ROY EDWARDS FREED

The Case Against Paul W. Edwards Comes up Next Week.

Roy Edwards, charged with being accessory after the fact to the alleged murder of William T. Keefer, on December 10 last, was discharged on Wednesday by Magistrate Benson, after States Attorney Brown failed to put in appearance to prosecute the case. Paul W. Edwards, father of Roy, is in the county jail on the charge of murder. The only charge against the young man appears to have been that, on advice of counsel, he refused to answer any questions concerning the case. Former State Senator D. J. Hesson, of Taneytown, an uncle by marriage, had furnished $2000 bail for the appearance of the young man.

Young Edwards who is a student at Western Md. College, was arrested in March, and has since been continuing his studies. He is popular with the student body, and since his arrest he has been honored by being elected Editor-in-chief of the "Gold Bug," the College Weekly.

Paul W. Edwards, the father of Roy, who has been in jail since Feb. 25, charged with the murder of his foster-father, Mr. Keefer, by having administered arsenic in the food from the eating of which he died, will have a hearing before the Grand Jury next week, at the regular May term of Court.

The origin of the case was that on Dec. 10, William T. Keefer and wife became ill after breakfast at their home at Bark Hill, and Mr. Keefer died. Mrs. Keefer has since been living with the Edwards family, at Copperville. Due to suspicion, the body of Mr. Keefer was exhumed and an autopsy made by Dr. Maudies, Baltimore, who found arsenic in the viscera.

Mr. Keefer was the foster father of Paul W. Edwards, and the latter is said to have spent part of the night at the Keefer home, but left for his own home before they became ill. A package of oatmeal, said to have contained arsenic, figured in the case, but as yet the evidence in the case has been largely mere talk, and of a purely circumstantial character.

Mothers' Day.

This Sunday, May 11th., will be celebrated as Mothers' Day, all over our land. We are perhaps inventing too many "days," but few will criticize the beautiful custom of keeping fresh the memory of mother, and of honoring the mothers still with us. The observance of Mothers' Day, by special church services, and in other appropriate ways, is highly commendable and deserves our fullest respect.

Of course, all days should be spent by us as God-fearing, right-living persons. In the widest sense, one day is as important as another in the doing of good deeds and in following the paths of righteousness, for each day represents a period of opportunity.

But, somehow we need special inspiration. The days come and go, and we consider them merely necessary parts of the calendar. We should be daily observing the significance of Christmas, Easter and the Fourth of July, but we need to have them red-lettered and made "days" before we can stir up a spirit for their observance—and even then, they are largely holidays.

Mothers' Day? Yes, but its observance not limited to wearing a pink or white flower, and not for just a day.

FIRE IN MANCHESTER

Loss Estimated at $25,000 But no Dwellings Destroyed.

Manchester suffered a loss by fire, shortly after noon, on Wednesday, estimated at $25,000. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been in a pile of rubbish in the rear of the sewing factory that was the main building destroyed. A number of Fire Companies responded and prevented the spread of the flames to dwellings.

The Sewing Factory building and contents were destroyed, together with a garage, and a number of barns and outbuildings. Lack of water greatly interfered with the fire fighting, as the Fire Companies could render but little aid except from their chemical apparatus. Bucket brigades helped greatly in keeping the fire from spreading.

In a number of cases furniture was moved out of dwellings, but while several of them caught fire none were destroyed. The sewing factory was operated by Louis Levy, of Baltimore, the building being owned by C. V. Greisenstein, of Manchester.

A WET AND DRY FIGHT FOR MARYLAND.

Out of the political talk of the week, regarding the situation in the Republic ranks for a candidate against Governor Ritchie, comes the rather positive statement from a newspaper correspondent that the coming campaign will represent an open contest against the Governor, on the grounds of his wetness, and his fourth-term aspirations.

This may, or may not, represent the lack of support for Mayor Broening by the leaders, as the Mayor is not regarded as a dry, though not a wet of the Ritchie calibre. It is recalled that Senator Goldsborough won against Senator Bruce, a pronounced wet, by 42,000 majority; and that while Goldsborough was aided by feeling against Governor Smith, for the presidency; and by the further fact that the Republican candidates always have the best show in the state in a presidential campaign, it is still believed by many that the state, on an open wet and dry issue, is dry.

This may be taken for what it is worth. It at any rate has a plausible sound, and may be advocated and tried as an early gun that may open a country-wide battle.

KEYS BIRTHPLACE WRONGLY STATED.

The editorial department of the Baltimore Sunday Sun was responsible for a bad error in last Sunday's edition, through publishing in one of the photogravure sections, the illustration of "Tudor Hall's" colonnade, at the edge of Leonardtown, the birthplace of Francis Scott Key. Some body evidently went very wrong concerning an established historical fact, as there is no question about Key's birth-place having been in Frederick county (now Carroll county) near the village of Keysville.

LOTTERY PUBLICITY

How Newspapers and Others May Get into Trouble.

The Record has frequently called attention to the Postal Laws forbidding the publication in a newspaper of any statements that refer to chance, or drawing, placing them in the Lottery class, and therefore not mailable. The laws covering the subject come under Section 473 of the Postal Laws and Regulations.

(And we say here, parenthetically, that the P. O. Department should furnish every publisher, not only with a copy of the Section, but with specimen illustrations of violation, in order to be fair to publishers who would not voluntarily violate the laws.)

According to Kable Brothers, Mount Morris, Ill., publishers of about 300 fraternal and other periodicals, the following three instances were declared to be violations. A prize was offered by an Illinois Farm Bureau to the farmer who estimated the quantity of fertilizer to cover a certain acreage.

A Sterling, Ill., merchant advertised "See our window for an interesting announcement." The window contained a glass jar containing beans, with the offer of a prize to the one guessing nearest the quantity in the jar.

The publication of an announcement, such as, "Your presence may be rewarded by a prize."

In any such case as those above, the publisher is expected to inform himself as to the manner in which the prizes are given.

We should say that used in notices of card parties, even the single word "Prizes," would represent violation of the law; and also in cases in which articles are "demonstrated," and prizes are offered in order to draw a crowd.

Is this just foolishness? Not for the publisher, at least. Of course, such offers as those mentioned do get into newspapers, because the postmaster is not to be expected to read every issue of a paper—advertisements and all—before he mails it out; but if he does discover such violations he is bound not to accept an issue for mailing, and to report all such cases to the Solicitor General for the P. O. Department.

The probability is that other U. S. laws cover violations by individuals. We are interested primarily in the publishers end of it. It is quite likely that the mailing of circulars or tickets, concerning drawings, by letter or otherwise, is a criminal offense, even when the purpose is merely a rather innocent form of gambling. At any rate, the best plan is not to "take a chance," either in some sort of scheme, or with the law.

CONCERT AT BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

On Thursday night, May 15, at 8 o'clock, there will be a public concert in the Blue Ridge College auditorium. Admission will be free. The college appreciates the interest that the public has shown in the past concerts and welcome to this event.

A unique feature of the program will be the appearance of the Tresselt instrumental trio. This trio consists of Frederick Tresselt, Cellist, Philip Royer, violinist, and Kevin Fisher, pianist. They will be heard several times during the evening.

Mr. Wilmer Bartholomew will be present and play for the first time in New Windsor. He is a pianist and teacher of Washington, D. C. Besides, he is a musical psychologist and is at present working along this line in the laboratories of the Peabody Conservatory. A number of local pianist will be heard in two-piano music. Miss Bullock and Mr. Fisher will play the "Jazz Study" by Hill, and Miss Boal and Mr. Fisher, the "Dance Macabre" by Saint-Saens. Mr. Fisher will sing a group of tenor solos.

CHICKEN THIEVES USE AN ANAESTHETIC.

Washington County chicken thieves are using anaesthetics, by the means of a spray gun, on the chickens while on their roosts, before they attempt to make way with them. The spray, or whatever it is, practically paralyzes them and prevents them from making noise. The scheme was discovered at a recent visitation near Hagerstown, when two of the chickens were overlooked by the thieves. The fowls acted as though they were "doped" and for a long time could not stand up.

Would disarmament mean scrapping the rum-running fleet?

So far as reward indications go, the granting of the ballot to women has wrought no harm, nor has it resulted in any pronounced good.

A SPECIAL POLL BY THE LITERARY DIGEST.

Interesting, but of very little Real Value.

The Literary Digest, in addition to its general poll on Prohibition, has conducted one specially listing Bankers, Clergymen, Educators, Lawyers, Physicians and Digest subscribers. The following are the returns by classes. For the purpose of economizing space, we let "E" represent Enforcement, "M" modification, and "R" repeal.

Bankers—E 35,210; M 15,096; R 34,518.

Clergymen—E 26,863; M 3,864; R 15,912.

Educators—E 95,422; M 22,705; R 38,956.

Lawyers—E 18,101; M 9,743; R 34,886.

Physicians—E 19,956; M 13,568; R 32,235.

Digest Subscribers—E 224,921; M 110,465; R 235,270.

The totals are—E420,473; M 175,171; R 391,777.

It will be seen that the total for Enforcement beats the total for Repeal by 28,696; but is 145,475 short of beating the combined totals for modification and Repeal; which shows the complete failure of the poll to represent the actual line-up on a straight wet and dry poll, and renders the poll itself of little real value.

It is clear, therefore, that until an agreed upon definition of just what Modification means—if it be possible to reach such an argument—the Digest has merely staged a feature that carries with it no conclusive enlightenment. Possibly many of the recorded dry and wet voters would accept modification features to the present laws, in the interest of better enforcement—enough to have made the poll of real worth.

But, who is competent to advance such a definition? Has anybody, or any organization, even tried to advance one? Aside from a somewhat general, but very indefinite, statement against the return of the old saloon, we have not heard of any clear-cut proposition that indicates what the opposition to enforcement wants.

SOME CENSUS FACTS.

Reductions in population of the villages, especially of the West, is already in evidence as a result of the census. The cities, and the most progressive of the smaller towns, show an increase. The open country farming sections—not counting the villages—show but slight change, but when there is a change it is a loss.

Country stores still continue to decrease, along with the small shops, schools, churches and mills. Hotels and inns, are also disappearing, largely of course because of prohibition. Rural Delivery shut up the postoffices, years ago, and along with them, many small stores and shops.

Physicians have disappeared to a marked degree, but this loss has been largely compensated for by good roads, automobiles and convenient hospitals. There are more farms operated only in part, but many of the farmers of the country are now enjoying benefits that they did not have even ten years ago.

These are a few of the advance indications of the census, but are too incomplete to be of much value. Motor transportation over good roads, motion pictures in the larger towns and the broadened view conveyed to farmers and villagers by radio and daily newspapers are said to account for the indicated shift in population.

ENFORCEMENT'S NEW STEP.

The widespread experiments in fermentation and distillation undertaken by myriads of Americans, with kitchens and cellars as laboratories, are to be stamped out if authorities are successful in their new efforts.

The Supreme Court's decision that it is unlawful to sell barrels, bottles, corks, labels and other materials in such a way as to invite and encourage infractions of the Eighteenth Amendment, has given powerful impetus to the drive to make prohibition prohibitive.

Commissioner Doran announced a program had been worked out for taking advantage of the Supreme Court's latest action. The first objective in this campaign is to put out of commission the large industry manufacturing paraphernalia by which the householder is enabled to turn out home-brew beer and synthetic whisky.

Dr. Doran and his aides said prosecutions first would be directed against the bigger supply houses in order to break the backbone, so to speak, of the home-brew dragon. Next, means would be studied for stopping the "illegal" trade conducted by chain stores, department stores, extract and bottling supply shops which furnish all the materials and ingredients with which the home brewer produces something with a kick in it.—Phila. Ledger.

A large tree completely petrified was found embedded in sandstone 65 feet below the surface at Bristol, England.

It must be wonderful to have so much money that one can afford to brag about how hard up he is.

If a man picks up a dime in the street he looks for another in the vicinity and never finds it.

POWER OF IMITATION.

Queen Mary of England has demonstrated that she is a good business woman. Due to the fact that there is a Lancashire cotton crisis, that was apt to mean serious unemployment, in the cotton mill section, she designed a cotton dress and has given authority that the model may be generally copied and used.

This will mean that thousands of stores will be showing the dress and that many more thousands of the dresses will be worn in England this year. Not only this, but the mills will employ experts to design cotton dress goods which will compete with silks and other high-class dress materials—that in fact will popularize cotton, and set the mills going in a season of prosperity.

This is but a single example of what imitation will accomplish; and shows how one may insensibly, in many cases, start movements, bad, as well as good, and how we are therefore responsible in the making of fashions, habits and policies, in a very wide-spread way, not always so beneficial as that of Queen Mary.

When we exercise "personal liberty" we do a great deal besides. When we indulge in habits that we can perhaps control, so far as we are concerned, we are at the same time endorsing the same habits before others who may not be able to successfully control them. We are our brother's keeper, because we advise and persuade him.

THE CONSTITUTION IS THE REAL ISSUE.

It is pretty evident that while the wet and dry question will greatly mix-up things in the Fall election, there will not be a clean-cut issue between the two armies, for the reason that in sections predominantly wet—at least so far as ability to make noise is concerned—both Democratic and Republican candidates will espouse the wet cause, in order, as they think to best assure their election.

In other words, as the two parties are now constituted, many leaders in both are afraid to come out openly, one way or the other, but prefer to try to play a kind of politics to win. Eventually, the dry forces will not stand for this, and will boldly enter the field with out-and-out dry candidates, and let the effect on the two parties be what it will.

And, this will simply mean, an open stand for the constitution and laws as they now are, which will mean a strong new party, and a big new problem for the wets and dries in both parties, calling for a decision as to what they will do about it. Ordinarily, whether a man is wet, or dry, is a personal matter for himself and his friends; but when it comes up as representing the issues "for, or against, the Constitution and laws of the United States," that is quite another and more serious matter, and the only way to decide it, is for the people, regardless of party, to so line-up by their votes.

If "For the Constitution" is not a big enough policy for a big party, what greater one can be found? True, the Constitution provides for the way for its amendment. And there is the direct issue—For a wet amendment, and for the present 18th. Amendment as it stands. Let us have the test, and do things constitutionally, one way or the other.

A country that, for long, does not enforce its constitution in one direction, is not only cowardly, but has started on the road toward like trouble in many directions—toward anarchy itself.

MORE MONEY PER ACRE.

Recently, we were attracted by the caption to a newspaper article, and of course, read it, a portion of which follows:

"Figures recently given out show that Minnesota hens laid eggs last year worth twice the grand total of the state's wheat crop.

There may be more back of this statement than the average citizen can see at first glance. It may be the beginning of a method that will eventually change our entire farming system. No question but that land owners are now, more than ever, trying to get all they can out of an acre of ground. Raising chickens and marketing them along with the eggs, running a dairy and marketing milk and cream and butter, doesn't mean any easier work than producing corn, wheat, cotton or fruit. But the land investment is smaller and, as Minnesota figures will show, the profit on an acre of ground is greater."

This seems to advise going into the chicken business, for "more profit per acre." If true, this would be a very simple solution to the farmer situation; but unfortunately the deduction is not true. It would simply represent another instance of production, exceeding demand. That is the big trouble with wheat farming today—too much wheat grown, and a corresponding small market price.

Dairying is now meeting with the same experience. The earth is producing food-stuffs much faster than the population of the earth is increasing to consume them. Speculate all we may on plans of marketing, on legislation to benefit the farmer, we cannot invent any laws or plans that will successfully, for long, nullify the law of supply and demand. So doing would be as impossible as inventing perpetual motion.

CONGRESS SHOULD UPHOLD THE PRESIDENT'S HANDS.

While it is unlikely that President Hoover will call a special session of Congress should it fail to furnish adequate machinery for enforcing prohibition before adjourning next month the suggestion of Senator Jones may have a distinctly stimulating effect.

Even the possibility of having to remain in Washington during one of its hot and humid Junes to attend to "unfinished business" should discourage hesitancy, but a more compelling influence is the call of the coming congressional primaries. Most of the members of both houses are eager to go home as soon as possible. And the mere hint of a special session is decidedly disturbing. The President has this weapon in his hands if he cares to use it.

Although many Senators and Representatives are not pining to go on record on these prohibition measures, they realize that it would be poor politics for the Dries among them to refrain from supporting the Administration. And there are wets as well, who perceive a special reason from their own practical viewpoint, for giving the President what he wants in the way of additional enforcement equipment.

From the beginning, prohibition administrators have complained of the lack of support by Congress. Professional Dries have utilized the fact to account for failures in enforcement. One response was the proposal for an enormous increase in appropriations for this purpose. It was pressed at one time by over-zealous Dries against the wishes of President Hoover and Secretary Mellon, who pointed out that more money could not be used advantageously by the prohibition unit and would only embarrass the Administration.

But President Hoover has clearly and repeatedly stated what he does want for the strengthening of enforcement. And there are Wets—the New York Herald-Tribune among them—who say he should be given all he asks so that there can be a clear-cut test of the possibility of making national prohibition even approximately effective.

The President's program was restated in his special message on Monday. It comprises the transfer of prohibition enforcement activities from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, the unifying and strengthening of the border patrols, the relief of Federal Court congestion, enlargement of the Federal prisons and a new enforcement law for the District of Columbia. The only item affording ground for reasonable objection so long as prohibition is the law was the Administration plan, recommended by the Wick-ersham Commission, for dispensing with jury trials in certain prohibition cases and enlarging that powers of Federal Commissioners and District Attorneys. Mr. Hoover is not insistent on this point, and the House Judiciary Committee has now approved a substitute plan for increasing the number of Federal Judges.

The House has passed the prohibition transfer and prison bills. The Senate has yet to act on any of these measures. All of these proposals have a logical relation to each other. The Department of Justice is better equipped than the Treasury to enforce the law. The border patrols now under various jurisdictions should be placed in this department and enlarged to cope with the smugglers. The speeding up of enforcement will increase congestion in the courts and prisons. All these various factors in enforcement and punishment must be strengthened and co-ordinated. And because of their interrelation, they should be passed as a whole.

The Public Ledger believes the President should be provided with every reasonable facility for the enforcement of the laws and that it is the duty of Congress to move promptly in this matter, which it has been considering so long. There should be no more of the obstruction and delay which have hampered the President, as he says, in performing "the high duty which falls upon the Executive of enforcement of the Federal laws."—Phila. Ledger.

SHALL THE LAWN BE LIMED?

It is just as erroneous to lime the lawn too often as it is not to lime at all. Some people apply lime heavily each year without regard to soil requirement; others do not fully realize its necessity.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture and The New Jersey Experiment Station have been conducting exhaustive tests on this subject. Both institutions advocate liming when needed. An application of 50 to 75 pounds of hydrated lime (or other liming material furnishing the equivalent in available lime oxides) per 1000 square feet of surface is recommended on lawns which have not had lime for a number of years. Thereafter, an application every 4 or 5 years will keep the soil from becoming too sour.

Kentucky blue grass and white clover, both used extensively in lawns, require a soil rich in lime. If these grasses are kept growing vigorously, much of the weed problem is solved. Weeds will not grow if the grass is healthy enough to keep them crowded out.

It is well to remember that lime, itself, is not a fertilizer. Both materials should be used if the lawn is to thrive and present that deep green velvety appearance, so much desired.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S DAY.

Women have gained the right to vote. They hold public office. They have carved out a place for themselves in business. But the old, old job of home-making has changed very little in rural and suburban districts. According to a survey being made by the Bureau of Home Economics in the United States Department of Agriculture, five-sixths of the women questioned in country districts and cities of fewer than 50,000 spend more than forty-two hours a week in their home-making, and the average among those questioned is fifty-one hours a week.

The survey is now being carried into metropolitan centers to learn if the same condition holds true there. The questionnaires sent out have space for a detailed listing of the housewife's duties through the seven days of an "average week."

The results, when completely tabulated, will throw an interesting light on the effectiveness of the inventors in lightening household burdens and completing the "emancipation of woman." A fifty-one-hour week is a long stretch for any one, and its apparent prevalence in households raises the question whether American women are getting the most out of their labor-saving devices. Of course, there's the old masculine cry that the average non-professional housekeeper wastes a lot of time and is nowhere near as efficient as the average business man or business woman. Whether this is true or not soon can be settled. The answers of the women themselves will convict or exonerate them and Washington is to be the judge.—Phila. Ledger.

A BILLION AND A HALF FOR ROADS.

During 1930, the States and their counties will spend over $1,601,000,000 for highway improvements, $250,000,000 more than in 1929.

According to the Department of Agriculture, $663,667,000 of this will be spent on local roads and bridges and the balance on State highways. Officials of 45 states estimate the total length of roads to receive attention as 32,532 miles.

At present our greatest need is the construction of feeder or farm-to-market highways. The American Farm Bureau Federation has been a leader in an aggressive campaign to obtain for the farmer the year-round, hard-surfaced roads that, as one of our foremost producers and taxpayers, he deserves. So long as a great majority of farmers are cut off from their markets during many months of the year because of impassable roads, agricultural progress must be retarded.

If our vast road building appropriations are fairly and efficiently used, with the aim of obtaining the best possible results, adequate feeder roads can be built without burdening the taxpayer. Every state should adopt a program for constructing five, ten or fifteen miles of farm-to-market road for every mile of main highway.

The United States has four times the number of automobiles of all the rest of the world combined, and less than half of the world's road mileage. Our good roads movement is just getting well started.—The Manufacturer.

FOR LESS PROFANITY.

"Good Lord, how did that happen?" "My Gawd, ain't it awful!" Such expressions fall daily from thousands of lips.

And other irreverences in use are far worse.

Now a Protestant organization has come into being which has the same general aim as the Catholic Holy Name Society—the encouragement of clean and reverent speech. It is the Hallowed Name League, of which the Rev. Josiah R. Ellis, of Amherst, Virginia, is the general informant.

The purpose of this league, The Christian Century (Undenominational) tells us, is to combat the current spirit of irreverence, especially as expressed in the semi-profanity which is in vogue among a great many people who would not care to be heard emitting a round oath. And, remarks The Christian Century:

"It is a good movement. The light and casual ejaculation of such expressions as 'Good Lord' and 'My God' dulls the edge of spiritual sensibility. Besides, it betrays paucity of vocabulary and deficiency of imagination. To use these and similar words without thought of their connotation of divine things is to weaken one's sense of the meaningfulness of the terms by which alone religious concepts can be expressed. What shall one do for a terminology for such religious emotions as one may have if all the available words have already been emptied of content by their habitual use as mere casual and flippant bywords? It is doubtless true that when the French say 'mon dieu' they mean no more than 'well, well'; and that our 'dear me!' is a corruption of the Italian 'dio mio.' But we gain nothing by making a literal and unidiomatic translation of the French phrase into English, and if our 'dear me' means the same as the Italian 'My God' we might as well use it and be thankful that we have an emotional equivalent which is religiously neutral. Good religion and good taste here work together. Avoidance of profanity and avoidance of vulgarity both argue against these unimaginative and irreverent uses of the name of God."—Literary Digest.

GEMS APPEALED TO BEECHER.

"Sermons in stones" is not merely a pretty phrase. More than one minister has preached from such a text. Henry Ward Beecher seldom mounted the pulpit without a few of these lovely precious stones in his pocket, or indeed, went anywhere without them, and he frequently referred to them in his sermons.

He was trying to make a collection but that dear man had no more chance of making a collection than snow has of piling high on the Atlantic. Possessions melted away in the fervent glow of his benevolence. He would ask my opinion of a stone, become passionately attached to it, buy it.

"This," he would say determinedly, "is for my collection. This time I'm really going to start."

A few days later I would see him showing it proudly to a friend. The friend admired it copiously.

"You like it?" Beecher would say, beaming. Then he came closer, pressed it into his friend's hand. "Here, take it; it's yours. Perhaps you haven't any gems yet. I have plenty—a whole collection."

Then he would catch my eye and edge away shamefacedly.

"You know that may mean the beginning of a collection for that chap," he would say defensively.

I recall his telling me of the peculiar and powerful effect which gems had upon him, epitomizing as they did for him the greatest of the Creator in giving us these little treasures of supreme beauty.—Dr. George F. Kunz in The Saturday Evening Post.

Popular Proverb

A proverb that seems to have run the gamut of all nations is, "It is too late to shut the stable door when the horse is stolen."

The English, the French, the Dutch, the Danes, the Italians, and even the Hindus have applied this old truth, and have made it a part of their language. "It is too late to cover the well when the child is drowned," say the Danes. "The bird cries out too late when it is taken," is one French version; and the Japanese put it thus: "It is too late to cut a stick when the fight is over."

Meaningless

One of the more meaningless details of New York life is the business of supplying references when one wants to move into a new apartment. A friend of mine, a dramatic critic, is lodged in a towering, exclusive building. He informs me he had to pass close scrutiny before he was allowed to sign a lease.

Yet his neighbor on the top floor is the proprietor of a speak-easy across the street. He is a relative of one of New York's most notorious gangsters. He is politically powerful, though, and once a year gives a huge ball in his own honor at one of the better hotels.

His apartment is a fortress. The door is of armor steel. He didn't like ordinary windows, so he had a church supply house make him stained glass windows.

She Had the Goods

It was generally admitted that she was some chicken. There could be no question about it, for she had everything. She was as pretty as they make 'em, charmingly friendly, not a bit wild, and she had a record for doing things. She was only a little slip of a thing, too, but she was a winner. She just naturally took the prize. She took it because she had laid three hundred eggs in three hundred days, which was about fifteen cackles ahead of any other biddie. Of course she was some chicken!—From Film Fun.

Unpopular Raven

Has anyone a good word to say of the raven? It would appear not. Black and ominous-looking by nature, it is in very truth a bird of ill omen, fabled to forebode death and bring infection and bad luck generally. The former notion arises from their following an army under the expectation of finding bodies to "raven" on; the latter notion is a mere offshoot of the former, seeing pestilence kills as fast as the sword.

LIGHTS PROMOTE
EGGS IN WINTER

Scratch Feed Is Scattered in Litter Previous Night.

Egg production can be profitably increased during winter months through the use of artificial lighting, suggests O. C. Ufford, extension poultryman for the Colorado Agricultural college. "Hens normally lay the most eggs in the spring and early summer when there is the greatest amount of daylight," Mr. Ufford declares. "It has been found that by prolonging the period of light during winter days a higher average egg production will be obtained than when artificial light is not used."

There are three methods of artificially lighting the henhouse by the use of an automatic clock. Probably the most popular method is that of turning on the lights between 4 and 5 a. m. and keeping them on until daylight. The morning scratch feed is scattered in the litter the night before.

Sometimes a combination of morning and evening lights is used, the evening lights being turned on about 4 p. m. and kept on until 6:30 or 7 p. m., when the birds are sent to roost by automatically dimming the lights before they are entirely turned off. The lights are turned on again by the clock early in the morning.

The evening light method permits the birds to go to roost at the regular time, but arouses them when the lights are turned on about 8 p. m., when a feed of grain is scattered in the litter. This brings the birds off the roosts for about an hour for grain, mash and water, and then they are sent back to roost by the use of dimmers. This lunch prevents them from becoming hungry during the winter nights and enables them to better resist cold weather.

Mash for Winter Eggs
Favored by Specialist

With a 50 per cent production for young stock as a practical economical limit for their production, J. B. Hayes, poultry specialist at the University of Wisconsin, advises that careful feeding should attend their introduction into the class of producers.

"Forcing," he declares, "should not be attempted on young stock, nor should it be expected of them that production on top of early maturity gained from forcing will be the best for flock production."

For poultry stock which is in condition to be forced, such as pullets that are well along to maturity, and hens that have fully recovered from their molt and are again in good condition, increased feeding during the winter months is a good way to bring up production of the flock. One of the best of rations for the flock to bring them to better production is this one: Scratch Feed Mixture: Cracked corn, 2 pounds; wheat, 2 pounds; oats, 1 pound.

Mash: Bran, 100 pounds; wheat middlings, 100 pounds; buckwheat middlings, 100 pounds; ground oats, 100 pounds; oil meal, 50 pounds; salt, 8 pounds.

Practices in feeding that have been found to be the best, according to Hayes, include the feeding of grain in two or three portions during the day. The mash is the true "forcer" of the feed for the flock.

Rotting of Eggs Blamed on Carbon Dioxide Gas

According to a Cornell chemist, one of the chief reasons for the rotting of eggs is the escape of carbon dioxide gas through the shell. He discovered that newly laid eggs contain this gas in a limited quantity, but the porousness of the shell permits it to pass off within a short time.

He proved, however, that the egg would reabsorb the gas, and by exposing the shells to a minute quantity of carbon dioxide succeeded in keeping them fresh indefinitely. The cost of the treatment was said to be a few hundredths of a cent per dozen.

Fowls for Breeding

It is time to make the breeding pens. Select your best hens and confine them in small flocks of from 12 to 20, according to the breed, and place a good male in each pen. Have the hens in each pen as near alike as possible. If a number of males are allowed to run with a large flock you can never tell what the chicks will be when you select the eggs for hatching. Promiscuous breeding, even for utility stock, is never satisfactory for a profitable flock.

Management of Pullets

With regard to the management of the pullets, it will be advisable gradually to introduce the rations likely to be used during the laying period. Any change in the diet should be made before eggs are forthcoming in any large number.

All poultry keepers have difficulty in preventing the partial moult. While admitting that various factors may be responsible for this trouble, there is no doubt that management has much to do with it.

Bit of Old New York

Thirty or forty years ago what was popularly known as "The Tenderloin" centered about Herald square. It was the part of the town where the night life reached its climax and burned most fiercely. Everybody of any account visited the square, if only to see the two mechanical workmen atop the Herald building strike the hour of midnight on the faithful old clock that suddenly became illuminated in a weird red glow. Not far away was the West Thirtieth street police station, quite the busiest precinct in the city. From sunset to sunrise a thin, steady stream of humanity flowed into the station house.—New York Times.

What Money Really Is

Farran Zerbe, collector of the Chase National bank's collection of the monies of the world, received the best definition of money he ever heard years ago from a street urchin.

"I was lecturing at a school one day," he said, "and as I was leaving, one of the small boys who had listened to me was accompanying me out of the building. As he seemed a bright little fellow, I asked him what money was."

"His quick response was this: 'Money is what the other duffer takes for what you want.' There it is in a nutshell."

The Vanishing German

There are, even at this late date, five German bands in New York, and if you look hard enough you may find one playing on a street corner. But the business isn't what it used to be. Variety reports that the average income for each man in these bands was a dollar a day last year. They used to get "throw money" by playing in front of speakasies, but the police chased them away.

Al Fresco Dinner

Alexander Mazzone, a gatekeeper on the Long Island railroad, has a lunch hour from noon to 12:45 p. m. No trains pass his gate during that time, but Alexander feels that he should not leave his post even then.

So, promptly at noon, he gets out a folding table, sets it between the rails, spreads a cloth and serves himself a lunch. It is only fair, thinks Alexander, that he and not some foolish motorist should get bumped in case an unscheduled train should arrive during the noonday.

Unthinking Spenders

The spending of money is so easy among the liberal that they do not always reckon closely as to its source. For instance, there was Sir Francis Walsingham, who was Queen Elizabeth's secretary of state. "Few of her council," says Hallam, "imitated the noble disinterestedness of Walsingham, who spent his own estate in her service, and left not sufficient to pay his debts." Sir Francis, of course, in the generous outpouring of his heart and purse, had no thought that he was not merely spending his own money, but that of other people, or that, in his enthusiasm, he was guilty of bad faith to his creditors. There are many Sir Francis in the world, and sometimes they command a good deal of admiration and respect—until it comes to the settlement of their estates.—Indianapolis News.

KEYMAR.

Mr. John D. Engle died a his home, near this place, last Friday night, of complications, in his 74th year. He leaves a wife and one daughter, Miss Alice, at home. He was a devoted husband and father, and was a highly respected citizen and a friend of all who knew him. Funeral took place Monday morning, meeting at the house at 10 o'clock, with further services at the Beaver Dam Church of the Brethren. Burial in adjoining cemetery. Prof. Marshall Wolf, of Blue Ridge College, and Rev. Ernest Gernand, of Good-Intent, officiated. The funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends, and floral designs was many and beautiful.

David Leakins made a business trip to Westminster, last Saturday. The sick are all getting better, except Mrs. Cover. She had another bad spell and is confined to her room at this writing.

Mrs. Robert Galt attended the meeting at the Presbyterian Home of Maryland, Tuesday, at Towson, and reports it being a beautiful home and the only way for people to be interested in others is to visit the home. Mr. Galt and David Leakins accompanied Mrs. Galt to the home.

Those who attended the semi-annual meeting of the Carroll County Council of Home-makers' Clubs, held on Thursday, May 1st., in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Westminster, were: Mrs. Robert W. Galt, Mrs. Scott Koons, Mrs. Bessie Mehring, Mrs. George Koons, and Miss Estella Koons. The meeting was very interesting and the luncheon fine. Following the luncheon the Carroll County Home-makers' Club members visited the Westminster Better Homes Demonstration House. Many handsome and valuable antique pieces of furniture, tapestries, mirrors, and other articles of a century and more years ago are found in almost every room, and on the third floor hundreds of old rare and beautiful articles were on display. Mrs. Robert Galt was appointed chairman for the Better Home Week for this community, and as it seemed a big problem, decided to take a small part at the model home in Westminster by the club members, sending a few things and also two of the ladies, Mrs. Scott Koons and Mrs. R. W. Galt were hostesses on May 3, from 7 to 10 P. M.

Miss Jessie Shaw, of Baltimore, is spending some time with her friend, Mrs. W. H. Otto. Mrs. Marshall Bell and Mrs. Bessie D. Mehring, made a business trip to Waynesboro, last Saturday.

HOME-MAKERS' CLUBS HOLD SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING.

One hundred and fifty Carroll county Home-makers' attended the Home-makers' luncheon held in the social rooms of Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, on Thursday, May 1st.

A short business meeting preceded the luncheon. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Randall Spoerlein, and opened by singing "America." The minutes of the previous meeting held in November were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. Edgar Myers. Mrs. Asa Watkins, treasurer, reported a balance on hand and all bills paid.

The Council of Homemakers' Clubs voted to contribute toward the Rural Women's Club House Fund which the women attending the Rural Women's Short Course in the past years have started. The fund is being raised by the rural women of Maryland for a Rural Women's Club House to be erected at the University. It was voted to donate the money received from the sale of a farm magazine, sponsored by the Council of Homemakers' Clubs, as part of the Carroll County fund. The following individual clubs pledged a total of $165.00 toward the fund: Keymar, $25.00; Taneytown, $25.00; Woodbine, $25.00; Union Bridge, $25.00; Mt. Airy, $25.00; New Windsor, $25.00, and Manchester, $25.00.

Committees were appointed to make arrangements for the Homemakers' exhibit at the County Fair to be held August 11 to 16 and to make plans for the Home-makers' Picnic to be held August 20th. A nominating committee was also appointed to name candidates for the election of officers to be held at the fall meeting.

The main feature of the day's meeting was the Home-makers' luncheon. A delicious three-course luncheon was served by the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal choir. The tables were attractively decorated with apple blossoms, and nut baskets, and favors carried out further the pink and green color scheme. Each of the luncheon guests were presented with unique favors, small kitchen utensils.

Mrs. Randall Spoerlein acted as toastmistress. Miss Venia M. Keller, State Home Demonstration Agent, gave a pleasing address on "When Mother Steps Out," and Mrs. Harry Foster, President of the Washington County Council of Homemakers' Clubs spoke of the Extension work which is being done in Washington county.

The following Homemakers' Club members gave interesting talks on the various phases of home-making: Mrs. Allan Sanders, Taneytown; Mrs. V. C. Woodbridge, Mt. Airy; Mrs. Frances Rinehart, Keymar; Mrs. John Smith, Westminster; Mrs. Lloyd Spencer, Hillside; Mrs. J. W. Kelbaugh, Hampstead; Miss Marie Senseney, Union Bridge; Mrs. Russell Fleagle and Mrs. Thomas Fritz, New Windsor, and Mrs. Dorsey, Mt. Airy, entertained the group with musical selections. The meeting closed by singing "America the Beautiful," after which all the Homemakers' members were invited to Better Homes Demonstration House.

A land grant college is an educational institution which derives at least a part of its income from the sales and rentals of lands granted to the various states for educational purposes. There have been several land grant laws. The most important one, however, was passed about 1860. This law gave to each state 30,000 acres of land per representative. In this way if a state had ten representatives, it would have 300,000 acres of land, the income of which was to be used in supporting a free education institution for the people of that state. Practically all the state universities of today are land grant colleges, and there may be other institutions in the state such as technical and industrial schools which are practically supported in this manner also.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC.

Topic:—"Developing Good Will Through the Home." Sunday, May 11th.

Written by—Rev. J. H. Hoch, of Uniontown, Md.

How shall we force "a good-will" interpretation into this passage? The Mother should be the leader in developing "a good-will," but Naomi here tries to make both her daughters-in-law develop bad wills and succeeds with one girl. It is terrible that Naomi will have to answer in the judgment for sending Orpah back into a life of idolatry (vs. 15). Only the Grace of God saved Ruth. Good-will was later developed in the home of Ruth and Boaz.

Naomi went wrong by deserting the place where God had put her—in Palestine. When famine came, she went over into a heathen country, Moab. We suffer when we get out of God's place for us. Naomi lost husband and two sons. She ought to have trusted God to feed her in famine time. When she got back in God's place for her, God's Grace, and human good will began to develop.

Ideal home life is pictured in the latter part of the fifth Chapter of Ephesians and in the first part of the sixth Chapter—and its results from the walk of the Believer in the spirit. Eph. 5:18.

Sensitiveness to Pain Shown by Experiments

The conventional insult of slapping an enemy on the cheek was not so badly chosen if the intention was to hurt him, recent investigations of Professor Uginelli of Florence, Italy, have indicated, for human cheeks and foreheads turn out to be the most sensitive parts of the body to pain.

Least sensitive, on the other hand, are the outer sides of the arms; perhaps a consequence of the years of evolution during which the outer arm has been used habitually to ward off blows or to protect more sensitive parts of the body. The sense of pain in the skin is not quite the same, experts know, as the sense of touch.

The touch sense is tested by determining how close together two points like pin points may be and still be distinguished as two separate points instead of one. Sensitivity to pain, on the other hand, is tested by the severity which a pin prick or a small pinch or a sharp blow must have in order to seem painful.

Individuals vary in their sensitivity to pain, Professor Uginelli finds, just as one individual's pain sense differs on different parts of his body. Contrary to the conventional idea that women form the more sensitive sex, another conclusion from Professor Uginelli's tests is that women feel pain about one-tenth less severely, on the average, than do men.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

W. B. SEELEY, noted ruptured expert, famous for his ability and skill in handling difficult cases, will personally be at the Hotel Francis Scott Key, Frederick, Tuesday, May 13th., only, 10 A. M. to 6 P. M., where those desiring to escape a surgical operation may consult him without charge.

Mr. Seeley says the patented rupture retainers he now uses will hold bad ruptures with ease, will strengthen tissues, cause muscles to contract and close opening. Any position of the body—any kind of work can be undertaken with safety.

For two generations we have cared for many thousands in every walk of life. Physicians and Surgeons as well as Financiers and Farmers; U. S. Government Employees in Army, Navy, Postoffice and Department of State; Men, Women and Children.

CAUTION—Elastic trusses with leg straps should never be used; they squeeze the delicate parts against bone and slowly produce dangerous complications necessitating operation.

Master your rupture now. It will be too late after Strangulation sets in, operations that have torn out will be given special attention.

Twins, Triplets and Some Quadruplets

New Haven.—It's no real thrill for Michael Salzo to be told he's the proud father once again. His wife, Josephine, thirty-nine, just presented to him twins. In some families that's news, but not in the Salzo family, for look at the Salzo birth chart:

1912—Married; 1914—Carmel (died); 1915—Carmel; 1916—Phillip and Mary (twins); 1917—Tony; 1919—Anna; 1920—Tony; 1922—Michael, Sally, James and Angelina (quadruplets); 1923—Peter; 1924—James, Helen and Angelina (triplets); 1925—William; 1930—Twins (unnamed as yet).

Of the eighteen children, nine are living. There have been two sets of twins, a set of triplets and a set of quadruplets. Of the quadruplets, all are dead except the boy, Michael.

The triplets died soon after birth. Of the first set of twins, Mary died when she was thirteen months old.

Winning the Battle

One of the most difficult tasks for human beings is to admit faults; probably more difficult for women than for men. I do not believe I could have been as humble as I am had I been born a woman; I should have been inevitably influenced some by the story of Helen of Troy, so beautiful, so charming, so appealing, that a great war was fought over her. In a smaller way there is war over every woman. Her courtiers are the ice man, the milk man, the grocery man, every man she meets. The compliments paid Helen have come down to us in a book, and we use them; clumsily, perhaps, but with sufficient efficiency to win many battles.—Howe's Monthly.

Rats Went Nutting

Stories of rats invading houses in the country because they are suffering from thirst leave me a little doubtful, says a correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle. But I do know for certain that these animals will force their way into cellars in large numbers when there is anything there to tempt their appetites. For example, a parson had just gathered his walnuts, and stored them away. Rats got to know of it, and so many of them were told that in one night the whole of his tree's harvest vanished. Some animals keep news of such finds to themselves, but the rat, with all his faults, is hospitable—in the case of other people's goods!

An Old Friend

The very mean young lover approached the darling of his heart. "Did you have any Christmas cards?" he asked.

"Yes, several," replied the young lady. "There was one I liked especially. It wasn't signed—I thought that very artistic. I think you must have sent it."

"Really," exclaimed the youth happily. "What makes you think that?" "Well, you see," smiled the girl very sweetly, "because I remember sending it to you last Christmas."

Nothing to Play With

Emerson's Taste for Pie

In "Emerson, the Wisest American," Phillips Russell calls attention to the New Englander's traditional love of pie for breakfast. Emerson, he asserts, began nearly every day of his life with a noble segment of pie, even when traveling and lecturing in the West. Today, however, this custom is practically extinct, despite all reports to the contrary, being found only on a few remote farms or in little Cape Cod villages.

Poem on Tobacco

The authors of the time of Elizabeth and James I often gave quaint and ridiculous titles to their books. Among others is found Joshua Sylvester, a puritanical poet, who wrote a poem against tobacco, which bears this title: "Tobacco battered, and the Pipes shattered about their Ears that idly idolize so loathsome a Vanity, by a Volley of holy Shot thundered from Mount Helicon."

Be It Never So Humble

You know the old saying about what half of the world doesn't know about the other half. For better understanding, then, let's look into how a few millionaires live.

Mr. E. F. Hutton's little flat is a mere triplex. According to report, neither Mr. Hutton, the chief housekeeper nor the architect knows exactly how many rooms there are, but the estimate is 65. The rent is reported to be $75,000 a year.

Arthur Brisbane's triplex apartment was to have had 63 rooms, but Mr. Brisbane wanted larger chambers. So there are only 40. The living room is two stories high, 60 feet long, and has a log burning fireplace in either end.

One of the new buildings going up is a large affair of fourteen stories—yet it will contain only seven apartments. But what apartments! Many of the new developments along the East river feature private yacht landings, gymnasiums and swimming pools. J. H. Carpenter has one with gold doorknobs.

Aerial Campus

Coming to modern times, we find that the campus of New York university is on the fortieth floor of the Woolworth building. The topmost three floors of the Chrysler building—the sixty-sixth, seventh and eighth, will be occupied by the Cloud club, an exclusive restaurant. A twenty-one year lease has been signed, the total rental being more than $4,000,000.

Across Forty-second street, and slightly lower, is the tea room on the fifty-sixth and topmost floor of the Chanin building. There is an outdoor promenade around this floor. Two or three stories below is a tiny theater, the highest in the world.

The fifty-third floor of the Lincoln building, near Grand Central, is three stories high, and was designed to be a gymnasium. It may, however, be converted to other uses. At the fifteenth level of the skyscraper at 1 Wall Street is a lounge for tired bankers.

And the rent, so high up? It is almost four times the rent on lower floors.

Homelike

Will James, the celebrated cowboy author-artist who wrote "Smoky" and other horse stories that have gone over big, was in New York recently. "Bill," as he is known to his friends, spent years in the saddle as a cowboy, roaming all over the cattle states of the West. Now he has a big ranch in Montana and spends most of his winters writing at San Antonio.

"Bill" invited me to his room at the Algonquin, and when he opened the door and I stepped in, I stepped on a Navajo blanket and spied another one on a couch.

"I always carry 'em with me when I travel," said James. "They're the only things that will keep me from getting so homesick that I'd hit the trail right out for the West."

Sam White smelled a fire the other day and turned in an alarm. He was in a building at the foot of Manhattan, and in that district a single alarm brings out more apparatus than two or three would farther uptown. When a dozen or so pieces of fire-fighting machinery had arrived Sam discovered that the fire had been in the rear of his trousers. He had put his pipe in his hip pocket. Naturally, the newspapers made much of the story.

The next day a veteran newspaper man told me that none had written so clever a headline as a friend of his had written twenty years ago concerning a similar occurrence. The headline was: "Sixty Firemen Rush to Blaze in One Pair of Pants."

St. Louis Soon to Have Many New Hospitals

St. Louis, Mo.—With hospital construction totaling $10,000,000 scheduled for completion during 1930, and five hospitals erected during the last five years at a cost of $7,500,000, St. Louis is experiencing a phenomenal development of hospital facilities comparable to any city in the United States.

Had His Coming and Going

A policeman on crossing duty caught a small car sneaking past his upraised arm. He jerked a thumb to command the driver to pull in to the curb, and he went across to thrash the matter out with the culprit.

A minute later he returned to his post, looking furious. A passer-by asked him what was the matter.

"Matter?" he stormed. "There's an old fool about ninety years old in that car. First he tells me he didn't notice the signal, because he can't see any too well, and when I told him to get some glasses I couldn't make him hear me!"

"In Spite of the Devil"

Historic Stream Sees Engineering Feat

SPUYTEN DUYVIL, the brackish and frequently turbulent body of water separating Manhattan from the mainland, which was the setting for one of the best legends of the early Dutch colonists, was the scene a few days ago of an engineering feat that is attracting widespread interest.

Something of the same spirit of determination which fired the hapless Dutch trumpeter, central figure in this legend, from whose exploit Spuyten Duyvil got its name, was displayed by the engineers who directed this operation.

Trumpeter Drowned

According to the story which has survived since the days when New York was the village known as "New Amsterdam," upon the sighting of the hostile British fleet entering the harbor, this trumpeter was dispatched to warn and summon the upland farmers to the defense of the settlement. Reaching the stream, he found its waters so rough that no one would undertake to ferry him across. Whereupon he is reputed to have exclaimed that he would cross "in spite of the devil," and plunging into the water, was drowned in a vain attempt to swim to the opposite bank.

The distance across the stream, now equally well known as the Harlem Ship Canal, is approximately six hundred feet. A problem for the trumpeter, these six hundred feet also have been a problem for some weeks past for the engineering department of the New York Central Railroad. All the high tension lines necessary to supply electricity for the entire west side improvement of the railroad had to cross Spuyten Duyvil. Obviously they must be linked to the lines on both banks in a manner that would preclude all possibility of interruption of service.

The lines, of course, had to go under the canal. Submarine cables were not considered because of the ever-present danger of fouling. Similarly, certain types of piping were discarded because of the danger of broken joints and leakage. The long duct lines had to be bent many degrees to fit the contours of the riverbed. Yet another consideration that had to be met was that resulting from the high corrosive action of the salt water. It was a large undertaking.

Choose Old Metal

The material that finally provided the railroad engineers with the means for successful solution of their problem was one that was well known, and prized for its strength and rust-resisting qualities even in Colonial times. A total of 23,400 feet of heavy wrought iron piping were ordered by the engineers. This material, perhaps the oldest of metals, seems to defy time and the elements.

Delicate Operation

Assembled into lengths of 650 feet, the thirty-six ducts were yoked together with wrought iron bolts in four layers of nine lengths to the row. Then, filled with oil to ease the operation of drawing the power lines through, the piping was placed on barges which brought the many-ton load into position over a previously dredged trench. Bent to conform to the bottom of the stream, the great bundle of piping was then lowered under the supervision of a diver who guided the operations by signals from the under-water trench.

Since traffic on the canal had to be suspended, a Sunday was chosen for the operation which was completed by the Merritt, Chapman and Scott Corporation in less than a day.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT HEADQUARTERS

Let cold figures prove the economy of SWP

Here are facts on painting, which we can prove by the simplest arithmetic. SWP is the most economical paint you can put on your house. It costs more per gallon, of course. But did you ever stop to think of how much extra surface a gallon of SWP covers? Mark this—a gallon of SWP will thoroughly cover almost twice as much surface as cheaper paint. Therefore far fewer gallons of SWP are needed. In addition, SWP lasts twice as long as cheaper paint—saves repair bills by giving full protection to the surface—and its rich, weather-proof colors retain their beauty to the end. Come in and let our figures prove it.

Specify SWP and engage a good painter

Haag Electric Washers

IN buying a low-priced washer remember that its price, alone, does not establish its value. How does it compare with higher-priced washers in efficiency—in speed—in mechanical construction—in length of life? Measure its worth on these points!

No Haag washer has ever been built to a price. The Haag reputation for building fine washers is the safest and soundest guarantee of quality. Just compare the model 55 with other washers selling at anything approaching its low price. Where else can you find such astonishing value?

Look at its sturdy construction—the strong frame, the well-built, ample-size tub, the rigid assembly. See how simple is its mechanical principle—fewer parts to wear. It's as fool-proof and trouble-free as a washer can be made.

Ask to be shown its modern features. With this washer, you know, soaking, boiling, or hand-rubbing is no longer necessary. You'll be interested, too, in the labor-saving conveniences this washer affords.

Then, the price. How can it be possible! Surely, there is no reason why you need deprive yourself, even for another week, of the comfort that can now be yours. Arrange, now, to come in and let us demonstrate this Haag washer.

Lesson for May 11

JESUS ACCLAIMED AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:1-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—Hosanna to the son of David. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Children's Praise Song.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Hailing Jesus as King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Making Christ Our King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-
IC—Making Christ Our King.

I. The Preparation (vv. 1-6).
1. The sending of the disciples for the ass (vv. 1-3).

Christ told them just where to go to find it and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly Jesus knows our ways. The providing of the animal was not man's plan, but according to Christ's foreknowledge.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy
(vv. 4, 5).

Some five hundred years before this, Zechariah had made this prediction (Zech. 9:9). Christ's coming in this way was in exact fulfillment of Zechariah's prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand as yet unfulfilled prophecy. If the predictions of His first coming were thus literally fulfilled, there is no alternative but to believe that those of His second coming will likewise be literally fulfilled.

3. The obedience of the disciples
(v. 6).

The request may have seemed strange and unreasonable, but they obeyed.

II. The Entrance of the King (vv.
7-11).

1. The disciples put their garments upon the ass and set the Lord thereon (v. 7).

This act showed that they recognized Him as their King (II Kings 9:13).

2. The multitude (vv. 8, 9).

Some spread their garments in the way; others who had no garments to spare, cut down branches and did the same with them.

3. The city awakened (vv. 10, 11).
It was a stirring time, but a more stirring time is to come. This will be when the Lord comes in power and glory.

III. The King Rejected (vv. 12-16).

The immediate occasion of this rejection was the cleansing of the temple. To sell oxen and sheep and doves was legitimate, as well as to exchange money in doing it, but doing it for gain was wrong. As soon as the spirit of avarice enters, the house of prayer becomes a den of thieves.

IV. The Nation Rejected by the King (vv. 17-46).

Having shown their unwillingness to receive Christ as King when officially presented to them, Christ now turns from them and makes known their awful condition in the following parables:

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv.
17-22).

It was on the morrow after his official presentation as He was returning from Jerusalem that Jesus observed the unfruitful fig tree. The barren fig tree is a type of Israel. With its leaves, it gave a show of life, but being destitute of fruit, it had no right to cumber the ground.

2. The parable of the two sons
(vv. 28-32).

Both sons were told by the father to work in the vineyard. The one refused outright to obey, but afterwards repented and went. The other pretended a willingness to obey, but in reality did not. The first one represents the publicans and harlots. The second the proud and self-righteous Pharisees—priests and elders.

3. The parable of the householder
(vv. 30-46).

(1) This was God Himself. (2)
The vineyard. This means Israel (Isa. 5:1-7, Jer. 2:21, Ps. 80:9).
The Lord went to particular pains to gather out this nation and make it separate, bestowing peculiar favors upon it. This vineyard so well kept and provided for, did not bear fruit.
(3) The husbandmen. These were the spiritual guides—the rulers and teachers of Israel. (4) The servants were sent for the fruit of the vineyard.
These were the various prophets whom God sent to the nation. They were beaten and killed. (5) The Lord Jesus Christ, God's only and beloved Son, came into their midst. They knew Him to be the Son, but did not show Him reverence. They not only rejected the kingdom, but the King who was the Son.

A Great Will

Look at a great life, and you will find a great will behind it. But it is not self-will; it is a will attuned to that of God. Therefore it goes forward on the road of victory.—Young People.

Believing in God

There is nothing, in fact, that you can undertake with so great hopefulness and assurance as a victory over yourself if only you can believe in God.—Horace Bushnell.

Old Wooden Waterpipes
Workmen at Skowhegan, Maine, excavating for a new theater building, came upon a wooden water pipe, sound and firm, estimated to be nearly 100 years old. Elderly New Englanders recall when most water pipes were logs with a hole bored through. One end of the log was pointed, while the other end was hollowed out. Water could be carried long distances through such pipes with little leakage, for the moisture kept the wood swollen and the joints tight.

She Wouldn't Be There

The late Sir Beerbohm Tree, the famous actor-manager, was once passing into Gloucester cathedral to attend a festival. He heard a man arguing excitedly with a steward, who refused to let him enter without his ticket, which he declared he had lost.
Losing his temper, the disappointed one demanded rhetorically, "Do you think tickets will be required to enter heaven?" "Possibly not, sir," was the reply, "but madame—will not be singing there."—The Churchman.

"Voices" of Snakes

No snake has a voice in the generally accepted sense of that term as applied to animals and human beings, says an article in Pathfinder Magazine. Naturalists do not credit the reports of snakes that bleat like a deer, purr like a cat, cough like a monkey, or make other vocal sounds.
Some species of snakes, such as the boa constrictors, pythons and the little American puffing adders, are able to make a hissing noise, which is produced by the air rushing from the throat when the lungs are inflated.
This, according to the Smithsonian Institution, is the only "voice" possessed tling noise by vibrating the tips of their tails.

Soviet Women Give Up Jewels to Aid Country

Moscow.—Women in a number of Soviet cities are reported to be voluntarily giving up their jewels towards a fund to assist the industrialization of the country.

A movement for the collection of jewels was started in Ribinsk and the idea spread to other cities. Bracelets, rings, necklaces and other items were contributed by housewives and office workers in Ribinsk.

The press is especially pleased to find among the contributed items jewel encrusted crosses. The sacrifices of these crosses serves at the same time the anti-religious and the industrialization drives.

Boy's Dog Held Immune

Little Rock, Ark.—"You can't part the kid from his pup," Attorney General Hal Norwood said in declaring the state dog tax unconstitutional.
Scores of boys wrote him letters of thanks.

Novice's Gold Strike Lures Prospectors

Wickenburg, Ariz.—Jack Gardner, building contractor, who turned to prospecting and made a gold strike in the desert after the recent stock market crash took all his money, recently had become a Pied Piper with a pick.

Business men, clerks, school teachers, tourists and laborers, were following Gardner's trail into the newly discovered diggings located within two miles of the old Vulture mine, which a few years ago was a bonanza.
Gardner's pick uncovered gold ore which was said to assay $100,000 a ton.

Friendship
by Lawrence Hawthorne

Just about the finest thing
That the fleeting years can bring
Is the comfort of a friendship staunch and true!
Life is full of happiness,
But all other joys mean less Than the kindly deeds a friendly hand will do.

Wealth and fame are dearly bought
If their benefits are sought
At the sacrifice of loyal, helpful friends;
And the saddest man I know
Is the one compelled to go
All alone to where his earthly journey ends.

Friendship lights the darkest day,
And the rough and weary way
Is made pleasant by the sunshine of a smile;
Every joy brings twice the cheer
When the folks we love are near,
And our friends make all our blessings more worth-while.

A Two-Dollar Dinner for Six

THERE'S no fooling about the fact that the following menu will make a delicious dinner for six people which will cost only two dollars if you market carefully.

Pimiento Bouillon	$.025
Eggs and Asparagus Espanol	.90
Buttered Rice Paprika	.16
Chickory with French Dress- ing	.20
Figs Stuffed with Cream Cheese	.44
Black Coffee	.05
Total	$2.00

Pimiento Bouillon: Combine two cans bouillon, two cups water, and one whole pimiento, finely diced (a quarter of a 7½-ounce can). Add seasonings, such as salt and kitchen bouquet, simmer five minutes, and serve in cups.
Eggs and Asparagus Espanol:
Sauté two tablespoons chopped onion and two tablespoons chopped green pepper in two tablespoons butter until tender. Add the contents of one No. 2 can of tomatoes and one No. 2 can of peas, and let cook until rather thick. Season to taste with salt and pepper, pour into six shallow baking dishes or ramekins (preferably the pottery ones with handles), and break one egg on top of each. Arrange the contents of a 15-ounce can of asparagus tips on top, and place in a moderate oven until the eggs are set. Serve right from the dishes.

Figs Stuffed with Cream Cheese:
Drain a one-pound can of figs, cut a gash in each, and remove a small amount of the inside. Refill with one cream cheese, mashed and creamed and mixed with the figs from the center. Chill. Serve two figs to each person, with a little of the fig syrup, if desired. Serve with hot, toasted saltines.*

Sexes Separate in Church

Dr. Thomas M. Strong, in 1842 pastor of the Old Dutch Reformed church, which stands at the intersection of Church and Flatbush avenues in Brooklyn, N. Y., once wrote of the interior structure of the second church built on that historic site:

"The male part of the congregation was seated in a continuous pew all along the wall, divided into 20 apartments, with a sufficient number of doors for entrance, each person having one or more seats in one or the other of these apartments. The residue of the interior of the building was for the accommodation of the female part of the congregation, who were seated on chairs."

Einstein Plays Violin at Charity Concert

Berlin.—A surprise greeted the audience at a recent benefit concert in a Berlin synagogue. The program announced that the famous singer, Herman Jadowker and "the well-known violinist, Albert Einstein," would appear.

The audience was somewhat surprised to see that the "well known violinist" was none other than the founder of the theory of relativity, Prof. Albert Einstein. Einstein plays the violin very well, and he also appears from time to time on concert platforms for benevolent purposes.

Sicily in History

Greek and Phoenician colonies were established in Sicily in the Eighth century B. C. at Naxos and elsewhere.
Sicily thus became divided into several states and independent cities. The tyrant Gelon a little later transferred his government to Syracuse, which became for the time the most important Greek city in Sicily. Meanwhile the Carthaginians had also made settlements in the island at Panormus, Motya and Soloi. Wars between the Greeks and Carthaginians followed. In each, success favored now one one side and now the other. In 383 B. C. a peace was made between the rivals.
Sicily became a Roman province in 246 B. C.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

J. Frank Null left at our office a few days ago, a stalk of barley in full head, that measured almost three feet in height. He says that the growing wheat looks better than for many years, considering both high and low land and that prospects are for a fine crop.

Lighted cigarette stubs are many times more dangerous as a cause of fire than cigar stubs. The latter are apt to go out quickly when thrown away, but a cigarette stub will burn up to the last particle. Try laying a stub of each on a board, and see the difference in their effect.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hockensmith, on Sunday, were: Rev. and Mrs. Walter Weybright, of Oakland, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Earlington Shriver, daughters, Mildred, Rosella, sons George, Chas. and Paul, near Harney, and Mr. and Mrs. Loy Hess and family, near town.

Recent additional contributors to the Children's Aid Fund from Taneytown have been, Mrs. Maurice C. Duttera, Miss Eliza Birnie, Mrs. Clyde Hesson, Mrs. Allen Feaser, Mrs. Allen Sanders, Miss Anna Davidson $1.00 each; Mrs. Edgar Essig, $2.00; Rev. Guy P. Bready, $3.00; Birnie Trust Co., $5.00, making a total of $98.00.

Mrs. William Bricker, Mrs. Walter Bower, Mrs. Allen Sanders, Mrs. Bernard Arnold, Mrs. Clyde L. Hesson, Miss Mary Fringer, Mrs. C. T. Fringer, all of town, and Mrs. Mary Wentz, of Lineboro, (a visitor at the Fringer home), attended a May-day luncheon held in the social hall of the M. E. Church, by the Westminster Home-makers' Club.

The special Sunday School programs and services, held last Sunday afternoon and evening, in the United Brethren Church, were largely attended, the auditorium being well filled at both. Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Fultz delivered the morning address, and Rev. C. O. Sullivan, the evening address. Music was furnished by the Bair Station orchestra and male chorus.

At the corporation election, on Monday, the old board of town officials was re-elected, without any organized contest. A number of "cuts" were registered, but no separate ticket was in the field. The board is as follows: Burgess, Maurice C. Duttera; Commissioners, Claudius H. Long, David H. Hahn, Dr. C. M. Benner, Norville P. Shoemaker and Wm. D. Ohler.

Harry Smith, near town, had his car badly broken up, on Saturday night, as the result of colliding with another car when he attempted to turn into his lane. A state policeman was summoned to the scene, but no action was taken as both parties agreed to make settlement out of court. The other car was from Reisterstown, and also badly damaged. Both cars had to be towed to the garage.

Mrs. Walter Bower, Mrs. Clarence Eckard, Mrs. Laura Reindollar and Miss Mabel Leister, attended the Lutheran Women's Missionary Conference of the Maryland Synod at Woodbine, Wednesday.

Rev. Geo. A. Brown, of Newburg, Pa., was in town early this week, and took back with him Mrs. Brown and son, Ross, who had been visiting in this section. Their many friends were glad to meet them again.

Mrs. Norval Shoemaker accompanied Mr. Shoemaker home, on Sunday, after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bigham, at New Oxford and helping to care for their son, William, who had been ill, but is improving.

Some organized effort has been made to place a Carroll County baseball league in the field, this summer. So far as Taneytown is concerned, the outlook is not very encouraging, largely on account of the scarcity of strong local players.

The usual Decoration Day observance will be held in Taneytown, likely on Friday, the 30th. Some think that on account of President Hoover being in Gettysburg on that day, it might be best to hold the services here on Sunday afternoon. A more definite statement will be made next week.

The continuous hot and dry spell, that has now reached a duration of nearly three weeks, is most unusual for this time in the year. The grass crop is suffering, as well as the early planted corn and the gardens. The heat during the day has reached from 90° to 92° for the past two weeks, and the nights have been as hot as mid-summer.

William Rittase, Taneytown, has a curious book, that may be called an art album, the work in which was done by his grand-father, back early in the 1800's. Beautiful specimens of German text writing of a very ornamental character, are found in the book, as well as full page quill drawings of the early Presidents and prominent army officers. A German student would be able to interpret the writing easily as it is executed equal to engraving, or the finest penmanship. It is a real specimen of old-time art.

DRUDGERY IN THE HOME.

Fourteen million five hundred thousand electric flat irons are now smoothing out the wrinkles in American homes while nearly 6,000,000 vacuum cleaners are making those same homes more cleanly, according to figures recently made public.

We are also told that there are now 1,500,000 electric refrigerators in use in the approximately 20,000,000 homes equipped for electric service. These wired homes, in which electricity in some form is used, represent a greater part of all the homes and farms in the country.

Which would indicate that we are well on the way towards the elimination of as much as possible of the drudgery of the home.

Strange to say, this does not seem to be the case. The Society of Electrical Development points out that only 12.5 percent of available electricity production is consumed in the home.

No doubt when the average American housewife finally realizes how much of the drudgery of her home work can be taken away by following the lead of her husband, who uses in his factories and his office every possible labor saving device, there will be a different story to tell.

For the present, however, it would seem that, while the work of our men is being steadily made lighter by the adoption of these modern inventions, the conservatism of our housewives is keeping them at the handles of their brooms and other back-breaking instruments of ancient vintage.—From the Atlanta, Georgia, Constitution.

Fine. A motor car that would obey the driver's voice.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Weybright, of near Oakland, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hockensmith, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracey Stafford, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Linden Stafford, of Choptank, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stonesifer.
