

COMMUNITY FAIR IN SHRIVER'S GROVE.

Annual Event that is Growing in Importance.

"Approximately 5,000 found their way to Shriver's Grove, near Emmitsburg, to attend the fifth annual gathering and picnic of the Emmitsburg Community Association.

From a little "get-together" gathering five years ago for the farmers of this district to talk over co-operation the affair has turned out to be in a way a miniature county fair. With such a large attendance today the picnic is no longer an experiment, but a real institution.

One of the big features was the tournament, bringing back a sport that flourished before the advent of the automobile. Professional, amateur and farmer prizes were awarded. Horsemanship is still in vogue, as these mountaineers demonstrated. Foot races and a baseball game were other events.

The exhibits in poultry and hogs attracted the attention of the tillers in this section and the competition for the blue ribbons was keen.

Outside of the Frederick county fair the event held here was conceded one of the best arranged in this section."

A Shaw Family Reunion.

Some of the members of one of the oldest families of Carroll County held a "Get-together Meeting" at Piney Creek, Sunday, Aug. 21, 1927. These were a few of the descendants of William and Susan Shaw. A motor trip from Washington, Baltimore and West Arlington, through the fertile and beautiful farm lands of Maryland, was one of the most enjoyable features of the day.

The old Shaw homesteads, at present known as the George K. Dutcher and George I. Harman homes, were visited. Old Father Time was forgotten; and youthful recollections of many were renewed in rambles through the grounds and buildings of these old land-marks.

The family then proceeded to Piney Creek Church. Sacred memories were made green again in this background of peace and beauty, when the tombs of their forefathers were visited and decorated. The sixth generation of the family was represented, and were present among the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Waesche, and Mrs. Jesse Kernan, Mrs. G. M. Morrison, Miss Elizabeth Morrison, Mrs. Carrie V. Chipley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaw Waesche, Mr. Frank Shaw Waesche, Jr., Mrs. Nola Biscoe, Miss Eleanor Biscoe, Miss Claire Biscoe, Master Robert Biscoe, all of West Arlington; Mrs. Ella Baugh, of Danville, Va.; Mr. W. E. Shaw, Miss Marian Shaw, and Mrs. Mary Stovall, of Baltimore; Mrs. J. Dan Blackstone, Mr. Shaw Blackstone and Mrs. Ralph Smith, all of Washington, D. C.

Those not of the immediate descendants who were also present, were Miss Emma Jim Smardon, of Baltimore; Mrs. Harry Reck, of Taneytown; Mrs. Charles E. Myers, Miss Virginia Myers and Miss Mildred Myers, of Gettysburg, Pa.

Spiritual Conflict Between God and the World.

(For the Record).

In primitive times, the spirit of God aimed to convince the world that it needed Christ; in these modern times, the spirit of the world, through infidelity, atheism evolution and idolatry, aims to convince it that it can get along very well without Christ, and from what we see and read it is making great progress.

The spirit of God witnesses to believers that all their needs are fully supplied in Christ; that they are dependent on the world for nothing, and that their place is outside the worldly system. We now notice where Rev. John Haynes Holmes has stated that the Bible is a useless book. Christ did not rise, the New Testament Psychology is hopeless, and its morals outworn.

Then this learned man outlines the religion of the future as one that will have nothing to do with Christ, or any other individual, prophet, or creed. Now, if this learned Dr. would search the Scriptures, he will find that not "one jot" of the Sacred Law or of the obligations to obey it, shall be done away, nor shall any part of the ceremonial law, until its end is accomplished.

Our nation is fast drifting into infidelity, atheism, evolution and idolatry. There is very little effort on the part of our wise men to uphold the Sacred Word of God, or Christ.

"I've stood more from that man than from any other person in the world—except my wife, of course," said an old man the other day.

MORE OLD BIBLES

Other Reports will be made as they Are Handed in.

(There were two unfortunate errors in dates of Bibles in our last issue, in both cases a 9 being used wrongly in place of an 8. The Englar Bible should have been 1809, and the first of the Birnie Bibles 1834. The errors of course were very apparent, and no doubt all readers understood them.—Ed.)

Mrs. Anna L. Babylon, Frizellburg, has two English Bibles, one dated 1831 and the other 1840.

Mrs. Theresa S. Forney, near Taneytown, reports the following: an English book of seven sermons, by L. Russell, published in 1806, the first being on the "Unpardonable Sin"; a German Psalm book 1785, the music being in queer looking notes, the latter part being prayers; a German Hymn Book 1797, both books being bound in leather with clasps; also a "Book of Devotion for the Lutheran Church," 1792, having hymns, and readings for the principal days of the year. It is in excellent condition.

Mrs. Carroll N. Cover, Detour, reports a German Bible (Martin Luther translation) printed at Somerset, Pa., by Frederick Goeb, in 1813. A complete Bible, with each chapter a short summary, besides proper application to the five books of Moses, the high song of Solomon and prophecies of St. John.

Mrs. Samuel H. Mehning, Taneytown, has a leather covered pocket Bible, in fine condition, with extension edges and strap fastener; also containing the Psalms in verse. Printed by Alexander Kincaid, His Majesty's printer, Edinburgh, 1770. This Bible is gilt-edged—the only one of the kind so far reported—and likely a very rare specimen.

Mrs. Grant Yingling, Taneytown, has a Bible which belonged to her mother, printed by Case-Lockwood Publishing Co., 1866, leather back in good condition.

We have had reports on numerous other old books, not Bibles, Testaments or Hymn books; but for the present we want to confine publicity to books of the above classes. Any others will be published as the information is received.

Emmitsburg Removes Fountain.

The Emmitsburg fountain in the center of the square, is being torn away, and will likely be replaced by a "stop and go" signal. There was a time—before the advent of the automobile—when the fountain was an attraction, and it was kept in trim with flowers and a sparkling flow of water; but in recent years it has had to stand the battering of reckless drivers of cars, until it had become a ruin of concrete and junk.

Besides, the square itself is too small, in these days of motoring, to permit fast driven vehicles to navigate it safely, and the authorities wisely decided to subordinate sentiment to the new order of things by ordering its removal.

Information to Hunters.

We give the following, with reference to hunting, for the information contained, and not as an indorsement of hunting.

"There will be no open season on Reed birds in Maryland this year, due to the Federal regulations which closed the season indefinitely. No open season on yellow legs during 1927 and 1928.

The open season on Rail birds, Squirrel and Dove, is September 1st, with the exception in the counties of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Howard, and Baltimore the open season on Squirrel and Dove will not begin until November 10, therefore, it is unlawful to hunt Squirrel and Dove in these five counties, except between the date of November 10 and December 31, under a penalty of not less than $25.00 nor more than $100 for each offense. We will have a full Warden force in the field and any person found violating the game laws will be vigorously prosecuted.

United States Game Wardens will be assigned to the territories inhabited by Reed birds, and our State Wardens have been instructed to co-operate with the Federal Wardens in enforcing this feature of the law.

Persons hunting Squirrel and Dove in the counties where it is lawful to hunt same are warned not to molest game of other species. Bob-white and pheasant are very plentiful this season, however, we are well aware of the temptation to unscrupulous persons hunting Squirrel and Dove to kill other game while in the field. Persons reported violating this law will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. We also request and warn the Squirrel hunters not to kill rabbits during the closed season, which are also reported very plentiful this season.

Bag limit per day on Squirrel, 10; Doves 25; Rail Birds 25.

We sincerely solicit the co-operation of the sportsmen of Maryland in assisting us in the enforcement of the laws by compelling those sportsmen to abide by same who ordinarily would take undue advantage of killing game during closed season."

A WARNING AGAINST THE WHEAT SMUT

Farmers Urged to Treat all Seed Before Planting It.

The Baltimore Chamber of Commerce has sent out a warning letter, and also asking newspapers to co-operate toward the prevention of further increase in wheat smut, that has affected about 65 percent of the wheat that has reached Baltimore this year.

The circular urges the need of properly treating seed wheat before sowing, and says "No farmer should plant this Fall without first treating the seed whether he had smut in his wheat this year or not."

"The cost of treating this seed is most trivial when compared to the loss to the farmer in the reduced price he obtains for a crop infected with smut. Inspections at Baltimore this year show that 65% of this year's crop contains smut to an extent that cost the farmers on an average of about 12c per bushel."

The County Agent is prepared to render assistance, and Farm Bureaus will be able to provide the material required for treatment. Grain buyers also will be in a position to give valuable information. This is a very serious matter, and no farmer should neglect to use every means possible to produce a clean crop for next year, and this must be done at the planting.

Paragraph for Farmers.

The full natural sweetness of the sweet potato develops only after a period of storage, the sweetness being due primarily to the presence of sucrose, or cane sugar, which is formed during this period.

A profitable way of marketing farm timber is for the owner to cut and haul the products to market himself. This provides winter employment for hired help and teams, and enables the owner to obtain profits that would otherwise go to the purchaser of standing timber.

Painting at regular intervals is the cheapest way to keep buildings and implements in good condition. The building materials widely used today, such as yellow pine, cast iron, and the more common steels, deteriorate rapidly on exposure, and need frequent painting. Even sheet iron that has been tinned or galvanized, to prevent rusting, usually should be painted because of imperfection in the coating.

Notwithstanding the growing importance of the specialized poultry flock and of the commercial farm flock, the general farm flock is still the backbone of the poultry industry from the standpoint of volume of production. The farm flock, though ordinarily small and only one of a number of farm activities, in the aggregate makes up more than 80 percent of the total egg production.

Milk is one of the most complete and easily digested foods for chickens. Besides its food value, it is also a great appetizer. When chickens are fed milk they eat more other feed. Milk also serves as a regulator of the chickens' digestive systems and tends to keep them in good condition.

Calves kept together in a large pen are difficult to feed by hand unless tied. When they are loose the milk often is spilled, and the larger calves get part of the smaller ones' share.

Very simple stanchions may be constructed to prevent losses of milk and insure the equal distribution of the feed. To prevent the calves from sucking one another, it is best to keep them in the stanchions for some time after feeding. Calf stanchions are usually 36 to 40 inches high with spaces 4 to 5 inches wide for the calves' necks. Allow from 2 to 2½ ft. between the calves.

Although spring and fall are the favorite seasons for outside painting, it may be done in either summer or winter if necessary. Outside painting can be done whenever the surfaces are dry and the weather not damp, frosty, or freezing, and the temperature preferably between 60 and 80°F. New wooden buildings need a priming coat of paint as soon as the weather permits, finishing coats being added the next month or two. Tinned roofing should be painted as soon as laid, while galvanized sheet iron may be allowed to weather for a year, usually with no injurious effects, to give paint a better foot hold.

Baseball not Profitable.

County town and small town baseball is not profitable to the managers, because the cost of supporting a team is greater than the income in many instances. In Waynesboro, Pa., $3000 has to be raised to enable the team to finish the season. In Hanover, the Club was about $1700. short, last week, and had decided to play Sunday games, when the ministers of the place agreed to assist in raising the necessary funds.

These are only a few recent instances—the same experience is pretty general—And this is the fact, notwithstanding that aside from the gate receipts, all teams are heavily financed by private subscriptions, largely from the business men of the club towns.

All of which means that unless towns support their teams with more attendance the game is likely to die down. Even the large city league teams—many of them—could not exist if wealthy men did not finance them.

CARE OF HEADLIGHTS

Car Owners Should Carefully Keep Lights Clean.

Motorists must pay the same attention to the condition of their car's headlights that is given to the gasoline tank and the oil in the crankcase, if the glaring headlight evil is not to add considerably to the list of highway casualties during the night-driving season now at its zenith in all parts of the country.

This is the warning issued by national headquarters of the American Automobile Association, which points out that the full co-operation of every motor car owner is imperatively needed to abate this serious evil.

Agencies of all kinds, particularly motor clubs, are giving their utmost attention to the solution of the headlight problem, says the statement but, in final analysis, the issue is up to the 22,000,000 car owners of the nation.

"Headlight equipment can be improved, motor clubs may provide free headlight clinics and develop standards, cities and towns may provide official stations where headlights can be adjusted without cost to the car owner, laws may be adopted requiring headlights to meet certain non-glare specifications, police departments may wage intensive campaign against careless motorists, but all of these steps will fall short of the desired end unless the individual is made conscious of his tremendous responsibility," says Thomas P. Henry, president of the National motoring organization.

"It is difficult to understand the attitude of thousands of motorists on this question," he adds. Every user of the streets and highways of the country is conscious of the evil, but many go on for years unconscious of their own dangerous contribution to it. The individual objectifies the condition. He denounces the other man's lights and does not see the menace of his own."

Every car owner should have a regular time for inspecting the car's lighting equipment, the A. A. A. points out. This period will vary, of course, with the kind, condition and quality of the lighting devices on the car. Even the best of equipment will get out of adjustment if the car is driven at high speeds over rough roads or streets. This being true, it follows that many headlights almost constantly are in need of attention, the statement declares.

"Inside" Information for Women.

Because of the opening of school and college, the month of September seems to many people like the real beginning of a new year. Why not start a budget if you are not already living on the budget plan?

Tin darkens with use, and this tarnish protects the tin. Therefore tin utensils should not be scoured simply for the sake of making them bright. When food dries or burns on tin utensils it may be removed by heating a weak soda solution in the pan and then washing it thoroughly.

Change the kind of bread you use from time to time. Instead of always serving white bread, have whole wheat, rye, raisin or date bread once in a while; make rolls of different kinds, corn bread, baking powder biscuits, muffins, hominy or graham gems, corn sticks, corn pones, or oven toasts.

To get iron rust stains from an enamel sink, bleach them with a solution of oxalic acid. Repeat until the stain disappears, then rinse thoroughly.

The reason it is better for a child to learn to eat cereals and fruit without sugar is that many sweet foods spoil the appetite for other foods that are needed, and by adding sugar to everything a taste for sweet foods is needlessly developed. Any candy or sweet foods should be given, sparingly at the end of a meal.

Cook a sprig of mint with new peas, a few grains of curry with lima beans, a bay leaf with tomato.

Salt and sweet, judiciously used, is a good combination of flavors. Sweet potatoes go well with ham, tongue, and other smoked meats. Many sweet pickles are brined before they are made into pickle. Jelly and spiced preserves are good with ham or cooked beef. Some people like both sugar and salt on a cantaloupe. Serve saltine crackers with a fruit salad.

Windfall and imperfect apples can be made into apple sauce and canned for winter use. Do not add any more water than is necessary to keep the apples from burning. Sweeten to taste, pack hot, and process in the water bath for 5 minutes.

E. O. Grimes, Jr., Paroled.

Governor Ritchie has paroled E. Oliver Grimes, former attorney, and resident of Westminster and Baltimore, from completing the full term of two years in the Maryland House of Correction, he having served about one year. The act for which Mr. Grimes was convicted was selling a property for a client for $1500, and keeping the money, which amount was made good by friends but the Court declined to suspend the sentence.

The parole commissioner recommended the parole on the ground that Mr. Grimes' wife needs his support, and because he is said to be in poor condition physically; also since he has already been disgraced as an attorney, and the amount of the defalcation made good, circumstances seem to lead to the conclusion that he has been sufficiently punished.

The Youth's Companion, for many years published as a weekly, will change to a monthly periodical, Sept. 1st.

NEW COUNTY AGENT HAS BEEN SELECTED

County Commissioners Confirm Appointment of Mr. L. C. Burns.

On Tuesday Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension Service, conferred with the Board of County Commissioners over the appointment of a county agent to succeed E. K. Walrath, whose resignation becomes effective September 1st. After looking over the field for available man, Dr. Symons said that he had selected Mr. L. C. Burns, of Thurmont, for the position. He stated that Mr. Burns was raised on a farm and had done exceptionally good work at the University of Maryland from which he was graduated in 1922. Since that time Dr. Symons stated he had been in charge of vocational work at Emmitsburg and Thurmont, Frederick county.

County Agent Walrath was also present and told the Board of Commissioners that he considered the appointment of Mr. Burns a fortunate choice, because he felt that Mr. Burns was capable of conducting Extension work in the county, and that he knew he would follow out the lines of work started in the county. After conferring with Mr. Burns the Board of Commissioners ratified his appointment. They also expressed their appreciation to Mr. Walrath for the work he has done in the county, and their gratification that he would continue to have his residence in Westminster while carrying on his new line of work in making a field study of the fertilizer problems in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Dr. Symons told the Board of Commissioners that the damage caused by stinking smut of wheat this year, is so serious that Mr. Burns will spend the most of his time during September and October in carrying on the wheat smut control campaign inaugurated by County Agent Walrath. Several meetings will soon be held over the county to demonstrate the use of copper carbonate dust. Working models of two types of barrels have already been placed on exhibition at the office of the county agent in the Times building. Practically all of the grain dealers in the county have been furnished with literature and are taking active steps to secure copper carbonate dust so that the farmers can get the material to treat their seed wheat before seeding.

Dr. E. N. Cory, State Entomologist has notified County Agent Walrath that a survey of the Hessian Fly situation has been completed in Carroll County. Twenty-nine percent of the wheat stubble in the county has been found to be infested with Hessian Fly larval or "flaxseed." If conditions are favorable for the hatching out of these Hessian flies, and wheat, either sown or volunteer, is available for the flies to lay their eggs upon, there is certain to be severe damage to next year's wheat crop. The remedy according to Dr. Cory is "destruction of all volunteer wheat, the early and thorough preparation of the seed bed and, then, finally and most important, the delaying of sowing until after the best known safe date of seeding. These are for points in and near the county."

Paying the Printer.

Secretary A. R. Martin, of the Bradner Smith Paper Company, in a recent address to the Chicago Federation of Printers, pointed out some of the defects in printers' methods of doing business. His comments apply both to large and small printers.

"No matter how much care might be used in extending credit, credit losses frequently occur because of the failure on the part of the printer properly to follow up his collections," Mr. Martin said. "In that connection, it is surprising to find how many printers there are who have no set terms of payment."

"Supply houses could not successfully operate if there were no set terms, and how can the printer? Surely he is placed at a disadvantage in collecting accounts if there exists no understanding as to terms, or if the printer fails to show any terms on his statements or invoices."

"We are told very frequently by printers that they are afraid to ask for their money from certain customers for fear of losing future business. Then, too, I think the printer's collection approach is all wrong. He asks his pay because he has a payroll to meet, because a paper jobber or some other creditor wants his money, or the rent is due, or a variety of other excuses are made for the requests of settlement, but seldom is the request for payment put on the dignified basis that the account is due and therefore should be paid."

Rat Trap Catches Bluejay.

A woman in New Jersey was fined $25.00 for violating the game laws of the state, when a bluejay was caught in a rat trap on her property without any collusion on her part. She paid the fine under protest, saying she could not stand and "shoo" all the birds away from the traps. Her attorney has entered an appeal.

MAN FOUND DROWNED

In Little Pipe Creek Outside of New Windsor.

Peter G. Sheppard, aged 61 years, formerly a prominent business man of Uniontown, Pa., was found drowned in Little Pipe Creek, last Saturday evening. He had left for a walk, and was last seen alive standing on the bridge on the public road, where the stream passes. No explanation of the drowning has been given for publication.

When he did not return to the home of Mrs. Hallie Graves, a relative, where he and his wife were stopping, a search was made and the body was found lying in the stream, face downward, in about two feet of water. It was not considered, necessary to hold an inquest as there were no signs of violence found.

Mr. Sheppard was a prominent citizen of Uniontown, Pa., and was president of a Trust Company of that city until last January when he retired because of ill-health. He was a thirty-second degree Mason.

The Truck and the Bus.

For short hauls of less than carload freight in city or country, the motor truck provides cheaper and prompter transportation than the railroad train, especially when the cost of crating and packing and collection and delivery service are considered, it is pointed out in an analysis of this question by the Committee on Economics of Railway Operation, at the recent annual convention of the American Railway Engineering Association.

"In retail transportation it is pre-eminent; in wholesale transportation, measured either by bulk or by distance hauled, it is out of place and in its unregulated state a menace to rail carriers," the Committee continues. "It is probably not as serious a factor as the passenger car, because speed and economy govern its use, while in the case of the passenger car, novelty and pleasure enter in, to a large degree."

"The field of the truck is limited in the same way as that of the motor coach. There can never be sufficient traffic to be moved, in bulk or over long distances, to warrant the two parallel services save as a temporary expedient. Rail facilities should be expanded, if necessary; to handle all of this business that is offered. Of course it is true that a sudden emergency, such as a war or a serious labor difficulty, may temporarily force wholesale freight traffic onto the highway."

"In the case of motor coaches, however, it is recognized that situations may exist where parallel services, covering relatively long distances, are justified and should be maintained. Generally speaking, the fields of the truck and the bus are the same and the attitude of the railroads toward the truck should be similar to their attitude toward the bus; assisting it in its legitimate field, using it as an ally where it should be used and opposing it elsewhere."

More Care for Unfortunates a Crying Need.

There are not enough Homes for the Aged in this State, and not enough places where the helpless or physically infirm are taken care of. There is too big a gap between the Hospitals and Church and Fraternity Homes, on the one side, and the Alms Houses on the other; and there should be Hospitals where the poor can have treatment and surgical operations at prices which they can afford to pay.

In these days, those who are poor, or in very limited financial circumstances, are in a bad fix when age, sickness or accident comes along. Our Alms Houses, or County Homes, are not fit places for many of our unfortunates; and it is often the case that persons of both sexes reach this class who should not be disposed of along with tramps and the general derelict classes.

Some states are meeting this question through a pension system, and the churches in the cities, through their Inner-Mission and Settlement work, are taking the best care they can of the poor and down-and-out; but, it seems to us that we do not have enough state supported Homes and Hospitals.

Our appropriations of public money are running too much toward the higher educational institutions, and perhaps toward purely denominational institutions of various kinds, and not enough toward the care of the needy general public. We are spending too much, in a public way, for pleasure travel, for big buildings and showing off; and not enough for those who fall by the wayside. Our Good Samaritanism is distinctly on the side of those who should themselves be Good Samaritans.

And, conditions among our poor are becoming worse, and these are as sure to meet with sickness, disabilities of various kinds, and death, as well as the more fortunate financially. High prices and high living costs are reaching more and more people every year who are unable to meet them, and who are not responsible for them. So, it seems to us that the state must widen its beneficent institutions. Human beings of the unfortunate classes are entitled to decent consideration.

Help From the Government.

Any interest, in order to receive public attention, must use some sort of force—organized force. Sometimes this force is used through political or class strength in the form of votes; and this we call "representing constituents" when the thing demanded is furnished through legislation. These "interests" in politics have a great deal to do with legislation, but perhaps not nearly so much as some twenty-five years ago.

The evidence of their past success, however, has increased organizations and special interests, all appealing to the government for help of one kind or another. Should all of the various interests be identical along broad lines not much is to be said against them, as they would largely represent legislation for the majority by the majority.

However, there is a strong public sentiment against the government either going into business itself, or favoring others, because it is next to impossible that either can be engaged in without objectionable features—inference with somebody's private business, extending into favoritism, or "class" legislation.

The position of the farmers organizations at present is largely that the business of farming has not received the consideration of the government that some other large interests have received, and it looks now as though organized farming is pretty sure to win at least some of its demands, even though the farmers do not fully agree among themselves as to what government aid they should have.

Following the satisfying of the farmers, there is sure to be another somewhat like demand for the consideration of another very large class who apparently would pay the cost of greater profit for farming—the class that stands in between manufacturers and farmers, and who are not included in any of the groups of organized labor—the month and day workers, salesmen, small mechanics, clerical help, the professional classes those who live on fixed incomes and a large body of "in betweens" difficult to classify, and make up by far the largest single class in this country.

Taking the broad view—which is very difficult to take clearly—there is needed an equalization, as nearly as possible, of what we call "prosperity" before the ideal condition can be reached. Prosperity by force, or at the expense of somebody's superior strength over the weakness of another, is not fair prosperity. All classes no doubt mean only to be fair, but just the same their fairness is strongly tinged with selfishness, because human nature is so constructed.

It is therefore humanly impossible to secure, by legislation, or any other power, the ideal social status wherein all classes will be satisfied, happy, and prosperous. The best that can be expected in the near future, or at any time, is, that only reasonably fair attempts will be made at class legislation, and that the strength of force be not magnified into a virtue that cannot exist as long as it means hardship for some other class. In getting "our share" we are quite apt to be none too scrupulous about not getting into somebody else's share.

Free Speech and Lawlessness.

The danger in connection with the attitude of many great eastern newspapers against Prohibition and the enforcement of the liquor laws, lies not so much on the influence they have with the best people, but with the influence that "Against the law" utterances carries to anarchistic and general low moral characters.

Disrespect for the Constitution and for the Courts can not with safety be disseminated; and this makes it a real danger for ill-balanced men in editorial chairs, to hand out, almost as a daily grist, a lot of ridicule and smart sarcasm against both laws and men, that are as high above these writers in purpose and character as are the heavens above the earth.

Mere "smartness" in the use of language fools only the ignorant and viciously inclined, and lends them boldness. And yet, the "freedom of the press" is held as an American untransferable liberty. But, while we license dogs we shoot the rabid ones; and while we permit the sale of dynamite, we penalize its criminal use; and this should be the way with "the freedom of the press"—it should be free, only when used decently, and always with respect for courts and the laws. When our freedom of speech and action encourages lawlessness, it is time to call it by its right name.

William G. McAdoo, in an address at the University of Virginia said that lawless liberty is not freedom, but anarchy, and that all liberty must be restrained to the point where it is compatible with the liberty of all. He continued;

"There cannot be private rights in any proper sense of the term except as they are defined and determined by the community acting through its appropriate organs. Whenever a question arises, for example, concerning the relations of public utilities, the prevention of fraudulent security issues, the protection of the health of women and children or the control of traffic in habit forming drugs and beverages, the first and greatest obstacle to be overcome is almost sure to be argument that what ever might otherwise be of valid exercise of the state's police power, is a wrongful invasion of private rights".

The Employee and the Railroad.

It is in no sense a paternalistic attitude which has led the railroads in the past few years to devote more thought to the welfare and prosperity of their employees. From the standpoint of interesting the men in the company by which they are employed, a number of steps almost unknown a decade ago have been evolved. Employee magazines, for instance, are a part of every railroad organization. In these, while the fact is not always emphasized that the welfare and prosperity of the company are based largely upon the loyalty, energy and economy of its men and women, as well as that the continuity of employment of the latter is predicted largely upon the prosperity of their company, the thought is left with the reader that such is obviously one of the purposes behind him. Social clubs, too, as well as organizations for men and women employed in a special craft or department, tend also to enthrone the worker in his vocation and to make of him a better employee.

Among the railroads, the employees have been urged to solicit business for their companies. The fact that numerous trains have been discontinued in recent years because of a falling off in traffic due to motor competion, has made it a particularly easy matter to encourage the train service employees to work for more business, since it is a question of the individual's own employment in some cases, while in others the reduction in travel may cause those now occupying better runs to be demoted to the less desirable tours of duty. Then, also, prizes for economy in fuel consumption, either in the form of cash or the equivalent of a journey to a national convention devoted to such subjects, have been offered locomotive engineers and firemen, and in other fields of activity similar rewards have been held out for especially meritorious work.

That the varied steps taken by the railroads, as well as by the industries whose employees are not spread out over so great an area and who may, therefore, be the better brought into contact with the managements, have been successful is apparent. Greater loyalty, increased economy, better service has resulted. These results have produced increased earnings and hence higher dividends to stockholders, while the men have achieved a greater continuity of employment—denoting the success of the present-day so-called "employee relations" work.—From the Christian Science Monitor.

Indian Workers Left Tools in Salt Mines

Three great caves in a mountain of salt in Nevada have yielded relics of Indian miners who worked there as early as 1000 B. C. The great natural salt mass stands near the town of St. Thomas, Nevada, in a desert where rain falls so seldom that it has remained for ages without dissolving, which would have been its fate in a moister region. Underground waters, however, have hollowed the caverns in its interior, and in these were found stone hammers with wooden handles, sandals of yucca fiber, carrying nets, and even corn cobs, all perfectly preserved through the drying and antiseptic action of the salt. Most of the relics date since the beginning of the Christian era, but a carved club was found of a type used by the basket-makers, the forerunners of the present Pueblos, who inhabited the Southwest about 1000 B. C. The salt of the mountain is now being mined from the surface by a commercial firm. Why the Indians chose the difficult and dangerous work underground, when salt is easily obtained outside, is difficult to imagine. It is conjectured that several tribes had "claims" on the mountain, and that the later comers, finding the surface workings all pre-empted, had no choice but to enter the dark caverns to seek their salt supplies.

World Eagerly Seeks Great Men's Letters

Immortality and letter-writing go hand in hand, and those who make it their business to keep green the graves of the departed great pursue an eternal quest.

What wouldn't disciples of the "Shakespeare myth" give to be able to unearth a packet of letters from William Shakespeare to some correspondent in which he settled, clearly and definitely, all the points that have led to controversy?

It is extremely improbable that any such convenient packet will ever be found. But students of Alfred de Musset are slightly more hopeful of one day discovering a set of lost letters written by the French poet to the French actress, Rachel. Having ransacked France in vain, they have now turned to England, with the assurance that "any information as to the whereabouts of these letters will be gratefully received."

John L.'s Signature

R. F. Doble in his biography of John L. Sullivan records that once a dainty little miss asked the famous pugilist to write her a few autographs so that she could sell them at a church fair.

"Oh, what're you giving me?" said John L. in a graciously tragic way. "I ain't no good at writing, but I'll have my manager make as many of my what d'you call 'em, as you want."

The damsel told him that this would hardly do. So pens, ink and paper were ordered and after many laborious efforts in which he spoiled more than a dozen pens and ruined a quantity of stationery, Sullivan finally succeeded in scratching down about twenty badly blotched but fairly legible signatures.

"I always like to do what I can for religion," he assured her as grasping her hand and most of her forearm between his ink-stained fingers he bade her a courteous good-by.

Happiness in Work

There are social and economic maladjustments, and many of them lead to failures. Failure is unhappiness. But no man fails if he likes the job. Ford is right. Life's real thrill is in the job. That is what we mean by the "pursuit of happiness" in America; it was the quest of the men who built this wonderful American government for us, and it still is the thing which lures us on to larger achievements. Jobs are full of thrills if we wish it so; but we get these thrills only when we fit the job, when we like it, and give it the best we have in us! when we put something of ourselves into the thing we do.—Mobile Register.

LIGHT ON HISTORY OF EARLY AMERICA

Recent Discovery of High Scientific Import.

The indications of man in America before the Ice age, as presented to the New York Academy of Sciences by Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn and Albert Thomson, are too revolutionary to be passed over in silence. Professor Osborn and Mr. Thomson present their facts with admirable conservatism. The ancient bone tools which have been dug up in Nebraska must be tested, the finders themselves insist, by the criticism of other experts. Display of the finds in the American Museum of Natural History will make this possible. If the tools survive debate, if their apparent meaning proves to be the only acceptable one, it is not too much to say that this fact will force the rewriting of the whole prehistory of American man. The honor of being the first Americans must be bestowed anew.

The conventional idea among the experts has been that America was first peopled only a few thousand years ago. Ancestors of the historic American Indians are believed to have arrived by way of the Behring strait and to have found a virgin continent, over which their descendants spread. Ancient forts and mounds and stone arrowheads and all the numerous indications of prehistoric habitation are dated, on this conventional view, within the score or so of millennia which have passed since the arrival of the Indians.

The bone tools found by Mr. Thomson and his associates on the Nebraska hillside tell a different tale. These tools seem vastly more ancient. Professor Osborn is inclined to date them in what geologists call the Pliocene period, probably not less than 3,000,000 years ago. At one stroke this sets back the clock of American man 100,000 generations. This does not stand entirely without support. In that limbo of the damned to which scientists so often consign misfit facts there have lain for years a few other finds of human remains apparently far more ancient than Indian times. Among these are the famous bones from the Trenton gravels in New Jersey. Another is the Calaveras skull found years ago in the gold gravels of California. None of these earlier finds was conclusive. Most of the experts have believed them misleading. Doubtless they will now be studied again.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the new Nebraska finds is their similarity to other bone tools known to belong to recent Indian populations. If men made the Nebraska tools 3,000,000 years ago, other men not over 3,000 years ago made implements astonishingly like them. This is not impossible. Human habits sometimes last long. But it is surprising, and the experts will debate it. Meanwhile neither fundamentalist nor evolutionist can use the new finds to bolster up an argument. The truth about them is still too uncertain for that.

Coins by Weight

If you had a ton of pennies how rich would you be? Or if some one gave you 4,000 quarters in a sack, could you take them home? In other words, how much would the sack weigh? The Federal Reserve bank of New York handles so many coins daily that it has machines to count and weigh them. The turnover in coins at this bank averages 35 tons a day, including gold, silver, copper and nickel. Quarters lead this group in value, with nickels second and dimes third. Since most of the business of the bank is done in large sums, the coins are packed in sacks of convenient size and weight for handling. A sack containing 4,000 quarters weighs 53 pounds. Fifty bags of nickels total $10,000, 60 bags of pennies weigh a ton and are worth $3,000.

Exercise for Beauty

Hard, regular exercise is one of the best ways known to improve the tone of one's complexion, says Eileen Bourne, beauty specialist, in an article in Liberty.

"Aside from securing thorough elimination of waste from the body," the writer says, "hard exercise has a direct effect upon the skin. It starts perspiration, which washes out and refreshes the pores, and it makes the heart work hard enough to pump the blood rapidly through the whole body. Good circulation gives the skin resilience, smoothness and color. With poisons eliminated and the body in good condition you have removed the cause of that puffy condition under the eyes and other skin disorders. The rest is a matter of local treatment."

Museum's Royal Ghost

Haunted! Oslo has been somewhat creepily disconcerted by a local story that the ghost of the Oseberg queen haunts the museum of history. Her majesty was disturbed in a centuries-long sleep when the mound at Oseberg, near Oslo, was opened some 50 years ago and the famous Viking ship—the only one ever found in a noteworthy state of preservation—was unearthed and placed on exhibition, together with its contents. Archeological investigations have since established that the Viking ship was the pleasure yacht of the Oseberg queen, so called now after the place where her ship was found. When this queen died her body was laid in the yacht and buried with her maids, her favorite horse and her attributes.

The Missionary Service, conducted by Mrs. C. A. Funk, at Mt. Union, on the 17th, was interesting and instructive. She appeared in Chinese costume of black satin and fine embroidery; and had a miniature village of China arranged on the table and told of their customs and life. California Seeds Grow in Near East

JUICY onions, succulent cabbages and toothsome sweet corn from California seeds are being grown on the island of Syria (ancient Heliopolis), Greece, by the American Near East Relief to feed some 2,000 children in its Golden Rule orphanage center, according to Professor O. M. Morgan, American agricultural expert in charge of the school.

A few years ago Near East Relief received a donation of onion seed from San Francisco and a fine lot of different seeds from Santa Clara county which was consigned to the Near East as an experiment in increasing the productivity of a soil with a climate very much like that of California. The vegetables become so well acclimated, says the report, that seed harvested for planting this year has been sought by gardeners of the island, and relief forces have been besieged with requests for seed.

"Our gardens are able to produce nearly all that we require in the way of vegetables for the children," he further says. "Recently we arranged, to change the menu, increasing the vegetable rations, thus supplying required vitamins. Some of the finest pumpkins I have ever seen were grown in the orphanage garden."

Gardening, carpentering, blacksmithing, brick making and other useful trades for boys are taught by relief forces at the Syria relief center, which is known as the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Training School. Besides the boys at the school, there are 500 girls re-

Women of Old Egypt

Had Many Privileges

When the Rosetta stone was found in 1799 and historians were enabled to give the world a picture of ancient Egyptian life many were astounded at the station held by women in the time of Rameses II. The Egyptian daughter of that time inherited from her parents an equal share with her brothers; as a wife she was the real and very active mistress of the house. In fact, many records indicate that the husband was little more than her guest, a writer in the Kansas City Times comments. She went and came as she liked, talked with whom she pleased without anyone daring to question her actions, went among men with an uncovered face and adorned her face and form with all the liberty displayed by her kind today.

Her gown was a smart short frock cut decollete, her lips were tinted and her cheeks were powdered, her eyes were coquettishly emphasized and to her hair dresser she went once every ten or twelve days. If she was the wife in a family in average circumstances she rose at daybreak, prepared breakfast, sent the men off to the workshop or their business, sent those children more than eight years old to school and the younger ones to drive the geese or cattle to pasture and then occupied herself with household duties for the rest of the day. The women of the higher social scale seem to have done little except to lavish time and attention on their persons that they might appear to advantage in their strolls and visits abroad.

WHY

City of Leyden Is Honored by Freeman

Holland never erected a Statue of Liberty at the entrance to its principal city, but long before the American "land of the free and home of the brave," became important on the map, Holland was the European "Land of Liberty." At Leyden, on the so-called old Rhine, I have been renewing my acquaintance with the shrines most notable in the country's contribution to freedom. Here John Robinson kept the light of religious liberty burning and induced his parish of "Pilgrim Fathers" to embark on the Mayflower in 1620. Here is the "High School" started by William Prince of Orange in 1575, which in a few years became the most famous university in Europe. Nelbuh in his Roman history says that "no locality in Europe is so memorable in the history of science as its venerable halls." When the English and French were persecuted in their own lands, Leyden was their refuge. Leyden is the only place on earth that ever refused to be exempt from taxation. When its prince in 1574 wanted to reward the inhabitants for their gallant conduct in a siege, he offered exemption from taxes or a university. They chose a university.—From "My European Excursions," by Edwin Robert Petrie.

Why Direct Sunlight

Is Avoided by Fishes

The fact that in semi-darkness there is less danger of their being caught by fishermen and other enemies is not the only reason why fish prefer shady sections of water. Science has discovered that the sun's ultra-violet rays, which do so much for the health and vigor of human beings and many other creatures, are positively harmful to fish, and this is believed to explain their preference for dark, shady places.

Experiments recently reported to the United States bureau of fisheries by the Vermont state fish hatchery seem to establish very definitely that sunlight is harmful, rather than helpful to fish. At the Vermont hatchery there were almost twice as many deaths among young fish placed in troughs of water exposed to the direct sunlight as among those in troughs left in the shade. The sun seems to be a harmful influence.

The experiments showed precisely the same results with fish of different ages and different species. There was always a much greater mortality in the unshaded pools of water.

Why Bottle Is Reversed

It is easier to keep things cold than hot in a vacuum bottle. The explanation lies in the tendency of heat to rise, and the fact that the opening of the bottle is at the top, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The average user thinks of heat and cold as two separate things, but the bottle manufacturer knows he is dealing with only one factor, heat, which is why the bottle neck is always made as small as possible, yet of sufficient size to provide room for introducing the contents. Hot liquids or foods can be kept warm for a longer time by turning the bottle upside down, to get the neck leakage at the bottom. One manufacturer of large vacuum shipping cans for milk found in experiments that the rise in heat in the contents of a five-gallon can was sufficient to produce a temperature difference of as much as 2 or 3 degrees between the milk in the bottom part of the container and that at the top.

Why Glass Aids Health

"Vitaglass" is the name of a new kind of glass which permits a true health-giving sunbath in the home. Ordinary window glass, no matter how clear, cuts off the invisible but strongly vital ultra-violet portion of the solar spectrum almost as effectively as a brick wall. Therefore the value of a sunbath in the most brilliant conservatory is virtually an illusion—the effect is largely mental.

It is only comparatively recently that man shut himself off from ultra-violet light; before the use of ordinary window glass began he obtained sufficient of it in the most natural way—from the sun. A large proportion of the malformed bones and bent legs of our generation may be charged to lack of ultra-violet light—a fact science has only recently understood.—Scientific American.

Why Fat Folks Go South

People who are eager to weigh less should refuse to get on the scales except at the equator. The result will show them several ounces lighter than in Far Northern latitudes, says Dr. Paul R. Heyl of the United States bureau of standards.

A man who weighs 200 pounds at the North pole will automatically lose nearly ten ounces when weighed at the equator. A ton of coal, weighing 2,000 pounds at the North pole, will tally only 1,994 pounds at the equator.

How to Test Mushrooms

As a final test, if you are in doubt as to whether you have gathered toadstools or mushrooms, boil a silver spoon with the collection. If they are true mushrooms the spoon will not discolor.

Why Aspen Quivers

The aspen leaves are so delicately hung on the stems that the least disturbance in the atmosphere makes them tremble. This is more or less true of all the trees of the cottonwood family.

NATHAN LEADS DAVID TO REPENTANCE

LESSON TEXT—II Sam. 11:1-12:23.
GOLDEN TEXT—A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Shows David His Sin.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Nathan Calls David to Repentance.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Confessing and Forsaking Sin.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance: What It Is, and What It Does.

I. David's Crimes (II Sam. 11).

1. Adultery (vv. 4, 5).

He by his kingly authority brought Bathsheba, the beautiful wife of Uriah, one of his brave soldiers, into his harem.

2. Murder (vv. 14-18).

David sought to cover up his shameful act of adultery with Bathsheba by calling Uriah from the field of battle and giving him a furlough at home with his wife. (He first gave him honorable recognition by sending a portion of meat from the royal table—v. 8.) Uriah's high sense of military duty and propriety would not allow him to do this.

Falling in this, David corrupted him by making him drunk, with the expectation that Uriah would thus go home. When these schemes would not work he resorted to the terrible crime of exposing Uriah to the most dangerous place in the battle where he would surely be killed.

II. Contributing Factors in David's Fall.

1. Idleness (11:1).

It was the king's responsibility to go forth with his army to battle. David tarried at Jerusalem because of indolence or self-indulgence.

2. He looked upon a beautiful woman (11:2).

As he was lounging in idleness, this temptation was too great for him. He yielded to his lustful impulse and sent his servants to bring the woman to him. This action on the part of David is absolutely inexcusable. David had the power to turn from this sin and thus escape temptation.

III. David Rebuked by Nathan, the Prophet (12:1-12).

What David had done displeased the Lord (11:27). What he had done gratified his own carnal lust, but the serious thing is that it displeased the Lord. Because David was God's own, God could not let the matter rest. He therefore sent Nathan, His prophet, to him.

1. The parable of the ewe lamb (vv. 1-6).

Among the Jews it was customary to have pet lambs which were brought up with the children of the family and therefore regarded with tender affection. Nathan pictures before David a poor man whose sole possession consisted of one such lamb, and a rich neighbor when entertaining a guest had appropriated unto himself this lamb instead of drawing upon his numerous flock. This so aroused David's anger that he declared that the rich man should restore fourfold, and in addition forfeit his life. Nathan declared: "Thou art the man." In spite of David's awful sin, he had burning indignation against the wrongdoer.

2. Sentence of judgment (vv. 7-12).

Perhaps no history records an indictment so terrible as this one.

(1) He recounted unto David God's peculiar favor (vv. 7, 8).

God had taken him from the sheepcote and lifted him to the throne, made him king over all Israel. He had delivered him from Saul's murderous plots and he had inherited Saul's royal possessions.

(2) David's shameful treatment of God's law (v. 9).

He pointed out that he had violated both tables of the law by worshipping the God of passion and had practiced covetousness, robbery, lying and murder.

(3) The awful judgment pronounced (vv. 10-12).

The prophet declared that the sword should never depart from David's house. He had used the sword to slay Uriah. God in His retributive justice permitted the sword to remain in David's house.

IV. David's Confession (vv. 13-23).

The confession of sin was so real to David that he declared that it had been committed against God (Ps. 51:4). He now was made fully conscious of his broken condition. He realized what it meant to be without innocence. Though he confessed his sin, as recorded in Psalm 32, and God forgave him, he had to suffer its consequence. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

The Coward

To die in order to avoid the pains of poverty, love, or anything that is disagreeable is not the role of a brave man, but of a coward. For it is cowardice to shun the misfortunes and trials of life, not undergoing death because it is honorable, but to escape evil.—Aristotle.

Prayer, a Golden Key

Prayer is a golden key which should open the morning and lock up the evening.—Bishop Hopkins.

WHY

One Loses Weight When Moon Is Overhead

When the moon passes vertically overhead did you ever notice that you lost weight? Well, you do, says the Abbe Moreaux, noted French astronomer. A man weighing 168 pounds weighs 1-32000th of an ounce less under the moon.

It is the same influence that causes the tides, perhaps the best-known example of the moon's meddling in our affairs. Here's what happens to make the tides, according to the abbe:

If the water loses weight when the moon is overhead, the column of water directly under the moon must be higher than in other parts in order that the pressure on the sea floor may remain the same and equilibrium maintained. This bulging outward of the ocean's surface is the tide.

Now, here is an odd thing: When the moon passes straight over New York, for instance, not only are the tides the same in exactly the opposite parts of the earth, but the other magnetic effects are likewise. At the same time that we lose that 1-32000th of an ounce, so do the Chinese on the other side of the globe.

The earth may be 81 times the size of the moon, but that does not mean we can look upon it with contempt, according to the abbe. The moon pulls us hither and yon, working sometimes with, sometimes against, the sun. The effects depend upon the position it occupies in the heavens.—Popular Science Monthly.

Why Flowers Must Close Their Petals at Night

The reason many flowers close their petals at night or during bad weather is to preserve the precious pollen that enables seeds to be produced.

Heavy dew or mist at night can do almost as much damage in washing away the magic dust as rain.

But what are the mechanics of the process? The nightly closing is due to the fact that the part of the plant which gets less light grows more quickly. Normally the underside of the flower will therefore have grown a little more during the day than the top surface of the petals, so that the uneven tension will cause the petals to curve inward.

During the night and early morning the inside of the flower will grow more quickly and so straighten the petals out again.

The closing during rain is due to the shrinking effect that moisture has on vegetable matter. Some flowers, such as the night-scented stock, are closed by day and open at night, because they are most successfully fertilized by night-flying insects, such as moths.

Why We Keep Diaries

Who has not turned diarist at one time or another—probably at a dozen different times? Most of us have done so, and most of us have, an equal number of times, left off.

I should like to see a psychologist's report on the motives which lead so many of us to impose on ourselves on top of all the tasks that the world imposes this added labor. Behind the first childish efforts there is, I suppose, the vague but terribly strong necessity of the young ego to establish itself as an ego apart from all the other egos, cosmic forces and what not that seem disinclined to give it elbow room. It is merely a more elaborate way of scribbling one's name over schoolbooks, wall paper and fences; and a logical step from that to so-called vandalism.—Helen McAfee, in the Bookman.

Why Popcorn Pops

There is some difference of opinion on the cause of the popping of popcorn, a number of theories having been advanced, but the United States bureau of plant industry informs us that the best explanation of this phenomenon appears to be as follows: The popping is an explosion due to the expansion, under pressure, of moisture contained in the starch grains. Until the instant of the explosion the expansion is prevented by the colloidal material within which the starch grains are embedded. It is not likely that either air or volatile oil, as is sometimes claimed, is concerned with the process.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Why Trees Are Tagged

If the observant traveler abroad observes an expert setting out trees in a public square, he will discover that attached to a leaf on one side of each tree there will be a bit of white tape. It is at once apparent that the marking is in no sense distinguishing. But as the gardener goes about setting the trees in the holes prepared for them, the traveler will observe that each tag of white is brought around to face the east. Upon inquiry, one will be told that unless the tree, say a palmetto, uprooted from the nursery, had the same eastern exposure of the same part in transplanting it would fail to take root and flourish.

Why Dog Howls

This question has long been disputed, some maintaining that a dog's hearing is so delicately constructed that music of a high pitch causes him pain, and others claiming that a dog likes music and feels the urge to join in with his own voice. Possibly it depends upon the dog and on the music. Generally speaking, however, it is supposed that when music causes a dog to howl and bark he is not especially happy.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Community Building

Advice in Selecting

Trees for Roadsides

Oaks are more generally useful for roadside planting than any other kind of tree, says the United States Department of Agriculture. There are species of this tree native to nearly all parts of the country. Maples are next in importance for a large part of the country, but, as the most used species are not well adapted for the purpose, the selection must be made carefully.

The most promising trees for the cooler dry regions are the green ash, black locust, hackberry, thornless honey locust and poplars, with box elder, willows and poplars for the extremes of cold and drought, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1482-F, "Trees for Roadside Planting." In warm, dry climates the eucalyptus, or gums, the palms, the Jerusalem thorn and the mesquite are good.

Success in roadside tree planting, says the bulletin, depends on properly locating the plants along the highway, selecting suitable varieties and adequately protecting them from thoughtless persons, roving stock and insects and diseases.

The best effects in roadside planting are produced usually by giving the predominant place to the common plants of the neighborhood, using introduced plants in subordinate positions, it is pointed out. Next in desirability are plants from regions having similar growing conditions, either in this country or abroad.

The bulletin gives the characteristics of the different regions throughout the country and suggests trees that may be expected to grow in each.

Good Investment in Ownership of Home

The psychological advantages of owning one's home are quite often intangible yet nevertheless practical. A man's self-respect is increased and he becomes a more substantial citizen by reason of home ownership. He takes a larger interest in civic affairs. His mind is freed from worry and his undivided energies can be directed to his livelihood. His home is an expression of his individuality both in architecture and interior arrangement, and pride of ownership is fostered. His home is an index of his success in business and his sense of justified vanity is gratified. His home lends him social prestige, which in turn reacts favorably on his position in the community and in his business.

The old quotation is true: "Where your treasure is there will your heart be also." What finer place on earth can a man select to place his treasure than in his own home? Home ownership gives a man more comfort, pleasure, safety, satisfaction, material and spiritual return than any other investment on earth.

Plan Home Carefully

Impatience has caused as many unsatisfactory homes as poor construction. The home is the most complex investment the family unit ever makes. Hence more thought should be given to the matter than is given to the selection of the Easter hat or to having the old car overhauled and refinished. Planning and building the new home should be considered deliberately, not with furrowed brow and intense, get-it-over-with look. Give it the time it importance deserves, and as you admire its splendid silhouette in the moonlight as you approach it after an evening with your favorite film star you will feel well repaid for having accomplished the big job well.

Save Money for Home

There never was a better time for you to begin to own your home than right now. You'll look back some day and count the years before you began saving for a home as years practically wasted. The average man of small or moderate income becomes a saver only as he has a definite and desirable object in view. Few people, except misers, economize just for the joy of saving, but many a spendthrift family has learned to economize for the real joy of having a home.—Exchange.

Get a Stake in Land

It's a queer trait of human nature that the possession of a little real estate changes a man's general appearance, his disposition and his efficiency. It makes him feel as though he had a place in the world with a right to it. It gives him responsibility—it spurs him on to do his best. It's just like having your own wife, or your own baby, or your own car—the other fellow's possessions may be very nice but—you want your own!—Exchange.

Metal Roofs Block Sparks

Sparks from chimneys in New Braunfels (Ala.) have little chance of doing harm, for it is a city covered with metal. Ninety-five per cent of the roofs are of sheet steel. Thirty years ago a fire chief began outlawing wood roofs within a small zone. Gradually the whole city was included.—Washington Star.

Get Contractor's Advice

Before buying an old house, it is safest to have a reputable contractor go over it, diagnose its defects and estimate the cost of needed repairs.

Spell of Inspiration

Myth, Writer Asserts

Irvin S. Cobb, whose humorous writings have been sending ripples of chuckles across America for a generation, has a grouch.

It is the modern young writer, who is impatient of sound literary training and who persists in his belief that the literary light is impelled by that elusive quality called inspiration.

Mr. Cobb unburies himself this wise in McClure's Magazine:

"The two biggest fools in the writing game are the rebel, the iconoclast, the fiery spirit, the free and untrammelled soul who won't learn the rules that have been proved sound by generations of writers in the past; and the man who, having learned them, won't break them occasionally.

"But you can't break the rules intelligently without mastering them first, and knowing exactly when and why and how they should be broken to get a particular effect."

As to waiting for inspiration to guide the finger over the typewriter keyboard, Mr. Cobb is very emphatic. "I never had an inspiration in my life," he declares. "I keep regular office hours for writing, and what I get are not inspirations but notions for yarns.

"Sometimes I keep an idea in the back of my mind for a couple of years before it actually reaches the form of a story. It's like an egg inside a hen. It goes on growing; then the time comes when it craves to be laid, and it's laid."

And for the good housewife, drug clerk and insurance salesman who think that story writing is merely the business of buying ink and paper on which one's way to literary fame can be written overnight, Mr. Cobb emits a disillusioning outburst.

"It sometimes seems to me that every man, woman and child in the United States wants to write and is certain he, she or it can write," he says. "'You know,' a young fellow will remark, 'I think I'll become a writer. Why, I wrote an essay the other day and everybody told me it was wonderful. I think I'll just sit down this morning and dash off a story and send it to one of the big magazines.'"

"That expression, 'dash off a story,' gives me the pip! I never dashed off a story in my life. It's my opinion that any story dashed off is bound to be worthless."

Oysters With a Pedigree

The artificial propagation of oysters has been considered very remote by reason of the difficulty or the impossibility of isolating the eggs of the bivalve because any filter paper fine enough to arrest impurities in the water was, nevertheless, porous enough to permit the extremely minute eggs to pass through and to escape. The problem was in the end solved by utilizing an apparatus modeled in principle upon the lines of a rotary cream separator—the sought-for eggs being left clinging to the surface of the separator while the undesirable impurities were carried off. The eggs so saved were, from day to day, stimulated with fresh water and brought, step by step, to maturity. In this manner, oysters with a pedigree were produced; and it will now be possible to greatly improve the size and quality of the oysters.

Stock Exchange Term

A "put" is a contract which gives its possessor the right to deliver to the party signing the same a certain amount of stock at a named price, during the time stated in the contract. "Puts" are dealt in more extensively in London than in New York. A "put," as executed in New York, will read as follows: "For value received, the bearer may deliver me on one day's notice, except the last day, when notice is not required, 100 shares of the capital stock of the Arctic Electric company, at $175 per share, any time within 90 days from date." Then follow the signature, time of expiration and an agreement that all dividends paid upon the stock in the meantime shall accompany the stock in case of the rights of the "put" being exercised.

Poor Idea

Secretary Arthur D. Call of the American Peace society, was criticizing one of the many disarmament projects that spring up every few days.

"This idea," he ended, "reminds me of the street car conductor. An inspector boarded the man's car, counted the passengers—17—and they counted the fares—16, no more.

"There are 17 passengers," the inspector said sternly, "and only 16 fares have been paid."

"The conductor's eyes flashed fire and he stopped the car at once.

"Hey!" he shouted, sticking his head in at the car door. "Hey, one o' youse'll have to get off!"

New Use for "Movies"

Hunting game through the medium of the movies and receiving excellent practice in skill with the rifle thereby is one of the latest indoor sports introduced in Berlin, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. As the pictures flash across the screen, the marksman, takes aim and fires. The instant the bullet strikes, the film is stopped so that the results of the shot may be observed. The equivalent of many ranges and a wide variety of other factors are realized with this apparatus, which is gaining rapid favor in shooting galleries.

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

Miss Adelaide Shriver returned home on Monday and was accompanied home by the Misses Sara McCadden, of Holmesburg, Pa., and Irene Winder, of Andalusia, Pa., and Jeanette de La Chapelle, of New Jersey.

The vacation season always brings a lot of visitors to Taneytown and neighborhood. Some we learn about, and some we do not, but none are intentionally missed. Our local friends should report all visitors, without expecting us to know about them.

The baseball season is drawing to a close, and likely not over two games will be played in September; but this may depend on the attendance at the next games. The management does not intend to end the season with a deficit.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hesson returned home from their Pacific Coast trip of six weeks, on Saturday evening. They enjoyed every day of the trip and were well all of the time. In passing through Detroit they called on John J. Reid and B. O. Slonaker who were very glad to see them.

Frederick City will not get a new Pennsylvania Station, this year. In the present condition of Railroad traffic, new stations are hardly to be expected. The places that got them years ago, are lucky—which means that Taneytown is one of the unlucky ones, like Frederick.

Mrs. Nicie Cranston and husband, D. and B. S. Cranston, of New London, Ohio, visited her sister, Mrs. D. R. Zepp, of Copperville. Mrs. Zepp's sister, Mrs. Alfred McKindlers and daughters, of New York City, also spent a portion of their summer vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Zepp.

Last Sunday evening while the passenger train South made the stop at the Taneytown station, sixteen automobiles going North, and twenty-four autos and seven buses going South, were held up from crossing the track which gives some idea of the number of cars using Baltimore St., at that time.

A young man was arrested in Westminster, on Monday, and after a hearing was fined $10.00 for using profane language on the streets. Just what we need here. Baust Reformed Sunday School held its outing at Forest Park, Hanover, Wednesday. While the weather was most too cool for a picnic, everybody seemed to have a good time, especially the men. Re-translation of Old Testament.

Another new translation of the Old Testament will be published shortly. The editor is Dr. J. M. Powis Smith, of Chicago, and his assistants are Prof. J. T. Meek, of the University of Toronto; Alexander Gordon, of McGill University, Montreal, and LeRoy Watson, University of Michigan. The revised version aims to correct Hebrew language into present day understanding and is mostly in the direction of brevity.

Taneytown 2—St. John's 1.

The game last Saturday with St. John's, Frederick, was a good imitation of the big league article, with plenty of thrills and a ninth inning rally of the sensational class. Both pitchers performed splendidly, Utz having the best of the strike-outs, but the locals found it difficult to hit Stockman out of the diamond, twelve men being thrown out at first on grounders.

The game was scoreless until the 7th, when a hit and an error allowed the visitors the first tally. The game then continued 1-0 until the last half of the ninth, when a scratch hit by Estey, a three-bagger by Seibert, a hunt by Hitchcock and a daring steal by Seibert, scored two runs, ending the game without finishing the inning.

It was a beautifully played game by both teams, and is not likely to be soon duplicated on the Taneytown diamond. The score:
