CARROLL COUNTY FAIR

A Condensed Program of Events for Each Day.

Arrangements are being made for the biggest and best fair in the history of the Association, beginning on Tuesday, Aug. 14 and continuing until Saturday, Aug. 18. The fair will be held day and night for five consecutive days. The program has been arranged so that something of importance is transpiring continually. There will be no "big days" of the fair; every day will be a big day. Every moment will be filled with amusement and entertainment for young and old.

A great deal of interest is being shown in this year's exhibits. The association promises a larger exhibit in every line than what has been displayed in former years. Cattle, swine and poultry will out-rank anything ever shown before. A new space has been equipped for the display of canned goods and farm products. The premiums given in this department by the Crown, Cork and Seal Co., are absolutely unheard of. The household arts department will be larger and better than of previous years. An added display is the flower division.

One of the outstanding exhibits of the fair will be the Farm and Garden Product which is under the direction of John N. Starr. Farmers from all over Carroll County are planning to make this one of the largest exhibits of the fair. The new exhibit space will make this display doubly attractive.

The Kiwanis Club of Westminster will again sponsor the Boys and Girls 4-H Club exhibit. This exhibit will include classes for the calf, pig, poultry and potato clubs.

The midway with its many shows and ride will please both young and old. Couples have been selected for the double wedding to be held Wednesday evening. This will be a beautiful affair, don't fail to see this. The following is the program for the week of the fair:

Monday, Aug. 13. Receiving day for articles entered for premiums.

Tuesday, Aug. 14. Tournament Day. 2 P. M., Tournament performance before grandstand. 7 P. M. Crowning of Queen of Love and Beauty and Maids. Dancing and free acts.

Wednesday, Aug. 15. Republican Day. 1:30 P. M. Horse races, performances before grandstand; 2:30 P. M., greased pig contest; 3:30 P. M., mule race; 4:30 P. M., tug of war; 7:30 P. M., public double wedding in front of grandstand; 8 P. M., large display of fireworks. Special attractions, dancing.

ONLY A "FAC-SIMILE" COPY.

Recently, a copy of the "Ulster County Gazette" (N. Y.) purporting to have been published January 4, 1800, was shown to us. Acting on a dim recollection that fac-simile copies of this paper had been published, years ago, we made inquiry of the Enoch Pratt Library, Baltimore, and have this information.

"You are quite right as recalling that there have been fac-similes issued of the Ulster County Gazette of January 4, 1800. Mr. Joseph Gavit, in his list of American Newspaper Reprints, 1931, calls this the most famous of the reprints. He says the first reprint was about 1849, since which time there have been about 75 varieties discovered. There appears to be but one original and this is in the Library of Congress, although antiquarians have searched for years to find other originals.

Among the tests of a true copy are vertical parallel line water marks slightly over one inch apart. Also, the old style 's' should appear frequently in the word Ulster for instance; and the last line of page 1, column 1, should read 'liberal execution of the treaty of amity.'

I might say that we have supposedly original copies offered us at the rate of eight or ten a year.

I take this opportunity to hope that you will let us know when publications of historic interest came to your attention, so that we may beg or purchase copies for the library. We are grateful for your co-operation, past and present."

Very truly yours,
JAMES W. FOSTER,
Maryland Department.

P.O.S.OF A. STATE CAMP IN TANEYTOWN.

A Pilgrimage to the Birth Place of Francis Scott Key.

The thirty-ninth annual session of the State Camp of Maryland, Patriotic Order Sons of America, convened in Odd Fellows' Hall, Taneytown, on Tuesday and Wednesday. Sixty delegates were present from over the state representing Camps from Cumberland, Allegany County, to Templeville, Queen Annes County.

At Tuesday's session the following officers were elected:

State President, Wm. T. Childs, Baltimore; State Vice-President, C. F. Wieler, Ellerslie, Allegany County; State Master of Forms, M. B. Kinnamon, Templeville, Queen Annes Co.; State Secretary, Wm. J. Carter, Baltimore; State Treasurer Samuel J. Miller, Baltimore; Conductor, Arthur Coppage, Church Hill; Inspector, Harry J. Myers, Pleasant Valley; Guard, Thomas Lathe, Baltimore; Trustees, L. M. Volk, Cumberland; Charles L. Stonestifer, Taneytown; C. W. Fleetwood, Baltimore; Next Place of Meeting, Ellerslie, Allegany Co.

Visitors present were Past National President, Gabriel H. Moyer, Lebanon, Pa., and Past State President of Pennsylvania, James C. Pyle, of Lancaster, Pa.

An important feature of the afternoon was a pilgrimage to the Peter Baumgardner farm, the birthplace of Francis Scott Key, where nineteen years ago a monument was erected by the P. O. S. of A., in honor of the author of the Star Spangled Banner, Rev. L. B. Hafer, Gettysburg, president. "America" was sung and Rev. S. J. Miller, Baltimore, delivered the invocation.

Addresses were delivered by Edw. S. Delaplaine, Attorney, of Frederick, Gabriel H. Moyer, Attorney, Lebanon, Pa., and Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Gettysburg. The address by Mr. Delaplaine represented much data and authentic information growing out of his personal research into the life, writing, character and individual acts of Francis Scott Key, which he has been engaged in collecting from numerous sources for several years, and which will be published in the near future.

He said that while Key was chiefly known for one act, he was in addition a man of fine character and intellectuality, and had contributed many gems of thought in a modest way on public matters, that give one a clear conception of the attitude he would take "if here today" in the midst of our troublous times.

Some of his thoughts were available through many old books and through these he had written. President Harding paid one of the most beautiful tributes to Key in an address in which he said "Let me write the songs of a people and I care not who writes their laws." He is still speaking to us through our National Anthem. That if here today he would not be filled with discouragement and alarm; but what he would say would have its full share of optimism that we can overcome all forces of evil and disaster, communism and atheism.

He had the faith that if we do our duty, with the aid of Providence all things that tend toward good will be fulfilled; all vicissitudes of human affairs can be controlled; that he would think of our present turmoil in the light of a warning from the powers that have preserved us as a Nation since the days of Washington; that times of difficulty and danger give to men the outline of their plain duties.

(We should be glad to publish his splendid address in full, at a later date, with the consent of Mr. Delaplaine.)

Gabriel H. Moyer, Lebanon, Pa., a Past National President of the P. O. S. of A., followed in an eloquent tribute to Key, after first commending the erection of the monument at his birth-place as a happy privilege and opportunity such as comes to men in their saner moments when they return to recognition and appreciation of our greater men, among whom must be included Francis Scott Key, who wrote, "O, Say can you see by the dawn's early light" that flag that represents our freedom and liberty.

He characterized this as gloriously significant—that the whole world may see—the glory of the flag of a free people. That the Federal constitution if it is anything, challenges the conscience of the people to remember that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," and to warn every citizen to see that the rights accorded by the constitution shall be properly preserved.

If Key were here he would say to those who would break down the essentials of the constitution "Hands off, come back to earth again." It was because of the foresight of such men of the type of Key that we have our liberties. High devotion to things worth while are not written on monuments but in the hearts of the people, and it is our duty to see that enemies of our liberty be warned that we will have no interference with our flag or with what it typifies.

At a special meeting held on Tuesday night, open to all members of the order, what was called a "Patriotic Clinic" was held. The main address by Prof. Wm. James Heaps, Baltimore, "A Return to Constitutional Government." He went into detail regarding the difficulties attending the forming of the Constitution, which then, as now, had to meet with numerous territorial self-interests before final agreement was reached.

The various interests represented were those of Virginia, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania,

REAL ESTATE TAXES TOO HIGH

Maryland Farm Bureau Makes Numerous Suggestions.

Taxes on Maryland real estate are out of proportion to present values of real property, according to findings of the Joint Tax Committee of the Maryland State Grange and the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation. The committee recently adopted resolutions calling for a flat twenty percent mark-down in real estate assessments in the State to correct this condition, after a study disclosed that farm real estate has declined in value approximately twenty four percent since 1928 (the last general assessment.) City real estate has depreciated even more, it is believed. The Joint Committee opposes a general re-assessment at this time because of the heavy cost involved and recommends a flat twenty percent mark-down in assessments instead.

Decreased revenue from real estate taxes would be offset in the committee's recommendations by a state income tax, changes in the inheritance taxes, increase in the pari-mutuel bets tax and use of the state liquor tax and licenses revenues to reduce the levies for school purposes. These proposed changes in the bases of taxation in the State are designed as "fair and equitable for the entire population of Maryland, urban as well as rural," according to D. G. Harry, Chairman of the Joint Tax Committee.

The joint committee's report is based upon changing the direction of the cost of government, in the direction of a materially lower burden per capita than at present. In a statement issued in support of its tax recommendations, the committee states:

"While we can find no evidence of extravagance that materially affects the tax rate, it is our opinion that the cost of government in our state must be reduced. Any large reduction in the tax rate from this source can hardly be realized immediately since judgment dictates that changes should be made slowly but we feel that it is imperative that we change the trend of the cost of government in the direction of a materially lower burden per capita than at present.

"When we consider the second point there seems to be no question as to the seriousness of the tax burden on real estate in Maryland. Disregarding the figures of recent forced sales, the value of farm real estate in Maryland has increased only 20 percent in the past twenty years. However, farmers' taxes have increased over 190 percent during the same period."—Maryland Farm Bureau.

C. E. DAY AT PINE-MAR.

On Sunday, August 12, 1934, afternoon session, at 2:30 P. M.; Sunset Service, at 6:30 P. M.; Evening Session, at 7:30 P. M.

An interesting and elaborate program will be given by the Carroll Co. Christian Endeavor Union. Every Christian Endeavor Society in the county has been invited to attend and the public is also cordially invited. Plan now to attend all these services and bring others with you. Picnic lunch will be the plan for the evening meal. Refreshments will be sold on the grounds.

The committee on arrangements with Mary E. Shriver as chairman, have planned what they think will be a day for you with lasting memories.

(We regret that so much "copy" of various kinds was received Thursday, and this Friday morning, that we must omit the outside program for want of time to place it in type.—Ed.)

ANNUAL LAWN FETE.

Under auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Grace Reformed Church, Taneytown, will be held this Saturday evening, Aug. 11, from 5 o'clock on. As usual the program committee has planned an evening full of fun and feat. There will be contests, prizes, amusements for all. Novel feature for the kiddies will be the fish pond.

The following program will be given: Selections of guitars, Elwood Nusbaum and William Sell; Novel exercise, Just like This, Roberta Feesser and Hazel Sies; solo, Charlotte Baker; dialogue, reading, Edna Smith; selection, Rev. Franklin P. Bailey, Deer Park Church. Rev. Bailey will sing and play on novel instruments which he has made himself; dialogue, "Cookies and Callers;" guitar selections, Elwood Nusbaum and William Sell; dialogue, "A Suitor Bold;" contests, fun and prizes; Dixie Boys from Deer Park M. P. Church, will furnish music for the entire evening.

and finally the Connecticut plan was adopted.

(The address in full appears on the editorial page of this issue.)

Other addresses were by Rev. L. B. Hafer, Gettysburg; J. C. Turner Cumberland; George R. McCleary, Baltimore; J. W. Turnbaugh, Baltimore County; Isaac Kallinsky, Baltimore; Q. E. Weant, Baltimore; P. B. Englar, Taneytown, and others.

The session on Wednesday was taken up largely in the hearing of committee reports, the consideration and adoption of resolutions, and the consideration of plans for activity during the coming year.

The general verdict was that the reception accorded the sixty delegates present by the citizens of Taneytown, who supplied rooming and boarding accommodations, were very satisfactory; and that the "pilgrimage" to the Key birthplace was especially appreciated as the star feature of the entire session.

DEATH OF G. CLINTON UHL.

G. Clinton Uhl, of Allegany County, chairman of the Maryland State Road Commission died at his home at Mt. Savage, Sunday night, aged 65 years. He had been in ill health for about a year. He entered the State Road service in 1905 as a member of the board of road directors for Allegany county, and was appointed to the State Road Board in 1916 by Gov. Harrington.

Mr. Uhl had not been at his offices for about two months. Recently he returned home from the Adirondack mountains in New York state where he had gone in an effort to recover his health. Mr. Uhl, who also was prominent in business affairs in Allegany county, is survived by his widow and four sons.

A native of Wellersburg, Pa., he came to Mount Savage at the age of 19 and entered the employ of McMullen Bros., a general store. In 1897 he organized his own general store, Clinton Uhl & Co.

Later he organized and became the head of three Allegany county concerns, the Maryland Shoe Company at Cumberland, in 1913; the Greenbrier Quarry Company, at Mount Savage, and the Mount Savage Fuel Company.

TO CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

We again express our inability to give to candidates for nomination, space for their announcements and claims to preferment for office. The Record is a non-partisan newspaper, and must treat candidates of both parties alike in this matter of free publicity; but will of course publish paid advertisements for all.

SAVE ALL HAY THIS YEAR, IS ADVICE OF SPECIALIST.

Maryland farmers are likely to profit by saving just as much as possible of the unusually large hay crop in the State this year, is the opinion of F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in agronomy for the University of Maryland Extension Service. He states that instances have come to his attention in which farmers are considering leaving a portion of their hay crop unharvested, due to the fact that all facilities on their farms ordinarily used for storing hay are occupied.

Mr. Oldenburg points to the fact that the hay crop is exceptionally short in large sections of the country, and the demand for feed to care for livestock is almost certain to be very great. Already, he says, hay is selling at high prices and he believes that prices will increase.

It is the advice of this specialist that all the hay in Maryland this year that is fit for feed should be harvested and stored in the best manner that conditions on individual farms will permit. In his opinion, there will be a demand for it at attractive prices.

FOREST FIRES AND DROUGHT.

Extremely warm weather and scarcity of rainfall have brought about a very unusual summertime drought and forests are now hazardedly dry. Scattering fires have been reported in Wicomico county, near Quantico; in Allegany, Anne Arundel and southern Prince George's counties. Carelessness of berry pickers seems to be the main cause of fires at this unusual season. Summer fires are rather uncommon in Maryland due to ample rainfall and luxuriant green summer foliage, but the localized thunder showers of recent weeks have been insufficient to keep the forests in a safe condition. Not since the very serious fires of the unequaled summer drought of 1930 have forests been as dry in mid-summer as at the present time.

The Quantico forest fire tower in Wicomico County and the Town Hill and High Rock towers in Western Maryland have been placed in temporary operation and others will be opened if conditions warrant. Forest wardens are urged to be particularly watchful for threatening smokes and to make immediate investigations. Extra precautions in trenching and patrolling all fire lines are necessary because fires will easily break across smoldering fire lines. Let's be alert and ready for action!

DOUBLE WEDDING FOR FAIR.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the public double wedding to take place at the Carroll County Fair, at Taneytown, on the night of Wednesday, Aug. 15, at 7:30 P. M. There will be a complete bridal party for each couple including two flower girls and two ring bearers in addition to the regular members of the party. Elting Reifsdinger a decorator of considerable experience in this country and abroad, has been secured to arrange and decorate the stage for the weddings. The gifts for the couples will be on display in the exhibition hall. Not only Carroll County stores have been solicited for gifts, but the leading Baltimore stores.

The ferns and flowers for decorating will be loaned through the courtesy of local florists, who will also donate the flowers for the members of the wedding parties. Inquiry has been made as to whether gifts may be presented to the couples on the night of the wedding, and the committee has decided that persons desiring to present gifts in this manner should bring them to the grandstand wrapped, and marked with the name of the donor. The wedding march will be played by Bim Hagerman and his broadcasting orchestra, who will furnish music for dancing each evening.

Random Thoughts

"RANDOM THOUGHTS."

In writing these "random thoughts" we may repeat ourselves. They are not meant to be "deep" nor to represent careful analysis. No record has been kept of them, no special preparation is made for writing them. The most of them are simply "random" thoughts as they happen to come along, at odd moments during our weekly job.

If they are interesting to some, we are glad. If in homely words they present helpful thoughts to others, they carry the only virtue that is meant to attach to their publication. There is no pride of authorship in any way connected with them.

We should like to help a bit in the way of helping our readers to do more and clearer thinking, especially along moral lines and everyday experiences; and to help those who read our little essays to see "the other side" rather than just one side, of questions.

All of us have "random thoughts" every day—and suddenly. It is wise, therefore, to cultivate the habit of trying to mix a large measure of honest common sense and fairness, in with them. There should be no time in our lives to spend on wrong thinking—for thought, leads to acts, and acts make up the record of the worth-whileness of everybody's life.

THE "TIMES" AND THE WEEKLY

There is a tendency toward the elimination of the Country Weekly, due to a combination of conditions that have grown up in the progress of modern life, during the past forty years, and the question is well worth considering—Is not the local weekly practically a community necessity?

Forty years ago, in Taneytown and surrounding district, there were likely not over twenty-five subscribers, all told, to daily newspapers, and this was the situation applying to all such towns. This was before Rural delivery, state roads, automobiles, radios and the present High School system. It was also before present tax rates.

The introduction of Rural Delivery opened up a wider field for daily papers, which they actively made use of and competed for, with the result that now daily newspaper circulation in rural districts has increased perhaps over 1000 percent, and the competition between dailies for the field is still very active, leading toward the vision of a complete monopoly, by driving the weekly off the entire country field, especially in areas now easily reached by motor transportation, and the enlarged mail service.

So, our country community transportation service, supported and fostered largely through increased taxation on the community public, endangers the very life of our weeklies, and in doing so endangers as well the activity and influence of the country weekly that it naturally exerts in the interests of its patron-subscribers. The country weekly, in fact, is an attorney and adviser, safe-guarding purely local interests, in such a personally interested way as can not possibly be felt by the encroaching dailies that are largely interested in their increased revenue only.

It would be unreasonable to expect those who can afford daily newspapers, to do without them, merely to save the weeklies. That the rural population is presumably more intelligent now than forty years ago, may be taken for granted. That their vision has been broadened through good roads and motor travel, may equally be taken for granted. But it is not so easily to be accepted that, because of this, the country weekly is no longer needed.

Its service is almost comparable to the rain that falls. It is a friend at hand, when a friend is needed. It gives many a little, but important, service, that can not possibly be given by a daily newspaper. It gives to those away from home, almost a personal letter from home. In the matter of advertising, it furnishes it at a ridiculously low price, when needed, and is circulated among those most interested in the important messages carried.

And, who can estimate the loss of an at home job printing office? But even this department is being attacked and made difficult to carry on; for, he it known, the weekly could not exist at all, without this source of revenue. The two are needed together. One without the other, would represent very poor service indeed.

The rural public is actually more concerned than it thinks, with the tendency that is on foot toward eliminating the little weekly. It is like "not missing the water until the well runs dry."

THE RETURN TO CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT.

(Address delivered by Wm. James Heaps, Baltimore, at Tuesday night's Special Session of the State Camp of Maryland, P. O. S. of A.)

From the landing of the Pilgrim at Plymouth Rock in 1620, until the culmination of events that brought on the Revolutionary War, more than a hundred and fifty years of time elapsed, and this might be styled a cycle. From the adoption of the Constitution in 1787, to date, more than a hundred and fifty more years have dissolved into the eternal past, and this might be styled another cycle.

When those grim visioned old Puritan Fathers stepped from their little vessel onto Plymouth Rock, after making a compact of unity of plans, efforts and purposes, there was planted on American soil the first effective plan for freedom. What if their religious conviction prompted them first to fall upon their knees? What if their next fall was upon the aboriginals; they were calous fisted, hard headed self-opinionated, conscientious men with grim determination to preserve here "Freedom to Worship God" that had been denied them in the old world.

Freedom of worship gained and put into practice soon developed the kindred thought—freedom of political action. These two ideas running parallel thru the generations, developed a hardy people who knew their rights and had the courage to stand up for them.

During the 150 years that followed the first landing, thirteen separate successful colonial governments were established. There were three classes of these colonial Governments—The Royal, under domination of the King; the Charter, under specific grant from the King and Parliament; The Proprietary, under grant from the Crown.

Thus three forms of government, each differing from the other, arose, and became the foundation upon which our Constitutional Government was developed.

No wonder that the task of preparing a Constitution for the Government of the United States was a difficult one; no wonder the representatives sweltered, fought, compromised from May 14, 1787, until Sept. 17, 1787 before they could finally agree to something to which none fully agreed, yet which all accepted as the best they could do under the circumstances.

There were big wealthy provinces like Virginia, whose interests the delegates from Virginia desired to protect, and there were small provinces like Rhode Island and Delaware, and New Jersey, which the delegates from these provinces desired to protect; hence it was natural that Randolph of Virginia, should present a plan which he and his colleagues felt and argued was the only plan that could be adopted that could hope to prove successful, called The Virginia Plan.

Paterson, of New Jersey, then presented his plan on behalf of the smaller Colonies that these representatives knew was the only plan that could possibly succeed—known as the New Jersey Plan.

The large States desired and demanded representation, determined according to wealth and population; the smaller States, wanted and demanded that each separate State have equal voice in all the Governmental affairs.

All seemed hopeless, and for weeks failure stared them in the face. Only the calm courage of General George Washington, the Chairman, held them to their task. Finally the Connecticut compromise Plan was offered, and the delegates again got busy.

The three-fold form of government, with proper checks and balances was determined upon—Legislative, Executive and Judicial.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The Legislative Department was planned to make the Laws for the Government of the Nation, and a bicameral form was determined upon with Senate and House of Representatives, each independent of the other.

On this point developed the greatest difference, because delegates from small States were jealous of the power of large States, and the large States jealous of the power of small States.

A compromise was effected, giving representation according to population and with sole right to introduce measures of taxation to the House of Representatives, thus to protect the wealth, person and property of the people; while to the Senate was assigned two from each State, thus protecting the interests of the small States, as no law could be passed unless approved by majority of both houses of Congress.

To make for greater safety it was determined that members of the House of Representatives should be elected for a term of two years only, while the term for the Senate was set at six years, one-third of whom should be elected every two years. This plan as agreed upon, has been in successful operation for about a century and a half.

This is election year, and to the people is given the right to determine whether the members of Congress have done their duty, and also to apply the test to one-third of the Senate. In Maryland, one Senator and six Congressmen this year will be elected; yours is the right and privilege to say who they shall be.

There have been times when Congressmen did their duty as they saw fit, and debated and wrangled for months over proposed laws, while the partisan press hurled anathemas at the groups with such maledictions that the average citizen concluded that the average Congressman had mental rating slightly below zero. That has been the procedure from the beginning.

Those Congressmen took seriously their position and acted as they believed they should, and not as somebody else thought they should.

The duty of Congress is to make laws, and they are not supposed to delegate that prerogative to another department. Even the hope of reward, or fear of punishment, might be held out as inducement to surrender their Constitutional prerogatives.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

The Executive Department of our Government consists of the President, who must be a native-born citizen, at least thirty-five years old, and a resident for at least fourteen years in the United States. The Vice-President, who serves in case of demise or incapacity of the President, must possess the same qualifications as the President.

The President, Vice-President, Members of the Cabinet, Ambassadors, Ministers and all other appointees by the President, come under his department, and their acts become his acts, and he alone is responsible for their acts. There is no shirking that responsibility.

We have a peculiar situation right now in our administrative affairs where members of the so-called "Brain Trust" are doing what many of us consider economically unsound, and financially ruinous. Some of us fail to see the wisdom of destroying crops while millions remain ill-clad and hungry, or why sows and cattle should be slaughtered to raise prices of pork and beef, while many people have not the price of these articles at their lowest cost.

The President has been to date, one of the most popular of Executives, who somehow by glib and catch phrases has caught the fancy of the people and many of these friends excuse the President from the responsibility for the acts of the Tugwells, the Warrens, the Moleys, The Johnsons, the Richbergs.

That has been done and what is being done will be blazoned to Roosevelt glory, or branded as a Roosevelt folly. Whatever it is, the acts of all appointees is the act of the President.

POLITICAL QUESTIONS.

The Legislative and Executive Branches of the Government are essentially the Political branches, and with the exercise of their distinctively political powers, the judiciary will not interfere. In Marbury vs Madison, (1803) 1 Cranch 137, 167, Chief Justice John Marshall said:

"By the Constitution of the United States, the President is invested with certain important political powers, in the exercise of which he is to use his own discretion, and is accountable only to his country in his political character, and to his own conscience. To aid him in the performance of these duties, he is authorized to appoint certain officers, who act by his authority and in conformity with his orders."

"In such cases their acts are his acts, and whatever opinion may be entertained of the manner in which Executive discretion may be used, still there exists and can exist, no power to control that discretion. The subjects are all political. They respect the Nation, not individual rights, and being entrusted to the Executives the decision of the Executive is conclusive. The application of this remark will be perceived by adverting to the Acts of Congress for establishing the Department of Foreign Affairs. This officer, as his duties were prescribed by the act, is to conform precisely to the will of the President. He (the appointee) is the mere agent by which that will is communicated. The acts of such an officer, as an officer, can never be examined by the Courts. Ch. J. Marshall in Marbury vs Madison (1803.)

It is thus seen that the President is supreme, cannot be haled before the Court and checked in his acts (except by impeachment alone) and that no matter what his appointees decide to do, if he tacitly approves, or does not disapprove, it is HIS act and they cannot be halted in what they are doing.

Some of us who have lived on the Western Plains know that only a crack-brained theorist or imbecile would decide to plant, and expect trees to grow in such arid places, resent the squandering of taxpayers money that is to be used to plant rows of trees a mile apart, 100 feet wide (about two ordinary trees) and a thousand miles long, and call it reforestation. Every one who knows anything about the plains, knows that the trees thus planted will grow where not needed, and will not grow where needed. But these appointees have given out a pretty interview and the "Press" has pictured the affair as it is supposed to be, fifty years hence, and of course it looks good. But crack-brained though this scheme is, it is the act of the President, if he permits it to be carried out, because it is the act of an appointee of the President and can not be questioned in any manner. Evils usually may be stopped or abated by injunction, but there is no injunction that will lie here against a Brain Truster appointed and turned loose by the President. That's the law!

It seems to me if the people understood this matter as they ought, they would be more outspoken in opposition to such schemes, and would doubtless protest, and such protest would have its effect, for no matter whether a partisan or not of the President, all conceded him to be one of the shrewdest politicians who ever occupied the President's chair, and he would know how to change his mind and the mind of the Appointee if he thought that best.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

The Judicial Department of Government interprets the laws as passed by Congress, and approved by the President.

This Department consists of a Supreme Court and inferior courts. The Supreme Court is made up of a Chief Justice and eight associate justices who are appointed by the President for life and confirmed by the Senate. Once confirmed they can be removed only by death or impeachment.

The appointment, of necessity, comes close to being political, yet he it said to their credit, the members of the Supreme Court have by their acts and decisions developed the opinion that once on the bench they have forgotten that they ever were "in politics." It is true that during his campaign for the Presidency, Mr. F. D. Roosevelt, candidate, in one of his speeches, said, "The Supreme Court Justices may have political opinions." It is to be hoped seriously, that the thought is not father to the wish, for Mr. Roosevelt as President will doubtless, due to the ages of the incumbents of the Court, have occasion to make enough appointments to determine the "opinion" of the Court if so inclined. It would be a shame to have a record of one hundred and fifty years of independence destroyed now by becoming partisan with opinions cut to the wish of the one appointing. We do not believe Mr. Roosevelt capable of such chicanery. No man capable of such intention is big enough to be President of these United States.

One of the peculiar phases of the present Supreme Court is that four of the nine judges are outstanding Conservatives, and three are pronounced liberals, while two only are on the border line; and the second peculiar thing about the present court is that the outstanding liberal members were appointed by Conservative Presidents, like Coolidge and Hoover. So, to date, at least, the "opinion" of the Court is not shaded in political opinion, to suit the whim or wish of the President or party who did the appointing.

Any man big enough and intelligent enough to sit on the Supreme Bench is too big a man to sell "the mighty space of his large honor for so much trash as may be grasped thus." No, the Supreme Court has not yet degenerated into a partisan institution. While the Court remains independent, the liberties of the people are secure; when it becomes partisan, disintegration has already set in.

We owe, doubtless, as much debt to Chief Justice, John Marshall, whose opinion we quoted above, for the stability and perpetuity of our Government, as we do to any other source. During his incumbency most of the important conflicts in the interpretation of what was, and what was not, constitutional, were adjudicated, and his opinions rank as masterpieces of legal wisdom.

But the Supreme Court is created solely for its judicial functions alone, it possesses by its very station, inherent power over both the Legislative and the Executive Department—especially the legislative.

It was never intended that the judicial department should pass laws, or interfere with laws legally passed, yet in the Dred Scott decision, Chief Justice Taney, by that decision, abrogated every law against slavery, and by the one decision alone converted every bit of free territory into slave territory.

In an important case while an attorney was expounding the law, the Judge interrupted and said, "but that is not the law" to which the attorney blandly replied "It was, your honor, until you spoke."

The fact of the matter is, the Court is the law, and hence the importance of having the right men occupy the Bench.

More and more the tendency to liberal interpretation is gaining a hold, and perhaps rightly so, but by their very position in our Governmental set up, it would be possible, if the Court happened to have strong majority who were radically inclined, to overturn all laws, rules and customs, and to make non-effective all that has been done in a century and a half of history.

A conclave of airplanes with poison gas and TNT bombs stretching from the St. Lawrence River to the Gulf of Mexico, and sailing west, releasing as they went, then death and destruction, could and would no more surely destroy our civilization than could a majority of one radical on the Supreme Bench of the U. S.

I am late in arriving at decision—after studying the legal aspect for forty years—and may not have left enough time to do anything effective in the matter, but I have decided to devote the rest of my years and time and strength, to this one great objective, of building up a Patriotic Alliance of American Citizens who, regardless of party or creed, or place of birth, will co-operate to turn the thought of the people to the Institution and Constitutions that were given us by our Colonial Ancestors and developed during the years, until we have the greatest, most prosperous, most wealthy land on the face of the globe.

Why sturdy sensible people don't see this, and why they tolerate those who would change a system proved effective for more than a century and a half, is more than I am able to understand.

The Declaration of Independence recognized the right inherent in any people to change its laws; these same people, when they wrote the Constitution, recognized the same right to exist, hence provided ways and means for effecting changes of the Constitution. All accept the right to suit effect changes and the American people have exercised that right to amend, and even to overthrow an amendment already enacted. Had the promoters of the Eighteenth Amendment used keener legal discernment, they would never have proposed for passage the 18th. Amendment. In form and substance the 18th. Amendment was purely legislative, and nothing legislative should be permitted to find its way into that document. Congress is the place to settle such questions, even tho' thus to treat it, means perpetual turmoil.

But there is another and more subtle way to change constitutions, and that is by legislative encroachments, and Judicial interpretations.

While it is true Congress makes laws, and the President executes them, the Supreme Court interprets, and says what is and what is not the law. Lately the Court has been divided frequently 5 to 4, and what the 5 say becomes law, while what the four say is not law; yet had one of them only changed his attitude among the five, that which is law would not be law, and that which is not law would be law. The only way to maintain the Ship of State on even keel is to have profoundly educated citizens in increasing numbers ready for high positions in Congress, and on the Bench when vacancies occur, and a President who can and will realize that while he had to be a politician to get his job, instantly on attaining it, became a Statesman when he "took the oath of office."

If then the people hope to retain the form of government the founders of the republic intended them to have, the people themselves must take a keener interest in governmental affairs, and if Patriotic citizens and Patriotic societies hope to accomplish anything in the line of establishing Jeffersons ideal form of government where "people are best governed who are least governed" they will exercise due diligence to see that the rights of

Politicians the world over seem determined to create dictatorships and thru them to wrest from the people the liberties they possess. Liberty cannot endure where tyranny becomes enthroned. A quarter of a century ago when he was Governor of Maryland, the late Edwin Warfield, attended a banquet given by the Sons of America at the old Eutaw House in Baltimore, and in addressing the body frankly proclaimed his partisanship, gave credit to his party for his election, then told of a number of things he did and decisions he made that proved he was not politically biased, and for reason for such acts, that handsome, splendid, dignified, honest old man said, "but when I became Governor of Maryland, I became Governor of all the people of Maryland." ## Best for Mother and Baby

THE headline sounds as if something medical were the subject of this story. But it isn't. It's food—pure food, scientifically prepared, which is not only better than any strained food you could prepare for your baby yourself, but saves baby's mother long hours of work and lost hours of sunshine.

For, if you are the mother of a baby and prepare its pureed food yourself, you must first go marketing, then you must wash the vegetables, then you must cook them, then you must puree them, and finally you must wash your pots and pans. You stain your fingers scraping carrots and shell peas, roughen them washing spinach. Frequently there is scorching to contend with, for small quantities are hard to cook and your baby's food, to be most nutritious, should be prepared as needed. Frequently, too, many particles cling to the sieve and just won't be strained. And this goes on day-in and day-out, week after week and month after month.

Saving Work Not the Point
But saving work for mother is not the point of these specially prepared foods, although they go to make a healthier, happier mother who can thus take better care of her baby. The point is that the best home cooking method is far from being as efficient as the best commercial practice in preparing sieved vegetables.

We are not making the above statement on our own authority. Read part of what Doris W. McCray wrote in a recent number of Hygeia, the Health Magazine published by the American Medical Association.

"Fortunately for mothers today," she wrote, "the work of preparing vegetables, soups and cereals for babies and invalids is done in canneries. A mother should choose the brand of food which in every respect offers the highest nutritional values. The work of the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association in considering and accepting brands of commercially canned sieved vegetables is an invaluable guide in making this choice."

Recommended by Physicians

"The physician often recommends sieved vegetables for infants, children, convalescents and for the sick who require special diets. The fiber of the vegetable is more easily handled by the digestive tract when it has been comminuted by some process such as sieving, straining, grinding or pulverizing."

"The best home cooking method is not as efficient as the best commercial practice in preparing sieved vegetables. This is true because many companies are able to carry on research to discover improved methods and to check on them from a nutritional standpoint. The best commercial canners maintain splendidly equipped laboratories, employ highly trained chemists, biochemists and nutritionists, and maintain fellowships in various universities.

Buy the Best Brands

"When cans of carrots, peas, spinach, tomatoes and green beans, in the same brand of sieved vegetables, were compared (by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association), the can of peas was found to contain the largest amount of phosphorus, the can of spinach the largest amount of calcium and manganese, and the tomatoes the largest amounts of iron and copper. Of course, if you were a dietitian, you would have to know the differences in the composition of the vegetables, how to plan diets and weigh amounts, but if you are a mother or perchance the wife of a 'dieter,' you will merely need to follow the doctor's orders and then use housewifely precautions to purchase the best brands. It is possible to choose a sieved vegetable that is all right, except that some of the nutritional value that is supposed to be present is not there. That is why you will look for the Seal of Acceptance of the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association in the advertising matter; its presence gives assurance that the nutritional values and the advertising statements have been considered acceptable."

DESIGN BUILDING WITH ROOF AIRPORT

French Show "Last Word" in Metal Construction.

Paris.—In times of peace prepare for war is obviously the motto that inspired the architect of the new exposition building to be erected at Issy-les-Moulineux on the outskirts of Paris along the Seine river.

Commissioned to erect a building that would be at once the last word in steel construction and at the same time suitable for showing all the different uses to which steel can be put, M. Leon-Joseph Madeline, the architect, has gone even further.

He designed a building with an airplane landing field on top and surrounded with lagoons, where hydro-airplanes may land.

His design has been approved by the committee of distinguished architects. The building chosen will cover twelve acres of land. The roof, by the use of cantilever arches, will be supported only by the four walls and yet will still be strong enough to hold up the great twelve-acre airplane field.

The ground about the building will cover another eight acres, including the large lagoons. In addition, the new building will solve a problem which has puzzled those interested in commercial aviation for a long time.

The building will make available, on the outskirts of Paris, a landing and taking off field that will improve immediately the prospects of airplane traffic. Issy-les-Moulineux is on the subway and the railroads, and the Seine boats stop there.

What was originally intended to be an exhibition of steel, and still will be, will also be at a strategic point from the aeronautic standpoint. All the technical services, laboratories and industrial factories for the manufacture of airplanes in this district are located at Issy-les-Moulineux.

MAN KILLED FOR DECEIVING SPOUSE

Father-in-Law Takes Law Into Own Hands.

Paris.—"The unwritten law" is the defense evoked by a wealthy Belgian merchant who tracked and killed his son-in-law here, after a long and relentless hunt.

The son-in-law was Albert Van de Vorst, who in 1922, when twenty-one, married Jeanne Lussor, seventeen. Soon after, however, he returned to the women whom he had found amusing before his marriage.

When his wife complained, he arranged with his twin brother to replace him. They resembled each other so nearly that at first the young wife did not realize the deception. When she discovered it she left her husband and went with her twin children to her parents to live.

One of the twins died and De Vorst blamed the father-in-law and his wife's mother. This proved the final straw, and the young woman began suit for divorce. Legal decisions were in her favor and she was given custody of the surviving child.

De Vorst asked her to come back to him, she refused, he shot her, fled, was arrested, and condemned to 20 years' penal servitude. Pressure exerted by his family caused him to be let out after seven years.

At his trial in Antwerp, De Vorst escaped three times from attempts of his father-in-law, Jules Lussor, to kill him. Always armed with two guns and a dagger, Lussor waited. When De Vorst was let out of prison he fled to France, Lussor followed him, learning that he had become engaged to a wealthy widow, Mme. Ehrmann.

Lussor waited, learning that the couple, who were to be married in June, were away. When they came back, Lussor was waiting.

He shot De Vorst four times, killing him immediately.

Tar Has Girl in Seven Ports; Proposes to All

London.—The naval town of Plymouth is chuckling and a sailor of the U. S. S. Wyoming who lives up to the old maritime tradition of "a girl in every port" is undoubtedly feeling sheepish as a result of the discovery of seven postcards in the letter box of a local shop, which is next door to the post office.

They were addressed to seven different girls, two in New York, one in San Francisco, one in Los Angeles, one in Hawaii, still another in Newfoundland, and finally, one in Mexico City.

To all the girls the sailor said he was looking forward to marrying them. To at least three he wrote, "I never think of any other girl but you."

ASK 2,000 "BABIES" TO GOLDEN WEDDING

Doctors Celebrate Anniversary in Unique Way.

Washington.—When Dr. Daniel H. Kress and Dr. Lauretta Kress began to discuss the guest list for the reception in observance of their golden wedding anniversary, Doctor Lauretta was firm on one point.

"All my babies must be invited," she announced.

"What?" said Doctor Daniel. "The whole 3,571?"

"At least as many as I can find," replied the wife.

So it came about that invitations to the reception went to more than 2,000 persons whom Doctor Lauretta, as obstetrician, had ushered into this old world during a career of forty years.

They accepted, 500 of them. One was Mrs. Cecil Ross of Bloomfield, N. J., the oldest of Doctor Lauretta's "babies." She is thirty-nine. The youngest couldn't come. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Fairchild of Washington, and the gray-haired doctor spanked the breath into him only the day before.

Through the spacious residence of the Doctors Kress pressed the throng. There were mature men and women, lanky youths, debutantes, little girls shedding their first teeth, smaller toddlers hanging to their mothers' skirts, and quite a number who hadn't yet learned to walk.

"I remember them all," said the doctor. "But, goodness, how some of them have changed since I first knew them. And wasn't it wonderful that the reception wasn't interrupted by a call to take care of another eligible for the guest list."

Dr. Daniel Kress, who is seventy-one, is a specialist in diseases of the stomach. He asserted that he and his wife, who is seventy, were never busier in their lives and intended to keep on practicing.

The couple had been married nearly ten years, and had two children of their own before they were graduated in medicine at the University of Michigan in 1894.

Home Gold Valued at Over Half Billion

New York.—The value of old gold lying idle in American homes is believed to surpass the output of all the gold mines in the world for an entire year.

A drive to recover old gold, carried on in Britain some time ago, brought to light over half a billion dollars worth of the precious metal. America is believed to have an even greater store.

RESTORE SMYRNA TO PREVIOUS BEAUTY

Lottery Funds to Be Used for Improvements.

Ismir, Smyrna.—Smyrna, "Turkey's eye on the Mediterranean," is to be restored to its previous beauty.

The city, as port and trading place of Turkey, second only in importance to Istanbul, was almost completely wrecked by the great fire of 1922, when Mustafa Kemal's troops ejected the Greeks, and it is still partly in ruins now.

Under the leadership of Dr. Behtchet Sabit Bey, reconstruction of the city which, incidentally, has the best claim of being Homer's birthplace, will be undertaken.

The city holds vast areas of which it took control after the expulsion of Greeks and Armenians, who had formed about half of the city's total population before the Greco-Turkish war.

On these grounds building lots in residential quarters will be sold at low installment payments and, under certain conditions, even given free of charge.

In the workmen's districts about nine square feet will sell at 20 cents per foot and the city will furnish the building material gratis provided its model plan is adopted.

Under this plan 500 homes so far have been constructed, of which each has a bathroom and is surrounded by a small garden.

Two new main avenues will divide the city into four sections. One will lead straight up from the port to the famous ancient fortress on Mount Pagus and thus open up a magnificent view.

To defray first costs a lottery, expected to yield 400,000 Turkish pounds, is being organized by Ismir's magistrature.

Black Widow Spiders

Are New Menace in West

Sacramento, Calif.—Reports of extraordinarily large numbers of venomous black widow spiders have resulted in public health departments throughout the West issuing warnings to be on the alert.

Numerous cases of black widow spider bites have been reported and a few deaths have occurred. A mild winter and dry weather were conducive to development of the poisonous species.

The black widow, so named because the female of the species devours her mate, has a large, round, shiny black body resembling a shoe button. The long, sprawling legs may spread two inches.

The most distinguishing mark is a red spot, somewhat in the shape of an hour glass, on the under side of the body.

Poisons are not effective in exterminating the pest, but spraying crude oil, or creosote, into cracks and crevices is considered a helpful control procedure.

When a person is bitten by a black widow, acute pain develops almost immediately in the region of the bite and spreads to other parts of the body. Accompanying the pain there may be muscular contraction, difficult breathing, cold perspiration, nausea and an extreme rigidity of the abdomen.

Fatalities are not common, but when death does occur it usually comes swiftly—within 32 hours after the bite.

Michigan Naval Reserve Using Old Insull Boat

Detroit.—Sturdy naval reserve men now hustle about the decks of the training ship, the Truant, once the yacht of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate.

The Truant was loaned to the Michigan Naval Reserve corps by the Illinois Naval militia which bought her from Insull ten years ago.

Insull had loaned it to the Illinois organization two years before the militia purchased it. The ship has the speedy lines that appeal to the sportsman, being 130 feet long, with a narrow beam of only 18 feet.

Theft of Flower Brings

Call for Bloodhounds

Hopkinsville, Ky.—When thieves raided the pantry of Maggie Rosch the matter was dismissed with a benign "I guess who ever did it was just hungry." When a series of raids resulted in a loss of several trinkets Maggie still maintained her calm. But the straw that broke the camel's back and aroused all of Maggie's wrath was the theft of a single bloom from one of her prized flowers.

She immediately made arrangements at a cost of $25 to have bloodhounds set on the trail of the miscreant. When it appeared she might not be able to hire the dogs here she sought to have some brought from Tennessee.

Mamma Coyote Knows How to Handle Young

Stevensville, Mont.—Anxious mothers can learn how to make children behave by watching a coyote on Carney Phelps' ranch.

Phelps said a mother coyote had five pups of belligerent nature. To keep them from fighting, she moved into an old badger hole with five tunnels leading from the main shaft.

By keeping one pup in each tunnel, "Ma" coyote kept them apart, except at meal times, when she and "Pa" saw to it that peace was preserved.

We had good showers early last week, and now are watching the clouds longingly again.

Some of "our folks" attended the annual festival of the Presbyterian Church, in New Windsor, on Saturday night, and report a large attendance, many good things for sale and a fine social time.

The Wilbur Miller family, spent Sunday in York, with her sister, Lulu Renner Main and family.

On Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Katie O'Connor and her son, Delphay, with his friend, Donald Stull, Baltimore, and F. T. Shriver, visited the former's brother, Grant Delphay, in Frederick, and happened to step into a family reunion, as five of his children and their families were home. They were highly interested in the private zoo owned by one son, Paul Delphay who has a black bear, monkeys, raccoons, squirrels, rabbits, geese, ducks, gold fish, etc., all nicely accommodated in his back yard. Personally, we think a sensible hobby is the best kind of a nag to ride—healthy and entertaining.

The Adult Bible class of the M. E. Church, in Union Bridge, will hold their August meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shriver, next Monday evening. Mrs. Katie O'Connor, hostess.

Among the unusual visitors at the Birely home, the past week, were Rev. H. F. Baughman, D. D., of Philadelphia, with his home folks—the Baughman Fogles, of Uniontown, last Wednesday; Mrs. Daniel Sauerhammer, Mrs. Milton Feeser, with their nieces, Miss Edna Sauerhammer and Mary Dorothy Hinkel, of Littlestown, on Monday.

One day last week, we had a look in on the vacation Bible School at Key-mar, taught by Misses Wilson and Brothers, and found it well attended, full of interest and instructive. For two weeks, the good seed was sown in the little heart gardens of 43 children, and the result—time will tell. "In some distant, doubtful moment, it may save a soul from death."

On Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Crouse kindly conveyed us to their home in Middleburg to see the night blooming cereus unfold sixteen perfect blooms on two plants, fragrant and exquisite in form and purity, opening for a few hours, then closed and wilted before dawn, with four more buds to open the next night. A number of persons called to see it, and gazed in admiration. Mrs. Crouse (nee Carrie Bowman) is one of the wizards with flowers in this community, which boasts several.

Two funeral processions passed through our town last week. That of Theodore N. Starner, from his home in Johnsville, to Baust Church, for the service and burial on Thursday; and Chas. Matthews, (colored) from Union Bridge, to the Catholic Church, in Taneytown, on Saturday A. M.

Recently, we called on a cheerful helpful shut-in, Mrs. Robert Galt, of Key-mar. Following a serious illness of two and a half years ago, she has not been down stairs since, but her brain and fingers have been busy with deeds of kindness and beauty. Once we read: "When God shuts a door, He opens a window," so during these long months of confinement our friend has had time to develop her artistic talent. So she sets a branch of tulip, cherry, or dog wood, before her, copies it in black sateen, then embroiders it in natural colors—and presto! What lovely cushion covers! A pansy quilt of her own designing in shades of lavender and purple on white, is a marvel of beauty. On a table by her side lies her Bible, Church papers and other worthwhile magazines. Small wonder she has so many visitors.

Some of the musicians of Mt. Union will assist in service at the Bethel, in Friendship, next Sunday afternoon, and at Pine-Mar, along the Taneytown-Westminster road, in the evening. Both violinists and vocalists.

On Friday of last week, we enjoyed by air, the celebration of the 11th anniversary of the night Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office for President of the U. S. A. administered by his own father in the family home at Plymouth, Vt. (Aug. 3, 1923). Gov. Stanley C. Wilson and Senator Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, and Representatives James M. Beck, of Pa., made strong addresses.

The number of sets in all of Europe is only slightly more than in the United States. We wonder how much this information cost, and of what value it is, except to boast of?

GEORGE W. ETTER.

George W. Etter, 72, died at the home of his brother-in-law, the Rev. Luther B. Hafer, East Lincoln Ave., Gettysburg, on Wednesday morning at 11:35 o'clock. Death followed a long illness. He suffered a stroke of paralysis in July, 1933. He had apparently recovered when he had a relapse early this year and had since been confined to bed.

The deceased was a native of Franklin county and lived for many years near Lemasters. Thirty years ago his family moved to Chambersburg. In the spring of 1933 he went to Gettysburg to live at the Hafer home, following the death of his sister, Mrs. Luther B. Hafer.

Surviving are one brother, the Rev. Dr. C. B. Etter, Wadsworth, O., and three nieces and two nephews, including Mrs. Baird Hershey, Camp Hill. The deceased was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, Chambersburg, and for many years was an officer of that church.

The body was removed to the undertaking parlor of Kraiss Brothers, Chambersburg, Pa., where the funeral will be held. The burial will be at his old home in the Spring Grove cemetery at Lemasters, Pa., which was laid out on a part of the farm where he was born, and which he and his brother owned until the time of his death.

THEODORE N. STARNER.

A retired farmer formerly of Carroll County, died at his home in Johnsville, after a weeks illness from pleurisy. He was aged 76 years, a son of the late William and Anna Mary Starner.

Loss of Arctic Ship Not in Vain, Says Explorer

Moscow.—Despite the sinking of the Soviet steamer, Cheliuskin, in the Arctic ocean, its journey was not in vain, in the opinion of N. V. Pinyegin, Arctic explorer.

Valuable data on the course of Arctic streams, on temperatures, and on the location and types of sea fauna were gathered by Prof. Otto Schmidt and his hardy band, according to Pinyegin.

Also some changes in the Arctic map may be made as a result of the Cheliuskin's voyage, he added. For instance, Schmidt found that some of the Arctic islands had been placed erroneously on the map. One, Solitude island, was found 30 miles from its supposed location.

Pinyegin further reasoned that the experience of the Cheliuskin, which lacked only a few miles of completing its journey through to Behring strait, would teach masters of other vessels the best route through the Polar seas in the future.

After the Cheliuskin sunk last February, Schmidt and his crew established a camp on an icefield from which they eventually were rescued by airplanes.

Armenian Caught After Hiding for 15 Years

Istanbul.—Stephen Hachadourian, an Armenian living in Istanbul, stayed indoors for fifteen years.

Thinking that after such a time, his altered appearance would prevent recognition, he ventured out into the streets and cafes.

The long-memoried Turkish police were not long in picking him up on a murder charge.

Hachadourian had been with the allied forces when Istanbul was occupied after the armistice. With two companions it is alleged that he killed two Turkish policemen when they remonstrated with the trio for annoying a Turkish woman.

Gives Package to Wrong Man; Jailed

High Point, N. C.—Behind jail bars, J. A. King ponders the adage that "haste makes waste."

King heard an auto horn toot in front of his residence and came rushing out, bathrobe flying, and shoved a package in the hand of the driver.

But instead of a friend in need, it was Policeman Kivett, who received the package.

He took King to jail for possessing liquor.

INDIANS USE DOPE IN STRANGE FAITH

Become Barbaric in New Religious Rites.

Clinton, Okla.—Oklahoma's plains Indians are worshipping the Holy Trinity with narcotics, in a strange new faith combining aboriginal, Christian and Oriental rites.

The ceremonies consist principally of eating peyote—the dried tips of the sacred Mexican cactus—then singing and praying as effects of the drugs it contains are felt.

Grotesque visions, hallucinations of smell and hearing, diminution of sight and a general feeling of ease and bliss come to those who eat peyote.

Those familiar with goings-on among the Cheyennes and other plains tribes in western Oklahoma say the new religion, called the Native American church, is supplanting both the old credo of a happy hunting ground and the Christian faith imposed by tireless white missionaries.

Though peyote eaters become barbaric, singing weird songs and beating tom-toms in warlike fashion, their worship still is directed toward the Christian God, who they believe is above them during the ceremonies, and toward Christ himself, whose spirit they say is in the peyote.

Cheyenne Indians of the new faith liken their ceremonies to the white practice of the Holy Sacrament, except that an immediate and tangible effect comes from the cactus, whereas none is felt from bread and wine.

Native American church worshippers go through as solemn a ritual, in the beginning, as any Christian church about to observe the sacrament.

Peyote buttons, dried tips of a certain species of cactus, resemble potato chips with a tuft of cotton on one side. Users of peyote were granted a state charter in 1918.

Watch Lost Four Years Is Found in Farmyard

Montgomery, Mich.—After Orville Small's wife died he carried her little gold watch every day for a year. Then he lost it on the farm of Ralph Wigent. That was four years ago.

Small felt so badly that he worked for days and moved every stick of an 85-cord woodpile, looking for it in vain.

A few days ago Mrs. Wigent, walking through the yard, saw the watch lying in plain sight out in the open. Its case was open, but it was undamaged except for a broken crystal.

40,000,000-Year-Old-Pig Is Placed on Exhibition

Ann Arbor, Mich.—A "Merycoidodon Culbertsoni," better known as the "ruminating pig," which existed some 40,000,000 years before the era of the stockyards, was placed on exhibition in the University of Michigan museum recently.

"Mery," who resembles the razor-back hog of Kansas, but with a somewhat different skull form and a long, instead of a short, tail, originated in what is now known as the "Bad Lands of South Dakota." They are said to have existed in the Dakotas when the early types of mammals were dying out and modern forms began to evolve.

Policemen of Budapest Must Grow Mustaches

Budapest.—Budapest is going to have romantic mustachioed policemen. An order has been issued by the chief of police that all mounted policemen must from now on wear mustaches. It is considered not only conducive to military appearance and bearing but in line with the national tradition of the dashing Magyar horseman.

Hay Fever Caused by Russian Thistle

Salt Lake City, Utah.—The Russian thistle is the greatest single source of hay fever in America, Dr. Ray M. Balyeat of the University of Oklahoma told physicians from western states gathered here in their annual convention. The female cottonwood tree, also a prolific source of the ailment, should be banned by law, he declared. Cedars and elms likewise spread irritating pollen, he said.

Russians Plan Meeting to Study Stratosphere

Leningrad.—A world conference of authorities on the stratosphere is likely to be held in Russia in 1936.

It will coincide with a total eclipse of the sun, which is the most advantageous time to study the upper layers of the air.

This was the proposal voted by a conference of Soviet stratosphere experts here recently.

Meanwhile plans are being formulated for a new ascent into the stratosphere this summer. It is not expected that an attempt to beat Russia's own world record height of 63,327 feet will be made.

The intention is to study the stratosphere as much as possible with instruments improved by the knowledge gained from the record ascent.

Watch Lost by U. S. War Vet in France Is Found

Brockton, Mass.—Henry Noonan lost his watch while serving with the French ambulance unit during the World war. He was notified recently that it had been found. Mrs. Mary O'Neill, of Fairbairn, Minn., who just came into possession of it, asked in a letter to the Brockton lodge of Elks to locate Noonan for her, because his name and lodge number were inscribed on the back of the watch.

World's Smallest Article Is Exhibited in Chicago

Chicago.—The smallest article ever made by man—127 letters from the Book of Luke written on a space as tiny as the point of a needle—is one of the minute novelties in Jules Charbonnet's collection at the Italian Village of A Century of Progress.

The verse can be read easily through a microscope.

House Falls on Him; Big Toe Is Bruised

Oklahoma City.—Charging that a house fell on him, causing fallen arches, W. O. Hahn has filed suit for $2,500 damages against the city of Britton. His petition related that a small shack owned by the city fell upon him from above, pinned him against an iron post, broke his arches, and "bruised and injured a great toe."

GERMAN BARON IS GIVEN 20 YEARS AS MASTER SPY

Night Life Figure Found Guilty of Stealing Army Secrets.

Prague, Czechoslovakia. — Baron George von Sosnowski, familiar figure in German aristocracy and one of the gayest figures in the mad whirl of postwar Berlin night life, is in a German jail under sentence of 20 years' penal servitude as a spy, according to reports here.

With him, according to these same reports, is the beautiful blond Baroness Benita von Berg, divorced wife of Richard von Falkenhayn, son of the late Gen. Erich von Falkenhayn of World War fame, and now the wife of Baron Joseph von Berg, prominent aviation engineer.

Although, as usual, a strict secrecy surrounds the entire affair, there is every reason to believe, according to one member of the Berlin diplomatic corps, that the beautiful baroness is under the same heavy sentence for her alleged part in the spy plot.

The Master Spy.

Sosnowski, who is known to his friends as Yurek, is the perfect cinema conception of a master spy. Suave, of Austrian aristocracy, he has always been the perfect gentleman. His friends say he has never been known to make a rude remark, he knows every one, and is handsome.

Suspicious government agents decided that such a man bears watching. The "Geheime Staats Polizei," the German Cheka, kept an eye on him for five years. They tapped his telephone wires and kept records of his conversations.

Shocked by wild revels and scandalized by pictures they found in his apartment after wild parties, the secret agents, nevertheless, hung on grimly.

Finally the break for which the agents were waiting came. Baroness von Berg introduced Sosnowski to two women who were employed in the war ministry, Renate von Natzmer and Fraulein von Iena. They recalled that Baron von Berg was director of the air motor department of the huge Siemens plant.

The agents decided that the baroness and Sosnowski's many friends in official positions were passing on army secrets to him. Then, early last March, wholesale arrests were made.

Sosnowski and the baroness were jailed on charges of espionage and high treason. Her husband and ex-husband, Berg, and Falkenhayn, were seized. Renate von Natzmer and Fraulein von Iena were imprisoned, charged with stealing army documents and surrendering them to Sosnowski.

Fifty Arrests Made.

Many other friends of the unlucky Yurek were seized. Altogether about 50 arrests were made, but 30 persons were released after a severe grilling. The seizures included members of society as well as others of lesser rank. Among those released were Falkenhayn and Berg. Friends of the former said his hair turned gray during his week in prison.

Meanwhile Sosnowski was reported near the breaking point in his confinement. Friends of the imprisoned man have been told that a new medicine had been discovered which, if administered with food, completely breaks down the resistance of the prisoner. Whether this is true or not, political hostages shudder when the prison doors clank behind them.

Although a strict military censorship has been clamped on the entire affair, it is whispered that the alleged secrets involved in the affair deal with a steam powered airplane capable of making a nonstop flight from Berlin to San Francisco; a device that enables airplanes to fight in fog, and a new and more deadly poison gas.

Bantam Adopts Kittens of "Modernist" Mother

Troy, Ohio.—The maternal instinct is strong today in the little bantam hen belonging to Courtney Frahn of New Carlisle, east of here.

Having neither chick nor child of her own, she adopted four kittens of a wayfarer mother cat at the Frahn home.

The mother cat returns now and then to feed her kittens. But she's a "modernist" and can't be bothered with stay-at-home duties or anything, in fact, that interferes with her career.

The hen has never hatched an egg but she takes good care of the kittens, resenting any attempt to remove them. In fact, she won't even leave when their errant mother returns to feed them. And there is scarcely room in the box in the chicken house for the congenial crowd when they all get together.

The banty is so engrossed in her new job that she has no time to lay any more. Which has not made her any too popular with the younger members of the Frahn family.

Nuts Are Excellent Summer Food

By Jane Rogers

FOR a number of years, the use of nuts as foodstuff and particularly as a change from meat has been gaining favor. Rich in proteins nuts provide energy without too much heat. Hence their inclusion as a feature of summer diet is highly desirable.

Then too, nuts provide a pleasing change from the usual food flavors. They challenge lazy teeth and jaw muscles into action, and awaken jaded appetites. Best of all, they are comparatively low in cost.

A pleasing variety of nuts is available for your choice, but perhaps the one not destined to pronounced preference is that aristocrat of the Amazon jungles, the Brazil nut. Their large firm meats offer a choice in ways to prepare them that smaller and less regularly shaped nuts lack. Brazils may be sliced, chopped, ground, crushed or shredded.

They are delicious just as they come from the shell, or they may be blanched, salted or roasted, to produce a most pleasing range of flavors. They blend ideally with various other foods; indeed, one of the country's most prominent chefs has recently created a Brazil nut salad with a flavor of real distinction. Sandwich spreads, canapés, pigs-in-blankets and other combinations in endless variety are well within the creative range of the enterprising housewife who will spare a few minutes to experiment with Brazil nuts.

Earliest Parachutes in Use in France, in 1784

The first parachute of recorded existence was used to descend neither from a balloon nor from an airplane, but from a three-story house in Lyons, France. That was in 1784, shortly after the invention of the balloon, when the world was undergoing its first great craze for aerial exploration.

The man who made the descent was Sebastian Lenormand, who had invented the device, and who used it thereafter in giving exhibition leaps from roofs of buildings.

The first person to take a parachute with him in a balloon, and trust himself to it in a leap to earth, is said to have been the noted pioneer aeronaut, Andre Jacques Garnerin. He made the descent in Paris in 1797 with a parachute 23 feet in diameter, composed of a number of gores of canvas. In this parachute a wicker basket was suspended from a hoop 8 feet in diameter somewhat below the top of the umbrella-shaped surface.

Parachute jumping developed into quite an art in the nineteenth century, when almost every sort of fair or exposition had its balloon ascension and parachute drop. But the device was not employed at all in the earlier days of the airplane.

The first use of it in conjunction with airplanes appears to have been during the war, by the Germans. The allied armies adopted the idea to some extent, but few parachutes had been placed in their machines before hostilities ended.

"Buffalo Bill" Regarded Last of Famous Scouts

Mention the name "Buffalo Bill" and almost anybody's ears and eyes will open wide to hear tales of the pioneer days in the West, when cowboys and buffaloes were wild and a fight with the Indians was all part of the day's work.

"Buffalo Bill's" real name was William Frederick Cody. He was the last of the great scouts of the West, the others being Boone, Crockett, Carson, Bridger and "Wild Bill." The daring horsemanship of "Buffalo Bill" as a lad who was riding the "Pony Express" has been told in many romantic tales of those early days.

Before the railroads had cut their way through to the Pacific coast, the "Pony Express" was the only means of getting communications through from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif. In his travels from one post to another, "Buffalo Bill" learned much Indian lore and many customs which helped him when he became a scout for the United States army during the Civil war. He also took part in the campaigns against the Sioux and Cheyenne Indians in which he performed hair-raising deeds of valor, one of which was to kill the Cheyenne chief, Yellow Hand, in single combat.

Cody was called "Buffalo Bill" because he contracted to furnish buffalo meat to the laborers laying the track of the Kansas Pacific railroad in 1867. During this time he is said to have killed many thousands of buffaloes.—Washington Star.

Her Mistake

She was smiling all over her face. "What's the joke?" asked Alice. "It's about Joan," said the first. "I bet she's sorry she took Jim's ring back to the jeweler to have him value it."

"Why?" asked Alice, puzzled. "The jeweler kept it," said the other. "He said Jim had bought it on the installment plan and had failed to keep up the monthly payments."—Answers Magazine.

Saw-Whet Owl Not Much Larger Than a Sparrow

A rasping sound, like that of a file being scraped over the teeth of a saw, coming out of thick evergreens at night will tell you that somewhere among the needles of those trees there is concealed Michigan's smallest owl, not much larger than a house sparrow, but a vicious, beneficial little yellow-eyed demon for all that. It is the Acadian owl, also called the saw-whet or sparrow owl, a dainty little bird, considerably more common than is usually supposed.

Early in May the Acadian owl hatches its young. Its nest may be an old woodpecker hole or a cavity in a tree or decayed stump. It is during the time when its young are being fed that this owl is worth a dozen cats or mouse traps around a farm or granary, for mice make up the chief part of its diet. Doubtless chipmunks, squirrels and occasionally a bird fall prey to its keen claws, but the score is about 17 to 2, that is, 17 mice against two birds or insects.

There are many descriptions of the songs of the saw-whet owl, and of course, this name gives a clue to one of them. Some describe the songs of the saw-whet as resembling the soft gurgling sounds produced by water flowing from the neck of a bottle, entirely devoid of any rasping or filing quality. Ernest Thompson Seton describes a "dripping water song" of the Acadian owl. He says:

"As I waited in the black woods, I heard a sweet sound of dripping water. I did not know of any spring so near, and in the hot night, it was a glad find. But the sound led me to the bough of an oak tree, where I found its source. Such a soft sweet song: full of delightful suggestion on such a night:

"Tonk tank tenk tink
"Ta tink a tonk a tank a tink a
"Ta tink tank ta ta tonk tink
"Drink a tank a drink a drunk.
"It was the 'water drippin' song of the saw-whet owl."—Detroit Free Press.

Warning

"Here," shouted the railroad official, "what do you mean by throwing those trunks about like that?"

The porter gasped in astonishment, and several passengers pinched themselves to make sure it was real. Then the official again spoke to the porter.

"Don't you see that you're making big dents in the concrete platform?"

Rocky

Father (next morning after the picnic)—I feel just like I had a rock in my stomach this morning.

Little Mary Ellen—I know the reason, daddy. It's because you ate that brick ice cream.

Clock in Deserted Cabin Runs 8 Years

Placerville, Calif.—An eight-day clock in a vacant mining cabin has been kept running for eight years.

When the mining company abandoned work in 1927, some one tacked a sign, "Please wind the clock," beneath the timepiece.

Fishermen and hunters using the cabin for overnight headquarters have been faithful in following instructions. Enough of them visit the cabin during the spring, summer and fall to keep the clock running.

During the winter, Ed Ramsey, who lives three and one-half miles away, makes a weekly hike to the cabin.

Winding the clock has become a sort of tradition.

THE GANGSTER TYPE

By R. K. WILKINSON

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

"THE only way," said Producer Howard Heyward, "to inject realism into a picture is to cast the players true to type. By this I mean only real mothers should play the part of screen mothers, war veterans the part of soldiers, cultured men the part of gentlemen."

"And gangsters the part of gangsters!"

"Exactly. That's the meat in the coconut. Here we have a picture on which we are ready to begin production. The feature role is that of a gang leader, a suave, crafty, intelligent, ruthless sort of person, who lives by his wits and holds the fate of a hundred henchmen in his hand, who is a menace to society—hated, feared, scorned. And who, may I ask, have you cast to play the role? Who?"

A grin, edging on a sarcastic grimace, twinned the corners of Producer Heyward's mouth.

"Donald Fairweather! Of all people, he certainly comes the farthest from being a gangster type! A good actor, yes. But—if you'll excuse my saying so—a rather effeminate sort of person. A master of love scenes. Sentimental, romantic, a direct appeal to the sympathetic instincts of women!"

"Rot!"

Director Tod Philloon rapped the table top and glared.

"Now Heyward, you listen to me. I've been in the movie making game a long time. It's my business. I can't do anything else. And if you'll forgive my immodesty, I've made some pretty good pictures. If I hadn't been able to cast my roles correctly, those pictures would have been flops."

"I'm not saying this to make an impression. They're facts that can't be ignored. You're a banker. You've been out here only two weeks, and at that only because your bank sent you to take charge until the company's stock was disposed of. It's senseless to think you can tell me how to make a picture. It isn't in your line. I happen to have discovered Donald Fairweather. He's versatile. He can play any part, if I direct him!"

Producer Heyward's face was a dull red.

A sneer was on his lips. "You're quite a guy, eh, Philloon? Well, get this, either you get a real gangster type to play the role of 'Brick' Lagoon, or you're fired! There's plenty of 'em around, go pick one out."

Director Philloon stared through a window and chewed his cigar.

He could not afford to lose his job. Jobs were scarce.

Besides, he loved the work. Moreover, this young upstart of a banking man was only a temporary fixture.

Within six months old man Levine, who knew pictures and appreciated Director Philloon's abilities, would be back on the job.

Presently Director Philloon turned.

"I'd like to make you a sporting proposition. I'll go get a gangster, a real one, true to type, and, with your approval, I'll cast him in the role of 'Brick' Lagoon. I'll do my best to build him up and if, as you predict, he comes through, injects realism into the film, we'll use him. If he falls down, we'll play Don Fairweather!"

"Done!"

Heyward slapped the table. He knew Philloon well enough to be assured that the director would try in all sincerity to make an actor out of the gangster.

And it was with no little feeling of triumph and relief that he agreed to the proposition.

He felt certain that his own ideas on the matter were correct, and that Director Philloon had a surprise coming to him.

He stood up.

"Just one thing more, Philloon. When selecting your man, remember that this film is actually a character sketch of the well-known gang leader, Tony Scarbo. Pick some one who at least resembles Scarbo in appearance."

"I'll bear it in mind," Philloon agreed.

Two days later Director Philloon entered Producer Heyward's private office in company with a tall, black-haired, olive-skinned youth, who smiled almost whimsically at the producer, but kept his hand in his coat pocket.

"Meet 'Silver' Johnson, Heyward. He's your gangster type, all right."

"I'm not so sure. Acts like one, but looks like a gigolo. Had any experience, Silver?"

"Experience?"

"I mean have you been in the racketeering game long? Know any real gangsters? Ever taken part in a gun-fight?"

"I getcha. The answer is 'yes.' I usta work with Scarbo."

Heyward looked pleased, then suspicious.

"Uh, huh. Where's Scarbo now?"

"On the lam. Hidin' out till the Hennesey killing blows over. They're tryin' to pin it on him. Mob's scattered till Tony sends out word for us to join him some place."

Heyward pursed his lips, thought a moment.

Then: "O K. Silver. We need an actor. Gangster type. One who can give us the real thing. You ought to qualify if you've worked for Scarbo."

We know you can't act, but Philloon will take care of that. That's his business."

Tony Scarbo, the gang leader, had become a national hero.

He was front page news.

Big stuff.

Glamorous.

A murderer.

It was Philloon's plan to commercialize the idea.

Build a picture around Scarbo.

Sell him to the theater-going public.

Even Heyward could see the possibilities.

But Heyward insisted on realism.

And you couldn't have realism without having things real.

That's why Silver Johnson was cast in the leading role.

But Silver didn't make good.

Philloon knew he wouldn't, even though he did his best to make an actor of the youth.

At the end of a month even Heyward could see that the picture would be a flop, with Silver playing the lead.

Heyward blamed it on to Philloon.

***

"He isn't a gangster, that's what's the trouble. He's a dud. Put one over on us. If he was the real thing he could play the part."

Heyward spat and chewed his cigar.

"You can't tell me that dumb chunk is a gangster. Gangsters are gorillas. This bird's a sissy. I was doubtful from the start."

"Listen, Heyward, I'm telling you Silver's a member of the Scarbo mob. I know it. That's the trouble with him. He's a racketeer, not an actor. Acting isn't in his line, no more than making pictures is in yours. Now, take Don Fairweather. Don's an actor. I can make a gangster out of him. It's his line, and it's my line."

"Nuts! We gotta have realism. We gotta have a real gangster. We gotta have some one who looks and acts and talks like Scarbo. It's Scarbo we're selling, isn't it? Well, use your head!"

Philloon got purple.

He was a little tired of being told what an idiot he was.

"Listen, Heyward, we made a deal. If your gangster didn't make good, I could use Fairweather in the picture? How about it?"

"It's O. K. and it stands. But first you gotta give a real gangster a try-out. This Silver bird is a dud, a joke. He looks about as much like a gangster as I, and acts less like one."

***

Philloon smiled, triumph and contentment lighting his eyes.

"Listen, Heyward, you're the one who's nuts. Try usin' your noodle for once. Do you think for a second I could get one of Scarbo's mob up here when they're all on the lam? You must be crazy. Say, if the cops knew we had a Scarbo man here they'd be up and third-degree him so quick you wouldn't know what it's all about. Scarbo's wanted by the police and wanted bad. He knows it, too. And he's having a tough time keeping out of sight. So what? So he hears about this picture of ours and comes browning around. He drops in at my office the day after you and I have our talk. I make a deal with him. I show him to you. We sign him on. Fine! He couldn't be in a safer spot. Then you grab his act by saying he doesn't look like a real gangster. He's gotta get out and start dodging the police again. So what? Well, Heyward, I guess you gotta admit I'm right. Acting isn't in Scarbo's line. He's a gangster. A killer, Heyward, and he doesn't like you at all."

Heyward's face was pale.

He spluttered, choked.

"Say, look here, Philloon. Now, listen, you better keep him on the pay roll awhile. Sure, that's it, keep him on. Pick your own lead, but keep Scarbo on. I'll leave it to your judgment. I gotta be getting back to New York, anyhow. Leaving tonight. You take things over here, but keep Scarbo on the pay roll—"

Philloon wiped his forehead and sat down in the chair vacated by Producer Heyward and grinned.

Some day, he told himself, he'd have to look up this Scarbo guy and see what he looked like.

Mistake at Big Convention

Ohio was represented at the Republican national convention in 1884 by the big four—Foraker, McKinley, Hanna and William H. West. As he spoke, West, a blind lawyer of Bellefontaine, sat in a chair. An orator of unusual ability, he was known throughout the state as "Blind Man Eloquent." When he came to the climax, the time at which he meant to shout the name of James G. Blaine, he half rose from his chair and shouted by mistake the name of James A. Garfield. West immediately realized his mistake, and again half rising from his chair he shouted the name of James G. Blaine, but in the confusion few heard him. Ohio's Garfield had been dead three years.

Words With Double Meanings

In Northumberland the word "canny" has a meaning different to that which is inseparably connected with Scotland—prudent, careful, crafty, etc. On Tyneside "canny" is an embodiment of all that is kindly, good and gentle. The highest compliment that can be paid to any person by a true Northumberlander is to say that he or she is "canny." As "home" expresses the English love of the fireside, so on Tyneside does "canny" express every home virtue. All that is good and lovable in a man or woman is covered by the expression, "Eh, what a canny body." Thus also the word "homey"—which in England means restful, homelike—Canadians use the word to indicate ugliness—an ill-favored person.

Lesson for August 12

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

LESSON TEXT—Amos 5:1-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. Romans 13:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Good Preacher and a Bad King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Country Boy Who Became a Great Preacher.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing for God Against the Crowd.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Social Justice as a Universal Duty.

I. Israel's Desolation Predicted (vv. 1-3).

1. The prophet's lamentation (v. 1). Amos lamented over the doom which was to overtake the nation. The prophet is thus represented as entering into the sorrow which was to overtake Israel.

2. The nation's utter desolation and helplessness (vv. 2, 3). Israel is called a virgin because she had never been subdued by any foreign nation (Isa. 23:12). Her falling no more to rise, sets forth the utter desolation and helplessness to which the Assyrians subjected the nation.

II. The Urgent Call for the People to Return to God (vv. 4-9).

God through the prophet said, "Seek ye me and ye shall live." The implication is that while as yet the divine judgments are not executed, an opportunity is offered for them to turn to God. The time to repent is while judgment is stayed. In their turning to God they were called

1. To renounce idolatry (vv. 5, 6). They were to turn away from the places of idolatry—Bethel, Gilgal, and Beer-sheba. The judgment of God was to strike these places. He urged them the second time to seek the Lord, promising them life.

2. To cease to pervert judgment (v. 7). "Turn judgment to wormwood" implies the bitterness to the injured of the perversion of justice.

3. To cease to deprecate righteousness (vv. 7-9). "Leaving off righteousness" means that unrighteousness was allowed to take its place. For the third time he urged them to seek the Lord. In this exhortation the Lord's name is given, with a statement of some of his works.

a. "Maketh the seven stars and Orion."

b. "Turneth the shadow of death into the morning."

c. "Maketh the day dark with night."

d. "Calloeth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth" both in rain and in deluge.

e. "Strengtheneth the spoiled against the strong."

III. The Sins Committed by the Wicked Nation (vv. 10-13).

1. They hated the judge who condemned their wicked practices (v. 10).

2. They abhorred him that spoke uprightly (v. 10). This probably refers to the prophets themselves.

3. They trampled upon the poor (v. 11). The rich built magnificent houses out of the gains extorted from the poor, but the prophet assured them that God would not permit them to live in the houses nor drink of the wine thereof.

4. They afflicted the just (v. 12). This they did by taking a bribe. What a picture this of our own time!

5. They turned aside the poor in the gate (v. 12). Because the poor had no money they were turned aside. The times were so evil that the prudent would best keep silent.

IV. The Prophet's Plea for Repentance (vv. 14, 15).

No condition in the world, religious, social, or political, can become so difficult that the righteous are shut out from help. The righteous can

1. Seek God (v. 14). Those who seek God shall have with them the Lord of Hosts.

2. Hate the evil (v. 15). It is not enough merely to love the good; evil must be hated.

3. Establish judgment in the gate (v. 15). It was the custom in that day for the courts of justice to sit in the gate of the city. The prophet urged upon them the responsibility of placing honorable men in charge of public affairs.

V. The Judgment to Fall (vv. 16-20).

There is a coming day of retribution. Justice and right shall be vindicated. This will be realized in the day of the Lord (II. Thess. 1:7-10).

VI. Worship Which God Hates (vv. 21-27).

Sacrifices, observance of feast days, and even singing when the heart is out of fellowship with God is most displeasing to him. Worship without holiness of life is an abomination to God.

May Hurt; But Not Injure

The skilled specialist said to his patient as he was about to perform a delicate operation on the arm, "I may hurt you, but I will not injure you." Sometimes the Father's will may hurt, but he will never injure his child.—Rev. Geo. Douglas.

Don't Find Fault

Never find fault with a sermon you may hear if you have not been praying earnestly during the week that your minister may be filled with the Holy Ghost!—R. W. Dale.

Science of Health

By Dr. Thos. S. Englar

DISEASE AND BACTERIA. (Concluded)

There has been under discussion in this column a subject often discussed in groups of our young—and older—"intellectuals," especially by those who incline to wrestle with pseudo-scientific and religio-psychic phenomena rather than with political problems. This subject is what our disputants call the "germ theory of disease," of which "theory" these "radicals" deny the truth, declaring that, instead, the disease comes first and the microbes "move in" on the sick (i. e. weakened) body or tissue after it has become diseased and is unable to resist the minute parasitic invaders. The semblance of truth contained in this hypothesis was noted here last week. Upon this insecure foundation, however, inadequately informed persons erect a structure of pseudo-pathology by which they attempt to discredit the patient and fruitful work of Pasteur and the other pioneers of bacteriology and benefactors of mankind.

As a matter of fact, the medical profession itself was the very first to question what really was the germ theory of disease in the early days of microbiology. They questioned it on the general principle that nothing new is true until it is proved true. The profession was, and is, conservative, and the burden of proof was upon the pioneers of bacteriology. There is no need to detail here all the steps by which the infant science evolved; the arguments and controversy—often bitter—which raged around Pasteur and his early co-workers. Suffice it to say that the question was finally settled to the satisfaction of reasonable men fifty years ago, when Robert Koch gave to the world his Law, by which the germ theory of disease was transformed into the proven bacterial causation of disease, paving the way for a half-century of epoch-making progress in curbing the ancient scourges of man: diphtheria, typhoid fever, tuberculosis and other infections.

Koch's Law is impressive in its very simplicity. It consists of four rules, or so-called postulates, which must all be fulfilled in order to prove the relationship of cause and effect between a specific bacterium and a definite disease; for example, the typhoid bacillus and typhoid fever.

In the first place, the specific bacterium must be obtained, or demonstrated, in all cases of the disease.

Secondly, the bacterium obtained from the diseased person must be isolated: i. e. it must be separated from all other microbes which may be growing in association with it. Then, by laboratory methods, it must be grown in "pure culture" on nutrient media.

Thirdly, the bacterium so grown in the test-tube must be inoculated into susceptible animals and produce the particular disease.

As a fourth and final step, the bacterium must again be isolated from the lesions of the diseased animal and proven by laboratory methods to be the same microbe which is found in (all cases of) the disease, which completes the circle around to the first step of the demonstration, as well as an unbreakable logical chain proving the bacterium in question to be, in fact, the cause of the definite disease under investigation.

Telephone Operators Speak Various Foreign Languages

Speak various languages. Left to right: At the switchboard Bess L. Dvorak and Mary L. Pisani, with Angelina Turco, supervising (standing). These young women are three of a group who are assigned to delegations and diplomats from foreign countries in the handling of telephone calls.

Visits of diplomats and delegations from other countries to Washington, D. C., have brought forcibly to the attention of officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company the necessity of having telephone operators available who are familiar with the languages of the visitors. A survey made recently developed the fact that about forty of the present operating force spoke foreign languages, some fluently, while a number of other operators speak these languages well enough to carry on conversations intelligently. Among the languages with which Washington telephone operators are most familiar are: Czech-Slovakian, Dutch, French, Gaelic, German, Italian, Norwegian, Polish, Slavic, Spanish, Swedish, Welsh and Bohemian. Now as the occasion arises these young women are assigned to serve as operators for the visiting delegations and to assist them in completing their telephone connections.

Since the inauguration of trans-oceanic telephone service to Europe January 7, 1927, company officials say that there has been a steady increase in the use of this service, which now reaches more than fifty countries on five other continents. Last year there was a total of 20,187 telephone calls made to cities of other countries from cities in the United States.

In addition to the transoceanic telephone calls there are now about twenty steamers equipped for ship-to-shore service, a number being those flying foreign flags, which also makes it necessary to have linguists as operators.

Epicures Learn About World's Strangest Meal

Paris.—Antelope steak . . . porcupine salad . . . bamboo branches . . . and seahogs—

No, not a menu for the zoo; it's merely the very latest ultra-modern bill of fare prepared, and actually eaten by members of the French "Societe d'Acclimatation" which is composed of "patrons of culinary art."

They've just tried it out at a banquet fittingly held in the restaurant of the Paris railway terminus from which explorers going to Africa and Asia depart.

The banquet began, as all French banquets must, with an aperitif. But, what an aperitif! The name itself—Zevenkruidenleik—gives some clue but not much. It's made of seven different plants.

With that as a beginning, one strange culinary concoction followed another.

There was India-Chinese marior, a kind of rice, cooked in the Algerian manner. Then there were squids and cuttle-fish followed by a long fish that looked freshly painted and turned out to be what is scientifically known as a sea-hog.

That was followed by vegetables, or at least that is the nearest thing they can be classified as: young bamboo branches cooked with mushrooms (and actually palatable!) and a wild sauce called "lobi-blirfor" on the Ivory coast. Salad. Three little porcupines, neatly carved, with the points broken off so as not to make matters too complicated.

Then came the antelope steak, garnished with a bit of buffalo meat finely chopped.

New Typhoid Serum Is Tested on 65 Patients

New Orleans.—Tests of a new typhoid serum at two hospitals here by a New York physician resulted in his being awarded the gold medal of the American Medical association at Cleveland recently.

Dr. Gregory Schwartzman, of Mount Sinai hospital, in New York, won the award for the serum, which "marks a great advance in the battle on this disease."

When typhoid cases in New York did not offer the doctor such a large field, he came to Charity hospital here with Dr. George Baehr, also of the New York hospital.

During a three-month test period, 65 patients received the serum. The "cure" was not only more rapid, but was classed as "remarkable."

Antique Lamps Copied for Rebuilding of City

Cleveland.—Lamp posts of antique times are being manufactured here for use in the reconstruction of Williamsburg, Va., in the architecture of Colonial days. Electricity will continue to be used but the standards and lanterns will resemble those when only candles and whale-oil were burned on the Duke of Gloucester street in Williamsburg.

Our Mother Tongue

A delegate to the disarmament conference was trying to learn English.

"Does 'exit' mean in English to make somebody dislike you?" he asked.

"No, why?"

"I understand," explained the foreigner, "that it is the reverse of 'entrance,' and 'to entrance' means to 'fascinate.'"

No. English is not an easy language.

Clipping Records Birth of Octuplets in 1859

Jefferson, Ohio.—Birth of quintuplets to Mrs. Olivia Dionne at Corbell, Ont., recently caused an international sensation. But this multiple birth would sink into insignificance beside one that occurred south of here 75 years ago.

The story came to light recently in an old scrapbook which contains a clipping from the New York Tribune, dated August 4, 1859, from Johnson, Trumbull county, Ohio.

"On the second day of August," the clipping reads, "Mrs. Timothy Bradley gave birth to eight children—three boys and five girls. They are living and are healthy, but quite small."

"Mr. B.'s family is increasing fast. He was married six years ago to Eunice Mowry, who weighed 273 pounds on the day of their marriage. She has given birth to two pairs of twins and now eight more, making twelve children in six years. It seems strange, but nevertheless true, Mrs. B. was a twin of three, her mother and father both being twins and her grandmother the mother of five pairs of twins."

"Mrs. B. has named her boys after noted and distinguished men—one after the Hon. Joshua R. Giddings (Civil war congressman), who has given her a splendid medal; one after Rev. Hon. Elijah Champlin, who gave her a deed of 50 acres of land, and the other after James Johnson, esq., who gave her a cow."

"Mr. Bradley says it is profitable to have twins, as the neighbors have clothed the brothers ever since they were born. Mr. B. is a poor, industrious laborer, who says he will not part with any of his children while he is able to work."

Leipzig Shows Pencils That Will Weigh Mail

Leipzig.—Your fountain pen or pencil, after being used to write a letter, also may be utilized to weigh it and indicate the required postage. A pocket pen or pencil of the ordinary size is equipped with a letter scale with spring attachment. On placing a letter on the end of the pencil, an indicator at once points to the necessary postage, whether for domestic or foreign delivery. The new device, which is cheap and highly practical, has been exhibited at the Leipzig fair.

Bankers Mystified by Silver Dollar Increase

Walla Walla, Wash.—Local bankers want to know where all the silver dollars are coming from. For the past three years at least one bank has sent monthly shipments of the "cartwheels" out to rid the city of the surplus. Banks here "export" about $5,000 worth of silver dollars a month.

Bean Salads

YOU'RE missing a bet if you don't serve bean salads. Cold canned stringless beans with French dressing make one of the simplest and most appetizing salads you can serve, but they can be served with other dressings, and in combination with other vegetables. They make a delicious salad, for instance, served in the following way:

Stringless Bean Salad with Roquefort Dressing: Drain one cup of canned stringless beans, chill thoroughly and arrange in six lettuce leaves. Combine one-third cup salad oil, two tablespoons vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and shake or beat until well emulsified. Mash half a wedge of Roquefort cheese, and add the oil and vinegar slowly, stirring until very smooth. Pour over the salad. Serves six, and costs, incidentally, less than thirty-five cents.

With Other Vegetables

Lima Bean and Tomato Salad: Dip two large tomatoes in boiling water, then in cold. Remove skins. Chill, cut in halves, and place one half in each of four lettuce leaves. Combine half the contents of a No. 2 can lima beans, one small minced onion, four tablespoons chopped celery and salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with four tablespoons mayonnaise, and pile on top of the tomato halves. Serves four, and costs only a quarter.

Beet and Bean Salad: Drain well one cup of canned diced beets and half the contents of a 10½-ounce can stringless beans, and add three tablespoons chopped sweet pickle. Add three tablespoons French dressing, and marinate for half an hour. Mix in six tablespoons mayonnaise, and serve on lettuce. Serves six, and costs less than thirty-five cents.*

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

When the heat comes, thousands leave New York. They have many places to go. The seashore bungalow colonies are little cities in themselves. There are other summer cities up in the mountains. In addition, there are hundreds of lakes. In fact, the state of New York offers just about every variety of scenery, except desert, that a vacation lover may desire. Since that is true within commuting distance, during the summer many New Yorkers merely toll in town and sleep and play away from the lights of Broadway. But there are other thousands who cannot do that. For them, the seashore is Coney Island, the mountains, the Palisades of New Jersey and the lakes more often than not, the basin of some fountain or maybe just a freeping shower.

Those thousands, or rather I should say millions, do not live in sections of the city where there is some escape from the effects of the sun. Their dwellings are in the narrow streets of the tenement districts. Their homes are airless and oftentimes dark. For them, there is no escape from the heat. Nights, they crowd the roofs or the parks. Days, they get along as best they can. Often, mothers, to keep their babes from stifling, load them into perambulators and walk with them until the early morning hours afford some relief. It is wearisome, but babies must breathe. And after those all night rambles, the mothers do their housework and cook in kitchens some of which are equipped with coal or wood stoves.

Those street showers are beaches of the tenement youngsters. They shout happily under the cool spray and carry on much like we used to do when we walked out to the old Sycamore, peeled our clothes and enjoyed ourselves in the yellow Scoto. The youngsters of the slums can't go quite that far, however. But they go as far as they can, a single garment satisfying the conventions. Some, however, wear bathing suits. Asked a kid why he did and he replied, "Because it makes me feel like I'm out at Coney." And an old softy turned his head right quick!

Perhaps you've read about Ramon Million. I think the Recording Angel placed a gold mark opposite Ramon Million's name. The only money he has is his name because he's been out of work a long time. He came out of his home on One Hundred Eighth street and found a bunch of heat-exhausted kids trying to turn on a fire hydrant. They weren't strong enough so Ramon Million did it for them. He cooled off the kids. But he broke the law. While he still had the wrench in his hand, along came a radio car and Ramon Million was arrested.

In court, he made no attempt to deny his guilt. The magistrate was sympathetic and imposed a fine of only $2. Million didn't have even a nickel so he went to jail for two days. And I sincerely hope his cell was cool and comfortable—as cool and comfortable as he made those youngsters.

Speaking of hot weather, happened to notice two men high up on a scaffold cleaning the front of an apartment house. Usually this is done with a sand blast, a gritty, hard job. But in this instance, with the mercury well up toward the top of the tube, live steam was being used!

Maybe Society—Big S—Isn't harking back to the Harry Lehr monkey party days, but right after the Astor-French show over at Newport, out at Syosset, L. I., there was a debutante party with a "milk bar" at which a genuine, tall-swishing, pall-upsetting Bossy was a feature. Also circus freaks helped enliven the occasion.

Dinner in Los Angeles; Lunch at World's Fair

Chicago.—Dinner in Los Angeles and lunch on the World's fair grounds in Chicago is the record established by M. T. Donnelley and three members of his family recently. They flew in one of United Air Lines' three-mile-a-minute transports similar to the one exhibited in the dome of the Travel and Transport building at the fair.

Other air travelers are having lunch in New York and dining on the fair grounds.

Youthful Fisherman Uses Toy Sailboat as Bobber

Waltham, Mass.—Veteran fishermen can get a few pointers from Paul Milvill, eleven, on how to catch, not only the big ones, but a good many at a time. Paul uses a toy sail boat to which he attaches four lines with baited hooks. The boat goes out about 50 feet with the lines trailing behind and when the fish bite the hooks the boat bobs up and down. He then pulls in his fish.

Surveyors Balked by Mountain Goats

Glacier Park, Mont.—A pair of mountain goats have taken it upon themselves to discourage the building of new trails in the park.

They have been eating the little white rags which the surveyors attach to brush and twigs in laying out new trails.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

Considerable inquiry is being made as to the cost of Coal for delivery by local dealers, by comparison with the prices of coal being delivered by coal being delivered by truck from small mines in Pennsylvania. The situation is that all Coal dealers are restricted to certain fixed prices by the NRA Coal Code; and until a test case denying the power to Code authorities to fix prices, said code prices must prevail, or cause dealers to be subject to heavy fine for violation.

LIFE IN THREE VOLUMES.

"Life is a story of volumes three, The Past, the Present, and the Yet-to-be.
