BAPTIST CHURCH HISTORY

Information at Last Received Concerning Old Church.

We appreciate the following information concerning the Baptist Church formerly located along the Emmitsburg road near Taneytown. Our search in this direction was noted by Mrs. M. Estella Close, Baltimore, a subscriber to The Record, and passed on to Rev. Kingman A. Handy, Baltimore, who has been closely associated with Baptist work in Maryland for the last fifty years, and gives the following authentic information.

"Taneytown Baptist Church was organized in May of 1791 following services held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones by Rev. John Davis, Rev. Lewis Richards, Rev. William Klingham and others. The constituent members were: Thomas Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hill, Mr. and Mrs. William Hill, John Bowden, Elizabeth Chenoweth, Rebecca Rial, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hill. The lot was donated by Mrs. Thomas Jones and the plain log structure was built with the help of neighbors.

In 1793 the church was represented in the organization of the Association of the Western Shore of Maryland, which the following year took the name of the Baltimore Baptist Association. The Salisbury Association on the Eastern Shore was organized in 1782.

Among the early pastors were the Reverend William Klingham, Reverend Edward Choat and Elder Thomas Leaman.

The Taneytown Church was among the constituent members of the Maryland Baptist Union Association which organized in 1836 immediately following the action of the Baltimore Association at Black Rock expelling some of its members. Taneytown, refused to endorse the action with six other churches and joined the Baptist Union. The delegates from Taneytown at the organization meeting in Baltimore were Rev. Thomas Leaman and Jacob Correll. These two were members of the first Executive Board of the M. B. U. A. The third meeting of the new association in 1838 was held with the Taneytown church. Among the members of the executive board with Brethren Leaman and Correll were: Peter Levering, William Crane, Stephen P. Hill and James Wilson.

Rev. Jacob Fream was an active pastor in Virginia, and he was a member in his younger days at Taneytown being Baptized by Pastor Mettam who served the church for several years. Others connected with the work have been Darius Thomas, Richard Hill, R. T. Duvall. The church was not active after 1879. As one of the early churches in Maryland, a pilgrimage in the fall will include old Taneytown cemetery. It is hoped that other facts will be obtained by this time."

SOME TANEYTOWN LOCALS 42 YEARS AGO.

In one of the house-cleanings in town one day last week, the unloading of an old chest uncovered a lot of old newspapers, among which was a Carroll Record, dated February 23, 1895, or 42 years old. The following "locals" appeared among others.

George A. Flickinger, York Street, had committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with an old four-barrel pistol, 22-calibre. The act occurred Friday morning, as The Record was being made up for the press. The editor hastily wrote up nearly a column article giving details, and our hand setting type compositors did a good job of it in getting in the forms ready time for mailing.

Joseph Bollinger, who had been paralyzed for several months, was reported to be able to get around in his room.

Master Fern Weaver celebrated his third birthday, on Wednesday, at the home of his parents.

Dr. G. W. Demmitt and brother had an upset and runaway while returning home in a sleigh, from Union Bridge.

The pupils of Harry L. Feeser's school had taken a sleighing parade through the town.

The Ladies of town had agreed to fill the inside pages of The Record, next week. Miss Carrie P. Elliot, editor.

Miss Annie Hagan received a severe fall while at play at school, and was unconscious for nearly an hour.

Harry G. Hawk, an employee of The Reindollar Co., received a fall while helping to unload a car of lumber, and fractured a bone in his right leg.

James C. Galt recovered a stolen gun, that had been left in W. W. Crapster's barn. The recovery was made by Constable B. S. Miller, on information received from Levi Snider.

A surprise party had been held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Withrow, near town, at which about thirty were present.

There were 19 public sales registered in The Record, J. N. O. Smith was auctioneer for 12 of them.

Market prices were as follows: Wheat, 51c; Potatoes, 35c and 40c; Hams, 12c; Shoulders, 8c; Sides, 7c; Lard, 7c; Eggs 20c.

HELP TO ADVERTISE YOUR CENTENNIAL.

Metal Centennial tags, which may be fastened on your automobile are ready for distribution. You may procure them from Theodore F. Brown, chairman of the Finance Committee, Westminster. These plates sell for the small sum of 50c per pair.

Almost always, things complained of might be worse.

THE LEGISLATURE IS STILL MOPING.

End of the Session drawing near and what will it be?

Reporting the proceedings of the legislature is an easy job for the reason that there are few "proceedings." The leaders and committees seem mainly to be responsible. Partisan politics has something to do with it; while the problems connected with getting more revenue are difficult to solve. Cutting down expenses seems not to enter into the case; and increasing, rather than decreasing, appropriations, may mark the final result.

According to Wednesday evening's Baltimore Sun, bills passed numbered 60; bills pending 675; cost of session so far $156,200. Time in session—House 39 hours 17 minutes; Senate 29 hours, 36 minutes.

Presumably, the members have been paid, which is the most important thing yet accomplished. The fact that there are 675 bills pending shows that individual members have been trying to do something.

So far as the Governor's budget is concerned, there appears to be a surprising unanimity in refusing to "cut" any appropriations recommended by the Governor. Salary increases appear pretty generally to be favored; appropriations to institutions, likewise. Roads Commission salaries are reported to have been agreed on, amounting to $50,000. Four colleges are to get $4000, each more than Gov. Nice recommended.

What the Maryland University will get, is yet a secret, but advocates of shearing off the amount, are pretty sure to get a distinct jolt. And the humorous part of the whole business is, appropriations shows open liberality—but, where is the money to come from. Even the liberalists don't know that.

By a unanimous vote in the Senate Finance Committee, the bill to establish a Budget Commission, has been approved. The object of the bill is to provide a permanent committee that would examine into and be in continuous contact with, all institutions and objects seeking State Aid during the next two years.

A movement to establish a Ferry from Sandy Point to Kent Island, was killed in the House.

A bill has been introduced in the House by delegate Melvin T. Roushon providing that the Board of Election Supervisors shall employ four men in each precinct at 40 cents an hour to make an earlier count of the ballots; that all judges and clerks be paid 40 cents per hour; and that the said Supervisors are directed to submit estimates of the ballot requirements to the bid of the newspapers of Carroll County, and that the contract therefor be awarded to the lowest bidder.

A bill was presented in the House to authorize convict labor on roads.

A bill was introduced in the Senate by Senators Baile and Donagan, allowing banks to convert preferred stock into common stock if banks have a surplus fund equal to at least twenty percent of the capital stock outstanding.

The Senate, on Wednesday, was in session 34 minutes.

The bill authorizing Taneytown to borrow $15,000, if and when needed, has passed in both Senate and House.

The Senate bill aimed at the marriage mill at Elkton, has passed both Senate and House, the latter adding amendments that would require a 48-hour notice before marriage licenses may be issued; that the Cecil County license fee be raised from $2.00 to $5.00, and that the issuing office be closed at all times, except between 8 A. M. and 6 P. M., on week days. The amendments must be approved by the Senate before the bill goes to the Governor.

"OLD TANEYTOWN" QUESTIONS.

23—Who can give information as to the age of the old "Public Well."

24—Taneytown had an "engine" in its early days—what kind, and for what purpose?

25—Where was an Indian burying ground located, near town?

26—What Governor of Maryland was born near Taneytown?

27—How many persons are now living in Taneytown who lived here 60 years ago—1877?

28—Can anyone supply The Record office with a copy of "The Searchlight" published by Joseph Torward, in 1883-84?

This will conclude the question feature unless readers have some to ask.

PLAY TO BE REPEATED.

The play entitled, "A Poor Married Man" was held in Friesland Tuesday night to a large audience despite the badly drifted roads. It was a success in every way and elicited much favorable comment. There are so many requests for a repetition that it has been decided to repeat the play here on next Tuesday night, March 23rd.

The aim is to put on a better musical program and give all a few hours of real enjoyment. Home-made candy will again be on sale.

The same play will be given in Harney on Wednesday night, March 24, by the Friesland cast. It will be well worth seeing.

Chinese police have just confiscated 1,000 man-made gods in the "superstition belt" of Southern Kwangtung Province. In an effort to stamp out idolatry, the police will soon destroy the images.

OUR CROSS-WORD PUZZLE FEATURE.

For some time we have been considering the publication, each week, of a good cross-word puzzle. We have now made the necessary arrangements, and the first puzzle appears in this issue. Answers will be given the week following.

Whether the feature will be continued longer than six weeks, will depend on the reaction of our readers within the next few weeks, as we must decide before the present six weeks trial is over. Personally, we consider that cross-word puzzles are educational; that they widen our knowledge of words, and stimulate mental activity.

SNOW AND WIND CAUSED ROAD BLOCKADES.

Weather conditions from Sunday until Tuesday evening were very disagreeable, and to some extent, dangerous, some damage was done to buildings by winds; roads were drifted, and places impassable; snow-slides added to danger; travel pretty generally was interfered with, and being out of doors in any capacity was anything but pleasurable.

In portions of the county school buses could not operate, especially on by-roads, some of which were completely shut up. Efforts were made by the use of snow plows to clear the roads, but all were not cleared before Wednesday afternoon.

WORST EXPLOSION IN U. S. HISTORY.

Hundreds of Children Killed in Texas School Building.

At New London, Texas, on Thursday, an explosion occurred in a school building containing 740 teachers and pupils, just before the closing hour.

What happened is not definitely known; but the walls crashed outward and the roof blew off. The building was heated by gas-steam radiators without a main boiler. The building was wrecked, and fire followed.

The dead may reach anywhere from 400 to 600, mostly children around 15 years of age. Many of the students were children of oil-field workers. The most plausible cause given, is the explosion of accumulated gas in the basement of the building.

HOMEMAKERS TO SPONSOR GARDEN SCHOOL.

The public is invited to attend this program. The Women's Missionary Society of the Church will serve a chicken and waffle luncheon at noon. Reservations for luncheon should be made with the Home Demonstration Agent at the Extension Office in the Times Building, Phone 256. The price of the luncheon is 40c. A more detailed announcement will be made later.

SHOULD EVERY COUNTY BUILD ITS ROADS?

On our editorial page, this week will be found the proposed new Roads law, with some more or less practical comments. We advise the close reading of this proposal. The interest manifested for more improved county roads is county-wide, and we regret that we were unable to present this important matter to our readers at an earlier date. Read it now.

CHILD DIES FROM EATING PILLS.

Willard A. Dayhoff, infant son of William A. and Mildred G. Dayhoff, near Silver Run, had eaten some pills which he found on the table at his home while he was alone for a few moments. He passed away, having been seized with convulsions.

The mother was employed at Taneytown, and the father, who had left the room, to do some task, returned to find his son had eaten some of the pills which were used by Mrs. Dayhoff. Dr. W. G. Speicher, Westminster, was summoned, and gave medical aid but was unable to save the infant. He was aged one year, ten months and three days.

Besides the parents his grand-parents, Arthur Dayhoff, Westminster, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foglesong, Mayberry, survive.

The funeral was held Thursday with services at the house and burial in the Union cemetery, Silver Run. Rev. W. E. Saltzgriver, officiated.

ONE BIG STORE'S REPORT.

According to late news report, one of the big stores of this country, doing a heavy mail order business, has reported for its fiscal year just ended, after providing for $4,000,000 income taxes and $400,000 for Federal surtaxes on undistributed profits, a net profit of $20,198,914, equal, after all payments for Class A dividends, to $412 a share on common stock outstanding during the year.

Net sales for the year ended January 31 totaled $361,897,000 as compared with $293,642,357 the preceding year. The official making this report expects profits to be less during the present year, due to heavier operating expense.

THE CHURCH CALLS TO YOU DURING LENT.

If I underestimate my own sins, then I shall surely underestimate the value of Christ's atonement. Only against such a dark background as sin can I see the purity of God's love and justice.

Many can see no value whatsoever in the death of Christ, some few even take it to be a shameful defeat of a good life. None can deny that Christ lived a good and wholesome life, for His worst enemies freely admitted that "He taught with authority," which must have meant that He practiced the severe doctrine which He preached.

During Lent, we think of the sorrowful days of our Lord, and the awful climax, as we see Him suffering the slow and agonizing death on the Cross, the death reserved by the Romans for the worst criminals. The physical agony, doubtlessly, was tremendous, but the mental and spiritual suffering was far greater and much more prolonged.

He suffered death for a crime, but it was not His own crime nor sin (for He alone of all humans is sinless); He suffered death for the crimes and sins of His accusers; jealousy, hypocrisy, denial and betrayal for selfish advantage, and even Pilate who justly tried to free Christ from death up to the point where his own interests and position in life were endangered. If you or I commit any similar crimes and sins, then you and I are, also, the accusers of Christ (and who is entirely free from such sins?) then you and I are crucifying the Son of God afresh.

Only after all my sins are acknowledged, as my responsibility, not minimized as were mistakes or slight errors which I could not avoid, and I make full confession of Christ as my only Savior from sins, and Lord of my life, without any areas reserved for selfish indulgence in fading pleasures, from which Christ is excluded; only after such a confession is backed up with such a life, as characterized by love of God (as shown in love for my fellowmen), shall I be able to see something of the value of Christ's death and atonement.

If I can see no value therein, then I shall blame no one but myself for my blindness, due to my sins (1 John 2:11).

The suffering Christ and His church calls you to worship this Sunday.

—Rev. Edward L. Beall, pastor of Springfield Presbyterian Church, of Sykesville, Md.

DETROIT HOTELS "SIT DOWN."

Four of Detroit's largest hotels—The Statler, Cadillac, Detroit-Leland and Fort Shelby, answered a "sit down" strike of employees by closing their doors to guests. It is believed that this will be the policy of many manufacturers and business concerns should the strike plan be continued without interference by Police powers. Certainly, property owners and employers have the right to sit down and not work, the same as employees.

Random Thoughts

A HOLE IN A POCKET.

A hole in a pocket, or a button off, is quite a common occurrence. Apparently a trifle, and the mending or replacement is neglected.

But such little items are not trifling—carelessness, indifference, the put-off habit. Neglect of the "stitch in time."

We can not afford to neglect trifles, nor be careless. A thrown away cigarette stub may cost a loss of millions of dollars. A little inattention may cost a life. Men have lost securing advancement because of some small bad habit. Carelessness as to personal appearance is never a good introduction.

SHOULD EACH COUNTY BUILD ITS ROADS.

There is a bill before the legislature that would return road-making to the counties. It provides for a one and a half cent tax on gasoline for road purposes, three-tenths of which would be turned over to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, and the remaining seven-tenths would be paid to County Treasurers in accordance with the road mileage in each county.

Provision is made for the return to the Counties of certain road equipment bought from them by the State Roads Commission. As the operations of the State Roads Commission have not been satisfactory to the counties,
and have received a great deal of criticism
especially of their lack of work
on secondary roads, and as the Commissioners of nearly all of the Counties favor the proposed law, it would seem that it has a good chance of passage.

On the other hand, the Roads Commission puts up the argument that because of the diversion of vast sums of gasoline tax to other purposes, the Commission has not had sufficient funds with which to build roads. There is, therefore, two sides, or perhaps more, to the question as a whole.

Under the new law, the Commissioners of each County would have sole supervision of road plans and work, and would have the power to distribute to incorporated towns a portion of the income received. This in brief, seems to be the situation.

The unknown quantity therefore is,
would the counties be satisfied with the operation of the new law? In Carroll County, for instance, each District has enough roads clamoring for improvement as to require at least twice as much money for so doing
as the County would receive in a year.

For several years the County Commissioners have very properly used
the argument that they were powerless, because the State Roads Commission had charge of road building,
and was responsible.

Under this new law, the Commissioners would be responsible, and the objects of all criticism.

It is also the fact that the County Commissioners are too poorly paid for their present duties. How could adjustment be made for higher pay for greatly increased duties? Plenty of trouble, and then some, is attached to the operation of the new law.

This is not to be taken as a hinted opposition to the proposed law. It is merely scratching the surface of what might be expected to follow its passage. As results could hardly be more unsatisfactory than under the present system, the new law seems altogether worth trying; and we give full credit to the bravery and manifest desire to help the situation, on the part of the County Commissioners who favor taking on themselves this great responsibility. The bill is entitled—

"An Act to repeal and re-enact with amendments Section 212BB of Article 56 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title

SOWING AND REAPING.

There are two old sayings on the proverb order—"What goes up must come down," and "As we sow, so shall we reap"—that require more general
acceptance as to their truthfulness
than they receive. The laws of gravitation and reproduction are parts of the natural order of things, and outside of human control.

We can not expect to receive abundantly and give sparingly, for very long. Legislation by man power may change this rule, temporarily, but eventually the natural law will prevail, even if it be sometimes long delayed.

Practically stated, we can not depend on selling our products at high prices, and then buy the products of others at low prices. We must, in round about ways perhaps, pay others
in something like the same ratio as others pay us. We call this—when we call it at all—the "rule of supply and demand."

Delaying the effect of this law occupies much of our time and causes
wide complaint, when we do not succeed as we expect. We feel, somehow, that we are being cheated; but we are simply contacting this fixed
law that we try so ineffectually to upset.

What we "get," very often, is at somebody's expense; and this somebody tries as hard to get his advantage as we do to keep our advantage.
The same truth can be stated in numerous ways, but it is a truth "as old as the hills."

Consider the "strike" movement,
for instance—higher prices for labor,
shorter hours, and union demands
met. A successful "strike" or forced demand of any sort, is followed by higher costs to consumers. The higher price of milk for the dairymen, is passed on to the milk consumer, and

the feed man "gets his" increase too.

When automobile manufacturers compromise over demands of labor for higher wages, then the increase passes to sales prices, or prevents lower prices of autos to buyers. The increased cost of building materials results in higher cost buildings and higher rents. And so on, all along the line of business activity.

It is the old hunting for "game"
that includes poaching, trapping, trespassing, out-witting, the use of ammunition, mixed with the protests
of property owners and their rights.
Individuals antagonize other individuals; combines and organizations meet with the resistance of other combines
and organizations. And in the end,
nobody is the better off.

PRISON LABOR.

How shall our convicts be employed? is a leading problem in these days of unemployment. Admittedly,
those committed to penal institutions
should be employed at some kind of trade. But what kind? For it should be a kind that will not compete with those who are not convicts.
And, if no employment is given, then
the taxpayers must pay more heavily toward the maintenance of the institutions.

Mechanics of most kinds favor giving the convicts employment in making roads. But again this conflicts with what we call "day hands," and besides, watchmen, or guards, would have to be employed to prevent getaways. Besides, it has been demonstrated that prison help is not of much good at work of this sort. And,
some of these inmates are women.

Mechanical trades of course protest
most vigorously, and there is a prejudice against prison made goods after they reach the retailer, when the fact is known.

The question is exactly like that of levying higher taxes in order to secure more revenue to the state. The cry is, "put it on somebody else, and not on our business."

Our own opinion is that prison labor should be distributed among numerous classes of work, so as not to be felt strongly by any one class, and that no such work be given to the smaller industries. No matter how the question is viewed, it is a difficult one.

SCHOOLS SHOULD TEACH

AMERICANISM.

Dr. William F. Russell, dean of Teachers' College, Columbia University, in an address delivered before the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association at its recent convention in New Orleans, took sharp issue with those who advocate radical social action on the part of the educators of the United States.

Referring to the controversy on this subject which has marked sessions of the organization for two or three years past, and in which some members of the faculty of his own school
have been leaders, Dean Russell said:

"We have constructed our Utopias,
and this has played right into the hands of the extremist—Left or Right, Communist or Fascist. For once we become sufficiently aware of our misery and sufficiently burning for reform, we turn to those who have a plan of action, at once plain, simple, understandable and concrete? Only the Communist or the Fascist! Anybody can see that you can't introduce a whole new Utopia by democratic means—soon."

Dean Russell indicated that not only
the methods of Communist or Fascist,
but also the social governmental changes advocated by them, are wholly repugnant to democratic ideals. He held that such changes should not be effected by violent or arbitrary means,
but that solutions for our social problems must be sought by "fundamental methods of investigation, reasonabil-
ity and knowledge, seeking everywhere
the greatest possible measure of consent," which is the democratic way.

Dr. Alexander J. Stoddard, Superintendent of Schools in Providence, R. I., recently expressed a similar opinion.
In an address on the subject: "The Public's Stake in the Schools," he pointed out that the first and principal purpose of our public schools is to equip students with common facts,
knowledge and skills, while their main function relative to political and governmental matters should be to teach democracy and to indoctrinate in favor of the political philosophy on which this nation is founded.

Dr. Carleton Brown, of New York University, adds his voice to the condemnation of efforts to change the objectives of education in this country.
He asserts that education should have
as its fundamental purpose the development of the individual rather than the service of the state, and suggests that in many of the recent attempts to tear down established public school
policies "the foreign label is easily discernible."

SITTING DOWN ON THE WORKERS

The Detroit manufacturer who matched his employees' sit-down strike with a sit-down strike of his own illustrated, somewhat humorously
perhaps, a point which has been largely overlooked during the recent wave
of industrial disagreements.

By sitting down himself, the Detroit capitalist effectively demonstrated to his employees that he has been working for them as well as they for him.
Without the orders he obtains, there is no work to be done.

In this particular instance, the point
is more easily discernible than in the case of a large corporation where the relationship between employer and employee is less sharply defined, although of course, the principle remains the same.

It should seem obvious enough that the man who provides a job is entitled to as much consideration as the man who takes the job he provides, but there has been a marked distortion of attitude during much of the period of sit-down strikes.

In many instances a villainous motive is ascribed to the employer who protests that he cannot meet the demands of his employees. The necessary interdependence of employer and employee is lost sight of, in many cases, and it is assumed that the provision of work is a sacred responsibility on the part of the employer. Actually, of course, the employer may be in a worse predicament than his employees, for while they possess the strike weapons to enforce their demands, he may be at the mercy of competitive conditions without any such weapons.

In a broad sense, the consuming
public is the ultimate employer of all
—employing employers to employ employees. The employer, like the employee, is but a link in the chain of production.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CORRESPONDENCE

Latest Items of Local News Furnished
By Our Regular Staff of Writers

All communications for this department must be signed by the author; not for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributed are legitimate and correct. Items based on mere rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted.

We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by Fast Mail, west on W. M. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach us in time.

FEESBURG.

Of all the snow for the middle of March—here it is! On Wednesday night of last week the ground was covered with whiteness, but Thursday's Sun promptly dispatched it; then some time after midnight on Saturday it began snowing and kept right on until Monday night. Much of it melted because the air wasn't very cold, but by far the deepest snow of this winter—6 inches on Tuesday morning.

No one is working in the ground at present, and gardeners are on a sit-down strike.

Mrs. J. N. Starr visited her sister, Mrs. John Pfeiffer in Littlestown, who is a victim of asthma and recently suffered a severe attack of pneumonia from which she is now convalescing.

Everybody who hadn't a gripe cold this season is now entertaining one. As one of the correspondents said—"the victims are too numerous to mention."

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Phleger (nee Nellie Cover), of Brunswick, spent last Wednesday afternoon with the Birelys.

Miss Sue Birely accompanied Mrs. Bertha Lindsay Albaugh and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Holly Albaugh to Gettysburg, on Friday, where they consulted an oculist and purchased new eye glasses. "This amazing how they are seeing things now!"

Seventeen persons from Mt. Union attended Lenten Service at Emmanuel (Baust) Church last Wednesday evening despite the falling snow. This week the service was at St. Luke's (Winters) Church. Good meetings.

The Smiling Sunbeams held their March meeting at the home of June Bruner, on Thursday evening of last week, where they had a Devotional then business session, followed by music, games and refreshments, and all say they had a fine time.

Christian Endeavor Service followed S. S. at Mt. Union, on Sunday morning, and the election of officers for another year. Misses Ruth Reifsnider is the new president; Pauline Sentz re-elected Rec. Secy; her sister Esther Sentz, as pianist; Mary Wilhide for Cor. Secy, and Roger Sentz, Treas. They are planning for repairs on the church and social hall, and a grand home-coming of former members—later in the year.

On Tuesday the Wm. Weishaar family, moved from the Littlefield property to the J. Flickinger home at Keymar.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Royer (nee Eva Bair), moved into the tenement house on the Haines farm between Linwood and Uniontown, now occupied by Frank Lowman, one day last week. Mrs. Royer was a faithful assistant at Mt. Union. We regret her going, but wish this young couple true success.

We are in receipt of the 90th. anniversary edition of the Record Herald, of Waynesboro, Pa., and a wonderful edition it is of 64 pages, telling of the town, the times, and the paper from its beginning—and full of interest. It contains a splendid history of the town and Waynesboro during the Civil War" from the pen of Miss Matilda Detrich. The first settlers about 1750, was John Wallace who built his cabin by the spring which still flows thro' the Strickler farm east of town. There's a picture of "Waynesboro's 80 year club—believed to be the only one of its kind in the U. S. It is comprised entirely of residents in this section, who have attained the age of 80 years or more." 23 men are in the picture.

The Smiling Sunbeams of Mt. Union will have charge of the food sale at the sale of Chas. R. Miller on the Wilson farm between Mt. Union and Otter Dale Mill next Thursday, March 25th; the proceeds for the benefit of the Church Repair Fund.

Several of the neighbors witnessed the flight of a large flock of wild geese passing northward last Thursday. Such a wonderful instinct in migratory birds that they know when to go, and where!

In comes the Life Insurance agents—and can they talk! Nothing equals the "high-pressure force;" sometimes we mentally plant ourselves like the proverbial mule, and think now talk your head off—but we are getting farther apart, every minute. Occasionally it becomes necessary to point out the exit.

We are enjoying the St. Patrick celebrations by Air the fine old Irish songs in memory of the good Saint who lived a self-sacrificing life for the sake of others. A faithful Missionary to Ireland.

UNIONTOWN.

Our schools were closed on Wednesday on account of drifted roads. The sick of the town are all improving.

Rev. J. H. Hoch preached the funeral of Mrs. George Harris, at Kridler's Lutheran Church last Friday. She was a member of the church at Frizellburg.

Rev. M. L. Kroh preached the funeral for Mrs. James Flohr in the Taneytown Lutheran Church, on Wednesday. She had been a member for years at Baust Church and still retained her membership there.

Men are kept busy attending sales. Quite a number in the surrounding neighborhood.

Burial was made in the church cemetery.

Miss Anna Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hess, returned to school, Monday, after a long illness.

Something very unusual was held in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Sunday School room last Thursday evening. A sample fair under the auspices of the Starr Bible Class, taught by Mrs. Irvin Kindig. The articles on display by nine merchants, were arranged in booths in a semi-circle. You had to buy a ticket. The following were on display: Radios, heaters, paints, thermometers, a complete line of groceries, amplifier, milk, a line of bakery cakes, meat and ice cream. Each person having a booth, and others gave samples. I was informed that they made about $75.00. About 400 persons attended.

PAGEANT INFORMATION.

our own people here and now. This means a pageant workshop. Mr. Robert Billingslea has generously donated for this purpose the rear section of the Shaffer building on Longwell Avenue near East Main St. Renovation and equipment is now in process.

In this building Mrs. David Taylor, better known to Carroll Countians as Caroline Wantz Taylor, will assemble costume designs, material, and patterns and will give information about professional rental places, if desired. Here Mrs. May Jester, also will oversee the making of the costume by all the volunteer workers we can assemble.

Both of these capable directors solicit all the co-operation the women of Carroll County can give. This tremendous job cannot be done without your help.

First of all, you can help us by starting your spring housecleaning early this year. As you go through your bureau drawers and attics, looking over grandma's old hoop skirt and Aunt Emma's poke bonnet, stop wondering what you're going to do about them and donate them to the Carroll County Centennial. Likewise granddaddy's high top hat and old cutaway—not to mention his preacher-tailed coat. We can use all of them and more. But please don't offer to lend them because we cannot be responsible for their return. If you value them highly, better return them to the old cedar chest, or else exhibit them as heirlooms in the window during centennial week.

The committee can use things new as well as old. If you have remnants of two yards and more which you are willing to donate, they will be gratefully received. We shall be able to use most every kind of costume material, everything from unbleached muslin to satin, velvet, and brocade. Until the workshop is open full time, please leave your donations at the Antique Shop of Miss F. Louise Thomson at 102 East Main Street.

Will those of you who like to draw and are willing to help copy or trace costume sketches, please get in touch with Mrs. Taylor in the Richardson Apartments, Westminster?

And will those of you who are willing to do work in costume making, please fill out the form below and mail it today to Mrs. May Jester, 4 Doyle Avenue, Westminster.

My dear Mrs. Jester:

Use for Spiders' Webs

Spiders' webs have a commercial value, and are used by a number of firms of scientific instrument makers. The strongest and finest thread comes from the webs spun by the species known as the "Eperia Draconata," found usually on gorse bushes. The thickness varies from 0.00015 of an inch to 0.00075, and often the thicker threads are split in half, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. The insect that spins these threads can easily be distinguished from any other of the eighty odd varieties in Britain as it has a beautiful cross on its back and spins webs of the "wheel" type.

Golden Apples

Spain was once the Mexico and Peru of Mediterranean exploitation, yielding gold, silver, tin, and copper for the greater glory of Greece and the grandeur of ancient Rome. It was believed to be fabulously rich when Greek myth-makers wrote legends of Hercules venturing Spain-ward for the golden apples of Hesperides. To Tarshish, around Cadiz, King Solomon sent for gold for his temple.

HELPFUL

Charles was one of those people who always try to look on the bright side of things. Well, one day he saw a little fellow weeping his eyes out, so he crossed over the road to see if he could help.

"And what's the matter?" he asked.

"Boo-oo," wept the youngster, pointing to a broken egg on the ground. "I threw that egg up in the air, but I didn't catch it, boo-oo."

"Never mind," said Charles cheerfully, "you'll 'catch it' when you get home."

Rather Doubtful

Steve—I hear you're singing in the choir now.

Charles—Yes. The other day I sang "I May Not Pass This Way Again," to the satisfaction of the audience.—Hartford Courant.

Deliberation

"Is a diplomat supposed to tell the truth?"

"Oh, yes. But he is often permitted to take his time about discovering it."

SOMETHING MISSING

Mrs. A.—Jimmie's been in the third grade for two years. I wonder how he'll ever get ahead.

Mr. A.—Don't know. If he wasn't born with one he never will.

Making It Worse

Judge—It is the sentence of this court that the prisoner be confined to prison for the remainder of his natural life.

Prisoner—Your Honor, this is a rank injustice—

Judge—Silence! Two more years for contempt of court!

Wonders of Nature

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "you have no idea how instructive and interesting it is, to go to market!"

"What's interesting you now?"

"The provisions that nature makes for our comfort. It occurred to me this morning that we should be so thankful that removing the shell from an egg is so much easier than removing the shell from an oyster."

Social and Political Advantage

"You still have the highest respect for George Washington?" said Mr. Dustin Stax.

"Certainly," said Miss Cayenne.

"He lacked some of the modern social advantages."

"That fact may have been to his political advantage in enabling him to concentrate on the welfare of his country instead of worrying about his golf score."

The Color Chart

"Now, Mary, when you bathe the baby, be sure and use the thermometer to test the water."

Returning an hour later, the mistress asked: "Did you use the thermometer?"

"No, ma'am. I can tell without that. If it's too hot the baby turns red and if it's too cold he'll turn blue."

GOOD JUDGMENT

"De Short is a cheerful fellow—never borrows trouble."

"Oh, well, I suppose he must draw the line somewhere."

Lucky Guy

Two gangsters were escorting a member of a rival gang across a lonely field on a dark and rainy night.

"What rats you are," grumbled the doomed one. "Make me walk through a rain like this."

"How about us?" growled one of the escorts, "We've got to walk back."

HAIL INVENTOR OF HOLE IN DOUGHNUT

Maine Seafarer Cited for the Hall of Fame.

Bangor, Me.—The late Captain Hanson Gregory of Camden has been nominated for the Hall of Fame by the national doughnut committee. The citation declares that Captain Gregory, who died fourteen years ago, "not only discovered the hole in the first place, but invented the proper process for enclosing the hole in the doughnut."

Captain Gregory went to sea as a cabin boy, became "cook and hand," then second mate at nineteen, mate at twenty-one and a master mariner at twenty-five, sailing in all rigs and sizes from a lime coaster to a full-rigged ship.

It was while he was a sea cook that he "invented" the hole in the doughnut. Ancient mariners and old settlers recall the time, down to the Civil war and later, when a doughnut was just a square chunk of dough fried in fat. For the most part they were soggy, greasy and almost indigestible. Naturally seagoing folk called them "sinkers."

Gregory was a cook with progressive ideas, and when sarcastic remarks were made about his doughnuts he devised improvements. First, instead of cutting the dough into square pieces, he cut it into discs with a cake cutter. Then he put in more "shortening" and puffed the mass up with baking powder or yeast "rising." He waited until his fat was sizzling hot before he began frying—but even then his doughnuts seemed a bit too heavy.

Thinking it over, a bright idea struck Cook Gregory:

"Why so much dough in one lump?"

He got a tinsmith to make an implement that cut the dough into rings, leaving the famous hole in the middle.

"Life preservers," the sailors called them. That process vastly improved the doughnut, and soon cooks everywhere had adopted it.

Wintry Blasts Will Be Studied in Far North

Washington.—The cause of wintry cold waves will be studied for the first time in plane flights to be made at Fairbanks, Alaska.

Harold Gillam, commercial pilot, will attempt twice daily until next March 15 to soar three miles above the earth to make observations that are expected to throw new light on the structure of polar continental air.

In his plane, Gillam will carry aero-meteorographs, instruments which automatically record temperature, pressure, and humidity in the air through which they pass.

A contract with the government provides Gillam will be paid $60 for each flight that he is able to make according to specifications. The funds will come from money appropriated by the Bankhead-Jones act, passed by congress to further research in the field of agriculture.

The upper-air observations will be telegraphed to Seattle for use in making the daily weather forecasts. Analyses of the observations are to be made in Washington.

France Plans to Build 51 New Naval Vessels

Paris, France.—The French government plans soon to begin a tremendous naval building program of fifty-one ships, it was learned.

All will be small vessels, their total tonnage being only 40,000. They are designed to balance the fleet, for in recent years the French have devoted most of their building to larger craft and small auxiliaries have been neglected.

The only large new vessel in the new program will be a 7,000-ton cruiser. France already possesses a crack modern cruiser fleet as well as a modern destroyer flotilla.

In addition the program will include eight torpedo boats, seven submarines, one tanker and some thirty auxiliary vessels.

Construction of seven new submarines will bring France's undersea fleet to ninety-six, perhaps the largest and most modern in Europe.

Gold in This Duck

Oregon City, Ore. — Mrs. William McKillop, of Holcomb, found six gold nuggets in the craw of a decoy duck raised on her husband's farm.

Blue Jay Is Worst Scavenger of Woods

Jerseyville, Ill. — The worst scavenger of the woods is not the common crow, according to L. E. Groppe of Rosedale, former county superintendent of schools of Jersey county. The crow is bad enough, says Groppe, but the bluejay is more destructive of song and insectivorous birds' nests, eggs and young.

"The jays will travel in gangs," said Groppe. "Some of the gang will fly about the outer branches of a tree, while others slip about inside the leaf shelter. When one of the band finds the object of their search, he immediately gives vent to his signal call and the cannibal birds at once devour or destroy their prey."

COMMUNITY LOCALS.

MRS. MARTHA A. FRINGER.

Mrs. Martha (Rudolph) Fringer, died at her home on Emmitsburg Street, last Saturday forenoon, aged 89 years and a few days, following a comparatively short period of general physical breakdown. Until very recent years she had been remarkably vigorous all of her life and greatly enjoyed long walks and outdoor work.

Following the celebration of her 89th birthday, The Record contained an account of her having walked from her then home in Adams County, Pa., a distance of six or seven miles, to Gettysburg to hear Lincoln deliver his famous address in the National cemetery at Gettysburg.

She spent most of her life in the country, much of it on the farm of her husband, the late Tobias H. Fringer, near Taneytown. Following his death she became owner of her late home, and devoted much of her time and means to the interests of Trinity Lutheran Church, and some years ago made the church a gift of the brick dwelling adjoining it.

She had been a life member of the Women's Missionary Society, and was a regular attendant of the Bible Class of the church.

She is survived by the following nieces and nephews: Mrs. A. G. Wingert, Tyrone, Pa.; Mrs. Wm. Thornton, Eugene, Oregon; Roy E. Rudolph, Salt Lake City, and Charles W. Hahn.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the home, and in Trinity Lutheran Church, in charge of her pastor, Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe. Interment was in the Lutheran cemetery.

MRS. IDA M. FLOHR.

Mrs. Ida M., wife of J. Edward Flohr, died at her home on York St., Taneytown, last Saturday about noon, aged 76 years, following a lengthy period of illness, but was confined to bed only a few days.

She was a daughter of the late William and Ellen Angell, Taneytown district. Surviving are her husband, one son William J. Flohr, near Baust Church, and one daughter, Mrs. Oliver Weybright, near Gettysburg. Also by one brother, J. Albert Angell, Taneytown, and three sisters, Mrs. Elmer Hawk, near Taneytown, Mrs. William G. Feeser, Taneytown, and Mrs. Herbert Baker, Woodbine.

ONCE MORE, ON AN OLD SUBJECT.

Mr. C. M. Falconer, President of the Automobile Club of Maryland, in commenting on the large amount of money that will be lost to the Maryland highways during the next few years if Maryland continues the practice of diverting road funds at the present rate had this to say:

The situation is not new. The American Automobile Association have recognized bad roads as a definite liability to any State guilty of possessing them and actually compiled figures to prove this. It remained for our Federal Government to drive the fact home in the terms of dollars and cents.

"Wherever the practice of diversion exists usually roads are deteriorating or have deteriorated. This condition is expensive to everyone in many ways. To the farmer it means the loss in farm land values, often actual loss in marketing crops. In fact I notice that Mr. H. H. Nuttle, President of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation is commenting on this subject in the press yesterday. In view of present unsatisfactory road conditions in our State and the impending penalty by our Federal Government, it would seem advisable that our legislators settle the question of road funds once and for all by following the example of many other states, not only by constitutional amendment, but also the restoration of the funds being diverted at present."

The fighting airplane population of the world is growing. Russia is credited with 7500; Germany 5,500; Italy 5,000; France, 4,000; England, 3,500. Figures for the U. S. are not stated.

CHAPTER X

There was a soft knock, and Vance turned from the window. He was confronted by Garden, who had opened the study door without waiting for a summons.

"Sorry, Vance," Garden apologized, "but Doc Siefert is downstairs and says he'd like to see you, if convenient, before he goes."

Vance looked at the man a moment and frowned. "Miss Beeton informed me of the fact a few minutes ago. I asked her to tell the doctor I would be glad to see him at once. I can't understand his sending you also. Didn't the nurse give him the message?"

"I'm afraid not. I know Siefert sent Miss Beeton up here, and I assumed, as I imagine Siefert did, that you had detained her." He looked round the room with a puzzled expression. "The fact is, I thought she was still up here."

"You mean she hasn't returned downstairs?" Vance asked. "No, she hasn't come down yet." Vance took a step forward. "Are you sure of that, Garden?" "Yes, very sure." Garden nodded vigorously. "I've been in the front hall, near the foot of the stairs, ever since Doc Siefert arrived."

"Did you see any of the others come down?" "Why, yes," Garden told him. "Kroon came down and went out. And then Madge Weatherby. And shortly after the nurse had gone up with Siefert's message to you, Zala came down and hurried away. But that's all. And, as I say, I've been down there in the front hall all the time."

"What about Hammle?" "Hammle? No, I haven't seen anything of him. I thought he was still here with you."

"That's deuced queer," Vance moved slowly to a chair and sat down with a perplexed frown. "It's possible you missed him. However, it doesn't matter. Ask the doctor to come up, will you?" "When Garden had left us Vance sat smoking and staring at the ceiling. I knew from the droop of his eyelids that he was disturbed. "Deuced queer," he muttered again.

"For Heaven's sake, Vance," Markham commented irritably. "It's entirely possible Garden wasn't watching the stairs as closely as he imagines." "Yes, Oh, yes," Vance nodded vaguely. "Everyone worried. None on the alert. Normal mechanisms not functioning. Still, the stairs are visible half way up the hall, and the hall itself isn't very spacious."

"It's quite possible Hammle went down the main stairs from the terrace, wishing, perhaps, to avoid the others."

"He hadn't his hat up here with him," Vance returned without looking up. "He would have had to enter the front hall and pass Garden to get it. No point in such silly maneuvers. . . . But it isn't Hammle I'm thinking of. It's Miss Beeton. I don't like it. . . . He got up slowly and took out another cigarette. "She's not the kind of girl that would neglect taking my message to Siefert immediately, unless for a very good reason."

"A number of things might have happened—"

"Yes, of course. That's just it. Too many things have happened here today already." Vance went to the north window and looked out into the garden. Then he returned to the center of the room and stood for a moment in tense meditation. "As you say, Markham." His voice was barely audible. "Something may have happened. . . . Suddenly he threw his cigarette into an ash tray and turned on his heel. "Oh, my word! I wonder. . . . Come, Sergeant. We'll have to make a search—immediately."

He opened the door quickly and started down the hall. We followed him with vague apprehension, not knowing what was on his mind and with no anticipation of what was to follow. Vance peered out through the garden door. Then he turned back, shaking his head.

"No, it couldn't have been there. We would have been able to see." His eyes moved inquiringly up and down the hall, and after a moment a strange, startled look came into them. "It could be!" he exclaimed. "Oh, my aunt! Damnable things are happening here. Wait a second."

He rapidly retraced his steps to the vault door. Grasping the knob, he rattled it violently; but the door was now locked. Taking the key from its nail, he inserted it hurriedly into the lock. As he opened the heavy door a crack, a pungent, penetrating odor assailed his nostrils. Vance quickly drew back.

"Out into the air!" he called over his shoulder, in our direction. "All of you!"

Instinctively we made for the door to the garden. Vance held one hand over his nose and mouth and pushed the vault door further inward. Heavy amber-colored fumes drifted out into the hall, and I felt a stifling, choking sensation. Vance staggered back a step, but kept his hand on the door-knob.

"Miss Beeton! Miss Beeton!" he called. There was no response and I saw Vance put his head down and move forward into the dense fumes that were emanating from the open door. He sank to his knees on the threshold and leaned forward into the vault. The next moment he had straightened up and was dragging the limp body of the nurse out into the passageway.

As soon as the girl was out of the vault, Vance took her up in his arms and carried her unsteadily out into the garden, where he placed her gently on the wicker settee. His face was deathly pale; his eyes were watering; and he had difficulty with his breathing. When he had released the girl, he leaned heavily against one of the iron posts which supported the awning. He opened his mouth wide and sucked the fresh air into his lungs.

The nurse was gasping stertorously and clutching her throat. Although her breast was rising and falling convulsively, her whole body was limp and lifeless.

At that moment Doctor Siefert stepped through the garden door, a look of amazement on his face. He had all the outward appearance of the type of medical man Vance had described to us the night before. He was about sixty, conservatively but modestly attired, and with a bearing studiously dignified and self-sufficient.

With a great effort Vance drew himself erect.

"Hurry, doctor," he called. "It's bromin gas."

Siefert came rapidly forward, moved the girl's body into a more comfortable position and opened the collar of her uniform.

"Nothing but the air can help her," he said, as he moved one end of the settee around so that it faced the cool breeze from the river. "How are you feeling, Vance?"

Vance was dabbing his eyes with a handkerchief. He blinked once or twice and smiled faintly.

"I'm quite all right." He went to the settee and looked down at the girl for a moment. "A close call," he murmured.

Siefert inclined his head gravely. At this moment Hammle came strutting up briskly from a remote corner of the garden.

"Good God!" he exclaimed. "What's the matter?"

Vance turned to the man in angry surprise. "Well, well," he greeted him. "The roll call is complete. I'll tell you later what's the matter. Or perhaps you will be able to tell me. Wait over there." And he jerked his head in the direction of a chair nearby.

"I wish I'd taken the earlier train to Long Island," Hammle muttered. "It might have been better, don't you know," murmured Vance, turning away from him.

The nurse's strangled coughing had abated somewhat. Her breathing was deeper and more regular, and the gasping had partly subsided. Before long she struggled to sit up. Siefert helped her.

"Breathe as deeply and rapidly as you can," he said. "It's air you need."

The girl made an effort to follow instructions, one hand braced against the back of the settee, and the other resting on Vance's arm.

A few minutes later she was able to speak, but with considerable difficulty.

"I feel—better now. Except for the burning—in my nose and throat."

"What happened?" she asked. "We don't know yet." Vance returned her gaze with obvious distress. "We only know that you were poisoned with bromin gas in the vault where Swift was shot. We were hoping that you could tell us about it yourself."

She shook her head vaguely, and there was a dazed look in her eyes. "I'm afraid I can't tell you very much. It all happened so unexpectedly—so suddenly. All I know is that when I went to tell Doctor Siefert he might come upstairs, I was struck on the head from behind, just as I passed the garden door. The blow didn't render me entirely unconscious, but it stunned me so that I was unaware of anything or anybody around me. Then I felt myself being caught from behind, turned about, and forced back up the passageway and into the vault. I have a faint recollection of the door being shut upon me, although I wasn't sufficiently rational to protest or even to realize what had happened. But I was conscious of the fact that inside the vault there was a frightful suffocating smell."

"Yes. Not a pleasant experience. But it could have been much worse." Vance spoke in a low voice and smiled gravely down at the girl. "There's a bad bruise on the back of your head. That too might have been worse, but the starched band of your cap probably saved you from more serious injury."

The girl had got to her feet and stood swaying a little as she steadied herself against Vance.

"I really feel all right now." She looked at Vance wistfully. "And I have you to thank—haven't I?"

Siefert spoke gruffly. "A few more minutes of that bromin gas would have proved fatal. Whoever found you and got you out here did so just in time."

The girl had not taken her eyes from Vance.

"How did you happen to find me so soon?" she asked him.

"Delated reasoning," he answered. "I should have found you several minutes before the moment I learned that you had not returned downstairs. But at first it was difficult to realize that anything serious could have happened to you."

"I can't understand it even now," the girl said with a bewildered air. "Neither can I—entirely," returned Vance. "But perhaps I can learn something more."

Going quickly to a pitcher of water Heath had brought, he dipped the handkerchief into it. Pressing the handkerchief against his face, he disappeared into the passageway.

It Was Part of a Broken Vial.

A minute or so later he returned. In his hand he held a jagged piece of thin curved glass, about three inches long.

It was part of a broken vial, and still clinging to it was a small paper label on which was printed the symbol "Br."

"I found this on the tiled floor, in the far corner of the vault. It was just beneath one of the racks which holds Professor Garden's assortment of chemicals. There's an empty space in the rack, but this vial of bromin couldn't have fallen to the floor accidentally. It could only have been taken out deliberately and broken at the right moment." He handed the fragment of glass to Heath.

"Take this, Sergeant, and have it gone over carefully for fingerprints. But if, as I suspect, the same person that killed Swift handled it, I doubt if there will be any telltale marks on it. However. . . ."

"This was a dastardly thing, Vance," Siefert burst out, his eyes flashing.

"Yes. All of that, doctor. So was Swift's murder. . . . How are you feeling now, Miss Beeton?"

"A little shaky," she answered with a weak smile. "But nothing more." She was leaning against one end of the settee.

"Then we'll carry on, what?" "Of course," she returned in a low voice.

Floyd Garden stepped out from the hallway at this moment. He coughed.

"What's this beastly odor in the hall?" he asked. "It's gotten downstairs. Is anything wrong?"

"Not now, No," Vance returned. "A little bromin gas a few minutes ago; but the air will be clear in a little while. No casualties. Every one doing well. . . . Did you want to see me?"

Garden looked round at the group on the roof with a puzzled air.

"Awfully sorry to interrupt you, Vance; but the fact is, I came for the doctor." His eyes rested on Siefert, and he smiled dryly. "It's the usual thing, doc," he said. "The mater seems almost in a state of collapse—she assured me that she hadn't an ounce of strength left."

A worried look came into Siefert's eyes.

"I'll come at once, of course," he said. He looked at the nurse and then lifted his gaze to Vance. "Will you excuse me?"

Vance bowed. "Certainly, doctor. But I think Miss Beeton had better remain here in the air for a while longer."

Siefert left the roof reluctantly, with Garden following him.

Vance watched them until they turned through the door of the passageway; then he spoke to the nurse. "Please sit here a few minutes, Miss Beeton. I want to have a talk with you. But first I'd like a minute or two with Mr. Hammle."

The nurse nodded her assent and sat down a little wearily on the settee.

Vance beckoned curtly to Hammle. "Suppose we go inside for a moment."

and Markham and I followed behind Hammle.

"What were you doing on the roof, Mr. Hammle?" asked Vance. "I told you some time ago, after our brief interview, that you might go."

Hammle fidgeted. He was patently apprehensive and wary.

"There's no crime in going out into the garden for a while—is there?" he asked with unimpressive truculence.

"None whatever," Vance returned casually. "I was wonderin' why you preferred the gardens to going home. Devilish things have been happening in the garden this afternoon."

"As I told you, I wish I had gone. How did I know—?"

"That's hardly the point, Mr. Hammle." Vance cut him short. "It doesn't answer my question."

"Well now, look here," Hammle explained fulsomely; "I had just missed a train to Long Island, and it was more than an hour until the next one. When I went out of here and started to go downstairs, I suddenly said to myself, 'It'll be pleasanter waiting in the garden than in the Pennsylvania station.' So I went out on the roof and hung around. And here I am."

Vance regarded the man shrewdly and nodded his head.

"Yes, as you say. Here you are. More or less in evidence. By the way, Mr. Hammle, what did you see while you were waiting in the garden for the next train?"

"Not a thing—absolutely!" Hammle's tone was aggressive. "I walked along the boxwood hedges, smoking, and was leaning over the parapet by the gate, looking out at the city, when I heard you come out carrying the nurse."

Vance narrowed his eyes: it was obvious he was not satisfied with Hammle's explanation.

"And you saw no one else either in the garden or on the terrace?" "Not a soul," the man assured him.

"And you heard nothing?" "Not until you gentlemen came out."

Vance stood regarding Hammle for several moments. Then he turned and walked toward the garden window.

"That will be all for the moment," he said brusquely. "But we shall probably want to see you tomorrow."

"I'll be at home all day. Glad to be of any service." Hammle shot a covert look at Vance, made his adieux quickly, and went out down the passageway.

Vance returned at once to the garden. Miss Beeton drew herself up a little as he approached her.

"Do you feel equal to a few questions?" he asked her.

"Oh, yes," She smiled with more assurance now, and rose.

As we crossed the garden to the balustrade, Miss Beeton took a deep breath and shuddered slightly.

"You'd better have your coat," Vance suggested. He returned to the study and brought it out to her. When he had helped her into it she turned suddenly and looked at him inquiringly.

"Why was my coat brought to the study?" she asked.

Vance's tone was reassuring. We really owe you an explanation. You see, two revolvers figured in Swift's death. One of them we all saw on the roof here—that was the one with which the chap was killed. But no one downstairs heard the shot because the poor fellow met his end in Professor Garden's storeroom vault—"

"Ah! That was why you wanted to know if the key was in its place." The girl nodded.

"The shot we all heard," Vance went on, "was fired from another revolver after Swift's body had been carried from the vault and placed in the chair out here. We were naturally anxious to find that other weapon, and Sergeant Heath made a search for it. . . ."

"But—but—my coat?" Her hand went out and she clutched at Vance's sleeve as a look of understanding came into her frightened eyes.

"Yes," Vance said, "the Sergeant found the revolver in the pocket of your top-coat. Someone had put it there as a temporary hiding-place." She recoiled with a sudden intake of breath.

"How dreadful!" Her words were barely audible.

Vance put his hand on her shoulder.

"But it's too terrible! . . . And then this—attempt on my life. I can't understand. I'm frightened."

"Come, come," Vance exhorted the girl. "It's over now, and we need your help."

She gazed directly into his eyes for several minutes. Then she gave him a faint smile of confidence.

me who you think could have been guilty of the terrible things that have happened here."

All fear and doubt seemed to have left the girl. She moved toward the balustrade and stood looking over the river with an impressive calm and self-control.

Dinosaur Tracks to Be Protected From Thieves

Holyoke, Mass.—Dinosaur tracks which have been imbedded in sandstone here for approximately 150,000,000 years without causing much of a stir, are to be protected against thieves.

The recent theft of several imprints, chiseled from a ledge, has spurred the chamber of commerce and trustees of public reservations to act.

The imprints are to be protected by construction by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works of a retaining wall around the area in which the tracks abound. A four-lane highway to make the area accessible to motorists also will be built. At present it is impossible to drive an automobile along the country road leading to the section, and it is difficult to reach it afoot.

Mud, rocks, stumps and washouts now combine to make the area practically inaccessible to the public.

Nothing has ever been done to preserve the footprints, and as a result many of them are under piles of sand and loose rock.

They were discovered in 1858 by Prof. Edward Hitchcock of Amherst college.

Walls of Ancient Forts Stand Guard Over City

Early in its reign as the Queen City of the Caribbean, Cartagena was strongly fortified. Historians have estimated that the walls about the port cost half a billion dollars in time, labor and loss of life. When Ferdinand VI of Spain was presented with the accounts of the building of the great fortifications he is reported to have climbed to the top of the tower of his castle and to have peered long and wistfully toward the west. When courtiers inquired as to what he was seeking he replied:

"I am trying to see the walls of Cartagena, because such a tremendous expenditure should have created such a conspicuous architecture that it ought to be visible from here."

The old forts of San Jose and San Fernando guard the mouth of the river leading up to Cartagena, while those off Manzanillo and Castillo Grande are attractive old sentinels closer to the city. All these ports were effectively used against pirates in the olden days. The channel from the sea runs a zigzag course for several miles through low jungle-grown banks to a beautiful land-locked bay, where Cartagena looms beyond a lagoon, compact within its encircling ramparts and topped by mosque-like domes and Moorish towers, looking much as it did in the days of the buccaneers. Many of the buildings date back to 1533.

Sea Lions Use Sense of Smell by Touching Noses

Sea lions, like dogs, use their sense of smell by touching noses to identify one another at close range, but fail to react to distant odors. They are adept at spotting moving objects from considerable distance. Except when off on fishing excursions, they are gregarious by nature, collecting in large groups on favorite rocks or rookeries and generally making a big fuss and noise over nothing. About the only time they ever become hostile is when their pet place in the sunshine is challenged.

TRIAL AND CRUCIFIXION

LESSON TEXT — John 19: 4-9, 14-18, 25-30.

GOLDEN TEXT — Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. I John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC — When Jesus Died for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC — On a Hill Far Away.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
Christ's Cross and Its Meaning for Me.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
Christ's Cross and Mine.

The cross is accepted throughout the world as the emblem of the Christian church. The death of the Son of God for the sins of the world
is a focal point not only in history
but in theology. It is for this reason that we give so much study to the cross and its meaning.

Calvary comes between Christmas and Easter. Jesus came as the Babe of Bethlehem—God incarnate in the flesh. He died for you and me. Death could not hold him. He arose in victory. He is now at the Father's right hand, an Advocate with the Father. He is coming again. Each statement is an indispensable truth!

The assigned text gives only a portion of the moving account of the trial and crucifixion of Jesus
but suffices to bring before us in graphic contrast four pictures—

I. Pilate—Convinced but Afraid.
Pilate was in a most difficult position. To turn one way meant to incur the wrath of the Jews he governed. To turn the other meant that he would be accused of disloyalty to Rome. He was convinced that Jesus was innocent, but was afraid to follow his own convictions.

Many there are who follow in his steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fear the comments of friends or loss of earthly advantage, and take their place
with Pilate.

II. The Jews—Hostile and Hard-hearted.

The common people heard Jesus gladly. They loved him and would have followed him. But the Jewish leaders, and those whom they had misled, hated him with malicious hatred.

They are typical of those who in our day have long and repeatedly rejected the claims of the Lord Jesus on their lives. They have hardened their hearts against him
until they have become embittered.
Paul says, "They received not the love of the truth that they might be saved, and for this cause God
shall send them a strong delusion,
that they should believe a lie" (II Thess. 2:10,11).

Let those who have long rejected
the Saviour be warned lest they also crucify afresh the Son of God.

III. The Disciples—Remembered
by the Saviour.

The thoughtful tenderness of Jesus
in providing for his mother even in his own hour of deep suffering,
moves upon our hearts and urges us to follow his example. This is a hard world; let the followers of Jesus be tender and kind.

In thus caring for his mother,
Jesus gives thought also to the new responsibility of the disciple "whom he loved." What a sacred and responsible trust, but is it not true
that we also are called and commissioned by him?

IV. Jesus—The Saviour.

To see the guiltless, spotless Son of God hung on the cross in propitiation
for our sins is to bring us to our knees to cry as did Martin Luther,
"For me, for me!"

Majestic in the assurance that he laid down his own life, he walks as a King in the midst of all the confusion round about him.

1. Silent. His enemies made great hue and cry against him. Pilate questioned him again and again.
Few were the words he spoke, but fraught with more meaning than all the words of men.

2. Strong. All through his life and in his death one is impressed by his strength. All too often sacred art, drawing on its imagination,
presents our Lord as an effeminate
weakling. No; he was and is gloriously strong.

3. Sympathetic. We have already dwelt on his tender love for his mother. Gentleness is always an attribute of strength, not of weakness.

4. The Saviour. When he cried
"It is finished," he did so in no
weak submission to an inevitable
death. No; he had wrought out redemption, a complete and finished redemption for you and for me.

Now Is the Time

To be always intending to lead a new life but never to find time to set about it, this is as if a man should put off eating and drinking and sleeping from one day and night
to another, till he is starved and destroyed.—Tillotson.

Delight in Beauty

The very first discovery of beauty
strikes the mind with an inward
joy, and spreads a cheerfulness and delight through all its faculties.—Addison.

Travel to Egypt Began

About the Year 900 B. C.

Commercially inspired tributes to Egypt indited by travel writers seem fulsome and weak when compared with the comments of Herodotus, who traveled through that land some 2,800 years ago, according to an authority. His plain statements were more forceful than any subtle use of adjectives.

"Of Egypt I shall make my report at length," his discourse begins, "because it has wonders more in number than any other land, and works too it has to show as much as any land, which are beyond expression great." Eminent man of the world, the most widely traveled of his age, Herodotus nevertheless could not contain his astonishment at many of the sights in Egypt.

He called the Nile "unlike any other river." He evinced great respect for the mental attainments of the Egyptians—"the most learned in the history by far of all those of whom I have had experience."
But it was on the subject of Egypt's renowned climate that the Greek philosopher-historian showed himself at his best. "The Egyptians,"
he wrote, "are the most healthy of all men next after the Libyans,
in my opinion on account of the seasons, because the seasons do not change." That single sentence contains the gist of many dissertations
on the healthfulness of Egypt's un-fading sunshine.

Did Not Know "America" Tune Same as "Save King"

When Samuel F. Smith wrote
"America" in 1832, he did not know that he was writing a song to the same tune as "God Save the King."
He found the tune in a German music book brought to this country
by William C. Woodridge and turned over by him to Lowell Mason, states a writer in the Detroit News. Mason had asked Smith to translate the verses or to write a few original poems to go with the music. As he glanced through the collection, he was struck by one tune which seemed to him simple and spirited and he noticed that the German words were patriotic. This gave him the inspiration to write a hymn for this country.

The origin of the words of "God Save the King" as well as of the tune is in doubt. Henry Carey and John Bull are both mentioned in this connection. The Encyclopedia Britannica says that 1745 is the earliest date assignable and that both
words and music had been evolved
out of earlier forms; also that Bull's is the earliest form of the air. Prussia, Denmark and other countries
used this tune, but whether they took it from England or from older sources cannot be determined.

Swam Strait Every Night

to Visit His Sweetheart

Hero was a priestess of Venus.
Leander, a youth of Abydos, a famous city on the Asiatic side of the strait of the Hellespont, nearly opposite the city of Sestos on the European coast, where he first saw Hero. It appears to have been a case of love at first sight, and an intensely ardent one at that, declares a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Hero's office as priestess, and the resolute opposition of her parents stood in the way of their union, cold and strong as the swift current of the Hellespont, which at its narrowest point is swift and deep and about one and one-fourth miles wide. Undaunted by all these obstacles, Leander swam across the strait every night to visit his beloved, who directed his course by holding a torch from the upper window of a tower on the shore. After many delightful meetings, the dauntless lover was drowned one stormy night, and his body was washed ashore at the foot of the tower
where Hero stood, expecting him.
Heartbroken at the sight, she flung herself from the tower into the sea, and passed with her lover into the immortality of art and song.

Kit Carson's Service

On June 7, 1847, Kit Carson delivered to President Polk a letter which, with important military despatches, he had carried to Washington from California. In recognition of this service, the President appointed Carson, then a private citizen, as an army lieutenant. The next year, while again en route to Washington with despatches, Carson learned that the senate had denied confirmation of his appointment. Urged by friends to refuse to proceed farther, Carson writes that he decided: "As I had been chosen as the most competent person to take the despatches through safely,
I would fulfill that duty; if the service I was performing was beneficial to the public, it did not matter
whether I was enjoying the rank of lieutenant."

Our Ancestors

You have billions of ancestors.
First you had a father and mother.
Each of them had a father and mother. That makes six ancestors already. Again, each of them must have had a father and mother, and that makes 12. So we go on, back to the time of Christ, which works out
at about 58 generations of 33 years
each. The calculation shows, asserts a writer in Pearson's London
Weekly, that 144,207,695,790,946,939
births must have taken place to bring you into the world. And all this since the birth of Christ only,
not since the beginning of time.

THE PRINTER'S TOWEL.

When I think of the towel,
The old-fashioned towel
That used to hang up by the printing-house door,
I think that nobody,
In these days of shoddy,
Can hammer out iron to wear as it wore.

The tramp who abused it,
The devil who used it,
The comp, who got at it when these two were gone,
The make-up, the foreman,
The editor, poor man,
Each rubbed some grime off while they put a heap on.

In, over, and under,
'Twas blacker than thunder;
Harder than poverty, rougher than sin,
From the roller suspended,
It never was bended,
But flapped on the wall like a banner of tin.

It grew thicker and rougher,
And harder and tougher,
And daily put on a more inkier hue;
'Til one windy morning,
Without any warning,
It fell to the floor and was broken in two.
