

AN IMPORTANT RULING IF AS REPORTED.

Would affect many Subscriptions to Weekly Newspapers.

A ruling is reported to have been recently made by the Postoffice Department with regard to delinquent subscriptions.

On all papers more than a year in arrears, the publisher must pay two cents per copy each week, and for failure to furnish such a list the publisher is liable to a fine, and to the penalty of having his entire list excluded from the second-class (pound rate) entry to the mails.

This information is carried by The Publishers' Auxiliary, a weekly paper published in the interest of newspapers. We have had no further information concerning this alleged ruling.

The interest of the P. O. Department in the question is, that the Department sustains a heavy loss, each year, on this class of mail matter—newspapers and periodicals mailed by publishers—and should this new ruling be actually enforced, the result would be shutting out from the mails many thousands of pounds of unprofitable mail, thereby reducing the loss to the P. O. Department for carrying it.

The Record has been observing, very closely, the one year arrears limit; but many other weeklies have not, but have mailing lists padded up and called "circulation" because of carrying, for years, the names of persons far in arrears, many of whom never will pay up.

Of course, no publisher would pay two cents per copy postage on delinquent, nor any other kind of subscribers, merely for the sake of a larger subscription list to boast about. Whatever is done by the P. O. Department in the matter, it should be rigidly enforced on all publishers alike.

And in the meantime, we ask all subscribers to The Carroll Record to take due notice, and to see that their own subscription does not fall in the black-listed class—over a year in arrears.

THE PINE-MAR CAMP OPENING.

The formal opening of the Pine-Mar Camp grounds along the Taneytown-Westminster road, near Big Pipe Creek bridge, will take place on Sunday afternoon, May 3, when it will be dedicated to religious services, with an appropriate program, to which the general public is cordially invited.

Rev. Franklin F. Brose, Westminster, the religious director of the camp, has announced the following partial program for the summer. From April 26 to May 17 a county-wide union evangelistic campaign to be conducted by the Mississippian gospel quartet. The union evangelistic services will be held in a large tent, which will be erected on the camp grounds.

THE HOME-MAKER'S CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the Homemaker's Club was held Friday afternoon, April 10, with 30 members and one visitor present. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Allen Sanders, president. In the business session the club voted a donation of $5.00 for the Children's Aid Society of Carroll Co.

The demonstration—Canned and Fresh Vegetables for family health was given by Miss Agnes Slindee. The demonstration consisted of tomato cocktail, combination vegetable salads, glazed carrots, escalloped tomatoes, spinach with bacon, and hard cooked eggs.

Recreation in charge of Mrs. Harold Mehring, consisted of violin solo by Richard Mehring with Idona Mehring at the piano and a recitation by Mildred Baumgardner.

PLANTING OF MAIN CROPS.

Considerable interest is manifested in the Spring planting of wheat, which at present seems to show a marked reduction in acreage. Whether this reduction will be sufficient to prevent an overproduction, and consequent low prices, remains to be seen, for it is the only hope for better wheat prices after the coming harvest.

Although the advice has been frequently stressed that it is folly to keep on planting a big acreage, farmers have not been responsive to it, presumably taking the chance that somehow prices will go up anyway, or the government will "do something" to help the situation.

Another fact that does not take well, is that it is not alone the wheat production in this country that affects the market price, but production in other great wheat-producing countries must be seriously considered. The "supply" taken in connection with the "demand," must fix prices.

ADMITS RECKLESS DRIVING

Transporting Liquors Charge Not Sustained by Evidence.

Walter Norman Forney, of Plainsboro, N. J., who was under charges for reckless driving on the evening of April 1, when his car collided with one driven by Mrs. J. H. Sell, on the Emmitsburg road near Sauble's Inn; and also for the illegal transportation of liquor, was given a hearing before Justice Alexander, on Saturday morning last.

As Mr. Forney plead guilty to the reckless driving charge there was no trial on that count, and he was sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00 and costs, which he settled immediately. On the liquor law violation charge he plead not guilty, and a number of witnesses were heard.

There was placed in evidence a jar of some kind of liquor, and a bottle containing another kind, which were picked up on the scene of the accident. No liquors were found in the Forney car, but pieces of broken glass were found in it, as well as broken glass on the ground near the car.

A number of witnesses were heard but no direct incriminating evidence was brought out. Two witnesses testified that Forney was not fully sober at the time, and that liquor of some kind was smelled on him; but there was no evidence that there was liquor in the car at the time of the accident. In his own defense Forney testified that he had no liquor in his car, and had not been drinking. Justice Alexander withheld his decision for some time, but finally decided that the evidence was not sufficient for conviction and dismissed the case. Forney paid the bills for repairing both his car, and that driven by Mrs. Forney. Deputy Sheriff Leo Warner was present during the trial.

PROTECT FROM MEASLES.

From the State Department of Health there comes a warning that measles is on the increase throughout the State. As the disease is particularly dangerous for young children and as it is very easily caught, mothers are urged to keep the babies and their older brothers and sisters away from children who are ill with it, or who show signs of coming down with it. The possibility of preventing serious illnesses among children who have been in contact with the disease, through vaccination with convalescent measles serum is also pointed out. Here is the message which comes from Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Department.

"Measles," Dr. Riley said, "like certain other diseases, tends to flare up in epidemic form every two or three years. The last time we had a serious outbreak in Maryland was in 1928 when 17,332 cases were reported. In 1929, 2,024 cases occurred and last year the number went down to 1,255 for the entire year. But this winter, there has been a marked increase. During January, February and March, 7,814 cases have been reported throughout the State—1,366 of which have occurred in the counties.

"Because of the complications which so often accompany measles, it is a mistake to say 'Oh! it is only measles. Let them have it and get over it! Measles is one of the diseases that is particularly dangerous for babies and young children. Like whooping cough and scarlet fever, it is a veritable wolf in sheep's clothing. It should be avoided and the children should be protected against it, as far as possible, quite as they would be against a destructive animal.

"Like many other diseases, measles usually starts in with what may seem to be 'only a cold'. But the careful mother has learned that a cold may be more than it seems, and that the best place for a child who has a cold, is in bed. Knowing also that the best person to advise her is the family doctor, she sends for the doctor. And if she can possibly do so she will keep the well children away from those who are sick.

POISON BAIT FOR CUTWORMS.

It is easy to rid the garden or field of customers with a poisoned bran bait. Mix 1 peck of dry bran with ¼ pound of white arsenic or Paris green, then mix 1 pint of sirup or molasses with 3 or 4 quarts of water. Gradually add the water and sirup solution to the mixture of bran and poison, stirring slowly all the time. It is important to get the bran thoroughly coated with the poison. Broadcast the poisoned bait along the rows or near the base of the plants late in the evening. Cutworms usually work at night but often feed on dark, cloudy days. Many kinds of cutworms go through the winter in the soil and begin to work early in the spring. It is therefore a good plan to make an application of the poisoned bait to the land before the crop comes up or is set out in the field. These treatments will kill many of the overwintering cutworms before the crop is susceptible to attack.

WOMEN ACTIVE ON THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

One Leader Challenges another to A Public Debate.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Montgomery county, Chairman of the Women's National Democratic Law Enforcement League, and editor of "The Women Voter" has issued a challenge to Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, to meet her in open debate on the Prohibition question.

In her challenge she remarks that the organization to which Mrs. Sabin belongs, judging from the number of women of wealth present at the Washington meeting early in the week, seems to represent a class of women who have not felt the pinch of poverty that goes with liquor, and says it is not the women protected by wealth, but the women who toil, who will suffer most should the open dispensing of liquors come back.

She accompanies her challenge to debate the question, with the statement that if Mrs. Sabin is sincere in what she asks for the millions in America, she will debate this question with her in Washington. Mrs. Sabin's answer will be interesting, and it seems hardly likely that she will decline the opportunity.

The organization represented by Mrs. Nicholson, with numerous others exposing the dry cause, at present seems to represent by far the largest number of women voters; but as the campaign of 1932 approaches both drys and wets will strive to increase their followings, as it is openly conceded by politicians that the votes of women may easily decide the Presidential contest.

WESTMINSTER AMBULANCE AGAIN IN WRECK.

For the second time in a short while, the Carroll county ambulance featured in a wreck. This time on Sunday last when Mrs. Bradley Blizard, aged 63, was being conveyed to a Baltimore Hospital for treatment for an infected foot. She was accompanied by Irvin Blizard, aged 36, also of Westminster.

The accident occurred on the Reisterstown road, a few miles on the other side of Westminster, when a touring car driven by James M. Sinclair, Baltimore, collided head-on with the ambulance. Mrs. Blizard was cut about the hands and face, and Mr. Blizard was cut on one leg.

Mr. Sinclair was charged at the Northwestern Police Station with failure to give the right-of-way to the ambulance, the driver of which was Warfield Babylon, who was accompanied by Mayor Geo. E. Matthew of Westminster, neither of whom were hurt. The ambulance was overturned and considerably injured.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION FOR WOMEN.

Pongee silk will not spot if ironed when dry.

To make Russian dressing, add tomato chili sauce or tomato catsup and lemon juice, to plain mayonnaise dressing.

If you are planning or equipping a kitchen, think all the time of the work to be done in it. Don't make the room too big. Work centers can be arranged to better advantage in an oblong kitchen than in a square one.

Make a rhubarb betty for dessert, just as you would make apple betty. Alternate butter bread crumbs and fruit, with sugar to taste. You can use either stewed or uncooked rhubarb. If you use uncooked rhubarb, cover the baking dish for the first part of the cooking, then remove the lid and brown the top crumbs. Sift a little cinnamon or nutmeg over the top.

Have many Saturday or week-end picnics this spring if you own a car. Take the whole family along. Keep a special box or picnic kit equipped with paper or unbreakable plates, cups, silver, paper napkins and waxed paper. Then a lunch can be picked up in no time at all and put together after the picnic spot is reached. On your emergency shelf in the pantry keep a few things always in stock, such as canned or package goods suitable for these trips.

THE PASSION PLAY AT BAUST REFORMED CHURCH.

On Tuesday, April 21, 1931, at 7:30 P. M., the Rev. Clarence Dawson will present an illustrated lecture on the Passion play. This lecture should prove very interesting to young and old. It represents that portion of the life of Christ that deals with his suffering and his resurrection. At this season of the year we are meditating upon this portion of the life of Christ, and such a lecture will help us to form a more vivid picture of it.

It will be given in the Parish House for the benefit of the Parish House Fund. No admittance will be charged but a silver offering will be lifted.

Rev. Dawson comes to us from Elkton, Md. He has shown this lecture at various churches throughout Maryland, and has met with considerable success.

He is also known throughout this section as a preacher over the radio station at Wilmington. Be sure to attend this meeting.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS.

Commissioner Baughman Warns Against Their Use.

The following article is reproduced from last Saturday's issue of the Frederick Post, in order that the warning may be given additional publicity.

"The glaring headlights on the highways of Maryland are in for a long period of special attention from the State Police, according to Col. E. Austin Baughman, Motor Vehicles Commissioner, who, in discussing this matter announced that he proposes to check-up on this particular type of danger, once each week, throughout the coming spring and summer. The proposed weekly check-up will start next week. "The menace of glaring headlights and cars with only one headlight or markedly different illumination in the two lights, must be broken up," said Col. Baughman.

"I have come to the conclusion," Col. Baughman added, "that an intensive attack on this problem over a limited period is not permanently effective. For this reason, I am arranging, from now on until the remainder of the summer, the State Police, along with their other duties, of course, shall devote special attention to headlight cases, one night each week. This work will be conducted on the same night, each week, however.

"Personally, I believe, that emphasizing one kind of enforcement at the expense of another, is not altogether wise. It is true, we have a tremendous problem in headlight enforcement, but we cannot devote all of our time to headlights and let reckless and intoxicated drivers escape, and it is for this reason, that I am arranging for the system just described.

"It is of necessity, the policy of the department, to keep the major part of our forces on the main traveled highways. The theory being, that more men are needed where there is more traffic. It is my hope to be able to augment the various details in such way as to cover as much of the State as is possible, with our limited personnel.

"There is a vast field for study by specialists in the construction of lights. Nothing absolutely satisfactory has been evolved as yet, but some one may find a way to keep headlights from getting out of adjustment so easily. When that day comes, the problem will have been solved to a large extent.

STATE BANKERS MEET IN WESTMINSTER.

The annual meeting of Group No. 2, Maryland Bankers' Association, comprising members from Carroll, Frederick, Howard and Montgomery counties, met in Science Hall, Westminster, on Wednesday.

Robert G. Hilton, Rockville, presided. Addresses were made by H. P. Gorsuch and John H. Cunningham, of Westminster, and numerous banking problems were discussed. The late George R. Gehr, was chairman of the group at the time of his death, and a brief memorial service was held as a tribute to his memory.

The following officers were chosen: Chairman, Robert G. Hilton, Rockville; vice-chairman, J. Pearre Wantz, Westminster; secretary and treasurer, Charles Mathias, Frederick.

Homer Remsburg, members of the committee listing cattle for the annual consignment sale at the Fair Grounds, May 20, under the auspices of the Frederick County Holstein Association expect to have between 45 and 50, about the same number as last year. Other counties in which they have listed cattle include Washington, Carroll, Howard, Montgomery, Baltimore and Prince George.

GOV. RITCHIE TO LET VOTERS DECIDE.

Declines to Disapprove Sunday Bill for Baltimore.

As was generally expected, Gov. Ritchie will not interfere with the act giving Baltimore City the right to vote on the Sunday observance law and so stated his decision on Thursday, when a hearing was accorded to opponents of the law. Joshua Levering, president, and Dr. W. W. Davis, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, appeared in opposition to the law.

The Governor stated that the bill, or law, is simply an enabling act, which places responsibility on the citizens of Baltimore for deciding whether they do, or do not, want changes in the present Sunday laws, enacted back in 1723.

He said he regarded the people of Baltimore as highly as the protecting speakers before him, and believed they could be trusted to see that any changes that they might make in the Sunday laws would not impair the reverence which all should attach to the Sabbath day.

Dr. Davis in attacking the act stated that he believed it to be unconstitutional because the legislature could not legally delegate to one political unit the power for its voters to vote themselves out of a state law; that the Court of Appeals had declared the Sunday law to be a state law. Mr. Levering also made an appeal to the Governor to withdraw his support to the bill, as being for the best interests of the city.

FREDERICK COUNTY'S TAX RATE TOO LOW.

Frederick county's tax rate of $1.30 that has been rather extensively broadcast as "the lowest tax rate in the state," is not performing as hoped for, as the rate failed to provide for payment of $64,081 for the sinking fund to retire bonded indebtedness.

The bonded debt of the county is $1,394,700; to which must be added two new bond issues provided for by the last legislature; one for an issue of $124,000 for schools; and another of $100,000 for emergency road construction. There were two additional bond issues but these will not add to the total indebtedness, as one provides for refunding $186,000 worth of outstanding bonds at 4 percent that are now bearing 4½%, and another is to borrow temporarily to pay interest on bonds.

The forthcoming tax rate for 1931 will likely be appreciably higher to care for various shortages.

At the recent annual meeting of the Red Cross, Veteran Administrator Hines, warned against continued disbursements for veteran relief. He predicted that by 1950, if the present disbursements continue at the same rate, they would probably exceed the cost of American participation in the World War, Twenty-three billion, five hundred millions of dollars—$23,500,000,000.

"Veterans must manifest a peace-time patriotism in connection with future demands, comparable to that which brought their honor in the war," he said, "if the burden upon the government for their relief is not to become intolerable and a reaction impair their very cause."

CARROLL COUNTY SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS.

The Carroll County Society of Baltimore, on Saturday night last, elected at The Lord Baltimore Hotel the following officers for the coming year: President, Nathan L. Smith; Vice-Pres., Charles E. Devillbiss and Mrs. Neas; Chappell; Rec. Sec., William E. Moore; Cor. Sec., George R. Babylon; Treas., Thomas B. Yingling; Board of Governors, J. Leonard Eckenrode.

A very entertaining part of the evening was the lecture by George Mather, and the showing of pictures he made on his last European trip. The attendance was very good. Refreshments were served. The Society is seeking an endowment fund.

WE PROSPER BY "DIGGING."

The Record carried an expressive list of humor, a few weeks ago, with the caption, "But, boy I had to dig" telling the story of an old black hen who found plenty of worms by "digging" for them. These are times when digging is necessary, if we would prosper. Just waiting around for "worms" to come along and be gobbled up, may be a go-hungry job.

The Record is doing its bit at "digging," as our job printing department testifies. In fact, if it was not for that, some of our force would lose a job, and Taneytown might eventually lose The Record and what this means to its community—a valuable, helpful, always ready, convenience, the extent of which could be realized only when it was not at hand.

The Record is also "digging" in giving its patrons the best possible weekly newspaper it can, for the local subscription and advertising support it receives. What we mean by this little "shop talk" is, that "digging" should be more a mutual interest performance, and not a comparatively one-sided one. Think it over.

Few things irritate a man more than to have his wife doubt his ability to read a time-table correctly.

SUNDAY AUTO ACCIDENTS

The Season for the Reckless Driver is now Open.

Sunday auto driving is again in season for a dangerous occupation, and Monday newspapers will again record killings, wrecks and injuries. The numerous Sunday mishaps are partly due to the great increase in the number of cases that will be pleasuring on that day, but perhaps due to a greater extent to the fact that a large number will be once-a-week drivers, neither skilled in driving, nor well acquainted with the rules of the road.

The careful driver has his part to do to avoid the increase in accidents; but no matter how efficient a driver may be, he can not be held responsible for the inefficient one, and in fact is as likely to be a victim as anybody else. He can do this, however; and that is, to avoid as much as possible taking his outings on the most congested highways, and always maintain a moderate speed, keep perfect control of his car, and let others do the chance taking.

The observant person out for an afternoon's outing, can easily see how accidents occur, and must wonder that they are as few as they are. Bluntly stated, the "fool driver" causes most of them—even when strictly sober. There are a lot of this class who seem offended because any other cars are in front of them, and are not satisfied until they cut around them, even when the front cars are doing 30 miles, or better.

In a stretch of say twenty miles of road well filled with autos, the chances are that a violation of driving rules will average at least one to every five miles, even with the most favorable driving conditions. Some of the foolhardy ones no doubt feel privileged because of the insurance they carry, while others make a wrong guess as to what other drivers may do; and, unfamiliarity with hills and curves plays a part in the sum total of accidents.

The truth is, if all drivers were sane and careful, accidents would be practically limited to unexpected breaks in steering gear, or some other part of a car that makes it temporarily unmanageable in an instant. And even the careful drivers make the mistake of thinking that it is as safe to run fifty miles an hour, as twenty-five, just because the car will do it smoothly when everything is working right. "Taking a chance" when there is no sound reason for so doing, is very dangerous business with a car that has no brains or judgment of its own.

KING ALFONSO DEPOSED.

King Alfonso, of Spain, has been deposed as Monarch of Spain, the fourth European ruler to meet the same fate during the past thirteen years. The act was accomplished without much disorder, and Spain demonstrated what it wanted in a very creditable manner, though with the greatest degree of firmness and popularity.

The King quietly withdrew with his family from his palatial quarters and is on his way to London, with a possibility of coming to the United States as a private citizen, said to be worth about $14,000,000, a sizable portion of which is invested in American securities.

A Republican government with Alcala Zamora as President, took charge immediately, and announced his Cabinet, who at once took charge of their offices.

SEASONABLE ADVERTISING.

The Record knows the value of good advertising. There are scattering cases in which individuals, or firms, appear to meet a fair degree of success without it; but this only means that with good advertising, this "fair" degree might be replaced with a stronger adjective.

By "good" advertising we do not necessarily mean that a large amount of space should be used. Rather, the space used should be experimental, and should be kept up regularly. If a storekeeper is a good advertiser, he ought to be a good advertiser, for the line of talk used in selling successfully, is just the line to be used in advertising.

Talk business, attractively, and to the point. Make statements that can be backed up by the goods and prices. Change the story to suit seasonable goods. The possible customer who is thinking of buying, is the one to talk to most successfully, and, remember, that an advertisement is always an invitation to visit your store—the rest you must do yourself.

PEN-MAR INN BURNED.

The Pen-Mar Inn, a four-story building at Pen-Mar, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday afternoon, causing a loss of approximately $10,000. The building was owned by Mrs. David Millet, of Baltimore, and was unoccupied, but preparations are said to have been made for its opening for the Summer.

The cause of the fire is unknown, and is thought to have originated in the basement. Sparks ignited underbrush at different places, but the Blue Ridge Summit firemen prevented their spread.

The large auditorium of the park, about 50 feet from the hotel, caught fire several times, but was saved with but slight damage.

SUFFERING FROM DROUGHT IS GREATLY LESSENERED.

It seems odd, if nothing else, that as soon as Congress adjourned, suffering from the drought in this country very materially improved, and now very little is heard about it; while the Red Cross is feeding, and otherwise relieving, many thousands of needy persons every day, and making no "bones" about it, but in addition is caring for about 20,000 earthquake sufferers in Nicaragua.

Just how much the suffering from the drought was overdrawn, can not be known. Perhaps it was not overdrawn at all; but there was an immense amount of pure political "bunk" spread abroad in a mock pathetic manner, for no other reason than to attempt to place President Hoover in an unsympathetic and dilatory attitude toward the suffering, and to discount his reputation for efficiency in meeting emergencies.

The facts are that the result of this campaign of obstruction was to hinder the Red Cross in gathering necessary funds, and to handicap the various agencies of the general government, and of the state governments, in carrying out relief measures that would have been carried out sooner, without the interference of purely obstructive tactics.

As soon as Congress quit talking, and adjourned, the whole situation has been vastly improved and is now gradually approaching the Normal.

AND SO IT ALWAYS IS.

The death of Speaker Longworth has called from all shades of political leaders, a most remarkable display of truthfulness in estimating the virtues of one of the foremost political figures of this country. The old saying used to be that "a dead indian is a good indian," and we are adapting that in these later days to our enemy politicians—good after they are dead.

If instead of dying, Speaker Longworth had been a prominent candidate for renomination as a candidate for the presidency, partisan leaders and newspapers would now be carrying a different story as to his ability and personal qualities, and his weaknesses or defects—real or imaginary—would be taking the place of eulogies.

This is "politics" in its worst, and most heartless form. As long as a man is very much alive, and a strong possibility for high political office, the rule is to try to kill him off in the estimation of the public. It is hideous, but true, and a standing disgrace to American politics.

BUSES AND RAILROADS.

When we arrive at the proper basis for analysis, we must reach the conclusion that it is not the motor bus that is ruining the passenger business of the railroads, so much as it is the automobile. These figures, stated as authentic, seem to clinch the opinion; there are in this country 52,000 railroad coaches, 45,000 common carrier buses, and 24,000,000 automobiles.

There are 600 automobiles for every motor bus, and 500 of them to every railway passenger coach. It must also be said for the bus that it makes short cuts, and reaches into sections that railroads could not reach—or at least, would not; and for the automobile it must be said that it can navigate lanes and even open fields, where even the buses can not go.

We do not know whether it is wholly true, or not, but the bus companies put up the claim that they are licensed and taxed higher than the railroads. And another thing is true, without much question of doubt that juries are bearing down pretty heavy on bus lines in cases of physical injuries to passengers; though neither the buses nor autos seem to be held very generally responsible for death or injury to pedestrians.

And in this one particular, at least, the public is being victimized by greatly too many "unavoidable accident" verdicts, because autos and buses operate on public highways, while railroads own their rights of way, and anyone who trespasses on them do so at their own risks.

DR. FRANCE WOULD LIKE TO BE PRESIDENT.

Dr. Joseph I. France, who was once elected by the Republicans of Maryland to the U. S. Senate, again offers his services to the country, this time aiming for the Republican nomination for president on an anti-prohibition platform. Our guess is that filing his candidacy is about as far as he will get in that direction; but even this has helped the State Treasury $275.00 which is cheap enough for a lot of first-page publicity.

If we recall rightly, Dr. France, when Senator, was a very obstreperous brand of Republican, and that in 1922 Mr. Cable Bruce, Democrat, had an easy walk-over to succeed the Doctor as Senator. Public sentiment may have materially changed Franceward in ten years, but we have not heard of it. Still, we don't blame him for wanting to be president, and this is a free country in which to try for it.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

A few weeks ago there appeared in the Baltimore Evening Sun Forum a letter from Samuel Kent, Frederick, Md., that will bear a careful reading and consideration. Possibly the conditions laid down in the letter do not apply so generally as the words "young people" would imply; and his suggestion that jobs might easily be secured as "farm help" might not go very far toward relieving the unemployment situation.

But, there is contained in his simply stated opinions enough of actual truth to call for more consideration than they will likely receive, and we feel like giving them another publication, as follows:

"Many farms are idle because of lack of help—and many people are idle in the cities because of lack of work. Let's establish a bureau where farmers desiring help and families who need domestic help register, and the unemployed can find many jobs. But I doubt if they would not rather starve on the 'great white way' than live on a farm.

When our young people graduate from high school they do not want to work with their hands and scorn the jobs of cook, nurse, maid, stable boy, etc., but those jobs are always to be found in the country. Many people blame the machine age for the unemployment. To a great extent it is due to our modern system of education, and to parents who do not want to see their children work with their hands. Let's get the farmers and the unemployed together. The "Farm and Home" daily broadcast would be an ideal way to reach the farmer, and Governor Ritchie, the Sun papers and WBAL would help reach the unemployed.

There are many vacant tenant houses with free rent and firewood; a space for chickens, a vegetable garden, a cow and a yard for children. No Wall Street profits, but at least a living can be dug from mother earth if the unemployed are willing to dig. No man was ever degraded by working with his hands. Let those who think so read history."

NEW INSTINCTS OF CAUTION.

Why does anyone require instruction in safety? Are the old instincts of self interest and self preservation dead within us that we need a lot of hallyho and propaganda to keep us alive?

We have often wondered just where the safety movement fitted into the philosophic scheme of things, but it was only by chance that we got a clue to it. A little pup not much bigger than a pint of apple beverage wanted to cross the street. The stream of cars tearing along in both directions augured ill for his expectancy. But he walked along the curb to the corner where there was a controlled pedestrian crossing and there, first looking to the left and then to the right, he crossed in safety.

That pup's ancestors undoubtedly were saved many a time from their natural enemies by their instincts of self preservation, instincts which they in turn undoubtedly handed down to our friend the pup. But of what use were they against a stream of automobiles? Of what good are our senses as safeguards, when they are constantly subjected to a roar of sound, a flood of light, smells and tastes a hundred fold greater than even our immediate ancestors knew? Not much. We have to learn as did the pup that certain things are safe and others are unsafe—arbitrarily, by taboo. Like table salt and cyanide of potassium, the middle of the block or the corner with its signals.

The reason for safety propaganda is economic. The dead and mutilated are full of knowledge by experience, but they are not good for much more than examples. It is cheaper to spend money on engineering talent than learn by fire and failure. It is cheaper to instruct and insist on the right way as the only way, than to let each man try to learn by his own mistakes.—Union Oil Bulletin.

THE YOUNG IDEA.

Discussion has lately been renewed concerning the ethics and desirability of prejudging young people one way or the other toward questions of public policy. At the same time certain organizations are announcing their intention to influence the public opinion of the future of working on the impressionable minds of today's youngsters.

It is natural that those of pronounced opinions should feel justified in inculcating them wherever they can, even with children who have little choice and less judgment in accepting or rejecting them. Most parents are guided by their own convictions in training their own youngsters and in choosing schools and teachers to take charge of their adolescent education. They usually think they know best and that they are providing best for their children by shaping their minds in their own pattern.

But probably it would be far better if there were wisdom enough in the world to train the younger generation first in judgment, honesty and independence and to impose no more than a minimum of prejudice on the minds that must in the future meet the problems of the future. There is need, of course, for an early bias in favor of right and justice and the few fundamental principles on which a sound society is founded. Honor and honesty are habits to be taught in childhood and youth, or they may never be learned. But to confuse a child's mind with the propaganda of politics and economics is an abuse of adult responsibility and may prove vicious and dangerous. Right thinking in the future will not be founded on prejudices adopted in youth but on a wholesome habit of mind and heart. These should be trained in children, but from doubtful doctrines they deserve to be protected.—Phila. Ledger.

TEACH GIRLS TO COOK.

Whether the modern girl should learn to cook or not to cook, is the question that is being debated in women's clubs, around the lunch tables and wherever mothers get together at the present time. Some mothers claim that nowadays when a girl is expected to follow some kind of a calling, it is not reasonable to expect her to be as skilled in the domestic arts as was her mother. Others advance the theory that if a girl knows the principles of planning well-balanced meals and is familiar with food values, she need know only how to wield a can opener and a bread knife, depending upon the resources of grocery, bakery and delicatessen for the rest.

Many voices are raised in protest against these views, however, and among them, Mrs. Grace Viell Gray, of the Household Science Institute, who claims that ability to bake and cook is not only an asset to a woman but a pleasure as well.

"My daughter is learning to bake," says Mr. Gray, in addressing club women, "because I believe it will be no small factor in making her married life successful. A recent survey showed financial worries as the cause of domestic friction oftener than any other reason. Home baking is one measure of economy and no small one. Bread, pies and cakes are always cheaper if made at home than if bought over the counter, not to say better. In fact, figures show them to be from twenty to forty percent cheaper.

"Besides the economy factor, a wife who can cook and bake is apt to be a better homemaker and hostess than the woman who simply buys over the counter. She knows that her family is getting good nourishing food, properly cooked. She knows she is using the highest grade flour, fresh eggs and pure butter and other ingredients, but she takes a chance on ready-made bakery products."

Despite arguments against home baking, therefore, this home economist concludes, the fact remains that women still flock to cooking schools, pore the magazines for new wrinkles, keep the radio tuned in on cooking hours and exchange recipes across the luncheon and bridge table.—Club Women Service.

LONGEST NEWS STAND.

In the alley south of Sixth street, Los Angeles, running west from Hill St., is what is said by the Chamber of Commerce of that city to be the world's longest outdoor news stand. It is only about two feet wide, but it is half a block long and in the racks which line the wall to a height of eight feet are newspapers and magazines from Alaska, Austria, China, Czechoslovakia—from all parts of the world and all states of the Union. Continuing its description of the news stand, the chamber says:

"There are papers from 30 different German cities and from all the principal English, Scotch, Irish, Russian, Italian, Spanish and South American cities. And there every day people from all parts of this country and from many other countries go to read the news from home. Though all the important news is in the local papers, brought by telegraph, the comparatively unimportant and the social departments they have got in the habit of reading at home, draw them there.

"Harry Smith, proprietor of the attenuated news stand, thinks the patronage of his stand something of an index to our floating population. Among American papers from other states, the Kansas City Star is the best seller, with the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune ranking next which seems to indicate a great proportion of visitors from the heart of the country.

"Though there are many Japanese here, the demand for Japanese papers is very light, as most of them have been here a long time and their local papers satisfy them. The same thing is true of Chinese papers. There is much more demand for papers from Hawaii, Panama, the Philippines and New Zealand than for papers from China, and as the latter are unusually expensive and rather stale when they get here they are not always in stock."—New York Times.

Shawls for Men

In the closing years of the Civil war the cost of garments made to order was so great and money was so scarce that it was no sign of poverty to wear a shawl. Most men wore them, says an article in the Milwaukee Journal. Men's shawls were mostly good, heavy wool, dark gray or brown. Some were striped and some were checked with dark blue or green. Men folded their shawls lengthwise. Worn that way, a shawl was good protection to the neck and shoulders and took the place of both coat and muffler. Most men were dressed warmly underneath. They wore red flannels and sometimes chamolis vests.

Venice of Holland

Not every one has seen a water village, but in Holland this is the privilege of the traveler. Of none can it be said more correctly than of lovely Aalsmeer, which can be reached from Haarlem in a short time. It is one long, straight village street, no more than a towing path, with a canal on either side. Small swing bridges connect the houses with this path, and many of them are entirely surrounded by water. It is a rural Venice, but, unlike Venice, it is a flower and fruit-laden village, and its shrubs, cut into grotesque shapes, are world famous.

"Doves" and "Pigeons"

The words "dove" and "pigeon" are practically synonymous, but in ordinary usage "pigeon" is a somewhat broader term and is applied to all birds belonging to the family Columbidae, says an article in Pathfinder Magazine. Both terms are applicable to the domestic pigeon and to various wild species, but some of the smaller species of the family are specifically called doves, such as turtle-doves, mourning doves, ground doves, to distinguish them from the larger species more commonly called pigeons.

Facts and Figures on Your Telephone

By EDWIN F. HILL

The United States is fast becoming air conscious, and aviation companies realizing the importance of person-to-person communication in the interest of safety have become telephone conscious. The result is that the sales of aviation and radio equipment to the leading air transport companies last year were of outstanding interest, according to a statement made by Edgar S. Bloom, president of the Western Electric Company, in the annual report to the stockholders. Practically all of the large air lines in this country, he says, are now equipped with both plane and ground transmitters and receiving radio systems.

Sales of the Western Electric Company, the world's largest manufacturer of telephone equipment and supplies, for 1930 were $361,478,000. This was 12 per cent less than the record figure of 1929, but was considerably greater than the sales in 1928 or any previous year in the company's history, the report shows.

Sound producing equipment for talking pictures is now in use in more than 7,600 theatres throughout the world. In addition to the recording studios in the United States, a number of foreign studios have been equipped with Western Electric sound recording apparatus. Sound picture equipment is installed by Electrical Research Products in the United States and by its foreign subsidiaries in other countries.

Progress was made during the year in improving the quality of sound in the motion picture. The outstanding achievement in this company was the "Western Electric New Process Noiseless Recording," which is said by Mr. Bloom to be perhaps the most noticeable single advance in the art since the first commercial successful showing of sound pictures in 1926.

African Province Found to Be Flealand Oasis

A plague-prevention survey of Africa resulted in the discovery of a spot which is absolutely free of fleas and the incident was regarded as so remarkable that the investigators tarried for some explanation of the unusual situation. This favored spot was the town of Prieska and the country immediately surrounding it. Fleas are notoriously good carriers of the germs of this disease and therefore the entire wide reaches of Africa were systematically searched for animals carrying infected specimens of "pullex irritans." Hence it happens that certain dogs at Prieska, which lies on the Karroo prairies of the Cape of Good Hope province, were searched for fleas by the medical men.

Not a solitary jumper could be found. Every cur, even the most neglected and mongrel native-owned brutes, was absolutely devoid of them. The theory of some residents is that the nitrates in the barren lands surrounding this particular settlement act as a natural disinfectant.

Idea of the Lifeboat Credited to Englishman

The first lifeboat to be stationed on any coast in the world is said to have been a cobbler converted to the purpose by an English coach builder, Lionel Lukin, in 1786. The year before he had taken out a patent for an "inamergible boat" made out of a Norwegian yawl. The second boat was stationed at Bamfrough, on the Yorkshire coast of England, where by permission of Archdeacon Sharp a portion of the castle was set aside as a watchtower, from which Holy Island could be signaled whenever a vessel was seen to be in distress. Lukin's boat did good service and saved many lives. After an appalling shipwreck a quarter of a mile from the coast at South Shields, in 1789, a committee of South Shields inhabitants offered a prize for a model lifeboat, and Mr. Greathead built the first actual lifeboat, naming it the "Original." When in 1790 another ship was wrecked in almost the same spot, the Original brought every one to safety, whereas in the shipwreck of 1789 all had been drowned in sight of helpless onlookers.

Handball Irish Pastime

Handball originated in Ireland about 1,000 years ago, and is often considered one of the national games of that country. It is now played by more men in America than anywhere else in the world. The first scientific handball player was really developed about 1850, when William Baggs of Tipperary originated new ways of hitting the ball in curves, low drives and screw tosses. The first international match ever played was the Lawlor-Casey match, in 1887, with the prize of $1,000 for the best of 21 games, 10 in Cork and 11 in the United States. Lawlor won 6 games to 4 in Cork, and Casey won 7 straight in New York. Casey retained his title against all comers until 1900, when he retired. Since 1900 the game has developed in two separate games, a one-wall game and a four-wall game, both of which are played by amateurs in singles and doubles.

Marathon Contest

A marathon race is run over a distance of 26 miles and 385 yards. The marathon race of 1908 was one of the most memorable. It was run from Windsor castle to the Olympic stadium at Shepherds Bush, London, England. Dorando Pietri, the chief representative of Italy, was forced to abate his pace when approaching the stadium and collapsed, for the first time, at the entrance to the track; first aid was rendered, and he arose to totter on around the arena. Fifty yards further he went down again and was again helped up. He fell a third time and was then carried past the winning post. Complaints were lodged by J. J. Hays of the United States and C. Hefferon of South Africa, who had finished second and third, respectively. They claimed that Pietri could not have reached the tape alone and he was disqualified. Queen Alexandra, however, presented the plucky little Italian with a gold cup.

Wine for Wistaria

There are 3,200 species of flowers in Japan. The white plum blossom tells of the coming of spring, then follow the cherry, wistaria, azalea, iris, peony, lotus, chrysanthemum and the camellia. The cherry is monarch of all and it is celebrated by fetes and processions. The chrysanthemum is queen, and is on the crest of the emperor. It has been cultivated for 2,500 years. The Japanese often enrich the roots of wistaria with rice wine, while their peoples are sometimes nine inches across, and its 80 varieties, when cared for after cutting, will last three weeks.

Historic Crusades

The Crusades were wars undertaken for religious purposes, specifically those waged by the Christians for the recovery of the Holy land. Toward the close of the Eleventh century the Byzantine empire was in great danger of becoming conquered by the Seljukian Turks, and the Emperor Alexis Comnenus appealed for help. At the council of Clermont, November 1095, Pope Urban II asked for aid to reconquer Jerusalem. The first Crusade was from 1096-99; the second, 1147-49; the third, 1189-91; and the fourth, 1201-04.

Long Trip for Clay

The first whiteware made in England was the product of the Wedgwood pottery and it was necessary to send to America for the special white clay needed. The leader of the expedition left a diary which is extant, and from this it is learned that the expedition landed at Charleston, S. C., in 1767. The party forced its way into the heart of the mountainous Cherokee country of North Carolina, mined several tons of kaolin, and transported it in the dead of winter to the seacoast and thence by ship to England.—Detroit News.

It's Their Personality

Some men have a voice with such a marked dash of braggadocio that no matter how innocent a statement they make, one always feels sure they are lying.—Collier's Weekly.

No Method Yet Found of Squaring the Circle

The problem of squaring the circle is not a problem of drawing a square around a circle. The latter is easily done by making the side of the square the same length as the diameter of the circle. As stated by all recognized authorities, the problem is to describe a square which shall be exactly equal in area to a given circle. Since the area of a circle is a little over 3.14 (pi) times the square of its radius, and since the length of side of an equal square is the square root of this area, it will be seen that the only problem of quadrature or the squaring of the circle is to get the exact value of this fraction "pi." It has been worked out by various mathematicians to at least 707 places of decimals, which is far more exact than is required for most practical purposes, though theoretically it is impossible to determine it exactly. A geometric solution of the problem; that is, to describe a square equal in area to a given circle, by means of rules and compasses alone, has also been shown to be impossible, though approximate results can be obtained by various methods.—Detroit News.

Customary Procedure

A man went into a small country store and informed the owner that he was about to leave the community. The storekeeper walked to his file and pulled out the list of unpaid bills, and approaching the man, said, "I know you will never pay these bills so I have written 'paid in full' and charged them to my loss account."

The man looked at the bills for a few minutes and then remarked, "When bills are paid you always give a sack of candy for the kids, don't you?"—Forbes Magazine.

Royal Succession

According to the practice now prevalent in monarchies the wife of the reigning king does not succeed to the throne in case of the later's death. The succession passes through either the male or female line, but does not pass from one to the other. Likewise if a reigning queen dies her husband does not succeed to the throne. For instance, if a queen of the Netherlands should die her eldest child would become sovereign, not the queen's husband. Catherine the Great of Russia succeeded her husband Peter III, but the proceeding was revolutionary.—Exchange.

Beyond Belief

The professor had been dining out, and, as most of the guests were ardent fishermen, he had had to listen all the evening to stories of the size of their catches.

He was extremely short-sighted, and as he was crossing a field on his way home he came across a scarecrow with arms widespread. Memories of the "tall" stories he had heard that night floated back to him, and he halted in front of the scarecrow.

"My dear sir," he exclaimed, "I simply refuse to believe you; there never was a trout that length."

"Bobby" Burns Memento

Ayr, in Scotland, today contains very little that Burns ever saw, but he probably passed or entered many times the old inn on High street, now called the Tam O'Shanter Inn. The real "auld" attraction there is "the auld clay biggin," the ancient cottage of two small rooms, built by Burns' father in 1757, which a tramcar rides takes you to in a few minutes. It is now a Burns museum and about it are the fields the plowman poet tilled and where his songs were born.

MOths IN LOSING BATTLE WITH SCIENCE

FORMERLY MOths CAUSED $400,000,000 DAMAGE A YEAR

SCIENTIFIC MOth-PROOFING OF MOHAIR FABRICS IS DOING AWAY WITH DAMAGES TO FURNITURE FROM THIS SOURCE

MOths WILL DIE RATHER THAN EAT TREATED MOHAIR

AT LAST science is making headway against the moth, that harmless looking little insect that causes damage to household effects to the tune of $400,000,000 annually. In regard to at least one important fabric, mohair velvet, victory has been achieved.

All fabrics made from animal fiber, which is largely protein, are normally attractive to moths. Exceptional cleanliness, exposure to sunlight and the use of moth deterrents applied at home are sometimes helpful, but the thorough and scientific way to thwart the enemy is for the material to be permanently mothproofed with chemicals at the mill when it is being made. So successful is this process that mohair velvet, or velmo as the rich pile fabric made from the hair of the angora goat is called, once considered by housewives as the moths' heaven is now recognized as their Waterloo. It has indisputably been proved that moths will starve themselves to death rather than eat mohair velvet that has been so treated. This feature alone, aside from the long-wearing qualities, easy cleaning and luxurious appearance of velmo, recommends it as the ideal fabric for furniture upholstery.

For other furnishings, frequent airing and plenty of sunlight will tend to reduce the breeding haunts of the house moth. Killing the moth on the wing will not do any good as by the time it has reached the flying stage it has already deposited its eggs and is ready for death. It is these eggs or larvae which, hatching out, seize the animal fibers which have not been chemically treated and eat them.

FEESERSBURG.

Everybody's busy—men working in the ground and women at their annual house-cleaning, while nature smiles on all.

Sunday School and Preaching Service, at Mt. Union, on Sunday morning, were well attended. Mrs. Chas. Buffington and son, Harry E., were presented with Oxford Bibles for one year's regular attendance. Rev. Kroh's little sermon to the children was on April's Fool, or deceivers; and the theme to the adults was "Feed my Sheep." Fresh jonquils and hyacinths were on the altar.

Some of our Lutheran women are planning to attend the Women's Missionary Conference, at Middletown, next Wednesday, April 22nd, going by bus, and carrying a box lunch. The program includes Miss Amelia Kemp, Executive Secretary of the U. L. C.; Mrs. Corrine Menger, Missionary from Buenos Aires, S. A.; the President and Treasurer of the Md. Synodical Society; and Mrs. Jas. P. Reese.

Some unusual products this season are a real ripe orange, grown on a tree in the kitchen of a friend; one good-sized sweet pepper at another neighbor's; and one Calla Lily that produced 8 blooms, and still thriving in another home.

A number of trees in this locality are showing scant signs of life, after the long continued drought of last year.

Many neighbors attended the funeral of Benton Grossnickle, on Friday, services in the home and burial in Pipe Creek cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Grossnickle (nee Fannie Bowers) have lived many years in this community, and he was ill for some time, but the end came suddenly on Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wolfe visited her cousin, Harry Utermahlen, in Baltimore, on Saturday evening, who has been ill with some stomach trouble and just out of bed.

Miss Margaret Cook, of Baltimore, spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Snare.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keseling, son Francis, Miss Catherine Frohnhauser and Mrs. Edward Burkett, all of Baltimore, visited Mr. and Mrs. James Kalbach, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Taylor (nee Maud Kump) and daughters, Marian, Naomi and Helen Jean, and Miss Lena Taylor, of Baltimore, called at the Birely home, on Sunday evening. Mother Gilbert is spending some time with her son, Stanley Gilbert and family, near Reese.

Mrs. Addie Crumbacker entertained to supper, on Thursday, Mrs. Bettie Snare, Misses Margaret Cook and Mabel Crumbacker and Harris Frock.

On Wednesday, the family of Brooks moved from Union Bridge, to the home of Frank Davis, along the Middleburg-Uniontown road, formerly a part of the Edward Ritter farm.

Our local fisherman are keeping up their record with full strings of fish. We expect to have some show places in our town, when all the cleaning, painting and landscape gardening is completed.

The P. T. A. of Middleburg had a very enjoyable meeting on Tuesday evening in Walden's Hall, when the women gave a play, "First day at School," to a large and appreciative audience. Mrs. Chas. Stitely was the able "School Marm" to whom the mothers brought their forty year old "kids," advising her what to teach and how to handle them, with warnings. Millie and Tillie, Mrs. Addie McKinney and Mrs. Daisy Sherman) were the mischievous twins; while the cutest little boy (Mrs. Goldie Bostian) won a paddling for pulling off the hair of the most aristocratic girl in school (Mrs. Lizzie B. Eyer). During the social hour which followed, there was piano music and songs; with soup, sandwiches, cake, and coffee on sale.

The C. E. audience at Mt. Union, on Sunday evening, was disappointed when the speaker invited to give echoes of the "Billy Sunday" meeting in Hanover, last week, failed to appear.

NEW WINDSOR.

H. C. Roop and wife attended the Grocers' Association meeting, in Baltimore, on Monday.

TWO TOO MANY

"An' so I sez to that there Englishman. I sez, 'Jest who do you think you are?' An' quick as a flash he answered back and sez, 'Sir, you are speaking to the third Earl of Hampshire and the son of the Duke of Northumberland and Earl of Surrey.' 'Right then I sees the jig's up. I'm a game guy, but darned if I was going to take on all three of 'em.'"

The Evidence

Mrs. Newgilt—But we gotta take a chance on their belt's stole. If I don't wear any hundred-thousand-dollar pearl necklace in public how'll folks know I got it?

Her Husband—Here's the receipted bill for it. Get your hired girl to sew it outside the front of your dress. I guess that'll show 'em.

AIRPLANE NEEDED

"Oh, that this letter to my love had wings!" "Why didn't you write it on flypaper then?"

Restraint

That frankness is a virtue taught by sages, this you'll have to own; if you said everything you thought They might remove your telephone.

It Won't Always Work

Mr. Neverwed—Yes, sir! To be happily married get 'em young, treat 'em rough, and tell 'em nothing.

Mr. Peewee—But my wife wasn't young when I first saw her and she won't stand for rough treatment, and you can't tell her anything.

Blame It on the Operator

Her Husband—The telephone service is rotten. I've been trying all afternoon to get you on the wire and got the busy signal every time.

Mrs. Longtalker—How could they? Why, I've just finished with the only call I've had today.

Out of Date

Aunt Lucy—If you keep such late hours you'll ruin your pretty, natural complexion.

Philippa—They're not wearing natural complexions now; they're all covered up.

"Is it true that several people in the parquet fell asleep during the first-night performance of your new comedy?" "Yes, but they laughed in their sleep!"

Nothing Reckless

Fellow-Workers

"Why did you greet the man in that limousine?" "He is a colleague."

"What work does he do?" "Signs the letters I type."

Something to Think About

Doris (expectantly)—You've seen Father? What did he say? Tom—Er-er-er I'm not certain whether he said, "Take her, lad," or "Take care, lad!"

Foreordained

Mr. Peewee—A fortune teller once told me I was born to command.

His Wife—Don't you dare to spend another dollar on such nonsense. You were born for me to command.

Just for Once

Saint Peter—Well, what would you like to be in your next incarnation? Soul—My last wife. It would be nice to be perfect for a change!

COMMON MALADY

"I say, Tom, are you ever troubled with sleeplessness?"

"I am. Some nights I don't sleep three hours."

"I pity you, then, I've got it awfully bad. I've been afflicted now about two years. The doctor calls it 'neuro insomnia paralaxitis.'"

Tom grunted and said: "I've had it about six months, but we call it a baby."

HOW TO MAKE WHITEWASH.

Spring is here and with it comes an instinctive desire to aid nature in her work of beautifying our surroundings. Homes are cleaned from cellar to attic yards are raked, houses painted, and outbuildings, fences, stables and tree trunks are whitewashed to make them more attractive.

Many folks use a simple mixture of lime and water for whitewashing but are not satisfied with the lasting qualities. This can be considerably improved if salt is added as per the following formula: Dissolve 15 lbs. of salt in 7½ gallons of water and add 50 lbs. of hydrated lime or the lime putty made by slaking 38 lbs. of quick lime. Mix thoroughly, thin to desired consistency, and apply with brush or sprayer.

For a very durable whitewash, which will not rub off; or chalk, and may be used inside or out, the following formula will be found excellent. This mixture may be satisfactorily used for whitewashing buildings, interior walls, stables, dairies, etc., wherever a high-class, lasting job is desired. It requires more care in mixing than the above formula, but the extra effort is well worth while.

Mix as follows: Soak 5 lbs of casein in 2 gallons of hot water until thoroughly softened (about 2 hours.) Dissolve 3 lbs of trisodium phosphate in about a gallon of water and add this to the casein solution. Prepare a thick cream by mixing 50 lbs of hydrated lime (or the lime putty made by slaking 38 lbs. of quicklime) in about 7 gallons of water, stirring vigorously. Dilute 3 pints of formaldehyde in 3 gallons of water. When the lime and casein solutions are both thoroughly cool, slowly add the casein to the lime, stirring constantly. Now very slowly add the formaldehyde solution to the batch stirring constantly and vigorously. Care must be taken not to add the formaldehyde too rapidly or the casein may jelly, thus spoiling the batch. Do not make up more of this formula than can be used in one day.

Goethe and Carlyle

Goethe is not only one of the supreme poets of the world; he has the distinction of being the author of the best German novel, William Meister. The best translation of this was written and published by Thomas Carlyle more than one hundred years ago. In reading this translation, therefore, one is reading in the same book the works of two men of genius. Carlyle had almost no opportunity to hear spoken German; he was largely self-taught. But it was characteristic of his honesty, industry, conscience, as well as his literary gifts, that he should have done his difficult work so well that no one has been able to equal it.—William Lyon Phelps, in "Essays on Things."

DISTANT

Nelson and Wilson were discussing relatives in general and having exhausted the anvil pounding of the close relations started to hammer merrily at the more distant family connections.

"Have you any distant relatives?" Nelson was asked.

"Yes, I have two brothers."

"What! Do you call brothers distant relatives?"

"These brothers are rich, you know," sadly explained Nelson.

Think to Stop

The after-dinner speaker had been talking for a long time, and the diners were praying for him to wind up.

"Gentlemen," he said at length, "did you ever stop to think? I ask you again, did you ever stop to think?"

A weary listener could hear it no longer.

"Did you ever think to stop?" he inquired.

Father-in-Law—When I gave you my daughter's hand I didn't think that you were always going to be dependent on me.
Son-in-Law—Neither did I, I thought that you would give us enough to live independently.—Faun (Vienna).

Check
Misses (to new and raw maid)
—When you answer me, Mary, you should say, "Yes, ma'am," or "No, ma'am."
New Maid (obligingly)—Right!—Leeds Mercury.

Shorty—I know where you can get a good chicken dinner for only 15 cents.
Skinney—Where?
Shorty—At the feed store.

STRETCHING THE TRUTH

Freak Manager—No, you stretched yourself, no doubt, but don't stretch the truth.

A Change of Phrase
He said that she was dear to him
And then with manner pensive
When they were wedded he waxed grim
And said she was expensive.

Necessity
Billings—Some genius in London has invented a buttonless shirt.
Dillings—Why, that's nothing new. I've been wearing them ever since my wife learned to play bridge.—Answers.

A DIPLOMAT

That a certain young man is wise beyond his years was proved when he paused before answering a widow who had asked him to guess her age.

"You must have some idea," she said.

"I have several ideas," said the young man, with a smile. "The only trouble is that I hesitate whether to make you ten years younger on account of your looks or ten years older on account of your intelligence."

REDUCED HER WAIST

"You know 'haste makes waste.'"
"It reduced my waist."

From Season to Season
He talks about the weather,
And he it cold or hot,
He always wishes that it was
The kind that it is not.

They'll Bring Fever Heat
Doc (to patient's wife)—By all means get him to perspire. The more the better.
Wife—Oh, I see! I think I'll put this year's tax bills on the bed before him. They should make him sweat.

Modern Maids
Maid—Are you going out in the car on Sunday, ma'am?
Miss—No.
Maid—Then I'd like to ask for the loan of it; mine's being repaired.—Moustique (Charlierot).

Sentiment
"You demand a quarter of a million for breach of promise?"
"Yes," answered the determined woman. "Sentiment demands it. I would not have him think, even now, that I valued his affections lightly."

And Early to Bed
"What time do you get up in summer?"
"As soon as the first ray of the sun comes in at my window."
"Isn't that rather early?"
"No, my room faces west."—Loughborough Herald.

"Yes, there's a great run in it, I understand."

Fate's Differences
In life some fearful contrasts lurk.
Each has its own position.
Some men are born to go to work
And some to go a-fishin'.

A Peculiar Advantage
"Do you think the historical novel will retain its popularity?"
"Yes," answered the publisher. "It is the only way I know of in which gossip can be circulated about eminent people without the risk of libel suits."

At Intervals
"What, Brown, you've bought your little boy an old piano? Can he play, then?"
"Yes, indeed, and often it really sounds like music!"—Dorfbarbler (Berlin).

"You'll get a raise in salary every year, provided, of course, that your work is satisfactory."
"Ah! I thought there was a catch somewhere."—Arcanum Bulletin.

Always the Truth
"What became of that unpaid bill Dunn sent to us?" remarked the bank clerk to his wife.
"Oh, that?" she asked. "I sent it back marked 'insufficient funds.'"

Held in Abeyance
"Have your parents given their consent to our union?"
"Not yet. Father hasn't expressed his opinion yet and mother is waiting to contradict him."

Alibi

Accused—No, my lord, because I broke into a different house on that evening.

YOU CUT THE COST OF EACH KWH* THE MORE ELECTRICITY YOU USE

In order that every customer may enjoy to the utmost the use of electric appliances and of good light—the current cost per KWH* is lowered, step by step, the more electricity you use.

Actual bills for homes using the appliances shown here and adequate lighting cost only $3 to $5 a month.

Of course, what constitutes "adequate light" varies with the individual family. But the trend today is toward more and better illumination, the basis of which is shaded light.

KITCHEN LORE
by JANE ROGERS

If your rows of preserves are beginning to show wide empty spaces, there is still plenty of opportunity to fill up the gaps. True, it's too late to put up most of the fresh fruits, but there are any number of delicious preserves that can be made from the vegetables with which the market is well supplied throughout the winter.

And where economy is a necessary watch word, this of all years is the year for extra special home preserving activities. Fortunately the desirable vegetables are cheap and abundant. The price of sugar, the chief source of the high food and energy value possessed by preserves, is down to its pre-war level. Preserve today to cut tomorrow's food bill is a slogan that will be adopted by wise housewives in all parts of the country.

Carrot Conservé
Cube enough scraped carrots to make two quarts. Cook until very tender and water has almost evaporated. Drain and to liquid add the juice and grated rind of two large lemons. Dissolve four and a half cups sugar in the liquid, add carrots and cook until syrup thickens. Pack in sterilized jars and seal.

We guarantee to satisfy you when we accept your order for printing.

EXTORTION TALE SETS NEW RECORD

Scheme Would Have Aroused Machiavelli's Envy.

New York.—An intricate and audacious scheme of extortion that would have aroused the envy of Machiavelli was the charge made here by an obscure storekeeper of Queens against four men.

Here is the story in chronological order as told in First District Magistrate's Court Queens.

On January 5 the four men entered the store of Anthony Imbergamo and at revolver point forced Imbergamo to sign a note, the amount of which was not written in.

This note was then made to read $750.

At the end of 30 days, when the note became due, the men obtained judgment against Imbergamo, seized his store and took over his business.

Imbergamo, his wife and his daughter, Mary, four, were kept prisoners in the back room while the four men marked down prices and proceeded to sell the goods.

Then, not enough money coming in, the men decided Imbergamo should get a job. He got a job, after being warned that he would be followed, and traveled to and from the store each day, fearful of reporting to police.

Finally the men told Imbergamo he would have to get rid of his wife and child. That spurred him to action, and Detectives Powers and Gallagher were called upon to arrest the four men.

They are Joseph Navarra, his father, Paul; his brother, Peter, and Frank Anselmo, a cousin. They were held in $10,000 bail each on charges of grand larceny and felonious assault. Three were arrested in the store and Joseph Navarra in another store in Astoria, where, police said, they found alcohol and a pile of goods from the Imbergamo store.

California Wild Elk to Have Home of Their Own

Bakersfield, Calif.—The last of California's wild elk, a herd of 150 head, would be deprived of their accustomed meals of lettuce and beet tops, but would find eternal sanctuary on a 100-acre plot near here, under a bill up for consideration by the state legislature.

The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Augustus F. Jewett of Hanford and followed several attempts last fall to solve the elk problem.

Ranchers and truck gardeners of the Buttonwillow district have had to battle what they considered a "plague" of elk for the last several years.

The herd started with a remnant of band of only a score or two, according to residents. Restrictive laws caused the herd to increase until it was estimated to total 1,000.

The truck gardeners, ranchers, and orchardists of the district have complained that the elk eat up their gardens, trample their grain and strip their orchards of bark.

Assemblyman Jewett's bill would provide $35,000 state money for the elk sanctuary, to cost an estimated $105,000. The remainder of the money would come from Kern county funds and private donations.

Government Studying Monoxide Poisoning

Washington.—Carbon monoxide poisoning, which results in the death of hundreds of persons in the United States each year, is the subject of a special study now by the health and safety branch of the government's bureau of mines. Mine gases and automobile exhaust gases, which contain large proportions of carbon monoxide, swell the nation's accident toll. Bureau experts point out that the gas has substantially the same effect as asphyxiation—it replaces oxygen in the lungs and weakens the blood.

Sea Hero Swaps Medal to Buy Bed and Meal

Albuquerque, N. M.—Two medals of honor that he received for heroic work in a sea rescue failed to appease his hunger pangs, so Frederick Clausen, twenty-five, sold them for a meal.

Clausen was one of the heroes of the S. S. America crew that rescued the crew of the S. S. Florida about a year and a half ago.

For his part in the rescue, Clausen received two medals, but he sold them on the highway recently to get enough to buy a bed and a meal.

Attorney Wins Lawsuit and Gets 35 Cents Fee

Winnipeg.—A Winnipeg attorney, J. M. Gibbon, believes he has received the smallest fee ever awarded in this province.

He recovered for a client a judgment for $3.50. Under Manitoba statutes, the judge awarded him a 10 per cent fee, or 35 cents, the highest that could be granted.

The judgment, however, impressed the defendant. When he heard the award, he fainted.

Lost Dog Finds His Master in Another City

Gray, Iowa.—Elmer Jensen lost his dog Spot on a fishing trip last July 4. A dog approached Jensen and sniffed his shoes recently at a neighboring town. Failing to chase the dog away with discouraging words, Jensen kicked the animal. The dog whined and Jensen recognized the whine as that of Spot.

Found It Impossible to Locate Man-Eating Tree

There are undoubtedly plants which entrap and devour insects, and one from India which lures mice by an odor and traps and consumes the rodent, but no one has been able to prove the existence of the "man-eating tree of Madagascar." This story was started about half a century ago by a traveler who wrote a letter to a friend in Europe of having witnessed a sacrificial ceremony where a woman was made a martyr, forced to meet death in the embrace of one of these trees. The story traveled around the world and persisted to such an extent that many travelers and scientists who have visited the country since have made efforts to verify the story. Dr. Ralph Linton of the Field anthropological expedition spent two years in Madagascar and tried to locate a man-eating tree. He encountered several persons who believed that such a thing existed, but the tree was always in some other part of the country, and he arrived at the conclusion that the story was a myth.

Coast Guard Ranks High

The Coast guard constitutes, under the law, a part of the military forces of the United States, which shall operate under the Treasury department in time of peace and operate as a part of the navy, subject to the orders of the secretary of the navy, in time of war or when the President shall so direct. It is composed of the former revenue cutter service and life saving service. The Coast guard has played a distinguished part in every war in which the United States has been engaged. In time of peace it has made a distinguished record in saving life and property at sea and in the performance of its many other important functions.

Ghost Stories Revived

People of Portchester, England, are more certain than ever that ghosts inhabit the famous ancient castle of the place. They point to the recent finding of three skeletons at a spot where they say ghosts were definitely seen to vanish on at least three separate occasions last winter. The castle was once an early British camp, then a Roman fortress, later a Norman stronghold, and in the Napoleonic war a jail for French prisoners. Smallpox and other epidemics broke out several times among the French prisoners and a great number of them died and were buried there.

Fisherman's Lucky Day

To catch a pike and a hawk in the same net is something which does not happen to many fishermen, but Karl Sohlman, of Toemte, in the province of Vermland, Sweden, recently accomplished the feat. A large and powerful pike was caught in his net and a hawk, watching the attempts of the fish to free itself, swooped down in the hope of a meal. But its claws became entangled in the meshes and Sohlman hauled in a double catch. The bird was an unusually large specimen, measuring more than one meter (3.28 feet) between the wing tips.

Hero Gave Name to City

Although Houston's fame is based principally on its exceptional development in recent years as a shipping point and as an industrial center, yet no southern city has a more interesting or romantic background. It was named after Gen. Sam Houston, hero of the Battle of San Jacinto, when the republic of Texas achieved her independence from Mexico. The battlefield, now a state park, is located about twenty-two miles from the city.

Simple Matter Decided Bostonian's Alma Mater

The late Sherman Whipple, one of Boston's best known lawyers and famous characters, was unique among his colleagues, owing to the fact that he went through Yale instead of Harvard. It was almost sacrilege and proved a decided drawback at the beginning of his career. This is no slam at Yale, but merely states the fact that in the eyes of Bostonians, a local boy who went there instead of to Harvard has committed a social error.

Of course, Whipple had intended to go to Harvard, but as expense had to be considered, his prudent mother wrote to both Harvard and Yale asking them to send catalogs.

Yale promptly sent a catalogue. Harvard replied that one would be sent on receipt of 50 cents. So Sherman Whipple went to Yale. —Los Angeles Times.

Short Short Story, but Neatly Pointed Moral

A certain king sent to another king, saying, "Send me a blue pig with a black tail, or else—" The other replied, "I have not got one, and if I had—" For these words they went to war. After many men had been killed they wished for peace. But before peace could be got they had to explain the words they had used. "What did you mean," asked the second king of the first, "by saying to me, 'Send me a blue pig with a black tail, or else—'?" "Why," said the other, "I meant a blue pig with a black tail, or else some other color. But what did you mean by saying, 'I have not got one, and if I had—'?" "That if I had one, I should have sent it." Both kings were pleased, and peace was made. Many quarrels are pretty nearly as foolish as the war about the blue pig with the black tail.—Montreal Family Herald.

Great White Way

In 1815 a considerable part of London was lighted by gas, and experiments were being performed in this country. Six years later gas-lighting in Baltimore proved a success.

The new agent of civilization was sneered at by the skeptical, frowned on by the conservatives and generally scouted by the great body of people who had used oil lamps and candles and who were incredulous of any change for the better.

In 1823 the first gas-light establishment was organized in New York city, and in 1826 there were 120 gas lamps installed on Broadway from the Bowery to Grand street, replacing 75 oil lamps. Thus started the "Great White Way."

Magistrate Had "Called the Turn," Unknowingly

The president of the Oxford union completed his term of office and came down to London to see some friends. The friends were congenial, not to say convivial, and in the early hours of the morning the president of the union was found reposing in a wheelbarrow in the middle of Piccadilly circus by a policeman.

Before the magistrate, the president, having very little recollection of what had happened, decided to bluff it out. The magistrate wanted to know why he had chosen a wheelbarrow for a resting place.

The president replied that he was there "for purely valetudinarian reasons."

The magistrate pointed out the offender's lack of responsibility and respect for the court. "You talk," he added, "as if you were 'er, well, president of the Oxford union."

And the president leaned over the dock and in a very soft and tender voice said: "We are."—London Tit-Bits.

Amplifying Theatre System Aids the Hard of Hearing

Theatres bring enjoyment to millions of people. Stage plays, motion pictures, and the talkies, as sound production pictures are generally known, each have their followers. Possibly in the past certain people have been forced to be content with motion pictures, because they could see, but not hear. These include the 15,000,000 people in the United States who are afflicted with varying degrees of deafness. That there are this number of people who are unable to hear distinctly seems an alarming statement, but it is true, nevertheless, as government statistics will show. But it is interesting to find that more than 50 per cent or 8,000,000 such people can be made to hear with the aid of acoustical amplification.

Research and development engineers of the Bell Telephone Laboratories have produced an amplification system for theatres to aid the hard of hearing. The system, as described in the Bell Laboratories Record, consists of a transmitter, which is placed on the stage for picking up sound vibrations, batteries for the transmitter, and an amplifier for reinforcing or amplifying the sound energy received from the transmitter. From the amplifying system, the energy is distributed to equipment mounted on seats set aside for the purpose, where patrons with defective hearing don special headsets and establish the connection by plugging a cord plug into the jack or opening in the equipment mounted on the seat. The telephone set cord is equipped with a potentiometer which permits the listener to vary the intensity of the sound emitted from the receiver.

This system was publicly demonstrated first at the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing held in Cleveland, where it was received with great interest and with the unqualified approval of the delegates. Today such equipment is in use in leading theatres throughout the country.

Living Characters Used on Ancient Chessboard

The Mughal emperors of India carried out some strange plans in connection with their domestic life, and a visitor to the famous fort in Agra will be able to see some of the beautiful buildings used as part of the zenana. One of the most interesting features is the open space in the center of the fort, known as the Anjuri Bagh. This space is divided into many squares, marked off by marble slabs, and covered with green grass. There are broad marble causeways between the separate blocks. It is generally believed that the Mughal emperors used these as chess-boards, and the "pieces" used in the game were young slaves, who changed their position according to the directions of the players, who would be seated in one of the marble pavilions. The game played in those days did not correspond with the modern chess, but was known as pachisi. The size of the Anjuri Bagh is about 280 feet square.

Where Pigeons Fall

The use of carrier pigeons has not been attended with any great degree of success by the members of the royal Canadian air force on forestry patrol. Birds were carried on airplanes with the hope that they would prove valuable in case of emergency. Several birds were released 500 miles from home, but a small number reached their objective point. They had encountered an electrical storm and were lost in the struggle. Those that did get through were very late. In another test one bird reached the home cote, but it had lost its message. This was a genuine call for help and the unfortunate flyer was compelled to walk many hundred miles.

Fear of Premature Burial

In ancient times the authorities took even greater precautions against premature burial than are taken today. Tobb and Vollum Hadwan, in their book "Premature Burial," say:

"To prevent such unspeakable horrors, the Egyptians kept the bodies of the dead under careful supervision by the priests until satisfied that life was extinct previous to embalming them by means of antiseptics, balsams and odoriferous gums.

"The Greeks were aware of the dangers of premature burial and cut off fingers before cremation to see whether life was extinct."

Authorship in Dispute

The saying "But for the grace of God, there go I" has been wrongly attributed to John Wesley and many other famous persons. The Dictionary of National Biography gives credit for it to John Bradford, an English Protestant martyr of the persecution under Queen Mary. Accused of preaching seditious sermons, he was kept in prison for two years before he was burned at the stake in Smithfield. There is a tradition that on seeing some criminals going to execution he exclaimed: "But for the grace of God, there goes John Bradford."

Gauging Age of Stars

The age of the earth according to ordinary time standards is enormous, but when compared with the age of some stars our earth is extraordinarily young.

Three different astronomical methods can be applied to the calculation of the age of the stars, and all three astronomical clocks show the same time, 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 years. If the age of a human being is one second, of the human race six hours, then the lower limit of the age of the earth is one year, and the age of the stars is 5,000 years.—George von Hevesy in Science.

Looking to the Future

"Your speeches were listened to with close attention," "That's what worries me," replied Senator Sorghum. "Any number of people are liable to remember those speeches and quote them when I am anxious to talk about something else."

Comes by It Naturally

"Mrs. Jones says she has blue blood in her veins." "Well, she ought to. The female side of her house have been handling washing blue for generations."

Old Timer Showed Boys Old Game of Football

Both on the stage and in the field of sport, there are those who long for the good old days and claim that the modern performance is but the shell of the real thing. This has been claimed more than once by old-time football fans and at Yale, for one, it is believed that the old-timers may be right.

It was the old, giant guard, Pudge Heffelfinger, who put doubt in the mind of Old Eli. He returned to the campus at the age of fifty and after watching the Yale varsity for awhile turned to Tad Jones, coaching at that time, and complained; "They don't charge the line properly."

"Well, why don't you go in there and show them the way you used to charge?" Jones suggested with a smile.

"I'll do it," said the fifty-year-old Pudge, earnestly. He charged the Yale varsity line the way he used to when he was a guard, back in the good old days and in a few minutes had ripped the Yale team to shreds and had Tad pleading with him to get out of the game before he ruined the team beyond repair.

The old boy went away at last, mumbling that football had become a children's game. It is a matter of record that he was never again invited to charge a Yale line.—Exchange.

Lesson for April 19

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Sharing.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches Sharing.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Curse of Selfishness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Right and Wrong Uses of Wealth.

In this lesson we are afforded a look into two worlds where we see extremes of character and conditions. In this present world we see a rich man reveling in luxury and a poor man in sore affliction, begging at the rich man's gate. In the other world we see the same men with reversed positions—the erstwhile beggar enjoying the richest blessings of heaven while the former rich man suffers the torments of hell. These lives were intended to be representative. The rich man descends from the highest pinnacle of worldly enjoyment to the depths of endless misery. The poor beggar ascends from utter wretchedness and misery to the loftiest heights of blessing.

I. Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).
1. The rich man (v. 19).
He lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment. He fed upon the richest food that could be provided. It should be borne in mind that this man is not accused of having unlawfully gained his riches. His sin was selfishly to indulge his appetites without consideration of others.

2. The beggar (vv. 20, 21).
He was laid at the rich man's gate in the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. No consideration was given him by the rich man, and even the dogs of the street were more kind to him. Lazarus means "God is a help," indicating that a godly life showed through his poverty.

II. Contrasted Deaths and Burials (v. 22).
1. The beggar.
He was found dead and his body hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of it by the world, but that he was no longer to be seen at the gate of the rich man.

2. The rich man.
He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held.

III. The Contrasted Destinies (vv. 22, 23).
1. The beggar.
He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death. They go immediately to be with the Lord. Destinies are determined in this life.

2. The rich man.
Though he had an elaborate burial, he lifted up his eyes in hell "being in torments." The positions of these men are now reversed—the poor man is in the company of "just men made perfect," and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).
1. The cry for mercy (v. 24).
Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He is keenly conscious, and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him.

2. Abraham's reply (v. 25).
This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said: "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell. The one supreme thing to remember will be the cause which led to the awful destiny. Then, too, it will be remembered that the doom is just.

3. The fixedness of life beyond the grave (v. 26).
Human destiny is fixed by the choices made during the earthly life. When one passes out of this life he enters into a state and condition which is unchangeable.

4. God's Word the all-sufficient light (vv. 27-31).
Dives requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient—that those who reject Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead. The greatest miracles will not affect the hearts of men who reject the Bible. Lost men will learn too late the value of the soul.

Search the Bible
If the people who are perpetually running about to meetings for crumbs of help and comfort, would only stay at home and search their Bibles, there would be more happiness in the church, and more blessing in the world.—F. B. Meyer.

Most Sacred Channels
I begin to suspect that the common transactions of life are the most sacred channels for the spread of the heavenly leaves.—G. MacDonald.

Intricacies of Kinship
Part of Southern Life

Perhaps one of the most characteristic modes of behavior in the South is the business of kinship, in which particular the southerner surpasses even the New Englander, Howard Mumford Jones writes, in Scribner's Magazine. It sometimes seems to me that everybody in Virginia or South Carolina or Georgia is related to everybody else.

If a marriage takes place, the fact is conversationally recorded; then comment turns at once to the question of the family ramifications involved. If a political appointment is announced, it soon appears that the appointee is cousin to somebody else.

The system is so intricate that the tactful northerner, after one or two unhappy blunders, learns to preface any comment on a public character, literary, political, or what not, with the polite hope that the subject's relatives will not misunderstand his remarks.

In a day when the family is supposed to be breaking up, the business of "claiming kin" in the South probably is less patent than it used to be; yet it is one of the most powerful forces in southern life, and one the implications of which, I believe, few southerners realize.

Had Strong Objection to Oversupply of Rain

One summer during a record-breaking drought in Georgia the colored brethren and sisters congregated for the purpose of praying up a rain.

The parson was on his knees reasoning with the Almighty in the following words:

"Good Lawd, dis kentry am dried up! She sho' am parched! De crops am done cooked en de watah supply am runnin' low! Yo' people am sufferin' scandalus. Sen' a rain, good Lawd! Sen' a rain! Not none o' dem drizzle-drazzle rains dat don't do no good noh get nowah! Sen' a big rain; a gully-washoh; a trash-lifteh."

"Hol' on dah, pahson!" shouted an old lady in the back of the church, rising excitedly from her knees. "Hol' on whah yo' is at! Don't yo' go prayin' foh no trash-lifteh rain! I done buried mah son-in-law jist yistiddy!"
—Collier's Weekly.

Egyptian Curse Believed

Ignoring arguments against the curse of the pharaohs, there are few in Ireland who do not retain their belief that the tomb of the kings of Egypt must remain untouched. In Ireland are heard many tales regarding the touching of graves of even the poorest of the people. Should a body be buried in a wrong grave in the west of Ireland none of the relatives would sanction any change. A woman visiting Ireland from the United States was shocked at the condition of the family burial place, and had great difficulty in gaining permission to have the cemetery drained and improved. On the west coast the raising of a body after burial is supposed to bring a great storm.—Detroit Free Press.

Not to Be Outdone

"You don't seem to have any notorious spots here?" said the exacting tourist to the guide at the famous beauty spot.

"You know, in the last village we stopped at they showed us a place where a man had lain in wait for his rival in love, and had attacked him with a fiendish gusto."

The guide had never heard of this terrible crime, but his professional pride was roused.

"That is quite true, sir," he answered; "but you are not aware, perhaps, that the villain afterwards made his escape to this village, and you are standing on the very spot where he threw away that fiendish gusto!"
—Weekly Scotsman.

Gave Bride a Shock

A clergyman recently gave a young woman of his acquaintance a very bad quarter of an hour. On her wedding day he sent her a telegram which, as received, ran: "John 4:18."

On looking up the text the girl was horrified to read: "For thou hast had five husbands; and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband."

After they had restored the young woman to consciousness, inquiry was made at the telegraph office, when it was found that the operator had omitted the letter or numeral indicating the first Epistle. John I 4:18 reads: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear."
—London Tit-Bits.

Magnificent Elm

Although New England is the leading habitat of the elm, the record specimen is to be found at Marietta, Ohio. It is reputed to be about 500 years old. It has a girth at the waist of the trunk of twenty-seven feet two inches, and at eighteen inches from the ground is thirty-two feet. Originally it had a spread of 165 feet, but recently this has had to be cut back fifteen feet. At about eight feet above ground it divides into five great branches, each as large as an ordinary full-grown elm.

Congested Chicago

Chicago is the most congested city in America. Of 40 leading cities in the United States, the average population is 5.92 persons per acre. This compares with 11.63 people to the acre in Chicago, according to recent figures.

14 FEEDS - IN EVERY THIMBLEFUL!

14 FEEDS... all in one tiny thimbleful. 14 good feeds which are there in just the right proportion. There's the story of a real chick starting feed... Purina Startena Chow. A real story because one thimbleful of feed is all one chick can put into its little crop in one day.

Out of this tiny thimbleful a chick must get so much. That's why the 14 different feeds are there. Cod-liver oil... dried buttermilk... alfalfa flour... granulated meat... wheat germ meal... linseed meal... these and eight other feeds are in every thimbleful of Purina Startena Chow... each one with a real job to do. Mixed over and over... 960 times... every thimbleful alike.

The 1930 national feed survey of 1,834,513 chicks tells you the kind of a job these thimblefuls do. At six weeks of age, 92 out of every 100 Purina-fed chicks are alive and growing. And they weigh an average of one-fourth of a pound more than other chicks. There's the story for you! The proof that the 14 feeds in Purina Startena Chow (mash or all-mash) actually give a chick the many, many things it must get from a thimbleful of feed. Purina Startena Chow is here... ready for you to feed. Call or drop in on us in your first spare moment.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Fowler and three children, Coyle, Muriel and John, of Rimersburg, Pa., and Dewitt Musgrave, of Franklin, Pa., visited Mr. Fowler's sister, Mrs. Mary Mohny and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mohny over the week-end.

Last week The Record published two special notices of farm help wanted, and both brought numerous inquiries. This is quite a contrast to only a few years ago when farm work jobs went begging. The chances seem to be that now a little advertising will bring desired help.

A loud speaker combination, likely representing radio and phonograph features, gave a demonstration on Baltimore St., Thursday afternoon, that attracted much attention. It produced and amplified band music, orchestra, pipe organ and vocal selections, with equal force and clarity. The instrument is for use at County Fairs, parades, and at all out-door occasions where band music is used. The volume of sound produced fairly represented that of the average band of music.
