Five shorts, out of town, one long and one short, west end; one long and two shorts, center; one long and three shorts, east end. Why not such a code for Taneytown? ## FREDERICK COUNTY LEAGUE

Baseball Organized for the Season of 1936.

The Frederick County Baseball League organized for the season, in Frederick, on Monday night. M. J. Thomson was re-elected president; Allen Smith, Woodsboro and Howard Gray, Union Bridge, vice-presidents; R. E. Keeney, Middletown, treasurer.

The only controversy was over the salaries of umpires, and the amount of the forfeit fee, but no decided action was taken.

The starting time of games was again set at 2:30 in every town except Brunswick, which will commence its home games at 3:30 o'clock as in the past. Raymond Sauble, head of the Taneytown club, requested permission to play his postponed games at 5 o'clock, since six of his players work in a factory and it is inconvenient for them to get off from work to play baseball at an earlier hour. Some opposition developed to the request, and the matter was finally placed in the hands of President Thomson.

As usual, there will be no Sunday games played—all on Saturday, except postponed games. As to the eligibility of players, he said the seven mile limit would be elastic, and that teams might go a fraction of a mile beyond seven miles to secure a player.

Players are not to smoke, while in uniform. He also suggested that teams provide satisfactory policing of grounds, and stated that players lists must be in his hands by June 13.

Representatives present were: Middletown, Prof. R. E. Keeney, Brunswick, John S. Foster; Woodsboro, Harry C. Dorcus; Thurmont, John M. Creeger; Emmitsburg, Leonard Zimmerman; Union Bridge, Guy Green; New Windsor, C. C. Lantz; Taneytown, Raymond Sauble.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS IN TANEYTOWN.

The Model Steam Bakery, W. R. Smith, proprietor, is undergoing extensive enlargement and general remodeling. The building is about 48 feet front, two stories, more than doubling its former size, and it has been equipped with the latest form of oven, and other interior improvements.

The oven is a large horizontal cylinder containing long revolving trays, or shelves, that receives the batches of dough and carries them around, each revolution requiring about two minutes, and about 25 loaves to bake from 180 to 250 loaves, according to size.

The baking is a continuous process, the baked loaves being replaced by unbaked ones as the inner mechanism revolves. Heat is supplied by an oil burning equipment and a percentage of steam is continuously added to provide necessary moisture. The old oven has been retained, also.

Another unusual project is the remodeling and enlargement of the former S. C. Ott property by its present owner, Chas. E. H. Shriner. The front of the building has been enlarged and greatly improved, and in addition to the store room, now contains two four-room apartments.

All of the old buildings in the rear have been torn down, and a row of six four-room apartments is being constructed. The work is not yet far enough advanced to more than indicate how the building may be occupied; but it is the plan to rent either apartments, or a single room or two, the probability being that from 35 to 50 inmates can be accommodated. The building will be equipped with modern improvements.

The new Rubber manufacturing plant, that will be the largest manufacturing building in the county, can not be described at this time, as work so far is limited to grading the site and placing the foundation, but it is going forward as rapidly as weather conditions permit.

DWELLING AND BARN BURN.

The barn and part of the dwelling on the former John H. Shirk farm, along Pipe Creek, near Mt. Union, were destroyed by fire, early Thursday morning, shortly after a passing thunder storm.

The fire, originated in the dwelling and communicated to the barn, possibly through sparks carried by wind. The property was owned and occupied by Roger Arnold and family, recent purchasers.

The Union Bridge Fire Company was summoned, but too late to be of any service. The amount of insurance, if any, has not been ascertained.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE.

Plans are being made for the observance of Memorial Day in Taneytown that will be fully up to those of past like events. An effort will be made to secure Governor Nice as the speaker. At a meeting held this Thursday night, Merwyn C. Fuss was chairman, and committees were named for solicitation, program and publicity, parade, etc.

The event will be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the American Legion and the Jr. O. U. A. M. The observance will be held on May 30, in the afternoon. A more detailed statement will be made later.

MAN IS KILLED BY BLOW WITH FLAT IRON.

Husband and Wife Held for May Term Grand Jury.

Mrs. Marie Katherine Loots, near Hampstead, is being held under $1000 bail for her appearance before the grand jury, charged with the death of her brother-in-law, John Loots, after having been struck by her with a flat iron, Tuesday morning.

The facts appear to be that John Loots, the victim, came to the home of his brother, Charles, at an early hour Tuesday morning, and during a quarrel, struck his brother with a home-made black-jack. Mrs. Loots came to the defense of her husband, and knocked the attacker to the floor.

Dr. Bush, Hampstead, hurried the injured man to a Baltimore hospital, where he died three hours later without regaining consciousness. State's Attorney Fringer swore out a warrant for Mrs. Loots, and she surrendered a short time later. An inquest was held Thursday night, in Baltimore.

John Loots is reported to have lived in or near Woodsboro, and was about 40 years of age. According to Frederick county authorities the Loots brothers have been estranged for some time. It was explained that Charles Loots was dissatisfied with the settlement of a family estate, and had ordered sale of the farm of his brother, on the Woodsboro-Libertytown road, at Sheriff's sale on May 5 to satisfy a note signed by the slain man. The sale of the farm of 124 acres, has been advertised. It is believed John went to his brother's home Monday night to discuss the sale of the farm.

The Coroner's Jury held Mrs. Loots on a charge of murder, and her husband, Charles Loots, as an accessory, and recommended that both be detained for the Carroll County grand jury.

Charles Loots testified that his brother, John, had been drinking, and that while he (John) was asking about the land business, he struck him (Charles) over the head with the black jack.

As he fell to the floor he called for his wife, who defended herself with a flat iron. He then recovered sufficiently to engage in the fight that lasted several minutes before John fell to the floor.

Hahn, east end, was answered during the month. The Committee on arrangements for the Card Party to be held on April 22, in the Opera House, made a favorable report, and have asked the members of the various canvassing committees to complete their districts, which was impossible at the time of the supper on Feb. 22, due to bad mud roads.

THE LINCOLN BOULEVARD

May Pass through Carroll County, if Constructed.

That the Washington-Gettysburg Boulevard may presently become a reality is known to comparatively few people. Very rarely has any U. S. Congress passed any laws directly affecting Carroll County so vitally as Pub. Res. 19, of the 74th. Congress. The Commission created by this Resolution consists of Mr. Thomas H. MacDonald (Chief of Bureau of Public Roads, President F. D. Roosevelt; Vice President Garner; Senators Tydings and Guffey, Congressmen Byrns, Lewis and Haines and Messrs. Frederic A. Delano (Chairman), C. Phelps Dodge, Crammer (Director of National Park Service) Hazen and Sulpan (Commissioners of D. C.)

While those interested in the Frederick Route have entertained the Chairman of the Commission, Mr. Delano, and thus secured much favorable publicity for their route, many people of Carroll and Montgomery Counties including Chambers of Commerce of Olney, Mt. Airy, Union Bridge and Taneytown know that the only way to genuinely improve transportation and park conditions between Washington and Gettysburg is by a direct route.

The Resolution of Congress specifies that the report of the Commission be presented to Congress on or before May 20, 1936. Mr. Chas. O. Clemson, a prominent and experienced attorney of Westminster has attended meetings of citizens in places near the direct route location and has followed up the legal status of this legislation. Mr. John D. Roop, Jr., of Linwood, Md., formerly the County Surveyor of Carroll County has uncovered many technical advantages the direct route offers. Some of these have made such an impression in Washington that the correspondent for "The Baltimore Sun," commented at length on them. (See morning issue March 19, 1936.)

The letter referred to follows: "Dear Senator, The Washington-Gettysburg Memorial Parkway now being studied as to route by the Planning Commission is the subject of a (Continued on Eighth Page.)

RECREATIONAL AREA PROJECT NEAR THURMONT.

Over 300 persons are now employed in the Catocin Recreational Area project in the mountains west of Thurmont and plans are going forward for summer work in the huge tract, G. B. Williams, project manager of the governmental area, said Thursday. Actual work in the area began January 2 and additional men have been added from time to time until 300 are now on the rolls.

Arrangements are being made for actual construction work of the operating unit on the land in the near future. The saw-mill equipment has been installed and is in full operation and the unit will include buildings for offices, tool-sheds, wagon-sheds, blacksmith shops and other necessary buildings.

Work on a picnic area, with all the necessary facilities, has been started and officials hope it will be completed during the summer so that it may be available to visitors before fall. Additional equipment for building roads and other phases of the project which are still in the formative stage is expected almost any time.

Despite the consistently bad weather during the winter, over thirty miles of foot-trails have been completed, Mr. Williams said, leading to various points of interest, throughout the area where excellent views of the mountain scenery may be obtained. Fire hazards have been reduced, it was stated, on approximately 1,500 acres of the mountain tract.—Frederick Post.

LARGE SALE OF TOWN LOTS IN TANEYTOWN.

The Stanley C. Reaver farm adjoining Taneytown, on the extension of York Street, has been contracted for by E. T. Newell Co., Inc., auctioneers, of Baltimore, who will develop the tract by dividing it into streets, and about 150 building lots, to be sold publicly in the near future.

This will be by far, the largest subdivision of Taneytown, that has ever been offered. The contract was executed by D. W. Garner, real estate broker, who just 21 years ago, last September, sold the Clabaugh farm tract, now known as Baltimore St., east end, since handsomely improved with fine homes, lawns and shrubbery.

This new subdivision will be advertised, next week, at public auction, on Saturday, May 9, and will be conducted by the Newell real estate auctioneers, representing one of the largest firms of the kind in this country.

ELECTION SUPERVISORS MEET.

ROOSEVELT OPENS CAMPAIGN OF 1936

Says New Deal has only Commenced its Plans.

President Roosevelt addressed a large audience in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, on Monday night, as opening his campaign for election, especially enlisting the support of all "Young Americans without regard to race, party or creed." The audience heard him say—

"The temper of our youth has become more restless, more critical, more challenging. 'Flaming youth' he said 'has become a flaming question, and youth is wanting to know what we propose to do about a society that has too many of them.'"

Mr. Roosevelt stated that he and his party stood ready to "attack the problem from every conceivable angle. In that connection the President warned that 'we cannot legislate against greater efficiency, nor can we legislate against the use of new tools—nor would we if we could.'"

Increased employment, particularly for youth, he insisted, was not to be accomplished by such drastic means; nor is it desirable to "return to the 1928 kind of prosperity."

"The best that the captains of industry could do for you before the depression," he said, "was not good enough then and it is not good enough today."

Turning from his appeal to youth, he briefly replied to some criticism that charge failure of new deals, stating among other things that he did not believe unemployment would continue, even with completely restored prosperity; and stated plainly that if re-elected, he will press for a program of his own.

"Because the practices of employment definitely affect the problem of unemployment, the Government must give and will give consideration to such subjects as the length of the working week, the stability of employment on an annual basis and the payment of at least adequate minimum wages. A Government doing that is a Government that is working actively at the answers to your problem."

We do not yet know enough in a changing economic order to guarantee any nation permanent against times of depression. We believe, however, that steps, like these, which we have taken and are taking will at least greatly cushion depressions—will prevent the up-curve from rushing to a violent, mad peak of false prosperity and prevent another violent, mad descent into another sink of suffering and disillusionment like the one from which for the last three and a half years we have been surely emerging."

Prominent Democratic leaders who attended, were Vice-President Garner; Senators Joseph Robinson, (Ark.) Wheeler, (Mont.); Pittman, (Nev.); Radcliffe, (Md.); Postmaster-General Farley; Cong. Rayburn, (Tex.); Mayor Jackson, Baltimore, and others. A parade preceded the event, and a ball followed after, that was opened by Mrs. Roosevelt.

SPECIAL LOVEFEAST.

Thursday evening before Good Friday, the Meadow Branch congregation held a special lovefeast, to keep the ordinances and Communion on the 1936th. anniversary of their institution by the Lord himself, in Jerusalem, to be kept up 'till he comes.

The attendance was good, notwithstanding the inclement weather at the time. Dr. E. C. Bixler, Rev. C. O. Garner and Rev. John D. Roop, Jr., conducted the impressive services.

The congregation will hold its regular semi-annual lovefeast in the Westminster Church, April 26, at 5:30 P. M. The Meadow Branch Sunday School rendered a splendid program, to a full house on Easter morning. Guests in the large audience, motored from distant parts of Md., Pa., Va. and Washington. Prof. H. H. Nye, a member of the Church's General Mission Board, and a teacher at present in Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., gave a most excellent address, in keeping with the season and occasion. WM. E. ROOP, Cor.

A man may have a superior mind, but if he sneers at religion in a classroom he does not belong there.—Thos. L. Cline, Gettysburg College.

PREVENTION OF WAR PROGRAM.

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, representative in Europe of the National Council for the prevention of war, will be the principal speaker at the sessions of the annual State meeting of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, April 18, in the Westminster Church of the Brethren.

Mrs. Morgan has attended the sessions of the League of Nations regularly for the past ten years, has been a constant observer of the World Disarmament Conference, and has also covered the naval conference which met in London in 1930 and 1935-36. Her reports of activities in both London and Geneva have been issued each week to a selected clientele in this country.

Mrs. Morgan is an outstanding international authority on questions of naval armament. Since 1922, when the first naval limitation conference met in Washington, she has been studying the problem of naval treaties, and the prestige she has acquired has gained her ready access to diplomatic councils both in London and Geneva.

Mrs. Morgan will speak at the luncheon which will be held at the Church of the Brethren. She will begin to talk at about one thirty and those who find it inconvenient to attend the luncheon will find chairs placed for them should they desire to come in time to hear the speaker.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE CONCERT.

Music lovers of this vicinity will be given the opportunity of hearing an unusually fine concert in Blue Ridge College auditorium, New Windsor, on next Tuesday night, April 21, at 8:15. At that time the Hemmick string quartet, which is one of the leading quartets of Baltimore, and R. Henry Ackley, baritone, of Westminster, will present a varied program. The members of the quartet are: first violinist, Eldon Basney, who is a scholarship student at the Peabody Conservatory; second violinist, Lloyd Hemmick, a member of the Baltimore Symphony orchestra; violist, Kenneth Holland, a brilliant young musician of the Peabody Conservatory; cellist, Emily Lutz Hemmick, prominent soloist and teacher.

Mr. Ackley is a local singer whose ability has been highly acclaimed. At the beginning of the present session he was awarded a vocal scholarship in the Peabody Conservatory.

Dr. A. W. Cordier and Dr. C. Ray Keim, of Manchester College, North Manchester, Indiana, will give addresses in the Blue Ridge College auditorium on Thursday, April 23, at 8 o'clock. They will discuss the European situation. All are invited to hear these speakers.

The worthiest people are the most injured by slander, as it is the best fruit which the birds have been pecking at.—Swift.

Random Thoughts

IMPROVEMENT.
Naturally, most well ordered minds turn toward improvement—wanting something better—and just as naturally, we want things when we can't afford to pay their cost, and this starts planning to "beat" the cost.

In the larger sense, it is "wanting" improvements that is responsible for higher taxation, regardless of whether those who pay the bulk of the taxes share enthusiastically in our wants.

This applies to improved roads and schools, and now, the so-called "relief" movements—as well as to a long list of lesser needs more or less personal.

Improvement at our own expense, is not half so popular as that which we can get through the tax plan. And this kind is largely responsible for our "jehing down," our shopping, and our hunt for the "lowest bid"—for "getting things" with the least pain to ourselves—and sometimes we go to the "government" for them.

Self-improvement, evidently, is suffering greatly, these days, from disuse.

FEEDING WASTE-BASKETS.

Every weekly paper in the country
receives, regularly, a very large assortment of reports, plans, results and opportunities growing out of the numerous organized activities of the Federal government; and just as regularly, but few of these communications are published.

They could not be. They would,
each week, fill all of the space of the average weekly, leaving no space for news, general or local.

A close second to this larger activity, are the numerous county organizations engaged in relief, or other praise-worthy public service.

The Record publishes as many of these, as possible, but it would suggest to press agents that they be more brief. Instead of trying to see how long a statement can be made,
the art of condensation should be practiced.

A long story that looks uninteresting, does not appeal to the average reader, while most will take the time to read a shorter one. It is true, therefore, that a vast amount of money and effort is actually wasted
through the employment of "high-powered" experts, where education is at a discount by comparison with terse statements of fact, such as could be written by any fairly intelligent business man or woman.

Because a busy editor does not publish all articles, whether large or small, is no evidence that he disagrees
with them; but because it is impossible for him to do so, and issue a well-balanced paper.

There is also another class of articles that are apt to find easy way into the waste basket; articles that are propaganda for some money-making object. In other words, "advertisements" written in news story style—and usually very well written.
Or perhaps not for money-making directly, but for the purpose of popularizing some object, or movement.
These are all very familiar visitors to every newspaper office, and thinking to "put them over" on the editor is an open attempt to discredit his intelligence.

Some of the longer articles are meritorious all the way through, because of the importance of their subject matter, and it frequently happens that one skips their reading because their very appearance of length,
discourages the spending of the time

PERPETUAL MOTION.

After a trial of two years, public relief, and its assumed, natural accessories, now calls for as much public money heretofore. The American Federation of Labor says that when Hoover went out of office, there were 11,600,000 unemployed, and there is that same number unemployed now.
Business is better, but at a cost of $26,500,000,000 in borrowed money.

Although NRA and AAA have been declared unconstitutional and are out of the picture, substitutes are costing just as much, and not producing the relief anticipated. Are we maintaining a "perpetual motion" machine
that, like all other such experiments,
are "perpetual" only after the requisite power—in this case, money—has been furnished. This kind of perpetual motion is as impossible as overcoming the law of gravitation.

There are still some things that can't be done. Why not admit the truth, now, and not wait until a large part of the population of the whole country is living off borrowed money, represented by taxes gathered from some, to be paid to others, with the government acting as the go-between,
the whole plan heading toward government ownership of all wealth, and dictating its distribution?

OPPRESSION OR LIBERTY?

One of the outstanding Congressional students of government,
Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Arizona
Democrat who is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, says the jury trial and protection against search and seizure are "the very essence of constitutional liberty and security."

In expressing that philosophy to the Senate recently, Ashurst said:

"In all our jurisprudence there is no other principle that has been more definitely put into position, or more joyously accepted by Americans than the principle of the Fourth and Fifth amendments.

"The makers of our Federal Constitution and the framers of the first two amendments were never tired of quoting the immortal words of the elder Pitt used in his speech on the excise;

"The poorest man may in his cottage bid defiance to all the force of the crown. It may be frail; its roof may shake; the wind may blow through it; the storms may enter—but the King of England cannot enter—
all his force dare not cross the threshold of the ruined tenement."

"The plan, purpose and object of the Fourth and Fifth amendment; is that they preserve the liberty of the citizen against the assaults of opportunism, and the expediencies to which men resort in an hour of impatience."

Pitt spoke of the man in a ramshackle home. The description applies equally as well to the white collar worker who lives in a modern American apartment. Surely his fellow Americans are not willing to sacrifice his and their rights to "assaults of opportunism" and "impatience." If they do, the middle ages will be back again, with their governmental snooping into the affairs of every man and the consequent oppression of a dictatorship.—Industrial News Review.

DISREGARD OF CIVIL SERVICE.

A familiar old figure pops up in Washington and the centurion demands economy and efficiency in Government. Welcome oldtimer!

Apparently nearly all of the thousands of employees added to the Government pay rolls have been elevated to their positions without regard to the Civil Service, even though the Civil Service act has been regarded in recent years as the most efficient advance ever devised in behalf of efficiency and better business in Government. Why it has not been adhered to in the last three years, is explained
by the frank statement of Postmaster General Farley that there wasn't time to hire people that way. But not even Mr. Farley's friends believe that flip sentence of his.

Ex-President Taft's greatest contribution to public service during his presidency was his attempt to create improved efficiency in Government.
Huge volumes of statistical reports were completed and they are still to be found in the Congressional Library.
They showed the duplication of Government bureaus and agencies, and gave a complete and definite chart for the reorganization of Government.

The final act of Mr. Taft as President, was an appeal to Congress to set aside all partisan motives and make a business institution out of the Government. His commission proved that it could be done. But the whole matter was chucked overboard when President Wilson was elected.

But, all will agree that efficiency in Government has touched bottom since the beginning of the depression, and if Senator Byrd, of Virginia and Congressman Brownlow, of Indiana, who are the official Administration heads of the present plan to bring order out of chaos in Government management,
can accomplish anything in that direction, they will have the blessings of a grateful country.

Ninety-nine authorities out of one hundred in Government affairs, would say it can't be done. But they are reminded that many a rabbit has been taken out of hats by magicians.—National Industries Service.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS.

The nominating conventions are still months away and more than half a year must elapse before the Presidential and Congressional elections,
but already it is possible to definitely isolate issues which will be hammered home during the days to come. Other issues will have their place, and either President Roosevelt or the Republican nominee might develop new ones, but right now it is certain that taxation, relief (or boondoggling), and unemployment, are definitely on the agenda for constant discussion during the next seven months.

It might be said that these are certain to be issues because they are the points upon which the present administration is weakest and are therefore the vulnerable points of attack. A few months ago the Constitution and Supreme Court seemed destined to be perhaps the dominant issues, but public reaction seemingly has compelled Secretary Wallace and the rest of those in Washington who sought hasty changes to back away. Until after the elections, anyway.

Thus far the question of unemployment has been obscured in the pre-convention debates. But the Republicans are bound to realize some time
that it is at this point that President Roosevelt is weakest and that there is no defense for the fact that so little has been done to re-employ the idle. The fundamental pledge of the present Administration was that it knew all the answers when it came to the unemployment question. When it came into office in 1933, estimates of jobless were 14,000,000 to 15,000,000.
Last month the estimate was fixed at above 12,000,000.

Unquestionably efforts will be made to use industry as the whipping boy for continued unemployment. But it will be difficult to make this case since industrial leaders have pointed out repeatedly that legislative experiments
were blocking all expansion attempts.
At the same time, of course, the manufacturing industries have never at their highest point employed more than 8,839,000 persons, and today there are above 6,840,000 on the payrolls.

How far the tax issue will go is still an open question. Naturally politici-ally wise leaders like Postmaster General Farley are opposing taxes at this session of Congress which will break
the bad news to the low income classes. But there have been indications that the country is becoming tax conscious and worried over both the unbalanced budget in Washington and the dread of taxation in the offing.
One-fifth of all income already is going for taxes—Federal, state and local—and it does not take an economist to know that this is hurting the buying power of the great consuming masses.

Young Senator Holt snatched the lid from off the relief Pandora box, and charged that funds in West Virginia were being used freely for political purposes and to build the gubernatorial aspirations of the state administrator. As though by pre-conceived arrangements, reports started pouring in from all section of the country
charging similar situations.

Actually, laying political considerations aside and assuming that Harry Hopkins has been doing his best to keep politics out of the four billion dollar grab bag, the situation is the best possible answer to those who continually seek greater control by the Federal government. Arthur Krock, writing in The New York Times, points out that even if Mr. Hopkins' protestations of cleanliness are true, and Washington headquarters are vigilant
in rooting out politics in PWA, "it proved also that politics does take root in the PWA as in everything the government touches." Fewer will contend that American industry would have attained its world leadership if it had to depend upon political meddling at every turn, as is sought now
by young radicals.—Industrial Press Service.

FILTERING FACTS.

From the throbbing machine of modern propaganda, the American citizen today gets the best and the worst. He has unparalleled and magnificent sources of information and he is constantly assailed by purveyors of pretended fact. Dozens of new but partisan disseminators have sprung up during these later days, particularly with an eye to the elections. Leagues and committees and societies abound.
If nobody else is flourishing, certainly the printer's ink makers must be showing unprecedented profits, and "publicists" should nowhere be on relief.

The very plethora of information
makes it hard for the ordinary citizen to get a firm grip on his facts. It is not a simple economic and political situation that confronts him anyway,
but it is doubly complicated because of its paid interpreters. They obscure the issues.
On the other hand, the United States has probably the world's finest group of research organization. More than half a dozen endowed foundations exist for the sole purpose of finding the facts. But their conclusions are very rarely passed on to the man in the street. They remain in weighty reports, authoritative and impressive to experts, but unavailable
to almost everybody else.

It is, therefore, not only refreshing but important to record a new attempt to bring to the people the facts
they so much need. The Public Affairs Committee is a disinterested group of delegates of the country's leading research organizations. They have banded together to publish short,
simple, inexpensive reports on pressing national problems which are derived from long, complex, and very expensive investigations. The first report summarized the Brookings Institution's classic four volumes on "Income and Economic Progress." It casts ten cents and can be read and absorbed in a short hour.

Further publications will similarly bring to the people the questions of "Labor and the Government" (a study
by the Twentieth Century Fund;

"Government Personnel" (by the Institute of Public Administration);
"The Constitution," a description of different views, and "Social Security,"
from several authoritative studies.

Reliable information, drawn from the immense work done over a period of years, is on its way to the citizens.
The effects may be incalculable.—
Christian Science Monitor.

SPRING AND LOVE.

The poet said that "in the spring
the young men's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." Is that the pleasant imagination of a fine poet, or does love really rise to a more ardent pitch in spring? Is it a harvest time for little Cupid, when the fellow with the bow and arrows has specially good marksmanship, and puts his shafts
through many a palpitating heart?
The large number of weddings that occur in June might look that way.
The crop of love sowed as the sun returned from its winter solitudes comes to a generous fruition every year at that time. As the life giving element that makes the trees bud and blossom rises out of the cold ground,
so these tender feelings of sentiment
may grow stronger in this season of advancing warmth and revival of nature.

Spring anyway is the season of hope. We see the evidences of this sentiment on every hand. The birds return, full of hope for a songful season. They build their nests, which is an act of hope for the future. Many lovers have watched that act of symbolicity, and regarded it as a symbol having meaning for their own lives.
They too have longed for a nest and a beloved mate. The spring is the time of new plans, the sowing of seeds that shall bring new harvest.
It is a time of venturing, led on by confidence and faith. That is a spirit that encourages matrimony. Young people had perhaps felt cautious and hesitating through the coldness of winter. But as these days of hope come on, difficulties seem to vanish.
If the spring then is the favorite time
for lovers, the world wishes them well. Love makes the world go around.
The race would die out if love should cease.—Frederick Post.

SCRATCHING HENS DESTROY GARDENS

Several Plans Recommended to Halt Trouble.

Hens, like children, like to go into places where they are not wanted. Gardens are especially attractive to hens, although the flower beds in the house yards are equally enjoyed for dusting and preening.

There is probably no program that is 100 per cent effective in keeping an ordinary farm flock where it belongs and out of places where it is not wanted, except confinement in the hen-house or a perfectly chicken-tight run. Keeping the flock confined until ten o'clock in the morning, except in extremely hot weather, says a writer in Wallaces' Farmer, not only reduces the annoyance of having the chickens scratching around where they are not wanted, but also simplifies the egg gathering problem.

There are several items that aid in keeping hens from getting over fences into places where they are not wanted:

1. Clipping the feathers on one wing as short as they can be cut without injury to the skin. Clipping both wings is much less effective.

2. Putting the braces on corner posts on the side of the fence which is away from the hens. If the braces are not so located, the hens use them to get up to a spot where they can squeeze through or hop over the wire. A piece of poultry netting should be stretched from the corner to the anchor post, to prevent the hens from hopping on the brace anywhere along its length.

3. Post tops furnish station stops for the lighter breeds on their daily journeys from outside the garden to inside. Steel posts are the ideal garden fence support, since no good landing place is available; but two or three two-foot laths nailed on the outside of each post, flagpole fashion, are effective in preventing the hens from getting over.

4. Wooden fences of ordinary height are simply an encouraging invitation to the hens. The only cure is to top off the fences with 18 inches or more of poultry netting. If this is put on by means of extensions, such as 2 by 4's, at an angle of 30 degrees or more from upright, sloping away from the forbidden area, the fence will approach 100 per cent of effectiveness.

Get Rid of Loafing Hens and Save Added Expense

Catch the loafers "with the goods by culling now," is the advice of Miss Cora Cooke, extension poultry specialist at University farm, St. Paul. Culling need not be a long, tiresome task. The early culling can be done merely by taking the loafers off the roosts at night, or picking them off the floor by means of a wire catching hook. The culls are easy to recognize in early summer. Their combs are shrunken and the beaks are beginning to turn yellow at the base. They may be yellow to the tip. If beak and legs are both yellow, it indicates that the hen has already been a boarder for several weeks. A hen whose comb is shrunken and whose pubic bones are drawing together is so near through laying that it is wise to cull her at once. If the pubic bones are drawn tight together and if the vent is yellow, she shows that she has already ceased laying.

Every flock should, of course, be given a thorough culling before housing for the fall, says Miss Cooke. Much feed can be saved if this is done.

Eggs an Important Food

Seasonal increase in egg production through the summer with corresponding reduction in egg prices affords a chance for the average family to catch up on their egg consumption. Not only does increased consumption help the poultryman but eggs are an important source of food material. Only fish oils exceed egg yolks as a natural food source of vitamin D. In addition eggs are a source of valuable minerals and proteins and can be adapted to any meal of the day either as a dessert or the main dish. Most of the egg is edible, only 11 per cent of its weight being shell.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Poultry Notes

Worm young birds at twelve to fourteen weeks old.

All roosters should be taken out of the flock early in the summer.

Broodiness can be bred out of the birds by removing those that are broody.

Cockerels that are to go to market as capons next Easter should be caponized as early as possible.

Pullets roughed through the summer get it back on their owners by eating lots and laying little during the fall and early winter.

Although the poultry industry in the United States produces 35,000,000,000 eggs a year, eggs are still candied one by one and graded by the human eye.

To clean eggs, wash them with warm water and a cloth, but do not put the eggs in the water, as they absorb it. Never scrape the eggs with a knife or other metal.

100,000 to Aid Rain of Checks

House Records Reveal Haste in Getting AAA Gifts Out Before Election.

Recent disclosures indicate that the Soil Conservation Act (new AAA) was even a far more sweeping delegation of power to the Agricultural Department than was suspected at the time the measure was signed by the President on Feb. 29. As a matter of fact it now appears that Congress, in characteristic New Deal manner, provided $470,000,000 and left details to somebody else.

The situation was fully revealed when Chester C. Davis, administrator of AAA, appeared before the subcommittee of the House Committee on Appropriations on March 10. That was ten days after the Act had been signed. In former times Congress exercised its right and duty to specify how money taken from the Treasury should be used. But since the $4,800,000,000 blank check given to the President early last year, the old custom seems to have broken down. How astonishingly little the Congress knew about just how the new AAA funds were to be used is shown by two paragraphs in the official printed record of the testimony of Administrator Davis.

Election Year Haste.

The following is from the record: "Mr. Woodrum. As I understand it, the Department itself does not know now what the specific conditions are that the farmer will have to comply to entitle him to share under the act; or what he will get; or the amount of payment, or anything of that kind."

"Mr. Davis. No; not in any final form."

Later in the hearing it was brought out that voting of the huge sum in bulk before details were known as to its expenditure would make benefit payments available to farmers before the election. Not only that but Mr. Davis said as much as possible of the $470,000,000 would be paid to 3,000,000 farmers in 1936. There would be only one payment to a farmer instead of several payments. Mr. Davis spoke of "the peak of operations next fall."

Happened in 1934, Too.

The "gentle rain of checks" to the farmers promises to become a brisk downpour, beginning in September and carrying on past election day. Representative Chester C. Bolton, of Ohio, called the Administrator's attention to the fact that hundreds of thousands of dollars had been paid to farmers in October, 1934, just before the Congressional elections. He asked if it was a "coincidence" that payments had been heaviest in October. Mr. Davis replied that no deviation had been made in the regular method of payments.

Another disclosure that interested some of the committeemen was that the new AAA will have an army of 100,000 men in the field in 48 States working by the day around the time the shower of checks falls heaviest. These men will be paid directly by the AAA, but they will be selected by associations in the various counties. These associations will have the advice and counsel of 3,000 men in the field as "direct employees" of the new AAA. Mr. Davis said these men will not be under civil service. When asked why the merit system of hiring the AAA personnel was not adopted, Mr. Davis said, "You see, we are right in the middle of this thing now. You cannot have too much disturbance and delay in personnel." Representative Lloyd Thurston, of Iowa, made this comment: "Mr. Thurston. But those positions were all filled here on a patronage basis. Surely back in the States they should not be strait-jacketed by the same restrictions of approval from Washington."

Administrator Davis said eventually the investigation of claims and the allotments of money will be handled by the States and that then there will be "no interference."

Old Proverbs as Revised to Fit the New Deal

Leaders of the New Deal tell us that we are living in a new era. They say the country is in a period of change. Among other changes they have proposed a revision of the Constitution and of the powers of the Supreme Court. They have attempted to make over the laws of economics and have succeeded in scrapping the Civil Service laws. Observers of these strange goings-on have suggested the following changes in ancient proverbs, to bring them into line with New Deal policies and practices:

Leap before you look.
A soft (money) answer turneth away wrath.

A house built upon the sands shall stand.

He who works not shall eat.
Put off until tomorrow what you can pay today.

The less you sow the more you reap.
Early to bed and early to rise makes a man pay taxes up to his eyes.

Be quick to promise and slow to perform.

Nothing succeeds like failure.
Be ruled by him that beareth the purse.

You can eat your cake and have it, too.

A wise man and his money are soon parted.

Keep thy shop and thy shop will keep someone else.

"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

More value for every dollar you pay.

Lower cost for repairs and service.

Long life. Slow depreciation.

Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

Forest Telephones Will Be Increased

Forest Ranger Roe using telephone in forest.

More effective telephone communication in the Government's forest service department is essential, according to W. B. Apgar in charge of communications for a large forest area. Forest supervisors and district rangers are cooperating in carrying out plans being made to conform wherever possible with commercial telephone service.

Hundreds of miles of telephone lines, in addition to commercial circuits, are necessary, according to Mr. Apgar, who is designing the construction to include primary trunk lines to connect each supervisor's office with the rangers' headquarters in the forests. Each ranger headquarters will be the central station for secondary telephone systems to stations within the rangers' district with which communication must be maintained.

Recognizing that telephone communication is vital in protection and administration of the national forests, Mr. Apgar states that this is particularly true during the forest fire season, when a breakdown in communications may bring tremendous financial loss and in some instances life itself may be at stake. Speed in communications is one of the basic requirements for the success of forest protection and fire suppression. In lesser degree, but still of great importance, is the value of communications in administration, whereby the forest officers' work is facilitated by their being in constant touch with all parts of territories under their jurisdiction. This saves time and expense.

The telephone system, however, can only connect stabilized units with forest headquarters. For the mobile units, which are far from human habitation, the short-wave radio is used. Radio in no way supersedes wire communication, but only supplements it and places parties, otherwise isolated, in touch with the wire-connected points, examples of such isolation being groups on game patrol duty during winter months, and fire-fighters who may be many miles from the nearest wire connection.

Coconut Tree of Ceylon Mainstay of the Natives

In Ceylon, we claim that the coconut tree is the most useful tree in the world, states a correspondent in Pearson's Weekly. The coconut palm has been established in the island for hundreds of years. Each palm yields from 40 to 100 nuts a year for 70 or 80 years. Copra comes from the dried kernel, and is exported in large quantities for the manufacture of margarine and soap, etc., and desiccated coconut, coconut oil, and coir-fiber, made from the husks of the nuts, are also exported.

But to the Ceylon villager, his coconut trees are not merely his source of income, but his mainstay.

With the wood he builds his hut, and his fishing boat is a trunk hollowed out. His simple furniture is made from the same wood, and his drinking cup is a coconut shell. His lamp is a shell filled with coconut oil, the mat on which he sleeps, his broom and his ropes are made of coir-fiber.

The fresh juice of the young nuts forms his drink, and the soft kernel gives him a staple dish; it's a delicious, jelly-like substance.

Grated coconut ekes out his meal of rice, and from the coconut flowers are made arrack and toddy, potent spirits, much appreciated at village festivals. Jaggery, a kind of brown sugar, is made from the juice of the trunk. The beautiful cream-colored blossom, and the tender young leaves are used in every form of decoration in this land of sunshine

Pine Tree Is Classed as Favorite of the Forests

There is something knightly about a pine tree. It raises itself on sturdy trunk into the atmosphere, great arms sweeping the air, and shoulders its stalwart bulk against the elements. It can be among the most quiet of trees, producing an utter forest stillness, a breathless hush, or, when roused, among the most tempestuous. It is a communal tree, observes a writer in the Rural New-Yorker, pitched in encampments, marching in mighty armies, but is also to be seen riding along some barren wind-whipped hillside or lonely lake shore. It is somber, dignified, with a protective strength about it.

It is one of those trees that have a personality, not graceful like the white birch, nor domestic like the maple, but a thing of the wild, a little aloof, serene, fearless, with a certain majesty, but the majesty of a strong man of the people rather than of courtly places.

That the pine is a favorite among trees is small cause for wonderment. It can be gentle, as a true knight should be, murmuring low words of consolation and comfort, it has about it something of gloomy romance and mystery, the spirit of moat and castle, in battle its war song rises high on the blast and its great body, assembling all its forces, struggles mightily with the enemy, the grim conflict showing wild against the storm clouds of the sky.

Chocolate, Cocoa, Cacao

Do you know the difference between chocolate, cocoa and cacao? The tropical tree which is the source of chocolate is called the cacao. In its leathery, cucumber-like fruit are cacao pods which contain cacao beans. But when the beans are roasted and ground, and much of the fat is pressed out, the remaining brown substance (ground to a dry powder) is cocoa. If the fat is not pressed out, the darker substance is chocolate. Credit for the manufacture of chocolate from the hidden seed of an obscure fruit belongs to the original inhabitants of Mexico. In 1519, when Hernando Cortez invaded that country, he discovered that the cacao tree was widely cultivated. The natives made a drink called "chocolati" or "cacahuatl," from which have come the names "chocolate" and "cocoa." Frothing pitchers of chocolate were served by Montezuma when he entertained Cortez.

MARIONETTES.

The Taneytown school is fortunate to present the Hyde Marionettes in "Jack and the Bean-Stalk," a four-act drama, Thursday, April 23, beginning at 12:40.

These Marionettes are quaint little people, a few inches high, who live at the end of strings and dance and sing, weep and smile, and are glad or sad, as those who pull the strings command.

The acts are: Act I, The Door Yard, outside Jack's house. Act II, The Magic Forest. Act III, The Giant's Castle. Act IV, Jack's House.

Parents and friends as well as the children are invited. There will be a small admission charge.

Very few things are "too late," as long as one's heart is normally active.

Old Frankfort Keeps Its Charm Through the Years

Old Frankfort is fortunate in having passed through the many centuries of its existence without any impairment of its architectural beauty. Beyond the power of description is the charm of its narrow streets and of its picturesque squares, with high-gabled, richly-ornamented houses looking down on them. Inns, small work-shops and quaint stores line the streets and squares, notes a writer in the Washington Post.

From the Middle Ages until 1792, the German emperors were elected and crowned in Frankfort-on-Main. Dating back over 500 years, the old historic Rome, with its three gables, faces the Romberg, where in former times, during coronation days, the fountain spouted wine for the celebrating burghers. Whole oxen were roasted for them on the spit.

In the neighborhood of the Dom are the old sausage stalls, where the frankfurter sausages originated. Some of these stalls have been in the possession of the same families for several hundred years.

SPRING CLEANING OF AUTOMOBILES.

A spring cleaning is a spring tonic to an automobile, giving it renewed life and liveliness, and fitting it for the summer's season of heavy duty use, according to C. W. Wood, national service director of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

"Proper attention to an automobile when spring comes is just as important as winter preparations," says Mr. Wood. "Unfortunately, many motorists neglect the spring cleaning job, with the result that the car, and the engine especially, cannot perform at maximum efficiency and economy."

"One of the most important operations when freezing weather is no longer to be expected is a complete cleansing of the engine cooling system and the installation of new rubber radiator connections in place of flabby old ones. If these precautions are neglected, overheating is the penalty. After a long winter, the radiator is likely to be partly clogged with sludge and scale, caused by the action of anti-freeze solutions on the metal of the engine block, and the rubber radiator connections possibly have deteriorated to obstruct the circulation of water."

"As soon as the weather warrants it, heaters should be completely disconnected from the cooling system. That is, the fittings and valves and hose connections should be removed and stored carefully, and especially important, the heater itself should be emptied, by removing the drain plug at the bottom."

"The fan and its drive belt are a part of the cooling system, remember. In cold weather, a slipping fan belt may not be noticed, because the engine will run cool anyway—but on the first warm day the engine may overheat unless the belt is adjusted to get the maximum cooling effect from the fan."

"Actually, the best thing one can do for one's car in the spring is to have a complete tune-up of the engine, including a thorough overhauling of the entire cooling system, plus a change from winter to summer lubricants in the engine, transmission, and rear axle."

"I suppose by this time the two are married and on their way to France. I believe Corinne told the truth and that under other influences she will become an excellent wife and mother. At least she has the opportunity.

"The other half of my tale—the half I neither foresaw nor planned—is familiar to you.

"The fog that drove me out of my course; my subsequent shipwreck and illness; the coming of Currier, our old family servant; the chain of circumstances that brought upon me the calamities from which I have just extricated myself—these are an old story. The only thing that now remains to clear my sky is for me to right myself with Marcia."

"That will be easy," smiled Sylvia. "I wish I thought so," was Heath's moody answer.

"Marcia is no ordinary woman. Her understanding and love are measureless. Love, Mr. Heath, forgives a great deal."

"I know it does. In that lies my only hope."

She was not in the house when at last Stanley Heath overtook her, but far up the beach tossing driftwood into the surf for Prince Hal to retrieve.

The man paused, watching them. Hatless, her splendid body aglow with exercise, Marcia had the freedom and wholesomeness of a young athlete. Yet with all her strength and muscular ease, there was a grace unmistakably feminine in her every movement.

When she turned and saw him, she uttered a faint cry, but she did not advance to meet him. Prince Hal did that, racing up the beach, uttering shrill yelps of welcome as he came.

A second and the dog was again at Marcia's side, and in this ecstasy of delight he continued to run back and forth until Stanley Heath had covered the sandy curve that intervened and himself stood beside her.

"Marcia—dearest—I have come back—come to ask your forgiveness. I misjudged you cruelly the night we parted and in anger spoke words I had no right to speak. Forgive me, dear! Forgive me! Can you?"

"I forgave you long ago—before you asked," she whispered.

"Forgive without understanding—how like you! But you must not do that. You have more to forgive in me than you know, Marcia. I have been proud, unbelieving, unworthy of a love like yours. I have made you suffer—suffer needlessly. Listen to what I have to tell and then see if you can still forgive."

Turning, they walked slowly along the shore.

"I could have told you about the jewels and how I came by them at the outset had I not suddenly conceived the idea of teasing you. The plan to conceal my story came to me as a form of sport—a subtle, psychological game. Here I was pitched without ceremony into a strange environment among persons who knew nothing of my background. What would they make of me? How rate me when cut off from my real setting? I resolved to try out the experiment. Women are said to be inquisitive, particularly those living in isolation. My advent could not but stimulate questions. I thought it would be an amusing adventure to circumvent not only your curiosity but also that of the village.

"I placed scant dependence on feminine discernment and constancy.

"When I went to the war, I left behind a girl who pledged herself to love and wait for me. When I came back it was to find her married to my best friend. The discovery shook my confidence in human nature, and especially in women, to its foundations. I derided love, vowing I never would marry and be made a puppet of a second time.

"The remainder of the story you know.

"I stumbled, a stranger, into your home and instantly you set at naught all my preconceived theories of womanhood by believing in me with an unreasoning faith. You asked no questions. You did not even exhibit a legitimate curiosity in the peculiar network of circumstances that entangled me. You were a new type of being and I regarded you with wonder.

"Still, I was not satisfied. I felt sure that if pressed too far your trust in me would crumble and, therefore, I tried deliberately to break it down by throwing obstacles in its pathway. When suspicion closed in upon me I put you to further tests by withholding the explanations I could easily have made. It was a contemptible piece of egoism—selfish and cruel—and dearly have I paid for it. But at least remember that if I caused you suffering I have suffered also.

"For, Marcia, through it all I loved you. I recognized from the moment I first looked into your eyes that a force mightier than ourselves drew us together—a force not to be denied. Nevertheless, so bitter had been my experience I dared not yield to this strange new power. Instead I opposed it with all my strength, giving my love reluctantly, fighting inch by inch the surrender I sensed to be inevitable.

"You, on the other hand, had like myself known betrayal, but you had taken the larger view and not allowed it to warp or mar your outlook on life. When love came knocking a second time, you were neither too proud nor too cowardly to answer it, but freely gave your affection with the gladness and sincerity so characteristic of you. "I do not deserve such a love.

"Beside the largeness of your nature my own shows itself childish—a small, poor thing for which I blush.

"Help me to erase the past.

"I love you with my whole soul,

dear. Everything in me loves you. My life is worth nothing unless you share it.

"Will you?"

"Ah, you need not fear, Marcia. Sylvia has told me everything. Beloved, there is not and never has been a barrier to our marriage. We have misunderstood one another. Let us do so no longer.

"I am a free man—acquitted. Come to me and let us begin life afresh."

She came then, swiftly.

As he held her in his arms, the last shadow that separated them melted away.

Under the glow of the noonday sun, they walked back toward the Homestead, hand in hand.

Sylvia came running to meet them

and, throwing her arms about Marcia, kissed her.

"Everything is all right—I can see that," she cried. "Oh, I am so glad—so glad for both of you! I believe I just could not stand it if you were not happy, because I am so happy myself. Hurtle is here, you know. Didn't Stanley tell you? Why, Stanley Heath, aren't you ashamed to forget all about Hurtle and me? Yes, Hurtle came this morning. We're engaged. See my ring!"

"Ring!" repeated Heath. "Mercy on us, Marcia, you must have a ring. I cannot allow this young sprite of a niece to outdo you. I am afraid I was not as foresighted as Mr. Fuller, however. Still, I can produce a ring, such as it is. Here, dear, you shall wear this until I can get something better."

He slipped from his little finger the wrought-gold ring with its beautifully cut diamond.

"I picked this up in India," he said. "I am sure it will fit. Try it, Marcia."

"I—I do not need a ring," murmured she, drawing back and putting her hands nervously behind her.

"Of course you do," interposed Sylvia. "How absurd! A ring is part of being engaged."

"A very, very small part," Marcia answered.

"Nevertheless, it is a part," the girl insisted. "Come, don't be silly. Let Stanley put it on."

Playfully she caught Marcia's hands and imprisoning them, drew them forward.

On the left one glistened a narrow gold band.

"Jason's!" cried Sylvia. "Jason's! Take it off and give it to me. You owe nothing to Jason. Even I, a Howe, would not have you preserve longer that worn out allegiance, neither would my mother. The past is dead. You have closed the door upon it. You said so yourself. Never think of it again. You belong to Stanley now—to Stanley and to no one else."

As she spoke, Sylvia took the ring from the older woman's hand and held it high in the air.

"The past is dead," she repeated, "and the last reminder of it—is—gone."

There was a gleam as the golden band spun aloft and catching an instant the sunlight's glory, disappeared beneath the foam that marked the line of incoming breakers.

"Now, Stanley, put your ring upon her finger. It is a symbol of a new life, of hope, of happier things. Isn't it so, Marcia?"

"Yes! Yes!"

Sylvia drew a long breath.

"There! Now we'll not be serious

a minute longer. This is the greatest day of our lives. There must not be even a shadow in our heaven. Kiss me, Marcia, and come and meet Hurtle. Poor dear! He is paralyzed with fright at the thought of appearing into your presence. I left him hiding behind the door. I could not coax him out of the house."

"How ridiculous! You must have made me out an ogre."

"On the contrary, I made you out an enchantress. I told him you would bewitch him. That's why he became panic-stricken. Do be nice to him—for my sake. He really is a lamb."

Sylvia stepped to the piazza.

"Horatio," called she imperiously. "Come out here right away and meet your Aunt Marcia. And please, Stanley, forgive me for mistaking you for a bandit. I'm dreadfully mortified. Still, you must admit circumstantial evidence was strong against you. All of which proves on what shifting sands rest our moral characters!"

"Say rather our reputations, dear child," Heath corrected.

[THE END.]

Chambers of Commerce Do

Much for Any Community

Chambers of commerce are associations of merchants, manufacturers, financiers, and others formed for the protection and promotion of commercial interests, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. They endeavor to further the interests of trade in their districts by making representations, by petition or deputation, to the government; by gathering information and collecting and publishing statistics; by assisting, informally, in the preparation of legislation dealing with mercantile questions; by discussion intended to influence or to create public opinion; by managing an employment bureau for men out of work; and by fostering commercial and technical education.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States was organized in Washington, D. C., on April 23, 1912, at a national conference called by the President of the United States. Its purpose is to serve the nation as a local chamber serves its community, and to "nationalize the foreign and domestic commerce of the country by co-operative effort among commercial organizations." It maintains a general and legislative bulletin service for the benefit of its members.

No Secret

The college professor was giving the freshman a raking over the coals. "And," he concluded, "when I was your age I, too, thought I knew it all. Now, however, I've decided I know very little."

The frosh knew the answer, though. "It's certainly taken you a long time to find it out. I knew it the minute I saw you!"

Capable for Job

The shoe dealer was engaging an assistant. "Suppose," he said, "a lady customer were to remark while you were trying to fit her, 'Don't you think one of my feet is bigger than the other?' 'What would you say?'"

"I should say, 'On the contrary, madam, one is smaller than the other.'"

"The job is yours."

"You say the Flaps are going to move?"

"I think so; they have begun to scratch matches on the walls."

TROUBLE AHEAD

It was midnight. Roberts was huddled up in a chair in the smoking room of his club, a worried expression on his face. Soon a friend came in.

"Hallo!" he said. "Not going home?"

"No," murmured Roberts in despairing tones. "I aren't. Things have gone wrong."

"I'm sorry to hear that," said his friend. "What's the trouble? Perhaps I can help."

"No one can help," he replied. "At seven o'clock I telephoned the wife and gave her a marvelous excuse for not coming home. And—and now I've forgotten what I said."—Answers Magazine.

A. T. & T. Company Reports Improved Telephone Service

Telephone service last year was maintained on a high standard with more than 83 per cent of all local calls being completed on the first attempt as compared with 80.9 per cent in 1929, President Walter S. Gifford of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company informed the stockholders in his recent report. The fact that the telephone was not answered immediately, the report shows, accounted for nearly all of the calls not completed. In the six years since 1929 operating errors on local telephone calls decreased 40 per cent. Dial telephone service improved through a 12 per cent decrease in irregular uses by persons dialing and a 40 per cent decrease in operating and equipment irregularities.

The average time required for long distance telephone connections was reduced from 2.8 minutes to 1.4 minutes and 92 per cent of these calls were handled while the person calling remained at the telephone as compared with 71 per cent in 1929. As a result of these and other betterments 750,000,000 telephone calls or about 3 per cent of the total calls made in 1935 were handled with much more satisfaction to telephone users than would have been the case in 1929, Mr. Gifford states. Commendations received from users are evidence that the improvements were appreciated. Criticisms of local and toll service last year were less than one-third those in 1929. Ninety-five out of every 100 telephones installed in 1935 were by appointment as compared with 57 out of every 100 in 1929. Telephones were reported out of order on the average only once in about twenty-four months, as compared with twenty months six years ago. The percentage of troubles cleared on the day reported was increased from 87 to 96. The percentage of long distance telephone calls affected by unsatisfactory transmission was reduced nearly one-half.

It is not enough, Mr. Gifford said, that general averages on telephone service should be satisfactory. It is also very important to keep at a minimum the cases of individual telephone users or groups who for one reason or another may be temporarily receiving service that is below average and is not satisfactory. There has been steady improvement in the uniformity of good service, with 1935 setting the record.

Research and development work progressed satisfactorily on broad band systems of transmission which will provide an increased number of independent communication channels over existing types of open wire and cable circuits. Work on the terminal and intermediate equipment for these systems and for the radically new form of transmission cable, referred to in the 1934 annual report, was vigorously pushed last year.

In the field of materials there were important developments during the past year in the production of a new alloy, which results in loading coils of smaller size and lower cost; the development of a lead calcium battery alloy, which provides the advantages of less obnoxious gas and less waste of power in storage batteries; and the development of a new form of rubber insulating material having a very low moisture absorption and great stability for underground use.

Intercommunication by telephone on a nation-wide scale can be accomplished to the satisfaction of telephone users only through an integrated system national in scope. The Bell System is one organic whole—research, engineering, manufacture, supply and operation. It is a highly developed relationship in which all functions operate to make a universal nation-wide interconnected service. The thousands of telephone companies and rural telephone lines which are neither owned nor controlled by the Bell System are co-ordinated for this nation-wide service by connection with the system.

Lesson for April 19

GOD, THE FORGIVING FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Like as a father
pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him.—Psalm 103:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy's Good Father.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Welcome Home.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—What Is God Like?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—God's Forgiving Love.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." In this parable, in a most picturesque and dramatic manner, the history of man is portrayed from his fall to his reconciliation with God. The whole orbit of revelation is swept as it pertains to a sinning race and a pardoning God. He who fails to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the parable. It should be understood and taught not as a piece of far-off ancient history, but as a portrayal of modern conditions.

I. The Son's Insubordination (v. 12). There is every indication that this was a happy home, but a devil entered it and stirred up discontent in the heart of the younger son. He became tired of the restraints of home. His desire for freedom moved him willfully to choose to leave home to throw off the constraints of a father's rule. Sin is the desire to be free from the restraints of rightful authority and is selfish indulgence. It starts out with wrong thoughts about God.

II. The Son's Departure (v. 13). Having made the fatal decision, he went posthaste to the enjoyment of his cherished vision. He, therefore, got his goods in portable shape and withdrew from his father's presence. Adam and Eve, after they had sinned, hid themselves. The son could not stand the presence of his father, so he hastened away. When the sinner casts off allegiance to God, he takes all that he has with him.

III. The Son's Degeneration (vv. 13, 14). He had his good time while his money lasted, but the end came quickly. Indications are that his course was soon run. From plenty in his father's house to destitution in the far country was a short journey. The sinner comes to realize the "famine" when the very powers which ministered to his pleasure are burned out.

IV. The Son's Degradation (vv. 15, 16). His friends lasted only while he had money. When his money was all gone he was driven to hire out to a citizen to feed swine. It was indeed a change from a son in his father's house to feeding swine in a far country. It is ever so that those who will not serve God are made slaves to the Devil (Rom. 6:16). This vividly portrays the story of many men and women about us, and is a picture of the inevitable consequences of sin.

V. The Son's Restoration (vv. 17-24). 1. He "came to himself" (v. 17). When he reflected a bit he was made conscious that though he had wronged his father and ruined himself, yet he was a son of his father. In the days of his sinning he was beside himself. The sinner continues in sin because he is insane. The world calls the sinner who leaves off his evil ways crazy, but in reality he has just become sane. If sinners could be induced to think seriously of their condition, it would be easy to get them to turn from their sins.

2. His resolution (v. 18). His reflection ripened into resolution. The picture of his home, where even the hired servants had a superabundance, moved him to make a decision to leave the far country and go home.

3. His confession (vv. 18, 19). He acknowledged that his sin was against heaven and his father, that he had forfeited his rights to be called a son, and begged to be given a place as a hired servant.

4. His action (v. 20). Resolution will not avail unless accompanied with action. When the confession is genuine, action will follow.

5. His reception by his father (vv. 20-24). The father had not forgotten his son. No doubt during these years he longed for the son's return. He must often have looked for him, for he beheld him when he was a great way off. So anxious was he for him that he ran to meet him and fell upon his neck and kissed him. So glad was the father that he even did not hear the son's confession through, but ordered the tokens of honor to be placed upon him, receiving him back into a son's position. Then the feast was made, expressive of the joy of his heart. God is love; Jesus came to reveal God. This parable lays bare God's heart.

A Good Heart

A good heart, a tender disposition, a charity that shuns the day, a modesty that blushes at its own excellence, an impulse toward something more divine than mammon; such are the accomplishments that preserve beauty forever young.—Lord Lytton.

Virtues

Great souls are not those which have fewer passions and more virtue than common ones, but those only which have greater aims.—La Rochefoucauld.

HAND QUILTED By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The latest thing in needlecraft going the rounds in the realm of costume designing is hand quilting. The stunning hip-length jacket pictured is of heavy black celanese satin. The smart hand-quilted design on the sleeves and bordering the front is raised by being stuffed with black wool, after the manner of Trapunto quilting. It was in the Renaissance period that Trapunto quilting came into existence. It is accomplished by drawing the design in double lines, and after quilting it, the space between these lines is stuffed with small shreds of wool. In the jacket pictured both the cut and the design of the hand-quilting carry out the militaristic motif. The fashion-wise miss will wear this jacket open with the tiny military collar turned up.

Crocheted Gloves

The newest version of hand-crocheted gloves—so smart, this winter—is in an interesting stitch that looks like weaving. The backs of the gloves are yellow and the palm brown, fore-runners of the combination gloves featuring two colors forecast for spring. They were designed especially for southern wear, but there's no law against wearing them right now!

Seventeenth Century Saw

Change in Clock-Making

In his book, "Time and Its Measurements," James Arthur says that clock-making underwent its greatest improvement in the Seventeenth century, when the pendulum, the circular balance, the hair-spring, the anchor and dead beat escapements and the minute and second hand came into use. Until that time only the hours had been engraved on the dial, which was called the "hour plate," and only one hand was employed. Then came a clock with two dials, one of which was divided into quarters. People complained that "the time was being cut up too much." Some of the older clocks of this collection have but one hand.

Famous makers of the past are well represented—Jan Gobels, Fabian Robbins, Poligny and others. One of Robbin's clocks, thought to have been made in 1695, is a 30-day time-keeper. Its hands are particularly noteworthy, being lacelike in the delicacy of their design. The case is of marquetry. Another clock with marquetry case bears the name of the maker: Jan Gobels, Amsterdam. Gobels was noted for his fine work, but there are not more than ten of his clocks in existence. Small dials on this clock show the day of the week, the month, the astronomical signs and the moon's phases.—Montreal Herald.

APRIL FISH

FORTY million Frenchmen can't be wrong, and so when they call an April Fool prank an April Fish—poisson d'Avril—there must be something in it. One ingenious explanation is that an April fish is a very young fish and therefore easily caught.

Just when the custom of catching young fish in April—with all ourselves figuring as the fish—is unknown. One guess, however, blames this, too, on the French. Prior to 1564 when they adopted the Gregorian calendar, the French used to pay formal visits to their friends on April 1. When their calendar was changed these visits were shifted to January 1, but mock visits continued to be paid on April 1, especially on those who were apt to forget the new calendar. Just why Frenchmen thought this was funny is another mystery. A formal visit is no joke on any day in the year.

Informal Fishing

Formal entertaining is no joke either, but fortunately the custom has grown up in this country of giving informal parties on the first of April, and these are always lots of fun. In the first place, all the guests are inclined to be extra cautious about what they do and say and eat, and the more cautious they are, the funnier they are. They even sit down cautiously to avoid a possible tack or the sudden withdrawal of a chair (with someone to catch them before they fall, of course.) A simple question about the weather strikes them silent and sets them searching in their minds for the catch. And they taste food so gingerly to make sure not to get a mouthful of salt when they are expecting sugar, that it is fun to serve them everything in its right place. Here is the sort of dinner that will keep them guessing and taste mighty good:

Sugared Strawberries
Cream of Corn and
Mushroom Soup
Fool Medallions
Asparagus with Hollandaise Sauce
Dressed Cucumber, Radish and Green Pepper Rings
Bread Sticks
Frozen Fruit Pudding
Mints Coffee Salted Nuts

There are plenty of opportunities for mischievous substitutions in this menu, but if you refrain from them, your guests will gradually gain courage and enjoy their meal.

A Tested Recipe

And here is a tested recipe for one of the dishes in this menu which you may not know how to make:

Cream of Corn and Mushroom Soup: Cook in a double boiler for fifteen minutes and then strain the contents of an 11-ounce can corn, three cups milk, one large sliced onion, one small celery stalk and one bay leaf. Cut the mushrooms from a 4-ounce can fine and sauté them in two tablespoons butter for three minutes. Add two tablespoons flour, and stir smooth. Add the mushroom liquor slowly, stirring till thick and creamy. Add to the hot milk mixture and stir again till smooth and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and add one-half cup cream. Serve in cups. Serves six.*

Sized Up

"I want a collar for my husband," said the large woman impatiently. "Er, yes, madam," quaked the assistant. "What size does he take?" "Size?" she echoed. "H'm, I've forgotten that." She added: "I think I can find it out soon enough." Quickly she peeled off her gloves and held out two large hands. "Here, measure these," she snapped. "I can just manage to get them round his throat."—Answers Magazine.

A Favorable Report

"Here, boy," exclaimed the excited little man as he rushed up to a bell boy in a big hotel. "Run up to my room and see if my umbrella is there. Hurry, now, because I've just got five minutes to catch a train." Three minutes later the boy came tripping down the stairs, empty-handed. "Yes, sir," he said. "It's there all right."

Colors Return in Milady's

Shoes With Varied Choice

Shoes as brilliant as the peacock's tail will deck the nation's feminine toes this Easter.

Early spring styles displayed by manufacturers feature pastel tints rivaling the rainbow.

"Bright colors—lavenders, yellows, greens, blues, pinks—will strike the dominant note this season," said one leading stylist, "and previously untried combinations will have a new vogue."

The choice will range from a red, white and blue trimmed model for the patriotic to one rivaling Biblical Joseph's coat of many colors in variety.

Reason for Alarm

Brown—I told my wife she needed a new hat yesterday.

Green—You told her that? Good gracious! What did she say?

Brown—She said: "You sit down quietly, dear, while I phone for the doctor."

Some Progress

Visitor—Well, Johnny, how are you getting on at school?

Johnny (aged seven)—Fine! I ain't doing as well as some of the other boys, though. I can stand on my head, but I have to put my feet against the wall.

Sounds Familiar

"Will you guarantee the upholstery of this car?" demanded the prospective purchaser.

"Madam," replied the salesman, with dignity, "the proof of the padding is in the seating."

THE LINCOLN BOULEVARD.

most unfair controversy. Of the three routes, via Frederick, via Westminster, and the direct route, the last named runs through our State without touching communities having organizations capable on a program to influence public decisions. I wrote Mr. Delano, Chairman of the Commission as follows:

"As a graduate engineer and a native of this part of Maryland, please permit me to present a few pertinent facts concerning the direct route.
"The Administration is wisely trying to give us a dollar's worth of value for each dollar expended on these long time improvements. The right of way for the direct route can be secured very cheaply. I judge less than half the price asked by land owners along the Frederick Route will buy the land for the direct route.

"Familiar with the terrain of both routes, and also the technical problems of construction, few engineers would even compare the problem of skirting bogs with that of an upland route over gently rolling hills. Not only construction costs but also maintenance and safety demand the direct route.

"If varied scenery, fertile farm lands devoted to the energetic production of crops and live stock, long vistas, sturdy forests, thrifty towns with colonial land marks, mills by water-falls give a hint to some of the beauties of the air line route, I should like to show the entire route. Words fail to depict this country much of which is reached only by miles of mud roads and lanes.

"The Memorial Boulevard" is avowedly a link of friendship between the North and South. Why call attention to the places where bitter enmity caused bloodshed in the past. I am proud of the history of this country where Quakers dealt peaceably with the Indians, and their Meeting Houses have been monuments of friendliness ever since.

"Yet the utility of the wide thoroughfare must be kept in mind. Nothing less than a direct road would afford adequate defense to our Capital should it be threatened by hostile forces while military reserves encamped at Gettysburg. Then too, in war or peace it would be advantageous to have a direct north and south highway thru the Capitol that could be kept relatively safe from naval, land or air raid."

The most flamboyant historic values between Washington and Gettysburg actually lay along the direct route, many in Carroll County. Francis Scott Key was born and raised on "Terra Rubra," one of the farms that made the county famous as an agricultural region. Gen. John Ross Key of Revolutionary fame lived here. The inspiration of this colonial homestead is of national importance, Roger Brooke Taney as chief justice of The Supreme Court spent holidays here with Francis Scott Key. Indeed, Geo. Washington and his wife relished the simple hospitality of this section when they requested mush and milk for their supper in Taneytown. Likewise, Woodrow Wilson with his wife found respite from the anguish of the World War here. Many more heroes and heroines could be enumerated if "Human interest" is to determine the route of the Memorial Boulevard.

Letters from many distant places show special interest in the direct route. One from Marion DeKalb Smith, Jr., 119 Washington Ave., Chestertown, states: "It is a golden opportunity to provide both Pennsylvania and Maryland with a magnificent highway at the same time erect a fitting memorial to Lincoln. If you will sketch it on the map you will see that it runs through the heart of Carroll County without touching any towns."

The exact location will only be determined by survey but a direct route from any part of Washington to Gettysburg will benefit everyone in Carroll County while the Nation as a whole will take pride in such a memorial Boulevard.
JOHN D. ROOP, JR.

PLANS FOR SOIL SAVING PAYMENTS.

As a standard for measuring the extent of soil-conservation and soil-building and the amounts of payments that will be made under the new farm program, a base acreage will be established for each farm participating in the program, according to L. C. Burns, County Agent.

In general, he states, a farm's base acreage for any crop or crops is the normal acreage. The starting point in determining the soil-depleting base will be the acreage on the farm in soil-depleting crops in 1935. Allowance will be made for acreage planted in soil-conserving or soil-building crops in 1935 because of adjustment programs, or other unusual conditions and in instances where a farm's soil-depleting or soil-conserving and soil-building acreage is materially out of line with that for similar farms in the same locality.

A ratio of soil-depleting acreage to all farm land in each county, showing the proportion of farm land formerly devoted to soil-depleting crops, will be established as a guide in establishing soil-depleting bases for individual farms.

It is explained by Mr. Burns that two classes of payments will be made under the new program. Class I payments, known as soil-conserving payments, will be made for substituting soil-conserving and soil-building crops on soil-depleting base acres. The maximum acreage on which this class of payment will be made is 15 percent of the soil-depleting base acreage, with certain exceptions. The average rate of payment for the entire country will be $10 an acre, although it will vary according to productivity of the land.

Class II payments will be made for planting soil-building crops on land which has produced at least one harvested crop (other than wild hay) since January 1, 1930, or for approved soil-building practices on crop land or pasture. The number of dollars paid under this class cannot exceed the total number of acres of soil-building, of farms having less than 10 acres of these crops.

THIS BANK

—stands at the heart of the business life
of this community.

Every industrial and commercial activity, every public or private financial transaction occurring in this community creates impulses that pass in one form or another through a bank.

They give rise to deposits of money, cashing of checks, bills of exchange to finance trade, distribution of payrolls, payment of bills, remittances of funds, accumulation of savings, borrowing of money. These are indispensable activities by which people carry forward their financial affairs.

Banks everywhere facilitate and weave into a properly related whole thousands of these separate transactions occurring throughout the country. Modern economic society and progress would be impossible without these banking functions.

In a sense this is true of no other form of enterprise, this bank belongs to and is an essential part of the whole business life of this community.

STRENGTH, SECURITY AND FAIR DEALING ARE
the assets claimed by this Bank.
