VOL. 38

TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 1932.

NO. 41

MAKE JULY 4 A GREAT "HOME-COMING"

Let all Former Carroll-Countians Plan for the Big Day.

Committees having in charge the Carroll County celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, in Taneytown, on July 4, are actively functioning. As the event will be the main one of the kind to be held in Carroll County, all who have charge are mindful of the fact that it must properly represent a county-wide effort, and all indications point to a memorable day.

Necessarily, the plans are not definitely in shape for publication in detail. Just now, the main consideration is that everybody interested should plan ahead to reserve THE FOURTH as a day on which to be sure to come to the Taneytown Fair ground, and to let their friends, far and near, know about the event in order that they too may arrange to attend.

Perhaps some actual surprises of a very agreeable character may be presented by the Program Committee. They are prospecting along unusual lines for features, and have an abundance of enthusiasm. The next meeting of the general committee will be important, as the special committees have had time to begin to specialize, and to reach definite conclusions.

That Carroll County will make a good job of the event, there is no question. Write about it to your distant friends, and let's all make a worthwhile Home-coming of July 4th, for all former Carroll countians.

Vacation plans must often be made months in advance; work must be scheduled in order to provide for a "going away" period; arrangements must be made with employers for "time off." All of us who are busy, know just how important all of this is. Early in July will suit a great many folks to plan their visits "back home" to Carroll County on "the 4th," and enjoy the big day at the Taneytown Fair Ground. Talk it up NOW!

The next meeting of the George Washington Bi-centennial Committee will be held in Westminster, on Tuesday night, at 7:30, in the Firemen's Building. All members are urged to be present.

FAREWELL MEETING IN OLD CHURCH BUILDING.

The Church of the Brethren, Westminster, held a farewell meeting in the old church building, on Sunday, consisting of Gospel Hymns, impromptu short talks on impressions of the most important happenings in church since its erection in 1874; along with personal religious experiences and sacred memories attaching to this hallowed sanctuary.

The furniture was removed from the building on Monday, following which, contractor Allen F. Feeser, of Taneytown, commenced to demolish the building that will be replaced with plans and specifications of Hoffer's architectural designs.

The congregation has arranged to hold their Sunday School and worship each Sunday during rebuilding in the Standard Oil Company's commodious quarters on the corner of Main and Carroll Streets.

WHO PAYS FOR SERVICE UNPERFORMED?

(For the Record.)

Answer. The long-suffering public, men who do not even expect half wages for the week they are sick; and industry that knows income only as products are sold.

Yet the public pays their recent bills rendered by the Electric Co., for a month of service, when only three-quarters, more or less, of a month was delivered. Confusing as if the bill was made out for French Lace, K. W., minimum, etc., simply means a month of service. I protested that the meter should not be read until a month of service had been rendered. The reply was, " * * * referring me to the office. The reception there was unsatisfactory. The recent bill is an example of the unjust attitude of the public utility company to the indifferent public. The C. & P. Telephone has learned to deduct such time as when no service is rendered, from bills.

In such communities as Chambersburg, Pa., or Hagerstown, Md., where the citizens are alert to monopolistic injustices, local electric companies have been organized. As in Westminster the service is more satisfactory, and often considerable reduction in rates are affected.

If this hired boy were not so far away, I don't believe that he would look me in the eye and claim wages for time, when I needed him worst and he was romping in the snow.

"OVERALLS JOHNNY."

EMMITSBURG BANK PLANS TO REOPEN.

The committee of the Emmitsburg branch of the Central Trust Company met in Emmitsburg, Thursday evening. Their report showed that the plan of reorganization is meeting with favorable consideration by the depositors. Under the plan it is necessary for 80% of the depositors represented to accept the plan. At the present time there are signed agreements by over 30% of the depositors, and from the report submitted by the committee it is thought that within the next week the balance of 50% of deposits will be signed.

HAMPSTEAD TO CELEBRATE

Bi-centennial of Washington's Birth, Saturday, May 7th.

Hampstead will hold a bi-centennial celebration of the birth of George Washington, on Saturday, May 7, and committees are busily engaged in planning a program, which will cover the afternoon and evening. The afternoon features will be a parade and addresses, and in the evening a pageant and addresses will be given.

Numerous floats will feature the parade, the following subjects having been selected; Washington cutting the cherry tree; as a surveyor; presiding over his Masonic Lodge; the signing of Declaration of Independence; surrender of Lord Cornwallis. In the evening, the pageant "George Washington and Young America" will be presented, all Continental costumes being used.

The event is being financed, locally, partly by a home talent play to be presented on Thursday and Friday evenings, April 7 and 8. In general, a committee representing the Hampstead Fire Company is directing the bi-centennial event, which will be the first held in the county.

C. & P. TELEPHONE CO., STORM DAMAGES.

A recapitulation of the storm damage sustained by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies, March 6 shows that extraordinary repairs will involve expenditures of approximately $1,000,000. A wet snow frozen to the wires over a wide area of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia accompanied by high winds reaching blizzard-like proportions caused interruptions to the service of 23,650 telephones, 1,087 long distance circuits and isolated 75 central offices.

Repairs to the telephone plant in the affected areas will necessitate the replacement of 21,400 poles, and 10,000 miles of open wire lines. The construction of 60 miles of cable to replace open wire local and long distance circuits will insure less interruptions from future storms in the areas in which this type of plant will be constructed.

The cost of extraordinary repairs resulting from this storm is provided for by a depreciation reserve fund maintained by the telephone companies for just such emergencies, according to a statement made by Lloyd B. Wilson, president of the telephone companies. This reserve, he states, is looked upon as one of the necessary costs of providing telephone service.

Beginning with the first report of trouble in the storm stricken areas, the telephone companies' line forces were called out to restore service and to clear the highways of poles and wires. In making temporary repairs to telephone lines about 2,500 miles of emergency insulated wire were used. This wire was strung on stubs of poles broken off by the storm, along fences and on trees and in some places laid along the ground across fields. Permanent repairs will be made as soon as possible.

TO FARMERS OF MARYLAND.

The agriculture industry is struggling manfully to rehabilitate itself. Due to drought, crop failure and other circumstances during the past two or three years, many farmers in most of the States of the Union, have found themselves in desperate straits. The Federal Government is desirous of relieving this situation to as great an extent as possible. In the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act recently passed by Congress, special consideration was given to the agricultural situation, and funds for loans to farmers based upon the requirements of the applicant for seed, fertilizer, feed and work-stock, and fuel and oil for tractors and other necessary supplies, were made available up to a maximum of $400.00 for the individual farmer.

Those in need of additional funds for Spring planting should make prompt application to their County Agriculture Agent, located at the County seat, where full details and application blanks will be furnished. The deadline for filing application is April 30th.

CHANGES IN ADDRESS.

No doubt a lot of changes in residence were made this week, of which we have not been notified, consequently The Record will go to the former address. Please let us know of any such changes in order that we may change mailing accordingly.

"To live long, it is necessary to live slowly."

FOR AND AGAINST THE SOLDIER BONUS.

The American Legion is Divided over Present Payment.

President Hoover has left it known that he opposes the enactment of a Soldier Bonus law, at this time, that would cost the country over Two Billions of Dollars, and largely nullify all present efforts for "balancing the budget" by new taxation plans now being considered by Congress.

The American Legion officials are said to support the President in this. There is no disposition manifested by the president, in any way stop caring for veterans who are ill or disabled, or who have the best of claims for additional aid; but there is a disposition in evidence that many Congressmen, and others, are willing to bid for the votes of ex-soldiers at the coming Presidential election, by raiding the Treasury and forcing up taxation to unbearable proportions.

The House seems almost sure to pass such legislation, and is figuring on being able to over-ride a veto. The chances are not so sure in the Senate; but the House is likely to make the demonstration, and "pass the buck" to the President. Hearings on such a bill will commence next Monday.

A group of world war veterans are expected to march to the Capitol today, Friday, with petitions said to contain over 2,000,000 signatures asking for legislation for the immediate cashing of soldiers' bonus certificates. It is also stated that John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, will go before the Ways and Means Committee, next week, and oppose the immediate cashing of the certificates.

CARROLL COUNTY SOCIETY TO MEET.

The Carroll County Society will hold its fourteenth annual meeting at the Rennett Hotel, on Saturday night the 9th, inst., at 8 o'clock. All Carroll Countians and their friends are welcomed at these meetings. Refreshments will be served.

The Society wishes to obtain the names of ten persons from each district in the County who formerly lived in the County and now live in Baltimore. When you read this please send the names of ten persons formerly living in your district to the Carroll County Society, 410 Fidelity Building, Baltimore, Md. Nathan L. Smith, the President of the Society, will conduct the meeting.

MARCH MADE RECORDS.

The past month is rated by official weather observers as the coldest March since 1926, and the wettest month since August 1931. In average temperature it was three degrees colder than February, seven degrees colder than January, and six degrees colder than December. The total precipitation for the month was 5.15 inches. The depth of the snow on the day of the blizzard, March 6, is given as only three inches, and four inches for the entire month.

These are records given for Frederick City, Baltimore records show total precipitation for the month to have been 6.66 inches, and total rainfall since January 1 of more than 13 inches.

BRUNSWICK TAXES VENDERS.

Passage of an ordinance, imposing a tax upon non-resident firms and corporations selling and offering goods, merchandise and other articles and commodities locally in competition with home businesses, was the outstanding item of business transacted Tuesday evening by the Mayor and Council. The new statute, which goes into effect May 1, this year, is designed to protect local business against outside competition.

According to the new law, persons offering for sale from wagons, trucks, etc., within the city limits after May 1, fruits, produce, goods, wares, etc., will be required to procure a license to do, at the rate of $2 per day or $25 annually, for the privilege, unless the merchandise, fruits, etc., has been produced by those offering same.

Patent medicine vendors and others in this class will be taxed $10 per day or $50 per week. Persons bringing or carrying baskets or buckets of fruit, berries, etc., gathered by them, will not be required to obtain a license to sell.

Firms, corporations or persons not regularly engaged in business in Brunswick, will be required to procure a license at the rate of $100 annually for the privilege of selling, offering for sale goods, wares or merchandise, soliciting orders for same, and soliciting work, such as laundry, dry-cleaning, tailoring, etc. This provision does not apply to the sale of milk, vegetables, produce, etc., by those producing or raising same.—Brunswick, Blade-Times.

2,240 ACRES OF ASPARAGUS.

Preliminary estimates place the asparagus in Maryland for the year 1932 at 2,240 acres. This is the highest for the State since 1928, when there were 2,330 acres in this crop, and places Maryland ninth in the United States. California, with over 60% of the total acreage, reports an 11% increase over last year.

LOANS TO FARMERS

Information may be had from County Agent Burns.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to make loans to farmers in the several States of the United States for crop production in 1932 where he shall find that an emergency exists as a result of which farmers are unable to obtain loans from any other source. Such loans will be made upon such terms and subject to such regulations as he prescribes, including an agreement by each farmer to use the funds thus obtained by him for crop production. This authority is provided in section 2 of the act of Congress approved January 22, 1932.

The committee for Carroll County consists of Mr. C. E. Nicodemus, Chairman, New Windsor, Md.; Mr. J. P. Wantz, Westminster; Mr. Robert Gist, Westminster; Mr. John S. Bushy, Woodbine; and Mr. L. C. Burns, Westminster. Any information regarding these loans can be secured from either member of the committee or by communicating with the County Agent's Office in Westminster.

In the event that an applicant for a loan is not a resident of Carroll County, they should communicate with the resident County Agent of the County in which they live.

POTATO FERTILIZERS.

Attention of the farmers of the State is called to the challenge in fertilizer recommendations for the early and late potatoes, owing to the ruling of the new fertilizer law which requires that the nitrogen content of fertilizer must be stated in terms of nitrogen and not in terms of ammonia as has been the custom in the past.

The following fertilizers are recommended by the State Extension Service:

Early potato fertilizer, analysis 6-6-5; rate of application, 2,000 lbs., made up of not less than 20% nitrogen and containing some sodium nitrate and ammonium sulphate; the potash to be preferably muriate.

Early harvested late potatoes, analysis 3-8-8, on land having manure and legumes turned under and 4-12-4 on less fertile soil; rate of application, 800 to 1,000 lbs.

Late potatoes, analysis 2-12-4, on fertile soil that has been manured and 6-6-5 on soil low in fertility; rate of application, 600 to 800 lbs.—Extension Service.

BIDS FOR BONDS ARE NOT SATISFACTORY.

Bids for $1,000,000 Montgomery County School and Road loan bonds have not been accepted. The bonds are to bear 5% interest. A New York-Baltimore Syndicate offered 90 for $500,000 of the bonds, and five Montgomery County banks offered 96 for $400,000, and the County Commissioners consider both bids too low. Ordinarily, such bonds would have sold at a premium over 100.

Another offer will be made by the county at a later date. The officials of the county are of the opinion that when the Federal Tax bill is disposed of, higher bids will be offered; and in case this does not result, a number of construction projects will be postponed.

PRESIDENT HOOVER STIRS CONGRESS

By Appealing for More Cuts in the Cost of Government.

President Hoover, on Monday, again excited the "Against Hoover policies" spokesmen in Congress, when he sent a special message to both branches urging further economy in governmental machinery to the extent of $200,000,000, through the setting up of a commission composed of representatives of Congress and those of the Executive, to agree in combining a number of separate departmental activities, which would mean both salary cuts and a reduced number of employees. The President's message was in part, as follows:

"I have in various messages to the Congress over the last three years referred to the necessity of organized effort to effect far-reaching reduction of governmental expenditures.

"To balance the budget for the year beginning July 1 next, the revenue bill passed by the House of Representatives on April 1 necessitates that there shall be a further reduction of expenditures for the next year of about $200,000,000 in addition to the reduction of $369,000,000 in expenditures already made in the budget recommendations which I transmitted to the Congress on December 9th.

"It is essential in the interest of the taxpayer and the country that it should be done.

"It is my belief that still more drastic economy than this additional $200,000,000 can be accomplished.

"Such a sum can only be obtained, however, by a definite national legislative program of economy which will authorize the consolidation of governmental bureaus and independent establishments; and beyond this, which will permit the removal of long-established methods which lead to waste; the elimination of the less necessary functions, and the suspension of activities and commitments of the Government not essential to the public interest in these times.

"These objects cannot be accomplished without far-reaching amendment to the laws.

"The Executive is bound to recommend appropriations adequate to provide for the functions and activities of the Government as now established by law.

"The message, of course, provoked a somewhat acrimonious debate in both houses, on both sides, a few Republicans joining in the criticism, making the claim that the message was not specific enough; yet had it been specific, it would have been criticised, as too much so, and an interference with the legislative functions of Congress.

"The President followed, on Tuesday, with a second recommendation asking for the appointment of a commission of nine members; three to be named by the Senate, three by the House, and three by the Executive, and explained more at length what functions such a committee could perform; and cited six like requests within seven years, action on which has been delayed. A resolution was laid before the Senate asking for the appointment of the Committee.

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS?

Here is another problem from Popular Mechanics Magazine. Those who may be subscribers to the magazine, or have access to it, are requested not to send in answers, nor to give information to others.

"I have a continuous chain of thirty links that I want to cut up to get six pieces of five links each. How much will it cost, on the basis of paying 10 cents for cutting a link, and 15 cents for soldering a link together? If I can buy new five-link pieces at 25 cents each, will it pay to have this chain cut up? What is the most economical method? Better not give snap judgment on the proposition. Think it over a bit!"

The answer will be published next week; with names of those sending correct solution.

TEACHERS WILL TAKE WAGE CUT.

Hagerstown, Md., April 3.—School teachers are ready to take a cut in salary if a proportionate cut is made in the salaries of all public officials, 200 teachers, members of the Washington County Teachers' Association voted Friday night here. The meeting was called in protest to a taxpayers' meeting held here a week ago, when demands were made by speakers for a reduction in teachers' salaries and less money spent for educational purposes.

"Should it be found after a careful investigation, that the county, because of depleted finances, is unable to meet its tax burden, we will agree to have taken from our pay the same percentage of decreases as all other public officials will voluntarily accept," spokesmen for the teachers announced.

"If a choice must be made between roads and schools then we take our slogan, 'children before cars.'"

An educational campaign is planned to give the public the results of a study of education costs.—Frederick Post.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

DRYS ISSUE MANIFESTO

Serves Plain Warning to Leaders of Both Parties.

The organized forces representing National Prohibition late last week issued what is taken to be a manifesto that if the two major parties in their platforms recommend a referendum on the subject, or a repeal of present laws, so doing would result in a bolt from both parties of millions of dry voters; which is taken to mean that a third ticket would be placed in the field. The formal warning says:

"The Board of Strategy, speaking for millions of voters in all sections of the country who firmly adhere to National Prohibition, warns party leaders that the adoption of a platform declaration in favor of repeal or modification * * * will be an offense which will not be condoned by passive acquiescence."

"Nor will they (prohibition voters) support a candidate who by word or act espouse the repeal or weakening of this beneficial law."

It is held, that, as Democratic leaders are concededly wet, the warning is especially directed to the Republican party, and President Hoover. This is of course referring to northern, and the party leaders western leaders as in the south are also leading drys. The statement further says:

"The Board of Strategy admonishes the Democratic leaders to profit by the experience of the past and not be led into repudiation of prohibition * * * either in its platform or by its candidates."

This manifesto goes on in detail and at length, covering the situation from different angles, but the substance of the whole position is given in the above brief extracts.

SPARE THE 'GATORS.

The following items attracted our attention, last week, in the Apopka, Florida, Chief. In these parts, alligators are considered "varmints" hardly worthy of protection; but "way down South" they are evidently held to be part of the landscape, and an attraction to visitors. The item follows:

"Florida newspapers have repeatedly warned against the promiscuous killing of alligators, pointing out that within a few years, if the killings are continued, this all-Florida product will become extinct. Now comes news from Tarpon Springs that someone went gunning for and killed the city's pet 'gator—a saurian that had become a familiar figure in that section on account of his extra large size and ripe old age—some figure to have been five hundred years or more. The loss of this 'gatorship' is felt so keenly the Board of County Commissioners of Pinellas has offered a reward for information regarding the shooting of this alligator.

The 'gator had made his home in a field near the Beckett place on the Anclote River for over fifty years."

ENTERTAIN BRIDE AND GROOM.

A wedding dinner was held on Easter Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Ecker, who were married on Saturday, March 26th. Mrs. Ecker is the daughter of Mrs. Caroline Leatherman, of Gettysburg, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Ecker were married by Rev. Mr. Frederick B. Craine, of the Presbyterian Church, Gettysburg, Pa. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ecker left for a short trip. They will reside at the home of the groom, near Union Bridge, Md., where Mr. Ecker is engaged in farming.

EARLY POTATOES INJURED.

Early potato crops have been greatly injured and set back, by the recent cold spell, in all of the Southern states. Government reports from other sections as to the prospective plantings to be made in northern areas, are not conclusive, but so far reports indicate that a shortage in acreage is probable. However, a later and more definite report will be issued as to this. The loss in the Southern states appears to be around twenty-five percent.

PATRIOTIC SERVICE.

A Patriotic Service will be held at Baust Reformed Church, on Wednesday evening, April 13th., at 7:30 P. M., in connection with the family night. Dr. John S. Hollenbach, of Manchester, Md., will be the speaker. His topic is "Our Model Patriot."

He will be accompanied on the program by Mrs. Ernest Brillhart, accompanist, Mr. Charles F. Bien, violinist and Dr. Hollenbach, trombonist. The public is cordially invited.

MT. AIRY TO CELEBRATE.

Mt. Airy will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Birth of George Washington, on some date late in May or early in June. A meeting of citizens was held Monday evening of this week, at which preliminaries were outlined, and committees provided to work out a program and the scope of the demonstration. Whatever Mt. Airy decides to do in this direction, is sure to be a credit to this live south-county town.

NEW WINDSOR BALL TEAM WITHDRAWS FROM LEAGUE.

The New Windsor baseball club has withdrawn from the Frederick County League, due to bank failures and economic conditions. While no definite action has been taken, it is possible that a team from Frederick may be admitted to fill the vacancy. A Boonsboro team was refused admission because it is not community owned, and would not comply with the rules.

WHO RUNS YOUR BUSINESS?

It is a long-standing complaint of farmers that they have no voice in what they shall receive for their produce, nor in what they shall pay for their needs; and there is a lot of truth in this, but what are the facts concerning business in general?

Just off hand, we can think of but few monopolies that absolutely control their own selling prices. Possibly there are not many aside from the P. O. Department, the owners of patents and copyrights, and favored localities that are able to "corner" the price of certain scarce raw materials.

The average business man does not run his own business, though some may think they do, while nearly everybody wants to do it. As a matter of fact, this is a pretty selfish old world, so far as getting wealth is concerned. The thing that everybody aims at, is to get all he can—for his labor, his products, his service, his time—whatever he does for a living.

There never was a time when any class refused to take the highest prices obtainable, when the taking was accompanied by legal procedure or by the force of circumstances. The philosophy of prices is, that a thing is worth what one can get for it. Consequently any condition, or hindrance—either real or imaginary—that stands as a bar to the skyward tendency of prices, is resented. That is human nature in practical operation.

But, there are these hindrances. Sometimes we call them supply and demand; sometimes we just can't afford to get too much, for so doing cuts down the volume of our sales. If we ask too much for work, or for a finished product, straightway there is a movement to get from under such a demand. Buyers "shop" around, and ask for "bids," or simply do without the service we have to sell.

Labor forms into unions in order to get "its share." Those who think they see a business that is making too much money, go into that business for themselves, and this starts "competition," the big safety valve that operates against monopolistic tendencies. Moreover, a business to be safely prosperous must also be popular—must have the good will and co-operation of a large number of persons.

Then, there is the element of personal popularity, or good salesmanship, that must be considered in many lines of business. Perhaps mere relationships and social contacts may be important. We help in the matter of running "our own business" in a good many ways, and fail in a good many ways.

As a widespread principle we may set it down as fact that the difficulties attending the management and success of any business, are pretty equally divided among all classes of business. There is no one "hard luck" business. We simply know most about our own problems, and are then led to wrongly imagine that we are special victims. The world is simply full of trouble. For one occupation it is represented by one form, while for another occupation the form may be entirely different, but is "old man Trouble" just the same.

Instead of a man running his own business, he merely runs it as nearly as he can, taking into consideration the opposition and cross currents that he meets with. Every would-be owner should try to please his customers, his employees, his community, and adapt himself to many conditions not of his own choice or making. Unless he does this as he goes along with his job, he merely makes for himself a lot of needless worries and suspicions, and gets a cross-eyed conception of his lot in general, and becomes the world's champion nuisance—the chronic complainer.

ARE WE HELPING TO BRING BETTER TIMES?

The man who now has the cash and does not pay his bills, is helping to keep back the return of prosperity. The man who with-holds paying, and who thereby causes a creditor to borrow, is in the same class—the debtor should do the borrowing.

All who need to have work done, and could easily pay to have it done now, are helping to keep up "hard times." In fact, holding on to money, instead of using it where and when it should be used, is "hoarding" in times when the greatest good can be accomplished by letting money circulate in proper channels.

Foolish spending, now or at any other time, is a practice that can be easily overdone, and in itself may cause unnecessary suffering when the times pinch; but paying debts is a practice that can not be stopped at any time without causing somebody to suffer.

These are all such simple facts as to be hardly worth repeating, but it is difficult for good advice to be given too frequently; and sometimes good, honest, well-meaning persons need a prodding to keep them in mind of their proper duties along the line of helping one another.

The paying of bills simply starts things going to everybody's advantage, directly or indirectly. The bar that we put down is apt to be likewise a bar to prevent others from helping us—making "the times" better for us, as well as keeping alive valuable friendships and common good-feeling.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE DEBT.

From now until the election in November, charges will be passed back and forth between Democrats and Republicans, as to responsibility for the immense debt of the country that is now causing so much trouble to find a painless way of producing revenue for.

Largely, it will be a case of the pot calling the kettle black. The debt, of course, was piled up, beginning with the World War under the administration of President Wilson. It continued under the administration of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover. The analysis of votes in Congress during these administrations will show one party as deep in the mud as the other is in the mire in voting lavish expenditures.

Some costly mistakes have been made, such as any party would make at any time during such an unusual accumulation of National conditions. Plans and policies that were well meant have gone wrong, partly because no one could predict eventualities, and because of partisan and bloc obstructive tactics.

Other questions than those of National finance, such as floods, the great drought, prohibition enforcement, unemployment, bank failures and business depression have entered into public affairs during the past five years to an extent never before equaled in any like period; all of which have been during a time when both parties have had an unprecedented display of internal strife.

Trying now to befuddle the public mind by charging party responsibility for the distressing aftermath of such a period, is the purest of bunk. No one party contains a monopoly, either of ability, honesty, or good intentions, so far as managing the affairs of this country is concerned. And, even above and beyond this truth is the fact that the distressing financial conditions that prevail in this country are world-wide.

THE WAY THEY HANDLE SUCH CASES IN CANADA

Canadian Law has for a long time been noted for its directness, and for the effectiveness of its enforcement. The criminal classes across the border know what it means to go too far, and they know too that sentences mean what they say; all of which has made Canada perhaps the best governed, and most law-abiding country in the world.

Recently, however, a number of Communists tested the temper of the law by advocating violence and the overthrow of government. Promptly, the evidence was gathered against them, and in a very brief time these men were convicted and sentenced to prison terms, and five of the seven being foreigners were ordered deported after the expiration of their sentence.

The Border Cities Star, published at Windsor, contained an editorial on the subject, a copy of which was sent to the Editor of The Record by Chas. E. Redeker, a friend living in Windsor, that is well worth reading in this "wide open" country of ours. It says in part:

"The trial," the Attorney-General adds, "exposing as it did the machinations of the Communist International, attracted world-wide attention and it is felt to be in the public interest that the judgment of the Court of Appeals should be published for general circulation."

"The Attorney-General particularly stresses in his foreword that the effect of the judgment is not, as has been charged, to deny citizens the right of free speech. On this phase of the matter he says;

"Any man may advocate whatever type of government he thinks most desirable; he may attack all existing institutions; he may argue for any, even the most radical, changes; it is only when the use "of force, violence or physical injury to person or property" is threatened, advised or defended, that an offence is committed. The object of the section is not to protect existing institutions against legitimate criticism, but to protect citizens against red revolution and civil war, against the fire and sword of armed rebellion.

"Perfection in government, as in all other things, is to be striven for but not attained. Parliamentary institutions, and the roots of democratic government, are Britain's gift to the world. Through our long history change has come by reason, by argument, by the slow but safe method of trial and error; retaining what is useful and good, discarding what is out-worn. Thus have we adapted our institutions to changing times. Bolshevism, scornful democracy, desires to sweep away the existing fabric of civilization, substituting therefor a state moulded on the principles of Marx and Lenin. It does not propose to consult the wishes or the welfare of all the people; it proposes rather a dictatorship under which Bolshevism will be enforced on the people willy nilly; under which all expression of opinion critical of the state will be stifled. It is Communism, not the law of Canada as it stands, that is the enemy of free speech.

"This country has for its foundation a Christian civilization. We have a constitution which spells liberty and peace. Communism brings not peace but a sword, and for that reason is unwelcome in our midst."

"We think that public opinion generally will applaud the conclusions of the Attorney-General. The State must be protected from those who would tear it down. Lives and property must not be sacrificed for the sake of promoting this or that "ism." In Dearborn only recently the law saw a tragic example of what happens when mobs of men try to take the law into their own hands. Society as we know it today is far from perfect. But the social system that we have is a better one than has ever existed before. And it is gradually improving. Advocates of change—and this term includes most of us—must keep in mind the necessity of proceeding with reform through what are called constitutional methods. Violence cannot and will not be tolerated. That is why Communism cannot be tolerated."

THE MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY'S CORNER.

In this year, which commemorates the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, it is interesting to recall that on January 1, 1800, Dr. Bend, later to become the first president of the Maryland Bible Society, preached a funeral sermon commemorating George Washington. "There were giants in those days," and Dr. Bend was one of them. While his interests were as varied as the needs of the young Republic, his loyalty to the cause of Bible distribution never flagged.

About 1811 one John Hancock, a resident of New Jersey, bequeathed Dr. Bend 100 English New Testaments, with the request that they be distributed among the poor. This distribution was made with the utmost care, as in every period of the Society's life the supreme object has been to get the Bible read. The Board expressed at this time a "fervent wish that the prosperous and the wealthy, who have learned to estimate the value of the Holy Scriptures, and the comforts of the Christian faith and hope, would redeem from uses merely secular, a portion of the property which they are about to abandon in death, and in this way make heirs of their indigent brethren for whom Christ died."

These Pioneers early realized the world-wide scope of the task to which they felt themselves called. We therefore find that not only had correspondence been entered into with the Bible Societies of Philadelphia, New York, and Albany, resulting in the reception of counsel and assistance for the Baltimore Society, but lines had also gone across the sea. Before the declaration of war between the United States and Great Britain, in 1812, an official intercourse had been opened with the British and Foreign Bible Society. This happy relation was not seriously disturbed even by the thunders of war.

Up to this period of the Maryland Bible Society's life, no definite plan had been formulated for its perpetuation. It was at this juncture that Dr. McHenry came to the Presidency and leadership of the Society. He was a native of Ulster, who had emigrated to America in early life, and had fought through the Revolutionary War, serving for a large part of the time as one of Washington's aides. He had also served in the Maryland Legislature and in the Continental Congress and was an intimate friend of Alexander Hamilton, of the Marquis de la Fayette and Timothy Pickens. He had amassed a comfortable fortune in business, but had been called back to public life by Washington in 1796, to become Secretary of War, a position he continued to hold throughout the most of the administration of John Adams. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, and doubtless through the influence of his pastor, the Rev. James Inglis, was led to assume leadership in the Bible Society. His interest grew with his association, until he expressed it in an address which is in reality the first financial and missionary program of the Maryland Bible Society. To quote a part of this address, he declares: "This new Society is formed for the sole purpose of distributing the Holy Scriptures more effectually and extensively among the multitudes whose circumstances render assistance in this way a solemn duty. McHenry deemed that, "it may not be improper to state, for the information of the public, two fundamental articles of our association. One of them provides that all copies of the Scriptures distributed or published by this Society shall be without notes, and of the versions in common use among the Churches in whose languages respectively it may be deemed useful to distribute them."

The second article provides that, "Every person becoming a member shall at the time of subscribing to its constitution pay the sum of $5.00, and the sum of $2.00 every year afterwards. Persons subscribing or giving $30.00 or upwards shall be members for life without any further contribution."

Thus did this old soldier seek to provide the sinews of war that his cohorts might be fully armed with the sword of the spirit which is The Word of God.

BOOST MARYLAND'S OWN OPPORTUNITIES.

To the Citizens of Maryland: As a direct aid to effect remedial solutions of the unemployment and welfare problems, stabilization of building construction and financial help have been established in effectual channels to relieve the business slump and effect general economic uplift.

The most recent anti-hoarding campaign can be amplified in establishing practical panacea for our economic ills. To this end the U. S. Employment Service, through the office of the Federal Director, suggests that the citizens of Maryland co-operate in a systematic "Better Business Revival" campaign beginning April 1, 1932.

Maryland possesses rich coal mines, but produces less than three million tons of the eight million tons consumed annually in the State. For each increase in coal demand and consumption, the citizens of Maryland can assist in putting its idle miners to work. The same effort is applicable in each of Maryland's thousands of manufactured articles. Maryland can supply any article of commerce from jewelry, clothing, millinery and furniture to fabricated steel and aeroplanes. Maryland is one of the leading states in the production of seafood, canned vegetables, fruits, etc.

All grocers, manufacturers and dealers should carry window displays and newspaper advertising featuring Maryland products. People who use goods of national and international origin will be asked to aid in bringing Maryland business back to normalcy by buying a proportionate and fair amount of Maryland products. A greater consumption will effect an immediate need for greater supply. Our idle workers will find employment in the tin and can industries. Farmers will till more soil, buy more seed, fertilizer and machinery, hire more seasonal help to effect the necessary production. Accordingly, several thousand diversified manufacturing plants will need raw products, employes and salesman. Rail, bus and steamship transportation and many kindred aids will be affected.

In anticipating this revival, let all manufacturing concerns of Maryland enter this advertising and sales campaign and prepare to add to their present personnel, continuing wage levels so that earning power and buying power may be maintained. Eliminate fear, put the hoarded dollars back to work! Let us truly live "Maryland, My Maryland." Prosperity is just around the corner—let us go around and meet Prosperity! Will you join in official declaring the month of April the beginning of a period of business revival? Let us go to work!—Raymond W. Bellamy, Federal Director of Employment for Maryland.

CHILD HEALTH DAY.

Plans for the celebration of May Day—Child Health Day—throughout Maryland have been announced by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health. The first day of May—which has come to be associated throughout the length and breadth of this country as the starting point for the year's activities in child health—falls on Sunday, this year, and the special May Day games and dances and other exercises in commemoration of the spring festival, in which the children themselves take part, will accordingly take place at some favorable time before or after the first of the month.

The activity in which the State Department of Health is particularly interested and which is carried on in co-operation with the county superintendents of schools and the State Department of Education, is the health examination of the five and six year-olds in preparation for their admission

WIFE JOINS MATE IN HOLDUP RAIDS

Gets Thrill Out of Life Until Nabbed by Cops.

Kansas City, Mo. — Mrs. Mary Smario, twenty, has been implicated in a series of filling station holdups staged by her husband, Lucien Smario, and John Little, his partner, because she accompanied them on one of their raids just for the thrill of it.

"I just couldn't stand to stay at home when I knew Lucien was having such an exciting time," she told the police after the trio had been arrested. "They finally agreed to take me along with them, but after we got caught I found out it wasn't much fun," she said.

It was Little's habit of smoking a pipe during the holdups that led to the arrest of the three.

The three have signed confessions concerning eleven holdups. There may have been more holdups staged by the three, but the police were able to connect them only with eleven.

"I hate it all on account of Mary, and our baby," Little said, "but I had to do something because we were in danger of dying from hunger because I had been unable to work."

Little sustained a broken leg two months ago when he fell while digging a well at Avondale, Mo.

"Smario suggested that we turn bandits and make some money," Little said, "and I listened and agreed against my better judgment, possibly because of the urgent need of money at home."

Smario is a Spaniard. He claimed to have come to Kansas City only two weeks before starting the holdups.

Hunt Girl Held Captive by Tribe in Australia

Sydney.—A white girl who for nine years has been living among a tribe of little known aborigines in the wilds of northern Australia is being sought on the basis of rumors filtering back to civilization.

Reports that the beautiful young girl, about eighteen, had been seen recently resulted in organization of an expedition to penetrate the wilds.

The reports were substantiated by other reports which followed sinking of the Australian yacht Douglas Mawson in 1923. It was said a woman and her nine-year-old daughter had survived and had made their way to the village of the aborigines, about 400 miles east of Port Darwin. Subsequently the mother was reported to have been slain and the girl kept captive.

The district where the girl is reported captive is little explored and almost nothing is known of the natives. The few white men who have established contact with the natives claim they wear no clothing, have no domestic animals, are nomads and live under crude wind shelters.

Weds Girl He Once Attempted to Kill

Vienna.—A drama of jealousy which two years ago nearly resulted in a beautiful girl's death and a charge of murder against a young actor has had a happy ending.

In the spring of 1930 Kurt Daehl, angered because his actress sweetheart, Grete Maren, appeared to be favoring the suit of a richer rival, fired five shots at her. Doctors saved the girl's life and, although she received wounds which left permanent scars on her face, she pleaded so eloquently for the young man at his trial that his sentence was reduced to two years' imprisonment.

Daehl now has been released and the two are married.

Gives Himself K. O. as He Flees Holdup

Los Angeles.—John Nelson, thirty-nine, self-termed "globe trotter," is in prison here, after what police called the "worst bungled" robbery attempt on record.

Walking into the Security First National bank through the janitor's door, Nelson demanded that a clerk working overtime hand him $5,000. The employee was reaching for the money when Nelson became so excited he started to run.

He banged his head into a door, knocking himself out completely. When police arrived he was still unconscious and had to be carried to the patrol wagon.

The DAIRY

BUTTERFAT ALONE BRINGS RETURNS

No Money in Production of Thin Cream.

With so many farmers turning to milk production and so many dairymen to cream production it is natural that creameries have been complaining about thin cream. The main fact to remember is that it is butterfat alone which determines the amount of returns to farmers selling their cream to creameries.

Many patrons have the idea that a large amount of cream should return a correspondingly large pay check, forgetting that they are paid only for the butterfat in the cream, or the butter made from the fat.

The skimming of a rich cream is a decided advantage to the patrons in more ways than one. Not only does it make a considerable saving in hauling but a greater amount of skim milk is retained for use on the farm.

Taking a herd of ten cows with an average yield of 4,000 pounds of milk testing 3.5 per cent, the total milk production will be 40,000 pounds and the total butterfat 1,400 pounds. Where the separator turned out a cream containing 20 per cent butterfat 7,000 pounds of cream, containing 1,400 pounds butterfat, would be sent to the dairy, leaving only 33,000 pounds of skim milk. Where separation produces a cream containing 40 per cent butterfat the same amount of butterfat, that is 1,400 pounds, will be sent to the creamery. This leaves 33,500 pounds of skim milk for use on the farm. This represents a saving in hauling of 3,500 pounds of milk and it gives an additional supply of 3,500 pounds of skim milk for use on the farm.

Poor Policy to Reduce Quality of Herd Sires

With present low milk and butterfat prices we hear some talk of using beef bulls on the dairy herd. This is a practice that is too often adopted by short-sighted dairymen when the price of their product begins to discourage them. The result inevitably is that when prices do come back this dairymen has no good young dairy cows coming on to replace the old ones which must be eliminated. He finds himself then in poor position to compete with the dairymen who has continuously built up his herd. A study of any large number of profitable high-producing herds will reveal that this goal has been accomplished in most cases by the use of high-class herd sires over a long period of time. The dairymen who will find themselves the most successful when conditions return to normal are those who are using the best possible dairy bulls at the present time. —Successful Farming.

Important Dairy Points

Maintaining satisfactory prices for farm products is certainly to be included as an important function in the economics of dairy farm management. What is a satisfactory price to one farmer may not be a satisfactory price to another farmer. Quality of product and convenience to the consumer in its distribution are important factors in persuading him to pay a satisfactory price. Farmers cannot force consumers to take a given quantity of a given product at a given time and at a given price unless that price also suits consumers. And so it is important (1) that we strive to reduce the costs of producing feed crops; (2) that we strive to do more work better with less labor costs; (3) that we conserve our capital investments; and (4) that we do the best we can at supplying consumers with that quantity of our products for which they are willing to pay satisfactory prices.—Exchange.

Why Cow-Testing Bodies?

They offer records necessary to—
1. Intelligently breed and develop dairy cattle.
2. Maintain and increase herd efficiency and herd profits.
3. Prove bulls by daughter and dam comparisons.
4. Eliminate the cow of low producing ability.
5. Select the dams from which calves will be worth raising.
6. Feed good cows at the lowest possible cost per pound of fat.
7. Make possible the fitting of supply to market demand.
8. Adjust the feed requirements of the herd to the crops produced.
9. Provide an incentive for the herd owner to do a better bit of work.—Hoard's Dairyman.

DAIRY FACTS

Expansion in testing means contraction in poor dairying.

If you want your cow to do well tomorrow you must keep her well today, is an old principle.

Creamery butter production in Idaho has increased from less than 5,000,000 pounds in 1921 to more than 26,000,000 pounds in 1930.

Hints for Homemakers By Jane Rogers

RUBBING a teaspoonful of sugar along with salt and pepper into a steak will improve the flavor. The sugar caramelizes on the outside holding in the juices which gives the meat added nutritional value.

When bottle caps, fountain pen tops, etc., stick try twisting a rubber band tightly around the part to be unscrewed. The rubber will not slide and you can get a good grip on the part to be unscrewed.

Hints for Homemakers By Jane Rogers

ONE way to brighten up old umbrellas which have become shabby is to sponge them with a cold solution of strong tea.

The easiest and safest way to clean a clock is to place a piece of cloth which has been soaked in paraffin in the bottom and let the fumes do the work.

Cheaper cuts of meat can be made almost as tasty as the more expensive cuts by including sugar along with salt and pepper in the seasoning. The quantity used—about a teaspoonful—is not enough to sweeten but blends the other seasonings and helps to break down the tough fibres.

The monthly consecration service of C. E. followed Sunday School, at Mt. Union, on Sunday, A. M., with very interesting lessons, and fair attendance. Some of the women are planning to attend the annual Missionary Conference to be held at Kridler's Church, near Westminster, on April 15th.

April 1st, opened the trout season in Maryland, and many fishermen lined the creeks, regardless of rough weather, with encouraging success; but even that sport has suffered a change. Now, one needs to have a badge (license) a calendar (less we arrive a day too soon or too late) a measuring stick (no catch taken under seven inches) a clock (for time limit) an arithmetic (not more than ten allowed, and deduction of all under 7 inches returned to water) and in fear of missing some of these requisites one is apt to forget hook and line and bait, not to mention our own lunch box—quite a moving! "Let us dream of the days that are gone"—when we were welcome along any stream, took our lunch in a paper sack, went early, and cast in our line hopefully and sat until we had eye-strain watching to see the cork "bob," and returned at sunset rested happy, and content that we were good fishers—and we were, if patience counts.

One of our local papers, last week, carried an article on these sad times, that people seem to be afraid to smile and seem to have lost faith in everything, and everything, and urging the upward look to a Higher Power. This was indeed sound philosophy. Man-kind have taken their stand on material things, and now find, when 'tis placed before the spiritual, as the good old hymn says "Till other ground is sinking sand," and they've nothing to cling to; but tink ob yo marcies, chile, tink ob yo marcies—and you can smile again.

One of the farm horses belonging to R. J. Walden, died very suddenly, one day last week.

We like the plain talk about the Chain Letter scheme, in last week's issue, and claim the prize for breaking many such "chains." Not long ago we received one requesting nine copies to be made and sent to nine friends, within 24 hours, and each of these chosen friends to do the same, thereby receiving great blessing; or if one fails to obey, terrible disaster will follow. A growing concern, and it would be a sure way to increase Uncle Sam's budget and end this dispute on increased taxation.

Get Room to Selves by Killing Russian Moscow.—The housing situation in Moscow was dramatically illustrated by the sentencing of Mary Bousigina and her sweetheart, Ivan Levitras, to ten years' imprisonment for murdering a man who shared their room. They said they killed their companion, Asabashvili, because they desired the privacy of their room. In passing sentence the court emphasized that it was a nonpolitical case and that ten years was the limit.

BOY AND GIRL TO MAKE LOVE TEST

Seek to Prove Wiles of Cupid Are Lasting.

Kansas City, Mo.—To prove that his wiles are lasting, Dan Cupid is about to be entered in a long contest with time, with the announcement of the winner to be made in five or six years.

The little fellow must stand by and watch the annulment of the marriage of Kathleen Stewart, fifteen, said to be a granddaughter of Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and Paul T. Lange, Jr., eighteen, son of a Kansas City druggist.

Proceedings for the annulment were made at the direction of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert Anderson.

Cupid may hover as close to his victims as he chooses while the girl pursues her studies at the exclusive Barstow School for Girls here and the boy attends college. These are the terms of an agreement reached by the bride, bridegroom and their parents.

If, at the end of the school year, Cupid is the master of the situation, Paul and Kathleen again may become engaged.

But then looms another separation, according to Paul T. Lange, father of the bridegroom. Robert G. Stewart of New York, father of Kathleen, has promised to send her to Vassar college for four years and Paul will begin a two-year course at the University of Kansas.

After that the winner of the contest between Cupid and time will be announced, and if the principals in the 1931 holiday romance still are as much in love they may be remarried with their parents' blessings.

The couple eloped to Merriam, Kan., and were married without the consent of their parents. Both gave their ages as over eighteen, to eliminate the necessity of obtaining their parents' permission.

Stillwater Vets Form a New Last Man's Club

Stillwater, Minn.—Another "Last Man's club" composed of veterans of the World war is being formed here.

The original "Last Man's club," composed of Civil war soldiers, held its last meeting and disbanded two years ago, with Charles M. Lockwood of Chamberlain, S. D., the last survivor.

The new club, to be known as the "Bully Beef club," is made up of 285 American Legion men identified with the Stillwater post, although all are not residents here.

Instead of the famous bottle of Burgundy wine that graced the annual banquet table of the original club, a can of "bully beef" brought back from France by Doctor Frissell of Brown-ton, Minn., will be the trophy of the new club. It is to be opened by the last survivor, probably 50 years from now.

Jobless, Gets $1,000 for Finding $25,000 Gems

New York.—Charles Kane, forty-year-old jobless farmhand, shuffled along the Bronx river parkway near Hartsdale and stumbled on a valise containing jewels valued at $25,000.

He was "broke." So he "flagged" motorists with his thumb, begged nickels until he had 15 cents and called a telephone number he found in the valise. The valise belonged to Mrs. Robert T. Stone of New York. It had hounded out of a car driven by her sister, Miss Edyth McCoon. Insurance agents for Mrs. Stone paid Kane $1,000.

Soviet Ex-Stammerers Speak at Convention

Moscow.—A conference of ex-stammerers took place here in which every delegate proved his right to attend by making a speech. Addressing the conference of former stammerers, Professor Vsevolod Kostchenko said that there are 2,000,000 persons with speech defects in the country and that practically all are curable. "Tractor" and "pilatletka" (five year plan) are among the most difficult words for stammerers to pronounce.

Discover East African Frog That Hates Water

Boston.—A frog that never goes near the water is one of the curiosities noted by Arthur Loveridge of Harvard's museum of comparative zoology during a trip through East Africa. He found this type of frog in an exceedingly dry and sandy region.

Old Size Money Out Totals $573,000,000

Washington.—More than $573,000,000 in old-fashioned over-size paper currency is still lying about the country. This money, representing almost 9 per cent of all the paper money in existence, is believed to be held largely by hoarders. Banks have long since ceased using it and have turned it in for exchange for the smaller and handier size.

Treasury officials say it is entirely too early to decide just how much of the money is being hoarded and how much has been lost, destroyed or removed from circulation channels in other ways.

LARGE PRE-ROMAN CITY UNCOVERED

U. S. Scientists Make Important Find in Italy.

Rome.—American scientific skill has unearthed at Minturno a vast pre-Roman city four times as large as Pompeii. It has priceless treasures in art and incalculable contributions to the knowledge of pre-Christian times. The excavations are being conducted by an American expedition under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania and headed by Dr. Jotham Johnson of Philadelphia.

Precious objects of unknown value are yet expected to be found in the necropolis of this buried city, where the tombs are filled with rich treasure in gold and precious stones, so the archeologists believe.

After an inspection of the city with others, Doctor Johnson who described the great temples and ancient public buildings which he had so far brought to light.

Fifth Century B. C. "The city of Minturno dates back to the Fifth century B. C.," said Doctor Johnson. "We have discovered works of art from that far distant period, which show a Greek influence. The city evidently was brought under Roman domination about the Third century B. C. and from then on until the Tenth century it suffered many changes. Probably it embraced Christianity about the Fifth century."

The concession to conduct excavations in Italy was the first granted a foreign organization in thirty years, while the territory assigned to the expedition is regarded as one of the richest in the field of archeology.

The buried city is located ninety miles from Rome and was touched by the ancient Appian way, several hundred yards of which the expedition has uncovered in its original form, with the big flagstones of Roman roads.

Doctor Johnson exhibited a Greek market place, which, he said, was unique in the world and that such a find did not exist, so far as was known, even in Greece itself.

"We have uncovered fifteen constructions," said Doctor Johnson. "Some of the city walls must be of the Fifth century B. C., while there are others of the Fourth. There is a colonnade of the late Fourth century B. C. and three temples of the Third and First centuries B. C. There is a temple of the period of Augustus. Another temple is of the period of Sulla, with a tremendous sanctuary wall. There is a Second century A. D. fountain or water clock. There are the huge amphitheater, shipyards and docks, and the aqueduct, the latter standing above the ground for centuries."

Coast Boys Will Hunt Mexican Flying Snakes Bakersfield, Calif.—Two intrepid southern Californians soon plan to search the unexplored Mexican jungles for flying snakes.

The pair, Thomas H. Brown, of Bakersfield, and Paxton C. Hayes, of Los Angeles, hope to take alive some of the "snakes," about which fabulous tales have been spun into Mexican folklore. In addition, they expect to explore ancient Mayan ruins sighted by Col. Charles Lindbergh. These ruins never have been explored.

Scientists believe the snake the two youths are seeking is a member of the cobra family and to be deadly poisonous. Although such snakes have been described many times, there is no actual proof of their existence.

Brown and Hayes plan to drive as far as they can into the Mexican jungles and then begin their penetration of the dense forests on foot and by collapsible boats.

Oh, Boy! Daisy—It's surprising how many men you keep company with. How many do you think you can keep on the string. Dolly—I really don't know, dear. How many men are there?

Not the Answers! "A statesman is supposed to be familiar with all public questions." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "but not necessarily with all the answers."—Washington Star.

Whitstable, Kent, England.—That rather regrettable form of abuse, known in America as "the raspberry," and in England as "the rahso," is liable to a fine of $2 here.

A youth named Sidney Hogbin was fined that amount for an offense, which was officially described as "disorderly conduct," although the policeman said he gave another man "the raspberry."

Hogbin pleaded that the man had previously made an objectionable remark to him and that this was the only way of getting back.

The police chief said that he had received numerous complaints about these "rahsoes," and he had brought the case to try and stop and practice.

It's surprising how many men you keep company with. How many do you think you can keep on the string. Dolly—I really don't know, dear. How many men are there?

"A statesman is supposed to be familiar with all public questions." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "but not necessarily with all the answers."—Washington Star.

Said Lydia to Roy

THE sun lay blanching the hills to the splendor of perfect spring and as far as the eye could reach, from the little swelling of the land where Helen stood, slanting orchards, with young trees eager to bear, reached to the horizon. Presently, very presently, they would burst into incredible blossom and a world crammed already to its perfection with beauties of one sort or another, would accomplish the impossible, and become more beautiful.

At least, that was the way Helen, eighteen, and with the love of a youth in her heart, felt as she viewed it from the rear of her father's fruit farm, that was known as Farnham's.

With that kind of youth in her heart, and added to it love, and a one-hour-old betrothal, it was natural that to Helen, at eighteen, the quieter, more adult world which contained her father, Adam Farnham, and her mother, Cora, should seem, by comparison, lusterless.

You wondered, when you were eighteen and so in love with life that the ground under your feet seemed to quiver, when it was only you yourself quivering from love of it, just what there was left for forty and forty-five; Cora and Adam.

It mattered only to have been kissed, as she, Helen, had just been kissed by the youth named Blair Beck, who had just ridden over in his brand new car from his father's farm, not twenty miles distant, and with a ring in his pocket which now sparkled on her left hand. They were to be married and live in a white house with green shutters on the Beck farm, the promised gift of the senior Beck to his son, and the blessings of all four parents had descended on the youngsters as the apple blossoms would presently descend and whiten the scene for miles around.

The only deterrent, it seemed to Helen, was to have reached the peak of life so soon. From now on, what could there be but anticlimax to the ecstasy of this; the ecstasy of the betrothal kisses that still lay singing against her lips; the strange sweet tingling of the flesh; the dream of tomorrow that could not be quick enough in coming.

"You are young and too eager for life, my lamb," her mother told her, trying to calm her excitements. "Let everything come in its turn. There are compensations for every age."

How old the mother of Helen seemed to her when she said this, seated beside her lamp in her perpetually gray gown, with her gray hair drawn in low portieres over her ears, and her hands so tranquil at her tasks of mending or sewing frocks. How sapless. What was there left for Cora? Father, of course, but they had had everything together. Adam was as relaxed now as Cora was, and there were deep braces ground in perpendicular lines on the sides of his mouth, and they seldom kissed, he and Cora, and it was nothing for him to come in dog tired of an evening, kick out of his boots and just lounge with his head sometimes on Cora's lap, if she sat at the head of the sofa. And little to say. Scarcely ever any of the tender, lovely things to say, except if Cora happened to be ailing, and then he could be tender.

But who wanted tenderness only when one was ailing? Who wanted tenderness from a tired gray man in his stockings; who, in turn, and the private question to herself shocked Helen, who wanted to bestow tenderness upon a pale old lady with hair of a gray pallor? Helen did, of course. Helen wanted to bestow tenderness upon both Cora and Adam, because of the passionate love she felt for them. The love of daughter for parents. But that was different. The question still remained high in her heart. How dared she face the down side of life, after the ecstasy of a present like hers? Cora and Adam must have had that youth, too, and now look. Oh, one must live, one must live in youth—to store up against the bankruptcy of age!

They were married, Helen and Blair, when the ground was white with the apple blossoms, and the day they returned from a four months' honeymoon the last slaps of green and white paint was on the cottage on the Beck place and four aged, tired, amiable and retrospective parents were there to wish them endless blessings.

There were blessings. Health, children and a farm that widened and prospered. Blair succeeded well and the children of Helen were the fine, ripe children of health, and the sorrows that came were the inevitable ones of passing life and death.

With the years, the four parents sickened and died; there were frightening illnesses among the children, drought came and pestilence among the cattle, but in the main, the good overbalanced the ill. Drought passed, pestilence lifted, the children thrive and the beauty that was Helen's ripened, bore its fruit, and oh, so gently declined.

The same with Blair. His heftiest years reached their peak, his broad shoulders carried their heaviest burdens, and slowly, almost imperceptibly, the years marched down. So imperceptibly that Helen, who had not felt her body wither, awoke one day to the shock of a realization that was almost more than she could bear.

Lydia, her lovely child, her little child, her little girl, only yesterday with plaits down her back, was betrothed. There was nothing one could say, because it was right that she should be. The youth was a fine upstanding one of her position and kind. They were cleanly, rightly, in love. They were of age. Helen and Blair, gazing with amazement upon this phenomenon which had befallen them, were the older generation, looking down the years at the love of their young ones. A rather quiet Helen, with gray in her hair and eyes that smiled more often than her lips; a quiet, unobtrusive Blair who came and went without much ado, and upon whom the years had climbed, whitening his hair and bending his back a little.

Remote, a little gray, a little lusterless, they seemed to Lydia and the boy, Roy, who came asking blessing. So old, so finished, as it were, so dear, too, but pale silhouettes against the pale, unexciting, uninteresting background of age. Across this chasm, the youth of Lydia and Roy looked at Helen and Blair and back across this chasm Blair and Helen found themselves looking at their daughter.

"Blair, were we at their age ever as callow, as adorably foolish and outside the meaning of life as Lydia and Roy seem? How can two such shallow little pans contain happiness? How can they know the rich, sweet things of life that we know? How long they must wait, dear! In a way it seems sad to be so young."

Across the chasm, Helen and Roy, staring at age, held one another tightly by the hands.

"How terrible it must be to be old," said Lydia to Roy, and Roy to Lydia.

Whole World Joined in

Mad Desire for Change

In the reign of Charles I, when disturbance was brewing in England, Falkland imparted to parliament the maxim: "When it is not necessary to change, it is necessary not to change."

He was for no violent change but for medication of public affairs without it. Would he were alive to set the fashion now when change runs loose in the world! Change for no good reason, merely for the sake of change. One's first morning coffee comes in a can with a new label, a new double lid. The old label was all right, nothing the matter with it; the top of the can fitted perfectly; nothing ailed it. The new label is a shock, the double lid an impediment. One's shaving soap has a new holder, new cover, or comes in a new size every year. The same with tooth powder; new cans, no better, just new.

Do not our good friends the merchants—does not everybody now—undervalue the familiar? For the familiar does have a value. One likes to get what he got before in the same kind of a wrapper, whether it is gospel truth or English marmalade. There is a rush to translate the Bible into contemporary vernacular. Little is gained by it. It just makes unfamiliar words and sounds of what was part of the mental texture of millions of people—Life.

First Modern English Poet

Reuben Post Halleck says: "Before Chaucer's works English was, as we have seen, a language of dialects. He wrote in the Midland dialect, and aided in making that the language of England. Lounsbury says of Chaucer's influence: 'No really national language could exist until a literature had been created which would be admired and studied by all who could read and taken as a model by all who could write. It was only a man of genius who could lift up one of these dialects into a pre-eminence over the rest, or could ever give to the scattered forces existing in any of them the unity and vigor of life. This was the work that Chaucer did.' For this reason he deserves to be called our first modern English poet. At first sight, his works look far harder to read than they really are, because the spelling has changed so much since Chaucer's day."

Inventor of Post Cards

It was on the suggestion of an Austrian, Doctor Herrmann, that the post card was born. He had advocated the introduction of cards about the size of an envelope, to be carried at a reduced rate, the sender to be limited to a maximum of 20 words, including signature and address. This was in 1869. The idea was quickly adopted by the Austrian post office, and other postal authorities followed suit, including Great Britain, where the post card was introduced in October, 1870. But, unknown to Doctor Herrmann, the post card was suggested, years before 1869, by Heinrich von Stephan, the founder of the Universal Postal Union. It was turned down, but Von Stephan was the man who thought of it first.

All-Time Holiday Time

Some employers of France are trying the experiment of spreading vacation time over the entire year. It has been suggested by some employees, who would rather have their vacation when the weather was not so hot as to prevent the full enjoyment of the time. There is much to be said for and against this scheme, but some employers argue that it is much more convenient to have a few away at one time rather than several, as has been the case heretofore. Others claim that there is not much business in the heated term, and therefore the assistants can be spared best at that time.

PILOTS PREPARING FOR LONG FLIGHTS

Three Ocean Hops to Be Undertaken by Women.

New York.—Three ocean hops by women, a world-circling flight, two flights across the Pacific from Seattle to Tokyo, and the usual quota of half a dozen jaunts across the Atlantic from New York to Europe are on the new year's program of ocean flying, which will open with the attempt of two Japanese to span the Pacific.

Ruth Nichols and Elinor Smith have their planes equipped for trans-Atlantic flights and are awaiting the clear weather signal from Dr. James H. Kimball, who has supplied weather data for almost every Atlantic flight.

Juanita Burns, not satisfied with Atlantic hazards, will attempt to fly the Pacific alone. She is now making tests with her plane preparatory to the flight. Laura Ingalls, who was in the flight picture last year, has now apparently dropped out.

Two Japanese pilots, Capt. Y. Nakogoya and Sergt. K. Asaka, are in New York city preparing for a one-stop flight from New York to Tokyo. They expect to leave in March.

A solo flight is being planned by an American, but only his friends know the definite arrangements. It is known, however, that the plane already has been tested and fuel tanks for a load of 800 gallons have been installed and that the goal of the pilot is to fly the Pacific.

Longest Flight Planned. The possibility is also seen that this secret flyer may break the long-distance flight record made by Boardman and Polando on their hop from New York to Istanbul, Turkey. It is expected that he will be able to exceed their mark by 1,000 miles.

Most of the pilots who are planning Atlantic hops expect to go alone. In this group are William Marsalls and William Uibrich, who have been tuning up planes for two months so as to have them ready in the spring for flights which are expected to be made solo.

The giant German monoplane, the Dornier DO-X, which is still in New York, may also attempt a northern trans-oceanic crossing in the spring. The engines of the giant plane have been modernized in the Curtiss plant at Patterson, N. J.

Monte Carlo Forms Antisulicide Club

Monte Carlo.—An "antisulicide" club has been formed here to prevent unlucky gamblers from taking their losses too seriously.

Persons of all nationalities who try their luck at the casino are being asked to join. Similar clubs are being formed at other gambling resorts on the Riviera. A series of suicides prompted the idea.

Monte Carlo has long been notorious for its supposedly large number of suicide cases. To kill this unfavorable impression, casino authorities have gathered statistics to prove that the suicide rate here is the lowest in the world.

They claim that the suicide rate in Monte Carlo is ten per 1,000 population each year compared with thirteen per 1,000 in the United States.

Home-Making Advice Is Given in U. S. Schools

Washington.—How to decorate the walls of a home so that they will be restful to the eyes, how to clean it so it will not spoil, how to prevent an electric shock from your washer when the floor all about it is wet, and many other such bits of advice for the housewife are now being offered in vocational schools, the federal board for vocational education has announced.

The science of home making and all its component parts, such as economy and efficiency in child care, food and nutrition, home furnishings and equipment, sanitation and health, and in textiles and clothing, is now being taught. And there is no longer any reason, says the board, for ignorance of scientific principles essential to the housewife.

In the broad educational scope the instructors teach bacteriology, chemistry and physics with respect to their appliance to household activities. The methods of teaching are such that a fourteen-year-old child can understand them.

Gives Rules for People Who Have Weak Hearts

Buffalo, N. Y.—Dr. Franz M. Groedel, German heart specialist, gave 12 commandments to be followed by persons having or fearing heart trouble.

1. Avoid all disturbance of the heart and circulatory system.
2. Eat often, but never too much.
3. Avoid overuse of nicotine.
4. Use very little alcohol, and drink only weak coffee.
5. Take exercise by walking, riding, or golfing, but do so in moderation.
6. All exercise should be regarded as a remedy and not a sport.
7. Rest in the middle of every day.
8. Take excitement in moderate doses and be complete abstainer from extreme excitement.
9. Spread your vacations through the year.
10. Take one day a week of rest, and, if possible, get into the country.
11. Follow your physician's advice.

Judge's English Bad, but His Law Is Good

Bridgeport, Conn.—Superior Court Judge Foster gave himself zero in English, but marked himself 100 in law.

Counsel sought to have his judgments in two civil actions set aside because he used faulty language, saying "an ordinarily reasonable and prudent person." Foster declining to set aside the judgments said:

"This group of words constitutes awkward, clumsy and imperfect English. In place of these words there should be substituted 'reasonably prudent person.' But the only power the court has to disturb the verdict is based on some error of law by the judge or jury."

Expedition Discovers Old Assyrian Tablets

Philadelphia.—A highly colored haematite figurine of a bull, decorated with gold tracings, has been found by the University of Pennsylvania archeological expedition at Tell Billa in Mesopotamia.

Word of the find was sent to the university museum by Dr. E. A. Spenser, field director of the expedition. "In addition to the figure of the bull," Doctor Spenser reported, "we have unearthed a number of Assyrian tablets, a gold carving and a beautifully carved small ivory plaque more than 4,000 years old."

POULTRY

FEWER BIRDS, BUT THEY LAY BETTER

Increased Egg Production Is Being Maintained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

Hens and pullets are fewer, but egg production is being maintained because the fowls are laying more eggs per bird. On October 1, 1931, there were 6.2 per cent fewer hens and pullets for layers in farm flocks of the crop reporters as compared with October 1 a year ago, and there were 5.2 per cent fewer young chickens. An increase of 1 per cent is reported for young chickens other than pullets for layers.

Egg production has been maintained, says the department, despite the decrease in layers. The number of eggs laid per farm flock was reported as 18.6 eggs on October 1, compared with 18.2 eggs on October, 1930, and 18 eggs for the October 5-year average. The aggregate of 10 reported layings on the first of each month from January to October is 291.1 eggs per farm flock in 1931, compared with 290 eggs in 1930, and 285.2 eggs in the five years 1925-1929.

Converting the statistics into "eggs laid per hen," the department says that the October 1 average for 1931 was 26.2 eggs per 100 hens and pullets of laying age, compared with 24.8 in 1930, with 25.7 in 1929, and a 5-year average of 25.2 for that date. Ten reported layings, January to October, aggregated 389.5 eggs per 100 birds last year, against 372.2 eggs in 1930, and 370 for the 1925-1929 average.

Proper Regulation of Light in Laying House

Pullets that are fully matured, and in good condition, should have lights as soon as they are placed in the laying house. The increased feeding day will enable them to eat enough to maintain their condition and stimulate egg laying. If, however, the pullets are immature when placed in the house, it is not advisable to give them more than a 12 to 13 hour day. This amount of light will enable them to eat more feed, which in turn will help them to complete their growth, but will not stimulate high production. If the birds are not fully grown before heavy production begins they will become somewhat stunted and likely lay smaller eggs.

The better the quality of the birds, the less is the amount of illumination required to get a satisfactory egg production of around 50 to 60 per cent. Some flocks of high producing pullets will eat enough food to maintain their weight and production without the increased length of day, but even with these flocks, a winter egg-laying slump may often be avoided if a medium amount of light is used.

Don't Pasture Alfalfa

Alfalfa fields which have been reseeded by late rains should not be pastured this fall unless there is a foot or more growth, advises South Dakota State college. Pasturing may cause severe damage to the root systems of alfalfa plants. The plants should be allowed to go into the winter with a good top growth so as to store plant food in the roots for a vigorous growth next spring. In addition to the plant food translocation, a heavy growth holds snow and modifies ground temperature enough to prevent severe heaving and also increases moisture content of the soil.—Prairie Farmer.

Alfalfa for Hens

Most corn belt flock owners have available the best green feed substitute that has been found. Even if one has no leafy, fine-stemmed green alfalfa hay on one's own farm, there is generally some available in the community. If necessary, one can pay the price of two or three pounds of corn for a pound of this sort of hay, for the amount needed to give the laying flock what they need in order to carry on heavy winter egg production.—Wallace's Farmer.

Poultry Notes

Coarsely ground corn cobs are now used to some extent as litter in hen and hog houses. Farm mills run by tractor power make this grinding practical.

Poultry and egg marketing schools to guide poultry raisers in selling their products have been established throughout Minnesota by the University of Minnesota department of agriculture.

The Leghorn breed of chickens was first introduced into the United States in 1835.

Poultrymen owe it to their possible bank account and to the development of their flock of birds to cull their growing pullets continuously.

Egg production may fall in flocks housed near large cities because clouds of smoke reduce the amount of sunshine received by the birds in such districts.

Showers of Meteorites

Not Unusual Happening

The oldest meteorite to be discovered immediately after falling to earth is still preserved. It fell in France on November 7, 1492, and penetrated into the soil to a depth of six feet, causing a great noise that was heard over a wide area. The emperor had the stone, which weighed 200 pounds, placed in a church, and the wise men of the day regarded it as a divine sign, for it was the first meteorite they had ever seen. However, there are Chinese records dating back before Christ telling of falling meteorites, one of which dropped on a royal palace.

It is not at all unusual for meteorites to descend upon the earth in showers. In 1868 a great mass, not unlike a small comet, crashed in Poland, and by actual count, the swarm consisted of 100,000 pieces. In Hungary another collection of small particles was gathered in, the total being 1,200 pounds. Some outstanding meteorites and the places where they were recovered, together with their weights, are: Bacubrito, Mexico, twenty-seven tons; Willamette, Ore., sixteen tons; Bendago, Brazil, five tons, and Australia, four tons. During the past 126 years only 850 meteorites have been discovered on earth, but millions are consumed in our atmosphere long before they reach the surface.

Development of Knife

as Table Appointment

From the Seventeenth century after the fork caused so much excitement, the development of table appointment was rapid. Silver service was soon introduced and in ordinary use in the Eighteenth century.

Although comparatively recent as a table implement, the knife might be established as older than the fork or spoon if traced to the original cutting implements of flint or other stone. In the Bronze age there were cutting tools of bronze and so on down through the centuries, but as late as 300 years ago the table knife was a rarity. For a long period men carried about with them in their belt or shoe a knife for general purposes, such as modern man carries around a pocket knife. Whenever a large portion of food were served him, he cut it with this knife and then returned it to its holder.

The greatest advance in the table knife took place after the Seventeenth century, when the implement became popular in England. Sheffield developed as one of the greatest cutlery manufacturing centers in the world and has retained to the present day the proud title without challenge.

Labor Unions' History

The guilds of craftsmen of the Middle Ages were in some respects labor unions, but of skilled workers. For unskilled labor the best prototype is furnished by the Six Men of Dorset. They were farm laborers who about 150 years ago banded together to demand of their employers meat to eat at least once a week. They were prosecuted for conspiracy and sentenced to long terms of penal servitude. It was specifically against the law to form a labor union in England until 1824, when slight relaxations were admitted. The labor union movement was slow in starting in the United States. It was not until the middle of the Nineteenth century that labor unions were at all tolerated and then only mildly. Their rights were negligible. The rise of the labor unions in this country has been since that time.

Pioneer's Grave Unknown

Arkansas Post on the Arkansas river was the first settlement in Arkansas. It was founded in 1686 by Chevalier de Pont. Nothing much is left there but excavations where the houses stood and an ancient cemetery. It is in this old graveyard that the interest of St. Louis lies; for here, it is believed, the body of Pierre LaCade Leguette rests. He was on his way from St. Louis to New Orleans in 1778 when he fell ill at Arkansas Post and died there. He was buried in the edge of the wilderness that then surrounded the outpost. His grave has never been identified, but it is probable the cemetery still there grew around it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

State's Long Coast Lines

Michigan has the longest coast line of any state, 1,715 miles, including 905 in the upper and 810 in the lower peninsula. Florida is second with 1,197 miles on the Atlantic and the gulf of Mexico. California is third with 913 miles. Maine is a good way down the list, with 228 miles of coast, as measured by the United States coast geodetic survey, and is preceded by Texas, Louisiana, North Carolina and Oregon. If, however, all the indentations and bays of Maine are taken into consideration, its shore line is over 2,500 miles, or much longer than that of any other state.

Hardy Musk-Ox

The musk-ox is evidently an animal of a former age which has persisted in the bleakest, most unpromising part of our globe, says Nature Magazine. Now their range is the barren lands of Canada, west of Hudson bay, the islands of the Arctic ocean and the northern coast of Greenland.

When assailed, the musk-ox will form a circle, heads out and lowered, with the young within. Thus they present an impenetrable wall of sharp horns.

HOW SIN BEGINS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 2:15-17; 3:1-8.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Garden God Planted.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How Sin Started.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
How to Overcome Temptation.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Our Responsibility for Our Sins.

A look upon the world proves that man is not what he should be. It is not reasonable to suppose that man is now what he was when he came from the hands of the Creator, much less an improvement. The only way of accounting for this is by the historic fall of man as given in the Bible.

I. Man's Probation (Gen. 2:15-17).
1. The place (v. 15). It was in the beautiful Garden of Eden. Man's environment was suited to his nature.

2. The necessity (v. 16). This grows out of man's constitution. Adam was created with the possibility of character, but not with character. Alternative choice makes character possible. Freewill was what made Adam a real man.

3. The means (v. 17). It was most simple, just one prohibition. The tree of the knowledge of good and evil was forbidden. Alongside of this small restriction was placed a large privilege—the tree of life.

II. Man's Temptation (3:1-8).

1. The method (vv. 1-5). Satan, a personal, malicious being, appeared in the guise of a serpent. Notwithstanding the growing unpopularity of the doctrine, the fact remains that there is a personal devil. This is proven both by the Scriptures and experience. He did not appeal directly to the man. He chose to appeal to the woman through the serpent, and through the woman to the man.

a. He found the woman while alone.
b. He insinuated doubt into Eve's mind as to God's word and love. This is his method today. He tries to get people to doubt God's Word and then to doubt his goodness. He persuaded Eve that God was withholding from her something that was good. He today induces men to say that God is cruel, harsh, and unjust. He gets young people to think that father and mother are too exacting. As soon as one doubts God's word, he begins to criticize it and to disobey it.

c. To get Eve to doubt the penalty of sin. There is much flippant jesting about eternal punishment. Be it remembered, however, that this does not change its reality.

d. He appealed to innocent appetite. He argued that there would be no harm in eating, but great advantage.

e. Eve gazed upon that which God had forbidden and lusted after it.

2. The fall (vv. 6-8). The steps in the fall seem to have been rapid. From doubting God's love, Eve went to doubting his word. From gazing upon and lusting after that which God had prohibited, there was but a short step to indulgence. Eve not only disobeyed, but involved Adam in her sin.

III. Man's Judgment (vv. 9-24).
God's holy nature is such that when men sin he at once manifests himself. God called Adam and Eve to account the same day.

1. A disturbed relationship with God (v. 8). The introduction of sin marred man's familiar intercourse with the Almighty. Adam and Eve not only hid from God's presence, but when summoned by him began to make excuse and Adam even laid the blame on God.

2. The degradation of the serpent (v. 14). He henceforth became the type of sin and Satan (Num. 21:9; John 3:14; Rev. 12:9).

3. The undying enmity between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent (v. 15). This bitter enmity has continued from that day to this.

4. The ultimate victory of the woman's seed (v. 15). Satan's seed has harassed the woman's seed through the centuries, but on the cross the final stroke was made which crushed his head (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14; I John 3:8). This is the first gleam of the glorious gospel of Christ.

5. The judgment upon the woman (v. 16). This relates primarily to her as a wife and mother.

6. Man's new relationship to the earth (vv. 17-19). The earth was cursed on his account.

7. Death (v. 19). This includes spiritual and physical death.

8. Expulsion from the garden (v. 24). When man's nature was changed by sin, out from the beautiful garden he must go.

RANDOM SAYINGS

Apparent need is not always real need. He is our best friend who helps our real need.

It is a higher exhibition of Christian manliness to be able to bear trouble than to get rid of it.

If you have something good to say to a man better look him up and say it now. He won't be able to read his tombstone when he's dead.

ELECTRIC ENERGY
DOOMS BIG CITIES

Redistribution of Industry
Seen by Harper Leech.

New York.—Giant cities will grow no larger and will lose their present financial and industrial importance; industry will break up into smaller units and operate in what are now rural districts; the worker will receive a greater share of his employer's profits in order to maintain buying power; and the cost of killing a Chinaman will jump from about fifty dollars, the present level, to approximately $17,500, all in the comparatively near future, and because mankind has discarded human and animal energy based on food cultivation and substituted for it his newly discovered ability to convert solar energy into work, principally in the form of electric power. These are some of the predictions affecting the welfare of humanity made by Harper Leech, writer on economic subjects, in his new book "The Paradox of Plenty."

That "this is not a depression but a mishandling of the greatest era of plenty the world has ever known," is the thesis of Mr. Leech's book. "The plain fact is," he says in his preface, "that after thousands, perhaps millions, of years of living on the energy grudgingly tendered by the sun through annual harvests of crops, man suddenly became aware that the same sun had been storing energy for millions of years. He discovered in coal an energy store with millions of times the energy available from his own muscles. Nearly two hundred years later, he still thinks of 'scarcity' when there is no scarcity. And, failing to adjust his institutions and his financial mechanisms to the conditions of plenty, he has failed to realize the advantages of plenty."

Transformation of the United States. The transformation of the United States into a new form of industrial society, through the interconnection of electric power and transmission of energy, has already started, according to Mr. Leech, and "is now proceeding as rapidly as the previous political and economic integration of America by railroad construction."

Mr. Leech points to recent developments in the Carolinas as typical of what may be expected of the future industrialism of the United States in the wake of its constantly expanding use of electrical energy. "In the Piedmont region of the Carolinas," he writes, "the first quarter of the Twentieth century witnessed a repetition of the industrial revolution of the Eighteenth century in the north of England. There was the same shift from agriculture and cottage industries to factories, but no growth of cities to correspond to the growth of the steam-generated Babylons like Manchester, Leeds, Pittsburgh or Chicago, which gathered into themselves the great, constructive forces of the Nineteenth century."

"The new type of industrialism which is seen in most characteristic form in the Carolinas has been subjected to much criticism. But it brought to the inhabitants of those regions a far greater net gain of income and welfare than came to the people who lived through the great transitions from agriculture to factory life in regions of earlier industrial maturity. Whether urban critics like it or not—the Carolinas today are a prototype of the future industrialism of America."

The mammoth metropolises of the modern world already show signs of overgrowth and overspecialization, which in the organic world foretell the doom of a species.

"Because of the congestion in cities, there has been built up a complex system of distribution. There are brokers, jobbers, wholesalers, and warehouse men, all adding tremendously to the expense of transportation and handling."

"Superficially, the greater per capita consumption of electricity in cities would indicate higher living standards than in small communities with a lower per capita consumption, but much of the urban use of electricity goes merely to level up the city dweller's plane of life to that already enjoyed by the inhabitant of the smaller community without recourse to electrical or mechanical power."

Value Changes. Mr. Leech points out in his book that the vastly increased ability to produce agricultural and other products that electrical energy has placed in the hands of men has destroyed completely the promise that scarcity is a measure of value. With the energy now available, he says, it takes but a small proportion of the population to supply the essential needs of the whole nation.

Therefore, he adds, there can be no scarcity, and scarcity ceases to be a measure of value.

In conclusion Mr. Leech strikes a note of optimism for the future of the United States and its citizens, and for western civilization as a whole. "Slowly, he declares, 'the force of economic and technical realities has been removing from the throat of western mankind, the dead hand of obsolete economic doctrine. The evidence is unmistakable that humanity can escape from the prison house of want; and, although still rubbing eyes blinded from long confinement in the dungeon, can now see a new world. With famine vanquished and other forms of privation being rapidly diminished, old faiths born of want and fear have been losing force.'"

FRENCH BORDER TO HAVE STEEL WALL

Republic Unworried by Arms Cut Discussions.

Paris.—Whatever arms cuts may, or may not, be decided upon at Geneva, France is taking it for granted that her present vast scheme of frontier fortification will not be effected and is pushing ahead the building of the country's great steel wall.

Stretching from the English channel to the Mediterranean, the chain of modernized forts and pill-boxes is due for completion in two years, at a cost of $100,000,000. The father of the extensive defense chain was the late M. Andre Maginot, minister of war.

The great Hadrian wall in England, dating from the time of the Romans, the great wall of China, even the World War Hindenburg line, were mere straw defenses compared with the barrier France has set up as her protection from foreign foes. One of the mightiest forts in the chain, at Hackenberg, facing Germany, has been described as a man-made Gibraltar.

Underground Arsenal.

Deep down in the earth, the engineers of the French army have dug out an underground arsenal, fitted with mechanical appliances, whereby shot and shell can be rushed by a system of underground railroad to any of the smaller, subsidiary posts in the scheme of defense. The Hackenberg defends the great industrial area of Metz.

There are other big mountains of steel like the Hackenberg fort, but some of them are above ground, like the Hocwald. These and half a dozen other big forts keep guard over the 220 miles of frontier from the edge of the tiny territory of Luxembourg down to the Swiss border. Linked with the big forts are numerous smaller pill boxes, or machine-gun posts, some sunk even in the marshes of the Rhine.

Mounds of Steel.

Going along northern France by road, the traveler passes at regular intervals these mounds of steel, small or large, peeping from the earth, each with its gun, or guns, ready.

Cross-fire between the forts would result in the creation of what, the French general staff believe, would be an impenetrable barrier in which no human thing could live.

From the English channel down to Luxembourg, the defenses are not so important, being composed mainly of machine-gun nests.

Spanish Royal Palace
Is Now Open to Public

Madrid.—The former royal palace at Madrid, one of the finest of its kind in the world, has been thrown open to the public as the "Museum of the Republic."

Visitors are allowed to see the throne room, sitting rooms, banquet halls, the famous "Hall of Columns," where so many functions—including that of foot-washing on Good Friday—took place, but so far they are not permitted to visit the private apartments and bedrooms formerly occupied by the king, queen and the infants.

During the days of the monarchy the palace was not open to the public, but it was nevertheless possible to gain admittance through a letter from one's embassy, provided the royal family was not in residence at that time.

Two 2c Stamps Worth
$5,400 Saved From Thief

Newark, N. J.—George Chatham, janitor of the building at 156 Market street, left his broom in the office of the Cross Stamp company, and went back to get it, he heard a man escaping by the window. Burglar's tools lay on the floor.

Felix Berg, proprietor of the shop, said he thought the thief was looking for two rare stamps, of the two-cent denomination of the Pan-American issue of 1901, with the center bearing the picture of a train, inverted, which were in the safe. He said the stamps were worth $2,700 each. Chatham evidently frightened the burglar, because nothing in the office was disturbed.

Convict Shows Speed

McAllister, Okla.—Ray Terrill, notorious Oklahoma outlaw, who invented a "bandit-proof lock" during his spare time at the state penitentiary where he is serving a term, was called up to unlock handcuffs from a prisoner.

The keys had been lost. He unlocked the cuffs easily.

Digging Well, He Finds
Richest Radium Field

Vienna.—The richest radium field in Europe has been discovered at Neuhaus, near Linz, in upper Austria, by a water diver, Herr Franz Niegler.

A peasant, Franz Maier, about to dig a well, summoned Herr Niegler, who, using an old silver watch on a silver chain as a pendulum, obtained such violent reactions that he guaranteed that an abundance of water would be found nine feet down. When borings were made twice this depth without any sign of water, the puzzled diver sent samples of the earth to the government research institute in Vienna.

The institute announces that the earth has the highest radium content yet discovered in Europe. It is stated that 11,000 tons would yield a kilogram of pure radium. The field is buried only nine feet down, has a depth of from four to eight feet, and extends a considerable distance.

Aged Italian Arranged
Plans for Own Death

Parma, Italy.—Girolamo Piarra, eighty-eight, feeling himself near death, dressed in his best, and visited the parish priest, begging him to give him the last sacraments, as he felt his end was near. Surprised at the apparently healthy man, the priest heard his confession and gave him communion.

When Piarra had finished, he visited the undertaker, requesting him to take his measure for a coffin that would shortly be required, "as I am about to leave this world." Then he returned home, greeting all his friends and acquaintances whom he met on the way and telling them he was leaving them soon.

The old man went to bed early. He was found dead in bed the next morning.

Autos Blamed for Slump
in Umbrella Repairing

Petersburg, Ind.—The umbrella mending business isn't what it used to be, and it's all because of automobiles, says Thomas Snyder, ninety, on a visit here. Snyder formerly was a sailor, and held a Queen Victoria mariner's license. He left the sea 27 years ago and started repairing umbrellas. He returns here infrequently but said he would be back to celebrate his one hundredth birthday anniversary.

St. Marys, Kan.—A Kansas farmer, Ralph Hilton, has a real souvenir of the depression. Hilton recently killed a calf and sent its hide to a Topeka tannery. The hide brought 60 cents. The freight was 55 cents. Hilton received a check for 5 cents. He framed it.

Lights of
NEW YORK By WALTER TRUMBULL

Julian Street has been qualifying for the Explorers club. He recently discovered New York. True, Mr. Street has been a man of Manhattan for years past, but this was another city. It was the New York of the dawn age. Because of an early operation on a member of his family, Mr. Street was obliged to reach the hospital by 6 a. m. Knowing the night before that he was to make the trip, he conferred with Mrs. Street as to transportation.

"Take a taxi," she said.
"Don't be silly," he responded.
"What would a taxi be doing out at that hour?"

"I think there will be taxis," said Mrs. Street, "but, of course, one could always charter a milk wagon."

Emerging from his door a few moments before six, Mr. Street found a New York he did not know. The air smelled crisp and clean, free of gasoline fumes. The voice of the city was still. But there was a taxi.

Mr. Street now believes the taxi was driven by a man training for the motor races on the Indianapolis speedway. The streets apparently were empty and the driver took full advantage of the fact. Mr. Street maintains that through the window he saw what appeared to be one of those moles, where they speed up the film, of a deserted village. He thinks they passed other taxis; it was just like two limited trains passing in opposite directions, if the engines had cut loose from the cars and were going right along without them. He saw some objects he opines might have been milk wagons, and claims he heard the voice of a newsboy, blown away by the rushing air. He thinks a railroad station or hotel flashed past, but isn't sure, as he was too busy hanging on and yelling at the driver. But it was very bracing. Mr. Street still insists we all should rise early in the morning and see the city free from traffic. It would be a great hour for a walk, he maintains.

It was Willard Fairchild who discovered the horse and sleigh. This was in the hills of Connecticut at a village which has no railroad station and plenty of snow. The horse and sleigh belonged to a farmer, who before trusting the outfit to Mr. Fairchild, asked him whether he was an experienced driver. Mr. Fairchild assured the farmer he had been around with horses a great deal, but neglected to mention that it had been with the artillery during the war, when he rode the caisson and others handled the horses. Still, all went well. Mr. Fairchild got his family into the sleigh and when the farmer handed him the reins clucked in the approved fashion, which apparently threw the animal into first speed, and away they went. The horse took them for a very nice ride and brought them back safely. It was then that the difficulty developed.

The farmer wasn't around, but his small boy said his father had told him to ask Mr. Fairchild just to unhitch the horse and tie him up in the stall in the barn. It seems that when you stood alongside this horse, it seemed about the size of a small elephant, which made some of the buckles and things hard to reach. But Mr. Fairchild undid them all, except that he kept the horse and reins intact. When he had managed to get the horse out of the shafts and all the other straps and things off the horse, he realized he never had known how many parts there were to one horse's harness. Taking the reins into the barn, he passed them around a post at a corner of the stall. Then, by walking away with them—a good deal as you might hoist a mainsail—he pulled the horse into shelter without taking a chance of being stepped on. That was a smart idea, as when the horse reached the post, it automatically put on the brakes. This accomplished, Mr. Fairchild, who was now out in the yard, returned to the barn. Being careful to permit no slack, he wound the reins half a dozen times around the post and tied a good firm knot. He then went out again and collected the pieces of harness and laid them on the floor under some pegs, where other harness was hanging. He had paid the farmer in advance, so he didn't wait for him to come back. But he knows the old chap will be pleased at all the care he took to leave his property in good order. A lot of city fellows might not have taken so much trouble with things.

AN UNUSUAL VISITOR.

He dropped into my office with a grin upon his face, He talked about the weather and the college football race. He asked about the family and told the latest joke, But never mentioned any one who'd suddenly gone broke.

He talked of books and pictures and the play he'd been to see. A clever quip his boy had made he passed along to me. He praised the suit of clothes I wore and asked me what it cost, But he never said a word about the money he had lost.

He was with me twenty minutes, chuckling gayly while he stayed, O'er the memory of some silly little blunder he had made. He reminded me that tulips must be planted in the Fall, But calamity and tragedy he mentioned not at all.

I thought it rather curious when he had come and gone. He must have had some tales of woe, but didn't pass them on. For nowadays it seems to me that every man I meet Has something new in misery and moaning to repeat.

And so I write these lines for him who had his share of woe and let his troubles go. I was happier for his visit—in a world that's sick with doubt, 'Twas good to meet a man who wasn't spreading gloom about. —By Edgar A. Guest.

CARD OF THANKS.

I extend my hearty thanks to the Taneytown Fire Company for their very prompt response to the chimney fire at my place, on Monday morning. The Company arrived in 7 minutes and did good work. HARVEY R. FROCK.

Promises make wonderful reading matter, but if you want to keep in good standing with the world in general, you must make yours something more than that.

A lot of water has run under the bridges—and a lot of runs have appeared in silk stockings—since the expression "visible means of support" ceased to be merely a legal phrase.
