THE "FOURTH" DANGERS COMING AGAIN.

Some Warning "Don'ts" that are Worth Observing,

While most towns have ordinances against the use of fire-works, fire-crackers, and other explosives, there is still the chance that some on the outside of prohibited areas may feel that "the Fourth" can not be fittingly celebrated without a lot of sputter and noise, and to these, especially, we commend the reading of the following "Don'ts," some of which do not relate to fireworks.

Don't forget that the first proof of Fourth of July patriotism is home protection.

Don't shut your eyes to real Fourth of July hazards; fireworks, automobiles, drownings, fire, firearms.

Don't fail to talk frankly with your children, tell them why fireworks are always dangerous. Don't neglect to teach your children that patriotism does not consist in noise and life hazards.

Don't forget that it is worth a real effort to plan with your children a Fourth of July celebration that is exciting but not hazardous.

Don't fail to prove your community patriotism, by helping with a worth while community celebration.

Don't forget, above all, that most Fourth of July accidents can be pre-

Don't let children play with match-s. Keep matches out of their reach. Don't let children throw sparklers. They remain hot for some time and are very dangerous.

WEYBRIGHT REUNION.

On Sunday, June 22, the descendants of the late Samuel and Mary Ann Waybright held their annual reunion at the home of S. R. Wey-bright and wife, near Detour. A very pleasant day was spent on the spacious lawn where a bountiful dinner was served.

In the afternoon, John S. Weybright, of Thurmont, had charge of an informal program given by members of the family. This reunion was especially enjoyable, held as it was at the old home farm where the late Samuel Weybright was born.

Strongest marketing programs that has ever been offered.

Provision has been made to supply meals and lodging at the University for the four days at a small cost of $5.00, and it is expected that delegations from each county and each organization will take advantage of the opportunity.

Baltimore has the first spelling club organized in the United States and until a few years ago, it was the only such organization in the country. So successful has been its spelling contests that the body has become nationally known.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS FOR ANY DAY.

I will study the language of gentlemen, and refuse to use words that bite and tones that crash.

I will practice patience at home, lest my temper break through unexpectedly and disgrace me. I will remember that my neighbors have troubles enough, without unloading mine on them.

will excuse others' faults and failures, as often and fully as I expect others to be lenient with mine. I will be a friend under trying tests, and wear everywhere a good-will face unchilled by aloofness.

I will love boys and girls so that age will not find me stiff and soured. I will gladden my nature by smiling out loud on every fair occasion. and by overlooking optimistically.

I will pray frequently, think go things, believe in men, and do a full day's work without fear or favor.-The Great Western.

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE During a Heavy Thunder Storm on Tuesday Evening.

The barn on the farm of Verne Riding, near Harney, was struck by light-ning, during the severe thunder storm on Tuesday evening about 5 o'clock, and was completely destroyed with its contents of hay and some farming implements. The Taneytown Fire Company was called but could do nothing toward saving the barn, but the firemen did help to save the adiaining helidings.

the firemen did help to save the adjoining buildings.

The storm had the appearance of being a destructive wind-storm but passed by as a severe thunder storm, with but little wind and a very heavy rain. It appeared to cover a circle a few miles wide, with Taney-town as a centre. No serious dame town as a centre. No serious damage is reported to the grain fields.

MARKET CONFERENCE PLANS.

Every phase of the problems conected with marketing farm products will be given time for discussion at the Farmers' Marketing Conference, which is to be held at the University of Maryland on August 12 to 15, ac-cording to Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension. Arrangement of a full program for the four days is almost complete and an exceptional number of outstanding authorities have been secured to lead in the discussions and give the benefit of their experience. A number of members and representatives of the Federal Farm Board will be present to explain the plans and be present to explain the plans and purposes of that agency, which has been in operation for a year and from which farmers are expecting substantial assistance in solving their mark-

The plan of the conference provides for general sessions in the forenoon of each day at which topics will be discussed which apply to the marketing of all kinds of farm products. Each afternoon those in attendance will divide themselves into groups and discuss the problems that apply to the particular products in which they are especially interested.

Nationally recognized specialists in various phases of marketing, managers of successful co-operative marketing organizations, leaders of the co operative marketing movement in Maryland, together with ample opportunity for questions and general discussion, from what those in charge of ar-rangements believe is one of the Spelling Club.

To the endeavors of the Waverly Spelling Club in maintaining a high standard in the correct spelling of words; to the influence which it has (perhaps unconsciously) exerted in this direction, and from the wide-spread knowledge of its work—its ad-mirers attribute the national interest so evident the last few years in spelling contests of various forms held all over the country.

The Waverly Club in its affairs usually puts about twenty-two members on the platform. These represent the cream—so to speak—of its membership and they are the result of an intensive and selective drilling and training at the club meetings, prior to the contests. Meetings are held at regular intervals prior to a big match. There is a different teacher for each meeting, which last about two hours. New members of the club are taken on trial. They are passed upon by a committee and if found not up to the standard of the club's requirements, they are so informed. At each meeting of the club an average of four hundred words are spelled.

The Waverly Spelling Club was undefeated in spelling contests for thirtry years. Three years ago, the Washington Club proved the Waterloo of the Baltimore Club and defeated it in a contest held in Baltimore. The Baltimore Club timore Club eager for revenge went to Washington for another contest and again was defeated. Now every member of the Waverly Club and their friends are thirsting for victory and all are on tiptoe for the next contest which will be held on October 7 root. This battle of words will be next. This battle of words will be held again with the Capital city team. -Baltimore Municipal Journal.

FINE WHEAT CROP.

Wheat harvesting commenced in this county the first of this week,following the barley harvest of last week. Reports from different localities are that the yield will be an average one and the quality good. The wheat came through the winter in good shape have a single production. good shape, but was given a set-back by the drouth; late rains, however, helped its growth. Some reports are that the yield and quality will be above the average.

The outlook for canning corn is poor. Planting was late, and the drouth came along before the plants came to strong healthy growth. Some fields, in some localities, promise a normal yield, but the crop in general will need to greatly improve to be an

PRESIDENT VETOES VETERAN'S BILL.

House Sustains Veto and Immediately Passes New Bill.

Notwithstanding the protests of President Hoover, the Senate, on Monday, passed the World War Vet-erans' bill by a vote of 66 to 6. The vote for, was 33 Republicans, 32 Democrats, 1 Farmer-Labor; the 6 votes against, were Republicans.

The bill, a modification of the measure passed by the House, liberalized existing law by providing a presumption of service connection for disabilities acquired prior to January 1, 1930, and added a long list of new diseases for classification as of service origin. Its first year's added cost is estimated at $102,000,000. President Hoover had warned that if the measure were passed in this form it implied "positive increase of taxation at

The President promptly vetoed the bill. He termed it "bad legislation," on the ground that it places any soldier who has incurred any ailment, since the war, no matter what the cause, on the same basis as the man who suffered in the trenches from actual battle. The bill, as passed, is opposed even by Veterans' Associa-

The House sustained the veto, practically reversing its vote for the bill.

The House then rushed through a new bill, making it easy for all veterans to get pensions; a bill that would cost the country greatly more than the vetoed bill. What the Senate will do with it, and what will be the President's attitude toward it, remains to

For success in home canning of string beans, corn, peas—in fact all vegetables except tomatoes—the canner should provide the high temperature of the steam pressure canner. Troublesome bacteria are likely to lurk in these nonacid vegetables, and unless killed by adequate processing, they will cause the canned foods to spoil. The U.S. Department of Agriculture, with its nation-wide view of the home canning question, strongly recommends the steam pressure method for all nonacid vegetables. Time tables are sent free on request from Washington.

Spiced cherries, preserved with vinegar, make a good relish. Here's a recipe: Wash and pit large, sour,red cherries. Add three-fourths of their weight or measure of sugar. Sprinkle the sugar over the fruit in layers and let them stand overnight. In the morning stir until the sugar is dissolved and then press the juice well from the cherries. Tie a small quantity of whole spices in a loose cheesecloth bag, drop this into the juice, and boil it down until it is three-fourths of the original quantity. Pour hot over the drained cherries and add 2 tablespoons of vinegar to each pint. Seal and keep two weeks before using.

A GIRL—AND A CHASE.

Two rival lover's raced to the finish in a thrilling seven-mile chase from Frederick early Friday morning, ending their dash when the car of leading Romeo plunged down a bank just before they reached Middletown No one was injured and the man with the girl escaped his pursuer.

Late Thursday night Lawrence Hickman, a former employe of Casa Loma, Braddock Heights, brought his girl friend, Miss Mary Smith, also an employe at the resort, to Frederick in an automobile. He had borrowed the car from Hugh Y. English, a former teacher of his at a county school, who had just returned to Frederick from the University of Florida. Hickman had sought the use of the car, and English obligingly gave his consent for its use. The couple visited friends on Sixth street, and all were enjoying the evening when Mary's second lover arrived from Brunswick. He had called for her at Braddock Heights and learned where she and Hickman had When he reached Frederick he was not in the happiest of mind. He crashed the party on Sixth street, and demanded that Mary leave. Mary left, but it was not as he had wished Before he knew what was happening, she was in the car with Hickman, headed back for home. The Brunswick youth sensed the situation and followed in his machine. Then the race began. It continued with threatening whoop and answer of derision, until a curve near Middletown, not construct ed for racing purposes, was reached. Over went Miss Smith and Hickman. Before the second rival could stop, they had jumped from the car and vanished. The Brunswick youth, name unknown, returned home.

Two motorcyclists, who heard the flying challenges along the road, came upon the overturned car, and notified Officer M. D. Brubaker of the State Police, who traced the car by its numbers. He found English, who by that time was wondering what had become of the machine. The matter become of the machine. The matter reached People's Court Saturday morning, but since no charge was placed against Hickman, and there could be none against the car's own er, the matter ended as abruptly as did the chase.-Frederick News.

The reception of Admiral Byrd, hero of South Pole explorations, con-tinued in Washington last Friday, where his reception, though less spec-acular than in New York, was nevertheless most impressive and hearty. "But of deeper meaning is the fact that every man who started out with me has returned—that we left not a single man on the ice—that every one is here tonight—such a thing satisfies the heart."

Richmond gave the hero of the state a great welcome in every way; a military parade, and officially presented him, with a sword voted to him by the General Assembly of the state, as a culminating feature of the day that was full of every event that the Old Dominion could plan. ### WARNING TO DOG OWNERS.

Dog owners in the counties of Maryland are hereby warned that a campaign has been started by State Game Warden, E. Lee LeCompte to vigor-ously prosecute individuals who permit their dogs to run at large between now and the first of September. Fines violation of this law varies from $25 to $150.

An act of the legislature made the fine heavy, it is reported because of the great damage to game birds by unattended dogs during the game breeding sason which is at hand. Deputy game wardens in every county post signs in fields and woods, warning owners against permitting their dogs to run or forage on the property of others.

WOODCOCK APPOINTED.

As Prohibition Enforcement Chief for Whole Country.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, U. S. District Attorney for Maryland, has been selected by the President and Attorney General as Prohibition Enforcement Chief. This was the first step taken under the new law that transfers enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Jus-tice Department, that becomes effect-ive July 1st.

There can be no doubt that Mr. Woodcock was picked for this important post on the basis of his dry record as District Attorney. It was that record that brought him to the notice of the Hoover Commission on Law Enforcement and which resulted his selection to serve as one of the expert advisers of the commission. In order to engage in that work a leave of absence was granted him by the Attorney-General several months

It is apparent from the appointment that the President and the Attorney-General wish to place the prohibition enforcement machine in the hands of an experienced prosecu-tor rather than in the hands of a scientific man such as Dr. Doran or an Anti-Saloon League politician of the type of Dr. Doran's predecessor, Roy A. Haynes.

WILL IT BE PINCHOT?

Whether Gifford Pinchot will be the Republican candidate for Govern-or in Pennsylvania in November, will not be finally settled until Sept. 28th. The question rests in the vote of Luzerne county, where perforated ballots were used by consent of the ballots were used by consent of the county court.

The State Supreme Court ordered the certification of the vote as returned to the Secretary of the Commonwealth but with the proviso that it is to remain subject to "such modification, correction or rejection" as may be decreed by the Appellate as may be decreed by the Appellate Court in passing upon the question whether the perforation of the bal-lots invalidates the entire vote of the county. And the uncertainty thus created is to remain until September 28, when the court will hear the appeal on behalf of Francis Shunk Brown.

On the face of the returns and subject to future court action, this gives the nomination for Governor to Mr. Pinchot. The date fixed by the court however, is so close to the election that should the decision be against the validity of the Luverne County election, by reason of the ballot perforations, the nomination would go to Mr. Brown, and Mr. Pinchot might have to carry the issue to the polls by pre-empting a new party title by pre-empting a new party title and running on that ticket. One oth-er opportunity would, however, be left open to him if he were made the candidate of the Prohibition Party.

RURAL DISTRICTS IN THE FU-TURE.

The census figures, on which to base the trend in population, are of course too meagre for any reliable analysis. The probability seems to be that there will eventually be shown a loss in population in strictly agricultural communities, outside of the towns, in certain states or parts of states; but it is held that there will be shown an increase in other like communities, representing a movement from the large cities to the small

This is accounted for by the fact that many manufacturing concerns are moving to the larger of the small towns-or to the small cities-and to plain before all who will see. Even the noticable increase in the attractiveness of the towns; to the extension of good roads and the growing bus service, as well, as the use of automobiles. All of these are held to be competing strongly with the larger places, and to make out of the question the possibility of the "passing" of properly developed country communi-

The retired farmer class is also sure to maintain small centre populations, say those who are making an intensive study of future prospects. The need for schools is also held to be a vitally local problem, and that as long as these are maintained, population will centre around them; the cities could not possibly fill this need. Many services must also be maintained locally, as they cannot be "sent off" for.

The future of the country weekly is also held to be safe, though perhaps subject to eases of consolidation. Local printing offices, as well as newspapers, are among the first necessities, it is also true that many of the rates along with churches and schools. A which are incurring just criticism were put there by Democrats and Insurgents as a part of the inevitable per, is a dead one. Two of the recent opinions on this subject, both from sans are now so indignantly denouncmen of high standing in business and ing."

The Hoover blamers have this in "The small town has become a far more attractive place in which to live than it used to be. I mentioned a while ago that men have been attracted to the cities by their superior advantages culturally and socially, as well as industrially and commercially. These advantages have been materially lessened in recent years. Within the last generation rural isolation has been virtually destroyed. Just about everybody now lives out on the highway of life. Small town and country people can enjoy practically all the conveniences of the city. They are in touch with everything worth seeing and hearing. There has been an immense—an almost immeasurable—enrichment of country life. I need not prove such a statement; you all know it to be a fact. This transformation has made the small town more attractive to industry by making it more attractive to industrial workers."

"Gloomy forecasters of the past based their prognostications on the loss of commercial trade in smaller centers. Recent investigations indicate that this loss is not as great as at first believed. But that there has been a material loss there can be no

The fallacy of the pessimistic prophecies lies in the fact that trade is not the only factor which operates to bring folks together in a central resi-dence area. In addition to the economic or trade factor, a small town renders for its residents many other services-social, religious, educational, recreational, governmental, etc."

These opinions are at this time worth more than the prophets of gloom-more than the opinions of those who court disaster by always harping on it. If the country sections wish to live, they can; but not by prophesying the possibility of early death. Co-operation in its truest sense, not talked about but actually employed, is the main thing needed. There is unquestionably a fight on hand—a conflict between interests but there is apt to be a favorable adjustment providing all play their rightful part.

"WE THE PEOPLE."

"We the people," as a descriptive expression, is not so much in evidence now, as it was not so very many years ago. We must look back now and see how many are following us, before we can use the word "we" accurately as standing for a large number. The hibition Amendment cares nothing at is reported, closed their export waretorial "we" that represents but one person; or as representing many in general, but not in particular.

"United we stand" as a motto, has argely gone out of fashion. We do not "stick to party" when we vote; it is more difficult than ever to secure large attendance at a public meeting; we have lost interest in our fraternities; we do not make earnest efforts to effect compromises; we are too ready to impute the worst motives to those with whom we disagree.

And all of this represents anything else than the best form of "we" as people co-operating for the best interests of all, and the result is much unnecessary conflict where harmony should rule.

Whether in our larger affairs of tions in community life, we seem to be alike suffering unnecessarily from the scars of division, from our own choice, which in the long-run is an expensive choice on our part.

BLAMING HOOVER.

The political campaign this year will be almost the same, in some respects, as though President Hoover | rapidly. was a candidate for re-election, in so far as blame for political sins of omission and commission is concerned. "Blaming Hoover" is a favorite pastime. The tariff, unemployment, low prices for farm produce, crashes in the stock market, the debenture plan lost for farm relief, etc., are either blamed directly on him, or on his administration, and used as part of the ammunition to be used at the November election.

It can hardly be charged as partisan, in saying this, as the facts are in the matter of the new tariffwhich is being tried and sentenced before the evidence is heard—all of the blame for the alleged iniquities of it are laid to administration failure; while as a matter of fact the ufacturer. regular Republicans do not have a majority in the Senate, and this body could have easily defeated the bill, except for the votes on the last roll call, by five Democrats who voted for the bill.

The Philadelphia Ledger is authority for the following statements, which, if not true, could easily be proven so. "They (the critics) are not saying that this act carries the highest farm duties in history nor are they calling attention to the fact that with a single exception, every Democratic Sen-ator participated in increasing indus-trial as well as farm rates designed to benefit the people of his State. This is far more significant than the fact that five Democratic Senators voted for the bill on final passage. The bill could not have been passed without these Democratic votes, but their favor; they can say about anything they please, and evidence to the contrary—so far as the outcome of the workings of the tariff are concerned—can not be forthcoming in the space of the few months before the election.

Mr. Hoover, before he became Mr. Hoover, before he became high purchasing power and standard President, had established a world- of living of the American people. wide reputation for efficiency; but it must be remembered that when he earned this reputation he had little or no interference, and now, he has all the interference, fair and unfair, partisan or otherwise. The most efficient expert in any line, can not possibly do his best without being given the opportunity to work out his own plans.

COMMENT ON 18th. AMENDMENT EDITORIAL.

The following comment on our '18th. Amendment" editorial, explains itself. Prof. Heaps, well known in this county, has always been a forceful and aggressive champion of Prohibition, hence it is but true to his | past form for him to make use of vigorous comment. His letter, slightly abbreviated, follows:

"I have read your editorial with interest, entitled—"If not the 18th. Amendment—What?" It recalled to me an address I gave in many places during the first year or two after the Prohibition law went into effect, entitled—"If Prohibition Fails, what then?"

You are absolutely right in your demand that those who berate prohibition give some constructive plan in its stead. But these "crusaders have no intention of coming out in the open. I tried to get two leading Balopen. I tried to get two leading Baltimore wet proponents—Col. John Philip Hill, and Congressman J. Chas. Linthicum—to discuss the subject on Flag Day, June 14, but each gave excuses, and neither would furnish a substitute. I conclude that those who are nullificationists are not anxious to tell the people so, especially if they are candidates for office—even in

'wet" Maryland. There isn't much question but that the country is safely dry, while the fact remains that from Massachusetts to Maryland, along the Atlantic Coast, and the large inland cities— Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis and a few others, are wet, and yell it from

word nowadays, is largely like the edi- all about parties, but uses its scarecrow tactics to force members of all parties under threat of defeat, to come out against prohibition. The overwhelming election of Hoover was pretty good dry referendum, as was the recent victory of Pinchot in Pennsylvania; and the party in Maryland that dares to stand four-square on a dry platform, will meet with like re-

The fact is. Mr. Editor, I think two serious mistakes have been made in dealing with this question. Our temperance press has spent too much time on the political phase of the question, and not enough on the moral and scientific side; and our states-men (?) have failed to comprehend the significant fact that boot-legging, racketeering and attendant crimes are largely due to the unregistered aliens in our midst. Clean up this immigration question by demanding that all aliens be registered, and all convicted government, or in the ordinary situa- aliens be deported, and prohibition will settle its own problems."

Baltimore, Md. WHY HIGH TAXES?

Between 1923 and 1927 the cost of operating the city governments of this country increased $1,318,000,000, or 25.6 percent. Since then the cost has undoubtedly continued to mount

Here is ammunition for those who rail against the tax burden without taking definite action. The Federal government has, in the main, made a good record of economy since the war. High taxes are the result of waste, duplication of effort, government ventures into business or unnecessary extravagance in the matter of public improvements on the part of local units of government.

The much-talked-about increased cost of living and increased taxation are due to one simple cause-extravagance. We may not like to admit it, but it's a fact nevertheless-extravagance in family life and extravagance in government activity. ence to the passage of the Smootfollows;

prophecies have been made. They have failed to materialize as far back as I can remember and my memory goes back many years. The rates in the bill as it passed the House a year ago were higher than in the bill recently signed by the President. Yet business at that time did not take alarm. There seems to be no reason why it should now. I know of no industry that is seriously hurt, while those industries which needed addi-tional protection and received it are

"I have canvassed the situation with the Secretary of Commerce and the notion that this law is going to destroy our foreign trade expressed in some quarters, is certainly without foundation. The United States will well to remember that the all important factor is the maintenance of the

"The enactment of this measure brings to an end fifteen months of uncertainty. American industries know now where they stand and will, I am confident, adjust themselves without difficulty to new conditions. There seems to be an impression that the new bill makes a sweeping revision upward of existing rates. While it is true that there is a sharp in-crease in rates applicable to the agricultural schedule, generally speaking other rates cannot be said to have been advanced sufficiently to alter substantially our existing economic position. In fact only a comparatively few of the major items have been

"I do not mean to imply that the bill is free from defects. No tariff bill is. But this measure at least by its own terms provides the means whereby inequalities and errors may be adjusted. I look upon the flexible provisions as highly important. I believe that they offer the opportunity not only to correct errors and to adjust rates to meet new and changing conditions, but that they lay a founda-tion for a businesslike method of tar-iff revision, free from the pull of sectional and political interest that seem to make a scientific and well-balanced revision by the legislative body almost impossible

PRAISE DUE TO CANADA.

Both houses of the Parliament of Canada have passed the bill providing that exports of intoxicating liquor from Canada to prohibition countries shall hereafter be prohibited. The measure orders that no clearances shall be issued to ships with liquor cargoes destined for prohibition countries. In accordance with the Canadian custom, the measure will go into effect upon the prorogation of Parliament, which is expected to take place before the first of June. Recognizing the import of the handwriting upon the wall, great organizations that have enriched themselves by shipping liquor into the United States have already, so it houses along the Niagara and Detroit Rivers.

This action on the part of the Dominion of Canada is not only, in fact it is not chiefly, because of the material assistance which will be given by this legislation to the United States in its endeavors to suppress the use of intoxicating liquors, out rather because of the evidence it furnishes of a friendly and generous, even a brotherly, attitude on the part of the Dominion toward its neighbor to the south that this legislation deserves enduring commendation.

The suppression of the liquor traffic is in no sense a local or a national issue, for its evils are admitted in every land. Canada itself has attempted to deal with it in a way differing from the methods adopted by the United States, for the specific prohibition by law of the manufacture, transportation or sale of intoxicating liquors stands today as a measure peculiar to the United States. It could readily have been urged by the Canadian lawmakers, and was indeed urged by a minority among them, that it was no part of the duty of the Dominion to assist the United States in a working out a problem of its own. Against that argument a finer sense of international comity, a nobler recognition of the importance to the whole civilized world of the experiment now making in the United States, proved to be controlling.

Canada has sacrificed some material interests in making this great concession to her neighbor. Within her borders are distillers and brewers who found great profit in prosecuting an illicit trade with the United States, and whose political influence was exerted strenuously against this legislation. But the Canadian Government rightly scorned to profit by practitioners of an illicit traffic, or to yield to their appeals for assistance in the task of debauching a neighbor in Wilds of Venezuela Mexico City.-The discovery of a tailless ape in the virgin jungles of Venezuela has been reported to the Museum of Archeology and History at Ierida, Yucatan, by Dr. G tandon, member of the International Society of Americanists in Paris.

Tailless Ape Is Found

Anthropoid apes, and tailless simians in general, are unknown in America, and if future finds bear out the present report, the prevailing theory of anthropoid evolution may undergo drastic changes.

The discovery was made by Francois de Loys, doctor of sciences, delegated by the Venezuelan government to make a geological exploration of certain regions in the basins of the Santa Ana, Catatumbo and Zulia rivers, portions untrod by white men. The region is inhabited by the Motilon Indians, who are entirely untouched by modern civilizaton and have always repelled visitors.

Jap Women Bringing

Thanks for Quake Aid Washington, D. C .- Two Japanese women will arrive in the United States soon to express thanks for American contributions for relief of Japanese distress during the earthquake of 1923 and to report that the physical evidences of that catastrophe finally have been removed. The State department has been advised by Ambassador Castle that the newspaper Jiji Shimpo is sponsoring the journey of the two women. They were selected by eminent Japanese including Prince Tokugawa, president of the house of peers; Viscount Shibusawa, Mayor Horikiri of Tokyo, Mayor Ariyoshi of Yokohama, and Marchioness Nabeshima, grandmother of Princess Chichibu. The princess was Miss Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the former Japanese ambassador to this country. She married the emperor's younger brother.

PAYING POULTRY FLOCK IS GROWN

Spring-Hatched Pullets Carefully Developed Are Best.

Developing the spring-hatched pul-lets from the time the chicks leave the incubator until the pullets are placed in the laying house is the pathway to profits in the poultry industry.

"The object of this development is to have pullets of stamina, bone and vigor and fully up to the standard weight of the breed," says R. S. Dearstyne, poultryman at State college. "At first the proper mashes are needed until finally the laying mash containing 20 per cent of protein is given. The young pullets must have an abundance of succulent green feed especially, as the grass on the range gets old and tough. When placing birds in the laying house, do this about two weeks before they start laying so that they may become accustomed to their surroundings.

Nesting material should be changed often, runs cleared of litter, perch poles scraped and freed of mites, and the birds examined for internal parasites. A minimum of four feet of floor space to each bird is needed in the house, and at least two feet of perch pole for each three birds. Dampness in the house and damp litter is to be avoided if the birds are not to have roup and colds. Fresh, clean water is necessary and the mash hoppers are to be kept filled at all times. Oyster shell and grit needs to be kept before the birds, and grain fed twice each day with the heaviest amount at eve-

Mr. Dearstyne says that the poultryman will do well to spend about ten minutes each day in general observation of his flock. This will help him to find any lack of thriftiness or any indication of disease. Birds roughly handled, irregularly fed and watered, infested with parasites or neglected in other ways will not prove profitable.

Caponizing Profitable

Way to Market Poultry Caponizing is one of the most profitable ways of marketing late-hatched cockerels. In an experiment last year fifty June hatched cockerels were caponized. The birds were of dual-purpose breeds and caponized when they had reached a weight of 12 ounces to 21/2 pounds. These birds were sold the following April and averaged six pounds each, dressed for market. They brought 35 cents a pound, or an average of $2.10 per bird. The feed cost of producing these birds was 84 cents each, and with an additional charge the net profit was $1.16 per bird. Another poultryman caponized 191 barred Plymouth Rocks last summer. When sold their average weight was 7.7 pounds each, and they brought 43 cents per pound. The total cost of growing these capons—chicks, feed and labor-was placed at $366.14. There were 176 birds at selling time, which brought a total of $561.14, leaving a net profit of 85 cents per bird.

Poultry Notes

Winter egg profits will depend largely on the care given pullets.

Hatch the chicks early so that the pullets are mature for winter egg pro-

Don't forget the importance of fresh, juicy greens for both the baby chicks and old hens. The first half of April is the ideal time to hatch chicks of smaller breeds such as the Leghorns.

Giving hens 12 hours of light increases egg production at the season when the prices are high.

When calcium carbonate is not available in sufficient quantities, hens lay soft-shelled eggs or no eggs at all.

Making it easier for the hens to consume large quantities of mash aids in the production of eggs. At least 10 linear feet of double hopper space should be provided for 100 hens.

Culling should not be considered as a substitute for correct management of a flock of hens. Even the good producers may cease laying in the summer if proper care is neglected.

To carry on heavy production hens must have strong bodies and a good supply of nourishing feeds.

Good producing hens may become thin if not fed sufficiently. Total feed consumption can be increased usually by giving a moistened mash once a day throughout the summer months.

Give free range to the birds which are to be used as breeders this spring. They should also be fed an abundance of whole yellow corn.

Breeding, selection, and poultry culture are employed by alert poultrymen to meet the shifting market demands for poultry and eggs.

ropular Weather Signs Decried by Forecaster

"There's a lot of pagan superstition about many of the weather signs that people like to believe in," said a weather forecaster recently. "There are a score of rural sayings, especially when winter is coming on, as to how severe it will be. The groundhog is credited with miraculous vision. Such ideas go back for centuries.

"Lots of people believe that the position of the new moon is a sure foreteller of weather. The saying is that if the new moon stands upright, the thin crescent in a vertical position, the weather will be dry for the greater part of the coming month. On the other hand, if the new moon reclines on its back, in the shape of a shallow cup, that means a month of rainy

"All the pioneers in this country firmly believed that, and out in the country districts you will find many people today who are equally credulous. Unfortunately, the idea has no basis in fact. Weather bureau records, if examined, will completely disprove any such ideas."-New York

Rome, the eternal city, offers such a multitude of sights that to visit every one worth while would take days or even weeks. Most important among the places to see are the Colosseum the Forum, St. Peter's, the Vatican, the Catacombs, the Baths of Caracalla and the castle of St. Angelo. The works of art in Rome are innumerable and include statues and paintings by Berndni, Giotto, Raphael, Perugino and Botticelli. Other marvels of the city are the Appian way, queen of all ancient roads, which was built in 321 B. ### CATTLE KING'S SON IS OUT OF PRISON

Wild Youth Wrecked His Father's Fortune.

Leavenworth, Kan.-Coney Slaughter, scion of a pioneer Texas family, whose holdings once included a territory which could embrace Rhode Island, was discharged from the Federal penitentiary, a penniless man.

Slaughter, one of the few bankers who served every day of a six-year term to which he was sentenced for embezzlement of $352,000 from the Pueblo Mercantile National bank, wrecked the family of his father, one of the proudest in the Texas panhandle.

His father, W. B. Slaughter, was one of the cattle kings of the Southwest. He owned Lazy S ranch, with its thousands of acres of countless cattle. Coney Slaughter's grandfather was the man who carried the message from General Sam Houston to the defenders of the Alamo at San Antonio to evacuate the fort. The order was ignored and the garrison was wiped out.

The younger Slaughter was the indulged child of wealthy parents. His father said once he spent $700,-000 clearing up one of his son's last escapades, when he was sentenced. It was reported his parents were reduced to operating a second-class hotel in San Antonio.

After Slaughter wrecked the Pueblo bank he was a fugitive for eight years, traveling from city to city. He followed the races and was reported to have won $48,000 at a New Orleans track shortly before he was arrested at a sanitarium in Philadelphia. He was penniless when arrested, having lost most of his money in gambling dens, he told officers.

At the penitentiary he became a trusted inmate and was often permitted to go without the walls. On the night of January 31, 1915, he escaped. It developed later he had outside aid and that a waiting machine hurried him from the prison.

While in prison Slaughter had told of $100,000 supposed to have been of the loot from the Pueblo bank, hidden somewhere near Denver. Slaughter was arrested in August, 1925, by Denver officers after a housekeeper had become suspicious of his actions. Although many searches have been made for the $100,000 in Colorado, it has never been found, officials said.

Remember Plural When

Speaking of Molasses "Molasses" comes to us through the Spanish from the Latin "mellaceus," meaning honeylike. Since the singular and plural forms are spelled the same the word is often construed as a singular when it should be construed as a plural. Hence "molasses are," "these molasses," and "those molasses" are common expressions, especially in the South and West. They are incorrect except in those rare cases when the speaker or writer has in mind different varieties of molasses and really desires to use the word in the plural. "These molasses are good," is not correct when the speaker refers to molasses on the dining table. He should say, "This molasses is good." On the other hand, it might be correct, though awkward, for a merchant to write, "Please send me 10 gallons each of both of those molasses I ordered last year," when he referred to different varieties of the product.-Path-

LAKE SUPERIOR MAY GET NATIONAL PARK

Apostle Islands Named in Bill Before Congress

Ashland, Wis .- A group of islands, nestled like precious stones in a setting of natural charm on the edge of one of the most beautiful natural harways in lace and chiffon. bors in the world, may become the site of a new national park.

The islands, termed the Apostle group after a band of 12 rollicking brigands who called themselves the apostles and who preyed upon lone coureurs de bois on Chequamegon bay of Lake Superior in the early Seventeenth century, are as wild, rugged and beautiful as in the earliest days of Wisconsin's civilization.

Already the mecca of hundreds of wealthy Americans who maintain summer homes upon Madeline island, the largest of the group, the Apostles are to be made a national park if the efforts of Wisconsin citizens are successful in congress. Bill Pending in Congress.

A bill introduced by Congressman H. H. Peavey, Washburn, Wis., to establish a park, is pending before congress now.

At La Pointe, the population center of the sparsely settled islands, the first known dwelling in Wisconsin for white men was erected about 1658. Two Frenchmen, Pierre Radisson and Medard Chouart de Crosseilliers, built the log habitation and, according to the history of the region, "were delighted with the country and Radisson described its beauties with an eloquent pen."

"The country was so pleasant, so beautiful and fruitful that it grieved me to see that the world could not discover such enticing countries to live in," wrote the French explorer.

Converted Indians. The French remained in the region, colonizing and establishing trading posts, converting the Indians to Christianity and extending the boundaries of the French empire in Wisconsin and Minnesota. The islands remained a center of this work, the trading post at La Pointe, occupying a strategic position in the French fur

Later, when the British obtained the territory, Madeline and the other islands flourished as local centers of the vast Northwest fur trade.

La Pointe at one time was the county seat of Ashland county, losing its identity shortly after the founding of Ashland. It still remains a center of fishing, trapping and has a population of several hundred summer residents.

Several of the islands are uninhabited but possess rare natural beauty in the form of sandstone caves and rock formations, cut into queer and fantastic shape by the waters of Lake Superior.

Boston University Has Typewriter Orchestra

Boston.-Almost any day if you stand within earshot of Boston university's college of practical arts and letters, you may hear a strange staccato rhythm, a novel interpretation of a currently popular tune.

Investigation will show that the weird melody, as fascinating as the dot-dash-dot of a telegraph instrument. emanates from what is probably the country's only typewriter orchestra.

Miss Elizabeth Carvell, instructor, inaugurated the plan recently "to demonstrate the elasticity of the method of using rhythm in typing."

While a phonograph plays, for example, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," or some other tune that lends itself to touch system interpretation, the 14 "musicians" sit in orchestral formation and tap out an obbligato. One group devotes its technique to hammering out the second part, while a third punches away at the bass. The ultimate effect is surprisingly rhyth-"It may not necessarily speed up the words per minute," Miss Carvell explains, "but it gives a uniformity to clicking out the melody, another to the work which otherwise is often lacking. The second aim in using music is to give a new interest to the typewriting work and key up the girls to a new stride in their progress."

MR. CHARLES O. FUSS.

Mr. Charles O. Fuss, widely known furniture dealer and undertaker, died at his home on Baltimore St., Monday afternoon, after an illness of eight days from complications. His death was unexpected, as he had apparently made a decided turn for the better, and even on Sunday evening the word was that he was improving. His age was 75 years, 7 months, 14 days.

Mr. Fuss came to Taneytown fifty years ago from Uniontown, where he had learned the cabinet making and undertaking business under his father. In the chapel at the Army War College, Sunday, June 15, at 11:30 o'clock when furniture was made by hand, was solemnized the marriage of Miss and his success in business continued Sue Schneck Birnie, daughter of Col. to grow from the beginning, and finalto grow from the beginning, and finally developed into the present extensive business under the firm name of C. the time of his death. He has been known all of his life for his strict integrity, industry and efficiency in his business relations; and for his fine character and high standing as a man. Truly, he was one of Taneytown's best and most valuable citizens. He is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Sarah Alice Eckard; by one daughter, Mrs. Olive E. Wolf, Baltimore; one son Merwyn C. Taneytown, seven grand-children; one brother, Harry. of Seattle, Wash.; and by one sister, Mrs. Jane Gilbert, Bal-

Open hearts and minds on this subject of leadership, such as we have been studying in our topic this month, will readily see that a leader must lead. This implies the necessity of someone being a follower. But we are concerned with the question: father, and 9 children, 3 sons and 6 daughters, 3 brothers, a half brother, Rev. H. T. In the broadest sense then, all leaders must be missionaries—for a leader is on a mission, to lead somebody, from and to some place. My how we need this high and exalted idea and catch the ideal instead of only entertaining the medicine. highest type of leadership has always been the same. How our souls are thrilled when we stand in the presence of a man who has a real mission, and who leads others under the dominant power of the convictions of his own life.

Why are we sometimes so slow to apply the same whole-hearted enthusiasm in the business of being Christian leaders? Within the reach of every man is the possibility to become Christian Missionary leaders. And even the opportunity to lead the multitudes let us be anxious to get the second-mile to gather in the single hand-picked fruit, for our dear Lord. No better example is there than Self-exaltation by our labors is very often a fowler's-snare to us. Quoting from the watchword: "Look at William Carey. No one would send him out. He had to go out to Indiaagainst the desires of his own church. And only a few more reached by the Gospel during His life. What is the glory of that? Someone says that "Christianity must be a missionary religion. Unless it is so, it will decay and die."

The poorest struggling churches are usually those lacking missionary seal and Spirit. Of all the beautiful cities in the world none can rival Venice and its lagoons. Artists and poets of all ages have felt the charm of this unique city, where genius and nature have met to create a perfect harmony. The square of St. Mark, with its basilica scintillating with gold; the solemn lines of the procurate; the ducal palace; the Grand canal, with its marble palaces, whose decorations seem copies from the famous laces of Burano and Torcello; the churches and bridges, and the gondolas slipping silently through the water-all arouse I hereby annuonce my candidacy in the visitor intense emotions and admiration.

"Itching Palm"

It takes a lot of people to make a world. And people of all sorts, in all walks of life, unfortunately are said to be possessed of itching palms—that is, hands ever ready to receive a bribe.

That this is not a distinctively modern tendency is indicated by the fact that even in Shakespeare's day it was a symptom well known-if we are to judge from the number of recorded instances, one of which is in the bard's own Julius Caesar, 4.

The phrase itself is an allusion to the superstition that an itching hand is a forerunner of the receipt of money.-Kansas City Times.

Housewife

Whose interest should come first

A & P, though a grocer itself, votes for the housewife. She has a right to as much good food as her money can buy under the most favorable conditions.

Not everyone takes this view. By some strange reasoning certain people see harm to human welfare in . utting your food bill. A & P cuts your food bill to the minimum. So these people are against A & P.

They are all for raising the standard of living-provided their profits go up the same slope. How the housewife is to pay her part . . . that, they say, is her affair, not the grocer's.

A few misguided persons have taken up the cry, shouting, "Away with low profits!" as loudly as, when it suited their purpose to denounce profiteers, they shouted, "Away with high profits!"

But A & P sticks to its knitting. Its job is the same today as it was seventy years ago . . . to make it easier for more housewives to buy the best food.

Stone Carving Thought to Be of Bronze Age On a hill near Allinge, in Bornholm, Denmark, a large block of stone carvings has been found on the face of the rock, which, it is thought, belongs to the Bronze age. The carvings are made with flint, and show a vessel about forty-three inches in length, with a smaller one above it. The date is supposed to be from 1000 to 500 B. C.

There will be difficulty in removing the stone, as the ground is at present a quarry, but it is proposed to divide it into parts and remove it to the Ronne museum garden. Rocks of the Iron age have been found in parts of Denmark, but this is the largest one yet found of the Bronze age, in that country.

English coins have also been plowed up in Denmark and Germany recently. The coins are about 1,000 years old, and are from the reigns of Sven Estridsen of Denmark, Canute the Great, Hardicanute and Magnus the Good. These consist of pennies, with the names, in runic letters, of makers of coins, Assur and Alfrik, and the arms of Lund, Exeter and Roskilde cathedrals on one side, the other having the figurehead.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Kicking the Bucket

The origin of the expression to "kick the bucket" meaning to die, is found in a procedure in the act of suicide. A person wishing to hang himself stood upon a bucket and, having affixed the rope to a beam and drawn it as short as possible, he kicked away the bucket and thus attained a "drop." The story of Sheridan's use of the expression is well known. When he was on his deathbed he was informed that a friend, being "merry" had fallen down a well. "Did he kick the bucket?" gasped Sheridan.

About Pepper

The pepper used as a condiment is the product of unripe berries of Piper nigrum, a tropical shrub of climbing habit. Both black and white pepper of commerce are derived from the same plant, the latter's loss of color being due to removal, by maceration, of dried skin. The leaves of an allied form, P. betle, are chewed by Asiatics, with areca-nut and a little lime, as a preventive of dysentery. Cayenne pepper comes from a species of capsi-

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS By H. IRVING KING

NAMING THE BABY

THERE is a very common superstition, both in this country and Europe, that it is unlucky to name a child after another child of the family who is dead. This comes from that very ancient and primitive superstition, found today among nearly all uncivilized peoples, with regard to the intimate relation between a man's spiritual self and his name. A certain vital connection, also, between the man's physical self and his name appears to have entered into it.

The doctrine of "mana in names" Edward Clodd calls it; "mana" meaning magical or power. To primitive man his name was "an entity, an integral part of himself"-is so today among savages. Clodd says of an Australian aborigine: "If he has had confered upon him on arriving at manhood a name similar to that of anyone who dies it is changed by his tribe" and compares this custom to "The feeling in the North of England against a favorite baptismal name when death has snatched away its first bearer.

"The root of the idea is that the name is an integral part of the spirit of the dead child. To give it to a living child would be robbing the dead, or attempting to do so, and the spirit of the dead might resent it with disastrous results to the living child. At any rate the child given the 'tabooed' name might be expected to sicken and dle for that vital part of itself, its name, was already in the grave and the world of spirits.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TO BEAT THE AIR"

WHEN we say of a man that he beats the air, we immediately characterize his work or effort as useless or unproductive.

This phrase does not seem to have much point until we stop to study it in all its ramifications.

It is then that investigation reveals that it is a pugilistic metaphor, dating back many thousands of years.

For, so long back that memory of man "runneth not to the contrary," we find that there were fistic encounters, between man and man.

These were not, of course, in the beginning regulated; but even in Biblical days we find the expression "to beat the air" used of a man who flailed about with his fists without doing any damage-metaphorically (I Cor. 9:26).

"It's difficult to figure how a player has reached a goal when he's only half back."

Southern mills are now consuming more than one-fifth of all the cotton used in the world

Disavowal of Liability

"He washed his hands of the entire affair" we read every now and then, the implication being, that the in London was reopened a short time person of whom this is said simply refuses all responsibility for or interest in the particular matter under discus-

Certainly, if any phrase sounded modern, this one does; and yet, surprising as it may seem, it is a direct allusion to Matthew 27:24.

"When Pilate'saw that he could prevail no longer, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person."-Kansas City Star.

Ice Age "Turkeys"

Turkeylike birds once nested in the region now occupied by the city of Los Angeles, Calif. This fact has been brought to light in the course of a review of the Ice age birds of Rancho La Brea tar pits in the collections of the Los Angeles museum. The review was undertaken by Dr. Hildegarde Howard of the museum, for the puipose of establishing a census of the birds of the region. It was found that of about 500 individuals of the extinct. turkeylike bird, Parapavo, represented in these collections, more than 150 were young birds, many of them only

Titled Bartender

Some six years ago, says a writer in Piccadilly, you could see painted above the door-where the law ordained that the publican's name should be seen-of "The Cider House," an inn at Haddenham, in Buckinghamshire, England, "Sir Henry Echlin, Bart., licensed to sell wines and spir-Mts," and if you went inside you would be served by the baronet landlord or his wife. Sir Henry was the eighth baronet of his line, and had become a publican after having been a private in the Life Guards, because four of his predecessors had squandered the family fortunes.

Tragedy of Long Ago

He that diggeth a pit shall fall therein-A young man of near this place some time ago sent an undertaker with a coffin to the house of a young woman, who upon sighting it fainted away and remained ill for some time. The effect his rash piece of folly had upon her preyed on his mind and he fell into consumption, and required in reality the sad office he had undertaken for the young lady. He was himself buried in the same coffin he had sent to her .-- Nashville Whig and Banner, March 9, 1830.

Builders Fear Ravages

The church of St. Lawrence Jewry ago after workmen had completed the task of restoring the woodwork that 'had been damaged by hordes of deathwatch beetles.

of Death-Watch Beetle

These tiny borers are feared for their destructive habits and they have long been associated with superstitious beliefs.

In the quiet of the night, when the hammering of the insect is heard in the home of the European peasant, the sound brings uneasiness because of the primitive superstition that the nocturnal tattoo presages the death of some member of the family or of a neighbor.

The death-watch beetle and his numerous cousins belong to the group Ptinidae. They do not always choose for their food such structures as Sir Christopher Wren's church of St. Lawrence Jewry, for old books, furniture, house timbers, drugs, ship's stores, piles of old paper and tobacco are included in the pest's diet. One member of the family thrives on opium, another feeds on capsicum and a third has a pronounced weakness for dried tobacco.-New York Times Magazine.

Grades of Silk

Silk is graded for thickness of thread, the size being measured in deniers. The French denier weighs one-twentieth part of a gramme. The basis for raw and thrown silk adopted by the permanent committee of the Paris international congress of 1900 was a fixed length and a variable weight, the standard of length being 450 meters and the weight the denier. Thus a bale of silk of 13 to 15 deniers means that a thread is required of which 450 meters, measured off, will weigh between 13 and 15 deniers. Silk is reeled as fine as 8 to 10 deniers and as coarse as 28 to 30 deniers; for some purposes even 38 to 40 deniers.

Where "Charlie" Landed In the Outer Hebrides, where solitude may be had in wholesale quantities, lies the tiny island of Eriskay, about three miles long and two miles wide. It was in July, 1745, that Charles Stuart landed on this rock spot, and, feeling the ground of his family's ancient kingdom under his feet for the first time, exclaimed, "I am come home." Charles took with him from France some seeds of the pink convolvulus and sowed them in commemoration of his landing and of the sanctuary he had received in France. This plant still grows on Eriskay, and it is believed not to exist anywhere else in the British isles.

Cyrano Not Imaginary

Savinien Cyrano de Bergerac, s French romance writer and dramatist, was born in Paris March 6, 1619. At the age of nineteen he entered a corps of the guards, serving in the campaigns of 1639 and 1640, and began the series of exploits that were to make him a hero of romance. After ten years of this life Cyrano left the service and began to write tragedies. Cyrano's ingenious mixture of science and romance furnished a model for many writers, such as Swift and Poe. He died in Paris in September, 1655. M. Edmond Rostand's romantic play, "Cyrano de Bergerac" (1897), revived interest in him.

Shepherds First Golfers?

It is now said that shepherds in Scotland originated the game of golf 500 years ago. Although it has been claimed that the game began in Holland in 1732, it seems that it made its first appearance in Scotland five centuries ago. The shepherds, tending flocks, were in the habit of knocking stones with a stick at other shepherds whose flocks were beginning to intermingle with the first group.

From this means of warning another shepherd of the trespassing of his flock grew the game of golf. Gradually the practice became a sport, the objective being to hit small objects with the stone.

"An Historian" Incorrect

"A" is the correct form of the article before words beginning with consonant sounds. Therefore we should say "a historian" and "a union," not "an historian" and "an union." A few writers in this country adhere to the old practice of using "an" before wordsbeginning with a consonant sound when the first syllable is not accented. but this practice is now regarded as incorrect. It is a holdover from the days when "an" was used indiscriminately before words beginning with vowel and consonant sounds .- Pathfinder Magazine.

Quaint Inn Signs

"Help Me Through" is the name of a licensed house at Bilton, Lancanshire, England. Its sign depicts a globe with the head and feet of a man protruding at the top and bottom respectively. There is also "Same Yet," in Simister lane, Rhodes, Lancs. The original name of the house was "The Red Lion." It was being redecorated and when a sign-writer asked what name was required, he received the reply, "Same yet," and forthwith complied. And so it remains to this day.

LIGHTS & GRANT of NEW YORK

Getting Service

A young New Yorker recently went to a famous mid-western hospital for a highly specialized operation, and has returned bearing word that, "out among the big things," he has been set down as a mental case. But it comes out even, for he thinks the nurses were a set of mental cases. He found, he said, that his $8 a day nurses would give him no service. If he asked for something, they replied. "You don't want that now." So he devised the scheme of holding a water pitcher high in the air and saying, "If you don't give me what I want I'll drop the pitcher." After the nurses had cleaned up two broken pitchers, his requests were granted, but the hospital officially set him down as a maniac.

> . . . Pet Clinic

Every Saturday afternoon, at a building in lower Seventh avenue, may be found a line-up of pet lovers at a free clinic for animals. Here, at the headquarters for the Humane society, come those who can't afford to pay for veterinary services, and those who can-for the reputation of the society's veterinarians is great. The other afternoon I dropped in to see Harry Moran, the superintendent, and to get a line on the sort of services dispensed.

Animals. Moran told me, have just about the same illnesses that human beings do. While I was there a woman arrived in her limousine, carrying a Sealyham terrier that was suffering from a case of nerves. And someone brought a billygoat that was suffering from-believe it or not-indigestion. One of the regular visitors is a cat with ingrowing toenails, brought in for a-tell me if I'm wrong-manicure.

New Game

Ultra smart New Yorkers who have tired of Guggenheim, anagrams and other childish pastimes have devised a new means of amusement. It is the game of larceny. If you are invited to the Smiths for dinner, you snoop about the apartment looking for Smith's wallet or Mrs. Smith's pocketbook. You try to steal $5. You win the game, of course, if you get the $5 without being caught. Then, if you're an ultra smart New Yorker, you return the money a week later, accompanying it with a light jest.

> . . . Minor Upheaval

One of the minor upheavals caused by the waistline-and-long-skirt epidemic has been in the window display business. Store proprietors have found that their wax mannequins are completely out of touch with the mode, with their lack of feminine curves. So many a sculptor's work of art has been confined to the junk heap, and the sculptors are working night and day turning out mannequins with fuller figures.

True Story

getting into trouble. But here is the story: A press agent for a well known producer was reading in bed the other night after a hard day's work giving out press passes, and he came upon a startling passage in his book. "Why!" he exclaimed, "That's my boss!" It read like one of those Broadway novels in which the characters have fictitious names but everyone knows who is meant. Not willing to trust his own imagination, the press agent took the book with him to the office next morning, and read the passage to close associates of the producer. "Who's this?" the press agent would say, and then would begin to read. "You don't need to go any further," the listener would reply shortly. "It's the boss. Somebody has been writing another Broadway novel."

The book the press agent read from was a scholarly biography of Cesare Borgia!

Chick Is Some Chicken; Crows When 2 Days Old

Blytheville, Ark .- A young chicken which began crowing at the age of two days is the prize possession of Mrs. Chuck Burns.

"Chickie," a handsome Plymouth Rock, recently startled the other barnyard fowl and his owner by crowing lustily in imitation of a grown rooster. Since then he rises early each morning, flaps his wings and greets the morning sun with a ringing crow. Each time he performs this unusual feat he has an audience of several unbelievers who go away convinced "Chickie" is "some chicken."

Man Turns Robber to Pay for Divorce

San Francisco-A "robbing Peter to pay Paul defense" failed Harry Schilder in Su-perior court here and he must serve one year to life in San Quentin penitentiary.

Schilder, a baker, told the court that he had held up a man in order to pay a divorce attorney fees.

"I had no other way to get the money," he said, "and court had ordered me to pay it."

could make good things to eat. Even Dan's father was pretty

He could make a delicious sandwich and he used to have a way of arriving with a box of candy in his pocket.

He didn't keep it in his pocke Then there was always a fruit dish -filled with fruit, too.

But she hadn't seen Dan for some time, not for many weeks, in fact. St. Valentine's day came, and with it came quite a lot of mail.

There was a pretty valentine from her little friend and neighbor, Lucy. Lucy had made it herself and there were hearts and bunches of flowers and beautiful ladies pasted upon a white card. A very handsome homemade valentine, and she liked it so much. Lucy had been quite clever about making it, too. There were really very few spots of mucilage showing where she had pasted on the pictures-very few spots, indeed. She had been given, too, a little bunch of tulips-red and pink tulips. Her mother made her some chocolate caramels and wrote her a little verse, and she had two other valentines besides all this.

But there was one other-and oh, that other was a beauty!

And it came from Dan! Dan had not forgotten her and it made her so happy she shouted with delight: "A valentine from Dan! A valentine from Dan!"

On top of all was a heart made of paper lace—a very magnificent heart, with little bells and smaller hearts upon it, and a little pink rose, too. It was open in the center part of the heart and through the opening could be seen the picture of a boy-a boy who looked very much like Dan!

All about were pictures of toys, marbles, engines, a slate with a funny man drawn upon it, a drum, a horn, a cat and a camel and a skipping rope and a house.

Inside was a picture of a little boy and a little girl in an automobile-for this was a very grand valentine which opened up and had lots of pictures. Below this picture were the words:

"With love for my valentine." And above Dan had written her name and below it he had written

He had written it in his own handwriting, and it looked pretty fine, too. Oh, she was very happy about this. She put it on her little table and there it stayed, for it was such a beautiful decoration, and it had come from Dan. "Hurrah for St. Valentine's day!"

she used to say to herself. "And hurrah for Dan, too!" she always added.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Making Jesus

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—What Shall I do with Jesus? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-

IC-The Meaning of Christian Disciple-The plan of review must always be determined by the teacher in the light of the grade of the school and the aptitudes of the pupils. For senior and adult classes the best method will be to recall that all the lessons of the quarter are from the book of Matthew, which has as its theme Jesus Christ, the Messianic King, and His Kingdom, and to present each lesson in its relation to this central purpose. The lessons have a threefold unity, namely, one book, one theme, one person.

Lesson for April 6. To prepare the disciples for the dark hour of the cross, Jesus sought to lead them to a clear apprehension of His purpose and mission. After Peter's confession of Him as the Messiah, Jesus showed to the disciples that He must come into His place of triumph through the tragedy of the cross.

Lesson for April 13. The greatest in the kingdom are those who possess childlike humility. The condition of entrance into the kingdom is true conversion, or birth from above.

Lesson for April 20. In this lesson we have divine instruction as to behavior in case of ill-treatment. Those who are Christlike shall suffer persecution. Those who have entered the kingdom by birth from above-those who have received forgiveness from Godwill forgive their fellows.

Lesson for April 27. Riches are deceitful. Possessors thereof are prone to put their trust in them. It is most difficult for those who are rich to give place to spiritual things.

Lesson for May 4. Those who would be greatest in the kingdom should, like Christ the King, take the place of self-abasement. In love, Christ gave Himself for others. He substituted "the greatness of love for the love of Lesson for May 11. To the nation which rejected Jesus as King and was endeavoring to kill Him, at the appointed time, in the councils of God. He officially presented Himself as King, in fulfillment of prophecy.

Lesson for May 18. Under the figure of a marriage, Jesus set forth the privileges and benefits of the kingdom. He used marriage, the highest ideal of love and friendship known to man, to show the benefits of the kingdom.

Lesson for May 25. In the Olivet discourse Jesus outlined the events in the world to take place in the interval between His crucifixion and His second coming. The parable of the ten virgins shows the right behavior of believers in this present age in view of the coming of the Lord.

Lesson for June 1. By talents is meant whatever faculties and powers one possesses as God's gifts, such as physical strength, reason, knowledge, speech, song, or money. All these should be employed so as to honor God who gave them. A reckoning time is coming when account shall be rendered for their use. This will be at Christ's second coming.

Lesson for June 8. Mary of Bethany, because of her keen apprehension, saw that the Lord's body would be broken and that His precious life would go out at a time when no one could lovingly minister to Him. She therefore anointed Him as against that dread day. When the disciples criticised her act, she was defended by Jesus.

Lesson for June 15 .- Jesus did not die as a martyr or as an example, but to make an atonement for man's sin. The supreme value of the lessons for the quarter centers in the cross. Teachers, it is not a matter of getting your children to learn the lessons of a great teacher, but to induce them to have faith in Christ's sacrificial death.

Lesson for June 22. The resurrection of Jesus demonstrated His Messiahship and deity. The command of Jesus to preach the gospel in all the world is backed by His resurrection

The Oil of Joy

Christianity wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people, and the old are hungrier for love than for bread, and the oil of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor on with the garment of praise, it will be better for them than blankets.-Henry Drummond.

A Moral Pivot

The Hindu professor of modern history in a South India college said to me: "My study of modern history has shown me that there is a Moral Pivot in the world today, and that the best life of both East and West is more and more revolving about that center —that Moral Pivoting is the person of Jesus Christ."—E. Stanley Jones.

Force of Character Necessary The most brilliant qualities become useless when they are not sustained by force of character.-Segur.

RICH RELATIVES SEEK LOST GIRL

Orphan Has Been Missing for 18 Years.

Seattle.—There's a fairy godmother in Seattle waiting to lavish her love and the good things of this life on Hope Johnston, an orphan, if the right Hope Johnston can be found.

The lucky girl, who should now be about twenty, may learn all about her good fortune by communicating with Louis Abels, insurance broker in the Exeter apartments.

For the "fairy godmother" is none other than Abels' wife, Margaret. For years Mrs. Abels has been searching for Hope, whose father, Mrs. Abels' brother, was killed in a mine explosion at Tolt in 1911, and whose mother died of a broken heart shortly after.

Mrs. Abels' long search for her niece was brought to light when Abels visited Justice J. B. Wright for information regarding the Hope Johnston who had been given a suspended sentence of thirty days in his court Thinking the girl might be the one he and his wife had vainly searched for through the years. Abels obtained detailed information about her, which led only to another disappointment, he admitted.

"I am certain she is not the same Hope Johnston," he said, "even though the police have not been able to find her again so that we could see her. The information we have now convinces me we were on the wrong

Despite the fact that the girl in question had violated the law, Abels said he and his wife stood ready to give her a good home, had she proved to be "the" Hope Johnston, and "if she were not beyond redemp-

Santa Claus Role Does

Not Fit Large Feline Ventura, Calif.—Next time Tiger, the big cat belonging to F. Johnson at the Ventura substation of the Southern California Edison company, finds himself on a roof top, he will not try to play Santa Claus and slide lown the chimney. Tiger did that while prowling around his owner's housetop and, as a result, spent several uncomfortable hours at the bottom of a chimney, with no more chance of getting out than the proverbial frog in the well. His plaintive "meows" for help drew Johnson's notice. Unable to get his pet out, he called the fire depart-

The rescue was performed by Capt. Leslie Ley, who picked a hole in the base of the brick chimney and allowed Tiger, dirty and ashamed, but unhurt, to slink out to a breakfast of cream and liver.

Boyhood Friends Meet

Again as Bank Chiefs

Hardin, Mont .- A boyhood friendship which spanned a half century of silence and separation was renewed dents clasped hands and exchanged reminiscences.

As a boy Charles Helmer, now president of the First National bank of Twin Falls, Idaho, lived at the Wisconsin home of W. E. Warren, now president of the Big Horn bank of Hardin. The youths became fast friends, but when necessity of making a living brought separation they soon lost track of each other.

When Helmer called Warren by long distance telephone on business the latter immediately recognized the mature voice on the wire as that of his boyhood pal, and the reunion followed.

City Grew as Visioned, but in Wrong Direction

In the early days of San Francisco, when it was a town of but 2,000 inhabitants, Richard Pindell Hammond, father of John Hays Hammond, the eminent mining engineer and capitalist, lived there. In fact, John Hays Hammond was born in the Golden Gate city in 1855. The elder Hammond, himself a surveyor, looked over the magnificient San Francisco bay and foresaw that a great city would rise on its shores. He saw with a surveyor's eye how the land lay. He visioned a great port of the future, mistress of the Pacific coast. So he proceeded to acquire certain holdings of land where he was certain the future city would stand. He surveyed it himself, laying out streets and demarking town lots. It was only a matter of waiting a few years. There in the harbor lay tall ships which had brought out goldseekers and some which came from strange ports to trade. The day was not far distant when ships from all thought Hammond. Today, three-quarters of a century afterward, that carefully surveyed for purloining a girl friend's party townsite is a mud flat, still vacant, save for an occasional shack of a fisherman. San Francisco has grown into the proud city Hammond foresaw, but on almost every bit of ground save that he selected as the inevi-

the world would lie in that harbor,

Tippling and Riots Put

End to Morris Dancing The Lancashire morris dancers who played up so well for their county in the folk-dancing festival in London would perform under social conditions vastly different from those of a century ago, for what really led to the decay of Lancashire morris dancing was the injudicious "treating" at each stopping place of the rushcart dancers, the brawls between rival teams and their supporters, and the riotous crowds assembled by the pageant, says a columnist in the Manchester Guar-

"As drunk as a morris dancer," was a Lancashire saying. Alex Wilson's picture (1821) of a rushcart and morris dancers in Long Millgate, Manchester, in the midst of a riotous and rascally crowd, explains well enough why the custom was put down, the picture being given extra verisimilitude by the local portraits introduced, including the celebrated Rey. Brooks, bewigged and with stick raised characteristically in wrath.

Capital of Contrasts

Hungary, the ancient kingdom of the Magyars on the Danube, contains in Budapest, its capital, one of the most imposing and beautiful cities of Europe, a worthy companion capital to Vienna in the old Austro-Hungarian empire and now the metropolis of the reduced post-war Hungary. the "Kingdom without a King."

Budapest, a thriving modern city of more than a million population, lies on both sides of the Danube. In Buda, the old part of the city, are the royal castle, the Coronation church, stately palaces and many ancient artistic monuments. Pest, on the left bank of the river, presents a striking ontrast to quiet Buda. It is the bustling commercial and industrial section of the new city.

Railless Railroading

It is related of a certain engineering officer, formerly of the A. E. F., that, in the course of an inspection tour in France, he noticed that most of the ties were scored. After several miles of line had been inspected, and the scored ties continued to be much in evidence, he remarked to the French officer accompanying him:

"How long did you run the railroad, anyhow, before you laid rails on the ties?"-Railway Age.

Wide Variation as to

Significance of Kiss The history of the kiss is vague. The Bible records it as a salutation of respect, but prehistoric history gives the origin to cannibalism, contending the modern kiss is only a modified bite, thereby giving the impression that Man so loved Woman he wished to indicate she was good enough to eat.

Among the oriental races the kiss has been known from time immemorial. Kisses are not used in Madagascar, parts of Polynesia, Africa, South Sea islands and Japan. In ancient Greece it was a death penalty offense to kiss in public. The Malay kiss (the rubbing of noses) also is used in Greenland and parts of Russia.

In Egypt they kiss one hand and place it on top of the head as a sign of affection.

The Romans had but three words to signify the kiss, while the Greeks had four, the French have twenty and the Germans have thirty. Among the latter cognomens is one which might be highly recommended to the world at large; it is called "nechkussen," meaning "making up for kisses that have been omitted."

In olden times, to kiss a pretty woman was considered a sure cure for a

America's Great Charm

Not all the changes in the trend of travel have taken place from this country to Europe. If no foreigner ever comes to this country for the same reason Americans travel abroad -that is, in search of beauty, culture or entertainment-we can console ourselves with the knowledge that the European industrial regards us with the keenest curiosity.

Mass production and the wonders accomplished in the United States are on the tongue of every business man and manufacturer in Europe. They hear tales of extraordinary achievements and they are coming to this country in increasing numbers to see whether the trick is turned—and, if so, how.-Nation's Business.

Golden Words Uttered

by Tongues of Unknown There are hundreds of people whose names we do not know, though their words have passed into history.

There is the nameless, well-dressed woman who, meeting Wordsworth walking by Loch Kathrine one fine evening, observed, "What, you are stepping westward?" She gave the poet the idea for his poem, Stepping Westward.

There is the watchman who passed under Pepys' window crying, "Past one of the clock, and a cold, frosty morn-

There is the man who first invented the Breton fisherman's petition as he put out to sea, "Oh, God, do thou help and guard me; the sea is so wide and my boat is so small."

And who was the poor old dame who, when questioned by a kindly bishop, held up her dry crust and said, "I have all this, and faith"?

And there are, of course, all the unknowns whose words are sung and said around the world and will not pass away.

Voice of Envy

At a dinner one of the speakers was exceptionally long-winded. At the end of half an hour the irascible chairman could stand the flow no longer. He clanged his bell violently and the orator was so surprised that he sat down without completing his last sen-

A guest sitting next to the chairman whispered with a sigh, "I wish I had a bell like that at home."

Not Expected

Bobby, on his fourth birthday, was sitting by the window with his mother watching for the postman. Bobby turned to his mother, and said: "Why, mother, the postman won't come today because this is my birthday."

"But what of that?" asked mother. "Well, you said he wouldn't come one day when it was Washington's birthday," replied Bobby.

Evidently Chinese Boy

Has No Use for 'Phone Telephone service in Shanghai, with the subscribers talking half a dozen languages and the operators all Chinese, has been the target of complaint.

The latest voice raised is that of a Chinese youth, the operator of a private switchboard in a foreign firm. He stated, in that peculiar phraseology known only to his kind, as follows:

"For long time now this telephone no good and everybody fight me. This not my fault. I proper boy, but telephone make everybody angry and everybody fight everybody else. Pretty soon all Shanghai fight and telephone fault. This no proper. My Sunday school say must love everybody. How can I love everybody when everybody fight me because telephone no work. I think house boy job more better. But every house have telephone and everybody fight me again. How I get away from telephone? I work in shop, have telephone; I go to school, have telephone; everybody have telephone, so fashion everybody fight. More proper I think have telephone all finish. May be you have friend who no have telephone and wanchee house boy, you tell me, I go. No more telephone, I very happy."

Sall-Fish an Acrobat

Of all the great game fishes in the ocean near Florida, the splendid sailfish is first in interest. Although this lithe acrobat of the gulf stream is needlessly slaughtered by thousands each year, says Nature Magazine, it still remains one of the least known of the popular tropical fishes. No one really knows where this quaint wanderer of the deep breeds, whither he goes, or whence he comes. But he cruises along the gulf stream, alone, in couples, or in small schools, sometimes quite small, though well past the baby stage, one of the quaintest fish in all the world. His querulous down-turned mouth and large bright eyes set near its base; his long beak, and high, flaunting purple-splotched dorsal fin, which suggests the frill of some long vanished saurian, give him a strangely birdlike appearance.

No More Hot Days in The Kitchen

When you cook electrically

You're never out of fuel when you cook Electrically

> No Waiting No delay.

How every woman dreads getting a meal this hot weather, with the old method of cooking the kitchen soon becomes as hot as a boiler room. But thanks to electricity this condition is no longer necessary today more than 700,-000 women have found that electric cookery. has released them from this drudgery. Not only does electric cookery afford them a cooler kitchen, it also helps keep a kitchen much cleaner. Then too it gives a housewife more time for other duties or leisure. It also makes cooking more economical, for there is approximately 20% less food shrinkage in electric cooked food.

Electric cookery is so convenient and dependable. There's no waiting for fuel, you merely turn the switch and you have a constant flow of clean fuel, at any hour and any day, regardless of the weather or the season.
