

VOL. 34

TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1927.

NO. 12

VERY SEVERE LOCAL THUNDER STORM

The Worst Experienced in this Section in Many Years.

The Taneytown section was visited by a terrific thunder storm last Sunday evening beginning about 7:00 o'clock and lasting four hours, the worst of it being from about 7:30 to 9:30. It was not only the heaviest of the year, but for many years—the thunder being especially heavy—but fortunately little damage was done by lightning in this immediate neighborhood.

The concrete coping on the High School building was struck by lightning, but only this slight damage was done. Piney Creek at the Harney road crossing, overflowed its banks to a record-breaking depth, and numerous small flood losses have been reported to low-lying properties, but none of serious proportions. There was no wind of any consequence.

The morning train north, on Monday, due at 8:45, did not arrive until 5:00 P. M. while the only train South, from York passed through at about 6:30 P. M.

Baltimore and other mail was received before noon, from Hanover, the Railroad Company there having chartered a bus for carrying a lot of passengers for Frederick, as far as Keymar, and at the same time carrying Taneytown mail. The trouble at Keymar was due to the building of a new bridge there, and the contractor being unwilling to let trains pass without the O. K. of the Company's inspector. The other end of the line was impassable due to an extensive wash-out between Hanover and Littlestown. Regular service was resumed on Tuesday.

The whole disturbance was largely a local one, not extending over a radius of ten miles. The result of the heavy down-pour will likely be to help some of the late corn, especially corn for canning, and to generally replenish streams and wells, as the drought was beginning to become serious, following an extended period of abnormally hot and dry weather.

Reports from over the county show a heavy down pour and numerous small losses in the vicinity of Union Mills, Silver Run, Pleasant Valley and in portions of Uniontown district, while in other sections the rain and lightning were little more than the average summer visitation.

Close of the County Fair.

The Fair closed last Friday with a good attendance for the day. It was school children's day, and the youngsters enjoyed the day wonderfully, especially the free act performances in front of the grand-stand, and the pony and chariot races. The attendance as a whole, notwithstanding the heat, was likely the largest that ever attended the Fair.

One of the Midway men reported a stolen automobile Thursday night, suspicion pointing to another of midway crowd. The loser tried to find a local deputy sheriff, but failed, and that was the last heard of the matter, but it was likely reported to the Sheriff. From numerous reports heard on the street, quite a number of the Midway gentry were decidedly undesirable characters.

An outstanding feature of the Fair was the night attendance, which seems to indicate that it promises to be one of the big problems of the future, as cutting down day attendance results unfavorably to financial income, due to the lower admission charges at night, but there is at least partial compensation through the increase of grand-stand receipts.

There was one harness race with 12 entries, and five starters. It was won by "Garolo" owned by Wm. H. Yealand, of Frankford, Pa., time 2:14, 2:13, 2:15. Pet Helen Dillard second, and Abbie Dryad third.

The pony race was won by "Murray" owned by Murray Plank, in two straight heats, and "Tony" owned by Dennis Smith, won the third after "Murray" had retired.

There was a mule race with four entries. Mule like, it was a comedy, as at the quarter stretch at the stables the whole bunch made a break for their quarters and had to be chased back on the track, when three finished, one refusing. They came under the string with "Pete" first, followed by "Who Cares" and "Jack". The quitter was "Dust Brush."

The greatest industry in this country is not the steel business, the automobile business nor the motion-picture business. It is the business of telling what ought to be done by those who have no idea how to do it. —Phila. Ledger.

OUR DETROIT LETTER

It was our intention to take a vacation this Fall, and pay a visit to the folks back home, but a number of problems connected with such a trip would not work out right, and we were compelled to postpone it. We did, however, manage to get away for five days over Labor Day and spent a very enjoyable time with Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Stahl, at Houghton Lake, 200 miles north of Detroit. (Mrs. Stahl was formerly Miss Leala B. Kehn, a sister of Mrs. Geo. I. Harman, near Taneytown.)

This Lake is the largest of the 5000 inland lakes, of Michigan, and has always been noted for its fine fishing; but, I may as well state in the beginning of this article, that the fish had, as I heard a little fellow say, "took a vacation" at the same time as we did. It is situated at the Southern end of the formerly great timber district, evidences of which may be seen in the thousands of great stumps of the former white pine forests.

To start at the beginning of the trip we left Detroit at a little after 4:00 o'clock, Thursday morning, and by the time the traffic had gotten a little thick, were beyond Saginaw, and from there on were not much bothered with it. Indeed, we rode for miles without meeting a car, or even seeing an inhabited house. The roads are good and we made good time, arriving at the Lake at about 3:00 o'clock.

I had often heard people talk about going to some quiet place to rest up. To any who want such a place, I would say that they can find it here. Not that there are no people, and that it is at the "End of the world," for there are cottages and log cabins all around the Lake, as well as hotels, and the people I met, from all over Michigan and Ohio, were very sociable. But it is in the woods, and there is nothing to annoy you in the way of noises.

The Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, and part of our family, at least, spent a great deal of time on it, boating and fishing. It is not very deep, about 12 feet being the maximum depth, but is 17 miles long and 10 miles wide. I have no doubt that in the next 10 years, every available building site along its shores, will be taken up, by people who want a pleasant place to spend the summer months.

Just now there are a great many frame cottages, but nearly every one that is being erected is of the log cabin style. I do not mean the old throw-together log cabins of the first settlers of this country, but beautiful homes, built of selected spruce, pine or cedar logs, from 6 to 8 inches in diameter, and finished in rustic style, all over. The chimneys are built of stones and mortar, the stones ranging in size from those so large that one man can hardly handle to the small round and different colored ones used to finish it off. Such a cabin Mr. Stahl is building, and from his description of it, I have no doubt it will be among the finest in that vicinity.

We took several drives about the country; one to visit the scene of a recent forest fire, or rather in this case a swamp fire. This fire burnt over a space 10 miles long by 5 miles wide. A heavy thunder shower on Friday night had nearly extinguished the fire, but we could clearly see what such a fire would do to a thickly wooded district, such as one, for instance as we walked through on Saturday afternoon, when Mr. Stahl showed us through an immense forest of second growth timber and undergrowth, where he and his partner spent the greater part of last winter, getting out logs for cabins, shingles and fire wood.

We were told that when the original pines were standing, there was no undergrowth, in these forests. One old gentleman told me that he could remember when you could walk for miles under these immense trees, on ground as smooth as if a carpet were stretched on it.

But when these trees were "lumbered off," and the sunlight reached the earth, dozens of different kinds of trees grew up, so close together, that outside of the spruce, cedars and tamaracs, they are even now only bushes. It is said that there are only 75 acres of "virgin pines," further north, left of the hundreds of thousands of acres, a hundred years ago.

We started for home on Labor Day, arriving there about 4 o'clock, sorry that our little vacation was over, and hoping that we may again have the opportunity of enjoying the splendid hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Stahl, and that, for the sake of the youngest member of the family, the fish will not be on their vacation, too.

Before closing, I want to express our appreciation of the visits of a few former neighbors, in Taneytown. Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hesson, spent a very short time with us on their way home from their Western trip, and afterwards Levi D. Frock also gave us much pleasure in a short visit. We certainly enjoyed both visits, and wish more of our former friends could drop in to see us.

JOHN J. REID.

An Opportunity to Help.

We advise the reading of an article on our Editorial page, this issue, prepared by the Maryland Children's Aid Society. This Society needs more generous support from the counties, in order that it may do wider and more effective work.

Just now it is making an appeal for only $2500, from the counties so that it may complete the current year without a deficit. A few small subscriptions have been handed in at The Record office, for forwarding, but there ought to be many more.

BIG BOND ISSUE VOTE NEXT MONDAY

Little Interest Apparent on Very Important Question.

The vote on two bond issues will be held next Monday, at the usual voting places in this county, the one providing for a maximum issue of $600,000 for new school buildings, and the other for an issue of $250,000 for constructing roads. There is little agitation of these questions among the people, either for or against, and the outlook is that this apparent lack of interest may result in a small vote. It may be that a very small minority will decide these important questions; and this is always dangerous to good government, no matter what the questions may be when they affect the whole people.

The polls will open at 8:00 A. M., and close at 6:00 P. M. Those who read The Record and other county papers have already been informed of the details of these questions, and it is now up to the qualified voters to decide.

Those who want to vote for one issue and against the other, can do so, as the two will be separately placed on the ballot, as follows:

For the School Bond Issue.
Against the School Bond Issue.

For the Road Bond Issue.
Against the Road Bond Issue.

The School Bond issue provides for the erection of school buildings at Union Bridge, Sykesville, Westminster, Manchester, Winfield, Mt. Airy, Charles Carroll, Uniontown and New Windsor.

The Road Bond issue merely provides for the construction of roads, without specification as to their location.

FIFTEEN POINTS.

The following has been circulated this week, signed: "Executive Council of Parent-Teacher Association of Carroll County."

1.—Who proposed a Bond issue for schools? The bill was prepared and introduced into the Legislature by the Parent-Teacher Associations of Carroll County.

2.—For what amount? $600,000.

3.—Why was so much asked for? Because new buildings are needed in nearly every center. The enrollment of children is so great that there is no longer sufficient room for them and many of the buildings are no longer safe and can not be repaired.

4.—How is this money to be distributed? It is to be distributed as follows when necessary to use it: Union Bridge $60,000; Sykesville $75,000; Westminster $250,000; Manchester, $50,000; Winfield $25,000; Mt. Airy, $25,000; Charles Carroll $10,000; Uniontown $5,000; and New Windsor, $100,000; or as much of the above in each instance as may be necessary.

5.—Would it not have been possible to have gotten along with less? No. For building costs are high and in order to conform to the State Educational building requirements, these amounts are not exorbitant. Again these buildings must stand for many years, therefore, they should be well built.

6.—What will be done if the Bond issue is defeated? The buildings will be built at any rate.

7.—Will this increase the taxes? Yes, it will more than double them.

8.—Why? Because the cost must come out of the direct tax.

9.—What will happen if the Bond issue passes? (1) The buildings that are needed will be built at once and all the people will have the immediate benefit. (2) The taxes will not be higher than they are now. (3) The bonds will be paid off in 30 years from the date of issue. (4) No one will feel the burden and our schools will be adequate to house comfortably all the children.

10.—Is this scheme of issuing Bonds a new procedure? Yes, for Carroll, but not for other Counties. All cities, States and industrial concerns do business this way.

11.—Why? Because bonds can be sold for 4 1/2%. We are now paying 6 percent for money loaned to the County.

12.—Does our state have authority to issue Bonds? Yes. Our State has road bonds out to the extent of $5,000,000, and when the bonds were sold our state tax dropped 4 cents.

13.—When does the School Bond bill come up for a vote? On September 26, 1927 at the regular polling places.

14.—Why should you vote for it? Because: (1) It will not increase the taxes. (2) It will make it possible for the Board of Education to meet all the needs at once. (3) Your child will get the benefit at once. (4) The cost will be partially paid for by those who will now get the benefit.

15.—What if I have no children? Vote for it as the best protection to your interests. Education is the best insurance against crime, mobs, anarchists, and destruction of life and property.

What Might Have Happened.

"In urging parents to have their children protected from diphtheria by inoculation with toxin-anti-toxin, Dr. R. H. Riley, Assistant Director of the State Department of Health and Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases said 'Now that the schools have opened and the children are mingling together again in large numbers, we can expect the usual flare up of the catching diseases, among them, diphtheria. In toxin-anti-toxin, we have a means of protecting children from that dread disease and parents who want to have their children safeguarded should have them given the necessary three treatments.'

"Diphtheria usually starts with a sore throat. Just how dangerous an apparently simple case of sore throat may be and how many lives may be threatened by it, is illustrated by an experience we had in Maryland two years ago. It was entirely due to the prompt action of the principal of one of the county schools in reporting absences from 'sore throat' and the immediate response of the Deputy State Health Officer of that District assisted by the local public health nurse, that an outbreak that endangered a whole school and that might have cost a score of lives was checked and controlled.

"Within ten days seven cases of so-called 'sore throat' developed in the school. The first victim was one of the older boys. The next was the boy who sat immediately in front of Number 1. Number 3 sat in front of No. 2. Nos. 4 and 5 were members of the same class. No. 6 and 7 were brothers in another class but they were neighbors of No. 1 and rode to school in the bus with him.

"Soon after the first group had been taken sick, the principal reported the absences to the Deputy State Health Officer who got on the job immediately. Throats were examined and cultures were sent to the State Laboratory. Tests made there showed that all of the absences had diphtheria. Further inquiry indicated that all seven cases had developed from an undischarged case—a young white girl who had been ill and who was employed at the home of the first child who was taken sick. Sixteen days after her recovery the boy came down with a 'sore throat.' After being at home for eight days, the boy returned to school. Within a few days, through the usual contacts—the exchange of pencils, swapping of apples or marbles or other treasures, sneezing without using a handkerchief—the rest of the 'gang' caught the disease.

"Fortunately for all of these children, and for all who were in contact with them, the seriousness of the apparently simple sore throats was discovered in time, and there were no deaths. But it would have been much safer for everybody concerned if every one of these children had been 'immunized' that is, protected against diphtheria by the means that are readily available."

A Ninetieth Birthday Celebrated.

(For the Record).
On September 17th, a surprise birthday party was given to Mrs. Kate Hamilton, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Annie Foreman, in Taneytown. Wm. Crabbs, wife and son, Marlin, of Union Bridge, presented her with a birthday cake, and Mrs. John (Louise) Rowe, Miss Sarah Crabbs and Miss Evelyn Weller, of Bark Hill, furnished the ice cream, bananas and mixed cakes. Lovely music and a most delightful time was on the program. It was Mrs. Hamilton's 90th birthday and she is quite active on her feet and can read without the aid of glasses.

She enjoys all kind of fun; even went on the floor and danced the Fox-trot with a lady at the party. Her costume for the evening was a gown thirty-five years old, and with slippers she looked like a real sport.

Mrs. Hamilton was born and always has lived in the community around Taneytown and her sense of humor is as keen as a woman of thirty years. Others at the party were: Mrs. Howard Foreman and family and Mrs. Lincoln Foreman and family, grandchildren and great-grandchildren to Mrs. Hamilton.

Apparently, we are getting part of the summer time that went astray in May and June.

STINKING SMUT WHEAT WARNINGS.

Treatment of Seed, and Instructions About Sowing.

For the last four years the amount of stinking smut in Maryland wheat has more than doubled each year said Mr. F. W. Oldenburg, Extension Agronomist of the University of Maryland who is in the county this week assisting County Agent Burns with putting on demonstrations on smut control.

Last year 14% of the wheat fields had more than 1% of smut. This year there were more than 44 percent. This county probably had a larger percentage. Wheat from such fields often brings 20 to 25 cents per bushel loss and in severe cases it is difficult to find a market for it at any price. There is also a decided loss in yield.

Wet, cold weather when the wheat is starting its growth, is favorable for smut. We had such weather last year. If we again have a cold wet fall this year it is very probable that many more than 44 out of every hundred farmers will have enough smut in their wheat to cause dockage, for another 36 percent had some smut in their wheat this year and only 20 percent had none.

The remedy is simple. Treat the seed wheat thoroughly with copper carbonate dust.

To insure success the following points must be kept in mind:

1.—Do not use seed wheat that has so much smut in it that it is graded smutty. Use wheat only that is reasonably free from smut.

2.—Treat this wheat thoroughly with copper carbonate dust using a barrel dusting machine or have the dusting done by a commercial machine.

3.—Plant early as possible after the Hessian Fly danger is past. There will be less danger of cold wet weather while the wheat is coming up at which time the smut infection takes place.

There are some precautions that must be taken into account:

1.—Do not breathe the copper carbonate dust.

It is more or less poisonous. When the work is done outside with the barrel duster, this can easily be avoided by keeping out of the dust. If however any other type of machine is used, since they make too much dust to avoid keeping out of it, or if the work is done inside, a wet cloth or respirator must be worn over the mouth or nose.

2.—Set the drill 1 peck wider to obtain the usual rate of seeding.

3.—After the drill has stood out in wet weather after sowing treated wheat be sure to see that gears run free before starting off.

Many farmers say they have no smut in their wheat and it will not be necessary to treat. However they can be pretty certain that plenty of spores have been carried to their wheat by the thrashing machine that thrashed their wheat or by the cleaning machinery.

Theodore Eckard Celebrates 88th Birthday.

Theodore Eckard, a Civil War veteran and retired produce merchant of Baltimore, celebrated his 88th birthday quietly at his home at Blue Ridge Summit, Monday by smoking a cigar which was given him by one of his friends who remembered the occasion. Although not an habitual he enjoys good cigars.

In spite of his advanced age, Mr. Eckard is active in both mind and body. He makes daily trips to the postoffice at the Summit and to the stores and occasionally takes an automobile trip to Carroll county, Maryland to oversee the work on his farm, the place where he was born and although never farmed by him he has always owned the property and personally supervised the work.

During the Civil War, he served first in the cavalry and later in Co. G, First P. H. B. Volunteer Light Infantry under Colonel Malsby. He saw active service with the Army of the Potomac and participated in the greater part of the fighting around Harper's Ferry, and was in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam and Gettysburg. He was captured once and spent some time in the Confederate prison at Staunton, Va., but was later returned to his company through an exchange of prisoners.

In a recent motor trip to Harper's Ferry with his son-in-law, H. J. Mentzer, he pointed out the place where he stood guard and cited many other interesting instances about the war.

Following his discharge from the army, he engaged in the produce business in Baltimore but retired about 20 years ago. During his retirements he and his wife have been living at Taneytown and Blue Ridge Summit, spending the greater part of the time at their home at the latter place in order to be near their daughter and only child, Mrs. H. J. Mentzer. He is a member of the Dushane Post of the G. A. R., Baltimore, and proudly wears the insignia of the organization on the lapel of his coat. He says he would no more think of leaving his house without the G. A. R. button on his coat than without his shoes or other necessary parts of his clothing.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

Thirty-fourth Annual Meeting held in Westminster.

The 34th. annual Carroll County Woman's Christian Temperance Union Convention convened in Centenary M. E. Church, Westminster, Sept. 14 with morning and afternoon sessions. The decoration committee had huge jardiniere of golden rod and black-eyed Susan's distributed here and there throughout the edifice. The devotional service was conducted by the pastor of the church, Rev. Edw. Hayes who, after the opening song, America, and prayer, took his lesson from Romans 1:15; Acts 21:13 and first Timothy 4:6 Chapter, using as his principal theme these words: "I am ready to be offered up." He closed this interesting and helpful service by asking his audience to sing, "O Master let us walk with Thee."

The president, Mrs. Philena T. Fenby then declared the convention open and a motion to adopt the program as the order of the day was made. Fifteen members of the executive answered to roll call. The appointment of committees resulted as follows: Resolution: Miss Marie Senesey; Mrs. A. M. Ward, Mrs. Edw. Bixler, Mrs. Arthur Shipley and Mrs. Chas. Billingsless. Credentials, Mrs. Frank Myers, Courtesy, Mrs. Atlee W. Wampler, Mrs. Walter Hawkins.

Mrs. A. N. Ward gave the welcome address. She began with a picture of Westminster before and after prohibition and compared times then and now. A marked improvement is the result. She urged women to stand for law enforcement, and begin setting the example in their homes. She concluded by saying that newspapers are our greatest foe. They spread wet propaganda. The response was made by Mrs. Arthur Shipley.

Report of departments followed. The Young People's Branch reported three branches, namely, Finksburg, New Windsor and Sykesville, the last named is a new one, with a membership of fifteen pledged members. Finksburg members, fifty strong, have all been trained through the Loyal Temperance Legion. The report of the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. L. G. Shipley, was listened to with much interest, and showed that an endless amount of work has been accomplished during the year. She paid a glowing tribute to Mrs. Lydia Smith, president of Union Bridge Union, by saying that "her bright face is always a great inspiration in our conventions." Mrs. Smith doubtless is among one of the oldest local presidents, in years, but not in spirit, and has served well her position. Mrs. Shipley was given a rising vote at the conclusion of her report.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Mable W. Kelbaugh, showed that the treasury was on a good financial footing. She too was given a rising vote. In introduction the State President, Mrs. Mary R. Hasplu, Mrs. Fenby said that in the 18 years of president, Mrs. Hasplu has been absent but twice.

Mrs. Hasplu told many interesting things about the recent National Convention, held in Minneapolis. She said the general outlook at this convention was encouraging. Of the many representatives from other organizations, who were visitors at this convention, and of their pledge to stand for law observance. She reported that in ten months 51,000 new members have been obtained. She also spoke of the State Convention which will convene in Frederick City, Oct. 4, 5 and 6, at which time Mrs. Mary Harris Armour, Georgia, will be one of the speakers. The Masonic Male Quartette will render selections. The Y. P. B. demonstration and the presidents address will comprise the first evening's program.

The afternoon devotional was conducted by Rev. Rupley, pastor of the Lutheran church. His lesson was taken from St. Luke 10 Chapter. A female quartette from the Church of the Brethren, favored us with several beautiful selections. Mrs. Mary B. Woods, a life-long member of the organization was made a memorial member by her daughter, Mrs. Abner Fuss, Glyndon. The credential committee reported 48 voting delegates.

The election results as follows: President, Mrs. Philena Fenby; Cor. Sec., Mrs. L. G. Shipley; Rec. Sec'y, Mrs. Blanche Magee; Treasurer, Mrs. Mabel Kelbaugh; Director, Y. P. B., Frank Fenby; Anti-Narcotic, Mrs. Edw. Bixler; Social Morality, Mrs. Blanche Magee; Press Work and Publicity, Mrs. Peter B. Newbell; Sunday School, Mrs. Englar; Temperance Literature, Mrs. Senesey; Flower Mission and Relief, Mrs. Claude Buckingham; Child Welfare, Mrs. Frank Myers; Health, Mrs. Virginia Gates; Sabbath Observance, Mrs. Wimer.

The convention moved to send a letter of love and flowers to its vice-president, Mrs. Mary Forlines, who is ill. It was with regret that the resignation of Mrs. Gussie Blizzard, Co. L. T. L. Secretary was accepted. Her loyal, willing service has been much appreciated. The Convention closed with prayer by the State President, after a masterful address by Mr. J. Raymond Schmidt, lecturer, Washington, D. C.

Remembering that there was a motion picture in town that he wished to see and finding his cell unlocked, Henry Laird, a prisoner at Monessen, Pennsylvania, walked out of jail and went to the show. After the show, while the police force searched the city, he returned to his cell, and was asleep when found.

It is probably not true that Mr. Coolidge is relinquishing the Presidency to devote all his time to being an Indian chief.

Mr. Lowden Won't Play the Game.

Ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, a prospective candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination next year, in replying to a request for a statement of his plans, gave the professional writers in "The Great Game of Politics" a hard slap, when he said:

"This is pure foolishness. There will be plenty of time for announcements when there is something definite to announce."

The class of fellows whose job it is to keep the political pot stirred up, in order that they can turn out their daily portion of political hash to a more or less imaginary hungry patronage, will not like the Lowden style; for when the higher-ups decline to talk, and thereby reduce the crop of raw material from which to manufacture new inspirations, their own vivid imaginations are apt to crack under the strain of trying to make something out of nothing.

It is rather difficult to keep on playing "The Great Game of Politics" when only one side plays, especially when there is a none too large audience for it when it is played by two sides. Mr. Lowden is right; there is "plenty of time, when there is something definite to announce"; and in the meantime the brilliant professional daily political hash slingers should hunt another job.

Selling a "Think."

"Never say a think can't be sold until you have advertised it" was the first line in an article quite recently in an agricultural paper, that called attention to the advertising value of that paper. No doubt the word "think" was unintentionally used instead of "thing"; but the expression as it was printed was not so far out of the way.

When we think it would be wise, and good business, to offer something at an attractive price, and sell it, we sell our "think"—by a little twisting of grammar, there is no difference between "think" and "thought"—and advertising, largely, is selling merchandise by the aid of our thoughts.

The difference between a successful and unsuccessful advertiser, is largely the difference between the "thinking" of those who prepare advertisements. It is the same difference that makes one salesman better than another—it is "thinking" the merits of merchandise into terms of salesmanship, and placing the two in such shape as best appeals to the buying public.

Yes a "think" can be sold. It may be of more value than the "thing" itself, in salesmanship. The big mail order house catalogues demonstrate this. The "thing" to be sold can be stated in plain type with a price attached, but it is the "think" in attractive statements made, that sells the goods.

Flyers Hold Opposing Views.

Capt. Lindberg, who made himself famous by flying alone to Europe, has sounded what seems to be his first false note, when he opposes the restriction of privately undertaken air flights or as some authorities call them, "foolhardy" flying. He seems to have a faith in flying, founded on his own good luck, without much allowance for conditions that he fortunately missed.

The French flyer, Santos Dumont, a veretain in the art, takes the much saner view, as we think, that there is no need for hurry in conquering the air, at the cost of so many precious lives, and says:

"I am strongly in favor of all attempts to prevent the risking of precious lives in foolhardy flying expeditions which too many are anxious to undertake at the present moment."

"I am convinced that within the near future aviation will overcome the present-day difficulties. Be patient and let us work hard to fight against nature's forces, which we must admit are still superior to ours."

Md. Children's Aid Society Needs Your Help.

On August 6th, the Washington daily papers carried the story of 9-year-old Martha Giesling whose spine was fractured by an avalanche of sand and gravel while she and her little brothers were digging a cave in the back yard of their home, in one of our Maryland counties. At the time of the accident her father and mother were in jail for keeping a disorderly house and the six younger children including an infant less than a year old had been left in the care of their 11 year old sister.

It is sometimes necessary to sentence delinquent parents to jail but it should never be necessary to leave their helpless children without proper care and supervision.

A few days later a 13-year-old boy was locked up in a county jail for two nights and a day on a technical charge although he was guilty of little more than impertinence to the woman in whose care he had been left by his parents, while they took a short vacation trip.

It is sometimes necessary to take delinquent children into custody, but imprisonment in the county jail should never be resorted to while children are awaiting a hearing for minor offenses.

Such incidents as these do not and cannot happen in communities where a proper regard for the rights of children is given expression through organized effort, but in fifteen counties of this State, including Carroll County, the only welfare agency operating affectively in the interests of dependent and neglected children is the Maryland Children's Aid Society.

This splendid organization has labored unceasingly for the past 16 years to bring about conditions that would make such occurrences impossible anywhere in this State. Last year more than 3000 children were referred to the Society through its various branches and more than 500 county children are now being cared for in foster homes.

The advice and assistance of the Society's trained workers is needed in dealing with many of our Carroll county children but in order to serve these children adequately they must have the full co-operation of the local authorities and the generous financial support of our citizens.

Six Years of Radio.

Just six years ago, on September 11, 1921, the first program-broadcasting license in this country was granted to Station WBZ, of Springfield, Mass. That was not the pioneer station, as KDKA, of Pittsburgh, announced the Harding-Cox election returns on the night of November 4, 1920, and broadcast experimental programs long before any station obtained a Government license. But today is the sixth anniversary of the beginning of Federal supervision of what has become a monumental industry—and a monumental problem.

Six years ago receiving sets were comparatively rare; today they are in upward of one and one-half million American homes. In 1921 four broadcasting stations were licensed; now about 690 are licensed.

In these years virtually every event of public interest or national importance has been placed on the air. Thousands of noted entertainers have been won by the microphone, and the voices of the Nation's most prominent personages are known throughout the land. Millions of dollars have been spent for radio sets, for the equipment of stations and in payment for the services of entertainers. But startling as have been these developments since the Government took cognizance of the broadcasting field, they are only a faint foreshadowing of what the future may bring.—Phila. Ledger.

LACKING IN FAITH

The prisoner came before the court on a charge of murder. Many distinguished legal lights had assembled to hear the case.

The charge was read out, and the judge, as is usual, asked the man in the dock if he would like to be defended by an attorney.

"No, my lord," came the reply, "this is too serious a matter."

Succession of Ideas

Produced Motor Car

The history of the motor car began over 230 years ago, when Street, an English inventor, first utilized oil as a motive power. It was not until 1870 that a really practical petrol engine appeared. It was the work of Julius Hock, of Vienna.

The next name connected with the progress of the motor car is the most important of all—that of Gottlieb Daimler. In 1883 Daimler made the first small, high-speed petrol engine; all previous engines had been huge, clumsy and slow-moving.

Two years later he installed his engine in a motor-bicycle, and at the same time fitted boats with motors and ran them at Paris.

The boats attracted the attention of Levasor, another famous pioneer, who at once saw the immense possibilities in Daimler's invention. He bought the French patents from the inventor. Levasor invented a system of transmission—a method of taking the power from the engine to the wheels—and with a few small improvements this system is in use today.

Perfectly Plain

A ten-year-old girl had moved from Indianapolis to a farm in southern Indiana where the language of the Hoosier schoolmaster sometimes still exists in reality. Many of the school children's expressions were like Greek to her and called for translation by her schoolmates or mother.

One day she inquired of a schoolmate why Imogene was out of school. "She's got a risin' on her head," was the reply.

"What's that?"

"Why, it a raisin'," was the explanatory answer.

Repeating the conversation to her mother she learned that Imogene had a boil or abscess on her head.—Indianapolis News.

It Does

In a lesson in parsing a sentence, the word "courtin'" came to a young miss of fourteen to parse. She commenced hesitatingly, but got on well enough until she had to tell what it agreed with. Here she stopped short. But as the teacher said, "Very well; what does courtin' agree with?" Ellen blushed and held down her head.

"Ellen, don't you know what courtin' agrees with?"

"Ye-ye—yes, ma'am."

"Well, Ellen, why don't you parse that word? What does it agree with?" Blushing still more and stammering, Ellen at last replied, "It agrees with all the girls, ma'am."

Plenty of Ignorance

The uneducated have to pass through life with crippled powers; they have not a fair chance of contending in that struggle for existence upon which all have to embark who are obliged to earn their own livelihood. Few, if any, industrial operations are so entirely mechanical that a man will perform them equally well whether his mental powers have been developed or have been permitted to remain dormant. Ignorance takes away a considerable part of the power of a man to acquire the means of living.—Henry Fawcett.

Reply Not Recorded

Mildred, age five, having been born on a day far removed from the dark ages, had never seen a man with a beard. One day an uncle who possessed a crop of rather short whiskers came to visit them. After the first salutations had been given, Mildred stared at her newly found kinsman with intense interest.

Evidently arriving at no satisfactory conclusion, she asked: "What kind of fur is that on your face—fox or rabbit?"

Start of Honeymoon

The honeymoon journey is stated to have had its birth in the reign of George II of England, declares Gas Logic. It became, declares an authority on wedding customs, "a recognized world in the earlier days of George II's reign. Many years passed before modest gentlemen in the middle rank of life presumed to imitate their betters in respect to this convenient custom."

ANYWHERE TO ANYWHERE—BY TELEPHONE

"But I don't know the Number"

IF you want to place a long distance call by the fast "call-by-number" way but don't know the telephone number of the out-of-town party, just ask for "information" and give her the name and address of the person you wish to reach in the distant city.

After she gives you the number, hang up your receiver, wait momentarily, then give the out-of-town telephone number and name of the place you wish to reach to your local operator. For instance, if your call is to New York City, simply say, for example, "I want New York, Morningside 1630." In a few moments, usually while you wait on the line, you will be talking with your party or receive a report.

This service is available on calls by number only. If you want to talk to a particular person, ask for Long Distance in the regular way. Call by number if you possibly can as it is the quickest and cheapest way to telephone to distant points.

FISHERMEN'S MECCA DESTROYED BY FIRE

Home of Izaak Walton, English Landmark.

Washington.—Fishermen will be saddened to learn that Izaak Walton's thatched, half-timbered cottage at Shallowford, Staffordshire, has been destroyed by fire.

"England has lost one of her best beloved, literary landmarks and fishermen the home of the art's most famous exponent, with the destruction of Walton's country home," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"As St. Andrews, Scotland, is the mecca for golfers and Stratford-upon-Avon the shrine of drama lovers, so Shallowford has been the place of pilgrimage for fishermen," continues the bulletin. "Staffordshire, unrolling its green, cultivated hills and valleys midway between smoky Birmingham and busy Liverpool, was the birthplace of Walton and the scene of those fishing expeditions wherein he angled and caught with the same hook, trout and many paragraphs we still acclaim.

Some Famous Fishing Places. "Northwest, a few miles from the Shallowford cottage lies Madeley, country seat of John Offley, Esquire, to whom Walton dedicated the 'Compleat Angler' in appreciation for permission to fish on Offley's estate. Northeast ripples the Dove through Dovedale, a green carpeted, English sort of canyon, where Walton fished with that young rake, Charles Cotton, who added to the 'Compleat Angler' the sections on fly-fishing. Near Beresford at the upper end of the Dale stands the famous fishing house built by the impecunious, creditor-ridden Cotton for the use of 'Father Walton' and himself.

"Nothing could be in greater contrast to an American sportsman's fishing camp than Cotton's fishing house on the Dove. The latter presents the appearance of a rather large, private mausoleum. Its walls are cut stone. Flanking the arched, stone doorway, two windows admit light to the fishing house through diamond-figured, leaded glass panes. Within, the single room measures 15 feet square. Black and white marble squares pave its floor. A black marble-topped table occupied the center of the room and at one time painted panels of scenes on the Dove, and of Cotton and Walton in dress of the time, ornamented the walls. Amid classic magnificence the only human note can be found on the fireplace where the initials 'C.C., I.W.' record the famous friendship. Over the doorway on the outside runs the inscription: 'Piscatoribus Sacrum.'

"Walton did not take his fishing straight. He mixed trout with a kind of philosophy and poetry. The 'Angler's Song' tells why he thinks fishing is superior to all other sports:

"Of recreation there is none
So free as fishing is alone;
All other pastimes do no less
Than mind and body both possess;
My hand alone my work can do,
So I can fish and study, too."

"The most famous fisherman of them all was so unprofessional as to let his pole and line fish unattended while he sought shelter under a tree to talk with a pupil on Montaigne or worms. He also preferred worms to flies for catching trout!

"Izaak Walton was born in Stafford in 1593. Fish and live long early became his philosophy.

Lived in Turbulent Times. "We regard the span of Walton's life as one of the stormiest in England's history. The pilgrims were sailing to New England to escape religious persecution when Walton at twenty-seven ran a hardware store in a 7½ by 5-foot London room. With the defeat of the Royalists by Cromwell in 1644 Walton retired to Stafford. All England struggled amidst the tumult of revolution but Izaak merely moved from the banks of the Thames to the banks of the Dove. The 'Compleat Angler's' soothing prose praising the beauty of an English field after a shower, explaining how to put a worm on a hook, and discussing the excellence of the Episcopal faith; this dissertation, mild as a May morning, first appeared in that hectic year when Cromwell proclaimed himself Lord Protector and England became a republic.

"No life, my honest Scholar," Walton has Piscator advise Venator, "no life so happy and so pleasant as the life of a well-governed angler; for when the lawyer is swallowed up with business, and the statesman is preventing or contriving plots, then we sit on cowslip banks, hear birds sing, and possess ourselves in as much quietness as these silent, silver streams, which we now see glide so quietly by us. Indeed, my good Scholar, we may say of angling as Doctor Boteler said of strawberries, 'Doubtless o'Gd could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did,' and so, if I might be a judge, 'God never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling.'

"It is quite in keeping that Walton should have inscribed a tribute to the meadow lark which posterity treasures more than his 'observations on the eel.'

"As first, the lark," he wrote, "when she means to rejoice to cheer herself and those that hear her, she then enters earth, and sings as she ascends higher into the air; and having ended her heavenly employment, grows then mute and sad to think she must descend to the dull earth, which she would not touch but of necessity."

In serving a vegetable plate include one food that contains some protein, as for example, green peppers or tomatoes stuffed with a meat mixture, cauliflower or potatoes scalloped with cheese, spinach with hard-boiled eggs, or sweet corn pudding made with milk and eggs.

Corn fritters may be made from left-over corn on the cob. To 4 tablespoons fresh corn add 1 teaspoon melted fat, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg, one-half cup milk, 1 cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix to a batter and fry in deep fat.

Curried veal is a good dish to serve when lima beans are in season, because the flavor of curry goes well with lima beans. Cut 2 pounds of stewing veal into small pieces and simmer in water enough to cover until almost tender. Then add 2 cups of fresh lima beans. In another pan cook 1 medium onion, chopped fine, and one-half a green pepper, chopped, in a small amount of butter. Add to the meat. When the beans are done, thicken the liquid slightly with a little flour which has been mixed with one-fourth teaspoon curry, 1½ teaspoons salt, and a little cold water. Add 1 cup diced cucumber and cook a few minutes longer. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the top when serving.

The broody coop should have a slat bottom in order that the air may circulate from beneath, thus keeping the body of the hen cooler, thereby tending to break up the hen's broodiness.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

DETACHMENT

RUSKIN wrote, "If you cut one square inch out of any of Turner's skies, you have an insight into the Infinite; but if you stand at a distance of an inch from any of Turner's skies, you will find you have only dabs of paint." Daily struggles with a very real world bear the same testimony. Studying problems in a mood of calm detachment has saved many a mistake. When you are impelled to write a letter, your best wisdom tells you not to write; write it anyway, but do not mail it. Separate yourself from the harassing conditions involved. Look at the problem from a distance; and tomorrow you will throw the letter into the waste basket and be the better for it. Frequently a problem seems unsolvable because we are too near it. This nearness makes it impossible for us to study it from an all-around point of view. Acting upon the impulse of the moment many times results disastrously. Problems somehow have a way of suggesting their own solutions.

In these days when we are trying to live 24 hours in 12, it seems necessary that time be taken for one to become acquainted with himself. An inventory of our own sources of strength and weakness may surprise us. He is a wise man who knows his own limitations. If every day we could see our inner selves reflected in a mirror we would learn some important lessons. Moments of detachment spent in becoming acquainted with one's self are never spent in vain.

In a life of seventy years, a man sleeps twenty-three years, works twenty years and plays twenty-seven years. The efficiency of the twenty years of work depends upon the way we spend the other fifty years. If some of this time is given to hours of detachment when we see visions and dream dreams, hours in which ideals are born and ambition kindles the fires of enthusiasm, then we shall have gone a long way toward reaching our goal in life. Mountain tops are not inhabited. We climb them for the benefit of the point of view. So with hours of detachment in a daily life of toil and strain.

"Old" Dishes Made New

CRUSHED pineapple is a "ready made" fruit adaptable for a lot of dishes, especially when one is in a hurry and can't think of how to give well known dishes a different twist.

The simplest fruit cocktails suggest merely piling a cocktail or sherbet glass full of the chilled crushed Hawaiian pineapple, just as it comes from the can—and topping with a maraschino cherry. Then there are all sorts of more elaborate combinations with grapefruit, with strawberries and with a mixture of fruits including bananas. One particularly pleasing fruit cup, at this season, is made by filling cantaloupe halves with crushed pineapple.

In soups, too, pineapple has made its appearance. An expert dietitian recommends an iced mint fruit soup, using half a can of crushed pineapple, two cups of water, half a glass of mint jello and a teaspoon of arrowroot for thickening. She tops this soup off with a sprig of fresh mint.

Meat dishes are also good with pineapple. There are our savory baked hams given a piquant taste when baked with crushed pineapple, reserving some of the contents of the can for a garnish; meat loaves, whose flavors are improved by a small amount of the crushed pineapple, well drained, and any number of meat sauces made with this popular fruit. The simplest, and perhaps the most delicious of the latter is the crushed pineapple just as it comes from the can as nearly frapped as possible. It is a good variation from applesauce and is really delightful with roast pork or lamb.

Many people, planning a fruit salad, start from pineapple as a base. A simple different salad is made by combining dates and crushed pineapple and pouring over mayonnaise. Tomatoes stuffed with crushed Hawaiian pineapple and enhanced with walnut meats makes a particularly good salad. And even our old favorite Waldorf salad becomes something new when pineapple is substituted for apple.

In desserts, crushed pineapple has found a welcome place. Its golden color seems to dress up the dessert course and its tart, yet sweet flavor is one of the best means of ending a meal. Someone devised this quick and delicious dessert: simply place a can of crushed pineapple in a bucket of ice and salt, allowing it to stand for several hours and when it is thoroughly frozen dip the can for a second in hot water. When the entire top of the can is removed the cylinder of fruit slips out unbroken, ready for slicing.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

IN ANOTHER'S PLACE

WHEN in a moment of excitement or envy you incline to assail another's good name, or question his or her acts which seem to you unreasonable, hold your tongue.

A mischievous word hastily spoken is like a little spark, capable of causing a great conflagration, irreparable loss and unspeakable sorrow.

To blurt out the first cruel thought that comes to your mind in a burst of sudden heat is a fearful thing to do. It is an evidence of an inherent weakness in the moral fiber and proves your unfitness for leadership.

At one outburst of temper if you should happen to be seen or overheard by your employers, you shatter your own good record and spoil a perfectly bright future, simply by giving vent to spleen.

When the impulse comes to malign co-workers or speak ill of superiors, however much you may wish to override them, hold your horses and drive carefully.

There is danger ahead. Thousands have gone over the fatal precipice for similar recklessness, when they imagined themselves secure.

Put yourself in the place of the person whom you are seeking to humiliate and overthrow. You know nothing about his or her trials, impediments, deprivations or sorrows, and you have no royal privilege to enter the heart-sanctuary and expose it to a vulgar gaze.

Put yourself in place of an ever-wrought typist who is doing her utmost to support aged parents; put yourself in the place of a troubled employer who lies awake nights from thinking of pressing obligations; put yourself in the place of the man that runs the elevator, the scrub woman with her bent body and gnarled purple hands.

To seek to exalt yourself by contrast with such people, for no other reason than petty pride or jealousy is not only exceedingly discourteous but grossly uncharitable.

It is an understood thing in the game of life that while the hot-headed and uncharitable are pulling down reputations of others, the person who puts himself in the place of the striving, who is considerate and kindly in words and acts, yet is awake to his own opportunity, is the individual who eventually rises to eminence and remains there.

"My idea of fertility," says Corpu-lent Cora, "is to try to insult a fat lady by telling her she's narrow."

Priceless Relics in Old Turkish Capital

Not the least remarkable of the treasures shown in the old Sultan palace in Constantinople is a jeweled reliquary containing a reputed portion of the skull of St. John Baptist, a gold reliquary in the form of a forearm and hand, containing his reputed hand, and three swords with inscriptions on their blades, which make it probable that they belonged to the last Emperor Constantine, who fell at the capture of the city in 1453.

Artistically, the supreme treasures are the sword of Suleiman the Great and the Sixteenth century case for the mantle of the prophet. The former object has a hilt of ivory overlaid with a delicate gold filigree, and the blade is inlaid with an inscription and an exquisite flower pattern in gold, while on the hilt, just below the hilt, are two curious figures in relief, a dragon facing a mythological bird. The golden case for the prophet's mantle is an unexcelled example of goldsmith's work, with its incised design and sober decoration of rubies and emeralds.

There are jeweled swords, whisks, girdles, pipestems, inkstands and vessels galore. These are the things whose sumptuousness is staggering; there are things also whose rare beauty takes the breath away.—Chicago Journal.

Moving Picture Idea Ascribed to Chinese

Edison himself has said that most of his inventions are the development of the idea of some one who has preceded him, and now some one comes forth with the statement that the real origin of the moving picture dates back to China 7,000 years ago. The Chinese, in 5000 B. C., had their equivalent of our "pictures" in their "shadow shows." They made figures of wax, exquisitely modeled and dressed, a few inches in height and flung the shadows from these on buffalo skin rendered transparent. Moving pictures thrown on a screen.

A set can be seen in the Science museum, South Kensington, England. It forms part of an interesting collection of "cinema relics" gathered together by W. Day and loaned by him to the museum. These relics tell the tale in full of motion-picture development.

The Last Straw

Our sympathy was appropriately expressed recently to one of our most corpulent acquaintances who had gone to a doctor about his weight and had been ordered upon a four-day fast. A glass of orange juice twice a day—nothing more. On the night of the third day the man awoke from a nap in which he had dreamed that a thick, medium-rare beefsteak had been set before him. Restlessly he went for a stroll in the park, casting hungry, covetous glances at every youth with a peanut and every babe with a nursing bottle. Suddenly he was accosted by an individual who said:

"Say, boss, you couldn't give a poor fellow a dime, could you? I haven't had anything to eat since this morning."—The New Yorker.

Ancient Cross Erected

One hundred years after its discovery, a Celtic cross more than one thousand years old was erected during a ceremony held recently in St. Patrick's church, Ballymena, Ireland. The cross was unearthed in 1827 while a ditch was being dug in the Kircorriola church yard, near Ballymena, and placed in the tower of the church, where it remained until 1879, when the church was burned. It was lost until recently, and was found broken in three pieces in the cellar of Ballymena castle. The cross is of rough, hard limestone, 22 inches long and about 3 inches thick. The inscription was carved early in the Tenth century.

Odd Sea Birds

Frigate birds or men-o-war are birds which are found on the island Ascension. The original species was named Fregata aquila by the naturalist, Linnaeus, in 1758. They are now known to be confined to this little oceanic rock. These odd sea birds have bodies about the size of those of ordinary barnyard hens, with monstrous long wings, which spread as much as ten feet. Their bills are long with hooked tips, which make them dangerous weapons, and their feet are so tiny and so weak that they can scarcely waddle.

Wearisome

"The man who means well is as distressing as a camel's hair under-shirt," said J. Fuller Gloom, the human hyena. "He is so free from evil intent that he greatly resembles a dead clam. On account of his innocence he is always getting into predicaments that no one else would think of, and after becoming embroiled in trouble he expects, because he meant well, that all the rest of us will drop whatever we are doing and rush to his rescue. I am weary of the well-meaning man."—Kansas City Times.

The little one considered solemnly for a moment and then said: "Must it be sugar, mamma?"

"Why, no, darling, not necessarily. What would you like to do without?"

Surgeon Well Placed Among Nation's Great

Selection of Dr. Ephraim McDowell as one of Kentucky's two representatives in the Hall of Fame—the other is Henry Clay—is a reminder of the great service this surgeon rendered to humanity. He blazed the way of his profession in abdominal surgery when, in 1809, he performed a difficult operation that never had been tried before, saved the patient's life and enabled his profession to save countless other lives afterward. Doctor McDowell was literally a "doctor of the old school," the type that thought nothing of the monetary return from his practice. He was an adviser of the people, often in financial matters as well as being the custodian of their health and that of their children. He was born in Rockbridge county, Virginia, and had ample opportunity to study the science in which he early decided to spend his life. After obtaining what medical education was available in America, he attended the University of Edinburgh and on his return from Europe located in Danville, Ky., in 1795 to practice. It was there that he performed the operation that made him famous.—Kansas City Star.

Lesson for September 25

REVIEW—THE EARLY KINGS OF ISRAEL

DEVOTIONAL READING—Ps. 105: 1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord hath prepared His throne in the heavens; and His kingdom ruleth over all.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What We May Learn From Samuel, Saul, David and Solomon.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Honoring God in Our Lives and in Our Land.

Though the lesson title for the quarter is "The Early Kings of Israel," the great character Samuel should be included. A good way to conduct the review would be to make a character study of the four outstanding persons of the quarter—Samuel, Saul, David and Solomon. Perhaps the most satisfactory method of review will be the summing up of the leading events and teachings of each lesson. The assignments should be made a week ahead, so that the members of the class may recite without hesitation. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for July 3.

Against the protest of Samuel the people demanded a king, in order that they might be like other nations. Saul, of the tribe of Benjamin, was given as best suited to fill the place.

Lesson for July 10.

Because of Samuel's exemplary life as a child, a judge and a ruler, he was able to challenge the people to show wherein he had ever defrauded or oppressed anyone. It is a fine thing when a man in public life can be vindicated against the charge of wrongdoing, either in public or in private.

Lesson for July 17.

Saul's failure brought great sorrow of heart to Samuel. The selection of David from Jesse's sons showed that God looks not on the outward appearance, but upon the heart. David's fidelity as a shepherd boy put him in line for promotion.

Lesson for July 24.

Because David was jealous for and trusted in God he was able to overcome Goliath, who had defied the living God.

Lesson for July 31.

The friendship of David and Jonathan has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan, the crown prince, knew that God had chosen David, therefore he waived his natural rights.

Lesson for August 7.

David knew that God had rejected Saul and chosen himself to be king. Though relentlessly pursued by Saul, David spared the king because he was God's anointed.

Lesson for August 14.

When David was made king he desired to bring up the ark, the symbol of God's presence, to the center of the nation's life. Though his desire was worthy, he was not careful to do according to God's way. Doing a right thing in a wrong way is displeasing to God.

Lesson for August 21.

Though God did not permit David to build a house for Him, He did something better; He promised to build for David a house, that is, to establish for him a throne. God does more and better for us than we are able to ask or think.

Lesson for August 28.

Through neglected duty David fell into temptation and grievously sinned. By means of a parable Nathan the prophet convicted him of his sin. Upon confession to God forgiveness was granted.

Lesson for September 4.

Because Solomon chose wisdom in order to intelligently reign over the nation, God abundantly bestowed upon him wisdom and riches. God's blessings exceed our asking.

Lesson for September 11.

Solomon's first task after his coronation was building the temple, a privilege which was denied to David, his father. Because of Solomon's obedience God manifested His presence and thus made the temple holy.

Lesson for September 18.

Rehoboam's pride and arrogance lost to himself the support of the nation for portion of the nation.

We Grow Strong or Weak

Great occasions do not make heroes or cowards; they simply unveil them. Silently, day by day, we grow strong or weak and at last some crisis shows what we have become.—Canon Westcott.

Have Christ in Your Heart

If a man have Christ in his heart heaven before his eyes, and only as much of temporal blessing as is just needful to carry him safely through life, then pain and sorrow have little to shoot at.—William Burrows.

The Cost and the Gain

Christ tells us to count the cost of discipleship, but he never asked us to count the gain. He knew we could not; there is no arithmetic to compute that.—W. L. Watkinson.

Napoleon and Lincoln

Among the Henpecked

The henpecked man can scarcely be classed as a product of modern times. Historians relate that many of the world's most famous men, including Napoleon, Lincoln and Socrates, were henpecked. One of the letters written by Napoleon to his wife, Josephine, ends with the postscript: "A thousand kisses—as burning as yours are frosty."

Lincoln, it is said, was henpecked because he was too shy. Count Montegales, the German biographer of Lincoln, declares that Lincoln's wife loved him superficially, her own selfish ambitions predominating, adding that she constantly pecked at him and almost drove him mad.

The duke of Marlborough, one of Winston Churchill's ancestors, and acclaimed as one of the greatest warriors of his day, was madly in love with his wife, who, however, nagged him all the time. In 1704 he wrote to his wife on the eve of a battle:

"I'm not nearly as much afraid of my 60,000 foes as I am of you when you are mad at me." Next day, with Prince Eugene of Savoy, he won a big victory over the forces of Louis XIV of France.—New York Evening World.

Business Man Really

Not Taking Chances

In Portland lives a business man who not so long ago took to himself a most attractive young wife. She is reported to be what is sometimes denominated as dangerously beautiful. Recently he took a "traveling man" home to dinner with him. When, after dinner, the two men were in the smoking room together, the traveling man felt moved to say:

"Mr. Blank, as you know, I go about a great deal, and I may confess to you I am an observer of the fair sex, and in the course of my travels I see many handsome women, but I must say Mrs. Blank is about the handsomest woman I've ever met. I should think you'd be afraid to bring other men into your home."

"Oh, I trust my wife to look after the honor and welfare of the family, but I do sometimes find myself taking the precaution to invite only such plain, commonplace men as no woman would care to see the second time,"—Boston Globe.

Log-Rolling

Suppose you are a prominent author. If you can get another prominent author to say something nice about your next book (which he may not read) is it not perfectly proper for you to say something nice about his next book? Thus a publisher will throw a book to the lions; that is, he will send advance copies to the lions, and each lion will roar a little about it. The roars of all these lions will be compacted in an advertising campaign, the whole affair being concocted before the book is out. There is nothing seemingly wrong about this. Of course each lion will naturally expect to have some roaring done for him later by the author of the book.—Thomas L. Masson in Patches Magazine.

Powerful Colloids

If you leave the dishes in which gelatin desserts have been served to lie unwashed, you may find them broken next morning, says Hygeia Magazine. Gelatin is one of those substances, neither liquid nor solid, known as colloid. When it dries it exerts a force strong enough to pull chips of glass out of a dish in which it has been placed.

The same force is exerted in reverse direction when dried colloids absorb moisture and expand. This was the principle used by the Egyptians when they drove a wooden wedge into a crack and poured water on it. This caused the expansion of the colloid in the wood and split the rock.

Insect Types

Modern entomologists, says Hygeia Magazine, are now classifying insects according to the same types as those used for classification of human beings. The "asthenic" individual with the lean and hungry look may be found among insects as among people. The chunky, round "pyrenic" type is found among beetles, bugs and moths, while grasshoppers, mosquitoes, walking sticks and dragon flies are "asthenic." The intermediate types dominate among these creatures as among humans, and this group is designated as "athletic."

Free Speech Invaluable

Without free speech no search for truth is possible; without free speech no discovery of truth is useful; without free speech progress is checked and the nations no longer march forward toward the nobler life which the future holds for man. Better a thousandfold abuse of free speech than denial of free speech. The abuse dies in a day, but the denial slays the life of the people and entombs the hope of the race.—Charles Bradlaugh.

Bottled Sunshine

That sunshine may be bottled and sent to any part of the world is a scientific possibility according to a report recently read before the Association of German Chemists in Berlin. The Germans believe that by means of huge sun engines along the Nile water can be converted into hydrogen which can be transported to colder regions of the world in quartz bottles and later burned for light and heat.

TASTE CONTROLS IMPORTS OF TEA

Examiner Uses Tongue to Determine Standards.

Washington.—America's $31,000,000 importation of tea is controlled by the tip of one human tongue.

The sovereign possessor is George F. Mitchell, supervising examiner of the United States tea control laboratory. It is his duty to determine by taste whether tea offered for import to this country meets federal standards for approximately 2,000 grades, kinds and varieties.

Directly under him are five men, one each at New York, Boston, Tacoma, San Francisco and Honolulu. Mitchell guides their work and standardizes their technique. Last year they brewed and tasted samples from 11,000,000 pounds of tea entering United States ports. Almost 500,000 pounds were rejected as inferior in quality. The remainder was ordered released from bonded warehouses.

Decision Comes Quickly.

It is only a few hours from the time tea shipments are docked until samples are tasted, approved for distribution to trade, or the importer notified of rejection.

Few persons possess such educated palates. Government tasters are selected after long years of training and experience. Usually "brought up" in the tea trade, they can tell blindfolded if they're tasting Darjeeling or Moyune, Foochow Oolong or Ping Sney.

They can tell by the taste whether the shipment contains artificial coloring or "facing," whether the exporter has sent the plant's tender top leaves, valued for the rich, stimulating alkaloid caffeine, or the older stem leaves full of tannin and weak, non-commercial properties.

Can Even Tell Altitude.

They can tell, too, whether the tea grew at high altitudes, best in production of flavor, or the exact region in China, India, Japan and Formosa, Dutch East Indies, Java and Sumatra, Africa and the Azores.

If their tongues falter, if there is any doubt the flavor or the "body" is up to standard for that particular tea, samples are sent here to Mitchell. His analysis is final. A board of seven tea experts, appointed by the secretary of agriculture, has fixed uniform standards to guide him.

An adamant importer, insisting his tea is not below standard, has recourse to a board of tea appeals—three employees of the Department of Agriculture, whose palates are called upon to determine whether the tea in controversy conforms to their delineation of tea that is standard.

Grand Turk to Wed

Girl Hunting for Work

Constantinople.—The Grand Turk is to take unto himself a wife. Not a surprising thing, one would say, for a follower of the polygamous prophet to do. Yet it is causing a lot of comment, particularly in view of the personality of the bride-apparent. Mustafa Kemal, the president of the Ottoman republic, recently met by chance at Broussa a Montenegrin who was in search of work and who was accompanied by his daughter, a girl of seventeen.

Struck by the extraordinary beauty and grace of this child of the Black mountain, Kemal sought her acquaintance, fell in love with her and asked for her hand and heart in marriage, offering to defray, meanwhile, the costs of providing her with an education befitting the exalted place which she will occupy as his wife. His proposal was accepted and Angora is now anticipating the nuptials. Incidentally the girl's father has been provided with a well-paying position.

Japanese Children to Send

Flower Seeds for Dolls

Tokyo.—The children of the primary schools in the suburbs of Tokyo are collecting seeds of the Japanese gourd and of morning glory vines to be made up into packages and sent to the school children of America in acknowledgment of the receipt in Japan of the "friendship dolls" sent by American school children. With the seeds will go a message of hope and when the flowers bloom it will remind American children of the thanks of the boys and girls of Japan and of the friendship that exists on this side of the Pacific.

Excavators in Russia

Uncover City of Dead

Kitchass, Ukraine.—A hill in the neighborhood of Kitchass, where a great hydraulic station is being constructed, has yielded what is declared to be the European counterpart of Karakoto, the "City of the Dead" discovered some years ago by the Russian explorer, Colonel Kozloff, in Mongolia.

Ancient tombs in which lie buried apparently important personages of the Bronze and Stone ages have been found, as well as numerous prehistoric caves containing relics.

Lucky Discoveries of Vast Mineral Wealth

Tin is worth about $1,470 a ton. At North Dundas, in Tasmania, a nugget of the metal has been found which weighed 5,400 pounds, and was almost pure metallic tin.

Copper often occurs in nature in a pure state. A solid block of this metal, weighing more than a ton and a half, has just been found in South Africa.

The most wonderful discovery of the kind was made in the Andes, at the back of Peru, where, at a height of 14,000 feet, there has been found a mountain of copper ore a mile long and half a mile wide.

Silver is sometimes found in great masses. Most of us have heard of Cobalt, the miracle silver city of northern Ontario. One day, in the spring of 1903, two workmen quarreled while at work on a rough railway track made for hauling lumber.

High words led to blows, and one man flung an axe at the other. It missed him but struck a bowlder, splitting it in two and showing up in its heart a mass of glittering whiteness. It was a lump of almost pure silver.

That spring Cobalt had four small shacks, but six months later there were more than 5,000 inhabitants.

ECONOMY

In the club they were talking of men who, though famous and wealthy, were at the same time very mean.

"I once knew a man," said Butler, "who was so economical that he used to cover up his inkwell between dips in case any should be lost by evaporation."

"But I knew a man," observed Cutler, "who stopped his clock every night to prevent the works wearing while he was asleep!"—London Answers.

Quite a few reports have been made concerning losses at gambling schemes at the Fair, last week. We have little sympathy for those who lost their money at such games, but they should not be permitted at County Fairs, for all of them are operated for the purpose of taking money out of the community, and they encourage the growth of the gambling spirit.

A letter from C. Edgar Yount, in renewing his subscription to The Record, says: "We note that business in the North is not up to the standard and it certainly has not been good in Florida, however, we are glad to say that the business tide has turned in Tampa and the prospects this winter are very encouraging. BASE BALL

BASEBALL IN TANEYTOWN.

Taneytown has just closed a very successful baseball season, having played sixteen games winning thirteen, losing two, and tying one. Most of the games were with strong teams—or those the local management believed to be strong when inviting them to play—the main object being to give patrons good games, whether the home team won, or lost.

Taneytown patrons did not show their appreciation to any marked degree. The games were liberally financed by local business men, without whose help there could have been no games. The income from admissions was decidedly slim, and disappointing, not only for the present year, but as an encouragement for next year.

Some criticism has been made because of the fact that so many away from home players were used. This was a matter of necessity, and not of choice, for the reason that Taneytown has not developed many good ball players. This may mean that our young men are engaged in regular work, without time to play ball, or that they are unwilling to accept the requirements that attach to making ball-players—hard practice, and discipline.

During the season the Taneytown team used 27 players, but the main team was Utz, pitcher; Moul, catcher; Fuss, 1b; Dern, 2b; Stover, 3b; Hitchcock, ss; Bricker and Baumgardner, right; Cromer, centre. Hitchcock and Moul played in all games; Utz in all but one; and Fuss and Cromer in all but two. Some of the other players were in from four to eight games.

In the 16 games Taneytown made 130 runs, 152 hits and 43 errors. The opposing teams made 52 runs, 101 hits and 47 errors. A great deal of the credit for winning, rests on the fine work of Utz, as pitcher; but all who played regularly contributed their share most faithfully and well, and this is true of the substitutes also as a rule. And, in giving proper credit, too much can not be given to Clarence E. Dern and Merwyn C. Fuss, for their faithful and very successful managerial services.

The police authorities of Mexico City have passed a regulation barring burros from the street except very early in the morning and late at night, as their deliberate movements impede the modern kind of traffic.

Turn Railroad Grade Into Unique Highway

Cashmere, Wash.—A unique highway soon to be in use is the 16-mile stretch of railroad grade abandoned by the Great Northern upon the completion of its eight-mile tunnel under the Cascade mountains. The right of way is 100 feet wide, well ballasted and ready for permanent paving, should it be necessary.

Once opened for the auto tourist it will be one of the finest pieces of mountain highway in the Northwest. From the extreme elevation of 4,500 feet, wonderful views of mountains and lakes are to be had. With the railroad buried in the mountains far beneath the highway there can be no danger of road-crossing accidents.

The new road will offer in the way of thrills and scenery the triple horse-shoe bend, the double figure eight, seven openings of tunnels and six elevations of snow sheds—not missing the seven snow-capped mountain peaks visible from Berne station.
