

THE COUNTY ATHLETIC ANNUAL MEET.

Will be held at the Fair Ground this Saturday.

The annual athletic meet of Carroll County will be held at the Taneytown Fair Grounds, this Saturday, May 12, 1928, instead of being held at Westminster as is the usual custom.

Taneytown Girls 4-H Club.

The regular meeting of the Taneytown Girls 4-H Club met at the home of their club leader, Mrs. Walter Bower.

District Missionary Meeting.

A District Missionary Meeting of Women's Presbyterian Society for Missions, of the Presbytery of Baltimore, will be held in Emmitsburg, Presbyterian Church, Thursday, May 17, 1928.

Attention Dairywomen.

Cows frequently refuse to eat grain or concentrates during the period when grass is lush and in its prime.

A good luxuriant pasture is much in protein; therefore, cows on such pasture do not need concentrate mixtures as high in protein as are ordinarily needed in winter feeding.

A mixture of equal parts of ground oats, corn meal and wheat bran, will serve well with fresh green grass pasture, such as we have in Carroll County.

Looking over various dictionary definitions and standards set for Weather Bureau observers, "fair" is generally found to embrace a certain degree of cloudiness and unsettled conditions.

It isn't fair to judge a woman's aims by what she hits. No man is so poor as he who has nothing but money.

TANEYTOWN DISTRICT VOTE

Republican Vote Brought Out by Factional Contest.

The Republican primary vote in Taneytown district, was as follows: For President, Herbert Hoover, 196; unopposed delegation 81.

For Delegates to State Convention, Robert S. McKinney 365; J. Webster Ebaugh 337; C. Ray Fogle 333; Walter R. Rudy 331; E. Watson Turner 313; George P. B. Englar 69; Theodore F. Brown 63; George H. Melville 58; Nevin W. Crouse 40; Webster C. Thomson 37.

The Democratic vote was as follows: For U. S. Senator, Wm. Cabell Bruce 112; Virginia P. Parkhurst 5.

For House of Delegates, William P. Cole 106; Thomas Cutty 1; Norman Kauffman 10.

The Junior-Senior Banquet.

(For the Record)

The Junior-Senior Banquet of Taneytown High School, was held Thursday, May 3, at the Wayside Inn, Friday, at 8:00 P. M.

The dining room was indeed decorated very beautifully. There were three large tables arranged so that they formed a U.

When everyone was seated a lovely dinner was served, consisting of the following: fruit cocktail, boiled chicken, mashed potatoes, peas, rolls, tomato salad, ice cream and strawberries, and demi-tasse.

A most enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and playing games. The music was furnished by a player piano run by electricity.

What is "Fair" Weather?

Front page news for a good many people begins with the little box in the upper corner of the paper that tells them whether or not to leave their umbrellas at home in the morning.

One difficulty is that "fair" as applied to weather is a meteorological term. Most dictionaries take note of this as defining the word, but the lay reader of the newspaper, hoping for a beautifully clear day, may expect too much.

By precipitation is meant rain, or snow reduced to its water equivalent. The term has in the past, also been used, although not in forecasts, to denote a state of the sky between overcast and clear.

Looking over various dictionary definitions and standards set for Weather Bureau observers, "fair" is generally found to embrace a certain degree of cloudiness and unsettled conditions.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION IN MARYLAND.

Jackson Defeats Weller in State and in Carroll County.

What is known as the Jackson-Merchant-Lowndes wing of the Republican party in the state elected the majority of delegates to the state convention, on Monday, over the Weller-Tait-Haller wing.

Herbert Hoover was the choice for nominee for President, by a vote of over 5 to 1 for an unopposed delegation.

Senator Bruce defeated Mrs. Virginia Parkhurst for the Democratic nomination for Senator, by a very large majority.

In this second Congressional district, Wm. P. Cole, present incumbent, was renominated; and Linwood L. Clark, Republican.

The county election resulted in a snow-under for the Weller-Brown ticket, as the Jackson-Rudy ticket won by over 700 majority, with Mr. Rudy as second man in his group.

The question of who represents the "organization" may still be debatable, but evidently there is not much doubt as to majority sentiment.

The State Roads Shortage.

The Baltimore Grand Jury has been hearing additional witnesses in the State Roads fund shortage case, this week, but the evidence has not been made public.

States Attorney O'Connor says that the jurors cannot leave their present task incomplete and bequeath it to the jury that is to follow.

In addition to the Grand Jury's investigations, a firm of accountants is working on a special audit, and it is believed that the committee of three appointed by the Governor to study the whole question is awaiting the results of the audit.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Held in the Taneytown Lutheran Church, Tuesday.

More than a thousand people came and went during the Convention of the Middle Conference Sunday School Association held in Trinity Lutheran Church, at Taneytown, on last Tuesday.

The Statistical Secretary, H. B. Fogle, reported some interesting figures: Number of schools reporting 45, total enrollment 8091, average attendance 5204; Number of Officers and Teachers, 715; Number uniting with Church 435.

Five Schools in the Conference, which includes Carroll and Frederick Counties, made 100% in the Standard of Excellence—Trinity, Taneytown; Grace, Westminster; Elias, Emmitsburg; Zion, Middletown; St. Luke's, Point of Rocks.

The following received pennants for a score above 75%: Immanuel, of Manchester; St. Paul's, Walkersville; Solomon's, Woodsboro; Evangelical Frederick, and St. Paul's Neersville. Bethany, Brunswick, won the 1928 attendance banner with 45 percent.

Officers elected for the next year are: Pres., W. C. LeGore; Vice-Pres., C. C. Hess; Rec. Sec., Miss Lillian Zimmerman; Statistical Sec'y, H. B. Fogle; Treas., C. C. Keeney.

The ladies of the Mite Society of the local Church provided meals for visitors and delegates in the Opera House.

Organ Recital at Silver Run.

An organ recital will be given in St. Mary's Reformed Church, Silver Run, this Sunday evening, at 7:30, by Prof. C. Walter Wallace, Philadelphia, a composer of exceptional merit who tours many states and Canada, and is always enthusiastically received.

Table with 2 columns: Program Item and Performer. Includes Hymn 215 (Congregation standing), Prayer by Pastor (Hanel), Two Popular Compositions (Schubert), (a) La Serenade (Schubert), (b) March Military (Schubert), Andantino Pathetic (Lemare), Pilgrims Song of Hope (Batiste), (a) Traumerie (Schumann), (b) Serenade (Moszkowski), Grand Chorus in D (Gullmunt), Offering, Offertory (Selected), Memories of Life (A. Pous Picture), Benediction (Wallace).

Dust the Rose Bushes.

Among the various diseases which attack rose bushes in the garden, powdery mildew is one of the most common, and one to which nearly all varieties are susceptible.

The fungicide which has proved most effective for home gardeners is a dust of nine parts of dusting sulphur (not flowers of sulphur) and one part of dry arsenate of lead.

Dollar Day - May 22

Sure to be a "big day" in Taneytown, worth coming many miles to have part in. Our merchants are preparing for it, and with the experience of last year will be able to prepare better, and to give the biggest bargains possible for $1.00.

This is a "good will" day: not planned for money-making, but partly to encourage folks to get the habit of visiting Taneytown Stores, and become acquainted with their stocks — and be just friendly.

There will be other items of Merchandise that you will want to see, besides those specially priced for the day; and visitors will find all of them to be marked as low as dependable merchandise can be sold.

Come to Taneytown and make a full day of it! Remember the Free Moving Pictures for the children in the afternoon and the Band Concert in the evening.

And just another word! We will not promise to receive any advertising for next week's issue that is not in our hands EARLY MONDAY MORNING.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PROCEEDINGS.

Numerous Items of General Business Disposed of.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order at 10:30 A. M., on Wednesday, May 2, 1928, in the office of the Board.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. The list of bills as presented to the Board was approved and ordered paid.

The committee on land for Union Bridge was unable to make a report of further progress. Two requests, one for the use of the school building in Hampstead for a Vacation Bible School, and the other from Union Bridge for the use of the school grounds for evangelistic tent meetings, which were presented to the Board, were refused.

A delegation from Manchester reported a serious shortage in space for the operation of the school, particularly the high school department, and the increased enrollment which was foreshadowed for next year, and requested that something be done by either granting a new school building or appropriating the necessary funds for a double portable.

The Board adopted the following resolution: Beginning with the opening of the school year of 1928-1929, the Board of Education of Carroll County will not approve the appointment of married women as teachers in the schools of the County, except in special cases in which the Board and the Superintendent shall jointly be the judge.

Norman L. Miller was removed as trustee of the Cherry Grove School. The two vacancies at Cherry Grove were filled by Howard L. Bechtel and Cleff C. Bechtel. David O. Wentz was also removed as a trustee of the Deep Run School and Harvey Starner was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The Superintendent reported that arrangement had been made to transport the children of the Ridgeville school to Mt. Airy, in view of the illness of the teacher. This action was approved by the Board.

Requests for contributions to local funds raised for purposes indicated were presented to the Board which contributed $10.00 to the amount already raised in each case except in the case of Mechanicsville school it agreed to make the contribution 10% of the amount raised which amounts to $55.34.

Spring Mills, $10.00 for library books; Manchester, $553.49 for school equipment; Brandenburg $15.00 for library books; Park Hall, $31.95 for equipment; Winfield, $10.00 for equipment.

The Superintendent reported the reception of proposals from various bidders for tin and slag roofings to be put on the Hampstead building. As the cost of the best quality composition roofing was identically the same as the cost of tin, the Board authorized the tin roof to be put on.

The members of the staff were re-appointed for another year and their salaries fixed. Miss Myrtle Eckhardt Grade Supervisor; Miss Gertrude M. Shipley, Music Supervisor; Miss Ruth DeVore, Rural Supervisor; Miss Grade Alder, Rural Supervisor; Miss Maud Manahan, and Miss Emily Bechtel, County Nurses; Miss Maye Grimes, Supervisor of play and attendance; Miss Mae E. Prince, Supervisor of colored schools; Philip S. Royer, Orchestra Director; Charles Reed, Clerk; Miss Catharine H. Miller, Secretary; Charles O. Clemson, Attorney; Roland Haifley, Service Man.

The meeting adjourned at 12:30.

District Sunday School Rally.

The Sunday Schools of Taneytown District will unite in a rally service to be held in the Lutheran Church, on Wednesday evening, May 16, at 7:30 o'clock. The principal address will be delivered by Mr. Robert Davids, formerly a member of the staff of the International Council of Religious Education, and now General Secretary of the Maryland State Sunday School Association.

This is Mr. Davids first visit to Taneytown, and it is hoped that the Sunday School officers, teachers, and pupils of the Sunday Schools of the community will take advantage of this opportunity to meet and hear him.

Maryland Classis Next Week.

Maryland Classis of the Reformed Church, comprising the congregations in Maryland, west of Baltimore, will convene in its 108th. annual sessions, on Monday evening, May 14, at 8:00 o'clock, in Glade Reformed Church, Walkersville, Rev. Walter R. Hartzell, Pastor.

In the Classis are 31 ministers, 25 pastoral charges, 52 congregations, with a total membership of more than 9000. The officers are: Rev. Chalmers W. Walck, Frederick, President; Rev. Guy P. Bready, Taneytown, Stated Clerk; and Elder Henry M. Warren-feltz, Emmitsburg, Treasurer.

Classis will continue in session until Wednesday night or Thursday morning. All the sessions are open to the public.

UNCLAIMED MONEY

Hundreds of Thousands in Bank with no Claimants.

George W. Page, State Bank Commissioner, reports that in the banks throughout the State are hundreds of thousands of dollars unclaimed for years and credited to persons who may be dead, who have moved to different locations or who have forgotten they once made a deposit.

Despite the fact that these deposits have been unclaimed for more than a score of years, during which the banks have made efforts to locate the depositors, the sums still remain in the vaults of the institutions awaiting the call of the owners. Interest is compounded as the years pass.

Under the State banking law, he said, savings institutions in Maryland are required to report to the commissioner each year accounts of more than $5 which have been standing for twenty years or more. These accounts, reported to Mr. Page for the last year, totaled $44,242.60.

While a majority of them are far less than $50, there are a few running into the hundreds and thousands. The largest single account, which has stood for twenty years without a cent being added or withdrawn, is in the Eutaw Savings Bank of Baltimore, under the name of Mary E. Rizer, with $5,269 credited to her name. In the same bank, John McFarlin has to his credit $1,038.45.

George Allen and R. M. Turner have on deposit $2,467.88 and $1,398.16, respectively, at the Hopkins Place Savings Bank.

"It is strange," Mr. Page said, "that so much money could be forgotten. It would be hard to estimate the total amount of such accounts now on deposit, but the sum must run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. There are various explanations for the forgotten deposits.

"Most likely the person who deposited the money is dead and left no record of the deposit. Then, again, it is not uncommon for a person to withdraw all the money put into a savings account and forget about the interest due. This probably explains a number of the smaller accounts.

"In other cases, when a person dies leaving no estate except a few dollars in bank, often relatives do not think it worth while to take out letters of administration for such a small amount."

Home-makers Club Members Demonstrate.

A special feature of the Rural Women's Short Course this year will be two demonstrations given by club women, one on clothing and one on a phase of Home Management.

As a preliminary to this, a statewide demonstration team contest is being held, Carroll County Home-makers' have entered enthusiastically into this contest. Since the project for the year is Home Management, Club teams are giving the demonstration at their May meeting and later in the month, these same teams will repeat the demonstrations at the Extension Service Office when they will be judged by Miss Margaret McPheeters, Home Management Specialist, from the University of Maryland.

Littlestown Property Sold.

The Geo. S. Kump building, in Littlestown, Pa., has been sold to Morris Bandas, of North Carolina, who will remodel it and fit it up for an extensive department store. This is the former Ephraim Myers building, on the square, and is a three story brick building, one of the best locations in the town. The present tenants in the building will all be taken care of, though there will be changes in their location.

Genius, not being hereditary, makes it still harder to explain.

The Open Season at Hand for Speed Victims.

The probability is that this year will record the greatest number of fatalities that have yet occurred on account of speeding, both in the air and on land. Aerial navigation, especially, is petty sure to have many more flyers—many more of the amateur, or sporting classes—and just as surely the death list will be largely increased.

And while it is difficult to imagine greater use of autos, or more reckless driving, the year is very likely to record both. Good roads have as yet only made a fair beginning, and it is these roads that boost increased auto sales, and naturally accidents of all classes, follow.

In a word, the whole world is speed crazy. It has become the biggest, as well as most expensive indulgence. There is a competition about it, even, that attracts; it encourages "taking a chance" for the mere thrill of temporary excitement, or for "beating" somebody, or some record.

And, there isn't much to be done about it. Even the law makers would not think of trying to seriously interfere; and the general public—on a majority vote—would likely defeat any curtailment of speed laws on our public roads. The condition is here to stay a while.

And in the meantime, little children, old folks, and the large body of those who make decent use of their opportunities, and act out the "safety first" policy, will continue to make up a large percentage of the dead and crippled. This is the serious outcome of the stunts of the speed maniacs. If they killed only themselves, the loss would not be so great.

How Do they Keep it Up?

"How they do it?" is not such a big question as—"How do they keep it up?"

Lots of business men—and the banks—can perhaps give some light on both questions.

Of course, we largely mean spending money—buying things—gratifying expensive desires. Not just automobiles, but numerous other things—the fellows who never have the money with which to pay cash.

Being chronically in debt is largely habit—and a mighty bad one. The remedy for it is self-denial, and a display of good business sense—high regard for one's credit.

"Pay as you go" is a good old motto; but a better one is, "If you can't pay, don't go." It means the same thing, but is easier understood.

Barring unusual emergencies, almost everybody can say "I owe no man"—and keep it up. And once this rule is formed, it too becomes a habit, and is as easy to keep up as always being in the debtor class.

Always being in debt, carries along with it other bad habits—over-indulgences of various kinds, putting on false fronts, and general undependability. Stability of character rests very largely on financial soundness.

Everybody needs to keep a surplus on hand; not only of money, but of good character and worthiness of credit in case of a pinch—an emergency fund that can be drawn on.

The truth is, lots of men—and women too—lack the courage and honesty to admit that they "can't afford" certain things that cost money; forgetting that they "can't afford" not to admit it, if they want to develop into substantial citizens.

How do they keep it up? There is only one answer. They have not force of character enough to stop being spendthrifts; and in the years to come the question will be answered more plainly.

The Business Year.

If the gyrations of a highly speculative stock market have seemed to distract public attention from business conditions—formerly supposed to have a good deal to do with security values—it is gratifying to observe that somebody is attending to the chores. For there are many indications that business is hitting a stride that will make for a satisfactory twelve months.

Thus Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who has a passion for paying off national debt, is able to announce that for the ten months of the fiscal year he has applied $1,094,000,000 to this purpose. This obligation stands now at $17,847,691,931, still high enough to be a burden, but approximately $9,000,000,000 less than it was at the high point on August 31, 1919. One-third of the national debt, following the war, has been paid. It is worth nothing, in this connection, that the only substantial decrease in Government expenditures for the present year is in the interest account. The current reduction in this item is $38,583,000. The total interest payment is $623,093,842. At the peak of the debt in 1919 the interest charges were $1,052,333,621. The saving in interest of more than $400,000,000 a year is due, of course, to rapid debt extinguishment.

There are other evidences of progress. Commodity prices are tending upward, a process that is certain, if it continues, to have favorable effect on business. Merchants buy in a rising rather than in a declining market. Farm products have made notable advances, wheat and corn holding strong at prices which, it had been insisted, they would not soon reach unless artificially stimulated by legislation. April insolvencies showed the lowest figures for months, with liabilities smaller than have been noted since last September. Now financing amounted in the same month to more than a billion dollars, approximating the peacetime record. The steel business is steady, ingot production for the first four months of the year, as reported by the Iron Age, being likely to go higher than in any previous four months. The automobile industry is entering, apparently, upon a year of exceptional prosperity. Building construction is running at a high rate.—Baltimore Sun.

A Mixed Political Outlook.

Those who delight in mixed political situations, and doubt as to candidates for the Presidency, as well as doubt of their election afterwards, certainly have all they are looking for this year. And whether there will be a "third" party, as four years ago, also enters into the mixture.

The Democrats are practically sure of the nomination of Governor Smith, of New York, as there is no strong opposing candidate—hardly any one of whom is "prominently mentioned" as a possibility. And Secretary Hoover occupies much the same position with the Republicans, but his opponents are stronger.

The matter of election, however, is a different matter for both of the leading candidates. Both parties are split on one or more questions. Perhaps the most pointed trouble with the Democrats is the "wet" and "dry" division, and to some extent the opposition to Gov. Smith because he is a Catholic.

The Republicans have a well developed division in the family—practically an insurgent element that has been in existence for years, that followed La Follette in 1924, and is now mainly known as the "farm bloc" that wants special interest legislation, is in general bad humor with the "east," and what it calls "Wall Street," and is about in the position that it is impossible for it to be fully satisfied—not even in a "third" party.

The Democrats are fortunate this time that there is not a Bryan in the party to throw a monkey-wrench into the works at the Houston convention, and that there does not, as yet, seem to be any strong man on whom the various anti-Smith elements may unite.

Senator Reed, who many thought would be a formidable figure for the nomination, has not developed any worth-while strength, nor has the South, as yet, been able to settle on a man more palatable to that big section than Governor Smith.

Senator Walsh, who had the support of "dry" Democrats and of Mr. McAdoo, one of the candidates for the nomination in 1924, has withdrawn from the race in favor of Gov. Smith. Both are Catholics. What action the "drys" may now take is problematic. There is some support to the opinion that Gov. Donahy, of Ohio, may loom up before the convention as the beneficiary of the "dry" following.

The Republicans are not as yet strongly united on Mr. Hoover, who seems to lack strong personality as a political figure, but who is otherwise exceptionally well equipped for handling the Presidential job. The real trouble in the party is that there are too many pegs for the hole, and Mr. Hoover seems to be handicapped by the fact of his Cabinet position from taking active personal part in the pre-nomination campaign; and also by the fact that there is still a strong "draft Coolidge" following.

The "Equalization" Fee.

The following paragraph from an editorial in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, concerning the "equalization fee" in the Farm legislation bill, seems to be reasonably clear, as follows:

"As the bill stands at present every item of grain, cotton, livestock and meats, or tobacco, going to market in this country shall, upon the determination of a board created under this act, be subject to a levy of such fee as shall be considered necessary to balance the estimated losses in the export transactions in such commodities, authorized by the bill at cut prices.

The specifically proclaimed and authorized "relief for the farmer" is to guarantee him a foreign market for his surplus at a cut price rate, and boost the prices in the local market to make up that loss. It is price-boosting as well as price-fixing."

Apparently this means that the "board" created by the bill is to take the place of the "supply and demand" that has heretofore been supposed to fix prices, by exercising the power to fix prices exceeding those that would otherwise prevail, and by offering cut prices to foreign markets, work off our surplus crops, the U. S. Treasury to make up the loss between the foreign price and the board price in this country.

Same Old Game.

The partisan and sectional politics that has been so potent throughout this pre-presidential campaign session of Congress scored another record in the passage of the misnamed farm-relief measure by the House. It is a misnomer because, as the minority committee report pointed out, those seeking sincerely to aid the farmer would not waste time and effort on a bill that has small chance of becoming a law. Their real motive is particularly apparent in view of the fact that a practical, acceptable program of farm relief was available, one formulated by Secretary Jardine and approved by President Coolidge. Instead they preferred to defer farm relief indefinitely by continuing to play their little political game. For the retention of the unconstitutional equalization-fee provision and other highly objectionable features is a direct bid for a veto.

The scheme, then, is to put the blame on the Administration for the failure of Congress to produce any constructive farm legislation. At the Republican Convention the political farmers will try to stick the equalization fee into the party platform. At Houston their Democratic allies will "deplore" the alleged indifference of Republicans to the farmer's woes. This strategy is predicated on the theory that the farmers are easily fooled. Its proponents may prove to be poor guessers. The minority members of the committee speak of their "sense of duty to the farmer's best interests." Such a consideration has little weight with the political Farm Bloc. It is concerned solely with what it believes to be its own interests. It may be rudely disillusioned.—Phila. Ledger.

Politics Develops Strange Ideas.

John Smith whose business has been conducting a grocery store, Adam Jones who has operated a clothing store, or Frank White who has been an attorney, would not think of suggesting to a public utility company, an insurance company, a railroad or an oil company, that they would like to get into one or the other of those lines of business and be made manager or president of one of such companies. Such a request from a man without previous experience in these lines of business would cause people to think the man so applying for the position was crazy.

But what happens when Smith, Jones or White run for public office and are elected to a state legislature or Congress? Too often, when they become public servants in high executive positions, they become imbued with the idea that they are competent to operate the most intricate lines of business under a public ownership program.

And herein lies the greatest danger of injecting government into business: Men who would be absolutely incompetent to manage the affairs of a private corporation are, under political ownership, chosen as the managers and executives of publicly owned enterprises with the technicalities of which they are entirely unfamiliar. Public office does not, in itself, imbue an individual with superior knowledge. Public ownership of industry does not relieve that industry of any of the actual cost of operation, unless such cost is shifted to the shoulders of the taxpayers.

Whenever an attempt is made to launch the government into business the public sees stagnation, delay and capital discouraged from investing in private undertakings; the locality affected suffers as a consequence.

Witness Muscle Shoals! It will probably remain the plaything of politics to the end of time, and the people will pay the bill.

Look at flood control on the Mississippi River! From a specific problem to be considered, it has already grown to such magnitude and includes such far-reaching schemes that estimated costs are rising above the billion-dollar mark, and the country most vitally affected will probably stand in danger while competitive political interests wrangle over which locality of faction can get the biggest slice of a public expenditure.

Look at the Colorado River where a reasonably priced dam was proposed for flood control! The project has already been before Congress for a number of years and has grown from a flood control dam to a gigantic government-owned hydroelectric development and water supply scheme for the city of Los Angeles, the estimated cost of which has gone up to the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Witness such cities as Los Angeles, Seattle, San Francisco and New York which have run wild on tax expenditures for municipal industrial undertakings. In each instance, public officials who would never think of going to a private corporation and asking for a job unless they were thoroughly qualified by training and experience to handle it, feel entirely free and competent to manage municipal industrial enterprises involving the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars of public funds. The same thing applies in the public ownership schemes which our public servants propose for Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam and similar undertakings.

What is there about public office that causes men to feel they have super-qualifications of judgment and ability which they would never dream of having in private life?

Herein lies the greatest danger to the people and taxpayers if they permit an expansion of public ownership of industry. The taxpayers or stockholders in the publicly owned enterprises, would in the majority of cases, have as managers for their properties, men who would not be qualified by experience and training to hold like positions in private corporations. The taxpayers would always be holding the sack and there would be no financial responsibility or personal incentive in the executive management. Do we want to extend such a system in America?—The Manufacturer.

Always . . a square USED CAR deal from the Buick Dealer

The Buick dealer is in business to stay. His future reputation depends upon his treating used car buyers fairly.

The man who buys a good used car—honestly represented—at a fair price—receives splendid value in transportation.

In his enthusiasm for the car he has bought, and the value he has received, it is only natural for him to look upon the dealer as his friend.

The Buick dealer has many such friends because he represents the true condition of the used cars he offers for sale—because he gives every used car customer a square deal.

Small-Town Dweller

Has Many Advantages

In his book, "American Villagers," recently published, Dr. C. Luther Fry says:

Village inhabitants constitute, on the whole, a more homogeneous population group than do city dwellers. In every case home ownership is more frequent in villages than in cities, and indicates that the villager is less apt than is the city dweller to drift from place to place. This should make for social stability within the village.

The proportions of boys and girls attending school are higher in villages than in cities. This undoubtedly reflects the fact that in villages there are fewer opportunities for gainful employment in industry. These figures, therefore, confirm the general impression that villagers constitute a more homogeneous and more conservative population group than do the inhabitants of cities.

In villages the ordinary man has a larger chance to become his own boss. The relative number of proprietors, officials and managers is at least 70 per cent greater than among city men. Women have a better chance, too. In every case the villages have female proprietors, officials and managers and professional persons in decidedly larger numbers than have the cities, but lower proportions of clerks and semi-skilled workers.

Without question the explanation for these variations lies in the fact that industrial life in villages is far less complex than in cities. Modern methods of big business have not yet affected village life to the same extent as life in cities. One does not find in villages the large stores and factories of the cities. Instead, industry is conducted on a narrow scale by small shopkeepers and proprietors. This is the fundamental fact which accounts for differences in the social-economic status of villagers and city dwellers.

City Expansion Must

Be in Right Direction

Placing American cities on a diet to regulate their growth was among the steps advocated by Colvin Brown of the United States Chamber of Commerce in an address before the Michigan Real Estate association at its twelfth annual convention, at Kalamazoo, Mich.

In seeking a legitimate expansion of their cities, chambers of commerce should have due regard to the nature of the community they already have, the speaker asserted.

"For instance," he said, "not all towns are suited to industrial development, although most of them are. In some towns manufacturing might destroy more values than it creates. Some towns can best be developed residentially, others as health and recreation resorts, and still others as educational centers."

Good Material Pays

The average person building a home is not careful enough about picking out the contractor or the building materials.

Both of these phases of home building are extremely important. A contractor may be a good workman and yet use cheap materials; or he may be a poor workman and use good building materials. In either case the value of the completed home suffers and the home builder does not get what he is actually paying for. There is a great deal of difference in the ability of contractors and the quality of building materials.

If more people realized how important it is to get the best of everything there would be more better homes built for less money and with less annoyance and expense in upkeep and repairs.

Thrill in Building Home

Few persons build a home more than once in a lifetime. When they build they ought to secure the very best that they can afford in design, materials and workmanship.

In this way they get a home that will be admired by everyone and one that can be sold if necessary.

Begin right now on building a home of your own. Consult the builder and building material man. They will help you realize that American ideal—owning a home of your own.

Fall Flower Planting

Fall planting of annual flower seeds is adopting the natural methods of plant reproduction. They mature their seeds, they are scattered about the plant on the soil without any more covering than is washed over them by the rains. They germinate, some in the field and a percentage waiting until the following spring, it being a trick of nature to preserve the plants that not all seeds germinate at once.

Go Slow in Buying Home

Buying or building a home requires the use of sound judgment in seeing that the personal needs of the family are best met with the funds available. It involves not only the carrying on of transactions of financing and buying or building, but it involves the proper determination of location with respect to school, to work and to neighborhood.

Italian's Origin Shown by Method of Eating

The way of eating Parmesan cheese tells the place of origin of an Italian, according to a generally accepted theory. Not only that, but it indicates also his broadmindedness or stinginess in money matters, it is claimed.

If a person pares the covering of his cheese without regard to losing a little of the cheese itself, as a wasteful cook might peel potatoes in New England, that person comes from Rome, one who cares little for money.

However, if the person scrapes the cheese carefully, so as not to waste any of the inside portion, he is a Florentine, careful but not prodigal.

But if the person takes up his cheese in his fingers and merely blows whatever will blow from the outside of the cheese, then he comes from Genoa, never wasting a centesimal, according to the proverb.

Nativity of Corn

Corn, generally believed to have originated in South America, has been found growing in China; but the Chinese corn is of a unique species and it is not a native of the Chinese region in which it was discovered. Researches show that it must have been brought to China long before the voyage of Columbus, for it could not have acquired its distinctive character in the comparatively short time that has elapsed since that period.

Chinese corn is a dwarf plant and its starch is quite different from that of American corn. The leaves grow on either side of the stalk so as to protect it from the hot, dry winds of the desert. They form a sort of horn for the accumulation of pollen.

Chinese corn is excellent for planting in hot countries where common corn does not flourish.

How Great Men Differ

Great men are different from others only in that they have a more intensive knowledge of one thing and use their knowledge with more confidence and power.—American Magazine.

Li Hung Chang the Buffer

Li Hung Chang was a Chinese statesman and diplomat born about 1823. Early in life he became noted as a scholar and soon became prominent in the army by suppressing the Taiping rebellion. His career was most checkered as he was alternately raised to the highest rank in power and degraded and stripped of his honors. In 1896 he made a tour of the world and returning home became even more powerful. His shrewdness and thrift were his outstanding characteristics and he was responsible for much of the progress made by China during his life. He has often been called the "buffer" between China and the rest of the world.

Difficult Language

Pity the Finnish schoolboy! There are many strange things about Finland, and the strangest is the language. It properly is called either "Finno-Ulgrie" or "Ulgro-Finnic," is Asiatic in nature and incomprehensible except to Finns or specialists. And the specialists aver that it is probably the most difficult language in the world. For instance, a noun declines into 15 different cases! That is, every noun has 15 different forms other than those of gender and number. The cases are as follows: Nominative, partitive, genitive, inessive, elative, adessive, ablativae, illative, allative, abessive, prolativae, translative, essive, comitative and instructive.

A CHALLENGE TO CIGAR SMOKERS

who say a good cigar can't be made for 5c

There are lots of five-cent cigars, we admit, that don't always give you full value for your nickel. But here's one that works the other way: Havana Ribbon. You can prove it: Put a Havana Ribbon 'longside some other five-cent cigars. Mix 'em up. Choose and smoke them blindfolded. You'll single out the Havana Ribbon quicker than you can spot a rose in a cabbage patch!

Flavor? Fragrance? Mildness? You simply never before experienced anything like it in a nickel cigar. Because Havana Ribbon contains no bitter, under-ripe nor "flat" over-ripe tobacco. But true-tasting, flavor-laden ripe middle leaves of the plant. And long-filler, at that! If you want to know how we can do it, read some of our other ads. Meantime, don't delay making the above experiment. There's a cigar counter near Havana Ribbon is also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

NEW WAYS TO SERVE FISH

WHEN foreigners came to Hawaii, they found the natives living on a diet of taro, poi made from the taro root, breadfruit, yams and fish. As the fish formed a large part of the protein supply it was especially important in the diet.

Accordingly, much of the native's time was spent in a combination of sport and work—fishing. Sometimes he would go out fishing alone. If a whole school was sighted off the shore, the entire village would catch up a long net and dextrously emmesh the fish. Later, the Hawaiian's love of fishing led him to become the "kanaka" on the whaling vessels.

Fish Plus Pineapple

When Americans came to the islands they were delighted with the fish, too, for they found real sport in catching them. With skill that rivaled the natives; they caught tuna, ulua, dolphin, ono, and other game fish.

Then came the matter of cooking the fish which undoubtedly was delicious. Today, however, we have learned to combine our fish with the delicious product of Hawaii—pineapple. Pineapple provides just that little suggestion of tartness which is so desirable with fish. At the same time the pineapple's delicate color provides a visual interest. Some of the recipes which have been evolved to combine fish and pineapple are given below, and while ulua and dolphin are hardly on the market in this country, acceptable substitutes can easily be found.

Racy Recipes

Tuna Tid-bits:

Fry four slices of bacon in a pan to extract fat. Remove bacon and fry one and one-half cups drained pineapple tid-bits in the fat until slightly brown. Arrange around the edge of a platter. Heat one can of tuna fish and pour into the center of the pineapple ring. Place the bacon over the top. To two tablespoons of fat in the pan (add butter to make this amount if necessary) add two tablespoons flour, and one-half teaspoon salt and stir until thickened, then pour over the fish and pineapple.

Shrimp Crispettes: Beat together three eggs, one level tablespoon flour, salt and pepper to taste. Drain a can of shrimps and roll them in the batter. Then fry in very hot fat until they are crisp and a delicate brown. Drain on oiled paper, place on platter and serve with the following sauce.

Bring one cup strupp drained from a can of crushed pineapple and one-half cup lemon juice to the boiling point. Mix one-half cup sugar, one and one-half tablespoons flour, and one-eighth teaspoon salt and add slowly to the hot liquid. Boil five minutes, add one teaspoon butter and one-fourth teaspoon almond extract and serve.

UNIONTOWN.

A mistake was made in our last week's items. The new pea hulling building was accredited to the Pleasant Valley Canning Company and should have been the A. W. Feeser Co., of Silver Run.

Mesdames, W. G. Segafosse, Harry Haines, Clarence Lockard, B. L. Cookson, visited the apple blossom show, at Winchester, last Friday.

Mrs. Sophia Staub, Mrs. Guy Babylon were visitors in town, last week.

The M. P. Missionary Society was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Erb, Wednesday evening.

Rev. W. H. Brown, a Lutheran minister, of Wellsville, Ohio, visited the Uniontown Charge, over Sunday, preaching at Baust Church in the fore noon, and Winters in the afternoon, and attended the C. E. Service at Uniontown in the evening. Rev. Brown made a very favorable impression. A very good program was arranged by the leader, Miss Miriam Fogle. A number of recitations by the younger ones; duet and solo by others; boys of the choir gave a selection, and a large number of responses were given on the topic. A pleasant surprise was enjoyed when several members of the State Union came, and gave little talks, they were Guy Fowler, Westminster, State Vice-Pres.; Miss Cora Ziegler, Baltimore, State custodian of records. Pres. Mrs. R. H. Singer, appointed her committees. There was an audience of seventy-five. The two contesting groups for most perfect attendance were out with their colors red and blue quite in evidence. Bob White, leader, for next Sunday evening.

G. Fielder Gilbert met with a painful accident, last week. In removing a cap from some of the machinery of his car, the hot water spurting on his arm, scalding it from wrist to elbow and causing much pain.

A game of dodge ball was played here, last week, between the school club and Bark Hill. Score 20 to 3 in favor of Uniontown.

H. B. Fogle, Mrs. W. L. Rentzel, Mrs. C. Crumbacker, Misses Ida Mering, and Clara Bowersox, attended the S. S. Convention in Taneytown, on Tuesday.

Mrs. Rose Repp, who has been on the sick list, is around again.

Paul Simpson started to work for the Newark Shoe Co., in Westminster, on Monday.

A Mothers' Day program will be given by the Junior and Primary departments of the Church of God S. S., on Sunday, May 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Devilbiss attended the funeral of the latter's step-father, Anna Wampler, in Westminster, on Tuesday.

Guests in town have been: Misses Olive Owens and Mary Smeak, Westminster, at D. Myers Englar's; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roland, Hagerstown, at C. E. Myers'; Sterling Brough, at Mrs. A. L. Brough's; Miss Thelma Witter, and friend, Baltimore, at Guy Formwalt's; Samuel King and family, and Will Selby, Union Bridge, Maurice Lansinger and family, Littlestown, and Walter Selby, at Lawrence Smith's; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slagle, Charles Reck, Howard Co., Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Frounfelder, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. An illustrated lecture will be given Thursday evening, 7:45, at the Bethel, by George Mather, Westminster, on his tour of the South.

MANCHESTER.

Rev. Mr. Rhinehart, pastor of the Manchester U. B. Circuit, attended both services at the M. P. Church, Westminster, on Sunday, held in connection with the Seminary Commencement.

Charles A. Miller and family, recently had sale of their property, on North Main Street, and also part of their household goods. Last week, they moved into a house in Harrisburg, where his mother has been residing.

Mr. Milton Miller, of Baltimore, spoke in the interest of the Near East Relief, at Manchester Reformed Church, and at the Lineboro Union Church, on Sunday. Mrs. Bixler, of New Windsor, spoke at Bixler's U. B. Church, under the same auspices, Sunday morning.

The combined C. E. Orchestra of Manchester, managed by Mr. Rosewell Hoffacker, and conducted by Rev. John S. Hollenbach, recently purchased a Deagan full size xylophone from the New Bevin Pa. Band, with which organization Mr. Hollenbach was formerly connected. It is still almost good as new, though bought for less than half the price of a new one. This organization is open for engagements, preferably indoor.

Mr. Rosewell Hoffacker, Vice-Pres. of the Carroll Co. C. E. Union, accompanied by his wife, attended a monthly meeting of the Union at the home of the President Rev. Karl Wareham, Uniontown, Friday night. The meeting of the nominating committee, of which Rev. John S. Hollenbach is a member, met at the same time and place. Mr. Hollenbach was accompanied thither by Mrs. Hollenbach and son, John S., Jr., Miss Flora Albaugh and Mr. Guy Fowler, a member of the committee.

Mental Health of Children.

The importance of emotional control and of other old fashioned traits was stressed by Dr. Esther Loring Richards, Associate Psychiatrist at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, in an address on "Protecting the Mind of Childhood," at the Annual Conference of Maryland Health Officers and Boards of Health, in Baltimore, last week. Many of the grown-up mental misfits, she said, are victims of poor habits of mental hygiene that became established in childhood. The mental health of children can be safeguarded, only by the most careful watching of the habits of child life as they manifest themselves at home and in school. Referring to the popular notion that in this scientific age, "with physical hygiene taking care of the body of the child and psychology and education taking care of the mind of the child, the home can sit back and rest from its labors," she said: "Not a bit of it. Science offers no substitute for the intelligent common sense training of a real home."

Just as medical science has discovered that establishing good physical habits regarding food, sleep, exercise and play gives the growing child a fair chance to develop without undue strain, so, Dr. Richards said, modern psychology has come to the help of parents and teachers and has made discoveries in regard to mental habits and their equally direct bearing on the child's mental health and on the development of his character.

One of the most important of these discoveries, based upon tests made of thousands of growing children is that all children are not cut out of the same pattern and have not the same intellectual capacity. Unwillingness on the part of parents to accept this fact often leads to undue intellectual pressure on children unfitted to stand the pace. Such children become the victims of parental ambition or vanity and are forced into intellectual competition beyond their powers. The result is lack of success, unhappiness, personal bitterness and maladjustment.

A second discovery concerns the habit life of the child and has shown that habit formation in the management of emotions, impulses, craving, appetites, begins in the very young child and gradually becomes fixed.

Suggesting some of the ways by which the mental health of children may be safeguarded and developed in the home, Dr. Richards said "A good start in emotional control is one of the greatest helps parents can give their children—habits of responsiveness having to do with such simple matters as food, bedtime, study hour, punctuality at school, the going on an errand. Don't nag at the child to sit still, to pay attention, to be less noisy to stop sniffing or batting his eyes. Make a few rules dealing with what you expect of him in the way of necessary habit response and let up on the rest of the worries. Having made these few rules, never let the child get away once with excuses.

"But perhaps the most important factor in protecting the mind of childhood is parental realization of the fact that the personality of a child is like a highly polished mahogany table, prone to take the dust and scratches of all sorts of things in its environment. He inevitably takes sides with father or mother in parental disharmonies; he senses parental attitudes of mutual distrust; he senses parental attitudes toward respect for religion and for the observance of law. Every slurring phrase, or sarcastic remark or angry rejoinder registers upon the mind of the child no matter how absorbed he may appear to be with play or book and unconsciously fashions his own growing attitudes and outlooks on life.

"Idealism must be practical to appeal to childhood. Sons and daughters judge parents by the ideals they practice; not by the ideals parents express in words."

Mother: "Helen, I want to know what you and George were doing on the sofa until three o'clock this morning?"

Daughter: "Oh, mamma, didn't your mother ever tell you?"—Exchange.

The Ten Ton Tomato Club.

Ten tons to the acre is the mark that tomato growers of the county will have a chance to shoot at this season in a number of the more important tomato producing sections of Carroll County and other tomato producing counties in the State, where the State Ten Ton Tomato Clubs are being promoted.

Those who follow the stipulated requirements and succeed in producing ten or more tons of tomatoes to the acre will receive recognition of their ability while those who top the list will be awarded valuable prizes. The number of eligibles, it is expected, will be large as there are many growers in the county who can point to average yields of ten tons or better over a period of years. The general average production, however, usually runs below four tons.

The object of the contest, it is pointed out, is not to stimulate production indiscriminately but rather to attract the attention of tomato growers to the factors and methods essential for large and profitable acre yields. Vigorous plants, set in the field as early as possible, proper fertilization and cultivation and disease and insect control are some of the points intended to be emphasized.

The grower in the state who produces the highest yield during the coming season will be awarded a gold watch, valued at $100. Gold watches are also offered for those obtaining second and third places in production. All growers who succeed in obtaining twenty or more tons to the acre will receive gold medals. Silver medals will be awarded growers producing fifteen tons or more but less than twenty; while bronze medals will be provided for those who reach the ten ton mark but fall short of the fifteen ton limit. The prizes are being provided by the Tri-State Packers Association. The three State winners will be the guests of the Association at its annual meeting and will be awarded their prizes at that time.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

In illustrating what we can do when necessity arises, E. G. Cheronbonnier tells the following story of a rabbit and a toad. The toad had fallen in a hole. Try as he would he could not jump out. A rabbit came along, noted his condition, and moved on. Later the rabbit met the toad in a black-berry thicket.

"Well," said the rabbit, "I thought you were stuck in that hole."

"So did I," responded the toad, "till all of a sudden a big snake dropped in there."

"I don't care nuthin' for these vere movin' pitchers," declared old Riley Rezzidew of Petunia. "They don't show nuth'n that I want to see!"

"But you can look at Nagary falls, the Rocky mountains and all sorts of furrin' places," responded an acquaintance.

"Eh-ya! But I never see no Irish men with pink whiskers, like I used to at the medicine shows!"

WHY SHE CUT HER

"Why did you ignore her? She's a diamond in the rough."
"That's why I cut her."

Kings
Life plays with them as she
Plays on with you and me,
And so they often do implore
Pity at some plain pauper's door.

The Obstacle
"No, I reckon not," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, in response to the invitation of the able editor of the Tumbline Torch of Liberty and Tocsin of the Times. "I hain't taking no paper now'days."

"But haven't you plenty of time to read?" asked the scribe.

"Well, I might have if I could ever git ketcht up with my resting."—Kansas City Star.

"HE'S BORED BECAUSE HE TALKS ABOUT HIMSELF ALL THE TIME."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER
GREAT GAME—MONEY

THERE is one thing for which the most of us strive all our lives—MONEY.

Ever since the world began the possession of money by one person has been the incentive for others to seek to take it away and add it to their own stores.

Sometimes this is done by honest means, by the channels of trade. But always there are dishonest and unprincipled individuals who with hooks baited with tempting financial returns are trading on the human desire to get more money and get it as easily as possible.

How much of your money has gone or at this moment is in danger of going to somebody who is dangling in front of you a possible financial return for your hard-earned funds that is tempting you to take a risk that you know is dangerous?

Earning money and saving money are useless efforts unless when you have acquired the money you are wise enough to take care of it. Don't gamble in stocks. Wiser and richer men than you have "gone broke" trying to make money in "the market."

Unless you know about them, do not buy any securities of any kind without the advice of some one who is acquainted with the investment of money.

If your money is in a bank, and that is where it should be unless it is already invested, get some officer of the bank to advise you.

If you think that there is an advantageous opportunity to buy real estate, go to some man who knows real estate and take his advice. It will be better to pay him for the advice than to lose the money.

Look on your money just as you do on your health.

If you have doubts as to whether you are eating the right food, you go to some one in whom you have faith and ask advice, and follow it.

Do the same thing with your pocketbook and its contents. Get good advice and follow it.

If you have been wholly honest with other people in getting your money, be wholly honest with yourself in taking care of it, and you cannot be that if you hope and try to gain more from its investment than it can properly earn.

There is a reasonable expectation from investment. To get less than that is cheating yourself. To try to get more is to seek to cheat the other fellow. And that doesn't pay.

FOR CONVALESCENTS

THE choice of foods for the convalescent diet depends, of course, upon the nature of the illness through which the invalid has just come, as well as upon his personal taste and the whims that may be noticed in his weakened condition. But every effort should be made to provide tempting looking and tasty surprises for the convalescent, just as soon as the doctor recommends solid foods.

Most invalids and convalescents crave the stimulating, mild tartness of the citrus fruits, and these are much more appetizing and delicious to the sick as well as the normally healthy, when kept on the ice until time to serve. A tepid grapefruit or a warmish orange is not appealing at all. A glass of cold lemonade or orangeade, or the clear, undiluted juice of the latter fruit, is always a welcome drink to the invalid or convalescent, and dietitians have proved that the natural salts and minerals of these fruits actually help rebuild the depleted bodily tissues of the patient. Their vitamin content is high, and vitamins are health builders.

Eggs are usually an important item in the convalescent's diet, but he will get unmercifully sick of soft-boiled eggs, and poached eggs on toast, which are the standard home ways of offering them. The eggs can be deftly hidden in delicious omelets, or in nourishing custards and dainty little puddings, such as rice pudding, Brown Betty of several varieties, and in ice cream, which most invalids especially appreciate. Here is a dainty dessert for the convalescent who is just beginning to take solids:

Fruit Snow.
Beat two egg whites until stiff, add one-fourth cupful of orange pulp and juice, continue beating, adding powdered sugar to sweeten. Beat until the mixture will hold its shape, adding a few tablespoonfuls of whipped cream when serving.

CLOUDS, WIND AND RAIN

"JUST at times I cannot help being naughty," said the King of the Clouds.

"I should say that was true all right," said Old Man Weather as he laughed.

"Well, you help me, too, you know," said the King of the Clouds.

"Of course I do," said Old Man Weather. "And I get abused for it, too. Ah, yes, my friend, I do not get so much praise when I play with you. In fact, I am scolded more than you are."

"One hears far more scolding about the Weather than about the Rain itself."

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "it is quite worth the scolding."

"Yes," Old Man Weather agreed, "it is."

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "it was fun last night. My children

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "it was fun last night."

and grandchildren ran races all along the streets—dashing so hard and so fast—and rushing along.

"People said we were coming down in sheets. Of course we weren't. But we were coming down good and fast and the races did become exciting."

"Then some one said it looked as though all the rain were trying to get somewhere, for we were hurrying along so fast—just skipping wildly over the pavements."

"We've all been having a frolic, certainly, even though we've been naughty."

"You were certainly naughty," said Old Man Weather. "How many umbrellas did you and your family blow inside out?"

"I didn't keep count," said the King of the Clouds. "Mr. Wind helped us do that. Oh, he is fine in that game."

"Yes, you're a splendid pair for naughtiness when you get started and then you have all your families to help you."

"Well, well, to think only the day before the river nearby was so calm and the opposite shore looked so near to those who were on the other side, and the river and the shore were talking about boats and fishes and one thing and another."

"Then the day before that everything was so bright and clear and the colors were so blue along the river and it looked as though it were never going to rain."

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "I must say that I didn't know two days ago or a day ago what I was going to do. It was one of those lovely parties one gets up on the spur of the moment, which means that they're parties suddenly begun."

"Yes," said Old Man Weather, "and people were out in their fine clothes and their good hats and their best shoes and you surprised them—and didn't stop as though Prince Shower were managing things."

"Prince Shower is different from you, King of the Clouds."

"Yes," agreed the King of the Clouds, "he is. Prince Shower gets rather tired of doing anything for very long at a time."

"I'm different from that. Very different, indeed. And if you say I gave the people a surprise party, too—well, that, too, adds to my naughtiness and I was thoroughly naughty this last time, thoroughly naughty."

"You were, you were, but Old Man Weather is to blame, too, and so is Mr. Wind."

"What's that?" whistled Mr. Wind.

"What's that you say of me, Old Man Weather?"

And when he heard what it was that Old Man Weather had said, instead of being angry he was proud and stuck out his chest and puffed and blew with great pride.

Then the King of the Clouds and Old Man Weather and Mr. Wind whistled this song:

Sometimes we three are ever so bad,
But it makes us feel happy and gay and glad.

ACCIDENTS

LAST year about 15,000 persons were killed in accidents, and about 50,000 were injured by fires, while nearly 6,000 lost their lives by drowning. The loss of 7,500 lives was due to railroad accidents. A total loss of life last year due to accidents has been averaged at 87,000, an average of 240 per day. Accidents that did not cause death also took its toll last year. A little more than 100,000 persons lost arms, eyes, hands, or met with some other serious accident, causing suffering, expense and loss of earning capacity. The economic loss of all these accidents has not been calculated, but it must run into the millions.

Many reasons have been advanced to account for these accidents. Perhaps they are due not so much to a careless attitude toward life as to the speed and "jazz spirit" of our age.

The world was not made in a day. It takes time to develop a business. Responsible positions are not achieved in a hurry. Such places of trust must be earned by long waiting and patient striving. Many a good chance for advancement has been lost by being in too great a hurry. Competence is a matter of experience. The patient routine of daily toil furnishes the best vantage ground for large places of trust. The man at the head of any organization began at the bottom. By slow processes through long spans of time was he prepared for leadership.

Too much speed may ruin an otherwise hopeful career.

The piston rod of an engine can go forward only as far as it goes backward. Patience to wait in preparation for the future opportunity is the price of progress.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

CALLING THEM 'STUCK UP'

THIS bit of slang is quite familiar in the vernacular to describe a snobbish person, one with an air of standoffishness or superiority.

For the origin of the term we must go to birdland. Any observer of the peacock or the plain farmyard turkey, for instance, knows that when angry or in an encounter with an enemy the birds raise the erectile feathers with which nature has equipped them, either on their crests, on their backs or in their tails.

In the parlance of the farmyard these manifestations of indignation, were "stuck-ups." And it is from that source that we have "stuck up" for the human who shows pride or snobbishness.

Votive Offerings in Gratitude to Saints

Votive offerings are still a popular way of expressing gratitude, as the exhibition at Naples shows. The ancients and the early Christians made use of this custom, not only in sign of thanksgiving, but as a preventative measure. Pierre Van Paassen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. In cases of illness they would make haste to deposit a model of the injured limb or organ in the church in full faith of obtaining a cure. As time went on the church forbade this as savoring of magic, and only officially admits to the altar thank offerings for grace received. Yet to this day, in the neighborhood of Naples, mothers weigh their children and offer the same amount of wax to the virgin or their patron saint to keep the little ones from dwindling away. In southern Italy plague, pestilence and famine, battle, murder and sudden death, tempests, earthquakes and thunderbolts are all, in popular belief, under control of some one special saint who has power to relieve sufferers from their evil influences. Thus St. Nicholas and St. Anthony protect the cattle; St. Paul cures snake bite; St. Ercolano strengthens the legs; St. Donno cures hydrophobia; St. Catherine, St. Raphael and St. Pasquale are fervently invoked when girls want husbands.

World's Great Had to Overcome Grave Ills

Not an individual living is absolutely free from handicaps. Some of us are physically disabled, others are mentally harassed, hundreds suffer both, writes Louis E. Bisch in the American Magazine. We struggle with deformity; we fight disease; we wrestle with doubts, feelings of inferiority, oversensitiveness, uncontrollable temper, all sorts of distressing disabilities. Even the greatest among us are handicapped like that. Every human being is prevented somehow from fulfilling his highest destiny.

Many of our greatest men were handicapped by disease, and somehow surmounted it. Milton and Handel were blind. Beethoven was deaf and Keats had tuberculosis. Pope was deformed. Caesar suffered from epilepsy. Lamb and his sister were subject to repeated attacks of insanity. Fielding wrote his rollicking book, "Tom Jones," while melancholy. Florence Nightingale did some of her best executive work while bedridden. The list, indeed, is a long one. These people achieved in spite of a hardship.

Not if He Could Help It

The other evening a young married woman took her three-year-old son to a church supper. Her mother was a member of the organization that was giving the supper. As the daughter and her son were about to seat themselves at one of the tables, the mother, who was helping serve, said to her daughter: "If that kid were mine I would have cleaned him up a little before I brought him here. Why didn't you wash him? His hands and face are a sight!"

"I did want to wash his face and hands," said the young ultramodern mother, "but he didn't want to be washed. I asked him if he wanted me to wash him, and he said, 'No.' Didn't you, honey?"

"Sure! I don't want to be washed," agreed little youngster with an independent, self-satisfied tone of finality.—Indianapolis News.

Famous Jewish Order

The Essenes were a Jewish brotherhood which was founded probably after the Maccabees at least two centuries before Christ, existing to about 200 A. D. The records of them are not found in the Bible or rabbinical literature, but certain profane writers such as Pliny, Josephus and Philo describe them as religious separatists, having a strict code of ceremonial observances much more rigid than the ordinary ceremonial of Judaism. They also were celibate and lived in communities holding all things in common. The requirements for membership were most rigid, requiring long periods of fasting and discipline. There is no probability that Jesus Christ was an Essene, but it has been advanced that John the Baptist was of a type which would be acceptable.

Hardy's Roving Eye

Thomas Hardy's delight in observation never failed; he had the roving eye as well as the "musing eye." No monolith could he pass without visions of the Roman Legionnaires. The famous description of Egdon Heath may seem in memory but a somber and boding landscape; return to it and, mingled with the scenery, you will find interesting facts drawn from Doomsday Book and the antiquary Leland which at once exhibit Hardy darting curiously from shelf to shelf.—J. C. Squire in the Observer.

Powerful Stimulant

The coca plant of South America is a shrub with small, light green leaves which have a somewhat bitter taste. The natives powder these leaves and mix them with lime to form what they call "ypadi."

The stuff is chewed and is an amazing stimulant. With a supply of this in a pouch, the South American Indian will walk for two or even three days on end without food. But coca must be used with great care, for if the doses are too heavy they turn the chewer of the leaf into an idiot.

SERVING 4500 MEALS A DAY IN JOHNS HOPKINS HOSPITAL

By Blanche Theodore

A GREAT hospital is somewhat like a great hotel. Both must serve large quantities of food. Both must fickle capricious palates, since the hotel hopes the guest will come back for a special dish, while the hospital hopes through specialized nutrition, to help effect a special cure, since food is often an important factor in the treatment of disease. This is particularly true in the treatment of diabetes. So much insulin will take care of so much food. If you do not get enough of that particular kind of food—well, as one of the nutrition experts says at Johns Hopkins, "the patient is apt to get a shock, that's all."

Many Kinds of Diets

The nutritional or "diet" side of the great hospital institution of Johns Hopkins is about as interesting a subject as one would care to know. Not only does this institution serve four thousand five hundred meals a day divided between its more than seven hundred patients and its almost equal number of staff, but the hospital has, on its food treatment side, some sixty to eighty special diets. These might be roughly divided into the general classifications of diabetic, malnutritive, anemic, cardiac, gastric, nephritic, obesity and epileptic diets. The subdivisions and individual ramifications in these diets are enormous. In each general classification no two patients would probably tolerate the same diet. Each one must be scientifically graded to the patient's requirements, and each, according to the diet ideals of this great institution, must be as nearly normal as possible.

A nearly normal diet, or a diet as nearly normal as possible, aids in the great medical healing mission of Johns Hopkins, conceded to be the most thorough and the most remarkable in the United States.

Specific Diets

For instance, one of the most interesting diets given at this institution is the now famous Murphy-Mimot diet, of glandular meats, kidney, liver, sweet-breads, for the treatment of pernicious anaemia. The patient must eat one and one-half pounds of liver a day, besides large quantities of fruits and vegetables, varied now and then with red meats. Canned fruits and vegetables are invaluable in this diet, since they can be had all the year around. This diet is so perfectly built up, that if a patient comes to the hospital and is unable to begin immediately the creating of good red blood through the assimilation of liver, the liver is pulverized and given to the patient in liquid form!

The diabetic diets which emerge from the spotless perfection of the Johns Hopkins kitchen, each in its individual box, the portions meticulously weighed and compounded to the fraction of a gram, are perhaps the most interesting of all. Each dish tagged with its brave little weight slip, seems to defy the patient NOT to eat the food it contains, since it is not only palpably so attractive to look at, but will do him an incalculable amount of good! These accurately weighed portions of food in their uncompromising metal dishes seem like tiny soldiers marching on to the victory of health, waving their flags gayly as they go. In the diabetic diets both fresh and canned vegetables are used, and in many cases the vegetables specially canned without salt, and the fruits specially canned without sugar.

Routine Diet List

After the important diets for special impairments, come the routine diet lists, which consist of the liquid diets, the medical soft, the surgical soft, the light diet which consists of a normal day's menu of 2500 calories. Then there is the amplified diet which brings the total caloric food value up to 3000. And then back of these specialized diets are the patients to whom "eats" may mean something and may not, and the small army of doctors and nurses and hospital staff to whom "eats" do mean something, and a whole lot, too!

To feed this small army daily Johns Hopkins must buy large quantities of food, not only every day, as fresh vegetables, salad greens and so forth, but in futures, as canned fruits, vegetables, meats, fishes, jams, and in semi-futures to keep in their frigid commissary, fresh meats, fresh fruits, dairy products and so forth.

The Commissary

The commissary department of this great hospital is about as interesting a place or places, as one would want to visit. In the meat room, so cold that one's breath steams, hang over a thousand pounds of fresh meat, lamb quarters, beef quarters, veal, pork, piles of cured hams which look too delicious for words, sides of bacon, and other smoked meats. In the dairy room, also cold, are bottles of cream, crates of eggs, tubs of butter. In still another room are the fresh vegetables, fruits, crates of crinkly lettuce heads which make you feel there can't be any lettuce left in the world!

Their fascinating "store" of canned foods makes one fairly gasp. Rows of pineapple in number ten cans, rows of peaches, pears, apricots in the same large cans. Peas, string beans, corn and tomatoes, crowd each other on the meticulously clean shelves, asparagus peeps out beside them, and along further down in the room come the canned fishes, salmon, tuna, sardine and shrimp. Johns Hopkins buys fruits, especially peaches, pineapples and pears as well as tomatoes, peas, corn and string beans in both the large number ten can, and the smaller number two and a half can. More canned tomatoes are purchased than any other canned fruit or vegetable.

"If a patient wants just a dish of peaches we don't have to open the big can," the purchasing agent informed me, explaining why the different sized cans of fruit were bought.

Johns Hopkins also buys its jams and jellies in cans, preferably to those preserved in glass. They can be handled much faster and with no fear of breakage.

The kitchen where these supplies are prepared for patients and staff consumption is perhaps the most interesting of all, since when we arrived there on our tour of inspection, broth was boiling in the forty gallon cookers, bread was being sliced by the electric bread slicer, the ward and private boxed diabetic dinners were being placed on the food trucks to be hauled through the tunnels connecting the buildings, to their prospective consumers. It all looked very busy and happy, quite as if the hospital workers enjoyed preparing the dinners, and the patients, especially those on the diabetic diets, were going to enjoy eating them!

A regular hotel system is in force for those patients who may have practically what they like to eat. A menu is sent them with whatever has been prepared for dinner for these particular patients, and they are allowed to mark what they want. The others have to eat what they get, those patients who are demonstrating the value of one of Johns Hopkins sixty or eighty special diets!

Special Diet Laboratory

The special diet laboratory which is part of this great institution's nutritional equipment, is also a teaching laboratory where student nurses learn by practical work the exact science of hospital dietetics.

When a special diet is prescribed by the physician, it is sent to the special diet laboratory which is in charge of graduate dieticians. The diet is prepared by student dieticians, checked by student and again by graduate dieticians and sent in individual boxes to the wards or private rooms, where it is attractively arranged on a tray by expert hands and taken to the patient. Each diet is changed from day to day according to special conditions. Patients are visited frequently by members of the dietary department, so likes and dislikes are checked up accurately. The student dieticians of Johns Hopkins are all college graduates with a degree in science.

The hospital has its own bakery, and makes all the cakes, pies, breads and so forth, which are consumed within its walls. The hospital also makes its own ice, and has its own laundry.

The nutritional side of Johns Hopkins is as big as the physical proportions of the hospital itself, which covers fourteen and one-half acres and includes twenty-one buildings. But its medical and surgical fame is even greater, for it has extended to all parts of this country and into many foreign countries.

JESUS ENTERS JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, thy King cometh unto thee; He is just, and having salvation.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Hailing Jesus as King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Hailing Jesus as King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Kingly Qualities of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Asserts Messianic Authority.

I. Jesus Officially Presented to the Jewish Nation as King.—vv. 1-11.

This should not be designated the triumphal entry, for it was so only in outward appearances. The shouts were empty and meaningless. It was the promised King publicly offering Himself to the nation.

1. The preparation (vv. 1-6).
(1) Two disciples sent for the ass (vv. 1-3).

He told them just where to go to find it, and how to answer the owner's inquiry. The providing of this animal was the working out of the divine plan according to Christ's foreknowledge.

(2) Obedience of the disciples (vv. 4-6). Without asking why, they go at His bidding. The command may have seemed strange and unreasonable, but they rendered explicit obedience.

2. The entry into Jerusalem (vv. 7-10).

(1) The disciples put their garments upon the ass and set the Lord upon it (v. 7). This act showed their recognition of Him as their King (II Kings 9:18).

(2) The multitude (vv. 8, 9). Some spread their garments in the way; others who had no garments to spare cut down branches and strewed them in the way, which was just as acceptable unto Him. This entry was in fulfillment of a prophecy uttered some five hundred years before (Zech. 9:9). They uttered the very cry which the prophet foretold. This is a clew to enable one to understand the prophecies which are unfulfilled as yet. If the prediction of His first coming was thus literally fulfilled, we must believe that those of His second coming will likewise be literally fulfilled. The prediction of Zechariah 14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9:9.

(3) The Lord's action (v. 10).

Upon entering the temple, He looked around upon all things; but as it was eventide He withdrew to Bethany with the twelve.

II. Jesu Exercising His Royal Authority (vv. 12-19).

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv. 12-14).

The fig tree is typical of the Jewish nation. The fruit normally appears on the fig tree ahead of the leaves. The presence of the leaves is the assurance of fruit. This was an acted parable of the Lord's judgment on Israel for pretension of being the chosen people without the fruits thereof.

2. The temple cleansed (vv. 15-19).

For the various sacrifices; in the temple, many oxen, sheep and doves were needed. Many persons came from the distant parts of the land; therefore it was impracticable for them to bring their sacrifices with them, so they brought money and bought the animals needed. This privilege the law had granted to them (Deut. 14:24-26), for the exchange was necessary. When evil men used it as an opportunity for gain it became an offense before God. It defiled His house. Jesus made Himself a scourge of cords and drove out the money changers, overthrowing their tables and pouring out their money. By this act He declared Himself to be the Lord of the temple and one with God. That which God intended to be a "house of prayer for all nations" was made a "den of thieves." This action symbolized the call of the nation to repentance.

III. Jesus' Authority Challenged (vv. 27-33).

They challenged Him to show by what authority He accepted the honors of the Messiah, and who gave Him the authority to cast out the money changers. This seemed to place Jesus in a dilemma. He responded by a question which placed them in a counter dilemma. Since John was His forerunner, the divinity of His commission rested upon that of John. They were powerless to discredit John, because the people accepted him as God's prophet. If they had accepted John's message they would have been prepared to accept His. They weakly confessed that they could not answer the question.

Route to Glory

"He must increase, but I must decrease." This is your route to glory. Unless He increases in your life and you decrease, your life will be contrary to what He wants it to be. In fact, it will be fruitless. In all things He must have the pre-eminence if you would be fruitful for Him."

Worthy Qualities

A man cannot persistently admire worthy qualities and not eventually partake of them.—Brown.

Consort of Napoleon

Made Baths Popular

This business of taking a daily bath, although now pretty well established as a hygienic measure, really got its start not as an aid to health, but as a beauty fad. The woman who made the bathtub famous was none less than the little West Indian Creole, born as Tascher de la Pagerie, who rose to be Empress Josephine.

Before the advent of the Nineteenth century baths had exclusively been a sign of ill health, an eccentricity, in fact, indulged in only on medical advice. Josephine's habit of bathing every day in chiseled silver bathtubs, and of constantly washing in silver basins of all shapes and sizes, therefore, surprised France not inconceivably.

It does seem that Josephine carried the bathing business a little far. According to the records she spent three hours each morning at her toilette, what with selecting the day's make-up, costume and accessories. But as social arbiter of the day she did establish the bath as a fashionable practice in the European courts.

Apparently it wasn't to preserve that schoolgirl complexion that Napoleon's consort went to such ends. The records reveal that she spent 3,000 francs a year for rouge, or approximately $300 translated into prices of today—a considerable dab of rouge!—Baron De Meyer in Harper's Bazar.

Saw Heaven as Land

of Perpetual Summer

In religion as developed by the Assiniboin Indians those who were good went to a hot place after their death and those who had been at odds with established customs went to an eternal punishment of frigidty. This tribe frequented the Northwest, where the higher altitudes and mountain climate impressed them with the idea that continual sunshine and freedom from winter's icy blasts constituted about the highest happiness obtainable, says Father De Smet, a missionary who lived for a while with the Assiniboin.

"They believe that in this heaven the climate is tropical and game is abundant and the rivers are well stocked with fish. Their hell is the reverse: its unfortunate inmates dwell in perpetual snow and ice and in the complete deprivation of all things," he wrote. Thus, this tribe, instead of saying that a departed one had "gone west," referred to his having "gone south."—Detroit News.

New York Had No Show

Towns as well as persons have always shown a disposition to get the "big head" on any possible provocation. When the Erie canal was in course of construction Governor Clinton of New York visited Lockport, which the citizens dreamed was to be the great inland city of the continent. Buffalo was hardly born. Lockport was to be the key of the commerce that was to flow from the Great Lakes and the true seat of the great flouring mills and manufactories north of Mason and Dixon's line. The governor did not throw any cold water on their enthusiasm, but ventured to remark that New York city would derive immense advantages from the canal. Whereupon the wisecracks shook their heads and said to him: "Too far from Lockport, governor. Too far from Lockport!"

The Taste Test

Walter and Lawrence were in the habit of saving a part of their dessert from the evening dinner for consumption the next afternoon, and, in accordance with this custom, two small cakes had been placed in the cracker jar for them. William, being the first on the scene the next afternoon, went to the jar. He found only one cake, and a large piece had been bitten out of that. Full of wrath, he went up stairs and roused his brother.

"Say," he demanded, "I want to know who took that big bite out of my cake?"

"I did," sleepily answered Lawrence.

"What'd you do that for?"
"Well, when I tasted it I found it was your cake, and so I ate the other one."

Hospital in Lonely Spot

What is probably the loneliest hospital is on the Victoria river and serves the vast cattle raising district of northern Australia. The nearest railway and post office is 80 miles away, and it is 400 miles to the nearest doctor, dentist or druggist. Mail for the nurses stationed there arrives every six weeks and supplies are brought in once a year. There virtually is no road to the institution, and it requires teams of 40 mules each to haul these supplies for the last 80 miles. Because of the loneliness, two years is all the nurses are allowed to remain on duty.

Explaining Myopia

Some justification for calling a near-sighted motorist a "poor fish," was advanced recently at the convention of the American Academy of Optometry. It was said that near-sightedness, or myopia, is prevalent because man has not yet completely lost some of the characteristics of a fish. His eyes naturally diverge to the right and left instead of looking straight ahead. The inner muscles of the eye, in trying to correct this and retain the parallelism of the vision, subject the eyes to a strain which produces myopia.

Long Oration Spoiled

Evening for Senator

A prominent man in public life—a senator, it may be said without fear of embarrassing him—was the principal speaker at a recent banquet. More than that—he was the victim of one of those persons whose duty it is to speak as curtain-raiser to the main attraction of the evening and who forgets himself in his own flow of oratory.

He went on and on and the reporters were getting restless and worried about making the final editions with the principal speaker's important talk. Finally, the senator handed a reporter a message: "How long can you men wait?" He was given the time and then asked in a message how long the gentleman speaking was going to hold the floor. He courteously replied—for it can again be safely said that the curtain-raiser was also a member of the upper house of congress—that he thought he would speak only 20 minutes longer. Time went on and the speaker went on, and when it became apparent that he would go on for some time longer, the gentlemen of the press received another note from the important senator. It read: "All prophecies are withdrawn."—Philadelphia Record.

Joy of Exploration

Found in Adventure

One is often asked what is the attraction and what are the joys of polar exploration. The answer is—Adventure—going where man has never gone before. Achievement—discovering something of value to mankind, such as the whale-fishery of South Georgia; or ramming your way through ice or any difficulties under steam or sail. The wonderful pure beauty of these regions . . . and last, but not least—comradeship—the comradeship of men. Men who fight alongside you, toil with you, laugh with you, and chaff you. . . . Pals who stand by each other through thick and thin; who share trials, hardships, joys, dangers and food, and are determined, at all hazards, to "see it through" together. For such men you feel a great affection, and the results are teamwork and loyalty of the finest, highest quality, with joy of memory that never fades away.—From "Under Sail in the Frozen North," by Commander F. A. Worsley.

Beauty From the Beast

What so free, do you think, as a reptile gliding along in its own Southern swamp? Yet ever these wild creatures are being trapped and killed and made into leather shoes.

The tanning of a reptile's skin is accomplished by means of secret mixtures known only to manufacturers. English and Dutch merchants first put on the market goods made from the skin of a water snake of Java and Sumatra. The women of Paris carry bags made from the skin of the terrible python, and probably never think of it, though they would shrug their shoulders and tell you they were terrified of snakes. Even the fearful boa constrictor contributes its skin to the call of fashion.

No Written Constitution

England and France do not have written constitutions in the generally accepted sense of the term. The present government of Great Britain is based upon a series of acts and fundamental laws passed since the signing of Magna Charta. Parliament, however, is supreme and can make laws which do not agree with those acts often spoken of as "the British constitution." The government of France is based on several organic acts passed after the fall of Louis Napoleon. These acts do not constitute a written constitution in the sense of our constitution.—Exchange.

Inert Gases

Both nitrogen and helium are inert gases, without chemical action on other substances and they would probably remain indefinitely unchanged in sealed containers. Nitrogen may be obtained by removing oxygen from the air or by the decomposition of certain ammonium compounds. Helium is found in certain natural gases, from which it is obtained, or it may be separated from atmospheric nitrogen by passing it over heated magnesium, or from liquid air by means of fractional distillation.

Tribute to a Pretty Girl

I know a pretty girl not a day over eighteen, and the most impudent human being I have ever known.

Not bad impudence; it is the beautiful kind of "nerve" smart women know how to exercise.

The impudence she displays, in a young man would be rudely exposed, but when exercised by this pretty girl, men almost regard it as divine—

A shadowy word they use a great deal and know little about.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

America's Motto

When John Adams was minister to Great Britain in 1787 it was suggested to him that the Latin phrase meaning "out of many, one" would make a fitting motto for the new independent colonies. On his return to America he transferred the suggestion to his friend, Charles Thompson, secretary of congress, who in 1792 reported his design for a government seal in which the phrase, E Pluribus Unum, appeared on a ribbon held in an eagle's beak.

Protect Your Investment in Your Model T Ford

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to make parts until, as Henry Ford himself says, "the last Model T is off the road."

More than eight million Model T Fords are still in active service, and many of them can be driven for two, three and five years and even longer.

So that you may get the greatest use over the longest period of time at the lowest cost, we suggest that you take your Model T Ford to the nearest Ford dealer and have him give you an estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.

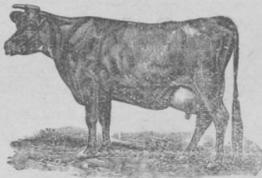

You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure may enable you to maintain or increase the value of the car and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

No matter where you live you can get these Ford parts at the same low prices as formerly and know they are made in the same way and of the same materials as those from which your car was originally assembled.

Labor cost is reasonable and a standard rate is charged for each operation so that you may know in advance exactly how much the complete job will cost.

Tomato Juice For Babies

THE business of raising better babies was started a few years ago with news from nutrition and bio-chemical laboratories that tomato juice, either from raw fruit or canned tomatoes, was being substituted by many physicians for orange juice. Today results are coming in—in the form of better babies.

Way up in the mountain district, a certain Welfare Center prescribes health for multitudinous mountain babies. Last Spring the nurse watched the mothers come to the Center. Just released from a winter in the snow-bound fastness of the hills, they came to buy spring supplies and have their children examined. The children were finer and sturdier. When the nurse commented on their improvement, a mother of eight explained it thus: "We had no oranges. You gave me small cans of tomato to last all winter. We had cow's milk till the cow went dry. Then I used evaporated milk with tomato juice and the rest of the formula. None of them have been sick."

Here are some of the precautions the nurse had given. Use quality grades of tomatoes. Scald the outside of the can to assure perfect cleanliness before plunging into it the scalded blade of the can-opener. Pour the juice into a sterilized jar, holding back the pulp with a scalded spoon. If a sieve is used for straining, scald the sieve. Set the covered jar beside the milk in a refrigerator or cold place. It will keep 48 hours.

"They Do Say!"

That it always pays to be fair.
That courtesy on one side never lasts long.
That a fool may give a wise man counsel.
That a good servant makes a good master.
That a good maxim is never out of season.
That the mainspring of a watch is two feet long.
That confession of a fault makes half amends of it.
That a good name keeps its luster in the dark.
That the theories of jealousy are always warped.
That a man may lose his goods for want of demanding them.
That it is wise to be slow to promise and quick to perform.
That some people ought to join the anvil chorus, the way they knock.
That when a man gets so sour that he can't taste sugar, he is bitter.
That people, like printing presses, must leave a good impression to be admired.—Exchange.

POULTRY CLINIC

FIREMEN'S BUILDING

May 14, 7:30 P. M.

You are invited to attend a Poultry Clinic to find out the real cause of the trouble you are having with your chickens.

AN EXPERT on Poultry Diseases from Barker, Moore & Mein Co., will open up the birds you bring in and see what is wrong, also tell us how to correct conditions.

Let us bring a chicken—or chick—so that we can see the different diseases in our community. Owners of birds will not be made known. There will be no charge, or attempt to sell you anything.

Men and women invited. Be sure to come.
