suitable after the lighter type of meals served in summer time.

In a good many parts of the country, cotton fabrics can be worn to advantage until late in the fall. Colors grow darker as the season advances, and materials somewhat heavier, but as cotton garments can be laundered easily and are inexpensive they remain popular.

Is your kitchen sink the right height? If you find yourself stooping over it, and cannot change its position, put a block of wood under the dishpan. Blocks of wood under the legs of the kitchen table, too, will eliminate some of the backache that comes from working at too low a surface.

If you are planning to build or remodel a kitchen, be sure to arrange for a two-way closet in the connecting wall between the dining-room and kitchen. It will save you many steps, since dishes can be put in when washed on the kitchen side, and taken out on the dining-room side, while the process is reversed in clearing the table, after a meal.

If you put away left-over cooked cereals in pound baking powder tins or other receptacles which will hold them into a good shape for slicing and frying, they will be ready to use as a dinner vegetable in place of potato or rice. Dip each slice in flour, have the fat hot, and cook the pieces on one side until delicately browned before turning over.

There are a number of suitable garnishes and flavorings for iced tea. A spray of mint adds a cool summery touch. Candied orange or lemon peel and candied pineapple, are nice. Slices of lemon, orange, or lime, are good. Some people like whole cloves, a stick of cinnamon, crystallized ginger, or rose geranium leaves with iced tea.

FARMERS RESIST COW TESTING IN PA.

State Police Arrest Seven Farmers
After Resistance.

Wednesday's Hanover Record contained the following, regarding resistance to cow testing in York Co., Pa.:

"The State turned the tables yesterday on the farmers of Hopewell township, who during the past month or more having been offering much resistance to the enforcement of the State area tuberculin cattle test when seven farmers of the township were arrested by state troopers and are now on bail of $1,000 each.

Lawrence Orwig, Simon Orwig, Melvin Brose, Clara Waltmyer and Laura Orwig, were arrested on warrants issued on information made by Corporal Edward Stroman of Troop E., stationed at the State Police barracks at Harrisburg, on four charges, as follows: Disorderly conduct, obstructing legal process, resisting arrest and assault and battery. These five, it is said, were arrested after much resistance, in fact at the point of guns. Their bail was fixed at $1,000 each. Simon Orwig furnished bail for the five.

Howard L. Rehmyer and Malcolm M. Miller were arrested on warrants issued on oath of Corporal Arthur E. Fox, of Troop E. The charges against them were assault and battery and obstructing legal process. The men also furnished $1,000 bail each, which was supplied by Rehmyer.

The state troopers, eight in number, were armed with search warrants from the Pennsylvania State Bureau of Animal Industry.

The arrests were the outcome of the resistance of farmers to the state area tuberculin test, which Dr. J. Ross Wiley, a state veterinarian of Lancaster, made in the township. Dr. Wiley is now out on $3,000 bail, charged with forcible entry by ten farmers of Hopewell township. Bail was fixed by Justice of the Peace B. M. Baker, of Shrewsbury township, at $900 for each charge.

Hearings of those arrested will be held next Tuesday."

Sunday Ball in Frederick.

Date for hearing of the players of the Frederick and Hagerstown base ball team of the Blue Ridge League, the umpires and other attendants, arising from Sunday's game, arrested for unlawfully performing bodily labor and work on Sunday, has not yet been set. This was announced Monday afternoon by State's Attorney William M. Storm.

In the meantime those placed under arrest provided collateral of $25 each pending further hearing.

Whether there will be any future Sunday games was not disclosed by officials of the Frederick club Monday morning. The matter will be taken up at a meeting of the directors and club officials this week, with the probability that the session will take place Thursday evening.

If the Frederick team plays a game on the approaching Sunday, it will be away from home, it was declared. Plans for a game in Hagerstown next Sunday are being considered.

Sunday's game, which was the first professional baseball game ever held in Frederick on Sunday, brought 1,837 paid admissions. The game was interrupted at the end of the third inning by Sheriff William C. Roderick who took the players of both teams, the umpires and other attendants to Police Headquarters where collateral was deposited before Justice Alton Y. Bennett.

With the exception of a few 'cat-calls,' the incident passed off quietly, all responsible persons present knowing that such action would be taken, under the law.

Wheat Smut Damage Over State.

The grain buyers in Maryland have confirmed the early report that the wheat smut has caused very serious commercial damage to the 1927 wheat crop of Maryland. The Baltimore export markets for soft red winter wheat are becoming more demoralized by large amounts of smutty wheat that is reaching the terminal. The export buyers are refusing to handle this infected wheat, regardless of the discounts offered.

The millers throughout the state are alarmed by the prospect of not being able to secure enough sound wheat for the milling requirements. The University of Maryland is planning an intensive program for control.

County Agent, E. K. Walrath has just secured a new type of homemade barrel mixture which has been developed during the past year. This has been placed on display at Engler & Sponseller's mill at Westminster. Negotiations are under way with several mills in the county to erect large scale treating apparatus, if such apparatus can be secured that is practical with dockage ranging from three to forty-two cents on a bushel of wheat, the situation is serious enough to command the attention of all parties interested in wheat growing.

Ancient Egypt's sacred lotus, was in reality a water lily.

Roumania now has a new King, Michael, who is only five years old. In order of succession, Prince Carol, son of the late King Ferdinand and Queen Marie, should succeed to the throne, but the latter abdicated, as heir, which brings his son, Michael, in line.

DAIRYMEN PICNIC

Will be held at Rocky Ridge Park, on Saturday, July 30th.

The annual picnic of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association will be held at Mt. Tabor Park, Rocky Ridge, July 30 and is expected to be attended by a larger number of persons than in previous years. An interesting program has been arranged by David G. Zentz, director, for both afternoon and night. Among the speakers scheduled for the event are: Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland; and Senator R. Smith Snader, New Windsor, president of the State Dairymen's Association.

The program will be as follows: Afternoon program, to begin at 1 o'clock; Music by the Detour Band; opening remarks, David G. Zentz; address of welcome, Rev. P. E. Heimer, address by the president, R. Smith Snader; address by Dr. R. A. Pearson, president University of Maryland; Music by the Detour band; address by I. W. Heaps, secretary of the Association; address by L. S. Birely, president Thurmont Bank; announcements, music by the Detour band.

Foot Races.—Fat men's race, contestants to weigh 200 pounds or over; lean men's race, contestants to weigh less than 200 pounds; dairy maids' race, contestants to be girls and ladies who milk cows; the milk of which is sold through the association; girls' and boys' race, contestants to be under 18 years of age, with same regulations. In all these races there will be four prizes, $4, $3, $2 and $1, respectively. They will be in charge of the Frederick county agent, Prof. H. R. Shoemaker.

Evening program, to begin at 8:00 o'clock. Address, "War, Women and Politics," Miss Lavina Engle, chairman Maryland League of Women Voters; motion pictures from Baltimore Dairy Council, W. Horace Harper, secretary, "Times do Change," "Shadows," "White Bottles," "Better Milk," "Just Pals," "Milk for You and Me."

There will be music all evening by the Detour band.

Me., Mo., Mass. Miss., et al.

Educational leaders in Massachusetts are raising objections to the use of the abbreviation, "Mass." They feel that the dignity and standing of the Old Colony is by no means enhanced in this clipping off of three-quarters of its somewhat ponderous structure.

But if the word, Massachusetts, is thus to be preserved in its entirety, what about the other states? Practically all of them have been subjected to the same kind of treatment, with results that would appear almost ludicrous in some instances were it not for the fact that long practice has made the abbreviations so familiar that they are accepted as words in themselves.

With the possible exception of Utah there isn't a state in the Union the name of which has not been abbreviated; and some of them have been docked apparently without "rhyme or reason." Even Iowa, one of the three states with the shortest names, is commonly written with its "ow" left out. In the shrinkage process there appears to have been no regular rule, though in many cases the first syllable is used and in some the first and last letters.

Miss., Mass., Conn., Mont. and Tenn are instances of the first syllable plan, while Ga., Ia., Me., Vt., Pa. and Va., are first and last letter abbreviations. Ohio couldn't very well adopt the two "o's" with which it begins and ends, and so one big "O." is used. Missouri is one of the departures. It cannot be Miss. because of Mississippi, but having missed becoming Miss., it did not follow the apparent alternative. Instead, that is, of taking for its abbreviated name Mi., its first and last letters, it tried one out of the middle and became Mo.

And so the abbreviation of the names of the states furnishes some interesting conjectures, and one wonders why, away back in the days when the abbreviation process was more popular than it is now, it seemed so necessary to commit assault and battery upon such euphonious names as Pennsylvania, Virginia and many others. It is no wonder that educators want to see them restored to their original proportions.—Christian Science Monitor.

Marriage Licenses.

Charles M. Fisher and Bertha E. Uhler, Pinksburg.
Frank Brooke and Vera T. Dell, of Baltimore.
Roger W. Crum and Naomi Bosley, Westminster.
Vernon F. Fogle and Flossie M. Eckard, of York, Pa.
Wm. Erb and Margaret Hull, Taneytown.
Chas. Wm. Lowe and Bessie F. Barber, Westminster.
Arthur C. Sipe and Ethel M. Graybill, York, Pa.

Six Foxes Less.

(For the Record).
During the past month, the foxes have been playing havoc with the farmers' poultry around Hammers Hall. Last week the farmers watched their premises from 6 to 8 each evening. Luther Currens bagged 3, John W. Currens 2, John M. Currens 1. That means $24.00 in bounty, will come to our good marksmen.

S. S. W. HAMMERS.

Cleaning up the 1800 tons of waste paper on the streets of N. Y., after the Lindbergh demonstration, cost the city $16,000.

Mr. Hoover Says, "Not Next Year."

Secretary Herbert Hoover, who has made the statement "No, I will not be a candidate for the presidency next year. I am for Mr. Coolidge, whom I am sure will be our President for four years more," has rather pointedly left it an open question that after another four years, he may be a candidate. His expression was made to a Chicago newspaper reporter, and was not wholly a voluntary statement, but represents a perfectly justifiable one, just the same. It was a direct answer to a direct question.

Four years is a very long time in National politics—or for anybody, for that matter, to lay plans. The Secretary says "not, next year," which may mean not at all, or in four years, just as one cares to take it, or as circumstances may bring about. And, the expression is characteristically Hooverian, as he is not in the habit of indulging in either political dodging, or cryptic talk.

Just now, and for some years past, he has been one of the few big outstanding men—not only of this country, but of the world—and has a perfect right to talk about the Presidency without anybody questioning the propriety of the right; for he is Presidential material of the best sort, if there is any in this country, and if being a candidate is based on personal qualifications.

Where are the State Cops?

Where are any officials for the purpose of enforcing speed and other motor traffic laws? There was a time when one had only to be careful in crossing the streets at busy corners in large cities. Now, the streets of Taneytown—and perhaps other like towns—are about as dangerous for pedestrians to cross as any in New York. There is apparently no fear of laws, because there is no one to enforce them.

If by state law a state policeman and police magistrate were provided for every good-sized town, the fines would either go a long way toward paying these officials, or violations of speed laws and regulations would cease; and in either case such a law, with teeth in it, would be justified in the increased safety of our public highways.

Most of our traffic laws, so far as small towns are concerned, are worse than none, because they are unenforced, and dead laws, and consequently not feared nor respected. As the situation now is, such laws had better be repealed, as the tendency would then be stronger to observe all other laws that there is still some effort made to enforce.

It may be that each town is expected to police its own highways; but in Taneytown—and perhaps in most other towns of the same size—the state owns the highway through the town, which ought to make it the state's business to see that the most liberal speed laws of the state—too liberal, we think—are at least reasonably well enforced.

Supposed to be Some Good.

The hot weather has had no effect on "Old Grouch" in the Baltimore Observer, except perhaps to make him a little more "grouchy," and he still lines out bits of wisdom something on the "Josh Billings" order, that mostly hits the spot. For instance, this:

"No, you don't have to read it but it's like a lotta other things. You think it wouldn't be in the paper less it was some account for something. Everything is supposed to be put in the paper for some good cause which, however, is darn seldom discovered. I never was able to discover why some editors is so strong on murders lessen it be that they got a hankering to murder somebody themselves. It's jest the same about some people so noisy opposing hanging and saying hanging don't stop murdering notwithstanding they can't prove where any man as is been properly hung has ever murdered anybody afterwards."

But, his "supposing" that "everything is put in the paper for some good cause," is hardly a "grouch," but a lapse of correct diagnosis. The only thing true about it is the "cause," for the "good" is subordinated to policy, and policy may be enriched by any number of antonyms for "good." The supposition of "good," is distinctly not to be taken for granted.

Murders, divorce cases, and stories that are mostly smut, are published largely for the shekels to be derived from subscribers who like "smut," and there is no supposition of any other sort of good about it.

The Crime of Crimes.

Americans usually take the side of the weaker. This characteristic shows itself in sports, in business and in every day life generally. It is a national trait of good sportsmanship. Unfortunately, however, it sometimes gets warped; it sometimes creeps in where crime is concerned. This attitude may be responsible in a measure for the public's indifference toward arson and incendiarism in the past.

Yet there is proof that this attitude is changing. "There never was a time," asserts The National Board of Fire Underwriters, "when the man who started a fire for gain to himself had less public encouragement. The public is making itself felt in the number of successful prosecutions in arson cases."

For the man who in the heat of anger, or in dire necessity, commits a crime some sympathy may be felt. His deed may be eternally wrong and yet be tinged with an element of pity. But no excuse whatever can be offered, no prison term can be too long, for the man who in cold blood applies the torch to serve his own greedy ends.

To destroy American property which in many cases can never be replaced, to endanger life, to strike at the economic welfare of the country—all this the arsonist does. And why? Merely to benefit himself or another through the collection of insurance.

Hence it is that we say to The National Board of Fire Underwriters, to the Fire Marshals of America, to every force engaged in fighting the scourge of arson: "Go on; follow every avenue that may lead to improved conditions, to more certain retribution." Vast as is America, there is no room for the arsonist for the perpetrator of the crime of crimes.—The Manufacturer.

Motoring Vacations.

A striking change in the vacation habits of America has been brought about with the improvement of highways and automobile; coupled with the development of low priced models within reach of nearly every family. Whereas in earlier years expectant vacationists began the collection of railroad folders and hotel booklets in early spring and followed this with an exchange of correspondence looking to accommodations for the last two weeks in July or the first two weeks in August, the present day practice is for plans to be made with the aid of a guide book and a purchase of gasoline. With an automobile tuned up and ready to go it is no longer necessary to pay any attention to railroad and steamship schedules nor to reserve hotel accommodations except at more popular resorts. In general the motorist does not like to tie himself down to a stop at a particular town on a certain date. He much prefers driving along until appetite or weariness dictates a stop.

There are close to 23,000,000 motor vehicles on the roads of the United States and it seems that all of the passenger cars, which make up most of this big total, are off on a vacation jaunt at some time during the summer.

It is surprising how far and how comfortably a party of four or sometimes more can journey in a moderate priced car. The construction of new hard surfaced highways has lengthened the average daily run by many miles until what was formerly regarded as a remarkable record for distance covered from sunrise to sunset constitutes but a normal day's run for many an eager party of sight-seers. This is especially true where the travellers carry camp equipment which enables them to drive without reference to necessity for stopping where there are satisfactory hotel accommodations.

An interesting sidelight on the growing habit of touring is the activity at information bureaus which specialize in road service. Back in the early spring, before most people were even thinking about going away, the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) announced the opening of the Standard Touring Service at 26 Broadway for the free use of those who wanted to plan trips. On one day following this announcement the bureau had 275 inquiries for maps and suggestions. After that the number slumped off for a few weeks but with the coming of warm weather the requests again jumped up. On June 22 they amounted to nearly 400 and they steadily increased in number until the July 4 holiday brought the total to 725 in a single day. It takes a vast fund of knowledge and nimble pencil to answer the miscellaneous demands of 700 people in a day, but so far the Standard Touring Service has managed to close its desks at night with every inquiry cleaned up and with maps and information on their way to the prospective tourist.

"Indian Giver's" Fate Told as a Warning

"Indian giver," the term applied to persons who give something, and then want it back, never fitted the Black-foot tribe after the Great Spirit brought disaster to Napee, an old man of their nation, according to a legend.

The aged Indian, so the legend runs, was traveling alone when he met a coyote and made a companion of him. They came upon a huge rock on the plains and Napee took off his buckskin coat and presented it to the rock. After resuming their journey rain began to fall and Napee sent the coyote back for the coat.

But the rock would not return it and the coyote scampered back to the Indian with its tail hanging between its legs. The aged brave was angered and he returned in haste, took the coat, and again resumed his journey. He and the coyote had not gone far when he heard a loud, rumbling noise.

Looking back they saw the rock rolling after them. It bowled over a herd of buffalo and came on in pursuit. The coyote was killed. Napee saw a hawk soaring in the sky and called to it for help. As the hawk flew down, the overheated rock burst in two with a loud explosion. The Indian went on his way greatly frightened, but he had not learned the moral lesson of the incident, for when he came upon the hawk's nest he forced open the mouths of the young hawks until they died.

The old hawk had followed and the Indian ran into the lake, thinking he would escape the bird, but he could not keep his head above water lest the hawk pick his eyes out. So Napee was drowned. The Blackfeet to this day relate the legend and point gravely to the moral of it. In trading with other tribes they always laid stress on the fact that they believe in standing by their bargains.—Kansas City Times

Cream of the Joke

Lee De Forest, the radio pioneer, told a broadcasting story at a banquet in New York:

"A comedian," he said, "gave a very good broadcasting turn one night, and wound up with the joking words:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, if any of you have a favorite song I will be very glad to sing it. You need only speak the title into the loud-speaker."

"The comedian waited half a minute; then he went on:

"A lady has asked for 'Old Black Joe.' Music, please."

"And he sang 'Old Black Joe' and said good-night.

"A good joke," Mr. De Forest ended, "but the cream of it came the next day, when a dozen women wrote in. Each woman thanked us warmly for 'Old Black Joe' and said it was she who had asked for it through the loud-speaker."

Centers of Trade

It is a noticeable fact in the cities that industries, shops and professions have a marked tendency to locate in groups, a section often being given over to some one calling. In New York, for instance, the leather trade is to be found bunched around under the approach to the Brooklyn bridge. The fur trade has possessed itself of Eighth avenue in the Thirties, just as Madison and Lexington avenues have gone antique in the Fifties and lower Fourth avenue has become the home of second-hand books, so that section of the city where Cortlandt and Greenwich streets intersect has been taken over by radio shops.

One may stand on the corner and count no less than 25 radio shop signs, and around the corner, unseen from that point, are others still.

Planes End Mill's Rest

By carrying a piece of machinery by airplane from London to Turkey recently, a long shutdown of the government cotton mill in Constantinople was averted. A wire order was received by a firm in Belfast, Ireland, for repair parts for a Sirocco fan, which had been damaged in an accident, causing the whole mill to stop. A representative of the mill, at home in England on leave, visited Belfast, carried the parts by train to London, and traveled by airplane to Paris and thence to Bucharest and Constantinople. The trip was made in two days, five days less than had it been by train.

Squirrel's Good Memory

Are squirrels able to remember where they hide nuts; are they guided by the sense of smell or do they just chance to find food that they or other squirrels have hidden? Naturalists are puzzled over the question, but tests performed with a squirrel by Dr. A. Brooker Klugh of Cornell university indicate that memory plays no small part in the animal's remarkable skill at locating food it has secreted, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A red squirrel buried nine nuts in the snow on a house balcony. The next day it came and dug them up one by one, although a new fall of snow had complicated the problem. Doctor Klugh concluded that the performance showed the squirrel's strong memory for location.

Victory for Perseverance

After four years, P. A. Meyer got his dime. He put 10 cents too much in the fare box of a San Francisco car and asked for a refund. The conductor took his name and address. The company mailed him two tickets to cover the sum. That was four years ago. Meyer had moved. The tickets moved after him, finally catching him in Honolulu. Then the company received a letter from him at a Manila address. The tickets he sent back had expired and he asked for new ones. They were sent to his son in San Francisco, thereby closing the account.

Premature

Judge—It is painted, pampered dolls like you who shake our baby institutions to their very foundations, young lady, and bring misery and ruin to, yes, even the third and fourth generations. And it is dissipated, wild youths such as you are, young fellow, with their leering mouths and weak chins, who bring shame and disgrace and ugliness to court and fling it in our faces! Why do you wish a divorce?

He and She—We don't want one. We came here to have you marry us.—Life.

Small House Idea

On account of the high cost of construction and maintenance, it is no longer practicable to erect the huge frame residences which have lined our city streets in the past. The old order of eight and nine-room houses for the man of moderate means has had to give way.

POULTRY

CULLING CHICKENS AIDS BUILD FLOCK

It seldom pays to raise a weak or crippled chick. One of the secrets of successful poultry culture lies in discarding weaklings as soon as found. Often the owners of chicks are too "chicken-hearted" to kill weak chicks but they should consider that such action is really more humane than nursing sick or crippled ones along, letting them die later after they have consumed a lot of feed and a lot of labor has been spent on them.

Generally speaking, weak chicks are the result of some specific trouble. Often it is a disease such as white diarrhea or coccidiosis. Both these diseases spread through droppings, and leaving weak chicks in the flock invite further spread of disease. If the trouble is caused by some fault in management or feeding, it is usually best to cull out the weak birds and try and correct the fault.

Culling chicks helps to rid a flock of weak vitality. On several occasions we have had letters from our readers telling about white diarrhea in their chicks this year, and later in the letter they mention that they had a little trouble last year. They have saved birds that recovered from the disease, and they have spread the disease to chicks this year through the egg. These diseased chicks have, in turn, spread the disease to their mates with heavy loss.

Good feeding and management must be combined with culling. Even the best chicks cannot make a satisfactory growth if they do not have the proper feed. Culling helps owners who practice proper feeding and management.

Duck Eggs Incubated in Much Same Way as Hens

Duck eggs are incubated in much the same way as are hen eggs. The temperature of the machine should be kept at 101 to 102 for the first five days, after which it should be kept at near 103 as possible. After the first five days the eggs must be turned and watered daily. A great deal of water is used, many people sprinkling so much on that it runs out of the bottom of the incubator. The period of incubation is 28 days.

A good feed mixture is the following: 200 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds low-grade flour, 100 pounds bran, to which is added 10 per cent of beef scraps. If milk is available, the beef scraps may be reduced. Plenty of sand and green feed should be provided at all times.

Of Much Importance to Keep Chick Rations Dry

Each year finds an increasing number using a factory-mixed or home-mixed mash in the starting and growing of their chicks. The use of a feeder or mash hopper is a part of this method of feeding. If the feeder is placed outside the house it is very important to see that the top and sides of the feeder are tight. Keeping the mash or starter dry is very important. There is nothing worse for young chicks than sour, wet mash. It is frequently a cause of digestive trouble that stunts the growth of a large number of chicks, even if no death loss results.

Chick Precautions

- Do not crowd at any time.
- Avoid moldy litter or feed of any kind.
- Kill all weak, crippled or deformed chicks.
- Get chicks out on the ground as soon as possible.
- Feed sparingly, but often, during the first two weeks.
- Be sure chicks are not chilled while being transferred to brooder.
- Be sure the house and all equipment is thoroughly clean and kept clean.
- Do not remove chicks from incubators until they are at least thirty-six hours old.
- Remember that crowding means losses with the youngsters. See to it that they have ample room at all times in their brooders or hovers.
- Do not feed chicks before they are forty-eight hours old. They will eat, and may appear hungry, but they are better off with no other feed than that provided by nature for at least 48 hours after hatching.
- Be sure your brooder stove is regulated before chicks are placed under hover.
- New ground is far safer for chicks than ground where poultry has been previously grown.
- Plenty of green feed and milk are essential for the natural and normal development of the baby chick.
- Don't allow the chicks to become chilled. Keep them growing by feeding wholesome rations.

HOPE FOR TITANIC SHAFT IN 2 YEARS

Sponsors in Washington Seek More Funds in Congress.

Washington.—Obstacles which for fifteen years have blocked the erection in Washington of a statue commemorating the 1,500 victims of the Titanic disaster are slowly being cleared away. Members of the Woman's Titanic Memorial association hope that their objective will be reached in another two years.

Organized shortly after the disaster in 1912, the association promptly raised more than $40,000 for the memorial, but it was not until 1917 that a bill authorizing use of public grounds for the purpose got through the legislative jam in congress. Then the site which had been selected was denied.

A new site was chosen, on the Potomac near the ground dedicated to the Lincoln memorial, and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney of New York went ahead with completion of the statue from a design approved by the Fine Arts commission several years earlier.

The new site was under water, but plans had been made for construction of a sea wall as part of the program for linking Potomac and Rock parks.

Appropriations for the wall were hard to get, however, and work on it had to be suspended in 1922, after only part of the riprap foundation had been put in. The last congress granted $25,000 for resumption of the work, but that was enough to provide for little more than repairs on the old foundation. Engineers estimated that another $175,000 would be needed.

Mrs. William Howard Taft is interested in the plan, which is under the guidance of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, first secretary of the association, and Mrs. Robert S. Chew.

These women are confident that the necessary appropriation will be granted by the next congress and that soon afterward they will be able to complete their task.

Colds in Head Prove Impervious to Vaccine

Manchester, England.—A cold in the head is still a cold in the head at the Manchester university, where for seven months experiments have been going on to determine the value of vaccination. Two hundred and eighty-six persons took part in the test.

The conclusion that vaccination against colds has no preventive value was suggested by the results of an experiment carried on by Dr. A. F. C. Davey, Dr. F. R. Ferguson and Dr. W. W. C. Topley.

Students and members of the university staff offered their services for the experiment. Of these 133 were inoculated with a stock vaccine containing eight different kinds of microbes, and 148 were not inoculated.

Results showed that the 133 inoculated persons had 203 colds, the 148 uninoculated subjects had 163 colds during the period of the test and that the average duration of the colds among the inoculated was 13 days and among the others ten and one-half days.

The investigators, however, concluded that the evidence does not justify with certainty any conclusion that vaccine caused any harm.

One-Man Tugboats Now Being Used on West Coast

Anacortes, Wash.—Man power is too valuable these days for duplication, so one-man tugboats for towing have gained favor. Towing conditions on the British Columbia coast and in Puget sound are causing the change in methods. Navigation laws require boats of over 32 feet length and nine feet beam to carry certified captains. There is no limit to the power equipment. Thus 30-foot boats are being fitted with 45 to 100 horsepower oil engines and one man does the tending, steering, planting the towlines and stands watch.

Have Sweet Tooth

Atlantic City, N. J.—Americans seem to have a sweet tooth. They eat $25,000 tons of candy a year, but that's not enough for members of the National Confectioners' association.

Capital "Beauty" Plans Prove Aid to Parking

Washington.—Some decided contrasts between the old and the new are being furnished as the capital gets down to the actual work of beautifying the downtown section, parts of which for years have been a constant irritant to those artistically inclined.

In the block adjoining the massive Post Office department building, whose foundations include labyrinths of cellars below the ground, an entire city block occupied by stores and other business houses was razed, and not a single basement was disclosed.

When the brickwork and other walls were removed, a job requiring a very short time, the ground beneath was found to be so smooth that it was immediately pre-empted by motorists as a place where automobiles might be left indefinitely without the dread of finding them ticketed for parking too long.

FEESERSBURG.

There was a mistake in copying the Feesersburg items, last week, for the printer. We did not mean to call James A. Buchanan the "fighting" President of the United States, but the fifteenth.

One day last week, as the delivery truck of F. G. Harbaugh's was leaving the yard of Clayton S. Koons, on to the State Road, it collided with the family auto of Reno Biddinger, of Union Bridge. Both were moving slowly, so no one was injured. Each car was slightly damaged. Sometimes we wonder what the horns are for.

Last Thursday evening, while traveling on Middleburg-Union Bridge pike, the car of Wilbur Miller ignited; he and his wife and child stepped out and saw it burn up. The smoking ruins by the way side, near Frank Keefer's home, excited curiosity of later passers-by.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wolfe, with their nieces, Dorothy Utermahlen and Margaret Gilbert, attended a minstrel show in Creagerstown, on Thursday evening, given by local talent, and very enjoyable.

A Lirt'day Surprise Party.

(For the Record.) A birthday surprise party was held at the home of Mr. Milton Reaver and family, near Harney, on Tuesday evening, in honor of Mr. Reaver's 48th birthday. The evening was spent in playing games and music. At a late hour refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream, cake, fruit cocktail, pretzels, bananas and lemonade. At a late hour all returned to their homes wishing Mr. Reaver many more happy birthdays.

Those present were: Mr. Milton Reaver, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Reaver, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Strickhouser, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stambaugh, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Bowers, Mrs. Luther Zimmerman and Mrs. Maude Wantz; Misses Evelyn Zimmerman, Etta Boyd, Pauline Fox, Ethel, Genevieve and Marie Reaver, Ernest Reaver, Preston Myers, Martin Zimmerman, Charles Kelley, Wilbur Bowers and Milton Reaver, Jr.

Shop products of students in the mechanical school of Girard College, Philadelphia, during one year had an estimated value of $14,359.71. Most of the work was performed in the service of the college.

Cash to the amount of $150,259.42 was contributed by negroes in the campaign just completed to raise a fund of $1,000,000 for the medical school of Howard University, Washington, D. C. A bronze tablet, bearing the names of 51 colored men and women who made individual donations of from $1,000 to $10,000, will be placed in the new building of the medical school to be erected at a cost of $500,000.

A Printer's Reverie.

By O. J. Snodde, Composing-Room Foreman, Cook County Herald, Arlington Heights, Illinois.

Oh, I'm glad that I'm a Printer
And can work with words and type
To broadcast the world's achievements

And proclaim the wrong and right;
For the people need good reading
And are always wont to find
Some good in any literature
That's printed for mankind.

Yes, I'm glad that I'm a Printer,
Though they seldom achieve fame
I can work with words and sentences
That oftentimes will remain
To tell the world in years to come
Of deeds we strived to do
And the fulfillment of our earnest hopes,
To give the best to you.

Yes, I'm glad that I'm a Printer,
Though they seldom think of me
Except to point out my mistakes,
Which tickles them with glee;
But if they knew how hard I've worked

To make a perfect score,
They'd pass them by without a thought
And find some good in store.

res, I'm glad that I'm a Printer,
Printing things which people read,
For in printed words is knowledge,
Which will fill a long-felt need
Of some brother who is seeking
His wisdom to repair,
And in so doing I've accomplished
What my heart considers square.

Yes, I'm glad that I'm a Printer,
Building up the biggest book,
So that when from life departed
I need not backward look;
For I have left on pages printed
Many thoughts for future years,
So I need not meet my Creator
With excuses or in tears.

Gasoline From Lignite

Two French chemists, Prudhomme and Houdry, announce that they have made gasoline from lignite in commercial quantities. Their process of distillation, reports Popular Science Monthly, is expected eventually to yield 250,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year—half the gasoline consumption of France—from 20,000,000 tons of lignite.

Enough lignite, sometimes called brown coal, exists in France, experts estimate, to supply that country with oil and fuel for at least a century and a half. Abundant deposits, now unused, occur in the south and west of the United States.

Ingenious Electric Sign

One of the world's most striking electric signs is a globe 20 feet in diameter which hangs in air over an important street in Paris each night, glowing from within. Its silk cover bears the continents painted on in opaque pigments and revolving slowly around the outside is a translucent liner in tiny electric lamps, "touring the world." The huge globe, representing the earth so luminously, is suspended from the top of a new building occupied partly by a travel agency. The unusual moving electric sign has caused much international comment.

MARRIED

CROMER—LILLER.
George W. Cromer and Josephine Liller, both of Gettysburg, Pa., were united in marriage at the Lutheran Parsonage, by Rev. W. V. Garrett, on Saturday night, July 23rd., at 8:00 P. M.

DIED.

Obituaries, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The regular death notices published free.

MRS. SARAH A. NULL.

Mrs. Sarah A. Null, widow of the late Mr. Daniel Null, died at the home on Baltimore St., Tuesday morning, aged 81 years and 17 days, from complications, after an illness of a few weeks, though she had been in failing health for several years. Mrs. Null was an exceptionally fine lady and had a large circle of friends who will miss her.

She was a daughter of the late John and Catharine Renner, and is survived by one sister, Mrs. Louisa Hammond. Six nephews acted as bearers.

Funeral services were held in the Lutheran church, on Thursday afternoon, by her pastor, Rev. W. V. Garrett. Interment in the Lutheran cemetery.

MRS. MILTON A. KOONS.

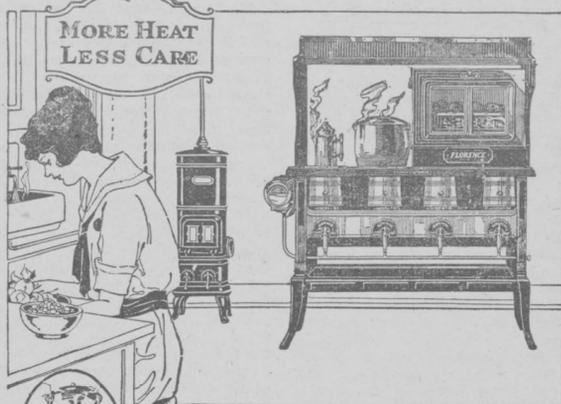

Mrs. Iva May, wife of Mr. Milton A. Koons, died at 6 o'clock, Thursday evening, at Maryland University Hospital, where she had been under treatment slightly over a week, her entire illness being less than two weeks. Pneumonia is given as the cause of her death.

Her death was a severe shock to her family and many friends and that more so because she had been reported to be improving. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weant, of Detour, and is survived by her husband and two sons, Dr. Earl W. Koons, of Baltimore, and J. Carroll, at home; and by three sisters and one brother; Mrs. F. J. Shorb, of Detour; Mrs. Charles C. Eyer, and Miss Rhoda, of Baltimore, and one brother, Edward O. Weant, of Westminster.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at the home, at 2:00 o'clock, in charge of her pastor, Rev. Guy P. Bready. Interment in Mt. Zion (Haugh's) cemetery.

MOTHERS AND BABIES

Modern Luxuries for the "Ordinary Citizen"

William Feather, writing in Nation's Business Magazine, takes issue with those who scorn our modern civilization and yearn for a return of the good old days of our great-grandfathers. He says:

I am working in the living room of my home, pounding a portable typewriter. I look around and this is what I see:

Light provided by a lamp in which burned two incandescent bulbs.

In an adjoining room a telephone from which I can talk to any city on this North American continent.

On the wall is a thermostat which regulates the flow of gas in my furnace, and keeps the room at an even temperature of 70 degrees.

A music cabinet containing records of the finest arias from the best operas, and selections by the greatest musicians in the world.

For a few cents a day I have delivered to my home the news from the four corners of the world. This news as printed in the daily paper is interpreted for me in the weeklies and monthlies, all of which are delivered to my very door by the postman.

The floors of my home are cleaned with a suction sweeper, while the clothes are put through an electric washer and ironed in an electrically driven mangle.

My children attend a school where they are given a better education than the sons of kings could command a century ago.

I go to work in an automobile, and I travel a distance in three-quarters of an hour which would have been an all-day trip for my father a generation ago.

I enjoy all these things, and yet I am just an ordinary citizen with an ordinary income, living in an ordinary way. Tens of thousands have just as much as I, and more.

Citizens Judged by Appearance of Roads

The Mobile county board of revenue will take up the matter of beautifying the approaches to the Bay bridge. It is a wise plan. These approaches ought to be beautified. We can easily make all our roads more attractive. In all parts of the country they are working along these same lines. Trees are being set out along some of the great highways of the country, particularly those that have historic significance. If we set out trees now along the main traveled highways of this country in a few years these roads will be ranked among the most beautiful in the world.

All road plans should take into consideration beautifying possibilities. All the beauty of a highway is not in hard surfaces. Trees, shrubs and flowers on the sides of our roads add much to the attractiveness of travel, and when we find these things in any part of the country, we naturally form a good opinion of the people of that section, for we know they are enterprising and progressive.—Mobile (Ala.) Register.

Is it good sense, or good economy even, to let that baby die just from lack of care?

Would not a dollar invested in his rearing, in making a strong, healthy man of him insure pretty good returns?

Isn't it foolish to let him die by the thousand when he could just as well be saved?

And as for the mothers, if this country owes anything to anybody it owes to the mothers.

Every suffering mother is a disgrace.

Every mother that needlessly dies in giving birth to a new citizen is a reflection on the charity, decency and citizenship of every other dweller in this country.

Our sense of what is respectable should lead us to provide for the mothers.

Our judgment as to what is profitable, if no better emotion urges us, should lead us to make life and health more certain for the children.

Paint Up!

The conference held under the auspices of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, with the city and county boards, and representatives of civic organizations taking part in it, for the purpose of promoting a clean-up and paint-up movement in Mobile, served a good purpose. It does not help a great deal for just a few citizens and organizations to engage in civic work of this sort. Everybody should have part in it. It should extend to every section of the city. It is not difficult to keep clean. It is simply a matter of doing a few things to improve a situation already good in the better meaning of good.—Mobile

WARNS AUTOISTS TO WATCH ROAD HOBOS

Free Rides May End Up in Robbery.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Despite the fact that only a small percentage of "highway hobos" are criminal, they are a menace to motorists because there is little organized police protection on Missouri's roads. T. H. Cutler, state highway engineer, in a warning to tourists, says that the number of ride seekers has doubled or tripled in the last three years.

Travelers, elite and rough, were not slow to discover a cheap, enjoyable transportation as Missouri's highways became more heavily traveled. Sometimes a motorist would carry them a long distance and the time required would not be greatly in excess of that of de luxe passenger trains. It was not long before the blind baggage and empty box car were forsaken in favor of the back seat of a comfortable motor car. Today "Weary Willies," hijackers and adventuring youths hail motorists for "lifts."

Youths Learn to Sponge. "Many young men," Mr. Cutler said, "who ordinarily have paid railroad fare are tempted now because of the success of others to sponge off the motoring public.

"The habit of picking up strangers on the highway should be discouraged, for it is not only increasing the number of tramps, but it is fraught with much hazard to the motorist. It affords unexcelled opportunity for robberies, assaults and murders, as frequent newspaper accounts testify.

"The experience of a road contractor about a year ago is well to the point. Traveling along route No. 50 toward Kansas City, he met an elderly woman, poorly dressed, head covered by a huge sunbonnet and a basket of clothes under her arm. To all appearances she was carrying home a day's washing. The contractor stopped his car and invited the woman to have a ride. Without saying a word she climbed in beside him. He had not driven far when he glanced downward and noticed a large-sized man's brogans. Immediately he suspected the washwoman's garb was a disguise.

Gets Rid of Woman.

"Reaching the top of a hill and observing that he had a long descending grade ahead of him, the contractor abruptly stopped his car a little beyond the crest, saying he believed his rear tire had gone flat. His emergency brake was not working, so that he would have to use the foot brake to hold the car.

"He asked the 'woman' to get out and look at his rear tire. With a little show of hesitancy the woman set her basket down, alighted and started toward the rear.

In an instant the driver released the brake, threw in the clutch and started down hill as fast as he could go. When he reached the next town he stopped to examine the contents of the wash basket. Lifting a big blue gingham apron, he found the sole contents of the basket was one large navy revolver, loaded for business."

Hunt for Mammoth Shifts to Oklahoma

Washington.—The trail of the prehistoric American elephant has led from Florida to Oklahoma.

Dr. James W. Gidley, paleontologist of the United States National museum, has just returned from a partly successful search for elephant bones to complete a great mammoth skeleton being assembled for exhibition purposes. Near Alva, Okla., he found portions of a small elephant which were of considerable scientific interest, but of a different species from the composite skeleton which the museum experts are mounting. This particular variety of mammoth came from Florida and attained a huge size, twice as large as the ordinary elephant of today.

A prehistoric relative of the armadillo, probably a hitherto unknown species about as large as a cow, was among skeletons unearthed by Doctor Gidley in Oklahoma.

The thorough exploration of Oklahoma for animals of past ages was urged by Doctor Gidley. He stated the state was rich in rock formations containing evidences of the life of 500,000 years ago.

Frenchmen Draw Line at Colored Umbrellas

Paris.—Light-pink and vivid-purple hats caught on with certain vivacious elements of Paris' male population, but an umbrella maker who tried to sell them colored rainsticks had his trouble for his pains. No one bought, and he is having a large supply dyed a sober black.

Early-season predictions that brilliant coloring would mark male clothing for the year have been realized only in part. "Sardine blue," a rather bright effect, and several more or less intensive browns and mauves found a good many buyers. But few persons indulged in the pinks, purples or other more vivid colors.

THE BUTTERFLIES

"GOOD-DAY, Mr. Sun," said the Monarch butterfly.
"You look very happy," he added after a moment.
"I am," said Mr. Sun, as he beamed brightly. "It is so wonderful to be the sun and to look down upon such a lovely world."
"No wonder people say I have a sunny nature! I cannot help but have it!"
"It is interesting to many people to know how the butterflies sleep in the winter," said the Monarch butterfly,

Mr. Sun Smilingly Agreed to Send Some of His Bright Rays.

"or whether they are all frozen! Or what happens to them! So many people, I've been told, often ask. I wonder, if I told you, Mr. Sun, if you could send around some of your bright rays with the secrets."

Mr. Sun smilingly agreed.
"I'll see that they hear if you tell me what is to be said."

"The Swallowtail Butterflies," said the Monarch, "stay in their chrysalis state in the winter time. They like those beds best."

"And the Angle Wings all change into butterflies sometime before they go to sleep, and so they sleep as butterflies. Little Bronze Copper Butterfly spends the winter as an egg. He has lots of growing and changing to do when the spring comes! I wouldn't care for his way," the Monarch said proudly.

"So many people wonder how we disappear when the cold weather comes. In the summer I've often heard people say:

"What becomes of all the butterflies in the winter time?"

"If some one will translate for me into their language I'd like to tell them all of this."

"Most of the butterflies eat a good deal more in the fall so they can be strengthened for the cold winter weather and for their sleep, and most of the great butterfly family spend the winter bedtime as little caterpillars. The Fritillary families sleep as tiny caterpillars and don't bother to grow their full size until the spring comes when they wake up and continue growing!"

"Then there are some families where the grown-ups sleep as butterflies and where the little ones go to bed as caterpillars and don't change into butterflies until the spring comes. The Orange Sulphur and the Clouded Sulphur Butterfly families do this."

"But, oh dear, I must stop talking," the Monarch said, for as he looked about him he found that all the butterflies had disappeared.

"I've never been so late in starting for the South. I must hurry and follow the birds."

"But the butterflies and caterpillars who're staying up North and who're sleeping through the winter will be quite safe and snug. They know where the rocks and crevices are which will be the right places for them. If they're chrysalids they will know how to attach themselves safely with a fine silken cord to a tree, so the old wind won't blow them away."

"Yes, the winter time is the butterflies' bedtime and there are only a few of us who go away and stay awake! But the butterflies sleep at different stages of their growth, some as caterpillars, some as chrysalids and some as full-grown butterflies, as I've said."

"For isn't that sensible? You don't find all boys and all girls of ten years old going to sleep and all boys and all girls of twelve years old not sleeping at all!"

"And as you don't find all boys and girls doing the same just because they're of the same age or the same size—neither do you find butterflies all doing alike!"

"But before I fly I must sing the Butterflies' Bedtime Lullaby."

The Monarch looked up at Mr. Sun and smiled. Then he sang this song:
In the winter when it's cold
Do not be so very bold!
Do not freeze your pretty wings,
Do not chill your nose and things!
If you're a caterpillar or a butterfly,
In a warm place you must lie,
Covered up with silken threads,
Or in warm and leafy beds,
And sleep and sleep and sleep some more.

Such are the butterfly ways as of yore,
And ere I go on my wandering way,
I wish the rest of you all a good-day,
And pleasant dreams and a good winter's rest,
So that when the spring comes you may all look your best.

CLAIMS BLOOD OF NOW EXTINCT RACE

Believed Only Survivor of Nah-Dah-Ko Tribe.

Anadarko, Okla.—Blood of an extinct race flows in the veins of Harry Shirley, believed to be the last of the Nah-Dah-Ko Indians, who attained a degree of civilization as long as four centuries ago.

His father, Pat Shirley, was a white trader, but his mother was a Nah-Dah-Ko. With his white wife and two children, Shirley lives on a farm near Anadarko. He is fifty-five years old.

Virtual annihilation of the Nah-Dah-Kos was completed when Shirley was four years old, and his knowledge of the fate of his people is vague. The band, which was a branch of the Caddo tribe, was not great in numbers, and he believes it was annihilated in an internecine war when he was a child. He was taken to Texas by his father when hostilities broke out, and did not return until the war ended.

The town of Anadarko is named for the vanished tribe. Legend has it that the elder Shirley's Irish pronunciation of the tribal name was responsible for the corruption of the name from Nah-Dah-Ko to Anadarko. Although the present town was not founded until 1901, an Indian agency of the same name was located near here as early as 1858.

The original home of the Nah-Dah-Ko band was in Louisiana. Records of a Spanish explorer reveal that in 1542 the Indians lived in houses, farmed extensively and owned cattle. They were driven westward by the encroachment of the white man and gradually lost their identity through absorption into other tribes and losses in warfare.

New Diamond Fields Attract Farm Labor

Pretoria, Transvaal.—More than 60,000 Europeans and 120,000 natives are working on the newly discovered diamond fields in the Lichtenburg area, according to Dr. H. A. Lorentz, Dutch counsel general here.

The lure of lucky strikes is responsible for a great dearth of farm labor, and Lichtenburg farmers are bewailing the fact that kafirs cannot be induced to do farm work when they can earn 30 shillings a week in the diamond fields.

No less than 43 per cent of the diggers belong to the agricultural classes, and only nine per cent are diamond miners by trade.

Curious tales of fortune hunting abound. Some who believed they had the richest claims suffered disappointment, while, on the other hand, an old man who sat down when he saw he was being beaten in the race for claim pegging, dug where he sat and struck a rich patch.

In another case a digger cursed when he sprained his ankle, falling over a tuft of grass, but later discovered that he had fallen on a claim that is now panning out rich.

Find 100-Foot Worms Off California Coast

Berkeley, Calif.—Species of sea worms classified as "amazing creatures," some of which are said to be 100 feet long, have been seen and studied in the Pacific ocean near San Diego by Prof. W. R. Coe, Yale university, as guest research worker at the University of California, Scripps Institution of Oceanography, at La Jolla, he reports.

These remarkable sea denizens, known by the scientific name "nemerteans," have been examined by few biologists of the world. Doctor Coe is believed to be the only living scientist knowing much about them.

To zoologists the worms are especially notable for their length, some of the more common species extending a yard, their bodies being only a fraction of an inch in width. Certain of the nemertean species are reported to be longer than any known animal, 100 or more feet. Even the whale has not been found to reach quite that length, says Doctor Coe.

Soot From Smudge Pots Colors Gray Monuments

Toppenish, Wash.—Sextons are busy with sponge and camolis cleaning grave monuments after the sootfall from the smudge pots burned in central Washington to fight off frost. Polished granite has an affinity for heavy soot and most of the tombstones in cemeteries resembled charred tree trunks in fire-swept forests. The heavy smoke and soot did much temporary damage, but through it all the fruit and prosperity were both saved to the apple growers.

Honey Burden Weighs Down Roof of House

Gomshall, England.—There's so much honey in the roof of a Fifteenth-century farmhouse here, called "Cole Kitchen farm," that the ceiling of the room immediately underneath is giving way beneath the weight after 100 years' service as a gigantic beehive.

T. H. English, the owner, says nobody ever tried to get the honey because it would necessitate removing the roof.

In the warming season the place is smothered with bees.

Stepping Stones Can Be Made Decorative

Stepping stones were used largely from necessity in the colonial gardens, as they afforded the only kind of permanent walk available. At the same time, however, they contributed a decorative feature which modern gardeners are quick to appreciate.

Cement flagstones can easily be made by modern landscape architects and gardeners with most satisfactory results. In fact, if they are cast in place they have some advantages over natural stone. In the first place, the stones are always solid. The sod fits up closely around them, giving an appearance of mellow age which can only be obtained by waiting several years with natural stones.

It is a simple matter to cast them in place. To do so, one cuts four or five cardboard templates of suitable size and shape. These are laid on the lawn and marked around with a spade. Then the sod is excavated to a depth equal to the thickness of the finished stones—about three inches. Then the concrete is poured in the excavation and leveled off. This is repeated with the differently shaped templates until the walk is completed.

It is easy to make the surface of the cement resemble a worn flagstone. Find one single flat stone with irregularities in the surface; then impress this stone on the surface of the cement stepping stones while they are still plastic. A perfect replica in surface is the result.

A satisfactory mix for such stepping stones is one part cement to three parts of coarse sand.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Trellis Color Scheme Should Be Considered

Trellises if used on a porch may be supported at the top by the porch girder, but at the base it is necessary either to anchor to the masonry wall or to drive posts into the ground and nail the upright strips to these posts. Due to the weight of a large vine, trellises should be very rigidly supported to prevent them blowing down in heavy windstorms.

It is essential that any wood construction when used outside should be well painted for protection, but this is not all—paint in various color schemes adds much to the beauty of the structure. Much time can be saved by painting the lattice strips before they are fastened together. As a rule, white is the prevailing color for this class of work, but color schemes work out to advantage in many cases. The color scheme for trellises in many cases will harmonize if it is made the same as the house.

Gardening Real Sport

There can be few first golfers, but to any owner of a 50-foot lot may be given the skill and good fortune necessary to grow the finest vegetables in the neighborhood.

And the neighborhood in which estere is awarded to the best gardener, rather than the best golfer, need make no apology for its social standards. They are sound and will be lasting.

As a sport, gardening is superior to golf on every count. It is better for the health, especially in the case of elderly persons. In its intellectual and esthetic demands, it is incomparably superior.

Matter for Architect

The selection of materials is only one of the many important decisions which falls to the lot of the architect. There are times when the general design will permit a choice between several materials and selection is then made upon a comparison of the structural safety, permanence, fire resistance, cost and architectural flexibility. Each of these factors has a definite value for each operation, and it is within the architect's province to allot these values and so reach a decision.

Paint the Birdhouse

Birdhouses, usually placed so that they are peculiarly exposed to all inclemencies of the weather, should be painted very carefully with a good grade of outside house paint, and then, preferably, varnished with a good spar varnish. It is foolish to suppose that merely because a birdhouse is a very small article, it needs no surface protection. All destructible surfaces, exposed to wind and weather, require paint and varnish to preserve them.

Approves City-Manager Plan

The character and competence of public officials, together with an alert public interest in local government, are the factors that determine the efficiency of government. The size of the city is of minor consequence. It is significant that the manager plan encourages both a popular interest in government and the selection for public office of men of ability.—Kansas City Times.

Home Ownership Urged

Home ownership means high standards and thrift, and these make for self-respect, facilitate wholesome living and promote responsible citizenship. It is pointed out by Dr. James Ford, executive director of Better Homes in America, Inc.

Three National Capitals

The nation's capital was moved from New York to Philadelphia on December 1, 1790, for a period of ten years, ending December 1, 1800, prior to its removal to Washington. After the burning of the capitol during the War of 1812 a strong movement arose for removing the capital from Washington. In fear of such a result the local interests formed the Capitol Hotel company, and erected a building for government occupancy until the repairs on the capitol were finish. It was occupied from 1814 to 1819 and was afterward known as the "Old Capitol" and was used in the Civil war as a military prison.

Golf Instructions

An absolute beginner was tolling round the links wondering if the game was really worth while and vowing to his grizzled Scottish caddie, that this would be his last round.

"And what should I take now?" he asked a moment later, finding his ball in a terrible lie.

"Well, mon," replied the caddie, "you have three alternatives. For a start, you might take me and get me something to drink; secondly, you might take a' your clubs home and give up golf; thirdly, you might try throwin' the ball!"

Many Tales Told of Production of Pearl

Although pearls have an ancient history, the beliefs of how they are produced have been largely a matter of the imagination. These views have resulted in the production of some of the prettiest fairy tales that human imagination has achieved. It seems almost a pity that these must be replaced by the prosy findings of the science of today.

Some of the ancient tales date back for more than 5,000 years. Chinese history, where we are told that pearls were used to adorn not only favored human beings, but the images of their deities. One of their legends tells of a certain pearl so brilliant that its radiance made it possible to cook rice a hundred yards away. Mystic qualities are even now ascribed to pearls by the Chinese, for we find them prescribed by their old school doctors, crushed to a powder or dissolved in acid, as medicine.

They are mentioned in the Vedas, while the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the Koran all exalt them as symbols of beauty and purity. The Persians, long before Christ, valued them, as is shown by their medals and coins and actual pearls found in their burial places.—Exchange.

"Let's see, you had a novel published last fall, didn't you?" said his new acquaintance.

"Well, I thought it was a novel," replied the author with bitter recollection of many sarcastic reviews, "but it turned out to be a guyed book."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"SCAPEGOATS"

A VERY common word, familiar to everybody, to describe a person who is made to suffer or to carry blame for offenses for which others are at least partly responsible, is "scapegoat." The term had its beginning in a practice observed in Jewish antiquity.

The difference between the original scapegoat, however, and its modern counterpart is that the former escaped, whereas by the time today's scapegoat has earned the appellation he has usually been made to pay for the iniquity that has been heaped upon him!

The original "scapegoat" was a real goat, on whose head the ancient Hebrews on their Day of Atonement, symbolically placed their sins. After all had been relieved of their burdens of conscience and the transfer had been made to the goat, the animal would be released and permitted to escape into the wilderness! Hence our "scapegoat!"

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

ASHES AND LIVE COALS

IN SOME parts of the country there is a superstition to the effect that a maiden can ascertain the name of her future husband by the following means: When she goes to bed she should hang her undergarment upon the foot of the couch and place below it a board covered with ashes, saying:

Whoever my true love be,
Come write his name in these ashes for me.

The next morning the required name will appear upon the ash-covered board. Something of the same sort is recommended for those who fancy themselves in ill luck because of some sinister magical influence at work against them—such as being bewitched, or "overlooked," as they say. In this latter case no board or ashes should be used but a live coal dropped through the garment after it is taken off. The selection of a garment which has been worn next the body is because it has, according to the idea of primitive man, acquired by the magic of contact a share in the personality of the wearer so that it represents its owner in a very real way—is, in fact, a sort of second self. Therefore what affects it affects its owner. The ashes and the live coal are both relics of fire worship.

The second superstition mentioned is a common one in some rural sections and Elworthy says of it "that the burning coal may be a relic of fire-worship and so, on the other hand, a propitiatory act of sun-worship." But fire-worship would appear to be the simpler explanation.

The junior class was planning the annual, and very formal banquet, when they should entertain the seniors at a reception. In planning the menu the last course mentioned was demi-tasse.

Lesson for July 31

DAVID AND JONATHAN

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 18:1-4, 19:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT—There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Good Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—David and Jonathan.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing the Right Kind of Friends.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Obligations of Friendship.

The friendship of David and Jonathan has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan was the crown prince, the heir to the throne. David was heir according to the divine choice and arrangement. Jonathan knew this and magnanimously waived his natural personal rights to the one he knew God had chosen.

I. Friendship Established Between David and Jonathan (1 Sam. 18:1-4), 1. Love at Sight (vv. 2).

Following the interview of Saul and David after the victory over Goliath, Jonathan's soul was knit with that of David. He loved him as his own soul.

While there was mutual love, this pleasing trait stands out more prominently in Jonathan than in David because it meant great loss to him—the loss of the throne; while it meant immense gain to David, the acquisition of the throne to which he had no natural right.

2. Covenant established (vv. 3, 4). Following the love covenant between them, Jonathan stripped himself of his court robe and his equipment and gave them to David. This act was a virtual abdication of the throne to David.

II. Jonathan Defended David Against Saul's Frenzy (1 Sam. 19:1-7).

David went into the battle with Goliath out of zeal for God and true religion—not for personal glory, but it turned out as always that because he made God first, God honored him.

Upon David's return from victory over the Philistines, according to Oriental custom he was met by a triumphal chorus of women from all the cities of Israel chanting praises to him for his victory over their enemy. They ascribed more praise and honor to David than to Saul. These women seemed to sing as answering chants. The one sang, "Saul has slain his thousands," the other answered, "and David his ten thousands." To hear sung the praises of a shepherd boy surpassing his own was too much for Saul. It aroused murderous envy which had been slumbering in his heart and moved him twice to attempt to kill David. This wickedness was in his heart as a bitter feeling, but this occasion fanned it into a flame, making it a burning passion of evil.

In Saul's third attempt to kill David, Jonathan defended him before his father and evoked from him the oath that David should not be slain. He thus exposed himself to the anger of his infuriated father for David's sake.

III. Jonathan Revealed to David Saul's Murderous Intent (1 Sam. 20:30-40).

The beginning of the new moon was celebrated by sacrifices and feasting at which all the members of the family were expected to be present (v. 5). David's excuse for being absent was that he might go home to attend the yearly sacrifice of the entire family. The annual feast was more important than the monthly feast. Matters were now so serious that Jonathan and David renewed the covenant between themselves. In this renewal the terms were broadened beyond the life of Jonathan (vv. 14, 15). Saul's anger was now so fierce that for Jonathan to be found in David's company was most dangerous, so he cleverly planned a sign by which he could make known to David Saul's attitude and purpose. We prove our friendship by warning those who are exposed to danger. David's heart responded by pledging fidelity to Jonathan's seed forever. This pledge was faithfully carried out by David (II Sam. 9:7, 8). Concerning real friendship observe:

1. It should be made while both parties are young, when the hearts are capable of being knit together.

2. Real friends are few. We should be careful in the formation of friendships. For though we should love everybody we can have but few friends. Friendship should be formed for the purpose of helping each other. There can be no real friendship except where merit is on both sides.

3. Real friendship can only be with God-fearing people. Both David and Jonathan recognized their obligation to the Lord.

Satan on Watch

Prayer is the strategical point which Satan watches. If he can succeed in causing us to neglect prayer, he has won; for where communion between God and His people is broken, the true source of life and power is cut off.—Andrew Murray.

The Man at the Top

The man at the top is usually some one who has been in the habit of going to the bottom of things.—The Prospector.

HOW

"NOSE PRINTS" ARE USED TO IDENTIFY ANIMALS.—The loss of some valuable pedigreed live stock caused the owner to work out a plan of identification that has since been adopted by insurance companies as a measure of protection. It is the system of taking nose prints.

On several occasions thieves have made away with cattle, and have later tried brazenly to resell them in the vicinity of their original homes. And it has been found impossible to prove the correct ownership by ordinary methods of identification. With nose prints, however, positive proof of identity can now be given. For it has been found that the designs on the nose of a cow or bull do not change, but merely increase in size. And it has been proved that no two animals have the same markings.

In order to obtain a nose print, it is necessary to hold the animal's head firmly under one arm. Then wipe the nose well with a soft piece of flannel or rag. Then take an ordinary office stamping pad, rubbing it over the nose until the ridges are well inked. Next take a piece of nonenameled paper that has been securely fastened to a board and press it firmly against the nose, beginning with the lower part, and press it in a rolling fashion gradually upwards.

An insurance company recently used this method with success in connection with a claim.

How Temperature Is Affected by Trees

In a discussion of the effect of trees on temperature, Mr. W. B. Leach, city forester of New York, points out that if American streets and parks are well supplied with vigorous trees the summers would be cooler and the winters warmer. He gives as his chief reason for this theory the fact that the temperature of a tree never varies, in summer or in winter, from 54 degrees Fahrenheit. "If we cross one of the avenues on a hot day," states Mr. Leach, "when the temperature is 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and pass under the shade of a tree, we are refreshed by the cool air that meets us. What makes the change? Not the shade alone, but chiefly the fact that we are in the presence of a body that has a fixed temperature of 54 degrees Fahrenheit, or 46 degrees cooler than the street temperature." Likewise, on a cold winter day, in passing from the zero temperature of the street into a group of trees, the warmth experienced is due not only to the shelter afforded by the trees but to the warmth of the trees themselves.

How Sawmill Men "Talk"

To make themselves heard above the noise of the saws, workers at the mills have developed a curious sign language, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Rubbing the stomach signifies approval, "go ahead" or O. K. If the boss is about stroking the chin or combing an imaginary mustache gives warning. "Stop" is indicated by holding up one hand, palm forward; "sleepy," head to one side with hand against ear; "help wanted," right hand on muscle of left arm, which is bent to indicate strength; "it's raining" or "going to rain," hands spread out, palms down, while the fingers are worked to indicate falling drops; "talking too much," moving the hands to signify a wagging jaw; "disgust," holding the nose and waving the other hand at the offending object as if to say, "go away." The language changes very little except as modifications of machinery necessitate new "words," and the system is used with few variations in most large sawmills.

How Muskrat Acts as Host

Naturalists find frequent evidences of the habits of many water birds and other animals in using in one way or another the houses built by muskrats. Such water birds as the black tern, the mallard, canvasback and ruddy ducks, wild geese and green heron utilize muskrat houses as nesting places. But the most interesting encroachments of these numerous squatters upon the domiciles are those of water snakes and turtles, which sometimes may be said to make their homes in the houses of the muskrat.

How Russians Use Sugar

Sugar is costly and difficult to obtain in many isolated Russian villages. The usual way of employing it at parties is for No. 1 to take a piece of sugar, place it between his teeth, and then suck his tea through it. No. 1 quickly passes the piece of sugar to his neighbor who uses it in the same way and then transfers it to the next guest, and so on until the sugar is all dissolved. A gift of a pound of sugar is always welcomed as the highest expression of regard.

How Motor Coaches "Turn"

Motor coaches used at a railroad terminal in Jersey City are turned around on a turntable, which eliminates the difficulty of backing up and reversing direction in crowded quarters. The unit, much like those employed at railway shops, is easily turned by hand.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

WORLD OWES MUCH TO THE PURITAN

Tremendous Influence for Good of Humanity.

The following editorial, in London Tit-Bits, with its praise of "Puritanism" as a factor in the progress of the world, has called forth some criticism and much comment in the English press:

"Like everything that has life and individuality, words have their triumphs and tragedies, their ups and downs. A word which used to be ignoble becomes honorable; another which used to be noble becomes debased. Occasionally one can watch a word go wrong. Take the word 'puritanical' as an instance.

"Judging from letters and leaders in the daily papers, one would think that anything described as 'puritanical' was a mixture of tyranny, philistinism, intolerance, prejudice, narrow-mindedness, and a lot of other unpleasant things.

"So widespread seems this conception that one is led to wonder whether the history of our country is taught today, or, if it is, whether it is intelligently taught. For instance, is the history of our own country ever compared, step by step, with the history of any other, and results referred back to causes?

"We hear and read so much about the French revolution that we are apt to think it was the first of those revolts against intolerable tyranny which resulted in the rise and rule of democracy. Yet the fact is that there were two prior revolutions, the first in Britain and the second in America. Both these were Puritan revolutions.

"What accounts for the marked difference between the French and other similar revolutions, and the revolution under Cromwell and Hampden in England, and under Washington in America? This time, one word is sufficient answer: Puritanism.

"The French revolution, like the Russian, like the Chinese, like many in South and Central America, was an orgy of blood, and was followed by a recrudescence of tyranny which kept Europe in a welter of war and bloodshed for 20 years.

"In France Puritanism failed; in England and America it succeeded. Puritanism was a tremendous force in France before it was in England, but the revocation of the edict of Nantes, and the massacre of St. Bartholomew, either killed or exiled it. France took the wrong turning, and her world influence has been declining ever since. Read the history of the Eighteenth century and see.

"In this country the conditions which sent the Pilgrim fathers to lay the cornerstone of the United States of America in 1620 started the English revolution in 1640. Ever since, Puritanism, despite all signs to the contrary, has been a dominating influence in both countries. Moreover, it will be a sad day, for both when it ceases to be.

"Why? Because that serious-mindedness which has always been the ground plan of Puritanism, whatever the superstructure has assumed, is not only the most characteristic of British qualities, but it is the one without which there could not be that 'crowned republic' that modern miracle we know as the British empire; without which the unique influence of the English-speaking race could never have developed.

"Puritanism is certainly a brake on the wheel of folly. As such it is an annoyance to all who want to 'go the pace.' But even those who use the adjective 'puritanical' as a synonym for all that is dull, inert, reactionary, and stodgy would hesitate to sacrifice the qualities for which it stands, or to entrust the reins to the irresponsible hands of those who regard the pursuit of pleasure as the main occupation of life."

Real Way to Live

Like the majority of nature enthusiasts, a Detroit sportsman remarked the other day: "Until a man has roughed it in the wilderness for a while, getting as close to nature as civilized man can get, he doesn't know what it means to live, actually live and enjoy life. Sleeping on pine boughs with the sky for a ceiling, tramping miles in search of bear tracks, then making hearty meals of fish, partridge and venison, cooked in the simplest way, about five or six times a day according to the appetite, puts new life into a person and fits one out for another year of work which doesn't seem at all bad then."—Detroit News.

Long Life Planned

At long years of age Mrs. Sarah J. Stone of Denver, Colo., has donned overalls and is painting her two-story house. Three years ago Mrs. Stone was confined to bed with paralysis, and relatives had despaired of her life. But she recovered. "Painting a house is just a pastime," she said. "It's nothing compared to some of the things I will do by the time I've lived another eighty years."

The Conflict

George Ade, the incorrigible bachelor, was the life of a church supper in Brook.

"George," said a paterfamilias, "why don't you get married?"

Mr. Ade, as he helped himself to Maryland biscuit and fried chicken, answered calmly:

"Too proud to fight."—Chicago News.

PINEAPPLE IN THE SUMMER MENU

MENUS properly planned change with the season. Winter menus should fit one to resist the cold; summer menus enable one to be comfortable even though the temperature hovers around the nineties. Heavy puddings and most meats belong exclusively to the winter diet; whole grains, various kinds of cheese, vegetables and fruits are desirable during the whole year, but particularly in summer.

Pineapple is one of the most adaptable foods to the summer menu, as it may be served with meats, vegetables, and as an appetizer, a salad, a dessert or a drink. Canned Hawaiian pineapple proves a never-failing resource to the housewife who conscientiously endeavors to select the best food for her family. Consider in how many ways this luscious fruit can be used, as the following recipes will show.

Ice Cream Parfait: One pint or more of vanilla or fruit ice cream. Combing lightly with one cup of diced Hawaiian pineapple, add a cup of strawberries or raspberries. Garnish with whipped cream and serve at once.

Pineapple Snow: Place a layer of crushed pineapple in a shallow dish. Make jelly with the drained-off juice, using the proportion of gelatine required by your favorite brand. Pour half of this over the fruit. When the remainder is an egg beater until it is a stiff, snowy froth. Pour into the mold on top of the other gelatine; chill, and serve with cream.

Sally Lums Plus: Make any sort of plain, delicate cake batter—Cottage pudding will do—put into gem pans, and into the top of each press lightly a cube of Hawaiian canned pineapple. Bake in a moderate oven and serve with sauce made of the syrup from the pineapple.

Fruit Custard: Put one cup of milk in a double boiler. Add, stirring, yolks of two beaten eggs with one-third cup of sugar and a level teaspoon flour, and a pinch of salt. Stir until thickened, remove from the fire, flavor and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the two eggs. Cool, and pour into shallow glass pudding dish, and decorate the top with rings of pineapple. Serve cold.

Creole Compote: Lay slices of pineapple in a shallow, buttered glass baking dish. Fill holes with sugar. Place on each a halved peach, rounded side up, with a few cooked prunes in between. Sprinkle all with sugar, then pour over it the syrup drained from the fruits and bake half an hour. During the baking, sprinkle with almonds. Serve with cream.

Pineapple Sundaes: Mix one cup each of crushed Hawaiian pineapple, sugar and water. Boil fifteen minutes, chill and serve on vanilla ice cream.

Salads are a frequent item on summer menus, and pineapple can be depended upon to transform the plainest salad into one that may be used on any formal or company occasion. Add a ring of pineapple, for instance, to a plate of lettuce and sliced tomato, putting the tomato slices in a design of three or four on a bed of lettuce, and the ring of pineapple in the center, the hole in the ring filled with mayonnaise, and a walnut set on top. Immediately the salad has become more substantial, more attractive, more formal. The following additional salad recipes will prove valuable to the housewife.

Luncheon Salad: Add one-quarter cup cold water to two teaspoons gelatine. When the gelatine has softened, add one and a half cups boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add one-quarter cup sugar and cool. Add one cup crushed Hawaiian pineapple, three-quarters cup diced celery and one-half cup of walnut meats broken into pieces. Pour into mold and set in a cold place until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Pineapple and Cucumber Salad: Thoroughly drain one cup of crushed pineapple. Mix with one cup finely diced cucumber, and add mayonnaise to moisten well. Arrange on lettuce and garnish with strips of red pimiento.

Cookies and small cakes are always in demand with ice cream or with fruit drinks at afternoon teas, or at a simple luncheon or supper. The following is one of the daintiest of these confections.

Pineapple Cookies: Beat one egg, add slowly one-third cup sugar, one-fourth cup of chopped walnuts, one-half cup thoroughly drained crushed pineapple, and one-half cup flour that has been mixed and sifted with one-quarter teaspoon salt and two teaspoons baking-powder. Drop by spoonfuls on an inverted greased pan and bake in a moderate oven twenty to thirty minutes.

Small Pineapple Cakes: Cream one-half cup of shortening and one cup sugar until light, and add two well beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift two cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, and four level teaspoons baking-powder. Add this mixture alternately with three-fourths cup syrup drained from canned pineapple. Fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in cup cake tins or in deep muffin pans in a moderate oven. Put pineapple icing on top of each.

Pineapple Icing: Beat two egg whites to a stiff froth. Add two cups sifted powdered sugar and three-fourths cup well-drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Beat well and add additional powdered sugar until the mixture holds its shape.

FIGURES OF ANNUAL LOSS BY EROSION

Stupendous Problem Nation Must Solve.

While the flood with its tremendous damage "makes the front page" there is another loss of millions of dollars going on every year to which few pay any attention.

Two hundred million dollars a year washed away! One hundred and twenty-six billion pounds of plant food wasted annually!

This is the story that H. H. Bennett tells in Nature Magazine called "Forests, Anchors of the Hills." He sets forth the facts of a problem that demands nation-wide activity. Thousands of farmers are trying to eke out existence on poverty-stricken soil that is gripped by the force of erosion. Little help can be given them because funds and specialists are needed to learn what best can be done.

A conservative estimate of the era of land formerly cultivated in the United States and now permanently destroyed for farming purposes by erosion is not less than thirteen million acres, Bennett writes. But this destroyed area does not represent the worst features of erosion.

The slower type of land wastage known as sheet erosion is the real evil genius. By this process every rain heavy enough to cause water to flow takes its toll of soil, and takes it from the top, the richest part of the field. Rain water does not run away from cultivated hillsides as crystal-clear liquid, but rather as a turbid mixture of soil and water.

In this manner it is estimated that each year not less than 120,000,000,000 pounds of plant food material, washed from cultivated fields and pastures, are carried into the sea or deposited upon slopes and over valley bottoms where it is not needed.

Our agriculturists have devoted a vast amount of work to the problem of replenishing the plant food removed from the soil by cropping, and have given but little attention to the far more serious problem of erosion.

Certainly erosion removes from our fields more than 20 times as much plant food material as is lost in crop production, and little is being done

To solve the problem, the article says. Furthermore, the crops take the elements of plant food, something which can be restored; but erosion takes the whole soil, which cannot be restored.

Annually our farmers are losing at least $200,000,000 by erosion. The actual loss to the nation is far greater than this; it is incalculable. As a soil is worn down it becomes less productive, not at a uniform rate, but at a progressively increasing rate. After the removal of the forest mold, the mellow top soil goes, exposing raw subsoil, usually clay which is less fertile and more difficult to till. After this comes the bed rock on which neither trees nor tilled crops can be grown.

His Condition

"As old age approaches," said Audrey's Uncle Dobb, "and the virility of the victim begins to wane, the strength of his vanity increases. He begins to fancy that he is just as young as he used to be, and that all the girls are after him. He seeks the company of young persons and gigglingly bores them with his wearisome reminiscences of how 'soopie' he used to be. He illustrates it by trying to dance a breakdown and breaks his leg in the attempt. He dyes his hair and fools nobody but himself. According to his own story the widders nearly mob him with their attentions, when in reality they are merely laughing at him behind his back. He could jump farther, run faster and leap higher than any of his opponents when he was young and—"

"Yes," replied little Audrey, with a merry laugh. "It's h—l to be old, isn't it, Uncle Dobb?"—Kansas City Star.

Standardized Dwellings

According to German papers, American financiers are backing a big housing development in Berlin, which is to begin with the erection of 14,000 dwellings. These will be built on the quantity production plan, from standardized parts.

It is not specifically stated that these parts and the accessories are to be delivered on a belt and assembled in rows of a specified number of houses a day, but that is the general impression conveyed by the prospectus.

Each tenement is to consist of a kitchen, a living room with 20 square meters floor area, two other rooms with 16 square meters floor area, a small bedroom with eight square meters floor area, and a bathroom, and is to rent for $300 a year, including heat and hot-water service.—Living Age.

THE ESSENTIALS

Mr. S. Lowe Scribbler, the great novelist, was in a very bad temper. "Bless my aunt!" he shrieked to his open-mouthed wife, as she stood in the doorway. "Every time I try to settle down and do a spot of work I find that somebody has been meddling with my materials!"

"What's missing now, dear?" asked the wife.

"That new detective novel I bought and my tobacco jar," he growled.

GOOD RESULTS, OR BETTER RESULTS?

Why be satisfied with only fair results, when a better, higher-priced Laying Mash will be more profitable? The extra eggs and better health more than make us for the difference. Quality feeds cost more and are worth more. Think it over. Try Reindollar Laying Mash.—Reindollar Bros. & Co. 7-29-tf

Fixing Prices.

It is a common belief among farmers in our country, that in all products except those grown on the land the producer sets the price and the consumer has to pay it. Farmers generally feel that the middleman sets the price the farmer receives, and that the consumer has to pay the price, to the detriment of all. There is some truth in all these statements, but just about the same amount for all classes. Take employers of labor: Recently a New England cotton mill shut down leaving 10,000 hands out of work, the market for cotton goods slumping. The manufacturer was forced to close because the public was refusing to pay what it cost him to turn out the manufactured article. The simple truth is, the manufacturer does not fix the price of his product more than the farmer, and neither of them can get more for their stuff than the public is able or willing to pay.—The Manufacturer.

Taneytown 12—Sabillasville 0.
Taneytown 10—Westminster 5.
Taneytown 19, Waynesboro 6.
Taneytown 6—Hagerstown 0.
St. John's Frederick 3—Taneytown 2
Taneytown 8—Littlestown 6.

Frederick 3—Taneytown 2.

What was likely the best all-around game that will be played on the home ground this year, was that of Saturday when the home team lost to Frederick, St. John's, 3 to 2. The game throughout was largely a battle between pitchers, Utz having the best of it in strike-outs and gave no passes to first; but Shipley, the Frederick left-hander, proved his ability by holding the locals to 5 hits.

The score until the 8th. inning stood 2 to 0 in favor of Taneytown. Then the home boys bunched three errors on sharp plays, letting in two runs, evening the score.

In the 9th. Steele for the visitors rapped out what seemed to be a foul bouncer along first base-line that at best was not good for over two bases; but as Seibert, left field thought the hit foul, he did not make a strong effort to get the ball with the result Steele trotted home, the umpire's decision being "fair ball."

It was a pleasure to lose a game to such a fine lot of ball players as the St. John's boys, and they would be welcomed again on our grounds.

Taneytown 8—Littlestown 6.

Taneytown won from Littlestown, on Wednesday, 8 to 6. The visitors played a strong game until in the 8th. when the score stood 6 to 4 against the home team with two hands out. Then the first baseman dropped an easy infield pop, allowing a run to score. After that, pitcher DeVine lost control, and two other runs were scored on a hit, and one on a base on balls when the bases were filled, thereby giving the home team a game that it deserved to lose. We will let the score tell the rest of the story.
