35 CENT WHEAT IN KANSAS A Serious Situation Without a Remedy in Sight.

Continued immense production of wheat, due partly to no reduction in acreage, but more especially to the acreage, but more especially to the very favorable growing season, prob-ably means a 35c price in the great western wheat growing states. Kans-as alone will have a 200,000,000 bush-el crop, and the after results of the situation can not be determined now. Many farmers are in debt for loans and machinery in 1930, without count-ing mortgages on the crop for 1931, and financial failures by wholesale are sure, not only of farmers, but of those who loaned them money. Overproduction in some states, and those who loaned them money. Overproduction in some states, and the drought in the northwest, com-bines to make a situation very serious indeed, with the likelihood that a special session of Congress may be forced; but just what Congress could do in the matter that would bring re-lief satisfactory to all, is difficult to understand. understand.

understand. The advice of the Agricultural De-partment and the Farm Board, to grow less wheat, was disregarded; and in addition, other great wheat growing countreis in the world are reporting bunmper crops, which means the likelihood of little or no current downed export demand.

export demand. The various agencies of the gov-ernment are trying to find some work-able relief plan, which is complicated by the fact that the National Farm Board has already on hand many mil-lions of bushels of wheat that it does not have a market for, and selling it now would merely have the affect of further reducing the present low price. 32,000 1,000 2,000 9,000 500

The parade was deliberate in its move-72 colored, or 25 in each 100,000 of the total population, white and color-

What this signifies may be gather-ed by a comparison of these figures with the deaths from other causes. For instance, there was a serious flare up of typhoid in 1930, causing 104 deaths—6.4 in each 100,000 of the total population; whooping cough was responsible for 73 deaths, 4.5 in each 100,000 of the population; diseases of the arteries caused 419 deaths—25.6 the arteries caused 419 deaths—25.0 to each 100,000 of the population; dia-betes caused 349 deaths—21.3 to each 100,000 of the population. Compar-ing the 406 deaths from motor vehicle accidents, with the 1618 due to tuber-culosis, or 98.6 to each 100,000 of the population it will be seen that auto population, it will be seen that autoerror, that Taneytown was named af-ter Chief Justice Taney, who was born in 1777 in Calvert County. The town was in existence long before that, but

In the coun-ties there was an increase of 29 per-cent over the number recorded in 1929. The total number of deaths each year from motor vehicle accidents in the State, for the last five years, has been as follows: in 1926, 178 in Balti-more City, and 134 in the counties; in 1927, 168 in Baltimore City and 163 in the counties; in 1928, 181 in Balti-more City and 161 in the counties; in 1929, 192 in Baltimore City and 191 in the counties; in 1930, 160 in Baltimore City and 246 in the counties. The counties in which the greatest increas-es have occurred were Allegany,Fred-erick, Baltimore and Harford. Of the 406 deaths last year, 15 were among then after 8 o'clock-there was no then after 8 o'clock—there was no program at the opening, except that the black and yellow ribbon across the road was cut by Miss Janet Burke, representing "Miss Maryland," and by Miss Trostle representing "Miss Penn-sylvania" after which the Littlestown band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the boys band of Lit-Banner" and the boys band of Lit-tlestown played "America" and the Taneytown band followed with "Ma-ryland, My Maryland". #### HOW TO JUDGE A HOUSE.

"M. W. Winder, executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Chicago, Illinois, believes that the growing intimacy between the city standards of comfort and convenience in living conditions on the farm. "For this reason," he said, 'a new book on home buying just issued by the National Committee on Wood Utilization of the Department of Commerce will be welcomed by the farm population of America."

Explaining that the new publication, which is entitled "How to Judge a House," is intended to assist the prospective buyers of homes in appraising the good and bad points of the house already built so that the purchase may be made wisely and economically, Mr. Winder declared:

"Thousands of farms change hands every year, and this book is bound to be of the utmost value in judging farm dwellings for good construction, design, plan and equipment. The keynote is comfort without extravagance. It tells how to judge the workmanship and materials upon which the security of the buyer's investment largely depends."

The new book is written in a light, readable style. It takes the prospective home buyer on a tour of inspection throughout the house, and important structural details are examined from basement to attic. Construction is given a major share of attention because it is upon this feature, the book points out, that design, plan and equipment are dependent for their success.

Containing 84 pages and fully illustrated, "How to Judge a House" has a special application to farm dwellings, since Mr. Winder, who is fully familiar with rural needs, assisted in its preparation. N. Max Dunning, of Chicago, Illinois, fellow of the American Institute of Architects, is chairman of the special sub-committee under whose guidance the book was written. Nelson S. Perkins, construction engineer of the National Committee on Wood Utilization, is the author.

The book may be obtained in single copies or quantity lots from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, or from the District Offices of the Department of Commerce, in leading cities. It sells for the nominal sum of 10 cents a single copy, $7.00 a hundred, of $50.00 a thousand.

Timid Wife's Adventure

Just Before the Dawn

One of those wives who hate the newspaper business because her journalist husband gets home at 3 o'clock in the morning, was recently given good reason to kick.

She was scared out of her home in Drexel Park.

Of a timid nature, she became thoroughly alarmed early one morning when she suddenly awakened, heard a noise in the house, called to her husband and got no response.

Deciding the long-feared burglar had arrived at last, she clutched her two-year-old son under her arm and fled, clad only in her nightie, across the roof into the open bedroom window of her neighbor's twin house.

She explained the situation to her neighbors, When they had calmed her down a bit she decided to be real brave and call her home on the telephone.

A strange, gruff voice answered and she was more certain than ever that a burglar was in her home. Then she learned she had got a wrong number and tried again.

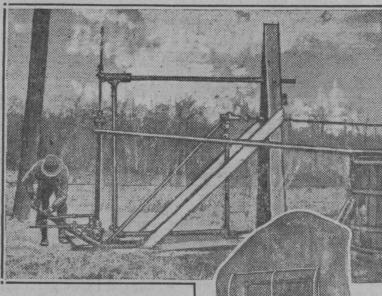

Her husband answered this time. Imagine his surprise to hear the voice of his wife whom he had every reason to believe was safely tucked away upstairs.

"This is Edith," she said. "Is that you, Carl?"

"Yes, and where the heck are you, and why?" Carl wanted to know. Then came the dawn .-- Philadelphia Record.

PIONEER OIL WELL TO BE PRESERVED AS MEMORIAL

THE Drake well, at Titusville, Penna., the first producing oil well in the United States, is to be preserved for posterity.

A movement to finance the establishment of a memorial reservation around the well, which was drilled 72 years ago by Edwin L. Drake, was recently started by Pennsylvania oil men.

Situated close to the famous Oil Creek, the Drake well site is eroded every spring by flood water. The reclamation project will provide for protection of the site against

Cows on Pasture Need Grain for Best Results.

Even though the milking herd is on excellent pasture it is necessary to feed grain if the best results are to be obtained, states C. L. Blackman, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State university.

Sometimes, he says, the amount of grain need not be as large as when the cows are in the barn, but very often the grain allowance should be the same. The most practical method of providing a grain ration for dairy cattle is to determine the kind of ration necessary and supply this to the entire milking herd.

If a certain cow has a tendency to become fat and decrease in milk production too early, he points out, it is well to add a little extra high protein feed to her ration. This tends to stimulate milk production rather than fat accumulation.

If another cow, milking heavily, has a tendency to get thin, it is well to add extra corn and oats or other high carbohydrate feeds to her ration. It is not practical to make a separate grain mixture for each cow in the herd. When alfalfa, sweet clover, soybean hay, or pasture is fed with or without silage, Blackman believes good results may be obtained by feeding a grain mixture consisting of 300 pounds of corn or corn-and-cob meal or hominy or barley, 200 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds wheat bran, 50 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 50 pounds of linseed oil meal or soybean meal. Another good ration contains 200 pounds of corn or corn-and-cob meal or hominy or barley, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of wheat bran, 50 pounds of gluten feed, and 50 pounds of cottonseed meal or oil meal.

Find Cod Liver Oil Not

Needed in Calf Ration Do calves actually live without vitamin D?

To answer this question, Bus Bohstedt, E. B. Hart, and I. W. Rupel, of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, have been conducting experiments with growing calves to which they fed a ration markedly deficient in vitamin D.

Experimental results published two years ago tended to show that cod liver oil when added to a normal calf ration containing clover or alfalfa hay, adds no value to the ration.

The results now indicate that vitamin D is needed in the normal growth of calves. The ration used in this trial, which is presumably free from vitamin D, consisted of yellow corn. corn gluten meal, linseed meal, wheat middlings, calcium flour or calcium carbonate, and salt, with ground wood shavings for roughage.

Mills Once Centers of

Community Social Life "Ozark milling days" are recalled in an article in the Arcadian Magazine:

"Two or three generations ago, the mill was a vigorous community center, the popular meeting place for all classes and conditions of men. It was no uncommon thing to ride 50 miles to mill and camp two or three days while waiting a turn. The burrs ground slowly and quite often the cutput did not exceed two or three bushels an hour. This gave opportunity for amusement and social contacts. It was a great place to play marbles, pitch horseshoes, to play rustic pranks, swap news, stories and jacknives. Sometimes there were fights, for hill blood is fighting blood, but, for the most part, the men fought fair.

"At midnight on Saturday night the watergate was closed and not opened until the following Monday morning. The closed gate formed an excellent fish trap and often the catch was good. It was the custom at one mill to auction off the fish that might be caught over the Sabbath to the highest bidder. The auction was held on Saturday afternoon before the gate was closed and if no fish happened to get in, the successful bidder paid just the same. "Sometimes the mill floor was used for the dance when the day's work was done. Or if no fiddlers were present, the young folks stepped to the tune of 'Buffalo Girls' or 'Old Dan Tucker,' singing as they danced. Many an old mill was the scene of this beautiful custom that has today lost out in competition with the modern dance."-Detroit News

Odd Thanksgiving Held in Old City of Kyritz

Kyritz, ancient city in the northwest part of Brandenburg province, has a Thanksgiving celebration which is different.

Every year on the last Monday in February each citizen who attends the traditional morning church services receives a loaf of bread in memory of the defense of the city against destruction by the duke of Mecklenburg and the repulse of Mecklenburg's riders.

The feud between Mecklenburg, and the nobility of Prignitz, of which Kyritz is the capital, began in 1381. lecklenburg's chief lieutenant, Von Bassewitz, made two unsuccessful attempts to capture the city. He was killed in the last one when he tried to enter the city by tunneling under the walls to the church, whence he planned to attack.

His calculations miscarried, however, and the tunnel ended in the market place, where the burghers promptly slew him and all his men.

"The Glory That Was Rome" On the heights above Monte Carlo stands, as it has already stood for centuries, La Turbie, the crumbling ruin of one of Rome's greatest and finest towers. It has stood by the wayside for more than 20 centuries, and seen the Greeks, the Romans, the Alpine tribes, the Goths and the Moors fight beneath it. So massive is it that Marshal Berwick, son of James II of Enggland, failed to destroy it with his gunpowder. Tales tell us it was a most glittering sight in the days of Augustine-built of polished granite and Luna marble, dominating the sea like a Roman guard far from Rome. It had its doric colonnade, its fluted tower, also doric and on the sides of La Turbie were engraved the names of the tribes it had seen fall before Rome's power.

The word "influenza" came into vogue in English-speaking countries In 1890. The disease had been epidemic in St. Petersburg in 1889, and it spread over Europe and to England and the United States. In the following spring it was severe in India and Australia. In most of these countries it was known as "l'influenza," or "influenza," though in Paris "la grippe," a term used in the middle of the last century, was revived. The word "influenza" was given in Italy toward the middle of the Eighteenth century to an epidemic of febrile catarrh. It was in use in England as early as 1762. In that year Mrs. Montague, the "blue stocking," wrote: "Mr. Montague . . . returned to London quite well, though he has been much pulled down by the fashionable cold called l'influenza." A general epidemic of influenza took place toward the close of the World war, passing over western countries in three waves, the first appearing very suddenly in May and June, 1918, the second in September and October. declining in December and the third in March, 1919. Its origin was attributed by France to Spain, whence came its most frequently used designation of "Spanish influenza." Spain, in turn, attributed the outbreak to France, and this continent thought it started in eastern Europe. Virtually all the western nations were heavy sufferers. It was most virulent in the second wave .- Montreal Family Her-

AUTOGIRO WILL REPLACE AIRPLANE, SAYS EXPERT

Aviation Writer Declares Safety Features Are Its Most Important Advantage.

New York .- The airplane of the future will be an autogiro.

Such is the prophecy of Herbert Brucker, authority on aviation and writer of articles on the subject. In the Review of Reviews he describes the new windmill airplane which can rise steeply and land vertically.

"For warfare, for carrying mail and passengers at high speeds, the airplane will remain-perhaps," writes Mr. Brucker. "But when in future years the common man and his wife get in-to the air, they will do so in an autogiro.

The chief feature of the autogiro is its safety. So long as it is in the air, its spinning wings automatically keep flying. They are not connected with the motor, being driven by air currents.

"They are long and thin, those wings. Also they are flexible. When the machine is on the ground you can reach up, shake one, and watch it wiggle. More than ever you wonder how the autogiro can be safe with the lack of ridigity in its main supporting surfaces. The answer is that strength against upward thrusts is unnecessary. In the air only centrifugal force keeps the rotor blades from folding up on their hinges, like an umbrella turned inside out."

"You clamber into the front cockpit. In your own person you make that stupendous climb you have just witnessed from the ground. Slowly you make a turn which you know, in an airplane, could be approached only by banking so tightly that centrifugal force would press you heavily down into your seat while the blood rushed down out of your head. But now you circle about in leisured comfort. You drone upward in a wide circle.

"Shortly the climb ceases. You are 3,000 feet above ground. The vibration and roar of the powerful motor stop. But, instead of the swift, rushing airplane glide which you still expect, in spite of what you have seen, the 'giro hangs in the air. A few feet above your head the rotor spins reassuringly. You look over the side and see, far below, the white circle marking the field from which you started. The tension of rapid motion is gone. Nowhere is there any strain, or anything else at which to take alarm. For the first time you have the feeling of flying without effort, without strain. Then you look over again, and find the houses, the trees, and field much closer-for in all this stillness you are dropping steadily. And, so, finally you go into a landing, and with a gentle bump touch the ground."

Had Farmed for Century But Keeps Up to Date

Poplar Bluff, Mo .- The farmer who grows only one or two crops is out of luck-take it from Thomas Kemp, more familiarly known in these parts. as Uncle Tommy

In June, 1929, two calves were started on this ration and two on the ration plus cod liver oil. Those receiving the cod liver oil grew to splendid condition and showed no indication of rickets.

The two receiving the ration only, after six or seven months of feeding, showed marked disturbances. The calcium content of the blood was greatly reduced. Symptoms of rickets were apparent and the investigations concluded that calves need vitamin D, but it is their opinion that the normal farm ration fed young calves probably carries a sufficient amount of vitamin D.

Dairy Notes

*****

Some farmers consider the conveniences of silage its greatest advantage. . . .

Grain feeding is necessary when cows are on pasture if milk yield is large. * * *

Young calves usually are made sick by over-feeding or feeding from utensils that are unsanitary. Since the calves nurse the cows it is quite likely that they getting too much milk.

Where silage fills a definite and important place in the feeding system, as in feeding dairy cattle, or where a succulent feed is needed to supplement pasture in the summer, the use of the silo may be advisable or necessary. . . .

When one to two weeks old the calf should be taught to eat grain and hay and should have free access to salt. Experiments have shown that corn and grain are suitable and economical supplements to skimmilk.

* * *

Silage is used as a substitute for pasturage in winter and as a supplement to short pastures in summer. . . .

Clean dry quarters, clean pails, skimmilk and grain in medium amount, fresh water, and a yard for exercise. make up the requirements for raising calves successfully.

Origin of "Fore" Obscure

The origin of "Fore!" is veiled in antiquity, says an article in the New York Times. No satisfactory explanation can be found as to the time and method of its entrance as an accepted expression in "the Royal and Ancient Game of Goff," which received its first notice as a trouble maker in the Scotland of 1457. "Fore!" is defined in Jamison's Scottish dictionary, published in 1820, as "a cry of golfers to persons standing or moving in the way of the ball." Probably, according to present-day authorities, the word began as "Before!" and, with proper Scottish regard for economy, was shortened to its present form.

"Milk Snakes" Myth

The United States biological survey has stated with regard to the silly belief that snakes can suck milk from a cow: "Anyone who has ever milked a cow knows that the suction required to obtain a flow of milk is much greater than could be exerted by any snake. Furthermore, a snake has two rows of sharp recurved teeth in the upper jaw. If the mouth of the milk snake were closed to permit suction, the teeth would sink into the teat and the snake would find itself fully occupied in efforts to avoid injury by the cow."---Detroit News.

Films Helped Police in Round-Up of Criminals

Since the films are still from time to time blamed for demoralizing the youth and thereby encouraging crime, It seems only fair that wide publicity have proved of important assistance to the police. Reuter reports that a Berlin produccer wishing to lend an air of verisimilitude to a scene of low life, hired a number of citizens of the Berlin underworld to "walk on" police got to hear of this, and also decided to call round at the studio and walk on, with the result that they presently walked off with several "wanted" men whom they found among the crowd of undeniably sinister su-pers. This seems a great tribute to the "realism" of the production; if the crooks were good enough for the police to arrest on sight they may truly have been said to carry conviction in their faces.-Manchester (England) Guardian.

Cows Have Passports

The boundary line along the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier, in effect since the World war, has been so arbitrarily drawn that frequently it separates a farming community from the fields where the farmers pasture their cattle. So each cow has to have a passport.

"The numbers on these bovine passports must correspond with the numbers burned on the animal's hoofs." writes E. Alexander Powell.

"It is the duty of the frontier guards to see that a cow is turned back if its papers are not in order. Should a calf be born on the Rumanian side of the line its Hungarian owner could obtain possession of it, I assume, only by an appeal to the League of Nations !"

Tommy's Apple

When Tommy placed a rosy apple by the garden gate, and then secreted himself behind a hedge, he thought he had done so unobserved. But he was mistaken. An old gentleman approached him, and began to lecture. "My boy," he said, "do you know that you are very wrong in placing that apple by the gate? Some poor boy might be tempted to purloin it." "Well," said Thomas, "that's just what I want him to do." "Why?" inquired old Curious. "Why?" repeated Thomas. "Because I've hollowed out the inside and filled it with mustard."

Ambition

There is a vast difference between an ambition and a wish. A wish is usually the dream of an idler, while ambition is based upon intense desire, backed by untiring effort and tempered by patience to the disappointments encountered.-Grit.

Origin of Christmas Tree

The Scandinavians of North Europe worshiped trees in their pre-Christian days, the special deity of the Northmen sea-savages being called Ydrasil, or The Tree of Life.

Their Tree of Life was adopted by Christian England as an emblem of the Blessed Savior, and has been for centuries the center of the gift-bestowing at the blessed season as a Christmas tree. In olden times it was plac-d on the rood screens, in the minstrel's gallery, or in the chancels of the churches.

And Uncle Tommy should know whereof he speaks; he has been farming something more than a century. With the advent of warm spring weather Uncle Tommy, who says he is 118, set about getting his small plot of land five miles north of here in shape.

Despite his age, Uncle Tommy is a discipline of the school of modern agriculture. He reads the newspapers and more popular farm journals, keeps posted on the latest methods of farming and lends an attentive ear to any suggestion or innovation which might keep his tactics up to date. Kemp came to this section over half a century ago and is now living with his daughter and son-in-law,

Smocks Are Forbidden to Sophomores at Penn

Philadelphia, Pa.-The sophomores of the University of Pennsylvania School of Architecture will not wear the traditional smocks while in the drawing rooms this year.

This ancient and honorable right was lost when the junior class defeated the second year men in the annual interclass smock battle.

One sophomore wears a smock and 50 members of his class seek to protect him from an equal number of juniors. If the smock is still whole after 10 minutes, the sophomores win --if not they can't wear their smocks until they become juniors.

Noted Scholarship Fund

The Harriet Hurd Scheide scholarship was founded in 1928 at Princeton university by an anonymous donor with a gift to amount to $50,000 to establish scholarships of the value of the annual undergraduate fee, plus $100, to be known as the Harriet Hurd Scheide scholarships. In the award of these scholarships, preference is given to candidates who are sons of P. esbyterian missionaries, or Presbyterian educators, or, failing such candidates, to those who are sons of ministers, missionaries or educators of a church holding the Presbyterian system, who without the assistance thus provided would, in the opinion of the university authorities, be unable to obtain an education at Princeton university. Award is made in accordance with the general principles of the Rhodes scholarship plan.

Wassailing Apple Trees

The ancient custom of "wassailing the apple trees," which dates back 300 years, was recently observed at Carhampton, near Minehead, Somerset, England. Two men carried a bucket of cider into the orchard, set it down under the largest tree and hung pieces of toast soaked in cider to the branches for the robins and good spirits. The wassail incantation was then chanted, and when it ended the villagers began to shout and cheer, while guns were fired through the branches of the tree. This custom is supposed to preserve the apple crop by driving off tree "hoggards" and other bad spirits.

"Railroad" and "Railway"

The reason that one transportation company is called a railroad and another a railway is simply that railroad and railway are corporate names. Often when a railroad goes bankrupt it must reorganize under a different name. For example, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad went into the hands of receivers and when it emerged it was the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railway, the adding of the words "Pacific railway" making a new corporate name. Likewise the changing from railroad to railway changes the name of the porporation.

China's Right to Title

of "Mother of Gardens" The late Ernest H. Wilson, who was undoubtedly the world's foremost authority on plant introductions from China and keeper of the Arnold arboretum of Harvard university, re- quency, but also infinitely smaller marks that "China is, indeed, the fother of Gardens, for of the countries to which our gardens are the most deeply indebted she holds the foremost place." There is hardly a garden in this country or Europe that is not indebted to China for the plants that embellish it. The forsythia, the Yulan magnolias, the peonies, the parents of our modern roses, be they hybrid tea, rambler or palyantha; many of the azaleas and primroses, peaches, oranges, lemons and grapefruit have been brought to us from China. The Portuguese reached China in 1516 and took back with them to their settlements in India the sweet orange, which was later introduced into Portugal. Mr. Wilson says that, so far as he has been able to discover, this was the first plant taken to Europe. From that time to the present era there has been a constant flow of new plant introductions from the East to Europe and America.-New York Herald Tribune.

Only Coating of Salt

on Utah's "Salt Palace" The Salt Lake Real Estate board says: "The Salt palace was built as a dance hall in a local pleasure resort where were formerly a bicycle race track and various other entertainment attractions. The Salt palace was not constructed of solid salt, as many suppose, but rather was a coat over frame construction, which, however, had all the appearance of a real salt structure. Salt is extracted from the brine in Great Salt lake by pumping water into evaporating ponds, where the salt is finally deposited on whatever happens to be on the ground. It was discovered that when the brine, which is approximately 20 per cent in the lake, had evaporated sufficiently so that the solution was about 40 per cent in strength, articles dipped into the brine would attract the crystals and they would form on any surface, particularly wood. This was how the lumber was coated for the Salt palace. It was taken to these ponds, one side was allowed to become covered with these crystals, and then later salt water was poured over to weld the joints. At first the building was very bright, the crystals dazzling in the sunlight. However they were not immune to rain, and after several seasons they were no longer the same bright color that they were originally. The origin of the fire which destroyed it was never definitely determined. However, like many resorts in smaller cities, it had too much competition, and was therefore Winters-S. S., 7:00; Divine Wor- not sufficiently profitable to warrant rebuilding."

their ugliest possible aspect that we no longer become excited or indignant. We can no longer be shocked at anything, because we have become used to everything. Familiarity breeds indifference at least as often as it does contempt.

We can still, some of us, be repelled by vulgarity and bad taste; and we can most of us be bored. We were profoundly bored last season by many plays that struggled to be daring, and succeeded only in being dull. As for psychopathic studies produced under the guise of fiction, they may be well done and consequently interesting, or they may be merely tedious; but they can't rely on "frankness" and "daring" any longer. 100

Radio Peculiarities Radio transmission reproduces not only the pitch and tone, but also the characteristic timbre of each musical instrument, because each sound wave entering a microphone has not only the general characteristic of frewaves within the general frequency wave. These incidental-or supplemental-waves within the tonal frequency wave are caused by the peculiar or characteristic timbre of the instrument producing the sound. For example, the tonal frequencies of both the violin and the saxophone, playing the same note, "A," will be identical, but the incidental "overtone" waves within the frequencies will be different and will also be transmitted, identifying the characteristic "form" or "timbre" of the instrument itself.

American Cliff Dwellers

Cliff dwellers, although of broader application, means in America that prehistoric race that built the houses and villages whose ruins are found in the southwestern part of the United States and especially in the valley of the Rio San Juan and its tributaries. This river rises in the extreme southwestern corner of Colorado, and flows westward along the borders of adjoining states to a junction with the Rio Colorado. As to the origin of these vanished cliff dwellers nothing is known, but it is evident that centuries ago these valleys were occupied by a considerable, sedentary population, who had fixed homes and cultivated fields for crops of corn. beans, gourds and probably other things, by means of extensive systems of irrgation. They made pottery, cloth, baskets, etc., and stone implements, but nothing metallic.

California's Inland Sea

The Salton sea is a lake in the Colorado desert, in southeastern Callfornia. Under ordinary conditions it is a salt marsh covered in places by shallow lakes about 30 miles long, 12 miles wide and 280 feet below sea level. At times of freshets, the lakes expand into a water body covering approximately 50,000 acres. Water from the irrigating ditches of the Imperial valley keeps the level of the lake fairly constant and unless this is diverted it will continue to maintain its previous area despite heavy losses from evaporation. Terraces slightly above sea level on the sides of the basin indicate that there was formerly present a lake called "Lake Cahuilla," which was 12 miles long and 30 miles wide.

Horseshoe Superstitions

There are varying views on the origin of the superstition concerning the horseshoe. Some think it is lucky because it has seven nail holes in it. Another idea is that the horseshoe is lucky because witches are afraid of it. So if a horseshoe is placed outside your door, no witch will dare to enter. It is possible that one object of hanging up horseshoes in the old days was a desire to appear wealthy in the eyes of passers-by, for only a comparatively rich man possessed a horse, shod with iron. By the way, the luckiest horseshoe is supposed to be the first one shed by a mare, and you must hang this with the opening at the top in order that the luck may not drop out!

Ceylon Tomato Salad .--- Peel three solid tomatoes, cut them into halves and press out the seeds. Chop the tomatoes and put into a bowl, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice, a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of onion juice and the same of green pepper, with half a teaspoonful of paprika. Mix and turn into the dish in which it is to be served. Serve with four tablespoonfuls of coconut cream. Coconut Cream .-- Prepare coconut cream by grating a good-sized nut and pouring boiling water over it. Wash and stir until all the flavor has been washed from the fiber, then press into a sieve and drain, turn into a cheese cloth to strain. Let the milk thus obtained stand over night. The cream will form on the surface. Remove this and use for the above dish. It is well to remember that a nut after draining out the milk, if placed in the oven or on a hot plate to become very hot, will come out of the shell with little difficulty

A Saving Woman

¬O THE druggist, what happened one motionless July evening, on one of those streets of lower

New York that after dark, whether merited or not, take on a sinister gloom, while by no means routine was nonetheless not without frequent precedent in the many years of his shopkeeping.

He knew the ear-marks so well. The strangely lit eyes, the smeared pallor, the elaborate manner of asking for rat poison. In the case of the girl with the strawberry-colored hair and the pitiful lower lip with a tiny mole that looked like a court plaster beauty spot, it was much the same as usual, except that she was so young. Not over sixteen, if the druggist was any judge, and he flattered himself that he was.

The thing to do in these cases was not to interfere; to interfere was to invite desperate and frightened recoil. There was a little shelf in the store for just such emergency. Neat little phials of barley water duly labeled "poison." In this wise, chances were the subject would have time to recover from the mental abberration and in all probability not repeat the attempt at self-destruction.

That had been the druggist's experience where he had been in a position to follow up the case, but usually they just drifted out of sight after the fiasco he thrust on them, and it was left to his intuition, which he trusted, to gauge the results.

On one or two occasions the wouldbe self-annihilators had returned to thank him for the deception. But more usually, at least according to the druggist's conviction, they just drifted sheepishly out of sight.

In any event, it behooved him to regard the matter that way. It assuaged his unease of mind.

The sixteen-year-old girl with the strawberry hair had not returned, but in the odd-times his mind flashed back to her after the event, the druggist had leaned upon his conviction that failure to succeed that once had jerked her to her senses.

The druggist's life was too involved in the multitudinous affairs of his little business to let these matters obsess him. The exacting hours of his shop weighed heavily. It was at the period when his son was attending Pharmaceutical college and the assistant he had was all too inadequate.

The druggist had been fourteen years in his small old-fashioned shop which the antiquated air of a pharmacy still pervaded instead of the modern electrified atmosphere of the newer type of drug store. He took pride in that, and further prided himself in in deference to the conservatism of age. Some day, naturally, the boy would blossom out into a new and wider enterprise. It was right that he should. He had the ability, the opportunity, the ambition. But while the father lived, there he remained in the shop, right-hand to the business, right-hand to the parent.

And of course, along about the time the older man began to feel upon himself the Shadow, there began to move across his mind torments, fears, heartaches, even terror for the future of this boy. There was something so naive and trusting and simple about this son. His one weakness in the affairs of business was his tendency to take every one at his word.

Such a youth would fall easily and readily into the hands of any woman who desired him sufficiently, and at twenty-nine there was dignity to this fellow, fine clarity of eye and brow and a naive quality that gave him added attraction.

With the old gentleman standing by to add his pinch of cynicism whenever necessary, all that was well and good. The boy had had his threats of pitfalls and come out unscathed. It was the aftermath the father dreaded. What about after he had passed on?

It therefore became almost a secret obsession with him. What about this boy's future? A woman could break or make him. What untold relief to see this boy settled in life before . . .

Intuitive always, the old man watched for signs. The reticence of secret thoughts-there was none of that. The absorption in some one of the many charming young women who come into the shop-not a suggestion of personal interest with anyone. The telephone's unexplained demands that might suggest a hidden sweetheartthere were no clews there to indicate a preparation for the inevitable.

Countless times he attempted to broach the subject but the boy would have none of it. Not interested in women! Why must father get on the morbid subject of death-nothing but gout the matter with him! Let the future take care of itself.

The future did take care of itself. One spring evening the son of the old druggist entered the sick room with a look on his face that caused the heart of the old man to leap in terror and hope.

This boy was in love!

He was, and the matter of introducing the girl to a father who depended so strongly upon intuition was a time of untold nervousness to the boy.

"If you don't like her, Father, it's terrible to have to tell you, but if you don't like her I'm going to marry her anyway."

It required only one meeting to set the fluttering old heart of the fluttering old man at rest. She was right! She was the assured future of his boy. She was everything, in her strawberryhaired prettiness, with the mouth so prettily shadowed by a mole, her eyes so prettily shadowed by good common sense, that this father could wish for his son.

One felt so at home with her at the very first meeting. It was as if one had known her before. . . .

Long List of "Ologies"

GIANT BEARS NOW SAFE FROM RIFLE

Measures Are Taken to Protect Alaskan Animals.

Washington. - The monarchs of North American wild life and largest carnivorous animals in the world are losing some of the illusions of dangerous ferocity built up around them by sportsmen, but gaining a new grip on existence, says a bulletin of the American Game association in announcing recent measures to save from, extinction the giant Alaskan brown bears.

One of the outstanding moves has been the extension of the formerly inland Katmai National monument to the coastline of Shelikof strait. It was found that the brown bears-often weighing more than 1,200 poundslike nothing better than to amble with their families down to seashore resorts for the summer, where they have been an easy prey to an increasing number of sportsmen.

Other recent regulations, announced by the United States bureau of biological survey, increase from five to seven the number of Alaskan areas in which brown and grizzly bears are protected by a hunting season limited to the period from September 1 to June 20.

Lately conservationists have urged protection of the Kodiak bear, famous cousin of the brown variety, through creation of a preserve on Kodiak island, lying directly across Shelikof strait from the Katmai National monument reservation.

It is now held that the reputed dangerousness of the huge bears is mostly fable, and that in the wilds they never attack human beings unless cornered or in a fury of pain.

Revised game regulations have become necessary in Alaska, officials of the biological survey state, because of the spread of civilization in the territory and the great popularity of the region as a hunting ground for American sportsmen. The large bears, being the most highly prized trophies, have been faced with extermination.

Hindenburg Gets Many

Begging Letters Daily Berlin, - President Hindenburg's mail includes several hundred begging letters daily, and although the number has increased greatly in the last year, most of them, at the President's orders, are answered in some way. Money is sent to some; the names of others are given to charitable institutions. The Presidential budget includes a sum of 75,000 marks which is usually paid out in full in the course of a year.

Hindenburg's voluntary cut of 20 per cent in his salary some weeks ago, to 60,000 marks, has served as a sharp contrast of the present executive expenditures and those of the old imperial days. The President is allowed 120,000 marks as an entertainment fund for diplomats, visiting officials, official balls and other functions. The ex-kaiser used to spend 15,000,000 marks on this item.

The 120,000 marks must also cover all of the President's expenses for Eighth Wonder of the World Milan, the capital of Lombardy, is unquestionably the industrial metropolis of the country and essentially the sign and symbol of the new Italy. Indeed, there are few cities in Europe where the spirit of the Twentieth century is more firmly enthroned; yet it still radiates the atmosphere of a brilliant and glowing past and many great and ancient buildings remain to bear witness to the golden age of art. The marvelous cathedral of white marble is the eighth wonder of the world. Five centuries of effort and the genius of a whole series of gifted architects have gone into its making. The great edifice was begun in 1386 and reached its present form due to the generosity of Napoleon. The cathedral is a veritable architectural encyclopedia, a product of all the ages.

Keas' Victory Over Turkey Keas (large dull green parrots native to the south island of New Zealand), are the most comical of our birds. A party of them were recently sitting up at the Hermitage watching the unwrapping of a crate containing a turkey. When the majestic turkey stalked out, determined to show the country fellows how they did it in town, the keas began to screech "Heha!" most derisively. The turkey gobbled back at them, but so persistent was their squawking and ridicule that soon he could gobble no more. The keas came back day after day to tease him, until he became thoroughly submissive, and accustomed to their jokes .-- Christchurch (N. Z.) Press.

Queer-Looking Crocodiles

Some of the queerest-looking crocodiles in the world have been received at the British zoo. They are of the kind known as gharials, and came from Borneo. They are most fantastic in appearance, as their alarminglooking, well-armed jaws are drawn out into long, narrow snouts, \ swelling at the tips. They are the giants of the family, often growing to be well over 20 feet in length. They have the true crocodile teeth, these being set in a straight line and interlocking, the fourth tooth on either side of the lower jaw meeting a notch in the upper jaw.

Fortune in Croquet Box

A manuscript worth hundreds of dollars a page was found in the lumber room of an English castle. One summer's day the guests of Lord First Church of Christ. Scientist, in Talbot de Malahide decided to play croquet and sent servants to fetch the mallets and hoops from their box in an old lumber room. The servants opened a box and, instead of mallets, found a mass of musty crumbling papers yellow with age. These proved to be the manuscript writings of James Boswell, the greatgreat-grandfather of Lord Talbot, and among them were 107 pages of his famous Life of Johnson. Only 16 pages of this manuscript had been found before, and their owner was offered $75,-000 for them.

the fact that when his only son had finished training, he, too, would carry on in the spirit of the chemist, rather than that of the new fangled department store regime which had over taken the corner druggist.

And even down there on the remote by-street, tidings of this small shop spread among physicians to whom the perfectly-filled prescription meant much. Motor cars that seldom, if ever, frequented that part of town swooped now with frequency into the druggist's street. His shop became a trademark of quality.

Curiously and against the modern tendency of the modern youth, the son had returned to fit himself with enthusiasm and valor for the cause of medicine, in the old shop.

Eight years after his graduation from the state college, he was practically carrying alone the increasing responsibilities of the drug store. Meanwhile of course the neighborhood had changed, becoming in a way even more remote and even more sinister in its implication.

Various the opportunities that had come and the offers from doctors to help finance the removal of the shop to a more likely part of town, but the old druggist, half bed-ridden now, was querulous when approached on the subject, and for one reason or another his son, twenty-nine past, of steady caliber, and his father's passionate pride, did not urge it.

After all, the store was the old gentleman's life and work. It was he who had created it out of pennies; nurtured it, tended it in infancy and seen it flourish with the years. The world might well be said to have beaten a pathway to the door of the little shop. It was because of his integrity that doctors with national and international reputations recommended it to their patients, and once gained, a customer remained.

No, this was scarcely the time to cross a bedridden old man in his desire for the stabilization of his life work.

Not that it was a strenuous or tormented old age into which he had entered. The little rooms above the shop where he had dwelt the twentyeight years following the death of his wife were snug to him as the proverbial bug in its rug. Peace and pride ruled here; the peace of honest achievement and high pride in a son whose ideals were the ideals of the father and whose youth stood aside

Native African Houses

The native of Kirdi-Massa, on the west coast of Africa, builds his home of a stiff clay much like the abode used by Mexicans and Indians. This is poured over a framework of slender wooden poles used as reinforcements, and allowed to dry in the sun. The design is worked on with a crude trowellike tool while the mud is moist.

The houses look like huge anthills, with only an inadequate opening for a door in the side and a small round chimney hole at the top to admit light and air. The design on the outside is often elaborate and worked out with the greatest pains, for it serves to identify the owner of the hut.

Lightest Known Gases

One cubic foot of hydrogen under ordinary conditions will lift .071 pound. One cubic foot of helium gas will lift .036 pound. These are the lightest gases known and practically the only ones used for balloons. It is stated that the government helium plant in Texas can produce helium at about $12 per thousand cubic feet, or at a little more than twice the cost of hydrogen. Hydrogen is inflammable while helium is not. While heated ares and smoke have a tendency to ise, their lifting power will depend n their specific gravity and on the traveling and official visits during the year. #### Collectors' Pay Eats Up Tax on Dresden's Cats

Dresden .- It does not pay to tax cats, the city of Dresden found out after imposing a tax on all felines for the period of one year. The tax netted $25,000, but this amount was almost entirely swallowed up by a small army of cat tax collectors which the city was forced to maintain.

It is mainly the fault of the tabbies, the tax authorities charge. Now a real honest to goodness dog in Dresden, as everywhere in Germany, wears a brass tag attached to its collar showing the exact date at which taxes were paid for the canine. It is easy enough for the authorities to grab a tax defaulting dog on the street. But the Dresden cats. like cats the world over, lead an indoor life save for occasional nightly visits on the roof. These cat habits, combined with a decided inclination on the part of the Dresden cat owners toward tax defaulting, forced the authorities to employ an army of tax collectors who swallow up all the proceeds of the cat tax.

Graf Zeppelin to Test Warmth of the Earth

Washington .- From the scientific studies to be made at the polar ice cap this summer by Lieut. Com. Edward H. Smith of the United States coast guard, and other experts aboard the German Graf Zeppelin may come an answer to the question whether the world is getting warmer.

Some scientists maintain that the sheet of ice which seals the basin of water at the top of the world is gradnally receding, indicating a gradual warming of the earth.

Smith, who is among the foremost authorities on arctic ice in the world, pointed out that ice was increasing at some points on Greenland. At other places ice seems to be diminishing.

Score One for Henry VIII

A lady's position in the Fifteenth century wasn't particularly an agreeable one considering the fact that she sat in the balcony merely as a spectator at the royal feasts which ther lord gave. Henry VIII, however, was a considerate old fellow, and allowed the fair sex to enjoy the elegant food. His queen, Catherine, presided at the head of one table, and he at another. ## THE GIFT OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

LESSON TEXT-Acts 1:6-14; 2:1-8. GOLDEN TEXT-But ye shall re-ceive power, after that the Holy Ghost ceive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Friends Carrying on His Work. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Friends Car-rying on His Work. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—The Compary of New Power.

IC-The Coming of New Power. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-Empowered for a World Task.

I. The Holy Spirit Promised (Acts 1:6-8).

1. The disciples' question (v. 6). They said, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" They were right in their expectation of the kingdom, for it had been covenanted to David (II Sam. 7:8-16), predicted by the prophets, and declared to be at hand by John the Baptist and Christ himself. However, they were in darkness as to the calling and establishing of the church.

2. Times and seasons in God's hands (v. 7). Christ turned their attention from the desire to know times and seasons, which belong alone to God, to their supreme duty. The Christian's supreme obligation is to preach repentance and remission of sins through the shed blood of Jesus Christ to all the world (Luke 24:46-49) in the power of the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:8).

3. The missionary program (v. 8). The Holy Spirit came to empower them to preach the gospel to the world. a. In Jerusalem. This witnessing was done by the twelve immediately following Pentecost. b. In Judea and Samaria after the hands of wicked persecutors were laid upon them.

c. Unto the uttermost parts of the earth. Beginning with the first foreign missionary enterprise this work has been carried on with varying degrees of success till the present time. II. The Holy Spirit Given (Acts 2:1-8).

1. The time of (v. 1). It was on the "Day of Pentecost." Pentecost means fifty. It' meant, therefore, the feast that was held fifty days after the wave sheaf was offered (Lev. 23:15, 16). It was observed by presenting two loaves made of new wheat (Lev. 23:17). These loaves were baked with leaven while leaven was excluded from the Passover Feast (Lev. 23:6). The reason for this was that the Passover Feast typified Christ's sacrificial death, while Pentecost represented the Church, composed of Jews and Gentiles---the two loaves.

2. Upon whom the Spirit came (v. 1 Cf. 1:13-15). The twelve and others to the number of 120. The gift of the Spirit was not merely for the twelve but for all believers. 3. Marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-8). a. The sound of a mighty wind (v. 2). This suggests the all pervasive life-giving power of the Holy Spirit.

It was into the hands of Don Felipe De Neve, who ruled as the Spanish governor of the province of California in 1781, that Carlos III, king of Spain, Transportation by Rocket Is intrusted the duty of founding Los Coming, Says Expert. Angeles.

In order to establish in California of the south a new settlement, it is related that Don Felipe came from the capital at Monterey with a military escort to the mission of San Gabriel late in August, 1781. The mission of San Gabriel was already prosperous and well established, having had its beginning ten years before.

Don Felipe and his escort spent several days at the mission and then, on the morning of Sentember 4, set out upon a march which took them three leagues westward to that spot which is still the plaza of Los Angeles. Nothing was there that morning but the brown grass of the little valley and the browner hills. The plaza was laid out, a Te Deum was sung, a volley of musketry was fired, the spot was blessed by the padres, and the 12 emigrant families from Old Mexico, which were to constitute the original population and therefore the first families of the city, were established in what was to be their home. The new pueblo was called in euphonious Castillian La Ciudad de Nuestra Senora la Reina de los Angeles-the City of Our Lady the C een of the Angels .- John Steven McGroarty, in the Los Angeles Times.

Ecomerang Long in Use

as Weapon of Warfare An article in the Encyclopedia Britannica on the boomerang of the Australian aborigines mentions various peoples that have used similar instruments. Both the return and nonreturn boomerang are found in most parts of Australia. The return form as, according to General Pitt-Rivers, used in ancient Egypt. A weapon closely resembling the boomerang survives to the present day in northeast Africa, with allied forms made of metal, or throwing knives. In south India is found a boomerang-shaped instrument which can be made to return. The Hopis of Arizona use a nonreturn form. The Indian Cyclopedia gives details of the chakra or steel disk. formerly carried by Sikh soldiers. Thes were 6 to 9 inches in diameter and about an inch of breadth of rim. and had sharply ground edges. They were rotated on the forefinger, then projected with considerable force 150 feet or more. They are called expensive and almost useless weapons. Another form of boomerang used in India is made of wood and iron at Gujerat and of wood and ivory at Trichinopoly.

"A man took a girl friend of his out to lunch one day. He said nothing to his wife about it. Why do so? There was no harm in the luncheon.

Extended Stay in Mud

Cure for Skin Disease Possibly the most interesting bathing places of the Philippines are those of the hinterland of Mindoro, C. A. Freeman writes in the Boston Post. These places are merely mud holes adjacent to hot springs and are patronized by the wild Manvan tribesmen and their families. Jungle travel is productive of various skin diseases and when the Manyan becomes too itchy to stand it any longer, he arranges for a friend to serve him meals. Then he enters the mud.

Around him are placed floatin; pillows of grass and tables provided with smokers' materials. Over his head is a parasol and a gourd of water is close by. Frequently the bather makes a week's stay in the mud and when he emerges to plunge in a river he finds that his outer skin entirely has peeled off.

On Mindoran rivers near settlements of importance the "crocodile baths" are to be found. These are merely huge cages of bamboo floating and tethered to the banks. The slats are set so closely together as to defy the entrance of even a croc's nose and in the cage the community bathes without fear. Usually there is a spear-toting attendant on duty and if a cruising "bwaya" (crocodile) comes too close he receives a jab in the eye.

"Artillery" Before the Advent of Gunpowder The Roman ballista was much like the Roman catapult. It consisted of a trough mounted in a frame, in which ropes or skeins of animal skins were twisted with sticks. The ends of the sticks were joined with a thong, and the spring in the twists served as the spring, or propelling force. The missile, consisting of a log, beam or stone, was put in the trough, and the bowstring was drawn back and released to hurl the missile. The ballista was used to hurl heavy material for de molishing walls. It was primarily a siege weapon. The trough was so arranged that it could be elevated to lengthen the range, and traversed to change the direction of the missile. Roughly, the Roman catapult shot. heavy arrows for effect on personnel and corresponded to the modern light field gun, while the ballista fired heavy projectiles and corresponded to modern heavy field artillery.

Inaugurated Opera Comique Adan de la Hale, French troubadour, a musician and composer, who lived from 1238 to 1288, is sometimes called the father of the opera comique. He was born at Arras and studied at the Cistercian abbey at Vaucelles, near Cambrai. He joined the household of Robert II, count of Artois, in 1272, and from 1283 was attached to Charles of Anjou, brother of Charles IX, whose fortunes he followed in Egypt, Syria, Palestine and Italy. At the court of Charles, after he became king of Naples, Adan wrote his "Jeu de Robin et Marion," the most famous of his works. This play is cited as the earliest French play with music on a se-

Odd Organization for

Frescryation of Trees Men of the Trees is the name of an organization of African scouts founded by Richard E. St. Barbe Baker, formerly assistant conservator of forests in the Kenya colony. The natives, the Kikuyu tribe, are Bantu in origin and many of the old tribal customs are retained. Certain trees are held sacred and sacrifices are made to them. Mr. Baker, on his arrival in the colony, found that large areas of forest had been destroyed by fire and to make way for cultivation. He assembled the chiefs and explained to them the value of forests to man and proposed that instead of being forest destroyers they become forest planters. Many of the natives immediately responded and the Watu wa Mili, or Men of the Trees, was organized. The badge is a small brass disk bearing the design of a tree; the colors are green and white. Later on a simple ritual and initiation ceremony were evolved. Like the Boy Scouts, the members are expected to do a good deed each day. The entire organization is known as the Forest, which is divided into districts, each named after the dominant species of tree growing in it. The districts are divided into branches, each ruled by a forest guide. An important part of the work is the planting of a forest nursery, where more than 80,000 young trees have been raised.

Interesting Picture of Birth of Solar System Tracing time and its changes back to the very beginning of things. Sir James Jeans of Cambridge gives, in a recently published work, a wonderful picture of the birth of our solar system as the result of a collision some 2,000,000,000 years ago.

"A second star, wandering blindly through space, happened to come within hailing distance of the sun. Just as the sun and moon raise tides on the earth, so this second star must have raised tides on the surface of the . a huge tidal wave nust have sun . traveled over the surface of the sun, ultimately forming a mountain of prodigious height, which would rise even higher and higher as the cause of the disturbance came nearer and nearer. And before the second star began to recede, its tidal pull had become so powerful that this mountain was torn to pieces and threw off small fragments of itself, much as the crest of a wave throws off spray. These small fragments have been circulating around their parent sun ever since. They are the planets, great and small, of which our earth is one.'

South Africa's "Tablecloth"

The "Tablecloth" is a cloud that occasionally covers the flat top of Table mountain in South Africa. Charles Fitzhugh Talman of the United States weather bureau, in his book "The Realm of the Air," says it is probably the most famous individual cloud in the world, and in describing it adds: 'It consists of a dense cloud sheet. formed when warm moisture-bearing winds are forced up the steep slope of the mountain, especially in summer. cloud offe of the mountain, like a mighty cataract, and is dissolved as the wind is warmed by compression in descending to a lower level. The effects produced by this rolling mass of vapor are some times indescribably grand, and the phenomenon is all the more striking because a perfectly clear sky generally prevails over the surrounding country while the "Tablecloth" overspreads the mountain."

b. Tongues of flame (v. 3). Each of the 120 was crowned with such a tongue. "Tongues" show the practical purpose of the Spirit's gifts, and "fire" indicates his purifying energy.

c. Speaking in other tongues (vv. 4, 8). Men of every nation heard the gospel in their own tongue.

III. The Holy Spirit Working (Acts 2:14-47).

1. Peter's sermon (vv. 14-40). This sermon is as wonderful as the gift of tongues. It demonstrates the presence and power of the Spirit, because Peter was a Galilean fisherman without literary training. His analysis is perfect. He begins with a brief defense and scriptural explanation of the phenomenon of tongues (vv. 14-21). and follows by a threefold argument proving the messiahship of Jesus. In his conclusion he appealed to them to repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus.

2. Three thousand converted (v.24). Many people were convicted of their sins.

3. The abiding fellowship (vv. 42-47. The evidence that the Spirit had really come and that his work was real was that

a. The converts continued steadfastby in the apostles' doctrine (v. 42). b. They continued in fellowship with the apostles (v. 42). The surest way to grow is to keep in fellowship with Christians.

c. In using the means of grace (v. 42). They continued in the breaking of bread. God has instituted ordinances in his house.

d. In prayer (v. 42). The apostolic church was a praying church.

e. In praising God (v. 47). The experience of the indwelling Spirit issues in praise to God.

men aboard."

Allentown, Pa.-The Traylor Engineering company has shipped one of the largest stone crushers ever built to the Magnitogorsk mills in the Ural mountain section of Soviet Russia. Five railroad cars were required to carry the crusher and equipment to New York, where it was placed on a steamship for transportation to Leningrad, Russia.

As Russian railroads are the broad gauge type and are developed to a point 20 years behind the United States, according to Traylor experts, the transportation of the crusher from shipboard to the mountain area constitutés a big problem.

The crusher weighs about 500,000 pounds.

Bumper Wheat Crop Outlook in Kansas

Topeka, Kan.-Kansas has prospects of breaking all wheat producing records this year, according to the state board of agriculture.

Its report discloses farmers are planning to feed or pasture their wheat because the wheat prices are lower than they have been in thirty-five years.

The record-breaking Kansas wheat crop for all time was slightly under 180,000,000 bushels. The crop report issued by the board estimates the probable yield at 177,000,000 bushels, showing that the farmers did not reduce their wheat acreas? last fall when urged to do so by the federal farm board.

The Suffrage Bogey

Some of the arguments against woman suffrage in Massachusetts are recorded in "Lucy Stone: Pioneer of Woman's Rights," by Allee Stone Blackwell.

'One member of the legislature said that when a man came home tired at night, he did not want to kiss a member of the school board or an overseer of the poor. Another member declared that, if women were allowed to vote, (1) there would be no more children born in Massachusetts, and (2) all the children born would be girls."-Kansas City Star.

Wrong Move

Little Frank, who had removed with his family to a new house, was taken to visit the new tenants of the old home, with whom his mother was on friendly terms.

The chief object of interest was a recently arrived baby. Frank was much taken with the infant, and on his way home remarked:

"Mother, it's a pity we moved from that house. If we'd stayed a bit longer we should have got that baby."-London Tit-Bits.

Ideas of Her Own

Marjorie had developed a sudden dislike for going to bed. She admitted that she was afraid of the dark. An aunt, who was visiting in the home. said to the seven-year-old Robert: "Bob, you haven't been putting ideas into Marjorie's head and making her afraid to go to bed, have you?"

"Of course not," said the boy. "She is five years old and has ideas of her own."

founded the fear that Alaskan mosquitoes will be introduced to this country. The Alaskan mosquito, it was said, breeds in ice water, and if brought here it might breed in winter as well as summer and torment us the year round. As a matter of fact, says the Digest, Alaska has warm water in summer, and it is in this that the creatures hatch. They are as tender and susceptible to cold as our own. There is some apprehension that the mosquitoes may drive out the Kodiak bears, forcing a migration to this region, but who is afraid of mere bears? -Detroit News.

Inventions That Won Favor

Who invented the penny-in-the-slot weighing machine? Why. Mr. George Weaver, of Bath, who died penniless. as you might say, leaving only a paltry £16,000. And who invented the police whistle? It was none other than Mr. Joseph Hudson, who broke upon a startled world of burglary in 1884 with his shrill masterpiece, and at once" secured a contract for 21,000 of his products. Today there are 600 different types of whistle, all manufactured by the firm which Mr. Hudson founded. -London Answers.

Varieties of Snakes

The copperhead is not a species of rattlesnake and has no rattle, though like many other kinds of snake it vibrates its tail against the dry leaves and makes a noise similar to the rattle. It is smaller than the average rattlesnake, reaching an extreme length of three or four feet. Various observers have stated it does not strike from a regular coil. The story of a hoop snake that takes its tail in its mouth and rolls like a hoop is a myth. The rattlesnake is typical of snakes that form a coil before striking.

Mary, age eight, moved from Irvington to a small town in Indiana. There were factories there, with their accompanying whistles. Occasionally when a whistle blew, Mary heard some such remark as: "It must be just twelve." or "Our clock must be slow, for there is the seven o'clock whistle." No one realized Mary was puzzled until one day she suid: "You know. I can't cell time by the whistles."-Indianapolis News.

Modern youth, they say, is responsible for the change. The modern youth of the church made the church go modern, and now the whole town is basking in the reflected glory-or disgrace-of having gone modern!

For forty years the men have been compelled to sit on one side of the church and the women on the other. And now they may sit together! At least so says the dispatch which carried the news around the world. And we must believe news dispatches.

Think of the responsibility which is now on the heads of the youthful contingent that led and won the battle to bring modernism to that town. If anything should go wrong-if the results of this iconoclastic change would not be all that is hoped for-think of the stigma on youth, modern youth!

That is the trouble with extremes. Those who advocate them assume such a terrific responsibility if anything goes wrong. And in all radical changes involving profound cosmic principles, there is always the chance of something going wrong.

We have our fingers crossed for the church in that little town. Let us hope that those courageous spirits who waged the noble battle, years ahead of their time, to permit men to sit next to women in church, may be vindicated, indeed justified, by the happy results of the unprecedented and phenomenal experiment!

Canning Factory in Arctic

Within a few hundred miles of the North pole a fish-canning factory has been established, worked entirely by Eskimos. The plant, financed by the Danish government, is in Holstenberg, Greenland, a town beyond the Arctic circle.

Modern in every detail, the factory makes use of electric power derived from the swift-running rivers, and employs up-to-date dynamos and oil engines for emergencies. It is operated mainly by Eskimo women. The whole population of the district, numbering approximately 250, is devoted to the new industry. A fleet of modern motor fishing boats, recently shipped from Denmark, keeps the establishment supplied. .

Famous Old Roman Road

The Appian way is a famous road built by the Romans between the cities of Rome and Brandisi. It received its name from Applus Claudius, who was censor when the first part of the road was begun about 312 B. C. The section between Capua and Rome is about 140 miles long and is as straight as a taut string. The width of the road ranges from 14 to 18 feet. No expense was spared in making the pavement and part of the original road bed is still used without much alteration.

Divisions of Ship's Crew

The crew of a ship is divided into three departments. The first is the deck department. The captain, first, second, third and fourth mates, the boatswain, able seamen, ordinary seamen and radio operators belong to this department. In the engineering departments there are the chief engineer. second, third, fourth and junior engineers, firemen, greasers, water tenders and coal passers. Those belonging to the steward's department are the chief steward, second steward, cook, second cook, mess steward and mess boy.
