Automobile races on Saturday beginning at 1 o'clock by experienced drivers in real racing cars, with boxing bouts between the races.

A grand display of fireworks will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Children's day will be observed on Friday.

Dancing will be a feature each evening, and free attractions will be presented twice daily. The exhibits in all departments will be as large or larger than former years.

One of the chief events at the Fair will be horseshoe pitching, on Wednesday and Friday, beginning at 10 o'clock under the management of L. C. Burns, County Agent. The event will be open to pitchers of Carroll county. Premiums will be given the winners.

Home-makers' Coming Events.

A communication from the Carroll County Home-makers' organization, says:

Final plans for the Carroll County Home-makers' picnic have been made. The committee on arrangements decided to hold the picnic at Flickinger's grove, about eight miles from Westminster on the Taneytown road.

The picnic will be held from 10:30 to 4:00 on Wednesday, August 28. Everyone is requested to bring their own box lunch. Ice water will be provided and ice cream may be purchased at the picnic grounds. Bring your camp chairs, blankets or cushions if you wish.

Each club will be responsible for two recreational features. We want as many of the home-makers as possible to take part, so provide games which require several participants. Several of the younger club members will help entertain the youngsters, so you can enjoy the day's outing.

Keep the date in mind and plan to attend this picnic. This is your get-together and we want you to enjoy it so much that we can make it an annual event. In case of a heavy rain on Wednesday, the picnic will be held on the following day.

The County Fair this year will be held Aug. 13-17. Bring your canned and baked products and your home made needle work and clothing on Monday, Aug. 12. Exhibits will be entered on that date.

The educational exhibit will be based on the Home Furnishing project. A simple inexpensive living room will be featured. The charm of this livable living room depends upon color, pleasing arrangement and good planning.

The rest tent will be located at the back entrance to the household exhibit building (the same location as last year). It is there for your use. You are invited to come there to rest.

More Autos Run into Trains.

A further analysis of the statement made public by the Safety Section of the American Railway Association reveals the fact that grade crossing accidents caused by motorists running into the sides of trains are increasing.

The figures show that out of a total of 5,036 accidents during 1928, in which 2,175 persons lost their lives, 549 occurred at crossings which were protected with a closed gate or a watchman, resulting in 147 fatalities. At grade crossings which had audible or visible signals, 989 accidents occurred in which 535 persons lost their lives.

It is interesting to note that nearly one-third of the total accidents last year occurred at crossings which were protected by a watchman, by closed gates, or by audible and visible signals. But even more startling is the fact that, of the 1,275 accidents caused by vehicles running into the side of trains, approximately one-third occurred at crossings which were protected by a watchman, gates or signals.

Some of us might find happiness if we would quit struggling so desperately for it.

ANOTHER MAN KILLED

At Grade Crossing by Frederick Div. Penna. Train.

C. K. Kauffman, aged 65 years, of York county, was fatally injured at a grade crossing in York, Pa., on Thursday morning by a Penna. passenger train on its way to Frederick. He was badly crushed and died within a few minutes after being picked up.

This is the second fatal grade crossing accident by the same train within about two weeks, the first having been Hugh Harner, at Kingsdale. Coroner Zech decided that death was due to an accident and no inquest was held.

Kauffman operated a small truck farm and was on his way into York with a load of cucumbers and corn. An eye-witness said he saw the accident, heard the whistle and bell of the engine and saw that Kauffman had apparently failed to hear either, but drove on the track in front of the engine.

State Holstein Field Day at State Hospital, August 10th.

The State Holstein Friesian Association will hold its regular annual state meeting in Carroll County, on Saturday, August 10th. All breeders of the black and white cow will have an opportunity to get together as breeders and really accomplish something for the breed and at the same time have a real profitable day for themselves.

Who will be there? Breeders from every county in the State and that will mean an interesting program. The breeders of Carroll county are going to do a great deal to make this day one of the greatest days the dairymen have ever had.

A lively program will be provided with all sorts of entertainment. Milk and coffee will be served free and a light lunch can be secured at a very nominal sum if you do not bring your lunch. At any rate, much coffee and milk will be served for the asking.

Both adults and juniors judging teams will judge a class of animals with some compensation for the winner in each age class. The band will play while you have a good time and this is going to be a day for all Holstein breeders to cast aside their worries and come out and talk things over. No breeder of Holsteins can afford to miss it. For further details get in touch with L. C. Burns, County Agent of Carroll County.

State Camp of Md. P. O. S. of A.

The 34th. annual meeting of the State Camp of Maryland, P. O. S. of A., was held in Junior Hall, Cumberland, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, delegates being present from most of the Camps in the State. The report of the Secretary showed an increase in both membership and finances for the year. James H. Patten, State President, Washington, D. C., presided.

An address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Thomas W. Koon. Interspersed with the business sessions were a trip by invitation through the Kelly-Springfield Auto tire plant, a sight-seeing trip over the city and a memorial service in the City Hall auditorium, Tuesday night. A concert was given by the P. O. S. of A. band.

C. L. Nonemaker, Past State President of Penna., and Past Commander of the Commandery General, the uniformed rank of the order, was a guest of the State Camp and delivered an address both on Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The officers for the coming year were elected as follows: State President, Robt. M. Hutcheson, of Cumberland; Vice-President, M. B. Kinnaman, Queen Anne's Co.; Master of Forms, Rev. A. E. Eickhoff, Baltimore; Conductor, George E. Ward, Havre de Grace; Inspector, Harry Myers, Pleasant Valley; Guard, C. W. Fleetwood, Baltimore; Trustees, Chas. H. Williams, Baltimore; J. W. Buckner, Baltimore; and George Cole, Perryville; National Delegates, Wm. J. Carter, Baltimore; Wm. T. Childs, Baltimore; Wm. H. Temple, Church Hill; C. E. Effland, Cumberland; Q. E. Weant, Baltimore; C. H. Corbett, Hancock; Geo. E. Noland, Sparrows Point.

The State Camp next year will convene in Baltimore, the second Tuesday in August.

Unclaimed Babe in Warner Hospital.

The baby boy, found on the porch of the home of Mrs. Anna Ingell, at Zora, on the Fairfield-Emmitsburg road, early in the morning on July 6, is still without a home, his father and mother are unknown to county authorities. The little waif is still at the Annie M. Warner Hospital. State and county authorities ran down every conceivable clue in an effort to learn the identity of the youngster's parents, but in vain. Laundry marks found on the clothing of the babe were traced through laundries in neighboring communities but without results.

The police sought, through this clue, to learn the identity of the parents. Other information conveyed to state police was checked but to no avail. The identity of the parents of the youngster remains a mystery. Many requests were made to hospital authorities by various families seeking to adopt the youngster but legal steps could not be taken pending the investigation of the state police.

Spangler Family Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Spangler family will be held at Boiling Springs Park, near Carlisle, on Sunday, Aug. 18, 1929. 202 years ago, the first Spangler came to America.

OUR DETROIT LETTER CONTINUED

The Pleasure Resorts and Sights of the Big Motor City.

The Park to which we are nearest, is named after one of Michigan's great Senators—Zachariah Chandler. This Park is not so well developed—in fact not much work has been done. On the evening of July 4th, a great fireworks display was given here by the Recreation Department, at which thousands were present. This was done here as well as at dozens of other places, to give the people a little taste of the old-fashioned noisy 4th., as the sale of all kinds of fireworks—even toy paper caps pistols, was prohibited.

Then there is a Palmer Park named after Senator Palmer, another great Michigan Senator, which contains the original log house he lived in. Pingree Park, Clark Park, Northwestern Field, Lodge Park and numerous other small playgrounds all go to make up a chain of places, to which a tired person may go to rest.

I surely do not want to miss making mention of Waterworks Park, the beautiful little place, where the heart of the great water system of Detroit is situated. In front of the buildings and filtration plant, Public Library, Branch and Horticultural Garden, is a fine grove, in the center of which is a small artificial lake, which I suppose gives the smaller children, more pleasure than anything else in Detroit at least in this hot weather. Thousands from the age of 2 up to 13 keep cool here and have a splendid time in the shallow water. In this Park is the famous Floral clock, which really runs, but I will not vouch for the correctness of the time it keeps.

I promised in a former article to tell you something of the zoo. This is a new thing for Detroit, as formerly its zoo was on Belle Isle, and consisted of one elephant, some bears and a lot of other animals and birds, and never looked as if they were at all pleased with their homes.

But a few years ago, a large farm was donated to the city with the proviso that it should construct a modern zoo. A commission was named, and it has done good work for the time it has been in existence. We had never been out to see it, owing principally to the difficulty of getting there without a car, for it is ten miles from the City Hall. But on July 6th., in company with the wife of our son Ferris, of Springfield, Illinois, and their two children, we made the trip. Usually, they told us there is a large crowd there on Saturdays and holidays. But as it rained quite heavily while we were on our way out, not many people were there. We visited the bird house, with its hundreds of strange songsters, parrots and a few monkeys, and after being driven back several times by showers, we finally set forth on a sight-seeing tour.

In most Zoos, the animals are fenced or penned in. Here is where the Detroit Zoo differs. The animals are not fenced in, but the sight-seers are fenced out. Deep ditches, wide enough to prevent the best jumpers from getting over them, sloping to the bottom from the dens of the animals and perpendicular on the outer edge, keep the animals, lions, tigers, bears, etc., from going where they are not wanted. A number of lions are in a house provided for them, and here we saw three baby lions, born at the zoo during the past few months.

Of course the youngsters were most attracted by Monkey Park, where nearly 500 monkeys, large and small, have their home. A large crowd is always around this rock, to watch the comic antics of its inhabitants. Then there are deer, zebras, elephants, raccoons, wolverines, and the beautiful artificial small lakes or ponds contain many kinds of wild ducks, swan and geese.

One of the Commissioners has given, the past year, over $50,000 worth of animals, and work is being pushed to accommodate other animals, such as the Rhinoceros, some more elephants, and two giraffes, which have given the Zoo people much anxiety on account of the difficulty of getting them here, without harm to their long necks. We saw where they are preparing an African swamp, to contain animals from that continent, and also small deer, etc. Hagenback, the great German wild animal man, says this zoo will, in the course of time, be the best in the United States, owing to the manner of its construction, which is similar to that of the greatest zoo in the world, in Germany.

But you may want to go to some place at a distance from Detroit—something very easy to do in these days of high-speed cars. Then you can drive to one of the 110 lakes in Oakland county, which adjoins Wayne county; or by going further on, and there is no limit until you get to the Straits of the North, you can visit any of the dozens of Public State Park, or the thousands of lakes throughout the state.

I almost forgot to say that if you think you would enjoy flying, that a company conducts flights around Belle Isle every 45 minutes. All you need is nerve and $5.00, and you can make the trip. Or if you want to fly through the water, just get on one of the speed boats, and your desire will be granted.

So you see that the people of Detroit need not stay at home all the time—that there are plenty of pleasures to enjoy—even if you do not care for theatres and moving-talking picture houses. I often wonder, how-

INSPECTION OF WHEAT

A Government Service May be Established in Md.

There is a possibility that a limited grain inspection service for wheat will be provided in this part of the state if the try-out of such a service on the Eastern Shore at Easton this summer works out satisfactorily. Inasmuch as Frederick is the center of the leading wheat-growing section of Maryland, it is expected that the laboratory would be established here, Frederick, Montgomery and Carroll counties are the leaders in wheat production, Washington county also being a good wheat county as compared to other parts of the state.

Considerable complaint has been voiced here in regard to the marketing of wheat, especially when the grain is not up to standard. The dealers bid according to what they think they can obtain on the basis of the grade. Frequently their prices vary greatly and farmers gain the impression that they are being taken advantage of. A government service which would establish grades on samples would remove many objections that are raised at present. For this reason, the service on the Eastern Shore will be watched with interest.

This service was inaugurated on July 1 and will be provided for six or eight weeks according to Dr. F. B. Bomberger, chief of the Maryland State Department of Markets. It is being furnished by the Maryland State Department of Markets, in cooperation with the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Federal Grain Supervision, as a result of a number of conferences held on the Eastern Shore to consider the practicability of setting up a system of grain inspection which would give the producer or dealer direct immediate information concerning the grade of his wheat at the time of marketing it.

Under the plan of operation, farmers, millers, elevator operators and shippers of grain, have been invited to apply for inspection of their grain after it has been threshed and when it is ready for marketing. The grain inspector takes the necessary samples into the laboratory where they are tested for weight, moisture, garlic, dockage, etc. A certificate, showing the grade of the wheat, is furnished on the same day to the owner or the shipper of the grain sampled.—Frederick News.

"Inside" Information for Women.

Serve small portions of food to children so that they can clear their plates without the feeling of being stuffed, or nagged into eating.

Grass stains will usually come out of washable materials with vigorous rubbing, hot water and soap, if treated while fresh. If traces of stain remain on white materials, they may be bleached out with Javelle water.

The waists for sun suits for children should be made of loosely woven fabrics, so that the ultra-violet rays of the sun can reach the body through the large spaces in the materials. All the common textile fibers stop most of the ultra-violet rays.

Don't put hot foods in the refrigerator. Cool them first to room temperature. Don't use ice to cool such things as the tops of carrots, the outside leaves of lettuce or thick paper on parcels from the market. Don't waste ice storing vegetables for a short time if you are going to use them immediately. Opening and shutting the door frequently raises the temperature of the air in the refrigerator, so that more ice is required to cool it.

Lemon is not the only garnish for iced tea, although it is very commonly used both to decorate the glass and add to the flavor of the tea. A spray of mint, a rose geranium leaf, a thin slice of orange or lime, are other attractive garnishes; and some people like a flavoring of whole cloves or stick cinnamon, put into the tea while it is hot, or a few cloves stuck in each slice of lemon and arranged pleasingly on a plate to be served with the tea.

Frederick Man Fatally Hurt by Freight Train.

Crushed beneath the wheels of a freight train at the Knoxville crossing, Wednesday afternoon, William H. Fauble, 57, died three hours later in the City Hospital, Frederick. Finding his way blocked by the train Fauble started to crawl under one of the cars. When about midway the train started and the wheels mangled his left leg and hip.

He was pulled from beneath the car by persons standing nearby and taken to the Emergency Hospital. From the latter place he was brought to the City Hospital. Besides his widow he is survived by one son and two daughters.

ever, if the young people are as happy with these many things to do and see, these days, as we were with our comparatively few pleasures 40 or more years ago. They surely ought to be, but when you read the accounts of suicides, murders, divorces, etc., it seems if they are missing something, and that life for them is not as pleasant as it should be.

I suppose I had better stop writing, for fear that some would think I am getting to be a press agent for Detroit and Michigan. But I am only stating facts as they are, and in order to test whether they are true or not, I would like some of my friends to make me a visit and let me return some of the hospitality extended to me and mine, while on our visits "back home."

MRS. SPURRIER HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Charge of Murdering her Husband Entered Against her.

Mrs. Viola Spurrier was on Tuesday ordered by Judge Parke to be held for the action of the Grand Jury on the charge of murdering her husband, by shooting, on July 27, at Asbestos, near Westminster.

The order was given by Chief Judge Francis Neal Parke after he had heard testimony in habeas corpus proceeding brought by the woman's attorneys, Edward O. Weant and Jno. R. Wood, Jr., to free her from jail, where she has been held since the fatal shooting.

The only witness presented were Foley Naylor and Miss Gertrude Spurrier, the latter a niece of the slain man, both of whom were said to have been present when Mrs. Spurrier shot her husband. After the testimony Mrs. Spurrier's attorneys sought to abandon the proceedings and filed an order to dismiss the petition, but Judge Parke ruled that the cause had proceeded too far and issued the order to hold her on a formal charge of murder.

Mr. Naylor, said to be the only eyewitness to the shooting, testified that he and Miss Spurrier had been sitting on the running board of a car not far from the Spurrier home when Spurrier came out and began to upbraid his niece for alleged misconduct. With this, he said, Mrs. Spurrier came out on the porch of the house and called to her husband to let the girl alone.

Mrs. Spurrier then came on to the car, Mr. Naylor said, and the quarrel which resulted in the shooting started. Mr. Spurrier grabbed his wife by the shoulder, Mr. Naylor said, and both fell to their knees. He said he pulled them apart and Mrs. Spurrier arose, leaving Mr. Spurrier still kneeling, and the next thing he knew he saw a flash and heard the report of a pistol. He saw a second flash, he said, and Spurrier fell to the ground.

Miss Spurrier's testimony was similar to that of Mr. Naylor except she denied she saw the shooting. She said she walked away as Mrs. Spurrier came on the scene, but heard the reports of the pistol, which she described as two shots in rapid succession. She testified she frequently had heard Spurrier threaten to kill his wife and that she knew Mrs. Spurrier kept a pistol.

Resigned Pastorate After Ten Years.

The Rev. Dr. George M. Diffenderfer, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, Washington, D. C., for ten years, left the pastorate August 1. His resignation was handed to the Church Council, Sunday, and at a congregational meeting afterward the membership voted to accept it with "deep regrets."

Dr. Diffenderfer, in announcing his decision, which was understood to be in line with his policy not to remain in one congregation more than ten years, said he would remain in the district for the present to give his entire time to obtaining the quota of Washington and Maryland toward the $2,000,000 fund for the erection of the Lutheran College for Women.

Dr. Diffenderfer, who was graduated from Gettysburg college in 1893, and from the Lutheran Theological Seminary three years later, has been active in the Lutheran denomination since he was ordained. Before going to Washington, he served pastorates at Newport and Carlisle.

Marsh Hanged Early this Friday Morning.

John Orestes Marsh, of this county, who was recently convicted in the Circuit Court of the county for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Beulah E. Marsh, on April 10, by shooting her to death with a gun, was hanged at the Maryland Penitentiary shortly after midnight this morning. Marsh had been drinking before committing the act.

That Settled Him.

The story is told of a traveling man who recently dropped into a hotel not so far from here and espied a new waitress in the dining room. "Nice day, little one," began the drummer.

"Yes, it is," she answered; "so was yesterday. My name is Ella. I know I'm a peach, have pretty blue eyes, I've been here a week and like the place. I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a hotel; if I did I'd quit my job; my wages are satisfactory; I don't know if there is a dance or a show in town tonight or not. If there is I shall not go with you. I'm from the country, I'm respectable, my brother is a cook in this hotel; he weighs 200 pounds, and last week he wiped up this very dining room floor with a fresh 100-a-month traveling man. Now what are you going to have to eat?"

LETTER FROM CHINA

Interesting Facts, Mainly About the Chinese Women.

Dear Editor:-

Here come a letter from this land of intrigue, graft, warfare, famine, suffering, chaos, to tell you and the readers of your excellent paper about China's new woman who has a share in the "goings-on."

If a woman in China, twenty years ago, had been given a Rip Van Winkle sleep, she would be more surprised than he was, should she awake today. Then women had to stay indoors and work something like domestic animals. Or, if of a better family, be cooped up home and stay there. She was allowed to be seen only by her husband or brothers.

Now what a change! The modern Chinese women skip around the streets with a spring, grace and freedom that's quite refreshing when one remembers the women formerly hobbling along on bound feet supported by amahs. Now girls bob, shingle, or permanent wave their hair. That's a sign of freedom! They ride bicycles, play tennis, basketball and engage in other athletics. Formerly the parents arranged their marriage. Now one often sees the young ladies walking very affectionately arm in arm with their "best boys," and the young people often do the arranging. The dress used to be the most modest of any nationality. Now women are often seen with short sleeves and very low-necked frocks even at midday. Sometimes they're seen with the most up-to-date up-beyond-the-knee short frocks and flimsy silk hose and very high-heeled shoes. Indeed the Chinese girls are quite amusing flappers sometimes—shocking sometimes—so much so that the officials have felt it necessary to issue proclamations commanding them to dress modestly. The girls have even learned to flirt in the most up-to-date way. That's freedom! They dance in the latest style. They ride horses, astride, with boots and riding breeches. "That's English, you know."

Once the ideal for girls was that they be able to do beautiful needlework at home. Now they are doing other things. They are clerks in stores. Some are typists and stenographers. Some are bankers. They play the organ or piano or other musical instruments. Some are becoming movie artists or actresses. Some are lawyers and judges and doctors, and teachers and kindergarten teachers. They even become soldiers and sometimes they become General's secretaries! Women also become street-corner politicians and scream the Revolutionary platitudes such as "Down with imperialism!" "Give the people freedom!" to beat the most zealous men Revolutionaries. Rarely do you see meetings for propaganda or riots without seeing girls or women taking active part in them, urging on the riots. I am glad to say that some few of them are taking part in the Red Cross work in relieving the suffering of those wounded in battle. Women, too, occupy places of influence in the government in Nanking. Once women's faces lacked all hope and ambition, and there are still great hosts of women who are the same drudges at home or worse—in great factories. But among the younger generation they have ambition—ambition that carries them to extremes.

I'm glad to say that there are many modest, motherly women who have gone through our mission schools who are making nice, clean, beautiful Christian homes where the children are brought up well and taught to be good useful members of society, children of whom they and missions can be proud and thankful. One can not expect great things from a nation in which the people have been brought up for ages in filth, physical and moral; but a new generation is coming on, born anew in the church of Christ and in these clean Christian homes. We are expecting much for China from such. Things are out of joint in China; but we hope and pray that the common sense of better Chinese and the deeply planted power of the Gospel will gradually overcome the criminal influences and that China will find peace, prosperity, and a place among the great nations of the world.

Yours in Christ's glad service,

Fewer Aliens Admitted During this Year.

Washington, D. C.—Fewer immigrant aliens were admitted to the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, than in any fiscal year for the past ten years, according to a statement made public by the Commissioner General of Immigration, Harry E. Hull.

The total number of immigrant aliens admitted during the past fiscal year was 279,678, as against 307,255 for the preceding year, a decrease of 27,577, or nine percent. The total for 1929 was the lowest since 1919, when 141,132 immigrants entered the country. The decrease for the past year was largely confined to three countries, namely: Irish Free State, Canada and Mexico. Immigration from the Irish Free State dropped from 24,544 in 1928 to 17,672 in 1929, or 28 percent; from Canada it dropped from 73,154 to 64,440, or 12 percent; and from Mexico from 59,016 to 40,154, or 32 percent. There was an increase from nearly all of the other countries, particularly from England, Scotland, and Sweden, the total immigrants from all Europe being 158,513 in 1928 and 158,598 in 1929.

Why Not Get all of the Evidence?

Attention is being called by the wet press that under the Volstead law the Keeley Home at one location is so crowded with patients—and especially women applicants—that the buildings need enlarging—all because of iniquitous 18th. Amendment, the Volstead Act, and the more recent Jones law.

The important thing that the newspaper reports fail to state, is that many smaller "Keeley Cure" places have either gone out of business, or have very few cases to treat, nor do they give the records of many sanitariums and hospitals that made a specialty of treating alcoholic cases; nor of the experience of physicians in their home practice along the same line with common, or uncommon "drunks."

The studied unfairness of a portion of the press is discussing the question of the effect of Volsteadism, is notoriously unfair and one-sided, which almost calls for the question—What do they get out of it?

Where are the Churches?

Dr. Ainslie, pastor of the Christian Temple, Baltimore, recently asked this question, in an address commenting on recent race riots, indicating that the churches in the riot towns were partly responsible. He said—

"The United States Government pays the churches of this country more than $2,000,000,000 annually to check crime and set up moral standards. By this I mean that all church properties are exempt from taxation to that extent. It is a solemn covenant between the Government and the churches. Every race riot indicates that the churches have failed to keep their part of the covenant. They have been doing other things than contending against crime and setting up moral standards that have to deal with racial understanding."

We think that Dr. Ainslie is disposed to be unfair concerning the churches as organizations, and should have qualified his statement by directing them against some members of the churches. Responsibility in any community is largely individual, whether it be for good or evil happenings; and even specific wrong committed, or permitted, by church members, is individual. The church can only try to christianize its members; it can do no more than act in a pleading and advisory capacity; it can only fight the Devil—in the church and out—but can not absolutely censor individual acts.

There is the possibility of the church becoming lazy—its pastor and official bodies; it may get into a comfortable rut and stay there; it may hold itself aloof in a sort of sanctified "Holier than Thou" manner and take no part in aggressive politics as it refers to better government. But, this "possibility" is so rare as to be unworthy of emphasizing, and even then it is again the individual members who are responsible—the "personal libertines" who are not bound by what the church stands for.

Nor do we like the statement that the "U. S. Government pays the churches of the country more than $2,000,000,000 annually to check crime"—in the form of tax exemption. In its efforts toward spreading Christianity, naturally the church opposes criminality, but it is hardly "paid" for so doing by being granted exemption from paying taxes. Dr. Ainslie knows better than we, what the church is, and does, and we would have liked his handling of the topic better had he separated the human from the Divine in speaking of "the church."

The fact is the "church" is knocked sufficiently from the outside, without getting an unqualified barrage from the inside without specifying how—as in this case—the church in its best sense is, or was, responsible for race riots.

Sanitary Supervision of Canneries.

Holding up the modern kitchen with its spic and span cleanliness as the model for packing houses to follow, Mr. A. L. Sullivan, Chief of the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the State Department of Health, in a letter recently sent to the proprietors of canneries throughout the State, puts cleanliness first among the sanitary requirements for establishments engaged in the canning industry. He also places particular emphasis on the importance of the prompt and adequate disposal of waste and of the sanitary supervision of the living quarters of employees.

"The sanitary inspection law requires," Mr. Sullivan said: "That all buildings in which canned foods are packed be adequately equipped for the sanitary handling of food. Buildings must be well lighted and ventilated; walls smooth, clean and painted or whitewashed. Floors must be smooth, tight and well drained; they should be built of cement.

"Wash stands with soap, towels and running water are necessary. An ample supply of good drinking water must be available for employees and for use in the cannery. Sanitary toilets are another requirement.

"Benches, tables, etc., used in the canning processes must be so constructed that they can be kept clean. They must be cleaned daily.

"The cannery must be kept clean! Each cannery should assign a sufficient number of persons to superintend the general sanitation of the cannery. The place should be cleaned twice a day. Employees should be required to wash their hands when starting work and after visiting toilets.

"All wastes must be removed daily and disposed of so that they will not constitute a nuisance. Drains and ditches must be kept clean and free from decaying products.

"Living quarters must be kept clean and must have ample facilities to protect the health of the workers. An abundance of good water should be available and facilities for bathing provided. Closed garbage cans should be furnished and the garbage removed daily. The grounds around the living quarters must be kept clean. Toilets must be maintained in sanitary order at all times. A competent person should supervise the sanitation of the living quarters and surroundings."

Save the Beauty of the Wayside.

We think we can truthfully say that public opinion, as expressed through the actions of civic and social clubs, is with the fellow who is working to make and keep our countryside beautiful. Therefore, we are amazed at the careless attitude of those who are building our highways and extending public utilities to towns, villages and the open country. As Will Rogers would say, "We only know what we see."

Everybody is interested in extending the telephone and electric lines as far as possible. All thinking people, however, resent the way in which many representatives of these companies destroy the beauty of a whole village or town, or decrease the value of timberland in the open country, by ruthlessly cutting out age-old trees and putting unsightly poles in most prominent places.

It is our policy to help the rural people secure all the modern conveniences necessary to the more abundant life. We also think it our duty to warn them against unnecessary sacrifices. Therefore, we call this matter to the attention of the companies interested, as well as to the people, hoping that some action may be taken.

To build a hard surface road also requires an enormous sacrifice of trees and top soil. The people stand for it, hoping and expecting that the increase in land values on a good road will compensate them. Yet, in several states, we notice that after a few years, while the old road is still in good condition, a new and straighter one is seemed to be needed. As a result, more trees are hewn down, more farm land depleted and more farmers buoyed up with the hope of increased values. On the old road we find farms, and even whole villages and towns left high and dry to get along as best they can, while a shorter route from Kalamazoo to Timbuktu is made for the casual tourist. If the taxes, paid by the people of the state, are to be used primarily to make smooth and straight the paths of the tourist, why was this not carefully considered before the first road was surveyed? If it had been, the money now being used to rectify the unnecessary mistakes, might be put to the service of our long-suffering citizen by helping him to improve the county road passing nearer his farm. In this way the isolated farmer would be reasonably sure of getting his produce to market on time, rain or shine, his income would be increased, his home made more comfortable and his land improved.

We believe in good roads and appreciate their value as an advertising agency for any state. We are confident, however, that they will serve this purpose more effectively if the beauty of the wayside is not sacrificed to the straight lines of the unimaginative mechanical mind that thinks of life only in terms of pure commercialism. We also believe the roads may be made to serve our transient friends quite as well if the needs of our citizens are taken into consideration.—The Southern Planter.

A Distressing Tragedy.

All Frederick county is shocked and distressed by the killing of Clyde L. Hauver, special deputy of the Sheriff's force, while making a raid with other officers upon a large still in the mountains beyond Thurmont last Thursday evening. Here was a young man clothed with the authority of the law aiding in bringing to justice those engaged in the illicit manufacture of liquor, in defiance of the county local option law as well as the supreme law of the land. To shoot down in cold blood a man known to be performing his duty as an officer is a most despicable and dastardly crime. It is to be hoped that the person who fired the fatal shot can be apprehended and made to pay the full penalty, and the entire group of law breakers speedily brought to justice.

Deputy Hauver was a fine type of a young man, going about his work in a quiet and unostentatious way. It is extremely sad to see his life snuffed out in the performance of his duty, leaving behind a young wife and three small children. It seems a great pity that no provision is made by the county in the way of insurance for the families of officers who thus lose their lives. Had Officer Hauver been employed in private occupation and lost his life in the course of work compensation, under the State law, would have been provided for his dependents. But, as he was employed in an official capacity, in the interest of the public welfare, he loses the benefit of such protection. Someone may contend that any officer knows the risk of such work when he undertakes it, which is quite true. Certain employees of many private enterprises are engaged in extra hazardous work, and they, too, know the risk they assume; yet these are protected under the State Compensation act. In the case of our soldiers, too, in the World War, a desirable insurance protection was afforded. It is most unfortunate that the situation exists as it does in respect to officers of the law.

The sympathy of the whole county goes out to the relatives of Deputy Hauver, but it certainly would be much finer and more commendable if this sympathy could take a more material form in some way or other to compensate for the severe loss that his family has sustained.—Frederick News.

Too Rigid Economy Does Not Constitute Thrift.

True thrift is gained neither by too much economy nor by too much spending.

When waste is eliminated, we follow the principles of sound thrift but it must be recognized that over-economy or hoarding sometimes leads to types of waste that are unwise in their results as are the results of extravagance.

False economy, carried to the point of hurting the delicately adjusted balances of business, means eventual waste. Loss of trade by the retail merchant is passed along to the jobber who in turn passes it on to the manufacturer. The result is unemployment, a form of waste that is undesirable for everybody and harmful to all.

Thus under-spending can if carried to excess, produce unwholesome economic conditions that are as distressing as the consequences of over-spending.

Too much spending means at once a waste all along the line. It leads to over-expansion and speculative activities which continue in their natural cycle until they end in sharp reaction and acute business depression. Thrift consists of prudent saving and judicious spending.

If you are uncertain as to whether a particular transaction is within the laws of sound thrift or economic principles, you can usually determine the solution by finding, in the last analysis, whether your decision will mean elimination of waste.—S. W. Straus.

Make a Taxi

"I never was so mortified!" exclaimed Mrs. Averdupois.
"Yeah? What happened?" asked her husband.
"I got on a street car today," said the lady of many pounds. "and a cat er thin man got up to give me a seat but as the man next to him wouldn't get up, too I had to stand and listen to the rest of the passengers in the car sneer at me."—Inquirer.

"She-Deevil" Reversed

Precept of Good Book

From being a gentle, lovable maiden before marriage, Sandy McGruder's spouse had developed into one of the most shrewish women, not only in the village but in the county. Her "tantrums" were a continual source of despair to her poor husband, upon whom, not content with using her vitriolic tongue, she frequently vented physical punishment. To his credit, be it said, Sandy never lifted his hand in return.

Meeting the minister one day after a peculiarly trying time with his spouse, Sandy complained that life was not worth living "wif' yon randy o' a wife o' mine, curse her!"

The good man was shocked to hear one of his parishioners speaking thus of his wife and, knowing a bit about Sandy's plight, he counseled him to "thole his troubles like a Christian."

"And remember what the Good Book says," he added. "Resist the devil and he will fly from you!"

"That's a'verra true, meenister," said Sandy with a sigh. "But if I resist ma ain she-deevil she flies at me!"—Sir Harry Lauder in the London Sunday Chronicle.

High Praise Accorded

Norwegians and Norway

Norwegians, writes an English traveler in that country, have grace without stiffness. Even the gyrations of jazz are executed with stateliness in Oslo. The people love beauty. They take a just pride in possessing one of the most charming capitals in the world. Whether draped in snow and ice or smiling under the midnight sun of summer, it is a peer among cities. With its stately public buildings set amid winding waterways and innumerable little wooded islands on the outskirts. It might be described as a Pleasure city, but for the air of solid industry which characterizes its well-dressed people. They work, but they appear to extract the maximum amount of enjoyment from the simple amusements of life. Even the telephone operators are models of good behavior, goes on the English traveler. And no people are more hospitable and kindly in their treatment of foreigners, he adds. This latter is the true mark of culture.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Unchangeable Laws

Persia and Media were united under the same ruler after the conquest of the latter country by Cyrus of Persia in the sixth century B. C., says an article in the Pathfinder Magazine. The laws of the Medes and Persians often are referred to as a type of the unalterable and irrevocable. This usage was suggested by several passages in the Bible. Daniel 6:8 says: "Now, O King, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not." Again in the same chapter: "Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O King, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed."

Cats Provided Music

One of the strangest musical (?) instruments ever heard of is described in a book written by Willen skl. He states that when Emperor Charles V introduced Philip II to the subjugated Netherlands in 1549 there was a procession through Brussels, in which figured a musician with an organ. A cat with its tail tied to a key was imprisoned in each pipe, and as the musician struck the notes the tails were pinched and the cats screeched and howled. It seems hardly credible to this age of sensibility. There was no S. P. C. A. in those days.

"As Ever, Yours"

Ruskin—who got into trouble with Whistler over a critique—was wont to attack all and sundry with a savage merriment which even his best friends at times resented. Once he wrote to a friend hoping that a fierce criticism written by him of his friend's picture would make no difference to their friendship. To which the friend had the wit to reply:

"Dear Ruskin: Next time I meet you I shall knock you down, but I hope it will make no difference to our friendship."—Kansas City Star.

Remarkable Woman

Old Silerius says in his memoirs that long after he became a widower, and somewhat cynical, he associated with a woman he finally concluded he would like to marry. But she refused him; she said they got much out of their association as they were, but that marriage would probably spoil it. There was probably something in the woman's statement; just how much I do not know, but no other woman in history ever took that position.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Some Are

Probably it is because courts try so hard to be dignified that even little slips sound so terribly funny. In Judge Sheldon's court, not so very long ago, the jury came in to report a verdict after two hours of argument.

"Have you come to a decision?" asked his honor.

"Yes sir," replied the foreman "The jury is of one mind—temporarily insane."—Los Angeles Times.

more or less, and being the same land, together with the improvements thereon, which was conveyed to Andrew J. Baumgardner by Peter Baumgardner, surviving executor of the last will and testament of Moses P. Baumgardner, late of Carroll County, Maryland, deceased, by deed dated October 2, 1915, and recorded among the Land Records of Carroll County in Liber E. O. C. No. 129, folio 326 &c.

The improvements consist of a two-story frame dwelling house, large bank barn, wagon shed, corn crib and other outbuildings. This is a very desirable as well as valuable property, and the land is in a high state of cultivation. It is well known as the Andrew J. Baumgardner farm, and was formerly occupied by him, but more recently by Thomas C. McDowell.

Also the following: about 30 tons of hay; about 25-30 barrels of corn in the ear; one oak log, and about 5 cords of fire wood.

EXECUTORS' SALE

Valuable Farm

By virtue of the power contained in the last will and testament of Edwin H. Sharets, deceased, and by virtue of an order of the Orphans' Court of Carroll County, the undersigned executors of the said Edwin H. Sharets, deceased, will offer at public sale on the farm, on

TUESDAY AUGUST 13, 1929, at 2:00 P. M., all that valuable farm, consisting of more or less, situated near Bruceville, and on the main road leading from Taneytown to Keymar, now tenanted by Newton J. Hahn.

160 ACRES & 44 SQ. PER. OF LAND

The farm is improved with a good DWELLING HOUSE, barn, wagon shed, hog pen, poultry house, and other outbuildings. It is well watered, with a good supply of excellent water at both house and barn. It has about 15 acres of good standing timber, a tract of permanent pasture with running water, and the rest of the farm is in a high state of cultivation.

On account of the character of the farm, and its location on this main highway, only a little more than a mile from Keymar, this is a very valuable farm, and a most attractive place to live.

Possession can be given immediately upon settlement, subject to the tenancy of the present occupant until April 1, 1930.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase money to be paid to the Executors on the day of sale or on the ratification thereof by the said Court, and the residue in two equal payments, the one payable in six months and the other in twelve months from the day of sale; the credit payments to be secured by the bonds or single bills of the purchaser or purchasers, with sufficient security, bearing interest from the day of sale, or all cash at the option of the purchaser or purchasers.

Improving the Foresight

Men talk a good deal of the superiority of hindsight as compared with foresight. . . . There is plenty of hindsight to govern every human action. What is experience but hindsight? And men have had every possible experience, and told about it. Women do not mercilessly review their past, but men do; I never was in a group of men that they did not condemn their mistakes, and warn others against them. All learning is hindsight; a review of events after they have happened. And what has happened is the future.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Unburnable Paper

A German inventor, Franz Franck, has produced a paper that will not burn. At a recent demonstration the inventor took a sheet of ordinary newspaper, crumpled it into a ball, and wrapped this highly combustible object in a sheet of his fireproof paper. Thus protected, he held it for a few minutes in the flame of a laboratory blast lamp hot enough to melt a glass window pane. Not only did the fireproof wrapping survive but the ordinary paper inside was not even scorched.

Danger From Marchers

The director of the Engineering societies library says that soldiers marching in step across a bridge might cause failure of the bridge due to too great a load or due to vibration. If the type is known, together with certain other details of its construction, it is possible for a bridge engineer to calculate whether or not the bridge will break. It is sometimes possible to produce oscillations in a bridge by men marching in step, and these oscillations may be sufficient cause to break down the bridge. In 1850 a suspension bridge at Angers, France, gave way when 487 soldiers were marching over it and 226 were killed.

Three-Minute Egg

A Detroit woman who put in a long distance telephone call wanted to talk only three minutes. She decided to time herself with a contrivance used for timing eggs being boiled. The device is fashioned on the principle of the hour-glass and by setting it near the telephone where she could see it, she felt she was able to get the full benefit of her conversation over the telephone without any danger of talking longer than she desired.—Detroit News

Holland's Independence

An error often made is to attribute Dutch success in the war for independence too much to William and to Dutch pluck and endurance. Both these were inestimable factors in the defeat of Spain. But William died 25 years before Dutch independence was recognized and Maurice of Orange and Oldenbarneveldt must both be given their due for their work after his death.

Nor must Spanish inefficiency and poverty be forgotten. A Spanish captain once said: "If death had to come from Spain we would be sure of a long life," and twice Philip had to repudiate his national debt.—New York Herald Tribune.

The Way It Goes

"That bird is so lucky that no matter when he gets downtown he always arrives at a parking place just as some other fellow is pulling out and he can back right in."

"And I am so unlucky that if I turned into a street, hunting one, I'd get there just in time enough to see a dozen machines backing into open spaces that hadn't been occupied for at least half an hour."

Primitive Sea Cookery

Hutchinson's Treatise, published in 1791, tells of the cooking arrangements on the vessels at that time. It seems that a slab of metal was placed on the deck and a cauldron of water suspended by a tripod placed over it. A fire was made, either of coal or wood, depending upon the availability of either, and the salt pork was boiled almost constantly, insuring hot food for the sailors at practically any hour. Hutchinson also speaks of taking the drinking water, adding a few tea leaves, and placing this in a bottle which he corked tightly and allowed to boil within the cauldron, so that he could have a hot cup of tea, which is more refreshing than plain water, thus conserving his water supply, quenching his thirst, adding food value that allayed his hunger for the salt pork, and thus saving himself the fearful disease of scurvy.

Skulls Serve a Purpose

Tambourines, bowls and other useful and ornamental objects made from human skulls and bones were brought to Chicago recently from Tibet by Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at the Field museum.

KEYMAR.

J. Raymond Zent gave a children's picnic in the meadow on his farm, recently. A large crowd of children was present, and a free treat served to all, which consisted of different kind of ice cream and cake, bananas, watermelon, lemonade, sandwiches, apples, candy, pop corn, and peanuts. Following the treat, there was music, games and foot races, and prizes given to the winners. All enjoyed a good time and thanked Mr. Zent very much for the beautiful treat. Mr. Zent has always felt a keen interest for the health and general welfare of children and says he loves all children and likes to make them happy. He is planning to convert two acres of his meadow into a park and playground and give an annual picnic to his dairy patrons and their children, and a free treat to all. Mr. Zent deserves a lot of credit for taking such interest in children and giving them a big set-out like he did. The children should never forget Mr. Zent and should always respect him.

Airplane Plays Poor

Second to the Birds

A group of French scientists have proved to their own complete satisfaction that wonderful as airplanes may be, they still come a long second to bird flights. A single swallow is three times as swift and economical a flyer as the very best pursuit plane in the French army. Three scientists, Huguepard, Magnan and Sainte-Lague, have used a new "machine gun" motion picture camera with a double objective to evolve a method for testing the "finesse" on real airplanes in actual flight and on birds in the air.

The camera gives simultaneously on the same strip of film clear images of a guiding mark on the ground six feet from its lens and of an airplane, flying away, as well as a clear image of a man placed 150 feet away. Using it, the scientists discovered that a good pursuit plane gave a "finesse" inferior to 6. The "finesse" of a swallow was found to be at least 19.

Lep. rful Scourge

During the middle ages no scourge was so widespread as leprosy. There were some 19,000 leprosy houses scattered over western Europe, nearly 100 of them being in Great Britain. One occupied the site of St. James' palace, and the dates of their foundation covered a period from 1066 at Canterbury to 1472 at Highgate.

The disease, diminished with remarkable rapidity during the next century, though the reason still is something of a mystery. Drastic segregation counted for much, no doubt, but so great an authority as Sir Leon and Rogers held that the chief cause of the decline was yet another plague the Black death of 1349. But it was a dreadful remedy, for the Black death itself slew nearly half the population of Europe.—Detroit News.

Mr. C. Harvey Koontz, well known in and around Keymar, died at his home in Hagerstown, on Tuesday, in his 56th year, after an illness of three weeks from a complication of ailments. Mr. Koontz had really been confined to his home for less than three weeks, his illness steadfastly carried on and refused to give up, notwithstanding the protests of family and friends.

For more than 37 years Mr. Koontz has been in the employ of the Western Maryland Railroad in the capacity of ticket agent. Years back, when the old W. M. passenger station stood between Washington and Antietam streets, Mr. Koontz's face was a familiar one about the office, and he enjoyed a wide acquaintance with the travelling public. He was an efficient and faithful employee and enjoyed the confidence and respect of his fellow-workmen as well as his superiors in the railroad service.

Being a man who detested ostentation and show, Mr. Koontz led a quiet life, but he possessed a charitable disposition, and many will note his passing with regret. Never did a deserving plea go unanswered from the ticket window of the Western Maryland passenger station where Mr. Koontz served the public for the greater portion of his life. The deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Koontz, and was born in Keymar, and went to Hagerstown when quite a young man. He is survived by his wife who was Miss Mary Brill, of Hagerstown, two daughters, Miss Edna, at home, and Mrs. Sam'l B. Gaines, and one sister, Mrs. Florence Funk, Hagerstown. While not affiliated with any particular church, Mr. Koontz was a supporter of any thing that stood for the betterment and uplift of the city and community in which he lived. He was a sterling christian character and in passing he leaves his family the heritage of an upright and valued citizen. He was a member of the Modern Brotherhood, the Fraternal Mystic Circle, and railroad organizations.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, from the home, with interment in Rose Hill cemetery. Rev. Dr. Wm. S. Hess had charge of the service and employees of the Western Maryland Railroad served as pall-bearers.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC.

Topic—God's Goodness Revealed in Nature's Laws. Scripture Lesson Psa. 104:10-18.

Written by Rev. J. H. Hoch, Uniontown.

In Psalm 24: We are informed that, "the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein." God is the direct Creator of the Universe; and is also the upholder of it. See Gen. 1:1; Heb. 1:2-3; Col. 1:16-17.

God (Elohim) governs His universe by certain laws, which laws work for the good of all His Creatures on earth. These laws we commonly call "Nature's laws," but we should never forget the fact, that behind "Nature's laws" is nature's Lord. God is over all and above all. He sustains, governs and cares for the world He has created through certain laws which He established. These laws are unchangeable even as God Himself.

The laws of nature speak of the faithfulness, dependability and immutability of God. The seasons never change, the transmutation of species is unknown. The farmer can depend on these laws. He knows when he sows wheat that he will reap wheat and not corn; that his apple trees will produce apples and not thistles; that his domestic animals will produce "after their kind." Nothing is uncertain or speculative in God's laws.

God, through Nature, has made provision for all trees for the birds, hills for refuge for wild animals, rock home for conies. He has provided things for man's enjoyment, if he will but make use of them.

Let us consider a few of Nature's laws which reveal God's goodness. Henry Drummond in his book, "Natural Law in the Spiritual World" says that of all the laws of nature, the greatest, and the one which works most for our good, is the law of continuity. By this he means faithfulness in established law—the fact that we can depend upon certain things to occur.

When God made His covenant with Noah, He promised that "while the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease." Gen. 8:22. These promises were given more than 4000 years ago, and the unflinching fulfillment of them all through the centuries forms a striking demonstration of the faithfulness and goodness of God. The terms of this covenant refer us to that which is almost universally lost sight of in these days, namely, the fact that behind "Nature's laws" is Nature's Lord. Men now seek to shut God out of His own Creation, we hear so much of the science of farming and the laws of diet that our daily bread and the health of the body are regarded as something that man produces and controls. Our daily bread is a gift, for without the recurring seasons and God's "renewal of the face of the earth" man could produce no grain at all, and the recurring of the seasons and the renewal of the earth are the fulfillment of the covenant that God made with Noah.

One of the most striking points in Paul's sermon at Lystra, is God's goodness to His creatures, for he says: "He left not Himself without witness, in that He did good and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness." This is a wonderful testimony of God's goodness, through nature's laws. Jesus Himself says, in Matt. 5:45, "He maketh His

France Grants Asylum to War Foe's Widow

Paris.—By a special act of the ministry of the interior, Zita, last of the Hapsburg empresses, has been granted the same asylum in France which is granted to any other foreigner who lives up to the laws of the republic and does not engage in political intrigue.

The French government considers the ex-empress of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy not in the light of a widow of a ruler once at war with the allies, but as a sorrowful mother who is trying to educate her children. Investigation disclosed that Zita was not engaged in politics and, therefore, was entitled to residence in France if she chose to live here.

Frisco Chinese Become Stock Market Players

San Francisco, Calif.—No more is it "no tickie no washee" in San Francisco's Chinatown—it's just "tickie." For the city's oriental population has become interested in the stock market and recently a Chinese newspaper carried for the first time in history the mysterious brokers' quotation symbols in Chinese.

One brokerage firm has organized a special Chinese department with a Chinese in charge. The Chinese are said to speculate mostly in groups dealing in 5,000 share lots.

Animal and Bird "Parks"

We hear much about parks for cities and men, but little about such places for animals. Yet they exist. Puffin Island, off the coast of Anglesey, is a "park" sacred to wild birds.

At Hawksmoor, near Cheadle, Staffordshire, England, there is another natural "park" of 200 acres for birds.

A "park" for birds at Ealing, to be adapted from a large house with grounds, and to cost some $25,000 was proposed by the Selborne society as a memorial to the late W. H. Hudson.

Nestling in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is the beautifully wooded, mountainous island of Anticosti. The 2,600 square miles of this property is one giant fish and game "park."

Found It an Apt Simile

A country girl, whose imagery was necessarily limited, once in the presence of Gilbert K. Chesterton compared the sea, which she saw for the first time, to a cauliflower. At first this seemed ridiculous to the essayist, who is a past master of simile, having once compared his own portly self to a mountain. But, after thinking it over, Mr. Chesterton changed his mind about the girl's paucity of imagination. He felt that the image was highly appropriate, suggesting as it did "the wave breaking as well as curling, and the efflorescence of the branching foam."—Living Age.

Frosty Summer Drinks

FRUIT drinks have now become a regular and most welcome part of the summer. One of the most delectable ingredients of these frosty concoctions is grapefruit juice put up in cans which is here to stay because it's so good. One proof of this permanence is that a company in Florida which already operates two large grapefruit canneries at Eagle Lake and Lake Alfred is now planning to build the largest grapefruit cannery in the world at Winter Haven, but the best way to convince yourself of it is to try out some of the following:

Fruit Combinations

Havana Special: Mix one ten or eleven-ounce can of grapefruit with one cup of pineapple syrup, and add one-fourth cup sugar and one cup water which have been boiled together and then cooled. Chill, add a bottle of white rock, and serve ice cold in punch glasses. This recipe will make ten glasses.

Citric Delight: Boil one-fourth cup sugar and one cup water five minutes, cool and add one ten- or eleven-ounce can of grapefruit juice, one cup orange juice, one-fourth cup lemon juice and four cups of cold water (charged if desired.) This will fill fifteen punch glasses.

Cherry Rickey: Boil one-fourth cup sugar and one cup water, cool and add one ten- or eleven-ounce can of grapefruit juice, the juice from a No. 2 can of sour pitted cherries and one-fourth cup Maraschino cherry juice. Chill, add a bottle of white rock and serve ice cold. Twelve punch glasses.*

WISHBONE TURNED TO BACKBONE

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

BETTY OLLOWELL paused to read a line of advertising in the window of a bank: "Make your wishbone backbone," then she flounced on up the street, sounding a contemptuous little "ump!" as she went.

Her eyes flashed. She was still aggressively antagonistic to the world in general, because of the uncalled-for blows she considered had been dealt her, when a moment later, she met Alyse Hayes.

"Hello Bet!" Alyse called out, beaming upon her friend. "What's wrong this morning? You look like a cannibal about to devour an unsuspecting missionary."

"I'll be forced to do just about that if my present state of pocket-book keeps up," Betty grumbled gloomily. "If I didn't have to be nurse as well as wage-earner, I could—"

"Betty Ollowell!" Alyse interrupted testily. "Perhaps it's none of my business but I'm here to tell you you'd better count your blessings. If my mother was spared to me and I was given the privilege of caring for her, nothing else would matter."

"Mothers, sick or well, have to be fed, don't they?" Betty retorted bitterly. "And they have to have medicines and extra comforts and things. How am I to get all those when I'm only able to work at home?"

"You try too hard and worry too much," Alyse answered kindly. "It isn't for you giving your best. Plainly speaking, dear, it tells in your work. Mazie Walker's the kind that wouldn't say a word—she'll just take her next blouse to some one else but I love you, Bet, and want to see you throttle this monster that's dragging you down, so I'm going to tell you forgot to stitch in one sleeve of that blouse you made for Mazie and it ripped half way out while she was at a party."

Betty groaned aloud and tears came. "Oh, what's the use!" she finally said hopelessly. "I tried so hard on that blouse, I worried myself thin over it."

"There you are! Worry is the disease of the age—doctors admit it. It brings wrinkles, exhaustion, indigestion—what a preachment I'm wishing on you! Anyway, think it over, Bet. I'm on my way to inquire about opera tickets for Saturday."

"How I envy you! To have the price of opera tickets! Oh!"

"Haven't yet, but I'm sure if it's right for me to go, the price'll turn up from somewhere. Try a little of my philosophy sometime, Bet. Bye, bye."

Alyse went toward the city and Betty returned to her home, envy of Alyse rankling in her mind.

Try as she would, however, she could not forget Alyse's philosophy and advice. The longer she thought about it, the more she viewed it with favor and the less envious she became.

Poor little Betty! Stronger characters than she have gone down under a similar load; a suicide father, an empty treasury, an invalid mother. Her only real asset was what her associates always had called her "fairy fingers." Betty could fashion a "Paris" hat or a "Drecoite" blouse from next to nothing.

Had she been content to confine her thought and effort to her dressmaking, all might have been well, but she grew restless. She who once had had thousands to draw upon found it hard to confine herself to less than hundreds.

When the money did not come as rapidly as she thought it should, she resorted to all sorts of side lines; sent in original cross word puzzles to all newspapers, supplied last lines to foolish limericks, named picture panels, furnished recipes, bright sayings, slogans and then allowed herself to waste many precious moments watching vainly for returns. It never seemed to occur to Betty that literally thousands of people all over the country were indulging in this same indoor sport every day.

She had just about resolved to give up wandering into the bypaths, and confine her best efforts to some lingerie she had received an order for, when she chanced to pick up a sheet of the Sunday paper announcing that a hundred dollars would be given to four persons each week, whose handwriting gave evidence of unusual character.

"Umph!" she thought contemptuously. "A new one. No use my trying that. My character is anything but unusual. Still—takes no time—only costs two cents—guess I'll fall again—just this one last time."

She mailed the coupon and almost immediately forgot the whole incident, so engrossed was she with the lingerie upon which she was at work. It happened to be the trousseau of a millionaire's daughter.

For the first time since her father's death she was able to put her heel upon the serpent of envy which had raised its head and hissed whenever she was at work upon luxuries for others. Instead, she dove into this soft, silken fabric which grew into lovely garments beneath her skillful fingers, beautiful, happy, hopeful dreams for the young girl who was to wear them.

In three days they were finished. Betty enjoyed them as one enjoys a beautiful picture but every now and then a little stab of fear pierced her consciousness when she realized that if she was not paid when these were delivered she must take the precious rent money to fill their almost empty larder.

Resolutely turning her back upon the demon of worry she wrapped the lovely things as attractively as she knew how and set out to deliver them.

A servant answered the door and told her that none of the family were in. Betty checked back the tears which already had begun and started home, bravely repeating to herself Alyse's philosophy: "If it's all right for me to take the rent money, I'll just take it. If it isn't, something else will turn up," then she laughed aloud at the ridiculousness of her daring to think that she could apply that philosophy to her life.

The first thing that met her gaze when she reached home was a letter from the newspaper which dealt in prizes for penmanship and when she opened it a check for $100 dropped out. Accompanying the check was an analysis of her character, reached, supposedly, from her handwriting.

"Exceptionally talented but constantly belittles her own power. Too much given to unnecessary worry. Banishing that, this writer will soar to great heights unaided."

"Old Man Worry, here's where you and I part company forever!" Betty declared happily to herself. "My wishbone's turned to backbone after all."

To Alyse Hayes, buying opera tickets with money earned as special assistant to the handwriting expert of the Sunday Chronicle, there came a mental picture of Betty's face when she discovered the check for $100 and its accompanying character analysis. She smiled gratefully when she recalled how easy it had been to turn the tide of the expert's opinion in Betty's favor.

Lonely Places Lure Hunters of Big Game

Master of his own destiny while in the wilds of Africa, W. S. Chadwick, big game hunter, declares that he is fearful of large cities. Writing in Field and Stream he cites several experiences he had which made him realize that he preferred the lonely forests to the noisy civilized habitations of men. One particular case he mentions in this article is how he and a friend outwitted a local band of police, 12 in number under a captain. The police had been sent after him to the Belgian Congo to arrest him and take tribute on his quota of ivory. Hearing of their approach Chadwick and his mate dressed their "boys," 20 of them, in some extra khaki clothes they had. When the Congo police arrived they were stupefied to meet with a larger array of soldiers than themselves and decided the better part of valor would be to remain as amicable as possible. Chadwick points out in his Field and Stream article that if this happened at home the police captain would have merely blown a whistle and the arrest would have been made. The writer admits he enjoys being a man in a man's world where what one can do with brain and brawn marks him apart.

Gave It to Hinkler
The qualities needed by a successful almanac have at last been precisely analyzed and clearly expounded. At a flying school in Australia notice was recently given to applicants for admission that they must first give proof of possessing inherent flying ability. Some of the candidates wanted to know in what this ability consisted. They were then told that "the pilot must possess the innate faculty of selective and instinctive discrimination of the stimuli of the sensorimotor apparatus to harmoniously adjust metabolic changes in physiological and psychological equilibrium in such manner as to comprehend and assimilate instruction in the attributes essential to perform the intricate and complex operations which constitute the details of pilotage." Very properly they all exclaimed, as with one voice, "Hinkler has it!"—Manchester Guardian.

Cat Catches, Rears Mouse
Confirming a scientist's declaration that animals are becoming more civilized, a cat at Manchester, England, caught a mouse and instead of making a meal of it, adopted it as a chum. The couple now share the same sleeping basket and pussy faithfully washes and plays with its charge. Their only separation was when the cat spent a few days with the veterinarian. On his return his excitement at meeting his little friend again was so great that it was feared that he had returned to primitive cathood, but the playmates soon settled down to their old companionship.

Red-Haired Celebrities
We find no reference in biographies to Caesar having red hair, though he was of fair complexion. Among others listed by various authorities as having had red hair are the following: Cato, Clovis, Frederick Barbarossa, William Rufus, Demetrius, Alfieri, Tasso, Queen Elizabeth, Red Douglas, Red Comyn, Otto H. Camoens, William H. Seward, Van Buren. A little biographical research would probably disclose numerous others.

Remarkable Formations
The Garden of the Gods is a region in Colorado near Colorado Springs, covering about 500 acres, and remarkable for the strange forms of the rocks with which it is covered. The red and white sandstone assumes grotesque shapes, to which various names have been given. For instance, the gateway is formed by two huge masses of rock of a bright red color, which are 100 feet high and between which the road passes.

FAINT OR WEAK HEART?

"What happened to Brown?"
"He's dead."
"How did that happen?"
"Well, you know his wife had a habit of making him carry everything she bought, so last week she bought a grand piano."
"He didn't have to carry that, I hope?"
"No, but he took one look at it and died of heart failure."

WOULD DIE FOR HIM

Friend—I'd dye for him if I loved him that much.

And did his patient classic bit.
Had he a ukulele
He might at once have made a hit.

Warden—I'm sorry, but pocket-books are his specialty.

Mother—I just knew he'd win something in his athletics.

The Color Scheme
The Middleweight Aspirant—Well, I got licked. But you can't expect much from a green fighter like me.
His Manager—No, from a yellow one like you, neither.

A New Way
Assistant—Where are you going in such a hurry?
Boss—Sh! I'm leaving for the day. I've just fired my secretary by means of the dictaphone.

"I think so—his speech doesn't flow."

How does the busy gossip
Improve each shining minute?
She finds a doubtful yarn
And straightway speeds to spin it.

Friend—What a charming landscape!
Artist—Yes. I've a genius for doing those.
Friend—Oh, I thought you did them yourself!

Phew!
Customer—My, what smells so around here?
Merchant—Do you smell it, too?
Customer—Yes, what is it?
Merchant—Business; it's rotten.

No Reason for Objecting

"Huh! She gets my pay envelope unopened and so there's never anything to ever have to tell her."

Reason for Hope

Hub—I have hopes of one. She asked time to look up my standing in Bradstreet.

His Only Feet
Professor's Wife—Why, dear, you've got your shoes on the wrong feet.
Professor—Why, Mary, they're the only feet I've got.

FIRST COMES FOOD

THE national food bill of the United States was recently estimated at $23,000,000,000. The food industry as a whole thus exceeds by many billions the textile, steel and automotive industries which our financial manuals list as our largest.

All this was pointed out by Colby M. Chester, Jr., president of the Postum Company, in a recent speech before the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and he went on to discuss the effect food had exerted on the world's history.

"Because of it," he said, "armies have surrendered and cities have been made captive. International boundaries have continually been altered and nations made subject peoples. It was the seed on which red revolution thrived in France and Russia. It is safe to say it forced Lee's surrender at Appomattox, and there is every reason to believe that the World War would not have ended in 1918 if the Central Powers had been well nourished and well fed."

In War and Peace

"China still continues to be a backward nation because dread famine wipes out millions of its people periodically. Food has had its place equally on the constructive side. Joseph averted famine in ancient Egypt by hoarding a surplus in the productive years, making him most favored of the King. Food brought peace and order to the world after the Great War, and Belgium, Poland and Southern Europe threatened with chaos were saved from anarchy and ruin by food."

French Convicts Under Stern Rule of Silence

In France's modern prison at Fresnes-Rungis, 1,250 white-masked prisoners live in absolute silence. They neither see each other's faces nor hear their voices. From the moment a metal number is hung around his neck, the prisoner is required to wear a white hood whenever he leaves his cell, and he may not speak to his fellows. He sees the face of his guard from time to time, but no other, unless he is sent to the hospital or to the warden for discipline. Alone in his cell, he works eight hours a day, but good will and skill enable him to reduce the time to six hours and the money he earns enables him to buy small comforts. The government receives thirty-two cents a day from the contractors for each prisoner's work and gives from three-tenths to half the money to the prisoner. The prisoner never sees the money until he leaves, but half of it is placed to his immediate credit for his little expenses. Yet in spite of all that, many criminals ask to be sent there because the solitude entitles them to a reduction of one-fourth of their sentence.

Much Trouble Avoided by Straight Thinking

Most nervous disorders come from conflict. What does that mean? There are in thousands of men and women ceaseless struggles between the thing they do and the thing they know they ought to do. It is the struggle of one part of the nature of man against the other. We try to avoid conflict in our thoughts by fooling ourselves into the idea that what we are doing is all right. We desire to continue some practice or other which is ruinous, and we seek to excuse it. Excuses don't work. Conflict arises—the conflict of the mind and emotion. Once learn to think straight and to have the mental energy and courage to try to pursue an intelligent course, and we can relieve our lives of conflict. Better make a mistake and admit it is a mistake and try not to do the same thing again, than engage in the constant mental conflict which comes from trying to excuse mistakes and make them seem right. Let's learn to think straight.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

Be Chary of Judgment

A nation is merely a collection of people. Its aims and accomplishments will be merely those of its citizens. Don't be too harsh, therefore, in judging your government. Better take a look at yourself and your neighbors.—Grit.

Have you ever stopped to think that the population of this great country consumes 360,000,000 meals every day in the year? So important is this fact economically that dietary studies of the distribution of expenditure for food have been made by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, the United States Department of Agriculture and the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Where Your Money Goes

From these studies it can be estimated that of the money devoted to the purchase of food the average American family spends from 30 to 40 per cent for meats and fish (including poultry and shell fish when used), about 5 or 6 per cent for eggs, about 7 to 10 per cent for butter and other fats, from 10 to 20 per cent for bread and other cereal and bakery products, 3 to 7 per cent for sugar and other sweets, 7 to 10 per cent for vegetables, 2 to 8 per cent for fruit, and less than 2 per cent for cheese and nuts.

An amazing fact is that, at the most moderate estimate, more than 50 per cent of the foods enumerated in this combined budget may be obtained in cans. These foods include meat and fish, milk, butter, some cereal and bakery products, many sweets, practically the whole range of vegetables and fruits and many varieties of cheese and nuts. Who shall say that the commercial canner who makes available in safe, sanitary and palatable form and at moderate prices more than 50 per cent of the kinds of foods the public eats is not a modern Joseph of a most practical kind?

Far from Saturation Point

The number of meals consumed in this country daily multiplied by the number of days in the year makes the astonishing total of 131,400,000,000 meals. Yet the commercial canners of the United States are now putting up only about 9,000,000,000 cans of processed food a year, or only one can for every 14.6 meals, or sufficient meals for nearly five days. If you will call on your own experience at home and in restaurants, you will realize that you eat more than one can of food every six days. The answer to this paradox is partly home canning, and partly the fact that there are still many people in this country who are not consuming their possible proportion of canned foods.

The men in the canning industry are conservative, but they continue to build year after year huge plants for making cans and big new canneries. They are saying nothing and saving wood, but it is obvious from the above figures that the industry can and will continue to grow.

The food products which are canned in any great quantities now number approximately 240, but new foods, combinations and ready prepared dishes are constantly being added to this total, and each one holds the possibility of growing into a respectable sized industry of its own.

Trace Pipe Organ Back to Earliest Civilization

The story of the pipe organ—the noblest of musical instruments—abounds in romance, for its beginning lies in remote antiquity and its development follows the progress of civilization for more than 2,000 years. Limited space permits only briefest mention of a few cardinal points in its history.

Of first importance, the parent instrument was a set of pipes fastened together in a row and made to sound by the direct force of the breath. Later some 200 years before Christ, there came the water organ, which, in turn, gave place to the bellows type of instrument that was first used in the church about 430 A. D. It is the bellows type, highly perfected, that is in common use today.

In this country, our strait-laced Puritan ancestors opposed music as an invention of the Evil One himself, so its acceptance came slowly, and up to the middle of the Seventeenth century, only that of the crudest kind was heard.

The real history of the pipe organ in America began about 1713, with the importation from England of what has come to be known as the Brattle organ. It came to Boston, Mass., as the property of Thomas Brattle, a prominent man of the time, and was set up in King's chapel.

Other organs were imported in the years that followed, until John Clemm produced the first American-built instrument in 1737.

Tetrazzini Incident

What Tetrazzini said was the most amusing incident in her career as a singer occurred in her younger days when she and her sister were touring and sharing rather humble rooms. After thinking a landlady who had been more considerate and kind than most, that good lady astonished the Tetrazzini sisters by looking up from her washbasin and saying, with benign condescension:

"That's all right, my dears, I'm always good to theatricals, for I never know what my own children may come to."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Irreverent Youth

A man who was golfing on a Scots course, and playing very badly, too, was at some pains to impress upon his caddy that he usually showed very much better form.

After taking twelve to one hole, he said, defensively, that he had accomplished it in four the previous day.

"What?" exclaimed the caddy.
"It's true," said the player; "with my third I lay dead on the green."
"Aye," said the boy, "with surprise, no doubt."

Noted for Severe Winters

The weather bureau says that, generally speaking, the state of North Dakota and the eastern portion of Montana and the western portion of Minnesota have the most severe winter climate, although portions of northern New England and the mountain sections of northern New York have weather conditions nearly approaching those in the sections first named. Likewise, some of the mountain districts have severe weather over somewhat longer periods than in the sections previously mentioned, and heavier snows may occur, but usually the temperatures are not so low during periods of intense cold as occur in the lower levels of the states first mentioned.

Afterthought

The polite guest in southern Arabia, says a writer of the National Geographic society, always secretes a few coffee berries in his turban, and thus supplies his own beverage at the house where he is calling.

I call to mind guests in this country who were not so thoughtful. They brought no coffee berries concealed in their hats. They brought no cream and sugar in their hats or elsewhere. They brought no roast chicken, bread and butter, salad, ice cream, or pie. But, when reminded, they were quick to repair the oversight, and took plenty of each away with them.—Exchange.

Safer

The famous man was furious when he found a pile of paving stones outside his front door.

"Here, you!" he said to a navvy standing near. "Take these things away at once."

"All right, guv'nor, all right," said the navvy. "But where shall I take 'em to?"

"Take 'em to hell for all I care," came the indignant reply.

"Adn't I better take 'em to 'eaven, guv'nor?" said the navvy, helpfully. "They'd be more out of your way."—London Magazine.

Religious Reminder

The emblem placed on the door post of an orthodox Jewish home, which the guests touch when they enter is called "mezuzah," which literally means "door post." It is placed there in fulfillment of the command in the fifth book of Moses. "And thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thy house and upon thy gates." The emblem contains a small piece of parchment or paper on which is written by hand the above quoted passage and others to remind Jews of duties toward their religion.

Lesson for August 11

DANIEL AMONG THE LIONS

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 6:1-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Is True to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Daniel Is True to God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Meaning of True Courage.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Courage of Faith.

I. Daniel the Prime Minister of the Medo-Persian Empire (vv. 1-3).

Sterling worth brought him to the front and kept him there. The new king was keen to discern his worth and to give it recognition.

II. An Occasion Sought Against Daniel (vv. 4-9).

1. The reason for (v. 4). No doubt that which prompted this effort was envy and jealousy.

2. Failure of (v. 4).

Daniel's official record was blameless. They could not even find an error. Envy is still in the world. Those who excel in any line are sure to suffer in some way for their excellencies. The successful business man in relation to his competitors, the ranking pupil in school, the child of superior merit in the home, will be envied by the others. In politics many times those who honestly strive to do their duty are persecuted. Even in the church we find ministers are sometimes envious of their superiors.

3. The wicked plot (vv. 5-9).

They trumped up a charge on the ground of his foreign religion. They were not careful about their method, so their end was attained. In spite of Daniel's loyalty, the decree was signed by the king which would put him into the den of lions.

III. Daniel's Noble Confession (vv. 10-13).

Though Daniel knew that the wicked decree was signed, he knelt before God as usual. Note the silence of heroism. Weak men bluster; strong men have little to say.

1. He continued his usual habit (v. 10).

He knew that the civil law had absolutely nothing to do with his religion. God's law is first. Laws forbidding reading the Bible, praying, or meeting to worship God, have no authority over men.

2. Daniel reported to the king (vv. 11-13).

These wicked men watched to find out whether Daniel would pray before his God, and when they found that he continued his worship, they went to the king and reported that Daniel disregarded his decree.

IV. The Foolish Decree Executed (vv. 14-17).

1. The king displeased with himself (v. 14).

He labored till the going down of the sun to deliver Daniel, conscious that he had been entrapped.

2. The king helpless (v. 15).

The proud ruler found that he was a slave. To enact laws which change not is the height of folly.

3. Daniel cast into the den of lions (v. 16).

The king's parting word to Daniel was a poor, feeble excuse for his guilty conscience.

4. The double seal (v. 17).

This double sealing shows the king's purpose to abide by the unfortunate law.

V. Daniel Delivered (vv. 18-23).

1. Note the contrast between the night in the lion's den and the one in the palace. In the palace there was no sleep, no mirth. Daniel's quiet is as a picture of the safety and peace which are the portion of those who trust God and do His will.

2. The king's question in the morning (v. 20).

3. Daniel's answer (v. 22).

God's angel has done many wonderful works. The yearly Christians despised bonds, stripes and death.

4. Daniel delivered (v. 23).

No manner of hurt was found because he believed in his God.

VI. The Doom of His Accusers (v. 24).

They were cast into the den of lions and "or ever they came at the bottom of the den" their bones were broken in pieces. Daniel's enemies go into the same trap which they prepared for him.

VII. Darius' Decree (vv. 25-27).

Men were to tremble and fear before Daniel's God. As to whether Darius had a change of heart we do not know.

VIII. Daniel's Prosperity (v. 28).

Daniel goes higher into the kingdom and continues in his place of honor even though dynasties change.

In a Better World

A comfortable old age is the reward of a well-spent youth; therefore, instead of its introducing dismal and melancholy prospects of decay, it should give us hopes of eternal youth in a better world.—Palmer.

When a Cross Is Formed

When our will runs parallel with the will of God, no cross is formed; but when our will runs counter to God's will, a cross is formed which is heavy to be borne.—Aughey.

The SANDMAN STORY

THE TRAIN SMOKE FAMILY

THE smoke curled up above the train's engine. Up and up into the air the smoke curled, and more and more kept coming from the stack.

Great clouds of smoke seemed to be shot out—oh, how much smoke there was! And it almost seemed to stop in the air for a bit and wait for the clouds of smoke from below to join it all before it disappeared into the air.

"We belong to the train family, too," the clouds of smoke were saying.

"Curling, curling, curling, we, too, belong to the train family."

"The engine and the coal cart, the baggage car, the passenger trains—

"We Are Proud That We Belong to the Train Family."

all belong to the train family, but so do the clouds of smoke.

"The whistle belongs to the train family, all the different parts do, but so, also, the clouds of smoke belong!"

"We are sent up into the air by the engine's smokestack. We go when we are told and we let the countryside around know that a train is passing by."

"Some of us do this work at one place and some at another, and so it is all along the line."

"And as we go up into the air we are proud that we belong to the train family."

"For the train family is a family of travelers. There are no stay-at-homes among that family. Sometimes they stop and rest for awhile—sometimes for only an hour or so, sometimes for but a few moments."

"Sometimes, though, they stop for awhile in the car yards and in the car barns and have a real rest."

"But there is no mistake in saying they're a family of travelers."

"Trains are such travelers—such a family for going and going and going that they had to fix sleeping cars for passengers."

"True, the passengers who go on trains are travelers, too."

"But if trains, in the first place, hadn't wanted to go on all night people wouldn't have needed the sleeping cars."

"The real travelers are the members of the train family."

"And though some of the smoke stops here and some does its curling act a little further along the line, we all feel like travelers because of the family to which we belong."

"This is our curling song, which now we will sing before we disappear to the air:

Curling, curling, curling,
Up in the air quite high.
Curling, curling, curling,
To show that a train's nearby.
Curling, curling, curling,
Looking so fluffy and fine.
Curling, curling, curling,
Over the railway line.
Curling, curling, curling,
Before we disappear.
Curling, curling, curling,
As long as we are here.
Curling, curling, curling,
Up in some form or other.
Curling, curling, curling,
It is to us no bother.
Curling, curling, curling,
We belong to the Train family.
Curling, curling, curling,
Us you can surely see.

That was the end of their song. They had disappeared, but following along the train, from out of the smokestack of the engine, came more and more members of the Train Smoke family.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

WATCH CHARMS

THE wearing of little figures as ornaments attached to the watch chain is an open and frank revival of a custom of the primitive man and of the peoples of the ancient civilizations who wore emblems and symbols by way of protection against evils which they believed might be averted through the intervention of the powers or divinities to whom the symbols especially appealed.

The wearing of charms was universal among the Egyptians and the Romans. With the spread of Christianity the custom was transformed into the wearing of religious emblems and so continued through the Middle Ages. After the Reformation the custom of wearing any sort of charm was discountenanced by most of the Protestant sects and especially to our Puritan forefathers was it anathema. But it gradually revived again—in this country shortly before the Revolutionary war—and revived in its old, heathen form, the New England maiden, who would have considered it a mark of superstition to wear a gold cross strung around her neck, wore quite innocently a gold hand closed in a peculiar manner which, had she known its ancient, heathen significance, she would rather have died than allowed to repose upon her chaste bosom. Now we wear all sorts of symbols, Christian and pagan. That they have not entirely lost their original meaning for us is evidenced by the fact that we still call them "charms!" and many a man would have a vague fear of coming bad luck should he lose from his watch chain the little gold pig, the little gold hand or whatever is his pet "charm."

Abolition of Slavery

Either before or soon after the adoption of the Constitution all the northern states—beginning with Vermont in 1777 and ending with New Jersey in 1804—either abolished slavery or adopted measures to effect its gradual abolition within their territories.

When the Civil war broke out slavery had been completely abolished in all the states north of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. Slavery existed to some extent at one time in all the original 13 colonies.—The Pathfinder Magazine.

All Is Well!

If we see not yet how it is that all things work together for good, a quiet spirit sets the face in the direction whence cometh help, and deepens our belief that all is well with the universe. We may be sure that every soul that is patient in trial, faithful in duty, active and rejoicing in helpfulness, is adding one little stone of excellent pattern to the vast temple of life.—Exchange.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE HAVE QUEER IMPULSES

DID you ever have a queer impulse to step on or to avoid stepping on the cracks in the cement sidewalks, to make faces at some one, to tell a person just what you think of him, to do any one or several of a thousand "crazy" things?

It is natural for all of us to have queer impulses at times. The normal person realizes the nature of the impulse and checks himself in time to avoid making a fool of himself. But now and then we slip up, and the impulse gets the better of us. This happens when the impulse stays at the focus of consciousness and dominates our motor reactions which control muscular action. It is a mild form of obsession.

In extreme cases the situation becomes pathological and the patient is unable to suppress the crazy impulse and many times has to be put away in an asylum.

Now and then the community is aroused over some poor fellow who runs amuck in his lack of control over some queer impulse. He is a moral perversity who has lost control over his impulses. He goes about doing some unnatural thing that is highly revolting to our senses and we are ready to lynch the poor offender without in any way realizing the cause of his offense.

We can understand conduct of this sort only as we bear in mind that they are merely the exaggerations of the very situations we find in normal people. We all have queer impulses but we are able to control them, whereas the so-called fiend is one who cannot control his impulses. It has the force of an obsession with him. He is really insane more than he is a criminal or a fiend. He is mentally and emotionally sick.

Left-Handed Children

Born With That Trait

From families in which one or both of the parents are left-handed we get a percentage of 17.34 per cent of the children left-handed, while in families in which neither of the parents are left-handed only 2.1 per cent of the children are left-handed. If left-handedness is not inherited we would not find more than 5 per cent of the children left-handed in any of these families, regardless of the handedness of their parents.

It is very evident that there is some sex influence manifested in the inheritance of left-handedness as shown by the larger number of left-handed boys in this population. It is also apparently transmitted differently where the father is left-handed, as note the small number of left-handed girls in these families. There can be no doubt that the trait is inherited.

Siemens presents 21 cases of apparent identical twins in which one was left-handed and the other right-handed, and cites this as evidence that left-handedness is not an hereditary factor. The probable explanation of this is mirror imaging, so often found in identical twins, or it may possibly be the prenatal position of the right-handed twin, which would prevent it from developing into a left-handed one.—Journal of Heredity.

Science Explains Why Man Has Superiority

In an address before the London Royal College of Surgeons, Sir Arthur Keith presented some interesting facts about the brain of early man. The cast of the brain in fossilized skulls is usually quite distinct, so that its size can be measured although its owner died half a million years ago. The Pithecanthropus, the fossil man of Java, was at the stage of brain development where he was just learning the rudiments of speech, since his brain weighed about thirty ounces. It is when the brain reaches that weight that a child learns to speak. The primitive brain, however, lacked the ability to associate ideas. It is said that man's brain developed more than that of the other animals because nature had placed the factor of safety in his brain rather than in the muscles. That is, he was dependent upon his brain in an emergency, while the lower animals exerted their muscles to their fullest extent when placed in a predicament.—New York World Magazine.

Blood Elements

Blood specialists now believe that the three chemical elements in the body which keep us alive are hemoglobin, chlorophyll and a third, a compound of phosphorus, which is still virtually unknown. The hemoglobin supplies iron and forms the red cells. The chlorophyll, which is the same substance that tints plants green, takes up the carbon dioxide gas from the air. The phosphorus compound has the function of forming the central nucleus of a living cell and it is supposed that it was with this mysterious chemical that animal life first began during the earth's early days.—New York World.

Confidence

Garden enthusiasts are weird people. They believe that anything will grow and also believe in most nursery men.

A certain lady wanted some oak trees in her garden, and the local dealers promised to plant them. Later in the day they sent up a man who planted a number of acorns in the ground and then tendered a large bill.

"Are you sure they'll grow into big handsome trees?" asked the woman.

"Quite," answered the gardener. "Then please send me up one of those covered hammocks that you advertise," concluded the woman.

Non-Shatterable Glass

The bureau of standards says. In general, non-shatterable glass is of three distinct types. One of these is usually thick, another consists of two or more layers of glass cemented together with an organic binder, such as celluloid, and the third is prepared by special heat treatment. The first of these can be identified by its relatively great thickness, the second by examining the edge of the glass for laminated structure, and the third by the irregular figures seen when the glass is examined in polarized light.

Phenician Remains

The city of Granada is reared upon three abruptly rising hills. On the lowest of these looms up, the more redly against the background of the snow-capped Sierras, the "Torres Bermejas" or Vermilion towers. Much mystery surrounds these tremendous ruins. Some historians claim them to be the work of the far-roaming and adventurous Phenicians.

Upon the highest hill is the Alhambra, a city in itself, once said to have housed 40,000 men.

Favorite Vegetable

Joseph was spending the day with his aunt, who is more indulgent than his mother with his capricious appetite. As his aunt was preparing to cook dinner the lad said: "Be sure and cook my favorite vegetable, auntie."

"What is it today?" asked the auntie.

"Doughnuts," was the reply.

TELEPHONE COMPANIES HEALTH COURSE INCREASES EFFICIENCY

Classes Learn Simple Rules of Hygiene Including Diet, Dress, Rest, Recreation, First Aid and Nursing

These telephone farmerettes know that outdoor exercise is helpful, and they practice what they preach. Those in the picture left to right are: Evelyn O. Disney, Alice J. Winchester, Irene Johnson, Mary A. Biele, Theresa M. Dorsey and Gladys M. Cass, recent graduates of the health course.

The general health course for women conducted by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia has benefited 2,600 employees who have received certificates of graduation. As a result these young women get added comfort and joy out of the mere fact of living; the telephone company gets increased efficiency through a better, healthier and happier personnel; and the public gets better telephone service.

"This is merely one of the opportunities for benefit offered the employees of the telephone companies," says Dr. William Cabell Moore, Medical Director of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone System. "There is no other commercial company that I know of employing such a large number of people which looks out so well for its employees, not only in matters pertaining to health but also in many other important details of life. The health course gives the employees an opportunity to learn the simple rules of hygiene and health pertaining to diet, dress, rest, recreation, personal hygiene, first aid and home nursing."

Health course classes which have been in progress since the early part of 1926 are taught by qualified instructors, selected and given special training in this work. The telephone companies provide without cost to those taking the course the necessary facilities, rooms, study books and other accessories, the only requirement for the young women being that they take the course of instructions on their own time. The class meets one hour each week for fifteen weeks, which allows sufficient hours for study, instruction and recreation.

In planning the health course it was the companies' idea to present the young women with an opportunity to improve their health. This objective has been reached to a much greater extent than was at first expected.

Let the Heart Rule

Sincerity is the very foundation stone of true friendliness. It is also a human trait that is hard to counterfeit, as the sincere friendly impulse comes from the soul of a man and not from the circulating mind. Think kindly and friendly thoughts. If you have a heart and a soul, why be ashamed of them? Bring them into the shop, the office and your daily life. The hand may be cunning, and the head may contain the brain that can conceive the most brilliant thoughts, but every good and worthy impulse comes from the heart. Strengthen your faith in men; think kindly of them, believe that they are your friends, and in the long run they will be.—Exchange.

Women "Made Good"

In the spring of 1862 M. F. E. Spinner, treasurer of the United States, prevailed upon Secretary Chase to permit him to appoint a woman to cut and trim United States currency. This work was then being done with shears in the hands of men. He appointed Miss Jennie Douglas, and, as he afterward expressed it, "her first day's work settled the matter in her and in woman's favor." On October 9, 1862, the following woman employees were appointed: Miss Fannie L. Halstead, Miss Annie York, Miss Belle S. Tracy, Miss Elizabeth Stoner, Miss Mary Burke. They were the first women for whom congress regularly made an appropriation.

Land With a History

Denmark is the little old great-grandfather of the nations. He can yarn by the hour of a past as no one else his size. He will tell you of the old pirate days in 1167 when Copenhagen was founded to protect the land from the Wendish pirates, if that is the kind of story you wish to hear as you sit in one of that city's beautiful restaurants, or he will narrate the story of Hamlet, as if he had heard the Royal Dane cry from the ground about the castle of Kronberg close by. It is the oldest existing kingdom of Europe.

The Helping Hand

Sergeant Simpson was talking seriously to a new recruit.

"Under comradeship," he continued, "we put all that one man would do for another. For example, Smith, what would you do if your chum had his breakfast on the table, his buttons not cleaned and the bugle went for parade?"

Smith had the answer ready. "Well," he said, "I'd eat his breakfast so he could clean them buttons all right!"

FULL OF FORDS

Second Autoist—"Oh, yes, they're full of Fords."

Flouting the Truth

There is no excuse for seven-tenths of the mistakes men make. The world is full of certainties; the list is so extensive that almost everything is covered. What has happened in the past is warning for the future; and nearly everything has happened. If we may know about the distant planets—and we do—how much easier it is to know about our bodies, the habits of men collectively and individually, and of other things we may handle and taste. Men are actually tremendously clever; their trouble is that after discovering the truth, they say the truth is an outrage, and try to change it.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Historic Lighthouse

The old Cape Henry lighthouse, near Norfolk, Va., was erected in 1790, the first of many that now dot the coast line of the United States. Recently because of its historical significance a pilgrimage was made to it by women's organizations of the vicinity. On the old lighthouse is a bronze tablet with this inscription: "Near this spot landed, April 26, 1607, Capt. Gabriel Archer, Christopher Newport, Hon. George S. Percy, Bartholomew Gosnold, Edw. Maria Wingfield, with twenty-five others, who, calling the place Cape Henry, planted a cross, April 26, 1607. Dei Gratia Virginia Condita."

Friends

We must, in great measure, take our friends as they are, if we are to have them at all. We cannot remodel any of them at will. When once we have accepted this fact, and the kindred fact that our friends are probably longing quite as fervently to improve us, we shall get a great deal more pleasure out of our companionships, and escape much mental friction.—Great Thoughts (London).
