Both banks are making daily progress with reopening plans, but delay is being experienced because some are holding off signing the agreement plan. The first gave an account of the inauguration of the plan, the appointment of a committee, etc.; the second was to the effect that, due to financial conditions the project had been temporarily called off; and the third was that the latter report was incorrect. It now appears that all of the items were correct, at the time when published; but the latest now is that the matter has been revived, and will very soon begin to function under the direction of Mr. Geo. H. Amick, as at first stated.

CRUSHED BY HEAVY TRUCK

Fatal Accident to Young Man near Silver Run.

Granville C. Spangler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Spangler, near Harney, met with almost instant death on Wednesday morning, by being run down and crushed by the wheels of a heavy truck that was taking a load of canned goods to New York for the C. H. Musselman Canning Co., of Biglerville, Pa.

The accident occurred on the Littlestown-Westminster highway, near Silver Run. The truck was being operated by E. J. Wolf who is engaged in long-distance hauling, who found trouble with the engine and stopped at Study's garage close to the Maryland line, for investigation.

Young Spangler got out of the truck while it was being towed down a hill, and helped to give it a start by running along the side; and in trying to remount the truck while in motion, evidently slipped and fell under the heavy wheels and was crushed, living only a few minutes thereafter.

Sterling Bachman, the only witness, saw young Spangler running along side of the truck and then roll out from under the wheels. Coroner Benson, of Westminster, decided that the death was accidental and that no inquest was necessary.

Every message will be plain, pointed and practical.

There will be plenty of special music. The Sheat's, Hartzler's, and other musicians of note have consented to appear on the program. A kindly welcome awaits you at these services. ## TO MOTHER.

(TUNE—"Ye Servants of God.")

To Mother we sing, this glad day of days;
We bring her our love, our blessing and praise.
On earth there is none that with her can compare,
Come, send forth her song on the sweet morning air.

To mother we sing, so loyal and true,
Believing in us, whatever we do;
Then let us be worthy, and strive ev'ry day,
To make her life happy each step of the way.

To mother we sing, e'en tho' she has gone
To glad realms above, to bright, endless morn;
For there she shall meet us when this life is o'er,
And then from her loved ones be parted no more.

PARENT-TEACHERS' PROGRAM.

"The purpose of the Parent-Teachers' Association" was the subject of Dr. Frank Kramer's talk at the P. T. A. meeting on Tuesday night.

Dr. Kramer spoke of how worthwhile discussions could be when they are properly conducted. "A public place is not the place to air views on personal or private subjects," he said, "and yet it is the place to discuss important problems. The chairman should keep the discussion within the bounds of the subject being discussed. Dr. Kramer further stated that it is the aim of schools to explain their methods and if at any time the parents do not understand, they should ask the teachers to explain. If any subject is personal matter, the teacher should be interviewed privately; if the subject concerns a majority of the parents, it should be discussed at the P. T. A. He stressed the fact that "The home and school must work hand in hand."

The minutes were read by the secretary, Miss Novella Harnier. It was decided that the P. T. A. would serve the Alumni banquet, on Saturday, June 10 at the school.

Mrs. John S. Teeter, president of the P. T. A., spoke of the many benefits she derived from reading the "Parent's Magazine." She mentioned the enlightening articles concerning children of the pre-school age and adolescents, the movie-guides, and diet suggestions for the whole family.

Miss Novella Harnier was authorized to take subscriptions for the magazine if any other parents were interested. Pamphlets entitled, "Why join the P. T. A.," were distributed. This was read by Miss Etta Adams, First Grade teacher.

Prayer was offered by Carroll C. Hess.

Musical numbers were rendered during the program as follows: Piano duet, Mrs. Norman Baumgardner and Mrs. Conover; quartette, Messrs. Fuss, Reinolden, Bowers and Bowers. Mrs. Fuss, accompanist; duet, Mrs. F. T. Elliot and Miss Margaret Elliot, Miss Ada R. Englar, accompanist.

WILL APPEAR NEXT WEEK.

Three lengthy articles have been unavoidably crowded out of this week's issue, but will be used next week, on some page, as so doing will still be in time for the purpose of the articles. Our friends would aid greatly in the prompt publication of their productions if they would send them in early in the week.

SCIENCE OF HEALTH.

Attention is called to a series of articles under the above caption, the first of which appears on Page 5 of this issue. Hereafter, those who may be interested, will find the articles on Page 7 or 8. They will be popular in character, rather than highly technical, and will no doubt be found valuable in an advisory way. The author is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

THE CARE OF PROPERTY

An Outstanding Opportunity for good Local Advertising.

The Baltimore to Emmitsburg state highway that passes through Taneytown, is one of Maryland's much travelled highways. We have called attention, at different times, to the valuable advertising Taneytown home owners can give the town, by taking pride in making their homes and lawns attractive. Along this line, we clip the following from last week's Middletown Valley Register, as the two towns are similarly located, though on different highways.

"Motorists passing through Middletown are frequently attracted by the large number of fine homes that come within their vision and are heard to remark concerning the cleanliness and beauty of our town. These tourists, however, realize that not a little of this beauty is due to the care taken of the grounds which surround these dwelling places and are quick to commend our citizens for it. Just as soon as spring arrives, these travelers will see both men and women of Middletown engaged in work that will make these grounds fit settings for the houses that stand within them. Hedges will be trimmed, lawns shaped up and leveled, dead branches cut from the trees, flower seeds put in shapely beds and perennials given the attention they need after being buried during the winter months."

All streets and highways act as show windows, as it were, for towns and country homes and farms. Their appearance, to a large extent, fixes their market value, helps all real estate values in a community in some degree, and it costs so little to keep surroundings looking attractive and prosperous—often only a little work, and good home-keeping as distinguished from good housekeeping.

The owner who does not take good care of his property's appearance, practically tells the public that it isn't worth taking care of.

STATE PAYS $25,000 FOR PROPERTY ASSESSED AT $5400.

The Union News, published at Towson, contained the following news items, last week:

"Many persons were much amused by the agitation for the erection of a new armory by our contemporary. Work on the new building has not started. One explanation may be that much of the money intended for the building has been expended on the lot. The amount originally appropriated for an armory lot was $10,000. No other lot in the entire town was suitable for an armory excepting the lot of the Jeffersonian at the price of $25,000. And now the old organization journal gets red in the face because the armory itself has not been started. Everyone would like to see the armory started, but Towson can't have a high-priced lot and an armory all at one time, so to speak.

The Jeffersonian recently sold a lot approximately 200 feet by 172 feet to the State of Maryland for an armory for $25,000. The whole lot owned by the old Democratic organization journal at the corner of Washington and Chesapeake avenues is assessed for $1300 for one piece of 65 feet by 172 feet and $1500 for another section 172 feet by 175 feet, or a total assessment of $2800 on the whole lot of approximately 240 feet by 172 feet. Deducting the 40 feet front retained by the Jeffersonian, an assessment of approximately $5400 is left on the portion of the lot sold to the State for $25,000."

JUDGES CUT SALARIES.

The following Judges have volunteered to donate 75 percent of their salary to the state; Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond, of the Court of Appeals; Chief Judge Hammond Urner, Associate Judges Arthur P. Willard and Charles W. Woodward, of the Sixth Judicial District; Judge Thomas Keating, Queen Annes County, Second Circuit.

A Missionary says Christianity alone can save China. How? By converting the Japs?

THE BONUS ARMY AGAIN IN WASHINGTON.

Efforts being Planned to Avoid Riots like last year.

Washington is again having trouble with a "bonus army" and is trying to avoid the riot features of last year. A camp ground has been provided for such visitors, but this has been objected to, and a location back of the House Office building was occupied by the army and on doing so was given twenty-four hours by police authorities to evacuate.

The army is headed by Harold Foulkrod, and by Mike Thomas, of Camden, N. J., both active in the army when it was driven out by troops last year. Foulkrod objected to the assigned camp on the grounds that it is the prospective location to be occupied by sympathetic Communists.

The strength of the District Police is being increased, and all leaves of absence from the force have been cancelled. The main immediate object of the demonstration is to influence Congress to order immediate payment of the soldier bonus; though many of the leaders favor the restoration of disability allowances that were cut under the economy and unemployment relief acts.

A detachment of army regulars has been busy preparing the assigned camp—Fort Hunt, in Virginia—by the erection of 800 tents, a procedure that is meeting with vigorous protests from the Governor and Congressmen from that state.

GOVERNOR SAYS FOOD STRIKE IS "MONKEY BUSINESS."

Gov. Clyde L. Herring (Dem.) of Iowa, is distinctly out of sympathy with the proposed "food strike" that is staged for this Saturday. He calls it "monkey business" and says there is no necessity for it, in the face of advancing farm prices—hogs at $3.75 an increase of 75c; corn from 8 to 27 cents a bushel, within the past two weeks—and he intends to meet any rough demonstrations with the force of arms, if need be.

He says the whole affair is the work of professional trouble-makers, and there is no sympathy for it with the masses of the people of the State; that racketeering is in the face of advancing prices for cattle, eggs, potatoes, corn, and hogs, and that there is no sympathy with it from him, as he farms 1200 acres and nobody is fooling him. He further says that Iowa laws regarding mortgage foreclosures are extremely liberal toward honest land owners, and that the discontent comes from the shiftless and ignorant classes.

Random Thoughts

TRUTH IN A FABLE.

There is an old fable of a dog, with a piece of meat in its mouth, crossing a stream on a foot log, that saw its own reflection in the water under the log, and on opening its mouth to grasp the reflected meat, lost that which it had.

There are a lot of folks, now, not in fables, that act in the same greedy manner. Not being satisfied with, and helping to keep, that which they or their town now has, in acting to get more, lose present possessions. Evidently, they bank on winning both ways, and think they are outstanding good business men.

A dose of their own philosophy, applied directly to themselves, would no doubt be the best kind of remedy to be applied in such cases, to teach them the wrong of selfishness that hurts others.

"The greatest good to the greatest number" is not necessarily the most surely accomplished by making it hard for the smaller number to prosper; for caring for what we have, is also regarded as a sure start on the road to prosperity.

THERE NEVER WAS A TIME.

—When the President of the United States had so much absolute power as has President Roosevelt.

—When Congress has so completely abdicated its powers, and turned away from the details of legislation.

—When so many vast experiments—the end of which no one can foretell—are under way, or in prospect.

—When “the people” have so unreservedly voted for a “change”—for the election of President Roosevelt was not a party victory.

—When the whole country is so greatly suffering from unemployment, and what we call “hard times.”

—When there is so little popular adhesion to political parties as a settled habit.

—When there is such a widespread tendency toward what was formerly called “Socialistic” doctrines.

—When heretofore sound financial policies—so considered—are in such chaos and doubt.

—When there is so much unanimity in wishing the administration well, regardless of party lines.

—When there is so much disrespect for authority of law, Federal, state and local.

—When there are so many new men, untried in major legislation, in Congress.

—When higher education, past experience, and general reputation for dependability, counts for so little.

—When in times of peace, so many situations are regarded as being “emergencies.”

—When so many billions of dollars in appropriations are authorized, apparently regardless of the coming of pay-day.

—When there is so little thought taken of the fact that “the government, in itself, can have no revenue, except that collected—in one form or another—largely from the people of this country.”

—When the press of the country takes such extreme liberty, both in criticism of public acts, and of high officials individually.

—When organized classes are so unscrupulous in their demands for class legislation.

—When the repeal of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States was so probable.

—When the “ins” had such a united party, and so powerful a majority in both branches of Congress.

—When the dangers of extensive radical legislation are so great.

—When the states, individually, have so many serious problems of their own.

—When there is so much of the influence of government, in business, or on business, heretofore considered as state or private rights.

HELPING THE FARMER.

Helping the farmer is such a widely desired aim, that almost anything in the way of legislation, bearing that tag, receives very favorable consideration. However, “farm bills” are not always what they seem to be, and especially not after they are loaded down with amendments favoring interests about as far from the farm, as Central Park, N. Y., is from a corn field in appearance.

Unfortunately, it is difficult, if not actually impossible, to get away from the supply and demand influence, and an overproduction of farm products that loads down the markets to a point far beyond the capacity of the people to buy and consume. The Farm Board tried to induce growers of crops to cut down the acreage, but such a plea fell on deaf ears.

The dumping of surplus crops in Europe, meets with retaliation over there, where efforts are being made to make farming pay, the same as here. The arbitrary fixing of prices—say of wheat—meets with opposition in the large cities where most of the consumers are. As yet, no plan has been devised that will grant relief to farmers that will not be correspondingly resented by purchasers of farm products.

Now there has been added to the farm bill such riders as various forms of billion dollar loans accompanied by bond issues, or the issue of unsecured greenbacks, the power to reduce the amount of gold in a dollar, increasing the value of silver, and a monster Two Billion Dollar Federal Land Bank bond issue for financing farm mortgages at 4 percent, and other billion dollar experiments that appear to have only the assurance of best wishes back of them.

It seems almost remarkable that a farmer holiday, for a year, has not been advanced, supported by a guarantee of financial compensation during the holiday sufficient to make up for at least a “living” for farmers during the holiday. This would knock out the surplus crops, and give demand a chance to work up an appetite. There could be a very limited acreage produced during the holiday, sufficient to meet consumption nearby, and the same plan could be worked for dairy products. Such a plan would be no more an expensive experiment than some that are being tried.

The big fact is, every industry needs adjustment—reorganizing—and every industry wants “the government” to perform the act. When we come to think that “the government” is merely “the people” in a compact and workable form, and that necessarily the government has no cash except that which it can collect from the people, (our people) or from outsiders who want to deal with us, it is fairly easy to see that all of us must in the end, and in some way, help ourselves.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The widely advertised speech of President Roosevelt, that was broadcast throughout the country last Sunday night, was more an expression of views, than a confidently indorsed program as to its general outcome. He frankly stated that mistakes in procedure might be made, and that he has no expectation of making a “hit” every time.

He belittled the fear of “dictatorship” and urged that Congress still maintain its constitutional authority, but has merely selected him as the agency to carry out its will; and that the plans hoped to benefit industry is a “partnership” between the government and the various industries.

He expressed the opinion that “eight weeks ago the country was dying by inches, but that now conditions have improved, but I am not going to indulge in issuing proclamations of over-enthusiastic assurance.”

“The administration has the definite objective,” he explained, “of raising commodity prices to such an extent that those who have borrowed money will on the average be able to repay that money in the same kind of dollar which they borrowed. We do not seek to let them get such a cheap dollar that they will be able to pay back a great deal less than they borrowed.”

“In other words, we seek to correct a wrong and not to create another wrong in the opposite direction. That is why powers are being given to the administration to provide, if necessary, for an enlargement of credit in order to correct the existing wrong.”

“These powers will be used when, as and if it may be necessary to accomplish the purpose.”

Public reaction to the address has been of an optimistic character, yet to some extent of a general character. As the Baltimore Evening Sun said, “It was good as far as it went,” meaning no doubt that his utterances, while encouraging, were very general. Unquestionably, the practically sure general advance in the price of commodities is a popular prospect, even though the benefits attaching to the rise may be more psychologic than real. Evidently, the country regards encouraging speeches of somewhat lesser importance than demonstrated results, but are willing to withhold criticism, for the time at least.

THE PRESIDENT AND PRICES.

There is a widespread uneasiness about inflation today. On all sides people are protesting that they cannot grasp the meaning of legislation designed to allow the President to devalue the dollar by as much as one-half. Many wonder what good can result from a bill which called forth such bitter opposition from the highly respected Senator Glass. Others fear a decline in the value of their own fixed incomes.

A brief analysis of the exact monetary situation in which the Administration finds itself may help to allay anxiety and to promote an understanding of the President's purposes.

1. The object of inflation, as a move to reverse the downward spiral of deflation, is to raise prices.

2. Prices are increased by bringing about an increase in the “effective use” of money (not just the quantity in existence). If one dollar is spent for every unit of goods sold, the price per unit is obviously $1.00. If twice the number of dollars change hands when the same number of units of goods is sold, simple mathematics will show that the price per unit has risen to $2.00.

3. The mere creation of bank credit through the contemplated open market operations of the Federal Reserve Banks will not bring about “effective use” of the checks by which that credit is spent, unless the banks are willing to lend it. But even though only the stronger banks are open today, they are still afraid of runs; they will not lend freely until they are convinced that no unfortunate incidents could shake the present confidence and revive the panicky fears of their depositors.

4. The mere printing of new paper currency will not bring about “effective use” of that currency, unless the people actually spend and respend it. But people have not yet manifested willingness to spend and respend, for they think still that prices are going to stay down or go even lower. Obviously, they will not buy today what they can buy tomorrow more cheaply, or just as cheaply, especially where their incomes are reduced and jobs insecure.

5. Therefore, leaders look for some method of creating actual spending, some way of bringing about this “effective use” of money. To this end, suggestions are made and experiments tried along lines of public expenditure, such as the Tennessee Valley reclamation project, state road building, municipal renovating campaigns, etc. Proposals are made for various sorts of government subsidizing of private construction, which will involve spending.

6. But within the last weeks, the majority of experienced economic thinkers have arrived at the conclusion that there are two major objections to such proposals for starting a wave of spending. They are not sizable enough in the aggregate to give the needed impact to general spending. Also they are too slow in starting, and in reaching the point where their effects can be realized.

7. Therefore, the Administration has come to the logical conclusion that something more is needed. The President has called for emergency legislation empowering him to use all the various means of waging inflation: providing increases in credit and currency, and even reducing the gold content of the dollar.

These are to enable him to make in effect this simple statement: “I am empowered and determined to use whatever means are necessary to bring about a reasonable degree of inflation, to the end that prices be raised by a fair and reasonable amount.”

This statement of itself is calculated to bring about the long-sought “effective use” of money. Individuals and business executives would take the President at his word, out of their confidence in him. At once they would hasten to take advantage of bargain prices, while they lasted. Industry would borrow from more willing banks, to stock their warehouses with lowest goods and supplies. A wave of buying would start prices upward, inspired by nothing but the determined statement of the President.

In other words, the President has asked for the most complete authority from Congress, so that he can announce without fear of public disbelief, that prices are to go up. With that announcement made, the public will do the rest, and the President in all probability will not find it necessary to fall back on the more radical inflationary measures.

It is evident that the President is asking for full powers so that Congress cannot, and he may not, have to use them.—Christian Science Monitor.

ABDUCTORS CAPTURED.

The abductors of Peggy McMath, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McMath, of Harwichport, Mass., were captured by coast guardsmen, last Sunday, and the $60,000 that had been paid by her father, for her release, was recovered.

The child had been induced to leave school, on Tuesday, and go with her abductor, in response to a story that her father had sent for her. Later a deal was negotiated with the father for the return of the child, and $60,000 was turned over after her safe return, following a pledge that he would take no action to locate the abductors for 48 hours, which pledge was scrupulously observed.

The coast guardsmen and local officials succeeded in rounding up and arresting the man who planned and carried out the job, as well as his brother who returned the child and received the money, all in so short a time, is a distinct exhibition of a good job, carried out by men who make no special pretensions to being noted detectives.

The profession—the kidnapping of children for the sake of getting a big money reward—should receive a decided set-back, and the Courts should give the job its proper finish with equal expedition. The whole country will welcome a verdict that will call such cases capital crimes, and entitled to extreme punishment.

The result of the preliminary hearing was the fixing of a bond of $100,000 on each of the brothers, which fact in itself indicates that New England justice is fully awake to the gravity of the crime.

U. S. SELLS LAST WHEAT.

The government is out of the wheat business, and wheat is selling at 70 cents a bushel, a rise of 70 percent, since last Fall. This is the most encouraging bit of business news in four years.

The farm board purchased, in three years 900,000,000 bushels of wheat in an attempt to peg the price. The attempt resulted in abject failure and cost the taxpayers $184,000,000.

The last of the farm board wheat has just been sold and the price of wheat will no longer be depressed by the uncertainty of disposition of hundreds of millions of bushels held by a single agency.

Stock prices are rising, commodity prices are rising, but the best omen is the steady rise in the price of wheat. When wheat goes up prices of other farm crops follow, and when the farmer begins to make money again the business outlook is indeed optimistic. One-third of the population of the United States depends for its purchasing power upon the prices of farm crops.

It has frequently been said that prosperity must begin on the farm and truer words were never spoken.—Frederick Post.

DETROIT'S BAD PLIGHT.

Faced by a debt problem it is unable to solve, Detroit has asked the President to sponsor a bill to be introduced in Congress which would enable a moratorium to be declared and make the Federal courts a dictator over the city.

Action by the Federal Government is sought because the State cannot abrogate contracts, the theory of the bill being that the former can legislate for bankrupts and insolvent debtors. In other words, the city wishes to obtain the same protection which has been given railroads, insurance companies and other financially embarrassed interests. The courts would be given authority to extend relief, to compel the city to administer its affairs in an economical manner and to make reasonable efforts to levy such taxes as citizens could pay. The scheme looks to a compromise of the claims of debtors, but would protect them by empowering the courts to compel such appropriations for interest and principal as conditions made possible after allowance for essential municipal services.

The representation is made that, unless some method is devised for postponement of the city's obligations, repudiation is unavoidable. To payments now falling due it would be necessary to increase the tax rate by twenty-five percent, which, it is asserted, would impose an unconscionable burden. The only alternative is a reduction of expenditures to a point that would menace the health and well-being of the public and destroy property values.

The debacle is attributable to uncontrolled expansion of debt when the city was on the high tide of prosperity, to lavish expenditure for unemployment relief and to the drastic deflation of Detroit's large industries, especially the manufacture of motor vehicles. The city's financial statements make it appear that it is in worse plight than any other municipality in the country and has reached the stage where Detroit is ready to throw up its hands.—Baltimore Sun.

THE REPEAL SITUATION.

Action upon the amendment to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment has been provided for in thirty-four states Michigan, Rhode Island and Wisconsin have ratified. The following dates of election in the various states are taken from a bulletin of the Association against the Prohibition Amendment:

- May 15—Wyoming.
- May 16—New Jersey.
- May 23—New York.
- May 27—Delaware.
- May 27—Nevada.
- June 5—Illinois.
- June 6—Indiana.
- June 13—Massachusetts.
- June 20—Iowa.
- June 27—West Virginia.
- July 11—Alabama.
- July 18—Arkansas.
- July 20—Tennessee.
- July 21—Oregon.
- *Aug. 26—Texas.
- Aug. 29—Washington.
- Sept. 5—Vermont.
- Sept. 11—Maine.
- Sept. 12—Maryland.
- Sept. 12—Minnesota.
- Sept. 19—New Mexico.
- Nov. 7—Ohio.
- *Nov. 7—Pennsylvania.

*Bill not yet finally approved.

This bulletin also says that nine states, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Missouri, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, and South Carolina, are expected to set elections in 1933, while in three others Idaho, Montana, and Utah, the governor has the option of setting the date in 1933 or 1934. North Carolina will vote in 1934, Georgia and Kansas and North Dakota have refused to provide for elections, while in Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Virginia no legislative action is possible until 1934.

The prohibition forces are tremendously handicapped for want of funds, but nevertheless, in various states they are preparing for vigorous fights. The work being done, in contrast to the historic method of “rousing,” is largely in the direction of systematic organization down thru the precincts.

It may be said with the utmost confidence that dry strength still exists and that no matter what may be the results of elections of the immediate future, the foundation is being laid, and laid rapidly, for the most formidable effort against the liquor traffic yet seen in this country.—Board of Temperance M. E. Church.

THE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT RACKET.

The New York “Herald Tribune Magazine” recently carried an astonishing article on fake automobile accidents. According to the article, these cost the American public directly some $14,000,000 a year—and to this must be added such indirect costs as police efforts to prevent them, cost of litigation, etc.

The technique of this particular “racket of the depression” is simple. The “victim” stands on a street corner until a car approaches. Then he apparently steps into its path and is knocked down. As a matter of fact, he is simply brushed by the car—and possibly he is not touched at all. A doctor who is in on the racket appears and takes charge of the “patient.” Severe bruises are found—in some instances these were prepared beforehand. The driver of the car is usually in on the racket himself, and he admits that he was at fault. The insurance company settles, and the principals split the proceeds. In a case which was recently successfully prosecuted it was shown where a single crooked doctor had collected thousands of dollars through a long series of faked accidents which he had arranged in collaboration with a taxi driver and others.

In the long run, the public pays for this racket in higher insurance rates, court costs, etc. The only way to dampen the ardor of the accident racketeer is to scrutinize every accident with utmost care, and when evidence of collusion is found, to prosecute to the full extent of the law. Every honest citizen should back up insurance companies and constituted authorities in their fight against faked claims.—Industrial News Review.

Painting Known to Indians.

Painting was known to the Indians who inhabited the western plains of the United States, although of a crude sort. On the continent of South America, the rough painting of pottery was known. The Central American tribes who succeeded the ancient Mayan empire knew “slip painting.” I. e., the slipping in of colored clay on the outside of pottery and outlining the slipped-in portion with a contrasting color, but that art belonged to ceramics.—Kansas City Star.

Radium Price Keeps Up.

Radium is one of the few substances which have not declined in cost during recent years. This is unfortunate because of the great value of radium in the treatment of certain kinds of disease. For several years past, radium has been selling for about $70,000 per gram. This means it costs about $2,660,000 an ounce. There are only a few ounces of radium in existence, with a total value estimated at $17,000,000.

Cereal Tips

By Jane Rogers

Corn flakes, for instance, with the usual milk or cream, and perhaps fruit, make a delicious and healthful supper dish for the children, or before-bedtime snack for the grown-ups. Then, too, corn flakes give an appetizing and novel touch to a wide variety of easily prepared cookies, candies and desserts.

Corn Flake Waffle Cookies
2/3 cup shortening 1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs (well beaten) 1 cup shredded coconut
2 cups flour 2 cups corn flakes

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Add eggs and mix well. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and add coconut and corn flakes. Drop by spoonfuls on hot waffle iron and bake until golden brown. Yield: 30 cookies, 2½ inches in diameter.

Corn Flake Strudel

Put a layer of corn flakes in a buttered pudding dish. Cover with layer of very thinly sliced apples, sprinkle with sugar and a little cinnamon, and dot with pieces of butter. Fill to top with alternate layers of corn flakes and apples, sprinkling the apples with cinnamon and sugar and dotting with butter. Top with a layer of corn flakes. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) until apples are soft.

LOW-TESTING COW CUTS DOWN PROFITS

Good Animals Prove Value in Milk Prices.

By C. G. BRADT, New York State College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Despite low milk prices, New York state dairymen can still collect premium prices for high-testing milk, for the rate is still four cents a "point." Under these circumstances, dairymen are giving more attention to their herd test and to removing low-testing cows.

For example, a dairyman who has an average milk test for his herd of 3 per cent butterfat has 20 cents a hundred deducted when he sells on a market that requires milk to test 3 5-10 per cent of fat. With milk at $1 a hundred, he is paid but 80 cents a hundred. If milk were selling for $3, he would get $2.80; a loss, but not in proportion to the 1932 loss.

Many New York state dairymen are using the dairy record club, or the mail order testing association, to discover the low testing cows in their herds. The charge for testing is made by the cow rather than by the herd and dairymen take the samples at home and keep part of the records. The samples are mailed to a central testing laboratory for testing and for the remainder of the record keeping. The service is available to dairymen any place in New York state. Information is available from the local farm bureau office or from the department of animal husbandry at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca.

Good Cows Prove Their Value in Dairy Economy

There is a limit to economy in feeding, in care and in overhead on a dairy farm. Some of our dairymen have approached dangerously near that limit—to a point where further cost cutting will result in reduction of returns. But still there is any amount of room for improvement in efficiency in the choice and development of individual cows.

Recent official records announced by the Holstein Friesian Association of America credit a heifer owned by E. E. Freeman of Modesto with 811.9 pounds of butterfat; an Ayrshire heifer with 600 pounds; a Pottenger bossy at Monrovia with 534.1 pounds, and a Los Angeles county farm cow at Honda with 474.1 pounds of fat. These young matrons have produced an average of over 600 pounds of butterfat in one lactation period.

According to average production of cows, these four have yielded about as much as fourteen ordinary animals. If good cows will produce more than three times as much as ordinary cows the way to efficiency seems clear enough. True, such animals cost more than the common run, but they do not cost three times as much, by any means.—Prairie Farmer.

Feeding Experiments

Values of pea vine silage fed to fattening stock are said to be varied, running from 80 to 90 per cent of the value of corn silage; but in placing such values it is understood that only the dark green and well preserved portion of the pea vine stack is considered, and not the black and rotted outer sections.

Steer feeding tests were also run, three lots of ten steers each being fed on a basal concentrate ration of shelled corn and cottonseed meal. One lot got alfalfa hay only, the second group had alfalfa plus corn silage and the third lot received alfalfa and pea silage. The corn silage lot gained the most and the pea vine silage lot gained slightly less than the straight alfalfa-fed group. Hogs followed the steers after December, and reduced the net loss on the basis of pork credits at $3.25 per hundred.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Clean Utensils

Poorly cleaned and sterilized milk pails, strainers, surface coolers, and milk cans add large numbers of bacteria to the milk, while well-sterilized utensils add less than 1,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. Poorly sterilized milking machines add millions of bacteria to every cubic centimeter of milk passing through them. Well-sterilized machines add less than 1,000 per cubic centimeter. Storage temperatures of 50 degrees F. or less will prevent noticeable increases in the number of bacteria up to 24 hours or longer. Station Circular No. 93 summarizes much of the available information on the common sources of bacteria and dirt in milk. A copy of this circular may be obtained free of charge upon request to the station at Geneva.—Missouri Farmer.

Weight of Milk

If a can which holds exactly 100 pounds of water is filled with average milk it will weigh 103.2 pounds instead of 100. However, butterfat is lighter than water having a specific gravity of only .93 at around 60 degrees F. Thus Jersey milk testing 7 per cent may not weigh more than 1.03, while skimmed milk may weigh close to 1.038, and 40 per cent cream will weigh little more than water, says a writer in the Montreal Family Herald.

Finds Young Hedgehogs

Soft, Also Inquisitive

One evening, when it was almost dark, I noticed a small creature come out from under a shed in my garden, and nimbly trot down the path and across a patch of lawn, writes a well-known naturalist. Suspecting what the animal was, I determined to become better acquainted, and so the next night found me waiting patiently in the shadow. Sure enough, about the same time of the evening my friend appeared again, this time, however, followed by three babies, all in a straight line. I quickly picked up the last of the procession and carried my prize into the house.

It was, of course, a young hedgehog, and was most interestingly inquisitive. There was no sign of fear, and after the first moment of my picking him up, showed no intention of making a ball of himself. I put him on the dining table, and he quickly investigated everything he could see. Although the light was on he did not seem to mind, and even allowed me to touch him again without remonstrance. He was delightfully soft to the touch underneath, and the spikes did not inconvenience one as long as the hand was held flat. Not wishing to make his mother uneasy, I soon returned him to the garden, where the rest of the family were sauntering about the lawn.—Montreal Herald.

Driest Place on Earth

The driest place on earth is Payta, in Peru, about five degrees south of the equator. In spite of the fact that this province is on the seaboard, there are children living there ten or twelve year old who have never seen a shower of rain.

Clouds are plentiful, and occasionally there are heavy sea fogs, yet as much as fifteen years may elapse between showers.

In spite of the dryness, this country is inhabited, for small streams, coming down from the western side of the Andes, water it.

Rush Message

A sepoy entered a telegraph office in India and handed in a message. The clerk, after reading the message, told him there was something wrong with the wording. "No, sahib, me know English," said the man. Again the clerk attempted to explain to him that it was worded wrongly. "Me know English," the sepoy declared haughtily and indignantly. "If you no send, me report Superintendent Mandalay." Then the message was forwarded. It read, "Come quick; father dangerously dead."—Vancouver Province.

SEE HOW AN EMBRYO GROWS WITHIN EGG

Students Watch All Stages of Development.

Visitors to the incubation school at the New York State College of Agriculture see how an embryo develops in all of the stages of hatching. This is made possible by a new method developed by Prof. Alexis L. Romanoff of the Cornell university experiment station.

Scientists attempted to study the growth of embryos as early as 1750 when Bequelin observed the germinal disk through a hole in the shell at the side or blunt end of the egg. The opening was covered with a piece of shell from another egg. In 1887 Gerlach was able to study the embryo up to the fifth day and occasionally to the eighth day. Byerly had about the same success in 1926.

At Cornell the development of the embryo has been observed from the fresh egg up to the normal hatching. The egg is first washed in alcohol and a hole is made about an inch in diameter at the blunt end of the egg by removing the shell and membranes. The opened egg is set on an indented glass to hold it upright and is covered with a sterilized beaker and placed in the incubator.

The experimenters found the greatest mortality from the second to the fourth day, when the heart begins to function. Eggs opened after one week of incubation had the least mortality and could be watched throughout the hatching process.

How Can Poultry Men Stay in the Business?

Now that commercial poultry production is furnishing a source of livelihood for many citizens, new problems are arising in the enterprise and many growers are wondering how they can continue in business.

"Some poultry men are inclined to push their birds to the limit of egg and flesh production. These men are using the facts developed by science to extract the final cent of profit from their birds, and in doing so there is a danger that some of the vitality is being sapped from poultry," says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at North Carolina State college. "Now, alert poultry men are seeing their flocks become more susceptible to troubles not heretofore a menace to the industry. All of this means that poultry men must give greater care to their feeding, breeding and other factors which will help to build up the stamina of the individual flocks."

In planning work for the new poultry year, Mr. Dearstyne believes it imperative to pay more attention to breeding.

Run Full Capacity

If opinion of state poultry workers and investigators is a safe guide there should be no hesitation about raising as many chicks as your equipment permits in 1933.

The outlook is favorable for reasonable profits at present and probable prices. As a general proposition, year after year, poultry raising is a profitable business under careful management. When market prices are comparatively low one must practice greater economy in management and be satisfied with smaller profits than in the years of high prices. Those who really make money on poultry are those who stick to it year after year with an eye always on all the factors that contribute to loss and gain.—Nebraska Farmer.

Feather-Eating Habit Cure

Feather plucking is a bad habit among fowls and often a difficult one to cure. In most cases it is due to the bird being kept in a small space and not having sufficient exercise, but can often be traced to lack of proper green food. Scattering the grain in litter will give the hens exercise and placing cabbage or other vegetable leaves upon the end of a string about 30 inches from the ground, so that the birds will have to jump for it, will help take their minds off the bad habit of feather eating.

Poultry Gleanings

The high moisture content of vegetable greens is a big factor in their value to poultry.

Egg prices and feed prices, when compared, remind poultrymen that only the best ration is profitable.

Egg production in commercial poultry flocks in Massachusetts has increased 35 per cent in the last 20 years.

Eggs generally weigh from 23 to 25 ounces to the dozen, but may vary from 18 to 32 ounces.

A pullet can withstand a range in temperature from nearly zero to about 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Blindness in chickens, whether old or young, may be due to an accident; it may be due to a severe case of roup in the flock; it may be due to an infestation of worms, or it may be due to a case of paralysis.

Our forefathers said "when the white oak leaves are as large as squirrels ears, 'tis time to have corn in the ground." We remember 53 years ago some farmers were planting corn on the 30th day of May, and we watered ours with tears, because we couldn't go to a big fishing party down the "creek."

Norway

Norway occupies the western half of the Scandinavian peninsula and has an area of about 125,000 square miles. Seventy per cent of Norway's area is barren land—mountain, moor, or glacier—uninhabitable by man. Of the entire area only 3,500 square miles are fit for agriculture. Dairy farming on co-operative basis is making great progress; butter and tinned milk are exported. Fishing is the principal occupation. There are about 2,000 miles of railways. Coastwise steamers serve all ports. The principal cities are Oslo (Christiania) the capital; Bergen, an important seaport with fishing and ship-building industry.

GROWTH OF A WORLD IDEA 1922-1933.

May 18th. International Goodwill Day 2:40 P. M., a National Broadcast over WOR.

There are many stories that begin, "Once upon a time there was," but this story of Goodwill Day begins, "Once upon a time there will be." On this day we look ahead to the time when our work and play will no longer be interrupted by wars, and nations when they disagree will go to law instead of war, just as men, instead of fighting duels as they once did, now go to law.

The teachers of the world have formed a World Federation of Education Associations and they urge that Goodwill Day be celebrated in all the schools of the world.

The children of Wales sent the first message 10 years ago and have sent one each year since.

Their message to the children of the world this year will be: "Boys and girls of all nations, we, the children of Wales, once again warmly greet you on Goodwill Day. In this spring-time of 1933 there are, all over the earth, millions of children who are unhappy because their fathers and brothers have no work to do. We do not know why there should be so much sorrow in a world which is so beautiful, and so much want in a world so rich.

We believe that this would not happen if all the nations to which we belong would live and work together as members of one family, trusting each other and enjoying together the riches of the earth. We believe, too, that by our thoughts we can help to bring this new spirit into the world. Let us then on this Goodwill Day, millions and millions of us, unite in one great thought of Peace, Peace between the peoples and peace between the Nations. With the faith that can remove mountains our thoughts will change the world."

"The ice pick is a fine weapon to punch holes in the cleansing powder can."

Truth, duty and interests, are the three great subjects for discussion among men.

Science of Health

By Dr. Thos. S. Englar

(A series of articles under the caption "Science of Health," will be published in The Carroll Record for an indefinite period. After this week they will appear on Page 7 or 8.—Ed.)

What is the true value of bran in overcoming chronic constipation?

An answer to this question, based on scientific investigation, may be of interest to puzzled persons who read, on the one hand, in the advertisements that wheat bran, in some proprietary form, is the sovereign remedy for sluggish bowels; but who see, in another place, the statement of a physician or health authority that bran should be eaten with caution, because of its "irritating" effect on the intestine.

The fact is that there is truth in both statements, insofar as they apply to differing physical conditions in different individuals. These differences are not so technical or mysterious that they cannot be understood by the average layman, intelligent enough to be interested in health, and in a possible cure for "the great American disease"—if he happens to be one of the myriad victims of it.

A group of sufferers from constipation were the objects of a recent careful study at Yale university, in which their entire diet was strictly controlled for a considerable period. The amount of fiber (cellulose) which they ingested was accurately measured by chemical analysis, and the percentage of it excreted was exactly measured in the same way. Right here it should be noted that some persons' digestive fluids have the property of dissolving vegetable fiber to a greater extent than have others. This fact was determined by the Yale research, along with other interesting conclusions, among which were:

1. That bran in the diet has a definitely corrective and beneficial effect in many cases of constipation which are not complicated by any organic disease, constriction, or inflammation of the intestines.

2. That in cases of constipation with so-called "irritable colon," addition of bran to the diet may be harmful. This is a condition usually manifesting itself in abdominal pain and mucus discharges (colitis). It may follow prolonged use of cathartics. In these cases, small quantities of powdered agar-agar may be helpful. Persons with symptoms of colitis should, however, seek the advice of a physician rather than attempting self-medication.

3. That wheat bran, whether natural or "processed," is more resistant to dissolution by digestive ferments than the fiber of fruits and vegetables; that, therefore, bran may alleviate cases of simple constipation which are not helped by vegetable and fruit diets.

It is a fact that many persons subsisting on present-day diet do not get enough insoluble fiber in their ration to furnish proper bulk, and retain moisture, in the intestinal contents. The bowel has difficulty in handling the concentrated residues, and constipation results. Despite warnings bran sponsored by some authorities, the Yale experiment proves that many of these costly ones would be helped by the regular, daily ingestion of bran in proper quantities.

It should be borne in mind that bran is an acid-forming substance in the body, which, in the past, has constituted an objection to its use by individuals inclined to systemic over-acidity. There are now on the market preparations of "acid washed bran," from which the acid portion has been removed, leaving the useful fiber. As between natural bran, and patent preparations of it, there seems little to choose in their good effects upon simple constipation. Indeed, the bran preparations may be found more satisfactory because they are "easier to take" in considerable amounts than the crude bran.

Housewife in Revolutionary Days

A letter from a Pennsylvania husband of the Revolutionary period records that his wife "provided and attended to the preparation of baking pies and cakes, bread and meat; cut and dried apples; tended the orchard; cleaned the house; saw to the washing of clothes, all of which were smoothed by her; frequently made 20 large cheeses; sewed and knit." In addition, her admiring husband records: "She reacheth forth her hand to her needy neighbors and friends." She was a faithful nurse, and attended both day and night in case of illness.

King Solomon's Wealth

Under the reign of Solomon, Israel developed into a commercial nation. Foreign alliances which he made formed the basis of trading relations abroad. He joined in maritime commerce with the Phoenicians, and once in three years sent a fleet from his port at the head of the gulf of Akaba to trade with Ophir, presumably on the eastern coast of Arabia, and places on the way. These expeditions brought back gold and oriental riches and vastly expanded the royal coffers.

Falling Ear Gives Man and Cronies the Jitters

Vienna.—Josef Steinmetz, a shoemaker of Schonbach, had the unpleasant sensation of seeing a human ear lying on the ground and finding it was his own.

As he entered the local inn he slipped and fell, brushing against a chair with his right ear. He felt no pain, but as he got up the ear lay on the ground. Putting his hand to his head he found it was his own.

The perplexed inn cronies sent for the village doctor, who was able to explain at once what had happened. The shoemaker had come a long distance in the bitter cold and the ear was badly frostbitten, so that it fell at a touch without any appreciable sensation to its owner.

Hung by Heels 24 Hours, Youth Saved From Tree

Pasadena, Calif.—Cadmus Lawrence, seventeen years old, was released from his canyon prison where he had been hanging by his heels for 24 hours.

Bruised and bleeding from a 30-foot fall over a cliff, the youth was discovered jammed between the forks of a tree.

Lawrence's feet were caught in the limbs and he was unable to extricate himself. He fainted from exertion and the rush of blood to his head, he said, "but after while I was numb."

The youth was on a hiking trip in the Altadena foothills when he slipped over the cliff. Two Boy Scouts, members of a searching party, found him.

Goat Starts Fire

Bridgewater, Mass.—Going Mrs. O'Leary's cow one better, Mrs. Michael Kashuba's goat started a fire, not by kicking a lantern, but by trying to eat one.

The fire destroyed a barn, causing loss estimated at $500.

"Pork Barrel" Legislation

This term originated in the early part of the last century. On March 3, 1823, congress passed the first bill for harbor improvements. Opponents of the bill alleged its advocates voted for it for political reasons only. This so-called "rush" on the federal treasury was compared to the rush made by the slaves on southern plantations when the pork barrel was opened. River and harbor improvement bills were afterward facetiously called "pork barrel bills." The term has since extended to any legislation supposedly passed for purposes of political patronage.

Huge Maori Maiden

Too many inches may even lead to absolute disaster, as witness in the case of Yella Mataroa, a Maori giantess who was over eight feet in height, weighed more than 420 pounds, and was extremely handsome. She lived in an isolated spot in New Zealand, and at the age of twenty-nine had an attack of appendicitis. They tried to get her to a hospital, but the roads were too bad for a car and her weight was so great that it smashed the buggy brought for her. They then managed to lift her on to a horse lorry, but she died before she could reach the hospital.

Chess Game By Telephone Boston-Philadelphia Feat

When the chess teams of the Mercantile Library Chess Association of Philadelphia and the Boston City Club played a match recently, they "met" by telephone, the moves of the players in each city being reported by wire to those in the other. Above is seen Sydney Sharp, state chess champion of Pennsylvania, about to make a move with one of his men which William Wilkinson (left) will report to his opponent in Boston.

The Westminster Deposit And Trust Company ANNOUNCES

that its plan of reorganization has received the approval of the Bank Commissioner of Maryland. Briefly, the plan is as follows: The par value of the present stock is decreased from $100.00 to $10.00 per share and one share of new stock will be given for each share of old stock and 9,000 shares of the new stock of the par value of $10.00 will be sold at $20.00 per share.

When the exchange and sale are completed the Bank will be permitted to resume normal banking business.

Subscriptions are now being received from the old stockholders, the depositors and others and the amount is more than half subscribed. Solicitors are calling on the stockholders and depositors explaining in detail the plan, but as the number is quite large it takes considerable time to see everyone and it would be appreciated if as many as possible would call at the Bank. It is the desire of the officers and directors to reopen the Bank speedily and with the proper cooperation of the stockholders and depositors the plan ought to be accomplished by the middle of this month.

This stock for sale to present stockholders, depositors and the public in general.

During the time of reorganization the Bank will be opened from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. and in the evening from 7 P. M. to 9 P. M.

Naming the Chow

If you have a dog of Chinese breed such as the chow, pug or pekingese, of course you want your pet to have a Chinese name. Following are a few suggestions offered by the Dog World, with their English translations: Aye Shing—loving heart; Chu-Jen—the master; Chin-Pao—golden treasure; Fwo-Kin—parti-color dog; Ho Yan—a fine fellow; Kum-Sum—golden hearted; Kwai-Chu—foreign jewel; Kwai-Wha—little lady; Shoh-Dee—little brother; Shih Bah—snow white; Shia-Kin—little dog; Tu-Sheng Tzu—only child; Tay Yang—sunshine, and Yan-Dan—friend of man.—Detroit News.

Not Scriptural Quotation

The phrase, "He tempests the wind to the shorn lamb," is not, as some have supposed, a Scriptural quotation. It is a variation of the line from "Maria," by Laurence Sterne (1713-1768), "God tempests the wind to the shorn lamb." This may be traced back to a passage in "Jacula Prudentum," by George Herbert (1593-1633), "To a close-shorn sheep God gives wind by measure." About 1594, however, Henri Estienne wrote in "Premises, etc.," "Dieu mesure le froid a la brebis tondu" (God measures the cold to the shorn lamb)—Exchange.

Music Notes

In the course of a music lesson, given in the lower grades the teacher was emphasizing the form and value of music.
Miss H. was having the kiddies make forms of whole notes, half notes and "quarter" notes on their fingers.
Little Mary, very much interested, said:
"Miss H, how do you make a 10-cent note?"

Trillions of Stars Now Seen Via Telescope

A universe of imagination staggering size, with 300 trillion stars already within the range of the astronomer's largest telescopes and unknown numbers still unseen, was described by Prof. Harlow Shapley of Harvard University at the convention of the National Academy of Sciences meeting at the University of Michigan.

In only a portion of the sky, 76,000 galaxies of stars, of which our Milky Way is a typical example, have been charted, said Professor Shapley. He expects that eventually 300,000 galaxies will be mapped in the heavens, with an estimate of about a billion stars of which our own sun is an average sample in each galaxy.

Stars which appear reddish in color have been thought to be very far away, but now Dr. Joel Stebbins of the Mt. Wilson observatory, California, reported to the academy that some red stars located in the Milky Way are four times closer to us than has been estimated.

A layer of "cosmic dust" which splits the Milky Way makes the stars on the far side appear red, just as our sun appears red at sunset, when its rays come to the observer through a longer distance of the dust-filled atmosphere of our planet.—Scientific American.

Swift-Sailing Clipper Ships Hung Up Records

One of the famous California clipper ship races was that of the Wild Pigeon, John Gilpin, Flying Fish and Trade Wind. They sailed against time, leaving New York on different dates. Flying Fish won, making the passage from New York to San Francisco in 92 days and 4 hours from port to anchor. The Gilpin made it in 93 days from port to pilot, and Wild Pigeon in 118 days. The Trade Wind, which left some time after the others, followed, with 102 days, having taken fire and burned for eight hours on the way. Another famous race was that between William H. Webb's Swordfish and Donald McKay's Flying Fish. The latter sailed from Boston November 5, 1851, and on the same day the Swordfish passed Sandy Hook. The Swordfish arrived in San Francisco on February 10, 1852, after a passage of 90 days from Boston.

Culture

Grove Patterson, of the Toledo Blade quotes from Matthew Arnold as to his idea of a man of culture. Arnold said: "The great men of culture are those who have had a passion for diffusing, for making prevail, for carrying from one end of society to the other, the best knowledge, the best ideas of their time, who have labored to divest knowledge of all that was harsh, uncouth, difficult, abstract, professional, exclusive; to humanize it; to make it efficient outside the clique of the cultivated and learned, yet still retaining the best knowledge and thought of the time, and a true source, therefore, of sweetness and light."

Ancient Soup Kettle

At Colchester, England, they dug up a bronze cauldron with drop handles. This kettle measures two feet across, and might have held the broth with which, as the rhyme tells us, the Old Woman who lived in a shoe fed her huge family.

The cauldron was found on the site of the old Roman camp, but the experts say it is Celtic work and that the first cook to stir it lived 2,000 years ago. It was looted by Roman soldiers, and it probably held soup made from looted cattle also. The life of a saucepan was not such a humdrum affair 2,000 years ago as it is today.

Frenchmen Found Humor in Idea of Guillotine

Doctor Guillotine, the inventor of the French machine for executions, is rumored to have died by the instrument. The guillotine was rather an improvement than an invention, for similar contrivances had been in use in other countries; Scotland, where the regent Morton was so decapitated in 1581; Yorkshire (the Halifax "gibbet"); Germany, Italy, even southern France.

It was in December, 1789, that Doctor Guillotine put his plan before the constituent assembly, but it was not adopted till October, 1791.

Apparently deputies found the subject humorous. "With my machine, messieurs," said the doctor, "I whisk off your head (vous fais sauter la tete) in a twinkling, and you have no pain." "Whereat," adds Carlyle, in his historical present tense, "they all laugh."

Scraps of Paper

A farmer purchased a number of agricultural implements from a London firm. When, after a reasonable period, the account was not paid, the firm sent a representative to the farmer to demand payment in cash.

After much haggling with the farmer the representative finally agreed to take a check in payment. Returning to London, he presented the check at the farmer's bank, and was surprised when the cashier refused to honor it.

"But surely Farmer George keeps his accounts here, doesn't he?" asked the puzzled man.

"Yes, that's quite true," replied the cashier. "The farmer keeps his accounts here, but I don't know where he keeps his money."—Boston Herald.

Bobbe Arnst, Pretty Stage Star Proves Skill as Kitchen Artist

Seasoning Is the Keynote Of Her Culinary Masterpieces.

LITTLE BOBBE ARNST, of the brown ringlets and bubbling personality, who has been featured in "Whoopie," and other Ziegfeld shows, is one of the peppiest bits of femininity who ever saw footlights. In fact, she has so much energy to spare between performances that she has to let off steam in some sort of activity. Like many wise persons, she chose a hobby far removed from her occupation, or rather, her art—though to say that Miss Arnst chose her hobby is stretching a point. For her avocation is cookery, at which she is a master and for which she has such instinctive talent that her performances in the kitchen are as natural to her as swimming to a fish.

In her file of recipes—she keeps a very complete one—is a recipe for stew. Now most people like their stew Irish. Not Bobbé. Her favorite is Spanish by name, and with it she is willing to challenge all comers and stew fanciers. One of the secrets of her success with this particular recipe, she says, is the seasoning. She uses sugar, along with the salt and pepper, to bring out the flavors and add piquancy to the dish, a seasoning secret long known to Continental chefs and recently brought into vogue in American cookery. Here is the formula:

Spanish Stew

Cut one pound of neck of lamb in small pieces, roll in flour and brown in a tablespoonful of drippings. Add 1 chopped onion, 3

Bobbé Arnst, in her kitchenette, proves that she knows her kitchen lore by preparing her own version of Spanish stew.

tomatoes chopped, 3 green peppers chopped and 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar. Sauté all together for 10 minutes, turning often with spatula. Then add 4 cupfuls of hot water, 1½ teaspoonfuls of salt, ¼ teaspoonful of pepper and simmer one hour. Add 1 cupful of green peas, 1 cupful of corn cut from the cob and ¼ cupful of rice, with additional water, as necessary. Continue to simmer until the rice is well done, adding water if the stew becomes too dry.

A NEW MAN

A kindly cottager took pity on the half-starved tramp and gave him a good square meal.

"You said you were too weak from starvation to work when you first came here," she said. "Surely after the good dinner I've given you you feel equal to doing something in return."

The well-satisfied tramp leaned back in his chair and sighed happily. "Madam," he said, "your dinner has done me so much good that I feel more than equal to work, I feel superior to it."—Answers.

Two Orders

"Well," reported the new salesman, swinging jauntily into the office, "I got two orders from Toughnut & Co. today."

"Fine, fine!" exclaimed the sales manager enthusiastically. "Yes. One order to get out and the other to stay out."

NOT EASILY TURNED

Daughter—You'll have to give me away when I marry Tom.
Father—I have already told him how extravagant you are and he isn't discouraged yet.

Deflated?

Mary Ann had been to the hospital to see her three-day-old baby brother. Daddy, expecting Mary Ann to be all thrilled, asked what she thought of him.

"Oh," she said, "he looked like a balloon that had been blown up and then had come down."

Just a Warning

"Jim, I see that your mule is branded on his right leg 'U. S.' I suppose he was an army mule and belonged to Uncle Sam."

"No, sah, dem letters don't have nothin' to do with no Uncle Sam; dey jes' stands fo' Un Safe, das all, sah."—Boston Transcript.

Ready for a Rainy Day

Friend (gazing aloft)—Aren't you worried when you see your husband looping the loop?

Aviator's Wife—Oh, no. You see, I remove all his loose change from his pockets before he goes up.—Jester.

Purely by Choice

Charity Worker (visiting jail)—And why are you here my man?

Suddenly the train rushed into broad daylight again, and the small voice was lifted in wonder.

"It's tomorrow," gasped the small boy.

The Fable of Mr. Eatmore's Diet

By GEORGE ADE

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

ONCE there was a Respected Citizen named George Eatmore who should have taken off his Hat to his Tummy. For the humble pear-shaped Organ had been through many a War. The Fact that it was not worn out, but was still trying to stay on the Job, proves that Nature is more wonderful than Art; when it comes to all-round toughness the Rhinoceros runs second to Man.

Before the stomach finally went on strike it earned many a Service Stripe. Through years of gormandizing and guzzling it was a True Pal of George, always right there when needed and doing its Duty cheerfully under the most trying Circumstances.

And yet, for several Decades, Mr. Eatmore never referred to his faithful Gizzard except in Language of Complaint. And he would not have dreamed of introducing his Stomach as a Topic of Conversation in Polite Society. He adhered to the old-fashioned Belief that the Alimentary Canal is entirely a private Affair.

It would be impossible to produce a Novel, Play or Movie without featuring the Heart. The Cardiacal Mechanism is put in the Center of the Stage and flooded with Spot-Lights while the hard-working and reliable stomach, situated only about Eight Inches to the Southwest, is permitted to toll at the most menial tasks in utter Darkness, with never a word of Sympathy or Encouragement. The prudes say that One who becomes too specific regarding the old Food-Trap is immodest and guilty of a Social Error.

The Lungs often receive Honorable Mention and many a Vermiform Appendix, with little to be said for it in the way of Looks, is carefully preserved in a Bottle and shown to Callers, but the Stomach has been and continues to be, as you might say, the Step-Child of the Human Organism. It endures all of the Hardships and gets most of the Blame.

For instance, take the Case of George Eatmore. Even while he was very Young and on the Milk, he would often ask his Digestive Apparatus to take on such Odds and Ends as Buttons, Pins, small Pieces of Coal, Calling Cards and Lint. Soon after he was weaned he put into the handy Receptacle a most varied Assortment, including Green Apples, Raw Turnips, Molasses Candy, Strawberry Pop and all of the dye-stuff Berries and oleaginous Nuts growing in the Wildwood.

Did the Craw rebel when it was bombarded at all hours? On the Contrary, it stood up and never was devoid of Pep. Each Morning it would look up at George and say, "Well, my Hearty, what's the Program for Today?"

College Lads Learned Something.

It was while George was in High School that he got quite a Giggie one day from reading in his Physiology that the Stomach of Man contains about Three Pints. Very often he had eaten as many as two Watermelons at a Sitting and anyone who says that two Watermelons are not more than three pints has never studied Botany. It just goes to show how little the Authorities really know.

After George entered College he and the Receiving Station took many a hard Trip together. All this happened when Keg Parties were considered Polite Functions and a string of Weenies smothered with Mustard was called a Light Luncheon. Lads who attended Institutions of Learning really learned something.

Between the catch-as-catch-can Beany, which specialized on dried Prunes which had been outer-cased by the Goodyear Company, and those jolly Midnight Pick-ups consisting largely of Limburger and Rye Bread, it seemed at times that George should have been supplied with several Stomachs, the same as a Cow.

Once in a while the hard-worked Pouch would try to suggest to George that it was not a Waste-Basket, but he seemed to think that the Proper time to eat was between meals. Whenever there was a complaint he would ignore it and urge the patient Slave to keep on working overtime.

We now discover Our Hero as a struggling Law Student, trying to live on Nothing per Week. It was during these Lean Days, after Dad had discontinued the sending of Checks, that George seemed to regard the Doughnut as Vitamin B. He frequented the old-style Lunch Counter and subsisted on so-called Food which was turned out by Poundries instead of being cooked. When he hoisted a Cup of Coffee which had been twenty-four hours in the Urn, it is little Wonder that the Stomach would look up at him in Surprise and emit a low Growl of Protest.

About the Time that he got a foothold he married a very sweet little Apricotina who had been taking Music Lessons and cooked accordingly. George could have played Eighteen Holes with one of her Soda Biscuits. It was truly said of her that she could not boil Water without giving it a Scorching Taste. But she could tear the Lining out of Tostli's "Good-Bye."

For a long time they couldn't afford a Swede and it was during this Period, when the Little Woman was trying to turn out Angel Food which could be cut with a Knife instead of a Pair of Scissors, that Mr. Eatmore and his allimentary Slide-Kick earned a couple of Carnegie Medals for Heroism. You say that Anybody can make Tea. Even a man. Well, Sweetie could do something to it which made it taste like Sheep-Dip. And not the best Quality of Sheep-Dip at that.

Every Known Variety of Chow.

At last the Sun of Prosperity began to shine on the Eatmores and they had a Lot of Servants. They had only Two at one Time, but they had a lot in the course of a Year. The colored Mammies would prepare everything Southern Style, while the Transients imported from Ireland favored Corned Beef buried in Cabbage, and several who had escaped from Germany to avoid Military Service put Caraway Seed in every Viand and then laid a Dill Pickle on top of it. Just when the Gullet thought it had transported every known variety of Chow, along would come a pleasing Novelty, such as Ravioli, or Tripe with Apples chopped up in it, or Olives stuffed with Torpedoes, or Hungarian Goulash, or Chicken Livers wearing Festoons of Garlic, or Gutta Percha Pudding dashed with Shellac, or the seductive Alligator Pear swimming in the Lubricant which you see advertised at every Filling Station.

When a good Doctor goes over a Man he always listens to the Heart. Sooner or later Science will devise a Dings which will enable Doc to listen to the Stomach and in that Event the Specialists will get many an Earful. For instance, the Stomach which accompanied Mr. Eatmore could have written quite a large Volume on "Unexpected Guests."

Not until George became a Prominent Citizen and began to attend Formal Dinners did he put his Digestion to the Supreme Test, and start in to lean heavily on Bi-Carbonate of Soda. We are referring to the Age of Gustatory Miracles when every Diner-Out found an Exhibit of Glassware in front of his plate and was supposed to fly at every kind of red, white and blue Fluid during the prolonged Battle with the heavy Courses. A real Dinner, in the old days of cheap Liquor and the deadly Toast List, made Belshazzar's Feast look like a Cafeteria Snack. The Boys had to get into a State of Coma in order to put up with the Speeches.

When Mr. Eatmore took his Stomach away with him after one of those three-hour Feeds he didn't have to be told that his Stomach was present. He would throw it a Little Pepsin and tell it to behave. During all his years of Alimentary Acrobatics, George never took any Blame on himself. He would curse his Stomach and feel that he was the Injured Party.

Late this Season Mr. Eatmore was entertained a great deal by Friends who had Pre-War Stuff. It was made before the War between Hoover and the Senate. At the Hospital he told the Nurses and Everybody that it was Gastritis. The Stomach had no opportunity to speak up and say "I went into the Ring once too often."

As some of his old-time Associates were driving back from the Cemetery they removed the Black Gloves and said they couldn't understand why George had to check in at the Early Age of 62, because the Old Scout certainly had taken the Best of Care of himself at all Times.

Energy Received From Sun

Measured by Pyrheliometer

The energy received from the sun is measured by means of a device known as the "pyrheliometer." It consists of a small tube, at the bottom of which is a blackened disk of silver. The disk contains a tiny reservoir of water in which a thermometer bulb is immersed. The tube is pointed at the sun and the rate at which the water heats is measured. From this, the amount of solar energy can be calculated.

The "solar constant," that is, the average amount of heat received each minute upon a square centimeter of the earth's surface, turns out to be 1.94 calories. (A calorie is the amount of heat needed to raise the temperature of a cubic centimeter of water one degree. A centimeter is about a third of an inch.)

As has been pointed out, 1.94 calories seems a small figure. But it is necessary to remember the size of the earth. We are asked to imagine a silver disk one mile square enclosing 750 tons of water. The sunlight falling on this disk, we are told, would raise the temperature of the water from the freezing point to the boiling point in one minute.

About Haiti

The island contained the first European settlement in the New World; it was the headquarters of a band of French buccaniers in the Seventeenth century, and it was defended against the British by the negroes under Toussaint l'Ouverture in 1798. Since then the island has had a variety of rulers, including a French general who declared himself emperor; a negro emperor, Christophe; two negro presidents of a republic; a third negro president named Souleouque, who declared himself emperor under the title of Faustin I, and a number of rulers who have risen on the crest of more recent revolutions.

Words Made by the Movies

A recent volume which takes the nature of a guide book to the movie studios and movie processes, contains an appendix devoted to words which were born in the studios and there are several hundred of them. Most of them are not exactly elegant, but they are expressive and have found their way into somewhat general use.

Lesson for May 14

JESUS ASSERTS HIS KINGSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass. Zech. 9:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Praising Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—King of All Kings.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Acknowledging Christ as King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Lordship of Jesus.

I. Jesus Officially Presented to the Jewish Nation as Their King (vv. 1-11).

It is hardly proper to designate this the "triumphal entry" for it was only so to outward appearance. It was rather the promised Messiah publicly offering himself to the Jewish nation as the king.

1. The preparation (vv. 1-5).

a. Two disciples sent to bring the colt (vv. 1-3). Jesus told them just where to find it and how to answer the owner's inquiry.

b. The obedience of the disciples (vv. 4-6). Without asking the reason why, they went at Christ's bidding. The command may have seemed strange and unreasonable, but they rendered explicit obedience.

2. The entry into Jerusalem (vv. 7-10).

a. The disciples put their garments upon the colt, and Jesus sat upon it (v. 7). This action showed their recognition of Jesus as their Messiah, the King (II Kings 9:13).

b. The action of the multitude (vv. 8, 9). Some spread their garments in the way. Others who had no garments to spare threw down branches. This entry was in fulfillment of a prophecy uttered some five hundred years before (Zech. 9:9). They uttered the very cry which the prophet predicted. Since the prediction of the first coming was thus literally fulfilled, we can be assured that those concerning his second coming will likewise have literal fulfillment. The prophecy of Zech. 14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as was that of Zech. 9:9.

c. The action of Jesus (v. 11). Upon entering the temple he looked round upon all things, but as it was eventide, he with the twelve withdrew to Bethany.

II. Jesus Exercising Kingly Authority (vv. 12-19).

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv. 12-14). The fig tree is typical of the Jewish nation. The fruit normally appears on the fig tree ahead of the leaves. The presence of the leaves is assurance of fruit. This was an acted parable of Christ's judgment on Israel for pretension to being the chosen people without the fruits thereof.

2. The temple cleansed (vv. 15-19). For the various sacrifices many oxen, sheep, and doves were needed. It was impracticable for people from distant parts to bring their sacrifices with them. They brought money, therefore, and bought the animals needed. This privilege was provided in the Jewish law (Deut. 14:24-26). In such cases exchange was necessary. However, when evil men used it as an opportunity for gain, it became an offense to God. It defiled his house. Jesus made a scourge of cords and drove out the money changers (John 2:15), overthrowing their tables and pouring out their money. By this act he declared himself to be the Lord of the temple, and one with God. The scribes and chief priests grasped the meaning thereof, for they were aroused to murderous hate and sought to destroy him.

III. Jesus' Authority Challenged (vv. 27-33).

1. By whom (vv. 27, 28). The chief priests, the scribes, and the elders demanded that he show by what authority he accepted the honors of the Messiah and by whom he was given the right to cast out the money changers.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 29, 30). He responded to their challenge by a question which placed them in a dilemma. Since John was his forerunner, the commission of John and Jesus had the same source. If John's commission was from heaven, Christ's commission was from heaven likewise. If they had accepted John's message, they would have been ready to accept his. They were powerless to destroy John because the people accepted John as having been sent from heaven.

3. The answer of the chief priests and scribes (vv. 31-33). Perceiving the force of the dilemma in which they were placed, they confessed that they did not know the source of John's commission. These rulers had no affection for Jesus so they rejected his message and sought to destroy him.

Living Our Belief

The Chinese, whose quaint confession of faith was, "I am reading the Bible now and behaving it," had a better conception of what is involved in being a Christian than many professed believers of long standing.—Outlook.

Cannot Roof Us In

Satan may build a hedge about us, and fence us in, and hinder our movements, but he cannot roof us in, and prevent our looking up.—J. Hudson Taylor.

Dumas' Musketeers Were People, Not Legendary

There is such frequent disillusionment as to the glorious and gallant characters of the story-books—most of them are proved to be no more than creatures of the imagination—that many persons will be exhilarated when they realize for the first time that historians are able to reveal as actual beings certain of the famous figures that they themselves had always thought to be legendary.

Dumas' Musketeers were actual people, after all, says the Illustrated London News. Some of the houses in which they were born and reared survive in South France today. The great d'Artagnan's real name was Charles de Baatz de Castelmore, and he was born about 1625 at the chateau of that name near Lupiac (Gers).

His mother came from the Chateau d'Artagnan on the borders of Gascony and Bigorre. Charles de Baatz and his elder brother habitually used their mother's name to avoid confusion with their father, Bertrand de Baatz, Seigneur de Castelmore.

The Chateau d'Artagnan came into the hands of the poet, Robert de Montesquiou, who entertained D'Annunzio there in 1910, and sold it in 1918 for 170,000 francs. The remains of the property were recently disposed of for 30,000 francs.

Kiddies' Preference for

Mother, Dad Settled

Freud raised an unholy furor with his theory that all children are attached to the parent of opposite sex; and upon this theory he built the whole structure of the "Oedipus complex," says the Modern Psychologist.

An official of the University of Minnesota, one who is both skeptical and practical, decided to test the thing. So he sent out questionnaires—that ancient method that leads to more dispute than proof. He forwarded them to parents of 3,178 children, of whom 1,626 were boys and 1,552 girls.

The answers, if valid, indicate that Freud is all wrong, and that his hypothesis, which he defends so strenuously and vituperatively, seems not to be based on fact. For the questionnaires showed no particular preference for the opposite sex. There does seem to be a slightly closer attachment toward the mother in about half the cases, but even this vanishes as the children grow older.

However, the Adlerian psychologists might draw a few crumbs of comfort from the results of this questionnaire; they indicate that jealousy is most frequent when attention is given to another child.

An Old but Busy Port

The town of Saloniki, in the Balkans on the Aegean sea, has existed for 2,300 years and during that time it has been the scene of many revolutionary changes and other disturbances, including a number of earthquakes. It has a very considerable population. After Greece was proclaimed a republic a human deluge of Greek refugees left Turkey for their homeland and Saloniki census takers added about 60,000 Greeks to the city's population. The free port district of Saloniki is utilized by the Balkan states that have no suitable sea outlet. Over the Saloniki quays pass for export grain and flour, silk cocoons, chrome, manganese and iron, live stock and their products, opium and tobacco from Greek and Balkan sources.

Roman Names

A surname, in the derivation of the word, is an "extra name," and the general use of surnames as family names did not develop until the Thirteenth century. The Roman "cognomen," however, was equivalent to the modern surname or family name. A Roman of social position ordinarily had three names, the last being his cognomen and the name by which his family was known. Thus, in Marcus Tullius Cicero, the first name is the praenomen, or personal name; the second the nomen, or name of the gens or clan; and the third the cognomen, the name of the family or branch of the gens. This system of names long antedated Christian times.

A "Bullet" of Water

The "sharpshooter" is the popular name given to a fish which is quite common in the streams of Siam. It secures its food by projecting a globule of water at its desired morsel which is generally some insect seen on a leaf or twig overhanging the stream. The fish can throw the big drop a distance of 10 feet but its aim is almost unerring at 4 feet. In the back of its mouth there is a cavity which holds the water and when the fish sights its dinner it takes careful aim and then opening its mouth discharges the globule of water by a quick compression of its gills.

Siegfriedian Sword Found

A gold-studded sword with broken blade that recently was dug out of a hillside near Alt-Lussheim may very well have belonged to the Burgundian prince who became the Siegfried of the Nibelungen saga. Antiquarians have placed the sword in the early part of the Fifth century. This is the right time for the historical prototype of Siegfried, and the region of the find is right, too, for here is where the Burgundians had their short-lived kingdom, till it crashed before the onslaught of the Huns.—New York Times.

Danger Lurks in Dark Closets

Flimsy garments are easily ignited. Keep matches away from them. Careful housewives are lighting their dark closets with a new type of wall light which operates on batteries. It can be installed without trouble any place in the home where a light is needed.

WHAT ANNA WAS

A professor was telling to more or less eager ears the facts about Boccaccio and the indiscreet Anna of Aquinas.

The class was lulled by his gentle version of the affair, until he was about to close, when he said: "Anna was, you must know, a well—if I may lapse into the extreme modern vernacular—his eyes at this point gleamed wickedly and the class sat up—'she was,' continued the professor boldly, 'what I can only call—a flirt!'—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Time for Insurance

Old Man Doolittle was past ninety when he thought it was time for him to take out some life insurance. The agent told him the company couldn't accept such a risk as that—a man over ninety years of age.

"Well," squeaked the old gentleman, "if you look up your figures you'll find that mighty few people die after the age of ninety."

Exit

Weighty Problem

He—Can you make cakes like mother used to?

She—Yes, if you can put up with the indigestion father used to have.—Smith's Weekly.

Birds' Suicide Flight

Mystery to Canadians

High over Quebec there soared recently for the first time in many years great flocks of fat, black and white sea birds, flying toward the St. Lawrence river basin and death. They were Arctic murrets (also called gull-lemots), cousins of the auks.

The cause of their periodic suicide flight is a mystery which Canadian ornithologists hope to solve, says Time Magazine.

A crow-sized bird with set-back legs which make it stand upright like a penguin, the murre breeds in colonies on Arctic cliff ledges. It lays an egg pointed at one end so that it rolls in a circle and does not fall off the ledge.

Once hunted for oil, as were the extinct great auks, murrets have grown scarce and are now protected by treaty between the United States and Canada. Only Indians and Eskimos may eat their eggs or kill them for food.

Like the little auk, the murre feeds on ocean crustacea and starves inland. An official of New York's Bronx zoo thought the murre's death flight might be caused by a cyclical failure in their food supply.

Woodsman Tells What to ### Do When Lost in Forest

A New York state woodsman offers the following advice on what to do when lost in the woods:

"A compass, of course, is the best bet, but one may by accident or carelessness fail to have it with him when he gets into trouble. In this event, the most practical aid I know of is as follows, especially in country that is even slightly hilly or rolling:

"On such terrain one never goes more than a short distance without striking a tiny rivulet, or even a dry watercourse. Follow any such watercourse implicitly, as it is bound to carry one to a larger stream, which in turn should be followed to the nearest habitation.

"All experience shows that settlements follow the watercourses. It is in the valleys that the richest farmland is found, and so for this and other practical reasons—at least in a good part of the United States—this plan of following the watercourses will probably bring one to nearer help than any alternative."—New York Herald Tribune.

U. S. Weather Bureau

The United States weather bureau has charge of the forecasting of the weather; issuance and display of weather forecasts and storm, cold wave, frost, forest-fire warning and flood warning; gauging and reporting of river stages; collection and transmission of marine intelligence for the benefit of commerce and navigation; collection and furnishing of meteorological information and forecasts, including upper-air observations, for the benefit of air navigation; reporting of temperature and rainfall conditions for agricultural interests; and the taking of such meteorological observations as may be necessary to determine and record the climatic conditions of the United States. The bureau publishes daily weather maps, a monthly weather review and other reports and pamphlets.

Selling Canada

There can be no such thing as a sale of part of Canada to the United States by Great Britain, because Britain does not own Canada, and cannot sell what it does not own. Any part of Canada which does not belong to private individuals or companies belongs to the crown, that is the government of Canada or in fact the people of Canada themselves. Only the people of Canada have the right to sell Canada. Britain has no say in the matter. Canada is part of the British empire and Canadians are loyal to the king, but Canada is a self-governing, independent unit of the empire.—Montreal Herald.

"Sandford and Merton"

The author of the English classic "Sandford and Merton," Thomas Day (1749-89) selected two orphan girls of twelve to bring up in order to choose the best as wife. The experiment was a failure and Day turned to more mature women. He would qualify and described the mode of life he expected his wife to pass. One woman failed to fulfill the code of lunacy laid down, a wealthy one, too, who gave up carriages, servants, music, walked barefooted in the snow and submitted, weeping, to other tests proving her docility and the domination of her legal owner.

Slow to Judge

What is commonly wrong is to pass a judgment on our fellow-creatures. Never let it be forgotten that there is scarcely a single moral action of a single man of which other men can have such a knowledge, in its ultimate grounds, its surrounding incidents, and the real determining causes of its merits, as to warrant their pronouncing a conclusive judgment upon it.—W. E. Gladstone.

Shaft Endures Long Service

A stone shaft which served the Pilgrim Fathers more than three centuries ago still serves a useful purpose at Plainville, Mass. It is the Old Angle Tree Monument, dating back to 1628. The shaft, 14 feet high, once divided the Massachusetts Bay Colony from the Plymouth Colony. Now it marks the south boundary of the town of Plainville.

POOR FEEDING CUTS PROFIT ON POULTRY

Balanced Ration Necessary, Expert Advises.

Instead of substituting, there has been considerable subtracting done in feeding poultry, and as a consequence, some poultrymen are failing to get the income they should get from their flocks.

Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at North Carolina state college, says considering its great importance, feeds and feeding for poultry in general less understood than any other phase of the industry. This lack of information is shown especially when an attempt is made to substitute certain feeds on hand at home for those which should be purchased or exchanged.

Mr. Dearstyne declares that poultry requires a balanced ration containing protein, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and vitamins in an available form. These should be given in the quantity and of the quality to maintain the bodily vigor of the fowls and permit them to lay according to their highest ability. It is important to give the birds plenty of water because the fowl's body is 55 per cent water and the egg is over 65 per cent water.

Animal proteins as supplied by fish meal, meat meal or milk products are also necessary. It is not enough to rely on the vegetable proteins supplied in certain of the grain feeds.

The fats supplied by grain feed are usually enough for poultry but minerals should be supplied by bone meal, oyster shell, limestone, rock phosphate and salt. Mineral deficiencies in the ration are common.

More Encouragement for Profit in Poultry Game

According to figures issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, the number of hens and pullets in farm flocks is from 4 to 5 per cent greater than one year ago. It is thought that egg production may not be larger for some time to come. The reason given for this estimate is the higher percentage of late hatched pullets, and also because it is doubtful whether this winter will be as mild as that of a year ago.

Aside from this, the storage situation is more favorable. Holdings of case eggs on September 1 were 34 per cent below those on the corresponding date last year, and 37 per cent below the average of the last five years. With this reduction in storage supplies, even if current production should prove larger than last year, there would still be a considerably smaller supply of eggs available for consumption during the next few months.

Egg shipments from the Pacific coast have been light for some time, and may decrease still further, because of a 13 per cent estimated decrease of chicks raised last spring and summer. The low price of feed will also be an important factor in bringing profitable returns from all flocks which are well bred and well fed.—Wallace's Farmer.

Hens That Do Not Lay Should Be Culled Out

If one could be certain that he has hens and pullets in his flock that would not lay any eggs until next spring he would not want to feed them all winter.

One way of reducing the feed cost of producing eggs is to cull out undesirable birds at intervals frequent enough to prevent their getting very much feed without paying for it. Among the laying flock there are hens of this class such as those that loafed through the summer, laying too few eggs to be profitable. There may also be diseased hens or those out of condition that should not be carried any longer. Among the pullet flock may be poorly developed, diseased, or otherwise unfit birds that should come out. It is not quite fair, nor good business, for a good hen to pay for the feed eaten by a cull.—Hoard's Dairymen.

Feed Hens Freely

If your poultry flock is not producing as efficiently as you know it should be, check up on the available feeding and watering space. See that there is plenty of room for all the birds to eat freely and see further that they are given a good balanced ration which will stimulate and maintain egg production. Poorly-fed birds will not be good producers. Hens will pay a better price for feed than any other kind of animals produced on the farm.—Prairie Farmer.

Poultry Must Be Meaty

Trying to raise poultry meat with insufficient feed has been a great disappointment to some beginners, says the Indiana Farmer's Guide. Wholesale buyers quickly run their fingers down the breast bones of the birds they buy. Roasters with razor breasts are quickly classed as No. 2 birds and buyers do not want them. At least the price per pound to the producer is too low to show anything but a loss. Thus there is proof that it pays to raise No. 1 birds.

KILL CROWS AND SAVE FOWLS.

Without a question of doubt, crows destroy more eggs of birds and fowl than any other agency and are especially destructive to our wildfowl supply. Maryland, being blessed with the great Chesapeake Bay and tributaries, furnishes more adequate breeding areas for black ducks and blue-winged teal (our native species) than any state along the Atlantic Coast. On the Blackwater Migratory Game Refuge located in the great black muskrat area of Dorchester County, Peter J. Van Huisen, U. S. Deputy Game Protector and Superintendent of the Refuge reports that in 1932, 32% of wild duck eggs of nests found on this area were destroyed by the crow. In addition to being so detrimental to our wildfowl supply, the crow is also very destructive to not only ground-nesting birds but to tree-nesting birds as well through the destruction of eggs. Therefore, if you want nature to increase, then get the crow.

The sportsmen of Maryland can assist the farmer as well as themselves by thinning out the ever-increasing crow population during the nesting season which has already begun. Scientists, in making examinations of the contents of stomachs of crows report that during the nesting season, they are one of the most destructive agencies to nearly all forms of bird-life and to the farmer's grain crops as well. It seems the crow has no enemies to speak of. Only certain owls will attempt a fight with a crow. Therefore, there is very little check upon their increase. In addition to their destructiveness to eggs of practically all species of birds, they are also very destructive to young poultry. Observations prove the crow to be a very smart bird. For instance, after locating a duck nest or a bird nest by following the female, the crow summons others of his tribe and they attack, drive the bird from the nest and eat the eggs or her fledglings.

We advise the farmers who are annoyed with crows to take eggs, puncture a small hole in one end and insert strychnine, paste adhesive plaster over the hole and lay the eggs around where crows are using. Untold numbers can be killed in this manner.—E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden.

INCREASE IN AUTO FATALITIES.

It is discouraging to hear that automobile fatalities are increasing all over the country. Surely drivers have had warnings enough of the results of carelessness! It is argued that skill and presence of mind may avert most of these, which is no doubt true enough, but hardly an excuse for taking chances.

Probably the larger number of accidents may be traced to the feeling on the part of the driver that he owns the road. The pedestrian, at least, has every reason to resent this attitude. What the driver should remember is that when he imperils others he usually imperils himself.—Phila. Inquirer.

At the marriage of Miss Ella Gunness and Ralph Foley, deaf mutes, of Northampton, Eng., the bridesmaid and bestman were also deaf and dumb.

'SOVIET GIRL SPY KIDNAPED TO STOP JEALOUS TONGUE

Vanishes After Making Threat to Bare Fate of Missing Noble.

Paris.—It is more than three years since the Russian emigrant and refugee, General Koutieff, was kidnaped at high noon in the streets of Paris and disappeared completely, and apparently forever, from the stage of the world where he had played a significant role.

Now, just as the jealous fury of Marie Elianoff-Graff is believed to have been about to betray the secret of the gallant general's disappearance, she, too, disappears in Switzerland.

It has set Parisians on tiptoe. Half the men and women in the city are pussyfooting around, seeking clues, for the "affaire Koutieff," the "grand mystere russe" has in it all the drama, the passion, the excitement the French so dearly love.

Fought With the French.

To begin with, General Koutieff was a survival of that imperial regime that, under the czar, meant so much to republican France. The war came, then the Bolsheviks, Koutieff and a brave band of imperial officers escaped, made their way here and fought, fought very bravely, in Foch's victorious army.

After the war, General Koutieff became the head and center of the effort to hold the Russian emigres together in an endless endeavor to bring the Bolsheviks to time. So three years ago, when he disappeared, it was presumed that the famous Cheka, Moscow's political police force, was responsible. No trace of Koutieff was ever found.

The French axiom "cherchez la femme" led to growing suspicion of a blond named Marie Elianoff-Graff, wife of a Bolshevik agent named Barmine. Suddenly, she, too, disappeared. When she was finally found, she was in a hospital.

She did not remain available for long. Orders from Moscow sent her and her husband to Milan. Now Milan is the center of industrial Italy and Barmine was there to buy supplies, and this intention, it seems, opened wide the doors of the industrial aristocracy of the city, an aristocracy famous throughout the continent for the beauty of its women.

They Became Friendly.

There were many parties. At one of them Barmine met a lady with whom he became friendly. In the subsequent talk that couple their names frequent mention was made of the fact that the duty of a diplomatic agent is to ingratiate himself with all and sundry, and it was this excuse that Barmine used in explaining himself to his wife, but this wife of his, this blond beauty whom many Parisians think enticed Koutieff along the road upon which he was trapped by the Soviets—this lady known to the diplomacy of Europe as Marie Elianoff-Graff, whatever her work in the interests of the Bolsheviks, remained fundamentally a woman, and there seems to be no question that she loved her husband.

So Barmine did some explaining, but not enough, for the quarrelling of these two soon became a cause of concern to the Soviet embassy. Soon orders were issued for Barmine to return to Moscow. He went, but his wife refused to go. She was under no illusions as to what the Cheka might do.

From Moscow Barmine was sent to Brussels, but his wife never rejoined him. She was next found shut up in a Swiss asylum for the insane. Her whereabouts became known because the authorities refused to keep her any longer on the ground that she was sane, and that her talk was very much to the point and worth investigating.

And now there enters upon the scene that figure of legend, that chief of the Cheka, a man named Roizemann. With two others, he went to the asylum in Switzerland and took Marie Elianoff-Graff away with him in a high-powered car. She has not been seen or heard of since.

Bandaged Hand Used by Man to Gyp Merchant

Pueblo, Colo.—A confidence man "made up" to play his part in a skin game here that netted him $12.50.

The man, his hand bandaged and in a sling, appeared at a local shoe company and presented a check drawn on "the Citizens' State bank" of Denver. No such bank exists. The check was signed by a casualty company, also nonexistent.

Across the face was written "For hand injury." The storekeeper who cashed the check after a look at the bandage is virtually certain that the injury also was nonexistent.

Watch Saves His Life by Stopping Thug's Bullet

Chicago.—A watch, received as a present fifteen years ago, saved the life of Fred Falk when it stopped a burglar's bullet. Falk was at his home at 7819 Chappel avenue when he was notified that burglars were in his brother's bakery at 2006 East Seventy-first street. He hurried to the store. As he crept into a passageway alongside the store, two burglars emerged. Falk seized one and the other fired at him. The bullet smashed the watch to pieces in his vest pocket, but the only injury Falk suffered was a slight bruise from the impact.

BEWARE OF POISON IVY.

Since the season is now here when poison ivy or poison oak threatens those susceptible to it, it behooves all who do not know this plant by sight to learn what it looks like and to avoid contact with it.

It grows everywhere in this latitude, in the woods, along the river banks, along the paths and fence rows, on trees, and over the ground, and adapts itself to practically any soil. You should be on the lookout for it whenever you take a walk in the country.

The leaves and branches contain an oily resinous juice or sap, a very small portion of which will cause an intense irritation of the skin, when one who is susceptible comes in contact with it and does not wash it off promptly. The affected parts become red and swollen and covered with little blisters. Contrary to popular opinion the content of the blisters is not poisonous and when they break and the fluid spreads will now cause new blisters to form, but the oily resin may be carried on the hands from one part of the body to another and give rise to additional points of irritation.

If contact with the plant is known to have taken place, wash the exposed parts as soon as possible with soap and warm water, scrubbing thoroughly with a nail brush and repeat this washing several times, changing the water frequently. If washing is not done thoroughly it merely spreads the poison. Discard or have cleaned any clothing which may have come in contact with the plant.

A solution of bicarbonate of soda, a tablespoonful to a pint of warm water, will assist in allaying the irritation and in recovery. Wash the affected parts with it and apply it on gauze wet with the soda solution.

Many remedies of many kinds have been used, and some are beneficial. The best remedy yet found is made from the plant itself. This remedy should be used only on the advice of a physician. There are various preparations of this remedy and two ways of using it, one, to take it by the mouth, the other by hypodermic. It usually hastens healing and relieves the itching and irritation within a few days.—Wm. Cabell Moore, B. A., M. D.

THE JIG-SAW PUZZLE.

The children are asleep, They've left their toys All strewn about— The Jig-saw puzzle's scattered Though they pieced it With a shout.

I know that they should Pick them up, Be orderly and neat; But I so often am too tired My own task To complete.

And so I pick up pieces They have idly Thrown away, That they may find them Waiting, when they try Another day.

The world seems like a puzzle, With the parts All hard to fit. And yet we know The picture's there; We make it, bit by bit.

And if just finding fragments For the tired folk Is my own part Dear God, Help me find pieces With an understanding heart. —Louise Lofin Reiley, in Phila. Inquirer.

HORSESHOE PITCHING LEAGUES

The horseshoe pitching game, that started up its old-time popularity several years ago, is being promoted again this year as an outdoor sport. On Thursday of last week two leagues were outlined at Gettysburg, one to be known as the Pennsylvania-Maryland league, made up of teams from Gettysburg, Hanover, Westminster and Carroll County towns; and the other made up of six Pennsylvania teams in Adams and York counties.

A resident of Los Angeles writes in the story about a barber there who had a customer half shaved as the first of the recent quake shocks was felt. He jumped into his car, started east and arrived in Tennessee just in time to get hit by a spring tornado. He started back to California—that's the most doubtful part of the story—and was drowned in the Ohio river flood.—Lake Worth (Fla.) Herald.

There is no such thing as "idle curiosity." All curiosity is busy.

The Birnie Trust Company

AN ANTIQUE SHOW.

By turning back the pages of history the members of the Home-makers' Clubs of Cecil County were able to answer the question: "How to earn money for the County Welfare Association?" And did so to the tune of $87. The armory at Elkton was converted into a temporary museum in which were displayed old pictures, jewelry, newspapers, money paisley shawls, quilts, etc., contributed by the club members. A bake sale was held in connection with the show—each club contributed five dozen rolls and five cakes.

Fashions, extending from 1785 to the present day, were styled by the ladies and everything, from grandmother's childhood dresses to her wedding attire, was exhibited. The Calvert Club arranged an old-fashioned fire place with antique andirons and fittings. Entertainment included old-time recitations and dances in costumes.

TONADO IN ALABAMA.

Another disastrous tornado visited the Southern States, this one last Friday, in western Alabama. Helena, a mining town of 700 population suffered most. Over 20 persons were killed, and two more were killed in the Mississippi Valley. The path of destruction was from a half mile to a mile wide. Many houses, most of them cheap construction were leveled. About 100 persons were injured.
