Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

This column is not for use in advertising any money-making program, fair, supper, party or sale; except for non-denominational charities or Fire Company or Public Library support.

Churches, Lodges, Societies, Schools, etc., are requested to use our Special Notice Department for money-making events.

The Senior Luther League of the Taneytown Lutheran Church will pay their annual visit to the County Home on Sunday afternoon.

The store of the Potomac Edison Co., in Taneytown, has been closed, likely because the amount of business transacted did not justify the expense.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Stailey, Fairview Ave., on Wednesday, were: Mr. and Mrs. McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Price, of Washington, D. C.

The fixing of a penalty on "hoarders" of money, would not place The Record Office in any danger. There is almost always something for everybody to be thankful for.

The rain on Tuesday represented a fall of slightly over an inch, which, with the rain of January 26 has completely saturated the ground, and added to the bad condition of our by-roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Currans are at the home of their daughter, Mrs. George R. Baumgardner. Mr. Currans is reported to be quite ill, and is under the care of a grand-daughter, who is a nurse.

Robert Stott and daughter, Peggy, of Hagerstown, spent Sunday with his mother and aunt, Mrs. Margaret Stott and Miss Anna Galt. Mrs. Edith Mish and son, Galt, of Washington, D. C., spent last Tuesday at the same place.

The Record is indebted to James E. Eismen for the cuts representing inauguration scenes, as they appear in this issue. Mr. Eismen had a busy day, on the Fourth, as he secured a fine moving picture film of the entire parade.

The Jefferson Male Chorus, Jefferson, Pa., will render a program at Baust Reformed Church, near Westminster, on this Sunday evening, at 7:30. The chorus will be accompanied by their pastor, the Rev. Dr. Paul Yoder. The public is invited.

Due to the illness of Mr. George Mather, Westminster, the illustrated lecture "My Father's World," was not given on Wednesday night, but will be given on next Wednesday night, March 15, at 7:30 in the Sunday School room of the Lutheran Church.

Three children, Harry, Billy and John Smeltzer, sons of John and Anna Smeltzer, of Silver Springs, were lost in the inaugural parade, with several others, but were safely returned to their parents. Mrs. Smeltzer will be remembered as Miss Anna Crapster, formerly of Taneytown.

Among those who attended the inauguration from town last Saturday, were: Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Mehning, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mehning and children; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Baumgardner and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Harner, Mrs. Charles Boston and Walter Crapster and son, Basil.

Clyde Weikert, brother of Mrs. Harry B. Miller, committed suicide by hanging, last Saturday, in his room at the Gordon Hotel, Washington. He left a note saying he "couldn't stand it any longer," evidently referring to financial troubles. His sister, Mrs. Miller, lives in Hagerstown.

Merle S. Ohler, of Ohler's Chevrolet Sales, attended the annual Chevrolet business meeting on Wednesday of this week, at the Washington auditorium, Washington, D. C., and the banquet at the Mayflower Hotel. The dealers were returned to the auditorium where a pre-showing of the new Chevrolet Standard Six car was given. See add in this issue. Mrs. Ohler accompanied him and spent the day with Mrs. Edwin Dowling.

WHERE IS THE MONEY?

No One has Replied to the Question
Everybody is Asking.

The Record has had no replies to its invitation last week for information as to—Where is the Money? One man said he could tell us all about it, but has not yet "come across" with the answer. Others who ought to know, have not responded; but, we extend the invitation for another week, by which time quite a number will likely tell us about it.

Some of our readers have no doubt read an article in September American Magazine, entitled, "Where did all the Money go?" The preface said, "Here is an answer everyone can understand, to a question everyone is asking." We plead guilty to not being in the "everyone can understand" class, but we did get a little more light on the subject.

An illustration was given of a man having built a $40,000 house on a $10,000 lot. The owner paid the builder $5,000, in cash; raised $15,000 on a first mortgage, then $20,000 on a second mortgage; and the builder then took a lien for the remaining $10,000.

Then the depression set in. The owner couldn't pay, and the holder of the second mortgage decided that he would incur further loss if he bid on the house and paid the first mortgage and the lien. The lien holder hung on and bid in the property at $25,000 and still has it, the outlook being that he will not get more than $15,000 or $20,000 for it.

This case represents how a great deal of money has been lost, but it does not answer the question—Where is the money—now? By generalizing a bit, we must understand that money is in itself worth very little. If it is gold, silver or copper, it is worth only the bullion value of the metals; if it is paper, it is worth about 10 cents per 100 pounds. It is the stamp of the government, and its promise to pay, that makes it of value.

To be of actual value, it must be invested, or exchanged—invested with the hope of making profit, or exchanged for the real or fancied needs of life. The safest investments appear to be government bonds and well placed first mortgages; and when we get far away from these, we become speculators—gamblers with chance, and never quite know whether we are winning or losing.

All of this does not answer the question—Where is the Money? Tell us where you think it is? The chance will be open next week!

HOME-MAKERS' CLUB.

The Taneytown Home-makers' Club held their monthly meeting March 2, in Firemen's Building. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Clarence Nail, with the songs Santa Lucia and Bells of St. Mary, with Mrs. Rein Motter as pianist. After roll-call, reading of minutes by Sec. Mrs. Mervin Conover. The treasurer, Mrs. Norman Baumgardner, read a letter from the Sec. of Welfare Work of the County. The treasurer was authorized to send $10.00 for use in the work.

New members added this year to the Club, were: Mrs. Charles Wantz and Mrs. A. J. Feaser. A salesman then demonstrated the new Mason jar top, for the Crown Cork & Seal Co., Baltimore, which was very beneficial. Miss Jean Frailey then rendered a piano solo, which was enjoyed by the club.

Mrs. Cleve LeGore then demonstrated the making of apples, nut and raisin salad, with whipped cream; Mrs. Joseph Elliot, the making of graham crackers, pies; Mrs. Walter Bower, the making of chicken patties, which were all very delicious. Mrs. Nail told how to cold pack beef; Miss Belva Koons, chicken and rabbits.

PLAY AT BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

The next number of the lyceum course will be given in the Blue Ridge College auditorium, on Monday, March 13, at 8:00 o'clock. This number will consist of the play, "Tommy," and comes highly recommended.

"Tommy" is from the pens of Howard Lindsay and Bert Robinson. It was sent to Chicago prior to its New York premiere, and became a success over night. Then it reached the Eltinge Theatre in New York and remained for an entire year, hailed by audiences and critics alike as the greatest success of the season.

"Tommy" is essentially a romance of young people. It is a page from everyday American life. It tells a human understandable story, touched with the glory of youth, and is as indescribably laughable and joyous as it is clean and wholesome. The play deals with Tommy, Marie Thurber, family, and Bernard—to say nothing of Uncle Dave, who finally engineers the combination out of the manifold difficulties and back to the road of happiness. The scene where Tommy appears at the Thurber household, rather the worse for wear, is one of the most screamingly funny moments that has ever been written in a play. Parents who have either marriageable sons or daughters, and young people who are thinking of marriage, will have two hours of particularly delightful entertainment when "Tommy" comes to town. Remember the date, March 13.

The Bank Situation

The Bank holiday ordered by Governor Ritchie two weeks ago, that was expected to end within a few days, has been renewed from time to time with the belief that with the passage of protective legislation by the General Assembly, the banks would at once be permitted to open.

Such laws have been passed in Maryland, as well as in all other states; but the President and Congress have entered into the situation in order to bring about greater uniformity in bank legislation throughout the whole country. The administration's bill was rushed through both Senate and House, on Thursday, the disposition being to place absolute trust in the President.

The purpose of the bill is not only to protect banks against panicky withdrawal of funds, but depositors as well, and bring about a degree of safety that has not heretofore existed.

Immediately after the passage of the bill, the President issued a proclamation continuing the holiday "indefinitely" which is hoped to be only a few days, in order to give the Treasury Department time to classify the banks.

In the meantime, let everybody understand that this is largely a vacation for repairs. Within the past three years many banks have failed because they were defenseless against scares and consequent "runs" on the part of depositors who withdrew their funds, fearing their loss if left in the banks.

CARROLL COUNTY GRANGE.

Favors Plan for Paying Taxes Twice a Year.

Resolutions asking the Carroll county representatives to the Legislature to support the proposed plan of paying county and state taxes semi-annually were adopted at the meeting of the Carroll Pomona Grange held in Westminster on Saturday. The meeting was presided over by Pomona Master J. Herbert Snyder and was attended by members of various subordinate Granges of Carroll county.

Much time was devoted to the discussion of the proposed tax program now before the Legislature. The Grange again reiterated its stand for economy in government and the lifting of some of the tax burden from real estate and personal property. Resolutions asking the Carroll County Commissioners to provide sufficient sums to keep the Agricultural Extension Service in the county intact were also adopted.

Edward F. Holter, Frederick county, newly-elected State Grange organizer, addressed the meeting. He also installed the officers who will serve for the next two years. They are as follows: Master, John S. Bushey; Overseer, Thomas Slingluff; Lecturer, George B. John; Steward, Clayton J. Sauble; Assistant Steward, Albin Duvall; Chaplin, Miss Pauline Fuss; Treasurer, J. C. McKinney; Secretary, J. Herbert Snyder; Gatekeeper, William Snyder; Ceres, Mrs. John Bushey; Pomona, Mrs. Mary Grogg; Flora, Mrs. John Stevenson; Lady Assistant Steward, Mrs. Frank Metcalfe.

Pomona Master Bushey appointed the following standing committees: Executive: George A. Leister, E. A. Shoemaker, John Grogg, J. Herbert Snyder; Legislative: Thomas Slingluff, E. A. Shoemaker, M. E. Wash, J. Herbert Snyder, J. W. Fuss, Clayton J. Sauble. Program of Work: John S. Bushey, Thomas Slingluff, George B. John, L. C. Burns, Miss Agnes Slindoe, Fifth Degree; Henry R. Fuss, J. Harry Koller, Mrs. C. W. Duvall. Auditing: Mahlon Grimm, Ervin Kreitzer, Mrs. John Stevenson. Publicity: J. Herbert Snyder, Miss Mattie Shoemaker, Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, Mrs. Herbert Frock, L. C. Burns.

TANEYTOWN SCHOOL NEWS.

The Freshman Social Science class had charge of the assembly program on Feb. 23. Original sketches and plays were given concerning subjects which had been studied during the year. The program was as follows: Song by the School, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," two songs by the Freshman class, "Who Am I?" Howard Welty; Play, "My Bonnie;" Reading, "Fire Hazards," Mildred Simpson; talk, "Fire Insurance," Virginia Donelson; "What to do in case of Fire," Mary Formwalt; song by the Freshmen; talk on "The Correct use of the Telephone," Mildred Baker; skit, "Telephone Conversations," Song by the School, "Old Folks at Home," "My Trip to Chicago," Alice Riffle; Announcements by Mr. Wooden.

The members of the Junior-Senior Health Education classes took part in the Gorgas Essay Contest. The subject was "The Problem of the Mosquito and Other Insect Life in Relation to Sanitation, Health and Industry." This contest is nation-wide; each high school that participates must send in the best manuscript in that high school. These winning papers will then be judged and Nation and State winner determined. A committee of judges will judge the State winners and determine the winners of the National awards.

The winning essay in the Taneytown High School was written by Henry Reindollar. Honorable mention is given to Catherine Hess, Mary Edwards and Kenneth Baumgardner.

The first prize National is $500 in cash with a $200 travel allowance to Washington, D. C., to receive the award. Second prize, $150 in cash. Third prize, $50 in cash. Fourth award, honorable mention. Fifth award, honorable mention.

A High School prize will be given to each high school participating. This prize is a Gorgas medallion.

Mr. M. S. H. Unger, County Superintendent of Carroll, visited our school on Monday. He seemed greatly pleased with the progress that the pupils are making.

If the depression continues during the baseball season, the question arises—How can even the "magnates" continue to pay heavy hitters and brilliant fielders salaries that run away up into five figures for the season?

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

A Typical Inaugural, An Address of Wide Interest.

The inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President of the United States, passed off last Saturday without a hitch or unpleasant feature of any kind; and was in every respect practically a reproduction of past like events, made up of parades of Military, Naval, Marine, State Guard, Political Club units, and with numerous bands and other features that make up colorful and impressive demonstration, filling practically the entire day, ending with the inaugural ball.

The President's address, that was looked for with the greatest of interest, was full of hopeful sentences. It has been pretty generally received as having been about all that could be said by way of hope for the future, and it seemed to foreshadow early and energetic movements and the assurance of courage on his part, as he said "to wage a war against the emergency," intimating that if Congress will not so act, then he will ask broad Executive power to meet the situation.

He said that "while dark realities of the moment" prevail, "primarily, this is because the rulers of the exchange of mankind's goods have failed through their own stubbornness and their own incompetence, have admitted their failure, and abdicated." "They have no vision, and when there is no vision the people perish."

"I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend the measures that a stricken nation in the midst of a stricken world may require. These measures, or such other measures as the Congress may build out of its experience and wisdom, I shall seek, within my Constitutional authority, to bring to speedy adoption."

We do not distrust the future of essential democracy. The people of the United States have not failed. In their need they have registered a mandate that they want direct, vigorous action. They have asked for discipline and direction under leadership. They have made me the present instrument of their wishes. In the spirit of the gift I take it."

WHAT BANKS CAN DO.

Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, has issued regulations under which banks may exercise the following acts;

1. Handle drafts or other documents in connection with shipment, transportation or delivery of food or feed products.

2. Accept payments on account of or in settlement of obligations due by their customers.

3. Make change.

4. Allow customers free access to safety deposit boxes.

5. Cash checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States, on the condition that no gold or gold certificates be paid out.

6. Return without restriction all cash, checks and other items delivered for deposit or collection after the last closing of business hours and which have not been entered on the banks' books.

7. Pay out without restriction new deposits made in special "trust-fund accounts" on the condition that no gold shall be paid out.

8. Complete settlement for checks charged to accounts on or before March 4, provided the completion does not involve payment of money or currency.

9. Return to customers documents and securities held for safekeeping.

10. Exercise usual banking functions to provide for absolutely necessary needs of communities for food, medicine, relief of distress, pay rolls and expenditures to maintain employment.

11. Deposit collateral in the United States to secure advances to branches in foreign countries.

12. Clearing house associations conditionally authorized to issue certificates against sound assets of banking institutions.

13. Banks authorized to continue to act as trustee, executor, administrator and other estate functions, provided no currency or coin is paid out.

THE "CAR" AND DEPRESSION.

The Community Reporter, Mount Airy, in its last week's issue, carried the following editorial;

"One thing that convinces us that the depression is as much fancied as real, is the number of automobiles seen on the highways, and especially during the week ends. To watch this endless stream of cars on Sunday, it would lead one to believe that there is not a single car locked in the garage because its owner does not have the money to buy gas.

One can go into most any town the country over and there seems to be more cars now than ever. True, some owners are not buying new models each year as has been their custom, but are driving the old car a little longer. The fact remains, however, these old cars are not locked up in the garage, and the owners are spending money almost daily for gas with no thought of depression."

The above reference to "cars" being much in evidence, is true beyond question, but this does not convince us that "the depression is as much fancied as real." The Record is carrying many hundreds of dollars in accounts due, that have nothing whatever to do with whether our debtors operate cars, or not. Besides, it is just possible that "gas" is bought on time, too.

LEGISLATIVE ACTS NOW UNDER WAY.

Some Measures that Apply only to Carroll County.

In the mix-up of things last week, we missed noting the following bills introduced by the Carroll County delegates;

By Carroll County Delegation—To decrease salary of Carroll County State's Attorney. Carroll County Delegation.

By Carroll County Delegation—Fixing salary of judges of Orphans' Court of several counties as salary of similar judges in Carroll County. Carroll County Delegation.

By Delegate Flanagan—To direct Commissioner of Motor Vehicles to refuse to issue any marker, certificate of registration or title for any motor vehicle whose owner resides within corporate limits of Westminster unless all municipal taxes due in arrears thereon have been paid. Ways and Means.

S. B.—Providing that Board of Election Supervisors of Carroll County be paid in years in which there are elections. Favorable report adopted.

Early last Saturday morning the House followed the action of the Senate in approving the new bank bill, and it was signed by the Governor a few hours later. There were a few minor amendments.

A bill was introduced in the Senate, Monday night to license book-making in Baltimore, and to levy a tax of one percent on every dollar bet through these agencies. It would represent a source of revenue for the city government, which would receive 75 percent of the proceeds, and the counties the remainder.

A bill was introduced in the House that would prevent the State Treasurer from holding any office in any banking institution, and that no person having held the office four years shall be re-elected.

The present State Treasurer, John M. Dennis, is president of the Union Trust Company, of Baltimore, and is a director in a number of other financial institutions, and has been elected six times to the office of State Treasurer.

Another resolution was presented calling on the State Bank Commissioner to furnish the General Assembly with the names of all corporations which withdraw $10,000 or more from banks within ten days before the declaration of the banking holiday, and the names of all officials who withdraw $1000, or more during the same period. This resolution was presented in view of the fact that there is belief held by many that certain persons were forewarned that closure was impending, and that the publication of names would allay suspicion.

The salaries of officials in several additional Counties in the state would be reduced through bills presented. The bill to decrease the salary of the States Attorney in Carroll County, was passed.

Mr. Metzgerott, (Rep.) introduced a bill in the House to abolish the primary system, and to return to the party convention system. His argument was that it was very expensive, and had failed in every count for it.

A fight seems impending in the Senate against roads being built by the State Roads Commission with its own force, but that all road work should be awarded to contractors—that no part of the work should be done by labor employed by the Commission, as the House bill provides.

The bill to limit the pay of Supervisors of Election in Carroll County, to the years in which elections are held, has passed the Senate and second reading in the House.

TOURNAMENTS.

Last week, two lady visitors from Baltimore came to our office for information concerning old-time tournaments that were once summer sports in this county. We were unable to comply. Perhaps there may still be "knights" who could tell where they were mostly held, or who have detailed information concerning them?

Random Thoughts

THE TRANSGRESSOR.

Many who violate our laws, even though knowingly and perversely, do sometimes have a background for their acts that is not entirely their own making. This does not actually justify their wrong-doing, but it does seem to call for leniency on the part of the strong arm of the law—through the giving of light sentences, and another chance.

In these times, when making a living—perhaps for a family—is almost impossible, the temptation is strong to overstep the bounds of honesty and right living. Those who live in comparative plenty, do not always appreciate this for they are not beset with the same temptation.

Justice, tempered with mercy, is therefore often worthy of trial, after due discrimination. Of course, wrong is wrong, no matter what the excuse for it, and the public must be protected against it; and in these days, very few can plead ignorance, either of laws or of right actions, which makes voluntary law violation the harder to excuse, no matter what plea of justification is made for it.

FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1933.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

President Roosevelt enters upon his fourth year's term with the best wishes, and sincerest hopes of all, for a successful administration, which can only be brought about by a revival of business and prosperity to all classes throughout the country.

Stronger than mere party loyalty, or partisan ties, is the universal desire for good times, fair general living conditions, and opportunity to get ahead in the matter of this world's goods. At bottom, the majority of workers care but little who is President, or of what party he is a member.

At the recent election that elevated Mr. Roosevelt to the presidency, the people did not actually vote for him. They voted for a "change" with the hope that in some way, or somehow, prosperity might follow. A hundred or more persons in the Democratic party would have been as successful as was the man voted for.

Just how the psychology of the "change" may affect conditions in this country—or the whole world—remains to be seen. It may help some, or a great deal, or not at all. Conditions may gradually right themselves, without the help of president or party, and four years is a good long time in which present conditions may be materially bettered.

President Roosevelt has this long period before him, in which either to personally contribute to better times, or to be the beneficiary of them without much real aid on his part; and, so far as the country is concerned, it will not care greatly from which source it arrives. The main thing desired, is the arrival.

This will be aided to a considerable extent through state legislation in cutting down public expenditures and in the reduction of taxes. The greater enforcement of economy on the part of individuals will help. The tardiness of Congress in reducing National expenditures, legislation for which has already been passed, or is in process of passing, will help greatly more. So, even before the inauguration of President Roosevelt, numerous radical measures for relief have been started that will help the present National administration.

THE BANK HOLIDAYS.

If the bank holidays—decreed mainly that the states should enact legislation that will better prevent banks from being the victims of ill-considered "runs"—accomplish the desired end the inconvenience suffered from the lack of banking facilities for days and weeks, will be fully justified.

Many bank depositors are perfectly willing to use the banks not only as places at which to make investments, or to make use of for safety, but have little thought about banking, other than this. Actually, there is a friendly relation that should exist between the two—for their interests are largely in common—and both should have reasonable protection by law.

The laws now being formed appear to be for this purpose. Banks should be protected against mere "scare," for when this is done all of the depositors are protected. It should not be possible for a few depositors who are close to the bank to profit at the expense of other depositors far away from the bank; and this illustrates the cause for bank "runs"—the near-bys want to get their first.

The new laws, therefore may be said to fill a long needed want, and at the same time have a steadying effect on all depositors, yet cause no real inconvenience, or hardship, to fall on either or any class. As a matter of fact, the banks must always be on the alert that they be not "taken in" by some of their patrons.

SELF TAXATION.

General complaint is heard that taxes are too high, and the complaint is well founded. Carrying on "as usual" sounds like a brave cry, but there are too many "carrying on" at the expense of somebody else, and take but little account of the what taxes may be, just so they "get theirs."

Fortunately, as we think, public sentiment is demanding retrenchment on the part of the spenders, and there should be no favorites exempted from the rule, no matter what their pleas or arguments may be. The truth is, those who would willingly profit at the expense of others less able to bear the burdens of depression than they, are mere selfish beneficiaries.

But, let us not think too strongly of taxes growing out of the operation of governments. Many individuals are taxing themselves, unwisely. There are many unnecessary, that in these days should be cut out, for thriftless spending is voluntary taxation.

We have no right, either, to expect others to pay for plans that we have made for the future of ourselves or families. Because we want something now, or a few years from now, is no good reason why we should have our wishes granted. Always, we should consider those who are expected to pay for our benefits.

MR. HOOVER, THE CITIZEN.

Mr. Hoover should now be our leading care-free citizen. It is true that he made almost a single-handed fight for re-election, but this was largely the fighting quality that animates all good soldiers, who even by winning, do not win for themselves, but for principles and objects that they believe worth fighting for.

Hardly anybody will seriously argue that Mr. Hoover was on an individual honor fight; nor will anybody seriously argue that he was in pursuit of the president's salary; for the facts are that he is not in need of either.

At any rate, the fight for and with office, is now over, and he can take his own good time at resting-up, and getting rid of the burdens that he so long carried; and when he gets ready for a job again there will be plenty of them open to him, from the vantage point of which he can look back, and if desired, take a hand at criticizing those who criticized him, so liberally—and who are now out of this one particular job that they appeared to enjoy so much.

We do not know anything about the Hoover home at Palo Alto, California, but from our limited information it appears greatly to be desired above trying to be a miracle performer for the whole United States, and a considerable portion of the whole world; and it will now be his turn to comment on the "babies" that belong to others. In a more serious vein, one of the best newspapers that comes into our office has to say:

"President Hoover can carry with him into the retirement which awaits him after Saturday a sense of duty done unswervingly and unflinchingly. Upon few American Presidents have there come so many and such perplexing problems. He had his formula for meeting them, and to that formula he adhered with a pertinacity which could only attend deep conviction. A convinced individualist, he fought to the last to keep the Government out of the field of the charitable organizations, as well as out of that of business activity."

His method of meeting the problem of social distress was primarily aid given by charitably inclined individuals, and by municipalities and counties. Only when these sources of help were exhausted did the state appear as a benefactor, and it was obviously the President's view that the Federal Government should at no time be called upon to enter the field of almsgiving.

"The retiring President will take with him the respect of most of the people of the nation, and the affection of those who knew him best. Already the bitterness and rancor that attended the election are beginning to wane. People in numbers are coming to admit that they inflicted upon an individual dire resentment for conditions which are largely world-wide and which no individual could correct. Even the professional partisans are a little ashamed of the success of their effort to "smear Hoover."

Young, a model of manly vigor, equipped with a highly trained intellect, shaped by four years of such experience of governmental problems as seldom comes in time of peace to an executive, Mr. Hoover will be in retirement a useful counselor to the American nation. Should the call come to him to re-enter public life, there will be few in America better fitted to answer the summons."

HOME-GROWN MOTOR FUEL.

Promise of a new market for the American grain belt that will dispose of the surplus and raise farm prices to normal is given by the Iowa State College, which proposes a mixture of 10 percent ethyl alcohol with gasoline as a solution of the surplus problem. In the Iowa tests the alcohol mixture was used without any engine or carburetor change. The mixed fuel gave smoother engine performance, freedom from knock, greater acceleration, and at least equal mileage. Technically there is no reason why such a mixture is not entirely practical, in the opinion of the Iowa chemists and engineers.

The question involved is economic. Alcohol cannot compete with gasoline in price. It will be used in mixture with gasoline only if required by law. Such a mixture is required by law in a number of countries, partly as an oil conservation measure and partly as a farm relief measure.

Estimates based on the Iowa tests indicate that with corn at 60 cents a bushel, the mixture of 10 percent corn alcohol with gasoline would add about three cents a gallon to the retail price. That would put all gasoline on about the same price basis as ethyl gasoline is now. It would increase the public's motor fuel bill somewhat, but it would give the public a better product, as all motor fuel sold would have high anti-knock properties. The added expense to the public could also be lessened by making some compensating reduction in present gasoline taxes.

At first sight such a plan might seem like unloading the farmers' troubles on the oil producers. But the restored buying power of agriculture would probably increase rather than reduce the total consumption of gasoline. That increased buying power would of course be quickly felt in all lines of business, so that the benefits would accrue to labor and industry as well as to agriculture.

Often in the past a large new industry has led the way out of economic stagnation. Perhaps the production of alcohol for motor fuel may be such an industry. It would mean many new factories in the corn belt, the building and equipment of which would employ a large amount of labor and require large orders of building materials and copper and steel equipment. It is estimated that the erection of sufficient plant capacity to supply the alcohol needed for a 10 percent mixture would involve the expenditure of some $200,000,000.

These plants would furnish a market for about 650,000,000 bushels of grain a year. This would use all the annual surplus of grain produced in the United States, together with the grain now being used to produce surplus livestock. It would permit farmers to continue operating their farms at capacity, which appeals to them much more than reducing production.

The leading farm organizations are deeply interested in the possibilities of the alcohol fuel plan, and many business men are making an intensive study of it. Farmers of the corn belt are enthusiastic about it. Two bills have already been introduced in Congress dealing with this plan, and the Iowa Legislature is considering making such a mixture compulsory in Iowa without awaiting national action.

There is some question, of course, whether alcohol should be legislated into the motor fuel market, or whether it should not find its own way there as a result of its ability to render service to the motorist. Nevertheless it seems possible that the farm surplus problem may be solved by the simple method of finding a new market for the surplus.—Christian Science Monitor.

ONE REASON.

If the farmers of Maryland needed to be told that their taxes are disproportionate to their incomes that need has been met by the University of Maryland. That institution has compiled figures showing that in some instances more than half of the farmer's income goes for taxes. And to make that fact penetrating, as it were, it is expressed in terms of wheat, eggs and milk. In 1911, for instance, it took only forty-eight bushels of wheat to pay the average farm property tax bill in this State. By 1931 the levy had reached 195 bushels.

So says the University of Maryland and we have no doubt the facts are as stated. We hear no indignant denials rising from the rural sections. It must be true.

Why are the farmers' taxes so high?

The University of Maryland might have shed some light on that, too, by explaining that its maintenance constitutes one of the heaviest burdens that rests on the backs of the taxpayers. It might have pointed out that it is the University of Maryland that supports Mr. Curly Byrd with three pay checks when one might do. It is the University of Maryland that with a complete executive organization and faculty still must rely upon the Young Men's Christian Association at a cost of $1,200 a year to preserve order among the students.

But the appropriations for the University of Maryland are being examined rather carefully. Perhaps the farmers' taxes won't be so heavy from now on.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

LIQUOR WITHOUT SALOON.

Advocates of temperance are mistaken in opposing the return of the saloon if prohibition is modified, Ben. H. Spence, prominent Canadian temperance worker, writes in "The Christian Century," leading undenominational religious journal, warning that without the saloon liquor will debauch the home. He points out the effect of the system in Ontario, Canada, where there are no saloons and liquor is sold in government stations. Citing statistics, he asserts that "although barrooms are gone, liquor is being supplied and used in four out of every seven homes in Ontario and, allowing for sales to transients, an average of more than $100 was spent for liquor for every liquor-consuming home in the province."

"Women and children constitute three-fourths of the home-folk. They are not touched directly by the barroom. Home drinking, however, affects the entire family circle. The barroom or saloon was something outside the lives of future Canadians—the children in Canada's homes. They were not even admitted into its portals. Technically, it is still against the law to supply liquor to minors even in a home. But this is utterly impossible of enforcement and is generally disregarded. In the barroom there is some chance to enforce such a regulation. In a home, none. This example of law defiance and disregard is wholly bad. Its effect is even worse than the law-breaking of the rightly despised bootlegger."—Mandeville News Features.

WILL MISS THE RAILROAD.

The county commissioners of Chautauqua, Elk and Wilson counties (Kansas) have made protests against the Missouri Pacific abandoning their rail line between Fredonia and Peru.

The railroad was once an important branch line connecting two lines of the Missouri Pacific. But since the introduction of the automobile and the motor truck, the line has been losing money increasingly for the company. It serves but few communities that do not have other railroad connection.

Railroad officials claim that the total receipts for this stretch of road are right around $12,000 a year. The taxes on the line are over $18,000 a year and have been for some years. This tax money went largely for school purposes.

Now the three counties through which this road runs are waking up to the fact that taxes must be paid by other property when the railroads quit paying. It's life has become a vital matter with them for this reason as much as for the service it gives.

Other branch lines will be abandoned in other counties, and other counties will feel the pinch when railroad taxes are not paid in.

The rail lines have lost business to trucks and buses because they cannot stand the competition of unregulated carriers on the highways. There is a place for trucks and buses, but they ought to be regulated the same as the railroads are regulated.—From the Winfield (Kan.) Courier.

Tobacco Seed Used as Food

Animals can live and thrive on a diet of little else but tobacco seed. This was proved by the Connecticut agricultural experiment station experts, who declare that when tobacco seeds are fully ripe they are entirely lacking in nicotine and so nutritious in quality as to make a good food for mammals. The doctors base this statement on results obtained from experimenting with albino rats. It was found that these animals would grow to maturity and reproduce successfully if fed almost exclusively on ripe tobacco seeds. All that was added to this diet in the case of the animals used in the experiments were a small percentage of inorganic salts and a few drops of cod liver oil.

The Friendly Word

A Homely in London was being shown the sights, and was given lunches and dinners at the best hotels.

To his friend he said: "This is all very well, but what I want is something more homely—homely surroundings, simple food, and the friendly word."

He was taken to a quiet place in Kensington for high tea with egg and bacon.

"This is exactly what I want," he said to the waitress; "homely surroundings, simple food, but what about the friendly word?"

The waitress whispered in his ear, "Don't eat the egg."—Tit-Bits.

Chimney Swifts' Habits

Sometimes in the early spring, but more commonly in late summer, large flocks of chimney swifts have been observed to sweep in great circles about a favorite chimney, then form a conical cloud resembling a cyclone funnel and drop rapidly from the apex into the chimney to roost for the night. Chimneys of abandoned factories or public buildings constitute favorite resorts of this kind.

Cats Cannot See Any Fun in Gambol in Deep Snow

Four-footed little animals, such as dogs and cats, cannot be said to like deep snow, writes Charles E. Tracewell in the Washington Star.

The antics of the creatures, when confronted with this phenomenon, differ.

Dogs ordinarily plunge in as a sort of gambol, but most cats deeply resent the new experience.

It seems that no matter how often a cat has been out in the snow, over a number of years, it forgets each time that such a condition can exist.

The feline face takes on a look of indignation at the feel of the white wetness on the paws.

Nor is this so much a matter of general dislike of water; many cats do not fear water in any form, but rather enjoy playing with it, and even in it.

Most cats find snow distinctly unpleasant, probably because of the cold which accompanies the dampness. The combination is one they do not care for, as any living creature has a right to its preference.

A great many honest persons seem to think that because an animal cannot talk, and goes on four legs instead of two, it has no right to likes and dislikes.

Anyone who has studied the animals, however, even for a short time, and in a superficial way, knows that the so-called dumb brutes have no less instinctive likes and dislikes than human beings.

They have their pet notions, about things, just the same as we do. Both dogs and cats can be supremely stubborn, at times, when thwarted of their legitimate desires.

Dragon Fly Is Harmless; Does Not Carry Stinger

The dragon fly, or darned needle as it is commonly called, fortunately cannot live up to either of the superstitions which have been built up about it, says a writer in the Washington Star. It is supposed by children to be able to sew up the ears or to sting. The first belief is absurd on the face of it, but many adults believe it can sting. However, as it has no stinger, it cannot harm human beings in any way.

The dragon fly feeds on insects which it catches on the fly and holds securely with its strong biting jaws.

The dragon fly lays its eggs on still water and the larvae live in the water, feeding upon insects and tiny fish. When it arrives at maturity, the larvae crawls up on the bank, the shell breaks open and the adult fly emerges.

Watch as Compass

A watch keeping correct time makes a fairly accurate compass when the sun is shining. Allow the watch to lie flat with face up and the hour hand pointing as nearly as possible to the sun. A line running from the center of the dial to a point half way between the hour hand and the point indicating twelve o'clock will point due south in the northern hemisphere and due north in the southern hemisphere. For example, if it is three o'clock in the afternoon and the hour hand is pointed to the sun, a line from the center of dial to a point midway between XII and III will point due south in the northern hemisphere.

The DAIRY

RAISING LEVEL OF EACH COW'S YIELD

How Individual Production Has Been Increased.

By J. G. CASH, Assistant in Dairy Extension, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

The average annual production of 4,691 pounds of milk, or about 545 gallons, by Illinois cows can be built up to a more profitable level, but it takes more than a single year in which to do it. For instance, after three years or more in dairy herd improvement association work, 158 Illinois dairymen had so increased the efficiency of their herds that they were getting an average of $9.10 a year more profit above feed cost on each cow than were 82 dairymen who had been in the association work only one year. On the basis of 16 cows as the average size of association herds, this would give the dairymen who had been in the herd improvement association work three years or longer an advantage of $145 a year.

The figures are based on records of 15 dairy herd improvement associations which completed their fiscal years during recent months.

The added profit of the 158 dairymen is the result of carrying out, over an extended period, the principles of better dairying as advocated by the extension service of the agricultural college through the dairy herd improvement associations. The increase in returns was the result of higher and more efficient production a cow gained through better feeding and closer culling.

New Butterfat Record for New Zealand Cow

New Zealand pure-bred dairy cattle circles are much excited these days over the phenomenal butterfat record which has recently been made by a senior four-year-old cow in that country. Woodlands Felicie, owned by P. J. Peterson, starting her test at the age of four years, 364 days, produced 17,332.6 pounds of milk and 1,220.89 pounds of fat, with an average test of just over 7 per cent, in 365 days.

This gives her the world's record for the breed for all ages in butterfat, defeating Abigail of Hillside, the United States record, which has stood so long, also the world's four-year mark held in the United States by Darling's Jolly Lassie, with 1,197 and 1,141 pounds of fat respectively. It also wins the New Zealand butterfat record for all breeds, defeating a Holstein which had made 1,145 pounds.

Canadian Jersey breeders may be interested to learn that the sire of this fine producer was Bright Sultan, a Canadian-bred bull exported as a two-year-old in 1920.—Montreal Family Herald.

Grain in Rations

In rations with timothy and silage for roughage, a grain mixture can take the place of about two-fifths of the commonly used high protein grain ration; with clover hay and silage two-thirds or a little more of the high protein grain ration can be replaced and with alfalfa hay and silage good results can be obtained by using the grain mixture alone. A ration of the last kind for a 1,200 pound cow giving 30 pounds of 3 1/4 per cent milk could be as follows: 12 pounds alfalfa hay, 32 pounds silage, and 9 pounds barley, oats, and peas.

Peas in Dairy Ration

In the mixtures containing peas, it is found that 15 to 20 per cent of the total digestible nutrients come from the peas, and that such mixtures contain about 10 per cent of digestible protein. For cows of average to good production a grain mixture of such character can take a large place in dairy

Mother Gilbert received word, on Friday morning, that her grandchild, Margaret, eleven year old daughter of Stanley and Helen Pittinger Gilbert, had suffered a bad fall, while at play on the school ground, at Reese, and injured her leg. By Radio, on Saturday, we heard all about the inaugural doings from various parts of Washington, while those present could only see from one crowded space. It was a great gathering and pageant, with great enunciations, and of course the new President was there. We distinctly heard him affirm and repeat the oath of office, at 1 P. M., on the east front of the Capitol, arranged for the occasion as a Court of Honor; also the messages from the aviator, 3500 feet up in the air, telling how it all looked to him; and the broadcasting from a moving auto, that followed the Presidential party. We followed the Hoover's to their train for New York, and wished them God speed; then the great parade through the streets and air (where 110 planes led off) and we consider it all very wonderful and enjoyable.

Mrs. Chas. Miller (nee Blanche Pittinger) who has been on the sick list, this winter, and was quite ill last week, with the Dr. attending, is feeling considerably better and doing light work in the home. She has been greatly missed at her regular place in church.

The ladies of Middleburg church baked 16½ dozen bread rising doughnuts, last week, and delivered them from house to house, at 20c per dozen—and were they good!

No money. No bank. We know one man who put his last nickel in the collection plate, on Sunday, and hadn't a penny to get a postal card to send to a friend in trouble.

Have you heard the Lenten slogan, "Go to Church?" Have you heeded? All that is wrong with the world is that men have left God out of their plans. Get in touch with Him. Bring your neighbor too.

BILLS SHOULD BE PAID.

Those who have ready cash, should pay bills due, and thereby help the present scarcity of money because of closed banks. Do not be a hoarder of money!

Money orders are in demand now, for payments by mail. For urgent payments they are better than checks; and they can be indorsed by the receiver and be made payable to a third person.

Do not stop issuing checks if you have money in bank. They must be held by the payee until the banks are opened, but this is better than not issuing checks against bills due.

Everybody should do his or her bit toward helping the transaction of business, until banks are open again. Past payments on accounts due, are better than no payments.

A YEAR'S TRIP ABROAD

XXV.

An abridged story by Miss Carrie Mouser, Westminster, covering part of a trip of one year through Northern Africa and Southern Europe.

From Vienna we went by comfortable boat down the Danube to Budapest, a leisurely, interesting trip but not the least exciting. At the Vienna pier our baggage was thoroughly examined and we were taken in charge by a woman custom's official and gone over carefully to see if we were taking too much money out of the country. Before landing at Budapest, Hungarian officials came aboard and we had to give account of the amount of money we had and this amount was written down in our passport. The same program was gone thru on our return by bus, by custom officers at border towns. The financial affairs of Austria and Hungary were very strained and they wanted to prevent any money being taken out of these countries.

The Danube is a murky, muddy stream and one would have to stretch his imagination to the vanishing point to think it "blue," as per the Strauss Waltz. Enroute, we saw many water fowls. On the banks were several very ancient cities, Bratislava being one of them. This city is situated on the Czechoslovakia border, not far across the Austrian border. It has a very old fortress castle. At Vaz this river turns south and flows thru Hungary from north to south.

We reached Budapest just after the lights came on and a beautiful city it was, Buda on a high hill on the right bank and Pest in the plain on the left bank. These two cities are connected by several large bridges. Buda is very old and contains the royal palace, the Coronation Church and many houses occupied by royal retainers. There are lovely trees and a long bastion with numerous steps, leading down to the river. The royal palace contains several rooms full of objects belonging to the pathetic Empress Elizabeth, wife of Franz Joseph, the last Austrian ruler. She loved, and was loved, by Hungary and mitigated many of the hardships imposed upon that hopeless country. She was a beautiful woman and had glorious hair, which reached the floor when she was standing.

We went to several hotels to hear the gypsy music. This is unlike any other music ever heard; wild and weirdly sweet. An instrument, the zymbal, was new to us. It looked like a melodeon but had no keyboard—only wires, which were played with two hammers, padded at the ends. The violinist led with an original theme and the other instruments were harmonized with that. It was very different, but interesting.

There was a fine Zoo and lovely flower gardens. The language was utterly impossible—one felt like a cough, a sneeze, and all was over! Some of the words looked a foot long and all consonants. The Parliament Buildings occupied blocks on the river front and were gorgeous inside as well as out. They were much like those in London. We returned to Vienna after a week in Budapest.

Another week in Vienna was an orgy of palaces, museums, churches, exhibitions and concerts. A marvelous exhibition was that at the Spanish Riding Academy. Here four year old gray or white stallions went thru the most wonderful manoeuvres. Afterwards we were allowed to go into the stables and feed them sugar.

The royal palaces are now museums and contain beautiful and rare treasures. In one are the royal jewels, the crown of Austria as well as the ancient crown of Charlemagne with a queer band of jewels across from front to back. Then there was the cradle of Napoleon's son, presented to him by the city of Paris, a marvelous affair of carving. His mother was an Austrian and they lived in Schonbrunn Palace until his death. Such a pathetic prince!

In the crypt of the old Capuchin church are all the royal bodies in metal caskets, all except the unfortunate Charles whose grave is in Madeira where he died. In a little Chapel of the Augustinian Church are the hearts of all the Austrian royalities, preserved in silver caskets, some large and some small. I never realized before what a difference there was in heart sizes!

We went to Apera, too, and heard Jeritza and other artists in Tosca. The orchestra was fine and the acting unusually good. This is the home city of Jeritza and she is more or less idolized here.

From Vienna we went to Salzburg, another musical city. Here, each summer, artists and audiences, from all over the world, come in August to the great Musical Festival. Our own Mabel Garrison sang there one summer.

There is a wonderful old castle and several interesting cathedrals and many places connected with the life of Mozart. His birth house is now a museum and contains many pieces of furniture used by his family. Across the river, among the trees is the house, in which he composed "The Magic Flute." There is a large, interesting market place, fountains and modern stores. It is an interesting city.

Our last stay in Austria was at Innsbruck, which is in the heart of the Tyrolean section and here one sees many old peasant costumes. There is a very interesting old cathedral and palace and museum as well as some ancient old inns. The markets were interesting and several streets were arcaded. There was an old castle on the hill, now a museum, filled with ancient armor. We stayed at the Graner Bar hostelry right in the heart of the old city and enjoyed our meals in the ancient courtyard under the ancient trees. Nearby was a lovely park where the band played at night and the fountains were illuminated. This was the city in which to get beautiful garnet jewelry and quaint, long-stemmed pipes such as the old country people of the Tyrol made and smoked.

Keeping "one's head" now, is apparently the same as holding on to one's money. Is that what is meant by being "head-strong?"

Friend of Wild Life Now

Protects Birds, Animals

In Canada there is an Indian backwoodsman whose name is Grey Owl and who at one time was a trapper, but the cruelty of the trapping and the awful toll of wild life that took place aroused his pity and from trapping he became a most valuable protector of the wild things all around him. In the wilds of Quebec, near Lake Temiscouata, he built himself a log cabin and in the country around his lonely home he began to study and protect the mammals and birds. His home became a regular sanctuary for wild life and many specimens of mammal and bird make their homes about his hut. He befriended and raised an orphan beaver which has formed a colony in a pond nearby, and these animals have learned to answer the call of their guardian. The Canadian government was so appreciative of the fine work of Grey Owl in saving some of the disappearing wild creatures from extinction, that it appointed him to supervise that great wild life sanctuary—Riding Mountain park, Manitoba, where the beaver and his companion can live in security and where a remarkable film of its wonderful life story has been obtained.—Washington Star.

Two Miles Minute, Fastest

R. R. Train Run on Record

The fastest recorded run of a train for a short distance was made on the Plant System between Fleming and Jacksonville in March, 1901, for a distance of five miles. The speed was at the rate of 120 miles an hour, or two miles a minute. Seven other trains, all American, have made speeds of 102 to 112.5 miles per hour over distances of 1 to 7 miles. "The Flying Scotsman" ran 392.5 miles from London to Edinburgh in May, 1928, in 8 hours 3 minutes, or at the rate of 49.1 miles per hour, a speed exceeded by at least 28 other trains over distances varying from 14 to 2,937 miles. A Great Western train running between Paddington and Bristol in 1904, is said to have made the 118.5 miles at the rate of 84.6 miles per hour, although the same railroad claims to have set a world's record September 15, 1931, when its "Cheltenham Flyer" ran 77.25 miles between Swindon and Paddington in 58 minutes, or 80 miles per hour. An electric locomotive is said to have made 130 miles per hour near Marienfeld, Germany, in 1901.

Historical Sketch of Turkey

Turkey, now reduced in size to about 175,000 square miles, comprises a portion of Thrace adjacent to Constantinople and is now mainly confined to Asia Minor. Agriculture is primitive, but the soil, where cultivable, is fertile and produces considerable crops of wheat, barley, cotton, nuts, tobacco, figs, olives, grapes and other fruits. About 1,500 miles of railways are in operation. The so-called Bagdad railway extends from the Bosphorus via Adana and Aleppo to Nisab. Constantinople is the capital; Smyrna, an important seaport; Brusa, the ancient capital and center of silk manufacture; Sivas, a mining center; Angora, the provisional capital.

First Town Lights

The first city in the United States to have lighted streets was New York, says the Wall Street Journal. Its city council in 1697 passed an ordinance requiring that "every seventh house in this city do every night in the darke time until the twenty-fifth day of March next cause a lantern and candle to be hung out on a pole." This was a primitive lighting system, but it continued in use for more than sixty years. Oil lamps for street lighting in New York city were abandoned in 1823, when gas became available and pipes were laid to supply this "magical illuminating fuel."

Fish Produce Young Alive

One of the most peculiar aquatic specimens is on exhibit at the London (Eng.) zoo. It is a Mexican sword-tailed fish. This fish, unlike the majority of fishes, does not spawn but produces its young alive. Usually the young run about forty in number. Periodically the females tend to far outnumber the males and then nature steps in to balance the species. The sex of a number of females, which have produced several families, is changed and the fish takes on all of the male characteristics even to developing the long sword-like tail peculiar only to the males.

Saved Their "Love Bush"

Potent superstition brought out the inhabitants of Carrowderry, County Roscommon, Ireland, and they caused the abandonment of a scheme for road widening and improvements, because it would involve the cutting down of a "love bush." These solitary bushes are held in great veneration in the West of Ireland, as they are supposed to be the haunts of fairies, and for hundreds of years they have grown along the roadsides and fields without any interference.—Montreal Herald.

16,000 Miles for Boats

The Amazon river, largest river in the world, has a watershed comprising about one-third of the entire area of South America. The main river and 350 tributaries offer navigation to boats for a total distance of more than 16,000 miles, while the main river for 750 miles has a depth of not less than 175 feet. Although 2,500,000 square miles of land are drained by this mighty river.

Quarrel Over Umbrella

Severed All Friendship

Mark Twain and Brander Matthews had a serious quarrel, which severed all relations between them for the rest of their lives. During Brander Matthews' last illness, he explained the quarrel thus to his friend, Clayton Hamilton:

"You see, Clayton, the whole trouble was that Mark never had any sense of humor."

On the other hand, says the Golden Book Magazine, there is the story of Mark Twain's violent antipathy for a fellow club member. One day this unfortunate gentleman, as he was leaving the club, discovered that it was raining and demanded an umbrella of the attendant. "There are no umbrellas here, sir," said the attendant, "except this one of Mr. Clemens'." "All right, give me this one and tell Mr. Clemens I'll be back in a few minutes. I have to go to my uncle's funeral."

In a short time Mark appeared and the terrified attendant gave him the message. The air turned blue about Mark's head. "Well," he finally spluttered, "I hope the — funeral is a failure."

Beheaded Predecessor's Kin

Phocas, Roman emperor 602-610, beheaded the widow and three daughters of his predecessor. Phocas was elevated to the purple as the result of a military revolt against the emperor Maurice. Not long after his accession Phocas caused the execution of Maurice and his five sons. Constantina, the ex-empress, and her young daughters, Anastasia, Theocteste and Cleopatra, were placed in not very rigorous confinement. Three years later Constantina led a formidable uprising against Phocas which was suppressed with difficulty after sanguinary street fighting in Constantinople. Nevertheless, the life of the imperial widow was spared, largely through the intercession of the Patriarch Cyriacus, and she was sent back to nominal imprisonment. After two years more Constantina organized a second revolt, in 607. This time Phocas had no mercy. The mother and the three daughters were subjected to protracted and horrible tortures and then publicly beheaded.

Soviet Cabmen Can No

Longer Cheat Visitors

Riga, Latvia.—The Moscow isvoschik, or cabman, who has been charging foreigners, especially Americans, fancy prices for short rides, is to be curbed. A special meter has been invented for cabs so that fares no longer need to argue about the tariff. Hereafter the isvoschiks will be permitted to charge one rouble and eighty-six kopeks per kilometer (five-eighths of a mile). This is slightly less than one dollar.

Although the automobile plants are alleged to be turning out hundreds of cars weekly it will be many years before Moscow has enough taxicabs for her requirements, according to the paper, which admits that many of the cars listed as completed remain at the plants because of the absence of radiators, distributors, batteries and other parts.

Excess Oil

Oilly skin calls for daily treatment. Use soap and warm water at night, rinse with cold water, apply a little cream, remove well with a bit or coarse toweling. Every morning bathe the face with cold water, iron the flesh surface with ice, lave with witch hazel. To a box of complexion powder add a teaspoonful of powdered boric acid, sifting it in so that it will be thoroughly distributed. Drink fruit juices, make it a habit to eat a head of lettuce each day.

Bell Pitch Explained

The pitch of a bell is directly dependent upon the ratio between the thickness of the bell at the point of striking and the diameter of the bell. Various metals and combinations of metals have been used to produce bells, but the most satisfactory combination is a bronze procured by amalgamating thirteen parts of copper with four parts of tin.—Washington Star.

The Fable of the Right One for Kirby

By GEORGE ADE

©, Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

ONCE there was a prominent and unduly prosperous Pair and after a Time there appeared in their Home something that answered to the Name of Kirby. To the intelligent Reader much will be conveyed by the simple Statement that he was an Only Child. And, as so often happens, his enraptured Parents seemed to believe that he was the Only One in the World.

There is an Old Saying that every Mother thinks her own Goose is a Swan, and to carry the same Thought a little further it is not surprising that in this Case the overjoyed Parents looked at their cunning little Noodle-Head and saw in him the budding Greatness of Julius Caesar, William Shakespeare and Douglas Fairbanks, all packed into one Parcel.

Those who have made a careful study of the ill-favored Children of the unusually Rich must have been, at times, oppressed by the Thought that Washington struggled and Lincoln suffered and countless Brave Men faced the Dangers of Border Warfare in order that the more recent Specimens of the Rising Tide may sleep under Velvet Hangings in gaudy Palaces and have Serfs to wait on them, while all the Courts are organized to protect their Property Rights and large detachments of Motor Cops are stationed on the Highways to prevent them from committing Suicide.

Now, as this Piece of Veal emerged from the Nursery and began to be talked about in the Neighborhood in which he lived, it was not evident that he had any Characteristic Trait of any particular kind except a sublime Faith in his own Superiority.

Shooting Would Be Merciful

The Surface of the Earth and the overhanging Firmament and the twinkling Stars had been assembled into a Stage Setting in preparation for his Entrance upon the Scene.

At the age of Fourteen he spelled it with two Ts but he had a magnificent Contempt for all Persons who were either older or younger than himself.

For a Youth who had the vivid Personality of a Mud Turtle, the moral Fiber of a Fish Worm and the nimble Wit of a Last Year's Bird Nest it was surprising how many Folks noticed him and discussed him. There was a good deal of arguing back and forth about Kirby.

Those who had him directly under Observation couldn't seem to agree. Some said the Thing to do was to stand him up against a Wall and shoot him. Others stood out for Cyanide of Potassium. A third Faction favored throwing him from a high Cliff on to some jagged Rocks below.

At the Age of 22, when Kirby was a rare Orchid to his Mother and a String of Garlic to the World in General, his Custodians began to work on what was known as his Intellect in order to induce him to formulate and sort of get together an Idea in regard to getting married.

No sooner was it whispered around that the Bermuda Prince was on the Market than a lot of apprehensive Parents got ready to secrete their eligible Daughters or hand them over to the first Applicants or do something desperate in order to save them from a Living Death.

Home Talent Not Worthy.

They need not have had any Tremors. Kirby and his Mamma, with the Face which had been hoisted by a Plastic Surgeon, and Papa, who had inherited so much Jack that he could wear side-whiskers, all agreed that there was no Deb, Sub-Deb, Flapper, Cutie, or Damosel within a Radius of Fifty Miles who was sufficiently beautiful and talented and socially prominent and loaded down with Assets to qualify her to stand alongside of the World's Best and receive a Life Sentence.

No use talking, any Woman worthy of Our Kirby would have to be out of the Ordinary. So they took him to Florida where the Picking was said to be good.

There is no Truth in the Report that they transported him in a Crate and occasionally pushed a Marshmallow to him, through the Bars. The Boy was very bright and snappy. He could go into the Diner, all by himself, and order Food unless he had to write it out, and often he would sit on a Chair and hold a Morning Paper in front of Himself and decide that most of the People in the World were very crude and everything that happened was awfully silly, after which he would smoke a Pill, always getting the Right End in his Mouth, because the Ends were similar. Of course, if they had permitted him to use Cork Tips, the Results might have been serious.

From all of this foregoing Blurb and Blah it will be gathered that much depended upon finding some Sweet Girl who was worthy, in every way, of the Lollipop. It would have been a shame to let the Breed die out just as the Universe is facing so many intricate Problems.

The Girl Who Didn't Know a Good Thing When She Saw It.

On a Beach near the Gulf Stream they found One that weighed and measured all right and had an Invalid Father who owned a Railway, but after they talked to her a few Days they discovered that she was Dumb. Beautiful, but absolutely still and lifeless above the Pearl Necklace.

If she had married Kirby probably the Offspring would have turned out to be Dancing Instructors. So she went into the Discard.

There was another Candidate who was there with the Pep and the Bank Roll and a Family Tree and about four tons of Pulchritude but she died a Can to Kirby within Five Minutes after meeting him and that Prospect went cold.

This was the first Intimation the Parents had ever received that any Member of the so-called Weaker Sex could possibly turn down a chance to hook up with the Heir-Apparent. In the Home Town, where Kirby and all of his Kin were Sacred White Elephants, the Impression had been that he was a Capital Prize, the Answer to the Maiden's Prayer, Idol of the Women and Envy of the Men.

In the great Outside World he came into direct Competition with those genial Lads who combine University Training with the playful Instincts of a Cave Man. They can drink Tea on a Bet and do a lot of Dancing just to avoid going to Bed, but their real Trade is Licking Taxi Drivers. Alongside of these hard-boiled Buries, the refined and well-mannered Kirby seemed to belong to the Vegetable Kingdom. He not only had no Sex Appeal but had not heard much about it.

He was taken from one Place to another by his careful Guardians in the Hope that somewhere, at some time, the Perfect Woman would show up and discover in Kirby all of those lovely Traits which were evident to his Parents but otherwise non-existent.

Kirby is Captured.

Possibly everything would have turned out O. K. but for the Fact that one Evening in the Lobby of a Hotel in New York, the Keepers allowed him to ramble along Peacock Alley, where he was vamped and abducted by a large and sinewy Amazon who needed Money.

When she went at Kirby it was just like a Battle between a Boa Constrictor and an English Sparrow.

Of course you are saying now that his People paid her a large sum of Money and arranged for a Divorce. Nothing of that kind. She was a large, masterful self-supporting Creature who had knocked around the World and done almost Everything except brake on the Nickel Plate.

She put into the Partnership everything which Kirby didn't have—Courage, Determination, Business Sense, Initiative and a first-hand knowledge of the Wicked World.

It seemed that her wire-haired Spaniel had been stolen the Week before and Kirby was just what she needed to keep her from being lonesome.

To the Parents she proved her entire Fitness for the High Honor by agreeing with them that Kirby was desirable.

Now she counts his Money for him every Morning and tells him what Necktie to wear and everything is Great.

MORAL: The only Marriages which fail are those preceded by Proposals in which the Man does the Talking.

Old Flashlight and Other

Scraps Make "Stararium"

Long hours of intensive study and effort over paper, wood, wire and parts of an old flashlight have given Stuart O'Byrne, 27-year-old amateur astronomer of Hutton Lane, Brentwood, a miniature planetarium that unfolds the drama of the firmament in much the same manner as does the $1,000,000 Adler Planetarium of Chicago.

While a true planetarium, of which there are only two in the United States, will show the movements of the stars, planets, the sun and the moon in their proper position with relation to the time of year and the latitude from which observed, O'Byrne's model will show only star movements. For this reason he has coined the name "stararium" for it.

Instead of a dome 70 feet across, under which several hundred persons can sit, the portable model has a three-foot half-dome into which only a dozen or so persons can look. However, they do not have to risk a stiff neck as they would under a large dome.

And although the apparatus may look rather crude, so precisely was it constructed that the revolving foot-long projector—a polyhedron of 13 surfaces—throws scientifically exact representations of 850 stars, in more than 50 constellations, onto the half-dome.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"Blind Flying"

An aviator is flying "blind" when he cannot see, either from the construction of his plane or from the weather conditions, such as fog, rain, etc. When flying "blind," an aviator guides his plane by means of instruments. The most important of these instruments is the earth indicator compass. Other essential instruments are a turn indicator, a bank indicator and a drift meter. While the precision of these instruments is great, they are by no means perfectly accurate. Skill is required to read the scales.

Mine Crater "Pool of Peace"

One of the largest mine craters formed on the western front during the World war has been officially named "the Pool of Peace." It is three miles from Ypres on the Messinas road, and has a diameter of 140 yards. In making it 40 tons of explosives were used and 8,000 yards of galleries were dug. The explosion was heard in London. British soldiers knew it as "Lone Tree Carter," and since the war it has slowly filled with water.

Lesson for March 12

JESUS MINISTERING TO THE MULTITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:30-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many, Matthew 20:28.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Helping Hungry People.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Feeding a Hungry Crowd.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Meeting Everyday Needs With Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Ministering to Human Need.

I. The Apostles Making Report to Jesus (v. 30).

They had just returned from a most strenuous campaign of preaching and healing. Their ministry had occasioned a great stir. This was accentuated by the continued ministry of Jesus. They reported to Jesus what they had taught and what they had wrought.

II. Jesus Alone With the Apostles (vv. 31, 32).

The result of the combined ministries of Jesus and the apostles was such a commotion, with the people coming and going, that there was no opportunity for resting or eating. In this time of stress and strain Jesus invited the disciples to retire from the crowd and rest. Periods of withdrawal from the crowds in fellowship with the Lord are frequently desirable and necessary. The benefits of such retreats are:

1. Physical recuperation. We have this treasure in earthen vessels. It is absolutely imperative that there be periodical retirement for physical recuperation.

2. Spiritual refreshment. Even those who are engaged in witnessing for Christ need constant renewal of their spirits by personal contact with the Lord.

3. To get one's eyes off of self in case of either success or failure and fixed upon Jesus Christ.

III. Jesus Teaching the Ignorant Multitude (vv. 33, 34).

1. Thronged by the people (v. 33). The wonderful words and works of the Lord and the disciples, brought the multitudes to them. To escape the throng they took departure to a desert place (v. 32). Seeing the Lord and his disciples leaving, the people from the surrounding cities anticipated their landing place so that upon the arrival of the ship they were already there.

2. Jesus moved with compassion (v. 34). Instead of becoming irritated by the intrusion of the crowd, his personal interests were forgotten as the needs of the shepherdless sheep pressed upon his notice. Therefore, he began to teach them many things.

IV. Jesus Feeding the Hungry Multitude (vv. 35-44).

1. Conference with the disciples (vv. 35-38).

a. The disciples requested that the multitude be sent to the surrounding villages to buy bread (v. 36). According to Matthew Jesus made the proposition that the multitude be fed (Matt. 14:16).

b. Jesus commanded them to feed the multitude (v. 37).

c. The disciples' perplexity (v. 37). Their perplexity was due to the fact that they were depending upon their own resources instead of Christ. To come face to face with the humanly impossible has a threefold benefit:

(1) It makes us realize our dependence upon Christ.

(2) It drives us to him for help.

(3) It leads us to give him the glory for the results. Though our ability to teach, preach, or to give be meager, when coupled with the Lord's ability, it is equal to any demand which may be made.

2. Jesus' method in feeding the multitude (vv. 39-44).

a. The Lord's part. This was to give instruction as to the method of procedure and to create the provision. He so increased five loaves and two fishes that the need of the hungry multitude was met.

b. The disciples' part. They were to have the people sit down in companies so as to facilitate distribution. They then took that which the Master had blessed and distributed it. The disciples' responsibility was not for the creation of the provision, but for its distribution to the people.

c. The people's part. Their part was not to create, nor to distribute, but to partake of the provision. Unless people receive Jesus Christ and the salvation which he has provided, they will eternally starve.

Stands Forever

The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand forever.—Isaiah 40:8.

Wait Upon God

That life is most holy in which there is least of petition and desire, and most of waiting upon God, that in which petition most often passes into thanksgiving. Pray till prayer makes you forget your wish, and leave it or merge it in God's will.—F. W. Robertson.

Furnace of Affliction

The furnace of affliction refines us from earthly drossness and softens us for the impression of God's own stamp.

Lights of NEW YORK

By

The head of a big business in New York is so deaf that he can hear only with the aid of ear phones and one of those little boxes with an electric battery, but he is one of those fortunate persons who doesn't let his affliction affect his disposition. Like the late Harold MacGrath, who was deaf to the same extent, this man is a happy, cheerful person who gets a lot out of life. Recently, he had an idea. He took a vacation and spent it in taking lessons in lip reading. Then he came back to the office, leaving his hearing apparatus at home, with the idea of astonishing all his employees. It just happens that one of his close assistants is so buck-toothed that he talks practically without any movement of his upper lip, and it also happened that this was the first employee the manufacturer encountered. He couldn't read the man's lips, because there was no lip movement to read. They conversed by writing on a pad, while the office boy dashed in a taxi to the manufacturer's home to retrieve the head phones.

Willard Fairchild once had to make an advertising layout for clothes made of a certain cloth designed for such places as Palm Beach, Bermuda, Nassau and sunny California. The thing was to be based on photographs and, owing to the elements of time and expense, the photographs had to be made in the vicinity of New York. In order to give them the real atmosphere, it was decided they must be taken out of doors. Mr. Fairchild gathered his models, four girls and three men, and took them, with the clothes, tennis rackets and golf clubs, to Atlantic City. The layout had to be made and approved around Christmas so as to be ready for the spring exodus to the South. The first three days produced hail and snow, driven by a howling gale.

The third day broke bright and fair—with a temperature of 15 degrees above zero. Mr. Fairchild hustled his models into the 95-degrees-in-the-shade outfits, covered them with fur coats, gave them the rackets and golf clubs, tucked them into wheel chairs with blankets around them and took them to the beach. Then he set up the cameras, unwrapped his models and, to keep them from freezing, ran them down on the sand, where they proceeded to register "summer sports." He says the great difficulty was to get them to stop shivering long enough to make a clear snapshot. The coated and blanketed spectators on the board walk had a grand time. An artist's model has a great life.

Will Rogers is now one of the most constant and accomplished air travelers in the country, but Casey Jones tells a story about him before he became a veteran of the sky route. It was one of the very earliest flights Rogers took and when they strapped a parachute on him he wanted to know why they always hung the ring attached to the rip cord on the left. Casey Jones told him it was because the instinctive gesture of a person jumping was to feel for the heart, and that automatically brought the hand to the ring.

"Don't be silly," drawled Will Rogers. "My heart probably would be in my throat and, if I made an instinctive gesture, the chances are I'd choke myself to death."

"Fire Bird" was going pretty well when Judith Anderson, the star, joined the Manhattan flu club, for which so many of us have qualified. The show closed and Miss Anderson, in care of her mother, left for Bermuda to recuperate. Meanwhile, Jean Dixon left the cast of "Dangerous Corner" to go to Hollywood and appear in a movie to be called "The Kiss in the Mirror." Quite a lot of friends were at the station to see her off, among them Hughie O'Donnell. He said, "You should realize, Jean, that even Mary Boland didn't do so well as this. She had only three bags and seven people."

Replace Old Bridge With New One in One Night

London.—In a single night an old 120-ton bridge carrying the railway over Edgeware road at Cricklewood was rolled bodily out of place and a new 180-ton structure rolled in to replace it. A month's preparatory work by railway engineers and contractors was necessary to enable the old and new bridges to be exchanged in a single night.

Rotorplane Devised Without Propeller

Berlin.—A propellerless rotorplane with revolving wings has been devised by Adolph Rohrbach, German inventor.

The plane is still in the blueprint stage, although some parts have been completed and are undergoing tests at the German Experimental Institute of Aeronautics at Aldershof.

The rotorplane would be capable of remaining stationary in midair and revolving on its own axis aloft, after which it could proceed in any given direction. A device similar to the autogiro would permit perpendicular ascent and descent.

THE VISION OF BIRDS AND ANIMALS.

The vision of eagles and falcons is remarkably keen, as is that of a bat; the phrase "as blind as a bat" is totally misleading, as the bat's sense, including its sense of sight, are unusually sharp. Bees show a definite sense of form as well as of color, returning to the same entrance to a food box if it is marked with a certain geometrical figure.

The pupils of the eyes of the ordinary cat are vertically linear, and capable of extraordinary expansion so that they can see in the dark; the lion, on the other hand, although it belongs to the cat family, has round pupils of only ordinary expanding powers, for he is a brave and fearless animal and stalks his prey by day.

Horses can see the road immediately before them very clearly even at night, but cannot see great distances. The eyes of the crab are unusual in being mounted on a projection which can command a field vision of 180 degrees; but at the slightest danger the projection can be withdrawn to a bony protecting socket. A mole has eyes which are almost hidden in its furry coat, but they are very weak from centuries of disuse.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order in the office of the Board, Wednesday, March 1, 1933, at 10:00 A. M. All the members were present.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and one special meeting were read and approved.

The lists of paid and unpaid bills presented to the Board were approved and ordered paid.

A delegation of citizens representing the P. T. A. of the Westminster School, came before the Board to bring to its attention the most unsanitary condition of the toilets at that school. The Board made known that about three years ago, accompanied by the County Commissioners it investigated conditions in this building, and since that time has been doing all it could to have the situation remedied. At the present time it is awaiting replies from three contractors from whom it has asked for estimates on the cost of constructing a sanitary addition to the Westminster School. The delegation requested that as soon as these estimates are received, it be notified so that it may present the facts to the County Commissioners and request them to grant in the School Budget the sum necessary to take care of it. This, the Board agreed to do.

The request by the P. T. A. of the Uniontown School for a contribution of $100 from the Board to be used in laying a pavement there was laid on the table.

For the information of the Board, the Superintendent reported on the present status of affairs in the Legislature with respect to school legislation.

Superintendent Unger reported on the inability of the heating equipment at the Mechanicsville School to heat the building adequately, and the necessity to close the school during the late prevailing low temperatures.

The Superintendent reported on the scholastic standing of those Western Maryland College Freshmen who hold scholarships.

The Board adjourned at 12:15 P. M.
