

OUR DETROIT LETTER FROM J. J. REID.

Trip Described. Work is now very Scarce in Detroit.

We are now nearing the 12th. year of our removal from Taneytown, and our residence in Detroit. During this time, I have written so many articles which the Editor of The Record has so kindly published that now I am at a loss for anything to write about. But I cannot resist the temptation to try, at least, to write another, to keep up the pleasant relations I always had with the folks "back home," by the only means, except writing, personally that I know of the columns of the Record, the reading of which comes before everything else, with me, on Monday evening, of each week and by which I keep in touch with them all.

I often notice articles written by folks who take long trips, and indeed, have written some myself. Now, we have been on several, which to us at least seemed rather long, but I cannot say much about the one to Houghton Lake, as I have described the country through which we passed, in one of my former letters. We went up there over Labor Day, taking four days. As always, we were cordially received by Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Stahl, and surely enjoyed ourselves while there.

I know of no nicer place to spend a vacation than this, for any one who likes quietness, with a little amusement in the way of fishing, bathing and boating. Personally I did not do much of either, but the younger members of our family enjoyed themselves, on the lake quite a lot, with medium luck. When the older ones were not resting, we were exploring the surrounding country, over new roads, at least to us, and to Long Lake, about 20 miles south of Houghton. This is a trip we take about once a year, and surely appreciate the cordial welcome we receive. It takes about 5 hours to make it, the distance being a little over 200 miles.

Then on Sunday, September 22, we drove to Grand Rapids, more than three-fourths across the state, 172 miles from Detroit. The Michigan State conference of the United Brethren Church, met there, and as some of our friends were taking it in, we decided to do likewise. In company with our friend, B. O. Slonaker, we left this city at 5 A. M. and reached there a little after 9 A. M. We had a splendid road—paved all the way, and passed through country that reminded us of the rolling land of Maryland. And the dwellings did also, to some extent, as they were better than the farm houses around Detroit. A curious thing we noticed, however, and that was the scarcity of big bank barns, such as we were used to seeing in Carroll county, only two such being seen by us on the entire trip, all the rest being ground barns, some quite large.

We often read of the destruction of animals by automobiles, but never before did we see anything in this line as we did that day. Chickens, squirrels, rabbits, skunks, were among the unfortunates that lost their lives while attempting to cross the road. We saw a beautiful Collie dog, on our way up, that had evidently only been killed a short time before. Here is the difference between city and country life. Here they kill men, women and children while the victims are animals, but usually both are due to the same cause—a desire to get the other side of the road—and being struck by an auto.

We enjoyed the services very much met some old friends and returned home safely by 7:30 P. M. I might mention that we passed through Howell, where thoroughbred Hereford cattle are raised, and from where, I am informed the foundation of the Sauble herd was obtained. Also, though Lansing, the Capital of Michigan, but did not see much of the city, as the road, following the usual custom in Michigan, passes around the main part of the city. At the same time we have our former record beaten, as we lived 52 years in Maryland and never saw Annapolis, the capital of the state.

When stating, we had little to write about, we almost forgot to think of a much appreciated visit we received on September 26th., from our friends of long standing, Quillie E. Weant and Wm. J. Carter and wife, all of Baltimore, who were making a little tour of Ohio, Michigan and Canada, following the sessions of the National Camp of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, at Columbus Ohio, to which body they were delegates from the State Camp of Maryland. No one knows how glad we were to see them, and our only regret connected with their visit was the fact that they fell into the hands of some of the kind of people the lax laws of this state have drawn to Detroit, and had all their personal baggage stolen from their car.

It surely does not give this city much of a reputation for safety, when a car is broken into, on one of the main streets, in broad day light. But this is a common occurrence, and our friends have plenty of company, although that does not lessen the seriousness of their loss. After a sight-seeing tour, over Belle Isle Park, and to the most interesting places, and amongst the sky scrapers, for which our city is becoming noted, they expressed themselves as being delighted with Detroit, although I rather suspect that Baltimore looks much better to them. They also visited Windsor, in Canada, and were shown the "sights" of that place by Chas. E. Redeker, who was formerly a resident of Maryland, but who now is a successful business man, in Windsor,

TANEYTOWN POSTOFFICE

Now Re-equipped and Up-to-date in Every Respect.

The Taneytown Postoffice improvements are about completed, except for some permanent placing of furniture, and the result is one of the best equipped offices in this section of the state. The lobby has been materially enlarged, and the walls and ceiling painted a cream color. All new electric lights were installed—100 watt in the lobby, and 150 watt in the carriers' department.

The box equipment has been materially enlarged by adding 96 small boxes, 40 medium and 5 drawers, which now makes the total number of boxes and drawers 317, all having combination locks. There are no call boxes.

In the Carriers' department in addition to some of the former equipment there are three new desks, or tables, for use of carriers; two stock cabinets, wardrobe, coat racks, large case of drawers, etc.

For the use of postmaster and assistants there is a new flat top desk; dispatch and separating table, call delivery case for letters and papers, a large fire and burglar proof safe; mail bag holders, and smaller fixtures and appliances connected with the mail business.

All doors and windows have been reinforced, a new P. O. sign in white letters in front, and all mails received are taken in through side alley, and not through the lobby, as heretofore.

Wm. E. Burke, former postmaster, and owner of the building, has added these improvements in consideration of a ten-year lease, and the work has been done in fine style, including lesser changes not mentioned.

Minister Sued for Divorce.

A suite for separate maintenance, with permanent alimony, including counsel fee, has been filed by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Heimer, of Thurmont, against her husband, Rev. Dr. Peter E. Heimer, pastor of the Thurmont Reformed Church. The case was filed Saturday in the office of Clerk of the Court, Frederick, and on the same day the court ordered the defendant to make preliminary payment unless on or before October 15 he showed cause to the contrary. The sum of $75 per month was fixed as alimony pending the suit, this payment to begin October 28th.

Mrs. Heimer, through her bill of complaint, charges her husband with "cruelty of treatment," which has been "at times violent," and alleges that her health has been impaired as the result of this continued "mistreatment," which has lasted for some years past. She states that she has endured her husband's conduct as long as possible for the sake of their children, who are now adults, and out of respect to his position as a minister, but that she now believes that there is no hope of reconciliation. She has engaged Leo Weinberg, of Frederick, as her attorney.

In filing her suit for permanent alimony and such relief as the case may require, the minister's wife states that her husband is a man of considerable means, and names the value of his securities of money at approximately $25,000, in addition to his regular income. She states that she is without means to defray the suit, and asks that the defendant pay the counsel fee.

Rev. and Mrs. Heimer have been living for the past fifteen years at Thurmont, where he is pastor of the Reformed church, which includes three other churches near the town. They were married June 22, 1893, in Belfast, Pa. They have two children, both of whom are married, and are non-residents of this state.—Frederick Post.

Dr. Heimer has resigned as pastor of the Thurmont charge and his resignation was accepted by the officials of the charge, with deep regret, and passed resolutions commending his work and character. Dr. Heimer denies the charge and will ask further action at Maryland Classis, Oct. 29th.

Rev. Wm. H. Hetrick Extended a Call to Westminster.

The council of Grace Lutheran Church, Westminster, has extended a call to former pastor, Rev. William H. Hetrick, of Conneltsville, Pa. This action has been rumored for several weeks, and it is to be assumed that there is reasonable ground for the belief that the call may be accepted.

CALENDAR ORDERS.

Our regular Calendar orders for the season will close, Oct. 26, and shipment will be ordered. Orders received later will be charged with freight from New York. There is always doubt about receiving designs selected late in the season.

and one of the subjects of King George.

I feel that I must mention the scarcity of work in this city, and again warn men from coming here. It is now so bad that the same parties who were sending out invitations to men to come, are now doing the opposite. We have about 150,000 men out of work, but it looks as if the worst is nearly over, and that most of these can be taken care of later on. But we do not need any more, notwithstanding all the Real Estate gang can say. If any one who reads this has a single thought of coming here to look for work, my advice is, stay at home—even if you have no job; for you will be in the same class out here and you will not be among friends either.

JOHN J. REID.

THE VOLSTEAD ACT MAY BE AMENDED

Federal Court Decides Buyers of Liquor Not Guilty.

The Volstead Act is again before Congress, and will open up the question of Prohibition enforcement very generally. The Federal Circuit Court of Philadelphia, having rendered a decision, very recently, on which it held buyers of liquor guiltless of violating the Volstead Act, Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, sponsor of the Eighteenth Amendment, and pioneer among Congressional dries, introduced a bill on Monday to make the purchaser of liquor as much a violator of the law as the seller.

The Senator interpreted that decision as blow to proper enforcement and therefore, drafted his bill on his own initiative. It provides that the word "purchase" shall be inserted in that part of the Volstead Act which prohibits the "manufacture, sale, transportation, etc.," of intoxicating liquor.

The Texas Senator has received assurance of the support of his bill by the organized dries. Of course the bill will now take rank among the bills of first importance.

"This is another forward step in the fight for temperance," said Senator Sheppard, "and it is an entirely natural development. When we first launched the Eighteenth Amendment it applied only to the sale of liquor. Gradually we extended that to manufacture and transportation as the public became educated to the prohibition idea. We omitted the word 'purchase' at that time because prohibition had not proved itself and we were anxious that the law should not be too topheavy at the start."

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, to which the bill was referred, is reported to be opposed to it for several reasons, but it is likely to be favorably reported out, at the regular session in December.

Safeguard Them from Tooth Troubles

"Take good care of the six year molars; see that the mouth is kept clean, and be sure that the children have plenty of milk and nourishing food in their regular diet, if you want to safeguard them from tooth troubles," are among the items included in the advice given to parents of school children in Carroll county, in a circular letter sent out by Dr. W. C. Stone, Deputy State Health Officer for that county. He says:

"There is a great deal of undernourishment in people who get plenty to eat. Our diets are made up too largely of starchy foods, sweets and meats. Every child for the first eighteen years of life at least, needs a quart of milk a day. Eggs, liver, bacon, sweetbreads, cabbage, greens, salads, fruits, whole wheat and graham breads should be included in the regular diet. The food should be taken at the regular meal time and eating between meals should be avoided.

"The kinds of food that are essential to the formation of strong teeth, bones and organs are those mentioned above. The second teeth begin to form at about the second year. If teeth are to be strong they must be properly nourished. So it will be seen that the first cause of defective teeth is defective feeding. The back teeth that come about the sixth year are 'Second Teeth.' They are the most important teeth in the human mouth and should not be neglected.

"If food is allowed to remain in contact with the teeth, whether they be strong or not, there is bound to be a softening of the enamel, and decay. But it is surprising how free even soft teeth will be from decay if they are kept clean. They should be given careful attention at least twice a day. The most important time to clean the teeth is just before going to bed, because if they are cleaned at this time they will be clean for half of the twenty-four hours.

"Dental floss should be used to move the particles of food that become wedged between the teeth. It is not possible to brush out this wedged-in material and the use of a tooth pick is likely to crack the enamel. If teeth are allowed to decay and their usefulness becomes impaired, there is bound to be an extra burden thrown upon the digestive system. This extra work is going to mean, sooner or later, digestive disorders and disease. But there is a much more serious aspect of the matter. The poisons produced by, and in, germ infested teeth, are carried to every part of the body, causing damage to, or destruction of any of the vital organs."

C. E. Open Air Services.

The C. E. Union of Carroll Co., under the direction of the Supt. of the Evangelical Dept., Rev. J. H. Hoch, of Uniontown, will conduct open air evangelistic services on Saturday, Oct. 12, at 7:30, in Hampstead, and at 9:00 P. M., at Manchester. We expect to have the Male Quartet from Union Bridge with us. The message of the gospel will be brought in song and speech. The bus will leave the home of Guy Fowler, 100 East Green St., Westminster, at 6:45, and will pass through Manchester at 7:15. All Endeavorers are invited to join in the services.

THE U. B. CONFERENCE

Annual Session Held This Week at Lemoine, Pa.

The United Brethren Pennsylvania Conference, in session at Lemoine, Pa., re-elected Rev. Dr. Charles E. Fultz, Washington, D. C., superintendent, for the fifth consecutive term. In his fourth annual report it was stated that there had been 1629 conversions and 1921 accessions to the church, during the year, and that less converts had been lost to the church than usual so that accessions were greater than losses.

The conference voted that $1350, and parsonage should be the minimum salary of ministers devoting their entire time to their charge.

The conference, with considerable vigor and length, indorsed the enforcement of the 18th. Amendment, and urged greater efforts in that direction hereafter, and pronounced for law enforcement in general.

Rev. J. B. Rice and Rev. A. B. Mower were granted a retired relationship, the former having served in the ministry 45 years, and the latter 41 years. Both were former pastors of the Taneytown charge. At the time of going to press, the appointments for the year have not been announced.

"Inside" Information for Women.

The U. S. D. A. has a new leaflet, No. 45, "Pork in Preferred Ways," which contains many seasonable recipes for this excellent meat.

In cooking conserves and jams watch your kettle closely or they may scorch. An asbestos mat placed under the kettle is a safeguard.

Tart, underripe apples are best for making jelly or pectin for future jelly-making. Crab apples are especially good for jelly. Partly green fruits usually make more jelly per pound of fruit than do ripe fruits.

Use two pans when you wash spinach. Trim the leaves from the stalks first; much of the grit that clings to spinach is at the lower ends of the stalks. Lift the spinach from the first pan to the second, letting the sand settle; change the water each time you transfer the spinach; wash in five or six waters if necessary. If the spinach is unusually free from sand or grit, it may be put in the colander and washed under running water, but the first wash gives more certain results. Enough water will cling to the leaves after the washing to start cooking the spinach. Cover it closely at first so it will steam, then remove the cover and cook as short a time possible—ten or fifteen minutes. As soon as it is tender, drain it, chop it and season with salt and melted butter or thick cream. Serve hot.

Beware of Crowded Poultry Houses.

Crowded conditions in the poultry house is the main cause of many poultry troubles. Colds and roup and low feed consumption can often be traced to crowded houses.

A flock of pullets raised on range and then housed under crowded conditions are liable to get into trouble. These birds are used to being busy. If crowded into a house with nothing to do they often start feather picking. Feather picking soon develops into cannibalism. Prolapse of the oviduct, or pick outs, is the usual result.

Later in the fall when the windows and doors are closed, crowded conditions cause dampness and this condition causes roup and colds. As the birds get to laying they eat more mash and drink more water. Under crowded conditions the moist droppings cause the litter to become damp. If the windows are closed and the birds crowded the litter will not dry out. A damp house is very dangerous for poultry.

Crowded poultry houses and not enough hopper space often go together. If there are too many hens in the houses many of the weaker birds do not get enough to eat for heavy production. These birds will lay for a while but will lose body weight and finally molt. Crowded conditions are a cause of low production.

Do not crowd too many pullets into your winter houses. Allow four square feet of floor space for each pullet housed. Sell the extra birds or put them in the brooder houses for the winter.

Last year many poultry producers in the county experienced losses due to overcrowded and poorly ventilated houses according to County Agent Burns. Begin now to check on your poultry houses and avoid the heavy mortality in your flocks.—L. C. Burns, County Agent.

Judge Doub, on Prohibition.

Judge Albert A. Doub, of Cumberland, in his charge to the Grand Jury, said it was the duty of every citizen, and especially public officers, to support the prohibition amendment, and asserted that while churches had no right to enter politics, their clergy and members have a right to advocate the supremacy of law.

"It is your duty," he told the jury, "to help in the enforcement of the local law, and you are not to be governed by your own judgment as to the propriety of such a statute.

"If you refuse to indict any person shown by the evidence to be guilty or fail to produce witnesses who, to your knowledge, can furnish evidence to prove any parties guilty of violating this law, you will be unworthy of the trust confided in you by the court."

Dogs wag their tails not so much in love to you, as to your bread and meat.

ENGLISH PREMIER AT WASHINGTON

His Visit in the Interest of Continued World Peace.

The visit of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain to this country, has proven extremely popular. From the time of the landing of himself and daughter, at New York, they have been most enthusiastically and graciously received by all classes; not only with parades and display, but by the quieter and more dignified welcome that one nation extends to the representative of another. And in addition to all displays, there is a genuinely expressed hearty welcome that stands for real friendship, and real sympathy for the object of the visit—the greater insurance of world peace.

Both Mr. MacDonald and daughter, Isabel, have caught the public fancy because of their naturalness, and their desire for as little as possible of noise and display; and President Hoover helped this desire along by taking his distinguished visitors along to his Virginia mountain camp, over the week-end, where Mrs. Hoover and Miss Isabel enjoyed mountain horseback riding, and long hikes, while the President and his visitor talked over the most momentous of affairs without the least restraint.

On Monday, Mr. MacDonald addressed the Senate by invitation, and his remarks were received with practically unanimous satisfaction. He said in part:

"What has happened, and what has made the great change in the prospects of peace, is this—that up to now a proclamation has never been made solemnly, with all the dignity, with all the authority and with all the backing that can be given when two Governments and the representatives of two Governments make it. I think, Senators of the United States, that declaration can now be made.

"There can be no war; nay, more: it is absolutely impossible, if you and we do our duty in making the peace pact effective, that any section of our arms, whether land or sea or air, can ever again come into hostile conflict."

Thus MacDonald subscribed to the new diplomacy instituted by Hoover and by former Vice-President Dawes, now Ambassador to London. And as openly he rejected the idea that the conversations he has had with Mr. Hoover looked toward an Anglo-American exclusive alliance. In the old days, he said, when two peoples talked together the rest of the world suspected a conspiracy.

"In these days," he added, "when two nations talk together, it ought to give hope and confidence to the other nations of the world, especially when neither of those nations, neither you or we, will form any exclusive alliance directed against the existence or the interests of any other nations or groups of nations on the face of the earth."

The following comments on his address seem to reflect general sentiment:

Senator Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic leader:

"Premier MacDonald impressed the Senate with his earnest desires for an arrangement between the United States and Great Britain with respect to naval parity. No other arrangement is practicable or possible. His remarks indicate readiness to recognize in conference the equality of the United States with Great Britain in sea power, which is all that our people ask or desire."

Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, chairman Senate Military Affairs Committee:

"I think that to have the Prime Minister reiterate in this country that Great Britain wishes to grant parity to us makes possible a limitation of armament which may serve to relieve the peoples of the two countries of a burden which is growing intolerable, and thus lead to a general worldwide self-restraint which will be a blessing to all humanity."

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

Monday, Oct. 7, 1929.—Paul W. Englar, executor of Alice S. Englar, deceased, reported sale of personal property and settled his first and final account.

Martha A. West and Francis L. C. Helm, executors of J. Edward West, deceased, settled their first and final account and received order to transfer stocks.

William E. Ritter and Upton F. Mehring, executors of Edwin H. Sharrett, deceased, reported sale of personal property, returned inventories money and debts, received order to transfer mortgage and settled their first account.

William E. Roop, executor of John D. Roop, deceased, returned inventories of personal property and debts due.

Tuesday, Oct. 8th., 1929.—Joshua D. Owings, administrator of Mary E. Owings, deceased, returned inventory personal property.

Emma O. Snader, administratrix of John G. Snader, deceased, settled her first and final account, and reported sale of personal property.

Saturday, Oct. 12th., being a legal Holiday, Court will be closed.

It's a little early for Carroll County politics to be looming up, but such is the case; and from the way things look, there will be about six candidates on each side, for each office. But it is reasonable to expect that some of the willing ones will over-boom their boom, with the usual 'bustical result.

STATE C. E. CONVENTION

Maryland Endeavorers to Meet in Westminster, October 24-27.

The 39th. annual convention of the Maryland Christian Endeavor Union will be held in Westminster, October 24-27, the session to be held in Alumni Hall, Western Maryland College.

The first session of the convention will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening, and Dr. Leonard B. Smith, President of the Maryland Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, will be the speaker.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, President of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, and pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York City, will be the Friday night speaker.

On Saturday evening at 6:30 a mammoth torch light parade will be held, which will include marchers, floats, and numerous bands of music, following which United States Congressman Ketcham, of Michigan, has been secured to make the address of the evening.

The closing session of the convention will be held Sunday afternoon, when Dr. Wilbur Smith, of Virginia, will bring the message.

These speakers have been secured only after the greatest effort on the part of the officers of the State Union, and are national figures, and it is hoped our citizens will fully appreciate what a privilege is theirs right in their midst. There is no admission to any of the sessions, and our citizens are cordially invited to attend.

The day sessions will be devoted to conferences, round-table discussions, business sessions, etc. Among the conference leaders will be W. Roy Breg, All South Secretary; Warren G. Hoopes, Lawrence Little and others, in charge of the convention music.

The recreation period will be the Freshman Western Maryland-Georgetown University football game Saturday afternoon, and after the Saturday night session a camp fire service will be held on the old baseball field.

Separate Intermediate and Junior conventions will be held on Saturday. A complete program will be published in our next issue.

Rehearsal for C. E. Convention.

There will be rehearsal of the orchestra for the State C. E. Convention, at the home of Guy Fowler, 100 East Green St., Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 7:30 P. M. All endeavorers and others interested in music and Christian work and who play instruments, are urged to be present. For further information, call Rev. G. W. Ports, Smallwood, Md., on the Westminster, exchange. The Orchestra is requested to play Thursday, Oct. 24, at 7:00, Friday, Oct. 25, at 7, and Sunday afternoon, Oct. 27. All the sessions of the Convention will be held in Alumni Hall. Do not forget to bring your instrument to the rehearsal.

Asks for Lincoln Boulevard.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough obtained leave of the Senate today to have read from the Annapolis and Silver Spring chambers of commerce for a Lincoln memorial boulevard to Gettysburg inserted in the Congressional Record.

The resolution recently adopted by the Silver Spring organization says in part:

"In order to complete the tribute to Lincoln and to match the tribute soon to be shown Washington in the form of the Mount Vernon Boulevard the Congress of the United States authorized and directed the construction of a Lincoln Memorial Gettysburg Boulevard, connecting the city of Washington and the present Lincoln memorial with the battlefield at Gettysburg, thereby joining together at the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial these two great boulevards and thereby paying both Washington and Lincoln an equal tribute.

"It was at Gettysburg that Lincoln really found himself and it was of Gettysburg that the people think when they truly think of Lincoln."

The resolution urges that in the event such a road is constructed that it originate at the Lincoln memorial and by way of Sixteenth street to existing State highways.—Balt. Sun.

Explorers in China are greatly interested in a mysterious tunnel which was discovered by workmen constructing a road in a hill near Nanking. It is believed that the tunnel may lead to the treasure buried with the coffin of the first Ming emperor, 500 years ago, for which treasure seekers have been hunting ever since. There is a story that, when the emperor died, a coffin was carried out of each of the thirteen gates of Nanking, and each coffin was buried in a different place.

By use of the most improved machinery and the most revolutionary methods, Germany is producing coal and its by-products at a remarkably low cost. It has already "captured the market" in Europe which used to depend on Welsh coal entirely. That, however, is being produced by pre-war methods and is unable to compete with the German product.

Peculiar Maryland Names.

Peculiar names of cities, towns and communities abound in every section of this country. This is not strange considering that the United States is made up of people of every nation under the sun. In many cases names of places have originated from the nationalities of the people settling a particular area, but in other instances there are names that seemingly have no connection with nations or classes of people. They are just peculiar and are evidently the result of someone's attempt at originality. Some of these will be recognized as Carroll County names.

A person with a turn for research would no doubt find much of interest in the origin of such names of places in Maryland as Airedale, Accident, Asbestos, Bald Friar, Chillum, Choptank, Double Pipe Creek, Delight, Elk Neck, Friendly, and Furnace. Who knows the origin of the names of these communities?

Likewise of interest would be the reason for the names of Gunpowder Neck, Gypsy Hill, Haight, Hurry, Indian Head, Issue, Keep Tryst, Ladesburg, Loveville, Madonna, Necker, Nutwell, Oella, Putty Hill, Priestland, Ringgold, Rising Sun, Shucks Corner, Starr, Sunshine, T. B., Tuckahoe, Unity and Zion.

These and other peculiar names of towns and communities are points reached by the lines of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in Maryland. Investigation of the records of this company and its affiliated companies serving every section of the United States shows many other peculiar names here, there and everywhere throughout the country. Further disclosures showed that there are now few sections of Maryland, no matter how remote, that cannot be reached by telephone.

"Business is Business."

The Record carried a short humorous article last week, the substance of it being that a little boy gave an answer to win twenty-five cents, that was contrary to his convictions; but he gave it, as he said, because "Business is Business."

How often boys of a larger growth do just this. We sell our convictions and consequently our honesty, for a "price" that is some times terribly low, because our moral standard is low; but no matter what the price, or standard may be, we give a sorry excuse when we give that of the little boy.

It is never good business to be crooked in our transactions, nor careless in the use of truth. If it is any kind of business at all to deceive, it is mighty disreputable business. We have known men in business all their lives who finished up with next to nothing, financially, and still less in the measure of respect in which they were held in their neighborhood, because their business motives were wrong.

The big misfortune is, that so many people set such a tremendously high value on the gaining of a few dollars. Their aim in life is to drive a continuous string of "close" bargains; to get money, and hold it; to outmanoeuvre if they can—everybody with whom they deal, and to refuse gifts to worthy objects whenever they can; and all because so doing is what they call "business is business."

We ought to rewrite the motto, and make it "Good business, is good business" and stop placing wrong interpretations on our transactions. We need to ask ourselves the questions every day—Are we a "good business man" in the true sense of the term? And have we transacted our business in such a way as to mean that those with whom we have dealt, have been given a square deal?

The Tariff Battle.

Before long, we will either have a new tariff bill, or Congress will adjourn for a rest without reaching an agreement. These special sessions are not very agreeable to members of Congress, and this one would not have been called, had it not been to satisfy campaign pledges growing out of the last election, which fact directly injects the question of National politics into the whole procedure.

There never has been a tariff bill enacted without its trades and deals, nor without playing some kind of partisan politics, and the present bill, when it finally emerges from the legislative mill, will be neither better nor worse than its predecessors.

Price-fixing, by the ponderous methods of Congress, can never be accurately done with justice to all—and price-fixing is largely what the tariff means. Conflict between widely varying interests, and sections, is too keen. It is a bitter fight for advantage—partly under the guise of business, but largely a fight between politicians.

President Hoover was beaten last week on his stand for a "flexible tariff," but it was not so much a fight against the plan, as against the President. The opposite party and a number of sore-head, so-called Republicans, did the trick, and after it was done, the satisfaction was in beating Hoover—the game was won, the prize was of political value.

And, after all of the haranguing and wire-pulling, the House has another say as to what the Senate may do, for there is the "conference" that must iron out differences, and after the ironing process, there is the possibility of the vote; so, there is lots of time yet before deciding whether the President has been "licked" or not. The House is decidedly more Hoover Republican than the Senate, and the chances are it will put a decided crimp into some of the pet plans of the coalitionists.

Modern Conveniences.

"Things are not what they used to be," said an old man of our town recently. "Take houses, for instance. They've become too confoundingly comfortable. And what's the result? Why parents have to send their children to boarding school so that they can get their proper share of hardship."

"Now when I was a lad, things were mighty different. We had no hot-water heat, bath room, electric lights, gas, hardwood floors and all the other contraptions that even the most modest homes have today. We didn't hide our fire in the cellar and our drinking water in a spigot. When we got up in the morning, the room was cold. The ice had to be broken from the family basin before we could wash our faces. There was no water in the house. The pump was handy at a distance of 150 feet from the back door."

"Ashes had to be taken out of the stoves, coal carried from the wood shed. And we took a bath once a week in a wash tub in the kitchen."

"And despite our so-called handicaps we were hearty and strong. We didn't have to be petted into eating the white meat of chicken. We ate home-made bread soaked in Orleans molasses and liked it."

"Yes, things are different now. The women folks were bound to have their conveniences, and now that they have them they can't bring up their children in their own homes."

"And yet I must confess that I have a certain amount of real affection for the bath-tub upstairs and the hot water radiator."

There seems to be some truth in what the old man has to say.—Exchange.

Education Threatened.

A federal department of public education with a secretary in the President's cabinet has been held forth for some years by a certain group as the next logical step in the development of public education in America and as the "progressive development" most needed by the free school system today.

These advocates of further centralization of school administration, undaunted by past failures in this direction, are prepared to launch another fight in congress this coming winter. They have their lobby and they already have their bill in the hands of Senator Capper.

If there is one thing certain about this movement and its consequences, it is that the layman, which excepts the politicians and political educators, either sees no need for another federal department or sees a real threat in the scheme.

Strong is the suspicion that the Capper bill is moderate in comparison with its forerunners for the one purpose of getting it passed as the "entering wedge." It would not take control of the schools away from the state governments, but amended and modified by succeeding congresses it would soon have enough teeth to gladden the hearts of the centralizationists and to tear limb from limb every state's right in the field of education.

Federal control of the schools might prove beneficial and benevolent but the odds are against it. Having had experience with other forms of federal control the public is skeptical. Federal control might give us better schools and better teaching methods, but it would be more likely to give us more red tape, politics in the schools, interference, deadening uniformity and standardization, and dissatisfaction.

Probably the gravest danger from a federal department of education with jurisdiction over the state school systems is the inevitable habit of forcing upon one state the educational nostrums and creeds of another. Moreover, a half dozen or more states would foot the national education bill and the other states would dictate to them what they shall teach in their schools and how they shall teach it.

There now is and long has been a bureau of education doing a useful work and stepping on nobody's toes. Here is a case where it would be better to let well enough alone.—Fredrick News.

Black Ox Always the

Symbol of Misfortune

The black ox symbolizes old age, ill luck, adversity, or trouble in general, according to an article in the Pathfinder Magazine. "The black ox has trod on his foot," is a proverbial expression recorded already in 1546 by John Heywood. It means that one knows the meaning of sorrow and misfortune, such as having been visited by death.

The phrase alludes to the black cattle sacrificed by the ancient pagans to the infernal deities, especially to Pluto, supreme judge and lord of the underworld. White cattle were sacrificed to Jupiter.

At Rome the altar on which the black oxen were sacrificed was 20 feet below the level of the ground and was never exposed to public view except when the sacrifices were being made. Among the Arabs the black camel is the symbol of murder and death by violence.

Defending Thirteen

One of the arguments against reforming the calendar is the coincidence that the thirteenth of each of the thirteen months of the proposed year would fall on a Friday. One of its defenders answered this opposition by saying that the United States "grew great on thirteen" and, incidentally, on Friday.

America was discovered on a Friday, the Pilgrims landed on Friday, there were thirteen American colonies, thirteen stripes and stars on the American flag, and thirteen feathers on the American eagle's tail. The motto, E Pluribus Unum, contains thirteen letters.

Preserve Historic Spot

Maine Daughters of the American Revolution have voted that Pemaquid is the most historic spot in the Pine Tree state. An act of the Maine legislature made a state park of the area surrounding the fort. In all there have been four forts at Pemaquid; the blockhouse called Fort Pemaquid, erected in 1630; Fort Charles, 1667; Fort William Henry, 1692, and Fort Frederick, 1720.

It was at Pemaquid that English people are said to have landed 13 years earlier than the Pilgrims at Plymouth. Pemaquid is a part of the old town of Bristol, which was named for Bristol, England.

Age Brings Penalties

The penalties of old age, it is evident, are not confined to those which Byron enumerated—gout and the stone. Loneliness must also be considered, and when we call the roll of the friends of our youth and there is not a whisper in reply, then, perhaps, we shall feel the full burden of our years. Sir Oliver Lodge stated that science had made possible the extension of life to a hundred years. If such a gift is universally bestowed, it will be well. But there are few of us, perhaps, who would accept it as a particular favor.—Exchange.

Famous Rum Quay

Rum quay, the most jealously guarded spot in the London West India docks, is inclosed by an immense glass roof that originally formed a covered way to the Crystal palace when that building was erected in Hyde park in 1851, to house the great exhibition. Here, isolated behind, iron doors, punchions of rum, each holding 100 gallons of spirit many degrees overproof, are laid before being rolled into the vaults which extend to the water's edge, and afford accommodation for 40,000 of these gigantic casks.

Camp Meetings Protected

Back in 1838 the General court of Massachusetts gave protection to camp meetings by creating what was known as "The camp meeting mile." Within that distance of "a field meeting for religious purposes," it was decreed to be unlawful to hawk or peddle goods, to sell goods in tent or other structure, and to take care of horses for pay, unless the officers of the religious meeting gave their consent.—Detroit News.

Research Benefits Telephone Service

Bell System Employs 5,000 Men in Studying Problems That Will Improve Communication Operation

"The chief aim of the Bell System is to make every-day telephone service better and better," Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company made this statement recently in an interview with the Montreal Gazette, and "we are making progress," Mr. Gifford said. "A few years ago when you put in a long distance call you were obliged to hang up your receiver, and wait perhaps a considerable time before your call was completed. Today we have immediate communication between many cities."

When asked about developments in telephony, Mr. Gifford outlined the plans of laying a telephone cable across the Atlantic, by which within the next few years conversation with London and Paris will be as easy and certain as it is now between any two American cities. This cable is estimated to cost about $10,000,000.

Other developments enumerated were the common use of telephone communication between land and aeroplanes, moving trains and ships at sea or between two moving objects. "These developments," Mr. Gifford said, "are being accomplished through science. There are now about 5,000 men in our laboratories engaged in studying telephone problems and applying the results they find to the betterment of telephone service."

On being asked where research enters into supplying faster and improved telephone service, Mr. Gifford said, "Research produced the mechanical equipment in the first place and it is constantly discovering new economies which make it possible to give this improved communication without greatly increased costs. For example, our research people may make a study of a simple thing like a telephone cord. That has no direct relation to instant service between two cities, but after they develop a cord which will wear better, its use may reduce general costs by several million dollars and that makes possible improvements in service without greatly increasing the cost."

Plants That Glow

Luminous plants have been a source of strange legends in India and Afghanistan. There is a mountain called Sufed Koll in Afghanistan on which the natives believe that gold and silver exist. In springtime the slopes are covered with bushes which at night, from a distance, seem to be on fire, yet when you are close to them there is no sign of flame. The natives of Simla say that at night the mountains are illuminated by some magical herb, and this is believed to be a species of dictamnus, which grows plentifully there.

Shocked.

At an Uplifters club luncheon some one happened to remark that polo had come to us from France and not from England via India. The informant declared that mention of it had been made by several noted French writers. Evidently in the hope of verifying her statement she turned to a young lady who at that moment joined the party and asked:

"Are you familiar with Victor Hugo?"

"I am never familiar with any man," replied the newcomer with dignity.—Los Angeles Times.

POULTRY FACTS

LAYING HOUSES IN NEED OF CLEANING

Scrape and Scrub Various Utensils Made Use Of.

Information to poultrymen concerning fall cleaning of poultry houses is given in a statement just issued by Hoyt M. Wells, poultryman for the Colorado Agricultural College.

"The laying house for the pullets should be given a thorough cleaning," says Wells. "All dropping boards, roosts, nesting boxes, feeders and drinking containers ought to be scraped and scrubbed with a good disinfectant. Roosts may be painted with a carbolineum product to control red mites. Old litter should be removed from the floor, and if the floor is wooden or concrete, it should be scraped and sprayed with a good disinfectant.

"White-washing walls and ceiling will give greater sanitation and provide more light in the house in winter. White-wash may be applied best with a force spray pump."

This mixture gives good results: Slack lump lime with water to the consistency of cream. Take five quarts of this, add one pint of good coal tar disinfectant and one quart of kerosene, stir thoroughly, and add an equal amount of water. Strain the whitewash through a fine screen or a piece of burlap before using it in the sprayer.

"Window lights should be cleaned and broken ones replaced. Sweep down all muslin curtains, and replace with new muslin those that are too dirty or torn.

"This is the best time of the year to repair the roof, or put on a new one. Check over all seams on patent roofing for leaks.

"A good deep litter should be put in the laying house next, and new nesting material in the nest boxes. Remove old litter and replace with bright, clean straw every four weeks or oftener, if necessary."

Scratching Found Not Essential to Fowls

Three flocks of Rhode Island Reds and three White Leghorns at the University of Illinois indicated that hens do as well when fed grain in boxes as when they are obliged to scratch for it in deep litter. This method has the advantage of being much cleaner and more sanitary.

One lot of each breed was fed dry mash in hoppers and scratch grain morning and night in straw litter. A second lot received dry mash in hoppers, but the grain was fed twice daily in shallow troughs. For the third lot the scratch grain was ground and mixed with the mash and the whole ration self-fed in hoppers.

No high records were made, but the egg yields were not affected materially by the methods of feeding. The test ran for 41 weeks.

The grain mixture was shelled corn, 70 pounds and oats, 30 pounds. The mash was made up of 17 pounds each of ground corn, ground oats, wheat bran and flour middlings, 25 pounds of dried buttermilk, 5 pounds of bone-meal and 2 pounds of salt.

Poultry Facts

Shut up the broody hens each night.

Infertile eggs do not spoil as readily as fertile eggs do.

Eggs are a food which is quickly and easily digested.

Cleanliness is next to Godliness. In the chicken business it spells success or failure.

A little extra feeding now may give you more late summer and fall eggs. Hens won't eat much in the real hot weather, and a bit of extra weight put on them now will help them to lay later on.

Don't forget the water pans. Eggs are not produced without a constant supply.

For the gosling a mixture of corn meal, bran and ground oats mixed with the table scraps and moistened with milk or water to a crumbly consistency is satisfactory.

Records kept by poultry flock owners show that culling of flocks and marketing of unprofitable layers and surplus broilers are highly profitable practices.

Eggs from hens have a higher rate of hatchability than those from pullets, and produce larger and more vigorous chicks.

Charcoal is good for turkey poulters—sweetens up their digestion. It's a good idea to keep a pan of it where the poults can help themselves.

If there are mites in the poultry house keep the chicks outside. The mites can live for six months to a year without the chicks, but the chicks can't live six days with the mites.

Community Building

Easily Possible to Cut
Enormous Fire Losses

How are we to stop the depredations of the fire demon? There are three ways in which we can aid. First we should be careful to prevent fire. In our homes we can refrain from doing the little things that, seemingly unimportant, oftentimes result disastrously. We should clean out the chimneys annually and keep the smokepipes in repair; refrain from putting hot ashes in wooden containers; use only standard electrical equipment and installations; be careful with the use of inflammable liquids; and provide an incombustible roof. Similarly, we should use reasonable care in our place of business.

Even so, there will at times be accidental fires and we need to tear a leaf from the book of our European neighbors. We should so construct buildings that a fire, once started, will be confined near the place of origin until the fire apparatus arrives. Building codes, such as issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, are a pattern after which communities may draw up their own codes for fire-safe structures.

Washington.—Nine out of every ten automobiles in use throughout the world were made in the United States, according to a report issued by the authoritative division of the Department of Commerce. Of the 32,028,500 automobiles in world circulation, 28,551,500, or more than 90 per cent, were produced by American manufacturers. This includes 25,567,000 passenger cars and 3,984,500 trucks.

Approximately half of the 6,336,843 machines in foreign countries bear the name of American manufacturers. The automobile industry in the United States outranks all other manufacturing industries.

Ownership Versus Divorce

There is a dignity in ownership that far outweighs any lack of conveniences. There is something fine in maintaining a home under one's own roof-tree. Every improvement has a value far beyond its intrinsic cost because of the romance of beautifying one's own home. Once young married people center their thoughts on ownership of a home, work together, save together to achieve that home, the heresy of divorce will "fold up its tent like the Arab and silently steal away."

Roads Beautified

A program of highway beautification has been undertaken by the Connecticut state highway department.

Thousands of trees and shrubs, grown in nurseries maintained by the department or transplanted from other places, are being placed along the highways where there is no natural growth.

Natural growths are being preserved wherever they do not interfere with the safety of motorists or become a detriment to the highways.

Modern Caution

But don't tell you're sure
It will show in your pay.

An Altruist

Desk Sergeant—If the car wasn't worth anything, why are you so anxious to have the thief who stole it caught?

The Victim—Because I feel that anybody crazy enough to steal that old pile of junk is too dangerous to be running loose.

Radio Activities

Caller—I see you have two wireless sets. Your husband must be very enthusiastic.

Hostess—Yes, it's his enthusiasm that is the trouble. We've been forced to have two sets—one for the family to listen in on, so that he may have the other to tinker with.

Much Lead Reclaimed

It begins to appear almost as if industry can use its lead and have it at the same time. Reclamation of waste lead, through the recovery of old lead pipe, battery plates, lead lining of acid vats and other such sources, has increased year by year, until, during 1927, according to bureau of mines figures, the total weight of the recovered metal, which can be reprocessed and used as new, was 41 per cent of the production of new metal for the year, which seems to be eliminating waste with a vengeance.

AMERICAN RAILROADS EFFICIENCY
INCREASED BY TELEPHONE USE

Over 60 Per Cent of 248,000 Miles of Railway in the United States Now Operated by Telephone Control

Top: Along the scenic New River canyon in West Virginia, Chesapeake and Ohio Railway passenger train in the distance.

Efficiency in American railroad operation is outstanding. Millions of people are transported annually over thousands of miles of track in addition to the vast tonnage of freight that is handled year in and year out by these efficient carriers.

One of the methods by which the railroads have increased their efficiency in recent years is by telephone dispatching. Of the total railroad mileage in this country, 60 per cent is now operated by telephone control. Many railroads such as the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Virginian, Norfolk and Western, and Pennsylvania are now operated entirely by telephone control.

Railroading in America has just passed its hundredth milestone. The telephone came along a half-century later and is now in its fifty-third year of service. With the invention of the telephone in 1876 when there were only two of these instruments in existence, there were more than 70,000 miles of railroad in operation. Today this country is served by about 20,000,000 telephones and 248,000 miles of railroad.

Dispatching trains by telephone is nothing new, for as early as 1879, three years after the telephone was invented the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn Railroad used the telephone for its train dispatching system and has used it continuously to date, according to Telephone Topics.

This railroad has been in operation since July 28, 1875, and was the first railroad in the world to use the telephone for dispatching trains.

Not only do railroads utilize telephone communication for train dispatching, but they are large users of telephone service. In fact, nearly every railroad in the country operates private branch exchange systems at its general headquarters and at division and district points along its lines, and as well are served by telephones in railroad stations everywhere.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1929.

FEESBURG.

Dr. W. W. Davis, of the Lord's Day Alliance, from Baltimore, spoke well and earnestly, on "why we should keep the Sabbath Holy," in Middleburg Church, on Sunday morning. But very few persons were present to hear him. He gave four reasons for the command: Because of the giver, because of its character; because of the purpose, and because of its benefit.

Despite the very inclement weather of last week, Lizzie T. Birely reports a fine Missionary Convention, in the Lutheran Church in Frederick, and well attended. Four of the leaders had completed their terms of office, and new ones were elected and installed. Mrs. John C. Bowers, Catonsville, was chosen President, to succeed Mrs. James P. Reese.

Rev. Kroh and sister are making their semi-annual visits to all members of his charge, and were on those in our locality last Thursday.

Mrs. Belle Rinehart is confined to bed with a severe attack of heart trouble. Her daughter, Mrs. Florence Hyde, was with her a few days, at end of week. Mrs. P. Littlefield sent a hospital bed for her convenience.

Mrs. Emma Lynn has received word of the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Eliza Clifton, in the Md. General Hospital, in Baltimore. For a number of years, Mrs. Clifton resided in Middleburg, and was a kind friend and helper to many persons. She is in the ninetieth year of her age.

Rev. Kresge and wife, of the Union Bridge Reformed Church, took supper with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Snare, on Sunday evening. Joseph Donley and Wm. McKinney, of Lancaster, were visitors at the same time and place.

Joseph Bostian and wife motored to Cumberland, early Saturday morning, and spent the week-end with their aunt, Jessie Biehl Eichelberger and family.

Mother Gilbert, of Bark Hill, has returned to her home, with Wm. Jones and family, after spending a week with her children, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wolfe.

The Starr carpenters are plying their trade in Beaver Dam territory, this week, doing some repairing at the former Cox home, now occupied by Oden Fogle and family.

Those entertained in the home of Mrs. Grace B. Straw, on Sunday, were: Frank Biehl and his son-in-law, Howard Basehor and four daughters and one son, all of near Littlestown; Mrs. Bernard Straw and daughters, Mary and Ruth, of Mt. Airy; Clarence Straw and wife, of Baltimore, with his mother, from Lincoln University Pa., and Mrs. Mary B. Dugan, of Hagerstown.

The busy house wives are boiling apple butter, or making kraut, or chow-chow. Corn husking is in order; and some of the farmers are cultivating ground—tho we don't know how it can be done, so soon after the deluge.

Teacher—Willie, will you give a sentence using the words deduct, defense, defeat and detail?
Willie (after some hesitation)—De duck jumped over de fence—de feet before de tail.

Bill—What makes you think ancient buildings are of so much better construction than the modern homes?
Jim—Well, for one thing they've lasted longer.

Aunt Helen—Why, Jimmie! Won't you kiss me?
Jimmie—No. Kissing is only for children.

Aunt Helen—But you're a child.
Jimmie—Yes, but you aren't.

"I'm a little stiff from bowling," said the salesman, as he eased himself into a chair.

"I don't care where you came from," snapped the big, busy buyer. "What have you got to sell?"

House of the Future, as Architect Sees It

The house of the future may be seen as a building designed without windows except perhaps a few small ones for the purpose of observing the visitor at the door or determining the state of the weather.

The large wall space will be utilized by the architect as a means of expressing a new type of architectural beauty. Within, we shall have all the comforts we now possess plus others undreamed of.

There will be illumination containing a healthful percentage of ultraviolet light, and there will be a ventilating system supplying fresh, warmed, or cooled air to all parts of the home. Quiet will prevail, no matter how noisy the street may be.

The smoky atmosphere of our cities does immense damage to textiles, furniture and all the trimmings and trappings of the home. The air circulated by the ventilating system can just as easily and readily be made free from dust and corrosion and properly humidified at the same time. The home will become free of the accidental variations of the weather.—Albert Parsons Sachs.

In the Same Boat

Two friends met one day and began to discuss the various events which had taken place in their lives since last they met—a year ago.

"I've not done anything much at my job," said one. "I took a job as groom, and I've not had a minute's peace since!—on the go, day and night, and ordered about—"

"That's just how I've been treated!" broke in the other.

"You!" said the first, surprised. "How can you be putting up with my sort of life?—you never took on as a groom!"

"I did," said the other, gloomily. "I took on as a bridegroom!"

Freak of Striking Clock

The bell on the house of parliament in London may be heard for a distance of four miles and within that radius there are points where it is possible to hear the clock strike 22, through the combined utilization of the wireless and the sound waves.

This is at eleven o'clock each day when the time signals are sent out from Daventry. There is an interval of 4 1/2 seconds between the strikes and at a distance of four miles, five or six strokes are heard by wireless before the first of the sound waves and then five or six afterwards so that under these conditions it is possible to hear the bell. "Big Ben," give off 22 strokes.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC.

Topic:—Jesus Teaching Us to Pray. Matt. 6:5-13.

Written by John S. Hollenbach, S. T. D., Manchester, Md.

Prayer is the vital breath of any religion. This is especially true of Christianity, the religion of personal communion. Prayer is not a series of petitions, but an intimate fellowship with God the Father.

Jesus has given us a number of lessons concerning prayer, not only when His disciples asked Him directly to teach them to pray, but in many other connections.

Jesus has taught very explicitly that we must not pray for the effect it may have on those who hear. Our private prayers must not be made a matter of public display. We must not be like the Pharisee who on the street corner prayed with himself, glorying in the thought that he was superior to other people as well as finding much satisfaction in the realization that others saw him pray and regarded him as a devout man. We should avoid pride and affectation in prayer and utter them in Humility and with genuine sincerity.

Jesus taught us the value of secrecy in prayer. To enter into the fullest fellowship with the Father in our individual devotions we need to shut ourselves away "from the meddling crowd's ignoble strife" and from the noises and scenes that would distract. We need to practice aloneness with God. Such a procedure will produce power and peace.

The value of prayer does not lie in lengthy repetitions. We shall not be heard for our much speaking. Our God will not be cajoled into listening to us by the amount of noise we make but He will heed the vital needs we express. The greatest needs in the Bible are expressed in prayers of a few words.

But we must not understand Jesus' injunction against vain repetitions after the manner of the heathen as signifying that we shall not exercise persistence in prayer. On the other hand, by example and by parable, he impressed very forcibly the necessity of continuing steadfast in prayer. He spent whole nights in prayer and urged his followers to pray without ceasing.

Jesus stressed the need of faith. Many deeds were wrought by Him in answer to the faith of those seeking help from Him. His ministry of healing was a response to the hearty trust which those in dire need reposed in Him.

Jesus gave an example of prayer. This must not be mistaken for a form possessing magic power. Whether uttered in private or in public, it must ever be the vehicle of desires that spring from the heart.

Prayer is not to be looked upon as a means to bend God to do all the things we want done and to act as a divine Santa Claus by showering all the gifts we want upon us. The primary object of prayer is not to make God conform to our whims and will but to bring us into harmony with His purposes.

Jesus taught us the need of submission and resignation in the prayer uttered in what was no doubt the most agonizing hour of His life, "Not my will but Thine be done."

TANEYTOWN HIGH SCHOOL NEWS.

The Boys' Athletic Association is sponsoring the giving of "Ben Hur", Tuesday evening, Oct. 15, in the New Theatre. The Association has been at some expense in equipping its players for Soccer ball and they hope the public will support them by attending this movie. Tickets will be sold for 30c.

Miss Knauff was unable to meet her classes on Friday, on account of sickness.

The first game of soccer ball was played, Friday, on the home grounds, with New Windsor High School, score 2 to 1 in favor of New Windsor.

State Supervisor of High Schools, Dr. S. M. North, and Supt. M. S. H. Unger, paid official visits to the school on Tuesday last.

The program committee for the Hawthorne Literary Society, having been in charge of the Assembly on Thursday, October 3, 1929, decided to give a play which portrayed the humorous side of our topic for October, "Health," and therefore chose the play, "Dr. Cure-All." This was not only amusing but also had a moral. "It were better to bear the ills we have, than to fly to others we know not of."

The following program was rendered: Song by School; Scripture; Prayer; Flag Salute; Minutes; Play, "Dr. Cure-All"—Cast: Dr. Cure All, Edwin Zimmerman; His office girl, Alice Riffle; His wife to be, Mary Isabel Elliot; Patients, Amelia Null, Mary Young, Nadine Ohler, Arlene Nusbaum, Glen Snyder, Mary Teeter and Mildred Shriner. A humorous song, "Etiquette Blues" by M. Isabel Elliot, Nadine Ohler and Mary Teeter.

The meeting was then adjourned to meet again October 17, 1929.

Good Short Ones.

"Jimmie," asked the teacher of the new pupil, "do you know your alphabet?"

"Yes'm," answered Jimmie. "What letter comes after A?"

"All the rest of them," was the triumphant answer.

Mother—Jimmie, did you get that loaf of bread I sent you for?

Jimmie—No, mother, the store was closed.

Mother—What? Closer at this hour of the day?

Jimmie—Sure. There was a sign on the door that said "Home Baking."

Soon the Fairs will be over; then what will the prospective candidates do to help business?

CONVICT SHIP

The Oldest Ship Afloat

Built in India, 1790

This Wonderful Vessel Has Made History During Three Centuries

She marked the beginning and the end of England's monstrous penal system.

She has held, lurid horror and dreadful iniquities beside which even the terrible stories of the Black Hole of Calcutta and the Spanish Inquisition pale into insignificance.

She is the oldest ship in the world and the only convict ship left afloat of that dreadful "Fleet of Ocean Hells" which sailed the Seven Seas in 1790 A. D.

She is unchanged after all these years, nothing being omitted but her human freight and their suffering from the cruelties and barbarities practiced upon them.

Aboard her are now shown, in their original state, all the airless dungeons and condemned cells, the whipping post, the manacles, the branding irons, the punishment balls, the leaden-tipped cat-o'-nine tails, the coffin bath and the other fiendish inventions of man's brutality to his fellow-man.

From keel to topmast, she cries aloud the greatest

Taking on Responsibility

"I shall say nothing but what I believe to be absolutely true," said Senator Sorghum.

"But," said the practical friend, "if you stop to verify every statement how are you going to find time to make a speech?"—Washington Star.

Pulled in Two Ways

First Motorist—Do you know that motoring has increased my appetite wonderfully?

Second Same—Well, that's good. "I'm not so sure. I can't afford to eat now."

Reason Enough

Jack—Why did you quit calling on Eleanor?

Jim—Too many traffic signals.

Jack—Huh?

Jim—Her father caught me kissing her and yelled Stop, and then yelled Go! And I did, and haven't been back since.

Only His Fourth Stroke

Club Secretary—Say, you know you simply mustn't drive from in front of the box. You can drive from as far behind it as you like, but you mustn't drive from in front of it.

New Member—Drive, nothing! This is my fourth stroke.—Dublin Opinion.

Overworked

at 12 m, sharp.

100 Head of Cows and Heifers 40 Head of Guernsey Cows and Springers

some of them heifers. These cows are the best in Maryland; I except none, as I have some fresh that milk 42 lbs. per day, several of the cows will milk more. There is one cow in the lot that last year as a 4-year old, cleared its owner two hundred and twenty-three dollars and some cents more than feed costs, and I have several more just as good. These cattle were sold on account of the dry season this summer, as feed is scarce and high.

Have About 15 Jersey Heifers ranging in size from 400 to 1000 lbs. The largest heifers are springers. These cattle are from Spotsylvania Co., Va., out of accredited herds. Six of these cows are off of the farm that our first President was born, the George Washington farm, at Fredericksburg, Va.

25 Head of Holsteins consisting of fresh cows and springers. All this stock is tested and out of an accredited County. They can be seen any time on and after Saturday, Oct. 12th. This will be a fine lot of young cows—the kind you want to see; the kind you can make money on, for they will be the right kind.

30 Head of Jersey Cows

fresh and springers, out of Tennessee, and from an accredited County, which you all know are as good as you can find them. 15 will be fresh and the balance springers; and a few small Jersey heifers, and they are fine. 6 springing heifers, fresh by day of sale. Come, look them over and decide for yourself.

I will have at this sale about 20 head of Reds, Roans, Brindle; in fact, any color and size you want, fresh and springers, young and old. In fact, a cow to suit everybody, in size and price.

Several Stock Bulls.

All stock delivered free of charge, within 30 miles of Westminster. All stock sold for the high dollar and for cash.

Delicious Quick Breads In A Jiffy!

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

ONE need not be an experienced cook to serve those delicious hot breads which require little time in preparation and which add so much to any meal, be it breakfast, luncheon or supper. The difficulties of making biscuits and muffins have been over-estimated. If one is equipped with a standard measuring cup and a reliable oven, and is willing to follow directions from a good recipe—biscuit or muffin making is not a matter of luck. Good results may be expected every time.

Thoroughly master one good recipe for muffins and one for biscuits! Memorize the proportions, and then you need not take any time out when you are hurrying to make muffins for breakfast! The standard recipe later may be varied to suit your individual wishes.

Following are several recipes for delicious quickbreads:

Plain Baking Powder Biscuit—

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons lard or butter
1 cup milk and water in equal parts

Mix dry ingredients and sift twice. Work in fat with fingers; add needed liquid gradually, mixing with knife to a soft dough. Pat and roll lightly to one-half inch thickness on floured board. Shape with a biscuit cutter. Place on buttered pan and bake in moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Plain Muffins—

3 tablespoons butter (level)
3 tablespoons sugar (level)
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 cups bread flour
4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter; add sugar gradually and egg well-beaten; sift baking powder with flour, add to the first mixture, alternating with milk. Bake in buttered gem pans 25 minutes.

Mince-meat Rolls—Pat baking powder biscuit dough to ½ inch in thickness. Spread with mince-meat and roll as for jelly roll. Cut into one-inch lengths—pinch one end of each roll together and place that end down on the baking sheet. This prevents the escape of any mince-meat while baking. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 15 minutes.

Jam Rolls—Follow directions for mince-meat roll—spreading the dough thinly with strawberry or cherry preserves, and then cutting and baking as before.

Devilled Biscuit—Pat biscuit dough very thin (about ¼ inch) and shape with biscuit cutter. Spread with thin layer of devilled ham, cover with another biscuit and bake in a moderate oven 12 to 15 minutes. These rolls are delicious served for luncheon with vegetable salad—such as tomato, lettuce, asparagus or other similar salads.

Devilled Ham—Grind thoroughly in a food chopper, 1 cup cold cooked ham; add ¼ cup chopped stuffed olives, 1 tablespoon mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon prepared mustard.

Jelly Muffins—Fill well greased muffin pans ¾ full of muffin batter. In the center of each muffin place one teaspoon of current or grape jelly, forcing it well into the center of the muffin with the teaspoon. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

WHEN BILLY WAS KIDNAPED

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

MRS. BARRETT sat on her wide porch knitting a sweater out of gold-colored yarn. It was intended to embellish a new golf costume in which she accompanied her banker husband to the links at the Country Club, where he got most of his much needed exercise. Like her husband, Mrs. Barrett was stout and florid, a condition which came from having plenty of ease, a good cook in the kitchen and an unlimited credit at Mr. Houlehan's superior grocery store.

Very comfortable and fair looked Mrs. Barrett as she sat knitting this delightful summer afternoon, while the honeysuckles threw off their golden perfume and the bees hummed and her three-year-old son, William, Jr., plied up and down the lawn in his expensive new automobile, painted green and fully equipped, save for motor power, which Billy's stout legs supplied. Mrs. Barrett had Billy where she could keep an eye on him for the reason that she lived in a continual fear of his being kidnaped.

It was Miss Stowe who had put the idea in Mrs. Barrett's head. Ideas usually had to be put in Mrs. Barrett's head; they did not grow there. Miss Stowe lived alone in the pretty house opposite, and she hadn't a thing in the world to do but to hear her parrot swear and watch her neighbors. She was sure that the child of Westmore's banker would sooner or later be in danger of the kidnaper and had so announced to Mrs. Barrett. As a consequence Mrs. Barrett kept her eye on Billy every moment that Avis, the reliable $10-a-week maid did not.

The telephone bell rang and Mrs. Barrett ran in to answer it. It was Miss Stowe, who had just read something dreadful in the Tattler and wanted to know if Mrs. Barrett had seen it. Those dreadful Serjes had bought the house where they lived and Gordon street had them permanently. Now wasn't that sad tidings? The Serjes were quite beyond the pale of banker's families and moneyed old maids. There were six children and the father watched the Bell street crossing and the mother was a good-natured slattern who didn't know a thing about sanitation. It was awful, horrible, shocking to have such folks in the neighborhood. "I knew when Jennie Pratt went away and left her house to be rented that trash would get into it. And now we've got them forever," cried Miss Stowe passionately. "Until they came there wasn't any objectionable feature here on Gordon street, not a dog, not a cat, only dear little Billy and Honeydew, and I'm sure Honeydew is harmless enough." Honeydew was the parrot.

Five minutes later, when Mrs. Barrett returned to the porch, Billy was nowhere to be seen. His green auto stood empty.

She called, she hunted, she got Avis to call and hunt. Miss Stowe saw what was going on and came running out. Billy gone? Kidnaped! Of course. At that Mrs. Barrett had hysterics. Mr. Barrett was out of town, she hadn't an available relation or a friend nearer than Miss Stowe—Miss Stowe sent for the police. They came, gorgeously panoplied. Westmore's entire force, four crowded into a borrowed roadster. They beat through the shrubbery, they looked into the pond, they asked questions. Who had seen Billy last? Hazel Peters said she had seen a little red car going like everything, swoop through the street a moment before the alarm was given. Mrs. Cryden said she had heard a scream. Old Mr. Mitt said that a mysterious car had kept it's headlights turned on the Barrett house for ten minutes the night before. Little Carrie Wade, plied with imagination, said a queer-looking man had walked past the Barrett house three times that morning. The consensus was that Billy had been kidnaped for ransom. Mr. Barrett was notified by telegraph, extra police were called. Mrs. Barrett went to bed in a collapse and Dr. Hilton, arriving in haste, administered bromide and strychnine.

They searched far and near without avail. Miss Stowe enjoyed the first real excitement for years; after Mrs. Barrett she was the center of attraction. Honeydew swore to empty ears; he capered on his perch, beat his wings, stood on his head with rage while his mistress, with folded arms, held audience on the front steps.

Hours passed. Afternoon arrived and the Tattler was just ready to get out an extra edition with dazzling headlines, "Son of Banker Disappears!" Five times had young Boyd Walters, reporter for the Tattler, appeared on Gordon street to gather news. Avis, swollen faced with weeping and incoherent, told all she knew. Miss Stowe told much more than she knew.

Three o'clock brought Mr. Barrett, scarlet and dripping with perspiration. His high-nosed car was splashed with mud, for he had sought every possible short cut. He barely looked at his moaning wife. Being efficient, he went to the telephone and called up the Tattler office and the chief of police. Half an hour later, damp from the press, startling lettered bills appeared in several public places, "$1,000 Reward!"

About that time a swarthy, tubby woman in a faded blue dress appeared in Gordon street. She ambled casually by Miss Stowe's with a wide, white-toothed smile. Obviously she was looking for somebody.

"It's that awful Serge woman," Miss Stowe said to the little group on her steps. They looked after her scornfully. "What can she want on this street?"

The Serge woman ambled down and ambled back. Then Miss Stowe overhauled her.

"Who are you looking for?" she demanded.

"That man's house where the little boy got lost," returned Mrs. Serge amiably.

"What for?"

"Oh, 'cause," Mrs. Serge broadly grinned.

"Do you suppose she knew anything?" asked Mrs. Lippitt.

"How could she?" Miss Stowe sniffed. She pointed. "That's the house over there."

The woman went to the front steps, changed her mind and went around to the back door. An instant later Avis' voice was heard ascending in a shriek. Still another instant and Mr. Barrett dashed out of the house and plunged into his waiting car; he waited only long enough for the Serge woman to take a seat beside him before he broke the speed limit in his flight.

Ten minutes later he returned with the missing child. A waving of handkerchiefs and cries of joy went up from the group on Miss Stowe's steps. All the same they were disappointed.

Billy Barrett had been found. In fact he had never been lost at all. Lacking society, and freed from an instant from his mother's watchful eye, he had wandered forth in search of some one to play with. He had come to the little house beside the crossing where Mr. Serge kept watch, had strolled in and finding it impossible to understand Mr. Serge's jargon or for Mr. Serge to understand his he had promptly gone to sleep. He had awakened refreshed and had had his dinner from Mr. Serge's pail—dark looking bread and onions and a ripe red pepper. When Mr. Serge's "trick" came to a close he had taken Billy home with him and he had been having the time of his life playing with the smaller Serjes when Mr. Serge, who had gone to the news-stand after some tobacco, had seen the poster—"$1,000 Reward!" He had hurried home to tell Mrs. Serge and she had fared forth to the bankers, discreetly keeping Billy in the background meanwhile.

And that was all there was to the kidnaping of Billy Barrett except that Mr. Barrett really paid the $1,000 to Mr. Serge, who refused to take it.

"Na—Na! Me like ill fella, na—na!" protested Mr. Serge.

But Mr. Barrett insisted and it was Mrs. Serge who finally took the money. The $1,000 gave them their home free and clear. And because they were simple, kindly, honest folk who minded their own business, even Miss Stowe had to admit that she did not begrudge them their good fortune.

Diamond Only Precious

Stone Formed of Carbon

Among Biblical references to gems are many interesting passages. The vesture of the high priest, ornamented with symbolic stones, was made "for beauty and for glory." The ephod of Aaron contained two onyx stones engraved with the names of the 12 tribes of Israel. In the Apocalypse of the New Testament there is a description of the New Jerusalem as follows: "And the building of the wall it was of jasper, and the foundations of the wall of the city they were garnished with all manner of precious stones." In the Iliad and the Odyssey there are passages describing the jewels of Juno, and in modern times the display of gems at social functions often equals in splendor the magnificence of ancient Rome.

It is worthwhile to know something about the origin of these highly esteemed objects. In the first place, all precious stones are transparent, or at least translucent, although it is impossible to distinguish absolutely between common precious stones and ordinary stones, as the processes of nature are always gradual. The finer stones are called oriental, and the inferior ones occidental. This classification is solely a distinction of quality and has nothing to do with the regions in which they are found.

The reason for the distinguishing characteristic of transparency or translucency is that precious stones are formed through the agency of heat or water. The majority are of silica or alumina, the diamond only being formed from carbon. These stones are found among igneous rocks which have been pushed up from the earth's interior in a plastic state, ground down through ages of glacial periods into irregular peaks and cones, and reduced to sand by the disintegrating influence of ice and floods. They are rarely found among great masses of rocks, the destructive agencies to which the latter have been subjected being evidence of their great age. In fact, these much-desired stones are far older than plants, animals or man.—Washington Star.

Literary Chauffeurs

London's most enterprising business magnate is the man who is making a regular $50-a-week hawking round second-hand copies of magazines to chauffeurs compelled to wait long hours for mistresses unable to tear themselves away from the shops and restaurants.

"My peak hour is around midnight," he said, "when wealthy and fashionable auto owners forget their waiting chauffeurs in the glamor of supping and dancing."

HE DISCOVERED WHAT WATER IS

English Genius World's Most Timid Man.

London.—Any schoolboy fresh from his first chemistry lesson, will tell you that water is H₂O—a statement, by the way, with which modern scientists do not altogether agree. Not everybody, however, can say who first made that stupendous fact known to the world.

It was a millionaire bachelor, Henry Cavendish by name, nephew of one of the dukes of Devonshire. He was so shy that he kept many of his discoveries secret lest he should become famous, and they were only unearthed after his death; so shy that if he ever caught sight of one of his own woman servants, she had to pack her bag and leave that day. He was so shy that when his banker came to tell him he had $400,000 in his account—and wasn't that rather a lot to lie idle?—he sent the man of business away, told him to do what he liked with it, but said he would close his account if they ever bothered him again.

He was so shy, says the London Mail, that having a wonderful library of books he was quite willing to lend, he took a separate house in Soho, so that borrowers need never disturb his studies. Whenever he took out a book himself he always signed for it like any stranger.

Not only did he tell how water is made. He was one of the first to discover that heat is not a substance but a state; one of the first to measure the density of the earth; a pioneer of electricity, an astronomer, a geologist. Rustics at Clapham, where he had his country seat, peeped through his windows and saw, instead of furniture, a laboratory and a forge. They thought he was either a wizard or a madman; but he was merely a genius.

Air Post Office Designed to Sort 250,000 Letters

Seattle, Wash.—When the government desires to move all first-class mail by air, especially designed planes will be available for such service. A fully equipped airplane on display in a local plant will carry three tons of mail, or a quarter million letters, at 135 miles an hour.

Eighteen-passenger transports built for use on the transcontinental air route this summer are so constructed that they can be quickly transformed into mail planes. Sorting tables and sacks can be placed around the cabin for the distribution of mail en route, as is done on mail trains. These cabins are 19½ feet long, more than six feet high and five and one-half feet wide.

These newer planes have a wing span of 80 feet and a length over all of 55 feet. Letter clerks will have their meals aboard the planes in well-equipped buffets electrically heated. Each plane is provided with a fully equipped lavatory with hot and cold water. Large, unobstructed windows of non-shatterable glass give excellent vision. Instruments mounted over the sorting tables would tell the clerks how fast they are flying and how much time they have to distribute mail for various cities en route.

Numerous applications for airplane mail clerk jobs are on file with the Post Office department, it was announced here.

Towns' Names on Roofs Guide Distance Flyers

Washington.—Remarkable progress in the movement to have name signs painted on the roofs of prominent buildings of towns throughout the country was reported by W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general in charge of air mail, on his return from an inspection trip over the air mail lines.

The campaign was started by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics and postmasters have been enlisted to further the movement. Mr. Glover said he was surprised with the results already accomplished.

He said the people in the West were more interested in the air mail than those in the East.

Four Finnish Spies Go to Prison in Russia

Leningrad.—Four men, charged with espionage on Soviet soil in behalf of Finland, have pleaded guilty in a military trial here. They were sentenced to eight years of imprisonment and confiscation of all their properties. The self-confessed spies are Yalmar Lempiäinen, Edward Vesterlin, Solomon Uttu and Uri Reiman.

Sun and Tape 'Brand' Bathers in Virginia

Richmond, Va.—The vogue for suntan here has brought the "brand." A "brand" is easily acquired with a few strips of adhesive tape and an afternoon at the swimming pool.

It consists of shaping the desired design or initials from the tape, applying them to the skin and stepping into the sunshine. The space covered by the tape remains white and is easily seen when the tape is removed. Greek letter fraternity "brands" appear to be the most popular.

Age Not Determined by Number of Years Lived

The following bit of philosophy, written by a contributor who signs it "Author Unknown," has been received by the Detroit Free Press:

"Youth is not a time of life—it is a state of mind. It is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions. It is a freshness of the deep springs of life. Youth means a predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite of adventure over love of ease. This often exists in a boy of twenty. Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years. People grow old by deserting their ideals.

"Whether seventy or sixteen, there is in every being's heart the love of wonder, the amazement at the stars and the starlike things and thoughts, the undaunted challenge of events, the unfailing childlike appetite for what next, and the joy and the game of life. You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair. In the central place of your heart there is a wireless station. As long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, grandeur, courage and power from the earth, from men, and from the infinite, so long are you young."

Warning That Caused Lion's Loss of Appetite

At the conclusion of a banquet given in his honor on the occasion of a visit to Poland, says an article translated from L'Europe Nouvelle, of Paris, Gilbert K. Chesterton was called upon for a speech. "An early Christian martyr," said Chesterton, "stood in the arena awaiting the lions, and he prayed to his God to perform a miracle that would save his life. And God gave him a divine inspiration. The grating in front of the lion's den was raised and a great tawney beast appeared, sniffed the air, shook his mane, roared and bounded toward the waiting martyr. The Christian stood with folded arms and when the animal drew near was heard to mutter a few words. Immediately the lion recoiled and slunk back to the far end of the arena where he tranquilly lay down. Nero gave a brief order and the Christian was dragged in front of the imperial loge. 'What didst thou say?' asked the emperor. 'What magic hast thou used that the king of beasts hath refused to harm thee?' 'O Caesar,' replied the Christian, 'I said simply to the lion: 'Have a care what thou doest, fool, for after thou hast eaten they will call upon thee to make a speech.''" Whereupon G. K. C., without another word, resumed his seat.

Parrot Almost Human in Sense of Gratitude

Doubtless every one has cause to decry, at some time or other, the lack of gratitude shown by one person toward another who has done them a good turn, but surely there are few examples of ingratitude to equal one that occurred recently in Leicester shire, England.

The case concerned a man and a parrot. The bird, for some reason or other, suddenly took a liking to the top of a three-story building, and having reached the roof suddenly changed its mind and desired to return to earth—but couldn't face the journey down.

Along came a young man, saw the bird's plight, and was struck with pity, so much so that he risked his life by climbing up to the roof and bringing the bird to safety.

On reaching the ground, the parrot turned on its rescuer, and bit him severely for his trouble!

Thus is gratitude expressed by the parrot. Almost human!—Montreal Family Herald.

With Interest

Two women of uncertain age, who had long been rivals in love, quarreled over a trifling gift which the object of their adoration had indiscreetly bestowed on one of them.

"He intended those flowers for me," the elder woman said to the lucky recipient. "You waylaid him on the way to my house, and shamelessly robbed me of his offering. Your guilty face tells tales."

The other shrugged her shoulders as she answered, sweetly:

"Oh, well, my dear, have it your own way. At any rate, no one will ever accuse you of having a telltale face. It's so difficult to read between the lines!"

Three Forms Created

Architectural town planning has created three esthetic forms, the plaza, the monumental street and the inadequately named "boulevard." A synthesis of all three makes the Plaza del Popolo the glory of civic art, says Town Planning Review.

Deference to Others

Tolerance is willingness to grant to the opinions and actions of others the same consideration you do to your own. You may not agree with such acts or ideas, but this does not mean that you are right and they are wrong.—Grit

Lesson for October 13

KEEPING FIT FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS

Temperance Lesson

LESSON TEXT—Dan. 1:8-20, I Cor. 9:19-27, I Tim. 4:7-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Taking Care of Our Bodies.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Keeping Fit.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Self-control for the Common Good.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Temperance Essential to the Highest Usefulness.

In the use of this as a temperance lesson it must be borne in mind that it is temperance in the sense of self-mastery rather than indulgence in intoxicating liquors.

1. The Self-mastery of Daniel and His Companions (Dan. 1:5-20).

These young men were wrenched from their homes and country in the tender years of youth and carried away as captives to a strange land.

1. Their trials (vv. 5-7).

(1) The test of conscience (v. 5). By the appointment of the king, a portion of the king's meat and wine was provided daily for the captives. This being contrary to the Jewish customs, the young men could not conscientiously partake of them. Conscience is the groundwork of human character.

(2) Changed name (vv. 6, 7).

Among the Hebrews, names were given to children which were most significant. Daniel means "God is my judge." The significance of this name was that all the problems of life were submitted to God for His decision. This was the secret of Daniel's successful life.

(3) Their religious life (v. 8).

This involved their refusal to eat meat and to drink wine. In the case of Daniel at least, it also involved his praying three times a day. Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with this food and drink.

2. Their courtesy (vv. 8-13).

Daniel seems to have been the spokesman for the company. Although his heart was fixed, he did not forget to be a gentleman. He requested that he be excused from this meat and drink in order not to be defiled.

3. Their triumph (vv. 14-21).

(1) Their physical health (vv. 14-16).

A test was made for ten days which showed that they were fairer in countenance and fatter in flesh than those who indulged in the king's meat.

(2) Their mental growth (vv. 17-20).

Daniel and his companions were found to be ten times better than their comrades in wisdom and understanding.

(3) Social and political preferment (v. 19). They stood before the king.

(4) Their temporal influence (v. 21). All were advanced to positions of influence, and Daniel became president of the college of wise men and the prime minister of the nation.

II. Paul Advises the Corinthians as to Self-control (I Cor. 9:19-27).

The Corinthians were an intemperate and a dissolute people. No city in the world perhaps exceeded them in vices of all kinds. The surest and most effective way to combat vice is to inculcate virtue.

1. Paul's own life and example (vv. 19-23).

Though free from all men, he made himself servant unto all.

2. The Isthmian games (vv. 24-27).

Paul uses these popular games to illustrate the need of self-control.

(1) Life is a race (vv. 24, 25). In order to win a prize there must be self-denial and definite exertion.

The Christian obtains life by contact with Jesus Christ through faith (John 3:16; 3:36; 5:24). While he gets salvation (life) at the beginning, God places before him definite rewards as incentives to exertion. The Christian heaves for life, but works for rewards.

(2) It is a fight (vv. 26, 27).

The Christian's efforts are not mere beatings of the air. He has a deadly struggle with his carnal nature.

III. Paul's Advice to Timothy (I Tim. 4:7-12).

A minister needs to have control of himself. He is urged to exercise himself unto godliness. He needs to train himself for his work as a teacher and a minister.

Ant-Killer Uses Pincers

for Grinding Its Victims

Among the myriad forms of animal life are to be found many that tax the credibility. One is a creature only about three inches long which bears a superficial resemblance to the spider and also to both the scorpion and the vinegerone. Frequently it is mistaken for one of these, but its correct pseudonym is ant-killer, a name the implications of which are fully borne out by its behavior toward these little insects. Its reason, writes C. T. Reed in Nature Magazine, for killing the ants, and nearly all the other small animals, chiefly arthropods, is not pure love of destruction.

After killing the insects it thoroughly grinds the bodies in its powerful and needle-like chelae, which project forward in front of the small head. Then through a toothless mouth, scarcely bigger than a small pinhead, it sucks the juices from the bodies of the victims.

The ant-killer is dreaded by the Mexicans as an enemy more venomous than the rattlesnake. As a matter of fact, it has no venom and is harmless, except for the rather painful wound that it might inflict with its sharp, strong, formic acid-covered pincers. These large spider-like animals are widely distributed throughout arid tropical and semitropical regions.

Man's Critical Faculty

Potent Factor in Love

Man, as a rule, can be attracted by almost any pretty and relatively attractive woman. He can be stirred by any girl who is superficially charming, as most girls are today. But the test comes when that original attraction progresses to the place where it meets his critical faculty or instinct of self-protection. Then he says to himself, "Is this worth while?"

Men may be charmed but they are never won at first sight. When they become critical they almost invariably experience a sense of panic—that panic to which almost all of them will admit they have fallen prey during the process of falling in love. Then, if they are to be really won, they must find in the girl things which reassure them and convince them that it is worth while.

The next step, therefore, depends entirely upon the girl. It is at this critical moment that she either wins or loses the game, almost entirely according to what she then offers.—Adela Rogers St. Johns in Smart Set Magazine.

Who Built Temple Bar?

It is just upon 50 years ago that the last slopes of old Temple Bar were taken away from their site, although demolition had begun 18 months before! The stones were numbered and stored in Farringdon road for eight years, when the space they took up being wanted, the city corporation gave them to Sir Henry Meux, who spent several thousand pounds in removing them and re-erecting the gate in his own grounds near Waltham Cross. How many people, asks "Looker-on" in the London Daily Chronicle, could say who built Temple Bar? It was erected by Wren in 1670, and stood at the City "Bar" for over 200 years.

Light and Darkness

A man who looks toward the light sees no shadow; a man who walks toward the light leaves darkness behind him. People get in darkness by turning away from the light. They hide in obscure corners; they bury themselves in nooks, where the sun of righteousness cannot reach them; they close their blinds and shutters, and wonder that they have no light. A house may be dark, but it is not because the Light of the World does not shed beams abroad.—Armory.

Varieties of Wheat

To most consumers, wheat is wheat, and general information stops at this point. Wheat, however, seems to be an extensive family, among the members of which are the following varieties: Turkey, Marquis, Fultz, Mediterranean, Poole, Preston, Haynes Bluestem, Red May, Red Wave, Kanred, Blackhull, Trumbull, Kubanka and Harvest Queen.

Incidentally, in the five-year period from 1919 to 1924, wheat acreage in the United States dropped off from 73,000,000 acres to less than 51,000,000.

Aviators' Dangers

The evenness of air while flying varies with the temperature. If the air is warm, or what is called thin air, it is difficult to gain altitude. In cold or dense air it is easy to gain altitude. The air over cities is warmer than over the surrounding country. It is when a flyer approaches warmer air that the plane has a tendency to lose altitude. In some places a change from cold to warm air is very abrupt. That is known as an air pocket, or bumpy air.

School-Purpose Lands

The Continental congress, in its land ordinance of May, 1785, dedicated from the public lands which lay west of the Thirteen Colonies lot No. 16 of every township to "the maintenance of public schools within the said township." The policy of giving public lands for education has been continued and lands and scrip have been granted to a total of 117,244,519 acres, an area nearly equivalent to that of the German republic.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT THE COWS

"MOO, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow, "no one has asked me for my opinions of late, but I think I shall tell some of them, just the same."

"In fact, no one has asked me my opinions at all, either of late or before."

"Don't let it discourage you," said Miss Cow, "moo, moo, don't let it do that."

"I'm glad you don't think I should be discouraged, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Well, what are your opinions, Mrs. Cow?"

The cows were all out in the pasture, for the spring had come and they were enjoying the nice days.

Some of the cows had wandered far up in the pasture near the woods, but Mrs. Cow and Miss Cow were down by the fence, near the farmhouse.

"In the first place," said Mrs. Cow, "I think it is absurd the way people all day, you know. We've got to be getting on. We've a long distance to make yet."

"And the person who has been taking a little longer burries down a few more bites and then patiently says:

"I'm all through."

"The one who has been hurrying, then says:

"Are you sure you're all through? I don't want to hurry you, you know."

"And the person says, 'Yes, I'm through,' in a sad voice."

"Then they're off in a cloud of dust, as the saying is."

"I just can't understand it. Why don't they sit awhile and talk and chew? Or if they haven't anything to talk about, why don't they just chew?"

"They'd digest their food better. They'd feel more amiable and pleasant."

"I often think the reason we're so even-tempered is because we chew so contentedly."

"But really, Miss Cow, I wouldn't be surprised, with the way they're getting to hurry more and more, to find people before long bringing special automobile horns to picnics and to hear them toot and say:

"Hurry, hurry, toot, toot, we've no time to waste, toot, toot, we've got to be on our way, toot, toot, we've a lot of mileage to make, yet, toot, toot."

"We don't want to get there when it's dark, toot, toot."

"We've got to be ahead of time in case we have any tire punctures, toot, toot. You've eaten enough, toot, toot."

"I wouldn't be in the least surprised if it came to that."

"And I'm of the opinion that this is no way to enjoy life or motoring or having a picnic."

"They're in such a rush they don't have a good time. They're always fussing about getting on further."

"Ah, no, Mrs. Cow doesn't approve of it. I also think it would be a good idea if every once in a while they stopped and got out and gazed at the scenery around."

"I don't approve of this rushing so fast they don't enjoy anything. I can see from their faces they don't enjoy themselves."

"And it's my opinion that they will wear themselves out rushing."

"Yes, Mrs. Cow has opinions, and she thinks they're good ones. Probably that's what every one thinks of her own opinions, moo, moo."

have picnics. I mean, particularly, the people who travel in automobiles."

"You know, Miss Cow, they have got so into the habit of hurrying that they eat in a hurry, too."

"Really, I wouldn't be in the least surprised to see them toot horns at each other before long to hurry each other up."

"They come along here. They put their lunch basket down. They begin to eat."

"If anyone eats slowly, some one in the party fusses and fumes and says:

Why We Do What We Do

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LOSE INTEREST

WE GET interested, but we don't stay interested. We lose interest either temporarily or permanently, taking on new interests and casting them off as worn-out clothes. Some interests hold us longer than others.

The reasons for losing interest are fatigue and saturation. We lose interest because we become tired in body and mind and cannot hold our attention on the interest. As much as children love to hear stories, they sometimes get so tired that they lose interest and fall asleep.

True fatigue causes the loss of interest in the economy of health. It is also true that loss of interest due to being fed up on the thing causes false fatigue. Often we think we are terribly tired when in reality we are merely disinterested. We are tired of the thing we are doing and assume that the whole body is tired. We say, "that makes me tired," or "he makes me tired," when we mean that the thing or person referred to does not interest us.

Some interests we lose permanently because our tastes are changing. We grow away from the thing that once held us firmly. Darwin, for example, testifies that after thirty years of research in animal and plant specimens in support of his famous theory of evolution he suddenly discovered that he had lost his interest in literature.

Here is a curious thing in the matter of losing interest. We lose interest if we overindulge in a thing and get fed up and tired if not actually disgusted. On the other hand, we also lose interest if we neglect the thing so that it dies of disuse. To keep up an interest in anything, it seems necessary to indulge moderately and at rather frequent intervals.

Aurora Borealis

There is a discussion on concerning the noise which some persons claim to have heard accompanying the demonstrations of the Aurora Borealis in the northern skies. It has been described as a crisp monotone, like the passage of sleigh runners over the crisp snow. Some explorers claim to have heard this noise, but they state that it was heard under the most favorable circumstances, and, on the other hand, there are other persons who have had the opportunities who say the flashes are absolutely silent. Another description of this sound is that it was like the swishing of a whip or that of a squall through the upper rigging of a vessel.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"PELL-MELL"

TO DO something pell-mell is to do it in indiscriminate haste and confusion. The expression is commonly used in every day speech, but the person is rare who understands the allusion with the knowledge of how it started.

The expression comes to us from the old English game of pall mail or pall mail, which was introduced during the reign of Charles I. and subsequently became very popular in England. A game in which a ball was driven with a mallet, and taking its name from the Italian "palla maglio," palla meaning ball and "maglio" hammer. In quick pronunciation pall mail became "pell mell" and it was from the fact that under certain circumstances in the game, the players would rush headlong at the ball that such heedless, hasty activity came to be described as "pell-mell." And though the game which brought it into existence has served its time and passed out of the picture, the expression "pell-mell" has survived in modern speech.

D. W. Garner has leased to the Potomac Edison Co., of Hagerstown, the portion of the Garner building on Baltimore St., formerly occupied by Mrs. Burkholder, which will be used as a store, show-room and office. The entire front of this apartment will be fitted up with a large plate glass show window.

Last Friday, Clyde Koons, Ford Agent, took Maurice C. Dutera, Dr. C. M. Benner, S. C. Ott and Estee Zentz to Washington, to see all the different styles of cars, and while there were given a free ride in one of Ford's new $50,000 Tri-motor 16 passenger airplanes. Being 2000 feet in the air, and going at 90 miles an hour was rather sensational, but was enjoyed very much.

The Social held last Saturday evening by Washington Camp No. 2, P. O. S. of A., in their hall, was a pronounced success. The entertainment committee furnished piano music and singing, and the refreshment committee served fruit. A general good time was enjoyed by all present from young men in their teens to the aged members past their 70th. birthday. The next social will be held Saturday evening, Oct. 19th, when the Camp orchestra is expected to furnish music.

Book Collection Shows Printer's Art at Best

Among the countless millions of books on the shelves of the library at the British Museum, are about 200 volumes considered the acme of the printer's art. They form an exhibition of books illustrating the most beautiful and expensive British and foreign printing during the last ten years. Centuries-old Chinese manuscripts and illuminated books from the monasteries of medieval Europe are exhibited in the same room as these masterpieces of post-war printing which attracted the attention of printers whose names are famous among book collectors in the two hemispheres. Books from the leading presses of England, Scotland, the United States, France, Germany, Holland, Spain, Italy, Poland and Belgium are included in the collection. They have all been printed within the last ten years, and experts are unanimous that the art of the printer has greatly improved since the opening of the Twentieth century.

New Bulletin Issued on Care of Floors

A new bulletin, "Something on Floors," describing the proper care and treatment of soft-wood and hardwood floors, has just been prepared by Miss Venia M. Kellar, State Home Demonstration Agent for the University of Maryland Extension Service. The new publication is now on file at the mailing room of the University and a copy may be procured by anyone desiring one.

Miss Kellar carefully describes the various type of wood now being used for flooring and shows the good and poor qualities of each. In like manner, she points out the various ways of preparing and putting down the wood.

"Floors should be finished in such a manner that they will be sanitary, pleasing to the eye, and easy to clean, as proper finishing simplifies many problems in housecleaning," says Miss Kellar, and she goes very carefully into details to explain the best methods for preparing a floor for each of the various types of finishes. In this connection, filling, staining, varnishing, and oiling are dealt with. The waxing and painting of new and old floors are also explained.

Several pages of Miss Kellar's bulletin are devoted to the care and treatment of linoleum, and a discussion of the most satisfactory finishes for porch floors. Kitchen floors, probably the most walk-on floors in a house also come in for a fair share of attention by the author.
