COUNTY MAN KILLED IN PLANE WRECK.

One of Sixteen Victims in Southern

Mr. Charles Rabold formerly resident of New Windsor, and widely known for his musical attainments, was one of sixteen passengers and crew killed in an air-plane wreck near San Clemente, Cal., late Sunday eve-ning, the catastrophe having been one of the greatest in aviation history. Word of his death was received by his sister, Mrs. Harriet Graves, New Windsor, on Monday morning.

Windsor, on Monday morning.

The body will be brought to New Windsor for interment, possibly the last of this week. He also leaves one other sister, Mrs. P. E. Sheppard, Uniontown, Pa., and a brother, Geo. Rabold, McKeesport, Pa.

Mr. Rabold was a graduate of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, and had been an instructor at Yale University and at various other.

Yale University and at various other places in this country. At the time of his death he was a teacher at Broad Oaks School at Pasadena, Cal. He was originally from Cumberland, Md., where he was born.

The Baltimore papers carried full news of the disaster, which was due to fog and rain having been driven in from the Pactific Ocean, and occurred near San Clemente while the plane was enroute from Agua Cal-iente, Mexico, or Southern California, to Los Angeles. Of the sixteen victims, eight were women, the party having been week-end visitors at the Agua Caliente resort and race track. The plane in its fall ploughed into the ground, and caught fire from the bursted gasoline tanks. The pilot of another plane, leaving Agua Caliente shortly after the plane that was wrecked, successfully turned aside from the storm area; while still another plane turned back to the starting point. The pilot of the wrecked plane was evidently trying to find a place to land successfully, but failed due to weather conditions.

Most of the killed were well known citizens, mainly of Los Angeles. Mr. Rabold's address was given as Fairhope, Alabama, where he had lived prior to his engagement in California, that had begun only on the past Jan-and Mrs. Edward Fleagle, of Yonkers, New York, returned home on Jan. 21st., from a six months cruise around the world. Mr. Fleagle sailed from New York last August on the Motorship Wilscox, going by way of the Panama Canal to Brisbane, Australia.

During a five weeks tour of eastern and southern Australia, he visited the principal cities including Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide and Leaving Australia he next stopped at Colombo, Cylon and from here made an interesting trip inland to Kandy visiting the Sacred Ele-phant Baths, and the temple which contains the holy tooth of Buddha.

The following month was spent traveling through India and visiting the mosques and temples of Delhi, Bombay and Agra and including the most famous building of the east, the Taj Mahal. Mr. Fleagle returned home by way of the Red Sea and Suez Canal stopping at Cario, Egypt to see the Sphinx and the Great

Mr. Fleagle graduated from School of Architecture at Pratt Institute last June and his purpose of the trip was to study the ancient architecture of the east.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR RALLY.

A rally of the Young People's Societies of Montgomery, Carroll, Washington and Frederick Counties will be held in Christ Reformed Church, Middletown, Frederick county, Friday evening, January 31st. A delegation of 25 is expected from Baltimore. One hundred delegates are expected from outside of Frederick county.

The banquet will be held at 7 P. M.

DECREASE IN SPRING SALES.

The decrease in the number of Spring sales as compared with former times is quite pronounced; so much so as to cause speculation as to the reason. Likely, farmers now find it more difficult to quit farming profitably, and it is true too that many farm personal sales are now held in the Fall of the year. We have gone over our files and give the following figures showing the number of sales advertised in our Sale Register the second week in January for various years. The large number for 1920 is explained because that was the time of the World War, when prices were 1900--30; 1905-36; 1910-33; 1915 -24; 1920-58; 1925-27; 1926-19; 1927-26; 1928-17; 1929-15; 1930-It will be noted that from 1928 to 1930, the number is practically the same. Of course, the number will be and in case of refusal, it is said that larger for 1930, a month from now, as both will be taken to the Court of same. Of course, the number will be was the case in all previous years.

A FORMER TANEYTOWNER Would Like More Letters from those Away From Home

It is always with a great deal of interest that I read the J. J. Reid, letters, and his suggestion that more of those who left the old home town do some letter writing, is a very good one. I am not writing because I think any one might be interested in what I might say, but it might be an inspiration to others who have gone away to make us happy by sending us a letter through the columns of The

It has been 24 years since I left Taneytown, and although its growth has not been of the mushroom type yet it has slowly developed and grown in nearly every direction from the old borough limits. I am not so old, yet I can remember when Dr. Hitchcock's fine residence was in the country and, today the town is extended away be yond there, and both sides of the street are dotted with magnificent homes all the way to the Fair ground—homes that would be a credit to any suburban city.

Speaking of the Fair, here is an institution that I do not think is appreciated and supported by the people of Taneytown and vicinity in a way that it should be. You can attend Fairs that are given by cities of many thousands of population, and, you will not see the class of racing, amusements, machinery, farm products and various other exhibits that are shown here.

Two events the writer never misses The Carroll Co. Fair, and your annual Fireman's supper, and if alive and well expect to be there again, Feb. 22—the biggest feed that can be had anywhere for the money.

Just recently, I returned from a very pleasant trip to Florida. I will not give you any write-up on it, as going to Florida does not give one a thrill like it once did; but in passing, let me say it was my good fortune to locate one of your fellow townsmn,C. Edgar Yount and spent a very pleas-ant half hour with him. For the benefit of their friends who might be anxious to hear from them, I may say they are well, happy and contented; they all looked prosperous, live in a beautiful home surrounded by orange, grape fruit and tangerine trees, so ou see there could be no more beautiful environment.

Mr. Editor, in closing let me say the first mail I reach for, on each
Saturday morning, is The Carroll
Record, the best weekly that is published anywhere, and only those who have left the old home town fully appreciate it.

I might mention also that I think Edward Fleagle, Jr., son of Mr. the greatest forward step the business men ever took was when they organized the Chamber of Commerce. Get industries there, and keep the young men and women in the old

COOKING DEMONSTRATIONS.

A series of demonstrations in pre-paring and serving meals and the use of pattern recipes and labor saving equipment is announced by Miss Slin-dee, Home Demonstration Agent for Carroll County. These demonstra-tions are part of a new project which Miss Slindee is launching in the county, and the exact dates and places at which they will be held will be announced as soon as arrangements are Among the things that will receive attention in this new project are the factors which influence the amount of time and energy spent in cooking, such as organization of work, types of utensils used, convenience of the kitchen, mastery of a good recipe and knowledge of how to vary it, and other practical problems of this nature. The aim, according to Miss Slindee, is to take as much of the monotony and guess work out of the preparing and serving of "Three meals a day" as is possible, and at the same time, find ways for accomplishing the task with greater satisfaction and less expenditure of time and energy. Since this project deals in the most practical way with tasks that make up much of the routine in women's work, she feels certain that it will appeal very strongly to the home makers of the county, and that a large number of them will take advantage of the unusual opportunity which it offers.

Products prepared by those entering the project will be judged, and in that way they will be able to determine how nearly standard their products are, their defects, if any, and the cause, and how to remedy them. It is emphasized that the aim is to assist home-makers in mastering a few simple principles in cooking, so that they can apply them in the prepara-tion of various foods. Attention will also be given to the making of menus that fulfil the requirements of good health for the family, and their variation for different occasions and con-

LEWIS AND CLARK SENTENCES.

Since The Record had given an account of the progress of the trials of Lewis and Clarke, on the charge of murdering Deputy Sheriff, Clyde L. Hauver in the raid on a moonshine plant near Thurmont, it was in order for us to give the verdict in the case as pronounced by Judge Sloan, on Monday of last week; but we failed to see the announcement in the papers. We therefore give it now, even though a week late. Lewis was sentenced in the first degree to life imprisonment in the Maryland Penitentiary; while Clarke was sentenced in the second degree to 15 years in the pen. In both cases motions for a new trial were filed,

FREDERICK EXCITED BY ROAD NEWS.

Sends Delegation to Call on Senator Goldsborough.

Committees from various organizations of Frederick and other communities met on Tuesday in the of-fice of Senator Phillips Lee Goldsporough in the Senate office building, Washington, for the purpose of discussing the proposed Washington-Lincoln Memorial Boulevard, with a view of opposing the elimination of such towns as Bethesda, Rockville, Gaithersburg and Frederick from such boulevard and using instead a more direct route that would run about 14 miles east of Frederick, largely through Carroll county.

The appearance of the Frederick-Rockville delegation before Senator Goldsborough seems not to have developed anything new, except that he said he had under consideration the introduction of a bill to provide for the establishment of such a highway, and is reported to have expressed the opinion that the proposed boulevard via the present route—Frederick and Rockville—would cost less than by the more direct route. He is also said to have expressed the belief that a Commissioner sample of the control of the mission as provided in Senator Tydings bill, would not be necessary.

The Frederick News says of the proposed new movement;

"It would be more economical to use a road already constructed, where no rights of way, etc., would need to be secured; the present route passes a more densely inhabited territory and serves more people than one passing through Silver Spring and east of Frederick; the present route is a most historic one, passing the Monocacy Battlefield and leading to Frederick from where side trips can Frederick, from where side trips can be taken to Antietam and other places of interest visited by Lincoln and other notables; and the scenic beauty of the present route would warrant the road passing through

The road project was one of the principal topics discussed at the meeting and luncheon of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce held Friday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at the Francis Scott Key hotel."

From the above—and other activities naturally to be expected to follow --it is easy to understand how strong efforts will be put forth by those interested in rival routes, should a possibility of the big undertaking actually materialize. A most important first consideration for the construction of such a boulevard, we should say, would be the question of directness of the route, rather than the interests of sections on either

The Record received, this week, from Dr. W. B. Mehring, of Silver Sprng, a map of the proposed shorter route, via Silver Spring, as published in The Maryland News, that shows the route to be 68 miles, through an air line distance of about 65 miles. While the route via Frederick is 77.6 An article, at length, accomwould not injure the Frederick-Rockville sections nor any other section traversed by the present route. as 70 percent of its through traffic now comes from the west, largely via the National Highway, which the shorter route would not divert; but on the other hand the latter would help to develop eastern Montgomery county, as well as enter Washington through miles of a handsomely parked section. While the article does not mention Carroll County, the fact seems apparent that this county would be benefited by giving it a considerable extent of needed new mileage, though already improved roads would utilized, when possible.

A resolution identical with the one introduced by Senator Tydings in the Senate, has been introduced in the House by Hon. Stephen B. Gambrill, of the Fifth District. A copy of the Resolution, has been sent to The Record through the courtesy of Hon. Linwood L. Clarke, representing the Second District. Both the Resolution and the diagram of the Boulevard may be seen at our office.

(By a number of persons, this week, our attention has been called to the location of Silver Spring that we had missed on the road map of Maryland for the reason that is shown on the District of Columbia insert, in Montgomery county, along 16th. #### CARROLL COUNTY SOCIETY GIVES TRAVEL TALK.

The Carroll County Society of Baltimore City held its eleventh annual dinner, Saturday night with one hundred and two persons present in the ballroom of the Lord Baltimore Hotel. George M. Englar, President, presided. The program was made up of music and of illustrated travel talks and dancing. Mrs. Robert Chambers gave selections from Mendelssohn and Chopin. John Addison Englar sang a variety of songs, with Mrs. George

The opening of the Naval Conference, in London, that was Radioed all over the world, came to this country at 5 o'clock, and after, on Monday morning, as clear as a nearby station, and was listened to with great interest, from President Hoover on down. There was particular interest manifested in hearing King George, who opened the conference, as he had not been heretofore heard in this country.

The first day's work of the Conference passed without a discordant note from any one of the powers. All who spoke urged the limitation of naval forces, but there are problems over the allotment to each of the various forms of vessels, and when this is taken up the real test of the success of the conference will be met, but the day ended with distinct hopefulness.

The second day was occupied in hearing the French views, which are reported to be the hardest to satisfy, and the most of the discussion on this phase of the subject will likely be by England and Italy, with the U.S. in the background.

President Hoover has announced himself as hopeful that comment on the proceedings, in this county, will be limited, and not such as to embarrass our representatives at the con-

FARM RELIEF DISCUSSED.

"The farmer must continue his "The farmer must continue his fight for governmental assistance if he is to obtain the same prosperity enjoyed by other groups of people," is the opinion expressed by Dr. H. Parker Willis in the January 15 issue of The Southern Planter. Dr. Willis in his article entitled Farm "Credit" and Farm "Relief" sets forth his views on the subject of governmental relief for farmers. He is well qualified to discuss the subject as he was ified to discuss the subject as he was expert to the joint House and Senate Committees which originated the Farm Loan Act and the eFderal Reserve Act, and as such prepared the first drafts of these acts.

According to Dr. Willis, the Federal Farm Loan Act is serving a very useful purpose. However, the demand of the farmers has changed from that for cheap credit to that for higher prices for farm products. This change in desire led to the demand for the McNary-Haugen and Export Debenture bills. The dissatisfaction among farmers resulting from the failure of these bills to be enacted into laws led to the passage of the Agricultural Marketing Act. "Whatever relief he (the farmer) is to get (through the Marketing Act), whatever improvement of prices is to come to him, shall come through economics in marketing and elimination of middlemen's charges." "American agricultural policy up to els, cats, owls, and hawks and they onably cheap and abundant capital should be killed.

It is boasted that the drys are "on the defensive." Nothing could be further from the truth.

The administration of the law has not broken down. It has not failed. Relatively, it is a success. It is yearly becoming more nearly a complete success. Smuggling by sea has been reduced greatly. Smuggling by land is approximately one-third what is was 18 months ago. Diversion of industrial alcohol is not greater than three per cent of the amount produced and used under permit. The diversion of medicinal alcohol is hardly more than one percent of the consumption under license. The making of moonshine liquor is a serious problem but the war upon moonshiners is far from unsuccessful. And the country has banked dividends in billions of dollars. Savings have accumulated in the banks to furnish capital for productive enter-prises; life insurance is at the peak; home building phenomenally increased; the standard of living higher by far than ever before; consumption of liquor has been reduced from the preprohibition days not less than 75 and probably 85 per cent.

There are problems to be solved.

Smuggling and the diversion of in-dustrial alcohol can be still further reduced. The control of moonshine is a police matter. The extent to which it is controlled will depend upon the extent of the police effort made.—Board of Temperance.

"SELL OUT AND QUIT."

Not so long ago, we heard a man say, with reference to farmers, that if they could not make money, or meet requirements that are sometimes demanded of them, they should "sell out and quit." This was no doubt considered very wise and unanswerable advice by the one volunteering it; but it wasn't a fair, or even sensible, argument.

The fact is, "getting out" of farming is just what the majority of farm owners would like; but, very reasonably they do not want to get out at so great a loss as present farm sale values represent. If offered a price representing anything near the amount invested, perhaps 50 percent of farm owners would be glad to unload. Even then, they might make a mistake, but that is what they would

When times are normal, as they once were-or nearly so-occupations offered very little choice so far as money making was concerned, for "the times" affected all classes nearly alike, in the matter of commodity costs. This nearly even balance has been upset, both for farmers and many others; but the trouble rests in the fact that there are too many who are not in the balanced class at all.

In many respects the farmer—the good manager and industrious class -can still help himself fairly well; but even then he is handicapped by the fact that he must hold on to his farm investment, whether he wants to, or not, or take a big loss. The merchant, of course, has the same experience in his inability to move his stock in dull times, or when he wants to engage in other work; but the preponderance of workers can more easily shift around and adapt themselves to other locations and occupations.

But, the main point we want to most farmers are not-knows enough to "quit" his business when he profout and quit."

It is a very rare case, indeed, when copy of any length or importance can be turned over to the compositor with orders to "follow copy" in every respect. Of course, Editors and proof-readers make mistakes, too. Perhaps because of lack of know-better, but the more likely because their work must be done hurriedly; at any rate, the mistake or two, that they may make occasionally that is picked up by the very intelligent(?) reader as a thing to laugh over, and of course to talk about, bears a mighty small ratio to the mistakes of others that they kill and says nothing about.

GOOD NEWSPAPER—GOOD TOWN

Show me a good newspaper and I'll show you a good town, was the declaration of Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, speaking on The Local Newspaper and Civic Progress" at a luncheon held in conconference at West Virginia. His address in part follows:

There may be exceptions to this axiom but I have not discovered them in 30 years of travel and investigation. I do not maintain, of course, that editors and publishers are supermen endowed by the Creator with more than their share of intelligence or virtue. My proposition is that the instrument they control is the natural voice of a community, speaking daily to all inhabitants in common terms.

I hold that the throbbing heart of any American community is its good, honest, public service local newspaper. And I say that the best editor is one who is primarily concerned with the affairs of good local government, civic righteousness, common health, prosperity and happiness. The great editor fights for right, wherever the battle-ground may be.

The good newspaper stands for justice, and there are forces in every community that dare not face justice. The good newspaper stands for equal treatment of all men irrespective of material fortune or station, and there are those who demand special privilege. The good newspaper is the town monitor, the watching eye, the daily investigator, the town crier, the voice that dares to speak. This role is not always understood or appreciated. Men want to know the truth about their neighbors, about their government, about life, but few have the courage to withstand unfavorable publicity concerning themselves. This is all quite human, but the newspaper may play no favorites.

USE OF 'HEALTH' ON FOOD LA-BELS OPPOSED.

"The term 'health giving' is the most overworked and most loosely applied expression in advertising," said Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, assistant chief of the Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, in a recent talk at a joint session of the National Canner's Association and the National Wholesale Grocers' Assocation in convention at Chicago.

"Eliminate from the label of prepared foods anything that smacks of health claims, and base the selling appeal on the good character, quality and the honest food value of your product," was Doctor Dunbar's advice to manufacturers. "Did you ever stop to reflect," he said, "how broad the significance of these words really is? 'Health,' says the standard dictionary, 'is the condition of soundness of any living organism; that state in which all the natural functions are performed freely without pain or disease; freedom from sickness and denection with the recent newspaper cay.' Logically, therefore a healthgiving product should be capable of creating this condition of health, of restoring the halt, the lame, and the blind, of remedying every human disesae from chilblains to cancer."

The public, he said, has been led to believe that it needs something more than a regular diet of wholesome food to keep healthy, so for a time it turned with avidity to any preparation claiming health-giving, or curative properties. He said "One does not need to be a physician to realize that the American public today has an obsession on the question of health, health foods, health fads, in the classroom. health exercise. The public is health onscious.'

The work of the Food and Drug Administration, in this connection, is to prevent the making of false claims on the labels of food preparations which would take advantage of food buyers' lack of understanding of the science of nutrition; curative claims on preparations which have merely the normal amount of nutritional value are taboo, he said.

"We do not recognize that the manufacturer has a right to mislead the purchaser or to base his claims on half understood psedoscientific discoveries," he asserted. "Label representations regarding health-giving properties or vitamin content which are not borne out by the actual facts can only be regarded as in contravention of the law, and in this connection it must not be forgotten that no less an authority than the Supreme Court of the United States itself has held that statements which may deceive through indirections or ambiguity are within the ban of the statute. This being so, it must be held that indirect or sweeping statements implying the presence of significant amounts of all to be employed indiscriminately. We are contrary to the statute, unless these representations are literally

Dr. Dunbar concluded with the suggestion that food manufacturers sell their products on their honest food value and not place them on a par with patent medicines by claiming curative properties for them.

> Radio Messages First Sent During Civil War

> While Marconi generally is credited with being the inventor of wireless telegraphy, the first radio messages were sent during the Civil war, says

> C. Francis Jenkins, veteran inventor. "Although Prof. Joseph Henry, in 1832, discovered that electrical oscillations could be detected a considerable distance from the oscillator, it remained for a Washington dentist, Dr. Mahlan Loomis, actually to send the first radio messages," Mr. Jenkins

> "In 1865 he built an oscillating circuit and connected it to a wire aerial supported by a kite. One station was set up on Bear Den mountain, Va., not very far from Washington, and a duplicate station was set up on top of Catoctin spur, 15 miles distant.

> "Messages were sent alternately from one station to the other by dot and dash interruption of a buzzer spark circuit. Reception was attained by deflecting a galvanometer needle at the receiving point."

> In 1869 a bill was introduced in congress to incorporate the Loomis Aerial Telegraph company. Nobody would buy the stock and it remained for others, years later, to reap the reward of radio broadcasting, Mr. Jenkins

Lake's Outflow Turned by Volcanic Upheaval

The history of Lake Nicaragua illustrates the geographical instability of area. The lake now discharges to' the Atlantic through San Juan river, but its former outlet was the Pacific. The building up of the volcanic chain from Masaya to Orosi has cut off the original western outlet of Lake Nicaragua and diverted its drainage eastward to the Caribbean sea.

Cause for the uprise of the sea floor is the tilting of blocks of the earth's crust, which is like a pavement built of stone sets. If a watermain bursts below a roadway the surface is upheaved and the blocks are tilted at various angles.

Similarly on the upheaval of the earth's surface, the crustal blocks are tilted, and the edge of one block may be raised while the other edge may

The subsidence of the floor of the Pacific may force some of the underlying material to flow toward Central America and cause an upbulging of the coastal belt. There is conclusive evidence of the direct uplift of this region. Lakes Nicaragua and Managua both occupy the site of an old Pa-

A relic of this condition is the occupation of Lake Nicaragua by species of shark and swordfish which are identical with those of the adjacent parts of the Pacific and are absent from the Caribbean sea. The fish were probably caught in the lake when the area was uplifted from sea-level to its present height of about 130 feet.

Small Boy's Knowledge

of Aaron Not Biblical "Home training is one of the most important factors in education," declares a retired superintendent of schools. "The school cannot do it all. One can nearly always picture the home life of a pupil from his actions

"Home influence is even more noticeable in religious training than in the public school work. I was speaking about the Bible to a group of primary children one day and to test out their knowledge asked if any of them could tell me who Aaron was.

"Only one hand was raised. I asked the question again but still only little Samuel, a Jewish child, professed to know anything about Aaron.

"'Very well, Sammy,' I said at length, 'you tell the rest of the children who Aaron was.'

"'Aaron was the first name to be put in the telephone book,' Sammy an-

"Folk"

As used in Old English, folk is a collective noun meaning "people," having a plural of the same form meaning "peoples." In later English, the plural form folks was introduced. In present usage, the two plurals have become differentiated in sense, so that folk means "peoples," or, as a collective, "people," and folks, especially with an adjective (widely used colloquially in spite of the drawing room fastidiousness of some writers), means "persons," and the two are no longer the vitamins, or of specific vitamins, say, "the conies are a feeble folk at home"; "Folk-lore (that is, the lore of the people) is an interesting study." -Literary Digest.

Foreseeing End of Moon

The Naval observatory says it is stated by Jeffreys, who has made an elaborate mathematical investigation of the subject, that the moon will begin to return to the earth before it reaches twice its present distance and will continue to approach until it comes so near that it will be torn to pieces by the attraction of the earth. The fragments will then form a ring around the earth like that of Saturn. Russell, without disputing this conclusion, adds that the sun may have ceased to shine before this exceedingly slow recession and return of the moon are completed.

Immortal Hymn

Rev. Henry F. Lyte (1793-1847), an English curate, in broken health, had been ordered to take a trip to a more southern climate. After his final communion service he dragged himself to his room, and before leaving gave to a relative a copy of the words "Abide with me, fast falls the eventide," which he had written, recording his own feelings during the twilight of that Sabbath day. Soon afterward, while on this journey, he died at Nice, France.

The News in Sing Sing

Burglars, "dips" and gunmen, though incarcerated in Sing Sing, are still able to keep track of what is hapening to their fellow craftsmen. Three hundred subscribe for newspapers, which are read by those who can read English. The illiterates get all the information they are entitled to by word of mouth. Every new acquittal is analyzed by experts of more than academical knowledge of the subject.

We are having some old-fashioned winter weather. The 10-in. fall of snow made sleighing possible, but the trouble is the youngster of now days don't have the horses and bells to en-joy the full fun of the season. The old-timers remember the sleighing parties of former days.

Some accidents have happened on account of icy conditions of the roads. Houck's bread truck, driven by Harry Selby, upset Tuesday, but no serious damage. Rev. J. H. #### Blind Students Aided

in Professional Study

A blind person can now obtain a Braille manuscript copy of any work, however technical or abstruse, in any language. This has been made possible, says the British National Institute for the Blind, by the work of a band of volunteers who devote their lives to copying out for blind students the textbooks required in various professions.

The work is by no means easy, and does not simply imply copying line after line of printed words. Charts, notes, dates, sideheads, tables, references, and a hundred other items have to be studied.

Students are asked to return the volumes when finished with, and from these a valuable library is being formed. Thousands of volumes on almost every branch of knowledge, from alchemy to zoology, are already in the students' catalogue.-London Tit-Bits.

Dropped Into Sea Lingo

Here is a story about a Nantucket Quakeress who was a very superior feeling person. On a visit to New Bedford the young woman was invited to a tea party and expressed a fervent hope that she would not use any sea phrase while there.

Keeping a close watch upon her words she got on all right until, as they started to leave the table, a man away up at the far end asked her how her father was doing. Every face was turned to her and every ear listening for word of the sick man.

Flustered by having the attention so suddenly focused on herself, she said: "Thank thee, but he rather goes astern." Then she was overcome with confusion, for she had lapsed into the sea lingo she had determined to avoid. -Brockton Enterprise.

Speed in Reading

Prof. Walter B. Pitkin of Columbia university stated that there are great differences in the speed of reading in different classes of society. Young newspaper men catch with one glance of the eye 4.7 words, while experienced editors take in as many as 7.2 words, which is more than the ordinary newspaper line. On the other hand, engineers, who deal with things rather than with words, have an average eyegrasp of only 3.3 words. The engineers are credited, however, with retaining the meaning in a passage of 100 words better than the men of any other group.

Famous Canadian Cathedral

Canada's oldest Anglican cathedral is Holy Trinity, in the city of Quebec, due to the efforts of the first Anglican bishop in Quebec, Dr. Jacob Mountain. It was the second Anglican cathedral to be built after the Reformation, the first being St. Paul's, London. The Quebec structure, the corner stone of which was laid in 1800, is a reproduction in part of St. Martins-in-the-Fields of London. The solid silver communion plate in Holy Trinity was the gift of George III. Holy Trinity was also the first church in Canada to have a surpliced choir. The church is one of the most interesting ecclesiastical landmarks in the ancient conital.

One-Way Telephone

One-way streets have become a familiar feature of American cities and towns, but in Japan there is what might be termed a "one-way" telephone line.

This line was installed recently in the interior palace at Tokyo for the use of his majesty, the emperor of Japan. The emperor can use this telephone line in calling up his ministers of state and in keeping in touch with outside affairs, but it is so arranged that it operates only when the transmitter is lifted, with the result that while outgoing calls can be handled, I no incoming calls can be received.

LIGHTS By GRANT DIXON of NEW YORK

Particular Johnny O'Connor, who knows his Broadway better, probably, than any other man, tells the story of the efforts of a vaudeville agent to sign up the contestants in the recent six-day bicycle race held at Madison Square Garden. He thought that the winning team would appreciate the extra money to be gained from a short tour in vaudeville. But the winners refused the offer when they learned that they would have to play four shows a day and five on Saturdays and Sundays. This reminded O'Connor of the vaudeville engagement undertaken by "Doc" Cook after he "discovered" the North pole. Cook, says O'Connor, walked off the bill at McVicker's theater in Chicago, complaining that his dressing room was too cold.

Politest H. E. Ward, president of the Irving Trust company, has been set down in history as the most polite of all bankers. His company is erecting a 50-story skyscraper at 1 Wall street. Just before erection of the steel skeleton began, Mr. Ward sent a note to each of some 550 captains of industry and finance whose offices are in adjoining buildings. The note to

J. P. Morgan read as follows: "May we hope you will bear with us as patiently as possible during the anavoidable noisy weeks that lie just ahead. . . . Our builder is pressing the work at top speed. His schedule and the present season of closed windows will at least minimize your discomfort."

. . . Leg Facts

A gentleman who works on Variety and who consequently calls himself a Variety mugg reports that dance directors have become such experts that they can tell a girl's nationality from the look of her legs-and also how good a dancer she is. Says he: "The chorine who may be a crossword puzzle from ear to ear might be extra intelligent according to how her limb reads. Dutch girls' legs are shorter and chubbier than most. Spanish girls can be identified by thin ankles and knees. Inner ankle curves denote German blood. A French girl has small bones and extravagant muscular curves. Intelligent girls lift their legs higher while walking. American girls have the longest shins."

Fruitless Search The American Society for Psychical Research has been conducting a fruitless search for a real New York ghost. But, it appears, ghosts just can't live in New York. They can't stand apartment house life, and there are no suitable private houses which might be haunted. The old Jumel mansion used to be haunted, but the city acquired it 25 years ago, and now it is just one more museum. And there's a prize of $21,000 waiting for the person who finds a real New York ghost.

It's Tough

Lean days lie behind and ahead of the theater business. Twenty productions closed in two weeks, and one of them lasted three performances. Another lasted four. One Broadwayfarer remarked that the only way to beat the game this season is to close a production before it opens and then sell the talkie rights.

Tail Lights

The idea of persons carrying tail lights to protect them from motor traffic has always appeared fantastic enough to get a good laugh in the vaudeville houses. But it is no laughing matter with Mrs. Ida Lathers, who lives on West End avenue. Mrs. Lathers, a New Yorker from the old days, carries a red lantern when she ventures out at night. For 20 years she has been a director for a home for New Map of Europe the aged, and for that many years she has been taking a surface car to visit the institution. Nowadays, she cars without stopping, and only by waving her lantern can she board a car in safety at night.

CENSUS TO PUT US IN GOLDFISH BOWL

Questions Will Leave No Secrets Unrevealed.

Washington.-How many women in America are working? How many families own radio sets? What percentage of household heads own their own homes? At what age are most persons married for the first time?

These are some of the questions that will be answered for the country as a whole for the first time after completion of the 1930 census. Interrogations aimed to obtain the replies were included in a list of new questions to be asked by enumerators next April, as anounced by William M. Steuart, director of the census bureau.

Forms Basis of Advertising. Most important of the new questions, in the opinion of Mr. Steuart, is that relating to home owning. The enumerators will find out from the head of each family the value of his home if owned, or the monthly rental if rented, thus making possible a classification of families according to buying power and furnishing a basis for selling and advertising campaigns.

The question on radio sets, according to Mr. Steuart, will tell radio station operators and advertisers just how large the potential radio audience is.

Women doing housework in their own homes will be designated in the 1930 census reports as "home makers." This designation will be entered in the family relationship column rather than in the occupation column, in order that women who follow a profession or other gainful occupation, in addition to being home makers, may properly be classified in respect to both lines of activity. This will reveal for the first time exactly how many women are working and to what extent.

For Two Purposes.

The question asking for the age at first marriage is intended to serve two purposes First, it will give definite information as to the relative age at marriage of persons in different racial and economic groups; second, it will make possible a tabulation on the number of children in families of women who have been married a stated number of years.

"In the classification of gainful workers according to occupation and industry it is proposed to put much greater stress than heretofore on the returns for industry," Mr. Steuart said. "A special schedule for unemployment will contain a number of questions designed to separate those not working into several classes, including, besides those absolutely unemployed, those who have jobs for the time being and those laid off without

Taxidermist Brings

Frozen Snake to Life Colorado Springs. Colo.-Recently a heavy snowstorm swept over the Rocky mountains and a seven-foot boa constrictor in his steam-heated cage "froze to death." Spencer Penrose, the owner of the zoo at the foot of the boa in the afternoon and found him stretched out upon the huge limb of a tree, which is his favorite haunt in captivity. The next morning a blizzard having intervened, the keeper found the boa frozen solid, and Mr Penrose sent him to the taxidermist to be stuffed.

The taxidermist and his assistants rolled him out on the floor, seemingly a solid ice mass, while they sharpened their knives. As the taxidermist placed the point of his blade in the boa's head the snake opened his eyes. The man jumped. A quiver ran down the boa's coils, his tail swished furiously from side to side. The attendants vanished and the boa has another life to lose.

Uses 46 Languages

Washington.-The National Geofinds, motorists speed by tramway graphic society has just issued a new map of Europe in forty-six languages. The forty-six languages were required to give the precise official spellings of the place names in countries where the places exist.

In the years following the armistice one of the notable changes in Europe has been the development and Kenosha, Wis.-Herman Easle sought intensification of natural feeling with respect to geographical place names. Warsaw is Warszawa to the Poles; vertising sections of newspapers; each prewar Reval has been replaced by Tallinn in Estonia; St. Petersburg was only to return, foot sore and heart transformed into Petrograd, but now sick unsuccessful in his attempts. #### Brazilian Row Between Church and State Ends

Rio de Janeiro.-An agreement between the church and state was brought about in the state of Minas Geraes recently when D. Antonio Cabral, archbishop of Bello Horizante, handed a gold pen to the president of the state for him to sign the following decree: "In educational establishments maintained by the government religious instruction will in the future be permitted for a space of time not more than 50 minutes each day for three days of the week."

Norma Talmadge *

"New York Nights" is the title of Miss Talmadge's first all-talking picture. It is based on "Tin Pan Alley," the stage play. Miss Talmadge was born in Jersey City, N. J. Her first stage experience was in amateur theatricals, together with her sisters Constance and Natalie. In 1919 she formed her own producing company. She is regarded as one of the most popular players.

WHOSE FAULT IS IT?

T IS always interesting to debate the question whether environment is a more important influence in life than heredity. Without attempting to answer the question, we assume for the moment that environment is the most important for the reason that one has no control over his heredity but he can to a very great extent both create and master his environment.

forces from without but are created by forces from L. A. Barrett. within. The laws of environment are not definitely or unalterably fixed as are the laws of heredity. No one can be justified therefore in blaming the former for adversities. When misfortunes come to us, the conclusion we oft times hastily reach may be expressed in eyenne mountain, near here, visited popular phrases such as these—"Just good trying"-"I was not born under a lucky star." This attitude of mind naturally leads to self pity which is dangerous for the reason that it robs one of initiative, persistence and determination. Self pity is one of the most perilous deceptions one can entertain. Cast it out! Rather than blame environment for adversities, why not ask the question in frank honesty, just whose fault is it? If this question is asked seriously another is inevitable. By no means all, but a large share of misfortune is brought on by our own selves and many times needlessly.

The desire for large wealth for instance urges one to take risks which otherwise one would not think of taking. When the venture proves a failure might not part of the responsibility for the failure be with one's own attitude of mind? Instead of being content with a modest income, our over ambitious attitude of mind impels us to hold out for unreasonable returns.

In the social world, friendship sought for material gains soon goes to pieces, and we cry, "misplaced confidence," and blame the other fellow. To what extent is the lack of home training responsible for moral failures of our children? Much of the suffering due to material and moral failures is brought about by ourselves. Let us face the question squarely-Whose fault is it?

RANCHMAN TO HANG FOR BRUTAL MURDER

Shot Husband and Then Attacked Widow.

Deadwood, S. D.-George Brownfield, who in a moment of mad passion, is accused of shooting and killing Theodore Thomas, ex-service man, so he could possess Thomas' wife, has been sentenced to be hanged at the Wyoming penitentiary at Rawlins on February 10 next. His crime was committed in the region near where South Dakota and Wyoming join, and it was a South Dakota officer, Sheriff Long, of Belle Fourche, and other Dakotans who were first on the scene of the murder and assisted in the capture of the slayer.

The murder was committed early in the morning of July 30. Thomas was a sheep herder and lived in a large sheep wagon with his young wife, the sheep range being at a place remote from the nearest town. The testimony offered at the trial at Brownfield showed the crime to be one of the most brutal and uncalled for in the history of the frontier.

Invited to Spend Night. Brownfield arrived at the sheep wagon home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas in the evening of July 29, and as it was getting late the couple, with the customary Western hospitality, invited him to remain all night, so he could return to his own ranch, many miles away, the following day. During the early hours of the morning of July 30 he lured Thomas from the sheep wagon on the pretext that he had heard coyotes among Thomas' sheep. When at a point some distance from the sheep wagon, Brownfield is alleged to have shot and killed Thomas, and then returned to the sheep wagon and attacked the dead man's widow. She finally succeeded in making her escape from him and took refuge among the sheep flock until he had left the place.

Then she emerged from her hiding place and sought her husband, whose body she found at the spot where he had fallen. Mrs. Thomas knew Brownfield, who was well known throughout the district, and she told the officers who had committed the crime. They were speedily on his trail, and within a few hours had arrived at his ranch, finding him calmly doing some chores about the place. He disclaimed all knowledge of the crime and stated he had not been away from his ranch for several days.

Defendant Is Calm.

But a wet saddle blanket assisted in the officers fastening the crime upon him, notwithstanding his protestations of innocence. The keeneyed officers, in looking about the Brownfield ranch, noticed his saddle pony and examining it, found it gave evidence of having been ridden hard not many hours before the arrival of the officers. They discovered that the saddle blanket was still wet. Much was made of this evidence during Brownfield's trial, and it had important bearing on the jury returning a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, which made it mandatory for the court to sentence Brownfield to be of the clover seed were introduced.

When confronted with Mrs. Thomas, Brownfield continued to remain calm and coolly stated he did not know her and had never seen her before. He maintained this same attitude when he testified in his own behalf during his trial. He stoutly insisted he knew nothing whatever about the crime and had nothing to do with it.

When sentenced to be hanged, Brownfield took the sentence in the same unruffled manner he has maintained since being arrested for the

Restaurants Expect to Lose Spoons, Not Phones Hastings, Neb.—Restaurant owners are somewhat reconciled to the disappearance of salt shakers, knives, forks and napkins from their cafes, but, in the opinion of a Hastings restaurant owner, taking telephones is carrying the joke a bit too far.

Shortly after a group of traveling orchestra men had left a local restaurant, the proprietor stepped to his telephone to call his home, but there was no phone. Police were informed of the matter, and learning that the orchestra was on its way to Clay Center, called Sheriff Harr, who went to the rooms occupied by the orchestra members. The missing phone was found among the belongings of one of the men.

On payment by the group of the costs of installing a new phone, and settlement for the damage, the matter was dismissed.

Woman Discovers Mouse

Wearing Wedding Ring Cannes, France.—One year ago Mme. Jeanne Lasconjaras, of this city, dropped her wedding ring and saw it roll down a rat hole.

A few days ago she caught a full grown mouse in a trap. Around the mouse's neck was the missing wedding ring. The circlet apparently had slipped around the rodent's neck when it was young and it had been unable to work it loose.

Cow Mothers a Fawn Marysville, Calif.-William P. Slerkin has a cow at his ranch in the mountains of Yuba County that has adopted a fawn. It is believed the mother of the fawn may have perished in a forest fire.

Clover in Philippines Saved by Bumblebee

Strange stories surround the travels of plants from country to country and continent to continent until they are known around the world, as is the case with tobacco, a native of America; coffee, which originated in Asia; and rubber, which once was grown only in Brazil. But perhaps the strangest story of all concerns the transplantation of American red clover to the Philippines, as it is told in the Farm Journal.

It was after the United States took over protection of the islands in 1898 that agricultural experts, surveying the possibilities of the climate, decided that red clover would flourish there as a pasture and cover crop. So tons

The clover flourished as was expected. That is, the first seed grew richly and gave promise of continuous growth. But the next year the clover disappeared.

The experts were puzzled. It was conceded that the experiment was a failure, but no one could explain why until it occurred to one of them, years afterward, that what the clover needed was bees. And there were no bees in the Philippines, no insects with tongues long enough to reach into the floret of the clover and carry off the pollen. The next year saw a cargo of bumblebees carried across the Pacific. The clover was planted again. Both bees and clover flourished. Today the bumblebee of American descent is as much at home in the oriental islands as in his native Virginia or Nebraska.

"Language of Flowers"

Spoken in South Seas Romantic stories of the South seas were related recently by Mr. Robert Gibbings, British artist, who has just returned from Tahiti.

"The girls," he said, "have long, black, silky hair reaching almost to their ankles. They wear simple cotton frocks, and when they bathe they go into the sea with all their clothes on, later changing into others on the

"If a girl wants a lover she wears a little white flower over the right ear; if she has a lover she wears the flower over the left ear.

"When they wear the white flower over both ears it means they have a lover but want another.

"When a young man falls in love he follows the girl of his heart and throws a white flower in her pathway. Love out there is a language of flowers." All the natives, says Mr. Gibbings, believe in ghosts, and dark mysteries haunt the island. "One of the unsolved spirit visitations," Mr. Gibbings said, "is known as the 'blood splashing,' which is of fairly frequent occurrence. "On one occasion when some natives were assembled in a hut a mysterious noise was heard outside. The chief told them all to get out as quickly as possible. When they returned to the hut everything in the room was in confusion and the walls were splashed with dark stains that looked like blood. An analysis revealed that they were indeed human blood, but the mystery was never solved."

MOONLIGHT AND MUSTARD PLASTERS

(@ by D. J. Walsh.)

TIMMIE STONE completed his toilet at his wife's dressing table because the glow of the rose boudoir lights was flattering. It mellowed the lines that had crept about the corners of his eyes and did not reveal that slight thinning at the temples, which had begun to distress him. Since his last birthday Jimmie had tried to dwell in rosy glows that would soften the austerity of fact, for Jimmie had just turned forty with a reluctance that savored of rebellion.

The figure that the little swinging mirrors reflected renewed Jimmie's self-confidence. Forty! Bah! What was forty when a man could still play a passable game of tennis and golf that now and then approached par? Whatever pouch there was beneath the belt was hidden by the well-tailored dinner jacket. Yes, he was personable enough. Youngish, he might be aptly called. Jimmie thrust his hands into his pockets and struck an attitude. His youth hadn't gone-never fret yourself about that!

Downstairs his wife was waiting to bestow the connubial kiss that would send him off with her blessing to a party that she was quite too tired to lattend. She looked up from her paper and kissed him. Before he had reached the door she was reading again. He wasn't a stick to be kissed that waynot by a long shot. Fine woman, his wife, but a man's blood needed stirring now and then. Jimmie plunged into his car and drove maliciously through the wintry air. He wondered if Helene Davenport would be at the party. Two years ago he had kissed Helene under the mistletoe. He had thought then that her lips had met his with something more than a casual touch. Afterward at other suburban parties he had kissed her again and had been 'quite sure that her mouth held a warmth he had kindled. He liked Helene. Pretty fair tennis player she was for a woman who had let herself grow a bit plump and enough better swimmer than any man in the suburb though he hated to admit it. Pretty good head, too, had Helene, though she did pose a trifle too much as a highbrow. Getting a few articles and stories accepted by magazines had perhaps upset her. Still she played a decent enough game of bridge. If she did talk over the cards she at least did not share his wife's habit of reading the paper whenever she was dummy. Poor girl! Jimmie had a sneak-

Helene would be at the party. She was. Jimmie saw her as soon as he entered the room. In a black chiffon dress, with a huge red poppy on her shoulder, she looked only slightly plump. Helene stopped dancing, pushed her husband aside and beckoned to Jimmie.

ing and somewhat satisfying notion that her husband's kisses had ceased to thrill her. He really hoped that

"It's only a short time since Christmas week," she said, "and there's still some mistletoe."

So, being a gentleman, Jimmie kissed her. It was a very good kiss-of the initiating rather than the concluding

"There's a moon coming up straight out of the river," said Jimmie, "a big, orange moon that isn't cold like the yellow ones." Helene smiled and her eyes seemed to add force to the words that she spoke lightly enough.

"We'll dance now," she said, "but later, if you'll find my coat, we'll test the temperature of your moon."

There was a sudden whirling in Jimmie's head. Forty, indeed! His calendar was a pitiful liar. No college chap could feel younger.

Jimmie found Helene's coat—a brown fur, with a deep fox collar. When Helene met him at the door he slipped it around her. They walked together down the slope of lawn that swept toward the river. Above the tree tops Jimmie saw the huge ball of orange fire, but he failed to note the sinister grin that sometimes appears upon the face of the king of ethereal inhabitants. If Jimmie had seen that grin which was the summation of cynicism, he might not have said the things that he said or kissed Helene quite as he did.

"Do you mean that you love me?" the woman whispered breathlessly. "That at thirty-five I can make some one love me like that?" "Haven't you guessed; haven't you known these two years?" With Helene in his arms Jimmie thought that he meant what he said. Jimmie really believed that he spoke truthfully. "Couldn't you see it across the tennis net last fall? Didn't you know it as we swam together last summer? Since I kissed you that night under the mistletoe I've wanted you. You've set me wild."

"I didn't guess," Helene whispered as she turned her lips to his. "I don't believe it now. You're drunk with the moonlight. Telephone me tomorrow and tell me whether you were drunk or sober.'

"I'll phone you tomorrow. Oh, I'll phone you. Never fret yourself about

Much later a voice called from the house—an insistent voice—an anxious

"Helene, are you crazy-you with a cold out a night like this? Come in before you catch your death."

Helene's answer trailed dismally through the sparkling night. "Coming," she said aloud, but she murmured to Jimmie, "Husbands, oh, Lord-so unromantic, always exhibiting the protection complex! You won't forget to telephone tomorrow?" "Don't you fret yourself about that," came the throaty assurance, When morning arrived however, Jimmie Stone lay sick of a fever. He had forgotten the moon, but he remembered the kisses. Helene had had a cold, and he had kissed her. A cold for Jimmie always meant the return of lumbago. Why hadn't he thought of colds and lumbago instead of moonlight and kisses? After her quiet evening at home, Jimmie's wife seemed no longer tired. With strong, cool hands she rubbed the sore spot in his back. She filled and refilled the hot-water bottle and laid cool cloths on his head. After all, it was comfortable to have a wife to take care of you—a wife whose hands and lips were soothing and not blood-stirring. In the late afternon Jimmie's wife was still hovering over him. "I'll fix you a mustard plaster," she said. "A mustard plaster will make a new man of you."

As she stepped into the hall the telephone rang. In a moment she returned to Jimmie's tortured side.

"It's Helene Davenport," said Jimmie's wife, as composed as ever. "She wants me to tell you that she's sorry you're ill and to ask if you have a message for her."

Jimmie groaned aloud. A message for Helene Davenport. Vaguely he seemed to remember that he had promised to call her.

"Tell her," he jerked out in staccato moans, "that I was drunk last night." "All right, dear," soothed Jimmie's wife. "I'll be back with that mustard plaster in just a minute."

African Tribe's Strange

Display of Reverence Spitting at the sun to honor God is one curious mode of worship practiced by the Bahanga, a hitherto little known tribe in Central Africa, reported to the Catholic anthropological conference by Father M. Stan, a missionary of the Mill Hill society.

This tribe, a branch of the Bantu people, pay most of their respects to the spirits of their ancestors, because they are afraid of ill consequences, especially sickness, if they neglect them. But they are basically monotheistic, recognizing one God, who made the world and all things in it. They think that He is good and well disposed toward them, so they do not bother Him much. But occasionally they will ask for a slight special favor.

"The wrestler," says Father Stan, "before he attacks his opponent will take up a little soil, put it in his mouth and spit it out toward the sun, because the sun, the symbol of God, fertilizes the earth and gives strength to the little seed. In like manner may God give him strength to throw his opponent.

"I once asked a native why he spat toward the sun, as this was, to my mind, a sign of disdain. He wondered at my ignorance, and asked me: 'Does God not give life to us?' And when I pressed him for an explanation it came by his putting questions to me, as is the usual way of a native in answering. 'Has a dead man spittle? Is spittle not the sign of life in us? Who gives us life except God? If from Him, have we not to acknowledge it? Therefore, we spit toward the sun."—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

The Booster

"Boost, don't knock." F. C. W. Parker was concluding an eloquent and witty speech at a Kiwanis banquet in Chicago. "Show the proud spirit," he went on, "of Cornelius Husk, Jr. Young Corn on his first visit to New York went into a post office and said:

"'Gimme a bag o' peanuts.' "'We don't sell peanuts here,' said the clerk. 'This, young feller, is a post office.' "'I know it is, and a darn back number out o' date post office, too, said Corn Husk. 'At Croydon Four Corners, where I hail from, the post office sells flour and chewin' and smokin' tobacco and reapin' machines and dress goods and soap and pretty much anything you could mention."

Early "Columnists"

Sir Richard Steele, the first newspaper columnist, died 200 years ago at Carmarthen on the border of Wales. His school days were spent at Charterhouse, where he met his famed collaborator, Joseph Addison. In 1709 he started a paper, aptly named the Tatler, to which Addison became a regular contributor.

Like present-day columnists, writes Paul F. Husserl in the New York World, Addison and Steele permitted of a certain genial intimacy between the reader and the writer. Nor was there slipshod writing, despite the predominance of the personal note. Often Steele or Addison would stop the press to alter a preposition or con-

Startling Views

Bertrand Russell, philosopher and reformer, was criticizing the modern girl at a Boston dinner party.

"With her pastel-coloring and her cigarette the modern girl is a frightful cynic," he said, "and her views about immorality are very startling.

"A young Rotarian, smitten with the charms of a modern girl, made love to her on a moonlight automobile ride. Then, thinking to please her, he said: "'You are the only woman I have

"She blew a cloud of cigarette smoke into the air. "'Kiddo.' she said, 'why talk to me of your wasted life?"

Seized Opportunity to Use That "Cuss Word" There was a little girl in West Philadelphia who aspired to cuss words. Only she had been brought up to know that they were very bad. Still, she was ambitious. One day very recently this young lady of seven years saw the opportunity of a young life. The housemaid was in her room and did not want to be disturbed. The little miss sought to enter. She grew angry when she discovered that the door was locked.

"Let me in, Annie!" she yelled. The housemaid told her to run along. "Let me in," persisted the youngster. "If you don't let me in I hope you'll die." Still no result. "If you die I hope you can't get to heaven." The threat was futile. "Then you can go to h-l." And, having said what she wanted to say,

the young lady went about her busi-

His Patience Gave Way

Old Bill Holcomb, the town's leading character, had gone into the barber shop for a shave. At every stroke the tonsorial artist was asking: "Does it hurt? Is the razor all right?"

But after 10 minutes Old Bill lost his patience. Upon the barber's next query of: "Does it hurt?" he yelled: "Hell's bells no! Is it supposed to?" -New York Central Magazine.

Teacher's Fault

A lady came to call and as mother was not quite ready to see callers Billy was sent down to talk with her until mother was ready.

"How old are you?" asked the lady. "Nine," said Billy. "And what grade are you in at "The second," said Billy, "but its the teacher's fault."

Ladies Made Their Own Shoes

For the moment Miss Milbanke is still at Seaham, still earnestly writing poetry, and as a contrast making shoes. This activity was a by-product of the French revolution. Girls were, for some reason unexplained, taught to make their own shoes, and Annabella learned like the rest-apparently under Clermont's supervision, for the magazine displays an advertisement of "Messrs. Milbanke and Clermont's superior style of cutting shoes for ladies of fashion." Shoes, it is true, were fragile affairs, made of the thinnest kid or satin. . . . Poetry and shoemaking were part of the daily round.-From "The Life of Lady Byron," by Ethel Colburn Mayne.

Organisms of Sponge

Little is known of the life history of the commercial sponges. In some species, if not all, the sexes are dis-.tinct, the female preponderating. The young produced from the eggs are freeswimming organisms and are still of very small size when they settle and become permanently attached. This must be a critical stage in their life history, for they are so minute that a very thin stratum of silt would be sufficient to engulf and smother them. As much of the sea bottom is covered with soft or shifting deposits, the mortality at this period must be very

Island's Short Life

A submarine volcano may pile up a bank or form a new island. The standard example is Graham Island, 30 miles southwest of Sicily; a ship passing thereby on June 28, 1831, felt a shock as if she had struck a sandbank, and by July 10 an eruption had begun which raised a new island that was at one time 200 feet high and three miles in circumference; after the close of the eruption the island was soon swept away by the waves, and it had been worn down to sea level by October in the same year.

World's Oldest Tune

The tune to which the popular ditty "For he's a jolly good fellow" is sung is said to be the oldest tune known to man. Its origin, says Looker-on in and by the tribe called the Latini, who the London Daily Chronicle, is lost in lived on the plain of Litum, south of antiquity. Research has brought to the Tiber. It came to tongue about the Eighth century of England when the Crusaders returned from the Holy land, and it was used by these old-time warriors, as a sort of war song, when they were besieging Jerusalem.

Where Notables Gambled

In the Horse and Groom tavern, Streatham, London, is the direct successor to the famous old inn of the same name wherein the Prince Regent, afterward King George IV, used to foregather o' nights with his boon companions. In the spacious grounds at the rear, was a cockpit, where on one occasion, according to local tradition, was fought a main between birds owned by the prince and others belonging to Colonel McMahon and Doctor Marable, the stakes being one thousand guineas for each of the seven battles and five thousand guineas the main. Doctor Johnson, too, was a frequent visitor to the old house.

Whale Meat Palatable

Many of the older New Bedford whalers who as young men were frequently absent from one to two years on whaling voyages, will testify to the excellence of this cetaceous mammal's flesh. All whales are really excellent food, but the irregular supply prevents the widespread use of whale meat although occasionally it is to be found in New York restaurants, while one can often buy it canned. In flavor it strongly resembles the best of beef, but is much more tender.

Early Handkerchiefs

The white handkerchief was considered bad form in ancient Rome. Although colored cloth squares were used for such purposes as headpieces, neckerchiefs and barber's accessories, the practice of "mopping" or "blowing" in public was frowned upon by the elite. Commentaries on Roman life cite the lack of the necessity to use a "nose" handkerchief as a desirable quality in a fiancee, and, conversely, the frequent need of a "sweat" handkerchief as a just cause for divorce.

Baraca Bible Classes

"Baraca," pronounced "ber-a-ka" with the accent on the first syllable, is the name of an international organization of young men's Sunday school classes, the first of which was organized at Syracuse, N. Y., in 1890. Baraca Bible classes, consisting of thousands of local groups, now exist in many different religious denominations. The name is derived from a Hebrew word meaning blessing. In a different form it appears as a proper name in I Chronicles 12:3, and also II Chronicles 20:26, which reads: "And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of Berachah; for there they blessed the Lord; therefore, the name of the same place was called, the Valley of Berachah, unto this day."-Pathfinder Magazine.

50 horsepower six cylinder engine

Not until you drive the new Chevrolet Six can you appreciate what a wonderful improvement has been made in its famous six-cylinder valve-inhead engine. With its capacity increased to 50 horsepower, it has great reserve energy for sweeping up the steepest hills-for swift acceleration

-and for sustained high speeds. Its power flows evenly and smoothly. And it is extremely flexible in traffic. In fact-it does everything you could possibly want a motor to do. Yet it is remarkably economical in its use of gasoline and oil. Come in today for a demonstration.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus
Teaches Us to Live,
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Standard of

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Accepting and Following the High-est Ideals. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-A Christian According to Christ.

1. The Characteristics of the Sub-Jects of the Kingdom (vv. 1-12). These characteristics are set forth in the nine beatitudes.

1. The consciousness of spiritual poverty (v. 3).

"Poor in spirit" means to come to the end of self in a state of spiritual

2. A profound grief because of the spiritual insolvency (v. 4).

The mourning here is because of the keen consciousness of guilt before a holy God. 3. A humble submission to God's will (v. 5). This is the outgrowth of mourning over spiritual insolvency. 4. An intense longing to conform to the laws of the kingdom (v. 6).

The one who has received the righteousness of Christ as a free gift follows after the purity of character which expresses itself in deeds of righteousness.

5. Merciful (v. 7).

The subjects of the kingdom now take on the character of the King. Because of the mercifulness of Christ, His followers will be merciful. 6. Purity of heart (v. 8).

Since the King is absolutely pure, the subjects who enjoy fellowship with Him must have heart purity. 7. Peacemakers (v. 9).

The subjects of His kingdom not only have peace, but follow after that which makes for peace.

8. Suffering for Christ's sake (v. 10). The world hated Christ, the King; therefore those who reflect His spirit in their lives shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

9. Suffer reproach (v. 11). To have all manner of evil spoken against us for Christ's sake is an occasion for glorying. II. The Responsibilities of the Sub-Jects of the Kingdom (vv. 13-16).

The world is in utter darkness because of its corruption. The subjects of the kingdom are to live such lives as to purify and enlighten. Their responsibilities are set forth under the figures of salt and light.

1. Ye are the salt of the earth (v.

The properties of salt are (1) Penetrating, (2) Purifying, (3) Preserving. Since salt only preserves and purifies in the measure that it penetrates, so Christians only as they enter into the life of the world can preserve it from decay.

2. Ye are the light of the world (v. 14).

This world is cold and dark. In this darkness the devil has set many pitfalls, and the subjects of the kingdom should so live as to prevent the unwarv from stumbling.

III. The Laws of the Kingdom (vv. 20-48).

1. As to deeds of righteousness (v. 20). The deeds of the subjects of the kingdom must spring from Christlike

2. As to sanctity of life (vv. 21-26). The duty of the subject of the kingdom is to conserve and sustain his own life and the life of others. Rash anger is heart murder (v. 22).

3. As to organized life (vv. 27-32). The family is the unit of society. The two awful sins against the family are (1) Adultery, (2) Divorce. 4. As to oaths (vv. 33-37).

Whatever is more than the simple form of affirmation or denial comes of

5. As to behavior toward those who do not recognize the laws of the kingdom (vv. 38-48).

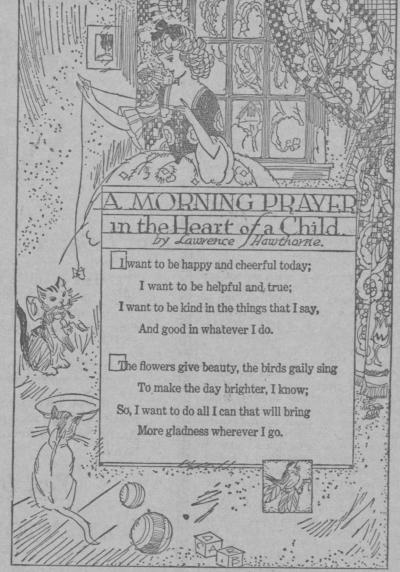

(1) Not revengeful (vv. 39, 40). Turning the other cheek after being smitten, means, after one insult, permit another without revenge. (2) Willingness to do more than is required (v. 41). If compelled to go one mile, go two miles with the one thus compelling you. (3) Be charitable (v. 42). Our hearts should always be open, ready to give to all. (4) Love enemies (vv. 45-48). Love to them consists in: a. Blessing them that curse us. b. Doing good to them that hate us. c. Praying for those who despitefully use us.

Consciousness of Duty

In every heart there is a consciousness of some duty or other required of it; that is the will of God. He that would be saved must get up and do that will-if it be but to sweep a room or make an apology, or pay a debt .-George MacDonald.

Entering Heaven's Gates

Heaven's gates are not so highly arched as kings' palaces; they that enter there must get upon their knees --Daniel Webster.

Ancient City of Paris Has Had Many Masters Upon a bit of an island shaped like ship, and set in the river Seine about a half mile in length have been enacted some of the world's most historic scenes. Just prior to the Chris-"ship," you come to a short and narrow street, not more than a hundred pavement is a narrow line of stones, showing where once stood part of the rude fortifications of those ancient Gauls who fought the Romans 2,000 years ago. And high above the ancient site, marking the advance of man, is strung from the roofs across the street the wires of a radio. Upon these ancient Gauls came the conquering Romans, who built a pagan temple to Jove on the site where a few centuries later was to rise Notre Dame, which has stood for 750 years in its completed grandeur. Followed the Franks from Clovis to Louis IX, who all dwelt upon the "boat." Louis IX built Sainte Chapelle church. Under Charlemagne in the year 800 the island became the capital of France. In that same century the Northmen beat up the Seine in their long ships time sacked it and ruined the suburban ab- real, first-class farm. beys. Then followed more peaceful

Honesty

Absolute, unswerving honesty carries the greatest power in the universe to bring results in business or out. and in all things. The dishonest mind may gain money through deceit and trickery, but trickery and deceit ultimately bring disease and death to the body. There is a material honesty which prompts us to do what is right by our fellows; there is a higher and spiritual honesty which concerns our dealing with ourselves, and this reaches much further than that which refuses to steal and pays its bills regularly. It implies an earnest desire to know the right way to live .-Prentice Milford.

Gloves' Early History

The monks under Charlemagne (742-814) were granted the unrestricted right to hunt in return for making gloves, girdles and book covers from the skins of the deer they killed. The wearing of gloves was almost universal among the Germans and Scandinavians in the Eighth and Ninth centuries. Pontifical gloves made their first appearance in France and reached Rome toward the end of the Tenth century, about which time silk gloves became the vogue among kings, nobles and church dignitaries. These gloves often were elaborately embroidered and jeweled.

A Getaway

He was an artist of the impressionist school, and he had been known to sell pictures, but it didn't happen often. He was carrying some of his work to an art dealer's, when he met a fellow artist. Suddenly he quickened his pace.

"What are you hurrying for?" asked his comrade.

"See that man over there?" was the "Yes, what of it?"

"Well, he is a creditor of mine. Like impressionistic art, he looks better from a distance."

ARMY GOES FORWARD

Secretary Orders Infantry Battalion Experiment.

Washington .- Modernization of the American army, through the introduction of greater fire power, mobility and capacity for sustained effort on the battle front into the infantry combat arm, was moved a step nearer fulfillment by Secretary of War Patrick

On the recommendation of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, 'the war secretary issued orders calling for the organization at once of an experimental infantry battalion with sufficient additional automatic weapons to double the fire power of 'the present infantry unit of this size.

More Automatic Weapons. The new infantry battalion will give the army the most compact, powerful and independent combat unit in the history of the American military establishment. It will have 25 per cent more men than the present organization, twice as many automatic rifles, twice as many 30-caliber machine guns, and four 50-caliber machine guns, for use against attacking aircraft and tanks, and introduce two 37-millimeter guns and two 75-millimeter mortars into the infantry unit. The mortars and 37-millimeter guns, formerly a part of the equipment of the old regimental howitzer company, are added to the armament of the battalion headquarters company.

The experimental battalion, composed of 1,178 men, will be armed with a total of 528 rifles, 108 automatic rifles, 24 30-caliber machine guns, four 50-caliber machine guns, two 37-millimeter guns, one-pounders, and two 75millimeter mortars. The present organization has 544 rifles and 12 30-caliber machine guns. The regimental howitzer company, which is armed with the 37-millimeter mortars, would be abolished if the new experimental organization were adopted as standard for the army.

World War Equipment Still Used. The step taken by Secretary Hurley recently marks probably the greatest stride the War department has taken toward bringing the army up to date. The army at present is equipped with World war equipment, although its present infantry organization is the result of two years' study made by a special board immediately after the

The new organization is designed to give the basic infantry combat unit greater fire power and more mobility without increasing its vulnerability.

Whether the new organization will be found satisfactory is still to be determined. It is certain, however, that changes of some kind will be made.

Coeds Wonder What Kind of Girl Men Like

Madison, Wis.-University of Wisconsin coeds are up in arms because a prominent fraternity man has said that a girl to be popular must not smoke, drink, or neck.

The controversy arose after a questionnaire appeared in the Daily Cardinal, student newspaper, ject: "What kind of girls do college men like to date, and if so, why do they always go out with the other kind."

Men don't seem to know what they want, one coed wailed. "A girl shouldn't drink, smoke, or neck, but do many men date those who don't?" "If a girl acts sweet and simple, she is too naive. If she is sophisticated they think she is throwing the dog, and if she tries to be just natural, she's considered prosaic."

As a counter attack, another coed presented a list of qualifications demanded in a man by herself.

"He need not be handsome or a 'W' man, or a well-known campus figure." she explained. Neatness in dress and general good taste, a good heart, gentlemanliness, and ambition are much more important. He must admire intelligence in women and date them for companionship and not merely for a good necking party."

Says Public Schools

Repress Snobbishness New York .- The public schools and the American business man's desire for standardization keep superior men from being the "snobs" they should be, Prof. Robert E. Rogers of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology declared in continuing his "be a snob" campaign in a debate here. "College men are less snobbish than any other group of persons in America," Prof. Rogers said. "They are afraid to be snobbish, as they have all their inclinations toward snobbishness steam-rolled out of them by the stupid public schools and the stupid standardization."

Changes Adopted Name to Former Jaw-Breaker

Los Angeles.-Rather than to be known as "What's-His-Name," persons with cognomens difficult to pronounce often have the courts change them to something easier on the tongue, ears and memory. Not so with George Curtin Stantson. He has had the Superior court cancel the name he adopted when naturalized in 1914 and restore his original one-Gjura Stojana. Stojana, who is an artist, inferred that Americanos would regard the works of a Gjura Stojana more highly than the products of the brush of a George Curtin Stantson.

GAINS SHOWN IN WOMEN'S WEALTH

Economic Strides Revealed in Tax Returns.

Washington.—Rapid economic strides made by women in recent years are reflected in income-tax returns, which reveal members of the fair sex as an important source of revenue for the federal government.

An analysis of 1927 income-tax returns made by treasury experts discloses that single women made 535,199 returns in that year and had net taxable income aggregating $2,233,844,068. In addition wives filed 112,719 separate returns and reported net income of $1.219.714.318.

For the same year single men filed 1,512,497 tax returns and reported aggregate net taxable income of 4,912,-025,508. Husbands and wives filing joint returns totaled 2,016,850 and had net taxable income of $13,870,232,343.

Study of the above figures shows that a greater part of the federal revenue from individual income taxes is derived from married persons, while returns by single women constituted one-third the number filed by single men. Single women also had net income aggregating about one-third those reported by single men.

On a percentage basis, the statistics revealed, women filed 15.80 per cent of all individual tax returns and had 15.32 of all taxable net income reported. Single men made 34.44 per cent of all returns and reported 21.80 per cent of all taxable income. Married persons filed 50 per cent of the returns and had 61 per cent of the aggregate net income taxed.

Three single women and three single men paid taxes on incomes ranging between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, while fifteen husbands and wives reported incomes in that class. Five single men reported incomes of $5,000. 000 and more, but there were no single women in this class.

Then you'll hail the suggestion of Ruth D. Maurer, beauty authority of national reputation, that every American city should have a municipal beauty clinic.

"Berlin's famous 'Advisory Bureau of Social Cosmetics' has been the solution of one phase of Germany's unemployment problem," Mrs. Maurer said at a meeting of public health officials here. "Placement bureau managers and directors of personnel whom I have interviewed assure me that such bureaus might fairly be expected to accomplish similar results in American industrial centers."

Mrs. Maurer said that, of 53 employers of large staffs of clerical labor with whom she had talked, 45 admitted to her that "other things being equal, it's the most attractivelooking girl who gets the job."

Mistletoe Is Doomed

as Forest Nuisance

Snoqualmie, Wash. - Mistletoe is doomed as a pest in national forests of the northwest. There is no objection to Christmas mistletoe and its sentimental uses, but in valuable forests the plant increases so rapidly that it chokes the life of its host.

The forest service hopes to exterminate the plant within seven or eight years by tearing up dense areas of the trailers.

In national parks enough mistletoe will be allowed to grow for exhibition

Neighbors Husk Corn So

Boy Can Go to School Muncie, Ind.—Neighbors gathered 22 acres of corn here for Mrs. George Burgess, a widow, rather than see her son, James, a sophomore in high, quit his studies to husk the corn. Sixtyfour persons gathered at her farm at 6:30 a. m. and by 2 p. m. the corn was cribbed. When the corn was husked the neighbors brought baskets, a dinner was served, and it was made a picnic occasion.

Deer Wrecks Motor; State Refuses Pay

Harrisburg, Pa.-A deer collided with the motor car of Elias Fineberg, Scranton, Pa., while driving in the Pocono mountains, damaging radiator, fenders and headlights.

It cost Fineberg $44.70 to have the damaged car repaired. Fineberg sent the bill from a Scranton garage to the highway patrol for collection. "I am advised that the responsibility for the care of this road is with the state and that the state highway patrol is responsible for such damage," Fineberg wrote.

Capt. W. G. Price, head of the patrol, returned the bill to Fineberg, acknowledging it, but saying that Fineberg would have to take care of it himself.
