CARROLL COUNTY FAIR Lot No. 15 was Purchased by Adam SEVERAL OLD DEEDS Good, May 9, 1782. Through the courtesy of Miss Mary Will Remain Open on Saturday The Carroll County Fair opened on Thursday, the first time in its his-tory to open so late in the week; and notwithstanding the fact that "Thurs-day" is usually the "big day" at a Fair, this time it was hardly more than the slimly attended "first day." The Fair itself, however, so far as exhibits and the customary attrac-tions are concerned, is a good one, The exhibit in all departments are creditable, and the racing is said to

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ACCEPTANCE.

All of the Leading Issues are Forcefully Discussed.

President Hoover was officially no-tified of his nomination, Thursday night, in Washington, Republican leaders being present from all over the United States. The proceedings almost represented a miniature nom-inating convention, in the applause that greeted sentences in the notifica-tion address of Hon Bertrand Snell. tion address of Hon. Bertrand Snell, of N. Y., that preceded the accept-ance by the President as was the address of the President. The entire program was broadcast by a nationwide hook-up. The President reviewed his admin istration and the numerous world-wide and nation-wide problems that had confronted the country during the past three years, his speech bristling with terse utterances and em-phatic statements concerning his principles and policies. Throughout, his earnestness and positiveness of his statements were pronounced, and his statements were pronounced, and the most of them were enthusias-tically applauded, especially those relating to our foreign policies and to vigorous statements concerning the efforts put forth by the adminis-tration and Congress for relief from depression and the various ills that had hefallen this country, and to his had befallen this country, and to his statement announcing optimism for the future and faith in our governmental structure.

His reference to prohibition, and the evils that continue under it, while not pronouncedly wet nor dry, recog-nized the fact that further efforts must be made to reach a solution of the problem. He announced his unequivocal opposition to the return of the saloons and adherence to the 18th. Amendment as long as it is part of the Constitution; stated that the bootlegger could not be endured, and made a plea for concurrent action en the part of Federal, state and local authorities, in order that disrespect for government may not further continue. He said;

"The Republican platform recom-mends the submission of the question to the States that the people themselves may determine whether they desire a change, but insists that this submission shall propose a construc-tive and not a destructive change. It does not dictate to the conscience of any member of the party. The first duty of the President of the United States is to enforce the laws as they exist. That I shall con-tinue to do to the utmost of my abil-ity. Any other course would be the abrogation of the very guaranties of liberty itself.

The Constituton gives the President no power or authority with respect to changes in the Constitution itself; nevertheless, my countrymen have a right to know my conclusions upon this matter. They are clear and need not be misunderstood. They are based upon the broad facts I have stated, upon my experience in this bick office and upon the deep convichigh office and upon the deep conviction that our purpose must be the elimination of the evils of this traffic from this civilization by practical measures.'

They gave their names as Joseph Espifito, 24 years, and Robert White about 38 years, and their address as Coney Island, N. Y. The charge against them is the passing of a counterfeit $10.00 bill on Mrs. Clara Crouse, of Tyrone, given for the purchase of a quantity of gasoline at her store. On being lodged in jail Mrs. Crouse identified the men as the ones who gave her the bill, which is said to have been a poorly designed counterfeit. The men are being held pend-ing a more complete investigation.

Later, Mr. Norwood, who also conducts a filling station and refreshment stand at Tyrone, also identified the men as having passed a bogus bill on him on the same day.

STAMBAUGH REUNION.

The second annual reunion of all members and relatives of the Stam-baugh family will be held Saturday, August 20, at Mt. Tabor Park, near Rocky Ridge, Md. Every one inter-ested is asked to bring others to help make this meeting larger than last year. Basket luncheon at noon, followed by a short program of enter-I tainment.

 PICNIC PRECAUTIONS.

"Going on a picnic? Or an excur-sion? Be careful about your food and about the water you drink if you want to avoid unpleasant after ef-fects," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, cautions prospective picnickers and excursionists.

"As to foods," Dr. Riley said, "First be sure that what you take is per-fectly fresh. Second; Take things that won't spoil. During the hot muggy weather that prevails at this time of the year, it is hard to keep any kind of food in good condition, as every housekeeper knows. Rich, per-ishable food taken off the ice and carried around for several hours before using will spoil very quickly. "It is better to avoid rich salads and indigestible combinations and to stick to the simpler things. Sand-wiches—of which an infinite variety can be prepared—cake, the simpler the better—and plenty of fresh, ripe fruit, are usually safe and satisfying and should form the principal part of your menu. With peaches, pears, bananas, oranges, 'tomatoes, cante-lope, watermelons and other fruits in the method the market, in abundance, as they are now, you have plenty of the latter to choose from. Whatever you take, don't overeat and don't indulge in all sorts of queer mixtures. If you do, the day after the picnic is not likely to be a pleasant one for you. "And as a third precaution: Take your own drinking water, unless you are sure that the water supply of the place where you are gring to ground place where you are going to spend the day, is free from contamination. Thermos bottles, thermos jugs, fruit jars, can all be impressed into service. It may be more trouble to carry water from home, but it is much safer than to drink water from a source that may be contaminated with dis-ease germs."

TAKE YOUR CHOICE!

There is considerable talk of a bus-iness "upturn"—which does not mean an "upset", if you consider the word right. The Republicans say that this is coming about, at last, due to "Hoover policies;" while the Demo-crats say it is because of the growng conviction that Gov. Roosevelt will be elected.

Take your choice! Maybe both are wrong?

NORTHERN CARROLL ROAD IM-PROVEMENTS.

The shouldering of the Westminster The shouldering of the Westminster Taneytown road will at some places practically be a rebuilding, as there is extensive widening and grading in progress and at numerous places curves are being taken out. The Piney Creek bridge is to be widened and the approach to the bridge from Taney-town will be to the right of the form-er Louisa Hill house, instead of to the er Louisa Hill house, instead of to the left as at present.

The section from the Pine Hill school to the Monocacy bridge will also be straightened, making a dangerous spot much safer. South of Taneytown there will be several wid-cnings, and grades made easier. All of this work is now in progress.

It is also reported, but not confirm-ed by official authority, that the unimproved gap on the Taneytown-Keyman road will be built this summer, by using a portion of the Federal aid fund alloted to Maryland roads. A survey of this road has been made. This is very good news.

Reports are to the effect that the Adams County peach crop will be a big one, the heighth of the selling season to be about August 25th. for the standard varieties and next week for the early varieties. Prices are expected to range somewhat higher than last year, when the immense crop made the business unprofitable. The Hale and Elberta will be the standard varieties.

 CEMENT PLANT TO CLOSE.

The Lehigh Portland Cement Plant, at Union Bridge, will close next Mon-day for thirty days. The closing is due to shortage of orders for the products of the plant. It had been operating recently three days a week, and employed nearly 200 men.

BYERS FAMILY REUNION.

The third annual reunion of the Byers clan will be held on Sunday, August 21, at Meadow Branch, arong the Westminster-Taneytown highway, near the former city. The event was largely attended last year. A committee named at that time will make arrangements for a program for both adults and children this year.

CRITICISED EDITORIALS.

Last week The Record received two comments on editorials appearing in The Record in recent issues. Both of | ball star and graduate chemical engithese were critical, and both on the neer of a Texas college. The actual subject of prohibition. Almost strange to say, one objected that our that they were to be used to develop comments favoring the dry cause a fine dye material. When informed of the boom year had 7,675,143 stockwere unjust and too sweeping, and the other was that our comments were not sweeping enough. These letters, however, did not relate to the same editorial.

Of course, we do not object to fair criticism. It is not the object of our attempts at editorial writing to settle the question at issue in our favor. We respect the honest opinions of others, no matter how much at variance they may be with our own. And especially, we do not pose as blindly or aggressively championing the "dry" cause to the exclusion of differing opinions of others.

Our opinions, such as they are, merely represent our own point of view, to be agreed with, or disagreed with, as readers may elect. In fact, we do not mean to specialize on prohibition, nor do we care to give unlimited space to opinions on the subject, for or against. We regard the subject one of the important problems before the country, but not the only

ENDS PASSION FOR LIMELIGHT BY WAY OF THE GAS ROUTE

Clerk Who Paraded as Millionaire Turns on Kitchen

Range Jets.

New York .- Death, selt-inflicted, has claimed Rex. R. Fairbanks, who less than two years ago became ϵ . romantic and eligible "millionaire bachelor," although he had no millions and had a wife.

Fairbanks, thirty years old, was found dead recently in the kitchen of a fifth floor apartment at 364 Lincoln place, where he boarded.

Michael Mullans, assistant superintendent of the building, had traced the odor of illuminating gas to the room and summoned police. Five gas jets of the kitchen range were wide open and the lifeless form of Fairbanks, in silk flowered pajamas and purple dressing gown, was seated close to the stove.

Two Notes Found.

Nearby were two sheets of paper, one reading "Notify G. E. H. Thornton, 1420 Cross Bay boulevard, Broad Channel," and the other, "Peggy Fairbanks, 45 South Elliott place." Thornton was a friend who had recently entertained him and Peggy Fairbanks was the widow.

Mrs. Fairbanks, who claimed the body, said later that a passion for publicity had brought him from time to time into a limelight in which he did not belong. He was an appraisal clerk employed by the Brooklyn Edison company, with a salary of $35 a week, when, in August, 1930, word reached various newspaper offices that he had inherited $1,500,000 from Andrew Fairbanks, an uncle in California. Reluctantly he confirmed it. And when interviewers called he gave interviews.

He was a bachelor. He would keep right on working at the same job, for he wanted to keep busy. No, marriage was "out." But he would adopt a couple of children.

The "bachelor" part of the story he withdrew when Mrs. Margaret Moran Fairbanks appeared with a marriage license and proved that she was his wife. She had met and married him after his name had appeared in headlines as a "Broadway playboy" who squandered a $500,000 fortune.

Weakness for Headlines.

By the time the "inheritance" came along they had separated, although she still "liked" him. Following his suicide, Mrs. Fairbanks delared that Fairbanks had a weakness for vicarious romance and adventure through the headlines. He had squandered no half million and inherited no $1,-500.000.

The open statements on the part of some of the spokesmen for the Bonus Army, that they want "to get" President Hoover, will have a strong reactionary effect with the saner classes who think straight and are fairminded, as will be the case even with the veterans who are perfectly honest in wanting their bonus paid in full at this time, and with the larger body that is willing to wait Congressional action on their claims.

It is distinctly unfortunate to our brave over-seas veterans that they large body, and the public fully realizes this; and the public also realizes the fact that there is a "red" contingent even in the ranks of the misguided army that misrepresents even mediate payment.

Threats against the President, or against any other official power, is merely rank "radicalism," such as we might expect in some foreign countries, but which in the United States of America is very much out of its natural breeding place. In this country, those who threaten "to get" people, are regarded as undesirable citizens-or something even worse.

The public is now being regaled with the news that $10,000,000 will have to be raised to conduct the Hoover-Roosevelt battle for the pres-idency. In 1928 the two parties spent a total of $16,500,000.

When the politicians of both par-ties are telling how much money it will take to care for the needy people this winter, it looks like an economic crime to raise $10,000,000 to be spent by the two parties largely in blackguarding opposing candidates.

Let both parties, if they are sin-cere in their advertised desires to help the needy, donate their millions of campaign funds for relief work this winter. And let the people vote in a normal manner for their political choice, free from the high-pressure influence of a $10,000,000 slush fund. -Denton (Md.) Journal.

But they remained good friends, said the widow, and had dinner together on last New Year's eve.

At the Broad Channel address, Mr. Thornton said he had known Fairbanks for two years, but that if he had inherited any large amount of money he must have spent it before. Fairbanks had told him of buying a $100,000 vacht which was destroyed by fire-uninsured. Fairbanks told him, said Thornton, that he knew Starr Faithful, but though the two men roomed together at the time of the presumed acquaintance, Thornton was never introduced to her and never met her.

Neither he nor Mrs. Fairbanks nor the police could give any reason for the suicide.

Problem of Nature

Ants, bees and wasps are the world's dominant insects. Weaker members of the family often resemble the powerful stingers. Birds feed quite freely on both wasps and bees. Ants constitute a favorite food of toads. These batrachians also dine freely on yellow jackets and wasps. Mice, weasels, foxes and badgers ravage the nests of bumble bees. Skunks dig out nests of yellow jackets. Bears plunder the homes of honey bees and hornets. Yet the members of this family are regarded as the most highly protected of all insects and weaker members of the insect race apparently imitate them. To what purpose, has been asked.

FOOD OF QUALITY FOR BREEDING HENS

Only Way to Get Best Eggs and Healthy Chicks.

"Poultry has suffered along with other farm crops, but due to the drop in feed prices in proportion to the prices being received for eggs, and because of the mild winter permitting production to stay at level, poultrymen have been much encouraged to go ahead with their work," says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at North Carolina state college. "However, some poultrymen have attempted to increase their margin of, profit by decreasing the feeding or substituting certain feeds which do not give as good results. One of the main substitutions being practiced is to use vegetable protein feeds for animal protein feeds. Soy bean meal and peanut meal are good if used in limited quan tities, but they should not entirely displace the animal protein, especially when production is heavy and the eggs are being used for hatching."

Any radical change from the usual methods of feeding at this time is likely to be reflected in the hatchability of the eggs or the livability of the chicks, Mr. Dearstyne says. The breeding hens should be fed so that they will produce only the highest quality of eggs.

Mr. Dearstyne insists that green feed, plenty of sunlight, an adequate mineral supply and milk in some form, should be fed the birds to get the best eggs for producing healthy chicks. If the breeding birds are to be through a long laying season and maintain body weight, they must be fed a balanced ration. It is particularly unwise to depend on grain feeds alone without mash.

Chickens a Life Saver,

Says Ohio Poultryman R. W. Sweitzer, poultryman, has told the Ohio Farmer how he managed to reduce feed costs in his flocks. "To make money we had to press down on feed costs," says Sweitzer. He beitwras the cost of grinding grains for poultry is a wasted expense. He feeds a free choice ration with corn, wheat, germinated oats, meat scraps and milk before the birds at all times. Greens are supplied by cabbage and apples and cod liver oil is fed in the grain.

Mr. Sweltzer raises all his grain and buys only concentrates. "Last year," showed Sweltzer, "we received 6 cents a pound for our grain by marketing it through our hens." Dairy cows were his main line until disease broke out and he had to sell his stock. "Our chickens at this time proved a life saver," he said.

"SIX CYLINDERS THE HAPPY MEDIUM BETWEEN TWO EXTREMES"

With more you sacrifice economy – With less you sacrifice smoothness

It certainly does make a whole lot of difference—how many cylinders you have in that low-priced car of yours! With too many, you're bound to spend too much for gas, oil and upkeep. With too few cylinders, you're bound to get inherent engine-vibration.

But with SIX cylinders—no more, no less—you strike the happy medium between "too many" and "too few". Everything's in your favor—with a new six-cylinder Chevrolet!

Economy? Take the word of leading American business firms—the six-cylinder Chevrolet costs less for gas, oil and upkeep than any other car.

Smoothness? Take the word of motor car engineers: SIX is the fewest number of cylinders you can have in a car, and still get built-in smoothness. And built-in smoothness is vital to your satisfaction.

Durability? Take the word of millions of owners: the new Chevrolet Six stands up! Stays dependable and trouble-free season after season. Its high gas and oil mileage stays high. Its low maintenance cost stays low! Especially after ten thousand miles, you'll be glad you bought a Chevrolet Six.

Evidently, from the way sales are going this year, America knows the facts about cylinders. Because the records show that since January 1st, more six-cylinder Chevrolets have been bought than any other make of automobile!

In addition to a fast, spirited, six-cylinder engine, the Chevrolet Six has Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, a new, stabilized, front-end construction, four parallel-mounted springs, four shock absorbers—plus the modern styling and fine car luxury of beautiful, new Bodies by Fisher.

DAIRY FACTS

COWS NEED FREE ACCESS TO WATER

Should at All Times Have All They Will Drink.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)--WNU Service. Dairymen who want the most milk and butterfat from their cows should arrange to let them drink as much. water as they want when they want it, says T. E. Woodward, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Woodward, who is senior dairy husbandman in the bureau of dairy industry, has completed experiments to determine the relation of methods of watering dairy cows to their water consumption and production. The tests were run both in warm and cold weather and included both high-producing and low-producing cows. The results of watering twice a day and once a day were compared with results obtained when the cows had free access to water.

In these tests, according to Mr. Woodward, the cows drank more water when watered only twice a day than when they had water at will or when watered only once a day, but their production was highest when they had water at will. The production of the cows in this experiment averaged 2.8 per cent more milk and 2.1 per cent more butterfat when given free access to water than when watered only twice a day; and when watered twice a day they produced 1 per cent more milk and 1.4 per cent more butterfat than when watered only once a day.

Mr. Woodward also reports that the increase in milk production as a result of more frequent watering was more marked in the case of the good producers than in the case of the low producers.

Inferior Bull Never

Worth Keeping in Herd Many inferior bulls are finding themselves installed as herd sires these days, probably much to their surprise, because they are the kind that usually go to the stock yards at a fairly early age. In fact, a considerable number of these have been to the stock yards, only to be rescued by some kind-hearted truck driver and taken back out in the country as a herd sire. Of course, the fact that the truck driver is able to make a few dollars by saving him for a while may also be a contributing cause.

It's a good deal for the live stock trucker, but it's a tough deal on the dairyman. The bull in service now will determine largely the ability of the herd four and five years from now. It will mean the placing in the dairy barn of milk-manufacturing machines that lack the capacity to turn out large quantities of product or profit.

Spray for Flies

According to J. J. Davis, entomologist at Purdue university, a good homemade spray for keeping flies off cows can be prepared by mixing one pint rapidly. It is also seen where there is overcrowding and poor ventilation. Let them have plenty of sour milk and green feed and add one teaspoonful of fluid extract of nux vomica to each pint of drinking water.

There is a form of paralysis that attacks mostly young birds, for which there is no treatment of any value and is usually fatal. In cases of this kind, it is advisable to get a new flock and put them in new buildings on clean land. Changing the old flock to new ground or buildings does not stamp out the disease.—Michigan Farmer.

^{*} Incubator Pointers

Level the incubator with a spirit level and place bits of wood under any leg that seems short. This not only helps to keep an even heat in the egg chambers but prevents the vibration that occurs when the floor is uneven and one of the incubator legs does not rest firmly.

A cellar is the best location for the incubator as it is free from vibration and the air will be rather moist. When the machines are operated in an upstairs room the entire family must be careful to avoid running, heavy walking, banging doors or carelessly leaving them open and chilling the air around the machine.

Need Cod Liver Oil

Poultry kept around cities where smoke abounds do not get sufficient sunshine in winter time, and hence cod liver oil is necessary for them, Prof. E. L. Dakan, of the Ohio State university, says after testing out several flocks. Two years ago he fed all flocks without cod liver oil except one, and that one pen laid the most eggs. Next year he fed cod liver to all flocks except one, and that year this single pen without oil had the lowest production of all.—Ohio Farmer.

Heavy Layers

Hens have to meet a high standard before they are used for breeding purposes at the United States live stock experiment station at Beltsville, Md. Poultry men of the Department of Agriculture choose breeding hens only from those which produce at least 225 eggs in the pullet years and whose eggs average at least two ounces in weight. They save only the chickens from hens whose eggs are at least 70 per cent hatchable. Pullets are not used in the regular breeding pens.

MAN IN OVEN YEAR TO GET NEW SKIN

Case One of Most Unusual in Medical History.

Memphis, Tenn.—Those fishermen, who complain when they can't get at their sport as often as they like should think of L. Jack Doty, the "oven man" of Memphis, whose greatest sport was fishing.

Doty was burned in an automobile accident on May 3, 1931, when en route to a fishing retreat. Two others in the car died.

And since that time he has been lying on his stomach inside a casket shaped oven where the temperature approximates 103 degrees. Sometime in the next month or two doctors believe they can begin skin grafting.

Doty's back and legs were badly burned. The oven covers his bed and is made of iron and tin. Four big electric light bulbs heat the space and there is room at 'he opening for his arms and shoulders to stick out. He has been confined at his home since last December. Doty's fisherman friends haven't forgotten him.

He calls them his "gang," and they hold poker games in his bedroom. His wife, who Doty says is the "world's best nurse," brings in her friends too and they play bridge with him.

His case is one of the most unusual in medical history, physicians said, in that more than one-third of his body's surface was burned. Physicians generally agree when one-third or more of the body is burned death is general

Needle in Foot 30 Years

Auto Necking Is O. K. if Hands Are on Wheel

El Paso, Texas.—If your girl friend necks you while you are driving in Eu Paso, police will not interfere that is, as long as the driver has both hands on the steering wheel.

Police Sergeant J. W. Fitzgerald made this announcement in his campaign for safe automobile driving here.

"Boys should keep both hands on the wheel while driving," he admonished.

"There's nothing wrong—so far as traffic safety is concerned—with a gril putting her arm around her boy friend's neck, as long as she does not hamper his driving."

Dairy Farmer Puts Out Fire in Barn With Milk

Ferndale, Calif.—Something new in the fire-fighting line was discovered here recently by Ernest Lanini, dairy rancher. Fire broke out in the engine room of the barn, where Lanini was milking. He ran out, telephoned the fire department, and then went back and put out the blaze by throwing fresh milk on it.

Woman Finds Lost Gem in Hen's Craw

Lake City, Ark.—A diamond that Mrs. John Stell lost ten years ago was found recently by her in a hen that she was dressing.

Cutting into the chicken's craw, Mrs. Stell said she found the stone she lost from her engagement ring while feeding chickens in her poultry yard nearly a decade ago.

The hen, about a year old, probably picked up the diamond recently, she said.

Scotland Yard Snares Car Bandits With Wires

London.—Methods used by Germans during the World war to halt British tank are being used by Scotland Yard against automobile bandits The Germans found that wire entanglements could stop the lumbering tanks. That same theory is being tried now on cars.

The latest device, said to be excellent, consists of scores of yards of spiral steel wire compressed into a very small space and held by springs. When the device is thrown into a road the springs release the wire and any automobile entering the trap finds its axle and brake drums snared thoroughly. In a recent test a car driven across the wire at 60 miles an hour was stopped short within 30 feet.

Lad Dashes Under Train to Save Life of "Rags"

Chicago.—As a train chugged to a stop at a Chicago station commuters saw two youngsters outside, one with a nondescript puppy.

The boys were playing marbles when suddenly the one with the most freckles glanced up and saw his pup beneath the train.

"Rags!" he called. "Come here, Rags!"

The dog paid no attention. The cars began to move forward.

Then, quick as a flash, the youngster was under the train. Commuters gasped—then wilted. The boy scrambled out on the opposite side, carrying his puppy triumphantly and safely under one arm.

Bandits Teach Lesson

Akron, Ohio.—Once Sam Belich distrusted banks, but not now!

Belich drew his $7,900 savings out of a bank and started home. On the way he had to fight two bandits to save his cash. On his hospital cot he called for an officer and sent the money back to the bank.

Say Speed Trap Is Used to Pay High Salaries

Cleveland.—Here's one for a congressional investigating committee: North Randall village, a Cleveland suburb, has only six taxpayers and 110 residents, but manage: to pay its mayor $6,000 a year and minor officials an additional $10,000.

Abe Pickus, village business man, charges officials operate a speed trap against unsuspecting motorists in order to defray their salaries. Court is held around the clock for the marshal and his deputies who trap drivers from ambush, Pickus says.

Drifting Buoy Gives

Steamer Officers Scare

Boston.—The British steamer Marathon, en route from Trinidad to Montreal, was nosing through the night 300 miles east of Boston when her lookout was startled to hear the wailing of a whistling buoy.

It first was feared the ship had strayed from her course and was perilously near a hidden reef. Investigation revealed, however, that the buoy was on a spree; that it had broken from distant moorings and drifted into the steamship lanes.

Find Youth Hiding in Blazing House

Toronto.—Looking for a ball he had mislaid in the cellar of his home, Harold Cashen, three, dropped a lighted match on the floor, setting fire to papers. He became frightened when he saw the fire and ran upstairs and hid under a bed. His mother saw the blaze and called firemen. Unable to find the boy, the mother notified firefighters, who were searching upstairs when they heard the boy cough and found him beneath the bed. of oil of tar with one gallon of used crank case oil.

Another recommended spray may be made by mixing one gallon of fish oil, two ounces of oil of tar, two ounces of oil of pennyroyal and one-half pint of kerosene.

The most satisfactory way to apply these is with a small compressed air sprayer that can be obtained at most stores handling spray materials.

There are several other reliable commercial fly sprays on the market.

Grain Sheaf Hay

Oat sheaves are very nearly equivalent in feeding value to a combination of equal parts by weight of threshed oats and oat straw. Oat sheaves alone are hardly a satisfactory dairy cow ration. The wheat sheaves will perhaps be a little more nutritious than the oats. Horses can be carried quite satisfactorily on either oat sheaves or wheat sheaves provided they are not at hard work.

Some extra grain for cows is needed while they are milking. A mixture of equal parts of barley, oats, wheat, wheat bran and oilmeal will prove very satisfactory.

Intestinal Trouble

Scours or diarrhea is merely the visible symptom of an intestinal irritation, either caused by food or parasites. Cows may contract a disease known as Johne's disease, or the trouble may be caused by faulty food. If you have much trouble, we suggest you see your veterinarian or write your state veterinarian. In the meantime, feed the cows one teaspoonful slaked lime, one tablespoonful whole flaxseed and a tablespoonful charcoal in ground oats once daily. A little sugar added will help also. Examine the hay for mold, or the pasture for fern, etc.— Idaho Farmer.

Feeding Minerals to Cows

Tests at the United States dairy experiment station, at Beltsville, Md., indicate that if cows are allowed free access to a palatable bone meal, they will tend to adjust their consumption to meet their needs. Good producing cows fed a ration estimated to be deficient in phosphorus, ate generous quantities of bone meal at the experiment farm, while poor producers having a smaller demand for minerals ate very little.—Wallace's Farmer.

FEESERSBURG.

Very thankful for the good rains on the parched earth, but what a display of lightning on Sunday evening, after the extreme heat of the day, illuminating the heavens and the earth! How insignificant one reels before such power.

We've wanted to compliment our Editors for their marginal mottoes, or sentiments at the head of the papers each week. They are helpful thoughts, good advice and sound warningssomething to live by if accepted and practiced.

Since writing our last letter, this community was greatly stirred by the message that Mrs. John Starr (nee Mary Blocher) was very suddenly Mary Blocher) was very suddenly called from time, into eternity. Fu-neral service at the home on Friday morning, was largely attended. Her pastor, Rev. Kammerer, of the Luth-eran Church, in Littlestown, spoke from the text "Whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." D. D. Hartzler and two sons sang "Where we never grow old," and "Home at Last." The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Quite a number of friends accompanied the body to Littlestown; for burial.

Hayes Grimes and Raymond Rippeon suffered very severe attacks of acute indigestion, early last week, but are much improved.

Our neighbor, Frank Keefer, was not so well last week, and the Doctor put him in bed for a few days' rest cure; but he's stepping out again. About 15 persons from Mt. Union attended the old-fashioned Social in Taneytown, last Wednesday evening, when seven C. E. Societies assisted in the program. Yes, indeed, they report a great time—"as good as the Bi-centennial," one girl said, and we wrely are sorry to have missed that surely are sorry to have missed that parade, the spelling bee, the quilting, as well as the songs and other stunts. Glad for the interest and enjoyment anyway.

At the beginning of this month the 53rd. anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Philander Delphy, was commemorated at the home of their son, Charles Delphy, near Ladiesburg; where an 8-lb roast goose graced the table, with all other good "fixins," including a white loaf cake with the center trimmed with white rosebuds for the "Bride"-presented by their sister, Mrs. Katie Delphy O. Connor, and a fine garden bouquet. Mrs. Jessie Biehl Eichelberger is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Horace Bostian, while Miss Mary Bostian accompanied Mr. Eicherberger and his daughter Shirley, to their home, in Cumberland. Miss Sue Birely spent the week-end

Truly Great Invention

It was said, somewnat in malice, that Gen. Zeb Vance of North Carolina was one of the most untechnical men ever associated with the United States patent office.

One day in 1885, while sitting as assistant commissioner of patents by grace of Grover Cleveland, he called in the chief clerk to complain that his swivel chair was too low for comfort. The clerk, Schuyler Duryea, listened respectfully, then asked the general to rise. Giving the chair a few smart whirls, Duryea adjusted it easily to the desired level.

"Well," marveled the assistant commissioner of patents, "ain't that a wonderful invention !"-World's Work.

The ass had begun to fall from its former high estate when Solomon, disregarding the provision of the Mosaic law forbidding that very thing, brought horses from Egypt into the country, and made regular use of them in war and in his regal retinue. But Israel never did keep the law in all its particulars, or there would not have been a king of the Jews at any time!

Afterward the ass degenerated into the mere burden bearer, the farm animal, and the steed of such lowly people as were Mary the Blessed, and Joseph, her husband. It came to be regarded as the extremity of misery for a warrior to be brought home dead on the back of an ass.

Perhaps it is not to be wondered at that it is not uncommon in the East to find poor Jews plowing with an ox and an ass yoked together, although it does at first sight give one a shock to see such a thing, remembering how their merciful law distinctly forbad the coupling together in a team of the quick-stepping ass and the slow-moving ox. Still, the Jews have always treated the ass humanely, never allowing it to be worked on their Sabbath day, and the animal's place in the Tenth Commandment shows that it was held by them in high estimation .-- Montreal Family Herald.

tax burden now resting on real es-tate; and he further called attention to the fact that adequate relief with the county tax bill would have come through a readjustment on the items of roads and schools which, together with the existing debts of the several counties, constitutes by far a major part of the counties' tax bill. The recommendations, therefore,as were pointed out by Mr. Fairbank in a recent address before the Denton Rotary Club, contemplate that some contribution be made from the gas tax and motor vehicle license fund for the maintenance of county unimproved roads, and that the state bear a larger part of the county school budget. To do this effectively the farmers' organizations believe that a state income tax, or a state sales tax, would provide sufficient revenue and, at the same time, equalize the tax burden on all classes. AIR TRAVEL ALMOST DOUBLED BY INCREASED SAFETY.

Air travel for the first four months of 1932 was almost double that of the same period in 1931, while mail planes carried increased poundage. The United States postoffice department attributes these gains to increased confidence in the safety of air mail and passenger planes. On some routes, more women than men have been flying regularly, a sign that passenger traffic probably will grow abnormally. On most routes, fast, dependable and spacious planes are in operation.

Accidents have been few and fatalities fewer, increasing public confi-dence so that the airplane is accepted as a medium of transportation that is as a menum of charsportation that is safe and speedier than any other form of travel. For the first four months of 1932, 73,797 passengers rode the nation's air-mail routes, compared to 39,639 in the corres-ponding period of 1931.—Popular Machenics Macrozine Mechanics Magazine. ++

Loving Remembrance of our dear brother CHARLES HAROLD FLICKINGER, who departed this life one year ago today, August 10, 1931.

Angels of God that guard us, Decended from Heaven above, And took from us, our dear loved one Whom we so treasured and loved.

He left a memory fair and sweet; Its fragrance can never die; His life was short, but still complete, Then God called him on high.

How sad to go home, and not see brother Every spot seems dark and drear; We listen for the voice of one, That we shall never hear.

Just one year ago we laid you to rest; They folded your dear hands across your breast;

In silence you suffered, in patience you

God called you home to suffer no more

Our family circle has been broken; A link gone from our chain, But though we parted for a while, We know we will meet again.

By his loving sister and brother-in-law,

MR AND MRS. EARL HALEY.

Historic Lafayette Elm

Cut Down in Road Work

Worthington, Mass.—Another historic landmark passed when the ancient Lafayette elm tree was cut down here recently to make way for part of the new Huntington-Worthington state road. The stately elm towered over the spot where General Lafayette was received by the townspeople in 1825 while en route to Boston to attend the dedication of Bunker Hill monument. Nearby, on the site of the town library, stood the tavern where Lafayette stopped overnight.

Flying Squirrels Have Electric Heat in Home

The home of this up-to-date family of squirrels is a switchbox, high up on a trolley pole at Interstate substation. They moved in from trees of a nearby wood and show no inclination of returning to their former habitat When McCloud opens the door of the box to change the switch he uses a long hook. -Ancient Game Unearthed at Ur of the Chaldees London. - Archeological finds of great interest at Ur of the Chaldees have been reported here by C. Leonard Woolley of the British museum-University of Pennsylvania joint expedition.

One object dug up was a broken carved stone, part of a gaming board suitable for the playing of a game similar to "snakes and ladders." in which dice are used and which long has been popular in England. The game, Woolley thinks, continued in use for thousands of years after its invention. The find was made in a building dating from the Fourth century B. C.

Less than two feet beneath the present surface of the ground at Ur the party found a small bowl of polished soapstone decorated with five bulls carved in relief. The excavators believe that the bowl must have been at least 30 feet beneath the old surface. It dates from about 2400 B. C. when stone carving had reached its most ad-

STEEL NOW BRIDGES FAMOUS EUPHRATES

Historic River Spanned by Modern Structure.

Washington .- The first steel highway brdge across the Euphrates river in upper Iraq is nearing completion some 40 miles west of Bagdad, according to news dispatches. The structure, which is one of the most important current engineering projects of the Near East, will be a link in the busy overland motor transport route that has grown up since the World war between Bagdad and Damascus.

"Roads have been beaten out in the sands along the Euphrates by men and camels, horses and chariots for 50 centuries," says a National Geographic society bulletin. "Rigid bridges have played a minor part in this continuous traffic. Floating bridges have been strung across at half a dozen points; and at other places ferries are operated.

"Only the Nile has so venerable a record as the Euphrates and its companion river, the Tigris," continues the bulletin; "and even the Nile is less rich in historic incident. The Euphrates has been the boundary line of successive empires; along it have surged battles and invasions that have changed world history; besides it have grown some of the greatest cities that ever existed. To its valley can be traced the beginnings of many practices, arts and sciences that civilization cherishes today-sciences and practices as varied as astronomy and the drawing of bank drafts, geometry, calendar calculations, and mortgaging of real estate.

Two Streams Unite.

"The Euphrates rises in the Armenian Taurus mountains, little more than a hundred miles southeast of the Black sea. It flows for nearly 600 miles through Turkish territory and more than 200 miles through French controlled Syria before entering Iraq.

"In the vicinity of Bagdad (which is on the Tigris) the Euphrates approaches to within 20 miles of its great companion river. The two streams then gradually diverge, to unite 200 miles farther down. The oval territory inclosed by these watery arms is the famed Sumerian plain, where, so far as written records disclose, the earth's first cities came into being.

"Where the Euphrates and Tigris approach above Bagdad, the former is 16 feet higher than the latter. Irrigation canals taken from the Euphrates can therefore be led across the plain and the drainage allowed to enter the Tigris. The Sumerians and their successors discovered this ideal situation scores of centuries ago and constructed numerous canals, developing the region into a fertile garden. Farther down stream the Euphrates drops to a lower level, and the canal procedure was reversed. Everywhere the country was gridironed with canals.

"As succeeding generations developed skill in hydraulic engineering, huge works were constructed. One canal paralleling the Euphrates from Hit to the Persian gulf was 480 miles long. It was probably the longest canal ever constructed. An ancient canal connecting the Euphrates and Tigris near Bagdad was navigable by steam ers 60 years ago, but has since silted. "The highly developed canal system made Mesopotamia ('the land between the rivers') prosperous for millenniums under various governments. Even after the Moslems took possession much of the vast system was preserved. But the Mongol invasion in 1256 brought ruin. Head works and embankments were destroyed, and the plains were turned into alternate stretches of desert and swamp. It is in this condition that much of the land along the lower Euphrates is to be found today. Certain areas are well watered and well drained.

Thousands, Ignorant of Their Names, Ask for Help.

Paris .- Thousands of war children separated from parents, brothers and sisters during the world conflict are still seeking members of their families 14 years after the armistice. Their ages range from fourteen to nineteen years. Most of them were too young to remember their names or where they lived when forced out of their homes by raids or bombardments.

Several times a year the Society of Wards of the Nation at Saint Quentin publishes lists of the children in its care.

Lancelin Denise, for instance, born at Cambrai and now twenty years old, can remember that his mother was taken to a hospital just before the Germans entered his home town. He has not seen or heard of her since.

Postal Robberies More

thetically small.

Than Double in a Year Washington .- Postal robberies during the current fiscal year have increased to more than double their usual number, it has been revealed by the Post Office department.

Although bandits and holdup men have been unusually active, it was stated in the report, other kinds of postal law violations have decreased slightly, with the result that total arrests by department inspectors have this year been lower than during any year since 1923.

One theory advanced as to the cause of the increase in robberies is that the depression may have driven unemployed men to stealing. Another is that the bandits may have discovered a new source of revenue in the small branch post offices run by store proprietors.

Major robberies involving thefts of $5,000 or more this year are expected to total more than 15. The figure in 1931 was 16, which was 30 per cent higher than the average.

If robberies continue at the same rate in the last month of the fiscal year, it is believed thefts will total more than $300,000, of which th

Vessel Without Helm Arouses New York Variety Takes Up Wrath of Sailors.

NEW SOVIET SHIP

London.-Salty old British sea dogs, descended from many generations of adventurous mariners and with sea water, rather than blood, in their veins, are disgusted.

The object of their loathing is the Soviet ship Neva, which arrived here recently with a consignment of Black sea butter. It is not because the Neva is a foreign ship, nor that she brought foreign produce in spite of the "Buy, British" campaign. But the Russian builders of this new vessel have dared to violate all the notable traditions of the sea by designing a ship without the beloved steering wheel.

The forefathers of these old salts fought hard to retain sails, ropes, rigging, and wooden hulls, but gradually resigned themselves to steam, clear superstructure, and steel. Many of the present generation have even been converted from steam to motor power, but a ship without a steering wheel is regarded by most British seamen as the very last straw.

If this Russian innovation is universally accepted, the traditional warning, "Don't talk to the man at the wheel," will have to be changed to "Don't interfere with the helmsman's buttons," for steering on the Neva is done by a series of electric buttons.

It is almost impossible to imagine a picture of the typical rugged seaman, grim and determined, rain and sea water pouring from his oilskin coat and sou'-wester, battling against the gale by tapping his fingers on little buttons set on the top of what looks like a steam radiator.

In order to port the helm, the helmsman merely presses the appropriate button and an indicator needle tells him if he has sufficient swing on the vessel. Should a sharper turn be necessary, other buttons may be pressed. There are similar buttons for putting the helm to starboard.

The Neva, which was built in one of the former imperial Russian naval yards, has a number of other devices, regarded by the old-time sailorman as a positive nightmare.

Government Workers Now Travel by Air

Washington .- The average fare rate per mile on air passenger lines in the United States is 6.29 cents, according to the Commerce department.

This is 7 per cent lower than the fare in effect at the beginning of 1932, is only about half of the average rate in effect on January 1, 1930, and compares with an average railroad rate of about 3 cents per mile. The rates announced by the department were computed on 50,000 miles of air routes in the United States. Air travel rates have become so low that government employees, on official business, are now allowed to travel by air instead of rail.

ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS ACTIVE.

Wednesday's Baltimore morning Sun, says:

"Liquor raids and seizures totaling 321 were made last month, prohibi-tion officials reported yesterday and, as further evidence of enforcement activities, several hundred containers of liquor were emptied into a sewer in the rear of the Custom House. Lowell R. Smith, deputy prohibi-tion administrator, said that while the total number of cases indicated considerable activity by the agents a decrease was noted in the number of distilleries raided. During the several months prior to July, more than 100 raids of this type had been recorded, but last month only seventy-two distilleries were raided and wrecked.

The liquor that gushed into the sewer at the Custom House yesterday had been seized in a big raid made at Ocean City. As a result of the raids and seizures made during July more than 250 men and women were cited or arrested. At prohibition headquarters it was reported that 18,105 gallons of beer and 6,646 gallons of spirits were seized during the period.

One of the largest beer raids during the month occurred on July 26 when a brewery located in a garage in the 1200 block of Stockton street was raided and 1,500 gallons of hightest beer were seized and sent gushing and foaming down the street.

Passes Babylon's Ruins.

"Fifty miles after passing close to Bagdad, the Euphrates river runs beside the ruins of Babylon. Mounds of bricks and broken walls exposed by the work of archeologists cover more than 50 square miles, and mark the place where one of the greatest of the world's ancient cities throbbed with life 2.500 years and more ago. At the height of its power and wealth Babylon numbered its inhabitants by the millions. On the southern portion of the site of Babylon is the modern town of Hilla, with busy bazaars among date groves and gardens.

"After the Euphrates and Tigris unite, the combined stream is known as the Shatt-al-Arab, which flows into the Persian gulf. Sixty miles up the Shatt-al-Arab is Basra, the chief port of Iraq. The river harbor has a depth of 17 feet at low tide. From Basra a railway extends to Bagdad and on to Mosul. There are no rails between Mosul and Nisibin, on the Turk-Syrian border, but a motor service closes the gap; and it is now possible to buy a through ticket from Paris to Bagdad or Basra. Tavern School Teaches Dumb Man to Read Lips

Ide, Devonshire, England .- For 24 years Walt Luke was deaf and dumb. Every night he visited the public house drinking cider with his fellow villagers, saying nothing. This became too much for them, so they decided to teach Luke to talk.

Amid smoke and tankards of cider they made syllables with their mouths and passed words written on pieces of paper to him. Watching and studying their lip talk, Luke used to repeat the signs after them. Their endeavors, although tedious, proved successful. Walt Luke could speak. The very first words he said were: "Pint. please," and the next, "Half pint." Lip talk continued and Luke has become very efficient.

ADY tourists with Baedekers and misanthropic men with sufficient income to retire and live cheaply in pensions along the respendent coast of the Riviera, are given to sentimentally referring to the gambling casino at Monte Carlo as "Heartbreak House."

Well, there can be no doubt that out of this storied mansion of chance armies of men and women have stumbled to tragedy of one sort or another.

The case of Gentleman Dawes was one that stood out, even on the crowded ledgers of the debit stories that checker up the past of the brilliant little principality, which is set like a painted drop-curtain against the incredible foreground of the Mediterranean.

Gentleman Dawes came to Monte Carlo at the age of forty-five, from a town in Colorado where he had amassed a fortune of five hundred thousand dollars in a staple mercantile business. His visit to Monte Carlo was more or less accidental, nothing more than part of a tour along the French Riviera, during his first trip abroad, after his retirement from the business to which he had devoted thirty-five years of his life. It was literally his first vacation, the rather typical case of a self-made American trying to learn how to play.

In Dawes' case this was difficult. Thirty-five years that included his early boyhood of toeing the mark to routine, business responsibility, heavy decisions and the growing burdens of success, had produced a prematurely white, socially timid, and wholly unplayful individual. Shy to a degree that made him appear suave, delicate as a woman in manner, exhibiting none of those aggressive qualities which had made him a success in business, the middle-aged, well-dressed, easy-spending American, who drifted into Monte Carlo, was just one more unremarkable member of his pleasant tribe.

One week later, however, Gentleman Dawes, as he was dubbed overnight, was not only the talk of the gossipy Riviera, but the American press, with especial emphasis in his home city, carried the ever-tragic and dramatic story of a man who has gambled away a large fortune to the banks of Monte Carlo.

In exactly eight days, Dawes had lost to the green baize tables the sum of four hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars. It was one of those spectacular debacles which happen every so often in the little unreal principality along the sea.

When he walked into the brilliant gaming solons his first night at Monte Carlo, something inside Hermann Dawes which had never before been stirred, caught fire. For the first time in a bachelor life of hard work, lonely leisure, insular pastimes, he tasted the winey pleasures of chemin-de-fer, bac-the band concert, returned to his pension room for refurbishment, dined in a narrow little cafe along the wharf and reported at eight for night duty as elevator man in one of the large hotels.

Grim, tragic, a little horrible, was this life of a man who, in eight brief days, had undone his life-time of carefully achieved success.

Then, in a life that seemed marked for swift rises and falls of destiny, a woman named Angie Falls, a second cousin of his mother's, whom he had met but once, died in Keokuk, Iowa, and left him, as her nearest relative, a fortune of two hundred thousand dollars.

Poor Dawes. It could not be said of him that he took the news unblinkingly. He stuttered, he paled, he broke into thin, womanish tears and manifested a very close equivalent to hysterics. Amazing with what rapidity a galaxy of friends sprang up about the obscure old man! His departure from Monte Carlo for America was the occasion of quite a local celebration. The press of Europe and America took occasion to revive the case. Gentleman Dawes had once more come into his own.

It was just about sixteen months later that a resuscitated Gentleman Dawes, rejuvenated, filled with a new poise and as appealing as ever in the shy, hesitant manner that had always characterized him, returned to the scene of what had been his degradation. Not, however, to Monte Carlo. He was too well known there and to be conspicuous was anathema to Dawes. It was almost as if his flesh literally crept up his bones and his being shuddered. In a pointed goatee, his hair dyed to a sluggish black, he returned to Deauville and the Riviera as James E. Squire, there to recoup and in a way to revenge.

The following week, there was a thin patter of talk along the blue coast. A man named Squire, from the states, had lost, within eight days, playing the tables between Deauville, Nice, and Cannes a neat fortune amounting to no less than two hundred thousand dollars.

No Tame Rooster Match

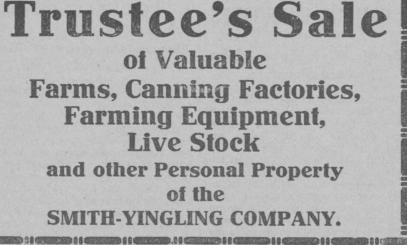

for Ringneck Pheasant The strongest fighting cock would probably finish a poor second in a bout with a ringneck pheasant. Equipped with longer spurs than its barnyard relatives, and of a more truculent disposition, the pheasaat can worst anything in its class. The farmer's Plymouth Rock or Rhode Island rooster, a lumbering adversary at best, finds itself soundly trounced after a few passes.

When food is scarce in the winter, cock pheasants invade the barnyard for corn thrown to the chickens. Woe to the rooster which endeavors to uphold its prowess against the visitor from the wilds. Roosters have been killed in such unequal combats.

Pheasants, some wild life observers say, have been known to mix it with grouse and prairie chickens with sad results to the latter. They have sometimes been accused of cannibalism. Whatever their faults in their social relations, they cannot be accused of cowardice.

During the nesting season in spring, the male pheasant is often indifferent nce of man It struts

REESE FARM

* LIGHTS) By WALTER TRUMBULL of NEW YORK

Dr. Frans Blom, the eminent archeologist of Tulane university, regards his recent trip through the Mayan country of Yucatan, on which he was accomponied by a party of sightseers, as the most successful he ever made. Dorothy Dix, a member of the expedition, proclaimed the Maya ruins finer than anything she had ever seen in Greece, Italy or Egypt, which was gratifying. . . .

Frans Blom is one of the most interesting scientists I have ever known, perhaps because he is so enthusiastic and alive. He was born in Denmark and as a youngster served his time in the Danish navy. His father, a manufacturer, tried to put him in business, but his talents didn't lie in that direction. He wanted to travel and managed to get to Mexico just as a revolution was in progress, which made educated labor scarce and wages good. It was as a surveyor and mapper for an oil company that he first encountered ancient Indian ruins. These made him an archeologist, first for the Mexican government, later for Harvard, and still later for the Carnegie institution. For the past seven years he has been connected with Tulane, where he has assembled in the museum a striking Central American collection and also a remarkable library containing some of the oldest Mayan manuscripts known.

I had a highly interesting luncheon with some circus people the other day as the guest of Frederick Darius Benham. Just how he happened to get in with the big tent dwellers, I don't know, except that Freddy Benham knows everybody and is likely to be found anywhere. During the war you could find him all over France. When he went to Braden Military academy, it was to prepare for West Point, but when his family wouldn't permit him to accept an offer to try out with a major league baseball team, he got a bit discouraged with higher education and went into the moving picture business, although not as an actor. In 1916 he returned to military life by enlisting in the French ambulance service. Several of his family had been army men, including his uncle, Gen. Henry Darius Benham, who commanded the New York engineers in the Civil war. Freddy Benham transferred from the ambulance, service to the Foreign Legion, where he became associated with some trench mortars. He was wounded and went to a hospital; from there to officers' school at Fontainbleau; from there to aviation school. Somehow, peace found him working as a war correspondent. He got in to see the signing of the peace treaty, came home with Herbert Bayard Swope, some generals and a pack of police dogs, and has been busy ever since.

New York is a city of paradox. At a Park avenue restaurant you pay 90 cents for half a grapefruit. A big department store is advertising a three-piece women's sport suit for $3.95 There are places where the subway runs on a high trestle. Cars, which cost ten and twenty thousand dollars, wait outside for owners who are shopping in five and ten cent stores. I know a cellar restaurant, which probably is more expensive than any of the roofs.

WEALTHY MAN PAYS MILLIONS TO WOMEN

Three Divorces Cost Nebraska Man $2,000.000.

Omaha.-A $2,000,000 loss in the matrimonial market has convinced E. John Brandeis, Omaha's most famous playboy and the wealthiest young man in Nebraska, that he should discontinue playing with the hearts and hands of women and direct his activities to some other occupation.

Brandeis' latest loss is $500,000 and his third wife, the former Claire Blavette of Paris, daughter of the noted surgeon, Dr. Victor Blavette, whose bloodless operations have attracted attention throughout the medical world.

Brandeis, who is thirty-seven, filed suit in the Los Angeles courts a few days ago seeking his third divorce. He charged that his present wife had deserted him, that she had in ungovernable temper, often had fits of anger-frequently in the presence of friends-and that of late she took a fancy to embarrass him in the presence of "riends by calling him vile names and telling him of many faults. This latest divorce evens the count with three marriages and three divorces besides a pair of alienation suits between divorces and marriages. These affairs have cost Brandels a little more than $2,000,000 girectly and thousands of other dollars which he spent on the fair ladies.

"Baby" Orchestra Lead by Five-Year-Old Boy

Seattle, Wash .- One of the youngest orchestras in America, led by a talented five-year-old boy, has been formed here.

Ten children ranging from three to seven years of age, make up the group under dirrection of Ethen-Ann Reinig, former director of the Hollywood Baby orchestra.

The children use violins one-eighth and one-quarter of the normal size. A small 'cello also is used.

Jackie Wroten, five, conducts the orchestra, and Jackie Le May is master of ceremonies, making all announcements.

The orchestra is a non-commercial organization and appears regularly at charity benefits.

Iowa Kingfisher Killed Robbing Goldfish Pools

Newton, Iowa .- When pools freshly stocked with gold fish for the season remained stocked for only a few days before all the fish were gone a watch was set.

M. S. Vincent, armed with a shotgun, seated himself beside a pool and waited for the gold fish thief. The thief came, a belted kingfisher. As the bird swooped after a fish it was shot and killed.

Writing on Celluloid

. is possible to write on celluloid with a solution of asphalt in solvent naphtha, xylol or other solvent. The pen must not be too full, or a blur will result. This writing remains on the the celluloid and can be wiped off with a bit of absorbent cotton or a rag moistened with benzol. The solution will tend to bite in the celluloid if glacial acetic acid, or possibly better, acetic anhydride, is used instead of part of the naphtha or xylol. A solution of nitrocellulose is said to be used instead of oil for making ink with which to print upon celluloid. As the celluloid itself is chiefly nitrocellulose, ink of this kind will adhere to it very firmly.

carat. roulette: sniffed the exciting dust of chance, experienced the untellable thrill that catches a man at the pit of the stomach, as he places gold in the lap of fate. Within two hours after his arrival, Dawes, who had never gambled in his life, discovered that he was a gambler; Dawes, whose business success was due to his conservatism, and who had never even turned a playing card, found himself on the way to becoming a tragedy of Monte Carlo.

After that, his case went the way of many before him. Broken, broke, dazed by devastation, lacking the impulse and the courage to return home, the next fourteen years of his life were to be spent within the white shadow of the house of his doom.

Monte Carlo has a way of making a bow to these derelicts of hers. She does nat cast them off as ruthlessly as the storied legends go. For those fourteen years of his life, every month, out of the coffers of the gambling house, there came to the bowed little gentleman living in a back-street pension of the town of b's undoing, an allotment of five hundred francs. Scarcely enough to keep his body and soul together, but an assurance, at least, of his board and keep. Twenty dollars a month, for a man whose fingers had once closed over the reassuring fortune of five hundred thousand dollars. To abet that, he obtained a position as night elevator-operator in one of the large hotels. Automatically then, since no employee in the city of Monte Carlo may play stakes at the gaming tables, this disqualified him for the gaming tables, but, strangely enough, it was as if, after his life lay thus in ruin about him, desire had fled.

For fourteen years, Gentleman Dawes lived his life there, occasionaliy pointed out as a relic of tragedy. His days passed as simply and uneventfully as if he had not thumbed his nose to fortune, and seen the results of his lifetime come crashing about him like hailstones. Every morning, hatted, spatted, nicely creased in gray, quiet as a moth, gentle, still horribly shy; he walked from his narrow little pension in an obscure, even mean street, to a small adjoining square, where for two francs he took his coffee and petit-pain, which constituted joint breakfast and lunch. During the afternoon Dawes, the once important citizen of the thriving Colorado town, loitered about the beaches, dawdled an hour in the park-during boldly about the fields, unconcerned over its visibility. Sometimes it barely deigns to get out of the road when menaced by automobiles. Frequently the indifference to hazards it recognizes during the shooting season is laid to stupidity.

The pheasant's superiority in combat with domestic fowl is partly attributal to its better physical condition. It makes constant use of its wings and legs, and is much harder by nature. Though sometimes outweighed, its faster speed and excellent equipment more than offsets the disadvantage .- Detroit News.

People of Moravia

Frills, laces, and embroidery are much in evidence in the trousseau of the Moravian bride. Moravia is a small principality within the republic of Czechoslovakia. A long time ago it was an independent country, but for many years it has been under the control of one or another of the European powers. Before the World war it was part of Austria. Though it has been dominated by outsiders, its people have preserved their national and racial characteristics. The inhabitants of the little principality, which is a mountainous plateau, are chiefly Moravians and Slovaks.

"Heights of Abraham"

The heights of Quebec took their name from Abraham Martin, a Canadian pioneer of Scotch descent. Martin was a pilot on the St. Lawrence river at the time Samuel de Champlain founded the city. Champlain authorized a deed granting Martin a homestead on the heights, and his herds of cattle and sheep were a common sight on the tableland along the St. Lawrence. Martin was affectionately known among the inhabitants as Maitre Abraham.

Modern River "Arks"

While Noah was reputed to be the first builder of an ark more modern types of this style of craft were made by river men, who used them to float coal at a cost of about $5 a ton from the Pennsylvania mines to the Atlantic seaboard. It is said that the "arks" used in transportation of the fuel were so cumbersome that they could not be brought back against the river currents and were therefore sold for what they would bring. These arks held about 60 tons of coal, each.

The museum of the city of New York is one which I have never seen. although I intend to see it soon. I understand it is to have models of all the famous old-time Manhattan bars. That, of course, would include models of the Hoffman house bar, the bar in the Fifth Avenue hotel, the noted Knickerbocker bar above which was Maxfield Parrish's mural of Old King Cole, and Big Tim Sullivan's bar on the Bowery.

Birthplace of Harvard's Name Giver Discovered

Cambridge, Mass. - The country's oldest college believes it finally has located the exact birthplace of Rev. John Harvard, its name-giver and first benefactor

John Harvard was born in an Elizabethan house on High street in the west side of Southwark, London, according to an article by Louis A. Holman of Boston in the latest issue of the Harvard Alumni bulletin. The home and the butcher shop of Robert Harvard, father of the college founder, were opposite Boar's Head tavern.

A one hundred and five-year-old water color painting found in the London Guildhall and the writings of Dr. William Rendle, F. R. C. S., author of "Old Southwark and Its People," are the basis of Holman's finding.

Providence, R. I.-The State Supreme court has ruled that the town of Exeter was not to blame because John R. Sherman contracted pneumonia when his automobile stuck in the mud in that community during a storm. Sherman sought to have the town pay his doctor's bills.

British Royal Motto

"Dieu et Mon Droit," the motto of the royal arms of England, first was assumed by King Richard I, to intimate that he did not hold his empire in vassalage of any mortal, wrote David A. Wells in "Things Not Generally Known." It was later taken up by Edward III, and was continued without interruption to the time of William III, who used the motto "Je maintiendray," though "Dieu et mon droit" still was retained on the great seal. After him, Queen Anne used the motto "Semper Eadem," which had been used before by Queen Elizabeth. but since Queen Anne's time "Dieu et mon droit" has continued to be the royal motto.

Cradle of the Race?

An entirely new conception of the development of the human race has been opened up as the result of the discoveries made in the Oldoway beds of Tanganyika by the members of the East African archeological expedition. Fossils have been found of extinct animals such as hipparion, elephas and chalicotherium-the last name a great herbiverous animal something like a horse, but with peculiar "universal joints" to its feet. The Oldoway beds prove that in East Africa are to be found the representatives of the whole evolution of human culture from pre-historic days.

"Buy First, Then Read"

Shakespeare's first editors, John Herminge and Henrie Condell, may worthily compare to the best advertising brains of today, for they began their preface with:

"The fate of all books depends upon your capacities, and not of your heads alone, but of your purses. Well. It is now published and you will stand for your privilege, we know: to read and censure. Do so, but buy it first."

Bell Museum Treasure The Municipal Art museum in St. Louis has on exhibition a 2000-yearold Chinese temple bell of bronze on which is inscribed a prayer for ever-lasting peace and happiness for the oriental nation.

Authorities state that although the bell is attributed to the Chou dynasty (1122-225 B. C.), it bears all the characteristics of a style which reached its full development during the Ch'ien period (255-207 B. C.). It is considered a masterpiece of workmanship and the finest specimen of bronze in the museum.

It was cast from the spoils of war as a symbol of peace, and commemorates both the valor of the reigning king's army and the establishment of peace, in the following inscription: "We have now with your aid made this valuable and precious bell from the metals which the fortunes of our armies have brought us. May this add to the glory of our illustrious ancestors, and may their spirits always protect us, securing for us the blessings of heaven and granting to us long life, peace and happiness!

"Now all things in this realm maintain their proper relations. Bells and trumpets everywhere proclaim peace and justice. May our descendants also be favored by heaven so as to be able to guard this bell forever."

The bell is composed of oval cross sections. Its ornamental sides taper gracefully toward the top, thereby giving it a monumental character in keeping with its purpose. The sides are enriched with bands of conventionalized dragons, arranged in rectangular patterns and engraved with fine lines in the "thunder scroll" pattern.

Near East Said to Be Birthplace of "Bridge"

There is very little definite information as to the origin of the game of "Bridge" or "Bridge Whist" as it was first called. It is thought to have made its first appearance in the clubs of Egypt and Constantinople. The Encyclopedia Britannica states that it is probably of Levantine origin and that if there were any necessity to assign to it a definite nationality, that honor must be awarded to Greece. A pam-phlet on the game, published in Lon-don in 1886, called it "Biritch or Russian Whist"; however, the word "biritch" is not found in any Russian dictionary. The game was introduced into the British and American clubs about 1893 or 1894. According to one theory, the British players of the game in the Near East began to call the game "bridge" because of the privilege of "bridging" or passing the deal to the partner, and Russian followers of the game pronounced the name "biritch."

COLD beverages are as much a part of summer living, and quite as necessary, as are hot drinks in cold weather. The loss of weight and energy, due to the hot weather, must be made good with liquids and energizing foods, if we are to keep our health, let alone our tempers. Eating and drinking lightly are good summer habits, and a pickme-up at eleven o'clock in the morn-ing and again at four in the afternoon will check fatigue and lend a cheerful aspect to even the most trying day. There are many cool beverages that one may enjoy, but none more invigorating, refreshing and satis-fying, than iced coffee. Hot, it is the natural and necessary begin-ning of every day; and iced, it will see you through even the longest day in summer.

And iced coffee is easy to make. beve You brew it your regular way, ex- the

2:14). By immodest apparel. One's clothing is a strong factor in revealing character. By actual adultry. By divorce

IV. The Eighth Commandment (v. 15). This commandment strikes at the sin of theft. Many things are legally right which are morally wrong. This commandment may be broken:

By taking that which belongs to another. By using false weights and measures. By selling adulterated foods and inferior goods. By extortion. By employers defrauding employees, and employees failing to do honest work or to put in full time. By borrowing and not returning. By going into debt, knowing that payment is impossible. By usury. By graft. By lying advertisements. By making assignments to escape payment of debts. By gambling. By strong nations oppressing weaker ones.

V. The Ninth Commandment (v. 16). The sin aimed at by this command is a most deadly one-that of lying. This commandment may be broken:

By actual lying. By perjury-swearing to falsehoods by the name of God. By slander-speaking against another falsely with a purpose to injure. By tale-bearing (Lev. 19:16). This is commonly done by repeating a report without ivestigating its truthfulness. By creating a false impression (Exod. 23: 1). By a breach of promise. By withholding the truth. By perverting the meaning of a statement. By exaggeration. By flattery. By recommending for a position of honor and trust a man who is unfitted for it. By granting a church letter to a man who is unworthy.

VI. The Tenth Commandment (v. 17).

This commandment strikes at the desire for that which is unlawful for one to have. The sin does not lie in the desire to possess things but in the desire to possess that which belongs to another.

passed by the murmuring Adige, one of the noblest. The famous Arena and Roman theater date back before the Christian era, and its prosperity under the overlordship of the Della Scala in the Middle ages gave the city much of its architectural treasure. Noteworthy for artists is the varied scene in the Piazza delle Erbe, and one should see the Della Scala tombs, the cathedral and St. Zeno.

Naming Chinese Children

About a month after the birth of a Chinese boy he is given a "milk name." which clings to him for life. On first going to school he receives his "book name," which is used by his teachers and schoolmates. Upon taking a degree he is given an official name. After his death he is given a posthumous or "flowery" name (to keep evil spirits from knowing him), which is registered in the Hall of Ancestors. Many Chinese men also have a Tong name which is very important. Chinese girls have a "milk name," a "marriage name" and nicknames. They retain their own surnames (maiden names) when married.

Railroad Building Limited

One may not build a railroad in the United States if it is to operate in interstate commerce. The promoters of a railroad must obtain from the interstate commerce commission a certificate of convenience and public necessity before they may sell stock or begin construction. The commission holds hearings to determine if a demand for a railroad exists through the sterritory in which it is planned to build, and whether the prospects are favorable for profitable freight loadings .--- Washington Star.

++ ADVANCING MARKET PRICES.

Cotton made its biggest advance, this week, that it has made in two years, the rise being more than $5.00 bale. The advance is due to unfavorable crop reports. Leading stocks have had three advances, within the past ten days, the greatest general advance since 1930. The advances ranged from $3.00 to $8.00 a share.

Advances are noted in silks, grains, copper and provisions-especially cattle and hogs.

Wheat, corn and oats have gained, largely due to unfavorable crop reports.

Mines and mills throughout Pennsylvania are showing increased pro-duction, and employment is corres-pondingly keeping pace with the upward trend.

Payments to depositors in closed banks are still continuing throughout the country, and contribute to a more optimistic tone.

Another sharp advance has been in the wool market, unsurpassed since the war, said to be due in part to fall-ing off in wool production.

The new billion dollar tax bill contributed during the first six days in August $4,992,677 more than the same period last year.

Crude oil production in the United States increased 34,400 barrels in the first week of August.

Grain reports from the United States, last week, amounted to 1,449,-000 bushels.
