THE BIG CORN SHOW AND PRIZES WON.

The Finest Exhibit Ever Made in Maryland.

The Carroll County Corn Show op-ened in the Armory at Westminster, on Monday. Without doubt it is the finest show of the kind ever held in the state. There were three groups of exhibits; the First National Bank, with 157 entries; the county-wide with 168 entries, and the Junior exhibits from high school boys and girls under 18 years. The total number of exhibits was 350, as compared with 323 last year.

Charles Carroll school won the cup presented by the Rotary Club, of Westminster, for the best exhibits which showed many varieties and also exhibits of canned corn. Other schools with creditable exhibits were Mt. Airy, Sykesville, Manchester and Hampstead.

The various Homemakers' Clubs of the county had 19 booths that attracted a great deal of attention. In the booths were displayed dresses, remod-eled garments and children's wear of all sorts. Dress-making, dyeing and other arts were demonstrated, also a other arts were demonstrated, also a lot of Christmas suggestions.

Clubs participating in the exhibits were Union Bridge, Keysville, Woodbine, Taylorsville, New Windsor, Mt. Airy, Taneytown, Manchester, Sykesville, Winfield, and Hampstead. Manchester, Taneytown and Sykesville demonstrated properly set tables and demonstrated properly set tables and

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

Strong Appeal for a General Observance of Day.

The Golden Rule is a common denominator of all religion. No other creed meets with such acceptance. Catholic and Protestant, Jew and Gentile, Christian and Confucian, Modernist and Fundamentalist, Radical and Conservative all accept the Golden Rule. It is a universally accepted standard of conduct for all meeting. The Golden Rule, is grantle. people. The Golden Rule is eternal as it is universal. "This is the law and prophets," the basis of the Mosaic Law, the heart of the Christian gospel, and an abidiag constructive principle leading toward the millennium. It is a test of our religion. Whatsoever else may be included in or omitted from our creeds we all believe in the Golden Rule. Do we practice it? Do our deeds tally with our creeds?

International Golden Rule Sunday is a day for personal stock-taking; for measurement of our lies by a universally accepted standard of life to ascertain how nearly we have attained to an ideal.

A survey commission was overseas this summer composed of representative men appointed by leading national denominational boards, the world's Sunday School Association, the Na-tional Christian Endeavor Society,the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and similar organizations. Their report was unanimous that Near East Relief could not stop, barring any future disturbances, either physical, political, or religious, under less than five

In addition, they reported that there was need for a permanent or-ganization to do child welfare work all over the world similar to the work which Near East Relief has done in Armenia, Syria, Palestine and Greece, and that Near East Relief, it was hoped, would dissolve into this new organization, either retaining its pres ent name or under a different name, so that the missionary interests of all denominations might be conserved, and without loss of time this new organization, or Near East Relief, continued, might function for conditions of needy and dependent children, as the American Red Cross is now functioning for conserved in it. tioning for emergency relief in time of disaster.

Why They Went to the Dentist.

Barbara, aged three went to the dentist's the other day, and being an up-to-date young lady, she tripped along without urging. Barbara's father is an officer of the Maryland State Department of Health and in taking her to the dentist, he was practicing what the State Department practicing what the State Department of Health preaches; Prevention of disease and promotion of good health.

Speaking of Barbara's visit, he said: "Health officers know now that there is a close connection between healthy teeth and good health in gen-eral. We know also that neglected first teeth are often followed by imperfect or decayed permanent teeth, diseased tonsils and later by seriously impaired health. The old notion that baby teeth are of no account was exploded long ago. Now we know that they are as important to a growing child's health as sound teeth are

THE "LUKANS" SOCIETY

A New Society Organized by the Physicians. According to Dr. Howard A. Kelly, of Baltimore, a nation-wide society of physicians has been organized, known as "The Lukans," a name coming from the Biblical tradition that St. Luke was a physician. It was organized at Buffalo, N. Y., two weeks ago, when Dr. Kelly outlined the program and principles of the society. The foundation of its religious belief is the Apos-

The program of the society, as explained by Dr. Kelly, consists in the holding of meetings concurrent with state or national medical gatherings. At such times the members will discuss the relation of their faith to their work, and will have Bible study and prayer in the hope of making their faith more definite. Efforts to extend the membership are being made by the central committee of fourteen in Buffalo. They are conducting correspondence with medical men throughout the country, and are giving the organization publicity in other ways.

"No one who is not a Christian has a right to enter a sick room," Dr. Kelly asserted. "The sick room is a sacred place, especially when the case is a hopeless one, and a physician should be prepared to render the serv-ices of a physician as well as those of a scientist."

Dr. Kelly declared his investigation has shown him that "an unexpectedly large number" of physicians have a

CARROLL DRY CASE TO COURT OF APPEALS.

Court rules that it has no jurisdiction in such cases.

The case of the state against William A. Barnes, on two counts—transporting liquor and the possession of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes—will be taken to the Court of Appeals by Attorney Theo. F. Brown, the court having sustained the demurrer filed by Edward O. Weant and

A. Earl Shipley.

One of the principal points at issue was the enforceability of Fede al law—in this case the Volstead act—in State courts, and the decision sup-ports the contention of the accused that Federal statutes are not subject to enforcement in the courts of the

On this subject the Circuit Cohrt delivered the following opinion:
The opinion of the court is that the crime charged in the indictment is an offense against the sovereignty of the United States and not against the sovereignty of the State; and since 'there can be no criminal prosecution, initiated in a professional prosecution, initiated in a professional prosecution, initiated in a professional prosecution. cution initiated in any State court for that which is merely an offense against the general government,' the court here has no jurisdiction and the demurrer will be sustained on this

In arghing the case, Mr. Brown contended that Article 2 of the Declaration of Rights adopted by the Constitutional Convention of the United States and acts of Congress adopted in pursuance thereof the "supreme law of the State," and that violations of Federal statutes, including the Volstead act, could be enforred in the State courts.

Judge Parke pointed out that the offense charged might be one against both the state and nation, provided the State passed legislation to that effect.

In the absence of such legislation. In the absence of such legislation no offense against the sovereignty of the State is involved in violations of the Volstead act or the Eighteenth Amendment, and hence such cases are not actionable in the State courts of Maryland, this State not having en-

In fact the strain or breeding of the birds is more important than the breed or variety to which they belong.

Although autumn is harvest for man, it often happens that early winter is harvest time for the rats that take toll of the crops stored in cribs, grainaries, and barns. The best method of rat control is to make buildings rat proof and to clean up all likely hiding places and secluded homes of the rodents. Make it as difficult as possible for rats to find food, and then poison them, for the harder they find it to get food the more readily will they eat the poisons. Cleaning Up Time.

The mails are filled now with appeals of all sorts, mostly along the line of charitable, benevolent, or repurpose of trying to secure funds with which to balance up over-drawn seasonable work.

These efforts are mostly laudable, even though at times they seem overinsistent, and urge our giving, to the extreme. These agencies are usually well organized and in charge of skilled workers, and whether we always patronize their pleas, we must nevertheless admire the manner with which they "go at" things, and their endeavors to start the New Year with a

Unfortunately, most of us can not command persons with time and energy to help us to clean up our own deficits at the end of the year; and such efforts as we put forth individually somehow fail too frequently where there should be ready response.

Perhaps most folks do not see anything in the last month in a year than a new year just a month ahead. They do not feel any special obligation resting on them to "pay up" and clear their own slates, as well as helping others to clear theirs. The coming of the new year should mean just this.

Perhaps too, the Christmas season is also bringing its outlays for us-it may be, too lavish ones, especially if we have not squared accounts with others. We have no very proper right to spend other people's money just for making a splurge, or engaging in self-enjoyment at somebody else's expense.

So, while we may feel a little sore over the many appeals for money that we get at this time of the year, we ought at least respect the good business side of it, and get after our own, as well as personally pay our own debts in order that others may have theirs.

The "Save-a-Life" Campaign.

The recent Save-a-Life Campaign, so-called, put on by State Motor Commissioner Baughman, was unquestionably a step in the right direction, especially as it referred to the inspection of cars—brakes and steering gear. Mr. Baughman refers to the fact that in the three weeks from Oct. 21 to Nov. 12, 1926, twenty-nine persons were killed in auto accidents in Maryland, and that in the same period this year-during the Save-a-Life Campaign-only sixteen were killed.

It is probably justifiable to assume that the inspecting campaign is entitled to much credit for the smaller number of deaths. But, we wonder how thorough these inspections were, in all cases? Somehow there is reasonable doubt as to whether some of them were not very perfunctorily dis-

We raise this doubt for the benefit of future like campaigns, or for compulsory inspection that would seem to be much better. If this experimental test produced such good results, why would not a more thoroughly conducted compulsory test produce greatly better results? Mr. Baughman says of the campaign.

"It is true that only about half the cars licensed in the State were inspected during that period. But I am convinced that a considerable number of cars whose owners knew or felt would be able to save money." they were not in good order were kept off the road during the campaign. To that extent the danger of accidents was reduced. It is also true that of the 115,000 cars which were inspected not less than thirty-six percent., more than one-third were found to be faulty in one respect or another.

"Consider what it means, in increased safety for pedestrians and other motorists, to have worn-out brakes replaced on nearly 6,000 cars, to sav nothing of readjusted brakes on 16.000 more.

"In time

"We must wait until the next Legislature for a law compelling motorists to have their cars inspected at least once a year—and preferably more often. Meanwhile what can we do about it? I have a plan which I shall put into force at once.

"It should be clear, in the first place, that regular inspection of motor cars to see that their brakes and steering gear, especially, are in order would be a great protection to automobile drivers themselves. Every year the percentage of motor drivers and passengers who are injured in-

No Law Enforces Itself.

It is not so much true that prohibition cannot be enforced, as it is that persons can not be prevented from violating laws. Those who argue that prohibition can not be inforced side-step the question, and try to cover the fact of their own lawlessness. The law is not enforced because as yet our law enforcement machinery is partly in the hands of those who do not regard their own oath of office, and let law-breakers slip clear.

Why say that a thing can't be done when the people simply won't do itlief work of some sort, either for the when they are not made to do it. There is only one thing in this world that is absolutely sure, and that is budgets, or possibly for some urgent death. There is no dodging that by law-makers, law enforcers, nor by those who want things because they want them-laws to the contrary.

In effect, a lot of wets are attempting to set up the doctrine that because a law is not enforced, is evidence that it is a bad law and should be repealed, which means that if wrong is strong enough, it is the law, and right. And this causes one to be thankful that the laws of God are not subject to repeal by men-or to enforcement by men-for if this were true, the Ten Commandments would be in the category of things that .'can't be enforced."

This country can enforce prohibition at any time it gets ready to do so; and, we believe that the time is growing nearer. In twenty-five more years we predict that those who have the unquenchable thirst will largely have passed on, and with them the business of selling booze. These are the two forces preventing the enforcement of prohibition; those with the thirst, and those who want to capitalize the thirst of others.

What Women are Thinking about Politics.

"I see a decided change brought about by women having the vote rather than by the votes of women. Remember that it is too early to see its entered politics, woman suffrange was considered a joke. I don't remember ever having heard my father express an opinion about it; he probably did not take it seriously enough to do so. By this time women have learned just beginning to learn that in this ing the country is the passing of new country there is such a thing as par- and harsh laws for dealing with crimty government. Of course, when I | inals. New York started the movesay this I mean the vast majority of women. Women take their civic duties very conscientiously; they move slowly, but once they understand the full meaning of parties their direct influence will be even more felt.

"As it is, however, I attribute every movement in this country toward the improvement of schools, better housing conditions, more sanisystems, more modern hospitals, to the fact that women have the vote. Moreover, not a single peace movement nor any measure for disarmathe unqualified support of women, and in many cases it was that knowledge that prompted the proposal of such measures. In other words, while the actual votes of women may not ments would never have been suggested by men had not the women had the vote."-Ruth Hanna McCormick, candidate for the Republican nomination as Congressman-at-Large from Illinois.

There are literally thousands of substantial business men in America today who will tell you interesting stories of how they spent many years in their younger days in the accumulation of a few dollars. It is true had they continued all their lives to save only the small amounts they were able to lay by at first, they never would have become well-to-do men. But, their small savings and the discipline which was necessary to build up these sums, put them in a position to earn more money and occupy more important positions as the years

If they had taken the same attitude as the one indicated by the quotation given at the beginning of this article, they probably would have died in financial want.

It is always to be remembered that one of the great elements in thrift is patience. It is hard for an ambitious, vigorous person to exercise this rare quality. The temptation always is strong with such persons to take chances and plunge. But patient saving and the slow, steady accumulation of funds will win out in the long run. Human experience testifies gloriously to this fact.—By S. W. Straus.

The Law and the Criminal.

The law sets up certain barriers for the protection of accused persons. There is the right of trial by jury, the presumption of innocence for all persons until proved guilty, the Constitutional guaranty against being placed twice in jeopardy for the same crime, the right to refuse to testify in one's own defense. These have all been sanctioned by custom and guarded by public opinion.

But there have grown up offshoots of these rights—rank weeds of court procedure and usage which threaten to choke out not only the' genuine rights of the accused, but the inherent right of all citizens to protection against crime and lawlessness. These offshoots—'legal technicalities,' as they are known in court parlanceare rapidly supplanting the fundamental laws based on common sense. Cases are common wherein criminals have gone free through some quirk of court procedure, although jurors, judge, and lawyers, all have known they were guilty. Crime has reached unheard-of proportions in the United States because criminals know they have a fifty-to-one chance of going free. Agitators who advocate the overthrow of the law by force are full effect. Now, take when I first treated as traitors; yet lawyers who undermine the lawsby burrowing loopholes through the nation's judicial system are regarded as highly respectable citizens.

The natural reaction to this prostitution of justice and the resultant something of government; they are wave of crime which has been sweepment with the Baumes Laws, which have struck terror into the heart of the underworld with their stiff prison terms for habitual offenders. But the Baumes Laws deal largely with the sentencing and paroling of convicted persons. Reform is likewise needed in the trial itself.

Caleb H. Baumes, chairman of the New York State Crime Commission tary prisons, enlargement of the park and author of the famous laws bearing his name, is now directing his attention to this feature. 'It is ridiculous to exclude from a jury persons who read the newspapers,' he declares ment, has been proposed without its in a United Press interview. 'A citisponsors knowing they would have zen who doesn't read the newspapers is not an intelligent citizen and he probably is not fit to be on a jury. You Don't Have to Pay More to Get Genuine Smoke Satisfaction. Here's the News

A good cigar at a nickel seems like a miracle these days, we'll admit. We can't complain if you don't believe that there is such a thing.

Forget the old days. Forget the price. Put just one nickel into this proposition. You're due for a cigar surprise that will upset all your ideas about the price of a good smoke. Step into the nearest cigar store and trade one nickel-no more -for a Havana Ribbon.

You'll get ripe tobacco, expertly made into a cigar that will taste sweet and mild from stem to stern. Havana Ribbon sold for more than five cents in the old days. It's worth more now. Try out a cigar that has tickled the taste of men who know smokes for thirty years. Say Havana Ribbon at your favorite cigar counter.

Tibetan Wild Horse

Figures in Scriptures? It is thought that the dziggetai, or Kiang horse, approaches as near to the primitive horse as any now found in a wild state. This is believed to be the animal so graphically described in the Book of Job. The home of this creature, which formerly ranged farther west, is now the high plateaus of Chinese Turkestan between Lake Lob Nor and the mountainous region of Tibet. This plateau is covered with a growth of short grass on which the wild horses graze. The climate is very cold, the mercury in winter sinking to 40 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. The Kiang horse is a shaggy animal having bodily somewhat the aspect of a donkey except as to the tail and ears. It is, however, a genuine horse, having rather delicate legs and feet and ears by no means resembling those of a donkey or mule. The color of the head and of the upper part and sides of the body is a reddish tan shading to a bay and, though this color grows lighter from above downward, it contrasts strikingly with the pure white of the inner side of the

Along the spine runs a well-defined stripe of thick blackish-brown hair extending to the root of the tail. The hair is long and shaggy and protects the horse against the cold in winter.

The dziggetai, like all the other wild horses, live in bands or herds of 100 to 200 individuals, each presided over by an old male. This leader gives the signal when any danger approaches. These animals are preyed upon frequently by wolves, but their most terrible enemy is the ounce or Turkestan panther.

Chinese Have Faith

in Queer Medicines A famous scientist has recently given an account of the rather scanty training of the average Chinese apothecary. A Chinese chemist has little knowledge of many of the drugs which modern science has given us, and his principal medicines are derived from plants and animals. Among his most favored remedies are fly maggots, fish worms, grasshoppers, dried silkworms, and beetles. The roots of the thistle, the lotus, and the ginseng and the saliva of toads are other favorite medicines. The Chinese chemist of today is working on very much the same lines as the apothecary of the Seventeenth century. We wonder whether the Chinese are very much worse off with only these ample remedies!

Tuning Church Bells

It is said that an English clergyman was the first to call attention to the fact that bells are rarely in tune and that the fault can be remedied if a church bell was originally in tune with itself. According to his theory, a bell must have at least five tones at correct intervals to form a perfect musical chord.

At first the work of tuning was done with a hammer, a chisel and a file, and a magnificent tenor bell in Norfolk, England, was thus reduced three-quarters of a inch in diameter; but modern bell foundries employ a machine with a revolving cutter that shaves the metal near the crown of the bell until the tuner, aided by a tuning fork, has hit the right pitch.

"Everyman" in a Barn

The Fifteenth century mortality play "Everyman" was produced in a strange environment one afternoon recently. Its theater was a barn-the "tithe barn" at Great Coxwell, England, a structure reared long ago by builders who can scarcely have dreamed that it would ever be put to use such as this. In its vastness the tithe barn resembles, however, a cathedral. The dim spaciousness and hush conspired to create an appropriate atmosphere.-New York Times.

Disguised Compliment

A bond man in New York added to his activities the pose of "gentleman" farmer" on Long Island. Before leaving his place for a trip to Europe, he said to his head man:

"Flaherty, I have to be away for a month or two. I hope everything will run smoothly on the farm."

"Oh," said Flaherty, heartily, "ye don't do a bit o' harm, sir, when you're here!"

HOW INFECTION SPREADS DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

MUCH has been learned and much has been written and said during the past 15 years about local infections and their influence in diseases of the entire body. The old idea about boils, abscesses around the roots of teeth, abscesses in the tonsils and around the gall bladder, appendix and elsewhere was that they were simply local infections and only of local importance. No one had any idea that a general inflammatory rheumatism affecting either at the same time or successively all the joints in the body, could be caused by such a seemingly insignificant cause as a small abscess in one tooth.

Yet we know today the a small center of infection anywhere in the body may be the cause of other infections and inflammations, even in distant parts of the body and that the secondary infection may be much more painful and dangerous to life and health than the original or pri-

As these small and often unsuspected centers of infection may be the focus or developing point of serious conditions, they are now spoken of as "focal infections" or infections which are a focus or radiating point for general conditions.

How does infection travel from a single small center to the entire body? How is it possible for a single small point to infect and poison the entire

F The infection may be carried by mechanical means. If you get a boil on the back of your neck, it is because a single hair follicle has become infected from the outside, generally by a rough or dirty collar. After this boil breaks and begins to discharge matter, infection can be carried to other parts of the skin by the fingers, the collar or by that most useless and dirty contrivance, a poultice. Boils are not caused by "impure blood" but by dirty skins.

Another way infection may be carried from a center is by the abscess softening the surrounding tissues and so breaking through into a blood vessel, which floats the germs in the blood stream from the center to other parts of the body. The germs may be caught by the nearest gland and an infection started, which may result in an abscess and a new center of in-

Or the germs may remain locked up in the local abscess but may give off poisons which may be carried by the blood all over the body, causing irritation wherever they go.

Making Gloves of Cold Cream cleaning a good protection for the hands should be considered. Many women do not like to wear rubber gloves for all kinds of work, and yet they are exceedingly fond of pretty, well kept hands.

In housecleaning, the dirt gets imbedded into the tissues, around the nails, and under them, defying subsequent washing. If cold cream is thoroughly rubbed and massaged into the fingers, under the nails, and on the entire hand before any cleaning work is done, and the excess of cream wiped off at the end of the day, all dirt will come off like magic in warm water and soap, to which a little soda or a few drops of ammonia have been added.

The woman who drives her own car is often a fastidious woman who likes her hands immaculate at the end of a journey, even if she has had to change a tire on the road. If the simple precaution of massaging cold cream into the fingers before starting any dirty work has been made, the grease and dust will drop away like magic on a good washing, without the use of strong cleaning powders or pumice stone which is otherwise necessary when the hands have been plunged into grime and grease. (©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Community Building

Builders Now Demand Materials That Last

That the public demand for durable home construction is increasing is shown by the tendency of real estate operators to use building materials that are immune to dust and the effects of hard usage. In place of corrodible materials, builders are using rustproof metals wherever there is exposure to dampness and elements.

Property owners who experiment with corrodible metal roofing and water pipes soon find that the cost of keeping these installations in repair is many times greater than the slight additional expense of using rustproof metal at the outset. These repair and replacement costs can be eleminated permanently the next time rust trouble develops, by installing copper roofing and brass pipe plumbing.
"Time and again" says a leading Chicago architect, we are hearing where water pipes are torn out and brass pipes have to go in. In every improvement I make, wherever it is possible, I call for brass water pipes and copper flashings. The initial cost is a little more, but it is more than offset by the reduction in upkeep."

It is estimated that to equip a $15,-000 house with brass pipe plumbing costs about $75 more than the best grade of corrodible pipe, but the elimination of expense after the first cost makes brass cheaper in the long run.

Cover Waste Land

With Forest Trees

The American Tree association notes that somewhere near almost every town is land unfit for cultivation, but land that would grow forest trees satisfactorily. It also is noted that these town forests, properly handled, cutting out the mature trees without impairing the immature and saplings, often are sources of income equal to the cost of maintenance or more. The wood from tree tops cut for lumber, from dead trees and from thinning-out processes furnishes a fuel readily sold. The forests provide some employment. If they happen to cover the sources of the town's water supply, so much the better. Finally, to whatever extent they contribute to the timber supply, to that extent they offset the tremendous drain on our remaining tim-

Unsightly Billboards

All power to Nova Scotia in its determination to get rid of unsightly billboards. The small return that the farmer or occupier obtains for a portion of his land to be used for the display of posters does not by any means offset the loss to the countryside which the disfiguring billboard occasions. It is true that the scenic gems of Nova Scotia are less obscured by billboards than they are in the United States. Yet the time to begin to apply the remedy is before the problem becomes more difficult. In other words, now. There is resonable excuse for signs of caution at the tops of hills or near sudden curves in the highways. There is little valid reason for blots on the landscape.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Night Schools

Night schools for adults-the schools being located in the heart of the community, are now a part of the accepted educational program in any progressive city. It is becoming an obligation of the state to meet the demand for knowledge, no matter at what age it may be manifested. If the worker would supplement his schooling or specialize in any field of information, it is well that the opportunity and the educational machinery should be at hand. It must make for better citizenship. Aisles of learning should be open to all.-Los Angeles Times.

Principles Not New

Archeological discoveries reveal that the principles of the use of steam, hydraulics, smoke screens, concave and convex mirrors, magnets, etc., were known to the ancients and employed by priests in temples to perform supernatural feats. Steam, for instance, was used in Babylonian temples as early as 1700 B. C. to cause mages of gods to move their heads. eyes or arms. Many similar devices may be cited.

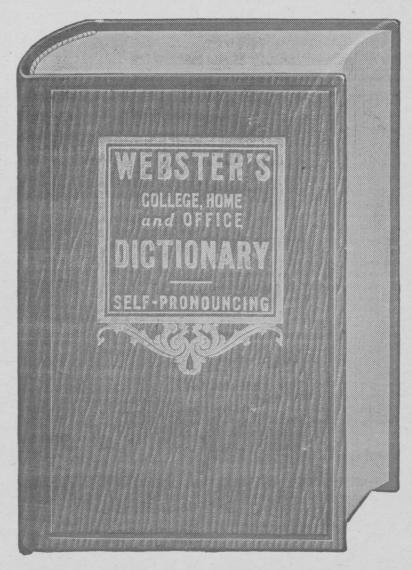

Fence's Distinct Value

When you enclose your property with a fence you satisfy some of the most fundamental of human instincts -the pride of possession, the desire for privacy and freedom within one's personal domain, the yearning for greater beauty in home surroundings, the passion for economical upkeep which characterizes even the most wealthy real estate owners.

Using School Buildings

School buildings erected at a heavy cost which are in idleness during sixsevenths of the hours of the year, mean waste of investment and are contrary to the principle of full utilization of plant. Thirty-two states have definitely provided by law for use of schoolhouses for social, recreational and community purposes.

Monastery in Russia Place of Pilgrimage

The most strongly fortified monastery in the world is at Solovetsk, in Archangel. This monastery is inclosed on every side by a wall of granite bowlders, which measures nearly a mile in circumference. The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers about 30 feet in height, with walls 20 feet in thickness.

The monastery in reality consists of six churches, which are the repositories of many valuable statues, and also of precious stones. Upon the walls are mounted huge guns, which in the time of the Crimean war were directed against the British White Sea squadron.

The monks who inhabited the monastery at that time marched in procession on the granite walls while the shells were flying over their heads, to indicate what little fear they had of an attack by the British fleet. Thousands of people come annually to Solovetsk from various parts of

Russia to view the churches and the relics. They are conveyed in steamers

Permanent Value in

Tree-Shaded Highway

If Missouri has been the last state to build her sector of a national highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, she can be the first to institute the refinement of shade trees along the highway, an improvement that, despite its youth, is winning for Ontario and Quebec, two of the Canadian provinces, the acclaim of every automobile tourist who visits them.

Why not begin in Missouri by shading the State highway from St. Louis to Kansas City? It would make Missouri unique among the states traversed by this great national avenue. We have a profusion of trees adaptable to such use. Some of the old pike roads in the state were made beautiful in this way with elms, oaks, sycamores, cottonwoods, blackberries, box elders, wild cherry, persimmon, sassafras, walnut, hickory, butternut and sugar maples. No one who has ever motored on these old highways in summer and known the grateful shade of their trees will ever forget

Indeed, it is this way that every highway in Missouri can be made lovely and in a practical sense peculfar to the state. The heat of the sun is an abomination to every motorist who has a tire to change, and how the shade of the roadside tree is everywhere sought for a noonday luncheon! Why not capitalize that well-known fact and make Missouri highways famous for shade?-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Elephants Put Out Fire

How a herd of wild elephants extinguished a forest fire in Travancore, on the southwest coast of India, was related recently by laborers who witnessed the proceedings, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A tree had fallen across the road and had been set afire to simplify the task of removing it. The blaze was slowly spreading to the woods near by when the leader of the elephant herd, apparently attracted by the odor of the smoke, appeared, trumpteted loudly to its companions and soon a band of dusky four-footed firemen were squirting streams of water on the blaze from their hose-like trunks. A stream near the road furnished the supply. The wondering natives, who had gone to a house a short distance away, watched the herd put out the fire and then drag the tree into the middle of the

MOOSE HUNTING IN NORTH ALASKA

Animals on Increase Despite Yearly Slaughter. Anchorage, Alaska.—Eleven parties of well-equipped hunters from many places in the world left here for the spruce and birch forests on Kenai peninsula where dwell the antlered monarchs of the silent bogans-moose. Calling or stalking in the moist, dark for the wice old build of the must offer hunters a master defense of caution, wariness, olfactory and auditory nerve action and fast foot work. The inevitable call, answered by red-blooded men in early autumn, is each season leading them farther into the north wilderness, yet in spite of the continued hunting these huge animals with queer shovel-shaped antlers are surviving and increasing after a century of slaughter. In Alaska is found the largest bulls of the species and in Kenai peninsula, about eighty miles northwest of here. a hunter is certain to obtain choice trophies. Moose have been increasing in other parts of Alaska also, and they are numerous along the tributaries of the Yuken river and in the Copper

Beauty Through Fencing

There is growing consciousness in the United States of the important part that correct fencing plays in successful beautifying of the home.

Fencing dignifies any establishment where it is utilized. In our records are many instances where installing fencing has given a property an added attractiveness that more than paid for the improvement. Fencing also permits improvements that would be impossible without it. Formal plantings, the setting out woods of the Far North, experienced of rare shrubs and plants that could and thoughtful guides are necessary, not be accomplished if the locality easy and safe when performed in the shelter of rigid, marauder-proof fenc-

Too Much for Ostrich

The digestion of an ostrich is said to be about as powerful as that of a goat, yet there are some things that an ostrich cannot digest. This was proved by a recent post mortem examination of one at a zoo. The bird, it was discovered, had swallowed a can opener and this had caused its death. Among other articles found in the ostrich were two staples, a cent and a zoo attendant's hat badge.

THE LUCKY AGE

NO VISION of the millenium formed in the Fifteenth century could have equaled the realities of 1927. A great part of the things which people were most hopelessly trying to accomplish then has been done today People who talk about "the good old days" are either ignorant or silly. Civilization has been set back in its progress from time to time. The Dark ages succeeded the gran deur of Rome, which, after all, was only the grandeur of the nobility. The common people of that city did all the work, got all the cuffs and kicks and shared all the poverty. But children born today find the world on the upgrade, and, as far a opportunity for enjoyment is con cerned, getting better and better. We are not yet free from war, or

sure that this plague has been ex But the busy inventors of war ma chinery are arranging for the next war to extend far behind the battle lines, into the interior cities, and inte the meeting places of the statesmer who usually make wars.

And when that is possible, wars will become fewer and fewer.

The son of a poor man today can get a better education than could the son of a king in the days of Louis XIV. He can also get better food, and better medical care, and more sensi ble, although not such elaborate clothing.

One of the greatest of all accom plishments is the doing away of super most dreadful burdens of life in the days of witchcraft and black magic. Poverty there will be as long as there is idleness in the world.

Crime there will be as long at rescality exists, and rascality will be long in exterminating.

But the general standard of conduct is higher today than it has ever been. and more safeguards are thrown by the nations around the foolish people who fall easy prey to designing schemers.

The hours of labor are much shorter than they ever were, and the wages are better

We still have much to learn about the cause of financial depression and the means of removing it, but papies occur with less frequency, and even great shortages of crops do not affect the people of a nation as they used to Mothers used to pray that their children might be born under a lucky

And this age, while it is capable of improvement, is the best age that the world has ever known-more filled with opportunity, and more rich with the fruit of human labor.

Flute Players Never

Popular as Neighbors Flute playing appears to have gone out of fashion and it has been suggested that this is because of the denunciation that the instrument has received from the pens of eminent writers. Violinists and pianists sometimes figure in fiction as heroes and heroines, but performers upon the flute are generally introduced into novels only as comic or unpleasant characters, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. At least three comic characters of Dickens were flute players: Dick Swiveller, who took to it as a "good, sound, dismal occupation," and was consequently requested to remove himself to another lodging; Mr. Mell, the schoolmaster, who "made the most dismal sounds I ever heard produced by any means, natural or artificial," and the young gentleman at Mrs. Todgers' musical party who "blew his melancholy into the flute."

Bulwer-Lytton wrote of a clever schoolboy who "unluckily took to the flute and unfitted himself for the present century," and Charlotte Bronte represents "inept curates" as performing upon it. Then there was also Goethe, who summed up the case against the flute thus: "There is scarcely a more melancholy suffering to be undergone than what is forced upon us by the neighborhood of an incipient player on the flute."

Faise Teeth of Steel Berlin.-False teeth made of steel are among the peace products which the Krupp firm of Essen are turning out now. Various grades of non-rusting steel have been on the market-for some time, but the new so-called V. A. steel is acid proof as well.

Angry Church People Block Sunday Golfers

Aberdovey, Wales .- The Sabbath calm of this Welsh seaside resort has been disturbed by the decision announced by the local golf club to permit play on Sundays. Welsh church leaders are up in arms against the decision and crowds of angry townspeople have invaded the links for several Sundays and prevented all play.

The links are on common land where the people have pasturage rights. An ultimatum has been sent to the golf club threatening to put "all manner of beasts" to graze on the links if Sunday play is persisted in.

Rough Brickwork Now

Favored in Building Brickwork is rapidly undergoing a radical change at the hands of the leading architects of the country, who are fast getting away from the old idea that in order to supply the very last touch in artistry it must present a surface as smoothly even and correct as if it had been molded. No longer is this the fashion, nor is it acceptable to the men who dictate architectural vogues.

Today the brickwork which catches quickest the public eye and the popular fancy must be very rough. And the brick themselves must be of the same order. The rougher the better. Clinker brick, which only a few years ago had no market at all, are now in high favor. The swelled brick, which had been developed particularly in the New England district, and the handmade brick of that section are two other prime favorites.

Comprehensive Nature We cannot all find the same things in Nature. She is all things to all men. She is like the manna that came down from heaven. "He made manna to descend for them, in which were all manner of tastes; and every Israelite found in it what his palate was chiefly pleased with. If he desired fat in it, he had it. In it the young men tasted bread; the old men honey, and the children oil." But all men found in it substance and strength. So with Nature. In her are all manner of tastes, science, art, poetry, utility, and good in all. The botanist has one pleasure in her, the ornithologist another, the explorer another, the walker another, and the sportsman another; what all may have is the refreshment and the exhilaration which come from a loving and intelligent scrutiny of her manifold works .- John Burroughs.

Home Ownership Big

Asset to Community

An essay prepared for the Indianapolis Real Estate board sets forth the following pertinent facts: "Home ownership results in industry, contentment and interest in community affairs. The pride of owning a home is a big factor in making honest, responsible citizens, citizens who are interested in those things for the common good of all. Therefore, we have in every community, available to every citizen, schools, churches, social orders and various other instruments which foster sound intelligence and fellowship. Home ownership has been made possible for thousands of working men through the help of sound financial institutions and reliable real estate firms. We have more beautiful homes and more well-improved public parks and buildings than the average city of this size. The cost of living commodities is much lower than in most cities of this class, because of our nearness to a vast producing area and responsible business firms within our city who do not exact excessive profits and whose business is kept progressive by keen competition.

"All these things have attracted desirable people from far and near. Thousands have come here, found steady employment and established permanent homes. Therefore, in my opinion, Indianapolis has constantly grown in population, through sound financing, co-operation of its citizens for the common good of all, and wholesome living conditions, which breed contentment and industry."

Rough-Leaved Trees Unsuitable for City

Smooth-leaved trees, say experts, are the only ones that can live on city boulevards in this day of automobiles. Only those whose foliage is washed by rain and dusted off by the breeze, they believe, will thrive. They have found that the rough leaves of chestnuts and similar trees have their breathing-pores burned by sulphuric acid. Sulphurous dust, says Professor Demorlaine of the French Agricultural institute, is produced by the exhaust from automobiles. This, he says, becomes sulphuric acid in humid air and works into the pores of the leaves. Smooth leaves would be washed clean by occasional rains, or the dust would be blown off by winds before it could damage the trees.

Housetop Important That eminent authority Noah Webster, says that a roof is "the top of a house." He's right again. But there are housetops and housetops.

There's the roof that is for shelter alone—the drab roof that simply shuts out rain and snow. Its day is rapidly going, but there are still many of this species seen in most localities. Then there's the roof that, because of inof architectural lines and extreme inappropriateness of color, spoils the appearance of the houseworse, in fact, than the drab, neutral roof. And then there's the roof that affords maximum shelter and at the same time is an important architectural and decorative feature of the home—the ideal housetop.

Route of Grewsome Memory

It is said that Oxford street, London, grew to be the greatest shopping center of the world because it was once the road that led to the Tyburn gallows. Tens of thousands of people streamed along Oxford street to see men and women hanged, and created opportunities for trade. The gallows is plainly marked in large scale old maps of London as a threesided erection. It is supposed to have been made thus so that more than one criminal could be "turned off" at once. Quite close to the gallows also, just within Hyde park, one sees marked on the map: "The place where soldiers are shot," a striking commentary on the severe military code of centuries ago.

"Best" Materials Pay

It happens in our best-regulated cities. . . . A building operation on one side of the street will fairly sprout "sold" signs overnight. . . Across the way houses which seem to the casual observer like peas out of the same pod stand empty.

How does it happen? How can it happen? Is it all just luck? They may have used the same brick and stone and lumber; the same type roof and size of lot; and even a similar floor plan. But they differed on one all-important point—the loser made a mistake in the equipment he bought. His houses are built of "just as good" materials.

Outdoor Good Manners

Pennsylvania has a law prohibiting the gathering of flowers, ferns, shrubs and trees along a private or public road and provides for a heavy fine and even imprisonment for violators. Recently a motorist stopped along a highway in Bucks county, says Nature Magazine, and started to help himself. A traffic officer put him under arrest and a justice of the peace backed up the officer with a $50 fine. Nature Magazine is conducting the national outdoor good-manners campaign.

Formative Years May

Have "Made" Carlyle One of the many great men of the Victorian age was Thomas Carlyle. He exerted a powerful influence over his own age and molded the thought of his times as few writers have done He was a stimulating thinker, a bitter critic of the materialism that has been so insidious an evil to every generation. He was born December 4, 1795, in Ecclefechan, Scotland. His father was exceedingly stern and Thomas childhood was, as he afterward remarked, wholesome rather than joyous. He attended the village schools, which he disliked intensely, and served as teacher. He saved about $450, but with the frugality that life had taught him, he walked to Edin burgh to continue his studies. He stayed there three years, at tending lectures at the university and paying his expenses by tutoring. He was not a sociable youth and he made few friends, but at Kirkcaldy, where he obtained a position as teach er, he became intimate with Edward Irving, a schoolmaster three years older than Carlyle. This friendship proved of inestimable importance to Carlyle. Irving did more to rouse him to think and to think hard than any man he had met. In these forma tive years Carlyle struggled against despair. He never was physically well and the illness that afflicted him in later years was already making him despondent, yet he persisted and became recognized as one of the great men of the age.—Kansas City Times.

Seafaring Men Long Clung to Sea Serpent

Since the days of the first seafarers who peopled the ocean with mermaids and mermen-as well as with awful monsters, the belief in sea serpents and similar marine wonders has been firmly held by many mariners.

In modern times sea serpents were reported to have been seen along the coast of the United States and Canada in 1806, 1816, 1844 and 1846, and in the latter years similar creatures were reported to be prevalent along the Norwegian coast.

The first case which gained any credence among scientific men, however. was the report of Captain McQuhas of the British navy, commander of the warship Daddalus, who declared that on August 6, 1848, while en route from the Cape of Good Hope to St. Helena, he and his men saw a strange monster of great size, having many characteristics of the sea serpent of the popular imagination. After long discussion, however, the scientific world decided that the "serpent" was a species of seal inhabiting the South

Strawberry Tree

Apart from naturalists and botanists there are probably few people who are aware of the existence of the strawberry tree, as distinct from the strawberry plant.

Yet there is such a tree. It usually bears flowers about the end of Sentember or beginning of October, and along with the flowers are found the fruits of the previous year.

The fruit is a large orange-red berry, closely resembling the strawberry; hence the name of the tree.

The strawberry tree is not a native of England, and in this country is seldom found outside parks and gardens, but in Ireland it is frequently found growing wild, especially in the neighborhood of Killarney.

Nelson's Column

The Nelson column in Trafalgar square, London, cost the comparatively small sum of £28,000, including the statue, but excluding Landseer's four lions, which were not added until 1868, nearly twenty-five years after the completion of the memorial itself. This long delay in the delivery of the lions sorely tried the public's patience. and when they were eventually forthcoming opinion was by no means unanimous concerning their artistic merit. Many cruel jests were uttered at their expense, one being that the old lion on top of Northumberland house refused to acknowledge them as brethren.

Reason and Instinct

The amount of conscious reason that an ordinary man uses in his life. compared with the great unreason or blind impulse and inborn tendency that impel him, is like his artificial light compared with the light of day -indispensable on special occasions, but a feeble matter, after all. Reason is an artificial light in the sense that it is not one with the light of nature and in the sense that men possess it in varying degrees. The lower animals have only a gleam of it now and then. They are wise as the plants and trees are wise, and are guided by their inborn tendencies.-John Burroughs.

Predicts Earth Will Stop

If the earth continues to slow up in its rotation, Doctor Crommelin, English astronomer, says it will cease to rotate in a "few millions of years," owing to the friction of the tides, according to Capper's Weekly. When that happens one-half of the world will be in sunshine and the other half in perpetual darkness—anything but a pleasant situation. But that needn't bother us now. Besides, there is a bare possibility the doctor may be a few million years off in his calcula

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

WHEN I was a medical student, over thirty years ago, pernicious anemia was regarded as a rarity. Today it is so common that even the general public knows about it.

Everybody knows that ordinary anemia is a reduced condition of the blood or of the amount of iron in the blood, due either to loss of blood from hemorrhage or to lack of iron in the blood from insufficient food or improper food. But in the pernicious or dangerous form, there is not only a lack of iron in the blood but also a constant destruction of the blood cells going on, with a lemon-yellow skin, fever, disturbance of digestion and nervous symptoms that show serious interference with the nerves of the spinal cord. The public generally knows today that while life may be prolonged for years, there is as yet no known cure and that, sooner or later, the disease will overcome the body.

While the exact cause is not known, many facts have been demonstrated that help in the understanding of this mysterious disease and the care and treatment of its victims. In a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Lewellys F. Barker of Johns Hopkins at Baltimore sums up what we know about this strange disease.

Pernicious anemia, he says, occurs in all countries with temperate climate, but is rare in the tropics. It is more common among men than women among Anglo-Saxons, but more common among women than men in Germany and Scandinavia. It is equally common among all classes, although it is generally considered more common among brain workers than among physical laborers. It is most common after forty, being rare among young people and never found in children. It appears to occur in families, sometimes in three or four successive generations.

Its characteristic condition is the destruction of the blood cells by the body itself, accompanied by degeneration of parts of the spinal cord. While improvement may take place for some time, months or years, the disease always terminates fatally.

But after all the principal public interest in any disease is treatment. What can be done for it? Not much, with our present limited knowledge. Present-day treatment cannot cure, but it can prolong life and make the victim more comfortable. Rest, administration of dilute hydrochloric acid and arsenic, blood transfusion, regulation of diet, frequent vacations for patients still able to keep up their work are all useful. Persons having family histories of the disease on both sides should not marry.

Relieving Pain With a Reading

Lamp SMALL reading lamp has great

A small reading possibilities in its light rays, as a reliever of pain. The rays of light havior when at work on a thesis is seem as powerless to cure pain as the air to carry the radio message until one has actualy tried them, as they are now being resorted to in hospitals, in sanitariums, and in the tuberculosis camps for the cure of disease.

While large wattage lamps are necessary for deep therapy, to produce general bodily reaction, a small nitrogen reading lamp will relieve the local rheumatic pain, or the twinge of neu-ritis, especially if the rays be brought down within ten or twelve inches of the area, and a cloth covers the lamp to concentrate the rays on the aching

The earache, toothache, the pain in the foot or hand, knee joint, elbow or shoulder can be successfully treated at home in this manner. Many masseurs and physicians order light rays for twenty minutes, alternated with a dash of ice, which keeps up a constant stimulation of the blood in the painful area, and it is by this curative action of the blood that the pain, abscess, or inflammation is removed.

Rulers Believed in Early Working Hours The old Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria used to leave his bed every morning at four o'clock, sometimes even at 3:30. Clad in an old wornout general's cloak, and on his head the only correct regulation officer's cap in the entire Austrian army, he worked until six. He went to bed every night at eight.

Frederick the Great always began s day at five, and during the last few months prior to his death his privy councillors had to bring him their reports at four in the morning. He consoled them with the remark that "it would not last much longer."

Emperor William I was at his desk every morning at seven; while his grandson, the ex-kaiser, when he came to the throne, always rose before seven. This was a severe trial to Prince Bismarck, who hated to have to attend in conference on the sovereign at eight in the morning.

Up till midnight the iron chancellor generally had a gathering of friendly politicians about him, then he worked till four, and slept till ten the fol-

Flint Axes of Stone

Age Found in Sweden

The 4,500-year-old-stock-in-trade of Stone age peddler in flint axes has been found by some workmen in a gravel pit in the Swedish province of Soedermanland. The peddler's hoard consisted of a number of light-gray flint axes of exquisite shape and workmanship, evidently hidden in the ground by the trader, who seems to have wandered a long way from the south of Sweden to barter his axes for the precious furs of the hunters of the Soendermanland forests. The poor peddler seems to have met his death. for he never returned for his axes that now are said to be the best find of its kind ever made in that part of

Almost every week new important discoveries of treasures hidden thousands of years ago, runic stones, grave mounds, and wall drawings, are reported from different parts of Sweden, the soil of which has turned out to be a vast treasure house for archeologists.-Kansas City Star.

Couldn't Hang Murderer

John Lee, the Babbacombe murderer, murdered Miss Keyse on November 12, 1884. He was to be executed at eight o'clock February 23, 1885, at Exeter gaol. At the first attempt to hang Lee the drop in the scaffold would not work. The prisoner was removed to the prison and the official tried to remedy the defect. A second and a third attempt were made to hang him, but each time the apparatus would not work. The sheriff then ordered the execution stopped pending communication with the home secretary. It was found later that rain on the preceding days had caused the planks of the drop to swell. At the time there was much public interest in this case, many ignorant and superstitious persons claiming that there had been an intervention by supernatural powers. John Lee was subsequently reprieved and imprisoned .-

How Youth Studies

The average, or even somewhat better than average, male student's besomething like this: A leisurely stroll to the library, a chat with the girl at the reserve desk, an apologetic request for a philosophy book, a few minutes spent in settling down in the most comfortable position possible in a library chair, the counting of the pages in a chapter, a half-hearted effort to read three or four pages, a yawn-and for the remainder of the afternoon a semi-whispered conversation with the girl in the nearest chair. -From the Bookman.

Nerves Give Off Heat

New researches at Cornell university seem to show that an impulse traveling along a nerve is a highspeed chemical reaction. It was the old belief, based on the fact that stimulated nerves had never been found to give off heat, that the nerve impulse was a sort of electric current. By using an electric heat-measuring device capable of recording a temperature change of one twenty-millionth of a degree, it was found that a nerve gives off a minute quantity of heat when it reacts.

Pity the Woman Artist

Good artists are treated very badly. If one is a good artist and a woman. it is even worse; and if one is a good artist and a good woman, it is, if you will pardon me saying so, absolute hell. There are moments when I long to be a member of the leper colony of Sumatra. These unfortunate people are at least regarded as objects of romantic interest, whereas artists, or at any rate good artists, are not. It is hardly respectable to be good nowadays.-Edith Sitwell.

LESSON TEXT-Isa. 5:1-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and wid ows in their affliction and to keep him-self unspotted from the world. PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Please God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Life That Pleases God INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-

IC—A Life That Pleases God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—The Elements of Right Living.

I. Israel, the Favored Nation (vv.

Their unique relation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard. Observe:

1. God's peculiar favor (vv. 1, 2). God did for this nation what He did for no other nation in the history of the world. He evidenced it when He assigned the boundaries of Israel's inheritance (see Num. 34:1-13).

He gathered out the stones when the Canaanites were exterminated. The choicest vine which was planted therein was the Israelitish nation which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage. He built a tower in it when under David Jerusalem was made its capital city.

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2).

The purpose of a vineyard is to bear fruit. The object of the husbandman in planting a vineyard and nurturing it is that it might bear fruit. The purpose of God in the selection and the blessing of the Israelitish nation was that it might bring forth fruit to His glory

3. It bore only wild grapes (v. 4). 4. The desolation of the vineyard

Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard now resolves to abandon it to the wild beasts of the forest.

II. The Sins Which Brought Ruin to the Nation (vv. 8-23).

The causes of this destruction are presented under six woes, each woe pronounced against a particular sin. 1. Monopoly and oppression of the poor (vv. 8-10).

The crime against which the first woe was denounced is that of the avaricious grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. "Joining house to house" and "laying field to field" means the sin of the greedy monopolist who in the agricultural district takes the form of the land grabber, in the commercial centers, the form of the big men crushing out the small ones.

2. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The sin here denounced is drunkenness. Several features are connected with this one sin.

(1) Drinking made the life business of some (v. 11).

They get up early and continue until late at night, until their whole being is inflamed.

(2) The effort to give their hellish business a show of refinement (v. 12). This is why pleasing music is heard pouring forth from the dens of infamy over our land.

(3) Blindness to God's warnings and judgments (v. 12).

Their drinking and dissipation rendered them insensible to the dealings of Providence.

(4) God's judgments for such sins

They went into captivity. The immediate cause assigned is ignorance, but it is a willful ignorance for which they are held responsible. They not only go into captivity, but there is great mortality among those who drink (v. 14). The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men. Drinking degrades all classes (v. 15). The country itself was made a waste (vv. 18, 19). So daring do they become that they defy the judgments of the Almighty (v. 19).

3. Moral confusion (v. 20). This woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sensual appetites.

4. Conceit (v. 21). The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of self-conceit. Many today have become so affected by sin that they are unable to make moral discriminations. Having a false estimate of their own wisdom they plan and act without reference to God.

5. Perversion of justice (vv. 22, 23). The sixth woe is denounced against those who are in places of justice as judges. Because of their lack of moral discrimination, and because of desire for temporal gain they cause justice to miscarry.

Treatment of Sin

Use sin as it will use you. Spare it not for it will not spare you. It is your murderer, and the murderer of the world. Use it, therefore as a murderer should be used.-Richard Bax-

Fear of Mistakes

Some of us know what it is to be miserably afraid of making mistakes in our work. How graciously He meets this with "I will direct their work in truth."-Frances Ridley Havergal

Ginger Most Popular Tonic of Middle Ages

Ginger is the oldest spice known. It figures largely on the tables of the Romans. They probably took it to England, for gingerbread was known in England long before the Norman conquest. In the old leech books of the Eleventh and Twelfth centuries ginger is often recommended for medicinal purposes. It was in the Middle ages that there arose the custom of making gingerbread cakes in the shape of dolls, horses and other objects. In the markets of old times stalls filled with these gingerbread shapes occupied a prominent place. At the fair of St. Bartholomew, in London, the chief articles of merchandise were "peppermint drops, 20 a penny; wooden babies; cakes of gilt gingerbread; and also gingerbread horn books, gingerbread women and gingerbread husbands, of all sizes."

The old fashion of gingerbread toys lasted to the last century. In some books of children's stories of the Victorian era may be found allusions to "a gingerbread horse" or " a little gingerbread man." Large quantities of gingerbread "babies" were baked and given to the people to celebrate the birth of an heir-afterward the ill-fated Richard II-to the Black Prince.—London Tit-Bits.

Science Explains How Israelites Were Fed

The nature of the Biblical manna is thought to have been established by an expedition which recently returned from central Sinai.

The traditional theory was that the Biblical manna was identifiable with the tamarix mannifera, a species of the tamarix shrub which exudes a sugary secretion called manna. It was thought that manna was a natural secretion from the twigs or buds which were pierced by rodent insects.

The expedition has determined that manna is an excretion of the insects themselves, which produce clear syrup-like drops that, if sufficiently abundant, fall to the ground, forming whitish grains from the size of a pin's head to the size of a pea. The quantity of this secretion depends on the rain, but in a good season a man can collect about three pounds a day.

A Free-For-All

Pat was on an ocean liner bound for America. It was his first trip on the water and every ordinary event on the boat was a new one in Pat's experi-

On the third day out the ship burst into flames. The fire was rapidly consuming the boat.

All the passengers were appropriating the life preservers, life savers, and life boats. Pat stood by for a few minutes, watching the mad rush. Finally, perplexed and disgusted, he ex-

"Well, if everybody is goin' to steal stuff off o' the ship, Oi'll be gosh durned if Oi don't get in on the stealin' myself.

So saying, Pat grabbed a crowbar and jumped overboard.

Frozen Eye Glasses

Optical glasses cannot be cut unless fixed immovably. To this end they are glued to iron frames of different sizes and various shapes. Until recently, when finished the plates of glass have been knocked from the frames with a light mallet, cautiously struck upon the edges of the plates. The work was hard and as the least shiver of the edge, though inperceptible, disqualified the lens, the workman needed a very light, skillful hand. The discovery was made by an expert optician that the blocks of crystal separated more easily when they had been exposed to the cold during the night. This discovery has effected a revolution in the manufacture of special glasses.

Shakespeare Pall-Bearer

In a corner of an old cemetery near Fredericksburg, Va., says Capper's Weekly, a gravestone has been found lying flat on the ground under a tangle of weeds and creepers. The inscription, in old English, is quite dim, but still traceable. It reads:

> "Here Lies the Body of "Edward Heldon

"Practitioner in Physics and Chirurgery. Born in Bedfordshire, England, in the year of our Lord, 1542. Was contemporary with and one of the pall-bearers of William Shakespeare, of the Avon. After a brief illness his spirit ascended in the year of our Lord 1618, aged 76."

His Early Training

Two men had met on the beach at Shrimpsea. Both were attired in swimming costume, and the conversation turned toward this sport. After a few remarks the elder man said: "I'll race you to the end of the pier and back."

"Right you are," agreed the other, who was a professional at the game. "Bet you ten bob I win."

They plunged into the surf, and the professional swimmer was badly

"My stars!" he exclaimed. "Where did you learn to swim?" "Me?" said the other. "I used to be a newsboy in Venice."-Exchange.

Literature of China

Preserved in Memory

Che Hwang-ti, emperor of China, 226-221 B. C., evidently was a man with opinions of his own plus an exaggerated reverence for "the good old times." He issued an edict that all books on the realm were to be burned excepting those treating of medicine, divination and husbandry. This in cluded all the writings of Confucius. It was further ordered that anyone who mentioned the Book of History or the Book of Odes (the Chinese classics) should be put to death. This is said to have been the most drastic and comprehensive suppression of a literature. While the destruction of books was enormous, a few copies of the most treasured volumes were preserved. According to one tradition, however, a large number of works were saved only through the marvelous memories of public reciters. Even today it is said that if the same literary tragedy should be enacted, thousands of Chinese could be found who could rewrite from memory not only the text, but commentaries of their nine classical works.

Dragon-Fly a Marvel of the Insect World

The dragon fly is not one of those beings who have eyes and see not. When this insect looks at you he sees you well-71,000 of you.

This most wonderful organ of vision. though no larger than a pin's head, has facets upon the lens of the eye and these facets have been counted as high as 17,000, each one more perfect than any side of a diamond fashioned by the hand of man.

The dragon-fly usually is found near water, probably the stream whence it first emerged, says London Tit-Bits. Its wings, which are of the most exquisite and transparent gauze, move with incredible rapidity. It is the swallow among insects, and so swift is its flight, and so keen its vision, that it will recognize, follow, and catch on the wing the tiniest prey.

It can fly backwards or forwards, and turn at a right angle at top speed. Like the swallow, too, its flight seems tireless, and it is seldom seen to alight.

English Methuselah

Methuselah is reputed to have lived to be nine hundred and sixty-nine years old but there are no documental instances as remarkable as that. According to the parish register of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, England, the oldest man of modern times was Thomas Carn, who was born in 1381, outlived many sovereigns and died in Queen Elizabeth's reign in 1588. In 1724 Petrarch Czartan died at the reputed age of one hundred and eightyfive, while Henry Jenkins, who remembered going as a boy of twelve with a load of arrows to be used in the battle of Flodden Field, died in England in 1670 when he was one hundred and sixty-nine years old. Jonas Surington of Bergen, Norway, lived to be one hundred and fiftynine. Perhaps the oldest man living is Zoro Agha, a Kurd by birth, and a porter in Constantinpole since about 1800. He has been a widower four times, can cite unimpeachable records to show that he was one hundred and fifty on his last birthday anniversary.—Kansas City Times.

Poor Spelling Common

Poor handwriting and incorrect spelling are faults not confined to the poor and ill-educated, asserts Will West in Liberty "As for style writing, I'd say that bad handwriting, like Chanel blue and reptile leathers, is very good this year. The better the financial circumstances of the writer.

the worse, it seems, is the scrawl. "Spelling-let's be kind," the writer continues, "but even the 'grand dame'. stoops to 'payed' for 'paid.' 'Arctics' are almost invariably 'artics,' while for 'leggings' the more Chaucerian 'leggins' is usual. With 'hats' and 'shoes' and similar monosyllables most women do well, but 'sequins' become 'sequences' and 'suede' is reproduced as 'swede.' "

She Should Know

Responding to an invitation to see the school principal and talk over the question of her boy's transfer to a school better suited to his sluggish mentality an indignant mother appeared with her unpromising offspring.

"I'm Mrs. Blank," she snapped out in icy tones; "do I look feebleminded?"

Never pausing for a reply, she con-

"This is my son Arthur; does he look feeble-minded? They say his brain is three years behind his body. I'm his mother, and he was all born at one time!"

No Appeal Possible From Birds' Judgment

Most people have seen large numbers of birds gathered together in a field or on a hill. But how many know they were probably holding a courtmartial on one of their fellows?

These bird courts are held periodically, chiefly by crows, ravens, or sparrows. The prisoner is brought into the court and a general croaking ensues until judgment is delivered.

Should the unfortunate bird be found guilty, it is set on by the rest and pecked to death. Stealing sticks from another bird's nest is, apparently, a crime that does not call for such drastic punishment. Six or so of the other birds simply proceed to break up the offender's own nest!

Should an offender in the sparrows' court be guilty of a crime not serious enough to deserve the death penalty, its sentence is delivered by a few sparrows who rush at it and inflict the necessary punishment. It is then forgiven and received back into the fold.

The radio tells us a lot of things and tells a lot of things about us. It both gives to us and gives us away. It is creating comparisons all of the time that we ought to know about if we want to know just how we compare with others in our line of endeavor. It helps us to know ourselves.

For instance, we may be a musician. Radio helps to tell us how good a one we are, and how others are in the country better than we are. Of course, radio is apt to broadcast "professionals" with whom we do not pretend to compete; but even so it sets marks for us to try to reach, and has the tendency of reducing our big-headedness, and we should be glad for the chance of having it reduced so privately.

The radio should be a real help to preachers. Oratory, eloquence, the use of words and phrases, the manner of saying things, the tone of voice, all help wonderfully in making the all-around good preacher. Things may be heard to criticise, but perhaps more things may be heard to pattern after -we learn by seeing and hearing. The preacher can get radioed ideas and methods, and some knowledge of how his own productions sound to perhaps critical audiences. Public speaking in general, we should say, finds a valuable schooling through radio receiving. We have the advantage of hearing country-wide thought from the best minds of the country. We have the opportunity of hearing immensely more than we have the opportunity of reading, and we get it first-handed, without

Radio shows us up for about what we are, in many ways. Listeners with discerning minds make comparisons, and this must spur us up to the point of trying to improve the quality of the material that we broadcast in our own narrow range; and it may also set us straight as to our proper status among men of our class of

"Inside" Information for Women.

Children over three years old should have garments with a front opening to make self-dressing easier. Buttons should be fairly large in size and buttonholes should be firm. It is a good plan to reinforce bands where the buttonholes are to be worked. The outtons should be sewed on firmly and should have a long shank.

Baked bananas are a good mid-winter dessert. Skin six bananas, scrape them lightly to remove any stringy portion, and split in half lengthwise. Place in a buttered shallow baking dish, and pour over them a sauce made of 1/3 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, to tablespoons lemon juice, 1/8 teaspoon salt. Bake in a hot ven until brown.

The first step toward remodeling an old kitchen is to think out a plan that considers the work to be done. how space equipment can be efficient ly arranged, and the relation of this coom to the rest of the house. Careful planning will sometimes show that good results can be accomplished by regrouping equipment, providing two sets of some of the smaller pieces, and refinishing the floor and painting the walls a lighter color.

Is your boy in his "teens" always hungry? Scientists say it is quite normal for him to crave more food, perhaps, than any one else in the fam-Because of his great activity he requires almost as much energy food growing very rapidly, he needs almost one and a half times as much food that supplies him with protein and ninerals, as a fully grown man. Give him plenty of milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables in addition to the energy foods that are usually present in his diet, such as bread and butter, cereals and potatoes.

The eggs of the grasshopper and the locust survive the cold winters of North American latitudes; the live insects do not.
