TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, FRIDAY, AUGUST 31, 1928.

CARROLL COUNTY FAIR AT TANEYTOWN.

All Plans well under way for the Year's Big Event.

All plans are progressing for the opening of the Carroll County Fair, Sept. 11, and the outlook for a good fair is said to be very bright, for free attractions, the exhibits, the races, and every feature that goes to make up a county fair.

There will be three free attractions this year; the "Three Valiers," versatile entertainers, using dogs and pigeons in their funny stunts; "Foolish, Wise and Freckles," the chief actor being a mule; "The Phunny Ford," a riot of fun with a Ford car. The night shows will be especially attractive with a woodwful display of tractive, with a wonderful display of Fireworks, Wednesday and Thursday nights, and music and dancing.

The racing program will also be strong, and the exhibits in all departments promise to be unusually large and varied. In brief, the program of tions at 8:15; Midway open.

Friday, Sept. 14, 1:30 P. M., races.
Free performances. All school children admitted free until 4 o'clock, P. Fat hog auction. Dancing in the evening. The gates will open each day at 7:00 A. M., and close at 11:30 P. M. An ample police force will be present each day and night, with authority to keep the peace and make arrests.

Baseball in Taneytown on Saturday.

There will be a real game of baseball in Taneytown, on Saturday af-ternoon at about 2:30, with the strong Westminster team. The exact lineup of the Taneytown can not be defi-nitely stated, but it will include Moul, last year's catcher, and likely Cromer also of last year's team, and perhaps Minnick for pitcher. The other six will be Taneytown players.

A good attendance is asked. There is not likely to be any admission fee to the ground, but a liberal offering will be necessary with which to meet the expenses. Should this game be well patronized, perhaps other games will be arranged for.

A Very Poor Corn Crop.

Our attention has been called to a misstatement made in the Record a few weeks ago, that there would be a "normal crop of corn." This is now very clearly wrong. The first estimate was made on the appearance of the stalk growth, which is more lusty than usual; but, the ears are not

The best judges now say the crop will not average more than half nor-mal, if it does that; and some farmers will fall far below that. Besides, the ears that are on the stalks are mostly small and many stalks have This is true both of field corn and the canning variety, The extreme wet weather and the heat, coming together on alternate days, was likely responsible for unhealthy growth. Besides, there is a very large acreage on low ground that is not worth harvesting at all.

A Smutty Story Analyzed.

This week F. W. Oldenburg, Extension Agronomist of the Agricultural college, has been in the county working with County Agent, L. C. Burns in giving demonstrations on treating wheat with Copper Carbonate dust to control stinking smut. For several years this work has been conducted in the county with great results accomplished. Mr. Oldenburg discussed different forms of dust and demonstrated the treating of wheat in the way he recommends it to be done.

Meetings were scheduled as follows Thursday, August 30, at 10:30 A. M., at Englar and Sponseller's Mill, Lib-

Similar demonstrations will be held in the county prior to seeding this There will be a Smut exhibit booth with all the literature available on the subject at your County Fair. This wil be a good place to get and learn methods of using the Copper Carbonate dust to control stinking smut. According to reports from the County Agent's office, there will be much wheat treated in Carroll County again this year. Dust can be secured from most all grain elevators in the county, as well as a number of feed stores and drug stores.

New Designs for Desk Blotters.

We have added to our stock, several handsome patterns of colored blot-ters for desk tops, and for making up into various forms of Christmas novelties for the writing desk. We have had numerous calls, of late, for such blotters, and are now prepared to supply them. They can also be cut up into handsome advertising blotters, any size, and printed to suit

SOME PRINTERS' ERRORS

And Incidentally, one in The Record, Last Week.

Last week, in our first editorial under the caption of "The Record in the Campaign," the type made us say— "for the information of those who may not be acquired with our attitude", instead of "may not be acquainted." This was a bad one, but still not quite the equal of those that appear below, clipped from The American Press,

Robert Barker and Martin Lucas, the two King's printers in the reign of Charles I, will live on in story because for some reason or other the word "not" was omitted from the Seventh Commandment in the so-called Wicked Bible.

The blunders of the printer, unlike those of the physician or lawyer have an extraordinarily long life. Often an omitted letter in an advertise-ment or a story will bring the ad or story to the attention of millions of people who would otherwise never have seen it.

For instance, this classified ad recently appeared in a daily newspaper: "For Rent—Room with one large widow." Reprinted in other newspapers, the ad with its one omitted letter brought chuckles to many more than the readers of the newspapers in which it originally ap-

Occasionally in the attempt to correct a typographical error an even worse mistake is made. A newspaper once described a Colonel who fought in the Civil War as a "bottle-scarred veteran." In a subsequent edition it tried to correct the error, but the result was that the correction read a 'battle-scared veteran."

Another editor was made to say that at a wedding "the roses were punk." When he tried to explain later that he didn't mean to cast aspersion on the roses, the intended correction read thus: "We didn't intend to say the roses were punk. What we meant was that the noses at the wedding were pink." The editor is reported to have left town.

Lost and Found Articles.

The automobile is responsible for a condition that comparatively few take into consideration. Articles lost on the public highways stand a much slighter chance of being returned to their owner now, because they may be found by an auto driver living hundreds of miles away, and taken along. Of course, the proper thing to do is for the finder to take the ar-ticle—if valuable—to the nearest newspaper office, and advertise it; but even then, the chance of recovery is much less than before the advent of the auto. It may not be convenient to hunt up a newspaper office, five or ten miles away; besides the loser may also be a non-resident of the community, and finder and loser going in opposite directions at 40 miles an hour. And to add to the uncertainty, the loser may not have an idea as to where his loss occurred.

But, the finder should make a real effort to find the owner, before exercising finders' rights, and the best plan is to leave the found article in hands of some responsible person, and advertise it in some newspaper in the community where the find occur-

Road Work in Frederick County.

The Frederick News, last week, reported that much of the road repair work in the county, done since the early rains, has been washed away by later rains as fast as the repairs were made. This has been especially true in Urbana district.

Other sections of the county where road improvements is taking place include a macadam road of 2 3-10 miles from Walkersville to the Emmitsburg erty St.; Thursday, Aug. 30, at 2 P. PLAN FOR DEDICATION OF FORT M'HENRY.

Great Celebration now in Course of Preparation.

With the booming of artillery, the heavy guns on battleships, the rattle of musketry, the echo of bugles and the plaudits of thousands, Fort Mc-Henry will be dedicated as a national shrine on September 12 by the people of Baltimore with the aid and co-operation of the entire national govern-

It would be useless to go into details at the present writing to tell of what will be the ceremonies for the day. However, it can be said that the entire program at the fort will be preceded by a military parade in which will take part sections of all departments of the fighting arms of the United States.

While the ceremonies are in progress at Fort McHenry the harbor will be filled with United States war craft. Speakers of prominence high in the service of both Army and Navy and the executive branches of the Government will take part.

It is estimated that from eighty to one hundred thousand persons from Baltimore, the State of Maryland and other sections of the country will throng Fort McHenry for the observance. Plans have been formulated for the care of as many thousands of persons as will want to be present.

Invitations have been sent to the mayors and citizens of the towns of Maryland and Pennsylvania which came to the aid of Baltimore in its time of distress. The Governors of the States of the Thirteen Original Colonies have also been requested to be present and from replies received has been anticipated that the out of the city and state official repre-sentation will be large in number.

While these preparations are being made the Government has begun its work on the restoration of Fort McHenry. This old fortress from whose shores Francis Scott Key saw the waving American fiag at dawn through the smoke of battle, inspiring him to write the immortal Star-Spangled Banner is being made to conform with old pictures and drawings of the Fort.

The unsightly wooden gateway which blocked the view of the interior has been torn down and from Fort Avenue one may now see the Francis Scott Key monument in bas relief. Over the entrance an arch has been erected of the original stone used in the walls of Fort McHenry. Old buildings are being restored and the restorers have found the old fort

On a spot near the waterfront in the fort a reviewing and speakers' stand will be erected within the next week. From this stand Mayor Broening, Governor Ritchie, General Pershing, General Summerall, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of Navy, Governors of states and mayors cities will review the regular army troops, the Fifth Regiment, 110th. Field Artillery and members of Veteran Associations who will parade.

Following the speaking and water pageant the out-of-town guests and the crowds will inspect the fort. At night the war societies will dine at the Southern Hotel. The thousands of sight-seers are asked to stay and view the display of fireworks from the battleships.

Newspaper Problems.

A mistaken idea with some people is that the newspaper is an individual proposition. If they don't like the editor, they feel they must knock the paper and stand in the way of its success, whenever possible. They do not realize that the local paper is just as much a part of the community as the schools, churches or anything else. The newspaper is different from any other business; it is a community affair. It is for service to the people and not for any individual.

You may not like the editor and the editor may not like you any too well -but the paper he is responsible for does just as much for you as the service rendered others. There is nothing personal with it; it is here for a purpose and that purpose is to do what good it can in every way it can and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve the better service it can render. It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful newspaper. It requires money to operate any kind of business, even the churches and the papers are no exception, and for this reason they must have the financial support of the business interests as well as the good will.

Few newspaper publishers make more than a comfortable living, and scarcely one is reported wealthy from money made in the newspaper busi-They deserve to be trusted and to be understood by the people—it is the editor and not the plant that makes a newspaper useful in a com-munity, though a liberal patronage is necessary if the paper is to be a credit to the town.—Newbern (N. BOY SCOUTS IN CAMP Along the Monocacy Just over the Pennsylvania Line.

A large group of Boy Scouts from the Francis Scott Key Council com-posing Frederick and Carroll counties has availed itself of the opportunity to attend the camp conducted by Troop No. 19, of Union Bridge, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Wilbur S. Brandenburg, assisted by Scout Executive George G. Whitney, Frederick. The camp is one of the best organized troop camps of the Council, it was stated, and is located on the Monocacy river, north of Taneytown, just over the Pennsylvania state line. It is situated in the growth of shag bark hickory trees. On the slight rise along the river bank the boys are housed in pyramid tents and sleep or gots. A colored gook provides on cots. A colored cook provides wholesome and well cooked meals. Adequate provision is made for over-sight, while the scouts are in the water, and well selected work and activities keep the boys occupied. Mr. Brandenburg is assisted by Scoutmaster, Wilmer H. Long, of Sabillasville and Clyde S. DeHoff, of New Windsor together with Assistant Scoutmaster, C. L. Half of the hides and skins that go to make leather for these shoes are imported, principally from Asia, South America, and Africa, where people do not wear shoes so much. The United States is not selfsupporting in the matter of leather and leather goods, and in case of war the chances are that many of us would have to go without shoes if imports of raw materials were interrupted. The U.S. Department of Agricul-ture believes that our dependence upon foreign supplies can be very greaty reduced through better practices in the domestic production of leathermaking raw materials, through more judicious or common-sense selection by the public of leather goods, and finally through proper care of suchleather goods, with elimination of their abuse and misuse. The hide, leather, and tanning investigations carried on by the department all aim at conservation along these lines. Each year millions of dollars are lost in this country in hides and skins, much of which can be prevented by the application of correct methods of preparation and marketing, would result in making available to the tanner not only more hides and skins but better ones, from which in turn would result more and better

POLITICAL NOTES THE PAST WEEK

Condensed Clippings from Around the Political Horizon.

The Apopka Chief (Florida) Major Hall's fine weekly paper, is running a series of page ads boosting Hoover and Curtis, paid for by a group of Orange County Democrats.

Gov. Smith, who has met with a fine reception in wet New Jersey, is anxious to begin his western tour and try out sentiment in the dryer country. He is confidently expected to draw large crowds everywhere.

The women voters are giving the Smith forces concern in Virginia, as their hostility in the small towns and rural seceions is said to be very pronounced. Varney, the Prohibition candidate, may get the anti-Smith votes, rather than Hoover.

Secretary Hoover, it is said, will do most of his campaigning in the East, and perhaps in the South, and will not again go west until on his way to California to vote.

That Hoover will carry the counties of Maryland, and Smith Baltimore city, is the present general opinion. Which side will have the heaviest majority, is the problem.

It is said that Mr. Hoover will make only three or four speeches in the East before starting on his Western tour in October.

Senator Robinson made his speech of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for vice-president, on Thursday night, at Hot Springs, Arkansas. The notification address was made by Claude G. Bowers, of New York. Robinson blamed Herbert Hoover for failure of farm relief legislation, and backed Gov. Smith in his stand on prohibition.

Governor Smith's advisers want him to make many speeches, far and wide; but he is said to favor the plan of meeting many people rather than doing much talking, and especially not to make short speeches that can mean very little.

Both parties appear to have set $4,000,000 as the limit of their campaign expenditures; but it is hardly likely that either will stop at that figure if it seems necessary to spend

More than 50,000,000 pounds of edible fish are annually taken in the Chesapeake and in addition up to 300-000,000 million pounds of menhaden. More than 200 distinct species of fish have been recorded as inhabiting the waters of the Chesapeake. After the first of November practically all of these disappear, leaving only a few pecies such as the rock cod, white perch and the common eel. Just where these fish migrate to even the Bureau of Fisheries experts do not profess to know. The shad and the herring are the first to come back after their winter sojourn. The former fish is the aristocrat of the Bay and represents fully half of the value of the total catch each year. In point of quantity the alewife easily ranks

With the exception of the sea bass and the tautog, which are caught by hand, practically all the commercial fishing in Chesapeake Bay is done with nets, the pound net being the most widely used.

The Quiet Vote this Year.

The quiet vote this year promises to be more numerous than ever, because a lot of party voters intend to "cut" their candidate, and do not want it to be common knowledge, for is held by the regulars to be an act of "quiet" vote is the best way to satisfy one's conscience, and at the same time save one from harsh criticism.

Our form of ballot effectually guarantees secret voting-perhaps to a greater degree than its originators intended—and that explains why the registration with declared party affiliation, does not always correspond with the votes cast; for the voter is not compelled to declare his affiliation, nor make known to anybody, how he votes.

A few always come out openly and independently, beforehand, and let it be known that temporarily, at least, prevailed at the beginning of the pers. they intend to jump the dividing fence. Some do it boastfully, others conscientiously, and some for a special personal reason, all not caring how their party loyalty is regarded; but, especially when the reason for the jump is due to a cause that one does not care to advertise, he keeps mum about it, regarding his act as his own private business entirely.

So, the secret ballot, that was devised chiefly in order to prevent the purchase of votes, as well as to make | The service extended to the average | States Daily, Washington-quite too "party" voting very difficult to certain illiterates, now makes it easy for investment houses makes it easier for independent, quiet voting, that was them to save scientifically than ever from the point of view of this country, never a main object of the socalled "Australian" ballot.

And this is one of the reasons why figuring closely on the result, this year, is impossible—there are too ing taught in the classroom the deepdepended on to represent their acts in the secrecy of the voting booths.

The Low Price of Wheat.

The low price of wheat seems to hinge on the large surplus of stocks when every comfort was dearly carried over, and on the prospects for a heavy crop this year, as well as on general favorable crop reports from the other wheat producing countries of the world. In other words, it is the working out of the rule of a supply exceeding the demand, and the low prices always following such a not getting ahead are indeed rare.condition, no matter what the product | By S. W. Straus, President American

We have the same condition with the price of potatoes, but nobody ever takes much account of the potato market-except the comparatively few who grow potatoes as a main crop. When all who have a patch of ground grow a good crop for their own use, they are off the market as buyers.

The same rule applies with apples, peaches, berries and all other like growths. An abundance means many competing for a market, and prices tumble below a profitable level for the growers. Briefly stated, any thing that is very plentiful, is cheap.

Gold, diamonds, furs and many other articles are high in price because of their scarcity, or of the difficulty in marketing them. And the very fact that a thing is rare, or hard wet viewer-with-alarm considers that to get for any reason, creates a demand for it on the part of many. The Passing of the Drunkard.

The prohibition regime in the United States has accomplished one of its major purposes, beyond dispute; it has almost eliminated excessive drinking.

There are plenty of people who delight in telling us what a great number of bootleggers there are; how many stills there are; how terrible are the "parties" thrown by the youth of the day; how wet the ordinary convention is, etc., etc., ad infinitum.

Very little of this can be proved, of course, but since the average man is in no position to disprove it. the he has a clear field, and makes the most of it.

International Aid Asked to Prevent Liquor Smuggling.

The need of international co-operation to prevent the smuggling of liquor into the United States was emphasized and an invitation to those nations from which such smuggling has been practiced to aid the United States in checking the traffic was extended by the Commissioner of Prohibition, Dr. J. M. Doran, in an address delivered before the International Congress against Alcoholism, in session in Geneva.

Dr. Doran declared he regarded the suggested co-operation as a proper and logical step by the world powers in order that countries attempting to enforce prohibition may be in a position to deal with their problem as an internal one. He proposed, as one means of extending co-operation, establishment of a requirement that all ships be required to show authenticated landing certificates for liquor cargoes, thus proving that the exported liquor had actually been discharged at the port to which it was

By this method, Dr. Doran said, illicit trade could be recognized quickly and "illegitimate trade would be driven from the society of nations."

The Commissioner informed the Congress that there were at least 25 ports in foreign countries which were man, is more pleasant than ever be- used almost exclusively as bases for fore. We are indeed living in a gold- the exportation of liquor to be smuggled into prohibition countries.

Dr. Doran's address is very much in detail, as published in The United is a very fair and convincing appeal, to the foreign countries from which smuggling operations are conducted, and closed with an appeal to other nations to assist the United States in the enforcement of prohibition by giving their co-operation.

The Radio in Politics.

Politics has an odd way of creating new and embarrassing problems for those who first venture into its mazes. Radio broadcasters, playing a new but prominent role in the present campaign, are beginning to realize this as the battle progresses. Not long ago they heard sharp words from Governor Smith, who disapproved of the time allotted him on their pro-

More recently similarly bitter complaints have come from the Republican side-not, however, from the candidates. The protest was aroused by an inept director who, after the broadcast of Senator Curtis' acceptance speech, startled thousands of listeners by announcing, "It's the Boloney." After a moment's silence he hastened to explain that the words were the title of a forthcoming musical selection, not a comment on the

But the thing had been done. Telegrams of protest poured in, accompanied by a few in approving vein from delighted Democrats. Probably the announcer was guilty of nothing more than a tactless error. Radio announcers will probably agree with others in public life that the statesman who said, "Politics is, after all, a simple thing," spoke with more optimism than wisdom.-Phila. Ledger.

5c MAKES YOU A SMOKE KING

—if you know the cigar to buy

Don't ever let anybody tell you there's no enjoyment in a 5c cigar. Here's one that's been knocking that idea sky-high for many years: Havana Ribbon. Any challengers?

Nickel cigar brands come and go. But Havana Ribbon keeps right on winning smokers by the thousands. Unquestionably the greatest five-cent cigar value the world has ever known! But let Havana Ribbon tell you its own story. One nickel brings it to you. One puff starts it. And the first thing it says is that here actually is a five-cent cigar that contains something you usually find only in higher priced cigars: Ripe, long-filler tobacco. No bitter, under-ripe top leaves of the plant. No flat-tasting, over-ripe bottom leaves. No loose ends to fray or crumble. Full-flavored, mellow-mild ripe leaves only. Smoke so smooth you like to hold on to every satisfying mouthful! At cigar counters everywhere. Also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

Odorous Onion Liked

by All World Races

Onions seem to be almost as old as the hills. They are mentioned in the Bible as one of the things longed for. by the Israelites in the wilderness and complained about to Moses. Herodo tus says that in his time there was an inscription on the Great Pyramid stating the sum expended for onions, radishes, and garlic, which had been consumed by the laborers during its erection, as 1,600 talents. Ancient pictures show priests holding onions in their hands at the altar.

Early explorers, including Columbus, brought onion seed to the New world. New Englanders were raising them as early as 1634, and General Sullivan, in 1779, in his raid against the Indians in central New York, destroyed many onion fields belonging to the savages. Nineteen states now produce large commercial crops of onions. Texas scents up the whole Gulf of Mexico and the eastern side of the Atlantic with her onion-laden vessels bound for New York.-Peter R. Sterling in National Republic Magazine.

Weather Has Little

Influence on Tides

Contrary to popular belief, especially that long cherished by many seamen, tides do not exert any influence on the weather, according to meteorologists of the weather bureau, United States Department of Agricul-

As a matter of fact, close observers have discovered that certain extreme weather conditions affect the tides to some extent. Tides ebb and flow at every point on the coast with clocklike regularity. Nevertheless, the weather continues to be fair or foul, irrespective of those tides. On the other hand, conditions of very low barometric pressure and very strong winds from favorable directions cause either unusually low or unusually high tides, as the case may be. This is the influence of the weather on the tides, and the weather is not the result of any tidal influence.

Even when there is, as meteorologists understand, a very insignificant outflow of air from a region into which the tide is rising, or a corresponding inflow of air as the tide subsides, this does not constitute a significant feature of the weather.

In Bad Company

When a vote is to be taken on some important measure a congressman who cannot be present "pairs" himself with some representative who would vote "aye" to the congressman's "nay," or vice versa.

Once a Democratic member of the house received a letter from an active politician of that party in his district, calling attention to the fact that he was reported in the Congressional Record almost every day as being "paired" with a Republican.

"I don't doubt your loyalty to the party," read the letter, "but I think the boys would like it a good deal better if you paired with Democrats instead of Republicans."-Harper's Magazine.

Insanity Not Often Caused by Overstudy

"It is a fallacy to believe that over-study causes insanity. Overstudy like any mental overwork causes a state of exhaustion and brain fag. Too much study, which prevents the enjoyable realities of play and recreation, will not cause a mental breakdown in a person who is not liable to insanity," states Dr. Alexander S. Hershfield, Illinois state alienist.

"It is admitted that among those students who devote too nuch time to learning and to making high grades there are many who are normal men tally. Mental disease and overstudy are common enough to be found together occasionally. A well-balanced boy or girl finds sports, friendships and sex of sufficient importance to act as an antidote to overstudy and general school grind. In fact, it is

Pencil Sharpening

A drawing master states that he is often able to judge the characteristics of his pupils by their manner of sharpening a pencil. The artistic individual usually makes a fine tapering point, the business-like person a short, stubby one. Those who sharpen a pencil towards themselves on a thumb are often secretive. The untidy person reduces his pencil-end to shapeless irregularity, while the very happy-go-lucky one backs away in careless fashion and finishes with about half the length he started with.

STREET RECALLS FRENCH NOBLEMAN

New Orleans Financial Center Carondelet's Monument.

New Orleans, La.-Wherever cotton is traded the world over business men are alert to daily development in a New Orleans street which bears the name of a French nobleman famous as a public benefactor.

Carondelet street, where the New Orleans Cotton exchange is located, extends fifty-one squares from Canal street to Robert, west end. The first six blocks from Canal to Poydras street encompass the city's financial district, where the daily turnover runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Midway in these six blocks is the cotton exchange, at Carondelet and Gravier streets. From this building Secretary Henry G. Hester sends out his reports which affect the market wherever the staple is known.

The French nobleman for whom the street is named was christened Francisco Luiz Hestor de Carondelet, Seigneur d' Haine St. Pierre de Nostles. Born in Flanders in 1747, he came to Louisiana in 1791 for a sixyear stay. During this time he served as governor. Then he went to Peru from Louisiana to serve as viceroy.

Baron Carondelet recognized the advantages that would accrue to New Orleans from construction of a canal linking the Mississippi river with Lake Pontchartrain. Giving much of his personal fortune and lending his slaves for the work, Baron Carondelet was the dynamic force behind the movement for the canal, although a yellow fever scourge prevented the consummation of his plan. Canal street, now ranked as one of the famous thoroughfares of the world, marks the site of the nobleman's undertaking.

For his many benefactions Louisiana welcomed him as governor. New Orleans paid him tribute with Carondelet street, Baroness Carondelet street, now Baronne street, and Canal street, named for his work.

Plans a Dictionary of Good Grammar

Lincoln, Neb.-To do with grammar what dictionary writers have done with words is the idea behind a book written by Maurice H. Weseen, associate professor of English in the University of Nebraska. He has tried to make correct grammatical usage as easy as correct word usage.

Alphabetizing the stumbling blocks in English, Professor Weseen has taken the most accepted terminology in an effort to aid in standardization of English, which, he says, "can be accomplished only through a long and slow process of elimination and sur-

He drew the illustrations from every day speech and writing.

'Quotations from Shakespeare and Milton often are of little value to the person who seeks to settle in his own mind some doubtful or disputed point of usage with reference to a practical problem of today. For that reason I have emphasized American usage, both in the giving of examples and in the citing of authorities, and have referred only incidentally to English usage for purposes of comparison."

Girl's Purse, Lost From Plane, Found on Roof

Washington.—A pocketbook which was lost by Miss Barbara Pearson of Ashland, Pa., while viewing Washington from an airplane was recently recovered by William Owens, a tinsmith employed in the office of public buildings and public parks of the national capital.

The purse was found on the roof of temporary building No. 5, located at Twentieth and C streets. It was turned over to Inspector Wright, in charge of the public buildings guard force, who said it would be sent to Miss Pearson by registered mail. The pocketbook was identified by a certificate of flight made out in Miss Pearson's name by the Washington airport. It also contained $4.75 in money, a vanity case and two keys.

Judge Marries 5,000 Couples in 25 Years

Fresno, Calif.-George Washington Smith, who has been a justice of the peace here since 1903, has just set what he believes to be a record as a "marrying justice" in officiating at his 5,000th wedding.

Smith began his career as a marrying justice January 18, 1903, and has kept a record of the ceremonies. His records show that the greatest number of marriages performed in one year was 394, and that 49 was the most in any single month, while the record day brought eight couples to his office.

Tells of Witnessing

Volcano in Eruption Joseph H. Sinclair, representing the American Geographic society, has returned to this country from a hard trip of exploration through Ecuador, where he had a terrific experience in an endeavor to reach a smoking volcano which had erupted, the whole country for miles around being deluged with a flow of lava. The natives had a wholesome superstitious fear of the great pile and could not be induced to guide the explorer as near as he wanted to go, but by his own efforts and alone he managed to get within seven miles of the cone and this was near enough for him to witness a number of explosions which repeatedly changed the contour of the crater's rim. Little or nothing had been known about the volcano and he secured valuable data concerning its character and location.

Mr. Sinclair pointed out that he was not the first white man to see the volcano--a mountain which the natives call Reventador, meaning "Eruptor." Near the place the explorers came on a lone white man who could not tell them how long he had been there nor why he had penetrated so far from civilized association. Nor would he go with them to the mountain. He, too, had been infected by the superstition of the natives, which holds that whenever a human sets foot on the side of the tall volcano Reventador becomes "muy brava," or very brave.

Immunity to Poisons Not Yet Understood

One of the most fascinating chapters in animal poisons is the subject of natural immunity, the fact that some animals are immune to the poisons of others and remain unhurt if stung or bitten by the poisonous animals, whereas all other sorts of beasts succumb.

A case in point is that of desert animals, which are unharmed by a scorpion's sting. The desert fox, the kangaroo rat and other inhabitants of deserts where scorpions abound are in this happy position. Their cousins, living far away from the desert, would at once be seriously injured by a scorpion's sting, whereas the desert breeds remain unhurt. It is to be supposed that in the far distant past, before the desert animals had this complete immunity to scorpion venom, those which were stung and could not resist died, leaving no offspring. Their luckier brothers, who happened to have a hardier constitution, survived and left behind them a resistant race of descendants.-The Forum.

Created Cinderella

It was just three centuries since Charles Perrault, creator of Cinderella and Red Riding Hood, was born. Perrault, a Frenchman, never dreamed that the fairy children of his brain would become immortal. He wrote poetry of an exceedingly dull order, and it was by his poems and not by his fairy stories that he hoped to win fame. Perrault conceived and wrote his stories, which he called "Tales of Mother Goose," to please his little son, just as Lewis Carroll, a mathematician, told the tale of Alice in Wonderland to amuse two little girls. Cinderella and her glass slipper was one of Perrault's favorite heroines. Some people have tried to insist that Cinderella's slipper of "verre," or glass, was meant to be a slipper of "vair," or fur, but one cannot imagine Cinderella in anything but a crystal slipper.

What Is a Peddler?

The word peddler is derived from an old English word, "ped," as in Spencer's "Shepheard's Calendar." "A bask is a wicker ped wherein they use to carry fish." It has no connection with the Latin pedis, a foot, as often reported. A peddler is, therefore, one with a ped, basket, or pack, and it has been held in law, one who has the identical article he sells in his "ped." It is, simply speaking, incorrect, therefore, to call an itinerant merchant, who simply takes orders for goods bought from seeing samples he carries, a peddler.

Airplanes Cut Journey

An airplane service for gold diggers and others concerned with the newly discovered fields in New Guinea is the latest aerial development. The new fields are on a 2,000-foot high plateau, 60 miles from the coast, a cross-country journey of six days, and a fleet of airplanes has reduced the trail to one of 50 minutes. All supplies for the fields are now carried by air, the machines returning to the coast with cargoes of gold and passengers.

TELL STRANGE TALES OF CHINESE GHOSTS

White Men Plan to Investigate Queer Doings.

Shanghai.—Three Shanghai men who don't believe in ghosts have left the city for Hongkong, where they plan to investigate the alleged ghosts of Sung Huang hill, in Kowloon, the place where the last emperor of the Sung dynasty is said to have hidden himself from his pursuing enemies.

The three nonbelievers are H. Richmond Curley, J. B. Borman, and Alexander V. McDonough. They claim that their curiosity has been aroused by the persistent reports from Hongkong of the strange carryings-on of the "ghosts of Sung Huang hill."

"Ghosts don't exist and we propose to prove it to the satisfaction of all persons in Hongkong and Kowloon who think otherwise," Curley, spokesman for the trio, declared.

Stories Accepted. Chinese residents of Shanghai who formerly lived in Kowloon take much stock in the ghost stories of Sung Huang hill. In all seriousness they will tell of strange moans and groans in the dead of night; of wild cries of tortured men and women, and of white robed forms flitting mysteriously about the place.

Lee Chai-ling, an intelligent, educated Chinese of the international settlement, formerly a tea merchant in Kowloon, swears to the truth of the following story of the haunted hill, which, he says, he personally wit-

In 1924 three children disappeared while playing in the vicinity of the place. A group of Chinese determined to investigate. Their leader was a powerfully built, fearless Cantonese named Lo Hai-ching.

Lo Disappeared.

Lo led the party to within 35 feet of the place. He was about 10 feet in advance of the others when there came a piercing scream from the rear. All heads turned. They could see no one. Turning back, to their consternation they could find no trace of Lo. He had disappeared completely. The party fled in all directions.

Two days later Lo's headless body was found in the bay. The mystery never has been solved.

The latest story from the haunted hill has it that a prominent Chinese woman was lured to the hill by a young man and an old man. A charm seemed to have enveloped her and she followed them blindly. A bewildered servant was with her. The servant relates that his mistress followed the two men to the edge of the precipice, where the men disappeared.

The woman then exclaimed to her servant that there was something strange behind them. The servant There was nothing. He turned back and his mistress was gone. Her body was found in the

It was Mrs. Fleming who gave to Mme. Hourschid Bey, Turkish feminist lecturing in the United States, a standard book on American etiquette when she learned that her Turkish friend had been appointed matron of honor to Queen Sureya. Mme. Hourschid Bey came to Kabul last year with Mrs. Fleming's gift under her arm to support her in her task of modernizing the veiled ladies of the court from the queen down. When the emir's eye fell on the book, he declared that it was just what he had been looking for, pored over it for a week and then had it translated into Persian under his personal supervision. Since then knives and forks have been in current and increasingly manageable use in the Afghan palace.

Rabies Is Classed as Children's Disease

New York.—Rabies may be classed as a disease of childhood, along with whooping cough and scarlet fever. Six out of ten deaths from this disease were among children under fifteen years. Of these deaths seven out of ten were small boys. The period between five and ten years has the highest mortality from this cause, according to statistics of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The reason for this high mortality among children is twofold. First, naturally, children are more exposed to rabid dogs than adults, because of their habit of making pets, even of stray dogs. Secondly, the period of development of the disease has been found to be shorter and there is consequently less time to get the child inoculated with the serum which prevents the development of the disease.

/Vew high pressure fueling New high speed carburetion

Supplementing the amazing abilities of Buick's improved Valve-in-Head engine-providing brilliant new efficiency and effectiveness at all engine speeds-are two wonderful new Silver Anniversary Buick features . . .

A new high-pressure gas pump-completely eliminating the old fashioned vacuum tank—assures a steady flow of fuel under all driving conditions; and a new high-speed carburetor—the most expensive employed on any motor car-produces unrivaled ease of starting, smooth operation and maximum economy.

The world-famous Buick engine—with these two new features -attains the highest degree of efficiency of any automobile engine . . . and attains that peak efficiency with any grade of fuel-low-test, high-test or in between! Hair-trigger acceleration! Dazzling new swiftness! Matchless hill-climbing! Unrivaled ability to maintain a high pace hour after hour and day after day!

Take this new Buick out on the highway. Test it to the limit. Prove to yourself—it's the great car of the world!

FEESERSBURG.

A number of friends from Mt. Unon visited Birnie Reifsnider, at the State Sanitorium, on Sunday, after Sunday School. He was very weak and voiceless, but conscious and asked for prayer. Rev. Kroh called on him on Thursday evening. We saw Dorothy Bowman too, who was bright and looking well, and enjoying the day with her visiting parents.

The Sanitorium is a fine institution, beautifully located, and well equipped. Many buildings have been added, and grounds more attractive, since our former visit, some years ago. We have heard that marvelous cures have been wrought by the mountain air and treatment; but some delay their entrance until too late for permanent

Men of Genius Noted for Large Appetites

It would appear that the man of genius usually requires a large supply of substantial food. Intellectual work demands full nutrition to repair the waste of brain tissue. Scott was wont to attribute his extraordinary capacity for continuous work to his good digestion and the wholesome restraints of his appetite in his youth. "I have as keen an appetite now as any man," he said, "but I know when to stop.

Mirabeau is said to have been an enormous feeder, eating as much at a meal as would suffice three ordinary men. Talleyrand was also a noted eater. Goethe and Napoleon ate large quantities of food, but cared little for the quality. Bismarck was noted for his appetite, which was insatiable, but his food was of the simplest.

Many stories are told of the gross delight in food shown by the two Dumases, father and son, one of which is that the younger, being overtaken by a storm, took refuge in a hotel near Paris. Twenty-four turkeys were hanging upon the spit.

"And all for a single traveler," explained the host.

"It is my father!" exclaimed Alex-10-5-tf andre, junior. And he was right.

BLIND FARMER LED BY SMALL WINDMILLS

Stationed About Land They Guide Him Around.

Hart, Mich.-Small windmills have served as eyes for Kary McCauley, forty-one, blind farmer of Ferry township, the last three years. The windmills guide McCauley about the farm; they take him from the house to the barn or to the chickencoop; they also guide him down the sand road two miles to the village of Ferry.

McCauley lost the sight of his left eye three years ago. His right eye always had been sightless. It was then that he hit upon the plan of the windmills to guide him. The small windmills were placed at strategic points about the farm and along the highway to Ferry. The wind sets the mills in motion and from the rattle he is able to find his way.

On the infrequent quiet days when there is no wind to make the wooden vanes rattle he guides himself about the farm by means of a wire stretched from one building to another.

Repair Windmills Now.

There are no sidewalks in Ferry township to tap with a cane and there is only an occasional visitor to aid the blind man in time of need but Mc-Cauley frequently makes the two-mile trip to town and back alone. He takes the wagon trail. Windmills are placed at intersections. He can hear the rattle of the mills for several hundred feet and knows where to turn.

The windmills are being repaired now. The winter winds have damaged some and blown others down. Hunters and boys not knowing of their purposes have destroyed some. Hence the mills must be replaced before Mc-Cauley can go to town.

Although always blind in the right eye. McCauley at one time had excellent vision and was a crack shot with a rifle. He would suspend a flatiron by a string, back away as far as he could see the string, shoot the string and drop the iron. Partridges on the wing fell victims to his marksman-

Old Horse Helped.

In the days when the vision of Mc-Cauley's left eye was fading an old horse, Bill, aided him in making a living. A log chain was attached to the harness and by its rattle McCauley was able to find his horse. He would cut a cord of wood daily, haul it to Ferry and sell it for $2.50. About the time that McCauley lost the sight of the left eye the horse died and Mc-Cauley was confronted with new prob-

The blind man lives with his father, Daniel McCauley, eighty-two. Despite his age, the father works at clearing land, but he is growing feeble. The aged father and the blind son wonder what the future holds for them. Most of the day the son sits at the farmhouse waiting for the return of the aged father. He still hopes, despite the word of doctors, that he will be able to see again.

"Somewhere there must be a doctor who can help me," he says. If not he will have to go through life following the rattle of the windmills.

Soon Lamb Will Be Sold With Mint Sauce in It

Paris.-Soon the French housekeeper will be able to buy her lamb or mutton with the mint sauce already in it and chicken already flavored with mace and thyme. In France, land of famous cooks and tasty sauces, poultry and meat are now deliciously seasoned by hypodermic injection.

The new method, discovered by Dr. A. Gauducheau, makes use of a principle of physiology and injects sauces and seasoning directly into the blood stream of chicken and other fowl, In this way the flavoring penetrates to all parts of the meat.

"Intra-sauce," is the name Doctor Gauducheau coined for the fluid he uses in this new sort of cookless cookery. He has tried the method on over 200 animals, using all kinds of poultry and sheep and pigs. In addition to flavoring, coloring matter may be introduced in the same way to get an even hue throughout the meat, or different parts may be flavored or colored differently. Lean meats may be enriched by injection of lards or oils. For this purpose melted butter has been found the best fluid.

Sightless Operators

Man French Phones Paris.—Blind telephone operators man switchboards at a number of French offices.

Trained by the National Institute for the Blind, they have conquered all the difficulties, says the head of the school, Prof. Pierre Henri. They cannot work on boards with signal lamps, but these are used only in big central exchanges. On the smaller boards the blind operators tell by the sense of touch what numbered shutter opens; they compile their own record of calls in raised print, and they record messages likewise, or on a typewriter.

19.—The Final Struggle for Slavery

A S THERE was no more important American Presidential campaign before or since, so there was none that roused popular feeling to a higher pitch than that of 1860 when the crucial issue of slavery was fought out to a finish among four tickets,

Abraham Lincoln of Illinois had been nominated by the Republicans. The Democrats, split in two on the slavery question, broke up their national convention, and two groups met separately later. John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky, Buchanan's vice president and later a general and secretary of war in the Confederacy, was nominated for President by the extreme proslavery faction of the Democrats. Senator Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois got the nomination of the northern wing of the party.

A fourth group, an amalgamation of elderly Whigs and Know-Nothings, styling themselves the Constitutional Union party, nominated John Bell of Tennessee as a candidate of harmony who wuld have no notions and no policy on the subject of slavery.

The canvass that ensued revived some of the features of the famous campaign of 1840. Log cabins, such as were used in the Harrison campaign, came back as symbols of the humble origin of the Republican railsplitter candidate. Railsplitter emblems, rings and pins were popular.

Marching clubs took a prominent part in enthusiastic and spectacular torchlight processions. Northern Democrats organized and paraded as Douglas Guards, Little Giants, Invincibles, Ever-Readys. But most imposing were the Republican Wide Awakes. In all sections of the North they came to adopt a fairly standard uniform, with glazed hats and oil-cloth capes-a costume first affected by Hartford (Conn.) marchers when they escorted Lincoln on a visit he made to their city in the spring of the election year. As they swung along in the glare of swaying torches, the Wide Awakes

"Old Abe Lincoln came out of the wilderness,

Out of the wilderness, out of the wilderness.

Old Abe Lincoln came out of the wilderness. Down in Illinois."

Southerners were marching, too. They organized companies of Breckinridge Minute Men. In some parts of the South the impression spread that the Northern Wide Awakes were a military organization formed to support Lincoln by armed force. South Carolina answered that fancied threat by forming a secret society whose members pledged themselves to arm and march to Washington, if necessary, to prevent the inauguration of a "Black Republican" President. Donglas, who had had close ciation with Southern leaders of his party, appraised the seriousness of the situation more truly than many other Northerners.

"If the withdrawal of my name would tend to defeat Mr. Lincoln," he said in September, "I would this moment withdraw it." Republican successes in the elections held in certain states during October confirmed the worst fears of

"Mr. Lincoln is the next President," he declared. "We must try to save the Union."

Douglas, who had surprised his friends and followers by taking the stump in his own behalf, contrary to the custom of the time for Presidential candidates, now canceled all further engagements in his Northern speaking tour and plunged into the South in a desperate final attempt to use the power of his eloquence to prevent disruption of the Union. It was an act of high redeeming statesmanship in a public career that had been much shaped by expediency.

But in vain he pleaded that there was no evil in the nation for which the Constitution and "laws do not furnish a remedy, no grievance that can justify disunion." It was too late to stem the tide of the inevitable.

Lincoln got 1,866,452 popular votes and Douglas 1,375,157, with 847,953 for Breckinridge and 590,631 for Bell. Seldom have the possible disparities between popular and electoral votes been so eccentrically demonstrated. For while Lincoln had 180 electoral votes, Douglas, who ran only a half million behind him in the popular poll, had just 12 electoral votes; while Bell, with a total of fewer than 600,-000 popular votes, had 39 electoral votes. Seventy-two electoral votes went to Breckinridge, whose popular

Douglas.

"Oh, ain't I glad I joined the Republicans,

Joined the Republicans, joined the Republicans,

Ain't I glad I joined the Republicans, Down in Illinois."

Other crowds in the streets of South Carolina towns were cheering a new flag, red in color and bearing a palmetto and a star. The threat of secession was becoming an ominous fact. | lan.

Little Band-Wagan Journeys

By L. T. MERRILL

(©, 1928, Western Newspaper Union.) 20.—The Wartime Election

of 1864 A S THE crucial wartime election of 1864 approached, President Lincoln was between two fires.

On the one hand were the Demo crats demanding a cessation of the war and settlement around the conference table, and blaming Lincoln's administration for what was construed to be too severe a policy against the "copperheads."

At the other extreme were the radical Republian faction, dissatisfied because they believed Lincoln's policy had not been vigorous enough, nor the administration sentiment toward the South sufficiently bitter.

Two unsuccessful generals were brought forward to head election tickets representing the respective dissatisfied elements.

Strangely enough, there was another group, including such figures as Horace Greeley, who while professing to find Lincoln's administration satisfactory, insisted even at such a critical juncture that no President ought to be given more than one term, because none had been given two for the last thirty years.

Lincoln, for his part, was willing to step aside if it seemed best for the country. But his renomination by the main body of Republicans was a foregone conclusion. He had all but 22 votes of the Baltimore convention of the party, styling itself the Union National convention. Twenty-two Missouri delegates wanted to nominate General Grant, but switched their votes to make the Lincoln choice unanimous.

The platform demanded prosecution of the war to a finish and amendment of the Constitution so that slavery never could be re-established.

To help hold the loyalty of border states and win over Democratic votes, Andrew Johnson, Democratic wartime governor of Tennessee, was made Lincoln's running-mate. It was a choice the party was to rue when Johnson succeeded to the Presidency upon Lincoln's assassination.

The radical Republicans, about 400 of them, met at Cleveland, nominated Gen. John C. Fremont, and adopted a severe platform. One of its demands was for confiscation of lands belonging to Confederates, to be redistributed among Northern soldiers. When Lincoln received reports of Fremont's nomination and the Cleveland convention proceedings, he said they reminded him of the Bible story about the Cave of Adullam, to which came "every one that was in distress, and every one that was discontented . . and there were with him about

The Democrats purposely delayed their convention till late in August, feeling that summer events on the battlefield might further clarify the political outlook. By the time they assembled. Union defeats in the war together with imminent prospect of another army draft, had indeed brought public feeling in the North to a low ebb of discouragement. Peaceat-any-price sentiment was gaining.

In late August the time was ripo for Clement L. Vallandingham of Ohio, who once had been chased out of the North for his defeatist maneuvers, to recross the border from Canada and, as a leading member of the Democratic platform committee, to give a strong peace-at-any-price tone to the platform through a resolution declaring that the war had been a failure and that immediate efforts must be made to bring about a cessation of hostilities.

To stand on this defeatist plank the convention nominated Gen. George B. McClellan, who had commanded the Army of the Potomac. He refused to stand there. Though accepting the nomination, he vigorously repudiated the Vallandingham plank, declaring he could not look into the faces of the men he had led in the service and tell them the sacrifices of their dead and wounded comrades had been vain,

Northern military triumphs were almost immediately to make the peace plank meaningless, anyhow. The ink was hardly dry on McClellan's acceptance when the news came that Sherman had taken Atlanta, Farragut had won the Battle of Mobile Bay, Sheridan had swept triumphantly through the Shenandoah valley with his victories at Winchester and Fisher's

The Republicans had been in deep despair. Lincoln's advisers had been telling him his defeat was almost certain. Convinced of the truth of their gloomy prophecies, in late August he had had his cabinet indorse a memorandum virtually promising to hand the administration immediately over to his successor, to save the Union, in the event of Republican defeat at the

Then the tide suddenly turned. Military victories heartened public sentiment. Fremont withdrew his candidacy. The triumph of "Old Abe" over "Little Mac" was assured.

But it was a close decision. Though Lincoln had 212 electoral votes to 21 for the Democratic nominee, he ran fewer than 500,000 votes ahead of Mc-Clellan in a total popular vote of 4,-000,000. A possible change of only 60,000 popular votes in a few strategic or doubtful states could have reversed the whole result and elected McClel-

Painted Bricks Make

for Cellar Dampness

One of the biggest mistakes made by home owners who have homes of brick, or brickwork around their houses, is to paint over this material. If paint is put on bricks in a home it may mean damp cellars. The temperature of a cellar is seldom the same as outdoors. In the summer it is cooler and in the winter it is warmer. The difference in temperature on either side of the bricks, added to the fact that the larger part of the cellar wall is beneath the ground, makes for dampness within the basement.

Except after a beating rainstorm, the outside of the bricks will not be damp, because the constant circulation of air outside dries them. Inside, the air is more stagnant. The dampness gathers on the bricks, and, as bricks are porous, soaks into them.

If the bricks are unpainted this dampness is drawn out of the bricks on the outside, and evaporates, with a resulting dry cellar. Paint these bricks and the lead in the paint will fill the pores of the bricks and prevent the dampness from escaping from the bricks to the outside, and that will mean damp walls in the cellar.

It is far better to leave the bricks their natural red and to know the dampness of the cellar has some means of being absorbed into the out-

City Dweller Finds

Comfort in Suburbs

The grand rush to the suburbssome of them ten miles out—is an irrepressible movement to restore "Home Sweet Home"; the kind with a lilac bush in the front yard and a place to hang the wash in the back yard. The old-fashioned ideal of home is not lost. It has been hampered, but as soon as city obstacles are removed-by easy and rapid transportation to the country-the home is restored much as it always has been.

The heart of man craves a little suburbs afford it. It is not the loneliness of the city where there is no neighborly hobnobbing; but one which may be broken voluntarily. Sociability and segregation are nicely balanced. You have as much as you want of each, and when you desire repose, you can withdraw beyond your own jon-

In the suburb one feels that the family rooftree will last. It will not be swept away by apartment hotels or corner drug stores. It will be there for the children. It will be there for Thanksgiving and Christmas and weddings, ay, and funerals.—St. Louis verely. Globe-Democrat.

Brick's Good Qualities

In a building it is not possible to The eye cannot be thoroughly satisfied if in the mind lurks the cons ness that the architect's creation is to be vanguished in the battle with time. Time is powerless to mar the beauty or to sap the strength of brick. Generations may come and go, but the sturdy brick walls of the homestead stay on. Brick may reach a venerable old age-it never reaches the state of decrepitude. Brick comes from the bosom of Mother Earth, in the form of plastic clay; it is hardened by the most powerful agency known in the world-fire-and is proof against the further attacks of fire; it defies wind and rain; it is as enduring as earth itself.-Exchange.

Plain Preaching

Local people, boost your town; run it up, instead of down.

Boosting is the thing it needs if it prospers and succeeds. All its benefits are yours while your dwelling here endures. From a purely selfish view, boosting is the thing to do.

But there's still another side—that of having civic pride.

Citizens must every one lend a hand and get things done. Never knock; it doesn't pay; boosting is the better way. Do not kick, but boost, instead;

that's the way to get ahead. This is how to build your town; talk it up, but never down.-By the Booster of the Tifton (Ga.) Gazette.

Cave Husband's Refuge

Eastbourne, England, can hardly boast an interesting ecclesiastical history, and the most famous of its oldtime parsons seems to have been Jonathan Darby, says the London Post. Parson Darby had been somewhat unfortunate in the choice of a wife, and to repair the mistake sought peace for study and meditation in a cave in the cliff at East Dean. In this retreat he stayed all the week, out of range of Mrs. Darby's tongue, and issued forth only on Sunday to conduct the service in church.

To Develop the Arms

Stand erect, stretch your arms out forward and clench the fists tightly. Holding your arms as stiff as possible, bend wrists outward and inward 15 times, with precision of movement. Next, holding your arms in the same position and clenching the fists, twist the forearms as far around as possible, first one way, then the other. Repeat 15 times.

HOW=

MAY BEST BE DECIDED .-By experiment, research workers are proving that the general interests of men following the same vocations tend to be alike, and that this group of interests differs as widely from those men in other callings as do the vocations themselves. The general prejudices of artists and personnel managers, for instance, have been proved to be almost diametrically opposite. There is apparently a distinct artist type

The theory is that one likes things one does easily. A man therefore likes and succeeds in an occupation in which the majority of his well-developed traits may function and his poorly developed traits are not forced to function. So the summary of likes and dislikes of men in a given occupation is probably a summary measure of the traits necessary for success in that occupation.-Thrift Magazine.

How "Riot Act" Became

Part of Common Law "Reading the Riot act" was suggested by the Riot act, which was enacted by the British parliament in 1714 during the first year of the reign of King George I. Although laws had been previously passed on the subject, the Riot act was the first comprehensive attempt to prevent or suppress tumultuous or riotous meetings. It provided that if twelve or more persons were unlawfully assembled and disturbing the peace, the sheriff, justice of the peace, or mayor was commanded to read the following proclamation in their presence: "Our Sovereign Lord the King chargeth and commandeth all persons being assembled immediloneliness, just a little; and the ately to disperse themselves, and peacefully depart to their habitations or to their lawful business, upon the pains contained in the act made in the first year of King George for preventing tumultuous and riotous assemblies. God save the King." If the persons refused to disperse and continued together for an hour or more, they were guilty of felony. Many of the American states have enacted similar laws. "To read the Riot act" literally means to give notice to a crowd to disperse under penalty of law. Popu-

How a Drop Falls

To watch a drop of water when it falls is to attempt to penetrate the secret of an obscure science, the law which governs moving liquids.

The experiment best showing the action of a falling drop may be made by letting a drop of milk fall into black coffee. When the drop falls a crater forms around it and little drops are projected from the edge of the crater. After it has increased in size and in thickness the crater lowers and widens its rolling brim, while from the impact a liquid sphere, enveloped by the initial drop, collects at the top of the column. Then the column falls and disappears in the center of a circular ripple of water. -Washington Star.

How Pollen Is Carried

Two of nature's pollen carriers are insects and wind, but in the forest wind does by far the greater amount of the work, says Nature Magazine. The tree flowers having only stamens shed their pollen, wither, and fall, but from the seed-producing flowers grow the fruits-keys of the maples, samaras of the elms, paddles of the ashes, acorns of the oaks, the cone-like winged seed bearers of the birches. and the nuts of the hickories.

How Soap Is Wasted

The soap wasted by hard water amounts to 17 pounds per 1,000 gallons when water is 10 grains hard per gallon. This is estimated as an expense of 70 cents, when it would cost perhaps 2 cents per 1,000 gallons on an average to soften such water.

present owner of these coins."

America is a name first applied with little warrant to what is now North and South America by Martin Waldeseemuller, a young geographer of St. Die, a town in the Vosges mountains. In a Latin work, "Cosmographiae Introductio," which Waldeseemuller edited in 1507, he used the name "America" in honor of Amerigo Vespucci, whose narrative of the latter's voyage of discovery in the New world Waldeseemuller had read. "Because Americus discovered it," Waldeseemuller wrote, "it ought to be called the land of Americus or America."

Parrots at School

A parrot school consisting of 1,500 pupils and having two terms a year is run by Mr. W. A. King, of Brownsville, Texas. The birds come from Mexico and Central America and are school hours they sit on perches rising in tiers. Each class is provided with a gramophone with records containing different kinds of sentences.

The term lasts about three months. Examinations are held once a week and each bird is carefully graded. If a bird lags behind in its lessons it is placed in a separate class and given special training, and if at the end of 1913 coins, proof, the only five-cent six weeks a parrot has not learned Liberty-head coins of this design and to say the required number of expressions or sentences it is "expelled."-London Tit-Bits.

The World's Water The amount of water on the earth-is so large that the human mind canscarcely grasp its significance. According to scientific authorities, it is 327,000,000 cubic miles. Rivers and lakes in all countries only total a mere million cubic miles, the remaining 326,000,000 miles being taken up. by the five great oceans-Atlantic, Pacific, Indian, Antarctic and Arctic Scientists tell us that if the earth were not composed of huge mountain ranges-which project above the surface of the oceans, and thus form the countries in which we live-our globe would be covered with water to a depth of nearly two miles.

PAUL PREACHING IN THESSALON-ICA AND BEREA

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1-15; I Thess. 5:12-23; Romans 15:18-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—The entrance of thy words giveth light.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Finds New

Friends and Foes.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Finds New
Friends and Foes. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Paul's Use of the Scriptures. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Paul, Organizer of Churches.

1. Preaching in Thessalonica (Acts 17:1-10).

His method (vv. 1, 2). He observed the divine order, "to the Jew first," but whenever they proved themselves unworthy be turned to the Gentiles. He went out on the Sabbath day so as to find them assembled together.

2. His message (v. 3). It was that Jesus is the Christ. In order to prove that Jesus is the Christ, he expounded unto them the Scriptures. Concerning Christ he set forth three propositions:

(1) "That Christ must needs have suffered" (v. 3).

The suffering Christ was not welcomed by the Jews (Isa, 53). They were looking for a Messiah of a different type.

(2) "Risen from the dead" (v. 3). This He proved by the Scriptures. The resurrection of Christ and the bodily resurrection of believers need sound and practical exposition today. the Smithsonian institution, are all unto you, is ('hrist.' He declared that the historic Jesus whom he had proclaimed had suffered and risen from the dead, therefore He is the predicted Messiah.

3. The attitude of the Jews toward his preaching (vv. 4-10).

While some Jews believed and many Greeks, the envy of certain Jews was so aroused at Paul's success that they gathered together the worthless fellows of the town and created a riot. They turned the preaching of Paul into a specious lie. He preached the kingship of Jesus (v. 7). Jesus is most assuredly coming to reign on this earth. II. What He Preached at Thessalonica (I Thess. 5:13-20). He corrected certain doctrinal errors which had crept into the church. 1. They were not to sorrow unduly

Because they failed to understand the meaning of Paul's preaching concerning the coming of the Lord they were indulging in excessive sorrow. They seemed to think that their loved ones who had died would miss the blessings and glory connected with the return of the Lord.

2. The events associated with the Lord's coming (vv. 13-18).

In this section he gives the reasons why they were not to allow themselves to be overwhelmed with grief. (1) The departed saints will come back when Jesus comes (v. 14).

Immediately following the death of believers their spirits go to be with the Lord where they remain in the state of blessedness until the Lord shall return to this earth, bringing them with Him.

(2) The bodies of the dead in Christ shall come from the grave (v. 16).

When the Lord comes there will be a real resurrection of the dead in Christ, before the change of the bodies of living believers.

(3) Living believers will be caught up together with those who have been resurrected (v. 17). 3. The time of the Lord's coming is unknown (5:1-11). We are commanded to be ready, to watch. III. Paul Preaching in Berea (Acts 17:10-15). 1. His method (v. 10).

He entered the Jewish synagogue and preached Christ.

2. The reception of the Gospel by the Bereans (vv. 11, 12). (1) They received the message gladly. (2) They searched the Scriptures daily for the truthfulness of the message which they had heard. 3. The wicked action of the Jews (vv. 13-15).

Wicked Jews from Thessalonica followed the missionaries and stirred up the people against them, making it necessary for them again to flee. IV. Paul's Manner of Preaching (Rom. 15:18-20).

Wherever he went in the Gentile world he preached salvation through faith in Christ. God accompanied his ministry with mighty signs and wonders, with the object of making the Gentiles obedient to the Gospel. Paul's aim was to preach in new fields so as not to build on the foundation of another.

Jesus and Preaching

Jesus chose preaching as the method of extending the knowledge of Himself throughout the world. He taught His truth to a few men. and then He said, "Now go and tell that truth to other men."-Phillips Brooks.

At the Door

"Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: If any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me. - Rev 3:20,

Girl of Century Ago and Today Compared

We look back with amazement and pity at the woman of 1828, it is said, but, says the London Daily News, we look with admiration also, for it is out of their dreaming and striving that our freedom has come. Poor Miss 1828 offers a striking contrast between the young women of that day and those of the present year.

Look at her standing there in her stuffy thick clothing, her hideous frilled "pelisse" with its puffed sleeves, her face hidden by an ungainly flapping bonnet "as large as an umbrel-She has been grounded in the principles of religion and morality. When she dances, it is to pace soberly through the measures of a minuet or the quadrilles, for she has not yet been introduced to the "sprightly polka" or the glamorous waltz. Little wonder that she breaks the monotony of her days by occasional fits of hysteria or a graceful swoon.

She had her vanities, poor dearher looks were one of her few interests. She was as frightened of corpulence as is her modern sister. Rosy, fresh cheeks were considered common, and she deprived herself of adequate food for fear of growing fat and "ma-

Greenland, Long Ago,

Colonized by Danes Greenland was originally colonized by Scandinavians, about the year 1000, but the colony dwindled and became extinct shortly before 1500, owing chiefly to the inroads of the Eskimo. The existing Danish colony was established in 1721. The aborigines, says (3) "That this Jesus, whom I preach | of E. kime stock and number altogether about 11,000, including a very large proportion of mixed bloods, who, as a rule, adhere to Eskimo customs and language.

Theory of Arrhenius

Svante August Arrhenius, the noted Swedish chemist and physicist, believes that life is an interstellar element and may be transmitted from one planet to another. According to his conception, life is universally diffused and is constantly emitted from all habitable worlds in the form of spores. These spores traverse space for years, and possibly ages. The majority of them are ultimately destroyed by the heat of some blazing star, but some few, he thinks, find a resting place on bodies which have already reached the habitable stage. Life, occording to Arrhenius, may also be transmitted from one heavenly body to another by means of meteors. -Pathfinder Magazine.

Historic Edifice

Kenilworth castle is in Warwickshire. England. It has figured prominently in the history of the country. In 1575 it was the scene of 19 days' entertainment of Queen Elizabeth by the earl of Leicester. The walls originally inclosed an area of 7 acres. The principal portions of the building remaining are the gatehouse, now used as a dwelling house; Caesar's tower, the only portion built by Geoffrey de Clinton now extant, with massive walls 16 feet thick; the Merwyn's tower of Scott's "Kenilworth"; the great hall, built by John of Gaunt, with windows of very beautiful design, and the Leicester buildings, which are in a very ruinous condition.

Purist Enters Objection

An indignant purist, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, has publicly taken to task a prominent Oregon attorney for using the quotation, ascribed to William Congreve, a dramatist of the Eighteenth century: "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." He says that there is no such language in Congreve or anywhere else. The exact quotation is: "There is no rage like love to hatred turned, nor hath hell a fury like a woman scorned." This is one of such almost innumerable popular modifications of literature which, despite the rage of the purist,

Silver in Olden Days

Whatever the difference in mechanical aspects, in many respects our modern life parallels closely the lives of the ancients. The noble and aristocratic Egyptians and Greeks had an exquisite appreciation of the niceties of life. One of their most cherished treasures was their sterling silver, which they had in abundance and from which they drank and feasted. It was their accredited tableware as it was of the nobles of the Roman empire. Cups and vessels of this precious metal have come down to us through the ages in a perfect state of preser-

Two Greatest Virtues

Education is what enables some people to get along without intelligence. Intelligence is what enables some people to get along without education. A few men possess both virtues; these constitute our real leaders .- Grit.

Choose Best Time to

Make Home Alterations

Repair work and new construction should be classed separately for a number of reasons. Repair work of a minor character is usually paid for on a time basis; that is, the owner pays a fixed rate per hour for the services of the men engaged. When this is done during a period of inactivity in a given trade the most efficient workers are ordinarily available, and they are able to do a better job in less time than less skilled men who might perform the work during an active period.

Home owners from time to time employ building trades workers to do outside and interior painting, to put on new roofs, to make alterations and additions to plumbing systems, to overhaul and repair the heating apparatus and to do interior remodeling, such as changing partitions and laying tile floors in bathrooms. They also require grading of grounds, the construction of driveways and erection or enlargement of garages and other outbuildings. Then there are sidewalk repairs, laying of concrete or masonry floors in the cellars, waterproofing, replacing awnings and screens and repairs to exterior woodwork. The time chosen by the owner for such work is of importance to himself and to the community and bears a close relation to the general cost of living.

Cities Now Recognize

Need of Playgrounds Although in the last quarter of a century the United States has passed from a predominantly rural people to a predominantly urban people, the average American is "an outdoor ani-

As proof of this statistics show that 711 American cities today offer playgrounds and recreation as a natural and usual function of government, and the profession of play leader, or recreation director, numbers almost 16,000

Municipal playgrounds, parks, auditoriums, stadia, bathing beaches, golf courses, opera and radio are to be found everywhere, and public recreation is about the last word in the evolution of positive functions of the ernment for the promotion of the Example piness of citizens.

Home Ownership

As a practical proposition home ownership should appeal to every family. When it is considered that approximately one-third of our life is spent in the home it is readily obvious that home is of paramount importance. Paying rent, it has been pointed out, is purchasing a home but it is purchasing it for the other fellow. Money paid out in rent over a period of years represents home ownership to some one. Modern methods developed in purchase plans have made it possible for the average person to ventually own a home with pract cally the same monthly outlay that would be required as rent. In purchasing a home one should be careful not to undertake a proposition beyond their means.

Preserve Highway Beauty

Action to preserve the beauty of the highways in San Luis Obispo county, California, has been taken by the board of county supervisors in the passage of an ordinance prohibiting the erection of signs and billboards along the county highways. Exception is made for legal notices and recognized direction signs for tourists, while signs will not be permitted on fences, trees, or on buildings belonging to the county. Fines provided range from $25 to $200 or imprisun ment for not more than 50 days, or both, for violations.

First Sheep in America

Sheep were introduced from Mexico into the portion of the country now known as Texas at a very early date. In 1872 Mexican sheep were brought in numbers into the state, but at this time the industry was not prosperous. In a report of the Department of Agriculture for 1892 it was stated that in a short period of 24 years the industry had developed to a great extent, and that the yield of wool per head had increased from 2.68 pounds to 6.8 pounds. This indicated that the industry was established before 1872.

Food Pilgrims Brought

The food that was brought over on the Mayflower consisted of bacon, hard-tack, salt beef, herring, cheese, beer or ale. For luxuries they carried butter, vinegar, mustard and perhaps lemons and prunes. About 1630 the food of the colonists consisted of fish and game, oysters, clams and mussels, beans, pumpkins, peas, squash, turnips, parsnips, onions, apples and pears, grapes and huckleberries. Cranberries were not then known.

Patent Office Busy

Every year more than 80,000 applications are made for patents in the United States, of which amount onehalf are granted. The number of applications has doubled in the last 25 years. About 1,500,000 patents have been granted during the history of the United States patent office. No other country approaches that record.

Best Method of Waxing

The best method of applying the wax is to take cheesecloth and double it, then fold into a sort of Put a handful of wax inside and go over the floor thoroughly. The wax works through the meshes of the cheesecloth and coats the floor evenly. After drying for about 20 minutes, it is ready for polishing. Rub to a polsh with a weighted floor brush, first across the grain of the wood, then with it. Then place a piece of woolen felt under the brush to give the finishing gloss. After waiting an hour a second coat of wax should be applied in the same manner and rubbed to a polish.

Varnish finish is more expensive than wax, but it gives a very hard surface which at the same time is elastic. One or two coats should be applied after the paste filler.

Meaning of the Name Ida

Ida and Ada are practically synonymous. In early times, however, Ada was believed to be derived from Adah, meaning ornament, and the name Adah was given to the wife of Lamech in the Old Testament. But later etymological authorities believe that Ada is merely a Latinized form of Ead, meaning happy or rich, and the same as the German Ida. Ida's gem is the Something went wrong with the honey bee population of Taneytown, last Sunday, as there was a pretty general unrest among the little fellows, both where there were hives and where there were not. The commotion kept up from early morning until afternoon. It was like a swarming time, and the bees were not in a stinging humor, but they were noisy, very active and seemed to have some unusual disturbance on hand.
