TRIP FROM CALIFORNIA

To Oregon, With Scenes Described Along the Way.

The morning of Aug. 8th., we left San Francisco on the Day-light Lim-ited for Portland, Oregon. We board-ed the Southern Pacific ferry steamer, the most complete and extensive ferry system in the world. The trip of four miles across the San Francisco Bay is made in 18 minutes to Oakland This bay is one of the largest land-locked harbors in the world. It ek-tends in two arms thirty miles north and thirty-five miles south, of Frisco, and is from five to fifteen miles wide providing forty square miles of good anchorage.

China town, with its Oriental community is full of interest. The parks, especially The Golden Gate Park and boulevards, Fisherman's Wharf, the Ocean Beach, Fleishhacker Pool, the Civic Center, the Southern Pacific of-fice building costing $2,000,000, the large libraries, museums,art galleries and monuments, all demand the visitor's attention. At Klamathou we saw a salmon hatchery. Mt. Sharta's snow-covered crest altitude 14,380 ft. can be seen for four or five hours and is one of the loveliest sights we have seen. The sunset glow on Shasta is a never-tobe forgotten sight. The Sacramento River canyon is beautiful and is one curve after the other. The train crosses this river 18 times in 32 miles. At Shasta Springs we drank some of the mineral water, the train stop-ping 10 minutes for passengers to view the lovely spring and water falls. After leaving Shasta Springs we came to the beautiful Mossbrae Falls, foaming through curtains of moss and delicate ferns. There are many rustic cottages, or log cabins, for camping parties all through this sec-tion. As we wind down the canyon from Dunsmuir we see the gray splintered grapite spires of Castle of the mineral water, the train stopsplintered granite spires of Castle Crags 2,084 ft. and appearing like some medieval castle. Trout fishing is very popular here in this canyon. At Kennet, the center of copper mining inductry we say the copper mining industry, we saw the copper colored rocks. Lassen Peak, 10,437 ft. is the only active volcano in con-tinental United States. At Tehama there are olive canneries and many groves. Near Willows, all the land is irrigated;many almonds, fruits of all kinds, but mostly grapes are raised. At Marysville, a rich farming area, there are many canneries. Oroville is in an orange and olive district with an extensive industry in district with an extensive industry in olive oil and pickled olives. It is also noted for its gold dredging, lumber-ing, cotton and silk worms. Sacra-mento, the capital of California, with its state building costing $3,000,000,is in a beautiful park of 35 acres con-taining 120 varieties of trees from all regions of the world. At Crockett is seen the extensive plant of the Cali-fornia Hawaiian Sugar Works. At Richmond, crude petroleum is carried 280 miles by pipe lines from the great.

LETTER FROM FARGO, N. D. POISONED BY COPPER Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Arnold having a Fine Trip.

When we were leaving, you asked us to write you a few lines for The Record. Our trip to Fargo, N. D,,has been most interesting and new to both Mrs. Arnold and myself, as we have never been this far from home before, and not in this direction.

is a beautiful sight at night. Saturday morning at 10:35 A. M., we left Chicago for the balance of the trip, taking a train going through to Fargo. This is a long ride—four hundred and thirty miles to St. Paul, and two hundred and fifty-two miles from St. Paul to Fargo, N. D., and takes eighteen hours. We arrived here early Sunday morning. The country we passed through af-ter we left Chicago, was fine farm land. The corn fields look about the same as at home; they must have

They had a good wheat crop, but it is cut and threshed now. We hope to get an answer to the "We Would like to Know" article in our issue of Sept. 2, which indicated our desire to know what class of reading matter our readers prefer. The answer came from Zion, Ill., written by one of the "independents" there, not connected through and away from here, Tues-day or Wednesday. We are both very business and religious matters of well

CARROLL COUNTY FAIR HELD THIS WEEK.

The Usual Exhibits, Attractions and Large Crowds.

Attendance at the County Fair commenced on Sunday, the gates becommenced on Sunday, the gates be-ing open to free admissions, and in the afternoon and evening many hun-dreds came to see what they could ese. Afew of the "attractions" were setting up, and a few of the games were practicing, but mostly it was looking-around time.

On Monday, more exhibits were re-ceived, and on Tuesday the Fair op-ened in due form, with the customary small first day's attendance.

The Fair this year was much the same as other years. In fact, that is largely true everywhere of Fairs in general. A lot of exhibits of house-hold goods, live stock, poultry, agri-cultural machinery, automobiles, and miscellaneous exhibits. Then the much larger exhibit of refreshment stands, fakers, shows ,chance-taking schemes, and the hodge-podge that goes to make up the midway. The races are said to have been better; and the free attractions were likely the best ever shown here. The fact that electric lights makes night attendance at Fairs very attractive causes estimating crowds to be difficult, except to those back of the windows at the entrance.

While the display of live stock and poultry was somewhat smaller than usual, the quality of the exhibits was high class, which is also true of the exhib-its in the household arts building. There were excellent exhibits of stoves, radios, washing machines, furniture, pianos, refrigerators, light plants, etc.

Tuesday's races were a trot, a pace Tuesday's races were a trot, a pace and a pony race. The trot was, won by "Gold Metal," owned by U. B. Score or prick baked potatoes to let the steam escape when cooked. Celery for soup should be chopped or cut very fine to give the juices a chance to mix with the other soup flavors.

Beets need not always be served cold, in vinegar. The new, young summer beets are especially good hot, with butter and salt and pepper. Cook them in their skins and peel them when done by plunging quickly into cold water.

If your sewing machine has been closed for any length of time, it will probably need a thorough going over. Wipe and dust it carefully, fill your oil can with kerosene, oil every part and run it vigorously without thread until well loosened up. Then oil with good quality of machine oil and go over all the parts again. Wipe and clean carefully, stitch on scraps until the thread is perfectly clean, and as a final precaution, tie a bit of wool on the presser foot above the needle

A Paper's Problems.

A mistaken idea with some people A mistaken idea with some people is that the newspaper is an individual proposition. If they don't like the edi-tor, they feel they must knock the pa-per and stand in the way of its suc-cess whenever possible. They do not realize that the local paper is just as much a part of the community as the schoole, churches or putthing also. The schools, churches or anything else. The newspaper is different from any other business. It is a community affair. It is for service to the people and not for any individual.

You may not like the editor and the editor may not like the editor and the editor may not like you any too well —but the paper he is responsible for does just as much for you as the ser-vice rendered others. There is nothing personal with it, it is here for a pur-pose and that purpose is to do what pose and that purpose is to do what good it can in every way it can and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve the better service it can render. It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful newspaper. It requires money to operate any kind of business-even the churches and the papers are no exception and for this reason they must have the financial support of the business interests as well as the good will. Few newspaper publishers make more than a comfortable living and scarcely one is reported wealthy from money made in the newspaper busi-They deserve to be trusted and ness. to be understood by the people—it is the editor and not the plant that makes a newspaper useful in a community, though a liberal patronage is necessary if the paper is to be a cred-it to the town.-New Bern (N. Weybright Family Reunion.

A reunion of the descendants of Samuel Weybright who came to this country from Russia in about 1732, was held at the home of Prof. and Mrs. John T. Royer, last Sunday, in Westminster. A historical sketch of the family was given by Jesse P. Weybright. Forty-two descendants of the late Samuel and Mary Weybright, of Detour, were present, as follows:

Seed Wheat Treatment at Mt. Airy.

In co-operation with the Mt. Airy Milling Company and the Extension Service a method demonstration for treating seed wheat for stinking smut was held September 10th. At this demonstration Ex-County Agent, Mr. E. K. Walrath presented the facts concerning the treating of seed wheat very forcefully and clearly.

According to Mr. Spurrier of the Mt. Airy Milling Company, fifty per cent of the entire crop of this year's wheat is affected with stinking smut This mill has received 60,000 bushel of wheat 12,000 of which has been shipped at a reduction of 20 to 30 cents per bushel. 18,000 bushels went at a reduction of from 5 to 10 cents per bushel. The loss in 1928 will be far greater, unless the farmer acts now and insures himself before it is too late weeding out poor layers. The better producers continue to lay late in the fall and therefore do not molt until late. The late molters also molt rapidly as a rule, while the early molters, which are usually the poor layers, molt slowly. Hens that have not molted by August or September will show dirty, worn, or broken plumage, while those that have molted early show fresh, clean plumage or growing feathers at this time.

Lightning conductors should be attached direct to a building with metallic fasteners. Porcelain insulators are not required. A good electrical connection with the wet roof walls of a building, says the Weather Bureau, helps to relieve the structure of its charge. When a conductor of sufficient weight per foot is used (the minimum is 3 ounces for copper conductors), there is no danger of the building being fired, even when a direct stroke of lightning is passing through the conductors.

President in Washington.

President Coolidge returned home, on Monday, from his vacation in North Dakota, and is now working on regular schedule. It seems to be now a settled fact that there will be no special session of Senate or Congress called, unless some new emergency arises. Largely, the demand for a special session has been for political reasons.

Report of Corn Borer Incorrect.

Farmers of the County, especially in the Northern part, have reported damage done to field corn by European corn borer, according to County Agen Burns. After careful investigation these were found to be insects f a different character. Indications of the Borer are found first near the op of the corn stalk, or around the tassel, later working it's way all through the corn plant. The young larvae frequently tunnels within the tassel stalk, causing it to break down. Any indications of damage done by orer should be brought in or reported mmediately to the County Agent's office.

Fried Apples and Bacon.

Thinly sliced bacon is delicious when browned under the flame of the broiler in a gas stove. It is then free f excess fat, crisp and appetizing. Good results can also be obtained by frying it in a heavy skillet, draining the slices and absorbing a large part of the fat with brown paper. Apples or tomatoes can then be fried in the fat and according to the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department weighing from 30 to 50 lbs. are taken of Agriculture, make a particularly

"Farm Buying."

Most of the newspapers we read, in giving the business outlook ahead, speaks of "farm buying"; not of the "buying" of "farms," but "buying" merchandise and machinery with money made out of "farms." This shows the interest of the newspapers JOHN S. BOWER. JAS. BUFFINGTON. and their writers. They are not so WM. F. That there is "business" for the farmer in the value of his farm, or whether it pays him as an investment, or whether it would pay him to buy another farm, is not estimated among the items that go to make up what most folks term the "business prosperity" of the country. When this class of business declines, manufacturing lags, labor is unemployed, and business places stand vacant, that represents "dull business-hard times"-and ought to be helped. But when farms are untenanted, and when they can not be sold at anything like a fair price-that merely represents something that can't be helped, but ought to soon get better, somehow

Brian Boru Recognized as Ruler of Ireland

The O'Briens and many other distinguished Irish families claim as their ancestor Brian Boru, king of Ireland from 1002 to 1014. This warlike monarch, says a writer in the Kansas City Star, is regarded as the popular hero of early Irish history and the stories told about his reign have led to its being regarded as a sort of golden age. Brian passed his youth fighting the Danes, who were constantly ravaging Munster, northern part of the holding of Brian's tribe, and he won much fame for the dashing brilliancy of these encounters. He was still quite young when he avenged the slaying of his brother, a tribal king, and became a ruler himself. Setting out on a career of conquest, he forced virtually every Irish tribe to acknowledge him as its chief, and during the last 12 years of his life he was regarded as the king of Ireland. Then the Danes made an effort to re-establish their supremacy and some of Brian's enemies joined the invaders. In 25 battles, however, he displayed such indomitable fighting spirit that the Danes were all but vanquished, and finally, at the battle of Clontarf, in 1014, the victory was made decisive. Brian, then eighty-three years old, was able only to advise on the maneuvers from his tent, where, after the victory had been won, he was killed. To this day many pilgrimages are made to Armagh, which tradition makes his burial place.

Evidence That Tigers Select Human Victim

Man-eating tigers of the Indian jungles sometimes appear to single out a certain person and go after him, ignoring all others until they get him, points out Gen. William Mitchell, the noted flying officer, in an article in Liberty. The general tells a story to illustrate his point.

"A native became separated from his companions in the jungle and was chased by a tiger," he writes. "He succeeded in climbing into a tree, while the tiger remained on watch below

"After a while," General Mitchell continues, "his companions, noting his absence and suspecting that a tiger might have killed him, returned, making a great racket by beating drums so as to keep the tiger away.

"The man descended and joined his companions. They were walking quietly, single file, through the jungle, when suddenly there was a flash of orange and black and the doomed man was carried off by the tiger. It is related, also, that this man was the fattest of the group."

Thunderstorm's Beginning

The thunderstorm is owing to the rapid vertical convection of air containing a large amount of water vapor. The lower air must, therefore, be rather warm, say 70 degrees Fahrenheit or over, else it would not carry the requisite amount of water vapor, and the temperature must decrease rather rapidly with increase of height, else there would be but litle or no convection. In the summer time the humidity in Oregon and Washington is rather low. Hence thunder-

Early Cradle Formed From Hollowed Log

Cradles, in their earliest form, were merely logs, scooped out to form more or less comfortable resting places for babies. They were without rockers, since the natural shape of the logs made their use unnecessary. Cradles have varied with different modes of living and reflect in their diversity of form and adornment the progress of the cabinetmaker's art. The Romans are said to have used cradles of considerable refinement, but after the decline of the empire, accompanied as it was with the decay of living, the cradle, with other furniture forms, assumed a crude and humble aspect. One of the early forms of the cradle was the oaken chest without a lid. Baskets of osiers were sometimes used, in which the child, wrapped in swaddling clothes, was placed. The American cradle of oak in the Metropolitan museum in New York dates from the early Seventeenth century. Fabulous wealth and the skill of the greatest craftsmen have been lavished on the cradles of royal children throughout history. These important beds have been gilded and carved, intricately inlaid with gold and gems, upholstered in the choicest silks and fitted with the most sumptuous of coverings of velvet and fur .-- Dorothy Bent, in Art and Decoration.

Dogs Readily Detect Unreality of "Movies"

Cats, birds and snakes respond to motion pictures as if they were real, but dogs cannet be fooled, according to tests made by a German scientist. The dogs paid no attention even when pictures of other dogs were shown. The only exception was when a little dachshund ran up to the screen, sniffed at the people shown on it and then suddenly lost interest, apparently satisfied that the figures were not real, relates Popular Mechanics Magazine. Cats bristled defiance when a large dog appeared on the screen, domestic fowl showed fright at the sight of a hawk hovering over a field, and wild birds showed different degrees of interest. An excitable rooster flew repeatedly at an imaginary enemy on the screen. When pictures of flies and worms were shown in their natural size on a white screen, various reptiles snapped at them and evidenced astonishment when they caught nothing.

A West Indian hurricane means days of anxiety to the inhabitants of the southern coast cities. The government gets reports of the approaching storms long before they reach the American coast. When the storm strikes it may demolish sea walls, tear down telegraph and telephone wires, and destroy buildings and ships at anchor in the harbors. Galveston, Charleston and other cities have paid dearly in the past for their unpreparedness.

In a single season a hundred vessels, large and small, have been wrecked, a thousand buildings seriously damaged, scores of lives lost and hundreds of miles of sea walls, docks and telegraph wires destroyed.

Good Manners

As a man thinks in his heart, so is he. Manners go deeper than eitquette. Though they begin there they end in morality. They are established on the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you."

If there had never been a book of etiquette published, or a code written down, humanity would have needed nothing more than that rule by which to train the children of the race in gentleness

And so the text of good manners is: That another expand in the sunshine of your presence.

In the Hands of Love

To know that Love alone was the beginning of nature and creature, that nothing but Love encompasses the whole universe of things, that the governing Hand that overrules all, the watchful eye that sees through all, is nothing but omnipotent and omniscient Love, using an infinity of wisdom, to save every misguided creature from the miserable works of its own hands, and make happiness and glory the perpetual inheritance of all the creation, is a reflection that must be quite ray ishing to every intelligent creature that is sensible of it, writes William Law, the English mystic of the Eighteenth century.

Field of Peterloo

The Field of Peterloo is a name popularly given in England to the scene of an attack by the yeoman cavalry upon a political meeting held in St. Peter's field, Manchester, on August 16, 1819. The meeting was attended by 60,000 persons, and in the clash with the cavalry eight persons were killed and many wounded. The word Peterloo was formed from the name of the field in burlesque imitation of Waterloo, the scene of Wellington's famous victory over Napoleon, won four years and two months before the clash at St. Peter's field, Manchester.

Effort Alone Gets Results

Character is the individual's peculiar way of dealing with life. Character is to life what efficiency is to working. Indolence plays a persistent hand in human nature. Effort is the sole reality from which any definite result can be expected. If failure comes, in spite of added knowledge, nothing remains but further effort. We have only to renew effort in the light of still better knowledge .- Psychology Magazine.

JUND TUNNEL TO TEST AIR LAWS

Now Aeronautical Laboratory to Help Designers.

Pasadena, Calif .-- If it isn't handy to do scientific experiments on an airplane rushing through the air at 100 miles an hour, then rush the air 100 miles per hour past the stationary plane. Such in brief is one plan of the new aeronautical department of the California Institute of Technology. Thanks to the munificence of the Guggenheim foundation, its elaborate aeronautic laboratory, now rapidly approaching completion, promises to aid in bringing aeronautic design into the domain of exact science.

The new plant includes a large wind tunnel, wide enough to admit a small airplane. Powerful motor-driven blowers deliver a blast of air into one end of the tunnel and withdraw the same air from the opposite end. The blast thus makes a continuous circuit within the building like a wellregulated tornado. The airplane, however, as far as the experimenters are concerned, is traveling at high speed-admitting that motion is purely a relative matter.

In the wind tunnel a variety of problems on shape, size and thickness of planes, wings, rudders, etc., will be tested, both in the interest of stability as well as lifting power and speed. Preliminary calculations on the form and directions of curved lines and surfaces are running into the most abstruse mathematics, some of which lead to conclusions not readily tested in common flying practice. Whence comes the aid of the laboratory.

In the earlier days of aircraft it was thought that the frontal exposed parts of an airship should be sharp or slim tapered. A pointed prow, fine piano-wire supports and extra thin planes were favored. Actual practice on the contrary has shown that a properly shaped strut of considerable width may actually offer less resistance to the air than a knife-edge or a wire. Apparently the old-fashioned billy-owl is not so badly designed after all.

The new air laboratory of the institute will include equipment for motor research and general engineering design and will enjoy the co-operation of some of the best builders of mail and passenger planes now in service. Both American and German experts will direct research operations.

Lone Red Hair on Coat Causes Divorce Action

New York .- Mrs. Ethel Quayle expects to win her divorce suit against Frank J. Quayle, hotel proprietor, by a hair-a red hair. Mrs. Quayle's hair is not red, so when she found a strand of that hue on her husband's coat lapel she hired detectives to shadow him.

According to the divorce papers she served on him, the detectives trailed Quayle and a young woman to a house in Brooklyn one evening last month. Came the dawn, and they summoned Mrs. Quayle and three autos of friends and relatives for witnesses.

The young woman with the hotel man, it is charged, had red hair.

* Flies' Wings Used to Get'Heat of Stars

Washington .- Carrying an instrument so delicate that it is believed it could measure the heat of a match 5,000 miles away if no atmosphere intervened, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, acting secretary of the Smithsonian institution, has started for Mount Wil-son, Calif., to continue the measurement of the heat of the stars. The instrument, so frail that flies' wings are used in its make-up, is described as an improved radiometer, ten times more sensitive than the one used by Doctor Abbot in 1923 when he made the first determinations of the heat spectrum of ten of the brighter stars other than the sun in the history of astronemy.

The Smithsonian official also plans to visit the solar radiation observatory on Table mountain in California, where daily ob-servations of the variations of the sun are being made in cooperation with stations in Chile and southwest Africa to determine the sun's influence upon weather conditions.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon's biography, written at his own request by his secretary, L. W. Busbey, is the subject of many amusing anecdotes of American politics. Clinton Brainerd vouches for this one. Cannon was once accosted by a new member of the house who had just made his maiden speech. On being asked if he approved of it, "Uncle" Joe shifted his cigar to the other side of his mouth and answered indicially:

"You said many good things, and many new things."

Early Form of Banjo The'existence of instruments of the lute or guitar kind implies a certain grade of knowledge and culture among people who know how to stretch strings over soundboards and to determine the required intervals by varying the vibrating length of the strings. Such instruments found in use by savage or very uncivilized peoples suggest their introduction through political or religious con-quest by a superior race. The Arabs may thus, or by trade, have bestowed a guitar instrument on the negroes of western Africa and the Senegambian "bania" may be, as Mr. Carl Engel suggests, the parent of the American negro's banjo.

Uncle Sam's Islands

The Philippine islands were ceded to the United States by the treaty of Paris, December 10, 1898, following the Spanish-American war. By the terms of this treaty the United States paid to Spain $20,000,000 in connection with the relinquishment of all claims to the Philippines, Porto Rico and Guam, and under a later treaty of November 7, 1900, a further payment of $100,000 was made to Spain for the cession to the United States of further islands of the Philippine archipelago.

I like men. They stride about, They reach in their pockets And pull things out; They look important, They rock on their toes, They lose all their buttons Off their clothes. They throw away pipes, They find them again, Men are queer creatures; I like men. -Dorothy E. Reid in Poetry. And I like girls.

Why They Like 'Em.

Here is a quartet of poetic effusions

- They're free from doubt; They seldom stop To figure things out. They look on men With indulgent twinkles;
- They don't fear pain, And they do fear wrinkles. We are mere blunderers-Swine before pearls;
- They know their onions-I like girls. —Ted Robinson in Cleveland Plain

Frayed for a Rest

The story goes that several college residents were discussing what they would do after they retired. What would they be fit for was the quesion.

"Well," said one of them, "I don't know that I'd be fit for anything, but I know what I'd like to do. I'd like to be superintendent of an orphats asylum so I'd never get any letters 'rom parents."

"I've a much better ambition," exlaimed another. "I want to be warden of a penitentiary. The alumni never come back to visit."-Harper's Magazine.

(California Trip Continued). Falls where we ate our dinner and drank of the ice cold water. We also climbed the mountain along the falls where the water was running in between the stones as we climbed upward. The water coming down these cliffs looks like a mist and in many places like skyrockets when they burst. On this highway we passed tourists from many states, by the hundreds. Some of the large signs near railroad crossings are "What if you don't beat the train across the crossing." "Life is sweet be a care-ful driver", "Better to stop at the crossing than stop at the graveyard." When we crossed the Sandy River we saw where they catch smelt, or sardines, as we know them. On our auto trip to Salem we drove all around the Asylum noted for its lovely grounds and flowers; also around the Penitentiary. Went through the lovely State building and up in the dome where we could see for miles. The tall fir trees are real pictures as they are perfectly straight and few branches for a hundred feet and the lovely shaped tops of another hundred feet. We just stop and wonder how trees can grow so tall and straight. In places they cut the trees and set fire to them. They only part-ly burn, but the grass grows up be-tween these hugh half burnt logs and is used for pasture. The forests are s used for pasture. The forests are so thick you can scarcely walk through for ferns and moss. The ovely ferns that grow everywhere here in Oregon, are a real nuisance to the farmer, also the moss which grows on the trees and hangs down from all the branches and even grows on fence posts and home roofs. It is quite different moss from ours, so soft and ong strands like hair.

On our trip to Seattle, Washington, we enjoyed looking at the lovely riv-ers and especially the Columbia at Fort Vancouver, crossing the long bridge 1 mile on the lower track, and the other traffic on the top. The Col-umbia River, discovered by Captain 1792, and Robert Gray, in May 11, named after his ship, Columbia, is named after his ship, Columbia, is noted for its salmon and many can-neries along its banks. We saw logs by the hundreds on this river as well as on Cowlitz Chehalis, Nisqually, Puget Sound and Puyallup river. They are bound together in the form of a large cigar and tied to hugh posts while they season, then floated to the immense saw mills which we saw. he, Kathryn Stuff, Marsinnanows, 'Mrs. Edw. THE UNKNOWN JULIET

(C by D. J. Walsh.)

HE letter had suggested trouble even as Olivia took it from the mail box. Her husband's name was written in flowing characters across the thick creamy envelope, but though she had the right to open it she had not done so. Olivia was a silver blonde, with large blue eyes and a face faintly pink with health and good nature. A sweet, sound, sensible young woman who loved her husband, her child, her house an'd could be content all day with cooking, sewing or working on some new lace pattern. She had been married four years and was confident that her happiness would last.

Now had come this letter from Lee's sister. Though she had never seen Juliet St. Maur she had heard much concerning her. Not, however, from Lee; he was silent on the subject. "We never got along together," was the most he said. Olivia wondered what he would do when she handed him the letter.

She took extra pains that night with her dinner, with Bobby, with herself. At the sound of Lee's footsteps she ran to open the door, holding Bobby, all gold and pink and blue, in her arms.

After dinner, seeming just to have remembered it, she gave Lee his sister's letter. Then she took Bobby and went out of the room, leaving him to read the message alone.

Presently he called her.

"Why didn't you open this?" he said. "It's from Juliet. She's coming to make us a visit." They looked at each other gropingly. Then Olivia said softly: "She will be welcomed, dear-because she is your sister." Lee tugged at his thick, dark hair.

"What's got into her to want to come?" he wondered. "She won't like it here. Juliet's used to big hotels, expert service and six-course dinners. She's never had a home since Dudley died. Besides, darling, she didn't say when she was coming."

The days that followed were full of suspense. Olivia lived in a state of being always ready to hear the ring that should announce her guest. It was not easy.

She knew that she would not like Juliet, she was sure that Juliet would not like her. But Lee should not be disturbed by any discomforting knowledge if she could prevent it.

One late afternoon Olivia heard Bobby call. He was playing out of doors. As he ran to the house she saw him in his red coat and cap, tugging at his new red cart, a glowing little picture of joy and health. He was looking up into the face of a woman who had paused to speak to him. The woman was strikingly fashionable and she had a smart bag in her hand. Round the corner a taxi was just vanishing.

Juliet had arrived! Olivia's hand

Olivia was making cake one morning while Juliet lounged at the window, sometimes looking on indifferently, sometimes puffing at the cigarette she held. On the lawn Bobby played with his little red cart. "The child," Juliet spoke casually,

"has strayed into the street. Shall I bring him back? Your hands are all flour

"Yes, please." But Olivia, nervously wiping her hands, went to the door out of which Juliet had passed. and the Line

Bobby was stooping to fill his red cart with dust when there came a screech, a roar, and a great truck thundered down upon him. He did not hear his mother's scream.

With a leap and spring Juliet's little form was in the street, she clutched, whirled. The truck driver wrenched on his emergency brake, but not until the wheels had passed over the spot. Underneath was a little red cart, smashed. But Bobby was safe in the arms of a white-faced woman whose orchid frock showed how close she had been to peril.

"Hush! Don't cry over the cart," Juliet whispered into his hair. "You shall have another."

"Juliet, sister!" Olivia could say no

"I'd have done more than that for Bobby," Juliet breathed.

They sat on the davenport, close, with Bobby on Auntie Jewel's lap.

"I have tried not to love you," Juliet said. "But it's no use." After a mo-ment she added: "I had a little boy, he lived two years-maybe Lee told you? I wasn't the kind of mother to him that you are to Bobby, so maybe I deserved to lose him. It was the same with Dudley—and now I am left with empty arms." Her voice broke.

At this sound Bobby put his arms about Juliet, snuggled close and kissed her. Olivia, too, drew nearer in tender homely sympathy and sudden affection for this newly revealed Juliet. It was thus Lee found them when he came home from work.

Visitor Learned Just

What James' Job Was Away back in the year 1825, when the Harper brothers-James, John, Wesley and Fletcher-founded their famous publishing house, it fell to the lot of James, who was an apt story teller and a good all-round "mixer," to deal with the visitors who called to inspect their plant. One day an overinquisitive visitor who had learned as much about the affairs of the house as a stranger should know, but who persisted in learning more, said:

"You say, Mr. Harper, that your brother, John, sees to the accounts, Wesley superintends the correspondence and Fletcher keeps the business moving; but you haven't told me what you do.'

"Oh, they leave me an enormous amount of work," replied the imperturbable publisher; "I have to do more than all of them put together."

"Indeed !" said the questioner; "and may I ask what your duties consist of?"

"Why, my dear sir, between you and me, they leave me to entertain the bores."

E UGENE was very polite. He really did have such good manners. They were not the manners of some one who is being polite because he has been told he simply must be polite, but they were the manners of some one who enjoyed being polite. So Eugene was asked to write an essay on good manners and on courtesy, which means being polite and civil

And this is what Eugene wrote:

To be polite is the opposite to being rude. Most of us have lots to do. We work and play hard. In these days there is the telephone, the automobile, the flying machine, and things move along at a fast pace.

"Sometimes it would seem as though we go so fast that we haven't time to be polite. We rush hither and get cranky and all such things if we begin to think how this one did so and so to us and how some one else was not as pleasant as possible. "But the thing to think about is that there is such fun in being courteous. "Oh, that is the whole point. And once you get into the habit of being polite you will wonder how you ever thought it was so easy to be cross.

"If you will only think of the fun there is in being polite you will get into that habit.

"Good Habit is as willing to be your friend as is Bad Habit. "Just try it out. Try it out in school, at home, everywhere. Let grown-ups try it and let boys and girls try it. "If you go around with a chip on your shoulder or a bit of temper hanging about you some one else is going to feel unhappy, and then, perhaps,

And so it goes!

Sometimes, too, if you will start in by being cheerful early in the morning it will make every one else cheerful, too, and if you don't feel so very cheerful, then keep your feelings to yourself, for they're not nice to share with anyone.

"Pretend you are an automobile. Pretend you have put yourself into the high gear of courtesy and have given a bit of a step on the accelerator of pleasantness. (The accelerator makes it keep on going.) And then the motor of good will and good spirits will go thrumming along so contentedly.

"It's fun to try and a trial costs you nothing !"

This was Eugene's essay. Now you know Eugene had been taking a good many automobile rides and that was why he had spoken in automobile language, but he had tried to explain it in his essay so that those who did not know about automobiles would understand.

And Eugene's essay was liked be-cause he really believed what he said and acted it out.

He wasn't a goody-goody, but he was a good little sport and every one liked him.

He hated to see people who were mad at each other and not on speak-ing terms, especially because he knew how much they wanted to speak to each other and yet how they kept from doing so because of pride. He always tried to make each go a little more than half, way and then they were sure to meet and fix it up. So Eugene was polite because he was friendly and pleasant, and those were the best manners to have because they were the kind which wouldn't wear off. They were the kind that really of the ball team in school, which just goes to show you that really good manners won't hurt anyone.

'put on" and not just "for show." They must be the real kind that every one likes-not just grown-ups,

For the good manners that come from a friendly nature are the very best manners to be had! (Copyright.)

pressed her cheek, that little familiar gesture of consternation. Then she went quickly down the steps.

"I am sure this is our sister, Juliet," she said in her sweetest voice.

Juliet looked at Olivia out of dark eyes that were at once hard and cold. Her scornful lips moved. Then she held out her hand.

"I am afraid I have taken you by surprise," she said.

"Not at all. We have been looking for you ever since we got your letter," returned Olivia pleasantly.

Yet she knew as she conducted Juliet to her room that the problem confronting her was going to be even greater than she had feared.

Within an hour Juliet was established in the small bungalow. A vast wardrobe trunk, for which there was no room, had followed her. She had bathed and was waiting for Lee and her dinner, smartly clad in dusky red, her shining arms and shoulders bare, her short black hair, touched up at the temples, smooth with brilliantine rouge on her thin cheeks, a Turkish cigarette between her jeweled fingers. "Same old Juliet!" Lee followed

Olivia into the kitchen and put his arms around her. "Well, we're in for it. But why on earth did she leave the Westmore to come here? She won't like it. She's lived high ever since her marriage; Dudley was a gogetter. He made more money in one day than I can make in a year-not that I approve of making money by some of the ways he employed. However, he's gone-

"Her life must be pretty empty," Olivia said gently. "No children, no home-" she turned away and began to dish up the potatoes.

For two days Juliet moved through the bungalow in beautiful clothes of the latest mode. Her perfume, her cigarette smoke followed her motions. She read, lounged, reflected, but she didn't offer to help with the housework. And she took no further notice of Bobby from that first day. Bobby, the irresistible cherub, lived and charmed under her very nose without more than a passing glance from her. He tried his little best to be friends with Auntie Jewel, as he called her, but Auntie Jewel would have none of him. Never had Olivia been so sorely tried, yet she strove to be brave, reposeful, generous. Lee got along very well because he didn't see the worst of it. But alone, Olivia would clasp her hands and say to herself:

"She's hard, she's heartless. On, what can she be staying for? I wish she would go away.'

Roman Life in Britain

On the recommendation of the Ancient Monuments board, the Roman baths of Bath have been officially scheduled as a monument of national importance. Extensive excavations carried out by the corporation of Bath in the '80s disclosed the remains hidden for some thirteen centuries, and again during the past year or two by further excavations opened additional baths and hypocausts to view. The citizens of Bath have long realized that its Roman baths are the most important national monuments remaining of the health and recreative side of Roman life in Britain during the first three centuries .- London Mail.

Use of Gongs in China

Metal gongs have been put to varied and interesting uses as musical instruments. A Chinese gong was carried by servants before a mandarin in his sedan in olden times to give notice of his approach. A certain number of strokes at intervals indicated his rank. A gong also was carried in processions in China and beaten to drive away evil spirits. During eclipses it was beaten to frighten the heavenly dog as he was about to devour the moon. In Japan a kind of gong was suspended before idols and struck by worshipers to arouse the attention of the god.

We Are All Lawbreakers

Most people have asstrong prejudice against the police. I never have had; wherever I go, I find policemen useful and polite. Occasionally a fool is given a policeman's club, but he soon is retired. Policemen daily forgive a hundred trespasses. It is a theory of the law that nine guilty men should escape rather than one innocent man be punished. This theory is carried out by everybody. The law is violated a thousand times for every arrest. This is true from necessity, or we should all be in jail .- E. W. Howe's Monthly.

One of Dickens' Homes

Dickens wrote much of "Edwin Drood," his last and unfinished work. at 5 Marble Arch, W., London, which has just been acquired by a syndicate with a view to building a large moving picture house on the site. Lord Charles Beresford lived in the house for many years. There are many other associations of Dickens with the locality, which is rapidly changing its character owing to the great increase of traffic,

"THE SCARLET LETTER"

T IS probably through the medium of Hawthorne's famous novel by that name that the "scarlet letter" has become a symbol, in figurative speech, of a woman's badge of shame, the stigma of lost chastity. For the character of Hester Prynne of the "Scarlet Letter," who was forced by the narrowness and the prudery of her day to wear on her breast such a humiliating emblem, has become one of the immortals of literature, familiar even to those who have not read the book.

For the origin of the scarlet letter, however, we must go back beyond Hawthorne's fiction to the source from which he derived his material for the book. For it had its beginning not in literature but in life. It was a real punishment inflicted by early New England moralists upon flesh and blood Magdalenes.

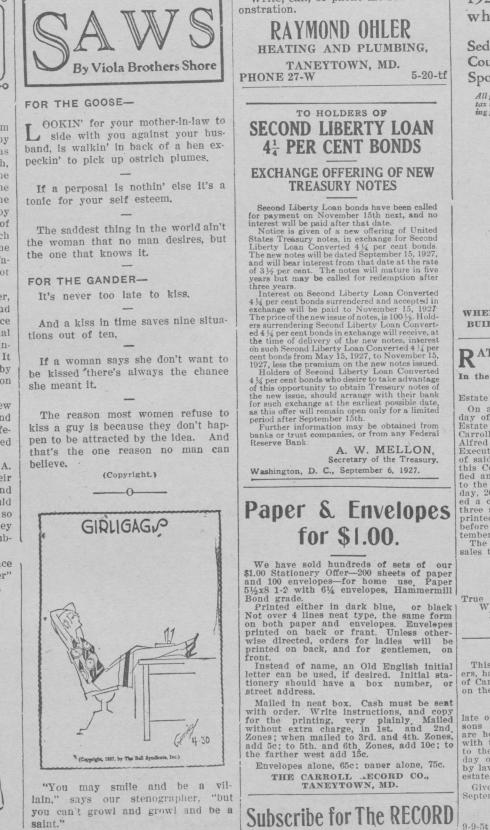

From the colony records of "New Plymouth," dated June, 1671, we find the following prescribed for any female Pilgrim who might have dallied from the path of virtue:

"To wear two Capital Letters, A. D., cut in cloth and sewed on their uppermost garment on the Arm and Back; and if any time they should be found without the letters so worne while in this government, they shall be forthwith taken and publickly whipt."

Although there is here no reference to its color, this is the "scarlet letter" that has survived in modern speech. (Copyright.)

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC-The Folly of Pride.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-How to Prevent Divisions.

The movements leading up to the disruption of the kingdom had begun in Solomon's reign. He saw in Jeroboam the leader of insurrection and endeavored to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon's death (I Kings 11:40). Having been informed by the prophet Abijah that he was to have ten tribes over which to rule, as soon as he heard of Solomon's death he returned to be ready to take up his work.

I. The Demand of the People (vv. 1-4).

This was occasioned by the burden of excessive taxation and enforced labor, which was required by Solomon in order to build costly houses and temples for his heathen wives. The people were groaning under its weight. Upon the accession of the new king Rehoboam, the people, through their leader Jeroboam, came with the request that their burdens be made lighter, promising loyalty to him on the condition of lightened burdens. II. Rehoboam's Foolish Decision (vv. 5-15.)

1. Rehoboam consulted with the old men (vv. 5-7). These were men of experience who had been Solomon's advisers. Being acquainted with the condition as imposed by Solomon, and knowing the temper of the people, they advised that the people's request be granted.

2. Rehoboam consulted the young men (vv. 8-11). These young men had grown up with him, possibly were his half-brothers, sons of Solomon's many wives. Being thus brought up in the luxury of the harem, they were ignorant of the legal right of the people. Therefore they advised that the burdens be increased,

3. Rehoboam followed the advice of the young men (vv. 12-15). At the appointed time he announced his purpose to the people. He even answered them roughly, asserting his purpose to increase their burdens and sorrows. He assumed that it was his right to rule and that it was the people's role to obey regardless of conditions.

III. The Revolt of the Ten Tribes (vv. 16-24). Upon Rehoboam's announcement of his rash purpose all Israel cried out,

Many Women Workers in the Middle Ages

The Middle ages, too, had their 'feminism," and the way women's problems were solved was not very much different from today's.

In the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries, just as at present, it was necessary to take care of unmarried women, and this could not always be done by means of convents, although a greater number of girls went in convents then than nowadays. The crafts excluded women often on principle but in practice women worked in almost all crafts during the Middle ages, as simple workers as well as at the head of enterprises. The professions in which women excelled were, of course, those which were related to the traditional feminine work, as weaving, cord manufacture and the textile crafts in general. Many women became leading seamstresses. Feminine tailors were far more frequent during the Middle ages than now. The gold industry always had a group of feminine and a group of masculine workers. Women often were barbers, and feminine musicians played in most of the wine inns. Women were teachers not only in their convent schools but also in general schools. Above all, there was never a lack of women physicians.

New Zealand's Fjords of Surpassing Beauty

The marvelous fjordland of New Zealand is described by those who have seen it as the most wonderful in existence, surpassing in beauty the famous fjord country of Scandinavia.

Milford sound, which offers this wonderful fjord scenery, is situated about 1,000 miles from the Victorian coast, off the southwestern coast of New Zealand. As one enters he finds himself surrounded by the perpendicular sides of enormously high mountains, the tops of which are covered with snow. And in the sound country of Alaska, there are great terminals almost on the level of the sea; but what differentiates these fjords used only by foot, is a walk of 36 miles over a track so precipitous that only 10 miles can be covered in a day. During this tramp across, a 5,000-foot mountain must be scaled and descended. While a few venturesome spirits surmount these obstacles each year, they are indeed few.

Bunkered!

Two men were discussing golf courses in general and a little ninehole course in particular. Eventually the conversation turned to a certain 18-hole course.

"I always think," said one, "that the little nine-hole course is far more difficult than the 18-hole course."

"Well, one would expect it to be so," exclaimed a friend who did not play golf.

"Why?" asked the two men, simultaneously.

"It is obviously easier to get a little ball into one of the holes when there are 18. It would be twice as hard when there only nine."

ANCIENT SKELETONS FOUND ON THE OHIO

May Date From the Very Earliest Days.

Dilles Bottom, Ohio .- Remains of five bodies, believed to be those of victims of an Indian massacre, unearthed here when excavation was being made on the shore of the Ohio river for towers to carry high tension wires from the Beech Bottom, W. Va., brought the statement that early settlers of the region south of Bellaire had a fort at that point. T. C. Gallaher, seventy-two, said he recalled hearing from his grandparents that a number of settlers lost their lives while seeking shelter in the fort and says that in his youth the ruins of the foundations were visible. Most of the bones crumbled on being exposed to the air.

Mussel shells found about three feet above the bones gave rise to the theory that the graves had been decorated with shells.

Another theory is that the mussel shells may have marked the edge of the Ohio river. This would mean the bones date from the days of the mound builders who erected the mound from which the city of Moundsville, W. Va., situated within sight of the ancient burial ground, received its name.

There is no record of the river having flowed in the immediate vicinity of the spot during the last century. An Indian burial ground was unearthed years ago on a near-by hilltop. Quarrymen, years ago, found skulls and skeletons of seven persons, presumably Indians, on a hillside a quarter of a mile away. It was believed they had been entombed while seeking shelter beneath a ledge. Both adults and infants were in the group.

Princess-Salesgirl

to Wed Her Employer

Paris, France.- A romance that began when a Russian emigre princess became a saleswoman has culminated in the engagement of Lucien Lelong, Paris dressmaker, and Princess Nathalie Paley of the imperial Russian family. They will be married early in August.

Lelong met the nineteen-year-old princess only a few months ago when she joined his staff as first saleswoman in his perfumery department.

Princess Nathalie is the second daughter of Grand Duke Paul of Russia and of Princess Olga Paley. The late Czar Nicholas II was her father's nephew.

During the war Nathalie, with her sister, Princess Irene, was taken inte Finland. After her father was assassinated in 1919 her mother was smuggled out of Russia by a count dressed as a peasant. After the mother rejoined her family in Finland they moved to Paris and became socially prominent.

Princess Irene Paley recently married a Romanoff, Prince Theodore, son of the czar's sister, Princess Zenia.

IV. Jeroboam's Scheme to Unify the Ten Tribes (vv. 25-33).

1. He established calf worship (vv. 31-33).

(1) He built houses and high places (v. 31). This was against the direct command of God. God had directed His people to destroy the high places and to break down the idolatrous centers. So we see that Jeroboam, by the demands of his sinful heart, disobeyed God.

(3) He changed the day of the Feast of the Tabernacle (v. 32). The time of this feast was set by the Lord (Lev. 23:33, 34). Jeroboam argued that the change in the time would be better suited to their northern climate, but God, who made the climate, ordained the time of the feast. It was his business, therefore, to obey God.

(4) Jeroboam himself intrudes into the priest's office. The act of presumption on his part was the climax of his godless acts, all of which grew out of his wicked heart.

God Established Prayer God has established prayer to com-

The Business of Life The business of life is largely made up of minute affairs, requiring only judgment and diligence,-Beecher.

Be Not as Water Be not as water which takes the tint of all colors .- Syriac.

An inspector paid a surprise visit to a village school. The teacher, who was of decidedly corpulent build, proceeded to question the children as follows:

"Now, children, tell me in what way I resemble a clock."

The response soon came. "Please, miss, you have a face," " You have hands," and so on.

Then came the question: "Tell me some ways in which I do not resemble a clock."

There was a long pause; then piped a small voice: "Please, miss, you have no spring."

Richest Man of 300 B.C.

Interesting information about Croesus, famous rich man of ancient times, is reported by the Detroit News. The gift he presented to Delphi, 600 years before Christ, would be valued at about $300,000,000 in modern currency. It included a pyramid surmounted by a lion, both made of precious metals; two bowls of solid gold large enough to held 5,400 gallons each, besides a present of $13 to every man in the city. And those were the days before there were oil wells or steel trusts and modern methods of getting rich quicker.

Married in the Cemetery

An unusual wedding occurred in a neighboring state. The bridegroom was an undertaker, whose father had been an undertaker before him. The ceremony took place at midnight in the cemetery before the father's grave. Asked why he was married in this way, the bridegroom said: "Well, I've been to the cemetery so often on sad occasions that I felt I should like to come here just once for some happy event." . . . Couples afraid of being too happy might try this .- Cap per's Weekly.

Golden Rule of Life

The Golden Rule, in various forms, is found in the literature of several ancient peoples. It was taught by the Chinese philosopher, Confucius, more than five centuries before the Man of Galilee started on his ministry. In the Analects of Confucius appears this passage: "Tsze-kung asked, saying, Is there one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life? The Master said. Is not Reciprocity such a word? What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others." -Pathfinder Magazine.

New York.—How an American woman trapped Jerome Bonaparte for a husband with a bit of old lace, thus bringing the Napoleonic strain to America, is an almost forgotten legend resurrected in Baltimore by the Woman's Home Companion.

Jerome, Napoleon's youngest brother, sought refuge in America from British pursuers on the high seas in 1803. Not without intention, it is believed, the rare old lace on the gown of Elizabeth Patterson became entangled on a button of his coat when she met him at a New York reception. Just before his return to France, Napoleon was married with great pomp to Miss Patterson, the beautiful daughter of a Baltimore merchant. The young wife, following her husband to France, was not allowed to land. She went to England, where their child was born. In the meantime Napoleon annulled the marriage, placed the former husband on the throne of Westphalia and forced him to marry a German princess.

The pope subsequently attested the validity of the marriage, but Elizabeth Patterson Bonaparte never saw her husband again.

New Tree Will Develop Wood Pulp in 18 Years

New York .- For production of wood pulp a tree has been developed that will grow to a height of 60 feet and a thickness of 18 inches in 18 years, says the New York Evening Post.

This tree, a hybrid poplar, has been developed by Dr. Ralph McKee of Columbia university and Dr. A. D. Stout of the New York Botanical gardens. The work was backed by the Oxford Paper company of Rumford, Maine.

The paper obtained from poplar pulpwood, said Doctor McKee, is superior to that now generally obtained from spruce. The new trees can be propagated from seedlings.

Scotch Women for Bobs

Glasgow .-- Close to $100,000,000 a year is spent by women and girls on bobbing and shingling in Scotland, according to James Stewart, the "hairdresser" M. P. for St. Rollox, and as a consequence, he says, a new occupation has been started which employs many thousands of men and women. "I am sure women will not return to the long hair fashion, because the present mode is so comfortable and hygienic," he went on. "Shingling is as popular with the women of the mining villages as it is with the women of Mayfair."

In England the cost of treatment of the hair varies from 35 cents in the working class village to $125 in the fashionable salons of London. Some rich women think $25 to $125 guite normal expenditure for hair treatment at one session, but such extravagance is abnormal.

"The average woman probably spends about $6 to $8 a year on haircuts," Stewart concluded, "which compares favorably with the expense of the average man on shaving, haircuts, and shampoos."

Temple Yields Facts About Ancient Mexico

Mexico City .- A sumptuous chamber, the walls of which are covered with fresco paintings, said to be very similar to those found in the prehistoric temple of horticulture in the archeological city of San Juan Teotihuacan in the Valley of Mexico, is reported to have been discovered in the Maya ruins at Chichen Itza, Yucatan, by Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, in charge of archeological investigations in Yucatan under the auspices of the Carnegie institution of Washington, D. C., and the Mexican government.

The frescoes are said to be marvelously preserved and it is expected that when the picture writings are finally deciphered by scientists much new light will be shed on the history of Maya civilization.

Doctor Morley announced to the Mexican government that his work of exploration has been stopped for the year, because of the intense heat.

Taneytown 7-St. John's 6.

The game in Taneytown, last Sat-urday was exciting, and full of interest from beginning to end, but it was hardly a fine game. To begin with Taneytown could not get its regular team together, which resulted in playing Cromer, at second instead at his regular position in centre field, and it so happened in the second inning that he was called on to make sev-eral snappy plays, and failed, the out-come being three errors and five runs come being three errors and live fulls for St. John's, only one being earned. After this, Cromer took his regular position, Behrens going to second. At the beginning of the last half of the fifth the score was St. John's 5, Taneytown 3. Then Hitchcock went out on a fly to centre; Fuss drew a base or balls: Cromer singled: Moul base on balls; Cromer singled; Moul was thrown out at first; Feeser tripled scoring Fuss and Cromer, and Behrens singled scoring Feeser. Captain Gardner then replaced Stockman in the box for St. John's, and struck out Waltman ending the inning with the score standing Taneytown 6, St. John's 5.

The crowd seemed to enjoy guying Gardner, who appeared to retaliate by objecting to every decision that did not favor his team, perhaps because he saw the game slipping away. Numerous tense situations developed, as well as numerous errors both sides. St. John's added another run in the 8th. tying the score; and in the 9th. after St. John's drew two passes to first, Utz tightened up in his delivery and the inning ended without a score, and three men left on

In Taneytown's half of the 9th. the real trouble in the game commenced. Utz was given his base on balls; Baumgardner reached first on an error. Hitchcock struck out, and Fuss gained first on what he meant to be a sacrifice bunt, filling the bases, with one out. Cromer the next man up bunted fair along the first base line and in running stepped on the ball, and over this point the big contention arose. Gardner claimed a dead ball holding the runners to their bases and Cromer out, while Cromer and others claimed that in trying to field the ball Gardner first touched the ball, deflecting in the path of the runner.

The Umpire took this view of it, and as both Utz and Baumgardner had reached home on the play, the game ended in Taneytown's favor, 7

St. John's was reinforced by Hines, a Frederick Blue Ridge second baseman, who was the star player of the team; while Taneytown was helped out of its difficulty in getting a team together by having the services of Feeser and Waltman, of Littlestown, the former helping materially in the Patience. There are a few unsolved problems to yet intrigue the inven-tive genius. The "good old days" are passing but the future has an ambitious program ahead that shall outstrip the record of the present. However, there are some very definite things to be done and among them:

The making of a locomative whistle that has a lulla bye effect. A telephone that will send a squirt of water into the ear of the bore who doesn't know when to "hang up." A lawn mower with legs to carry it home after it has been borrowed by a than cease to fount after you have set down the first initial. A boomerang collar button and non
