BOARD OF EDUCATION PROCEEDINGS.

Contract Awarded for the Union Bridge Building.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order in the office of the Board, Feb. 4, 1931, at 10:10 A. M. All members were present.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were approved as read.

The bills presented to the Board, paid and unpaid, were approved and ordered paid.

The following schools having raised the indicated sums of money were granted the usual contribution of $10.00 each for additional equipment in their school. Deer Park $12.00; Wisner, $18.66; Bachman, $10.00.

The committee on the Union Bridge school building, Superintendent Unger and Commissioner Allen, was authorized to continue and to investigate the water supply from the Bowman spring and make such arrangements as they deem advisable with respect to the rental compensation, or the digging of a well on the school grounds.

The Superintendent read a letter from the Committee of the Rosenwald Fund stating that the Board of Education of Carroll County would be allowed $1500.00 for the construction of the proposed property on Church Street. This property is under construction at the present time.

Authority was given the Superintendent to engage a janitor for the Church Street property and to pay him at the rate of $150 a year.

The Board approved the action of putting bronze tablets into the Skysville and Hampstead buildings which have not as yet been placed.

A delegation from Uniontown came before the Board stating the congested situation in Uniontown and requesting the Board to enlarge the school to take care of the load. In order to adequately take care of this community and the surrounding country schools four additional rooms are necessary which have been estimated to cost approximately $15,000. The delegation was directed to appear before the County Commissioners and obtain their approval of the expenditure of this sum of money in that district by getting a guarantee that it would be allowed if placed in the 1931-32 budget.

A delegation came from East View and Deer Park communities requesting that their schools remain open for another year. They approved the plan of closing East View and making Deer Park a primary school. This suggestion was approved by the Board.

The Board appointed Mr. H. J. Sterner to bring into Lineboro the eleven children that come from the territories Northwest of Lineboro and Tracey school which has been closed and agreed to give him the compensation of $3.00 a day for this transportation.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was called for February 11 at 10:00 o'clock to consider the bids for the construction of a school building at Union Bridge. The list of bidders and total amount of the bids after the subtraction of the allowance offered for the old building at Union Bridge was as follows:

I. H. Crouse & Sons	$75380.00
H. L. Moser	72377.21
A. C. Hood	69200.00
Hoffman Brothers	63817.00
William Saylor	61229.95
N. C. Erb	61098.39
E. E. Stuller	57720.00
Allen F. Feeser	52248.00

As Allen F. Feeser, of Taneytown, was the successful bidder, the contract was awarded to him with the understanding that he gives proper bond for the proof of the contract, and that the building is to be ready for occupancy by September 1, 1931. As the amount of the bid is in excess of the amount agreed upon to be appropriated by the County Commissioners, the balance will be transferred to this account from the sale of school properties consummated on Feb. 4th.

The Board adjourned at 4 P. M.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION FOR WOMEN.

Always grease an iron with lard or vasoline before putting it away for a long time, or it will rust. To remove rust on an iron, scour it with scouring powder, and rub well with a flannel cloth.

Too much water in a washing machine causes excessive splashing and often reduces the efficiency of the machine. Observe where the water line is, and also be careful not to overload the machine with clothes.

Three-cornered wire sink baskets make good receptacles for dusty and oily cloths in the cleaning closet, as they permit a circulation of air and reduce the danger of fire. They take up very little space in a small closet.

Always iron with the thread of the goods and iron until the garment is dry. Otherwise it will pucker. To remove the shiny gloss on seams, tucks, or hems, moisten a piece of soft cloth in clear water, wring it dry, and wipe it quickly over the shiny surface.

Thin, crisp slices of oven-dried toast are delicious with soup. When you have a large pad of a loaf of stale bread on hand, trim off the crusts, which can be dried separately for bread crumbs and, with a sharp knife, cut the loaf into slices as thin as possible. Place in a moderate oven until crisp and delicately browned. If kept in an air-tight tin, these pieces will be crisp for several days.

RED CROSS TOTAL $1000.00

Contributions to the $2000.00 Quota Still Solicited.

Although a compromise agreement has been reached through a $20,000.00 loan, if needed to care for the suffering in the drought areas, this has nothing to do with the work of the Red Cross, that gives, and does not loan, relief. The acceptance of this new compromise should rather mean that it will quickly promote the raising of the $10,000,000 Red Cross fund, and not discourage it.

Carroll County, therefore, should do its best to raise its $3000. quota, and this can be done without causing an extent of giving that can not easily be afforded. Only 80 cents for every ten persons in the county will raise the sum.

The amount turned in for the county, to date, is about $1000.00—one-third of the quota asked from the county. The Churches of the Brethren have been most active in responding to the appeal among the denominations in the county. A number of sums have likely been received, locally not yet turned over to the County Red Cross officials.

The Record will continue to receive subscriptions as long as they come in.

RED CROSS FUND NOTES.

Montgomery county's quota of $3600, has been raised, and the completion canvass of the county is expected to reach $5000.

The total receipts in Baltimore, so far, total about $120,000, the full quota being $230,000.

In Frederick county the total received is near $1000.

The Nation-wide total, from last published report seen, is about $8,000,000 and growing daily.

The Red Cross is now giving aid to about 1,000,000 persons, but the emergency need is said to be slowly passing in some sections. Eighteen states and 535 counties are receiving aid.

TANEYTOWN 25 YEARS AGO.

The following items appeared in the issue of The Record, Feb. 10, 1906.

The Burgess and Commissioners approved an ordinance giving a local Electric Light and Power Co., a franchise for 40 years. The Directors of the Company were E. E. Reindollar, president; Harvey E. Weant, Secretary; D. J. Hesson, Joseph E. Roelker and P. B. Englar.

Dr. Milton M. Valentine, Gettysburg, well known Lutheran leader, died on Tuesday, Feb. 6, from paralysis.

P. B. Englar resigned in the middle of a two year's term, the office of State Secretary for Md. of the P. O. S. of A., after having served ten years.

Chicken-pox was prevalent in a pronounced form.

A temperature of 4° above zero was recorded on the morning of the 6th.

Large quantities of fine ice were being stored away in the numerous ice houses.

The Sale Register contained dates for 33 sales. Then, as now, J. N. O. Smith was the auctioneer for most of them.

The main advertisers were The Reindollar Co.; Mehrling & Basehart; Koons Bros.; Nathan Kirshin; J. T. Koontz; C. Edgar Yount & Co.; D. J. Hesson.

Market prices were: Wheat, 80c; rye, 55c; oats, 30c; timothy hay, $7; bundle rye straw $7.00.

(The Electric Company referred to held several meetings; received subscriptions for several thousand dollars in stock; investigated the cost of a plant to be operated by engine, and by several water sources, but decided finally that the cost of operation would be too great to make the venture profitable.—Ed.)

TANEYTOWN BUILDER GETS CONTRACT.

Allen F. Feeser, Taneytown, was the lowest bidder for the Union Bridge School building, and was awarded the contract. H. I. Sies, Taneytown, is the sub-contractor on the lighting, and J. H. Allender, of Hampstead, on the heating and plumbing. There were fifteen bids submitted.

ORDERS 10,000 RABBITS.

An order for 10,000 cotton-tail rabbits for release in the counties of the State during March was placed this week by E. Lee LeCompe, State Game Warden, with game breeders and trappers of Kansas, according to an announcement made by the warden. The order was placed after considerable opposition had been made by the State Health Department to the importation of rabbits because of the possibility of spreading tularemia to the local hares, which have but recently come through an epidemic of this disease.

(And Rabbits are generally considered to be injurious to young trees.—Ed.)

POPE PIUS XI BROADCASTS.

On Thursday Pope Pius XI made his first world-wide broadcast over the radio, which was distinctly heard throughout this country by thousands of listeners. Two addresses were given, one in Latin, the other in Italian. The entire program covered two hours. Both speeches were translated into English. He spoke not only to his own people but to all people who inhabit the globe united toward the same end, both rich and poor, advising all to be faithful and diligent in good works.

LEGISLATURE IS GET- TING BUSY

Various Measures are Arousing the Public Interest.

The assessment of Real Estate seems likely to be postponed from 1932 to 1934, and that an effort will be made to increase the revenue of the state from sales and income tax, and not direct levies.

On returning to their seats on Tuesday our legislators found their desks filled with protests against the proposed Michael bill which would make Sunday observance laws a matter of local option. Although the bill itself has not yet been formally introduced, the report that it would be stirred up the opposition to it. It is believed that such a bill would pass the House, as it did two years ago when it was defeated in the Senate. Therefore the centre of the fight will this year naturally be against its passage in that body, with the result at present claimed to be in doubt.

A bill has again been introduced in the House that would increase the pay of members of the General Assembly from $5.00 to $15.00 per day, and of presiding officers from $8.00 to $25.00 per day, subject to a referendum on an Amendment to the Constitution (a like bill was defeated twice at previous referendums.)

A bill was introduced in the House requiring twenty-four hours between the application for and the issue of a marriage license, and another twenty-four hours before marriage can take place, said application to be accompanied by a physician's certificate as to health.

The whipping post is provided in another bill providing for the restoration of to the owner of the value of stolen fowls, and a penalty of twelve months in prison or twenty lashes at a whipping post, for convicted poultry thieves.

The backers of signs erected along State highways were made responsible for them in a measure introduced by Delegate Metzgerott, Prince George's, Republican floor leader. His measure made the erection of any sign advertising any product prima-facie evidence that the manufacturer was responsible for its presence.

A resolution was presented in the House by Mr. Rouston requesting favorable action by Congress on the proposed Washington-Lincoln Memorial Boulevard, from Washington to Gettysburg.

Senator Melvin introduced a bill providing for a loan of $500,000 for the observance of Maryland's tercentenary (300 years) celebration, and the erection of a Memorial Hall of Records, and a number of monuments for historic spots.

Mr. Michael introduced his local option bill applying to Sunday amusements and games, on Wednesday, also applying to what merchandise might be sold.

House bill increasing the salary of the State's Attorney of Carroll County from $2000. to $3000. The favorable report of the Carroll County delegation was adopted.

Speaker Michel has signified his intention of calling for an investigation of numerous activities connected with Baltimore municipal affairs. Mayor Broening has expressed himself as welcoming any such investigation and would co-operate with it. Gov. Ritchie is unfavorable to the investigation, as are numerous Democratic leaders, and Mr. Michel has been warned "to be careful."

Mr. Rouston presented a bill giving the Mayor and Council of Westminster power to regulate and provide for issuing of licenses for peddling and agents; for regulating and taxing restaurants, vehicles, engaged in transportation, various business and amusements places, poles of utilities, dogs, trades and avocations, and to exercise within corporate limits all the police powers to the same extent as the state.

THE ORPHANS' COURT.

Monday, Feb. 9, 1931—Frank McC. Brown, administrator of Mary L. Brown, deceased, settled his first and final account.

Letters of administration on the estate of John C. Cassell, deceased, were granted unto Frank R. Cassell, who received order to notify creditors.

Catharine A. Brothers, executrix of Sarah Routzahn, deceased, returned inventory personal property and received orders to sell personal property and real estate.

Mary Ann Byers, administratrix W. A. of Josephine Frizzle, deceased, returned inventory personal property and received order to sell same.

Naomi G. Streivig, executrix of Wm. I. Babylon, deceased, returned report sale of personal property.

Horatio T. Wentz, administrator of Jacob H. Sherman, deceased, returned inventory current money and settled his first and final account and also report of sale of personal estate.

William R. S. Denner, executor of Harry M. Smith, deceased, received order to transfer personal property.

William N. Blume, administrator of Augustus E. Blume, deceased, reported sale of personal property, inventories debts due and current money and settled his first and final account.

The last will and testament of Wm. A. Abbott, deceased, was admitted to probate and letters testamentary thereon were granted unto R. Blaine Murray and Claude A. Abbott, who received warrant to appraise personal property and order to notify creditors. Clarence R. Clarke, executor of John H. L. Clarke, deceased, settled his second account.

THE WASHINGTON-LINCOLN Boulevard Question is Revived in House of Delegates.

Delegate Melvin H. Rouston has introduced a Joint Resolution in the House of Delegates requesting Congress to pass Senate (U. S.) Joint Resolution No. 78 providing for the construction of a Washington-Lincoln Memorial Boulevard from the city of Washington to Gettysburg, in order to "further commemorate the public services of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln," etc.

This is a follow-up action concerning this proposition on which a hearing was held in the Senate office building last May when the matter was presented before the Senate committee having the original Resolution in charge.

At this hearing numerous representatives from Carroll, Frederick and Montgomery counties were heard, but nothing has been heard from the matter since, a report for the Committee perhaps never having been made to Congress.

Mr. Rouston's resolution has been referred to the (Md.) House Committee on Federal Relations. The project if carried out, would provide for a boulevard connecting the Lincoln Memorial in Washington with the Gettysburg battlefield. At the hearing referred to, rival routes were advocated, one passing through Frederick City, and the other a more direct route through Carroll County.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Appeals.

J. H. Allender vs. N. Claude Erb, assumpsit. Tried before the Court. Finding of the Court for N. Claude Erb, appellee, in the sum of $45.00.

Charles E. H. Shriner vs. Irving R. Davis, assumpsit. Trial by Jury. Verdict of the Jury for Irving R. Davis, appellee, in the sum of $1.00.

Albert Longnecker vs. Wm. F. Cover, assumpsit. Tried before the Court. Finding of the Court for Wm. F. Cover, Appellee, in the sum of $27.25.

State of Maryland vs. Lawrence Wimert, assault. Tried before the Court. Finding of the Court of guilty. Sentenced to 30 days in jail.

State of Maryland vs. H. L. Betts, giving intoxicating liquor. Tried before the Court. Finding of the Court of not guilty.

Criminals.

State of Maryland vs. Wilbur Brockway, larceny. Guilty confessed. Sentenced to 15 days in jail.

DAIRY AND POULTRY PRODUCTS LOWER IN PRICE.

The tumble in prices of the products of the dairy and poultry yard, is another bit of hard luck for farmers, and at a time when they need a big streak of good luck—or several of them. Of course, there is some compensation, for "store goods" pretty generally are also down in price, especially groceries and staple dry goods, and feeds are somewhat lower; but, all of this hardly makes up for the loss in income.

How are "market prices" made anyway? We could never understand the problem. How does it come about that wheat is a half-cent higher on Friday than it was on Thursday; and how is it that eggs and 19 cents one day, and 18 cents the next day? Who can explain the process that brings this about?

FOR SOLDIER BONUS LOAN.

The question of payment soldiers adjusted service certificates will soon be before Congress for consideration, a movement having been launched for their full payment at face value at this time.

The House Ways and Means Committee has reported out a bill which would allow veterans to borrow up to fifty percent of the face value of their adjusted service certificates at four and one-half percent interest. It was estimated that the bill would result in new loans amounting to $800,000,000.

The Treasury at first set its face against any veteran legislation whatsoever, opposing all bills for the redemption in cash of any part of the adjusted service certificates and offering no suggestions as to a loan bill. Leaders of the industrial and financial world joined in supporting the Treasury view but it is now probable that a loan bill may be favorably acted on.

FELLOWSHIP MEETING AT HAUGH'S CHURCH.

During the winter months Haugh's Church of the Woodsboro Lutheran Charge has held a monthly fellowship meeting. The nature of the meeting is song—a devotional meeting with an outstanding speaker and a social hour. The next of these meetings will be held Feb. 18th. Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe will speak on "Reverence." The men of the congregation will furnish and prepare refreshments. Everyone is invited.

THE FARMER'S LEAGUE.

The Farmer's League will meet at the Parish House, Baust Church, on Thursday, February 19, at 1:30 P. M. The topic for discussion will be "Canning Crops." County Agent Burns will be present. These meetings are to be held monthly and all who wish to come are invited.

Nothing can remain static; things are either moving forward or backward.—Henry Ford.

COMPROMISE PLAN FOR DROUGHT RELIEF

Leaders Agree on $20,000,000 Fund for Drought Loans.

A $20,000,000 loan, and not a gift was agreed upon by a conference of Senate leaders to be administered by the Secretary of Agriculture, which was accepted by Senators Robinson and Canaway, of Arkansas, who have led the fight for greater government aid to the suffering states, the fund to be used as it becomes necessary.

The compromise does not affect the $10,000,000 fund being raised by popular subscriptions for the Red Cross. President Hoover assured the Senators that the loan would be sympathetically administered and would cover all needs that may arise. There was much wrangling over the fact that the bill did not specifically mention "food" but Senator Robinson defended the compromise in heated debates, stating "a large part of these loans will be spent for food. There is no reason to doubt it. There is no specific arrangement to give money to buy food. But do you expect a man to produce a crop without eating. It is not a gift, but a loan, and a loan can be spent for food."

The main opposition to the acceptance of the compromise loan comes from the Progressives in the Senate—La Follette, Blaine and others—who would like to see a special session called and who are the most persistent opponents of the administration.

The discussion of the loan has resulted in a vote calling on Secretary Hyde of the Department of Agriculture for a specific statement from him that the loan will apply to "food, clothing and medicine."

Mr. Hyde has replied to the Senate that there will be no prohibition on any one who obtains loans under the act against using the funds so obtained for purchasing food and other supplies. Notwithstanding the carping criticism of a few, the bill is expected to pass by a good vote.

EXPENSES AND TAXES.

The legislatures of many states are considering means of reducing local government expense. The saving campaign is most intense in the Middle West—Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Kansas and Oklahoma. The latter state has promised a reduction in taxes by reduction in salaries and the consolidation of state bureaus.

Gov. Bryan, of Nebraska, has reduced the salaries of a number of officials without legislation. Gov. Green, of South Dakota, has proposed a schedule of salary cuts ranging from 10 to 25 percent for all state employees and officials.

Generally, in states which find it necessary to increase their budgets for the next one or two years, the plan is to shift the burden of the new taxes as much as possible, easing the load on farms and homes and setting up commodity and sales taxes and special excises. Several states also plan exemptions from license fees for farm trucks and reductions of auto license fees.

CARE OF TREES.

Trees, like human beings, commit suicide. So says Martin L. Davey, head of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery, but he explains that self destruction in the world of trees is never intentional. The result, however, is just as effective.

Under certain conditions, new roots encircle and bind other roots, or the trunk of the trees. As the roots and the trunk grow the pressure becomes greater until, in time, the tree is starved to death. The life-giving sap cannot pass the points of pressure.

The roots that do this are known as girdling roots. They occur most frequently in trees that have sidewalk on one side, and street on the other, and in trees that grow in hard-packed lawns. Where resistance is great the new roots seek the line of least resistance and entwine themselves round existing roots, where the soil is more porous.

PROBING PRICE OF BREAD.

The U. S. Senate, that has developed a habit of probing and investigating nearly everything, is now probing the cost of bread in its relation to the cost of flour. Elbert Stewart, commissioner of labor statistics says bread costs more than it should, in view of the cheapness of its material, all of which he says has dropped recently.

He says the price of flour follows the price of wheat very closely, and figures were presented showing the cost of flour to be the lowest in years. Other witnesses gave the price of flour at Minneapolis and other large flour markets showing actual price figures, one of them testifying that the flour is a relatively small factor in the cost of bread.

The bakers themselves will likely be called to testify before the investigation is closed.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Sargent D. Bankert and Carrie M. Eckard, Taneytown.

Paul L. May and Marguerite E. L. Ecker, Union Bridge.

Arthur C. Bowman and Mildred Pletzer, Owings Mills.

Theodore R. Stultz and Myrtle Flickinger, Uniontown.

Ray Froumelter and Pauline Crumpacker, Taneytown.

Samuel S. Covington and Stephanie H. Nasuro, Baltimore.

FIFTEEN STATES GET RAIN Proper Conditions for Spring Planting Are Now Assured.

Arkansas, the state that will perhaps receive a larger portion of the drought relief fund than any other, has been greatly benefited by a heavy rainfall last Saturday and Sunday, that will guarantee a fit soil for the planting of Spring crops and largely dissipate the fear of another season of drought.

Like rains fell east of the Mississippi and in southern states, but practically none fell in the wheat states—Montana, northern Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and northern Illinois.

Other states greatly benefited were Western Pennsylvania and western Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Eastern Texas and West Virginia.

Rains on Monday visited eastern states, New York, New Jersey and Delaware. The weather Bureau states that in all fifteen states have been vastly benefited, and to the extent of guaranteeing favorable conditions for Spring planting.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

It is somehow extraordinary that in all of America's history there has been only one President who stands out with the genuine and simple humanity that characterized Abraham Lincoln. Washington was great as soldier and statesman. Jefferson and Madison were distinguished statesmen. Grant achieved military greatness, but the presidency revealed his weaknesses. Roosevelt was a mighty personality. Wilson was the austere scholar. But Lincoln was human first of all, adding to that quality lofty statesmanship, integrity and leadership.

Detraction which comes inevitably to the great has from time to time gnawed at Lincoln's memory. Yet none of it has diminished his stature. As the years pass such attempts are increasingly futile. Lincoln still stands as a colossal figure, a man with many human weaknesses who faced the necessity of tremendous decisions, faced those decisions squarely and grew constantly stronger as his burdens and those of his country became heavier. On the one hundred and twenty-second anniversary of his birth, the memory of him is still glowing and inspiring.—Phila. Ledger.

CHICKEN ONCE "WROTE" EDITORIAL FOR GREELEY?

Horace Greeley, the epic hero of American journalism, had probably the world's worst handwriting, according to the Golden Book Magazine. Only one man in the Tribune office could read it, an old typesetter who had for thirty years set up Mr. Greeley's daily editorial. Never once in all that time had he asked Mr. Greeley to decipher a word for him, and he was justly proud of his herculean achievement.

The reporters, tired of hearing about it, one day captured a chicken, dipped its feet in ink and let it track back and forth over several sheets of copy paper. Then one of them rushed to the typesetter, crying: "Set this editorial for Mr. Greeley, quick!" The typesetter started in confidently, and got half way down the page with out any trouble. At last he came to a word he could not seem to make out. Finally he went into Mr. Greeley's office, much distressed. "Mr. Greeley," he said, "for thirty years I've been setting your editorials and never had to bother you with a question. But there's one word here I just can't make it out." The great editor looked up patiently, adjusted his spectacles and focused his attention at the end of the typesetter's dirty forefinger. "In this time of stress," he said, "it is the government's duty to—duty to—humanity, of course. That's the word—humanity. What do you mean you can't read it? Shame on you!"

The typesetter went back and completed the job without further difficulty.—Publisher's Auxiliary.

CARROLL COUNTY SOCIETY BENEFIT PARTY.

A card party for the benefit of the Carroll County Society of Baltimore will be held at the Women's Club of Roland Park, Monday, February 16, 1:31, at 8 o'clock, P. M. Bring cards. Tickets 50 cents. Tickets may be purchased from committee at the door. Door and table prizes.

Mrs. Henry F. Harrison, chairman, 1001 St. Paul St.; Mrs. A. G. Daniels, Mrs. O. D. Hendrickson, Mrs. C. H. Englar, Mrs. G. M. Englar, Mrs. Ray Englar, Mrs. Nathan Smith, Mrs. Charles Koppe, Mrs. George R. Babylon, and Mrs. J. L. Eckenrode.

PRUNING TREES.

Prune limbs from trees so there will be no stub left, advises the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Make the cut parallel to the trunk or the supporting limb and as close as possible even if this makes the cut surface somewhat larger than it otherwise would be. Improperly made wounds are not covered by new growth as soon as those made properly and may result in unnecessary damage by decay of the exposed wood.

OUR EASTERN SHORE.

Once again, we call attention to our Editorial page, this time to part of an article on the Eastern Shore, which will give our readers much information, some of which they may not have, concerning Maryland's big garden. Read it, and be prepared to "talk back" to California and Florida boosters!

THE ALMS HOUSE QUESTION.

Considering the fact that but few of the County Homes, or Alms Houses, in the state are reported to be up-to-date, sanitary, or comfortable in all appointments, we incline strongly toward the opinion that two state institutions of this kind—one on the Eastern Shore and the other on the Western Shore, in addition to the one in Baltimore—would be an improvement over the present plans.

They would at least have, to begin with, new buildings, properly designed for the purpose; and it is to be assumed that specialists would be assigned to the care of the inmates, instead of the present plan of stewards being changed as county political control changes. As state institutions the state would also naturally take pride in maintaining them on a standard equal to the best in other states, and no doubt the State Board of Health would have leading part in seeing to their sanitary condition.

There may be objections to the Eastern and Western Shore homes for the poor, that we do not know of, but on the face of it, the proposition looks like one aimed in the right direction.

OUR SUNDAY LAWS.

The same old fight against Sabbath observance is up again before the legislature, sponsored mainly by Baltimore City interests, and the favorite attack is being made against "blue laws" of the state. The movement as it applies to Baltimore, would practically place the making of the Sunday laws for the city in the hands of the Mayor and City Council—not a "state's rights," but a "city's rights," proposition, in line with the "personal liberty" doctrine.

Nobody is fooled by the effort being made. It is not to grant a little more liberty in the sale of merchandise, nor to ease up on the definition of what manual labor means, but is a deliberate effort to legalize commercialized games and amusements, and eventually, to extend such liberties to the whole state—to change the Sunday laws from "blue" to any color best representing "wide open."

Our own opinion is that there would be no great harm in widening the list of articles that may be legally sold on the Sabbath day. It seems to us that the character of the times, and the legitimate needs of the people have so changed as to justify doing this, and without damage to any important moral principle.

But, the opponents of our present laws actually want no prescribed list at all, nor any restrictions safeguarding the Sabbath day, as such. They would have it a day just like the other six, and to this no right-minded person should agree. In fact, can not agree if they profess to believe in any orthodox religious convictions; and if they do not, then they have no right to make our laws.

DO WE HAVE REAL ECONOMY IN PUBLIC EXPENSE?

Practically all of the talk about taxation, is how to find new sources for an increased basis, and how to "equalize" taxation between real estate and other taxable property. A question that is almost equally important is not heard from; and that is, whether economy in salaries and administration might not be adjusted downward in order to meet the other problem part of the way?

If an earnest desire is manifested to solve the tax problem, this second question should not be avoided. Do we not have officials who are practically useless, and could not all necessary offices be as well filled as now with men who would be glad to have the opportunity to do so at smaller than present salaries?

Of course, a howl of protest from the "ins" against any such plan, would be a foregone conclusion, but we must remember that it is the bigger crowd of "outs" that pays the taxes. We venture the assertion that a fair survey of the employees about the State House—or who are supposed to be there—might show a very considerable number of place-warmers, whose main job is to have their salary checks cashed. We do not say this advisedly, but such a survey might substantiate the statement.

If it is untrue, it would be almost a miracle—and one not applying solely to Annapolis. If we understand aright, some of the jobs had to be cut in two, and made half-time, to accommodate "the unemployed."

But in a very general way the subject is one so likely to have truth in it, that the imposed on tax-payers have a right to ask such questions. And in these tight times, what plans, if any, have been placed in operation by our publicly supported activities to curtail plans, enlargements, and reduction in overhead—in fact, have actual emergency economies been placed in operation? We use the word "emergency" properly, for there is one—a big one too, resting on most tax-payers, right now, and officialdom should be made recognize and respect it.

WOMEN ON JURIES?

We hardly think so, and we have the faith in the average qualified woman that she thinks the same way about it. "Women rights" have been extending rather rapidly during the past ten years or so, and it may be well to stop a bit and analyze the effect these later rights may have had on—let us say, the welfare of the country.

For instance, has it been fully demonstrated that "votes for (all) women" has actually done anything more than near doubling the vote cast at elections? Have the few women elected to office demonstrated any benefit to the public service? Have the votes of women added to the intelligence of majority results, or anything to justify the great increase in the cost of our elections?

We hope we are open-minded on these questions, and state them merely as a sort of preface to the questions of jury duty for women. If it were possible to make the distinction between the fit and unfit—for voting, office holding or jury service—we could easily answer the question in favor of the new proposition affirmatively. But as jurors are drawn from all the names on the poll books, we find it unable to do so.

Miss Risteau, member of the House of Delegates from Harford county, opposes jury service for women, alleging that if the law is so amended, then many women voters will withdraw their names from the poll books.

But, is this a good and sufficient reason? If women are properly qualified to serve as members of the House of Delegates, why not on juries in county courts; for actually the House of Delegates performs a jury service of more importance than is met in the average case in court.

As, as we are not sure that it is wise to elect many women to our legislative assemblies, so are we not sure that it is wise to make them eligible to jury duty. What we call the proper "women's sphere" is very difficult to outline with exactness, and perhaps the whole question would be greatly classified if it were possible to weed out a pretty considerable percentage of men who are not qualified either for voting, or for public office, or for jury duty.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The Congressional Record has been using up an immense quantity of paper for a month or more past, thus benefitting the paper industry, if sometimes nothing more. If all could read this unique publication, and get both sides of the questions discussed, public opinion would perhaps be changed on some matters, for the reason that most political papers elaborate only on the side that best suits their political convictions.

The Congressional Record in its field, is the greatest publication in the world, giving each day, practically in book form, a detailed account of all that transpires—publicly—in both branches of Congress. All of the debates are given, word for word, along with the little by-play in debate that means so much but which is often entirely omitted in the public press.

In fact, what we get in the daily papers is from reporters on the spot, who often condense proceedings and perhaps give them the coloring that best suits the policy of their papers, using their editorship privileges but hardly to the extent of actual misrepresentation, as Washington reporters are as a rule high-class men in their line.

However, omitting a little here and there, may be privileged, yet hardly fair; while the Congressional Record gives all, just as it happens—and sometimes more than happens, for the reason that "permission to print" is often given, of speeches never actually delivered on the floor, but copies of the issues containing such undelivered efforts may be sent "back home," thereby carrying a wrong impression.

Actually, had one the time to read each day's proceedings the act would in itself represent the opportunity for receiving a liberal and very broad education, as the real actual value of the publication far outweighs the criticism of it. The extent of the research necessary to provide the material for an important speech on an important topic, is immense, and as all statements made are subject to possible contradiction, they are usually correct and valuable as they form the basis on which the most important legislation affairs of our country are shaped.

LADIES OF THE JURY.

The ladies, or rather, some of them, now want to serve on juries. Knowing how the majority of their husbands and sons seek to evade such service, it comes rather as a shock to realize that there is a class of persons who really want to be impaneled.

We have no objection to the women serving on juries. Perhaps it will be an excellent thing. Justice has always been represented as a blind Goddess, anyhow. The ladies of the jury may not be blind, but certainly a male litigant engaged in a suit with a pretty female will stand a much better chance of getting justice, if a few of her sisters are coldly appraising the complexion, hair, clothes and manners of the lady in the case. At the present time a slender ankle, a few tears and a languishing look or two have far greater effect upon the average "twelve good men and true," than cold, legal logic or impassioned hired eloquence. Sometimes, we have suspected, even judges, supposed to be impervious to all sentiment, weaken when a pair of appealing eyes are turned toward the bench.

By all means, gentlemen, let the ladies on the juries. It is high time that we men get a little justice.—Townson Union News.

CONGRESSIONAL DELAYS.

Visitors to Washington who watch the proceedings of Congress often remark on the slight attention given to many of the debates. They will listen from the galleries to some orator who is making the echoes ring, but they often note that only a few of the senators or representatives are present to hear such an address. It seems a futile thing for the time of the national legislature to be thus taken up, postponing action on vital issues, if only a few are listening. Half of the people in the chamber at the time may be reading, writing, or doing anything but paying attention.

Under the American traditions of free speech, it is said to be necessary to give orators their chance, even if they waste valuable time. But it does seem unfortunate if prolonged delays are created by speeches to which the other legislators will not listen.

It is supposed to quiet discontent in the various states, if their spokesmen are given the chance to express their views at length. But if the other statesmen are not willing to hear these views expressed, it is hard to see much practical benefit.

Business is too much delayed in Congress. Attention to real needs is too long postponed. Somehow, the statesmen should speed up their proceedings. Prolonged speeches should be cut down. Speeches to which few are willing to listen would better be printed in the Congressional Record without personal delivery. That might suit some of the orators just as well. The time limits on wordy addresses should be more frequently enforced.

If Congress is going to finish its work promptly, and attend to the needs of the country without intolerable delay, there needs to be less talk and more action.—Frederick News.

A lot of the "talk" in Congress is to the "galleries," and to the representatives of the press and through them to the voters "back home." It therefore often makes comparatively little difference whether there is a quorum present, or not. Those not present are wise, and perhaps sometimes prefer to absent themselves in order to prevent being "bored." And being absent, gives them a chance to study up something with which to orate later on, and thereby give a chance for a new class of absentees to rest.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE.

For a considerable period Senator Caraway and others have been implying by innuendo that the Red Cross used Federal funds for feeding Belgians and Russians after the war and asking why that organization and President Hoover object so seriously to accepting Federal funds for feeding Americans. Of course, Senator Caraway knows that his implication has no foundation in fact.

But a reminder seems to be necessary. The Red Cross has never received a direct grant of funds from the Federal Government. Its war work was financed by money collected in the customary manner. After the war certain army equipment which it was thought unwise to send back to the United States was donated to the Red Cross and was used in post-war relief work. The Red Cross had nothing to do with the European food relief, which was supported by the United States Government. This was carried out by the American Relief Administration.

Senator Caraway presumably knows these facts. But this knowledge does not deter the sharp-tongued gentleman from Arkansas from implying that President Hoover and the Red Cross, while willing to help foreigners, are refusing aid to starving Americans.—Phila. Ledger.

OUR EASTERN SHORE.

We take the liberty of reproducing a portion of an article from "The Transmitter" a handsome publication issued by the C. & P. Telephone Co., on the subject, "Glimpsing the past and present of Maryland's Eastern Shore." The article is well worth reading, not only for its information, but because it helps to give us a "chesty" opinion of our state that we can pass on when somebody gets to boasting of the resources of their own state.

"Why should the Eastern Shore of Maryland be any more famous for food than the Western Shore? The answer is that the soil there is better adapted for the production of things that are good to eat and that the climate assists nobly. Add to this the fact that the Chesapeake Bay supplies in abundance such things as oysters, clams, terrapin, crabs and fish. And to this accumulation of evidence add the fact that the people on the Shore manage to find the time and the inclination to properly prepare and enjoy food.

If you will study the Eastern Shore geographically, you will see why agriculture and fishing play such a large part in the life of the people. The Chesapeake divides Maryland into two parts, and makes of the Eastern Shore a flat, fertile peninsula, with a sandy soil that is a joy to plow. All the rocks and mountains are on the other side of the bay. Also, the Chesapeake and the Atlantic seemed to have conspired to give the Eastern Shore a wonderful climate. I have been told that in Western Maryland, in Garrett County, away up in the mountains near Pennsylvania and West Virginia, there are only 120 days between the last killing frost of spring and the first killing frost of autumn, but that in Dorchester, caressed by the waters of the Chesapeake, there are 211 such days.

The population of the Eastern Shore is and always has been almost exclusively rural. In every county the rural population is from three to ten times that of the town population.

One thing that has always appealed to me about the Eastern Shore of Maryland is that it is one tremendous garden, 150 miles long and from seven to seventeen miles wide. It is also a community of homes.

There are other sections of the United States far greater in area that are devoted to agriculture, but these areas lack something of the atmosphere of the Eastern Shore. They usually produce just one thing and that thing in an impersonal way. Frequently, such farms are owned by stockholders who live at a distance. The Eastern Shore is different in that it is not a huge wheat farm, it is not a tremendous orchard, it is not a great, big tobacco or cotton plantation. It is just a collection of vegetable gardens. And when one thinks of a vegetable garden he thinks of a home. And in spite of the tendency toward apartment house living, the rural or small town home is still a basic unit of a healthy and happy nation.

Out of the Eastern Shore's vegetable gardens come white and sweet potatoes, tomatoes, sweet corn, peas, beans, cantaloupes, strawberries. Wicomico County and Worcester County each goes over the million dollar mark in such produce, and perhaps there are others. Dorchester raises more tomatoes than any other county in the United States, with more than 6,000 acres under cultivation. One tiny village in Somerset, Marion Station, ships annually more than 600 carloads of strawberries, in addition to those shipped by boat and truck.

Much of the produce raised on the Eastern Shore is shipped fresh to Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York traveling overnight by fast truck over excellent roads or by special refrigerator cars on the railroad. What is left is canned on the Shore or is sent to Baltimore for canning. Baltimore is the only large city in which canning is extensive done, and Maryland is the principal canning state in the Union. There are 410 canneries right on the Eastern Shore.

In addition to truck the Eastern Shore grows corn and wheat, and has done so since colonial days. In addition to flat land and easily-worked soil, Eastern Shore farmers have another advantage—they use for fertilizer the refuse from the vegetable and fish packing houses. On some parts of the Shore pine needles or "shats" are used for fertilizer.

Of almost equal importance on the Shore is the sea food industry. This is a story that has often been told. Generations of Eastern Shore people have gained a living from the Great Bay. Millions of dollars in fish and oysters and crabs have been taken from it. In Cambridge, Crisfield and at other places are packing houses to which are brought the cargoes of the boats from which the fishing and crabbing and oystering are done. And the crabs and oysters are on the increase again, since Maryland and Virginia have passed laws for their protection. I talked with a man in Cambridge last summer who said there were more crabs in the water then than at any other time within his memory.

Down in Crisfield I saw thousands of steamed crabs in the packing houses, and in a cold storage plant there I saw frozen fish piled up like cordwood. I was told that as many as seven carloads of crabs have been shipped out of Crisfield in a single day. Oysters are shipped by the carload out of both Crisfield and Cambridge, especially just before the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. These oysters go to every part of the country, including the far West. They are shocked before shipping and travel as gallons of oysters rather than as bushels. Christmas shipments out of Cambridge run as high as 75,000 gallons. Annual shipments out of Crisfield, shucked and in the shell, run as high as 200,000 bushels."

POULTRY

NOT NECESSARY TO
VARY CHICKS' DIET

Feed Same Mash From 36-
Hour Age Until Maturity.

The Cornell mash mixture for baby chicks eliminates the old practice of changing the feed every few days. The same mash is fed from the first feeding at 36 to 48 hours to maturity, and at eight weeks a grain mixture is added, says Prof. L. M. Hurd at Cornell university.

The chicks are allowed constant access to the mash, but it is best to feed so that fresh mash can be added twice a day. There should be enough hopper space so that all the chicks may eat at the same time. Fine grit may be given from the start and oyster shell when the chicks are about four months old. Charcoal is unnecessary, he says.

Cod liver oil should be fed at the rate of one-half pint to every 100 pounds of mash during the period when mash is fed, especially if the chicks are indoors most of the time. When grain and mash are fed, one pint is used with each 100 pounds of mash. If the chicks run outdoors daily, no oil is needed after eight weeks.

The Cornell mash contains 45 pounds of yellow corn meal, 10 of wheat bran, 15 of flour wheat middlings, 10 of fine ground heavy oats, 10 of 50 to 55 per cent protein meat scrap, 10 of dried skim milk or dried buttermilk, 2 of steamed bone meal, and one-half pound of salt. The grain mixture is 60 pounds of cracked yellow corn and 40 pounds of wheat.

The grain mixture should be in hoppers, always accessible to the chicks. They should not eat more grain by weight than mash until they are three months old. It is sometimes necessary to restrict the grain to get proper mash consumption, says Professor Hurd.

Two of Most Effective Destroyers of Vermin

Two of the most effective louse destroyers are blue ointment, applied to the skin beneath the vent in about the amount of a bit the size of a grain of corn, and the powder sodium fluoride, applied in pinches well worked down to the skin of a half dozen parts of the hen's body.

A more recent application is to the perches instead of to the birds. This consists of the poisonous liquid Blackleaf 40, a very concentrated tobacco preparation. A ribbon of this is spread from an oil can or other convenient container along the top of each perch shortly before the fowls go to roost. The fumes arising kill the lice, according to various authorities who have tried the method.

Open Shed Shelter Is Favored for Turkeys

A form of shelter for turkeys which has proven very satisfactory when it is necessary to construct shelter, is the open shed of the machinery shed type. One end can be closed at the front and the roosts placed in that end, so that they will always be protected from wind and storm. This type of structure affords excellent ventilation, ample room for exercise, and all the protection that is necessary. Another advantage of this type is the fact that the shed can be used for sheltering small machinery in the summer.

Rat Poison Discovered Is Harmless to Humans

Don't throw up the sponge when a rat runs off with a chicken, and beware "bad luck." Science says, "Let's get the rat," and starts out to do it. As a matter of fact, and this may be news, too, there grows off the coast of Italy, in the Mediterranean sea, a big bulb, called squill. Scientists with the United States Department of Agriculture found that the essence of that bulb would kill rats. It will not kill and is not poisonous to hen, dog or man.

Lice Deterrent

Thick cream on the head of a poult as a deterrent of head lice is better than grease, for grease will also kill. Camphorated oil applied very lightly between the quill feathers with a fine paint brush will do the work, but it must be used economically. Poult must not be confined at night in a newly painted coop, painted either with paint or lice killer.

Another essential "must not," if one would have thrifty poult— they must not run on chicken range.

Broiler Feeding Tests

Broiler raising tests were conducted with Single Comb Rhode Island Reds at the North Carolina State college. It required seven pounds of feed to raise and fatten a two-pound broiler for market. This includes both mash and grain. The feed cost amounted to 20 cents. The chick at 20 cents and other costs at 10 cents will make the two-pound broiler stand you 50 cents when ready to sell. Fall is a good time to raise a few hundred broilers.

Accumulation of Ages in Dead Sea's Flotsam

Travelers in the Holy land visiting the deepest hole in the earth's surface, that occupied by the Dead sea, into which the Jordan empties itself, are always struck with astonishment at the sight of countless numbers of palm tree trunks, heaped by the waters on its banks.

There are now no such numbers of palm groves in the vicinity, or on the banks of the Jordan, the Arnon or other rivers flowing into this sea, as would account for so prodigious an amount of debris. Any attempt at building a fire out of the mass of flotsam, results, after exercising much patience, in feeble, blue flames of no great intensity. The wood is heavily impregnated with salt from the Dead sea—Salt sea, or Lake Asphaltes as it has been called—that is, is pickled and will last for centuries.

The accumulations of countless ages are represented in those piles of roots and logs, carrying the mind back to the time when the four kings made the first incursion from Mesopotamia into Canaan, near Hazazon-Tamar, or "The Rows of Palms," the modern Engedi, (Genesis 14:7), captured Lot and his family, but were followed and defeated by Abraham.

Bus Passengers Out of Luck in Spanish Town

The poorer class of Spain believes that if you cannot catch the man who deserves punishment, the best thing to do is to punish some one else, even if vengeance is exacted upon those who knew nothing about what had happened.

In a little village in the province of Valencia a small boy was knocked down and slightly injured by a passing automobile. The driver did not stop, but the villagers decided that some one ought to be punished. So they lined up in the main street, under command of the magistrate, to pummel the first automobilist who came through.

Unluckily, the first car was a big bus. It was halted and the driver and all the passengers were pulled out and given a thorough beating. None of them knew what it was all about, but the punishment was so real that 15 had to be treated by doctors when the bus reached the nearest city and three had to go to a hospital.

German Heroes Honored in Temple of Valhalla

More than a century has passed since King Ludwig I of Bavaria laid the cornerstone of Valhalla. This white marble temple in the style of the Parthenon stands on a wooded hill above the Danube near Regensburg. King Ludwig conceived the idea of a memorial temple to great Germans in 1807 during the Napoleonic occupation of the country, but not until 23 years later was the work begun.

The monarch himself chose the site, and also decreed that the temple should be named Valhalla, after the name of the old Germanic abode of fallen heroes. More than a hundred busts and memorial tablets in the main hall of the temple commemorate famous men and women in Germany's history, beginning with the time of the battle of the Teutoburg forest, which broke Rome's domination in Europe.

Honor Well Bestowed on Chief Justice Taft

One day, along about midwinter, Joseph Tumulty, former secretary to President Woodrow Wilson, was taking his constitutional across the million-dollar bridge on Connecticut avenue when he saw a well-known and gigantic figure striding ahead of him. Before Mr. Tumulty had a chance to quicken his own stride and catch up, as he usually did, a stranger in a muddy, small auto bearing an Ohio license drew up beside the huge figure ahead.

"Say, guy! Could you tell me how to get to 700 California avenue?"

The large man stopped, smiled, went to the side of the muddy flivver and explained carefully and in detail how the stranger could reach the desired destination.

As he finished, the man from Ohio started his engine and called gratefully to the polite Washingtonian:

"Thanks, Chief!" and drove away. Little did the stranger know how nearly he had hit the truth when, in his impersonal gratitude, he had called the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft "Chief."—Collier's Weekly.

Spider's Wonderful Web

The first thing that a spider does in weaving his web is to lay the foundation line. He attaches a line at the point of departure and crawls along spinning it as he goes and holding up the newly spun thread by the claws of one of his hind feet until it reaches a considerable length. He then draws in the slack and makes it fast. The spider then goes over the line several times to strengthen the foundation, after which he spins the other lines of the web. In the case of lines of webs appearing great distances apart the spider emits a thread, which is cut by the air current from its spinnerets until it becomes entangled in the surrounding branches. This power of emitting silk some little distance and allowing the wind to draw it out is frequently exercised in the early life of many spiders.

The new Ford is an economical car to own and drive

Low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation mean a distinct saving to every purchaser

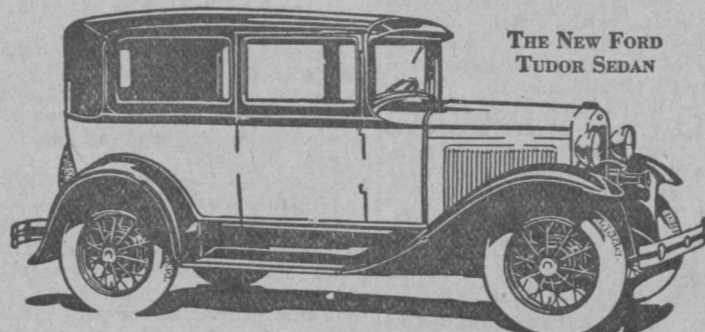

THE NEW FORD is a splendid car to own and drive because of its attractive lines and colors, safety, comfort, speed, reliability and long life.

There are, in addition, three other features of importance to every far-seeing automobile owner . . . low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

During the life of the car, the day-by-day economy of owning a Ford will amount to considerably more than the saving on the first cost. You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

The reasons for this economy are simplicity of design, high quality of materials and care in manufacturing and assembling. Many vital parts are made to limits of one one-thousandth of an inch. Some to three ten-thousandths of an inch. Throughout, the new Ford is an outstanding example of fine craftsmanship in automobile engineering.

The more you see of the new Ford—the more you talk to Ford owners and experienced mechanics—the more certain you become of this fact. . . . It brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Reasons for Scarcity of Batak Literature

Marco Polo and the emperor of China landed on the Batak coast, to avoid a storm in the Thirteenth century, and had to erect block houses to avoid being eaten by the natives. For the Bataks were and are cannibals, eating renowned individuals, not for dietetic reasons, but that his strength and wisdom may be incorporated in the banquets. The choice cuts are the fingers, toes and the palms of the hands; and—according to a cannibal chief who confided in an explorer—the popular term among cannibals for human flesh is "long pig," as the general taste is like that of the pig.

This tendency on the part of the Bataks is probably the reason why libraries are not usually furnished with Batak literature, because very few agents could be induced to look for rare works within reach of people with such ideas. Indeed, the Cleveland public library is probably the only library in the world to possess a pustaka.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Budget's" Original Meaning

The word "budget" can be traced back to the Latin word "bulga," but it is believed that this was itself an adaptation of a word from the Celtic language of old Gaul. It meant a "leather bag;" and from it we have the old English "bouge," "a bag," and "budget," "a little bag," which was in slang used to mean something like "a bag of tricks." In 1733 a pamphlet on Sir Robert Walpole's forthcoming excise bill was published entitled "The Budget Opened," the phrase being used as equivalent to "the cat out of the bag." Henceforth a chancellor of the exchequer making his statement of proposed taxes was said to "open his budget;" and soon the word "budget" was used without jocular intent of the statement itself.—Montreal Family Herald.

Transporting Criminals

In England, under a statute of 1597, "dangerous rogues" might be banished by justices, but no system of transportation of criminals can be said to have arisen until the time of Charles II, when justices were empowered to send certain offenders to America instead of inflicting the death penalty. In 1717, transportation was authorized as a substitute for other punishments than hanging, and the contract system, by which individuals agreed to transport convicts in return for their labor during the period of sentence, was established. Protests from America were frequent, but unavailing. Most of the colonies received some of these criminals.

Carbonated Waters

Artificially aerated waters had their inception in Priestley's success in 1772 in producing aerated water in imitation of a naturally aerated mineral spring water. Large scale manufacture of aerated water was commenced by Paul at Geneva in 1790 and shortly after by Schweppe in London. In the United States, Priestley's experiments interested a Philadelphia physician, Dr. Philip Syng Physick, and he induced a chemist, Townsend Speakman, to prepare carbonated water for his patients. Speakman added fruit juice as a flavor, and the soft-drink industry in this country started at that time, 1807.

That Mouse Ear Theory

Long before phenology became a science, farmers discovered the advancement of the native vegetation in the spring furnished reliable guides to the best time for sowing and planting crops. One old-fashioned rule, probably derived from the Indians, was that corn should be planted when the leaf of the white oak was "the size of a mouse's ear." Several traditional rules of this kind are current among farmers, and one of the tasks of the phenologists is to check them up on the basis of actual statistics.

Observer Saw Beauty in Locomotive's Steam

In a period that provides us with opportunities of learning how interesting and even beautiful a thing a railway can be, it is instructive to recall that an earnest observer of a century ago saw, in the Liverpool and Manchester line, a beauty, apparently, such as Keats discovered in the Greek vase on which he bestowed immortality. Alexander Somerville, in his "Autobiography of a Working Man," published originally in 1848, and referring to a period during the thirties of the last century, states:

"All sights which I had seen in London and elsewhere—the beautiful, the grand, the wonderful—shrank into comparative nothingness when, after reaching Liverpool I went into the country for a week, in the neighborhood of Prescot and saw (each day I sought to see it, each hour of the day I could have stood to see it again) the white steam shooting through the landscape of tree, meadows and villages; loaded with merchandise, men and women, and human enterprise, rolling along under the steam. I had seen no sight like that; I have seen nothing to excel it since. In beauty and grandeur the world has nothing beyond it."—Manchester (England) Guardian.

Brazilian Nut Pickers Victimized by Buyers

The business of gathering Brazil nuts in the Amazon jungle resolves itself into a skin game for the natives concerned when the traders, who follow the harvest, arrive with their boat-loads of rum and trinkets.

Near a group of huts on the river bank the trade boat stops, writes Hugo Franklin in the Boston Transcript, and there the merchandise is displayed in an improvised "store." The trader sits, like the spider in its web, behind a battery of jugs of rum, surrounded by a few pieces of brightly-colored goods, tobacco, bags of salt, cans of kerosene, sometimes even cases of cheap beer.

The nut pickers could make a good profit on the long trip up the river to the nut forests if only they would shun the trader, but little by little their crop piles up beside the store. At the end of the season the poor natives owe money to the traders and, unhappy and penniless, offer to pay the debt by helping to load the nuts on the boat and work their way back to civilization.

Inspiration of Great Song

Carrie Jacobs Bond, author of "The End of a Perfect Day," describes the circumstances under which the song was written as follows: "The story of the writing of 'The End of a Perfect Day' has been told many, many times and in many, many ways, but the truth is a very simple story. The inspiration came to me as I was viewing a wonderful sunset from the top of Mount Rubidoux in Riverside, Calif. I had been motoring through southern California and we had been seeing many beautiful sights, but the glory of this sunset from the mountain was the most beautiful thing I had ever seen. I hurried back to the Mission Inn to get ready for dinner and while dressing I thought how I wished I could express my thanks to those friends in some little way, just out of the ordinary, and almost at once came the words of 'A Perfect Day.'"

Peculiar Hairdressing

German tribes, in olden days, paid a good deal of attention to their hair, says an article in a Boston paper. In certain districts a red dye apparently was used to dye the hair a bright red. The more easterly German tribes usually wore their hair long and loose over the shoulders, men as well as women.

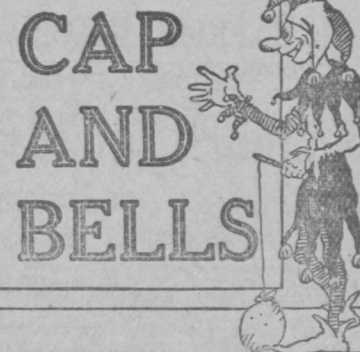

The Saxons, however cut their hair fairly short. Some western tribes had a curious custom of tying the hair on the right side of the head into a knot, with the ends greased to make them protrude like horns. The women in all parts of Germany had a great variety of combs and brooches to keep their long hair in place, although unmarried women appear to have worn their hair loose.—Detroit News.

That Word "Funny"

The word "funny" has a very wide meaning in Scotland. It does not merely signify amusing or entertaining; it is more frequently used to describe something interesting, unusual, or even alarming. In childhood to feel funny on a Monday morning often meant a day off school; it was a vague form of illness that might be anything, and was safer than complaining of anything local. "He's a funny character" does not imply that he is an amusing person, but that he is rather shady. But perhaps the funniest use of "funny" was that of the old lady who asked her little grandson when he returned from a visit to the neighboring gasworks, "Was it funny, Johnnie; was it funny?"

Monarch's Penance

The dignitary who was made to perform a penance of standing in the snow while petitioning for absolution and reinstatement, during three days, was King Henry IV, emperor of Germany, who had been excommunicated in 1076 by Pope Gregory VII and who evidenced his submission in this manner. However, after his reconciliation Henry was again excommunicated and his son, Henry V, was excommunicated and reconciled not less than four times.

WHANG!

A fraternity had sent its curtains to be laundered. It was the second day that the house had stood unveiled. One morning the following note arrived from a sorority across the street:

"Dear Sirs: May we suggest that you procure curtains for windows? We do not care for a course in anatomy."

The chap who left his shaving to read the note answered:

"Dear Girls: The course is optional."

Kept His Date

"Old man, I want to tell you how much I enjoyed your lecture last night—I certainly did."

"Thanks, but I thought you had a date over at your girl's house."

"I did—her parents went to hear you."

Theory Demonstrated

"Do you believe that anyone can put people to sleep by means of hypnotism?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Mr. Dulboy was talking about it yesterday. I felt sleepy before he had spoken twenty words."—Washington Star.

ON THE TRAIL

Maggie—He's a wild Indian, I'll say.

Madge—Why do you call him that?

Maggie—Aw, he's always on some girl's trail.

Compensation

When censure has unjustly raised its voice, don't quit the fight; some day, perhaps, you will be praised with quite as little right.

Might Break Back

First Convict—Well, now that I've got this 'hole dug through the wall, I'm going home to my wife.

Second Convict—Better take your tools with you, in case you wanta break back in!

Easy for Him

Schoch—I was sorry to hear of the death of your wife. She was a good woman.

Friend—She was that, all right. She always hit me with the soft end of the broom.

Work of Burglars

Poet Pete—Burglars broke into my house last night.

Friend—Yes? What happened?

Poet Pete—They searched through every room, then left a $5 bill on my bureau.

Would Ask Wife

Billfuzz—I wonder if that fat old girl over there is really trying to flirt with me?

Goodman—I can easily find out by asking her; she is my wife.

His Hair Came Out

Ethyl—What happened to make all of your father's hair come out?

Methyl—He thought he was using hair tonic but got ahold of mother's hair remover by mistake.

WRONG SCALES

Miss Perch—Oh, dear, I'm three-quarters of a pound overweight. Miss Trout—Perhaps your scales are wrong, my dear.

A Great Saving

Always think before you speak. If this you will recall You'll very oft discover that You needn't speak at all.

Tells the Score Ahead

Smart Aleck—I can tell you the score of the game before it starts. I. L. Bite—What is it?

Smart Aleck—Nothing to nothing—before it starts.

FEESERSBURG.

Sunday, a crystal day! The fields of late fall grass or old weeds were glittering acres of delight, something no human being could create nor paint; but the fact of the weeds being as lovely as the grain, teaches its own lesson of the wonderful work of the Divine artist, to change a thing from ugliness to beauty.

We have been reading much of the life of Abraham Lincoln, and prepared to celebrate the date of his birth. What a strong, noble man—for such a turbulent time in our history! Do not miss seeing his memorial in Potomac Park, Washington, D. C. A statue one could study for hours, just like the man—splendid in its simplicity.

Mr. Sargent D. Bankard and Miss Carrie M. Eckard, both of Taneytown were united in marriage at the home of the groom, on Friday evening, Feb. 6th., by Rev. Guy P. Bready.

DIED.

Obituaries, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The regular death notices published free.

MRS. LYDIA A. HAHN.

Mrs. Lydia A. Hahn died last Saturday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Birnie Babylon, Middle St., Taneytown, after an illness of about a year, aged 79 years, 5 months and 26 days. She had made her home with her daughter for some years, and had been in good health and active for her years, until the commencement of her last illness.

She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Birnie Babylon, Taneytown; Calvin W., Keyville; Lawrence H., Keymar; Edward L., Fairfield, Pa.; Clifford L., Harney; Emory O., Taneytown, and Mrs. Emory Snyder, Littlestown, and by ten grand-children and three great-grand-children.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the home, and in Keysville Lutheran Church, in charge of Rev. P. H. Williams. Interment in the Keysville cemetery.

MRS. CHARLES A. ZILE.

Mrs. Charles A. Zile died at her home in Uniontown Monday night, shortly after receiving a stroke of paralysis. She had been apparently well during the day, but was stricken at 5 o'clock as she stepped out of doors. Her age was 75 years and 2 days.

She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hahn. She is survived by her husband and the following children: Mrs. Emory Flickinger, Taneytown; Mrs. Edgar A. Snyder, Westminster; Mrs. Harvey Selby, Hanover; Pierce H. Zile, New Windsor, and Russell Zile, Hanover; and by one brother, Edward Hahn, near Uniontown, and by one sister, Miss Louise Hahn, Sam's Creek.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon, at the home and in the M. P. Church, Uniontown, of which she was an active member. The services were in charge of her pastor, Rev. F. M. Volk.

MR. MILTON T. HAINES.

Mr. Milton T. Haines, New Windsor, died Saturday afternoon from a heart attack. He was apparently in the best of health until death overtook him in the basement of his home, shortly after he called to his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Deeds, for help.

He was the son of the late Thomas and Cinderella Haines, and was born at McKinstry's Mills, where his parents lived on the former Cronise farm. He engaged in farming, until some years ago when he was connected with the Union Bridge Elevator Co., as salesman, and later in New Windsor in the taxi business.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Mary E. Wood, before marriage, and who has been ill for some time; also by six daughters; Mrs. Lulu Deggs and Mrs. Evelyn Smith, of Forest Park, Baltimore; Mrs. Annie Cornise and Mrs. Beulah Englar, New Windsor; Mrs. Bessie Hummer, Roselle Park, N. J.; and Mrs. Mildred Deeds, Westminster.

He was in his 67th year. Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, in charge of Rev. John T. Chase, pastor of the New Windsor Presbyterian Church. Interment was in Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren cemetery, near Uniontown.

MRS. J. ELMER BERCAW.

Mrs. Daisy Margaret, wife of Mr. J. Elmer Bercaw and daughter of the late Wm. W. and Amelia H. Witherow died at her home in Mason, Ohio, on Feb. 2, from injuries received ten days previous, when the automobile in which she was riding, was struck by an express train on the Big Four tracks north of Cincinnati.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Bercaw was thought to be seriously injured, but her apparent rapid improvement seemed to indicate no internal injury, and her death, coming as it did, suddenly and unexpectedly, was a great shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. Bercaw was a member of the M. E. Church and took an active part in all departments of church work and in anything that was for the betterment of her town and community.

She was a devoted wife, a loving and understanding mother, and her loss to her family, her church and community is one that will long be felt.

Surviving are her husband and the following children: Chas. William, of Springboro, Ohio; Daisy Marie, Jas. Witherow, David Washburn, Virginia Belle and Margaret Christine, at home; also by two sisters, Mrs. Raymond L. Wantz and Mrs. Thurlow W. Null, of Taneytown, and one brother Chas. W. Witherow, Washington, D. C.

Funeral services were held from the church Thursday afternoon in charge of her pastor and two former pastors. Interment in the Bercaw family lot in Rose Hill cemetery, Mason.

The profusion of beautiful flowers and large crowd of sorrowing friends attest to the high place Mrs. Bercaw had won for herself in the town and community.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to neighbors and friends for their kindness during the illness and death of our dear mother, Lydia Alice Hahn; also for the use of automobiles.

BY THE FAMILY.

WIFE, GAS, SCARE MAN IN DEAD OF NIGHT

"Overcome by stomach gas in the dead of night, I scared my husband badly. He got Adlerika and it ended the gas."—Mrs. M. Owen.

Adlerika relieves stomach gas in TEN minutes! Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing old poisonous waste you never knew was there. Don't fool with medicine which cleans only PART of bowels but let Adlerika give stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning and get rid of all gas! Robt. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Origin of Expression

"That Beats the Dutch"

"An American Glossary," by Thornton, gives examples of the use of the expression "That beats the Dutch" as early as 1775, the line "Our cargoes of meat, drink and cloaths beat the Dutch" appearing in a "Revolutionary Song" by Bartlett of that date. In the Philadelphia Public Ledger of February 6, 1837, occurs this statement: "That beats the Dutch, saith the proverb; meaning that, as the Dutch beat Old Nick, it is something of an exploit to beat them. Vizetelly and De Bekker's Deskbook of Idioms states that the phrase originated in the days when bitter enmity prevailed between the Dutch and other nations. In this connection, however, it is worthy of notice that most of the expressions that arose out of the struggle between the English and the Dutch in the Seventeenth century were derogatory or derisive; among these are "Dutch courage; to talk double Dutch; Dutch comfort; Dutch concert; I'm a Dutchman if I do; Dutch treat; Dutch gold; talk like a Dutch uncle." The saying "That beats the Dutch" is not derogatory and is an American and not an English one, so that it possibly expresses admiration for the fighting qualities of the Dutch in their long struggle with Spain and later with England. Again, as the name "Dutch" is also applied to Germans, it may be a reference to the German mercenary troops of Colonial days.

Posters Long in Use

Actually the poster or placard can trace its ancestry back almost to the dawn of civilization. Egyptian wall paintings, mural decorations and inscriptions, produced more than 3,000 years B. C., have been discovered by archeologists. The modern poster began with Jules Cheret, a Frenchman, born in Paris in 1836, self-taught as a draughtsman. He served his apprenticeship as a lithographer in England, and when thirty years old became interested in announcements of theatrical managers and placards put out about that time urging recruiting for armies. In 1867 the world saw the first modern poster of Cheret's, an announcement of a play enacted by Sarah Bernhardt, then twenty-two years old. The poster announced a fairy play, entitled "La Biche au Bois."

Seventh-Day Believers

The name "Seventh Day Adventists," which is the official designation of a Christian sect, refers to two different beliefs or doctrines. "Adventism" is the doctrine that the second coming of Christ and the end of the world are near at hand, and an Adventist is one who believes in this doctrine. "Seventh Day" refers to the fact that the Seventh Day Adventists also believe that the seventh day of the week rather than the first is the true Sabbath, and accordingly they regard Saturday as the Sabbath.

Welcomed End of Edict Against Highland Dress

A Highland exhibition, illustrative of olden times and life in the Highlands, held in Inverness, Scotland, attracted many hundreds of visitors. There was among the many "relics" of the '45 a rare copy of a Gaelic proclamation permitting the use of the Highland dress after it was banned. The proclamation was sent by Rev. R. L. Ritchie, Crech, Sutherland, and the Gaelic spelling is in parts phonetic. The English translation is as follows: "Listen, men! This is bringing before all the sons of the Gael that the king and parliament of Britain have for ever abolished the act against the Highland dress that came down to the clans from the beginning of the world to the year 1746. This must bring great joy to every Highland heart. You are no longer bound to the unmanly dress of the Lowlander. This is declaring to every man, young and old, gentles and commons, that they may after this put on and wear the trews, the little kilt, the doublet, the small plaid, along with the tartan kilt, without fear of the law of the land or the jealousy of enemies."

Jewish Festival

The Feast of Lights is Hanukkah, the Jewish Feast of Dedication. The distinctive ceremonial feature of this festival today is the kindling of lights in the home and in the synagogue, one on the first evening, the number being increased by one on each consecutive evening, until eight lights are lit on the last evening of the festival. Special prayers inspired by the historic event commemorating the triumph of monotheism over heathenism, of the forces of light over the forces of darkness, are recited. Special scriptural portions are read in the synagogue. In modern times, children's festivals, in which the story and significance of the feast are recounted, have become a marked feature in the celebration of the Feast of Dedication.

Vergil More Than Match for "Devyls of Hell"

There are several stories telling how Vergil became acquainted with the "devyls of hell." According to one German legend, Vergil was one day digging in his garden when he came upon a glass filled with what appeared to be wriggling earthworms. But a voice came from the glass begging Vergil to open it and promising to teach him many arts. "Teach me the arts," replied Vergil cannily, "and I will break the bottle and set you free." So they taught him all they knew, and when he opened the bottle, 72 devils crawled out and disappeared.

In another version, a single devil promised to give Vergil the magical book of Solomon if he would release him from the bottle. Vergil did so, but, frightened by the size of the liberated spirit, tricked him into returning to the bottle in the same way as the fisherman in the "Arabian Nights" tricked the jinn. "Surely you can't make yourself as small as the bottle again," said Vergil. "Easily," replied the devil, and to prove it, returned to the flask. Vergil promptly put in the stopper and kept him prisoner forever.—Baltimore Sun.

Early American Colonist

Edward Maria Wingfield was an English merchant and colonist in America. He was born at Stoneley, Huntingdonshire. He served in the English army, both in Ireland and in the Low countries. Becoming interested in schemes for American colonization, he was one of those to whom the patent of Virginia was granted, April 6, 1606. He was the only one of the patentees who sailed to America with the first colonists, and was named in the sealed instructions a member of the council, of which he was elected the first president. He quarreled with the other members of the council, and with Capt. John Smith in particular. His Catholicism threw suspicion upon his loyalty and he was soon deposed, both from the council and governorship, in September, 1607. In 1608 he returned to England.

"Look Out for Tempting Winter Dishes," Says Ona Munson

no timidity in accepting an invitation to engage in any of the hardy winter amusements. Crouching beneath the sail of an ice boat propelled by a sixty-mile-a-minute gale, or trudging hill and dale on snow shoes, she is in her element.

Food vs. Figure

But winter sports bring lusty appetites and conjure up visions of griddle cakes and country sausage, thick soups and thick steaks, mush-rooms and mountainous baked potatoes. What to do?—for the exacting new styles with their trim, revealing sports togs and clinging evening gowns, are uncompromising. How to keep that slender but softly rounded figure for which these styles are but an accessory?

Ask Ona Munson. Miss Munson, one of First National's brightest new stars, who periodically abandons the studios for the sports of the Sierra's snowy summits, has a system.

"Winter sports are strenuous, so strenuous they will permit and offset a reasonable amount of yielding to the tempting dishes of the season," says Miss Munson. "But if the temptation is too strong or will-power flees, just take a course of the 'balanced diet' treatment. It's the secret of most of these marvelous Hollywood figures.

"There's nothing complicated about the balanced-diet system. Reduce the quantity of food within reason according to the particular needs of the particular figure, but be certain that each day's menu includes something from each of these groups:

"Sugar and starches, among the least fattening of which are fruit sugars and crisp cereals.

"Proteins, such as fish, lean meat, white meat of chicken, and eggs—avoid all pork.

"Mineral foods, including celery, spinach, chard, lettuce, cabbage, tomatoes.

"Vitamins, the least fattening of which are apples, raw cabbage, lettuce, lemons, liver, milk, oranges, grapefruit, fresh pineapple.

"Roughage, of the least fattening sorts, such as bran, lettuce, celery, cabbage, string beans, asparagus."

MISS ATHLETIC AMERICA has made her bow at King Winter's "sports court."

The society maid is responding to the "Call of the North," and the rugged sports of the fascinating winter carnivals in old Quebec, at picturesque Lake Placid and far-off Banff. Sturdy college girls are rummaging through closets, tossing aside tennis rackets and golf sticks, in avid search of hockey clubs, ice skates and even snow shoes and skis.

The old order of things in the realm of feminine sports has undergone radical changes. Cracked are the shackles which kept the sex within a circumscribed field which offered only sleigh riding and ludicrous attempts at ice skating as the sole outdoor diversions. Your modern lass who can perform the trick of wielding a 54-inch mallet while guiding a plunging polo pony or successfully compete with the so-called stronger sex in the risky business of motor boat racing, manifests

LIGHTS By WALTER TRUMBULL of NEW YORK

One great trouble New York department stores have is with returned goods. Either things look more attractive to persons at the time they buy them or, when they get home, they figure they really couldn't afford to buy what they did. Then the purchases are sent back. They tell me that one big department store has many thousands of things sent back each week. It is, of course, harder to return things at stores, which run no charge accounts, but customers get around this by having goods sent collect. Then, if they decide they don't want them, they merely decline to pay for them, and back they go.

It seems there is a class of customer who orders things while never having the faintest idea of keeping them. Merchants think they often do this to make an impression on the people they are with. These shoppers will ask the price of an expensive article and then languidly order it sent to them collect. When the purchase is delivered, they refuse to receive it.

At stores where charge accounts are run, there are cases on record where dresses have been sent back, which showed unmistakable signs of having been worn. Nor is this always done by poor customers. Some woman, whose account has been valuable to the store, orders a dress and wears it, only to have somebody tell her it is not becoming. If this type of customer returns an article, the store has to stop and figure whether the account is valuable enough to let the customer get away with it.

Henry C. Smith, of Duttons, told me of a case where a customer returned five books on bridge, for credit, after having kept them five weeks. An even stranger case was that of a man who came in and inquired for some unusual scientific books. The store didn't keep them in stock, but, at the man's request, ordered them. A couple of weeks later, he came in and the books were there. He said that he would like to examine them, so the clerk seated him at a table and left him. The man sat there for several hours, looking through the books and making notes. Then he quietly walked out of the shop and has not been seen since. The books are still on hand. The hotel the man had given as an address reported that nobody of that name had stopped there. The queer part of the whole proceedings is that he probably could have obtained the books at the public library.

But the existence of a book store is not all grief. One day a man entered a shop and asked that a collection of books on a certain subject be assembled. He would come back in a couple of days. The collection was made for him and he did come back and looked over the books carefully. They did not expect him to take them all, but, when he laid three books aside, they were disappointed, as they thought that those were the only ones of the large lot he intended to buy. But he said he didn't care for those and asked how much the remainder amounted to. When it was figured out, the bill came to $4,800, as there were some rare and expensive books among them. The man drew his check for the amount and ordered the books delivered. That was a good sale.

There are some rare books in the circulation department of the New York public library. One book, for example, which may be taken home, just like any other volume, is listed in catalogues at $900. My informant didn't tell me its name.

Just as stewards on shipboard always try to seat Dean Cornwell, the mural painter, with church and college deans, so many persons introduced to Dr. S. Griswold Morley, famous archeologist, for the first time, begin at once to tell him their symptoms, under the impression that he is a doctor of medicine. More times than a few, he has been tempted to prescribe chloroform, without charge. Once, however, his scientific title stood him in good stead. He was taken to a hospital for an operation so immediate that there was no chance to ask him the usual questions of record. When the bill came in, he was pleased to see that they had made a deduction, giving him professional rates.

New York hotels have carefully been revising their credit accounts. The credit manager of one of them told me they suddenly discovered that possessors of city accounts, opened during those good old days in Wall Street, had moved, without leaving any addresses for the forwarding of bills. This discovery originally was made by the fact that checks for small amounts suddenly began bouncing back at the hotels that cashed them.

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly calls one of his lectures "Spell of the Dictionary." I hope this lecture is not aimed at me and John Held, Jr. When Johnny Held can't spell a word, he just starts it with a couple of letters and then draws a wavy line. His secretary then has three guesses as to what he meant. As for me, Herbert Bayard Swope once said that I kept my spelling in my wife's name.

Lesson for February 15

JESUS THE FRIEND OF SINNERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 7:36-50.
GOLDEN TEXT—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and Those Who Do Wrong.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and Wrong-doers.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Friend of Sinners.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Transforming Sinners.

I. A Penitent Woman's Act of Love (vv. 37, 38).

1. The place (v. 37). It was in the home of Simon, the Pharisee, while Jesus was sitting at meat. When she knew of Christ's visit in this home, she came to lavish upon him her affections.
2. The act (v. 38). She washed Jesus' feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. Through some means she had heard of the pardoning grace of Jesus Christ and God had opened her heart to receive Jesus as her personal Savior.

II. The Pharisee's Displeasure (v. 39).

Simon felt scandalized by such a happening at his table. He was a respectable man. For Jesus to tolerate such familiarity on the part of a woman of such evil repute greatly perplexed him. Though he believed in Jesus enough to invite him to dine with him, he questioned within himself as to whether, after all, he was not mistaken. He reasoned if Jesus were a real prophet, he would have known the character of this woman and would have either withdrawn his feet from her or thrust her back with them; or if he knew her character, his tolerance of such familiarity proved that he was not a good man.

III. Jesus Teaches the Pharisee (vv. 40-50).

He taught him by means of the parable of a creditor and two debtors. It is to be noted that Jesus made it very clear that he not only knew the woman but knew Simon also.

1. The common debt (v. 41). The woman was a sinner—so was Simon, though he was not the same kind of a sinner that she was. There were two debtors, though the one owed ten times as much as the other. This is still representative of all sinners. The Bible declares all to be sinners, yet recognizes degrees of guilt. Full credit ought to be given to the man who is honest, virtuous, generous, and kind, yet such a life will not secure entrance into heaven. Much harm has been done by even evangelical preachers through failure to recognize the essential differences in human character. On the other hand, the Savior's words are a severe rebuke to the respectable Pharisees who are sitting in judgment against sinners of a coarser type.

2. The common insolvency (v. 42). "And when they had nothing to pay," Jesus freely granted the difference in the degree of the woman's sins and those of the Pharisee, but drove home to him the fact that they were both debtors and had nothing with which to pay (Rom. 3:23). As sinners we may quit our sinning and hate our deeds but that does not make satisfaction for the sins of the past. What we have done is irrevocable—it has passed from our reach. Every transgression shall receive a just recompense of reward (Heb. 2:2). We must come to our Redeemer, the Almighty God, and acknowledge our insolvency and accept the kindness of Jesus Christ who bore our sins in his own body on the tree (1 Pet. 2:24).

3. The relation of forgiveness and love (vv. 44-50). Simon's reluctant answer to Jesus' question showed that he got the point of Jesus' teaching. In order to make his teaching concrete, Jesus turned to the woman, calling Simon's attention to what she had done in contrast to what he had done. Simon had neglected to extend to Jesus the common courtesies of a respectable guest, but this woman had lavished upon him her affections and gifts. The measure of one's love is determined by the measure of the apprehension of sins forgiven. The one most forgiven will love most. Frequently the worst sinners make the best saints.

Become Like Him

The all-important thing is not to live apart from God, but as far as possible to be consciously with him. It must needs be that those who look much into his face will become like him.—Charles H. Brent.

Pity

Pity is love stooping, love drawn down by helplessness and want. Pity is love touched with sympathy, love sorrowing and suffering in our sorrow.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Chinese Breeders Make

Varieties of Goldfish

"Goldfish made their first appearance in Europe in the year 1601, having been imported from St. Helena," writes Dr. Berthold Laufer, in the Field Museum News. "They had come to St. Helena from Bavaria, and Chinese settlers who emigrated to Java had brought them along as a reminder of their home country."

"Charles Darwin believed that goldfish had been kept in confinement in China from an ancient period. The belief is well founded and is strongly supported by Chinese records. The goldfish is a native of China and still is to be found in a wild state in rivers there. It has been brought by the Chinese not only into a complete state of domestication, but also numerous varieties and the many fantastic and grotesque monstrosities with protruding eyes or with three and four lobed tails are the products of Chinese effort. These varieties were produced, not by chance, but by a studied and conscious method of interbreeding."

"Burning Spring" Owned by George Washington

Curiosity may have killed a cat but it also made George Washington one of the first investors in natural gas property.

In 1775 he visited a tract near Charleston, W. Va., where a strange "burning spring"—flames of escaping gas, probably ignited by a water-seeker who came at night with a lantern—attracted his attention. Although the father of our country could not have known it, the property he bought was in the heart of a great natural gas field. He presented his property to the nation as a natural park.

The first well in this field, however, was not discovered until the early 1800s when two brothers, David and Joseph Ruffner, drilled a 53-foot shaft for salt in the great Kanawha valley of East Virginia, and opened up a gas well.

Pays to Enter Own Door

How would you like to have to pay a fee for entering your own front door? The vicar of St. Bride's, Fleet street, has to do this. Bridewell place, at the back of the church where the vicarage is situated, was built on land belonging to the Bridewell foundation, and the old dividing wall ran along the lines of the present vicarage railings. The result is that there is no free right of way into the house, and the vicar has to pay a toll of a guinea (about $5) a year. Bridewell has had an interesting history. Formerly a palace, it became in turn a hospital, a "house of occupations," a workhouse, and a prison. It ceased to be a prison in 1864, when Holloway jail took its place, but there still is a cell for apprentices who may be committed there by the city chamberlain. It never is used.—London Tit-Bits.

Originally Nautical Terms

"Westward Ho" and "Eastward Ho" were old nautical terms, familiar to the inhabitants of London because of their frequent use by the boatmen on the Thames. In Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" Olivia says: "There lies your way, due west." Viola replies: "Then westward ho! Grace and good disposition attend your ladyship." In 1605 Chapman, Marston, and Ben Jonson published a comedy entitled "Westward Ho," and in 1832 James K. Paulding published a novel with the same title. "Westward Ho! or The Voyages and Adventures of Sir Amias Leigh in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth" was the title of a book published by Charles Kingsley in 1852. The passage quoted from Shakespeare was probably written about 1601.—Exchange.

Popular Old Legend

In the middle of the Sixteenth century the legend of the "Wandering Jew" received popular life in Germany owing to the claims of a man who announced himself to be the "Ewige Jude" himself. In Hamburg he gave his name as Ahasuerus, and stated that he had been a shoemaker in Jerusalem who would not suffer Christ to rest at his door when fainting under the weight of the cross.

He struck Jesus, and ordered him to move on, whereupon Jesus said: "I will stand here and rest, but thou shalt go on until the last day." This man's story was subsequently published on the authority of a Lutheran clergyman, who claimed to have met the Jew in Hamburg.

British Royal Palace

The present site of Buckingham palace, at London, was occupied during the reigns of Charles I and II by Mulberry gardens, a fashionable resort. It was then bought by the earl of Arlington, and Arlington house erected. This was demolished in 1703, and the ground bought and the original Buckingham palace built of red brick by John Sheffield, the first duke of Buckingham. He bequeathed it to his widow, who was a natural daughter of James I. It was bought for the British royal family by George III and settled by him upon his Queen, Charlotte.

"Push" Brings Success

Hustle is the real secret of a better job. And by hustle is meant preparation, diligence, industry, and trustworthiness. Too many men imagine that it's lack of pull that is holding them back, whereas in reality it is lack of push.—Grit.

Community Building

Maintenance Big Point in Real Estate Value

The owner who realizes that the maintenance of property is a real asset as to the sale or rental of the property does not have to be told of the necessity of keeping property in good condition. Unfortunately, however, there are many property owners, especially owners of unoccupied property, who do not realize this fact and then wonder why the property cannot be sold or rented. There is an old saying, "A stitch in time saves nine." This applies to many phases of business, but in regard to the maintenance of real estate it has a significance which can be measured in dollars and cents to an exceptional degree.

A small repair neglected can have much the same effect on an individual property as a decaying apple can have in a barrel of sound apples. The small repair develops into a bigger one which affects other parts of the property, causing a decay, so to speak, and a depreciation in value that really in the end makes the property unattractive and undesirable. It also affects in a detrimental way every nearby piece of real estate and deters persons who might be interested in nearby property to the point that they will neither buy nor rent in a particular street or section.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Pennsylvania in Move to Beautify Highways

Community and civic organizations throughout Pennsylvania have been called upon to carry out plans of roadside development and landscaping to supplement construction of highways. The appeal was made by the Pennsylvania Motor federation.

"Pennsylvania has spent and is spending millions of dollars for the construction of fine roads," S. Edward Gable, president of the federation said. "In connection with this there should be in each community a program of tree-planting, landscaping and roadside care which, when completed, not only will make the roads more pleasing to the eye, but will give to the traveler a much better and pleasanter impression of the community."

"There is little reason why the wind-swept, sun-baked stretches of concrete roads winding through the countryside should not be made more gracious to the eye by the planting of trees and flowers and roadside landscaping. The possibilities of roadside beautification are unlimited, and, if handled by community enterprise in co-operation with the proper authorities, can be worked out without burdensome expense."

Good Citizen Defined

The qualities of good citizenship are both positive and negative. A hermit is not a good citizen because while he may do no real harm, break no important laws, he contributes little to the general welfare, does not assist in enforcing law and withholds from the world the good influence which he might exert. The good citizen is interested in and helps to promote religion, education, clean politics, public economy and thrift; he keeps posted on public affairs and candidates in order that he may vote intelligently, attends the primary and regular elections and votes.

His greatest contribution to public welfare is perhaps unfaltering faith in the ultimate triumph of good in the affairs of men.—Grit.

Garage as Investment

Most home owners who embark on a modernization campaign are sold on the idea that no improvement on the home place will add more to the appearance of the property and help more on the case of sale, than an attractive garage building.

As a source of revenue, for the small amount expended or invested, there are few better revenue producers than a garage built on the rear part of a home lot as there is, in most residence neighborhoods, a continuous demand for rented garages.

Erecting a garage and renting it will in many cases pay the taxes on the property.

Brick Veneering Pays

Many old houses have sturdy frames despite the shabby and old appearance of the exterior. Given a veneer of face brick, these houses will put on an appearance of newness and will give service that compares well with an entirely new home. The brick exterior provides protection against the elements and takes on added beauty with the years.

Supervision Important

Many architects believe that supervision is more important to the house than good plans, for good plans alone do not insure good building. It is the least expensive part of the architect's service. He charges less for this than for making the plans and specifications, because it takes less time to do it.

Houses Hard to Sell

Houses may have sound timbers and built into them the best of workmanship, but if the exterior lines are old, the siding weather-beaten and unpainted, the interior lacking in all of those modern conveniences that make for the comfort and convenience of the housewife, they are avoided.

NEVER HAD ANY

The oldest inhabitant was being interviewed by a newspaper reporter. "And to what do you attribute your longevity?" he was asked. "Eh?" queried the old man, who was rather deaf. "Your longevity," repeated the reporter. "Oh, so far as I remember," was the reply, "I've never had one."

The Magician's Loss

Conjuror—Open your hand and you will see that I have changed your knife to a valuable gold watch. Now, wait a moment, and I will change it to a knife again.

Man—No! No! I like the watch better!—Pearson's.

"Naturopathy"?

The term "naturopath" isn't to be found in dictionaries, so the District of Columbia commission on licensure to practice the healing arts made up its own definition. It naturally took quite a bit of study, and in Washington the practice must be confined within the definition. Here is the commission's official definition: "Naturopathy in the practice of the healing art is the use of such physical force as air, light, water, vibration, heat, electricity, hydrotherapy, psychotherapy, dietetics, or massage, but shall not include palpating, analyzing and adjusting the articulations of the spinal column, the administration of drugs and medicine, surgery or the application of X-rays or radium."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Ancient City of Bergamo

One of the most picturesque towns of Lombardy in Italy is the ancient little city of Bergamo, perched on a conspicuous hill and still redolent of the days when the Venetians made it one of their fortresses. It is a quaint and crooked place with many interesting buildings. The church of Santa Maria Maggiore, dating in part from 1137, has excellent Romanesque work of black and white marble. During the greater part of its history Bergamo belonged to the state of Venice, having acquired the city from Milan in 1428 and retaining it until 1797.

Forget Troubles

Troubles magnify themselves too largely in fearful anticipation. The result is wasted worry. Remember the adage of the ancient philosopher who remarked: "I am an old man and have had many troubles, but the most of them never happened."—Grit.

Early Card Games

Cards for playing games of chance are of the most remote antiquity and have almost universal usage. There is evidence that they were in use in Egypt at the time of Joseph; that their use extended as far east as Hindustan and China at a period long before their introduction into Europe is well attested. The design and number of cards in a pack varied. Even the names of most of the old games are found only in antiquarian works. Chief among them is one called "primero." This long continued a fashionable game. Other early games were: Mauve, piquet, loadan, noddly, macke, oupre, gleeck, post and pan, and bank rout.

Bargain Dinners

SHOW him you can economize. With all the chain stores and groceries putting on special sales, it is now possible to serve dinners which cost "next to nothing." A dietitian in a big city went shopping recently to test the truth of this assertion, and here are two of the menus which she brought back.

First came a dinner for four for fifty-five cents. The ingredients were four frankfurters 17¢, a No. 2 can of sauerkraut 10¢, mashed potatoes 6¢, bread and butter 6¢, two-thirds of a No. 2 can of apple sauce 8¢, ginger snaps 5¢ and tea 3¢.

Her second dinner cost one cent more, and also served four people. It consisted of salmon loaf 21¢, poverty peas 10¢, lettuce with French dressing 10¢, bread and butter 6¢ and apple fluff 8¢.

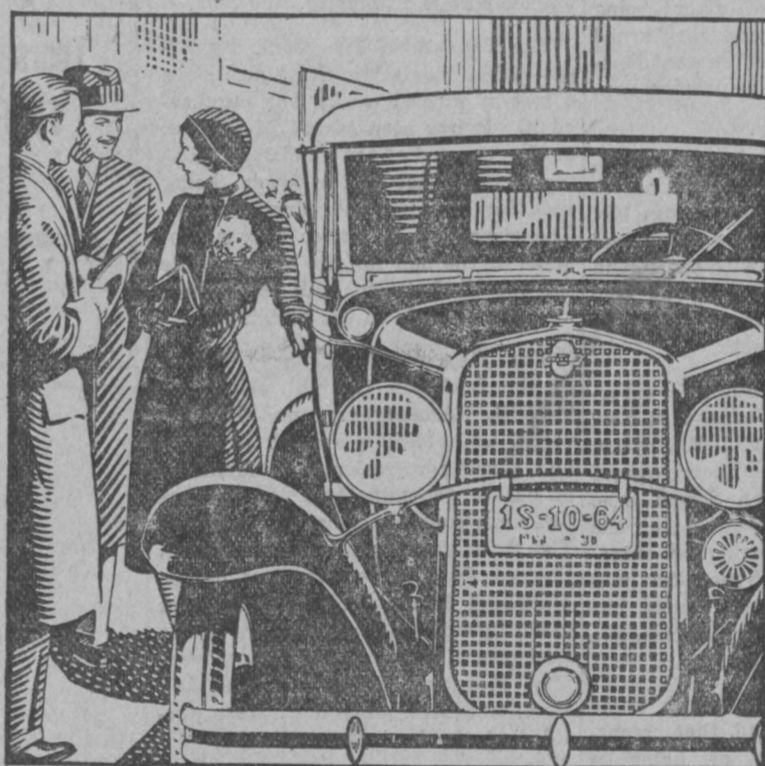

Here Are the Recipes

Salmon Loaf: Flake the contents of one tall can pink salmon.

Strain salmon liquor and add. Add one slightly beaten egg, three-fourths cup crumbs, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons milk and one tablespoon melted butter. Pack into a buttered loaf pan and bake in a hot—400°—oven for forty minutes.

Poverty Peas: Drain one No. 2 can peas. Melt one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour, and stir until smooth. Add the pea liquor slowly, stirring until thick and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper; add peas and heat thoroughly. This costs 14¢, but would serve six. Sufficient for four would be about 10¢.

Apple Fluff: Beat two egg whites very stiff, fold in two-thirds cup of apple sauce and two tablespoons of confectioner's sugar. Add one teaspoon of lemon juice, pile lightly in glasses, and chill thoroughly.*

Mrs. Claudius Long returned home from the Frederick City Hospital, on Tuesday, and is getting along well.

Mrs. Thomas Fox, of Keysville, returned home from the Frederick City Hospital last Friday, and is getting along very nicely.

Mrs. John Baumgardner spent from Thursday until Tuesday with her son and daughter and other relatives, in Baltimore. Mrs. Charles Hesson and son accompanied her home.

Mrs. Edw. H. Miller has returned to her home, after being called to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. John W. Valentine, of Hanover, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, but is now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Null and family, near town, entertained at dinner on Sunday in honor of Mrs. Jesse Myers' 84th birthday. Those present were: Mrs. Jesse Myers, Mrs. Lizzie Zepp, Laverne Zepp, Clifton Zepp.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Boyd and granddaughter, Virgie Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Biddinger, daughters, Evelyn and Mabel and Mrs. Albert Biddinger near town, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Humbert, at Littlestown.

At the Evangelistic services at Taneytown U. B. Church, Sunday night, Feb. 15th., 7:30 P. M., a quartet will sing consisting of students of the Westminster Theological Seminary. One of them will preach the sermon also.

A little snow on Saturday, followed by a good rain on Monday, gave the ground a good soaking and revived the streams. Indications now are that farms will be in an excellent condition for Spring crops, and wells will no doubt be benefited.

Word was received here that Mrs. Margaret Angell, of York, formerly of Taneytown, who is 99 years old, suffered a stroke of paralysis last week, and had been very ill, but at present the report is that she is improved and able to sit up in a chair.

Donald Boone, near Mayberry, who had been suffering with blood poisoning for some time, due to having several fingers amputated after being caught in a fodder shredder, returned home from the Hanover General Hospital on Monday and is improving rapidly.

Deputy Grand Inspector, Robert S. McKinney; Worshipful Master, Charles L. Stonesifer, of Monocacy Lodge No. 203, A. F. & A. M., of Taneytown, had the pleasure of dining with the Grand Master, George R. Gorsuch, at the Masonic Temple, Baltimore, Wednesday evening of this week.

Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Sutcliffe, entertained at dinner, on Wednesday: Rev. Wm. A. Wade, and Rev. J. B. Rupley, Baltimore, president and secretary of the Maryland Lutheran Synod, who came to Taneytown relative to the making of arrangements for entertaining the Maryland Synod that will meet here May 26-28th. Synod has met in Taneytown several times, the last being in October, 1911.

The former Scott M. Smith home on the Emmitsburg road, that recently bore the reputation of being a bootlegging joint, has been cleaned up and generally renovated, and is now occupied by J. H. Sell and family, who do not want the former visitors to come around. One such who did not know of the change, found out and left in a hurry, a much wiser as well as shaken-up individual.

Come To Taneytown!

TANEYTOWN is a clean thriving town in northern Carroll County—the second sized town in the county. Concrete roads in every direction; five well supported Churches; High School; Parochial School; two strong Banks; a Newspaper and Printing Plant, two Hotels and Sauble's Inn; Carroll County Fair Ground; two Steam Bakeries; Railroad; fine Bus service; two Canneries; large Milk Products Plant; Sewing Factory; good Stores of all kinds; seven Fraternal Orders; Steam Flouring Mill, two grain Elevators; six Garages; two large Chicken Hatcheries; a Mutual Fire Insurance Company; a Moving Picture Theatre; Furniture and Machinery dealer; Undertaker; An Automobile Club; Chamber of Commerce; Public Library; all kinds of mechanics and Plumbers, Electricians and Machinists; Real Estate and Insurance Agencies, and many small shops.

It has many fine homes; good buildings lots for sale; an up-to-date Fire Company and Municipal building; a fine class of citizens; numerous social organizations; dairymen; produce dealers; Physicians; Dentist; Dressmakers; Electric Light and Power Service; the best water in the world; several private houses that entertain transient guests—in fact, what it does not have is hardly needed in a town that is especially attractive as a town of homes, and with a bright outlook for the future.

And, the surrounding country matches the town. There is hardly the sign of "unemployment" anywhere, and undesirable citizens are conspicuous by their absence. Farm properties are generally well kept; very few properties are heavily encumbered by debt, and notwithstanding the year of drought, farmers are generally in good spirits, because they have been good business men. There are no big factories to close down and cause loss of work; houses are practically all occupied, town and country, and the "Community spirit," while conservative is about all that could be desired.

To home seekers, there is no better town nor community anywhere within fifty miles that equals "old Taneytown"—an "old" town with a youthful, optimistic spirit that invites the better classes of people to come and take a look at it, and locate, either for business or for a home.

Miss Clara Reindollar, of Baltimore was the guest of Miss Mary Reindollar from Friday until Wednesday.

Mrs. Jacob D. Null, of Hanover, spent the past week with relatives and friends, in and near town.

Thurston Putman has been ill for about a week with a bad case of grip, but is now able to be about in the house.

Charles E. Ridinger has been housed up for about a week with a very bad cold and some complications, but is reported on the mend.

A covered dish dinner and Valentine Social this Friday evening, Feb. 13, in the Reformed Church, at 7:00. Dinner will be served at 7:15.

Mrs. Clyde L. Hesson returned home on Monday, after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Witherow and Miss Grace Witherow, at Washington, D. C.

While everybody has burned plenty of coal, this has so far been a fair sample of an ideal winter, without storms or blizzards and very little ice; but more snow would have been of benefit.

The prospects for a good hay crop this year are said to be very poor, as there is no satisfactory "set" in the ground to come along, even with favorable weather during the Spring and Summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wentz and Mrs. Mary Wentz, of Lineboro, Md., spent last Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Calvin T. Fringer. Mrs. Mary Wentz remained to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. C. T. Fringer.

Mrs. Clyde L. Hesson, Mrs. G. Walter Wilt, Mrs. Harold Mehning, Mrs. Geo. Baumgardner, Harry and James Baumgardner, attended a Bridge and 500 party, at the home of Mrs. Dr. Morrell, Westminster, on Thursday evening.

This Sunday evening, Feb. 15, the Reformed C. E. Society and congregation will unite for evening service, starting at 7:00 instead of 6:30. A fine program has been arranged. The C. E. choir will make its first appearance. The cake and candy sale held in Shriner's store room was a fine success.

The following persons were entertained and served with a dinner on Sunday last by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Crawford, of Taneytown: Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Lee Crawford and daughters, Mary Lee and Dorothy D. Crawford, of Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. Howell D. Crawford, of Baltimore, and Mr. Miles Fox theatrical manager at Westminster.

The Taneytown Fire Company, after giving an electric fire alarm siren a test of several weeks, has purchased it. It has been placed in a tower at the rear end of the municipal building, the interior of the tower being used for draining and drying hose. The siren will hereafter be used instead of the bell for fire alarms, while the use of the latter will be confined to meetings held in the building.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church celebrated its 50th. Anniversary on Tuesday night, by holding a special program and serving refreshments. Members of other denominations and other Lutheran congregations were present. The main speaker was Mrs. John C. Bowers, Catonsville, president of the Maryland Society. Short talks were given by visitors and members of the Lutheran Society. The leaders were Mrs. Margaret Elliot and Mrs. Loy Hess, and Mrs. Carroll C. Hess presided at the business session.

"Some men think that the gratification of curiosity is the end of knowledge; some the love of fame; some the pleasures of dispute; some the necessity of supporting themselves by their knowledge; but the real use of all knowledge is this, that we should dedicate that reason which was given us by God to the use and advantage of man."—Bacon.
