REPORT OF RACE TRACK COMMISSION

How Maryland Profits through Race Track Betting.

The following figures from the report of the racing commission to Governor Ritchie covering the financial operations of the four state licensed race tracks, show the immensity of the total sums bet on the races, and the rake-off that the state gets out of the business. Patrons of racing paid into the Pari-mutual machines, this year $53,794,707. Out of this immense sum the commission received by the tracks amounted to $3,-159,655.65, and "breakage" of $459,-

Taxes and racing fees netted the state $694,112.81, and in addition the treasurer of Baltimore county received $69,000, and other county treasurers $2400. The racing association also made gifts to ministers and churches, and various associations and clubs, totaling over $10,000.

There were still other receipts amounting to a large sum, which is difficult to figure out from the published report. The state's share is the smallest for five years; and there appears to have been about $3,000,- appears to have been about $3,000,000 less bet this year than last year. Approximately $200,000 were paid out in salaries and legal fees. Since the creation of the commission, the state has received $5,376,239.75 from the tracks, and Baltimore county $612,000 from the Pimilico track. The estimate of the attendance this year was that 689,954 persons paid to see the horses run, and "play the races."

The Cold Wave.

The cold this week, has gripped the entire United States, extending into the far South, with temperatures in the twenties appearing in Florida and Texas. Over 40 deaths from cold have been reported. In the Middle west a heavy snow-fall added to the cold, and hundreds of travellers were blocked up and unable to proceed.

Five deaths were reported from cold in Alabama, where from 10° to 15° degrees above, prevailed, and in several reports actual zero cold. Throughout Illinois highways have been generally blocked up, and the bus routes were unable to follow regular schedules.

In many sections heavy wind storms made great drifts many feet deep, and in the Western as well as some Eastern cities, relief agencies were taxed to their utmost.

Protect Them From Midwinter Colds.

The records of the State Department of Health show that approximately one-third of the cases of pneumonia, broncho and lobar, that are reported from the counties each year, occur among babies and children under five. Out of a total of 2028 cases of pneumonia recorded in 1925, among people at all ages. 662 occurred among children under five. Out of a total of 747 deaths from pneumonia, the same year, 288 occurred among babies and young children who had not reached their fifth birthday. In 1926, when 2723 cases of pneumonia were reported in the counties, 951 occurred among children under five, while 343 out of a total of 919 deaths from pneumonia, were among children under Thoughts from Minnesota.

Only a limited number of people give the home newspaper credit for the interest that it shows in the community where it is published.

Better to emphasize the point, try to imagine what the average community would be without a newspaper. Who would take a stand for community betterment, for public improvements, for public decency, for the development of business, for rural and town co-operation—in fact, for every enterprise for the good of all the people?

There is no other agency to take the place of the home newspaper. Certainly the grocer, the clothier, the dry goods dealers or any other retail merchant cannot do it. None of these are equipped for the task.

It's a foregone conclusion that the newspaper in the neighboring community is not doing anything for any community except its own. So the home newspaper is the only institution that has the best interests of the community uppermost morning, noon and night. The home newspaper is the mouthpiece through which the community makes its bid for a place among the stars and it is the one and only agency that is always alert to protect the community and its business interests against the frauds and the humbugs that prey on the small cities and towns.

It's well to think on these things now and then and remember that the home newspaper every day is performing some unselfish service for the good of the community.—Isanti (Minn.) News.

GOV. SMITH'S MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE.

Held to be National in Interest and General Bearing.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, delivered a 35,000 word message to the N. Y. legislature this week, which while in the main covering questions relating to New York, is also taken to represent his views on various National policies.

He expressed himself on prohibition, agriculture, taxation, flood relief and other items having relation to general government. His opinion that Federal acts apply to the states, and must be enforced, does not at all meet with the approval of wet leaders. He went so far as to say that state enforcement acts are not necessary, thereby disagreeing with his party leaders in Maryland; but that the Volstead Act is now a part of the law of New York as much so as the state's statutes and Constitution.

On the whole, while the message is an able one in general terms, it doubtful whether it will materially help his chances for the Presidential nomination. The Baltimore Sun says it is "not startling" and hardly con-ceals its disappointment at the treatment of the prohibition question, when

"In the near future his attitude on political, economic and the social problems of an industrial civilization will be analyzed and discussed from many points of view by men interested in the Presidency. At the moment however, the chief interest in his mes-sage relates to his stand on prohibi-tion. And as to that it may be said, as was said of his message as a whole that it is not startling, and also that it is the least impressive section. It does not justify recent reports from Albany which suggested a general sweeping of the whole ground. Governor Smith does not sweep the ground clear. He does not outline a clear, firm policy and he does not offer either an ideal or a practicable so-

His references to prohibition intimate very plainly that he does not like the manner in which it was instituted, and that he does not like the conditions which now appear as the results. But there is no straight-from-the-shoulder hitting in any of this. And there is even less vigor as he looks to the future. The "sacred" obligation to enforce the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act is a natural, if unnecessarily rhetorical, statement from a public official, but merely to undertake to enforce law as it stands is not impressive from one who would have us believe that he dislikes the law and thinks its results unfortunate."

We can in imagination so distort our lesser ills as to make defense was insanity, and the jurors, so distort our lesser ills as to make them real ones. We can easily be sick, if we imagine hard enough that we are.

The newspapers and periodicals of the country have a great deal to do with forming and directing public sentiment-with telling folks how they are, and how things in general are, and making them believe it.

We have the Constitutional weakness of wanting to be pitied and petted. Many of our little troubles are magnified beyond all reason, because we are encouraged to brood over them and purely imaginary ills are often made very real, in the mind.

Optimism is all right when it is honestly so, and it usually is; but, there is no real justification—not even for the sake of good businessto misrepresent facts. There are real diseases that can not be cured by little pills, and being jollied up; and there are times when real harm is done by withholding the truth of the indications of coming of disaster.

We can be helped by encouragement, and by healthy and enlivening -but there are times when the truth should be told-most times. A Little Talk on Thrift.

It is unfortunate that in much of the so-called thrift work in this country encouragement has been given only to the saving of money. One cannot, of course, say aught of such advice, excepting that it does not go

Abraham Lincoln once said that

What he had in mind was the great truth that in thrift the first steps consist of laying aside money, but that these primary practices do not constitute thrift in its entirety.

Let the nation learn the words of Lincoln that "economy begins with saving money," but let us emphasize the fact that Lincoln made use of the word "begins." Saving money is only the beginning of thrift.

Current events emphasize the need of widespread thrift education. There are thousands who have made the start by saving money, but, unfortunately, their thrift education has gone no further. As a result one reads in the papers almost daily of the exposure of individuals who have despoiled the cherished savings that grew in many cases penny by penny through a long term of years. No greater tragedies appear in the columns of the press than many of the stories of these misguided persons whose life time accumulations have been swept away.

Judging by the reports in the newspapers from day to day one seems safe in assuming that there is a rising tide of unscrupulous practices based on insufficient popular understanding of personal economics. A great public duty confronts us all in putting forth every effort to end these machinations. As much attention should be given to teaching the correct uses of money as is given to the encouragement of saving money. Simply to preach "Save"! "Save!" is not enough.

Wise spending and prudent investing constitute just as much of the problem of personal economics as successful saving.—S. W. Strauss, American Society of Thrift.

The "New" Year.

The New Year will be a repetition of old experiences, a re-enforcement of old laws, a reaffirmation of another common saying which is that human nature changes little and human relationships are much the same today as they were when the first philosophical writer first set his chisel to work on the stone tablets whereon were written the observations and records of that far-off time when the human race first began to discover the antiquity of the planet and the unswerving laws that govern it.

We enter upon the New Year, to be sure, but in it we shall be responsive to the same forces as heretofore. We will be rewarded as we put ourselves into harmony with divine statutes and punished as we disregard them. There are but two lamps by which our feet may be guided, those of experience and conscience. If we profit by one and hearken to the other, we shall avoid many of the pitfalls that lie ahead; the same old pitfalls, in the same old places and hidden in the same old manner. If we play the game in accord with the rules laid down by that "still small warning voice within," we shall esold errors that men and women have been making for thousands of years. -Apopka (Fla.) Chief.

The Wise Friend.

Once upon a time-and not very long ago -there was a brother and sister who had a friend. A very special friend he was, who told them stories about men who flew through the skies over far-flung spaces of the earth; of boys and girls who had thrill ing and mysterious adventures; of others who had most unusual situations confront them, yet managed to come through their tests with steadfast and courageous hearts; f wild animals in deep jungles-how they ived, hunted, and died. Such a host of things did their good friend tell them of,

Came the time when their friend moved way to another town. Brother and sister were saddened by his going, for they knew they would miss his cheery smile and the wonderful stories and amusing ane dotes he was so fond of telling them Then one day the postman brought them : letter from their friend, in which he told them he was sending them The Youth's Companion so that they would not forget him, and that in it they would find just the sort of stories they had so much enjoyed hearing him tell.

And sure enough, a day or two later the nagazine arrived, and brother and sister found that it truly did have just such wonderful stories of adventure and sport and mystery, and just such jokes as they loved so well. And every time that a new number of The Youth's Companion arrived, they wrote a note to their friend and told him how much pleasure the magazine gave

Tools Found in Africa May Antedate Ice Age

The prehistoric men of the old Stone age, who lived in Europe for thousands of years between the advances of the ice during the glacial period, and even, perhaps, before that great Ice age began, may have learned how to chip their flints and make their rude stone tools under the kinder skies of Africa.

This is suggested by very ancient implements recently found in that continent by an East African archeological expedition.

The stone tools and weapons newly found are believed to have been made and lost by their owners even before the Ice age. During all the half million years or more since then they have been lying undisturbed in the gravel deposits where they have now been found.

Africa was too far south to be reached by the glaciers of the Ice age, it is observed, but the climate at that time seems to have been cooler and more rainy than now. It was before this rainy period, it is said, that the makers of stone tools must have lived.

During the Ice age, and even before its beginning, men of the old Stone age are known to have invaded Europe, from which they retreated again as the ice sheet advanced. Where these men of the glacial period came from has always been a mystery. some scientific men advocating Asia as their probable home and others favoring Africa.

Oath Taken Seriously

by Orthodox Moslems Swearing in Turkey is no slight matter. When a Turk breaks an oath he has made in the name of Allah, the traditional expiation is a long and costly affair. If the oath breaker is wealthy-that is, if he has visible means of support for a year-he must give bread to fifteen widows, sacrifice a fat sheep to be given to the seven days and seven nights. When a poorer sinner breaks his oath he must fast for the same length of time, but instead of the gifts of bread and mutton he must take a long stick, break it into three pieces over his head or over the head of the person involved in the broken oath, and then throw the broken pieces out of the window.

poor, and he himself must fast for

The sticks are supposed to absorb the curse engendered by taking the name of Allah in vain, and with the throwing out of the sticks the sinner feels himself absolved.

Shut Door of Own Tomb

Robert Louis Stevenson once described Father Damien as "the man who shut with his own hands the door of his sepulcher." Father Damien was a Belgian missionary who went out to Hawaii in 1872 to minister to the victims of leprosy in the colony on Molokai. He founded schools, improved housing conditions and made the colony a brighter and more habitable place. Gradually the hideous disease took hold on the benevolent missionary and Stevenson's description became a grim fact. It was then that Father Damien fell into the practice of beginning his talks and letters with the melancholy words, "We lepers."-Pathfinder Magazine.

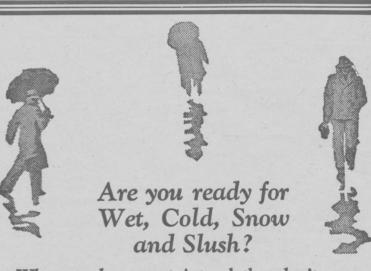

Freak Goldfish

Many Japanese goldfish fanciers favor the kinds with bulging eyes, as of a bullfrog, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. This characteristic is said to be developed by keeping the fish in tanks with only two small holes admitting light. The fish strain the muscles of the eye, turning and seeking the illumination, consequently acquiring the bulging effect through excessive exercise of the muscles controlling the eyes. Among 200 rare specimens presented to the United States by Japan in return for a gift of whitewash, were several patterned in delicate red, black, gold and silver colorings and with long, fluttering

Origin Lost in Antiquity

There is some controversy as to the exact origin of the Septuagint. This is a translation of the Old Testament only, including the canon, the prophecies, and the writings. It was compiled for the use of Alexandrine (Greek) Jews who had lost their knowledge of the Hebrew tongue. According to tradition, based on the letters of Aristides, Philo, and Josephus (Jewish historians), the translation was made by 72 scholars in 72 days by the order of Ptolemy II, who reigned at Philadelphia about 285-246 B. Villages See Benefit Afforded by Zoning

According to the Department of Commerce, more than half the urban population of the United States now lives in homes protected by zoning systems. These have been adopted in 553 cities and villages, embracing a total of 30,000,000 inhabitants.

Many villages are now adopting zoning rules. Some of them-Center Island, L. I., is a type-design their systems to protect a few rich estate owners against the intrusion of small plots and cheaper houses. In such places the object is to defend exclusiveness and discourage population growth, which in the ordinary village is welcomed.

Traffic congestion and the waste of values by shifting trade centers have been the moving causes of zoning in cities. In the movement of smaller centers toward zoning the gas-filling station has been the usual spur to action. A huge filling station rearing its splotch of red between the Baptist church and the old Squire Jones place can not only disfigure a lovely town but knock ten times its cost off real estate values by scaring away what might have been purchasers of house property.

The village has quite as much reason as the city to form an ideal of what its development should be and to frame rules insuring that development. Zoned communities are likely to be greatly increased in number in the near future.-New York

New York State Sets Tree-Planting Record

During the past year's tree-planting period 21,564,175 trees from the New York state nurseries were planted in that state, says a bulletin of the American Game Protective association. The fall plantings bring the total for the year up to 25,000,000 trees. an increase of nearly 5,000,000 over the previous year. Included in the planting was the reforesting of 25. 000 acres of denuded, cutover lands.

Farmers take a greater part of the trees furnished by the nurseries than any other group, the plantings on farms and private lands aggregating over 9,000,000 trees, while cities, villages, counties, towns and schools took another 3,000,000. Industrial concerns, including railroads, took over 2,000,-000, and boy scouts planted 86,500

It is expected that the next year's output of the state nurseries will show a corresponding increase.

Employ Curve in Shrubbery

In a shrub border, even on the small property, the irregular curved line is more pleasing than the straight one. In this way more interesting detail of material can be appreciated. Oftentimes we secure a monotonous line by the use of shrubs of nearly the same height; this can be changed by the introduction of small flowering trees which are pleasing in foliage, fruit and flower, such as the dogwood, magnolia, flowering apple or cherry. The front edges may be "edged down," that is, made to meet the grass or lawn, by planting perennials along the front of the shrubs or lily bulbs and such things.

Home Owner's Advantage

Where the moderate-priced home is to be built in the city, property values effect a considerable influence on the general scheme. Ground space is too expensive to be wasted, and its cost usually restricts the plan of the house to the long, narrow form. Such plans have some disadvantages, of course, but these are far exceeded by the advantages over the apartment, and the man who builds the detached home saves at every turn, has more comforts and has something to show for his money.

Beauty Through Paint

A good coat or two of fresh paint of good quality not only saves wood, but it cleans and seals in germs, cleans the surface with new beauty, and beautifies a home with fresh cleanliness.

A survey of any community, however, will show that paint factories might be run at increased pace, if one may judge from the number of buildings that seem not to have been painted for years upon years.

City Back-Yard Playgrounds

There is a marked tendency among city planners to abandon long narrow back yards and provide in the centers of blocks community playgrounds for children. In the new Buffalo zoning ordinance this is taken care of and, where such recreational grounds are provided in the rear, there may be granted a reduction in the ordinary requirements for side yards with detached houses.

Aid to the Soil

Trees enrich the soil. Their leaves, upon falling to the ground, are a big factor in maintaining the fertility of our soil, says the American Tree Association. Tree-enriched soils make possible the production of many of the necessary crops of life.

ORANGE FLOWERS BECAME ORNAMENT FOR BRIDES .-When Spain was at the height of her power, a Moorish chieftain, wishing to curry favor with the Spanish monarch, sent him with all pomp and ceremony an orange tree as .n emblem of fruitfulness and sincerity.

The French ambassador at the Spanish court, an astute nobleman, hearing of these wonderful trees and how quickly fruit grew on them, desired to possess one. He discovered that, unknown to her father, the daughter of the royal gardener—a pretty, dark girl—was deeply in love with a young man, who, however, was comparatively poor, so that they could not marry.

The French noble, fearing that an attempt to bribe the gardener might be unsuccessful, approached the daughter, telling her that if she could obtain a small plant for him he would give her a large sum of money. The girl assented, and when the plant was handed to the ambassador he paid ner so liberally that the lovers were able to marry and purchase a farm for themselves. On the marriage morn the happy bride entwined orange blossoms in her hair in remembrance of her good for-

The Frenchman sent the plant to his estate in the south of France. In due course he was able to present a tree to the king of France, and a little later one was introduced into the royal garden of England.

When the story of the Spanish girl came to be known, the flowers began to be used as bridal wreaths and decorations, but for a long time they were so expensive that only the wealthy could indulge in this pretty ornamentation.

How East Indian Holy

Men "Make the Grade" Being a holy man in India is indeed a hard life. Almost any one can become a Sadhu or holy man in that teeming country if he can stand the trials. Let the hair grow disheveled; smear the almost naked body with grease, paint and ashes; cultivate a far-away look; sit on spikes in a swing suspended from the limb of a tree; bury the head in the ground for long periods; fast until the body becomes a mere shadow; make long pilgrimages to holy places by rolling to them; these and a few other tribulations entitle one to be called a Sadhu. Recently it was reported that a Sadhu had broken all known records by sitting on a bed of nails for the last seven years. While so sitting in a perambulator he traversed many of the sacred rivers of India.

How to Control Floods

To our uninitiate mind the only final effective control of floods must come by laying down a height for flood waters above which those waters shall not be permitted to go. Much as a safety valve operates there must be outlets that take off the waters before they get boyond the height laid down as a maximum. As to whether a combination of spillways or other outlets, reservoirs, impounding, reforestation and other measures are needed, we defer entirely to the opinions of the expert engineers. But we feel assured that the maximum of flood waters must be put under some sort of control if floods are to be prevented. No matter how high this point be put, there must be some provision that it cannot go higher. The only way to control a flood is to control it.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

How Rivers Were Reversed

Engineers developing a hydro-electric power plant near Sao Paulo, Brazil, caught a couple of rivers which had the habit of flowing westward, re-formed them to flow east and then led the waters by a series of dams and syphons up over a mountain range to the penstocks. Now the plant has an effective head of 708 meters, produces 100,000-horse power and can generate 800,000, and the annual rampage of the rivers, which once resulted in flooding ten square miles of valuable land within the city, has been squelched.

How It Was Named

Anesthesia was once a science without a name, it was related by anesthetists attending an American College of Surgeons convention. For ten years after the discovery of methods for the control of pain in 1840, neither the process nor those who administred it could be described by any term then in the language. A group of physicians finally appealed to Oliver Wendell Holmes and he, with his flair for words, coined the term "anesthesia" from the Greek.

How "Rival" Originated

"Rival" is from the Latin word "rivus," a brook or stream. Rivals were originally persons living on opposite sides of a brook and each claiming exclusive right to the use of the stream.

WHY =

The Dodo Registered Failure in Life's Battle

What is it to be "as dead as the dodo?" It is to be dead specifically, as the scientist would say, as well as individually.

The opening scene in the tragedy of the dodo begins about the year 1510 and is laid in the Indian ocean near the shores of Africa. Here there lies a small group of islands of which Mauritius and Bourbon are the most important. It was on the former of these that there landed, in that year, a party of Portuguese navigators under one Capt. Cornelius Van Neck.

In a published account of his voyages Van Neck gives some account of the dodo. It seems that the sailors had killed a number of these great birds with clabs and had tasted their flesh. With the exception of the breast meat they found it tough and very ill flavored, and hence dubbed the birds walckvogel, or, plainly transslated, "disgusting birds."

In habits the dode was supremely torpid, hence its Dutch name, a corruption of the Dutch dodoor, a sluggard. So languid, both of perception and gait, were these birds that they could be easily overtaken by sailors and killed with clubs. In this manner many thousands were killed during the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries and salted down by sailors for food on long voyages.

The causes of its extinction are not hard to determine. In the first place the dodo was not a rapid or prolific breeder. What the sailors began in the way of extermination, some pigs, liberated on the islands, completed. These rooting about, discovered that the dodo eggs were excellent food. Gradually the dodo was forced to give up in despair. So it bowed itself off the stage of life and took up its role as a mere record in travelers' notebooks or as a stuffed and mounted speciment in a museum case.-Dr. Leon Augustus Hausman, in the Scientific American.

Why Bees Build Combs in Hours of Darkness

Bees go out all day gathering noney, and work at night in the hive, building their combs as perfectly as if an electric light shone there all the time.

Why do they prefer to work in the dark?

Everyone knows that honey is a liquid with no solid sugar in it. After standing, it gradually assumes a crystalline appearance, or granulates, and ultimately becomes a solid mass.

Honey has been experimentally enclosed in well-corked flasks, some of which were kept in darkness, while the others were exposed to the light. The portion exposed to the light soon crystallized, while that kept in the dark remained unchanged.

Hence, we see why the bees are so careful to obscure the glass windows which are often placed in the hives. The existence of the young depends on the liquidity of the saccharine food presented to them.

If light were allowed access, it would, in all probability, prove fatal to the inmates of the hive.

Why Blotter Is Valued

Doubtless the most valuable piece of blotting paper in the world is the blotting pad which lay on the writing table in the salon car of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, on November 11, 1918, near Rathondos, in the forest of Compeigne, and upon which was signed the armistice which ended the World war. Upon it, entirely legible, though, of course, needed to be held before a mirror for normal reading, are the transferred signatures of Marshal Foch, Admiral Wemyss and Matthias Erzberger.

Only a "scrap of paper," and blotting paper at that; but it is likely to hold a high place among historical

Why Forest Is Valuable

The fast diminishing saxaul forests in the Caspian steppes, reputed to be the only ones left in the world, are to be converted by Soviet authorities into national parks in order to save them from complete destruction by the Caspian railway, which is using the trees as fuel. The preservation of these socalled "forests of the desert," the authorities believe to be of great scientific importance.

Why Japs Take to Milk

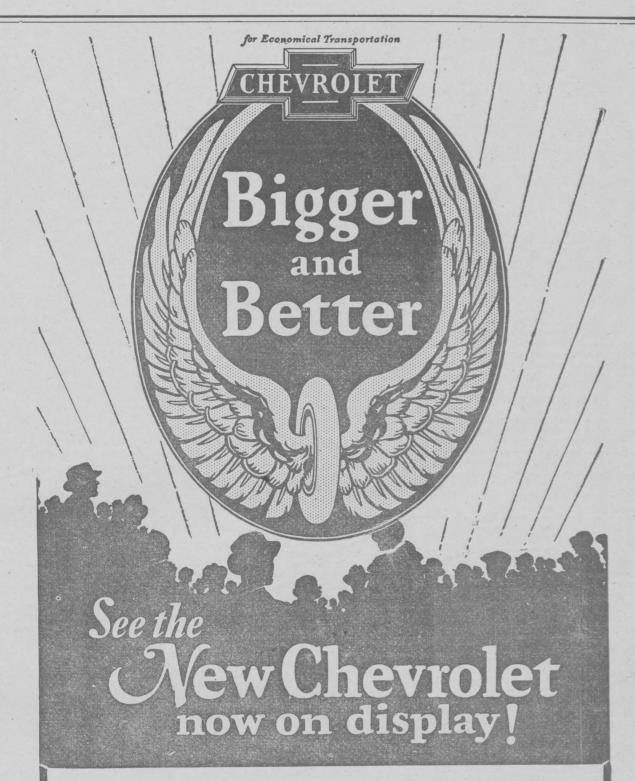

The Japanese, who thirty years ago, never drank milk and gave it to infants only as a last resort, are learning to like it through efforts to popularize it as a beverage and item of food. The increasing population of foreigners largely was responsible for the first increased demand, which was met by importations of condensed and powdered milk.

Why the Term "Spooning"

Five centuries ago it was the custom for a young man to make known his matrimonial intentions by giving the girl of his choice a "love-spoon," a hand-made utensil with two bowls on a single stem. This, it is believed is the origin of the term "spooning" among the lovelorn.—Capper's Weekly."

Why Kite Is So Named

The falcon known as the kite is remarkable for its power of remaining in midair without apparent motion of its wings. This peculiarity seems to have suggested the name of the boys' favorite toy, the kite.

A Brand New Policy for the NEW YEAR.

In order to serve our custom ers in the best possible way, to insure the utmost satisfaction, and right prices at all times, we will inaugurate the following policy.

We will guarantee our prices in 1928 to be as low as goods of the same quality can be bought at any legitimate place of business, where such place of business is not notorious for CUT prices. In other words, wherever quality can be determined as being about the same, and our customers make it known that a still lower price exists than our regular low price, we will be glad to meet the price made known. We do not want our customers to lose on any purchase by having bought from us. Our known reputation for fair dealing, our eighteen years experience right here in your midst, coupled with our New Policy of "lowest market prices at all times" should surely merit a majority of all your hardware needs for the coming year.

Your Money will always buy a Full Measure of Value and Satisfaction Here!

Lives Sacrificed to

Superstition and Fear In the early days of shipping there grew up on the west coast of Scotland a strange superstition that some grave misfortune would fall upon a man who took a drowning sailor from the sea. This was at a time when shore dwellers helped themselves to the cargoes of wrecked vessels. This superstition was very widely believed and resulted in some horrible brutalities before it was finally stamped out, writes J. D. Whiting in his book, "Storm Fighters." There is a legend of one wreck on the rocky shores of the lonely Zetland islands where six men tried to get ashore by means of a hawser fastened to a rock. The inhabitants who were gathered on the rocks must have been good enough to make the hawser fast (unless the shipwrecked sailors had a quite inconceivable skill in the art of lassoing.) However, superstition shared the minds of the coast dwellers with the fear that their winter stock of grain might not go around if they were saddled with six unexpected guests, so they cut the rope and the sailors were drowned.-Detroit News.

of Agriculture.)

It has been frequently remarked that the most valuable crop on any farm is, after all, its children, and rural mothers are more and more awake to the need of information on everything that has to do with the welfare of their children. How to feed a child properly at various ages, how to dress him, how to train him, how to watch his growth and correct faulty development-all these and many similar points are being constantly presented to extension workers as desirable subjects for home demonstration groups to consider.

ARTICHOKES ARE BAKED OR BOILED

In Food Value Tubers Are Quite Similar to Potato.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In many localities Jerusalem artichokes grow abundantly when once started in the garden. Their culture is like that of corn, and they are dug by hand. In food value the United States Department of Agriculture says they are similar to the potato. They, however, contain inulin, which is converted in the body into levulose or fruit sugar, and they are oftentimes recommended for diabetics. They have a delicious flavor of their own when properly cooked.

As these tubers are irregular in shape they are tedious to prepare for the table, as they must be scraped or pared. A better way is to scrub them well with a stiff brush and then bake or boil them in their skins.

When they have been baked, they may be served in their skins and eaten with butter, salt and pepper, or they may be scraped out, mashed, seasoned, and then served. Boiled Jerusalem artichokes are easily peeled after cooking. They may be served whole or sliced, with butter and seasoning. A little lemon juice or nutprested by way of flavoring if liked. The boiled vegetable may also be served in cream or other wellseasoned sauce. It may be baked in cream sauce with a sprinkling of grated cheese; or fried with choped leeks, celery tops, or parsley in a little butter, adding white sauce later, if desired. If the tubers are pared before boiling, they should be thinly sliced, very little water should be used, and it should be boiled down almost dry at the close. Small tubers may cook in 15 to 20 minutes. The flavor is much enhanced by cooking in milk or in a good meat broth. Another way of cooking them after paring is to place them in a baking dish or casserole, either whole or sliced, cover closely and bake in a slow oven until done, or about onehalf to one hour. The cover of the baking dish may need to be removed toward the close to dry out excess moisture. Season with butter, salt. and pepper. Add grated cheese or buttered crumbs or both, when liked.

Left-Over Meat Served in Guise of Beef Roll

Left-over meat need not always reappear as hash or stew, croquettes or shepard's pie. The family will enjoy this new disguise for it, which has the merit of supplying all the starch needed for the meal in the form of biscuit, so with a green-leaf vegetable or a salad the main part of the meal is provided for. The suggestion is from the bureau of home economics.

1 tbs. chopped 2 cups chopped celery tops
% tsp. tabasco cooked meat 1 tsp. salt ½ medium sized 1/4 cup flour

onion. 2 tbs. fat

1 tbs. finely chopped Rich biscuit parsley dough, made

1 cup broth or milk with 2 cups

Make a sauce of the flour, fat, and the milk or broth. Cook until thickened and then mix with the meat and seasonings. Roll the biscuit dough about one-half inch thick and long enough to make a roll of the right size to fit into the baking pan. Place the meat on the dough and leave the dough uncovered about one inch from the sides. Then roll up the meat and dough, as you would a jelly roll," and place in a greased pan Bake in a slow oven until the crust is a golden brown. Tomato or any wellseasoned sauce should be served with the meat roll.

> Savory Meat on Toast Most Delicious Dish

Oriental cookery furnishes a suggestion for preparing meat in a way that is somewhat out of the ordinary. The raw meat is cut into thin shreds, preferably with scissors, and then cooked with savory flavors, combined so as to make a gravy, which can be served on toast. In a Chinese restaurant you would probably find this meat served with fried noodles or French fried onions, or both, and a little bowl of delicious flaky grains of rice would take the place of the toast. 'The Japanese would use most of the same ingredients put tegether in a different way.

Savory Meat.

lb. uncooked shredded lamb, beef, or pork 2 cups strained canned tomato juice d cups celery tops 1 tsp. salt chopped fine or 2 2 tbs. flour cups celery and 2 2 tbs. butter cups chopped 1 tbs. shredded leaves 1 tbs. shredded

Shred the meat into small pieces with scissors. Brown it in its own fat in a frying pan. Add the celery tops, onion, and salt. Cover and cook for about ten minutes. Add the flour and butter mixed together, and the tomato juice, stir until thickened, and there is starchy flavor. Serve the savory meat on slices of delicately browned toast. Fried noodles or French fried onions sprinkled over the top just before serving are an attractive addition.

Recipe for Kidney Stew With Savory Seasoning

Perhaps more people would enjoy kidneys and other "fancy meats," as the butcher calls them, if they knew how to cook them appetizingly. Here is a recipe for kidney stew with just enough added seasoning to make it extremely good. A beef kidney is called for, but other kidneys may be used if beef is not obtainable. The bureau of home economics supplies this recipe:

Kidney Stew. 1 beef kidney 1 tbs. thinly
1 cup diced potato 1 tbs. flour 3 tsp. salt
1 tbs. chopped par- 1 tbs. butter 1 egg yolk Few drops tabas-

Wash the kidney well, remove the skin, and most of the fat. Cover with cold water and heat it slowly to the boiling point, discard the water, and repeat the process until there is no strong odor and no scum on the wa-Then add more water and simmer the kidney until tender. Cut the kidney in small pieces. Cook the diced potato and onion and add to the cut kidney. Thicken the liquid with the blended flour and butter, and cook for a few minutes longer. Take the stew from the stove and stir in the beaten egg yolk, the parsley, and tabasco. The heat of the stew will cook the egg sufficiently.

Young Girl's Room

That little corner bedroom upstairs with the white dimity curtains can be made even more attractive by adding a fluffy pillow or two. Organdie makes a lovely pillow cover for a young girl's room. Use two shades of pink or other dainty color which harmonizes with the general color scheme and goes nicely with the wall paper. An oblong of the lighted organdie is stitched to the center and two rows of hemstitching trim the edges. Five organdie roses add a finishing touch.

Don't Scold

It is wrong to scold children or to discuss matters relating to discipline at the table. Any unpleasant emotions, such as crying or pouting, interfere so seriously with the digestion that it is harmful to the children, say nutrition experts of the National Dairy council, an organization promoting health and child welfare.

WEDDING-RING FINGER

WHEN is a solitaire just a solitaire and when is it transformed into that emblem of magic and romance, the engagement ring?

It is the latter when worn on the third finger of the left hand. Indeed, worn there, it need not be a solitaire; the humblest circlet when it appears on the proper finger becomes potent with symbolism. A mere "friendship" ring remains such only while it does not appear on that crucial finger. Once worn there it assumes a deeper significance! And when the bridegroom says, "I do," and turns to his blushing bride, it is on that third finger of her left hand that he places the golden circlet which is a token and a symbol of their union.

For the origin of this practice we must go back to the days of the an cient Romans, whose wives wore their wedding rings on the third finger of the left hand because it was their belief that the nerve of that finger ran directly to the heart!

on Bricks and Stones Clay tablets, bricks and tables of stone formed the writing paper for those who made the first written records. Despite such crude equipment, the Assyrians and Babylonians possessed astonishing libraries. The library of Sargon at Agade contained thousands of volumes, including works on astronomy and astrology and many books of fables. 'The characters were impressed with a metal stylus on soft clay tablets, which were then baked in the sun or in a kiln. The prophecies of the Sibyl were written on leaves. Several copies of the Bible were written on palm leaves, and some may still be seen in museums. It is from this that the term "leaf" as applied to a sheet in a volume, is derived. In the Book of Job mention is made of writing on stone and on sheets of lead. The law of Moses was written on stone. Hesiod's works were written on leaden tablets and then rolled up like a cylinder. When the Greeks were merely shepherds, they put down their songs with thorns and awls on leather. Bronze tablets were used for their laws and more important records.-T. P.'s Weekly.

"Angling" With Volts

Is New German Idea

The "compleat angler" that Izaak Walton once had reference to is no longer adjudged complete unless he carries the new third-rail tackle in his basket, according to a German inventor who proposes electrocution of marine vertebrates instead of netting or hooking them. Under his plan a mild electric current would be passed through a brook, and early fish who came looking for worms would find volts instead. Shocked into unconsciousness all fish, large and small, that came in direct contact with the current, would rise to the surface and there the fisherman could sort out the sizeable ones at his leisure, permitting the little fellows to revive and swim away.

Fish hatcheries and game wardens, however, do not view the new invention with a credulous or condoning eye, arguing that even the most hardy of the fish, which were permitted to escape, would have their dispositions ruined by frequent electrocution and the process would be fatal to the delicate nervous system of infant trout.

Lucky Animals

Animal mascots become ever more and more popular. Dancers are wearing little black pigs in effigy. The fisherman's mascot is the petrel, the omen of good weather. The black cat is almost universally considered lucky, but this is specially so with actors and actresses. Many of "the profession" would not dream of playing a first night through without a small black cat charm of some sort. The airman's mascot is the eagle, and a gardener will often keep for luck a charm in the form of a toad. People with gray eyes should always choose a monkey mascot. Brown eyes will find the horse a lucky animal, and blue eyes should wear a little bear charm. A quaint colored butterfly is the best luck-bringer for green-eved people. It is unlucky for fair-haired people to wear any mascot in the form of a snake, and a mouse charm will only bring bad luck to anyone who is rash enough to wear it.

Whistler Stories

A flippant reply to the secretary of a London club where Whistler's account was past due produced this re-

"Dear Mr. Whistler: It is not a Nocturne in Purple or a Symphony in Blue and Gray we are after, but an Arrangement in Gold and Silver." The money was paid.

A certain gentleman whose portrait Whistler had painted failed to appreciate the work, and finally remarked: "After all, Mr. Whistler, you can't call that a great work of art."

"Perhaps not," replied the painter, "but, then, you can't call yourself a great work of nature."-Kansas City

Planned City of Refuge

In 1824 an idea occurred to the late Maj. Mordecai M. Noah, a distinguished Israelite of the city of New York, then editor of a prominent political journal called the National Advocate, that Grand island, in the Niagara river, would make a suitable asylum for the Jews of all nations, whereon they could establish a great city and become emancipated from the oppression bearing so heavily upon them in foreign countries. The city of Ararab, which he contemplated founding for this purpose, never developed after a series of failures and disappointments on his part.

JESUS AND THE SICK

LESSON TEXT-Mark 1:21-45. GOLDEN TEXT—He hath done all things well: He maketh both the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Makes Sick People Well.

JUNIOR TOPIC-John Welcomes and Baptizes Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-

IC-Jesus Shows His Sympathy and YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Jesus' Power to Make Whole

The purpose of Mark in this section is to show Jesus Christ the Divine Servant bearing God's message and clothed with the power to save lost souls. Coupled with His superhuman strength is revealed His unwearied sympathy, giving itself out in helpful and saving service.

I. Jesus Teaching With Authority (vv. 21, 22).

1. The place (v. 21).

It was in the synagogue in Capernaum where He with four disciples repaired "straightway" upon His entrance into the village. He availed Himself of the regular channel of instruction. Though many abuses had crept into the synagogue service, He chose to associate the new with the old order.

2. The time (v. 21).

His faithfulness in observing the Sabbath brought Him to the place where the people assembled to worship and to hear the Scriptures expounded. He came not to destroy but to fulfill the law, even the law of the Sabbath.

3. The impression (v. 22).

The people were astonished. Two things about His teaching impressed the hearers.

The substance of His message. The scribes, the professional teachers of the law merely quoted the authorities. but Jesus with first-hand knowledge set forth the truth with the enthusiasm of freshness and personal conviction. This distinction was quickly detected by those who heard Him.

II. Jesus Conquering Demons (vv. 23-28).

1. The outcry of the demon-possessed man (v. 23).

Perhaps he interrupted Jesus while He was teaching. When the power of God is manifested there is bound to be an outcry of the evil spirits.

2. The demon's confession (v. 24). "Thou art the Holy One of God." The one whose chief business it was to waste and destroy human life was in such miserable state as to desire to have nothing to do with Christ, and was now forced to confess Him as the Holy One.

3. Christ's attitude toward him (v.

and cast out the foul spirit. He not deliver others from impurity. Christ wants confession only from pure lips. 4. The obedience of the demon (v. 26).

The spirit was reluctant to leave the man and malicious to the end, for he tore the man whom he had to leave. He had to acknowledge his defeat and went out in a howling rage.

5. The impression made upon the people (vv. 27, 28).

The news of Christ's power spread rapidly over Galilee. The people were startled by two things:

(1) The new doctrince which He

(2) His authority over demons. III. Jesus Heals Peter's Mother-in-Law of Fever (vv. 29-31). This scene lies in the home of one Simon and Andrew who told Him of | sil raindrops." the condition of Peter's mother-in-law. He came at once and lifted her up and the fever departed. She immediately ministered to Him. IV. Jesus Ministering to Many (vv.

32-34). Though the day was strenuous in its labors, He came unwearied even when the sun had set, to meet the needs of the multitudes who had gathered from all parts of the city. He healed many of their diseases, cast out demons, not allowing them to speak. The demons knew Him, but the poor, blind people knew Him not.

V. Jesus Cleansing a Leper (vv. 35-45).

As Jesus preached in the synagogues of Galilee and cast out demons, His power became known. A leper came to Him saying, "If Thou wilt. Thou canst make me clean." Jesus put forth His hand and touched him, saying, "I will, be thou clean," and immediately the leprosy departed and he was cleansed.

Beauty of Bible Thoughts

Occupation

Pathetic Reunion of

Two Boyhood Chums

"Who's there?" This snappy question shot forth from the lips of Goldstein Bigpurse, owner of one of the finest offices near the Mansion house.

"Only me," came the answer, and the burglar turned his lantern upon himself at once and on each side of him to show that he was telling the truth.

"You?" cried the multi-millionaire. "You? Why, so it is! You-Bill Bluffem, my school chum, my faithful companion in all schoolboy pranks. Great Scott! And fallen to such depths!"

"Well!" exclaimed Burglar Bill. "If it ain't Goldie, me old pal! I know all about you. You're president of one of the largest financial skindicates in this country, and I ain't nothin' but a common, ordinary burglar. Boo-hoo! If you let me go this wunst, I promise never to let you catch me again! Will yer?"

"Ha, ha!" laughed the financier. "Let you go? Well, I should say not. No! Never! For I'm going to make you a partner in the skindicate. For years I have been looking for a man with the proper training."

So saying, the two pals embraced each other fondly.-Houston Post-Dispatch.

Vanity Not Fault of North Carolina Man

When John Cerrachi, an Italian sculptor, wrote to Hugh Williamson, one of North Carolina's notables, in the early days of America, requesting him to sit for his bust, "not on account of getting Mr. Williamson's influence in favor of the National monument; this is a subject too worthy to be recognized; but merely on account of his distinguished character, that will produce honor to the artist," Williamson replied:

"Mr. Hugh Williamson is much obliged to Mr. Cerrachi for the honor intended him, and could not possibly suppose that Mr. Cerrachi had offered such a compliment by way of a bribe, for a man in his public station who could accept a bribe or betray a trust ought never to have his likeness made except from a block of wood.

"Mr. Williamson in the meantime, cannot avail himself of Mr. Cerrachi's services, as he believes that posterity will not be solicitous to know what were the features of his face."-Kansas City Star.

Lincoln Myth Exploded

The position of the hands of a jeweler's clock sign is one which has been selected for the reason that it furnishes the greatest facility to meet the requirement for painting the longer name above the hands and the shorter word below. The minute hand has been varied in position from 7 to 25 minutes after 8. Sometimes the longer name requires to be written in a semicircle above the hands. There have been stories connected with the death of Lincoln that the position of the hands is commemorative of the hour of the death, but this story can be shown to be false from the simple He asked and accepted no testi- fact that the hour of the death of mony from Him, but sternly rebuked | Lincoln was not at 8:22 o'clock. Further the use of this nosition of the only is Himself pure but is able to hands of the clock is believed to have preceded Lincoln's death.

"Fossil Raindrops"

In slabs of Triassic rock little depressions are often seen that have been called "fossil raindrops," the idea being that they were formed by showers on muddy sea beaches, and preserved by being covered with a layer of mud at the next high tide.

But lately it has been suggested, in view of observations on a flood plain in the Dorn valley, that the supposed impressions of rain drops may really be due to pittings formed by bubbles in a film of mud at the bottom of shallow water. There have been watched the formation of many pittings, and it has been found that after the mud of the disciples. He went home with has dried they exactly resemble "fos-

A Generation

A generation is a single succession in natural descent, the children of the same parents; in years three generations are accounted to make a century. The term generation is also applied to the whole body of persons of the same period or living at the same time, as the present generation. The term is sometimes used with reference to the average lifetime of all persons or synchronous age. The historical average, or that of all persons who pass the stage of infancy, is commonly reckoned at about thirty years, while the physiological average, or that of all who are born, is only about seventeen years.

Sartorial Eclipse

"You say this embezzler was humiliated when forced to appear in court."

"Yes." "That seems to indicate that he has a conscience.'

"Not at all. After having spent years building up a local reputation as a 'snappy dresser,' he had to appear in a suit that needed pressing." -Birmingham Age-Herald.

Pride of Performance

"There's no pleasure in hard work," said Mr. Rafferty. "Mebbe not," replied Mr. Dolan. "Mebbe people has changed entirely. I can well remember when a man enjoyed braggin' about how much he could do instead of how much he didn't have to."

"Health Center" Has Cut Mortality Rate

East Harlem, one of the most congested districts in Manhattan, has carried on a most interesting health program during the past six years, resulting in a decidedly reduced mortality rate, writes Savel Zimand, in the New York Times.

The East Harlem health center is operated by the health department of the city, assisted by private health and social agencies. During the last five years the general death rate of Manhattan has increased while that of East Harlem has been reduced materially. The rate for Manhattan in 1925 was 4.9 per cent greater than in 1920 and that of East Harlem was 20 per cent lower, according to Kenneth D. Widdemer, executive director of the

One of the most important gains was made in the case of infant mortality. From 412 deaths of children under one year of age annually in 1916-20, the number dropped to 194 in 1925. All of the children's diseases decreased.

The American Red Cross was responsible for the origin of the center, providing headquarters and the funds during the first three years. Six years ago the city health department and 22 agencies established the real center. From time to time departments have been added and the facilities increased.-Welfare Magazine.

Close Association of Parents and Teachers

The Kansas City Council of Parents and Teachers, organized as a council in 1915, has grown to a membership of 22,096, standing as one of the foremost councils of the national parentteacher organization. The council is made up of the following groups: Sixty-nine grade school associations, with 19,252 members; 26 preschool associations, with 537 members; 6 high school associations, with 948 members; 4 junior high school associations, with 1,247 members, and 2 church and community house associations, with 112 members. The largest single group membership comes from the Bancroft school, where 1.054 parents are active members. The Northeast Junior high school, with 630 members, is the largest high school association in Missouri. The J. C. Nichols school association has the distinction and honor of having every father, mother and teacher a member.

The room-mother plan, together with the hearty co-operation of principal and teachers is held responsible to a large extent for this 100 per cent membership. Trees for Highways

The following communication to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch is pertinent: "I should like to ask through your columns just why do the advocates of tree planting on the public highways not advocate fruit and nut trees, where the soil is adaptable or suitable for such trees, inasmuch as fruit and nut trees would be so much more valuable to the citizens of the state and reduce the cost of fruits and nuts, which are becoming prohibitive?

"At least every other tree should be a fruit or nut tree, and I believe every citizen would be willing to pay for at least one fruit or nut tree. I'm sure I would pay for more than one.

"Make the highways attractive by mixing fruit and nut trees among the shade trees-half of each, at least, and give fruit and nuts to all."

Always build from plans, and before going ahead have a picture made of what the plans call for; in that way avoiding disappointment later when the building is up.

The expense of a rendered perspective sketch is small, and it often reveals the need of changes here and there. These can be easily made in the plans.

The Weed Law

Rank weeds give a neighborhood a scraggly and unkempt air. The complete citizen attends regularly to the mowing and removal of unsightly weed patches wherever he may be responsible for those unpatriotic growths. Where the property owner or vacant lot owner neglects his duty, there is authority and responsibility to inspect and act for the community good at the expense of the derelict weed-crop producer. - Lafayette Journal and

Don't Spare Paint

Dared Instant Death to Save Father's Life

A daring climb was accomplished at Repton, in Lancashire, England, some years ago, the exploit being kept in memory by a frayed fragment of cord that used to dangle from the cross surmounting the lofty spire of the village church, and which was known locally as "Little Bessie's Rope." Bessie was the daughter of a Repton steeplejack who one day, in a spirit of bravado and in order to win a bet of a few shillings, undertook to climb to the top of the spire and there don a suit of clothes with which he had been presented.

True to his word, he fixed his ladders on the day appointed and climbed by their aid as far as the bottom of the big copper ball which upheld the cross. Over one arm of the cross he then lassoed a rope, up which he climbed, and afterward proceeded to don the clothes. Next, standing upright, he started to throw into the air, one by one, his old garments. Suddenly, however, there was a cry of affright from above, followed by a great hush below. The foolish fellow had somehow managed to loosen the rope, his sole connecting link with terra firma, and it slipped down and hung suspended from the topmost ladder, 30 feet below. Two or three men moved hesitatingly toward the church, but a child-woman of sixteen, his daughter, was there first.

Rung by rung she mounted until she looked no bigger than a doll. Then, after three failures, clinging meanwhile by one hand-and that one the left-she succeeded in throwing the noosed cord over the cross once

Philosophy for Those Who Think of Suicide

I remember, years ago, a short editorial, apropos of some notable and particularly pitiable case of suicide, that appeared in one of the London papers. It was entitled "Tunnels."

I recall very little about it, save that it aroused much comment, and contained this one great thought: "If only people would realize when they are passing through a hard time, no matter how hard, that they are merely passing through a tunnel, and that to jump out of the train in the middle of the tunnel neither mends nor ends anything, but only adds to the toil and the tears, and postpones what is, in any case, inevitable: an ultimate re-emergence into light.'

Those are not the exact words, of course, but so it was in effect. The simile has always seemed to me a strikingly just one, for it holds every way. The longer, the darker, the more sulphurous the tunnel, the more certainly is a leap from the train a leap from the frying pan into the fire. At that moment, for us, there is no better 'ole.—Hugh A. Studdert Kennedy in the Century Magazine.

The Water Spider

A correspondent of English Country Life describes a peculiar spider that lives under water the greater part of its life. It builds a dome-like nest of silk among weeds in ponds and ditches, and fills the nest with air. in that strange house it lives and ays its eggs. In autumn it makes another nest at a greater distance below the surface of the water, and, having sealed itself inside, it sleeps until spring. Taken out of the water, the spider looks like any other, but as soon as it is put back, the bubble of air that it collects round its body makes it look like a ball of quicksilver. It is the only spider that has taken to a wholly aquatic life, says the writer.

Crow Feathered Outlaw

The crow has but few human friends, and possibly none outside its own family. Even its feathered neighbors do not care about it. Crows seem, however, to esteem each other's companionship, judging from the fact that a crow is seldom seen alone. They do their day's work, be it good or bad, in groups; they spend considerable time holding meetings by thousands, and they travel in somewhat army fashion.

Crows are neither admired nor loved. Hundreds of birds have been given honorable places in literature, but if the crow is introduced, it is usually for the purpose of adding one more melancholy feature to a melancholy scene.

The Mocking Future

To do good is the only way to be happy. Some people seem to deceive themselves, trying to speak of their way of life in the past or in the future, but not in the present. Nothing so impedes true happiness (which consists in living a good life) as the habit of expecting something from the future; whereas for true happiness, which consists in inner self-content. the future can give nothing and everything is given by the past. The younger a man is the less he believes in goodness, though he is more credulous of evil .- Tolstoy.

Clergy Forced to Shave

All of the ancient inhabitants of central and western Europe went unshaven, although Julius Caesar says the Britons only allowed the mustache to grow and cut off the chin foliage, Early in English history the clergy of England were compelled to shave. One writer of the Seventh century says the clergy were so dissolute that they could be distinguished from the laity only by their lack of beards.

Equipped His Forces

With Bibles and Guns When Russell, Majors & Waddell selected Nebraska City, Neb., as the point for the handling of military freight to western points in 1858, the company had in its service 30,000 oxen, 3,000 wagons and 4,000 teamsters. On the day that the first big train began its long trek for the West, Alexander Majors addressed his teamsters, saying in part:

"I am a moral and religious man, and I feel it my duty as a member of society to carry out and enforce, as far as possible, a wholesome moral influence; therefore, I give every employee a copy of the Bible to defend himself against moral contamination; and also a pair of Colt's revolvers and a gun to defend yourselves against warlike Indians; and each of you is required to sign a contract to the effect that while in our employ you will not use profane language, nor get drunk, nor gamble, nor treat animals with cruelty, nor interfere with the rights of citizens and Indians, nor do anything ungentlemanly toward anyone; and a violation of this agreement shall make you liable to a discharge and a forfeiture of your wages."-Kansas City Star.

Look for "Funny Man" to Exhibit Samples A great drawback to being a professional column conductor is the fact that whenever you meet any new people you are expected to floor them with a barrage of witty remarks, H. I. Phillips complains, in the American Magazine. The attitude implied, if not expressed, is: "So you're a humorist! All right, amuse me!"

When the portrait painter comes to a house party the guests do not gather about him and demand that he drag out his oils and paint something for them. When a prominent architect is introduced nobody thinks of exclaiming: "Oh, Mr. Fithelbert, do be a nice man and dash off a few blueprints of the ground floor plan of the new gas works!" A business man can safely attend any party without anticipating any requests that he do some lightning calculations and drive a few sharp bargains with his host or hostess. If a fireman goes to a birthday party he is not asked to put out a fire.

But the man with a reputation for being even 30 per cent clever is expected to prove it.

Discouraging Weeds

Chemicals employed for the purpose of killing weeds kill every green thing -grass, weeds and all. Ordinary saline solutions are effective for the purpose- salt and water. Sometimes the more drastic corrosive agents are used, such as nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia. They render the ground barren until rains have washed them away and nature has reseeded the affected soil. The results are not permanent, therefore, althought plant growth may be killed for a season by a single strong application. None of these chemicals should be employed in a garden or around a dwelling. There elbow grease is still the only satisfactory agent for discouraging weeds.

Canada's Big Game

The big game animals which may be taken in Canada are moose, caribou, deer, big-horn sheep, Rocky mountain goat, bear, grizzly bear and lynx. Moose, deer and bear are the chief animals hunted in the maritimes in Quebec and Ontario and in the prairie provinces, and in most of them caribou may also be hunted in season. In the prairie provinces and British Columbia buffalo and antelope are protected at all seasons and this is the case in regard to elk or wapiti, except in certain localities. There is an open season for big-horn sheep and mountain goat in Alberta and British Columbia.

Once Religious Festival

While Halloween is to us a frolic and a time for merrymaking, our ancestors believed in the practices and rites of the day and took part in its ceremonies as a part of their heathen religion. To those early people such customs had a deep significance. The thirty-first of October was first set apart by the Romans. Though it lost some of its meaning, the day was observed by Christian people, and All Hallow eve has come down through the ages, being observed and celebrated differently as the years make the original rites seem curious and out of date.-Child Life Magazine.

Origin of Perfume

Perfumes first were used only in religious services and were consecrated to this use. The world has come a long way from the time when any other use was considered a sacrilege. The industry is very old. The caravan which brought Joseph as a captive into Egypt was engaged in carrying perfumes from Persia. A treatise on perfumes has been found written by a Greek scientist who lived about 300 B. C.

Unkind Thrust

Two actors who were very jealous of each other met in a hostelry. They exchanged frigid nods.

"How are you getting along?" asked one, presently. "Pretty well," replied the other.

"Still keeping alive."

The first man eyed his rival steadily for a second and then asked, casually, "What's your motive?"

NO. 5820 EQUITY. In the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting in Equity.

ETHEL E. DODRER, Plaintiff.

HERBERT B. DODRER, Defendant.

HERBERT B. DODRER, Defendant.

The object of this suit is for Ethel E. Dodrer, plaintiff, to procure a decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii from Herbert B. Dodrer, the defendant.

The bill states that the said Ethel E. Dodrer is a resident of Carroll County, Maryland, where she has resided for more than two years last past; that the defendant Herbert B. Dodrer is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and, when last heard of was, residing in Decatur, Illinois; that the said Ethel E. Dodrer was married to the said Herbert B. Dodrer on February 12th., 1921, in Carroll County, Maryland, by the Reverend Arthur C. Day, a minister of the Gospel; that the said Ethel E. Dodrer and Herbert B. Dodrer lived together in said Carroll County as man and wife from the date of their marriage until December 4th., 1923, at which time, without any just cause or reason, the said Herbert B. Dodrer abandoned and deserted his said wife, although her conduct towards him had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years prior to the filling of the bill in this cause, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconcilation, and that there was born of said marriage a son, Henry L. Dodrer, aged about five years, and which child is now living with the said Ethel E. Dodrer may be divorced a vinculo matrimonii from the said Herbert B. Dodrer; that the said Ethel E. Dodrer may have such other and further relief as her case may require.

It is therefore this 14th. day of December in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting in Equity, ordered that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Carroll County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks before the 16th. day of January, 1928, give notice to Herbert B. Dodrer, non-resident defendant, of the object and substance of this bill warning him
