ANSWER TO SCHOOL CRITICS Superintendent Unger States Various School Facts.

1-A comparison of Rural School costs and consolidation. There is a certain agitation going on in Carroll County, dealing with facts pertaining to education, that would be wholesome if those discusing these things had the true facts and then handled truthfully. I wish to present some of these facts in their true light, basing all computations offered upon the State and County records which have been audited and accounted for.

It it said that consolidation is big expense. Now let us see if this is true, or if it is not good business from true, or if it is not good business from a purely financial standpoint to consolidate. The Board of Education since 1917 has closed exactly 100 rural school positions. According to the annual State school report the average cost per pupil in a rural school is $52.30. The average number of numis in a rural school is ber of pupils in a rural school is 25.7. Multiply these two factors and you have the average cost of operating a one-teacher school: $52.30x25.7=$1,344.11

Therefore, it would cost this year to maintain 100 rural schools in Carroll County: $1,344.10x100.

Now let us look at the other side of the picture. The Board of Education appointed 40 additional teachers to meet the additional load brought about by consolidation in the center schools at an average salary of $974.07, amounting to a total of $38,962.80. 07, amounting to a total of $38,962.80. For every rural school closed the State appropriates a part of the expense of transportation. The amount of State money oppropriated for transportation this year is $43,768.00. The total cost of transportation, including the hauling of 812 high school children amounts to $60,586.96. Subtract from this amount $43,768.00 and you get $16,818.96, or the amount it costs the

Now let us summarize these figures: To operate 100 rural schools costs, $134,411.00.

To operate consolidation: Additional teachers, $38,962.80, cost of transportation, $16,818.96, total $55,781.7.

The amount saved to the taxpayers of Carroll County annually by consolidation and transportation, $78,-

630.24. 2—The unfairness of requiring High Sshool child to pay his own transportation.

It is also charged that high school this also charged that high school children should pay their own transportation—and this is advocated by the farmers. Why does the farmer want to deprive himself of the very thing that benefits him most? The purpose of transportation is to equalize opportunity. Town children do not have and do not need transportation. have and do not need transportation, but in order that the rural child may get to high school he is offered transportation, which puts him on an equality with the town child. Suppose we take an example—a farmer pays $50 a year in taxes, and suppose $1.00 of this goes to transportation, and he has one child who goes to high school Taneytown Homemakers' Club will free on the school bus. Now let us assume that the child does not go free but pays the bus driver ten cents a of our relatives, and outstanding men day or $2.00 a month, or $18.00 a year. Which is the more advantageous to the farmer? And, the farther he lives from the school the greater is the advantage to him. 3—The Financial Savings of Consolidation Exemplified. Another matter is disturbing the rural mind, chiefly due to the political agitators who always get very busy just before election. It is this matter of consolidation. Every parent who is at all observant knows that his child is benefitted by attending the consolidated school, but he has a sneaking idea that it costs more than his old school system did. But does it?

Let us take a few examples.

Example 1—Savings effected by consolidation at Winfield.

10 rural schools closed (annual cost of each $1,344.11) $13,441.10. Cost of operation, transportation and maintenance of the present consolidation school, $9,384.97, Savings effected $4,056.13. Example II—The Consolidated Elementary School at Union Bridge.

Rural schools closed 12x$1,344.11,

Cost of operation, transportation and maintenance of the new consolidated school, $11,627.17, Savings effected $4,502.15. These results can be shown in every consolidation project that has been made completely effective.

DWELLINGS IN DEMAND IN TANEYTOWN.

Supt of Carroll Co. Schools.

Desirable dwelling properties are nearly always in demand, in Taney-It may be fortunate for property owners that this is the case, as it shows that demand is what helps to keep up property values to a fair price. One the other hand, the scarci-ty of homes keeps the town from growing more rapidly.

There is also a demand for homes on the part of those who would buy. We are in position to know this because of the inquiries at our office. We would therefore advise those who have properties for sale or rent, to advertise them as the best means for securing purchasers or tenants.

It would also be equally wise for those desiring to buy or rent, to advertise. But as both plans are sometimes undesirable, for private reasons, the problem still remains, as to how to best remedy the situation to suit

MEMORIAL SERVICES IN TANEYTOWN.

The Greatest Demonstration of the Kind ever held here.

Taneytown presented the largest Memorial Day demonstration in its history. Some supposed that Gettys-burg might dwarf the local event, but had the parade or crowd been larger, it would have rivaled the George Washington demonstration of years ago. The parade was fully a mile in length, and very colorful because if its marching units, among which, the one presented by the Taneytown Manufacturing Company (Men's Clothing) was outstanding.

All of the streets of the town were literally lined with two and three lines of autos, and the sidewalks were crowded with thousands of visitors.

The parade was late in starting, due to the late arrival of the Chamberburg Drum Corps, bht it was well handled, considering the through traffic to Gettysburg, and there were no accidents. The cemeteries were unusually well decorated with flowers, especially considering their scarcity, and the entire program, as announced last week was carried out. All of the military units, the bands and drum corps, were present and made a fine showing.

The parade was first to the Catholic cemetery where graves were dec-orated and Father Lane offered pray-Then to the Lutheran cemetery, where prayer was offered by Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe. The Taneytown I. O. O. F. Band played an appropriate selection, and a military salute was given by the firing squad of Company H, and "taps" sounded.

The main part of the program was in the Reformed cemetery, where Merwyn C. Fuss, president, presided. Rev. Guy P. Bready offered prayer. The Walkersville band placed "Abide with Me," Miss Estella Essig led in the singing of "America." The New Windsor Boys' Band played, "The Dead March in Saul."

The address was by Dr. F. G.

Dead March in Saul."

The address was by Dr. F. G. Halloway, President of the Western Maryland College Seminary. He gave some interesting facts concerning "Memorial Day." That it was first observed as "Decoration Day" in 1866, or four years after the close of the Civil War, its origin having credited by some to a German who come to this county and told of the decoration of graves and told of the decoration of graves annually, in Germany. General Logan, however, is credited as being the leader in establishing the day.

He traced Memorial Day as being originally for the purpose of honoring the dead of the Civil War, followed by enlarging it to include victims of the Spanish American War, fought for the liberation of Cuba from Spanish rule, and finally it naturally included the many thousands of dead of the World War-all who died in service under our flag.

It has also been used as a day of in public and civil life. That there is a danger in our dealing too much generalities. Paying tributes to the dead is praiseworthy, but the custou means more than memorializing. It suggests more than the dead part, and the story of Gettysburg, Arlington and Flanders Field. We live on with the privileges of happy homes, in part perhaps due to those who paid the supreme sacrifice of their lives. He said we must remember that one of the reasons why our country and its men went into the World War was due to the pledge that this struggle would mean world peace thereafter. We need to live now in such a way as to make good this pledge. If we are willing to fight for religion, or any other noble purpose, we must live a life of unsel-fishness not only to the memory of those who fight our battles. We must as unselfishly live such lives as will faithfully carry out our determination that wars must end. We must show whether we were just "kidding" our young men or whether we meant what we said. That, as President Lincoln said in his memorable classic address at Gettysburg, we must demand that "these dead shall not have died in vain," and this may be accomplished only as we "live" our lives, and direct our own efforts.

SOME NRA CODE CHANGES The President Orders Repeal of Service Code Prices.

On Monday, the daily newspapers carried the information that the President had issued orders repealing code provisions, except as to hours and pay, for a number of "service industries," mainly restaurants, cleaners and dyers ,laundries and barber shops. The change of policy with respect to the service industries originated in complaints which grew out of attempts to fix prices in these in-

Larger industries are also organizing along the same lines, registering declarations that the Price Determination Schedules, if enforced, will ruin small business by destroyingcompetition and placing burdensome

MEMORIAL ADDRESS BY PRESIDENT.

Many Thousands Visit Gettysburg for big Annual Event.

The presence of President Roosevelt at Gettysburg, on Memorial Day, was the chief attraction of the event. He was the first Democratic president since the Civil War to speak at the cemetery. Accompanying him were Secretary Morgenthau, Warren Delano Robbins, American Minister to Canada, and Marvin H. McIntire, a White House secretary.

The services were simple and brief, for Gettysblrg, Gov. Pinchot introduced the President as "the leader who has taken the helm of a newly united Nation," and "a maker of decisions."

Nation," and "a maker of decisions."

In opening, the President referred to Gov. Pinchot as "a man who has so splendidly served the cause of progressive government and humanity."

In his brief address he said "we know that all have a stake a paytnership. that all have a stake—a partnership in the government of this country. All have a share in whatever good comes to the average man. We are all brothers now in a new understanding." He said further, in part as follows;

"Here, in the presence of the spirits of those who fell on this ground," he said, "we give renewed assurance that the passions of war are smouldering in the tombs of time and the purposes of peace are flowing in the hearts of a united people."

Three elements were listed by the President as hindering progress: "These groups are those who seek to stir up political animosity or to build political advantage by the distortion of facts; those who, by declining to follow the rules of the game, seek to gain an unfair advantage over those who live up to the rules, and those few who still, because they have never been willing to take an interest in their fellow-Americans, dwell inside of their own narrow spheres and still represent the selfishness of sectionalism which has no place in our national life."

Today, we have many means of knowing each other—means that have sounded the doom of sectionalism. It is, I think, as I survey the picture from every angle, a simple fact that the chief hindrance to progress comes from three elements which, thank God, grow less in importance with the growth of a clearer understanding of our purposes on the part of the overwhelming majority.

Washington and Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln and Theodore Roose-velt and Woodrow Wilson sought and worked for a consolidated nation. You and I have it in our power to attain that great ideal. We can do this by following the peaceful methods pre-scribed under the broad and resilient provisions of the Constitution of the United States.

DEPOSITORS MAY "GET CASH" FROM CLOSED BANKS.

The House of Representatives has passed the Steagall bill authorizing the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to buy up at normal business values the assets in banks closed as a result of last year's banking holiday. The money which the FDIC thus hands over to the defunct banks is to be passed on to the bank's depositors.

Thousands of banks and hundreds of thousands of depositors will benefit from the bill if it is passed by the Senate and signed by the President. Closed national banks alone number 1.600 and hold more than a billion dollars in frozen deposits.

money as is a fair prchase price for the remaining assets of the bank. If the assets are good, the sum will be large; if they are poor, the sum will be small. This money will be distributed to depositors and other creditors on a pro rata basis.

In some banks, therefore, the de-positors may get 10 percent or less of their frozen accounts, in other banks 50 percent or more, depending entirely on the value of the bank's assets and the volume of its deposit liabilities. The total amount to be paid out is estimated at $1,250,000,000 or slightly less.

PAYMENT MADE ON BENEFICIAL INTEREST CERTIFICATES.

At least two banks in Carroll county announce the payment, on June 1, of ten percent of the money held by the banks, on Beneficial Interest Certificates bearing no interest. This is reassuring news, as all of the banks that issued such certificates to depositors will in due time take the same course under the advice of the State Bank Commissioner.

The payments on this account will not only release a large sum for active use, or to bear interest at 3 per-cent. More than this, it will reassure the public that the banks are "coming BOOSTER MEETING OF CARROLL of some confidence that had been partly lost by a few.

This payment on certificates also likely represent a recovery of value in bank securities, which means that the courtry is slowly making recovery from the low ebb it had reached; which either directly or indirectly will help to restore confidence and greater activity in dormant resources, on which general prosperity so much depends.

Random Thoughts

USES FOR A HOME.

It is a good place in which to mind one's own business, and to learn how to practice doing so away from home.

It is a place at which one should always be at his or her best. If that is not the case, one is not apt to amount to much any where, along the "best" lines. It is a place for exercise of pleasant manners and gentility toward all of its inmates; not reserving all of it for home use but saving a full supply for away from home. There is no better place than home for one to pull weeds, and cultivate flowers and good crops in ourselves, as well as well as in our gardens and fields.

It is a fine place in which to exercise partnership, rather than lordship over all one surveys, because one happens to own it. one person can make an ideal home, but all who live in it must act in co-operation.

COMPETITION IN BUSINESS.

The safety of the country rests in fair competition between business and industrial concerns of all kinds. "One price to all" is quite proper for one store, as long as other stores are free to fix their own "one price." Likewise, each competitor in any line, should have its own rules for doing business, its own idea of profits, and each take its own chances for securing business, without any price-fixing for any class of business that applies to every concern in the class, and oneprice by all.

When one wants to build a house, requiring the aid of several trades represented by several contractors, opportunity should be given them for submitting estimates, thereby representing competition, unless the one wanting the house built prefers not to ask for estimates.

The U. S. government builds its postoffices and public buildings that way, at least in many cases. It furnishes specifications that all contractors must follow, and the "lowest responsible bidder" gets the job. The contract system, based on competition represents protection from monopoly.

Somtimes these "bids" on construction work, or on furnishing interiors, vary considerably. In some cases, thousands of dollars. This does not mean, necessarily, that the "high" bidder, wants exorbitant prices, but possibly that he lacks certain advantages that other bidders possess; or, possibly they figure wrong, or it may be for other reasons these variations appear.

In any case, competition is present for the benefit of the buyer, or public treasuries are saved from "deals" and favoritism at the expense of taxpayers. State contracts for road construction, and bridge buildings, and schools are built and furnished on contracts. The "lowest bidder" is in demand everywhere for jobs large and small. The system is universal. We buy in the lowest available market. and sell to the highest bidder.

In many transactions the "price cutter" is classed as an enemy to legitimate business, as he perhaps may be in some degree; but trying to chase him out of business, when carried to the limit, interferes with prices, and with the "shopping" that buyers have been accustomed to. And, when carried far enough, operates in restraint of trade and introduces monopoly and favoritism at the expense of the buying public. There is no other ending to it, no matter how well intended. The destruction of one evil, but brings others in its

PRINCIPLE AND PRACTICE.

One can rightfully believe in a principle, but not in the practice used to place the principle into effect. This is a truth neither admitted nor understood by some, who see only in the criticism of a well intended principle, a stubborn and unjustified attitude.

The truth is that our best founded guides for our faith and practice, must stand criticism. This has been true since the foundation of organized society. Even since the publication of the first Bible, it has had to meet with questions as to its Divine

Our most expert and intellectual scientists and doctors of various kinds have had such a gauntlet to run; and | tracts." it is only through these tests that truth finally prevails, and is accepted, Washington and Lincoln had their critics, but their accomplishments have earned their way to almost general acceptance. Most criticism eventually turns out to be constructive, whether so intended, or not. What we know as "freedom of the press" seems like unlicensed liberty at times. It is, in fact, often notoriously selfish and cruel; eling for those who are to help make under a covered wagon, surrounded outcome, it is a necessary safety valve | families; fully justified for its usefulness.

It is this knowledge that criticism and objection to our public acts and utterances must be met with, that makes us feet proper responsibility for the taking of our various differing courses. Eventually, we meet with light that follows the dark. Men may be equally honest and well intentioned, and yet valiantly oppose each other's views. It must always be so. Who, or what, infalliably represent righteousness, are matters of differing honest judgment.

We cannot think nor act alike, because our interests and points of view are not alike. What seems right to some, seem very wrong to others. Loyalty to a party, or platform, or plan of legislation, or what we call a "policy," or even our efforts for what we esteem the public good, all come within the ranges of honest differences. Truly, there are "many men of many minds," as the old copy books presented it for practice in penmanship.

-22--ENCOURAGING LOANS.

There is very reasonable and serious doubt as to whether encouraging business men to borrow money to conduct normal business, is good financial policy. There are seasons of the year, and special purposes for which it is "good business" for them to borrow; but in the main we are convinced that the average business man is well enough acquainted with the dangers of selling on credit, to avoid going into debt himself, if he can possibly keep out of it.

There are times when a business man may have too much credit—too easy to borrow. It is an old and wise maximum that a man is all the better a business man when he is "hard up." The conditions spur him on to greater efforts to "help himself out" rather than too easily conclude to pay somebody interest on a loan.

Loan agencies, therefore, should be regarded as a business in itself that aims to profit by somebody going into debt. There is not much real sympathy nor granting of favor, on the part of money lenders. Borrowing had always better be regarded in the light of a painful necessity, rather than a plan to speculate on-as an easy temporary make-shift.

Credit, in the ordinary sense, is different from borrowing. It would be impossible for business to be conducted without controlled voluntary credit. It would be impossible to pay "spot cash," or on "delivery," in most cases between buyer and seller in a mercantile way. Credit is based on character and known financial

When either is at low ebb, credit is contracted as a consequence; and chances are taken, or C. O. D. shipments resorted to. Good standing of e debtor is a necessary asset, if credit is to be extended and no department of business receives more thought and care than this.

Unfortunately, however, desire to expand business often leads to a too free extension of credit, and those who indulge in the practice suffer for their chance-taking. The best business men do not encourage their cus. tomers to go into debt without first exercising of the utmost care, based on their expectation to be fully able to meet their obligations.

Borrowing to meet such obligations often becomes necessary in order to meet bills, and is in itself right, rather than wrong; but nobody should merely "get the habit" of debt or borrowing, even it be the business of some to encourage it.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY RELIEF ADMINISTRATION.

Assistants to county agents, either men or women, may be employed with emergency relief funds to devote their entire time to rural rehabilitation phases of the relief program, according to statements from the Agricultural Extension Service and Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

County Agents in 2,700 counties and home demonstration agents in 1,200 counties are in excellent position to aid local relief committees, according to a statement by H. W. Gilbertson, Senior Extension Agriculturist, who

"Although county extension agents are very busy with their regular and emergency projects, they can usually find time to help county relief committees. In particular they can conduct county-wide demonstration meetings and short courses in work which relief families might do outside of time spent on their small food and feed

Mr. Gilbertson said instructions

"Running levels, laying out terraces and drainage ditches;

"Installing water supply and sewage disposal systems in farm homes; "Clothing construction and remod-

"Repairing farm machinery." "Furniture and home equipment repairing, and

"County agents can help plan canning plants, community food and vegetable plants, farm markets and work centers," Mr. Gilertson added. "They can also advise as to construction of farm markets, repairing school buildings, building roads to market, terracing, developing recreational parks and play grounds. Exchange of goods produced by farm people on relief for industrial commodities is still

One or two dollars a week is enough cash to buy the food which must be purchased for a family of five, where they develop their home food activities properly, Mr. Gilbertson said. He estimated that the case cost of adequate clothing can be held to about $100 a year. Women demonstration agents can render valuable assistance in helping to educate relief families along this line, he suggested.

Mr. Gilbertson pointed out that county agents and vocational teachers are expected to act "only in an advisory capacity," and will not serve as members of the county or rural committees. They should, however, attend all meetings of county committees, he stated.

The statement suggested that county rehabilitation commttees include five to seven "public spirited homemakers, farmers and other citizens in full sympathy with the program." This committee should include, it was said, the president of a woman's organization or some other leader among rural women. In addition to the county committee, it was suggested that there be a committee of three to five members in each community.-Emergency Relief Publicity State-

-22-NRA UNDER SCRUTINY.

What is the effect of the NRA on business and industry? These quesport on the NRA made by Clarence Darrow and his associates on the National Recovery Review Board, and in the reply to this report made by NRA officials. According to the Review board, the NRA tends toward monopoly and injustice to the small business concern, while the NRA officials warmly defend their work.

"There is no hope for the small business man or for complete recovery, in enforced restriction of production," says the Darrow report. Theoretically, there seems much truth in that statement. At a time when a multitude of people lack the things they need, there seems something inherently wrong in trying to force people to produce less. In former years we sive campaign. emerged from depression by produccountry may be said to be between the devil and the deep sea. If the government lets business alone, harsh practices like child labor, excessively low wages, and prolonged hours of labor, will occur. And if the government regulates business closely, then there is the danger of driving many people into bankruptcy through strict rules with which they can't comply.

It is a most difficult thing to regulate the business of this vast country. Most men find it about all they can do to regulate their own business. Where are those supermen whose all embracing wisdom shall enable them to regulate all business? Well, the government must do the best it can. All the evils complained of can not be abolished all at once. We must give up partisan prejudices, and if we have patience, and do not expect too much in a hurry, we shall gradually remove the worst evils of industry .- Freder-

BAD PRACTICE OF CERTAIN MAGISTRATES.

The practice of certain magistrates of acting as collection agencies, entering suits before themselves and trying the cases themselves, is altogether bad in theory and bad in practice.

Thousands of persons, particularly our more humble citizens, get their whole impression of courts from local

The spectacle of a court acting both as attorney for the plaintiff and the judge in the case violates every canon of legal ethics and gives to the poor individual who is the victim of the "judge's" peculiar ideas of "justice" an impression that all courts are guilty of the same conduct.

Such activities of justices of the peace are calculated to destroy popular respect for justice, despite the high minded, courageous and intelligent labors of many of our higher courts.-Towson, Md., Union News.

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES.

One of the perplexing political problems of the day is that of campaign expenditures. How much should a candidate for office be permitted to spend in behalf of his candidacy.

Some of the amounts expended by recent candidates for the Senate seem unreasonably large, and in some cases investigations of campaign funds have resulted in the barring of successful candidates. Many Diseases "Extinct,"

Others Greatly Changed It seems almost inconceivable that we simply do not know certain forms of disease which only a relatively short time ago were frequently observed, says a writer in the Illustrirte Zeitung, Leipsic.

Thus, for example, the "sweating sickness" was minutely described in medical works only a hundred years ago as a common disease, To all appearances, it was contagious and involved excessive perspiration. Nowadays, however, we can make nothing of these very detailed and thorough descriptions. The disease has become "extinct."

Chlorosis, which until the war was an extremely frequent disease of young girls, is now practically never seen. Physicians are at a loss how to explain this. Is it due to sports, or to the great amount of outdoor life that the present generation enjoys: or are internal secretory influences to be taken into account? Only hypotheses may be assumed to explain this strange

Of greatest interest also are the changes which prevalent forms of disease undergo in the course of a few decades. Thus, all older physicians agree that nowadays acute articular rheumatism takes a different course from what it did at the end of the last century.

Only to a limited extent may such changes in a form of disease be traced to different methods of treatment. For instance, the treatment of scarlet fever has changed but little, and yet the illness is much milder than in earlier decades.

It is thought to have been seized back of the French lines by German raiders during the World war.

Dr. Vilhjalmer Stefansson, the explorer, made his first trip into the Far North to Iceland in 1904, followed by an archeological expedition in 1905 under the auspices of the Peabody Museum of Harvard university, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News. In 1906 he conducted an ethnological expedition to Mackenzie delta under the auspices of Harvard and Toronto universities. This expedition lasted eighteen months.

The second, which began in 1908, lasted fifty-three months, and was conducted under auspices of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and the government of Canada. During this expedition he added to the map of Canada many new features, including Horton river, over 500 miles long. He discovered Dolphin and Union straits, and lived a year with the Eskimos, who had never seen a white man and whose ancestors never had. He found that some of these had certain European characteristics. He returned in 1912, and set forth again in 1918, commanding a Canadian Arctic expedition which lasted until 1918. In the spring of 1914, with two companions, he made a 600-mile journey over broken and moving ice from Martin point, Alaska, to the northwest of Bank's island; in 1915 he explored b sledge the sea northwest of Prince Patrick island and discovered new land north of Prince Patrick island; in 1916 he explored islands already discovered, and found new ones west of Heiberg island and elsewhere, and in 1917 he ran a line of soundings northwest of Cape Isachsen, showing the polar ocean shallow in this re-

It Could Be Colder

Has it ever occurred to you what would happen if the sun suddenly went out like a light that has fused? For eight minutes we should know nothing about it, for it takes eight minutes for light to pass through those 93,000,000 miles that separate us from the sun. When that eight minutes had passed darkness would freeze the sea from end to end. In a little while the air would first become liquid then solid. By the third day the animals and birds would all be dead. Man might live for another seven days. But soon the fires would be frozen out and mankind would die, too.

Arbor Day, as Such, Was Suggested in Year 1872

As early as 1865 B. G. Northrup, a Connecticut educator, suggested an annual planting of trees under the direction of the state governments. But the first to take steps toward that end, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, was J. Stirling Morton of Nebraska, a member of the state board of agriculture, and later, under President Cleveland, United States secretary of agriculture.

Morton, in 1872, introduced a resolution at a meeting of the Nebraska state board of agriculture setting aside April 10 for tree planting and suggesting that the day be called "Arbor day." In 1885 the Nebraska legislature passed an act changing the date to April 22, Morton's birthday, and making it a legal holiday.

The Arbor day idea extended throughout the other states and territorial possessions, and is now an event in the calendar of every one of them. There is no uniformity of date, however. Most northern states observe it toward the end of April; the southern and western at various other season's. Ohio's is by proclamation of the governor.

The United States government took the first step in forest conservation in 1876, and appointed Dr. Franklin B. Hough as special agent to make a survey of the forest resources of the United States. There are 42 states with organized forestry departments, supplementing the national work of the United States Forest service.

Latitude and Longitude

The Coast and Geodetic survey says that the so-called short methods navigation originated with the method of Marc St. Hilaire, in which the usual altitude (angle between horizon and heavenly body) is observed and the altitude that would then obtain at an assumed position is calculated by a simple formula; the difference between the observed and calculated altitudes is a direct measure of the distance between the true line of position and the assumed position. There is no longer any question among leading navigators that the principle employed in the St. Hilaire method and its modifications has creatly simplified the subject of navi-

Cakes of Salt Used as

Salt as a standard in the history of commerce antedates the gold stand-As a medium of exchange salt was widely used in many ancient countries. The Mogul conquerors of India made decrees hundreds of years ago regulating the standard of salt that was used for money. In Asia and Africa cakes of salt were frequently used for money.

Besides being used as money, salt in days gone by was a powerful developer of commerce. Being essential to life and unavailable to tribes remote from the sea, from which the substance was obtained by evaporation, trade routes were early developed to provide the transportation of salt. For hundreds of years a caravan route was maintained between Palmyra and Syrian ports. Even today much of the caravan traffic in Sahara is largely in this precious commodity.

The oldest road in Italy is not the Appian way, but the "Via Salaria," the Salt road along which salt was anciently carried from the evaporating pits at Ostia to the Sabine terri-

Bell-Ringing Swans

In the moat surrounding the Bishop's palace at Wells, Somerset, England, there are swans who ring for their meals by pulling a rope that is attached to a bell. Nearly a hundred years ago a daughter of one of the hishops taught the swans to do this. She had the bell with the rope fitted up in such a position that the swans could reach it from the water. Soon the birds were interested in the long, dangling cord. Directly any of the birds pulled the rope hard enough to ring the bell some bread was thrown

In quite a short time the birds discovered that, when they were hungry, all they had to do was to ring the bell to get food. Of course, all the swans that first learned the trick of ringing for their meals are now dead: but the idea has been taken up by the generations of the young birds as these come along, and before they have changed their brown feathers for the white ones of the adult birds, the cygnets are busy bell-ringing whenever they feel in need of a meal!

El Salvador Is Tiniest

Nation of the Americas El Salvador is one of the most progressive and most intensely cultivated countries in the Western hemisphere, according to a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

Although "Salvador," as the name of the country is generally abbreviated, seldom appears in the news, it is distinctive in many respects among the republics of Central and South America. El Salvador is the smallest country, independent or dependent, on the mainland of either North or South America, and, excepting Haiti, the smallest nation in the Western hemisphere. It is the only country between Canada and Colombia without an Atlantic as well as a Pacific seaboard, and it has the densest rural population on the mainland of the Americas. In an area about equal to that of Maryland live nearly 1,500,000 people.

Although it is fringed with rich tropical forests along its Pacific seaboard, and with volcanoes around its inland frontiers, the greater part of the country is situated on a healthful, wellwatered and fertile plateau about 2,000 feet above sea level. Coffee is the chief crop, comprising about 80 per cent of the exports of the country.

The most unusual export of El Salvador, however, is the misnamed "balsam of Peru." Balsam, which is used for medicinal purposes, is the sap of a tree native to El Salvador. But the early Spaniards shipped the sap to Peru, where it was reshipped to Spain.

Danube River Lengthy The famous Danube river is the second longest river in Europe and passes through or touches six nations as it winds its way from the Black Forest of Germany to the Black sea, where it empties. The river is formed by the confluence of two small mountain streams, the Brigach and the Brege, in Baden, at an elevation of 2.264 feet above sea level. By the time the river reaches Vienna it has dropped to 500 feet above the sea. The total length of the Danube is 1,740 miles. The 400 tributaries, 100 of which are navigable, drain an area of 315,000 square miles. During its meanderings the Danube passes through Germany, Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia and then passes between Bulgaria and Rumania, forming the border line.

__22_ Keep the Pullets Busy,

Regarded as Good Advice Just as a school teacher has the most trouble with her pupils in the first week of the school term, so does the poultryman have the most trouble with his pullets the first week they are confined from summer range, states a commercial poultryman in Pathfinder Magazine. During the first the laying house many pullets learn the vices that are responsible for mortality during the winter. Feather picking, egg eating, laying on the floor and other bad habits are started soon after birds are housed.

It is very important that pullets be kept busy when they are first confined. Supply liberal quantities of green feed. Keep laying mash before them in open hoppers. Make them scratch and work as much as possible. Provide enough nests so that there will be no crowding. Be sure the birds are free from lice and the house free from mites.

Bats Are Good Friends;

Destroy Tons of Insects There are about 30 kinds of bats in the arid southwestern part of the United States, all with different habits and with ranges fitting into every nook and corner where they can find a place to stay and food to eat and water to drink.

Bats are thirsty animals and must have water once or twice every night, says Nature Magazine. They are hearty eaters and hearty drinkers, and after sleeping all day in dark retreats in caves or cliffs or building, they seek the nearest water, be it miles away, and dipping over the surface drink on the wing repeatedly until satisfied.

Some of the strong-winged species are found many miles from water or else they know where to find it in tanks or pools that we do not find. Every waterhole in the desert is a nightly center for bats, and often they swarm like dragon flies over still pools, before circling away to feed among the tree tops or along the cliffs or low over the bushes of the desert.

Different species find their favorite prey in different haunts, and while the beetles and moths and flying bugs of their menu are not exterminated, their numbers are reduced by tons and tons as shown by their remains in the bat guano in caves or other roosting places.

Bats too are intelligent, far more than we generally credit them as be-THE SUNDAY SCHOOL of Grace ing, and make most interesting pets for study. Fortunately their skins have no commercial value and they are not likely to be exterminated, but often their roosting or breeding colonies do need protection and should have it, for bats are among our best

Welsh Terrier Once Used

in Hunting Game Animals The principality of Wales has givthe old nursery rhyme, "Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a Thief," but nothing quite so important in the eyes of the lovers of animals as the Welsh

Here we have a real dog, unfamiliar to most pet owners, but one of the terrier breeds with all of the necessary requisites to endear him to every member of the household.

Like a number of old-established breeds the Welsh terrier's origin is lost in antiquity, but its general appearance and canine characteristics indicate that it is closely related to the old black-and-tan terrier of the British Isles. It has developed into a dog of character, with an aristocratic bearing and indifference to those it dislikes or does not know. In size it is midway between the fox terrier and the Airedale. The color standard is rather rigid, calling for a dog with tan legs, belly and head, black saddle, forehead and neck.

As a companion, the Welsh is all anyone can ask. It is active and friendly and always concerned over the welfare of its master and juvenile playmates. It is equally at home in restricted quarters or the wide expanses of the field, where it was originally used to hunt foxes, badgers and other small game animals.-Detroit

"I DON'T BELIEVE IT"

88 By R. H. WILKINSON

©, Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

IIS WILLIAMS has a habit. when some one is telling a story, of saying, "I don't believe it."

Gus doesn't mean anything by it. He doesn't intend to be rude or con-

It is just an expression which, for some unexplainable and forgotten reason, he has adopted and injected into his casual conversations.

Gus says, "I don't believe it," quite in the same tone and manner as other folks exclaim, "Is that so?" or "Oh, really!" or "Do tell!"

But despite the fact that all the above statements are true, Gus' "I don't believe it" is a source of annoyance and exasperation to Lacey Rogers, who is Gus' cousin and with whom he frequently associates in a social way.

Lacey is a great story teller. He prides himself on being a good spinner of yarns. He loves to talk.

And to make things pleasant and inducive to his story-telling inclinations, folks like to hear Lacey tell stories.

Whenever the Rogerses attend a party, Lacey is always called upon to tell a story.

He expounds a great length. He is a much traveled young man and has many interesting tales to tell concerning his own experiences.

He recites these tales in a modest sort of way, thereby dispelling any possibility of boring his listeners.

Gus Williams is as interested a listener to Lacey's stories as the next man.

And because of the fact that Gus and his wife and Lacey and his wife are very close friends, it naturally follows that the two couples are in attendance at many and the same parties, hence most of Lacey's stories have been heard by Gus and his wife on more than one occasion.

In spite of this, however, Gus and Bertha always sit and listen attentively while Lacey unfolds what to them is a twice-told-tale.

In fact, Gus makes it a point to display his appreciation and interest by interrupting the story-teller at intervals with, "I don't believe it."

When this happens Lacey is apt to pause, try hard not to glare or curse, wait until the ripple of laughter dies down, and pick up the thread of his tale at the point of interruption.

But always after Gus' "I don't believe it" has severed the continuity of Lacey's theme, his tone somehow lacks in enthusiasm and interest. The donouement is inclined to be

Of course, Gus is all unsuspecting of the annoyance he is causing Lacey. No one has ever suggested that he is being rude.

His whole purpose is to be congenial and helpful.

Hence it has never once occurred to him to substitute, "my, my!" or "dear me," for his, "I don't believe it."

* * * Recently Lacey reached a point where he found himself fighting a desire to leap at Gus and plant a welldirected blow across his mouth, to tear his hair and scream curses that would give full expression to the annoyance

But Lacey is a well-mannered man and travels in correct society, hence convention and propriety forbid such an outburst.

However, convention and propriety cannot prevent Lacey from thinking, from grinding his teeth and muttering foul oaths when in the seclusion of his own bed chamber.

He has, also, taken to brooding about the matter.

Of course, he realizes that the thing has become an obsession with him; that he has allowed it to magnify itself and assume large proportions.

The fact that he alone is disturbed by Gus' "I don't believe it" is the one factor that restrains him from giving full leash to his feelings in the form of a physical assault upon Cousin Gus. For Gus by no means confines his "I don't believe it" to Lacey.

He encourages every one with the same remark, and nobody but Lacey is bothered by it. But the thing is settled now once and for all.

Last week an old friend of Lacey's, Miguel de Gomez, an adventurous young Mexican, with whom Lacey had shared some exciting times during a recent sojourn below the border, terminated a motor trip from Sonora at the Rogers homestead and, being warmly received, succumbed at last to Lacey's urging and decided to remain a week.

Of course, the Rogers were delighted. To begin with Miguel was a direct descendant of a great Spanish family and was considered one of the wealthiest men in Sonora.

He was also extremely handsome, and possessed of charming manners. Immediately Lacey and his wife began preparations for a series of dinners and parties in honor of their distinguished guest.

The first affair, a formal dinner, was scheduled for the Tuesday evening following the Sunday of Miguel's arrival. Of course, the Gus Williams were invited and displayed as much delight and interest in the handsome young Mexican as any one else.

The dinner was a gay affair, and when, following the dessert, the gathering adjourned to the library for coffee, every one was in a gay and congeniai mood.

It was summer, but a chill wind blew outside the house and rain lashed against the windows.

Lacey ignited the fire in the library's open grate, and the guests found it cozy and comfortable sitting there sipping their coffee.

It suddenly occurred to some one that here was an ideal and proper setting for the telling of one of Lacey's stories.

At first Lacey, surreptitiously glancing at Cousin Gus, was inclined to refuse, but when Miguel joined the urging, he laughingly condescended to Lacey's story on this night naturally concerned one of the numberless adventures which he had experienced with the guest of honor.

And before the tale was scarcely launched, Miguel's face began to glow with pleasure and deep interest.

You could tell by the expression in his eyes that he was delighted with Lacey's selection, and was following every incident of the adventure quite as much as if he were telling it him-

The story concerned an incident in which he and Miguel had barely escaped with whole hides after outwitting a half dozen desperadoes during a raid on a remote ranch house in the fastnesses of the Sonora hills.

The two young adventurers had taken it upon themselves to lend a helping hand to the rancher and his fam-

Lacey reached the point in his story in which Miguel had successfully and single-handedly put to earth a pair of the blood-thirsty bandits, when Gus Williams interrupted with, "I don't believe it."

Lacey stopped talking. A flutter of laughter went around the circle of listeners.

Miguel's black eyes left the face of the speaker and darted across the room to where sat Gus in a comfortable armchair.

Gus grinned and nodded affably. Lacey gulped, cleared his throat and picked up the thread of his narrative. Some of the enthusiasm had left his voice, but he did a creditable job of explaining how, after Miguel had successfully disposed of his two assailants, he turned and raced across the courtyard, arriving at the ranch house door just in time to fell a third desperado as that worthy was about to blow Lacey's brains out with a carbine.

. . . At this juncture in the story Lacey paused for breath, and in the dead silence of that brief interval, Gus Williams said: "I don't believe it."

The dead silence was prolonged. And this time the flutter of laughter was only a whisper. Miguel's eyes once more sought out the man in the comfortable armchair.

And this time those eves were smoldering with an emotion that seethed and boiled inside the man's breast. Lacey foresaw what was about to happen and tried to prevent it.

But he moved too late. Miguel leaped out of his chair, crossed the room in two quick strides and before any one knew exactly what was taking place had slapped Gus a stinging blow across the mouth. After that he stood back, folded his arms, regarded Gus with utter contempt and scorn in his eyes, and said: "So? Zee Senor no believe, eh? Well, my fren', let me tell you eet ees ze truth. Eet cannot be said that Miguel de Gomez ees ze coward. I demand satisfaction, my fren', At the conclusion of this little speech there was a great, long, drawnout sigh. Lacey glanced around the circle of faces, saw the expressions written thereon and suddenly realized that every one present had derived a certain satisfaction from seeing Gus get slapped across the mouth for saying "I don't believe it." Which, itself, was a great relief to Lacey, for Lacey had thought he was the only one who had been bothered by the remark. Of course, the thing, despite Miguel's puzzlement, was explained and the Mexican retracted his wish for satisfaction and was profuse in his apol-

However, the incident was not without its benefits.

From that day forward, Gus Williams, after five minutes of deep thought, has never since said "I don't believe it," no matter whether he did or not.

Mongolia Gets Russian Aid In far-off Mongolia religious feasts and festivals are of frequent occurrence. The common religion of the country is a corrupt form of the more orthodox Buddhism. Although the National Republic of Mongolia, an independent state set up since the World war, enjoys political autonomy, it actually is a protectorate of Soviet Russia. Long before the war Mongolian princes, fearing aggression by Chinese war lords, sought and received the friendship and suport of Russia, and this friendship has reulted in a dependence of the Mongolians upon the Russians for aid.

Speed of Electrons

In one second there pass through the filament of an ordinary 60-watt electric lamp so many electrons that if all the people in New York were set to counting them and if they counted out two a second without stopping day and night for 10,000 years they would still have a few to count!

EGG-EATING BIRDS NEED GRIT IN DIET

Limestone or Oyster Shell Dust Is Favored.

By H. H. Kauffman, Poultry Extension Specialist, Pennsylvania State College.—WNU Service.

Egg eating by hens is a double-barreled proposition which involves both cause and effect.

When the hens are not getting enough grit or vitamin D they lay weak-shelled eggs. These are easily broken and the hens, which crave the materials lacking in the diet, start eating the eggs.

To prevent the occurrence of this habit in the poultry flock, oyster shells or limestone grit should be kept before the birds all the time. Since they eat off the coarse particles and leave the dust, the grit of oyster shells should be stirred occasionally.

Vitamin D is supplied in cod liver oil. If the flock is not receiving enough of this substance an additional supply should be allowed, and where none has been fed the omission should be corrected. An eighth of a pint a day for 100 birds is recommended. This can be fed on the grain or in the mash.

Occasionally, even after the deficiencies in the ration have been corrected, the offending hens will continue to eat eggs. If they can be detected they should be removed promptly from the flock.

Good nesting material and frequent gathering of the eggs also are helpful practices in preventing or checking the egg-eating trouble.

Good Chicks Pay in

Laying House Next Fall It will take three chicks to produce every pullet that goes into the laying house next fall, poultry authorities estimate. One chick usually dies, one of the two left is a cockerel and the third should mature into a good, healthy pullet. Purchasers of chicks should keep this general recommendation in mind in planning their flock program.

In buying chicks it is essential that good quality chicks be secured. It is impossible to produce good hens from poor chicks. Under the code, hatcherymen will not sell chicks below cost of production. It costs more to produce a good chick than a poor one, consequently they will cost the buyer more. However, the additional cost of a cent or two on a chick does not amount to much in the value of the pullet that goes into the laying house next winter. It will only take a few more eggs per hen to pay the difference in a lot of good chicks and a lot of cheap chicks. A quality chick is the result of careful flock management, years of breeding and a program of disease control.-Prairie Farmer.

Winter-Hatched Chicks

Winter hatched chicks are less subject to diseases, cannibalism, and other vices than chicks hatched in April or May, says a writer in Successful Farming. Coccidiosis and some other poultry diseases are held in check by cold weather. The artificial heat necessary for the comfort of early chicks keeps the floor litter drier and less favorable to the development of disease which is encouraged with damp litter. Cannibalism and feather-picking may be controlled among the winter-hatched chicks by limiting the amount of light used. Covering the windows with burlap or tar paper excludes some of the light and is very successful in controlling these trou-

Keep Turkeys Away From

Chickens, Specialist Says Blackhead is one of the most serious ailments affecting turkeys, and one of the most common means for spread of this parasite is through chickens. Hence, larger turkey raisers of the state now make it a practice to keep the two kinds of fowl always separated, so that they cannot be on the same ground. The name is a misnomer, C. M. Ferguson, state poultry specialist, says, for it has nothing to do with the head. It is evident in the bird by spots on the liver and by inflammation of the blind intestine. It causes heavy toll when it starts in a flock, and as yet no known cure has been announced.

Sanitation is the best preventive, along with isolation from chickens. The same organism is found in chickens but seldom causes death in them. The "Billings" method, developed in Montana, is now a common method of rearing poults. This consists in raising the young turkeys on fresh ground, and again fencing off a space on one side of the house. After two months the birds are past the danger period, and then yards are rotated every month.-Ohio Farmer.

Hens Will Scratch in Straw

Six inches of good clean straw should be placed in the poultry house, and renewed frequently. The hens will exercise by scratching through the litter, and it will absorb a lot of moisture and help keep the house dry. Good poultrymen find that straw is as good a litter as can be used and that they are well paid for the work of keeping the litter fresh.

Trailing Down to Rio

"Family On Wheels"

FOLLOWING the trails in a trailer, down to the Rio Grande, up to Quebec, and to and fro across the country between the two oceans, promises to become a vaca-tion formula adopted by increasing thousands if present signs are to be believed. Already one state can show one trailer to every three and half cars owned in the state. All over the country, these traveling homes are being assembled in back yards and home workshops in anticipation of vacation jaunts.

A number of factors are contributing to the growing popularity of the trailer as a means of enabling the whole family to enjoy the pleasures of travel at a minimum of expense: Good roads make almost all parts of the country available to the "family on wheels." The economy of traveling, eating and sleeping in your own home is obvious. Engineers, by closely studying materials and design, have been able to develop trailers which the head of the family can purchase in "knockdown" form and put together himself in his spare time.

Despite Various Insects, They Are Easily Placed

To identify every insect is beyond the capacity of the wisest entomologist who ever lived, so many kinds are there which entomologists have scientifically named and described. Even if all of them were caught and preserved, and assembled in one place, with the best facilities for studying them, it would be impossible for the human brain to remember the fine details of structure, color and pattern which distinguish each kind from all the others. However, it is not as hopeless a task as it may seem. In a few days one can learn the great important groups of insects that are called "orders," so that 10 per cent of all the insects can be placed in their proper

First of all, the orders are: The Coleoptera (or beetles and weevils); the Lepidoptera (butterflies and meths); next, the Hymenoptera (the ants, bees, wasps, etc.). Following these are the Diptera (flies, mosquitoes, etc.); the Hemiptera (the true bugs): the Orthoptera (grasshoppers and crickets, etc.); the Odonatra (dragon flies, etc.); the Mallophaga (the biting lice); the Anoplura (the blood-sucking lice); the Neuroptera (the netted-veined insects). Ninetynine per cent of all the insects which you encounter, will ordinarily belong to one of these orders.

"Once in a Blue Moon"

The expression "once in a blue moon" appears to have originally meant "never," but now it denotes "very rarely." Ware's "Passing English of the Victorian Era" says that its origin is absolutely lost in mystery but it is probably an anglicism of a word or words with which neither "blue" nor "moon" has anything to do. The United States weather bureau also has been unable to account for the phrase. Doctor Brewer, compiler of the Dictionary of Phrase and Fable, states in his explanation of the phrase: "On December 10, 1883, we had a blue moon. The winter was unusually mild." Again in December, 1927, at the time of an eclipse of the moon, some observers in Belfast, Ireland, were reported to have seen a blue tinge in the moon's appearance. Moons of unusual colors, such as green and blue, have been noted after violent volcanic explosions or through smokeladen fogs.

The Garden of Eden On the supposition that the narrative in Genesis describes a real country, any number of efforts have been made to establish the location of the Garden of Eden, and many books have Eden near the town of Kornah, in southern Babylonia, not far from the Persian gulf. This is at the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, in what is now the British mandatory kingdom of Iraq. Others have placed the Garden in Armenia, near the sources of these rivers. The region near Damascus, in Syria, has also been suggested; and some extremists have argued that it was in America, or Australia, or at the North pole. The general opinion is that the description in the second chapter of Genesis refers to southern Babylonia.

The Sphinxes

Like the pyramids, it isn't known who built or carved out the sphinxes. Their approximate age, however, can be traced to the dynasty in which they were built. The most celebrated and remarkable of the Egyptian sphinxes is the Great Sphinx of Gizeh, lying among the pyramids as a guardian of the necropolis. Inscriptions found on this famous monument when the dust of the ages was cleared away from the front of it in 1816 indicate that it was built in the Fourth dynasty, possibly 8750 B C. To the Egyptians such figures were artistic conceptions of an imaginary animal believed to be a favorite incarnation of Ra, the sun god. The Pharaohs were held to be the descendants of Ra, and his representatives on earth. For that reason the face of a sphinx was modeled after that of the reigning monarch, or sometimes from that of the queen. Numbers of smaller sphinxes have been found in the sculptures of Assyria, Babylonia and Phoenicia.

Training for Bankers

The American Bankers Association has been active for many years training young men and women in order that they may be duly qualified for the business of banking. Standard courses are furnished with able and experienced teachers. This work is done under the direction of the American Institute of Banking Section of the association. Over two hundred chapters, or local banking schools, are in active operation throughout the country and thousands of the younger generation of bankers are being graduated each year. These students are taught not only banking practices and policies. but they are also well grounded in the highest ideals and standards of business ethics. A proposal is now under consideration to establish a central school, which will offer advanced or graduate work to a selective list taken from those who have completed the standard courses .- F. M. Law, President American Bankers Association.

Banks Repaying Loans From R. F. C.

Although banks and trust companies have been the largest borrowers from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, they have exceeded all other classes of borrowers in the rapidity of their repayments. Since the inception of the R. F. C. in February, 1932, loans have been authorized by it to 7,080 banking institutions in the amount of $1,995,000,000. Of this sum $442,000,000 was not taken by the borrowers, the actual advances being $1,553,000,000.

Repayments against these advances through April 30, 1934, aggregated $925,000,000, or about 60 per cent. The ratio of repayments for all classes of been written on the subject, often borrowers has been only about 37 per widely disagreeing. Some have located cent. These rapid repayments by the banks are taken by competent observers as a strong indication of returning normal financial and banking conditions.

Bankers Finance Scholarships

The American Bankers Association Foundation for Education in Economics has since its estallishment in 1928, awarded 354 college loan scholarships, the total loans repaid in that period being $262,000 and the amount now outstanding $86,900. The total investments of its funds are $540,000.

THE HEN-MAN

HERE exists in America a certain type of person who, born and raised in a city apartment, possesses what is known in the vernacular as a yen to own a small place in the country, firmly believing that he can buy a few chickens, raise a few vegetables and live there, commuting to and from his metropolitan job, for about one-third the cost of existence in his city apartment.

This is a splendid idea, especially that part about living one-third as cheaply as in the city.

It has its other advantages, too. There is, for example, the matter of fresh air, fresh dairy products, plenty of space to move around in, freedom from the hustle and bustle of city life.

It's a pity that the plan hasn't, can't and never will be developed profitably. I mean the moving-to-the-country bug. Steve Bolton was attacked by the bug.

Steve had become fed up on city life. He was a bachelor, young and handsome, and was forever chasing about from party to tea to dinner, to theater, or any other of the dozen places where handsome and eligible young bachelors are welcomed.

Steve was fed up. He wanted a breath of fresh air; wanted to get up with the sun, drink in the crisp morning air, tend to the chickens and catch the 7:50 train to town and his broker's office. He wanted to spend his evenings seated comfortably before a cozy fire, get in some good reading, go to bed at nine o'clock and sleep the sleep of the just.

Also, he wanted to economize. The cost of living in town wasn't giving Steve much of an opportunity to save for rainy days.

This plan of Steve's was swell. Too bad it couldn't work. Steve talked the idea over with Jim McDevitt.

Jim had tried the same thing once, but for some unknown reason was back in his city apartment. Jim approved of Steve's idea without a moment's hesitation. "Great scheme. You'll like it, Steve, out there. Fine way to live. Fact is, I'll have the missus buy her eggs from you. You can bring them in every morning. Help you get started."

Steve's dreams soared. He pictured himself laying aside a tidy sum from the profits on his eggs.

Good scout, Jim. Steve also called on Rus Whitcomb. Rus and his wife had tried the livingin-the-country idea, too.

And Rus, like Jim, approved and applauded.

Sure, he'd buy all the eggs Steve could raise. Fresh eggs from the country! Boy, nothing could be better. Later that same night Jim McDevitt called Rus Whitcomb on the telephone and the two of them held a gleeful

So old Steve had got the bug, eh? Well, let him find out for himself. Won't do him any harm to get stung. He'd never rest till he got the craving out of his system anyhow. Besides, it was comforting to know there were other fish grabbing at that same live-cheaply-in-the-country bait.

. . . On the following Sunday, Steve chartered a drive-your-own car and motored out in the country.

Along toward mid-afternoon he chanced upon a little place in the town of Medvale that seemed to suit his exact purpose.

There was a white house with green blinds and a picket fence around the front lawn, in which a half dozen shade trees reared themselves. Behind the house there was a barn, several outbuildings and a rather large The place was not more than a 15minute walk from the railroad station, yet its remoteness from the traveled highway was far enough to make it Steve hunted up the owner and was astonished and delighted to discover the place could be rented for less than one-half of what he was paying at his present apartment. He sewed the thing up at once by making a substantial deposit and signing a six months' lease. A month later Steve was established in his new abode and tremendously happy. Two dozen Rhode Island Red chickens clucked contentedly in the henery. Wood was stacked ceiling high in the barn. Shrubs had begun to flower and the buds. Ah, yes, Steve was far happier than he ever dreamed he could be. He was going to bed early, getting up early, reading a lot and learning a good deal about the hen business. . . . After the first week Steve carried with him each morning a half dozen nice fresh eggs and proudly handed them to Jim and Rus when he reached the office. Jim and Rus received them solemnly and praised him highly for his success and winked broadly behind his back, Along about the first of May, Steve's hens, or most of them, stopped laying.

After failing to solve the mystery himself, he consulted a neighbor and was told that the biddles were at this time of year usually interested in raising a family. Steve thought this was great. He went home, gathered together all his spare eggs and put five of his hens

The others he locked up in a barren anteroom to "break up" their family raising notions At the end of two weeks eight of the three dozen eggs Steve had set,

The young man was jubilant. He proudly summoned his neighbor, to display the result of his breeding efforts, and was told that five of the eight chicks were roosters, which eight chicks wasn't so good. It was about this time that monthly bills began to arrive at the hen farm, and after an evening spent in intensive figuring Steve discovered that the cost of electric lights, cooking gas, telephone and other incidentals of livelihood was quite as much, if not more, than the cost of the same conveniences in town. It was two days after this that Steve learned, much to his disappointment, that the "fresh" cream, milk and butter which he had been having left at his door each morning were shipped out of Boston on the night previous and distributed in the country by a chain dairy products company.

Augmenting these startling revelations, Steve came to the conclusion that getting up with the sun every morning wasn't such a swell idea, especially if it happened to be a rainy day or if the air wasn't bracing because of the humidity.

He found also that the long, quiet evenings were more or less palling once you got used to them, and that a month of reading had brought him up to date on current literature.

In fact, Steve began to know a longing for a fling at city life, for an evening at a night club or trip to the theater or a gay dinner party. . . .

Startlingly, he discovered that, after all, farming was a business, and unless you devoted your entire time to it, it was pretty difficult to make it pay. Which, incidentally, when you look at the thing squarely, is quite true of almost any business. To add to all this, Steve one day awoke to the fact that Jim and Rus, who had had their fling of commuting from the country, were giving him what is known as the merry ha, ha. They had, in a manner of speaking, put up a job on him. They wanted to see him get stung. And when he finally admitted that this country idea was a lot of bilge they would be all set to enjoy the situation with crude and raucous guf-

This knowledge was disturbing. Steve's ears burned at thoughts of it. And in the end he vowed to foil the instigators of the joke, and turn, if possible, the tables.

. . . Thus minded, Steve on the day following brought as usual his half dozen fresh eggs to the conniving rascals who posed as friends and advisers, suggesting on delivery that, in view of the fact that eggs were scarce these days and because these from Medvale were strictly fresh, the recipients of the daily half dozen pay a little more than the amount asked at the corner delicatessen for less fresh hen fruit.

Jim and Russ agreed readily enough. Of course, fresh eggs were worth more money. What was more, they were eager and anxious to give Steve a helping hand. A week later Steve moved back to his city apartment and with a great feeling of relief settled once more into-the comfortable routine to which he was accustomed. But each morning for six months thereafter he paused at the corner chain store en route to the office, purchased two one-half dozen boxes of eggs at 20 cents the half dozen, and later sold them to Jim and Rus for 30 cents. Which explains why, in the early fall, when Jim and Rus, puzzled over Steve's continued success as a henman, motored one day to the little white house in Medvale (the same house, incidentally, which first one and then the other had occupied during their own venture in the egg-raising business) they discovered that Steve had quitted the place six months previous, and were prone not to guffaw when next they encountered the wouldbe hen-man, but merely to chuckle in good fellowship fashion and vow with him to warn all others against the live-in-the-country bug when it attacked friends and neighbors of the

Early Transatlantic Flights The United States navy seaplane

NC-4 was the first heavier-than-air craft to cross the Atlantic. This was in May, 1919. It left Rockaway, N. Y., with two companion seaplanes on May 8 and arrived at Lisbon, Portugal, on May 27. The trip was made with stops in Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and the Azores. The first airplane to cross the ocean in a single flight was a British Vickers-Vimy biplane, flown by Capt. John Alcock, pilot, and Lieut. Arthur W. Brown, navigator. It left St. John's, N. F., June 14, 1919, and landed early the following day at Clifton, Galway, Ireland. The British dirigible R-34 was the first of its class to cross the Atlantic. It left Scotland on July 2, 1919, reached Mineola, N. Y., via Newfoundland, on July 6, and returned by the same route from July 9 to 12.

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:31-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt, Matthew 26:39.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Praying.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in Gethsemane.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Jesus Praying in the Garden.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Gethsemane.

I. Plotting the Death of Jesus (vv.

Jesus, with divine insight, predicted not only the fact of his death but its time and manner. He was not taken by surprise since for this preeminent purpose he came into the world (Heb. 2:14). He deliberately walked up to death. He knew that the Passover would find its fulfillment in his death, for he was the antitypical lamb thereof. The Jewish authorities in secret conclave were plotting to silence his voice by putting him to death. It was the divine purpose that he die.

II. Mary of Bethany Anoints Jesus (vv. 6-13).

1. The place of the act (vv. 6, 7). This anointing occurred when Jesus was at meat in Simon's house. She brought a precious possession and lavished it upon her Master.

2. The indignation of the disciples (vv. 8, 9). The action of the disciples was in strange contrast with Mary's love. The real thing that hurt Judas was the loss of the money for which the ointment might have been sold; not that he cared for the poor (John 12:5, 6).

3. Mary defended by Christ (vv. 10-13.) Jesus could not allow his most appreciative disciple to lie under this censure so he came to her rescue. In spite of their criticism, he had nothing but the highest praise for her deed. As a result of Christ's defense, Judas is so stingingly rebuked that he hastens away to betray his Lord.

4. The meaning of this act (vv. 12, 13). By sitting at Jesus' feet in loving fellowship, she obtained a grasp of truth which none of the other disciples had. She saw that his body was to be broken and that his precious life was to go out. She entered into fellowship with his sufferings and the joys of his resurrection. This she showed in the symbolic act of lavishing her most precious possession upon him. She did this service in loving anticipation.

III. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 14-30).

1. The bargain of betrayal (vv. 14-16). Satan had so complete a mastery over Judas that he sold his Lord for the price of a slave (Exod. 21:32).

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-30). This took place while they were eating the Passover. It may be that the reason for this announcement at this time was to afford Judas a last opportunity to repent. Jesus' words, "He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish the same shall betray me," revealed the darkness of this crime.

IV. The Disciples Warned (vv. 31-35). This took place as they walked from the upper room to the Garden of Gethsemane. He plainly told them. "All ye shall be offended because of me this night," quoting Zechariah 13:7 as proof. Peter vehemently protested that although all should forsake him. he would not. How little Peter knew of his weakness. His self-confidence was his snare.

V. Jesus Praying (VV. 36-46). 1. The place—the Garden of Gethsemane (v. 36). Gethsemane means "oil press." It was a place some three-quarters of a mile east of Jerusalem where oil was crushed out of the olives. 2. His companions (v. 37). Peter, James, and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, are permitted to go with him in the deep shadow of the garden.

3. Jesus sorrowing even unto death (vv. 37, 38). The cause of his suffering was not primarily physical but spiritual. He was being made sin for us (II Cor. 5:21).

4. The prayer itself (v. 39). "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." What was this cup? It was not a prayer to be delivered from the cross. The idea that he desired to escape from the cross and thus stop short all his redemptive work is not to be entertained. Redemption through the sacrifice of himself was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world. The holiness and perfection of his nature moved him to shrink from the mountain of sin which was resting upon him. Though the cup was bitter he bowed in submission to the Father's will.

Following a Star

The secret of the perseverance of the wise men is not hard to find. It sprang from this, that they were following a star. Had they been guided by anything less than that, they would have sunk down wearied long ago.

Fear of Conscience

Many a man has in his past life some deed hidden which, if it became known, would drive him from society, because it would bring down on him the reprobation of the conscience of all who knew him.

Science of Health By Dr. Thos. S. Englar

MILK BOTTLE CAPS. Milk, the indispensable food, is sometimes the carrier of infection, and in this way, the bearer of disease. If the cow is in health—as all milch animals should be-any infection carried by milk must be added after it leaves the cow's udder. Bacteria may be in the milk bucket or other containers; the organisms may be conveyed to the milk by barn or dairy dusts, or by workers who are not cleanly, or who harbor in their throats or elsewhere the germs of disease. These are matters of common knowl-

What we are to consider here are the chances for pathogens (disease germs) to get into your milk after it has been pasteurized and placed in sterilized bottles. These chances, it turns out, represent a high probabiiity of contamination if your milk bottle is closed only with the ordinary cardboard disk, resting snugly on a ledge inside the bottle neck.

An investigation of this subject was made by V. H. MacFarlane and John Weinzirl, and their interesting conclusions have been published in the American Journal of Hygiene. They were able to prove that the familiar milk bottle cap, alone, afforded little assurance against dirt and bacteria from various sources getting into your milk, and so into your body. A high degree of security from this danger is afforded only by the extra, socalled hood seal, a paraffined paper covering-familiar to every user of certified milk-which is adjusted over the top and neck of the bottle and mechanically wired in place.

This subject should be of interest not only to every housewife who buys bottled milk for her family, because of the possibility of disease; but also to every dairyman who bottles and sells milk, because of the probability that, in future, he may be required to hood-seal all of his bottles.

To summarize very briefly careful experiments made by the bacteriologists, it was found that the average number of bacteria on the inner lip and disc cap of the single-capped bottles of milk was more than ten times the number found at the same places in the hood-sealed bottles, other conditions being identical.

Considerable importance is attached to the "expansion-contraction phenomenon" as bearing on this problem. In simple language, this means only that milk, like other substances, expands where it is warm and shrinks, or contracts, in the cold. A bottle of milk on the back porch, the morning sun beaming down upon it, expands and pushes out a little of the cream to collect the dust, or perhaps a few microbes from an alley-cat's tongue Placed in the refrigerator to cool and contract, the shrinkage of a quart of milk may suck back into the bottle a few drops of the contaminated cream. It is not necessary for the top cream to be actually in contact with the cap for this to happen. The expansioncontraction phenomenon takes place, of course in hood-sealed bottles subjected to the same changes in temperature, but contamination does not occur because dust and hands are kept from touching the cap or pouring lip of the bottle.

The research included experiments in cleaning the tops and disc caps of ordinary milk bottles. By careful bacteriological studies, it was found that in bottles of which the tops and caps were not washed at all, the milk was contaminated in 85 percent of cases. Thorough washing with cold tap water reduced the number of contaminated bottles by about 50 percent.

Each Child Has 3 Ages, Cleveland Doctor Finds

Cincinnati.-A child has three ages, mental, physical and chronological, Dr. T. Wingate Todd, professor of anatomy in Western Reserve university, Cleveland, told the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine here recently.

Doctor Todd said X-rays provide data for determination of the physical age, while psychological tests are made for the mental age. Under normal conditions the chronological age can be estimated rather certainly by examination of the bone structures, Doctor Todd pointed out.

From the anatomical viewpoint, according to the physician, children of six have an adult brain and the best nurtured children have such a brain even at four. The brain then awaits only development through education with the child until ten, seeking to learn things through his own efforts rather than through teachings of others, according to Doctor Todd.

PUBLIC OPINION AND THE BANKS

By F. N. SHEPHERD Executive Manager American Bankers Association

WHILE banking today appears in a wholly distorted light in the eyes of some, the more reasoning elements of our people. Anti-social acts on the part of some bankers formerly have been the subject of spectacular exposures, but I can say without reservation that they were in no way typical of the acts and attitudes of the vast majority of their fellow bankers. The public mind was shocked into the belief that these untypical instances were far more representative than they really were, and this belief has been encouraged by political and demagogic elements.

The Bankers Today

The bankers who are in charge of our banks today represent men who withstood the temptations and avoided the economic pitfalls of the great boom. If they had not they would not be there, or their banks would not have been able to survive the rack and ruin of the economic hurricane, by which even many banks and bankers, whose conduct was above reproach, have been destroyed. The other types of bankers, those that fell below the high standards of professional ethics and business prudence that characterized those that remain, have passed out of the picture. But they have left for those that remain a difficult heritage of suspicion and ill will.

How irrational this is, when we reflect that not more than three or four per cent of our entire population suffered personal loss because of what any banker did or neglected to do, whereas literally millions of bank depositors did not lose a single cent as a result of banking difficulties and really owe a vote of confidence and thanks to their own bankers who were true to the highest conceptions of their stewardship and brought their institutions and their customers safely through the greatest business disaster the world has ever seen. It has been a peculiar feature of the psychological distortion of the times that many who owe nothing but gratitude to their bankers joined in blaming the banker far out of proportion with any rational consideration of the facts.

EXAMINATIONS FOR TRUST INSTITUTIONS

New Move by Federal Banking Authorities Welcomed by Banks and Trust Companies, Says Bankers' Organization

EDERAL examination of trust departments is the latest development in banking supervision and trust companies and banks operating trust departments are welcoming this development because it fills a long-felt want, it is stated by the Trust Division of the American Bankers Association.

Despite the growing importance of American trust business in recent years examining officials have never given to trust departments the attention paid to commercial banking departments, this authority points out. Now the Federal Reserve System, in conjunction with the Comptroller of the Currency, has undertaken to bring the examination of trust departments up to the level of commercial bank examinations, it says.

Experts in trust work are being employed by the various Federal Reserve Banks. These experts will head the special staffs of trust examiners in the twelve Federal Reserve Districts. Special staffs are already at work in some of the Reserve Districts, including Boston, Atlanta, Richmond and Chicago. The Federal Reserve will examine the trust departments of statechartered members of the Reserve Sys-

Uniform Supervision

Meanwhile, the Comptroller of the Currency has built up over the past two years a staff of special examiners for the trust departments of national banks. All national banks are members of the Federal Reserve System. Since nearly all state-chartered trust institutions are members of the Reserve System the new plan will bring about what amounts to Federal examination for the trust business.

State examining authorities probably will follow Federal supervisory policies to a considerable extent. Hence, coordination of the procedure of the national banking system and the Federal Reserve System is expected to result in a uniform system of examinations for trust departments in all banks. This in turn should produce considerable standardization in the operation of trust departments, the division deTANEYTOWN LOCALS.

THE DOG LAW.

Paragraph F of Section 20 or Article 99, Maryland Game Code, provides as follows; "Any person allowing any dog or dogs belonging to him to run at large on any property other than that owned or tenanted by him between March 1 and September 1 and pursue game or destroy the eggs or nests thereof shall pay a penalty of $5.00 and costs for each and every offense. Any person harboring a dog or dogs shall be termed the lawful owner of same."

It is very essential that every dog owner of this state shall keep his dogs either under leash or confined or on his own property. Of course, it is unfortunate that the law provides that dogs can run at large on a person's own property at this season of the year and the owner of a dog or dogs should by all means take an interest in helping to conserve our wild-life supply by keeping their dogs un-der leash or confined, as the propagating season is on and our feathered and furred friends need all the protection we can possibly give them.

The more birds the agriculturist has on his property, the less insects there will be to destroy his crops.

Mr. dog-owner, we appeal to you at this time to keep your dogs under leash or confined until September 1st. The law prohibits persons training or hunting dogs at this season of the year under a penalty of not less than $25.00 nor more than $100 for each and every offense. Therefore, to those who persist in taking their dogs out for a run between March 1 and Sept. 1, we request you to comply with the law and co-operate with us in keeping your dogs out of propogating covers thereby saving all wildlife possible. Those who do not comply with the law will be prosecuted for violation thereof by our wardens. Therefore, save yourself and us embarrassment by cooperating to the fullest extent.

A Cheap Proposition

"What's that thing about a loaf of bread, a jug of wine and thou?" asked Willie Lobsterclaw.

"I don't know," replied Harry Fizzłepop, "unless it's some scheme for getting a supper without tipping the head walter."

ENOUGH

George-Grace said if any man kissed her without warning she would scream for her father. Jack-What did you do?

George-I warned her. Name "United States"

Thomas Jefferson, who prepared the Declaration of Independence in 1776, was probably the first to use the name "United States of America;" The colonies were definitely proclaimed to be united in a resolution referring to the "Twelve United Colonies," adopted on June 7, 1775. On September 9, 1776, it was decided that in all continental commissions and other instruments where formerly the words "United Colonies" had been used, the style should be altered to the "United States." The reason there were only 12 colonies mentioned was that Georgia had not sent delegates to the First and Second congress. The United States can be said to date from the Declaration of Independence

BIRTH OF QUINTUPLETS.

A Canadian mother, the wife of a farmer named Dionna, recently gave birth to five girls-quintuplets-the largest weighing three pounds and four ounces, and the smallest a pound less, their total weight being 13 lbs, 6 ounces. At last report, the mother was in good condition, but the father said he didn't feel so well, and was the "kind of fellow who ought to be in jail."

The family already consisted of five children, the oldest being seven, none of them having yet gone to school. The farm which they are buying on the instalment plan is heavily mort-gaged. The father speaks French and English, the mother only French.

The babies are all reported to be alive at the end of four days and that they are being fed a mixture of milk, corn syrup and water, through the use of an eye-dropper, and it takes so long to feed them that when the last has been fed, the first is hungry

TO MAKE CHILDREN HEALTHY. The State Department of Health received a communication recently from a little girl who is just getting over the measles. She enclosed a drawing of a husky looking little maid with very rosy cheeks, and asked what children could do, to make them as healthy as the little girl in the picture. The Department receives many inquiries from grown-ups. many inquiries from grown-ups, concerning all sorts of things connected with public health and every possible effort is made to give them the desired information.
