

PUBLIC INFORMATION

3—The seventh grade will be discontinued at Black's and Cherry Grove.

4—The sixth and seventh grades from the Reese and Sandymount districts will take the bus to Finksburg. All high school pupils east and south of the Patapsco road into Sandville except juniors and seniors now in Westminster High School will take the bus to Mechanicsville High school via Finksburg.

KEY HIGHWAY MAY BE FINISHED
THIS YEAR.

Reports are current that the $66,374.01, the amount apportioned to Carroll County from the Federal Government loan for road construction work in Maryland, will be used in the completion of the Francis Scott Key Highway from Taneytown to Frederick, and the remainder to building a mile from Westminster toward Taneytown by the Gorsuch route.

As the $66,374.01 will hardly complete the first project, additional funds will evidently be required to complete both.

CARROLL C. E. OUTING PLANNED

The Carroll County Christian Endeavor Union will hold an outing in the grove at Meadow Branch church, near Westminster, Saturday afternoon and evening, September 3. The rally for Westminster district under the auspices of the Carroll County C. E. Union, will be held September 14, in the Westminster M. P. Church, at 8 o'clock. The program is in charge of the district vice-president, Miss Sallie Bett Barnhill, with the song service led by William Mather. The address will be given by Prof. M. J. Shroyer, Westminster Theological Seminary, the theme being "Fellowship With Christ." The State president and the field secretary will also speak.

THE COUNTY STATEMENT.

We publish in this issue the customary Annual Financial Statement of Carroll County, as made by the Commissioners of Carroll County. It shows in detail where our tax dollars have gone within the past year; and it also shows the bigness of the job of having charge of our county's finances, a matter that we are more apt to easily criticize than to carefully consider.

The Commissioners' job is at least one that is not overpaid, when we consider the quality of the ability and responsibility that is required.

PINE MAR CAMP SERVICES.

Sunday marks the close of the Pine-Mar Camp Services for this season. An interesting program has been arranged, including a male chorus from Carrollton, a quartette from Edgewood and several selections on a saw. In the evening the singing Baker's from York will be present. Evangelist Barlow will leave Sunday night for Iowa. He will speak at Pine-Mar afternoon and evening.

OUR LOCAL COLUMN.

Due to pressure for "last page" advertising, hereafter our Local Column will begin on first page, and perhaps be continued on 4th or 5th pages. This should be an arrangement satisfactory to everybody, even though it interferes with our own ideas as to how to "make up" The Record.

TANEYTOWN SCHOOL NEWS

Concerning the Reopening of School,
Monday, Sept. 5th.

Announcement is made of the reopening of the schools on Monday, Sept. 5th. School will begin (on that day only) at ten o'clock in the morning instead of the regular hour. The opening exercises will include an Assembly program, at which there will be special music and a short address by a speaker from without the school. The parents, patrons and friends are cordially invited to attend these opening exercises.

At the same time, there will be distributed to the pupils of the High School a sheet containing the Curriculum, and various items of information. Opportunity will be given the pupils and the parents to consult with the Principal regarding any matter about which they are not clear, and also have the opportunity to ask questions.

Attention is called to the bus schedules, which will be about the same as last year, except that the bus which goes to Harney, and returns to Taneytown by way of the "Graveyard Road" will include in its route a trip to the Pine Hill School House, in order to pick up the children who formerly attended that school. The buses on Monday, Sept. 5, will run about an hour and a quarter later than last year's schedule. Announcement will be made at the opening Assembly of the approximate bus schedules for the days after Monday.

A great many changes in the personnel of the teaching force for this year is noted. According to present information, the faculty this year will be as follows.

BARN FIRE AT WOODSBORO.

The large barn on the farm of William B. Cutshall, near Woodsboro, tenanted by John Toms, was destroyed by fire from some publicly unknown cause, last Saturday night, about 10:30. The New Midway Fire Company responded but could do nothing to save the building.

Mr. Toms the tenant was in bed at the time, the rest of the members of his family being away from home. He managed to save some machinery and a few small articles stored in the barn.

No live stock was destroyed all of it being in fields on the farm. About 1000 bushels of wheat, 35 loads of hay and 7 loads of barley were burned. It is said that the building was fairly insured but that the personal property was not insured.

By pumping water from a well and cistern the firemen saved several adjoining buildings.

BYERS FAMILY REUNION.

Approximately 150 persons attended the third annual reunion of the Byers family, which was held on Sunday in the grove at Meadow Branch Church, along the Westminster-Taneytown highway, near the former city.

After the exchange of greetings, a picnic luncheon was served at noon under the trees in the grove, which was much enjoyed, the weather being ideal for a family outing.

Edward M. Byers, president of the association, was in charge of the business meeting, and Keith Byers conducted the program. Mrs. Mary Byers Martin, with the assistance of a quartet, led the singing.

The following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, Edward M. Byers, New Windsor; Vice-President, Mrs. Lewis Smith, Westminster; Secretary, Maurice C. Warehime, Littlestown; Assistant Secretary, Miss J. Aileen Byers, Littlestown; Treasurer, Jesse Byers, Mt. COBLENTZ SENTENCED TO 18 MONTHS.Has filed Notice of Intention to Appeal the Case.

On the charge that he accepted deposits in a bank he knew to be insolvent, State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick, was sentenced to serve eighteen months in the Maryland House of Correction. This decision came after the three Judges who sat in the case had declined to reduce the sentence, or to consider the argument of the defense that there was no moral turpitude in the case, and that Mr. Coblentz was the victim of an unfortunate chain of circumstances.

Mr. Coblentz gave notice of his intention to take the case to the Court of Appeals, and in the meantime his bond of $2500, is being continued. A news report in the Baltimore Sun says:

"The trial, which started in May; consumed almost a month, and it was another month before the three judges sitting in the case announced they had found Coblentz guilty on the count of accepting a deposit in the Ellicott City branch of the day before the chain collapsed. The passing of sentence then was deferred to permit attorneys for Coblentz to make their appeal for a new trial.

In announcing the decision of the court, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan said:

"The statute under which the defendant was indicted leaves the court very little latitude, the only alternative being either confinement in the Penitentiary of the State of Maryland or in the House of Correction or in jail. The purpose of the statute is for the protection of a large body of the citizens of our State from losses by reason of improper conduct of bank affairs.

"It is due to the defendant to say that although we said when the verdict was announced that the defendant knew of the condition of insolvency of the bank and was largely responsible for it, there is no evidence that he benefited in the least by the transaction involved or that he improperly received one dollar therefrom.

Coblentz issued a statement in which he asserted his conscience was "absolutely clear," and added that "the record in this case speaks unmistakably of my honesty of purpose and rectitude of intention, in that not a single dollar of the depositors' money has been misappropriated, and there has been no personal pecuniary profit or advantage to me."

The aggregate for the seven farms sold, was $48,504.

These sales were auctioneered by J. N. O. Smith, Taneytown, and John Reaver, Manchester, and represented a busy eight-days' work.

LUTHER LEAGUE CONVENTION.

The Luther League Convention of the state of Maryland to be held in Hagerstown, Md., over Labor Day has been especially planned for young people's interests and spiritual welfare.

Guided by outstanding leaders in all phases of Lutheran work, everyone who attends this convention will gain a deeper insight into real Christian service and experience. Rev. J. S. Simon, D. D., former president of Maryland Synod, and a graduate of Wittenberg College and Seminary, will introduce the Convention theme, "The Calls of Jesus" with the address, "Come Unto Me." The Leaguers will next hear Rev. R. N. Melhorne, D. D., Litt. D., at the Sunday evening service when he will present the second of the calls, "Learn of Me." Rev. Melhorne is editor of the Lutheran and was a representative to the first and second Lutheran World Conventions at Eisenach, Germany and Copenhagen, Denmark, and to the Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work at Stockholm, Sweden where he formed contacts with leading Lutherans abroad. Rev. Paul M. Kinports, executive secretary of the Luther League in America, will conclude the Monday morning service with a talk "Follow Me."

Monday afternoon the delegates will hear the president of the Maryland Synod, the Rev. J. E. Harms, a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne College and Gettysburg Seminary. He is one of the directors of Susquehanna University. The theme of this address is "Go and Tell." Rev. N. J. G. Wickey will conclude the convention with the last of the calls, "Abide in Me." Rev. Wickey is executive secretary, Board of Education, United Lutheran Church in America. He was graduated from Gettysburg College, Gettysburg Theological Seminary and received the A. M. and Ph. FARM STRIKERS OPERATING
IN IOWA.Organized Effort being Made to Force up Prices.

A strike of farmers, beginning in the Council Bluffs section, Iowa, and extending into sections of Nebraska, has been in force for about two weeks. The object of the strike has been to force up the prices of farm and dairy products, mainly by blockading roads against outside shipments and refusing to sell milk, butter, eggs, etc., except at high prices.

The striking farmers are also faced with the necessity of selling their own products in order to get cash, but the situation continues and may result in serious trouble. A number of the striking farmers have been arrested, and to some extent officers of law have been compelled to convey trucks containing produce from non-striking farmers to market.

The farmers are unquestionably in need of better prices, but this can not be brought about by force that interferes with the free use of the highways, and causes suffering to other classes of labor. The authorities are trying to handle the situation without severe force, but at present the situation is critical.

Sheriff Lainsow, of Sioux City says "we are going to stop this picketing if it takes 50,000 deputies to do it," and asserts that most of the pickets are "hoodlums just as much as Chicago gangsters."

At most, the striking framers can only succeed in forcing up prices—should the picketing plan succeed—on nearby cities and towns, with the result of directly injuring many of their own friends and relatives, and could have little effect on market prices. By many, the present effort is regarded as partly political, to have its effect on the November elections.

At Council Bluffs, on Thursday, it was necessary to guard the jail where 61 picketers were confined, for fear of an attempt to rescue them by a large body of picketers who assembled, but on observing preparations for the defense of the jail, no outbreak occurred but they quietly proceeded to encamp nearby.

Seventy-seven picketers were arrested at Sioux City, following their refusal to stop halting trucks laden with farm produce that were bound for the city markets.

At Boone, Iowa, another picketing centre, fifty farmers called on the Sheriff and demanded that the highways be kept open in order that they might reach the markets with produce. They also offered themselves as a crew to prevent picketing. The contest is therefore partly between groups of farmers—some wanting to supply the markets, and others wanting to keep supplies away.

The latest is that the arrested farmers are being released as fast as they furnish bail of $100.00 each, levied as a fine for disturbing the peace.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE.

One of the features for the children's and young people's workers Institute to be held Tuesday, August 30, in Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, Westminster, will be the supper at 5:30, with an address on the subject "Keeping the Child in the Midst." This address will be followed by class periods which will carry on the discussions opened in the afternoon classes. The registration and supper will be 50 cents. All registrations are to be sent to the County Secretary, Miss Mabel R. Albert, 54 Carroll Street, Westminster, Md.

This Institute promises to be one of the most helpful projects promoted for the benefit of the Sunday School teachers. We deeply appreciate the interest our Sunday School teachers take in fitting themselves more adequately for teaching. In our day when we are turning out hundreds of children and young people from the grammar and high schools, we need well equipped teachers to challenge them in the interest of religious and spiritual things. Therefore the Carroll County Council of Religious Education is bringing to its teachers this unique and helpful Institute.

METHODIST DAY.

Methodist Day will be observed at the Strawbridge Home for Boys at Eldersburg, Md., on Saturday, Sept. 17. A program has been arranged that will begin at 2:00 P. M. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, D. C., the newly appointed bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Churches of this area, will be present and deliver an address. The Baltimore Conference Quartette will sing.

Ministers and members from many Methodist Churches of this Conference will be present. An excellent chicken dinner will be served for 50 cents. Many will desire to bring their lunches and eat in the fine grove. The increasing attendance at Methodist Day celebrations indicate their growing interest. The public is invited.

READ PERSHING'S ARTICLE.

The Page article in this issue by Gen. John A. Pershing will be considered "dry" reading by the most of our readers. However, there are enough of the other kind who will get real value out of it. Not only read it, but study it. Do not applaud certain sentences alone, but consider them as a whole. We consider it the best statement of facts that we have read this year.

LeGORE WILL PROBATED.

The will of the late James W. LeGore, of LeGore, who died about six months ago, was probated Tuesday and leaves the estate of the deceased to his widow, Mrs. Addie B. LeGore, and children in trust. The entire estate is bequeathed to Frank L. Stoner, in trust.

By the terms of the will, one-fifth of the capital stock and property of the LeGore Combination Lime Company, is left in trust for George R. LeGore, Walter C. LeGore, James A. LeGore, Harry W. LeGore, Harry W. LeGore and Bruce S. LeGore, during the life of Mrs. LeGore, the total amount of the property and stock being valued by the testator at $114,000.

The control, operation and management of the lime company is committed to the five sons and the trustee with authority to the trustee to vote the capital stock to effectuate said purpose and to perpetuate the control and operation of said property. The bequest is made and the control so committed, the will states, subject to an annual charge upon said trust property of $6,840 payable semi-annually by the five sons of the trustee to be distributed by him as follows: One-third to the widow, for life, and the remainder to be divided equally among the testator's nine children. Upon the death of the widow, the sum of $12,666.67 is left to each of the daughters, Mrs. J. P. Feiser, Mrs. Harold K. Dell, Mildred Irent LeGore, and Katherine Louise LeGore. The trust is to be dissolved and the whole of the capital stock of said corporation is left equally to the five sons. No capital stock is to be sold to anyone other than the sons or husbands of the testator's daughters.

Frank L. Stoner and George R. LeGore are named executors. The will was dated March 19, 1921, and witnessed by W. P. Mohler and C. O. Keeney.

A codicil states that whereas James A. LeGore and Bruce S. LeGore have severed their connection with the LeGore Lime Company and disposed of their beneficial interest in the capital stock in violation of the intentions of the testator, all provisions of the will so far as they are concerned are declared void. Any property devised to them is left to George R. LeGore, Walter C. LeGore and Harry W. LeGore. The codicil was dated March 21, 1929, and witnessed by Chas. B. Shank and Andrew L. Krise, George R. LeGore has died since execution of the codicil.—Frederick Post.

WILL ROGERS AND COUNTRY EDITORS.

The National Editorial Association has been holding its annual convention in California. Here is what Will Rogers says of the bunch.

"We have a great bunch out here prowling around. It's the National Editorial association, composed of editors in smaller towns and weekly publications. They are just eating their way around the country, having a good time, and getting a lot of pleasure out of it. And giving every one that meets 'em a close-up of just about as representative a gang of Americans as would be possible to band together—intelligent, well read, and no national advertising controls their pages.

They are not conceited enough to think they "mold public opinion." They just go along and service their community with the most indispensable article that it has. And yet their real power is greater than all your metropolitan dailies combined. Any person that don't read at least one well-written country newspaper is not truly informed."

MARYLAND RABBIT SHOW.

Rabbits of forty-eight breeds will be displayed at the first annual Maryland rabbit show which will be held at Jessups, Sept. 3 to 5.

The Maryland Rabbit Breeders' Association in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, the University of Maryland, the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' Association and the Federation of New Zealand Breeders are sponsoring the show.

Prizes will be given for the best exhibits of New Zealand Red, New Zealand White, the best Rex, White Flemish Buck, Havana Rex, Blue Beveren, Black Dutch and Champagne de Argent. There also will be prizes for boys who have raised rabbits of no standard breed.

One of the purposes of the show, it was said, is to stimulate interest in rabbit breeding among members of 4-H Clubs throughout the State. Some of these clubs now raise rabbits. Two clubs will have entries at the show.

Louis Griffith, of Colorado Springs, will judge the rabbits.

SOME FIGURING NEEDED.

It is greatly too much taken for granted that the lavish expenditure of money by a government—National or State—brings prosperity by placing large sums of money—perhaps for public work—into circulation, for the benefit of "business" and the "unemployed."

There is a great deal too much of taking this theory for granted, without figuring out where the money actually goes. We know the money is spent, and the taxpayers furnish it. What we do not know, is this one thing; how many are actually benefitted, and how many are compelled to supply the benefit?

Take a contract involving the expenditure of $1,000,000. How many of these dollars go to how many of the people who need employment, and how many of the dollars go to corporations in the shape of profit not needed? And, how many taxpayers who supply the $1,000,000 are benefitted, and how much do they actually get out of the expenditure in practical, needed benefits?

For instance, who has ever figured on the cash, or the equivalent of cash, that a county may have returned to its taxpayers for the erection of a $100,000 public building of some kind? Even in the construction of our expensive roads, how much of the use of the roads and general benefits is returned directly or indirectly to those who pay for them, as compared with the benefit of non-taxpayers receive from them?

Of course, we must not too closely consider class against class. The mere getting of money is not to be considered a virtue without an accompanying responsibility. The strong must help the weak, and the rich help the poor. "Bear ye one another's burdens" is a Divine Command, in more ways than one, and yet, even wealth, and financial ability has its proper rights. It should never be depended on to encourage waste and general shiftlessness, nor to encourage lazy dependence. Wealth is not a proper mark for the highwayman.

Simple justice and common-sense demands that we investigate public expenditures, and find out as nearly as possible, beforehand, whether genuine charity and justifiable liberality attaches to the commonly accepted doctrine that general prosperity necessarily always depends on large spending at the expense of the comparatively few.

AN EDITORIAL AGAIN COMMENTED ON.

(For the Record.)

In a recent editorial you referred to the orderly crowd at the Carroll County Celebration of the George Washington Bi-centennial, and the writer was struck with the same idea at the Hampstead celebration held some time ago. Can easily recall that at gatherings of this kind when we had 4 or 5 saloons in Hampstead there were certain to be a number of "drunks" and usually some of the fighting variety.

In these days of the automobile there would be some of the type who would insist on driving their machine up and down town to prove they were sober. Of course that does not mean that if we had the saloon today all visitors to such occasions would be drinking, any more than when a boot-black asks you if you want a "shine" means that you needed one.

The same liquor business with its backers are at the bottom of the enforcement troubles now, just as these same elements made prohibition not only possible and desirable, but made it the only practical solution a few years ago. Doing away with the 18th Amendment will not quiet this group nor make them less a problem, and we need not be deceived.

The wet newspapers are going to see the day when they will regret their methods and the same element that is being encouraged by them will one day assert itself and may leave some newspapers stranded. Some of our bank failures have been caused by propaganda, pure and simple.

Would welcome a vote if given plenty of time and a fair chance to spread the facts. The cards are stacked against us now, and "hard times" to make the "revenue" idea effective. It all depends on treating the public to the facts, and with the newspapers against you, this is an uphill job.

CREDIT FOR EDITORIALS.

Did you ever work for three or four hours writing an editorial which you consider would be worth the while and the next week see the same article published in half a dozen different exchanges without a single one of them giving you credit for your work? And then did you ever notice the word "exchange" at the bottom of the article you had labored on, as though the editor who used it seemed to want to tell you that he didn't believe the article he had taken from your paper was yours?

Man, it's a grand and glorious feeling that follows such treatment!

A few years ago the writer of this article wrote an editorial. The next week one of our exchanges published it without credit. For a few days we were delighted to see the article published in the Commercial Appeal with credit to the newspaper that had plagiarized it from us.

We have lots of fun editing a newspaper, because there are lots of funny experiences coming up all the time.

We suggest that some editor clip this article and use next week without credit; for, doubtless it will fit in admirably.—Clay County (Ark.) Independent.

The above represents inside information on the subject. We have had experiences exactly duplicating those given. As "ready-made" editorials are on sale, the same as any other wanted products; and as they are somewhat easy to recognize in certain cases, it does represent giving honor where honor is not due, to credit authorship to an individual subscriber to a purchased service.

There is nothing actually wrong in the purchase and use of editorials. It is not plagiarism, exactly, but is a near substitute; and all of us need to be careful how we boast of our honesty in such matters. As a matter of cold fact, every newspaper, large or small, "lifts" some of its articles—editorial or news—without giving credit, and it isn't a fair thing to do.

DRY GROUP TO BACK HOOVER.

Announcing the conviction that "Mr. Hoover is decisively personally and politically dry," Dr. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the Allied Forces, newest and most aggressive of the prohibition organizations, declared today his organization would support the President in the present campaign with all the strength that could be mustered by its membership of more than 1,500,000 persons.

He added the flat prediction that Mr. Hoover would be elected.

He at the same time announced that he acted with the permission of the White House, making public a letter from Mr. Hoover in which the President said:

"We are on common ground in a desire to rid this civilization of the evils of the liquor traffic. We may not all agree on method, as I have come to the belief that we must, through constructive and not destructive channels, revive the energies of the States to deal with the new evils, with Federal constitutional guarantees against the return of the old evils.

"We must drive steadily toward disarmament and world peace. We must fight for economic recovery, not only for its material values, but we must secure from this period a revaluation of the purposes of life and shift and drift from materialism to a higher note of individual and national ideas.

"We must awaken a sense of national consciousness of the purpose of life itself. We must contend every moment for the wider development of free men and women through the one road to that end—that is, loyalty to a century and a half of our American inspirations." — Phila. Ledger News Service.

DON'T LIKE THE DEPRESSION.

The Record a few weeks ago published an article on "I like the Depression." It's style was witty and had some of the earmarks of a classic of its kind. Now comes along another, evidently meant to be a reply, style and all in detail, to this article. Authorship seems to attach to Howard Africa, of the Eastern Colorado Leader, at Limore, Col. It is decidedly not as witty as the other article that inspired it, but it carries a lot of plain common-sense talk. We again clip from the Publishers Auxiliary, as follows;

"I had always been able to enjoy common everyday food until the depression. I still enjoy it when I can get it. I never got high-hat because all too frequently I have been a witness to that adversity that has overtaken and overpowered the best men and women in every walk of life. Observation on my part has kept me closely in touch with the uncertainties of worldly things, as well as life itself, that a nibble of prosperity never elated me above my friends.

I cannot neglect my work now as I did in the prosperous years. Money came easy then and the bill collector never was permitted the opportunity to become acquainted with me. I paid by check and took my discounts. Now, I work diligently gets acquainted he's going to have to catch me. My work is harder and takes more of my time because my brain is befuddled and won't get down to one thing at a time. Trying to keep the wolf from peeking through the back-door keyhole and the sheriff out of the front yard is even causing a grayish hue to take form around the bald on my head.

I don't like the depression. When I visit with my friends I get as blue as indigo. Three years ago they were for the most part, prosperous and optimistic. Today they are puzzled, downcast, and broke. They are just as worthy as they ever were but they are in the strong grasp of privation. They are not mentally or physically fit to fathom such a condition.

I don't enjoy dropping into the store for a visit as it isn't like it used to be. Times was when we met with open hearts and minds and somebody "set-em-up." Now everybody "sets down" and drinks in with gusto the pessimistic outbursts of the office-seeking politician and the optimistic hasn't a lookin. I don't like the depression.

I have always been acquainted with my neighbors but somehow we're not as happy and carefree as we used to be. Our greetings are just as cordial but there's that "something" that comes with a depression" that inwardly craves seclusion, and the cup of life isn't quite so full or sweet as it used to be. When we do get together our conversation usually carries us into the realm of racketeers, bootleggers, kidnapers, and the ferribleness of suicide among the young set. Some are too young to understand, and the others not sufficiently mature to withstand the problems that a depression brings—and thus our gatherings convert themselves into veritable nightmares. We don't like the depression.

My wife and I have never gotten stuck up or high falutin'. We use the old family bed, as I much prefer that she plant her cold feet in my anatomy and use my spine for a chill tatoo, than to waste the fuel to heat water or a flat-iron. Her snoring has always been sweet music to my ears. We learned in the good old days that "for better or for worse" had its sinister meaning and we are holding firm even against adversity. But somehow our home isn't like it used to be and I have to do the odd jobs myself and deprive the fellow worker. It never was a natural habit with us. We don't like the depression.

It gives me a pain in the region of my Adam's apple to hear people rave about burdensome taxation. It's becoming the leading pastime, and it's irksome. People don't care a tinker's darn about taxation. They know it won't help their condition to throw more and more people out of jobs. What the taxpayer really wants is a good, fat job for everybody so that wheat will command at least a dollar, pork 12 cents to 15 cents on the hoof and cream hovering around 50 cents. Beans at 5 cents to 6 cents a pound would make that tax bill look about as prominent as gnat's eyebrows, and eggs at 45 cents a dozen would put mirthful creases on the taxpayer's visage that you couldn't wipe off with sandpaper.

For years I have gone to church. The minister's sermons are good, but somehow it isn't like it was in the pre-depression days. Depressions hit right at folk's vitals and they seem to lose the faith and complain that the Lord has forgotten them. The truth, no doubt, is the reverse—they have fallen victims of the depression and can't think of anything else when they concentrate enough to think at all. My Bible doesn't teach me that God is arrogant, vicious and vengeful. God is love, but many will insist that the depression is a rebuke. It isn't a healthful situation when folks lose their Christianity through misunderstanding. The church doesn't like the depression.

I am an optimist, I love to see people smile. I think there is nothing nicer than a comfortable, Christian home. If I wasn't an optimist I couldn't make myself believe that the depression would soon pass and be forgotten, but I know it will as it is simply the result of man's error. Want, misery, suffering and sorrow are not the works of God, but of greed, avarice and "depression." And I know you will not blame me when I repeat that "I don't like the depression."

Famed Guerrilla Chief's Rifle Owned by Ohioans

Willow Grove, Ohio.—An ancient flintlock rifle whose unerring aim would have filled a good sized cemetery is owned by a group of Willow Grove citizens. Originally it was the property of Gorilla Bill Smith, Ohio guerrilla chieftain in Civil war days, who individually claimed killer's rights to 100 men. The gun, weighing 13½ pounds, was displayed during the Chicago World's fair in 1893.

British Queen Found to Be Wise Shopper

London.—Queen Mary is a model housewife. She is a wise shopper and a careful spender, and, best of all, she never makes mistakes in her accounts.

The authority for these compliments is not King George, but Sir Edward Wallington who, at seventy-eight, has just retired as treasurer to the queen after 13 years of office.

"I have paid all the queen's private bills since my appointment," Sir Edward told an interviewer, "and I have been on hundreds of shopping expeditions with her. I have always been amazed by her grasp of current prices and the discrimination she showed in buying the right article. I never found a flaw in her bills."

Renaissance Period of

World's Great Advance

The Renaissance (literally the "re-birth") may be defined briefly in the phrase of a great classical scholar, Sir Richard Jebb, as "the whole process of transition in Europe from the medieval to the modern order." The movement, the beginnings of which are associated with Petrarch (1304-74) and the humanists of the Fourteenth century in Italy, was stimulated by the momentous events of the Fifteenth century—particularly the fall of Constantinople, which drove Byzantine scholars with the literature of Greece into western Europe, the invention of printing, and the discovery of America. This "rebirth" or "awakening," which spread to France and northern Europe in the Sixteenth century, was especially noticeable in the development of what are called the "fine arts." In Italy it led to great advances in expressional painting and sculpture, and to a return to classical design of architecture; in France it developed especially in art and letters under Louis XII and Francis I; in Britain the movement expressed itself most notably in literature, following upon the impulse to classical learning given by Erasmus, Colet, Moore, and others; while in Germany the movement became associated with the Reformation.

Homicidal Maniacs

The horrible story of the asylum attendant who died as the result of a struggle with a maniac, recalls another ghastly story which an alienist related some time ago. An attendant in an asylum observed a patient wandering down the ward carrying a human head under his arm. He thought tact was called for, and asked the lunatic politely whose head he had got and why. As if it was the most natural thing in the world, the other gave him the information he asked for and said he decapitated his unfortunate fellow patient in his sleep because he thought it would be so amusing to see him looking for his head when he woke up.—Exchange.

Not in Stock

Dad had developed a bad cold and in talking to a friend said he had been having the "sniffles." Later, when a younger member of the family returned from the drug store where he had been sent for cough drops, he reported that the man said he didn't have any.

"What? A drug store that hasn't cough drops on sale?"

"Well, it was like this," sonny admitted. "I forgot what the name of them was, so thought it would be just the same if I asked for a box of sniffles, and the man said he didn't have anything like that."

Sidewalk Bread Shops

Syrian folks worry not at all over germs, and in Beirut, when the housewife wants bread, she will walk right out into the street and buy a loaf from the bakeshop man, who airs his wares uncovered in Beirut's bacteria-laden atmosphere, where flies can crawl over them, birds can peck at them, and camels can sniff at them. The flat loaves are baked in the crude native bakeshops, and have a thick crust which helps retain the moisture within the loaf. Syrians, however, are not particular about the moisture, and eat a dried loaf with relish.

Fifteen-Year Man Hunt

Ends in Italian Jail

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Fifteen years ago City Patrolman George Phillips' pal was shot and killed by John Anselmo.

At the time Phillips vowed he would never rest until the slayer of Patrolman T. F. Griffith was brought to justice.

Eventually Anselmo was captured, tried and convicted. Later he escaped from prison.

Phillips quietly started a man hunt by mail that has lasted throughout the year. The other day he announced his quest was successful. He had located Anselmo, he said, in Italy, where the man is serving a prison sentence. As soon as the man is released, he will be returned to Utah.

Cops Protect Petters

at Lovers' Paradise

Stoneham, Mass.—On the shore of picturesque Spot Pond here is one of the long established petters' paradises in America.

Nightly for the past 15 years or more hundreds of automobiles have parked on the broad reservations by the roadside overlooking the pond. There, with police patrols to insure protection against petting party bandits, lovers may spoon unmolested.

A midnight curfew must be observed, however, early morning love making not being tolerated by the metropolitan police.

Plane Beats Pigeons

Norwich, England.—A speed competition between an airplane and twelve racing pigeons, the first of its sort ever held in Great Britain, resulted in victory for the machine by a quarter of an hour. The course was 80 miles.

Bees Stop Train

Omak, Wash.—A swarm of bees at work stopped a train here. The insects had stored wax on one of the triple valve air controls, and all brakes on the train were set.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

HOUSEWIVES can help to relieve unemployment distress by putting up, along with their own preserves, a number of extra jars for distribution to needy families next winter. Preserves are a valuable form of relief food, their fruits or vegetables furnishing vitamins and their sugar content providing an unexcelled source of energy.

White spots on the table top or other furniture can usually be removed by rubbing, first with wood alcohol, and then with a piece of flannel moistened with camphorated oil.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

CUSHIONED flooring made of pressed wood with an in-built shock absorber that minimizes fatigue is now available for the home. It comes in blocks of various sizes and in both dark and light shades, permitting a variety of decorative designs. It can be laid over old floors, sub-flooring or concrete.

Canned fruit should always be opened an hour or two before it is used and poured into a dish. It becomes richer after it has been allowed to absorb oxygen.

Joe has been for years the official bootblack of a large magazine publishing firm in Manhattan. Years ago when the organization was further downtown, Joe was chief of the shiners and when the business moved he moved with it. He knew every foot of the editorial departments. As becomes a gentleman of polish, Joe always has had literary ambitions. He had an idea that, starting on a shoe string, he could as an author reach financial affluence. Customers, he maintained, showed him not only their soles but their hearts. But hard-boiled editors could not see the pictures he painted with a shoe brush. They kidded Joe in moments of leisure and rushed him sternly when they were busy. One editor put his foot down firmly. To retain his patronage, Joe had to promise not to mention the subject of writing. One day he broke the taboo, and the editor roared:

"This is too much! Never darken my shoes again!"

But, after many years, Joe found a listener who was sympathetic. "I can't write," he told him, "but I have seen much and I have ideas." The listener was just young enough to believe him. So he and Joe went into partnership. Joe furnished the plots, the other man did the writing. The stories were accepted by the editors who had laughed or sworn at Joe so many seasons. They were glad to print them. They were real stories. A good bootblack apparently learns to read footprints in the sands of time.

I see by the papers that at Los Angeles the Rainbow division pinned a colonel's eagle on the shoulder of Ann Harding, in memory of her father, the late Gen. George Gately. The Thirtieth division should pin another eagle on Miss Harding's remaining shoulder. It was the Thirtieth division which General Gately trained at Camp Sevier, near Greenville, S. C. It was the Thirtieth division which he took to France, and which referred to him fondly as "Good G—d Gus," and would have bled and died for him. It was later that he went to the Rainbow. And on his arrival that division was richer by one first-class fighting man.

Bob Sherwood, Arthur Sherwood, Donald Carlisle and Norman Stevenson came out of the Ritz and started to walk down Madison avenue together. The shortest of this foursome is Mr. Stevenson. He stands a mere six feet four inches. A studious-looking little chap, who was strolling along in an absent-minded manner, bumped into the four guardsmen, took one startled look, and scurried down a side street in an evident panic. Friends think it would be a great idea if these four friends could be induced to show dachshunds at the next dog show.

A black leopard is no gentle playmate. One of these beasts with a circus reached out and dragged a dog through a space not six inches wide, killing the animal before anyone could do a thing about it. The dog was one of the best trained collies with the show.

When Calvin Coolidge was President, he sent for a congressman who had introduced a certain bill.

"Is your bill going to get by the house?" he asked.

"Yes, Mr. President," said the congressman. "We have all worked hard on it and I think there is no doubt it will pass the house."

"Will it get by the senate?"

"Yes, Mr. President, I have assurances from powerful committee members and leaders. Yes, I think it will get by the senate."

"Well," said Mr. Coolidge, "it won't get by me."

Heat Swells Bank Vault Door; Cash Is Borrowed

Macomb, Ill.—The Macomb National bank operated on money borrowed from other banks and shipped in from Chicago because the door of its vault was stuck. Heat expanded the vault door and nobody could open it. There was ample money in the vault to care for the bank's needs and it still was safely in "reserve."

Giraffes Are Mute

Washington.—Despite the great length of its neck and tongue, it is said that the giraffe never utters a sound even when in great distress. This tallest of all animals apparently is an absolute mute, according to the Smithsonian institution.

Texas Cops to Let Women Do Talking

Houston, Texas.—Pity the poor policeman. Regardless of what they do or don't do, they may be considered rude.

Believing a policeman couldn't be rude if he didn't say anything, the police department here passed a rule that policemen were not to speak when handling a woman a ticket for traffic violation.

And now City Judge Fred Turner reveals women violators think the police are rude when they hand out a ticket without a word of explanation. And if the women are inclined to bawl out the policeman he has to take it.

You can't get away from the fact that

A SIX IS MORE ECONOMICAL.

Thousands of tests have proved . . . engineers have established . . . owner experience has confirmed THIS FACT: For lowest, all-round motoring costs: SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!

With more, you sacrifice the economy for which Chevrolet is so famous. With less, you sacrifice the kind of maintenance cost that Chevrolet gives you—the lowest available in today's low-price market!

SAVE WITH SIX CYLINDERS

Why not strike a happy balance between "too many" and "too few"? Do as the majority of low-priced car buyers have done ever since January, 1931: SAVE—with SIX CYLINDERS. The Chevrolet six-cylinder engine gives you wonderful mileage on gasoline—and oil! Because its smoothness is built-in—the body, chassis and engine are spared the repair costs that result from constant, inherent vibration!

STILL GOOD AFTER 15,000 MILES

And the Chevrolet Six stays young for —10,000, 15,000, 20,000 miles and more—carries on—smoothly, dependably, economically.

Moreover it has every modern feature you're entitled to: Free Wheeling, no car is up-to-date without it. And genuine Syncro-Mesh as originated by General Motors. And big, luxurious Fisher bodies. And four parallel mounted springs.

Remember that you can switch to a 1932 Chevrolet for very little money. In fact, you'll probably find it more economical to buy a new Chevrolet Six than to worry along with the old car.

Only Two Telephones?

In The U. S. 70,000 Communities Are Served By Nearly 20,000,000 Telephones

Once upon a time only two telephones serving the average city or town would have caused no surprise. Today in this modern age of efficiency and speed such a fact would be startling. Just think of the impatience people would display while waiting for one person to complete a conversation with "the other telephone" while time was slipping by.

Conditions such as this could hardly exist in America today, for no matter how small the community, there is telephone service to meet its requirements. More than 70,000 cities, towns and rural communities are now reached by the far-flung network of the Bell Telephone System. Connections can now be had with telephones serving more than forty countries on six continents.

By Sarah Blackwell
Coffee Service Institute

FOR frosty desserts with which to cajole the fickle summer appetites of your family, coffee, the nation's favorite beverage, is a highly favored flavoring. Easy to make, these desserts win all when served right from the ice-box on a hot-and-bothered day.

And fresh coffee flavoring, delightful and economical, lifts the confection it graces from that cloying too-sweet taste which is so often the bane of many hot-weather desserts.

I say "fresh coffee flavoring" advisedly for staleness in coffee will be just as noticeable in a coffee-flavored mousse as it is in the beverage. Hence the simple rules for making good beverage coffee are equally important in the preparation of coffee for flavoring. First of all, the brand of coffee that suits your taste best should be freshly roasted, freshly ground, and brewed for a very short time, not more than 8 to 10 minutes by any method—pot, percolator, or drip.

The following recipe calls for clear, strong coffee. Remember that longer cooking makes bitter coffee. For stronger flavor, use more ground coffee. Double the amount of coffee you usually use for each cup of water—and you need not feel extravagant for these days there are excellent coffees on the market for as little as twenty cents a pound.

Café Mousse
½ tablespoon gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups strong coffee
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups cream, whipped
1 cup sugar

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Cook coffee and sugar together until syrupy. Beat eggs slightly and pour hot syrup over them. Cook in double boiler about 5 minutes. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved. Strain and cool. Add vanilla. Fold in cream. Turn into tray of refrigerator and let stand 4 or 5 hours, stirring occasionally.

QUICK MEAT DISHES

YOU certainly do not want to spend any unnecessary time stewing over a hot stove this summer. You want time to rest, read and relax, to hike, motor, swim, play golf or tennis or any of the other outdoor games that appeal to you. But all these outdoor occupations call for sustaining foods for you and your family. With this in mind, we have been making a study of meat dishes which contain good nourishment and which can be prepared in a minimum of time. Perhaps you will care to clip this out, and refer to it in order to simplify your summer cooking. Here they are.

First of all don't forget the canned whole hams which have become so popular. They are delicious, and last for an incredibly long time because the cans contain no bones and no surplus fat, but just lean meat which you can open and eat, or cook in any manner that appeals to you. Then remember the ready-made entrées ready to heat such as beef à la mode, chicken à la King, chicken curry, chop suey, Hungarian style goulash and Irish stew.

Serve This Cold

That's a good beginning, but summer is the time for those delicious jellied meat dishes which give you lots of nourishment without getting you too hot. If you have guests coming for the week end, for instance, here is a recipe which is easy to make, and which will provide a tempting dish for ten to fifteen people.

Glazed Tongue: Soak three tablespoons gelatin in one-half cup cold water. Stew for twenty minutes the contents of a No. 3 can of tomatoes, one bay leaf, two sprigs of parsley, two cloves, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon peppercorns; then press through a sieve. Pour over gelatin, add two bouillon cubes, and stir until melted. Set aside for thirty minutes to settle. Add one slightly-beaten egg white, bring to boiling, and then strain through a cheese cloth. Pour a thin layer of the gelatin in a round mold and arrange in it slices of hard-cooked eggs, sliced olives, pickles, etc. When hardened, place in the mold the whole ox tongue from a 14-ounce can, and pour over the rest of the gelatin. Set in the ice box for several hours to harden. Unmold, and serve cut in slices. Listen for the applause.

Another Jellied Dish

Jellied Chicken Mold: Beat three egg yolks slightly, add three-fourths cup hot chicken broth, and cook in double boiler until it is smooth and coats the spoon. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt and paprika. Soften two tablespoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold chicken broth, dissolve in the hot mixture, and then cool. When just starting to thicken, add the finely-cut contents of a 6-ounce can of chicken and one-half cup chopped walnuts, and fold in one-half cup beaten cream. Pour into a wet mold and chill for several hours. Unmold and garnish with bits of parsley or cress and tiny red radishes, if in season. Serves six.

Quick and Hot

You must have some hot meat dishes in summer, too. Here are some which have the merit of being quickly prepared and particularly tasty.

Dried Beef with Cheese: Frizzle one and one-half cups dried beef in four tablespoons butter for five minutes. Add two cups tomatoes and one cup grated cheese, and stir till melted. Add two slightly-beaten eggs and one-fourth teaspoon kitchen bouquet, and stir till eggs thicken. Serve with baked potatoes. Serves eight.

Frizzled Chipped Beef and Corn: Heat two tablespoons butter or bacon fat in skillet, add the shredded contents of a 2½-ounce glass of chipped beef, and let frizzle several minutes. Add the contents of a No. 2 can of corn, and heat well. Serves six.

Tongue and Chicken Sandwich: Place a thin slice of canned ox tongue, then a spreading of mayonnaise, then a thin slice of breast of chicken between two slices of hot, buttered toast. Serve hot.

Chili Con Carne au Gratin: For this all you need is two 10½-ounce cans of chili con carne, one-fourth pound of grated cheese and one-half cup milk. Put layers of chili con carne and cheese in a buttered baking dish; pour over the milk. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Serves four.*

British Post Office Has "Dictionary" of Its Own

London.—An enterprising investigator has just discovered that the post office department here will let a customer send a telegram calling a man a "chump" or a "blockhead," but it is against the rules to call him a "fat-head." In telegrams they will count Stratford-on-Avon as one word, but Stratford-by-Bow as three. Also for some reason, "upstairs" is one word, but "downstairs" is two.

Persimmon American Fruit

The persimmon is a native fruit and grows wild throughout the eastern United States from Connecticut to the Carolinas and westward to Missouri and Arkansas. The American persimmon is a close relative of the Japanese persimmon, or date-plum, which came originally from China. This tree bears a larger and much less astringent fruit than the American species and is more tropical, having been grown successfully in southern California.

Sensitive Organs

Our sense organs are responsive to almost incredibly minute stimulations. The sensory surface of the nose is affected by vanilla, one part by weight in 10,000,000 parts of air, and by mercaptan 1/23,000,000 of a milligram in a litre of air. And as for sight, there is evidence that the eye is sensitive to 5/1,000,000,000,000 erg, an amount of energy which is 1/3,000 of that required to affect the most rapid photographic plate.—The Wisdom of the Body, by Walter B. Cannon.

Money Wears Out Daily

St. Louis.—United States currency is wearing out at the rate of $10,000,000 a day, according to W. O. Woods, treasurer of the United States. In an address here, Dollar bills circulate most briskly, Wood said. They wear out in about eight months, while $5 bills last 13 months and higher numbers proportionately longer.

HAVE THEM VACCINATED.

Parents of children who will enter school this fall, are reminded by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, of the Maryland law which requires all children to be vaccinated against smallpox before they can be accepted in any school in the State.

"The family physician is expected to vaccinate every baby and young child under his care," Dr. Riley said, "and the parents should see that it is done. The earlier it is attended to, the better it is for the child."

"Until a child enters school," Dr. Riley continued, "the responsibility for having him or her protected against smallpox, rests with the parents. After that it is shared by the teachers. In accordance with the Maryland Vaccination Law, any teacher who permits the enrollment of an unvaccinated child, or children, is liable to a fine of ten dollars for each and every offense."

"Smallpox is comparatively rare in Maryland, but unvaccinated people in Maryland are just as susceptible to the disease and just as likely to get it, if exposed to it, as unvaccinated persons are in other communities. We owe our comparative freedom from the disease to the willing, intelligent, co-operation of parents, doctors and teachers with State, county and city departments of health in carrying out the provisions of the Maryland Vaccination Law, in seeing that children are vaccinated either in infancy or before they reach school age."

"Sometimes it is necessary for us to notice what is happening in other parts of the country in order that we may realize what would occur in Maryland if our people were not protected against smallpox. The disease is much more common than most people realize. It is prevalent at all times and in all parts of the world. A recent report from the U. S. Public Health Service shows that 482 cases were reported in the United States, alone, during the four weeks ending on July 15 and that many more cases were reported from other parts of the world. Thirty-two states were represented in these 482 cases."

I am glad to be able to say that Maryland was not among them. We have had only one case of smallpox in the State in two years, and only 40 in five years—9 in 1927; 22 in 1928; 8 in 1929, none in 1930; one in 1931 and none since then. Smallpox is preventable as our record shows. "In many of the counties, parents are inclined to wait until just before school opens to have their children vaccinated. The Fall and Winter term will begin in a few days and children who have not been vaccinated should be taken to their family doctors, without further delay, and protected against this entirely preventable disease."

The London spectator prints the following advice to pedestrians at street corners: "Look right, look left, then look ahead; If you're not quick, you may be 'dead.'"

Exercise of the Veto

Traced to Roman Law

The use of the veto power by an executive of a state has an origin which has been traced back as far as the old Roman state, when the tribunes, by using the word "interdict," which means "I interdict," halted the legislative acts of the senate.

As far back as 1642 the veto power was recognized in Poland by law, any member of the imperial diet being able to block legislation by proclaiming the Polish words which mean in substance "I do not allow."

The king of England has the power of veto, but it is a power to which recourse has not been taken for generations, the last instance on record being in 1707.

The Constitution of this country also provides for the veto, but the President's power to veto is limited in that it can be overridden. The veto by President Jackson of the bill to re-charter the bank of the United States is one of the first on record.

Claims Long in Dispute

French spoliation claims were demands upon the United States government by American merchants for losses of ships and cargoes between 1793 and 1800 at the hands of the French, whose chief excuse for the depredations was that the United States had violated its pledges to France under the treaty of 1778. By the treaty of September 30, 1800, and by the convention of April 30, 1803, France released the United States from certain treaty obligations, and in return was released from paying the merchants' claims. Between 1800 and 1885 about fifty bills to reimburse the claimants or their descendants came before congress. Appropriations were twice voted, but were vetoed. In 1885 redress was obtained when the adjudication of the claims was given to the courts of claims, and decisions were reached awarding some $4,800,000 to the petitioners.

Man and Dog, Out on Job Hunt, End in Pen

Jackson, Mich.—When Floyd Boylan, forty-seven, unemployed, fell asleep in a boxcar en route to Detroit he didn't dream about awakening in Jackson penitentiary.

He dreamed about the job he wanted. The penitentiary was grim reality when he awakened. His "private" car had been switched into the penitentiary yards while he slept with his dog Eddie nestled beside him.

Prison guards discovered Boylan and his dog and turned them over to police, who released them.

"It was a real surprise," Boylan said. "I'll sleep with my eyes open from now on."

GIFTS FOR BUILDING THE TABERNACLE

GOLDEN TEXT—Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase.
LESSON TEXT—Exodus 35:4-36:7.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Meeting Place That Love Built.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Meeting Place That Love Built.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Our Best to God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving in Church Life.

I. The Plan of the Tabernacle (Exod. 25-27).

It was a rectangular structure thirty cubits long, ten cubits wide and ten cubits high. It was divided into two rooms: the Holy Place, and the Holy of Holies. These rooms were separated by the veil. The tabernacle was within a court one hundred cubits long and fifty cubits wide. Within the court, before the door of the tabernacle, was situated the brazen altar; between the altar of sacrifice and the door was the laver; inside the Holy Place the candlestick and table of shewbread; directly in front of the veil the altar of incense which was closely connected with the brazen altar in the contact of fire and blood. In the Holy of Holies was found the Ark of the Covenant, the most sacred object of the entire tabernacle.

II. The Meaning of the Tabernacle (Exod. 28-30).

The tabernacle was the symbol of God's dwelling place. The bond of union affording a medium of communication was the priesthood. The priest was the mediator between God and the people. The tabernacle typified the incarnation of God in Christ (John 1:14). The furniture of the tabernacle, beginning with the brazen altar, symbolized the spiritual history of the worshiper, making clear the sinner's method of approach unto God. The position of the brazen altar at the door of the tabernacle indicated that no one could draw nigh unto God except by way of that altar. The question of sin must be settled before man dares approach God. The laver typifies the sanctification of the believer. Sanctification was effected by the washing at the laver, prefiguring the influences of God's Word. The candlestick with its central shaft and its extending branches indicated the unity and diversity of God's people. The candlestick also shows the purpose of the sanctification of the believer; namely, to shine for God. The table of shewbread was for a memorial unto God of his chosen people, one loaf for each tribe. The altar of incense symbolized communion with God in worship. The putting of the blood from the brazen altar on the altar of incense shows that acceptable prayer rests on the ground of the atoning work of Christ. The veil symbolizes the flesh of Christ. The rending of the veil at the time of Christ's crucifixion shows that the death of Christ gives access to God. The mercy seat upon which the blood of the sin offering was sprinkled indicates that the claim of God's law had been satisfied.

III. The Offerings for the Tabernacle (Exod. 35:20-29).

1. The motive of giving (v. 21, cf. v. 5). "Whoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the Lord." Giving which meets God's approval must spring from the heart (II. Cor. 9:7). The offering must not only be made of a willing mind, but it must be as unto the Lord, an expression of love and godly fear.

2. Who had part in giving (v. 22). "They came both men and women." It was God's purpose from the beginning that women should unite in the support and care of the worship of God.

3. What was to be given (vv. 23-28). Two features characterized the giving: measure and variety.

a. The measure. They brought what they had to bring. No one is under obligation to give that which he does not possess. This is emphasized in such expressions as "every man with whom was found," "all the women who were wise hearted." What one has to give is clearly the measure of one's duty in giving.

b. Variety. They brought jewelry (v. 22), gold (v. 22), fine linen (v. 23), goat's hair and rough skin (v. 23). Wise hearted women would spin with their hands (v. 25). The rulers brought the expensive things that were needed (v. 27).

IV. The Workers Who Constructed the Tabernacle (Exod. 35:29-36:7).

1. Wise hearted women (35:25, 26).
2. Skilled artists (35:30-36:4). Bezaleel and Aholiab, with others, executed this task. Their wisdom and skill were the result of the Spirit of God upon them.

SALMON FOR SUMMER

THERE was less salmon canned last year than in 1930. But, don't worry. There is enough on hand to make many delicious summer dishes, and canned salmon, cold or hot, is a wonderful summer food. Not only has the medical profession approved it (the late Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, for thirty years chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry and father of the Pure Food Law, asserted: "For children over six canned salmon is the cheapest and most nutritious animal food that can be had"), but the public has also shown its approval by eating enough of it to bring up the production from 687,010 cases in 1930 to 10,396,423 cases in 1932. Last year this fell off to 9,059,988 cases.

But statistics are dry, while salmon is moist and tasty, and we are more interested in how to serve salmon in summer than in the supply on hand, as long as it is adequate. So here are some succulent salmon recipes calculated to make even the most sizzling summer a delight.

Some Like It Cold

For those who like their salmon cold there is nothing better than Jellied Salmon Sandwich Loaf: Soften two teaspoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold water. Mix in the top of a double boiler one and one-fourths teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon mustard, a few grains of cayenne and two egg yolks. Add one cup milk, then three tablespoons vinegar slowly, and cook until it coats the spoon, stirring constantly. Add the gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Cool, and divide into three parts. To one part add the flaked salmon from a 7½-ounce flat can. To another add three-fourths cup canned peas, and to the third two hard-cooked chopped eggs and four tablespoons chopped celery. Chill. Pour the salmon mixture into a wet loaf mold and chill. When set, add the pea mixture, and chill again until set. Then add the egg and celery mixture, and let the whole thing chill for several hours. Turn out onto an oblong platter garnished with cress or parsley, lemon wedges and rings of green pepper. Serves eight.

Some Like Salads

Macaroni and Salmon Salad: Boil one package of elbow macaroni until tender, drain and cool. Add one-fourth cup French dressing, one-half a green pepper, one cup chopped celery and two teaspoons chopped onion, and let marinate in the refrigerator for an hour or so. Toss lightly with the contents of a one-pound can of salmon which has also been chilled and left in as large pieces as possible. Moisten with mayonnaise. Season to taste and serve cold. Serves six to eight.

Salmon and Rice Salad with Deviled Eggs: Mix very gently together, so as not to mash, the contents of a one-pound can of salmon, one cup boiled rice and one and one-half cups sliced celery.

Marinate fifteen minutes in French dressing. Add one tablespoon capers, one-fourth cup chopped sweet pickles and one-fourth cup sliced radishes, and moisten slightly with mayonnaise. Arrange in a large bowl lined with lettuce, mash with mayonnaise, and arrange four deviled eggs around the edge. Serves eight.

Some Like Sauces

Salmon Bechamel: Flake the contents of one tall can salmon, and put in individual buttered baking dishes. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and a few grains of nutmeg. Make Bechamel sauce by melting two tablespoons butter, sautéing half a small chopped onion in it a few minutes, and then adding two tablespoons flour. Add three-fourths cup white stock (or a chicken bouillon cube) and three-fourths cup cream (or evaporated milk) slowly, stirring until smooth and thick. Season to taste with salt and pepper, pour over fish and cover with buttered crumbs. Brown in oven. Serves six.

Salmon with Egg Sauce: Steam the contents of one tall can salmon in the can, open and slide out onto a hot platter. Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, the contents of a 6-ounce can evaporated milk and three-fourths cup water, season to taste with salt and pepper and add two hard-cooked chopped eggs. Pour over the salmon. This serves four liberally.

A large number of big loads of fine looking corn, came to the A. W. Feeser Cannery, this week. Evidently there are some good corn crops in this community.

Rev. Guy P. Bready occupied the pulpit of the Reformed Church, at Emmitsburg, on Sunday morning, Aug 21, in the absence of Rev. E. L. Higbee who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Harcelrode, Mrs. Catherine Harcelrode and daughter, Miss Grace Harcelrode, of Steelton, Pa., visited Miss Margaret Shreeve, Sunday.

Those who spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Fair and family, were: Mr. Aaron Curtis and son, James and wife, and Mr. Maning and boy friend, all of Baltimore.

Residents along Baltimore street, this week, have certainly been sufferers from the noise caused by heavy trucks going at rapid speed from town to the construction work on the Emmitsburg road. If it was all a necessary evil, there is not much to be said about it.

Mark E. Wisotzkey and Francis E. Shaum attended a reunion of the 82nd Overseas Division, held at Altoona, Pa., on Saturday, at which time Mr. Wisotzkey was elected President, and Mr. Shaum, Secretary. The 1933 reunion will be held at Sauble's Inn, Taneytown, in August.

Rev. Dr. W. W. Davis, General Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of Maryland, will preach the sermon.

We think there are a good many in Taneytown who have not yet bought a copy of our "Historical Sketches." We still have a supply of them on hand but do not know how long they may last. Surely, every home in Taneytown should have a copy, as it is a book that will grow in value as the years pass. Call at our office and examine a copy.

The piano students of Mrs. Geo. L. Harner gave a recital at the home of their teacher, on Tuesday evening. Miss Louise Birely, Union Bridge, was the guest soloist and rendered a number of vocal selection. Parents and friends of the students were guests and appreciated the well executed program. A social hour, followed by refreshments, ended the concert.

England's "White Horses"

There are three "White Horses" in England, one in Berkshire, one on the downs three miles east of Westbury in Wiltshire, and a third at Lulworth near Weymouth in Dorsetshire. On the top of the White Horse hill in Berkshire is a magnificent Roman camp, complete as if left only a few years ago, and on the downs at Westbury the earth works are as perfect as any could be found in France from the World war. As these two horses are only a few miles apart, with their camps, there seems good reason for believing the legends told of them to be founded in fact. There is no doubt that battles were fought in that section. The Dorsetshire horse was cut to commemorate another event.

Sycamore a Fig Species

The true sycamore tree, not the buttonwood which is termed the sycamore in this country, is, in fact, a member of the fig family and is quite common in Egypt. Its wood is of a particularly lasting nature and was employed by the ancient Egyptians for the manufacture of mummy cases. The sycamore of this country has found great popularity as a shade tree and its wood, while none too strong, has found considerable use because of its beautiful grain in the manufacture of furniture and cigar boxes.

HEIRESS SUED ON LOVE THEFT CHARGE

Wife Says Mate Succumbed to Lure of Money.

New York.—An unhappy wife has brought Mrs. Claire Eugene Smith, $6,000,000 heiress, into the spotlight again, this time as a husband-snatcher. Last August the young widow, who inherited the Arbuckle Bros. coffee fortune from William E. Smith, won a suit brought against her by Mrs. Beatrice Provost Trenkman, niece of Smith, for a bigger slice of the riches. Now, in Supreme court, she stands accused by Mrs. Ferende Ehlers of stealing the love of her chorus-man husband, William Ehlers of "Show Boat."

Mrs. Ehlers, demanding $200,000, makes some pointed allegations and wants Mrs. Smith to give answer from her $21,000 suite at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mrs. Ehlers says, incidentally, that she and her son, seven, are penniless in a furnished room at 255 West Ninety-third street.

Here are the questions that counsel seeks to ask before trial:

The DAIRY

ONLY TESTER CAN
SHOW COW'S VALUE

Amount of Milk Production
No Criterion.

A cow that doesn't produce $100 above her feed cost doesn't stay in the J. B. Kerrigan herd, Monroe county, Wisconsin. Testing is necessary to determine production and as a guide in feeding.

"A man can't judge cows by the amount of milk they produce," said Mr. Kerrigan. "I used to think it was possible. I had one cow which was pretty good at filling a 14-quart pail. I longed for a herd just like her. I am glad now that my wish was not fulfilled. I bought a tester and set it up in the barn. When I tested that 14-quart cow her milk showed 2 per cent fat."

"I've been testing a number of years and it is more valuable to me than it was when I began. I will not keep a cow which does not return $100 above feed cost. I have one that returned $280. She produced more than 700 pounds of fat one year and 696 pounds another. She has a record of 91.8 pounds fat for one month and an average of 77 pounds for seven months. I valued that cow at $1,000. She returned me that much in three years and she was only a heifer. In normal times a cow must produce 900 pounds fat in a year to clear $100. Such production is not unusual but it makes a paying herd. Such a herd can be built up by careful selection and feeding."—Capper's Farmer.

Some of the Reasons

Why Milk Test Varies

You of course know that a cow's milk gradually becomes richer as the animal reaches maturity and that a high test will be obtained during the first week of the lactation period, and that as a cow nears the end of her lactation period, her milk gradually becomes richer. Aside from these long-time changes there is a possibility that an individual's milk may vary .2 or .3 per cent between milkings.

Some of the reasons for the day-to-day variation are simple but all have more or less effect. If the time between milkings is unequal, milk tests higher following the short period. Most cows also test higher in cold weather. If all the milk is not drawn a lowered test results. Exposure reduces the test. Irregularity in feeding, milking or handling will reduce the test as will too much exercise.

When animals are tested once a month the law of averages will probably take care of any daily variation so that the estimate for the entire year is sufficiently accurate.—American Agriculturist.

Records, Not Looks, Count

"Floppy" is a red cow and one that is certainly not very pleasing to the eye. The owner of "Floppy" was going to sell her when he first joined the cow testing association in April, 1929, but the tester suggested that he give her a tryout before doing so. The first year she produced 398 pounds fat and made an income above feed cost of $99.23. The second year she produced only 351 pounds fat (due to short pasture) and made $63.39 income above feed cost. Last year, she has produced on an average 35 pounds fat per month for the first seven months, and it looks as though she will probably make above 375 pounds during the lactation. The cow testing association finds the good cows as well as the boarders.—Jens Kirkegaard, tester, Greene, Iowa, Cow Testing association, in Hoard's Dairyman.

DAIRY HINTS

Imports of cheese by the United States in 1931 were valued at nearly 40 times the exports.

Good rations and proper feeding are as important for dry cows as they are for cows in milk.

If possible, use grasses mixed with the alfalfa in seedling down permanent or semi-permanent pastures.

Even a good pasture fence will not hold a bull that wants to go places. If one dairy farmer is required to restrain his bull, certainly it is not too much to require his neighbors to keep their cows where they belong.

Purebred dairy sires should head every dairy herd milked for profit. This will insure a high standard of production in the next generation. Joint ownership of bulls and co-operative bull associations are economical ways of accomplishing herd improvement.

Milk is more than three parts water—hence the importance of not skimming the supply.

Check up on the freshening dates for cows. They should have at least six weeks' dry period with an abundance of good feed. Cheaper milk production will be the reward.

There should be sufficient windows in the dairy barn so that it would be light enough for a living room for people, and this would require something like four square feet of glass per cow.

ST. LAWRENCE TAKES ON NEW IMPORTANCE

Treaty Directs Attention to Great River System.

Washington.—The St. Lawrence river, Canada's natural highroad to the West, takes on new importance since the recent signing of the waterway treaty between the United States and Canada.

"With its five fresh-water inland seas the St. Lawrence forms one of the great river systems of the world," says a bulletin from the National Geographical society. "While its basin is third in size among North American rivers, being exceeded by those of the Mississippi and the Mackenzie, the St. Lawrence drains in all some 530,000 square miles, an area nearly equal to that of the Republic of Peru."

"The name 'St. Lawrence,' however, applies only to the lower third of the 2,100 mile river system. Actually the stream rises at the source of the St. Louis river, near the headwaters of the Mississippi, in Minnesota, flows into Lake Superior, through the other Great Lakes, and empties into the Gulf of St. Lawrence at Cape Gaspe, Quebec. But technically the 'St. Lawrence' is that part of the main stream which flows from Kingston, at the mouth of Lake Ontario, to Cape Gaspe, 770 miles in length."

Unique Among Rivers.
"In several ways the St. Lawrence is unique among large rivers of the world. Easy-going, it does not dig up much silt, and therefore has no alluvial delta at its mouth. Its banks are clear and sharp to the ocean's rim, and the channel at its mouth is deep enough to clear the largest ships afloat."

"The St. Lawrence, in fact, may be said to lead a very well-balanced life. Five months during the year it works diligently as Canada's chief artery of commerce. Then for seven months it rests, all but the lower 400 miles being closed by ice. Floods are almost unknown along the St. Lawrence. The Great Lakes act as impounding, regulating reservoirs, and its own occasional lakelike expanses take up the excesses of its lower tributaries. The dikes at Montreal and needed only during the spring and fall when infrequent ice jams cause the river to overflow its normal banks."

"The St. Lawrence, in its lower reaches, is a tidal river, like the Hudson, but oddly enough its highest tides are at Orleans Island, 650 miles from the open ocean at Cabot strait. At its mouth the range is only six feet, but at Orleans Island, below Quebec, the spread is 19 feet. Quebec has 18½ feet of tide, although the water there is almost fresh."

"One of the widest of rivers, the St. Lawrence below Quebec is more like a broad bay or long lake. The stranger approaching from Europe must sail some distance up the St. Lawrence before he realizes that he is in a river at all. At Point des Monts both banks become visible for the first time, yet the river here is 40 miles across and very deep. At its mouth the St. Lawrence is more than twice as wide. Even at Saguenay, halfway between the gulf and Quebec, it is still 20 miles across."

Legends of French Canada.
"Historically, sentimentally and scenically the St. Lawrence is one of America's most famous and beloved streams. Long before English settlers had crossed the Alleghenies, French missionaries and fur traders pushed down the St. Lawrence and over the portages to the heart of North America. Today the tiny villages, white parish churches, and the green patchwork fields of the descendants of these French pioneers make the St. Lawrence valley seem more like a part of Europe than America. Here is a land of legends—"the Dripping Indian," the Phantom Priest, and the Ghost ship"—far removed from busy Montreal, Canada's largest city, which also shares the banks of the St. Lawrence."

"While vessels of any draft may ascend the St. Lawrence to Quebec, the next 100 miles to Montreal are open only to ocean steamers which do not draw more than 30 feet. Smaller ships may ascend the river today to Lake Ontario by using a combination of short canals and open channels, but the locks are narrow and the current too swift for heavy commercial traffic in many places. This channel is 14 feet."

"With a 30-foot channel throughout, ocean liners could ascend the St. Lawrence to Lake Ontario, where the new Welland canal of the same depth could carry them to Lake Erie and the other Great Lakes. Shipping direct by this route an exporter in Buffalo, for instance, would save more than 300 miles to Liverpool, in addition to the cost of barge or rail shipment to Atlantic coast ports."

Wins $1 for Rescuing Boy From River Waters

Camden, N. J.—"Gee, that's great! I didn't expect that!" exclaimed twelve-year-old Victor Soroken when a park guard gave him $1 for saving Robert Banks, ten, from drowning in Cooper river.

After a day of swimming Victor was trudging home when he saw Robert fall into the river. He plunged in and dragged the other boy ashore.

Summer In Sweden

This Swedish Housewife Bakes Only Four Times a Year.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.
THIS year all Sweden is celebrating, with memorial rites and exhibits, the three hundredth anniversary of the death in battle of Gustavus Adolphus, the Swedish hero king.

Many are the ways of celebrating, for as the traveler moves about Sweden by canoe, coast steamer, river barge, motor car, railway or airplane, he is confronted with many peoples with customs and dialects unlike.

The differences, however, fade in retrospect and the outstanding impression one gets of Sweden today is of a closely-knit and homogeneous group. In its population an unusually pure Nordic type predominates—tall stature, long face, light complexion, golden hair and blue eyes. The blond coloring gives the streets of Stockholm a quality of lightness. In contrast, Paris seems somewhat somber and dark.

The one exception to the homogeneity of the population of Sweden is the Lapp. Some seven thousand of them, a race apart, dwell in the Arctic wastes of the Far North. In some vague past—their racial memory is short—they wandered in from the East, possibly from Mongolia. They have not stopped to carve their names on the eternal hills. They are deaf to the tread of the centuries. For them the music of life comes only through the singing of the wind above their nomad tents of bark and through the velvety tramp of feet, vagrant reindeer hoof.

As protected wards of the Swedish state, members of this alien race roam securely over the tundras and snow-capped fields of the North. For more than a century Sweden has not been embroiled in war. At no time in its history has a conquering foe invaded its territory and left the customary aftermath of mixture of blood. During the past six years Sweden has entered more actively upon its humanitarian purpose of trying to outlaw war altogether.

Sweden has no colonies and so avoids entangling alliances. Its zest for empire and empire-building was worked off in the flush of youth. In the Viking days brave adventurers went West, and traces of their wanderings still exist on the coasts of England and France, Iceland and Greenland; but in many of the lands they touched they left no enduring record of occupancy.

Sweden's intervention in the Thirty Years' war saved the cause of religious liberty for Europe. Then came the brilliantly tragic reign of Charles XII. With his death in 1718 ended his gallant defense, as he alleged, of western ideals of statecraft against the threat of Muscovite anarchy. Sweden had lost its Baltic possessions. Its prestige as a world power diminished. The energy expended on extending empire has since been directed toward the more peaceful pursuits of developing internal resources.

No Immigrants There.
Sweden has no immigration problem, about 99 per cent of its six millions being native-born. Not immigration, but emigration, once threatened the national welfare. Before American immigration quotas were known, nearly a fifth of Sweden's population was represented in the United States.

Love of country dominates the Swedish people. Their songs reveal a passionate love for the beauty of the land which has been an unending source of inspiration to Swedish poets. The Swede's reputation for melancholy may be attributed wholly to his susceptibility to the vagaries of the weather. He is gloomy at the very thought of autumn, harbinger of the dark winter months. All the russet gorgeousness of September and October is wasted on him. He is quick to lament the briefness of the season of light. Remind him of some event in the past and he is likely to say reflectively, "Oh, yes, that was the year the summer fell on a Tuesday."

In that respect he is the arch pessimist. Stockholm, to be sure, is in very nearly the same latitude as the southern tip of Greenland. This means that approximately two-thirds of the country lies in latitudes generally considered unfavorable to habitation and growth. But the climate of the Scandinavian peninsula, with its jagged coast line sweeping down majestically from polar regions into the North and Baltic seas, is tempered by the warm Atlantic drift, which follows the western coast of Norway and dips also into the Skagerrack. There is a joyous glamour about the way spring and summer come with a rush. Almost overnight, in the South, one sees the beech forests turn into low ranges of jade.

The islands the transatlantic visitor sees first, as he nears the Swedish coast, are those that encircle the harbor of Goteborg (Gothenburg), chief shipping center and commercial port of the country; for the usual approach to Sweden is by the "lonely passage" that rounds the bleak northern tip of Scotland and then threads down among the islands in the Kattegat.

Goteborg and Stockholm are linked by a road of water, the Gota canal. This connects the North and Baltic seas and the large inland lakes, Vänern—the largest lake in Europe excluding Ladoga and Onega, in Finland and Russia—and Vatern and Malaren. The series of locks that provide for the varying levels in the route—the highest point is 308 feet above the Baltic—were an engineering triumph when constructed nearly a century ago.

Through Gota Canal.

North of this belt of water is another "lake district," including the Fryken lakes of Varmland, Lake Siljan in Dalecarlia, and Dellen in Halsingland, along the eastern coast. Farther north come the extremes of summer and winter. Where the Arctic circle cuts through the fields along the Norwegian boundary the sun is visible for 24 hours of the day for seven weeks in June and July. From any of the accessible mountain peaks the midnight sun is a breath-taking spectacle of magnificence.

With a few outstanding exceptions, there are no striking extremes of wealth and poverty in Sweden. There are no slums in Jonkoping, for instance, though it is the home of the world-famous safety match, one of the most important manufactures of the country. Eskilstuna steel, an equally familiar trade-mark, has not produced a Swedish Pittsburgh of vicious volumes of smoke.

The miners at Kiruna, north of the Arctic circle, live in a model community of neat, modern houses; and Falun, center of the Bergslagen mining interests, suggests neither luxury nor squalor, although one corporation, generally said to be the oldest in the world, has held continuous possession since 1234 of the great mine, Stora Kopparberget, with its vast underground pit.

Nearly All Live Comfortably.

The ordinary comforts of life are within the reach of the majority. With a highly developed telephone system, business and social matters are handled largely over the wire. At the hint of a delay, when a call is made, the Swedish operator answers, not "Just a minute," but "In the wink of an eye!" and she means literally and expeditiously just that.

The main railway lines, like the telephone, are state-owned. Private lines supplement rather than rival this service, which includes about a third of the total railway mileage of the country. Sweden has a more extensively developed railway system, in proportion to population, than any other European country. Third class is cheap and clean. Second far outranks the ordinary European second, and first offers luxurious means of travel.

The electrified railway that is farthest north in the world runs from Boden, below the Arctic circle, to Narvik, Norway's always ice-free port, through which much of Sweden's iron ore is shipped. The electrical current is supplied from Porjus, a modern industrial town that has sprung up in the wilderness of 25 years ago. The machine room at Porjus is sunk into a blasted mountain wall at a depth of 165 feet, a precaution that gives a hint of the low temperatures of the Arctic winter.

Electricity, derived from waterfalls and rivers, is being substituted by modern industry as fuel that in time will supplant the black coal which Sweden lacks. Black coal heads the list of imports and keeps the balance of trade unfavorable to Sweden, but white coal is beginning to take its place.

From the depths of the forests of Sweden—they cover approximately three-fifths of its land area—come the commodities that head the exports. Wood pulp, planed and unplanned boards, paper, beams, spars, mastwood, and box boards provide nearly half of the nation's annual revenues from exports.

SCIENCE WILL SEEK COCOS ISLAND GOLD

New Metal Detector to Be Tried by Expedition.

Washington.—The elusive caches of pirate gold on Cocos island that have defied maps and diggings of fortune hunters for more than a century, now must dodge the delicate instruments of science. An expedition now on the island is reported pinning its hopes on a newly developed metal detector.

"Cocos island, which is 16 square miles of lofty, forest-covered mountains and furrowed valleys, owes its fame to the activities of pirates along the coasts of Central and South America from the Seventeenth to the early part of the last century," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"After Capt. Edward Davis looted Leon, Nicaragua, in 1685, he sailed for Cocos, his treasure and rested until his next plundering expedition. In the early eighties, Benito, a former Portuguese naval officer who was a scourge to shipping in the Caribbean, felt that his old balliwick was becoming too well policed for his profession, rounded the Horn, preyed upon towns and shipping along the Pacific coast and sought refuge on Cocos. He also buried treasure on the island before he and his crew were captured."

Loot of Lima Magnet.

"Loots of other pirates have been reported buried on Cocos, but the famous loot of Lima, perhaps, is the chief magnet of modern expeditions to the island. Gold and silver and precious stones worth millions that were accumulated by the Spaniards from the natives and from richly adorned Inca temples, were hoarded in Lima when a revolution broke."

"The Lima mint was filled with gold and silver and the Lima cathedral was a vault of wealth. The cathedral chaises were solid gold, studded with priceless gems. Golden altars equipment glistened in the dim light of the edifice. Diamond-studded vestments beamed with a new radiance with every movement of the priests who wore them. There were chasubles of gold adorned with rows of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires."

"Fearing seizure of these treasures by the revolutionists, Lima city fathers sought a ship as a hiding place. The Mary Dear was riding at anchor in the harbor of Callao. Under cover of darkness the treasures were transferred to the Mary Dear's hold and a guard stationed abroad. Probably unknown to the Spaniards, the Mary Dear was commanded by one of Benito's pirates. The glint of gold and the shimmer of jewels crazed the captain. The guards were massacred and thrown overboard, and the Mary Dear made for the open sea. The crew of the ship was arrested later but not until the cargo of riches had been buried, presumably on Cocos."

Sought by Many.

"In the last century more than a score of expeditions have visited Cocos. One was headed by the famous British racer, Sir Malcolm Campbell. Another was led by the widow of a friend of the Mary Dear's captain, while a third was led by two women philanthropists. A British naval officer anchored at Cocos and ordered his crew to find the treasure, but all he gained was a severe reprimand from the British admiralty when he reached England."

"Coconuts (from which the island gets its name) and bananas grow wild. Wild pigs scamper through the forests, myriad birds swarm its trees, fish abound in surrounding waters, coffee, sugar and vegetables can be grown in its fertile spots, fresh water is plentiful and its naturally tropical atmosphere is tempered by sea breezes and frequent rains. Yet Cocos has never been successfully colonized. However, the arid Galapagos islands, its neighbors 380 miles to the southwest, are permanently inhabited."

"For a short time Costa Rica maintained a penal colony on Cocos island and besides pirates, it was visited from time to time by whalers. One treasure hunter remained on Cocos for several years in an unsuccessful attempt to colonize it."

3 Brothers Are Priests, Guard Eastern Parish

Erie, Pa.—Three brothers, priests of the Roman Catholic church, administer to the spiritual welfare of the congregation of St. Patrick's church here.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Peter Cauley, rector of the parish since 1893, is head of the church.

He is assisted by his brothers, Rev. Stephen H. Cauley and Rev. Charles L. Cauley.

A fourth brother, Rev. Joseph Cauley, was also attached to the parish. He died in 1919.

St. Patrick's was established in 1837 and now has a membership of 1,700 communicants.

REMOVE BIRD WHEN OUT OF CONDITION

May Check Spread of Coccidiosis in Flock.

Chronic coccidiosis in adult fowls cannot be distinguished by external symptoms from other wasting diseases, and only by the use of the microscope after death, says a writer in the Rural New-Worker. Unlike the acute form occurring in chickens, the ceca do not display the evidences of the infection, which are to be found in the intestinal contents or in scrapings from the intestinal walls.

Either in chronic coccidiosis or other diseases showing the loss of appetite, dirty plumage, gradual loss of flesh, paleness of comb and wattles and perhaps paralysis of the legs found in such disorders, all affected birds should be removed from the flock and watch kept for new cases. The quarters used should be placed in good sanitary condition and the old ruins discarded.

The parasites causing coccidiosis and other infections of like incurability infest ground that has been used for a considerable length of time by poultry flocks, and healthy birds must be kept from such ground if avoidance of infection is to be expected. Chronic coccidiosis spreads slowly in an adult flock and removal of sick birds with sanitary precautions to prevent infection of the healthy members should be observed.

No Raiser Can Report Profit From Dead Hens

Dead hens make the largest item of flock depreciation, and this depreciation is the third largest item, next to feed and labor, or about one-fifth, of the total expense of the laying flock, says Prof. E. G. Misner of the New York State College of Agriculture, after a study of ninety-two New York state flocks in 1930.

The percentage of mortality varied from 3 to 73 per cent of the average number of laying birds. The mortality averaged 23 per cent, with no difference between large or small flocks. When hens are valued at $1 each at the beginning of the laying season and are worth 75 cents at the end of the year, a mortality of 10 per cent makes the depreciation 34 cents to the hen. If the mortality were 40 per cent, the depreciation to the bird would be 69 cents. Professor Misner warns poultrymen to give close attention to disease and parasite control.

Use Judgment in Mating

It is poor policy to mate up any fowls, least of all male birds, that have previously shown any signs of disease or weakness. It is unwise to mate up undersized females to oversized coarse males, or vice versa.

The mating seldom "clicks," and it is almost impossible to secure medium sized, normal healthy progeny. Born poultry breeders know by intuition just how many males a certain flock of females will need to get best results.

As a general rule, in flock matings, not more than eight or ten lightweight males are required to 100 females. With heavyweight varieties, ten males are about right, providing there is little fighting among males. Otherwise it were best to make smaller flock matings.

Birds Carry Diseases

Birds such as the English sparrows should be fenced out of poultry houses, says the Idaho Farmer. These pests travel far and wide and visit everybody's poultry yard in a community, and if possible, carry diseases from the insanitary yards of one poultryman to clean yards of another. Careful poultrymen also make it a point to keep promiscuous human visitors away from their poultry houses and runs, as they, too, readily carry troubles from one poultry yard to another. When visitors are allowed in the well-kept poultry yard they should be provided a box of litter or sawdust, thoroughly disinfected, into which to step before entering the premises.

Don't Cut Down on Feed

This is no time to cut down on the flock's feed even though egg prices are low. In fact, low egg prices make it all the more necessary that birds be fed generously and thus be kept at the height of their ability to produce. The laying flock should have a mash before it all the time during the summer months. In addition it should be given some grain. The only feeding change should be the cutting down and finally the elimination of the morning feeding of scratch grain.—Exchange.

Hens Averaged $4

Hens averaged this net profit over feed cost last year for Mrs. John Niblo, Muscotah, due to careful feeding, culling and breeding. A hatcheryman had an order for chicks from eggs of a profitable flock—he had to know the record of the flock. Mrs. Niblo had this information—she has kept records three years. Chicks from her flock satisfied the customer so well a second order was placed and other orders have followed. Quality gets the best price.—Kansas Farmer.
