TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

This column is not for use in advertising any money-making program, fair, supper, party or sale; except for non-denominational charities or Fire Company or Public Library support.

Churches, Lodges, Societies, Schools, etc., are requested to use our Special Notice Department for money-making events.

Mrs. Louisa Hammond is ill, at her home, on Baltimore St.

Chas. A. Elliot was admitted to Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, on Monday, Oct. 31st., for treatment.

Peter Baumgardner was given a surprise birthday dinner, on Sunday, by his children and their families.

And now, some are already wondering, who will succeed Postmaster Harry L. Feesser, when his term expires in about two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wantz, recently married, were given an old-time serenade, on Tuesday night, that livened up George Street.

Our Special Notice Column even finds homes for surplus cats. A trial of it, resulted in a number of inquiries, and the desired home.

Mrs. G. H. Birnie and daughter, Miss Eleanor, returned home on Monday, after spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Clotworthy Birnie, at Richmond, Va.

G. E. Roop, of Mount Airy; W. A. Bower and son, J. W. Bower, attended a four days convention of the National Ice Association, which was held at Pittsburgh, this week.

Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ecker, near the Piney Creek Church of the Brethren, broke both bones of one of his arms when trying to get on a wagon while in motion.

Mrs. Robert McIlwain (nee Percy Adelaide Shriver), of New York City, is spending a week in town. Mr. McIlwain expects to join her over the week-end.

Word was received of the death of John Witherow, 13 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Witherow, of Washington, D. C. He was taken violently ill Monday night and died at 2 P. M., Tuesday.

Mrs. Harry N. Townsend and daughter, Miss Margaret, of Marston this county, and Mr. Wood, of Prince George's County, visited Mr. and Mrs. Dorry R. Zepp, of Copperville, last Sunday afternoon.

On Thanksgiving Day the Rural Carriers will not go over their routes. The Postoffice will only be open for the regular dispatch of mail. No window service. Lobby open all day. Harry L. Feesser, P. M.

Miss Molly Wheatley, teacher in the Elementary Grades in Taneytown High School, was taken to Maryland University Hospital, Baltimore, on Tuesday, and operated on for appendicitis. She is getting along nicely.

There are numerous complaints from land owners that some hunters are not respecting property rights of those who post their land against hunting. Perhaps a few prosecutions in such cases would help to encourage respect for law.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Reed and family, of Westville, N. J., spent several days the first of this week with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hess, near Harney. Rev. and Mrs. L. K. Young, of Oberlin, Pa., spent last Thursday at the same place.

We are greatly pleased to be able to publish in this issue, a more detailed account of Miss Carrie Mourer's tour of portions of Europe and Africa. Her many friends, we are sure, will be as glad to read it as we are to publish it.

The Carroll Record $1.00 A YEAR

As announced on Nov. 4, The Carroll Record is trying the experiment of reducing its subscription price from $1.50 to $1.00 a year, in advance until January 1, 1933. Six months subscriptions at 50c; or three months at 30c.

Note that we said "in advance." This is our object; but, carrying it out strictly has not been positively determined, as yet. It has cost The Record approximately $3000. to try out the pay-at-any-time plan. Just how these losses occur, may be explained, later. Actually, it is about as easy for honest subscribers to pay in advance, as at any old time. If the credit plan had been wise, city dailies and magazines would have adopted it years ago. They know, as well as we, that it don't pay.

After two weeks trial of the $1.00 offer, the increase in subscription payments HAS BEEN satisfactory; and while there has been an increase in NEW subscriptions received, the number HAS NOT been satisfactory. We must have a much greater increase for the experiment to prove "satisfactory."

We are expecting a much larger increase, as time goes on—it is full six weeks yet until January 1st. We are trying to meet the demand that "the price of The Record must come down." It is up to the public in our natural field, to settle the question.

KEY FAMILY HISTORY

Grand-parents of the Famous Francis Scott Key.

The Record had an inquiry, this week, from Roy Baumgardner—who lives on the farm of his father, Peter Baumgardner, near Keysville, that was the birthplace of Francis Scott Key—who desired to know who were the grand-parents of Francis Scott Key.

Not having the information in our collection of the Key family data, we consulted Miss Amelia Birnie, who has a most valuable collection of information concerning the Key, and other old families, and secured the facts, as published in an old issue of the Democratic Advocate, Westminster, (date and author not given) that conveys the desired information, and more.

We publish the clipping in its entirety, a reading of which shows that Francis Scott Key's father was John Ross Key; his grand-father was Francis Key, and his great-grand-father was Philip Key, and gives other connected Key family information, as follows:

"On the south side of the Severn river, where it enlarges into the beautiful sheet of water known to excursionists as Round bay, about six miles above Annapolis, is situated an ancient Maryland homestead known for many years as 'Bel Voir.' To the thousands who visit the Naval Academy, Severn river and Round bay it may be of interest to know that upon this old plantation, in an open field, unprotected by fence or ditch or hedge, the writer found an old tombstone, from which he copied the following inscription:

"In memory of Mrs. Ann Arnold Key, who departed this life January 5, 1811, in the 84th year of her age. She was the daughter of John Ross, who came to this country in 1730, and was officially connected with the land office. He took up tracts of land in several counties in the state: 'Boss' Range, Frederick county; 'Carpenter's Point,' Talbot county; 'Bel Voir,' Anne Arundel county, and other tracts. Her sister, Elizabeth Ross, married Dr. Upton Scott, a wealthy citizen of Annapolis."

Ann Arnold Ross married Francis Key, son of Philip Key, one of two brothers who first settled in St. Mary's county. At the burning of her father's home at Carpenter's Point, her sight was destroyed by fire and smoke whilst rescuing two servants from the flames. She then crossed the bay and resided with her daughter, Elizabeth Ross Key, at "Bel Voir," where the old tombstone marks her resting place. This daughter married Col. Henry Maynard. Mrs. Key had also two sons, John Ross and Philip Barton Key. Upon the death of their father the will which had been made could not be found, and consequently the property under the old primogeniture laws, existing at that date, descended to the eldest son, John Ross Key, who with generosity not usual in our day waived his legal rights and shared the property with his brother, John Ross Key was an active patriot in the American revolution, raising a company by his personal efforts, which he commanded as captain. Whether he advanced to the grade of general, which title was accorded him for many years, the writer has not been able to ascertain.

Philip Barton Key, who seems to have been born under an unlucky star, being the younger son, when it was the proper thing in law to be the elder son, was equally unfortunate in his political faith, being a "Tory," when, as it proved eventually, he should have been a "rebel" to have been on the winning side. He paid the penalty of his error by suffering the confiscation of his property. The patriotism of Gen. John Ross Key during the war was only equalled by his magnanimity after the war, when he again shared his property with his unfortunate and to him expensive brother, Gen. Key married Anne Phoebe Charlton, and had by her one son, Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and one daughter, Anne, who married Roger Brooke Taney, afterward chief justice of the Supreme Court.

Francis Scott Key married Mary Taylor Lloyd, and had by her a large family of sons and daughters, some of them now living in various sections of the country with their children, making a numerous and more than usually interesting family of descendants. Personal courage and chivalry seem to have descended from the heroic Mrs. Ann Arnold Key to her son, and grandson Francis Scott Key, and even to the sixth generation, the only two male descendants known to the writer having upon their persons scars of serious wounds received in the late war.

The ravages of wasting time, the fleeting tempests of many years, the fleeting seasons will most certainly serve to destroy the old tombstone which marks the grave of Mrs. Key, buried "Bel Voir." Beautiful to see in the olden time, its hills and valleys having some flowers and fertile fields. Severn river and Round bay were unknown to her sense of sight. The act of heroism which cost her the most precious of human senses, should live in the annals of our history and be held by us as an heritage forever."

INDIAN PAGEANT IN TANEYTOWN REFORMED CHURCH.

A cast from Baust Reformed congregation will present an Indian pageant, "The Old Order Changeth" in Grace Reformed Church, on Sunday, Nov. 27, at 7:30 P. M., at the annual Thank-offering Service. Rev. M. S. Reifsnnyder, the pastor of Baust church, will speak. The pageant will be directed by Mrs. Reifsnnyder. This promises to be a very instructive and interesting program. Everybody invited.

Thanksgiving Day.

THERE IS a real Thanksgiving Day even for 1932, when many appear to doubt the fact; those who say, "things can't be worse."

Their selfish ignorance, in some cases, forgets to take into consideration the truth that they are still among the living.

Thanksgiving Day does not stand alone for feasting and prosperity. It has a profound spiritual significance, emphasizing the relations between God and man.

Washington, notwithstanding the misery of the winter at Valley Forge, had the faith to say in a message to his half-starved soldiers, "this is the tremendous reason for this most special acknowledgement of the Divine goodness."

We need to have faith, and hope, and eyes beyond. We need to hold fast to trust in God, and be patient until present clouds pass away—as they will, in His good time.

May not all of us "count our blessings, one by one," and not become discouraged because of our trials that are largely world-wide?

MISS MOURER'S TRIP ABROAD

An Instructive Addition to Last Week's Article.

Last week, The Record published a brief sketch of Miss Carrie Mourer's trip of one year to Europe and Africa. We had hoped to have in hand before publication day, more detailed information concerning the subject, but it was not forthcoming, in time. It has since been received, and we are glad to give it, for its interest and general valuable information. The portion published last week was substantially correct, but greatly too much abbreviated, and lacked the personal description of Miss Mourer. The paragraphs that follow, are as she furnished them. She says—

While at Tunis, the Bey, who rules the Mohammedan population, celebrated the end of Ramadan, a month's fast, during which time all adults abstain from food and drink, from sunrise to sunset. The French governor-General, who rules all French subjects in Tunis, as well as ambassadors, consuls and prominent officials, all attend this ceremony punctiliously. We had a fine view of the arrival and departure of the guests, from a bench in front of the museum and palace. I never saw so many gorgeous decorations, sparkling with diamonds, emeralds and other precious stones, as these guests wore. After all the invited ones departed, the Bey left in a barouche of old style, drawn by eight black mules. He was attended by runners, and outriders and trumpeters. The whole affair seemed the enactment of a scene from a fairy story.

We spent five weeks in Florence, Italy, and went sight-seeing almost every day. The Uffizi and Pitti Art Galleries alone occupied many days, to say nothing of other palaces, churches and museums. We went to Fiesole, where were two interesting old monasteries as well as a glorious view of the city, a view as lovely, too, different, as Dante's view from San Minato.

The Protestant cemetery here contains the graves of Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Walter Savage Landor. I heard a funny story about Landor, who had a violent temper. One day a servant displeased him and he threw her out the window under which was a bed of violets, exclaiming: "Oh my God, my violets!"

I went to see a game of football as played in costumes of the 15th. centuries, and according to the rules of that day. In comparison with present day methods, I say, Give me the good old days! Before the game a speech is made by a descendant of the famous Medici family, and the representatives of other famous old

NEWSPAPER "CIRCULATION"

We like to talk of the "circulation" of The Record, in big figures. It sounds fine, when a prospective advertiser asks the question.

But, a "circulation" that don't pay, is too big a price for us to pay for the boast of saying, "Oh, about 2000." The truth is that a "circulation" that don't pay the publisher, is not apt to pay an advertiser.

It is the bona-fide paid-up "circulation" that is a credit to everybody—subscriber, publisher, advertiser. Besides, it is against the postal laws of the U. S., for a publisher who elects to take a chance, to do so for longer than one year.

It must be informing—to say the least—to a visitor in a home to pick up a newspaper, and notice that the address label shows the subscription to be unpaid, perhaps for several years.

We should like a subscription to The Record to be a credit to the good standing of the subscriber. And this is true of approximately three-fourths of our list—it is the other fourth that we are concerned about.

SPECIAL ADV. FEATURE.

Attention is called to a page and a half of write-ups concerning "Firms that have helped to build up Carroll County." This work was published by us through a contract with Miss Marie Baxter, advertising solicitor, of Chicago, who worked the field in connection with Mr. Robbins. We commend these business firms to our readers, the most of them being personally known to us for their high standing and general reliability. We advise the reading of the entire page and a half.

Throughout, our relations with Miss Baxter in the feature, have been fully satisfactory, from beginning to end; and we trust that the same satisfaction will attach to the advertisers.

Roosevelt will have a hard road to travel. The Republicans will nag him just as the Democrats nagged Hoover. The Democrats paid a high salary to a nagger. The Republicans can do the same trick. There is no patent on it. —Baltimore Observer.

AUTO DRIVER SIGNALS.

An increasing number of accidents caused by the disregard of hand signals were reported last week, according to E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

"If autoists would follow the simple and reasonable system of signals many accidents could be avoided," Mr. Baughman said. "For instance, the straight extended left arm with the finger pointing to the left cannot mean anything but that the operator is going to make a left-hand turn. In doing this the driver should ease himself over to as near the middle of the street as possible."

"The signal for a right-hand turn, that of extending the arm well out so that it can be seen from the rear and making a slowly circling forward movement with the forearm, is equally easy to understand."

"When this signal is made and the intention is to turn right the operator should draw as close to the curb on the right-hand side of the street as possible as he approaches the intersection."

"This will clearly indicate to the following cars come on, I am getting ready to turn out of the way and you may pass me."

"Needless to say, the extended left arm, at a slight downward angle, with the palm facing the rear, will indicate that the operator is going to stop."

"There is really no excuse for accidents which occur because of the failure to use these signals."

WASHINGTON HISTORICAL SKETCHES.

We still have some of the Washington Historical sketches on hand, at 20c at our office, or 25c by mail. Every family containing young children should have one or more copies, to be kept for the years to come. The information will be more valuable 50 years from now, than at the present time.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM CHINA.

Scenes from the War between Japan and China.

Dear Editor:-

I am enclosing a Chinese lithograph of the late troubles in Shanghai, showing the artist's conception of how the Japanese led the Chinese rowdies to take part in the destruction by offering them big rewards, how the 19th. Army put up wire entanglements, and how the Japanese and Chinese cavalry came to hand combat. The center circle shows Chinese infantry and gunners rushing to the fray at Woosung. The story of Jan. 28th. and days following can not be adequately shown in pictures.

The wild Japanese hoards went mad, that long and sadly to be remembered midnight, rushing along the narrow streets, smashing doors and windows, filling the Chinese with terror; slaughtering men, women and children. They were out on a orgy of destruction, frightfulness and death. They were exceedingly brave when they encountered unarmed men, women and wee children, but when they got through Chapel to where the Chinese troops—the 19th. Route Army—were on guard they found a stone wall of soldiers. Their mad advance was stayed.

Then they were not so brave, but were a very angry, disappointed lot, for they had expected to take Shanghai at one stroke. Foiled in this they gave vent to their spleen in larger destruction. They brought oil and wood and built fires against or in larger houses and started huge conflagrations in many places in the district which they had occupied. As people fled from the burning houses they mowed them down ruthlessly.

Over the district held by the brave Chinese troops they sent airplanes and dropped bombs setting R. N. Station on fire, as also the greatest printing and publishing plant in all Asia—the Commercial Press. This was spite-work. As the days went by and the Chinese army still held out the Japanese became, if possible, more destructive and murderous. Since they could not get at and oust the soldiers they became more and more brutal to the innocent civilians and common people. Their brutality took such horrible forms that I simply dare not try to put it on paper.

It seemed as though each Japanese were killing so as to be able to boast as to the number he had killed, and the violence of his method of killing. They always tried to justify themselves in this, saying they were doing it to protect their nationals. The Japs are good at making excuses for bad acts. The Chinese had been very trying with their anti-Japanese boycott and propaganda, but were guilty of nothing that would justify such savagery from the Japanese.

We were all very greatly surprised at the way the Chinese troops held their positions against great odds for 34 days and we have been more than surprised at the cowardice of the Japanese troops and their savagery. The Chinese had little modern training and equipment. The Japanese had most modern machinery and every equipment for war. Yet they, unlawfully, and at great danger to us, used the neutral International Settlement as a safe and easy base of operation, while the Chinese surprisingly respected the neutrality of the Settlement.

The Japanese kept bringing reinforcements until they outnumbered the 19th. Army and were enabled to nearly surround the Chinese, who retired to their 2nd. line twenty miles from Shanghai. Truce was made and

PRESIDENT HOOVER INVITES GOV. ROOSEVELT TO A CONFERENCE.

While on board train coming back to Washington, President Hoover extended an invitation to Gov. Roosevelt to meet him at a conference in Washington, to map out an American plan of action concerning the appeal made by European debtors for a revision of war-debt settlements due the United States December 15.

He made a statement of what he called "a world problem of major importance to this Nation," his statement representing a 1400-word telegram. The amount due on Dec. 15, is $95,000,000 from Great Britain alone. Similar requests have been made by seven other Nations, which may represent united design to coerce the United States.

Gov. Roosevelt has accepted the invitation to confer on the debt question, but can not fix a date due to a cold. He requests that the conference be a purely informal one, saying "You and I can go over the situation," and closes by saying "The immediate question creates a responsibility which rests upon those now vested with executive and legislative authority."

There is both opposition and favor expressed over the proposed conference. One side says it is "a nut for Hoover to crack," and the other is that it is a matter for Congress that can wait until the December session. Some think it was courteous for the President to extend the invitation, while others think he wants to "pass the buck."

TEMPERAMENTAL VOTING.

The Radio broadcasting and transportation Companies, made about all of the profit there was in the recent political campaign. All of the candidates might as well have staid at home—the result would have been the same. The "people" had their minds made up months ago as to what they would do with the ballots.

They did not want education nor explanation—they were mad about the situation, meant to upset things, and did a complete job of it. The probability is that many of them will later get another mad on, as it is a sure thing that all will not get all they want from the upset.

Personal liberty, and government by the people, are right as long as the said people want right things and think right thoughts, but very dangerous when the ballot is a weapon used without a fair judicial mind. The safety of our government actually rests with honest legislators and executives—and, in strong opposing political parties.

"The people"—if we take the time to size up the entire hodge-podge—are not in themselves positive assurance of good government, except for the saving fact that they do usually nominate and elect candidates for office more capable and trustworthy than the average voter in the crowd.

SERVICE THAT COUNTS.

Whether we give a stipulated amount of a thing, or whether we accompany it with a bit of something extra—perhaps only a little extra care in the delivery of a product, or a bit of information concerning its use, or an extra touch of care in the making of it—represents the difference between a sale, and a sale plus service. It is the difference between selling a customer, and selling with an invitation to come again.

Even professional men make themselves popular by showing personal interest in their clients—giving a little human touch, a bit of sympathetic understanding, or words of advice worth as much as the professional service rendered. Our greatest physicians and surgeons owe their popularity to just such characteristics.

Real service is a thing that can neither be weighed out, nor measured. It tells why one man is a success, and another is not—this giving of more than is stipulated for the price—not a greater quantity, but greater service with the quantity.

Is it mere generosity, or liberality? No, it's the human touch that makes us all feel as though we are a bit more than just animated human beings—that we are all akin, in some degree, to each other, and that this kinship acknowledged kindly, often unexpectedly, makes us feel that this old world is not such a heartless place, after all, in which to dwell.

Service never stands for the policy of "getting" all we can at the lowest possible cost, nor for eternally driving close bargains. A certain amount of friendly liberality is essential to all real success; and success, by the way, in its truest analysis, does not stand for the amount of money one is worth.

The most successful man is the one who has given his best service to his community; his most conscientious work; his aid in helping those less fortunate. In general, the measure of our service to God and man, is what counts.

TAX ON SALARIES AND INCOMES.

The plan of taxing salaries, wages, or incomes, is receiving considerable attention as a means of securing more governmental income and reducing the taxation on real and personal property. Evidently, such a law should not be made to apply to state, county and municipal needs at the same time, and evidently such a law should not apply to very low incomes.

One suggestion is that only incomes of $25.00 a week, and more, should be taxed, and that the rate of taxation should not exceed one-half of one percent, which would mean a tax of only $6.50 a year on a $25.00 a week salary. There are still others who think that lower incomes should be taxed, especially when such wage-earners already pay no tax at all.

There is considerable justice in taxing incomes. For instance, a salaried man of from $1000, to $2500, or more a year, has more income, and more chance to make and save money each year, than many a farmer who pays heavy taxes, and insurance and the cost of repairs of property besides. But, such taxes should be limited, we think, to counties, or to municipalities where there is no county tax.

THE "LAME DUCK" CONGRESS.

By pretty common opinion among the leaders in both parties, the Congress that assembles on December 1, following the November elections, called the "lame duck" session, is doomed to find its end on the junk pile of political worn-outs. The reason for this is, that the party winning a majority in Congress at the November election, should, for all logical reasons, assume operations at once, and not be compelled to wait until the meeting of Congress after the inauguration on March 4th.

And, along the same line, why should not a President elected in November, be inaugurated on January 1, instead of on March 4? After "the people" have announced their verdict, the same "people" should not be compelled to undergo delay in putting into effect the policies advocated during an election campaign; and there is no order of appeal to a higher court from such decision, that in other cases of law might be invoked.

Another out-of-date law—the electoral votes system—should be amended, at least in so far as placing the names of "electors" on the ballot is considered. A "popular vote" plan would be very objectionable because it would encourage fraudulent counts in states; but the present representation in voting for President, by states, could easily be improved.

THE NEGRO VOTE DRIFTING TO DEMOCRACY.

At the election last Tuesday, thousands of northern negroes voted Democratic, in addition to the thousands that have been doing so far for the past ten years. The main reason is, that the debt of gratitude that the race owed to President Lincoln, has grown very dim with the passing of years. The younger set, especially, hear of it only as a "once upon a time story" and are no longer impressed by it. As between Republican and Democratic employees, they see no present difference.

What the negroes in the South think, we do not know, as they are not acquainted with voting, and could not do so if they wanted to. As yet, they can not be as independent and unrestrained as their brethren in the North and West.

So, in the very near future the Republican party can no longer be called the "Negro party," and thereby the Democratic party will lose a long-standing appeal to race prejudice, that alone has helped to keep many white voters in the party of "white men." It may even cause some changes in election laws designed to disfranchise the negro race, because of the lack of their intelligence to mark ballots.

There is certainly nothing wrong about this growing division on the part of the race. Like white folks, they should do their own thinking, and if they feel that they can be better citizens, or like the policies of the Democratic party better than those of the Republican party, they should by all means align themselves accordingly. However, if they expect more "offices" in that direction, they are apt to be mistaken.

The Baltimore Afro-American, a weekly published by and for negroes, was in and out Democratic this year, as it has been for some time. It warmly supported Senator Tydings for the Senate, and Mr. Kennedy, for Congress, and its course is no doubt fully representative of the great majority of its subscribers. If we remember aright, this paper has been Democratic in its influence for several years, largely due to the fact that in the past, when the city government was Republican, Negroes were not appointed to wanted positions in the city government.

FULL DEMOCRATIC CONTROL OF LEGISLATION.

By general verdict, Democrats and Republicans alike, the country is glad that President-elect Roosevelt will have as an accompaniment to his administration, a large working majority in both branches of Congress. It is right that he should have full command and power over legislation for the country. President Hoover never had it. From the date of his inauguration there were many critics and obstructionists in what should have been his administration support.

One of the interesting developments will be, the fate of such "progressive Republican" Senators as Johnson, Norris, La Follette—and even Borah. With the exception of the latter, they have in practice been Democrats out in the open; or rather, they have consistently shown their open personal hostility to the President, at all points. As such Senators will not now be needed, the new majority can surely tell them they are not wanted.

It will also be interesting to note what will be done about the "robber" Smoot-Hawley tariff, that was passed with the aid of Democratic votes, but all of its claimed inequities blamed on the Republicans. Evidently, in order to be consistent, a new and lower rate tariff bill must be passed, and it must help the farmers and place the unemployed at work.

Not much difficulty should be encountered in handling the liquor question in a manner satisfactory to the wets, even if the 18th Amendment can not be taken out of the Constitution; and then, there is the disposition of the soldiers' bonus to be so disposed of as to satisfy the ex-service men.

There will be full Democratic power to handle all of these troublesome questions without consulting the minority party; and, they must be handled, in order to carry out campaign pledges; which makes the situation intensely interesting to many thousands of Republicans who voted for Gov. Roosevelt—and a "change."

BORAH WILL HAVE TO STEP DOWN AND OUT.

There will be no regret, to say the least, at the turn of fortune's wheel that displaces Senator Borah as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. When the Democrats organize that body, as they will after the fourth of March, Senator Swanson will succeed to this important post. Fortunately the right of seniority, regarded with almost superstitious awe at Washington, will in this case coincide with the claims of fitness. Mr. Swanson was a member of the delegation that helped to frame the London Naval Treaty, and on various occasions he has upheld the President without concern for petty partisan considerations. Moreover, his knowledge of foreign affairs and his acquaintance with European statesmen give him opportunities of service which Mr. Borah could not have grasped if he would.

During his long term as head of the committee the Senator from Idaho has been a consistent obstructionist. Seldom has any foreign policy of any Administration met his approval. He has been a bitter opponent of the World Court in particular; here and elsewhere his attitude has been thoroughly provincial. More than this, he has attempted to arrogate to himself prerogatives that belong to the President. A striking example of his irresponsibility was offered by his reception of the French newspaper correspondents who accompanied M. Herriot on the visit to President Hoover. He called them together and spread before them his own views of matters that belonged to the President to decide. In fact, he has again and again acted as chairman of the committee as if he were the President himself.

Even had the Senator's knowledge and judgment fitted him for a such a role, the impropriety of it would still have been obvious. Mr. Roosevelt will not be obliged to suffer from him the constant annoyances to which Mr. Hoover has been subjected. Nothing he has done in his important post becomes him like the leaving of it.—Phila. Inquirer.

CANDY, FALSE TEETH AND CIGARS.

Pennsylvania last year produced more than 176,000,000 lbs. of candy. In the same period the State turned out 84,000,000 false teeth. The ratio might suggest that for every two pounds of candy consumed replacement is necessary for the resulting ruin of one natural tooth. But the conclusion does not follow; for tons of each product are shipped outside the State and the two commodities do not go to the same destination.

It has often been remarked that Prohibition increased the sale of confectionery. The craving for sugar has been satisfied in solid form instead of by alcoholic conversion. But the figures are chiefly impressive for showing the consumption of what is generally regarded as a luxury in times of depression. Meanwhile, if a balance may be assumed between candy and tobacco, it is worthy of note that Pennsylvania manufactured about two cigars for every ton of candy, not to mention cigarettes and cheroots.—Exchange.

THE CHRISTMAS SEALS.

When you make up your Christmas list, be sure to remember the Christmas Seal. Small in size, it has done a big job, and still has great things to do in these days of stress. One out of every five persons who dies between the ages of 15 and 45 falls a victim of tuberculosis.

The enormous toll of automobile fatalities frequently is mentioned, but the toll from tuberculosis is three times that from automobile accidents. And in such cases the end comes suddenly, and does not, as with tuberculosis, often involve an entire family in distress and poverty which may increase the danger of the disease to other members of the household.

Tuberculosis is preventable, and we know how to prevent it. The history of the tuberculosis movement proves this. During the 25 years the Christmas Seal has been sold in Maryland, the death rate has declined more than 50%. Part of this has been due to the anti-tuberculosis activities of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, which sponsors the annual seal sale in Maryland. The Christmas Seal helps support the Miracle House, Maryland's preventorium at Claiborne, Maryland; state-wide free chest clinic service; health education and industrial work; and medical research.

The twenty-sixth annual Christmas Seal Sale opens on Thanksgiving Day and will continue until Christmas.—Md. Tuberculosis Association.

HISTORIC DRESSING FOR THE TURKEY.

When the Pilgrim Fathers stepped upon the "stern and rock-bound coast," and saw the wild New England turkeys, they were not at all surprised for the bird was not a new and strange species to them. Quite the contrary. Earlier explorers in the New World had already discovered the turkey and quickly learned what an unrivaled roast he made. Among other trophies from a strange new land, they took sample fowls back to England. The birds were so hardy that they endured, without complaining, a several months' trip across the Atlantic and came out of the small sailing vessels in excellent trim.

Even in the time of Cabot, that gallant adventurer who sailed the seas under the banner of Henry VII, turkeys were being raised in England. The fine large birds of Mexico were discovered by Juan Grijalva in 1518, and were well known in Europe by 1530. Ten years later a diligent English historian, whose thoughts dwelt much upon foods, reported that turkeys were common in "Christmas husbandry fare." Queen Elizabeth served roasted turkey to her gallant seamen when they came home to Bristol with their banners flying, and so perhaps, Raleigh, Drake and Frobenius knew how turkey tasted in the courts of the Old World as well as in the dusky lodges of a new land.

Nevertheless, even though there was no novelty about it, and the Pilgrims had seen turkeys before, large imported American turkeys, as well as the similar small birds of their own native forests, they must have been pleased to see the fine large fowls coming down to meet them even to the seacoast in Massachusetts. The Indians of that region had not domesticated these fowls as the Mexicans had. Again, it was a different bird that the conquerors found in Mexico, a turkey not unlike the present M. ocellata of the wild borderlands of Guatemala, a bird almost as brilliant in coloring as the peacock, for ocellata boasts a deep blue skin and orange caruncles on the top of his head.

Besides this peculiar head gear of bright bare skin, the turkey is quite individual in other ways; for instance the curiously drooping wings and the pompous erect tail. In this respect the partridge assumes somewhat the same attitude, but he is small and homely, and not blessed with a splendid and regal array of tail feathers. And only vultures and turkey buzzards possess anything remotely resembling the turkey's sleek and beautifully colored neck. The skin here is wrinkled and ridged, very red, with tones of violet in some of the darker creases.

So there, you see, more items of interest about the turkey than whether or not he is well done, or stuffed with the proper dressing, or garnished with due care. Inquiring folk may want to know if he is a White Holland turkey, a little black turkey like the European peasants raise, a Narragansett, a buff, a red, or that finest of all turkeys, the bronze variety our own most common one.

And there are people, with fact-hoarding minds, who will be interested to know that the wise Benjamin Franklin, who had no love for the bald eagle, suggested that the turkey would be a more appropriate and far nobler bird to represent the new Republic.—Vesta P. Crawford in Lutheran Boys and Girls.

Burmese City of Temples

Pagan, Burma, although deserted for 600 years, still possesses today the greatest collection of temples in the world. From 300 B. C. to 1300 A. D., it built about 5,000 of them within its 16 square miles. In all history, they have never been equaled in number, variety and such architectural magnificence.—Collier's Weekly.

A REAL THANKSGIVING

THAT we have much cause for thankfulness this year is demonstrated by one point outside the realm of politics which President Hoover made in his acceptance speech last August.

"I should like to digress for one moment," he said, "for an observation on the past three years which should exhilarate the faith of all Americans—that is the profound growth of the sense of social responsibility which this depression has demonstrated. . . . Despite hardships, the devotion of our men and women to those in distress is demonstrated by the national averages of infant mortality, general mortality, and sickness, which are less today than in times of prosperity."

There's something real to be thankful for—that in spite of depression and unemployment the national health has improved—and a reason why we should celebrate a real Thanksgiving this year! The President's brief digression was no claim for any political party, but a hearty acknowledgment to you and me, to the men and women of all political parties, that the sense of responsibility for the welfare of our neighbor is not dead in this glorious land. That is something not only to be thankful for, but to feel a personal pride in, too. So let's have a real Thanksgiving celebration this year, and eat to the point of repletion, for once in a way. There will be Thanksgiving dinners for everyone, if we know our American public, but the one we are going to suggest is for the average American family which is celebrating this Day of Thankfulness this year.

Make It Simple

Have a big dinner, by all means, but make it simple and inexpensive in order to have more to share with those for whom such dinners are an event, and to live up personally to the President's words of praise. It can be just as merry and appetizing as in other years, but keep in mind the matter of expense. Here's the sort of menu that we would suggest:

Tomato Bouillon with Okra
Bread Sticks
Roast Turkey or Chicken with Sage Stuffing
Browned Sweet Potato Balls
Asparagus Hollandaise
Thanksgiving Ice
Dressed Mixed Salad Greens
Cranberry and Raisin Pie
Nuts
Coffee
Pulled Mints

If you keep your Thanksgiving dinner as simple as this, you'll have both plenty to eat and the further pleasure of having also plenty to share. Don't forget that there are many families which may have to do without Thanksgiving dinners if those who have more don't remember them. Here are the recipes for two of the dishes on this menu which you may not know how to make:

The Recipes

Tomato Bouillon with Okra: Combine the contents of a 12 1/2 ounce can tomato juice with one can of bouillon, and the liquor from a one-pound can of asparagus, reserving the tips to be used in the asparagus Hollandaise. Add one cup water, the contents of a 9-ounce can of okra, thinly sliced, salt and pepper to taste, and a few drops of lemon juice. Heat thoroughly and serve in cups. Serves eight.

Thanksgiving Ice: Press the apricots from a No. 2 can through a sieve, and add one cup orange juice and four tablespoons lemon juice. Boil one-half cup sugar, three-fourths cup water and two tablespoons corn syrup for three or four minutes, and then dissolve in it two teaspoons gelatin soaked in four tablespoons cold water. Cool, add the fruit juices, and freeze in refrigerator trays, stirring often, or in a rotary freezer. Serve with the turkey or chicken. Serves eight.*

Still Much to Learn

About Science of Food

If you can't leave your children a fortune, you have done something if you leave them ten more years of life than you had. We know the modern theory so often crystallized as a witicism that to live lengthily, select a healthier grandfather and grandmother who were long in the land. But one's years may be amplified by reasonable application of the laws of health and his children's extended by drilling them in the rules, F. H. Collier asserts, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Let no boy grow up insisting on a dinner consisting of three pieces of pie and a cupful of coffee; nor is he very likely to grow up. The science of food and what the varieties of it do to one's constitution is still one largely of guesswork; but the doctors are finding out. In time they will know and can tell you exactly what is the matter with your teeth, your digestion, your lungs or your eyesight. Foods have something to do with this.

United States Classed

as Industrial Nation

Throughout most of the history of the United States farming was regarded as the basic industry. With the rise of manufacturing, particularly since 1900, the value of manufactured products has exceeded the value of farm products. Today only a fraction of working people are employed on farms, whereas earlier in our history nearly all were so employed. While farming remains practically indispensable, it is no longer the basic industry. If a single industry were to be selected among the manufacturing industries it would be steel as that includes iron and coal. The United States now is classed as an industrial rather than an agricultural nation. Many states, taken individually, would still show farming as the basic industry. For the world, agriculture must still be regarded as basic, as from agriculture must come the food of the people, without which there could be no other industry.—Washington Star.

Long Journey

Things are seldom so bad that they cannot be worse, and this must be the consolation of those who, continually made the butt of others for some peculiarity, come across a victim of circumstances suffering from the same peculiarity in a more exaggerated degree. The French Marshal Vivonne once indicated this feeling in a witty reply to the king. Vivonne and the Comte d'Auvergne were probably the most corpulent gentlemen of the court at the time. "Marshal, you really are getting too fat," said the king. "You ought to take more exercise." "Your majesty does not know, then, that I take a great deal of exercise?" "No; what do you do?" "I walk around the Comte d'Auvergne three times every day."—Washington Post.

Satisfied Candle Can't

Be Shot Through Door

The account of a correspondent's experiments on a barn door was of particular interest to me because of an experience I had, says R. L. Owen in the London Times. Having been told that a candle could be shot through a door, leaving a round hole, I was foolish enough to attempt the experiment. I put a cartridge into my gun without extricating the shot; but, being afraid of an explosion at that point, I did not place the candle close to the cartridge but put it in about an inch or so from the point inside one of the barrels. Having fixed a board about an inch and a half thick some yards away, I aimed at the center of it and pulled the trigger. The result was that the board was splintered, but when I looked at the gun I found that a piece of the metal about an inch square near the point had been taken clean away. Where it had gone to or the direction taken I could not say, but concluded that it was the result of the compressed air, as the candle had evidently choked the outward passage. I still retain the gun as a relic of the incident.

English Country Lore

of Good and Bad Luck

It is ill-luck for a farmer to go round his farm contrary to the sun. It is considered unlucky to put an even number of eggs under a goose, duck or hen for hatching. Sage grows faster where missus is master. It is generally believed that when a pig is slaughtered during the increase of the moon, the bacon, when cooked, will swell and increase, but vice-versa should the porker be killed when the moon is on the wane. It is said that the two black spots on the shoulder of the haddock are the marks left by St. Peter's finger and thumb when he opened the mouth of the fish to take out the piece of money. Treat black cats respectfully. In springtime witches assume feline shape; if you interrupt their "songs" they'll "evil-wish" you. When passing a gypsy, if he asks, "If onny on yer got onny (to-bacco) on yer," give him a pipeful, and he'll well-wish you.—London Mail.

Strange Relationship

It seems like a long way from the morning glory to the sweet potato, yet these two plants are related. They both belong to the family of plants known as the convolvulus, to which also belong the bane of all farmers, the bindweed. The wild morning glory is far harder than the cultivated types and stays in bloom longer. It even blooms at night when the moon is bright and is much favored by moths when open at night.

The wild type is sometimes called hedge-bindweed and also ladies' night cap. It is found as far south as North Carolina and as far west as Nebraska. Its blooming period lasts from June to August.

"Dog's Life" Not Always

What Old Saying Meant

A correspondent of an English newspaper—writing of India's problems, tells an interesting story in illustration of princely extravagance in that poverty-stricken land:

"One prince's chief extravagance has been dogs. He kept 700, every dog cared for by its own dog boy; over every 20 dog boys was a captain of dog boys, and over the whole a veterinary surgeon ranking as general. An electric fan whirled night and day above each dog, 'to keep off fleas.'"

"The best dogs fed off gilt plates, the average dogs off brass ones, the bad ones off iron ones (and very deeply they realized and mourned this humiliation)."

An Englishman who had to see his highness on a sweltering day of 1930 observed, mopping his brow (and not unhelpful that he might be offered a drink). "It is very hot, your highness." "Do you think so?" responded his highness, greatly interested, and touched a bell to summon his prime minister and order a special train to take his dogs to the seaside next day. "This gentleman tells me he thinks it is very hot."

That Frankish Urge to

Do "Forbidden Things"

It is sometimes just as well, even for small boys, to temper obedience with discretion.

The other day an ingenious youngster was charged with giving a false alarm of fire. His defense was that the notice on the fire alarm said: "Break the glass," and that he followed instructions.

Blind obedience, however, is not normally a characteristic of human beings, of whatever age, and one of the things which sometimes tempt otherwise quite normal people to pull the communication cord on a train is the fact that they know they mustn't do it. Similarly, notices that a thing is "forbidden" often arouse a wild desire to do it—though there was no thought of it in your mind until you saw the notice.

It is an awkward problem for railway companies, municipal authorities, and others who have to deal with humanity in the mass.—Exchange.

They Used Strachey's Voice

When Lytton Strachey (famous English author of the life of Queen Victoria and other books) came up to Cambridge, in 1899, he knew and was known to none of his contemporaries. By the end of his first year he had already an intimate circle of friends. All through the time that he was in residence his influence increased and generations of undergraduates fell under his powerful spell. When I visited Cambridge after a long interval in 1911, it was amusing to find half the undergraduates talking in what was called the Stracheyesque voice.—Leonard Woolf in the London Statesman and Nation.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION AT NEW WINDSOR.

The two Lodges, Good Samaritans No. 39 and Daughters of Samaria No. 38 arranged a very instructive and entertaining program for the evening of the 11th. The hall was filled to utmost capacity with corridor and steps crowded with eager listeners.

Mr. Daniel D. Hartzler and Sons were present with their unique musical instruments and opened the Service. Mrs. Edward C. Bixler led in prayer and followed with a brief talk on "The World of Yesterday and Today." As Mrs. Bixler finished speaking the audience, led by the Chairman Mrs. Ida Holton, broke into the wonderful spiritual "Ain't goin' to Study War no More." It was beautifully and effectively rendered.

Mayor R. Smith Snader was introduced and gave a splendid and appropriate address on organization and working with God. Ex-Senator Geo. P. B. Englar spoke very feelingly on community ties and the time when our boys were overseas. Rev. Joseph Stimpely, the pastor, followed with a very able extemporaneous speech. Miss Mary Jackson, holding the flag, gave a very beautifully America's Creed.

Then the oldest citizen in our community was called to the platform, Uncle Simon Murdock, 95 years old, bearing the marks of war in his forehead. He spoke very interestingly of the Civil War days. Mr. Arthur Patterson read an original paper on how to make their Lodge go and grow. It was one of the best things of the evening.

The Hartzler's were most generous with their music, both vocal and instrumental. The chairman calling on them between each speech as well as at the opening and close of the service. Mr. Hartzler spoke in his usual happy manner as the Chairman called on him as the last speaker. Rev. Stimpely pronounced the Benediction.

A letter was sent to Mr. Arthur Henderson, in Geneva, who is Chairman of the Disarmament Conference as it reconvenes this month.

The hall was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting and red white and blue crepe paper. Much credit and gratitude is due the Chairman, Mrs. Ida Holton for thinking of and arranging such a splendid program. It was the only Armistice Service in the community. Refreshments were served afterwards and were in charge of Mrs. John Woodyard and Mrs. Edw. Jackson.

A lot of politicians temper their words to the spirit of their audience. They usually tell not what they think, but what they think their hearers think they ought to think, never meaning a word of it.

MISS MOURER'S TRIP ABROAD.

families as the Corsini, etc., ride horseback around the field clad in ancient armor. It was all very interesting.

Then we went out to Vallambrosa, where there are lovely forests, and Milton spent some time in an old monastery, which is now empty. Oh, I would never tire of Florence. Italy through out is fascinating, and since Mussolini's rule is clean and no longer infested with beggars. One of the hill towns visited on the way to Florence was Volterra, where we went thru the largest Etruscan museum in the world. It contains some marvellous old tombs which showed the development of our shaking hands, for goodbye, a custom many thousands of years old.

Austria was most interesting. It was new, for one thing, and their culture is so fine in many directions. Most of the grand old musicians, whom I thought belonged to Germany were really Viennese. Then, their palaces, most of which are now museums, contain wonderful collections of art treasures. They still have fine opera and drama, and the people are so gracious. Their parks, too, are large and very beautiful and thoroughly enjoyed by the people. The whole country is well forested, watered and farmed.

The cost of living everywhere abroad is very cheap in comparison with prices in U. S. Travel expenses, too, were much cheaper both on street cars, or trams, as they call them, as well as railway.

In Spain, especially, was this true. We bought a kilometre ticket containing 3000 kilometres (about 1900 mile) for around $26.00. This entitled us to travel first-class anywhere in Spain. Then, room with hot and cold running water, with two eight course meals and continental breakfast, was much less than $2.00 per day including tips, which were 10% of the bill everywhere.

Conditions in most places were much worse than here. We really live in luxury in comparison with most people abroad. In many places in the country, especially in Spain, a man works for less than ten cents a day, and wages in general in all countries are only a tithe of ours. The U. S. looked mighty good to me, and while I enjoyed my six trips abroad I should not want to live there always.

(In the last paragraph we have the true answer to the thoughts that prevail so largely in this country, that "Things can't be worse." The lack of real information on the subject here, represents colossal ignorance of true answer to the thought that pre-the facts.—Ed. Record.)

HOMEMAKERS' CLUBS HOLD FALL MEETING.

for corrective health work has made possible. Each year, for the past four years, the Homemakers' Clubs have contributed $300.00 annually, for this purpose. Defective vision, defective teeth, and poor health due to enlarged tonsils and adenoids have been corrected in approximately fifty or seventy-five cases each year. The fund is provided primarily for school children, but a few adult and pre-school cases that needed attention have been taken care of through the fund.

Mrs. J. Edgar Myers, Chairman of the County Health Project, reported a balance on hand with $285 of this year's budget paid.

The morning session closed by singing "And Now We'll Sing of Maryland" after which luncheon was served by the members of the Methodist Church choir.

Miss Carrie Hewitt, the newly elected president, presided at the afternoon session. The meeting was opened by singing "Auld Lang Syne." Miss Hester Ball, Washington, D. C., gave an interesting and helpful talk on "The Spoken Word in Home and Community Life" after which Miss Carrie Mourer, Westminster, entertained the group with a travel talk on "Women in North Africa." At the close of the session Miss Mourer showed relics and interesting articles brought back from her trip abroad.

Mrs. B. I. Barnes, Mt. Airy, told a story depicting the work of Homemakers' Clubs, which was enjoyed by all. Following this selection, the group sang one of their favorite club songs, "The Bells of St. Mary's."

Members of Hampstead Homemakers' Club presented a short one-act playlet entitled "Beauty Secrets."

A delegation of Homemakers' Club members from Baltimore County were among the guests and visitors present at the Council meeting.

Plenty of Time

They stood on the edge of a crowded platform on the Underground railway. It was obvious that the young man was very much in love with his pretty companion. As a matter of fact, he was pleading with her to marry him. The girl could not make up her mind. A train came in sight. The young man was desperate.

"If you won't listen to me I'll throw myself in front of the train that's just coming in!" he cried.

The girl was frightened.

"For goodness' sake give me time to think," she said, anxiously. "In any case, there'll be another train in a minute."—London Tit-Bits.

FUTURE OF FRED. CO. FAIR

Likely to Arrange for Continuance of Fair Next Year.

Approximately seventy-five life members of the Frederick County Agricultural Society, including the officers and Board of Managers, met in the Courtroom of the Courthouse Saturday afternoon and after a discussion of the financial condition of the society, planned to raise funds to pay current bills and provide money to carry on the Fair next year.

The sentiment of the meeting was optimistic for the future of the exhibition. The opinion was expressed that the Frederick Fair is an established local institution not likely to be separated from the life of the city and county. It was brought out that by reason of conditions, which to some extent has eliminated agricultural shows, the Frederick Fair is now the recognized agricultural exhibition of the state and that such recognition is shared in by the University of Maryland, the agricultural center of the state.

It was stated that while this fair, like others in Maryland and nearby states, has felt the effect of economic conditions starting with the drouth of 1930, that it has had many prosperous years and had long ago become of Frederick's greatest community assets. At the present time it was explained it has one of the largest and best equipped grounds in the East. Its equipment was described as practically new and splendidly suited for its purposes. The Board of Managers and officers, it was pointed out, have been faithful in the interest of the life members and with but four exceptions, not including this year, the last twenty-seven years have returned substantial annual profits and have accumulated assets from the original investment of about $5,000 to a present valuation of more than $100,000. The loss during the four off years, one of which was the war period of 1918, amounted to about $17,000 and the entire earnings during the twenty-seven-year period aggregated $167,000 of which $116,525 had been put back in improvements. The only criticism was that while making improvements a surplus should also have accumulated for times of an emergency such as the past three failure years.

The plan of establishing pari-mutuels, a race betting system, was brought up and discussed but was not altogether looked upon with favor. It was thought that the betting system would in time overlap or crowd out the agricultural side of the Fair and thus eventually destroy the real intent and purpose of the annual exhibition. The opinion was expressed that with some readjustments in the way of economy and with more enthusiastic cooperation from merchants and business men, which had not been forthcoming during the past few years to any appreciable extent, and with the return toward normal economic conditions, the Fair will regain its own from a financial viewpoint and continue as an institution in the community.

Following these conclusions by prominent speakers, it was decided first that the Board of Managers be authorized to borrow a sufficient amount of money, approximately $7,400 to pay current expenses, including the major portion of premiums; second to appoint a committee to study the financial situation and make a report at the annual meeting in January and third that consideration be given to amending the constitution of the society providing for an increase from 250 to 350 life members on certificates, at $100 each thus providing a new fund of $10,000 to meet the present deficit and start next year with a surplus.—Frederick Post.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM CHINA.

most of the Japanese troops have gone, but many are strutting around Shanghai yet as tho they owned it. The Chinese wait impatiently for the League of Nations to come to their relief.

I am sorry to say that almost all my 800 Brownies lived in the burned areas, my Sunday School buildings were burned and my Brownies scattered. The stereos of my books and tracts were burned in the Commercial Press. My office, manuscripts, Church and Endeavorers safely passed through the ordeal, so I have yet much for which to praise God. Enclosed my Chinese Almanac.

Yours in Christ's glad service, (Rev.) H. G. C. HALLOCK. C. P. O. Box, 1234 Shanghai, China. Oct. 17

(Rev. Hallock is doing excellent work among the children in Shanghai. He has a brother Rev. C. B. F. Hallock, Presbyterian, at 10 Livingston Park, Rochester, N. Y., to whom "Christmas" contributions for his "brownies" may be sent. Personal contributions sent direct by mail to China, are unsafe.—Ed. Record.)

Contentment has one advantage over wealth. Folks can't borrow contentment from you.—Jacksonville Times Union.

Silver as Germ Killer

Although it was discovered in the eighties that water kept in a silver or copper vessel acquired certain germ-killing properties, it was only recently that a scientist in Paris found a commercial adaptation for the phenomenon.

Silver chloride mixed with potter's clay and baked at a high temperature is employed as a filtering medium, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, and it has been found that water passing through such a filter has the property of killing typhoid and other germs, while itself containing no silver.

Previous researches had demonstrated that, if silver is to sterilize effectively, it must have enormous surface. It was therefore converted into minute bubbles, which make it possible to kill all germs in 10,000,000 liters of water.

LET'S ALL HELP.

Only a few days before Thanksgiving Day when the annual sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals will begin! The sale will be conducted as usual under the auspices of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

Year by year, the tiny symbols have carried their message of hope throughout the country. Good old Santa Claus has appeared on some; bells gayly ringing out their reminders of good will on others; ships under full sail on others, and this year, healthy looking little choristers bring the thought of a Christmas that is made happier through service to others.

"It is especially appropriate for the message of the Tuberculosis Seals to be brought to us by healthy, happy children," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said in calling attention to the opening of the annual seal sale, "because if we can safeguard the children and young people of today from damage by this insidious disease, we will do much to check the danger at its very source. We are also laying the foundations for healthy manhood and womanhood—the best barricade against the disease.

"Tuberculosis doesn't 'just happen'. Every case of the disease is derived, or 'caught' as we say, in some way from some other case. Children and young people are particularly susceptible to the disease. Persons who have it are often careless, ignorant, or indifferent about spitting, sneezing, coughing, and spray their germs around where other people are endangered by them. Children and young people are frequently the victims of such carelessness.

"The keynote of the fight against tuberculosis is PREVENTION. The tremendous victories that have been won in the fifty years since Koch made his great discovery of the germs that causes the disease, have been accomplished through applying the knowledge that has accumulated as to ways and means by which the disease can be prevented. The means of prevention have been found to be comparatively simple—sunshine, fresh air, nourishing food, suitable clothing, plenty of sleep, wholesome recreation, and protection from infection. If there has been a weak spot in the defenses and the disease has gotten a foothold, there is still hope of arresting it, if discovered in the early stages and prompt care is given.

"Part of the money derived from the sale of the Christmas Seals is contributed by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association toward the support of clinics held every month throughout the counties for the examination of persons who show symptoms of the disease, or who have been in contact with it. The clinics are held under the joint auspices of the State Department of Health and the Tuberculosis Association. Thousands of people have been benefited by this service, and many of them have been started on the road to health.

"This is only one of the ways in which the money you put into the Christmas Seals helps others. You don't have a great deal of money to have a part in the fight against tuberculosis. The seals are only a penny a piece. LET'S HELP TO THE UTMOST."

Youthful Reasoning

Seven-year-old Jean was being grilled by mother preparatory to a test in second-grade arithmetic. Jean knew very well how many pints in a quart, how many quarts in a bushel, and so forth. Mother then asked her how many nickels there were in a quarter.

"One," was the reply.

"Now, you know better than that," corrected mother.

"No, that is right," retorted Jean, "one nickel and two dimes."

Toll of Carelessness

Graphically Summed Up

What is "more powerful than the combined armies of the world?" asks the Literary Digest.

What has "destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations?"

The answer is given by The Safe Worker (Chicago) in the striking style of personification used by Robert H. Davis in his famous piece: "I am the Printing Press." We read on:

"I am more deadly than bullets, and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest of siege guns.

"I steal, in the United States alone, over five million dollars each year.

"I spare no one, and I find my victims among the rich and poor alike, the young and old, the strong and weak. Widows and orphans know me.

"I loom up to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor, from the turning of the grindstone to the moving of every railroad train.

"I massacre thousands upon thousands of wage-earners a year.

"I lurk in unseen places, and do most of my work silently. You are warned against me, but you heed not.

"I am everywhere—in the house, on the streets, in the factory, at railroad crossings, and on the sea.

"I bring sickness, degradation, and death, and yet few seek to avoid me.

"I destroy, crush, or maim. I give nothing, but take all.

"I am your worst enemy.

"I am CARELESSNESS."

New World's "Discovery"

Some historians of the Roman Catholic church are of the opinion that their missionaries reached the western hemisphere before the discovery of America by Columbus. They claim that documents from the Vatican archives, which were published in 1893, contained information concerning the diocese of Gardar, in Greenland. This first Catholic diocese in the New World was established about 1125 and had resident bishops until 1377. However, other historians claim that the church of San Nicholas, in Santo Domingo, which was founded by Governor Ovando in either 1502 or 1509, is the oldest Christian church in the New World.

Exploded Illusions

Fond illusions about animals have been destroyed. For instance, says the Los Angeles Times, polar bears do not eat fish but grizzlies will.

African apes actually turn pale when they hear the lions roar; Indian apes listen with indifference to lions, but go insane with terror when they hear the Belgian tigers. Man of war birds will eat only fish that are thrown into the air by keepers where they can catch them on the fly. Wild parrots learn to talk from tame parrots put in the cages; the wild animal market is "long" on lions; they can't even be given away.

Wellington Nominated Himself

When George IV requested the duke of Wellington to form a ministry, nothing was further from his thoughts than making the duke the premier. When the king, then at Windsor, opened the dispatch box containing the duke's list, he burst into an exclamation of mingled mirth and amazement: "D—n his eyes! I asked him to make out for me a list of a cabinet, not to put his own name at the head of it." But George IV hated "trouble"; the duke's name stood at the head of the list, and the king let it remain.—From the London Spectator, February, 1832.

No Birds' Nest in Soup

Bird's-nest soup, the famous Chinese dish, is not made of bird's nests at all, the Princess Der Ling told Ruth Seinfel, of the New York Evening Post. It seems there is a swallow-like bird which lives on the rivers of China and makes its nest out of reeds and certain little fish. These little fish do not decay, but dry up nicely. The soup is made of them, after they have been carefully cleaned of all feathers and other irrelevant matter. It tastes like strong chicken soup.

Umbrella, Back in 1802,

Worth Advertising For

Further proof to the old adage that no matter how old the world gets the people in it never change is presented in an old "lost" advertisement for an umbrella in the Middlesex Gazette, Middletown, Conn., for September 5, 1802:

"An Umbrella Lost—The Subscriber in traveling from New Haven to Middletown in the Stage on Monday, the 11th ult., lost, or somewhere left, a New Umbrella—covering of Green silk, with a Red edge enclosed in a light Blue cover, with the Owner's name on a piece of paper pinned to the Cover. Any person to whose knowledge it may have come is desired to send it to the Printer—For which they shall receive the thanks of the Owner and a reward for their trouble.—Cyrus Bill."

Spread of Volcanic Dust

In the summer of 1883 an eruption occurred on the small volcanic island of Krakatoa, in the Sunda strait, whose effects were far-reaching. The finer particles of the volcanic dust, attaining the higher layers of the atmosphere, were diffused over a large part of the surface of the earth. Within the tropics they were borne along by air currents at a rate of 73 miles an hour from east to west, until within a period of six weeks they were diffused over nearly the whole space between latitudes 30 degrees north and 45 degrees south. Eventually they spread northward and southward and were carried over North and South America, Europe, Asia, South Africa and Australia.

"Water Sails"

A water sail is a sail used to propel a vessel by pressure of the water instead of the wind. Where there is a strong current, a large sail can be attached to the sides of a ship amidships, carried forward and then submerged in the water. Weighted on its underside and buoyed at the surface of the water, it furnishes a wide expanse of vertical surface to the current. The current fills the sail in much the same manner as the wind does when the sail is carried in the air and draws the vessel along. Such sails used to be employed in carrying crewless freshships down on an enemy fleet when the current favored such an operation.

Old Mandate Carried Out

Following the provision of a Seventeenth century will, Leslie Deeley, a choirboy, stood on his head at Leighton Buzzard, England, while extracts from the document were read. The will was made by Edward Wilkes, who left charity lands to the town for the upkeep of almshouses. He decreed that, to impress the rising generation, the will should be read at certain spots every year. Years ago the boy who performed the feat was given beer and plum rolls. Now he receives money.

It must afford S. C. Ott considerable pleasure to know that his twenty-two years of business effort have resulted in the fine general store that stands today, a credit to both him and the fine little town in which it is located. It must give him pride as he views this fine place of business to know that it is the result of his own work and your patronage. A deep sense of obligation to you, his patrons, is felt, for it was your patronage that made this store possible.

S. C. Ott realizes the obligation and acknowledges it. May he adopt this medium to thank you for that patronage, and assure you that he will always welcome such obligation and strive to discharge it in the form of even better service in the future.

THE BIRNIE TRUST CO. Taneytown.

Every person who enters this Bank—man, woman or child, depositor, borrower or stranger—is entitled to all we can give in the way of service, courtesy and co-operation. If we give less, we are negligent in our duty to you, and The Birnie Trust Co. tries not to be negligent in anything.

When we organized this Bank in 1900 we installed in our various departments the most up-to-date facilities and conveniences for giving our patrons prompt and efficient service. But we cannot always determine how well we are measuring up to the ideals we have set as standards for ourselves. We are human and sometimes fail in our duty. We are indebted to you if you tell us when we do fail, so we may have the opportunity to correct our fault. We welcome constructive criticism at all times.

The present officers of this Bank are: Arthur W. Feaser, Pres.; Dr. J. J. Weaver, Jr., Vice-Pres.; Charles R. Arnold, Cashier and J. Carroll Koons as Assistant-Cashier.

CENTRAL GARAGE Taneytown.

When people of Carroll County and vicinity want their cars repaired, or greased and oiled, they invariably call on George W. Crouse, who for the past two years has so ably taken care of their needs along these lines. Mr. Crouse took over this Garage here a few weeks ago consolidating his Key Highway Garage with this fine Garage he now operates.

He carries Firestone Tires and Accessories, Bond Batteries, Richfield Gas and Oil and has a specialty in Acetylene Welding Work.

HESSON'S DEPARTMENT STORE, Taneytown.

From a little acorn grows the mighty oak. A small seed is planted and with the nourishment and stimulus provided by the surrounding earth, the little seed takes root and then timidly peeks its head above the ground and with reassurance slowly grows and increases in size till with the advent of future years it becomes a mighty oak, strong, steady, reliable and still growing.

And so it is with the firm of Hesson's Department Store which first took root here in 1903. During the ensuing years this concern, like the little acorn, grew and expanded, entrenching itself more deeply as the years rolled by, in the industrial firmament of Carroll County. Its strength and healthy condition is clearly emphasized in the large volume of business transacted in the confines of Carroll County and the able, efficient manner in which that business is carried on.

The guiding hand that determines the course and destinies of this enterprise; that asserts and directs its policies, is that of Mr. D. J. Hesson, the owner, a man of real intellect and a most ardent booster for Carroll Co.

Hesson's Department Store handles a line of Nationally Advertised Merchandise such as Del Monte and Pleezing Canned Goods, Star Brand Shoes, Humming Bird and Kayser Hosiery and a staple line of Men's Clothing.

POTOMAC EDISON CO. Taneytown.

Not only is the quality and price of all merchandise in this store fully guaranteed, but each article is tastefully displayed so that patrons may make their selections, governed by their own desires and needs, for this is a store of a new era, built and arranged to serve you better with better merchandise at better prices. Courtesy and personal service add nothing to the cost of our goods. It is merely an extra inducement that The Potomac Edison Co. has to offer.

We are interested in our own community. With us it is a pleasure to help build it. It is a privilege, not an obligation. It is a duty gladly undertaken and discharged to the best of our ability. Bigger stores make for better towns. Better stores make for bigger towns. Think it over. It's worth while.

Miss Janet Burke has charge of this office here and would be glad to demonstrate the Radio and Electrical Appliances to you at any time.

OHLER'S COMMUNITY PURE FOOD STORE, Taneytown.

The radical is rarely a success. Few men, very few, of radical tendencies ever amounted to much, and a business conducted along radical lines will experience considerable difficulty in making worthwhile progress.

Because Mr. W. M. Ohler is an advocate of the wise policy of trading with local merchants, does not mean that he is radical. Rather, it is conclusive proof that he is conservative for surely there is no more sensible thing to do than patronizing a local merchant.

W. M. Ohler who started this store in October 1931 has been in the retail grocery business here at Taneytown for sixteen years, before this time, ever since 1915, but I do not think his advocacy of this policy is at all selfish or prejudiced. I'm sure it is his sincere belief that it is to the best interests of everyone to buy at home with a home town merchant; that the buyer in the long run will profit as well as the merchant and with that view we are in perfect accord.

Ohler's Community Pure Food Store features the Libby Canned Products, Fresh Fruits and Vegetables, Double Grid Tires and Cities Service Gas and Oil.

THE TANEYTOWN GRAIN & SUPPLY CO., F. E. Crouse Manager.

The career and record of The Taneytown Grain and Supply Co., has been one of undeviating progress ever since its origin about 24 years ago, during which time it has upheld the basic principles of sound merchandise and unexcelled quality upon which it was founded. Its efficient and constant service to the people of Carroll County has been recognized by them in the form of an ever-increasing patronage resulting in one of the largest Mills of its kind in Carroll County.

The business houses of a Nation, State, County or Town collectively—and individually—are vital links of a large chain that binds together and makes for the strength and prosperity of that State, Nation, County or Town. This concern is one of those important links that are largely responsible for the high standing and commercial supremacy of Carroll County among other Counties of the State.

KOONS BROS. Taneytown.

In a discussion of the Growth and Progress of Carroll County, a word or two about one of its most distinguished merchants and citizens, Mr. M. A. Koons is quite apropos. Mr. Koons who has been actively engaged in the Department Store business in Taneytown since 1897 has attained a position of distinction, of being both a good merchant and a good citizen of his community. When Mr. Koons first opened the doors to his store for business, he adopted a policy of dealing fairly and satisfactorily with his patrons, which policy he has continued to maintain, and as a result he can boast the fact that he is doing business successfully, with many of his original customers. Koons Bros. get many new patrons and keep their old ones.

R. B. GARNER, HARDWARE Taneytown.

The firm of R. B. Garner, Hardware, at Taneytown, is one of the leaders in its particular field in Carroll County.

When R. B. Garner started in business here in 1919, he welded into his organization the cardinal points of success, namely, service, quality and sincerity of purpose. On this firm foundation he has built up a business of which he can feel justifiably proud, for only has it grown in a material way but it has also helped make this community the fine place it now is. We feel that the firm of R. B. Garner, Hardware, is indeed an asset to Carroll and adjoining counties, as indeed it would be to any community.

Mr. Garner has a general line of Hardware, Standard Gas and Oil and Guns and Ammunition.

SARBAUGH'S JEWELRY & MUSIC STORE, Taneytown.

There are more reasons than just getting good value for your dollar, why you should deal with Sarbaugh's Jewelry & Music Store in the sales and repair business here since April 1924. This is a local concern and the dollar you spend here, stays here to advance the interests of this community. Your town and you too will prosper if your merchants prosper. Show me a town with prosperous stores and I will show you a prosperous town with prosperous people.

FAIRFIELD WESTERN MARYLAND DAIRY CO., Taneytown.

Few businesses in Carroll County have enjoyed the steady and consistent growth attained by The Fairfield Western Maryland Dairy Co., of Taneytown.

Since its inception here in 1927 the firm has gone ahead in the most progressive manner, enlarging and bettering their service from year to year until now they enjoy and occupy an important niche in the business chain of Carroll County. The firm's affairs are not confined to local limits, but extend over a wide area, and the large patronage they have is indeed a reflection of the high esteem in which they are held by the people of this entire section.

Mr. M. L. Breffle is the manager of this modern equipped plant, employing twenty people in the manufacture of Powdered Milk and Whole Cream, having a capacity of 9050 gallon of milk a day.

EAST END SERVICE STATION, Taneytown.

It is casting no reflection on any other Garage to point out J. J. Wolf's garage as one of superior qualities, offering a service and grade of workmanship that we know will please and satisfy the most critical. No haphazard or slipshod methods of mechanical repairs are tolerated here. Whether it is a small, minor repair or a complete overhauling, Mr. Wolf does it with that same painstaking care and thoroughness that are characteristic of the master workman in any field of endeavor; work that makes you realize what a fine garage this is.

Wolf knows no other way to do a job. It must be done right or not at all. You'll come back again if J. J. Wolf does it.

BAKER'S GROCERY STORE, Union Bridge.

The best to be had at the lowest possible price is the one outstanding feature that has contributed materially to the success and enviable position attained by J. U. Baker's Store one of the well known and highly esteemed firms of this section in the grocery business, who started this fine little store here thirty years ago.

In a clean and well managed store room, is this business conducted, keeping well abreast of the trend of times in every respect and doing their utmost to secure and hold your patronage. With keen intellect, they are following the worthy principles inculcated into this fine business when it was first founded and by which the present management has maintained a well earned growth.

PRESTON B. ROOP MEAT MARKET, Union Bridge.

Undoubtedly one of the finest Meat Market and Grocery stores in this vicinity is that of Preston B. Roop, at Union Bridge. Here is a business conducted by a man who apparently has been endowed with a keen sense of appreciation of the traits of human beings. I think he understands them and knows what they want.

You don't ever see dead stock on the shelves of Preston B. Roop's Market. The stock is always new and fresh. That's because he buys the kind of merchandise people want; displays it to advantage and prices it fairly. That's what I call good business sense, and that's what Preston B. Roop has plenty of.

I make this statement not to disparage any concern of a similar nature in Carroll County, but to draw attention to the fact that Preston B. Roop is leaving no stone unturned to be worthy of your patronage.

All the fresh meats sold here are fresh home killed meats, the Hams and Bacon are Swift's, Eskay and Myers.

Mr. Roop operates a Route Truck to Rocky Ridge every Wednesday and Saturday and buys Calves, Cattle, Hogs and Eggs from the farmers of this community.

UNION BRIDGE MOTOR SALES (Authorized Ford Sales and Service) Union Bridge.

The automobile, not so many years ago, was considered a luxury. That day has passed. Now it is a necessity, playing a most important part in our everyday life. We can't get along very well without it. So when you buy one, it behooves you to look carefully into the merits and also into the qualifications of the man who sells it to you and who will, no doubt, service it for you, for he and his service are just as important factors as the car itself.

The New Ford V-8 is sold by Mr. E. P. Pfouts in business here since 1929. It's a good car. You all know that. And the firm who sells it is equally as good, and their service even better. That combination makes for auto satisfaction.

The Union Bridge Motor Sales maintains complete general repairs service which is personally directed and guaranteed by Mr. Pfouts.

WEST END AUTO SALES Union Bridge.

This modern garage, established in 1922 has since that time harbored much of the town's trade; merited it and due to the services given and the quality of the work rendered, will continue to hold it. Their slogan is, "Satisfy a Patron and you will not Lose Him." The West End Auto Sales tries mighty hard to satisfy and does. Several people are employed and the work is all done by trained men who know how, under the watchful eye of Mr. B. A. Fogle himself. The charges are very reasonable. Mr. Fogle has been a resident of Carroll County ten years and in that time has firmly entrenched himself as a very capable and straightforward business man; one who has always extended the fullest co-operation towards the industrial and commercial uplift of this community; a good citizen of a good town.

L. E. STAUFFER, DRUGS, Union Bridge.

One of the pioneer drugs and Sundries stores of Carroll County is under that capable ownership of Mr. L. E. Stauffer. Far back in 1900 it was started in a rather modest way and since that time the upright principles employed have won their reward, the store of L. E. Stauffer now being known as the place in Union Bridge and vicinity to buy drugs and Sundries, Toilet Articles, Stationery and School Supplies and the highest quality Candies which appears and pleases the craving of the sweet tooth in your little set of worries.

G. B. DEVILBISS, GROCERY AND MARKET, Union Bridge.

Five years of reliable service, handling Quality Goods at Quantity Prices, are the principal reasons to which the success of this firm might be attributed. It's a fine Grocery and Market, owned by a home town man and handling things you'll like featuring Nationally Advertised products behind which Mr. Devilbiss puts his own guarantee of satisfaction. That guarantee which means something in this community.

THOMAS & Co., Union Bridge.

The firm of Thomas in business here fifteen years, offers you prices on the best in Feed, Coal and Grain that effects a considerable saving to you, the customer. Be wise. Use your eyes. Economize.

Mr. E. V. Crumpacker, is manager of the firm's intrusts here and has always tried to give you more for your money all the time.

UNION BRIDGE BANKING & TRUST CO.

Established Nov. 1899. Pres., Silas D. Senseney; Vice-Pres. and Treas., W. H. B. Anders; Capital $40,000; Surplus N. P., $373,000; Deposits, $1,150,000.

A cycle of development in any business presents a very interesting study. For instance, What is a bank? A Bank has been very aptly and simply defined as a reservoir of wealth. And it is. However, we feel that The Union Bridge Banking & Trust Co. is infinitely more than that. We feel that the Union Bridge Banking & Trust Co., is an economic necessity and inter-linked with its structure is the prosperity of the territory surrounding it. The modern bank gathers from many sources individual resources and pools them into one huge reservoir and in turn this reservoir is made available to industry for purposes of expansion and development that are immediately reflected in greater prosperity through increased payrolls and disbursements of various natures which are returned to the bank as deposits, again increasing the reservoir and thus creating an endless and ever-widening cycle of expansion and development.

The laws of supply and demand are just as applicable to a bank as to any other business. As the resources of a bank increase new outlets must be found that can make use of these available resources; new industries are sought, old ones revived, with the attendant result that there is more demand for labor, more demand for homes, more demand for everything that money will buy.

This bank does not advocate hoarded wealth. Hidden and latent wealth is of no material value to the individual or the community. Prosperity for us and you is only possible when the bank fulfills its function as the motive power of this cycle, always stimulating new depositors and creating new avenues for expansion. As good business men we feel it our duty.

UNIONTOWN GARAGE D. Myers Englar, Prop.

Chevrolet Sales, Wrecking Service.

Evidence of ability in a person or business house is very generally apparent from the outside. It is a trait that most always reveals itself to the observant eyes and is not very difficult to see. Like all rules of course it has exceptions but The Uniontown Garage founded here in 1914, is not one of those exceptions, for a glance at the outside of this thriving, bustling garage is an exceedingly good barometer of what it is inside. Its appearance does not belie its ability, rather does it inspire you with confidence. Instinctively, you know that your car will receive the same careful attention if brought here for repairs, whether it be a Rolls Royce or the proverbial Fliver. The shop is well fitted to give you every service you require, having modern equipment throughout; every conceivable device to facilitate the work and turn it out as it should be turned out, right. Back this with the many years of mechanical experience Englar enjoys and you have a most effective combination.

The line of tires, tubes and accessories is also very complete and needless to say that they represent the output of the best manufacturers in the country. None but the best and all priced reasonably, accessories behind which D. Myers Englar puts his own guarantee. A guarantee that means a lot.

T. L. DEVILBISS, Uniontown.

In days of yore, 'twould happen folks would need a little bit of stuff to keep them through the winter when times were kind of tough; but it didn't seem to matter, for the man who owned the store, would always give the folks some credit, and then give them some more. Then the chain store and the mail order houses, came like a flash, but they didn't even say hello if you have the cash; for they don't live in Hickville and we're a bunch of fools, if we think these guys give a shuck about our church and schools. Now listen folks I think I know the way to change all that. From our local store let's buy our beans, and meat and Sunday hat. We'll patronize our home owned stores and keep the cash at home. Let the other guys, gol-darn them, start a village of their own.

J. W. HAINES Uniontown.

In Uniontown, one of the leading independent stores is that of J. W. Haines, who started this venture here six years ago, handling a fine line of Groceries, Dry Goods, Notions and Hardware.

The owner of this fine general store, J. W. Haines was born and raised in Carroll County.

WALTER STEFFEN, Keymar.

Carroll County is growing. Help it grow. Keep it growing. If you live here, buy here. Your home town merchant is as good as any. Abraham Lincoln once said that he didn't know much about theories concerning trade, but he did know that when America bought a ton of steel in England for twenty dollars, American had the steel but England had the twenty dollars. But when America bought a ton of steel from an American firm, then America had the steel and also the twenty dollars. If you remember, Abraham Lincoln was a very intelligent person. But it doesn't require any keen intellect to fathom such plain logic. Any one can see the good sense in it.

All of which means if you use your money to buy local products; if you patronize local merchants, you will contribute at the same time toward keeping Carroll County on the upgrade and you and our town will prosper accordingly.

The store of Walter Steffen, established April 1930, gives you merchandise and service and consideration that only a home town merchant can give you. Your other home town merchants do the same. Patronize them. They'll patronize you. Keep the cycle of prosperity turning all the time, continuously.

FAIRFIELD WESTERN MARYLAND DAIRY, Detour.

Any firm like the Fairfield Western Maryland Dairy, at Detour, which has attained the height of business success, is, in a sense, to be envied. Yet there is placed upon the successful man an obligation that never ends, that he must constantly strive to meet and that is persistent in its demands on him. Success is not a destination; it is not a goal. It is never fully attained in life. Success is an achievement, first to be attained and then to be maintained; and in its permanent maintenance only does it become an achievement. "Permanent" is a very definite word. It means constant, always.

The Fairfield Western Maryland Dairy has gained the distinction of success. Now it must maintain that position. Therein lies its most difficult task, but I know and so does this firm know that continuance of those sound business principles it has used since the inception of its business will suffice to make that position secure—always permanently.

THE DETOUR BANK, Detour.

Lady Opportunity is knocking at your door. Are your wearing ear muffs? If legendary fiction can be given credence then this whimsical Lady Opportunity, knocks neither loud nor often.

Are you ready? Can you help her? Can we help you? We can talk to you in this article but you must come here to talk to us. This bank is not too big to talk to you, no matter how small you may be. Though your business may mean nothing to us in the matter of material profit, we value it as evidence of your faith and reliance in us. And we're not hard to talk to. We feel that we are a friendly bank. You can come here with your overalls on. We like it. The sweat of your brow won't chill us. Now we're not going to make a lecture, but this is The Detour Bank speaking. If you'll come in and talk to us, we can help you when Lady Opportunity comes a knocking.

C. W. DORSEY, Detour.

Dorsey's Store is one of the best stores in this section, having been founded here in September, 1930, by C. W. Dorsey. It is really a worthwhile store and one that would reflect credit upon a much larger town. Fair, considerate treatment of the patron and quality merchandise; that's the formula used to build this enterprise to its present position.

Mr. Dorsey has lived in Carroll County for the past five years and is a Booster for it too.

J. W. FREAM, Harney.

The firm of J. W. Fream, at Harney, since 1922, caters to a vast area around here in the General Store business, featuring a line of nationally known and advertised products behind which they put their own guarantee of satisfaction, so you all know you're getting real merchandise when you're trading here.

BAKER GARAGE. New Windsor.
R. C. Yingling, Prop.
Wrecking Service. Phone 48M

It is no exaggeration to say that in the past years the automobile industry has witnessed and undergone changes of a revolutionary nature. Improvements and refinements of various kinds have made the automobile almost a perfect means of transportation.

Notice the qualification, almost. The best automobile built requires repairing and always will. It is only a machine, made by human beings and susceptible to certain weaknesses that cannot be helped.

Now the automobile has advanced, how about the garage man, the fellow who fixes them when they break. Has he advanced too? Has he kept pace with the machine he works on? Is he qualified to fix these new wrinkles that are cropping up every day?

Without reservation we can say that the Baker Garage meets all these requirements. Mr. Yingling, the owner made a study of cars and kept pace with the advent of all the latest inventions and improvements and knows how to repair them. A modern Garage for modern cars.

Mr. Yingling bought this Garage from Mr. Pitner about three years ago and gives his personal attention to every job turned out.

It is not the intention to convey to you readers the impression that those merchants who have not advertised with us are not reliable merchants. Rather, it is our intention to tell you that those who are mentioned in this commercial review of Carroll County, are firms, who from our own observations are well worthy of your patronage and are firms who can and do live up to the things we say about them.

Now we all know that it is important to use care and consideration in the repair of an automobile. Many of us have experienced the results of poor workmanship, costly results generally. A good mechanic is not hard to find and neither is a good one hard to find if you locate The Baker Garage, at New Windsor. You may bring your car here for repairs and know that it will be properly taken care of and at a price that won't strain your purse strings. A shop with every facility to expedite the work has been an important factor in the growth of the business and that coupled with the many years of experience enjoys will no doubt be instrumental in the continuance of that growth.

E. R. KISER, Harney.

In every trade, in every activity, there is usually some outstanding factor, some person or business which has attained a recognized position of eminence because of its efficiency, or because of an invaluable service rendered its patrons. In no trade does service and skilled workmanship count for more than it does in the automotive field, for auto repairing in this advanced era is without doubt one of the most essential contributions to the further progress of civilization. We can't get along very well, certainly not very far, unless our automobiles are kept going. Try to do without your car for a week and you'll see what I mean. For that reason we feel the occasion to be opportune to include in this resume of Carroll County's commercial life the name of E. R. Kiser, owner of this modern garage at Harney for the past nine years. A Garage that does it right every time.

JOHN E. DRACH, Linwood.

The old home town has changed a lot since I was just a lad, for in those days, home owned stores were all we ever had. I remember how the boss would come and meet us at the door, and he always made us feel at home when we were in his store. And when some roads were needed or some other work was done, the owners of our local stores were always called upon. When other things were needed to make a better town, they were always glad to do their share and never turned it down. But everything is different now, it isn't like before. Do you know why? I'll tell you why. It sure does make me sore. It's just because the money here is going out of town and that's just what is keeping me and you and others down.

MT. OLIVET FRUIT CO., INC.

An important project of Carroll County is the Mt. Olivet Fruit Co., Inc at New Windsor. Mr. Walter Englar is the Superintendent of this vast enterprise which was founded in 1912 and which at present has about 9000 apple trees in an orchard of 200 acres. About sixty people are employed here, grading and packing these fine apples which are shipped to many foreign countries as well as local points in the United States. From one to three carloads are shipped out of here daily. An exceptionally good grade of cider is also manufactured and shipped to various points. The Mt. Olivet Fruit Co., Inc., is a very valuable asset to Carroll County.

All the assets, efforts, and loyalty of the Pleasant Valley Bank have always been and are now primarily devoted to the welfare and advancement of Carroll County. This bank's progress is inseparably linked with that of the County, and it owes its principal success to the co-operation it has given to the upbuilding and carrying on of industrial and commercial enterprises in this vicinity.

Progress and achievement find in the Pleasant Valley Bank a sympathetic understanding that is based on sound banking principles and an inherent desire to do all that is consistently possible to promote the interest of the community. Our doors are open and beckon you to come in and confer with us on your financial problems and any others that you may care to confide in us. It is a pleasure to serve you, for in service to you we serve ourselves. Your prosperity is our prosperity, and the opportunity to help you is but an opportunity to help ourselves.

THE KEY GRAIN & FEED CO.
Detour, Keymar, Hampstead, Loys.
D. J. Hesson, Pres. J. H. Allender, Mgr

Business houses of this nature have always played an important role in Carroll County's forward progress. Because of years of successful venture right here in your midst: because of such close association with many of its citizens; because of an inherent good business sense that tells them that their future is unalterably wrapped in the future of Carroll County, this firm, The Key Grain & Feed Co., has developed a rather close affinity with the County in general, and their business is, in great measure, distributed throughout its breadth.

The products of The Key Grain & Feed Co., have firmly and indelibly impressed their merits on the people of this County, and their increasing patronage is more than ample proof that people do know and do appreciate good merchandise; that they are willing, yes eager, to pay a fair price for it, and will even go a little out of their way to get it. Give them a fair "shake," that's all they want.

C. E. SIX, Middleburg.

Let's review the reasons why you will be benefited trading at this store of C. E. Six all the year round.

This store is a local independent store, possessing the same local interests as you. This store carries every product obtainable at other stores at the same general prices; nationally advertised brands, not just special brands of which you know nothing.

By buying with your independent merchant, you buy with safety and confidence. This is an independent merchant. Buy from your friend and neighbor. He can always serve you best.

EYELERS GARAGE & LUNCHROOM
New Windsor.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER FLOCK TOGETHER. Food for thought, that. What has that to do with business stories? Well, I've just been musing before an open fireplace and perhaps my thoughts are drifting, but I'll bring them back soon. I've been thinking about the many garages I have written about in the course of my travels and it seems I can pick out the name of a car a man is selling by the appearance of his garage, and his own personality. Is there any significance in my thought?

To me it seems only natural that a garage like the one owned by C. E. Eyler, at New Windsor, should sell the Willys and Willys Knight Cars. Because of their own growth, solid standing general appearance, it is but logical that the cars he handles should be in accordance with his own conception of good value. His selection of the Willys and Willys Knight has surely been a judicious one.

Though moderate in price, the Willys and Willys Knight has all the essentials of the best of cars, namely, PRICE, ECONOMY, COMFORT, APPEARANCE and POWER—the five fundamental principals of any car. Search as you will, you will find no car in its price field to excel it. You do yourself an injustice to buy any car without giving serious consideration to the Willys cars. With no obligation involved, Mr. Eyler would appreciate the courtesy of your inspection.

In addition to the expert general repair work done here, Mr. Eyler has also a real lunch room here which is operated by Wm. F. Price the past eight months, who is an expert chef of many years experience in this business.

THE NEW WINDSOR STATE BANK.

E. C. Gilbert, Cashier.

In that delightful book, "The Arabian Nights" entertainment, one may read of spirits, good, bad and indifferent; of slaves, of lamps, of rings and amulets and the talismanic charms; and of the marvels and wonders they performed. But never did Afrit, Djinn, or Genie perform greater miracles than the good fairy Thrift does today. What? No fairies today? Who says so? More good fairies today than ever, for, if the far away Orient, in days gone by had its potent charms and spells, so, in this less romantic Occident have we also a spell whereby kings become slaves, and slaves become kings, and we call it money, in the form of our bank book.

Aladdin had his wonderful lamp, and lo! at the genie's word up sprang a palace, and the world looked different. No, it was not different. It was always that way, but you needed the lamp to see it as it actually was. Today your bank book is your Aladdin lamp. Oh yes, an even more wonderful lamp than Aladdin's, for the things your bank book bring you are real and material. They last.

A very meager portion of your earnings placed regularly in the New Windsor State Bank, will, in time, give you this wonderful magic. You will feel different; act different, and be different, for with thrift and savings come confidence and self-respect and the ability to take advantage of Miss Opportunity when she knocks. And the New Windsor State Bank will lend you every possible assistance to do so.

Walter Bowman is manager of the Keymar plant.

Land Where Rain Comes as Infrequent Visitor

Up beyond Mount Margaret, in western Australia, is the world's worst desert. On an average it rains once in seven years, but at the time of writing there has been no rain for eight years. Here in England the papers are full of lament because of a sixty days' drought, but think of 3,000 days without a drop of rain!

You would not believe that anything in the way of vegetation could exist in such a country, yet there is plenty of scrub. A horrible plant, well named "spinifex," for it is all sharp spines. There is also the mulga tree, which—so a gold digger assured the writer—sends its roots down 100 feet into the soil to find water.

Rabbits do not actually live in this desert, but they do on its edges, and there—believe it or not, yet it is true—they have learned to climb trees so as to graze on the leaves when there is no grass.

Most of Australia is subject to severe drought, and it is a curious thing that after a severe drought in New South Wales springs break out in the sun-baked beds of dry rivers.—London Answers.

Sexual Labor Division That May Have Defects

"Men may be satisfied with their own superiority, but machines are not. They prefer girls." Thus spoke Sir Herbert Austin to a London (England) audience in the course of an address wherein it was lightly suggested that the ultimate division of labor might present the spectacle of more and more men making machines while more and more women were engaged to work them. The Manchester Guardian remarks that in some ways this suggests an arrangement as convenient as the one mentioned in the nursery rhyme—Jack Sprat can make the machines while Mrs. Jack Sprat works and watches them, and between them the industrial platter will be kept clean and polished. But there is a more unfortunate side to reflections of this kind as applied to the modern world—what sort of labor will be left for man when he has made all the machines which are required for women to work?

French Forests Sacrificed

There is only one tree in the Versailles forest which was there when Louis XVI was alive, according to a Frenchman who has spent much time investigating the matter.

"While first consul of France, Napoleon I decided that wood, and lots of it, was needed for the famous expedition across the English channel, later abandoned," he says. "Napoleon declared therefore, that all the forests of France should give of their best. From one end to the other, the Versailles forest was cut down and the trees shipped to Boulogne for transformation into rafts and convoys."

"Only one tree escaped. This is a giant oak which towers above the rest of the forest in the Allée Saint-Cyr."

Castle's Many Staircases

A castle which suggests the romance and magic of the age when knight-hood was in flower should stand boldly on the summit of a precipitous rock or hide mysteriously among the shadows of a mighty forest. Chambord, near Blois, for this reason, is one of the most romantic of the French chateaux on the Loire. It is surrounded by mossy walls 24 miles around and its forest has nearly 3,000 acres. The dozens of pinnacles, lanterns and towers are visible for miles—looking on the dim horizon like a misty oriental city. The grand circular stairway which winds upward in two directions at once is the glory of its interior, but there are 64 staircases in all.

Ginseng in America

Wild ginseng thrives in mountain regions from Minnesota to Maine, and southward to the Gulf coast. High prices paid for the roots led enterprising Americans to establish farms. Some growers have profited from ginseng cultivation, but small fortunes also have been lost. It takes from six to seven years of expert care to develop a mature root.

Some domestic ginseng farms have been established in the woods where the wild roots thrive. Others have been established in clearings, but in these cases the farms are roofed so that only one-fourth of the day's sunshine will strike the plants.

Water Shrew Built Right

The water shrew, a tiny mouse-like mammal measuring only five feet from the tip of its nose to the end of its two-inch tail, is well adapted to a life on or near the water. Its coat is a veritable diving suit; its ears are equipped with valves that close automatically when it goes under the surface; and apparently it can see under water where it feeds on water insects much better than it can on land. It is capable of swimming across a river 50 yards wide with ease, though such a trip may be fraught with peril.

SHUT OFF SALE OF GUNS TO GANGSTERS

Thompson Arm to Be Confined to Military Use.

Washington.—Taught a lesson by the hundreds of gangster killings in the past six years, lawmakers throughout the country are considering ways and means of removing sub-machine guns from the underworld.

The first move in this direction has been taken by the single concern manufacturing the gun. Sale of the weapon has been forbidden except for military purposes.

But the damage has been done. The gangsters have the gun—hundreds of them—and only time and unrelenting vigilance on the part of police officers will serve to clean this potential source of sudden death from the haunts of the lawbreakers.

Brig. Gen. John T. Thompson is horrified at the use to which his invention has been put. Placed on the market in 1921, the guns almost immediately began to reach the underworld. More and more of the guns were diverted from the legitimate trade channels into this quarter, as the gangsters began to realize that here was a gun vastly superior to the automatic pistol and other old weapons.

For ten years there was no supervision over the sale of the guns.

When occasion arose, as it usually did after a gangland killing, of checking the ownership of a gun the quest always ended at the dealer who sold it. In most cases fictitious names were given by persons who bought the guns.

Fake Concern Bought Guns.

Not all of the guns, however, were acquired by gangsters through purchase from dealers. Thompson sub-machine guns have had a habit of disappearing from the hands of the police, bank and industrial guards, and other legitimate possessors and turning up with gangsters behind them. That is why the manufacturers have stopped selling to such persons.

In one case a fake company was organized specifically by gangland to obtain the guns in carload lots. It operated for several months before authorities discovered what was going on.

The gangsters obtained the guns "by hook or by crook." If one state made rigid regulations for the sale of all guns—as a number have in the past few years—the gangsters motored to an adjoining state, bought all they wanted there, and smuggled them across the border.

One of the first incidents calling attention to the use to which Thompson's invention was being placed was a mail truck robbery in Elizabeth, N. J., in October, 1923. Eight gangsters, armed with sub-machine guns, drove up to a mail truck and, without warning, turned one gun full on the truck. With another they laid a protective barrage across the street intersection, driving the populace to cover.

The guards in the truck didn't have a chance. One was killed, and three fell wounded. The bandits fled, abandoning one gun as they departed with about $100,000 of Uncle Sam's money which they obtained from the truck.

In the same month—in Chicago—came the Hymle Weiss murder. A gang leader and foe of Al Capone, he was shot down on the steps of a cathedral where he had taken refuge. The killers fired from an upper window of an apartment across the street, and Weiss fell dead with 12 slugs in his body.

Gun Called "Lawn Mower."

In such ways has the Thompson sub-machine gun been put to use. Gangsters call it a "lawn mower," an apt name.

After the Weiss killing there followed a string of machine gun murders and holdups too numerous to mention. The "tigers" were biting in the underworld jungle. There is every evidence that such weapons were and are an essential part of every efficient gangster's equipment.

The infamous St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago, when seven of "Bugs" Moran's gang were lined up against a wall and "mowed" down, brought to light many more facts concerning the machine-gun warfare among the cliques of the underworld.

A twenty-three-year-old girl, cruising on a pleasure yacht at Waukegan, Ill., a short time ago was shot when a machine gun sputtered from the shore, sending her to the deck and imperiling the lives of 19 other persons.

No one knows who did it. No one knows why. It was just another "tiger" loose in the jungle of the underworld.

67 "Betties" Fail in Claims to $2,000 Estate

Detroit, Mich.—Because none of the 67 "Betties" who claimed the estate left by Thomas F. Sheehan could prove their claims, the estate, amounting to $2,000, went to Mary Margaret Gilmer, a distant relative living at Martin's Ferry, Ohio. The Ohio girl, a seventeen-year-old orphan, had never even heard of Sheehan, who left a note, on his death, bequeathing his money to "Betty."

Federal Prisoners Farm 900 Acre Tract of Land

Lewisburg, Pa.—Two carloads of farming machinery arrived at the new northeastern federal penitentiary for use on the 900-acre farming tract connected with the governmental penal reservation. The machinery included tractors, plows, and other equipment.

STEWARDSHIP OF MONEY

Deuteronomy 8:7-18; I Corinthians 16:1-4; II Corinthians 8:1-15; II Corinthians 9:1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.—Luke 12:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing God's Gifts.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Use Money.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Use of Money.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian's Use of Money.

I. Wealth Is from God (Deut. 8:7-18).

What we possess is God's gift.

1. The natural resources from which wealth is gained were prepared by God (vv. 7-17). This is true whether it be the fertile soil which produces our products, or the minerals, which are hidden away in the earth.

2. Ability to get wealth is from God (v. 18). The resources hidden away are valueless until seized upon and changed into usable commodities by man. The failure to recognize divine ownership of ourselves and possessions has wrecked the world. The sure way back to prosperity is to give recognition to God.

3. Obligation of Regular and Orderly Giving (I Cor. 16:1-4).

1. Everybody should give (v. 2). "Let every one of you lay by him in store." Giving of one's means should be engaged in by every believer. It is a grace which reacts to the benefit of the giver.

2. Giving should be systematic—every week (v. 2). The giving of small gifts weekly is easier than of larger gifts at less frequent intervals.

3. There should be proportionate giving (v. 2). "As God has prospered him." No one is obliged to give that which he does not have.

4. The impelling motive (v. 2). "The first day of the week." The first day of the week is designated because it is the day memorializing the resurrection of Christ. The reality of Christ's resurrection is the dynamic for Christian giving.

5. Examples of True Christian Giving (II Cor. 8:1-5).

The liberality of the Macedonian churches exhibits practically every grand principle and motive which enters into the giving which has God's sanction.

1. The source of true giving (v. 1). This is said to be the grace of God, by which is meant that the disposition to give freely of our money has been created by the Holy Spirit.

2. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2). Their limited means did not cause them to stint in their giving.

3. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3). God's gifts are reckoned by the degree of willingness, not by the amount given.

4. They were insistent upon being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4). Christians ought to be taught that to share in the work of the Lord by giving money is their high privilege.

5. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5). The only right method of raising money for the Lord is first to induce men and women to give their lives to the Lord, and then to give their possessions.

6. Emulation in Giving Urged (II Cor. 8:6-15).

Moved by the generosity of the Macedonian churches, Paul desired Titus to commend to the Christians the same grace.

1. Not as a command (v. 8). Giving should be spontaneous.

2. As a proof of the sincerity of our love (v. 8).

3. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7). The Corinthian church abounded in spiritual gifts such as faith, knowledge, and utterance, but the grace of liberality was needed for the harmony of their lives. The stingy man is not symmetrical in character.

4. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9). Christ's example of self-denial and sacrifice is the supreme example of love.

5. The true principle of acceptable giving is a willing mind (v. 1-12). God does not estimate the value of a gift on the ground of its intrinsic worth, but the underlying motive prompting it.

6. Because of a common equality (vv. 13-15). Every Christian should give something. The law governing the gift is his ability.

7. Inducements to Give (II Cor. 9:6-7).

1. The volume of reaping is based upon the sowing (v. 6).

2. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7).

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Hate kills everything that it touches.

In every sea of trouble Christ calms the waves.

The whole of human life is of interest to Christ.

God's great purpose in wanting men to give to him is that he may be enabled to give more abundantly to them.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS.

Miss Sadie Anders and brother, Luther, visited relatives in Lebanon, Pa., on Sunday.

Mrs. Laura Devilbiss returned home, after spending a week with Mrs. Alma Newcomer and friends.

Mrs. Norville P. Shoemaker has been quite ill since Monday night, with an attack resembling appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Eckard and daughter, spent Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. Bassett Shoemaker and family, at Middleburg.

Mrs. Claudius H. Long, who had been at Frederick Hospital, under treatment, is now at Dr. Riggs' Sanitarium, at Ijamsville, Frederick Co. Last reports are that she is considerably improved.

Miss Beulah Englar, who came home, on Monday morning, to help wait on her mother, who had a return of her illness last Saturday morning, will leave for her school, on Sunday, her mother having improved.

The first coat of Valite has been laid to Taneytown, on the State road, and the second and final coat will be finished about next Tuesday. The work on the Bridgeport end of the road will likely not be finished until about Christmas.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Dorn during the past week were: Mrs. Clara Buhrman and Miss Ada Favorite, of Thurmont; Mrs. Earnest Ritter, Keyville; Mrs. Leslie Fox, Rocky Ridge and Mr. and Mrs. John Forrest, Keymar.

The November meeting of the Taneytown Chamber of Commerce will be held on Monday the 28th, at 7:30 P. M. Special business, which includes the election of officers, makes this meeting a very important one. Every member is urged to be present.

Mrs. G. Ray Wettling and son, Charles Robert, of Fairport, New York, returned to their home on Sunday, after spending several weeks with relatives and friends in and near town. Mr. Wettling spent the weekend here, coming by auto to return with his family.

A check for $25.00 one of the forty-five grand prizes offered in the September-October Frigidaire Radio Contest, was received this week by James S. Eisman, Taneytown. Prizes were awarded from 116,000 entries submitted. Mr. Eisman was the sixteenth of the forty-five contestants.

The three new homes under construction on East Baltimore Street, are progressing rapidly. That Taneytown has this building growth on hand at this season of the year, and considering the times, is distinctly to the credit of the town as a home town, lacking large manufacturing industries.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith, of near town, entertained to dinner on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Preston Smith, daughters, Velma, Grace and Gladys; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hawk, sons, Earl and Kenneth; Mr. and Mrs. Roland Reaver, sons, Roy and Roland Junior; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn N. Hawk, and Mrs. Emma J. Smith, all of near town.

The Protestant Churches of Taneytown will unite as usual in a union service on Thanksgiving Day. Service will be held in the Reformed Church, Thursday morning, November 24, at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. Glenn Oldaker, singing evangelist, will sing and the sermon will be delivered by Rev. I. M. Fridinger, pastor of the United Brethren Church.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. West and Mr. and Mrs. John N. Burmeister, Brooklyn, Md., spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reinman, of near town. Other callers during the day were: Mr. and Mrs. Milton Reinman, York, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Frook, sons, Roland and Gay, and daughter, Freda; Walter Barnhart and Herman Miller, of Otter Dale; Miss Helen Eckard and Norman Walker, of Stumptown.

WET GOODS READY.

It is apparently well founded report that there are approximately 10,000,000 gallons of whiskey, about 1,000,000 gallons of brandy, and near 20,000,000 gallons of wines, in storage in warehouses in the United States. Much of the whiskey is represented as having been distilled for medical purposes. There is also said to be some 25,000,000 barrels of unalcoholized beer in waiting to be released. If these figures be near correct, it would seem that the farmers have not had the price of grain increased because of its manufacture.
