

MARYLAND GAME LAWS EXPLAINED.

By J. Gloyd Diffendal, Game Warden of Carroll Co.

The upland game season, which includes rabbits, partridges (quail) Chinese ring-necked pheasants, squirrels, doves, woodcock, opens Nov. 10 and closes Dec. 31, both dates inclusive.

Those who contemplate doing any hunting of any kind may now obtain 1927 licenses at the office of the Clerk Circuit Court, Westminster, Md., the licenses are issued in three classes, Resident county license, which costs $1.00 and applies to residents of the county and non-resident property owners who own land assessed to $500 or more in the county; there is a Clerk's fee of 25 cents on this class of licenses for residence and 50 cents for non-residents; the resident State-wide license, which costs $5.00, with Clerks fee of 25 cents, and the non-resident State-wide license which costs $15.00 with Clerk's fee of 50 cents.

The owners of farm lands, their children or tenants, or children of such tenants shall, without procuring a license, have the right to hunt game during the open season.

Hunting without a license, penalty $20 fine; failure to display tag carries a penalty of $20 fine. A hunting license shall not be transferable. License must be in possession while hunting.

Bag limit per day; Rabbits 6; Partridges 10; Squirrels 10; Doves 25; Woodcock 6; Chinese ring-necked pheasants 2 (not over six per season).

The season for raccoon and opossum extends from Nov. 1 to Feb. 1. It shall be unlawful to cut a tree for the purpose of catching a raccoon or opossum.

It shall be unlawful to kill any game on Sunday, or when the ground is covered with snow, penalty $25.00 to $100.00.

It shall be unlawful to hunt any game at night time.

Rabbits, partridges and Chinese ring-necked pheasants are reported plentiful in almost all sections of the county.

Twenty-five persons have been appointed Deputy Game Wardens in the county to assist the District Game Warden to enforce the game and fish laws.

Drank Poison by Mistake.

J. Wesley Zepp, a well known thresherman of Carroll County, was found dead in his bed at his home at Deep Run, near Union Mills, on Tuesday morning. Dr. G. Lewis Wetzel performed an autopsy that developed unusual features, following which State's Attorney Theodore F. Brown, Sheriff Fowle and Coroner Hutchins decided that the coroner's jury should meet Wednesday evening at the Deep Run School-house and go into the case in detail.

It developed on inquiry that on Monday Mr. Zepp had been trying to make arrangements to thresh some buckwheat on the farm of George Jones and that this necessitated his going to Hanover to locate one of his helpers, but was unsuccessful; and on his return toward home he stopped at a cider mill where it is reported that he became intoxicated from drinking cider, after which he returned to the Jones farm later in the afternoon.

The coroner's jury after hearing a number of witnesses, the chief one being Dr. G. L. Metzler reached the verdict that Zepp came to his death by swallowing about two ounces of Fowler's solution of arsenic that was kept by Mr. Jones in the barn as a medicine for cattle. Zepp was partially intoxicated, and is supposed to have found the bottle and drank its contents thinking it to be whiskey.

Meeting of Carroll County American Red Cross.

On Thursday afternoon, Nov. 3rd., at 2:30 P. M., the annual meeting of the Carroll County Chapter American Red Cross will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Room, Wantz building, opposite the Catholic Church Westminster, Md. Election of officers will be held and reports of treasurer, and work of chapter will be given. The county health officer and the county nurses have been invited to attend the meeting and tell of the results that have been accomplished, a work partly sustained by the contributions of the Red Cross and the Carroll County Tuberculosis Society. The officers and members of the Executive Committee, the officers of the Branches and Auxiliaries and all members and friends of the Red Cross are urged to attend the meeting.

The Hanover Hospital.

The Hanover, Pa., Hospital completed its first year's work last week. There were 718 patients and 403 operations during the year. The hospital has 16 nurses and 19 persons employed as maids and kitchen help. The highest number of patients under treatment at any one time was 43 and the lowest 17.

Fifty-one children were born in the hospital—28 girls and 23 boys—this department being pronounced one of the finest in the country. Thirty-one deaths occurred during the first year.

All of us have some relatives we don't need.

The tamer the parents the wilder the children.

WHAT TANEYTOWN NEEDS

Many More Trees, Lawns, Hedges, Flowers and Shrubbery.

Taneytown is a mighty good looking town in most respects except one—it lacks shade trees. We say this notwithstanding opinions to the contrary that a little town to look "cityfied" should make a great showing of concrete streets and sidewalks, and that trees are a nuisance.

What constitutes a "nuisance" depends on the point of view, some folks think only that the dead leaves and roots of trees are a nuisance, forgetting that the heat of a glaring sun and the monotony of concrete are nuisances to others—the bareness, the lack of hominess that attaches to flat surfaces and bare house fronts.

We should consider, too, that hardly anything that we have in the way of property is without its drawback. We must spend lots of work in order to make land produce, and there is a continual care and up-keep required if we would keep our homes in good trim. Our fruit trees must be sprayed and gardens carefully looked after, and flowers and lawns need a lot of attention; so, why should we expect our shade trees to be in a different class?

One's attitude toward shade trees, is the main thing. If we like them we will find ways for saving many of them. If we dislike them, then any pretext for their removal will be adopted. And, there is a general effect to be considered, rather than merely the single tree—the appearance of a street as a whole viewed in perspective, that one gets in driving through a town.

Lots of good folks also bewail the fact that we do not have large manufacturing enterprises, and this complaint seems to go along with the war against trees. Their ideal seems to be big smoke-stacks, and lots of men, boys and girls working in shops—at good wages, with plenty of money to spend. That makes business!

Perhaps it does; but it does not necessarily make the best towns in which to live, unless one has money-making and money-spending on the brain, and not much thought for the beautification of the streets and homes of a town. We know of towns that have practically been killed, as places in which to live by too much manufacturing.

Let us have more trees! The nuisances connected with them, are less than the nuisances without them, as we think, and so do many others. Plant new trees as well as take care of the few old ones left. Those who like trees are apt to like flowers, and those who do not like either are not the kind of folks who have the best judgment as to what makes a nice town.

What Taneytown needs, is the advice of an expert on tree planting and otherwise beautifying the town with lawns, hedges and shrubbery, and this especially applies to the Baltimore street extension. Cutting down trees and laying concrete is only part of the job of making a town look well—and can be over-done.

The last will and testament of John Lewis Calp, deceased, was duly admitted to probate.

The Reverend Andrew Knox, a missionary in Alaska, returning from a trip into the interior, found that his dogs had exhausted their food supply of dried fish and had eaten the walls of his church, which were made of walrus and reindeer hides.

GOV. RITCHIE WILL CALL SPECIAL ELECTION.

Vacancies in the Legislature to be Filled Nov. 6, 1928.

Owing to the change in the state laws increasing the term of members of the House of Delegates to four years, and that they be elected at the same time as Senators every four years, the question of filling vacancies caused Governor Ritchie to call on Attorney General Robinson for an opinion covering the question of a special election to fill vacancies, who has given the following opinion:

"It is my opinion that in issuing your warrant for an election to fill the vacancy in Washington county, you may provide for the holding of the same at the regular fall election of 1928 or at such other time as you may deem appropriate before the next meeting of the General Assembly, provided at least ten days' notice thereof be published."

The Governor has therefore decided to call a special election to be held at the time of the general election, Nov. 6, 1928, to fill the vacancy in the Senate caused by the death of Senator Hagner, of Washington County, as well as one to fill the vacancy in the House caused by the death of William Dando, Allegany county, and any other vacancies that may occur prior to the date of the regular election.

"Inside" Information for Women.

To remove chewing gum from a washable dress, soften the stain with egg white and then wash.

Spices and seasonings do not supply the body with building material or energy but they are important as appetizers.

A wire dish drainer is a great time saver. Hot water can be poured over the china, and only the silver and glasses need be dried.

Farmers' Bulletin 1530, "Fitting Dresses and Blouses" is just what you need when you begin your fall sewing. It may be had for the asking.

Children should be taught to eat the crusts of bread and rolls for the sake of their teeth. They should be cautioned, too, to chew their food thoroughly.

Panney summer squash is fine. Cut the squash in quarter inch slices, flour them, and brown in butter in a heavy skillet until they are tender and a deep gold in color.

Instead of cooking pumpkin and then rubbing it through a colander, try putting the fresh pumpkin through a food chopper. Then it cooks quickly and time and fuel are saved.

To test samples of fabric for fastness to light, cover one half with cardboard and expose the rest to direct sunlight for ten days. To test for fastness in laundering, wash and dry half your sample under ordinary conditions. Curtain material should be tested in these ways before purchasing, and dress goods when possible.

Have you a rest corner in your kitchen? Near a window with a pleasant view put a small table where you can write up accounts or menus, sort housekeeping papers, or prepare your grocery order. Have a comfortable chair here, and some sort of a rack or shelf for cook-books and such household magazines as may be glanced at while something is cooking. If space permits the darning bag or any other pick-up sewing may be kept handy here, too. The table should have a small drawer if possible, where the housekeeping purse may be accessible but out of sight.

Annual Rally of Bible Classes.

Plans have been completed for the annual rally day of the Adult Bible classes of Carroll County on next Sunday afternoon, October 30th. From responses up to the present time there are indications of a very large attendance. The Men's Bible classes of the county will meet at the Court House, at 1:30 P. M., where they will be placed in line of march by Mayor Geo. E. Matthews, of Westminster, marshal of parade. There will be a number of bands in line of march to furnish music, with the Westminster band leading the parade. Moving from the Court House at 2:00 o'clock, the men will march to Alumni Hall on College Hill where Dr. H. L. Elderidge will address them on "The World Conference on Faith and Order held at Lausanne, Switzerland, last August." The musical feature of the program will be singing by the Westminster Rotary Quartette.

At the same hour the Women's Bible classes will meet in the Armory. Mrs. J. W. Reinecke, chairman of the meeting, announces with regret that Mrs. Joseph Apple will not be able to be present as previously announced. Miss Grace Lockton, Professor of Biblical Literature at Hood College, of Frederick, Md., will make the address of the afternoon. Miss Lockton comes very highly recommended and it will be a privilege for the women of Carroll county to hear her address.

Hot Campaign in Adams County.

Over in Adams County, Pa., an unusually hot campaign is in progress for the county offices. The fight commenced with an unusual number of contestants in the primaries, and now the nominees are as vigorously campaigning for election. The fight seems especially hot for County Commissioners, and to some extent the campaign has reached the point of personalisms.

STATE DEPT. OF HEALTH

Partial List of What it Does for the State.

Makes an immediate investigation of diseases like typhoid fever, diphtheria, smallpox, scarlet fever, and of other catching diseases that may threaten an entire community, if not controlled promptly, and directs measures for their control.

Maintains a central laboratory and five branch laboratories at easily accessible places over the State, through which it assists physicians in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of the catching diseases. In these laboratories free examination is made for physicians of specimens for the diagnosis of tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria, malaria, rabies, the venereal disease, meningitis, anthrax, infections of the blood stream, and for the determination of other diseases.

Supervises the enforcement of the law which requires every child to be vaccinated against smallpox before he or she can be enrolled in school. As a result of this supervision and of the prompt action that is taken in vaccinating everybody who has been in contact with the patient whenever a case of smallpox has come into the State, Maryland has a record for freedom from this disease of which every Marylander can be justifiably proud.

Provides typhoid vaccine free of charge for immunization against that disease; supplies diphtheria anti-toxin at cost; furnishes toxin-anti-toxin for the protection of children from diphtheria.

Maintains a Pasteur Division for the prevention of hydrophobia—also called rabies—for the treatment of persons who have been bitten by rabid animals. Furnishes the virus at cost to persons able to pay for it; gives it free of charge to those unable to pay.

Registers and is the custodian of the records of all births, deaths, marriages and divorces in the State.

Holds child health conferences for babies and children under school age; Supervises the medical examination of school children; Aids in maintaining tuberculosis clinics which are held monthly in each county; Conducts venereal disease clinics.

Tests the sanitary quality of drinking waters, of milk and of other food stuffs and the purity of medicinal preparations; supervises public water supplies, sewerage systems and the disposal of trade wastes; inspects dairies, canneries, slaughter houses, oyster shucking and packing places.

Supervises tourist camps. Assists local communities in developing public health programs.

November Term Jurors.

The following jurors have been drawn for the November term of the Circuit Court for Carroll county;

District 1—Jacob D. Null, George L. Harman, George A. Arnold, Franklin H. Wantz.

District 3—Edward M. Crouse, Paul Lawyer, William P. Halter.

District 5—George H. Melville, Harry DeVries, Eugene C. Berry.

District 6—J. Franklin Warner, Harry W. Ogg, Arthur A. Garrett, Horatio S. Oursler, Clinton V. Lippy.

District 7—John D. Kauffman, Carroll L. Crawford, Claude B. Reifsnider, Frank B. Dillard, Charles N. Fisher, Nathaniel H. Baumgartner, Martin L. Helwig, John T. Anders, Andrew P. Frizzell.

District 8—Harry Bixler, George L. Monath, Horatio R. Garrett.

District 9—Ephraim Lindsay, Samuel Bair.

District 10—Harry A. Lambert, Daniel S. Repp.

District 12—Ambrose S. Whitehill, Joseph Bowman.

District 13—Clarence L. Skeggs, Ira D. Watkins.

District 14—Charles E. Rill, Ray Brown.

Turkey Time.

To fatten turkeys for the market, begin about the first of November. Feed just enough at a time so the birds will go away a little hungry, gradually increasing the quantity until they are given all they will clean up three times a day during the week before marketing. It is a good plan to feed equal parts of wheat and oats during the first part of the fattening season, gradually changing to corn as the weather becomes cooler. Old corn is much better for turkeys than new corn, but it must be free from mustiness. Heavy feeding of new corn often results in scours.—U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

Heat in the Southwest.

Abnormal heat has been prevailing in Kansas and the southwest pretty generally for the past two weeks, which explains the over 80° temperature in Maryland. This has added materially to the maturing of crops, and has been a general help toward handling all out-door work by holding back killing frosts.

Many reports of second crops of raspberries, strawberries have been made, and trees and flowers are in bloom almost like Spring in the south west, and cherry trees and early apples in many sections are in blossom.

A FREDERICK COUNTY STILL WRECKED

The Largest One Captured in many Raids Made.

Frederick county, likely because of its mountains and out-of-way places, has been a favorite locality for the manufacture of moonshine, and quite a large number of stills and distilling paraphernalia have been captured and destroyed within the past three years. The largest of these was the capture made last Saturday by Sheriff Rhoderick and three deputies, in a section known as Blue Blazes, about one mile from the highway leading from Thurmont to Wolfsville.

The plant was found back in the mountains well concealed by the natural surroundings the most of the way being fit only for foot travel. The plant consisted of four stills having a capacity of about 2200 gallons; a 16 H. P. boiler; 16 vats with a capacity each of about 500 gallons; and a large quantity of mash and other items belonging to the trade.

The plant was still steaming, indicating that its operators had left very recently, possibly on the discovery of the raiding party. The plant was a model of its kind and had evidently required a great deal of time and work to place it, a lot of capital as well as plenty of helpers. No arrests were made, as nobody was found nearby, but, certain clues are being worked on that may lead to arrests.

The entire plant was destroyed with dynamite, except that a quantity of the liquor and some of the appliances were saved as evidence.

Littlestown Ministers Against Bootlegging.

The Littlestown, Pa., Ministerium has taken action concerning the bootlegging business in the town, by issuing the following resolution:

"In view of the fact that strong and repeated rumors indicate that the 18th Amendment is being flagrantly violated in our community, and that in certain parts of the town the trade of bootlegger is being plied, it is the sense of the Ministerium of Littlestown that our citizens take cognizance of the situation and that our officials in connection with the citizenry, take every lawful means without fear or favor, to bring to a speedy close, so disgraceful a civic condition."

Ministers attending the meeting were: Revs. D. S. Kammerer, pastor St. Paul's Lutheran Church; J. I. Hummer, pastor St. John's Lutheran Church; H. H. Hartman, pastor of Christ Reformed Church; A. M. Wright, pastor Redeemer's Reformed Church; Thomas H. Matterness, pastor St. James Reformed Church; and Rev. David Kissel, pastor of the Methodist Church.

Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24th.

President Coolidge on Wednesday issued a proclamation setting aside November 24 as Thanksgiving Day and calling upon the people to show suitable gratitude for the manifold blessings which have come to them during the past.

"We have had the blessings of peace and of honorable and friendly relations with our sister nations throughout the world," the proclamation said. "Disasters visiting certain of our States have touched the heart of a sympathetic nation which has responded generously out of its abundance. In continuing to remember those in affliction we should rejoice in our ability to give them relief."

The President recalled that "not alone have we enjoyed material success" in a domestic sense, but that this country also has "advanced in wisdom and in spiritual understanding."

The Newest Fake.

One of our exchanges says; "If you get a postcard from a firm or individual notifying you that they have a newspaper clipping mentioning your name, and that you will be interested in it, don't bite. It's only the latest scheme to separate you from a dime or a quarter. These people write all over the country for sample copies of newspapers. From them they clip their items, and without stating what paper the clipping is from, they offer to mail it to you on receipt of a certain sum. Curiosity leads hundreds to answer, and when the clipping comes they find, nine times out of ten, that it was clipped from their home-town paper and they had read it before. The mails are being worked to a standstill by these sharpers with this new form of graft. Don't let your curiosity get the better of you, but toss the offer away and save your dimes and quarters."

Save Our Shoes.

Shoes kept in a warm, damp, and dark place are almost certain to mildew. Mildew probably will not seriously harm the shoes unless it is allowed to remain too long, but it may change their color. When first detected, the mildew should be washed off with soap and warm water, or simply wiped off with a moist cloth and the leather well dried. It is better to prevent mildew by keeping the shoes in a well-ventilated, dry, light place.

THE AUTO AS A KILLER

The Department of Commerce announces that during the four weeks ending October 8, 1927, automobile accidents were responsible for 662 deaths in 77 large cities of the United States. This number compares with 605 deaths during the four weeks ending October 9, 1926. Most of these deaths were the result of accidents, which occurred within the corporate limits of the city, although some accidents occurred outside of the city limits.

For comparison, the number of deaths due to automobile accidents within city limits is desirable. Such figures are available for the four-week period ending October 8, 1927, and for the corresponding four-week period of 1926 for 55 cities, the four-week figure in 1927 being 436 as contrasted with 401 for the corresponding four weeks in 1926.

Considering by four-week periods since May, 1925, total deaths from automobile accidents for 77 cities, regardless of place of accident, the lowest total (346) appears for the four-week period, ending March 27, 1926, and the highest (676) for the four-week period ending November 6, 1926.

The number for four-weeks ending Oct. 8, 1927, was 662.

For the 52-week periods ending October 8, 1927, and October 9, 1926, the totals for the 77 cities were, respectively, 6,973 and 6,585, which indicate a recent rate of 21.7 per 100,000 population as against an earlier rate of 20.8 or an increase of 4 percent in the rate in a single year.

Leaves Millions to Aged.

S. Davies Warfield president of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, who died in Baltimore Monday, leaves his residuary estate to establish and maintain at his Manor Glen Farm at Monkton, Md., a home for aged dependent women. It is to be known as the "Anna Emory Warfield Home," in memory of his mother.

The estate will run well in the millions, and as the specific bequests are few and small the residuary estate will be very large. Mr. Warfield was a bachelor.

Parent-Teachers' Meeting.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of Taneytown will hold its meeting, Oct. 31, 1927. The following program will be rendered:

Instrumental Duet
Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Reinholdlar
Solo, Mrs. F. T. Elliot
Dramatization, Fifth Grade
Duet,
Leah Reinholdlar and Margaret Hitchcock
Instrumental Solo, Miss Lucille Pilchard
There will be a reception for the teachers after the meeting. Everyone welcome.

Marriage Licenses.

T. Rifford Ridgeway and Dora B. Howser, Leesburg, Va.
Edwin Lewis Molesworth and Mary E. Allender, Reisterstown.
Elvin N. Harner and Evelyn M. Noel, Hanover.
Maurice E. Rice and Romaine Dick, Spring Grove, Pa.
James E. Wilson, Jr. and Lura Sparksman, Washington.

Senator Curtis a Candidate.

Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, Republican leader of the Senate, formally announced, on Wednesday, that he is a candidate for nomination for President. He says he is not a candidate as a "favorite son," nor as a vote getter for somebody else, but is a candidate in the widest sense of the term.

Christmas Mail Order.

Christmas this year falls on Sunday, but the day following has been fixed as the time on which the holiday will be generally observed. Postmasters have been notified that there must be a delivery of mail on the Monday following Christmas. In referring to this order, Postmaster General Harry S. New says:

"It has been the policy of this administration to grant to the employees of the service the same liberty and freedom from holiday work that is generally enjoyed, but after mature and serious consideration it has been deemed not only inexpedient but impossible to forego all deliveries of mail for two successive days at Christmas time. It is confidently believed that the employees will concede the reasonableness of this conclusion. The public to be served is entitled to first consideration."

"In arranging for this year's holiday program it will be understood that no carrier deliveries except special deliveries, will be made on Sunday, but that the usual Sunday routine will be followed. But on Monday, the day to be observed, it will be necessary for postal employees to work during the forenoon in order to prevent a congestion which would certainly follow a suspension of deliveries for 48 hours. It is planned to complete the work during the forenoon and that all employees except such as are necessary to keep the service moving shall be excused from further service at noon. This will apply alike to city, village and rural deliveries."

All of us would like to think we are too important to warrant our hanging the window screens ourselves.

The Times, and Politics.

A very important thing for the Republican administration and its hopes for victory next year, is to keep up the prosperity condition that as yet fairly well covers the country, with the one exception of farming. And it is this latter fact that makes farm legislation a problem, with the probability that the coming session of Congress may yet agree on some sort of compromise measure.

But, there appears to be a break due to come at some time in the future, for with all of the high prices prevailing the measure of prosperity is not very plainly in evidence. High wages are taken by high expense costs, and high wages seem to invite extravagant living and lack of thrift. So mere high prices alone, without corresponding saving habits, is not a sure name for good times.

Everybody is fearing a break, some time, and just now especially the politicians. And while everybody thinks a downward trend must come, there is no agreement as to how, or when it ought to come. As the party in power is especially affected by "the times" whether good or bad, naturally there is considerable interest manifested just now in putting up a cheerful front.

Very little is needed in the way of an opportunity for calamity howling, when one party or the other sees benefit in it; and as conditions are apt to be distorted, and real conditions misquoted, it might be a national misfortune for the question to enter into the 1928 campaign; for as a matter of real fact, national administrations do not have a great deal to do with the great questions that underly sound prosperity.

Congressman Kelly on Postage Rates

Congressman Kelly, of Pennsylvania, has the right idea when he makes the claim that "franked" mail, issued in hundreds of tons a year by Senators and Members of the House, should not be charged up against the Postoffice department, causing a deficit to appear, and at the same time using the fact as an argument for high postage rates.

He argues very properly that the carrying of documents and speeches of all sorts should be provided for from the general revenues of the government, as well as the mailing of supplies to all of the government agencies, such as postoffices, Naval stations, custom houses and all other like departments of the government.

Two years ago, due to an advance in the salaries of mail carriers and postal clerks, a lot of postage rates that the public must pay, were "jacked up" to produce more revenue and lessen the deficit, which is unfair to the general public; and just now, when the government is figuring on how to reduce federal taxation by the hundreds of millions a year, is a good time to reduce a lot of unjust postage rates.

A return to the rates in force before the new laws were passed would go a long way toward returning to justice. For instance, under the old rates single newspapers could be mailed for one cent, that now costs four cents; and Post Cards at one cent, that now costs two cents. Besides, the long standing injustice of the government printing envelopes for business concerns should be abolished. This is not only unfair competition with printers, but the cost of handling and carrying these envelopes is not even added to their cost to purchasers.

In closing his article Congressman Kelly says:

"I am hoping that we may get substantial reductions in third and fourth class mail before the end of the 70th Congress. But this can not be done if we continue the policy of charging against the legitimate revenues of the postoffice the cost of free service. I am particularly anxious to have the service charge on parcel post dropped. A living wage must always be the policy of the postal service. Let us state authoritatively that the post office was organized for service and not for profit."

Rushing into Print.

A lot of well-minded, but misguided folks see no better way of correcting evils than rushing into print with them, at every opportunity. There are some questions of a more or less social or local evil character that are not sufficiently well covered by law, and thereby made the duty of some officer of the law to correct, that can not well be reached without newspaper publicity; but in the majority of cases there are laws that cover and the machinery of the law in such cases should always be invoked, first.

Asking for censure of public officials to be printed in the newspapers, is unfair to the newspapers in that they are asked to do what those most interested should do through channels provided in such cases. Besides, these censure articles may be one-sided, without a full knowledge of all the facts, so far as the placing of blame is concerned.

The Record receives its share of such articles, and they invariably go the same way into the waste baskets. We do not want them, unless they be so worded as to represent fairness, and a calling attention to evils without the calling of names, or casting insinuations. Should complainants try to have their complaints investigated, and fail, and are arbitrarily refused consideration, that might represent another side of the case, but this is not true in most instances.

Another thing that should be taken into consideration, is that officers of the law are not responsible for the laws themselves. No Sheriff wants to hang anybody, nor confine anybody in jail; and in hundreds of lesser penalties law officers are obliged to do disagreeable things. And in such cases those who suffer from the laws, unjustly, should get after the lawmakers when the opportunity comes along. Rushing into print is a notoriously bad policy in most of such cases.

Flood Cost the Railroads $10,000,000.

The Railway Age, for September 17, said:

"The Mississippi flood of 1927 cost the railroads $10,000,000, according to an estimate made by a committee of the American Railway Engineering Association. Operation was suspended for 10 to 120 days on 3,000 miles of railroads, the longer period applying principally to branch lines. Thirteen railroads were either seriously damaged or put to heavy expense to maintain such service as was possible. The actual physical damage to the railroads, including the cost of protective measures, is approximately $10,000,000. This figure, however, does not include the increased cost of maintenance of repaired tracks which will follow the restoration of service. It is impossible even to estimate the damage which has resulted through delay and loss of traffic, the cost of trains for rescue and relief service and detouring, or the ultimate effect upon railroad business through loss of crops and general interruption to business.

"The river, when in flood, is a constant menace. When the levee breaks the water rushes across the country like a tidal wave, sweeping everything before it. The people who live in the territory subject to inundation have learned to look to the railroads not only for assistance in protecting the land from floods, but for means of escape after the levees have broken. In almost every fight to save the levees the railroad forces have been found doing their part, and in many cases bearing the brunt of the battle. The people residing adjacent to the levee usually find refuge on the unbroken portion to wait for boats, while those farther removed from the levee hurry to the railroad, with the knowledge that rescue trains will come to their relief.

"As soon as news of breaks in levees is received, special trains are rushed to the flooded territory for rescue work, many of them operating under hazardous conditions. The comparatively small loss of human life this year was due in no small part to the prompt rescue work of the railroads.

"Some idea of the extent of the relief work may be gained from the fact that the Illinois Central alone spent $387,000 in such work. The railroads operated more than 400 relief trains; some 5,000 carloads of provisions, boats and other supplies were transported, practically all free of charge, and more than 4,000 box cars were supplied as living-quarters for refugees, many of which were occupied over long periods, in some cases more than sixty days.

"The railroads were also active in sanitation and disease prevention, turning their hospital staffs over to this work. They supplied pure drinking-water in large quantities, using tank cars for this purpose. In addition, nearly 2,000,000 sacks, and the ser-VICES of thousands of employees were furnished for levee protection.

"It was apparent early in April that railroads adjacent to the Mississippi and its tributaries were faced with the probability of severe flood conditions, and precautions were taken to protect their property.

"From the standpoint of railroad operation, combating high water is divided into three general phases:

"1. Precautions to prevent overflow and to minimize the damage of tracks and structures when such overflow occurs.

"2. Efforts directed to remove inhabitants and their personal property and live stock from the overflow area.

"3. Restoring track and bridges to service and re-establishing and opening the lines to traffic in the shortest possible time."

Where there was a probability that the territory would be overflowed, all material possible was removed from the overflow area and stored on high ground. Track gangs were recruited to full strength and additional gangs held in readiness to move to the inundated area. Cinders, gravel and other ballast and filling materials were assembled in readiness for use. Large quantities of sand-bags were purchased, and in addition to those applied at once for protecting the ends of bridges, topping levees and protecting railroad embankment from wash, filled bags were stored in convenient locations. Track and bridge decks were anchored wherever possible to prevent them from being washed out of line.

Spanked.

Senator Fess, of Ohio, has been soundly "spanked" for declaring that Calvin Coolidge will be "drafted" next year by the Republican National Convention. He says so himself, which is evidence that he was not greatly cast down because the President had taken him severely to task for his temerity. And, like a mischievous small boy who had passed undaunted through a session in the family woodshed, he declares that he does not intend to stop talking about his impressions in the matter.

But henceforth such expressions of opinion will be distinctly and entirely his own. He admits that he now believes President Coolidge will not consent to be drafted. That is likewise an admission that he is no longer in a position to appear as the spokesman for Mr. Coolidge on important matters.

This is the net result of the spanking. It may not stop the talk of drafting either by Senator Fess or any other Administration leader. They may continue to lean upon the President for months, for they have not yet found another possible candidate to whom they care to turn. But this talk is rather likely to be less confident and convincing than heretofore.—Phila. Ledger.

Honesty and Temptation.

While it is a fact that there is a tremendous waste of energy from crooked transactions, robberies, arsons and defalcations to say nothing of the many other means of gaining a dishonest livelihood, yet it is an established fact that the great mass of humanity is essentially honest.

Human nature tends toward honesty and integrity and it is only the temporary, trivial and incidental backslidings that give an impression of lack of the right sort of basic principles of human action and it is these unimportant things, relatively, that start many on the road to disaster.

It is an undeniable fact that the honest man is anxious to be watched but the dishonest man objects to having his dealings watched or checked and it is essentially this man who needs the watching. It is, therefore, important that every transaction, so far as practicable, should have some sort of check on it. It is regarded as little short of folly to put people in positions of trust where they have opportunities for even petty thefts, which may in time undermine their latent principles of honesty and integrity.

It is certainly no mark of discourtesy, nor is it showing any lack of confidence, to put a check on the most responsible and trustworthy individuals. It is only the person who is not truly honest in his own mind who resents the presence of supervision.—Ellicott City Times.

Solving One Problem of the Crowded City

"I shall be glad to see Hector, your big Saint Bernard, again," said the visitor to the suburbs as the divver rolled along.

"Had to get rid of that dog," said the modern suburbanite crisply.

"Bite somebody?"

"No, but he took up too much space. Saint Bernard's almost as big as a calf. Belongs to past age, when people had barnyards and real estate wasn't so valuable. A one-family dog house is economic waste nowadays."

"One-family dog house? You don't mean to say—"

"Surely do. Had dog house remodeled when I got rid of Hector. Found, as I expected, that if I got a compact terrier there'd be a nice apartment for a still smaller dog on the top floor. Got good top-floor tenant for my own house; rent out half of garage; why not make dog house pay its own way?"

"And does it?"

"You bet it does. Let top floor to a Pekingese. Belongs to man down street who hasn't room even for a bird cage."—Ladies' Home Journal.

As Small Boy Saw It

It is well to be sure that your child knows wherein he lies, otherwise your punishment or your admonition is likely to go astray. Ellis Parker Butler told a charming story illustrating this in the Delinquent. A child was being asked where a piece of cake had gone. To the amazement of his questioner he replied with a tale about a "moerocness" that had flown in at the window and eaten the cake. His father, coming home that night, took matters into his own hands; he lectured the child on the sin of telling stories that were not true, and accompanied this lecture with a dissertation on the habits and limitations of rhinoceroses. The child was then spanked and put bed. Presently the father climbed the stairs to see whether his little boy was repentant. "Why were you spanked?" he asked. "Cauce moerocness can't fly," came the answer.

Humane

Jehn came running into his father's study with nose bleeding copiously, and, while first aid was being rendered, explained that he had received a blow from another boy.

"Well, did you hit him back?" inquired father.

"No, father, you see, he was smaller than me."

Father's heart warmed at such chivalry.

"And, besides, he was a poor boy—"

Father's face beamed at such magnanimity.

"And you can never tell what those poor boys can do."

The Past Is Present

What reply shall we make if our past can only whisper: "Your success has been wholly due to injustice and falsehood, wherefore it behooves you once more to deceive and to lie." No man cares to let his eyes rest on his acts of disloyalty, weakness, or treachery; and all the events of by-gone days which we cannot contemplate calmly and peacefully, with satisfaction and confidence, trouble and restrict the horizon which the days that are not yet are forming far away.—Maeterlinck.

Gratitude

Missionaries are accustomed to receive some strange letters from natives. Here is a letter of gratitude which arrived a short time ago at a well-known medical mission hospital in India:

Dear and Fair Madam,—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearly unfortunate wife will no longer be under your care, she having left this world for the next on the night of the 27th ult. For your help in this matter I shall ever remain grateful.—Yours reverently."

The Sandman Story

ABOUT HALLOWEEN

THERE had been a little girl named Janet who had wondered what the word Halloween meant.

And now it seemed as though another little girl did not know what it meant and was feeling quite sad about it.

It seems to me, too, that it is a word that we've used so often that many of us are not quite sure what it does exactly mean.

And so I am going to tell the story of Miriam and of what her mother told her just so every one will be sure to know without having to do anything about looking it up.

There was going to be a splendid party at Miriam's house. There were all sorts of preparations for it.

Miriam did not know whether they would all be ready on time, for there all try to bite these apples, which would swing annoyingly away from them!

And there was going to be a dish of flour in the kitchen after supper and the children were all going to try to find a twenty-five-cent piece hidden there.

They were going to hunt for it with their teeth! And there were apples bobbing in a great tub of water.

And these had to be caught by the teeth, too. Some of these held pencils.

There would be fortune telling, too, and Miriam's mother had promised to be the fortune-telling witch who would sit by her caldron which was now being made of red cheesecloth.

At the bottom of it, barely hidden, there would be a flashlight which would be kept going all the time, of course!

Oh, the party was going to be splendid. Miriam knew that.

And yet—and yet—she wished she knew why they had a party—not that she didn't want a party! But just why was it for this evening with the strange name.

"Why, Miriam," her mother said that afternoon late as she caught sight of Miriam's little worried face, "this isn't the time to look sad when we're having a party."

"What is the trouble, my darling?" There was something in the understanding, sweet way that her mother asked her that made Miriam ask what she thought was so foolish a question.

"Mother, dear," she began, "just what does Halloween mean?"

"October thirty-first," her mother said, "is the night of All Saints' day, or Halloween, for hallow means a time devoted to holy purposes and e'en is short for evening. So that it means the evening before the religious day which is known as All Saints' day."

"But Halloween, while coming before a religious day, has always been an evening of festivity and frolic and fun for children."

"In all countries they celebrate it—it is a real children's evening—though in various countries the children have their own little ways of celebrating."

"Our way, though, is used by children of many countries and we have make-believe witches just as they have, for in the olden days in the old countries those who were superstitious or given to imagining things not so, thought witches came out on Halloween."

And somehow, Miriam never enjoyed a party so much, for it was so nice to know just what the day meant and to know, too, that in many countries children on this very evening were having a celebration of such a weirdly, wonderful kind!

They Would All Try to Bite These Apples.

seemed to be so much yet to be finished.

But probably the guests who were coming to the party were just as busy, for the guests would bring some Halloween stunts with them and would doubtless be dressed up.

Of course, Miriam did not know just what the guests would do, but she knew that two of her brothers were going to dress up as old witches and do all sorts of tricks.

Already they were hanging apples attached firmly by strings from a doorway and as soon as the guests came and the tricks began they would

RIGHT OF FRANCHISE

IT IS a matter of serious concern when votes at the polls on election day are cast by less than 55 per cent of those who have the right of the franchise. The success of our democratic form of government depends upon the interest manifested in the vote as well as upon those elected to bear the responsibility of public office.

When corruption in public offices is discovered we raise a strong voice of protest. When a public official goes wrong we demand an investigation and that the crime be punished. But, in the meantime the public conscience has not only suffered, but the community in which the crime has been committed must bear the ultimate result of the wrong done. Who is to blame? The one who does the wrong? Yes—but the first responsibility rests with those who put him into office, or did not do all in their power to keep him from getting into office. The lethargy of the public mind is appalling in this matter.

The privileges enjoyed by us are made possible through the enactment and enforcement of laws. Laws are made and enforced by those elected for that purpose. In any representative form of government, in the very nature of the case, the ultimate responsibility for the success of that government lies with the voter; and yet the American people are interested to the extent that only a little over 50 per cent go to the polls to vote.

What is the reason for this condition? If we were denied the privilege of the franchise, we would protest in no mistaken language. But, having all the privileges of this right as citizens, why is it not exercised as it should be? Perhaps the answer is that it is a matter of carelessness rather than indifference or ignorance. A government should be ruled by the majority, and yet in this greatest and most powerful nation in the world of free governments, the minority rules. Such a condition is a menace to all our institutions.

THE FIRST BOOK—THE "BOOK OF THE DEAD"

THE products of the earliest scribes were known to have been made on slabs of brick or stone or planks of wood. These, however, do not fulfill the modern conception of books, in whose origin we find an interesting story, involving the history of the ancients and of literature.

The first known book, as we regard books today, is the Egyptian "Book of the Dead," a copy of which is in the British museum. The unique title names a collection of invocations to the deities, psalms, prayers and descriptions of experiences in the next world. Written on papyrus, the texts were placed in the coffins, frequently under the armpits of the mummies. Several copies of this "Book of the Dead" exist, some consisting of only a few chapters, others over a hundred feet in length.

Following the evolution of the modern book through its long history from the papyrus book, which was mounted like a map on a wooden roller, through parchment literature, the products of medieval monks, block-printed books and finally the products of the printing press, there is no stage in its history that holds the wealth of color and the stimulus to intellectual wanderings that is found in the very first book, the "Book of the Dead."

MONEY AND TIME WITH OUR BIG FALL CATALOG

THE season of cooler weather is at hand, and with it comes the need for many new things. Not only clothes for every member of the family, but many things in the home for your winter's comfort.

Our Big Fall and Winter catalog will make the amount of money you have to spend go farther—allow you to buy many things that perhaps you thought you could not afford this year—and save you a great deal of time and worry.

Make this experiment—Jot down the things you need—Clothes for the children for school—winter underwear—sweaters—shoes—warm coats—gloves—stockings. The things the grown-ups of your family need to wear now and the things you need in your household—an added easy chair or piece of furniture. A new carpet or rug here or there. Something to make the work in the home easier—a washing machine—a vacuum cleaner—new kitchen utensils. Is your home properly heated? See our warm air circulator stoves (pages 444 to 446) that will heat every room in the average small home evenly and economically and whose handsome mahogany finish makes it an attractive addition to any room you place it in. Or if you want a heating plant, you will be astonished at the amount of money you can save at our prices.

Crisis in Transfer of Reparation Payments Cannot Be Avoided

By DR. PETER H. HEINHOLD, German Financial Expert.

Revival of tourist trade in Germany, along with the restoration of confiscated property in North and South America, may postpone a crisis in the transfer of reparation payments, but cannot avert it.

Without a balance of payments, which depend upon a balance of trade, Germany must sooner or later come to the point where a conference of allied powers must be called to consider the question of transfer.

The economists who drew up the Dawes plan foresaw this difficulty, but, influenced by a political consideration, they assessed the reparation obligation at a higher figure than they believed justified, in the hope that the circumstances would better themselves and their painstaking labor would not be doomed to failure.

In every other respect the Dawes plan deserves high praise as extremely fair and in several respects showing economic genius.

Interests of the Farmer Have Been Neglected in Governmental Policies

By DR. PAUL DE VUYST, Belgian Statesman.

The public mind is not sufficiently in favor of the farmer. Governmental policies do not consider the farmer. The people of the cities forget the farmer.

Many men have tried to change this situation, but I am afraid it is up to the farmer to change it himself. The world cannot exist without the farmer. Suppose all the people of the world should be locked up in cities and factories. Six months later, all would be dead. But if all went to the country, six months later they would be very healthy.

We cannot fail by making farm life better. Humanity started with farming, and so long as humanity exists, farming will be necessary. But the farm should pay.

We can't have family life and moral improvement in the cities. Amusements ought to be in the home, not outside the home. The farm is the best place for family life.

Doting Parents and Other Relatives Responsible for "Spoiled" Children

By CEDRIC M. LINDHOLM, Probation Investigator.

Children who have not been trained in restraint and respect for discipline before their sixth or seventh year are more susceptible to error in later life. Doting parents or other relatives are important factors in such cases.

An outstanding success attributed to inhibition was the career of Theodore Roosevelt, who was so strengthened mentally and morally by his fight against physical weakness in his youth that he climbed on to fame after overcoming his early handicaps.

An inhibitional failure is imminent each time a nurse or parent picks up a whimpering infant from its crib and quiets it by walking the floor. The most common method of thus "spoiling" a youngster is pampering by the doting mamas and papas, aunts and elder sisters. A lone boy or a lone girl in a family has the least chance of evading such influences. Regular spankings for the baby now will go a long way toward checking the crime wave of 1950.

Social Study Important

Social study has become one of the most important subjects in the modern school curriculum of today. The story of the invention of the steam shovel by Charles B. King—the story of how he one day as a boy refused to "go fishin'" with the other boys because he was lying flat on his stomach thinking out an idea about an old mill wheel that wouldn't run and he might and did make it work—these are far more interesting and vitalizing things to the schoolboy of twelve or fourteen of today than the old lists of dates and names, and the mere memorizing or locating of them without any connecting link to make them interesting.—Exchange.

DIED.

Obituaries, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The regular death notices published free.

MRS. ROBERT B. EVERHART.

Mrs. Anna A. Everhart, wife of Mr. Robert B. Everhart, died at her home on York St., Taneytown, last Friday evening, from angina pectoris, aged 68 years, 4 months, 6 days. She had been complaining during the day with something like indigestion, and became gradually worse during the evening until death ensued.

Her sudden death seems all the more sad because she and her husband had but recently occupied their fine new home, just completed this summer. She was very highly esteemed for her many fine qualities by those who knew her best.

She is survived by her husband, three nephews, Guy, William and Walter Welling, of Baltimore, and by the following step-children: Robert B. Everhart, Jr., Baltimore; Walter E. Everhart, New York; Mrs. Ernest Copenhaver, York; Mrs. Arda Thomas of Baltimore, and William E. Everhart, Sykesville.

Funeral services were conducted at the home Monday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock, by her pastor, Rev. W. V. Garrett, and her former pastor, Rev. L. B. Hafer. Interment was made in the M. P. cemetery, Uniontown.

GOOD RESULTS, OR BETTER RESULTS?

Why be satisfied with only fair results, when a better, higher-priced Laying Mash will be more profitable. The extra eggs and better health more than make up for the difference. Quality feeds cost more and are worth more. Think it over. Try Rein-ola Laying Mash.—Reindollar Bros. & Co. 7-29-tf

Notice to Taxpayers

Those who have failed to make return of schedules of all personal property including shares of stock in Foreign Corporations, bonds, notes, mortgages out of State, mortgage certificates, interest in trust estates, and all personal property including furniture; and horses and cattle and all other personal property on farms must do so at once. Any person who has not received a schedule blank, should make application for same, and make the return promptly. Trustees, guardians, receivers, &c., must make the return provided for in the schedules.

The law requiring this return and prescribing the penalty for failure to comply is found in the Code, Article 81, Sections 205, and is as follows: "If any person shall, with a view to evade the payment of taxes, fail or refuse to give in to the assessor any bonds, notes, claims or other evidences of debt which are subject to assessment and taxation under this article, the same shall not be recoverable by action at law or suit in Equity before any of the Courts of this State until they have been listed and the taxes paid thereon, with an addition of fifty per centum per annum from the time the tax accrued; and the failure to give in said bonds, notes, claims or other evidences of debt shall be taken as prima facie evidence of the intention to so evade payment of taxes."

Code, Article 81, Sections 21 and 22:—$1000 penalty for failure to render a full and particular account of personal property in your possession or under your care and management."

Notice is also hereby given that the Collector of State and County taxes has received cards showing the owners of automobiles. As taxes are paid, each card will be stamped and returned to the Automobile Commissioner. Those who fail to pay the 1927 taxes, cannot get their automobile licenses for 1928.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

SNAKES AS RAINMAKERS

IN MRS. FANNY BERGEN'S "Animal and Plant Lore" a superstition, common in some sections, is said to be that to kill a snake and hang it on a fence, or a tree, is a sure way of producing rain. In some sections, according to Mrs. Bergen, hanging the snake with its back up will prevent rain; with its back down bring on rain. This, however, may be considered a local frill—though possibly it may have some mythological basis now undiscoverable and eliminated by time from the general form of the superstition, which is a very old German one. The old Germans were accustomed to kill a snake and hang him up in a tree when they wished rain, with the serpent's head pointed in the direction from which they expected the wind to come which would bring with it the desired showers. The use of serpents as rain charms prevails today among various peoples living in a primitive state and is evidently a conception of primitive man and a relic of serpent-worship.

It is a curious fact that primitive man frequently performed his devotions by killing the thing he worshipped. A good example is afforded by the customs of the primitive Ainu of Japan with regard to the bear today. This curious "twist" of the primitive mind has never been quite satisfactorily explained, though Sir James Frazer, who has delved deeper into primitive psychology than any other man, has gone far toward solving it. Just how widespread in this country the snake rainmaking superstition is, it is impossible to say; but its habitat extends over a very considerable area. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

BRITISH WARSHIPS PUZZLE THE EXPERT

No Protective Armor Seen; Guns Concentrated.

Washington.—Possessing as they do many characteristics not found in any other capital ships afloat, the new British dreadnaughts Nelson and Rodney are being studied by naval constructors in an effort to determine what effect they should have upon the designs of the replacement battleships to be built under the terms of the Washington naval treaty, beginning in 1931.

These vessels embody the lessons the British learned from the naval conflicts in the World war, and naturally their plans are carefully guarded by the British admiralty. However, it is known that in many respects their design is a distinct departure from the dreadnaughts which preceded them.

One of the most noticeable changes, and one puzzling naval officers most, is the absence of any signs of protective armor on the hull. These officers have about reached the conclusion that the main hull of the ship is inside the shell showing, and that attached to it is the heavy armor these ships carry.

Protection Against Torpedoes.

This conclusion is predicated upon the known theory of British naval constructors that a torpedo should not first strike the major hull of the ship. It was because of this that the British adopted the blister as a protection to the main hull in its older craft. Torpedo protection for American battleships is furnished in a series of hulls within hulls with short spaced bulkheads to enable the ship to keep afloat.

The belief that the armor on the Nelson and Rodney is placed on an inner hull is further strengthened by the appearance of a series of plates placed along the hulls of the ships near the water line. Those studying the vessels conclude that these plates cover holes in the outer hull and are merely bolted on, with the idea that if a torpedo found its mark the destructive gases from the explosion would force off the plates, and thus find their escape before seriously damaging the inner hull.

Another decided change of design in the British ships is that of placing all of the big guns forward instead of distributing them forward and aft, as heretofore. By thus concentrating the main magazines in a single section of the ship greater armor protection can be given them. This is an important matter, as a single shell finding the magazine room would destroy the craft.

All of the big guns—nine 16-inch rifles—have full range on either broadside, but only six can be trained dead ahead, as those in the third turret are below the superimposed middle turret. Of course there can be no big gun fire astern.

Elevation of 6-Inch Guns.

Still another departure from the conventional design is the placing of all of the secondary-defense rifles—6-inch guns—near the stern and the mounting of them in turrets which enable them to attain an elevation of 70 degrees, with a consequently increased range.

There are three of these turrets on each side of the ship and each mounts two 6-inch rifles. This gives a fire of six guns on either broadside, with an astern fire of four on each side, as the middle turret is raised above the other two.

In these ships the British have abolished the forward mast, with the bridge in front, and have replaced it with a castelike structure within which are the several navigating bridges and on top of which is placed the fire control station.

This arrangement adds to the extremely odd-looking appearance of the Nelson and Rodney. Astern is the usual tripod mast with a single bulgy squat smoke funnel between the mast and the huge castle, which is located aft of amidships.

Since the Nelson and Rodney have a speed of twenty-three knots, greater than that of other dreadnaughts, other nations in their replacement program undoubtedly will design craft of as great a speed.

The British ships also are longer than any other battleships, measuring 735 feet, which is more than 100 feet longer than any American battleship.

Error Led to Travel

How an Englishman made a mistake, then saw America on a dead man's ticket, has recently been told in London. According to his story he joined a party of Scandinavian emigrants crossing the landing stage at Liverpool in the belief that he was on the way to the Isle of Man, and went up the gangway of an Atlantic liner. A few hours later he began to suspect he was going astray, and mentioned the matter to a member of the party of emigrants who could, he had discovered, speak English. "Next stop Queenstown," the man said, "and after that New York. But never mind. When we were crossing the North sea one of our party died, so we have a spare ticket, to which you are welcome. Come with us to America." After some reflection the vacationist accepted, and saw America.

Infant Confederate

Probably the youngest soldier on either side in the Civil war was George H. Jacobs, a native of North Carolina. When he was nine years old he enlisted as a drummer boy in the Confederate army with his father in the company of Camden Grays. He was made a full-fledged soldier when he was twelve and he served throughout the war, both he and his father being with General Lee at the surrender, at Appomattox. Jacobs was born August 20, 1854, at Nag's Head, where his father kept a hotel before the war. He died November 25, 1908. Most of his war days were spent in Virginia. He had a pony and marched with the regular army. At one battle he had to lie in a ditch during the heaviest part of the firing.

The organization went on record urging everyone to marry before the age of twenty-five.

Halts Liner at Sea to Mail His Report

New York.—The skipper of the Nantasket shoals lightship believes if being punctual, even if he has to commandeer a 700-foot ocean liner to help him out. When the White Star liner Baltic arrived the other day, Capt. F. F. Summers told of receiving a wireless message while at sea from the lighthouse keeper asking him to stop by for an important letter.

Thinking it must be a matter of life and death, Captain Summers ran the Baltic several miles out of its course and how to off the lightship.

A bucket was let down over the side and while the 24,000-ton vessel wallowed in the swell and 558 passengers leaned over the rail the lightship keeper came alongside and solemnly dropped his letter into the pail. "Much obliged," his thanks floated up to the towering decks through megaphoned hands. "It's my monthly report to the lighthouse service and it's due in two days. I wouldn't like to be late."

The letter was mailed two minutes after the Baltic docked.

ALL THINGS END

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

ELSIE BOYD wiped dishes with an occasional glance at the heavy snowstorm which was enshrouding everything in a wintry fleece.

Upon a day like this her mother was always worse. Mrs. Boyd was the kind of sick woman whose system demands sunshine quite as much as medicine. Knowing this, Elsie had not dared tell her that something had gone wrong with the furnace, that the grocer had presented his bill and that she had found a damp spot on the bedroom ceiling where the roof had sprung a leak before a mild rain had turned into the present snowstorm.

To Elsie, washing dishes, these things mattered terribly. Moreover, it was left for her to find a remedy for the pressing necessities that threatened them. It was winter, their income was just half big enough. Elsie could not leave home because she had to look after her mother. There were no boarders to be had or even roomers. It all seemed discouraging enough. Besides—

"Elsie!" called a voice from the downstairs bedroom.

"Yes, mother!" Elsie dropped the glass pitcher she was polishing and entered the room.

Her mother lay bolstered up with pillows. She didn't look to be a vital sick woman; a nervous one, perhaps, but not one near death.

"I've just been thinking," Mrs. Boyd said to her daughter, who leaned on the footboard of the old-fashioned bed, "Mrs. Scott told me something yesterday. I don't know as I ought to tell you. I thought maybe I wouldn't at first, but you ought to know."

"Well, what is it, mother?" Elsie gripped the footboard, but her wide gray eyes did not waver before her mother's dark puzzling gaze.

"Francis Hurd is going with Julia Scott—you didn't know it, did you?"

"Why, yes," Elsie answered carefully. "I've known it a good while. He hasn't been here in a long time, you know, mother."

"I thought he hadn't, but, of course, I didn't know. What was the matter? For my part, I'm glad it's all ended. I didn't see how I was going to let you get married with my health the state it's in. I need you to take care of me, Elsie."

Elsie drew a long breath. Without replying she did some little soothing things about the bed and passed out of the room. But instead of returning to her dishwashing she hung a shawl about her and ran out of doors, out into the storm. The touch of chill snowflakes cooled her burning cheeks, their enveloping softness soothed her.

A sound drew her attention from herself. It came from the foot of the garden. It resembled a child's voice.

The brook! Where the children waded in summer and skated in winter. She ran toward it as fast as she could go.

The fence across the back of the garden did not stop her, nor the steep bank that jutted out over the brook. She could not see for the storm, but she called cheerily, "I'm coming! I'm coming!"

How could she grope her way to the place where an accident might have happened, especially as the childish voice had ceased? Oh, if she could but brush away the opaque veil of snow!

Something scampered to her feet barking. A little dog! He ran away from her, still barking, urging her to follow. He led her to the spot where rain and snow had rotted the icy covering of the brook. There in a deep hole where he had broken through was a small boy, exhausted, ready to let go of the drooping branch that kept his head above water.

She pulled him out all sudden as he was, stripped the shawl from her own shoulders and wrapped him in it. She ran all the way back to the house. The little dog followed, the anxious bark becoming a note of joy at the rescue.

In the warm kitchen Elsie slipped the child's clothing from his body, wrapped him in a warm blanket, placed him close to the oven door and gave him a hot, stimulating drink. Even then she did not recognize the little fellow. He told her his name but it did not convey any meaning to her. She had never heard it before. Neither had her mother. Fright and exposure and a peculiar impediment in his speech made it impossible for him to express anything further than his name.

Noon came. The little boy, looking like a tiny Indian in his blanket, began to show signs of wakening interest in his dog, in Elsie, in the food that she prepared for him.

"You better go over to Mrs. Scott's and see if she's heard of a boy being lost," Mrs. Boyd suggested.

But Elsie shrank from going to the Scotts.

"I'll go down to the grocery and inquire there," she said.

She put on her hat and coat and again entered the storm. At the corner grocery she found a group of men about the little coal stove talking excitedly.

"You haven't heard whether they have found the Wells boy yet, have you, Elsie?" old Mr. Stern asked.

"The Wells boy?" Elsie stared at the old man.

"Yes, Mary Wells' boy. Francis

Hurd has got the police looking everywhere. His sister is going crazy, they say, unless they hear something before long. She thinks the child fell into East creek. They couldn't keep him away from it. Probably that's where he is—Hey! What's up?"

But Elsie had gone. Down the street she sped until she came to the dingy office which had Francis Hurd's name on the window. She could see him within at the telephone. There was a man with him.

As she opened the door he turned his fine grave face upon her.

"Elsie—"

"I've got him, Francis!" In her excitement she forgot everything but her mission. "He's all right. Only he called himself Bob Bell, so I did not know."

Francis Hurd smiled. Without doubt the strain had been very great.

"That is Robert, all right. He can't say W and he prefers to be called Bob. All right, Ben. You can call in your rescuing party. I'll telephone his mother. Then I'll go home with you, Elsie, and recover my nephew."

He told her more about it as they walked through the storm together. His mother wasn't well and his sister had come on to stay with her for a few days, bringing four-year-old Robert. Mrs. Wells lived in a city apartment and the glassy brook had fascinated Robert. He had stolen away with his little dog. They had been searching for hours. But for Elsie he would not have been found alive.

Robert pranced into his uncle's arms from the rocking chair trailing his blanket behind him. As Francis held him close he looked over the sunny towseled head at Elsie.

Mrs. Wells was very grateful to Elsie. She sent her a beautiful gift of a fur neckpiece and made her come to dinner. She had never seen the girl before, for the Hurds were newcomers in the town, and she was charmed with Elsie's gentle, beauty and sweet personality.

"Mother isn't going to be here long," she told her brother. "I am sorry to have to tell you, dear, but it is a fact we must both face. And you'll need a wife in this house, because I can't be running down constantly to look after you. If you are wise you will stop letting Julia Scott make trouble between you and Elsie."

Francis flushed.

"Elsie—Elsie is so difficult. She never acted as if she cared whether I went to see her or not—"

"Of course she wouldn't. She is a nice, modest girl. Yet all the time she might be breaking her heart over you."

"I'll find out if what you say is true," declared Francis.

The night Elsie told her mother she was going to marry Francis Hurd Mrs. Boyd sat upright.

"Well, I see what I've got to do," she said. "I've got to get out of this bed."

Fly Sting That Broke Iron Nerve of "K. of K."

One of Kitchener's A. D. C.'s on a trip up the Nile had dared to utter a piercing yell when stung by the vicious serot fly, and Kitchener told him that a soldier ought to be ashamed of himself for making such a fuss. The youth retired in silence, but out of the Sabbath-like calm there presently broke a scream and roar that could be heard in Khartoum.

People from all parts of the ship thought murder was being committed and rushed in to find the commander in chief dancing round the saloon and knocking over the chairs and tables in his agony. For days the wounded chief nursed his swollen arm, but it was noticeable that the subject of serot flies was barred, and in his un-injured hand he carried a powerful "slapstick."

Tactful Guest

A Park avenue hostess, who gave a dinner for a friend who had lost his entire family in the sinking of an ocean liner, asked all her guests to avoid the subject of boats and water travel. One of the guests happened to be an Englishman who had just arrived in New York, and when the situation was explained to him he naturally agreed to refrain from commenting on his sea trip. After dinner the hostess inquired if any one had asked him about his crossing. "Yes," he admitted, "but I gave them the impression I flew over."—New York Evening World.

Gray Wolves Vanquished

Depredations of the large gray wolf are believed to be almost at an end in the West because of the unremitting activities of the United States biological survey and other agencies against them, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. In New Mexico, only eight were caught last year and thirty-one the preceding year. Arizona reports that no wolves are now known to be within the borders of that state. A constant patrol is kept along the international boundary to prevent invasions by timber wolves and mountain lions from Mexico.

Two Good Reasons

A ten-year-old girl, in learning to shop, was told by her mother to return two pairs of shoes to the shoe store, the mother having taken them out on approval. The little miss, wishing to make some excuse for not buying either pair, when the clerk approached her, stammered and said: "Please, sir, I do not want either pair. One is too small and the other is too large."—

Government by Courts Constitutes Infringement on American Liberty

By PRESIDENT GREEN, American Federation of Labor.

The trend of judicial process has been advancing, ever limiting the activities of organized labor. We are loyal American citizens, we believe in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and we have respect for law.

Despite the wrongs that must be righted and the mistakes of our government, I feel that we have the best democratic government on the face of the earth today. Our claim is that we have the right to petition and redress as our forefathers did. This is a fundamental right. When we feel the hand of government lays heavy and unfairly on the working people, our tongues will not be silenced and we will not withhold our protest.

Injunctions are unfair and unjust that interfere with our rights and abridge our liberty. Injunctions are government by court instead of government by law.

It is necessary for the members of organized labor to assert their traditional political power in that we will support in the congress and in the state those who will support us and oppose those who are against us.

The A. F. of L. is not in accord with extremists or anarchists. No cause can be advanced in the United States by the use of bomb or bayonet.

Really Seemed Time for "Beau" to Depart

Some racy stories of Beau Brummell, "King of the Dandies," at the height of his glory a century ago, are told by Lewis Melville in "George Bryan Brummell: His Life and Letters," recalled a writer in the Kansas City Times. It was said of this beau that "women admired him, but men almost revered him." He never married, but that he was not indifferent to the charm and companionship of the ladies, there is plenty of evidence.

"I must leave here this morning," he said unexpectedly to his host when staying at a country house.

"But," the other expostulated, "you were not going until the end of the week."

"True, quite true," the beau concurred, "but I really must be off."

His host, however, was not satisfied, and plied him with questions until at last Brummell, in desperation, blurted out:

"Well, the fact is, I am in love with your wife."

"Why, my dear fellow, so was I twenty years ago," remarked the lady's husband, hoping to put his guest at his ease. Then a thought struck him and he inquired:

"Is she in love with you?"

"I—I believe she is."

"That alters the case," the host said with decision. "I will send for your post horse immediately."

KEEPING WELL

TOO MUCH IODINE

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

GOITER or enlargement of the thyroid gland has been known and studied for hundreds of years. It is only in recent years that anything definite has been known about its cause. It is now known that simple enlargement of the gland is due to lack of iodine in the body.

Iodine is a sea product. It is found in sea water, sea weed, nearly all kinds of sea foods and even in the air. So goiter is very uncommon on the seacoast. But far from the sea in regions high above the sea level, the water, the air, the food contain no iodine so that goiter is exceedingly common in such regions.

This has been proven in recent years. Careful study especially of boys and girls of school age, shows that enlarged thyroid glands are much more common in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Colorado and other central states than they are on either the Atlantic or Pacific coast states. When the number of cases in different states is plotted on the map this is strikingly shown and it is seen that the country is divided into strips or belts, the states in which goiter is common forming what is called a "goiter belt" across the middle of the country.

As soon as these facts were shown (and it took years of study and hard work on the part of many men to prove them) Doctor Marine and his associates in Ohio said: "If the condition is due to a lack of iodine let's give the children more iodine and so prevent goiter." So the city of Canton put a very small amount of iodine in the city drinking water and the number of goiters began to fall off.

But as soon as it was known that iodine would prevent goiter everybody began to put iodine in everything. We had iodized salt, iodized milk, iodized everything. The peculiar thing about the thyroid gland is that if it doesn't get enough iodine it makes trouble and if it gets too much iodine it makes more trouble.

Now Doctor Hartsack of Cleveland, in a recent article, says the iodine treatment is going too far and that Cleveland people are having too much of a good thing. The over stimulation of the thyroid gland due to taking too much iodine is showing itself in loss of weight, weakness especially of the legs, nervous and heart symptoms. These cases Doctor Hartsack attributes to the use of iodized salt instead of the presence of iodine in the drinking water.

VIOLET RAYS GOOD FOR SICK MONKEYS

Valuable Zoo Animals Are Restored to Health.

New York.—How ultraviolet radiation, used on sick humans, saved the lives of five valuable and desperately ill animals in the New York zoological park is told by Dr. Charles V. Noback of the department of comparative medicine.

His furry patients consisted of a red howling monkey, a grivet monkey and three lemurs, which are small animals belonging to the same order as monkeys but lower in the evolutionary scale.

They are all expensive animals and their threatened death from "cage paralysis," which is a disease very similar to rickets in human beings, was regarded by the zoo authorities as a genuine calamity. When they had reached a state in which they refused all food and could hardly move, Doctor Noback was called in.

The helplessness of the animals at the outset simplified the treatment. Doctor Noback simply placed his quartz-tube mercury vapor lamp behind their bowed and immobile backs and turned on the current, without needing to tie or constrain them in any way.

The treatment was kept up for a month in the case of the red howling monkey, and from three to four weeks with the others. In all cases the stiffness and decrepitude that mark the disease in its extreme stages soon disappeared, the eyes became bright again, the hair glossy and the patients displayed a manifest renewal of their interest in food.

Doctor Noback notes that the doses of the rays to which he subjected the hair-covered skins of his animals were much more intense than those intended for the bare skin of a human being. For this reason he had to be careful about hairless and nonpigmented areas, such as the region around the eyes, to avoid producing severe sunburn.

Sweets Growing More Popular in America

Washington.—Fathers and mothers seem to be getting more indulgent in the United States, or else the fathers and mothers themselves are consuming more candy, chewing gum and ice cream, because the production of these three children's favorites is setting new altitude records nearly every year. The Commerce department's census of manufactures discloses tremendous increases which small boys will find hard to believe. Comparing 1914 figures with those for 1925, the following was set forth:

The nation now produces $47,838,000 worth of chewing gum, compared with the pre-war figure of $17,000,000, and the product still sells for a nickel a package.

Candy costs $379,081,411, compared with $153,685,523 in 1914.

This present bill of $700,000,000 or more—about $95 annually per small boy—if small boys got all of it—doesn't represent all the money spent by dad and sister's sheik, either, for these figures are wholesale prices.

Retail prices will boost these three industries into the $1,000,000,000-a-year figure, experts believe.

The increases are variously attributed to prohibition, advertising, increasing export trade, and the attempt of the factories to catch up with the appetites of small boys and high school girls.

According to a Dutch tradition originating in the middle ages, the first new herrings of the summer season are offered to the queen. Every year the fishing smacks compete to bring in the first catch.

Means of Grace

Family education and order are some of the chief means of grace; if these are duly maintained, all the means of grace are likely to prosper and become effectual.—Jonathan Edwards.

Why the Big Stamps Are Not Very Popular

New York.—Refusal of the public to expend the energy and time needed to moisten and affix a large stamp is given by post-office officials as one reason for the falling off in the demand for the new 2-cent stamps celebrating the surrender of General Burgoyne.

Sales of the Burgoyne stamp, together with a stamp commemorating the battle of Bennington, have fallen off since they first went before the public on August 5. The Bennington stamp is of ordinary size, while the Burgoyne stamp is oblong, the shape of the special delivery stamp. The drop in demand for the Burgoyne issue has been more marked than that for the Bennington.

"Professional and amateur collectors and dealers bought both in large quantities in the first week," said Edward P. Russell, cashier of the post office. "Then the demand fell off. Business houses do not like to buy large stamps because of the extra work involved in stamping letters."

Blooms as Edibles

A number of flowers are used as food and drink. The most familiar to use is the crystallized violet. It is very important that only the plucked-off petals should be used, for the seed-pod, like the underground stem, is poisonous. Roses are eaten in many forms; the candied petals have a delicate flavor, and ever since Elizabethan times old country homes have held the secret of making a delicious petal jelly and rose sugar candy. The rose, too, yields a much-esteemed sirup and the buds can be crystallized. Flowers make excellent pickles. In Stuart days the petals of nasturtiums, roses, elderberry, primroses, rosemary and violets were often pickled in vinegar, with their own weight in sugar. In the Balkans, where more roses are grown than anywhere else in the world, the buds are frequently pickled.

AMOS DENOUNCES SIN

(World's Temperance Sunday.)
LESSON TEXT—Amos 2:4-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seek good and not evil, that ye may live, and so the Lord the God of hosts shall be with you as ye have spoken.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Punishment of Sin.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What God Thinks of Sin.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why the Drink Traffic Is Prohibited.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Intemperance and Associated Evils.

Amos, a shepherd and tradesman (Amos 7:14, 15) was called to prophesy for God. He was neither in the prophetic line, nor trained in the prophetic schools.

I. The Sins of Judah (2:4, 5).

In the first part of the book Amos sets forth judgments upon the surrounding nations. The aim, doubtless, was to show that there is no escape from God's judgment. The nation or individual that sins shall surely be judged (Num. 32:23).

1. They despised the law of the Lord.

To despise means to spurn, to disregard. To despise God's law is a sin directly against God. There is no escape from judgment for such as do this. (Heb. 10:28, 29).

2. Failed to keep the Lord's commandments (v. 4).

Disobedience logically follows the despising of God's law. It not only robs of blessings in this life, but results in eternal destruction (II Thess. 1:7-10).

3. Lies caused them to err (v. 4).

Because they despised God's law they fell into lying errors. Doctrine and conduct are inseparable. Thinking wrong precedes doing wrong.

4. Judgment upon Egypt (v. 5).

This was literally fulfilled a century and a half later in the capture of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans.

II. The Sins of Israel (2:6-8).

The message of the prophet now comes directly to the northern kingdom.

1. "Sold the righteous for silver" (v. 6).

The judge, for a bribe of silver, declared the innocent to be guilty.

2. "Sold the poor for a pair of shoes" (v. 6).

Likely this refers to the practice of selling into slavery the debtor who could not pay for a pair of shoes which had been sold to him on time.

3. "Pants" after the dust of the earth on heads of the poor (v. 30).

The word "pant" means to eagerly desire. So avaricious had these men become that they even grasped after the earth which the down-trodden poor cast upon their heads in mourning because of their misery.

4. Turned aside the way of the meek (v. 7).

These grasping rich men turned aside the meek; that is, those who would not stand up for their rights.

5. Licentiousness (v. 7).

So notorious were the immoralities practiced that they were even guilty of incestuous prostitution. This was not merely the case of falling into sensuous sin, but was indulged in with the definite purpose of insulting God, provoking His holy name.

6. Idolatry (v. 8).

They not only frequented the place of idolatrous worship, but lay down on the clothes taken from the poor, and drank wine bought with money extorted from the poor in unjust fines.

III. God's Goodness to Israel (v. 9-12).

God's manifold blessings and His goodness are now presented in contrast with the base practices of the nation, in order to heighten the picture of their ingratitude.

1. Destroyed their enemies (v. 9).

The Amorrite stands for all powerful peoples whom God removed from Palestine to make room for Israel.

2. Delivered from cruel bondage (v. 10).

God set them free from the cruel slavery of the Egyptians. Every redeemed one has been set free from a more cruel bondage than that of the Israelites at the hands of the Egyptians (John 8:34-36).

3. Led them for forty years in the wilderness (v. 10).

The wilderness wandering is a most wonderful story, showing the tender and faithful leading of God.

4. Raised up the prophets (v. 11).

God not only bestowed great honor upon them in this, but favored them in raising up prophets from among their own offspring. The awful sin and guilt are here shown in that they not only turned the prophets from their lives of separation but gave them wine to drink.

Faith

Faith never refers to self, but always to the Word of God. There are many who want to feel that they are believers before they have believed the truth, and to feel that they are safe, before they trust in Jesus.

Our Faith

When the devil tries our faith it is that he may crush it or diminish it; but when God tries our faith it is to establish and increase it.—Marcus Rainsford

"Adventure" Only for Man Physically Fit

I find that most people think of "adventure" when the word "exploration" is used. To the explorer, however, adventure is merely an unwelcome interruption of his serious labors. He is looking, not for thrills, but for facts about the unknown. Often his search is a race with time against starvation. To him, an adventure is merely a bit of bad planning, brought to light by the test of trial. Or it is unfortunate exemplification of the fact that no man can grasp all the possibilities of the future.

Serious work in exploration calls for as definite and as rigorous professional preparation as does success in any other serious work in life. The first qualification of an explorer is a sound and trained body. Exploring involves the hardest kind of physical exertion, and the capacity to endure such exertion under stress both for long periods of sustained endeavor and in the trying moments of emergency. How preposterous, then, it is for men who have lived at desks to maturity suddenly to attempt these arduous enterprises!—Roald Amundsen in World's Work.

Had Business Reason for Making Inquiry

Times were hard, and those who had had work clung to it tenaciously. A small steam roller chuff-chuffed noisily up and down a road, which was under repair, and one of the out-of-works watched it for a time, studying the engineer intently.

"How do you feel today?" he asked suddenly.

"Fine. How's yourself?" came the prompt response.

Each succeeding day the lounge appeared, always with the same greeting. The engineer became curious, almost annoyed at the persistent inquiry, and finally demanded:

"Say, what d'you mean by coming and asking 'how do you feel' every day?"

"Well, you see," drawled the lounge, "you don't look any too well, and I have a hunch that one of these days you'll have to quit your job—and I want to get it."—Vancouver Province.

How to Get Lost

A pompous elderly man, visiting a certain rural district, wished to inspect some ruins in the neighborhood. He inquired for the oldest inhabitant, and assailed him with such a host of needless interrogations that the ancient personage presently lost his temper, and said:

"I'll tell thee a better way yet. Go straight down yonder, take fust turning through a tater field, past the Blue Boar, up Mileston hill, and over the common till you come to the Windy wood; go down till you get into the middle of that 'ere wood, and then—"

"Well, and what then?" demanded the old gentleman.

"Then," said the oldest inhabitant, "I'm blown if you won't be properly lost!"—London Tit-Bits.

Grounds for Suspicion

"Look there!" said the washing machine agent who visited the hamlet sufficiently often to be fairly well acquainted there. "See those men and boys—yes, and women, too—pointing at Uncle Skinner and grinning after he has passed by. What is tickling them?"

"Old Skinner is a widower," responded the landlord of the tavern at Squam. "He is also as stingy as stone soup, but they've found out that while he was up to the city last week he went to a beautie shoppe and paid a whole dollar to get manueared. And they are kinder putting two and two together and making twenty-two of it."—Kansas City Star.

Sincerity in Reading

"Read to see, as far as you can," says Sir Henry Hadow, "the difference between good work and bad, and you will come to like things which you first of all thought dull, austere and inaccessible." That is the secret. Whatever one reads should be read with a critical eye, not merely raced through for the sake of its passing interest, but more or less studied for the qualities it possesses. Every book, however poor, contains something new and instructive. If one reads for improvement as well as interest, an appreciation of the best will come as a matter of course."

Dustin, the Resourceful

Harrison Gibbs tells of a night when the stage manager neglected to place a mattress outside the castle walls as a landing place for Dustin Farnum when he made a spectacular leap in some melodrama. Farnum landed with a thud audible all over the theater. To stave off the laugh he thought fast, with the result that almost immediately he peeked over the parapet and remarked, "The lake is frozen!"

D for Denarius

The "d" in English money is the abbreviation for "penny." It stood originally for the Latin denarius, a coin of value equivalent to the Anglo-Saxon penny. Medieval money changers continued its use as an abbreviation for the penny and gave it a fixed place in English custom. A penny is approximately equal in value to two cents. The half penny is therefore about the equivalent of our cent.

BUILD CATHEDRAL BY NEW METHODS

Cutting Stone for Great Structure in Washington.

Washington.—Modern machinery is proving a valuable aid to the ancient art of the mason in the construction of the national cathedral on Mount St. Albans here. The Protestant Episcopal Cathedral foundation expects the building will be completed within the next five years.

It will be a massive Gothic structure comparable to the finest of the cathedrals of Europe. Generations of artisans toiled on such edifices in the Middle Ages, but this one is being manufactured speedily.

In a stone cutting plant purposely established at Bethesda, Md., 45 tons of stone are produced daily from huge blocks of Indiana limestone. The stone is cut, planed and shaped at the plant, then transported to the cathedral site, where master masons fit them together like pieces in a gigantic jig-saw puzzle.

The stones for Solomon's temple likewise were prepared for the masons away from the temple site. But Solomon's wisdom did not furnish the machinery and mass production methods which are expediting the work on Mount St. Albans.

The 100 men employed in the Bethesda plant cut more stone every three weeks than the same number of skilled men could cut by hand in a year. The work of the master masons, however, is much at it was in Solomon's time.

Four drafting and five mechanical operations are required for the production of each stone. After the architect determines the specific shape and dimensions it is given a number.

A full-size drawing is prepared by the architects and a zinc pattern for each stone made at the cutting plant. A gang saw which cuts by exerting pressure on particles of crushed steel, a circular saw with diamond teeth and a craborandom circular saw for shaping, together with the most modern steel tools, an adjustable planer, pneumatic chisels and electrically propelled devices are used by the men who labor in this up-to-date branch of an age-old calling.

Must Support Your Poor Relatives, Says Judge

Chicago.—If there is a child, an aged person or a cripple in your family, you may find yourself compelled by law to support him.

That was announced by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, before whom all cases of indigent persons are brought for commitment to charitable institutions.

And the order in which relatives are liable for the support of poor relations is:

First, the father must support a child. If he is unable, then the grandfather; third, the mother, and then the grandmother.

In the case of aged or infirm men or women, their children, if they have any, must pay for their keep. If not, a brother must foot the bills, and, if they are without brothers, their sisters are responsible, providing they are unmarried. If they are married and have no separate property, then—and only then—are the coifers of Cook county open to them for food and shelter.

"Hereafter when a person applies to this court for charity we shall call every relative he has to determine whether they can take care of him," Judge Jarecki said.

And in accordance with his new regulation he ordered a grandfather and a brother to support two persons applying for charity.

"Extinct," but Alive

Berlin.—A bird and an animal thought to be virtually extinct have been found in German wilds and will be kept alive. The bird is the eagle owl, called in German the uhu (strix bubo). A pair of owls have been captured in the mountains of Saxony and will be bred in captivity until numerous and then released into the woods. The animal is the auroch, or European bison, largest animal in Europe and once a favorite in the Roman arenas.

Rooster Spoils Contest

Jefferson, Mo.—People at Shelbina are still wondering how many grains of corn an industrious rooster can pick up in 60 minutes. This uncertainty resulted when a rooster in a store window quit and went to sleep after eating 744 grains in 10 minutes.

Finds "Cheap" Ring; Its Value Is $6,000

Salem, Mass.—At a dance in the Hawthorne hotel, Miss Jeanette Brooks of Peabody, found what she supposed to be a cheap and gaudy ring. She wore it, much to the amusement of her friends, who thought it was worth about a dime. Later Mrs. E. C. Edwards of Toledo, Ohio, identified the ring as one which she lost. It is an emerald valued at $6,000.

Miss Brooks said she read of the loss in a newspaper and gave the ring to the police, who telephoned to Boston and the owner came here. Miss Brooks received a reward of $500 from Mrs. Edwards.

WAY, WAY BACK

Mrs. Newriche (patronizing)—Were any of your ancestors men of note, Mr. Cynic?

Mr. Cynic—Yes, madam, I should say so. One of them was the most famous admiral of his day, and commanded the allied forces of the world.

Mrs. Newriche (with altered tone of deep respect)—Is it possible? And what was his name?

Mr. Cynic—Noah, madam.

Playing Safe

"Beware of speculation," said the Wall street veteran.

"I've got a sure system," answered the man at the hotel desk. "I'm a theater ticket speculator."—The Washington Star.

Had Her There

She—From the earliest day you men have blamed women for every evil.

He—Oh, I don't know. You'll notice that we invariably impute sin to the old Adam in us, never to the old Eve.

Impressive

"Radiator caps should be more artistic. The cap's a prominent feature."

"Yes, it's the first thing that strikes you."—American Boy Magazine.

AFTER HER HEART

She—Teddy, you're a man after my own heart.

He—Good.

She—But that's not saying you'll get it, though.

Summer Styles

In wisdom, woman wears a dress whose weight is scarcely felt. While man still dons in mute distress A collar and a belt.

Pneumatic Trouble

"My back feels terrible—rheumatism, I think."

"Didn't I hear you say you'd pumped up four tires?"

"Yes, why?"

"Then it's pneumatism you've got, not rheumatism."

Knew What Was Good

Mrs. Reilly—What makes these sardines so high?

Grocer—They're imported, ma'am.

Mrs. Reilly—I'll take the domestic ones—those that had the brains to swim across to this country.

To Please Her

She—Of course, I'm greatly honored by your proposal, but as I don't believe in tying myself to one man, I must refuse you.

He—Well, if I organize a syndicate, would you consider our offer?

Fifty Per Cent Better

Friend—Well, old chap, how do you like being married? You were always lamenting when you were a bachelor.

Benedict—Oh, it's much better, thanks. Before I was miserable at home and miserable when I went out; now I'm only miserable at home.

Brevity

A man who talks for hours is heard without appreciation. Another, with a single word, electrifies the nation.

"Out West it is considered healthy to mind your own business."

"I don't find that idea prevalent at the various health resorts."

FOR BETTER BREAKFASTS

BREAKFAST is the time of day when the appetite is at its lowest ebb. Then, if ever, food must be presented in its very loveliest guises and most intriguing forms. Hot drinks must be piping hot, fruit must be iced, and toast, pancakes or waffles must be just off the fire to be tempting.

Another important point in the planning of breakfasts is the varying of the menu. The same fruit day after day will not serve. Variety is absolutely essential if the meal is to be enjoyed as it deserves.

A Versatile Fruit

Have you thought of using Hawaiian pineapple in its many seductive forms as an addition to the matutinal meal? Every member of the family will enjoy a variation from routine food and find breakfast a meal of greater interest.

There are so many ways of adapting this versatile fruit to breakfast needs that it might be used right through the whole menu from beginning to end. Here are a few suggestions.

A Few Ways to Use It

Try chilled sliced Hawaiian pineapple as a breakfast fruit. It is delicious and contains minerals you need. Crushed pineapple on cereal will add a lot to the taste of it; fried sliced pineapple may be used with bacon, and here is a recipe for a delicious sauce to complement the waffle or pancake course.

Crushed Pineapple Sauce for Waffles: Cream one-third cupful butter. Add one cupful of confectioner's sugar gradually while beating constantly. Then add one-fourth cupful of boiling water, and when light and well mixed, add one and one-half cupfuls drained, crushed Hawaiian pineapple.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

William E. Bankard has bought the Charles Reaver dwelling property, on George Street.

Steiner Engelbrecht and family, called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stouffer, Sunday evening.

Miss Anna Davidson is improving the outside appearance of her home on Baltimore St., by rebuilding the porches.

Mrs. Samuel Harner and daughter, Alverta, visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Naill, near Harney, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harner spent the last week-end in Philadelphia on a visit to Mrs. Harner's brother, Clarence Ibach.

Wm. E. Burke is having the exterior woodwork of the Postoffice building painted, which greatly improves its appearance.

Miss Mary Reindollar visited Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thomas, in Baltimore several days last week, returning home on Monday.

Rev. and Mrs. S. R. Kresge, of Baust Reformed Church, are spending the week with relatives in Lancaster, Pa., and Reading, Pa.

Those who spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Steiner Engelbrecht, were: Mr. and Mrs. James Hawk, Taneytown; Mrs. Amos Zentz, York.

Luther R. Harner has bought the former James D. Haines farm on the Emmitsburg road, on which he has lived as tenant for the past three years.

Well, nobody will have Chautauqua to worry over, this year, which perhaps isn't the best sort of an advertisement for a town. But, Chautauquas are not heard of, in cities.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Halter, and Miss Eva Bankard, of Silver Run; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Halter and daughter, Rhoda, Mayberry, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Bankard.

Mrs. Theo. M. Buffington was called to Westminster, on Thursday morning, to help care for Mrs. Thos. Haines who received a stroke of paralysis and is critically ill. Mrs. Haines is the mother of Mrs. E. Roth Buffington.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence I. Shank were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parker and children, Robert and Carlyon; Mrs. Geo. C. Tracey and daughter, Catherine, all of Towson; and Mrs. Grayson Eyer, Taneytown.

Rev. Walter E. Weybright was ordained as a minister, this week, at the annual convention of the West Pennsylvania Synod, United Lutheran Church, held at Spring Grove. Rev. and Mrs. Weybright visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hockensmith several days this week.

Those who spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hyser, were: Mr. and Mrs. John Harner, Frogtown; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Valentine and children, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Helwig, Miss Leah Valentine, all of Hanover; Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Hyser and children, Miss Anna Harman, of Taneytown.

An automobile and a small truck ran together at the square Thursday afternoon, one coming down York St., and the other down Emmitsburg St. Fortunately no great damage was done as neither was running fast; but there might have been a serious smash-up. That there are not more accidents at this dangerous point, is merely due to a long run of good luck.

We thought Middletown, Md., had some sort of new safety device for regulating traffic in the town; but it appears that only an ordinance has been passed that all motor vehicles shall come to a complete stop before entering upon Main street. In other words, vehicles on said Main street have the right of way over all vehicles entering said street. Suppose a driver happens not to know anything about the ordinance?

A reception was held last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Louis Reifsnider, for their son, Raymond D., and bride. A very enjoyable time was spent by the invited guests. Music was furnished by Misses Marian and Margaret Hitchcock and Miss Margaret Crouse, and an abundance of refreshments were served. The newly married couple will be at home, 544 S. Franklin St., Hanover, after Nov. 15.

Mrs. David Richards and children, of Baltimore, visited Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Miller, this week.

David Eyer, of near town, was taken to the Frederick City Hospital, on Thursday last, for treatment.

Mrs. Margaret Bishop, near town, has grown a monster head of cabbage that weighs 11 pounds and a half.

Miss Gladys Bounds, of near town, spent the week-end with her brother and family, near Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Brown, of near town, spent Sunday with George F. K. Koontz and family, near Emmitsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Holzapfel and son, of Hagerstown, visited J. S. Stover and family, on Sunday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Benner, spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Hagerstown, where the Doctor attended a Medical Convention.

The Lutheran C. E. Society will hold a social Oct. 28, at 7:30. All members and those who regularly attend are cordially invited.

Mrs. Luther Sentz and Mrs. Estelita Koons, of near town, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Koons, at Philadelphia, Pa.

On Monday night, Merie S. Ohler, attended a business meeting of the Chevrolet Motor Co., at Frederick, with dinner at The Francis Scott Key hotel.

A considerable number of Taneytown firemen, with the La France engine, attended the Westminster Fire Company demonstration on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Phares Grove, of near Elizabethtown, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Grove, of near Marietta, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Null and son, of near town, spent Sunday with Mrs. Jesse Myers and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eckard, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Crabbs attended the Carillon and organ recitals held in the chapel at Mercersburg, Penna., on Sunday afternoon, and very much enjoyed the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Crouse, Mrs. Mary Stover, Miss Mary Koontz and Master Paul Koontz, of town, and Mrs. Kathryn Thomas, of Baltimore, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John P. Eyer, of near Ladiesburg.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stouffer, M. Ross Fair and son, Franklin, and Miss Mary Bowers, of near Harney, spent Sunday in Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Stouffer, attended Mrs. Mollie Keefer's 80th birthday celebration at the home of William Derr.

Ferris A. Reid has been appointed General Freight Agent of the Chicago, Springfield & St. Louis R. R., with headquarters at Springfield, Ill., and has entered upon his duties. His many Taneytown friends will be glad to hear of his appointment to this responsible position.

Mrs. Sarah A. Albaugh who has been visiting relatives and friends in the middle west and along the Pacific Coast, arrived in Taneytown Thursday morning, while the bride and groom Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Overholtzer who stopped off at Wooster, Ohio, will likely arrive Sunday evening or Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. John Ohler, son, Richard; Mr. and Mrs. Upton Austin, daughters, Carmen and Charlotte, motored to Westminster Wednesday night, giving Mr. Fleagle's family a surprise, it being Mr. Fleagle's birthday. The evening was spent in playing games and music, and later all were invited to the dining room for refreshments.

Good Short Ones.

"You'll have to take less strenuous exercises and get more sleep," said the doctor to the dejected man before him.

"That's my idea exactly," said the other. "Would you mind coming up to the house and telling that to the baby?"

A man stepped up to a grocer's cigar counter and bought two 10-cent cigars. A Scotchman who was waiting to be served pushed forward.

"You sell those cigars three for a quarter, don't you?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the grocer.

"Well," said the Scotchman, producing a nickel, "I'll take the other one."

A colored gent took out a marriage license. A few days later he asked the clerk to substitute another woman's name for the one on the license as he had changed his mind. He was told it would cost him another dollar and a half.

"You mean I got to get a new license?"

"Yes," said the clerk.

"The applicant replied with an air of determination. "Never mind, boss this 'ol' one will do. Dar ain't no dollah an' a half difference 'tween dem two nowoh."

Barefooted, the Georgia nester sat on the steps of his tumbled-down shack, sucking the stem of an empty corn-cob pipe. A stranger, stopping for a drink of water and wishing to be friendly, said:

"How is your cotton coming on?"

"Ain't got none," said the nester.

"Didn't you plant any?" asked the stranger.

"Nope," said the man, "fraid o' boll weevils."

"Well," said the stranger, "how is your corn?"

"Didn't plant none," said the man, "fraid wa'n't goin' to be no rain."

Poise.

The little word, "poise," signifying mental balance, or, as we sometimes say, "keeping our head," represents one of the most valuable faculties connected with human existence. Its possession or the lack of it, counts for much in these days of rivalry and social and business intercourse, and often turns the scale for one's success and another's failure.

Very few persons have it, at all times and under all conditions. We are creatures of impulse and temper, inclined to "fly off" under provocation, and this is why we so often act in haste and repent at leisure. We lack "poise."

We are so eager to cut corners and tell all we know—or more than we know—that our unruly member, the tongue, often gets us into trouble because of lack of proper restraint. We get into the habit of talking too fast, and "answering back" without considering the danger that we are getting into, and before we realize it, we have had a quarrel with somebody, and have lost something—perhaps even our own self-respect, as well as the case at issue.

It would be a fine thing if all of us could tighten-up the bridle on our tongue when an opponent loosens up. If we could just let the other fellow talk himself out and get his grouch out of his system, then follow up calmly with "our side," never losing our "poise," we would end the victor in many instances in which perhaps both lose by being hasty.

After all, our admiration eventually goes to the side holding the best mental balance. So true is this that it is part of the policy of the legal fraternity, very frequently, to so aggravate witnesses that they "lose their head" and say something they did not want to say, but just what the examiner wanted them to say.

The cultivation of "poise" therefore, marks the careful man of business, the good citizen and wise leader; even though at the time, and without final light on a subject, he may seem to be the loser. It is the calm atmosphere after the storm, the clear brain after the verbal set-to, and fair verdicts after all of the evidence is out in the open, that counts for most all final judgments.

Because of the shortage of ready money, eggs are used as currency in Samaria, Russia, 20 fresh eggs being given for a quart of vodka, 12 for a pound of sugar, 3 for a loaf of bread, 2,000 for a suit of clothes and 300 for a pair of shoes.

The sardonic laugh, the forced, artificial, sneering, mocking laugh, derived its name from Sardonian, an island in the Mediterranean on which the ancients claim a plant grew that screwed up the face of a person eating it and made him appear to laugh.
