FEDERAL FUNDS FOR GAME

State to Profit by New Conservation Program. Provisions of the Bill.

1—The bill (S. 2870 and H. R. 7681) provides for the joint activity of State and Federal agencies in a continent-wide restoration for all species of wild life.

2—The Federal Government will, by provisions of this bill, set aside funds to be allocated to any and all of the 48 states in the Union which comply with its provisions.

3—The funds thus set aside by the Federal Government are not additional taxes to be levied against the taxpayer. The money proposed by this bill for wild-life restoration are the dollars which are now (and have been since 1932) collected from the special excess taxes on sportsmen's equipment—namely shot-guns, rifles and ammunition. It amounts to about three million dollars annually.

4—The process of administration is similar to the Federal Highway Aid Bill. Each state conservation agency or Fish and Game Commission will, by the provisions of this bill, receive its quota for wild-life restoration projects from the Federal Government.

5—There is no dispute over the necessity, work ability effectiveness or justice of this bill. The sportsmen themselves now pay this tax. By earmarking it and turning it into restoration channels these same sportsmen will be getting a splendid return for their money.

The Big Pipe Creek Park stockholders will meet Mr. Frank Bentz, Chief Clerk of the State Conservation Commission; Mr. E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden; Mr. A. M. Powell, Superintendent of Fish Hatcheries; and Mr. Talbot Denmead, United States Bureau of Fisheries—at the Park next week to discuss the problem of making the Big Pipe Creek stream within the park a very special place to fish. A place where legal sized fish will be stocked and restocked every two or three weeks.

It is very evident that this community has a very special interest in the State to profit by new conservation program as expressed in Bills (S. 2870 and H. R. 7681) now pending in the United States Congress.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TRIP.

At a meeting of the Taneytown Chamber of Commerce last Monday night, the plans were definitely made for the summer outing. It was recommended by the executive committee that an excursion to Tolchester be held on next Wednesday, July 28. The excursion group will consist of members only. Those who will go are requested to meet at the Firemen's building at noon, sharp, and go in a group by bus to Baltimore to take the boat for Tolchester, at 2:00 P. M.

The boat will stop at Tolchester only long enough to unload, and the party will not leave the boat. The time of arrival at Baltimore on the return trip will be 6:30 P. M., when the whole party will have dinner in the city, after which they will return to Taneytown. It is expected that the group will reach Taneytown about 9:00 P. M.

A SUGGESTION OF APPLAUSE.

An observer of the Jr. I. O. O. F. Band concert last Saturday night writes the Carroll Record, expressing the view that while the audience seemed to appreciate the music, they did not give expression to their appreciation as freely as they might have done. Speaking of applause he says: "This is what musicians live on. It costs the giver nothing, and it will inspire the players to greater heights in their work. That the audience attending the concert was pleased is evidenced by the fact that none left before the young musicians finished playing."

He says further: "We must give our young talent some encouragement if we expect them to continue their advancement. I appeal to all our citizens whenever the next musical event takes place in Taneytown, let's all give the musicians some hearty applause."

ACCIDENT AT CROSSING.

Taneytown had an automobile accident last Saturday that might have proved serious. Mr. O. J. Rider, of Baltimore, with Mrs. Rider, two sons and father-in-law, John F. Kerr were crossing the square going west, when a car driven by Alfred C. Bentz, of York, Pa., going south, struck the rear right wheel of the Rider car, causing it to swing about and turn on its side. The Rider car was considerably wrecked, but the occupants escaped without serious injury. Mrs. Rider and her father were taken to the office of Dr. T. A. Martin for examination and treatment. They were suffering principally from bruises and shock.

The Bentz car was injured, principally in front. Mr. Bentz was taken into custody on a charge of failing to yield the right-of-way. He was fined $5.00 and costs by John H. Shirk, Justice of the Peace, of Taneytown. The accused stated that he did not see the stop sign at the crossing.

SUPREME COURT FIGHT SEEMS TO BE ENDED

Developments Rapid After Return from Robinson Funeral.

Tuesday, the first day after the return of senators and representatives from the funeral of the late Senator Robinson, brought such rapid developments in the contest for and against the modification of the Supreme Court that newspaper men could scarcely keep their bearings. The sum of it all was the collapse of the effort to pass the so-called compromise bill.

To the surprise of a large number of the Senate, the President was reported to have agreed to a modification of the bill, giving up the part pertaining to the Supreme Court, providing he could have the proposed reforms with regard to the lower courts carried out.

The break came after seven Senators who had been wavering sent word to the President through Vice-President Garner that they would vote to recommit the bill to the Judiciary Committee. These seven were: Clyde Herring, Iowa; Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado; Alva B. Adams, Colorado; Charles O. Andrews, Florida; John H. Overton, Louisiana; Prentiss M. Brown, Michigan, and William J. Bulow, of South Dakota.

The President held a conference with Vice-President Garner, Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, Senator Allen W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada. It was after this conference that the announcement was made, as coming from an "official," but unmentionable source. This was taken in all quarters to mean that the President admitted defeat so far as his bill affected the Supreme Court.

The Senate on Thursday, by a record vote recommitted the bill to the Judiciary Committee, 70-20. Fifty-three Democrats, sixteen Republicans, and one Farmer-Labor member, voted for recommitment. Eighteen Democrats one Progressive and one Farmer-Labor voted against recommitment.

The opposition has been asked to frame a substitute making some changes in procedure in the lower courts.

MEMORIAL TO WILL ROGERS.

The beautiful Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun is to become one of the most unique singing towers in the world. Spencer Penrose, who has built the granite memorial on Cheyenne mountain, half a mile above the Broadmoor hotel, at Colorado Springs, Col., is now having installed an elaborate system of Westminster chimes and vibra harp which can be operated automatically or through a console on which concerts can be given.

The silvery notes will be amplified and sent out over the entire Pike's Peak region. Westminster chimes will be heard on the hour and each quarter hour, starting with the songs of the birds at dawning of each new day and continuing until 11 at night when they close the day with a hymn. After dark, floodlights will illuminate the shaft like a jewel set in velvet. The lights will come on gradually ten seconds before the song of the chimes, and thirty seconds after the last note has been lost in the night, the light will be dimmed to extinction.

The singing tower will be in readiness for formal dedication of the shrine on Sept. 6th. Almost two years have been required to complete the memorial.

ROOSEVELT VETO OVERRIDDEN.

The Senate on Thursday, by a vote of 71-19, passed the Farm Loan bill over the veto of the President. The bill, which now becomes a law, extends emergency interest rates on Federal farm loans one year. The House overrode the veto July 13, by a vote of 260-97. The new law extends the 3 1/2 per cent interest rate on approximately $2,000,000,000, and provides a 4 per cent rate for the following year.

It is said that babies now eat four times as much as their parents ate, as infants.

Random Thoughts

KNOWING AND THINKING.

Knowing oneself is a big problem but not a bigger one than knowing our associates; and in both instances we need to have, as nearly as possible, full assurance that there is no "think" connected with the "know." Unless we first know ourselves our knowledge of others is quite apt to be limited.

Sometimes, when we say we "know" Mr. and Mrs. Brown "very well," we may mean only that we know them by faces, form and voice. "Knowing" persons, and knowing "things" about them, are very different things.

The whole "thinking" business is attended by a considerable amount of danger, for the reason that we may lack close intimate knowledge. We may know by hearsay, or deduction, but not by actual fact.

So, when we try to decide on who is what? and pass it on as opinion, and possibly evidence, we need first to be very positive that we go no further than we actually know the way.

Unfortunately, we make errors very easily. The mind is nimble; the tongue is "on a pivot" we sometimes say; the eye is "quick as a wink," and often before we realize it, we have done, or said something rash, or wrong, that is difficult to correct, but should be corrected, promptly, even should so doing cause us humiliation.

FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1937.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR.

During recent years we have read a good many articles under the above caption, all more or less alike, in which the editor is pictured as a forlorn, seedling individual, or has at least made notoriously poor success with pleasing his subscribers, or has in some way failed to "make a hit" at his job.

Or, it may be that the editor exercises his art, writing about "paying in advance" and intimating pretty strongly others than readers need shoes. On the whole it seems that far away back there has been a little of a tiff of some sort always going on, by and between ye editor, and ye subscriber, such as should not be.

One rarely hears all one likes to hear, when he goes to church. Almost always the pastor is "wrong in some cases and seems real persistent about it. We see a play, or a picture, some time, and we very decidedly disagree with some parts of it. And some of our neighbors are pretty hard to get along with.

And we think this is about the way it is between the country editor and some of his subscribers—there are misfits on both sides but none are as bad as the other thinks.

Why does anybody want to be an Editor—that's the question, gentlemen of the jury? Is it for the purpose of becoming wealthy? The testimony is overwhelmingly against it. Is it an avenue toward the goal of popularity? Tell us where a few of these goals are located—and be sure you don't get mixed up over the name.

Some say, "Why, an editor gets into society, and if he is smart enough he gets into politics and then finds ways to get on government pay rolls." This is hardly visible in the facts collecting department.

But, why always "harp on" the worst there is in life? The big majority of subscribers are in "the pay in advance class." They do stick to the little home weekly and prove it. They do chase away the "What's the use" lament. They are the very "salt of the earth"—and might their tribe be larger! They help more than they know toward social betterment—that is the real aim of every country weekly that deserves to live.

MERGING FOR ECONOMY.

In church circles we hear much of merging groups into larger groups, for several reasons, one of which is for economy. We doubt, however, whether it can be demonstrated that the overhead expense of the combined bodies is less than the combined overhead of the separate units.

Now comes a proposal to merge counties. The argument is that with good roads and automobiles there is no longer any need for small counties. We are told that three years ago three counties in Georgia merged, Campbell and Milton being united with Fulton, in which Atlanta is located, to form a greater Fulton county, and that the combination has been to the great advantage of the sections that surrendered their individual identity.

The Valley Register, of Middletown, Md., suggests that maybe Georgia has started something. Well, our guess is that whatever has been started in that direction will not go far. We have just celebrated the centennial of Carroll, and all rejoiced in the prosperity and development of our county as a separate unit. We are sure no one made any suggestion about going back to the original line-up.

It is true that under the New Deal the tendency is to concentrate authority. There is a tendency for the state to take away the autonomy of the counties, and for the federal government to take away the autonomy of the states, but we are confident that the people will sooner or later call a halt on that movement. Ordinarily the nearer we keep management to the thing managed, the more we make for efficiency, and for economy too.

"A little farm well tilled" is better than a large farm neglected or extravagantly managed.

Take a look or two at the way centralization of authority works. Our public roads have been turned over to the State Roads Commission, and their condition is as bad as they have ever been in a quarter of a century, if not worse. What is the trouble? Management is too far from the thing managed. The few men who are compelled to see the whole State, are unable to see its several parts. We believe that the State Roads Commission ought to think less of boulevards, and more about 16-foot roadways that would be passable, with only a few feet on either side for right-of-way.

Take another illustration of centralized economy (?) The Resettlement administration is building many hundreds of homes with a view to making them available for families with low incomes—to be rented of course, in the hope of their paying back the cost to the Government. A sample is the new town with the fine name of Greenbelt, in Maryland, near Washington. Senator Byrd is authority for the statement that this housing plan is costing the Government from $10,000 to $20,000 per residence.

How can a man on a small salary pay rent that will yield any reasonable return on an investment of that kind? It is not that the houses are so much finer than privately built homes, but the trouble is with the unreasonable extravagance of ordinary government operations. Here is a sample of the way our national debt has been boosted beyond anything to equal it in all the history of the world.

And while we are on the subject of Government economy, an item clipped from the Scottish Rite "Bulletin" is worth reading:

"President Roosevelt recently named to the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, Robert Lee Williams, who has been federal judge for the Eastern District of Oklahoma since 1919. The appointment carries with it a salary increase of $2,000 annually. Judge Williams was sixty-eight years of age last December. It is understood he will retire at seventy under the provision of the judiciary act which would permit him to then retire on full pay.

"Observers have expressed surprise at the appointment in view of the proposed plan for the reorganization of the Supreme Court by infusing the federal judiciary with new and young blood to revitalize it. Others, particularly the tax-paying public, are mindful of the fact that this promotion of Judge Williams will enable him to retire on full pay in less than two years, and thus receive $2,000 per year increase in salary for the remainder of his life."

CONGRESS MAY REDEEM IESELF

To those who had become pessimistic over the "rubber stamp" character of much congressional action, there are cheering indications lately in the events happening in both houses.

The founders of our government never intended that a time should come when prepared legislation should come out of the White House, and when Congress would be expected just to stamp its O. K. upon the bills. But this had come to be the case to an extent that reflected upon the intelligence and the integrity of senators and representatives. And it had gone so far that the late James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, refused to be a candidate for re-election, saying he did not wish to be the 425th part of a "rubber stamp" Congress.

But the courage and determination of opposition senators in the court fight, and the remarkable speech recently delivered by Congressman Summers in the House, together with the manner in which that speech was received, gives hope that the disgraceful situation of the past is not likely to be kept up indefinitely. Let us hope that the indications do not deceive us.

HOLY LAND SURGERY.

Little Palestine, a nation about the size of Massachusetts, will be cut up into three countries if the report of the British Royal Commission on Palestine, made public last week, is accepted by Parliament as a basis for action.

Like Solomon, who was petitioned by two women claiming the same baby, the Commission faced two foes, both Semitic, who claim Palestine as their national home. Like Solomon, the Commission recommended that the property in dispute be "divided with the sword" and a portion presented to each claimant.

Since the League of Nations set up its British-administered mandate there in 1922, the Holy Land has bled with continual strife between 410,000 Jews, who sought a Zionist refuge within its borders, and 850,000 Arabs who were already there. The Arab general strike last summer marked a degree of bitterness which no halfway measures such as immigration restriction could hope to moderate.

Throwing up its hands, the Commission confessed that nothing short of surgery would heal Palestine's woes. It proposed to assign all Galilee, the Esdraelon valley and most of Beisan to the Jews. That includes Haifa, best natural harbor on the Palestine coast.

Except for Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth and a strip on each side of the Jerusalem-Jaffa road, the rest would be joined to Trans-Jordan, an adjacent Arab state under British mandate. The tiny area around Jerusalem, which both Jews and Arabs revere as their holy city, and the corridor to Jaffa would remain under British control.

Ruling these new lines across Palestine's scarred old map would mean that 250,000 Arabs would be left living on the Jewish side of the frontier. To evacuate the exiled Arabs, Trans-Jordan would receive $10,000,000. Whether, like Solomon, the Commission would be hailed as all-wise, remained uncertain at the week's end. Jewish leaders seemed willing to accept the plan. Arab factions were split between those who favor bisection and die-hards who hold out for complete independence from Britain.—The Pathfinder.

PROFITS AND LOSSES.

With nearly the same frequency as ever, we hear agitators suggesting that we ought to replace our system of government and economics with some other system—socialism, communism, anarchism, or what have you. These detractors have a habit, too, of referring to our present system as a "profit" system.

To use a homely simile, it would be as bad to mention ham without eggs, or bread without butter, as it would be to describe our system as simply a "profit" system. It is, instead, a "profit and loss" system.

Many persons look upon corporations as profit makers. They fail to remember that corporations have had years just like individuals do. And, like individuals, in good years they need to build up their reserves and credit to tide them over bad years. The authors of the corporation surplus tax forgot that, for although they would tax profits which go into reserves they make no allowance for the application of profits to debts. Nor do they let corporations build up reserves for inevitable rainy days without paying penalty taxes.

Statistics sometimes are boring. But in view of the fact that corporations usually are built up as profit-makers, and never loss-takers, here are some from the Treasury Department's Statistics of Income and the National Industrial Conference Board which are extremely interesting:

In 1929, which seems to be the level we now aim for, 39.8 per cent of the nation's manufacturing corporations lost money. The best year since the war was 1919, when only 23.5 per cent reported losses. In 1932, exactly 73 per cent of the nation's manufacturing corporations made no net income, and in 1934, the last year for which figures have been tabulated, the loss-takers constituted 72.7 per cent of the total.

That seems to be a real "profit and loss" system.—Industrial Press Service.

THE POSTOFFICE WON'T "TAKE SIDES?"

At the present time, the government is in the power business on a wide scale. It is proposed that this scale be immensely broadened in the future, with government plants operating in every section of the country.

In view of the government's action, through the postoffice department, in recent strikes, possible results of this are interesting and important.

The postoffice refused to deliver parcel post packages addressed to workers within a picketed steel plant on the grounds that it would not "take sides" in an industrial dispute. Suppose the government likewise supplied the electric power to such plants. With the mail precedent in view, could it not decline to deliver current? By supplying electricity it would enable men at work to continue at work and would be definitely "taking sides."

There is nothing far fetched in this. For the first time in our history, the postoffice has refused to deliver mail when it was possible to do so. Electric power is today the sole source of energy in the great bulk of industries of all kinds—without power, all operations automatically come to a stop. If the postoffice feels that the delivery of mail to a strike-bound plant shows prejudice in favor of one side, certainly the delivery of power would show prejudice to a far greater extent.

This little incident shows the staggering amount of control over all our lives and industries achieved by government when it controls and operates basic industries and services. Let government go far enough into business, and it will become the decisive factor in differences of all kinds, with the power to make or break any industry, any movement, any enterprise.—Industrial News Review.

THE WIND IS SHIFTING.

Washington, D. C., July '37—The American people are not easily aroused, but there are signs in the wind that they are getting sick and tired of some of the things that have been happening along the labor front.

It has seemed discouraging for months that the great American public seemed to condone the inactivity of spineless public officials. It seemed, for a time, that while recognizing the rights of labor to collective bargaining, that the public neither knew nor cared what methods were used by various labor organizers, or whether or not the rights of the man who wanted to work were disregarded.

But apparently the wind is changing its direction. Suddenly we find the politicians, whose ears have been glued to the grounds we may be sure, changing their tactics. Do you suppose that they just happened to change their minds? Do you imagine that it was after long study and meditation that they decided that the man who wanted work needed protection, that perhaps the owners of property had a few rights after all, and that maybe sitdown strikes were illegal?

Not on your life! They have an eye on the next elections. They are just one jump ahead of the parade, and that parade is not going in the direction some of them thought it was going a few months ago. They see now that the wage earners, the farmers and the small business men are getting fed up on the way things have been going. The politicians didn't get their ideas from their colleagues in Washington, or at the state capitals; they got them in the form of letters from their constituents in the rural areas, and in the form of reports of things that were happening in the small towns and small cities.

The first dim suspicion that perhaps not everybody was going to cheer for the sitdown crowd came at Hershey, Pa., where a few hundred solid farmers showed the sitdowners a trick or two. Then there was that little affair at Monroe, Michigan, where the wage earners stood up and fought for their right to work and to earn a living for their families. Youngstown and Johnstown showed again that a few men cannot rob thousands of their jobs if gangster methods are ruled out. In these and in scores of other communities all over the country small business men, professional men and the average citizens have seen the danger and have expressed their feelings to their local officials in no uncertain manner.

So now we find that various Governments are seeing the advisability of using a firm hand against the antics of radical organizers; state legislatures are seeking means of eliminating the sitdown strike, which Miss Perkins has finally conceded to be illegal; and that the real friends of labor are loudest of all in their demands that steps be taken to make the unions responsible for their actions. They see the danger to labor of a situation such as that in the case of General Motors, where "wildcat" strikes have caused more than 200 separate shutdowns violating the agreement signed on March 12.

The lesson of the last few weeks is that no man can ignore the power of public opinion, particularly when it is voiced by people in small communities all over the land. Not for long.—J. E. Jones N. I. News Service.

Brides of Granna Island

Wear Queen's Headdress

Not orange blossoms but a crown intended for a queen is the wedding headdress of brides at Granna, Sweden, on the island of Visingsö in Lake Vattern, one of Sweden's largest and finest lakes. Now over 300 years old, the crown was originally made for a daughter of the Brahe family, which built the Castle of Visingsborg and the Brahe church on the island.

The girl, Ebba Brahe, was loved by Gustavus Adolphus and the crown was made for her wedding to him, but for reasons of state he was forced to give her up and marry a princess instead. The crown was placed in the Brahe church, where visitors to the island sometimes see it worn by a bride of the parish.

The castle built by the Brahe family was destroyed by fire in 1718 and became an imposing ruin over-run by vines. The family is also credited with founding Granna, called by travelers one of the loveliest towns in Sweden. Besides being famous for its beauty, Granna has a great reputation as the "Pear Town" of Sweden. The original pear tree was planted more than 300 years ago in a hillside orchard near the one street of the town, and long was known as a national monument.

Snakes Misunderstood,

According to an Expert

Humanity's loathing of snakes has given rise to universal misunderstanding of the reptile kingdom, according to Dr. H. K. Gloyd, director of the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

First, Dr. Gloyd says, there are few poisonous snakes in this country. Second, the most deadly species are the prey of other varieties and few survive. And third, effective serums now may be obtained to halt the venom's advance before great harm is done.

Dr. Gloyd, who has studied North American poisonous snakes for more than a decade, says the most deadly variety is the huge American bushmaster found in Central America. Both its size and potent venom are factors.

In the United States the snakes most to be feared are the familiar "rattlers" and the moccasin species, chiefly the cottonmouth, the only poisonous water snake in this country.

Out of his broad reptile study, Dr. Gloyd has developed refutations of popular theories on snakes, their habits and treatment of their bites. He denies the age of a rattler is recorded in the number of "rattles" appended to its tail, for he says the snake may add from two to five segments yearly.

FARM TOPICS

LICE, MITES CHECK THE BIRDS' HEALTH

Profits Reduced in Summer by Lack of Care.

By L. M. Black, Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, WNU Service.

Dealing with the lice and mite menace on the poultry farm is one of the many details which so greatly affect the efficiency, and consequently the profits, of poultry keeping in summer.

When various parasites go unchecked, the birds' feed consumption and productiveness are seriously curtailed. Lice and mites are two species which are easily recognized and on which war should be declared as soon as they are detected.

To find lice, carefully inspect the skin on the abdomen of several birds. When present, lice may be noticed hurrying to take refuge beneath the feathers. Their presence may also be noted by the existence of egg masses on the shorter feathers about the head of the bird or on the fluff feathers on the abdomen.

The easiest and most practical treatment for body lice is to apply nicotine sulphate of 40 per cent strength in a thin stream to the roost tops. Treat the roosts about a half hour before dark and repeat the treatment in a week to 10 days. Two such treatments should protect the flock for the rest of the summer. The principle of the treatment is that the heat of the birds' bodies volatilizes the nicotine, which penetrates the feathers and kills the lice. Unhatched lice eggs are unaffected by the treatment but will have hatched by the time the second application is made.

Mites, unlike lice, do not live constantly on the bodies of birds. Their presence is detected by a close inspection of the crevices about the roosts and nests where they may be observed as a grayish or reddish powder-like substance that moves when closely watched. Hiding in such crevices by day these tiny parasites migrate to the birds' bodies at night and, after sucking blood, return to their hiding places. An application of an approved mite oil, old crank-case oil, or crude oil to the roosts and nests will eliminate all danger from these pests for at least six months, depending upon the lasting qualities of the oil used.

Handle Wool Carefully in Packing for Market

In the preparation of wool for the market, special care should be taken to tie and pack the fleeces properly. Manufacturers discriminate against damaged or dirty fleeces because of the excessive shrinkage which takes place when such wool is cleaned. Shearing sheep on a clean floor or canvas will protect the fleece from dirt, grass or straw. Do not let the animal kick the fleece apart. It is hard to wrap a torn fleece as neatly as an unbroken one. Before a fleece is rolled, all tags, dirt and foreign material should be removed. Then the sides and neck should be folded in and the entire fleece rolled into a compact ball, starting with the tail-end and ending with the shoulders.

Never use binder twine for wrapping up a fleece, because the fibers work into the wool, do not take dye and appear in yarn and woolen fabrics as coarse, colorless material. Buyers object to fleeces tied with such twine. Instead, use standard paper twine. Most fleeces should be wrapped two ways around, especially if the wool is short.—Wallaces' Farmer.

Agricultural Notes

Keep fresh, clean water or milk before growing poultry.

Each 500 chicks should have at least one acre of range.

Cannibalism among chicks is largely caused by lack of something to do, to over-crowded houses, or to hunger.

Chicken tight fencing should be erected to keep the birds off diseased ground.

Washing eggs diminishes their keeping quality and hastens their deterioration.

Chopped Swiss chard is an excellent green feed for chickens during the hot months.

Do not overcrowd young chickens. Allow at least one foot of floor space for every three chicks.

Cuba has ruled that small tomatoes may be sent out of the country, but large ones must be kept at home.

Public schools at Tula, Russia, have produced a hardy frost-resistant grain resembling wheat by crossing wheat and rye.

Records kept by 163 Oklahoma farm women for Oklahoma A. and M. college show they contribute an average of $286 annually to the family income.

ALBANIA STEPS ON IT; TURNS MODERN

Law Forbids Moslem Women to Wear Their Veils.

Washington, D. C.—Veils are "out" in Albania, according to the National Geographic society. No longer will Albanian women in long, dark coats or bunched red trousers peer at the world from behind filmy headgear. The Albanian parliament recently passed a law forbidding the country's Moslem women to veil their faces. This decree will chiefly change the fashions of older women, since most of the young ones have already come out in the open.

"At the nearest point, Albania is only about fifty miles away from Italy across the Adriatic, yet until recently this rugged mountain country on the west coast of the Balkan peninsula has remained more oriental than occidental. It was under Turkish influence from 1479 to 1912. In 1930, some 688,000 of its more than a million inhabitants were Moslems. Not until 1928-1929, when the new Albanian penal and civil codes superseded Ottoman laws, was polygamy legally abolished.

"Under Turkish rule, Albania was kept backward. About its only industry was rug-weaving. Since teaching in the Albanian language was forbidden, education remained stagnant. Today, Albania has 581 state-supported primary schools, 14 secondary schools, and 278 of its citizens studying in foreign universities.

War Starts Change.

"Until the World war, Albania's interior remained isolated, barbaric, chiefly accessible only by horseback. Then suddenly the situation was changed by road construction and the arrival of motor transport. Albanian citizens were given a hand in this transformation, for each plain-dweller was made responsible for taking care of a twenty-foot section of road. By the end of 1933 the country possessed 1,118 miles of motor roads. In mountainous regions, where the roads were continuously interrupted by mountain torrents, bridges were built. The 360 bridges in existence in 1921 were increased to 2,674 by March, 1933.

"A decade ago it took a traveler on horseback at least eleven hours to make the approximately thirty-mile trip from Tirana (Tirane) across the mountains to the great plain of Elbasan. Today the same trip can be made by automobile in less than an hour and a half by a road opened in 1933 which winds in hairpin curves up the steep slopes, crossing many bridges and Kraba pass, 2,625 feet above sea level.

"Motor transport is rapidly being adopted. Taxis flit through the streets of Tirana, the army has a section of armored cars, and, although donkeys and pack ponies are still used extensively in the mountainous districts, automobiles are becoming a common sight on the plains.

American Influence.

"Much of the modernization of Albania is due to returned American immigrants. In 1931 there were 30,000 Albanians working in the New England and Middle Western states. On returning to their native land, those who had wealth erected in Tirana and elsewhere, modern homes equipped with electricity, steam heat, telephones, and modern plumbing. They approve of their country's new national bank, fifty-five post and telegraph offices, and excellent air service established in 1925. Their sons play football, and their daughters attend movies and in shops demand lingerie like that of popular American movie stars.

"Although Albania has an area of about 10,629 square miles, much of this is covered with rugged mountains, forested or barren, and some more than 6,000 feet high. Only about a thousand square miles are cultivated and these primitively. Draining of Lake Malik in the southeastern part of the country reclaimed thousands of acres of farm land.

"One of the chief crops is tobacco. Since Albanians are inveterate smokers, one of the first pieces of apparatus introduced to start Albania's 'machine age' was a machine that made cigarettes.

"Important also among the crops are corn and olives. In former years only the olives were exported and olive oil had to be imported. Two oil refineries were established in 1930 and the next year olive oil was exported. Cotton, the growing of which was begun during the war, is raised for domestic use. Between 1933 and 1935, orchardists received approximately 200,000 free fruit trees from the Albanian government.

"Most of the country dwellers who are not farming are raising live stock. On the plains roam cattle, sheep, and goats. These furnish wool, hides and dairy products. Cattle, cheese, and hides are exported."

Beginning of Purse Races

It has been customary to credit the state of Virginia with originating horse racing for prizes in this country, because it was established that there were turf contests in that state as early as April 10, 1674. But horses were raced and trophies awarded in New York beginning in 1665. It is merely presumed that a race was run in March, 1665, on the track which Col. Richard Nicolls called the New Market course, in Hempstead, Long Island. Colonel Nicolls, who arrived in America in 1664, as the first English governor of New York, called the meeting, but it is established that there was a race on March 25, 1668, because there is in Yale university's collection of old American silver a porringer given to the winner of the contest in 1668.

Blind Present Opera

Written and performed entirely by blind people, "The Stowaway," an opera, was pronounced a success when presented recently at Sheffield, England. The composer was A. Varley, one of the city's blind men, and it was his first effort. All parts were played by sightless men and women, who knew their roles perfectly and moved about the stage with surprising assurance.

Men Do House Work to Save

Seven men students at Massachusetts State college, Amherst, Mass., are proving that they can have a successful home without a woman's touch, reports the college. In order to cut down their living expenses they have hired a house and do their own buying, wash their own dishes, and keep their house clean. They call themselves the E. E. boys —Everybody Eats.

Lightning Cures Boy It Silenced

While herding pigs Peter Schoti, a farmer's son, took shelter under a tree in Yugoslavia to escape a storm. Lightning struck the tree, according to a report received at Belgrade, and rendered the lad deaf and dumb. Three days later Peter again sought shelter under a tree. Lightning also struck that timber, hurling the boy to the ground. When he recovered he could speak and hear perfectly again.

Strange Claim Filed

One of the oddest claims ever made against a public body in England was recently filed with the Public Assistance committee at Leicester. It was for $50 expenses incurred for mourning by a family informed mistakenly that one of its members had died in a Leicester institution.

CORRESPONDENCE

Latest Items of Local News Furnished
By Our Regular Staff of Writers

All communications for this department must be signed by the author; not for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributed are legitimate and correct. Items based on mere rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted.

We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by First Mail, west on W. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach us in time.

FEESBURG.

Cooler weather over Sunday, a nice "let up" after the heat of last week. We were in sympathy with the folks who had to make hay while the Sun shone. One neighbor told another this is the 52nd load of hay I've hauled in this year. Not only much hay—but loads of work, too.

Last week the body of "Billy" Rites Jr., was interred in Mt. Union cemetery beside his parents. He was a native of our town, son of William F. and Mollie Pfeiffer Rites. Rev. G. H. Stocksdale of the M. P. church conducted services at the Hartzler Funeral Home in Union Bridge, and at the grave, Mr. Hartzler and son sang, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and kind hearts donated floral emblems.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Wolfe entertained his brother, Chester Wolfe, wife and three children on Thursday evening of last week; and for Sunday evening supper Mrs. Robert James (nee Maud Hood) four children and her sister, Mrs. Edith Hood Stone, all of Frederick City.

The Delphes were again invited to the delightful summer place of Paul Delphes (son of Grant), on the Potomac river a few miles from Washington last Sunday. 150 persons were present, and needless to say every one had a good time.

Mrs. Wilbur Miller has been suffering with gall trouble, and was taken to Md. General Hospital, Baltimore, for X-rays and special attention on Tuesday morning.

We rarely read a serial before its conclusion, so when Patterns of Wolfpen appeared in print in The Carroll Record a year ago, we laid the copies away for a more convenient season; then many things called for attention, until recently we found leisure to really enjoy the story. We loved the descriptions of the early settlers, their mode of living, and deep-thinking; of the virgin forests, and the great panorama of hills, valleys, and streams, and the fair romance. It is wholesome, clean, and inspiring. Thanks for a good story.

Two things have especially impressed us this season; the numberless insects in the air at night; and never have we heard so many persons tormented with skin disorders—hives, boils, poison eczema, nerves, etc., and it makes one scratch.

Last Thursday evening while calling on our friend, Mrs. G. W. Baughman, who is vacationing at Blue Ridge Summit, we witnessed a sham marriage of "Wally" and the Duke, as it was their weekly entertainment night for the lodgers, and a jolly stunt it was! Wally in her infancy was amused by the colored servants in a cake-walk; and as a bride—after she had kept step to the wedding march, and consented to take the groom for her third husband; a gipsy band—while in costume, seated around a camp-fire, sang one of her favorite songs. It was done by a sweet voice—to a sweet tune, with a tambourine and the group in chorus. A gentleman of our party kissed the bride—amid applause, then we offered congratulations, and came down the mountain in clear moon-light. It was lots of fun, and now we know how our friends renew their youth at vacation Lodge.

Roy Crouse has suffered this past month with rheumatism in the shoulder and arm, which greatly hinders his usual activity.

Mrs. Frank Shriver is recovering from a sore limb and other complications; and also Mrs. Katie O'Connor from a disordered liver and bad hay fever cold. Wonder how we'd all carry on if we were never sicker than we are!

The masons have completed their work on the exterior walls of Mt. Union Church, and the painters are finishing their part and all the work looks good. With new windows, altar, and some interior furnishings it will be much improved; and ready for re-dedication services after Rev. Kroh returns from his vacation in August.

How things change! Some years ago the Lutheran reunion at Pen-Mar was the most talked of event of the season, and it seemed every one hoped to attend; this year we do not know of any one around us going, nor have we heard a report from it, and even the papers failed to enlighten us.

Now we are drying or processing beans—before the beetle gets them. Sweet corn is on the tables, and home grown peaches are in local markets; cucumbers and tomatoes also. What provision.

According to an article published in the Inquirer Newspaper, Bellefonte, Pa., on June 5th, 1937, which article was copied from a Philadelphia paper; Gov. Earle, of Pa., was petitioned to preserve the Benner home near Bellefonte, Pa., the sponsors seek to create a State Shrine out of the Benner mansion. The former home of Philip Benner one of the founders of Bellefonte, and son of Henry Benner, who was held a prisoner by the British in Philadelphia during the Revolutionary War. SWIMMING POOLS.

This advice comes from the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the Maryland State Department of Health:

Going for a swim? Public pools are taking the place of the old swimming hole in every section of the State and it is no longer necessary for you to go a long distance to enjoy your favorite recreation. But, take a look before you go in to be sure that the place meets the sanitary requirements of the State Department of Health.

Because the water in such pools can be easily contaminated and thereby become a "carrier" of disease germs, regulations designed to protect those who use the pools, from avoidable hazards, have been adopted by the State Board of Health.

The regulations require that an operating permit shall be obtained from the State Department of Health before the pool may be opened to the public. Such a permit is issued only after an inspection has been made by the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering and the sanitary conditions of the pool have been found to be satisfactory. Follow-up inspections are made during the operating season and if conditions are unsatisfactory, the permit is revoked until they are corrected.

Since an improperly designed or inefficiently operated swimming pool can be classified only as a health menace, the State Department of Health takes this means of warning the public against the use of such pools as are unable to exhibit an official operating permit.

Mrs. O'Jawish—Well, Mrs. Murphy, I'm glad to see you. How did you like your trip abroad this summer?

Mrs. Murphy—Well, I liked Paris, London and Rome, but the best part of the whole thing was the trip over. Don't miss that, whatever you do, if you ever go to Europe.

MEETING OF CARROLL COUNTY WELFAREBOARD.

The July meeting of the Carroll County Welfare Board was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bower, Taneytown, with five members and the Executive of the Board attending. The meeting was in charge of J. Keller Smith, chairman.

Routine matters of business were transacted and numerous technical and informal matters were discussed at length. It was reported that no families having male employables under 65 years of age are now receiving money assistance. Service is being given to several. By order of the State Director WPA projects have been closed in seven Maryland counties of which Carroll County is one.

Fifteen applications for old age assistance were granted in July.

Six applications withdrawn for other reasons.

Ten applications rejected because of ineligibility.

Eight applications voluntarily withdrawn by applicants because of the fact that conditions have become more favorable.

Several recent inquiries indicate that some persons are not familiar with eligibility requirements for old age assistance. The requirements are:

- 1—Age, 65 years.
 - 2—County residence—1 year immediately preceding application.
 - 3—State residence—5 years out of the last 9 years.
 - 4—Have no children who are able to support parents.
 - 5—Have not made assignment or transfer of real estate, money in bank or other assets within two years immediately preceding filing of application unless to meet an urgent need. No property transfer is considered urgent except in cases of meeting a required claim.
 - 6—Must assign as security for assistance such part of personal property as County Welfare Board shall require.
- The following policies of the Board are still in effect:
- Cost of medical care, except in cases of long illness, must be met from pension grants. This plan, now a State requirement, has proved satisfactory through co-operation of physician, applicant, and Welfare Board.
- According to State law, life insurance is now exempt from lien to the extent of $300 face value, but Welfare Board allows for premium on policies up to $150.
- On death of a recipient reasonable funeral expenses not exceeding $85.00 may be paid by the County Welfare Board if deceased has no reserve for same and has no relatives who can pay the same.

HEBERLEY SISTERS QUARTETTE

The Heberley's Sisters Quartette, from York, Pa., will be the musical attraction on the Deerfield Open Air Religious programme Sunday night, July 25th., at 8 o'clock. This quartette of girls has been singing together about 6 years, and have given about 300 concerts, in Southern Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland. They have become widely known thru their singing over Radio Station WORK, York, Pa.

The blending quality of the voices of these girls is outstanding in the realm of music in this part of the country. This quartette is giving their time exclusively to evangelistic singing, featuring the Gospel hymns with very effective interpretation. To hear them is a treat any time.

This week, ending July 25th., the Deerfield Evangelistic meeting is being continued, with Mr. Dale Roth, of Biglerville as the special song leader, different visiting musical talent, and Dr. E. W. Leach, pastor of the 4th. U. B. Church, York, as the preaching evangelist.

The Sunday night service will be the close of the Evangelistic part of this open air religious programme. The rest of the program on Sunday night will be given to open air religious services with some of the strongest musical organizations of this part of the country on the program.

The "Cathedral in the Woods" presented to Camp Shikellimy of the Y. M. C. A., by the Kiwanis Club was dedicated Sunday afternoon. Taking part in the exercises were (above) Robert C. Benner, director of religious activities at the camp; the Rev. E. Martin Grove, pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church; J. W. McClanahan, president of the Kiwanis Club; John McI. Puzzle No. 18 Solved:

A DANGEROUS BILL.

(For the Carroll Record.)

Through your columns I should like to call the attention of your readers to the Sheppard-Hill Bill, temporarily shelved because of the Court debate, but likely to appear before the Senate later and possibly passed in the hurry of closing days. It is true that some of its most objectionable features, such as universal draft and the tax on industry, have been removed in committee, but it still remains a specimen of fascistic control which we might adopt innocently and suffer under grievously.

In short, it gives to the President in advance dictatorial power so that automatically in event of war would control all labor, and supposedly capital. But as everybody knows, and as the Philadelphia Record points out, the corporations are not the least worried and have made no remonstrance against the bill. In fact, the bill fits in with the idea of a famous industrialist that "an absolute monarch is needed in war time." The burden of dictatorship would fall most heavily on laboring men, whose collective bargaining and every advance made through their labor organization might be wiped out over night. Eight of the nine original sections of the bill definitely place "the President" in control over labor, wages, prices, and public service in a way foreign to our idea of democracy.

Once passed, the terms of the bill might easily be stretched to cover our agencies of public information, and even our churches. This is not merely a dream, for it has happened in Germany and Italy, where Industrial Mobilization has crushed the life out of labor organizations, and dictatorship has killed the freedom of the press and of the church.

The citizens of our county should declare to our Senators and Representatives their opposition to this bill.

HOW NEW YORK FAIR MOVES BIG TREES BY HUNDREDS

NEW YORK (Special).—As the housewife repots geraniums or the gardener moves berry bushes, so does the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation transplant state trees from five states to the 1216½-acre exposition site. The Fair's landscape engineers explain that the moving of the big trees differs from the replanting of small shrubs only in the matter of size, and that modern mechanical aids make possible the creation of a mature-looking park on the newly made land of Flushing Meadow.

Shown at the top of accompanying photographs is a grown maple that has just been restored to upright position after a 120-mile ride on a specially-built truck.

Note truck's winch and the secure balling of earth about the tree roots. In the center is a 35-foot Norway maple, 12 tons weight, moving the last few yards to its new home by means of the forward gear of a modern tree mover. All trees shown, a number of the 474 veterans moved this spring, are new to the great expanse of filled land. The Fair will move 10,000 trees and 250,000 shrubs.

LIME-BURNING IS NOW BIG INDUSTRY

Early in the history of the country many crude lime kilns were built, and much lime was burned, wherever outcroppings of limestone were found. Most of this lime was used for building purposes but much of it too went on the land after it had become air-slacked. Wood was cheap and abundant and was used in burning the limestone. The waste lime, mixed with the ashes, was often sold cheaply, as lime-ash. Today, states a writer in the Rural New-Yorker, most of the limestone that is used for making building lime is burned in large plants, and commonly with coal or oil, and any bi-product often has to be shipped by rail or hauled long distances, adding much to its cost.

Between 1850 and 1870 there was an agitation in favor of ground gypsum or land plaster for use on the land. A commercial drive in selling this product brought it into widespread use in the East. Much of the stone came by boat from Nova Scotia to Boston, New York and other coast cities, where it was finely ground and shipped to all the coastal states.

Gun for Plowshare

The Biblical ideal that, swords might be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks was attained symbolically in a recent celebration in Mexico, the twenty-sixth anniversary of the 1910 revolution. Before a large gathering at Torreón Coahuila, the oldest officer remaining who was in the 1910 revolution, Felipe Munguia, was given the honor of standing before the president. Approaching the president, the officer handed him an old-fashioned musket. Accepting it, the president in turn presented the officer with a plow to signify that Mexico has turned from fighting to tilling the soil.

The Golden Gate Bridge

Seven hundred feet longer than the George Washington Memorial bridge across the Hudson at New York, hitherto ranked as the world's greatest suspension bridge, the Golden Gate span, the longest, highest, widest, handsomest, costliest bridge in the world, connects San Francisco with the North-Bay Redwood empire. It is the only one ever flung across the extreme outer mouth of a major ocean harbor. If all its rivets were placed head to toe, they would form an iron serpent that would writhe for thirty-six miles.

Some Birds Choose Dark Nest, Hide White Eggs

All the owls choose dark places for their homes, and few make any attempt at nest building. The eggs of the tawny owl are found in holes in trees, and the decaying wood or other rubbish at the bottom forms the only nest. The barn owl chooses a bare board or other ledge in the sheltered corner of any old building, while the little owl is often content with a rabbit burrow on a grassy bank. All these birds lay pure white eggs with no markings.

Kingfishers and woodpeckers lay white eggs, and build dark homes in which to conceal them. The kingfisher is a clever engineer. She makes a tunnel in a sandy bank and, at the end of this, which may be four feet in length, she excavates a larger chamber in which the nest is made. This consists entirely of undigested fish bones which she casts up through the beak in the form of white pellets.

The little sand-martin also digs out a tunnel on a grassy bank, an even more wonderful feat than that of the kingfisher, which has a long sharp beak well adapted for digging, but the sand-martin has only a tiny beak. She also lays white eggs.

Woodpeckers make their homes in trees, boring through two or three inches of solid wood, then digging out a larger chamber in the heart of the trunk. The green woodpecker is the best known of the several species; in many country districts it is called the "wet weather bird," because its loud notes are so often heard just before rain. Kingfishers' and woodpeckers' eggs are pure white, have a gloss on their surface, and the shells are so thin that the yolk shows through, giving them a dainty pink tinge.

Aden, "Gibraltar of East"

Aden was Great Britain's first territorial acquisition during the reign of Queen Victoria. In 1838 an English vessel was wrecked in the vicinity of the town, and the crew and passengers were detained by the local Abdali chief. While negotiations were pending to settle this incident, acts of "treachery" were committed, and a military force was sent from Bombay under Major Baillie. Aden was seized by this expedition on January 19, 1839, and from that time until recently had been part of Bombay presidency.

A GIRL FARMER

By OSSIE BRIGGS
© D. J. Walsh.—WNU Service.

NANCY HALE took the pan of golden-brown biscuits from the oven and covered them carefully with a clean white towel.

She hoped Oliver would come while they were just ready to eat, but there was still no sign of him, else Shep would let her know. Shep, the shaggy pup that Oliver thought so much of, was outside eagerly watching for his master.

What had Oliver gone to town for anyway, the girl wondered as she set the supper table, which for more than a year now had been laid only for two. She was afraid he was troubled about something. But why didn't he tell her?

Ever since the farm came into their hands they had been partners and co-workers. Neither had had a secret from the other—until now.

An explosion of joyous barks from Shep told her her brother had arrived.

She ran to the window and saw him driving past to the barn.

It was still raining hard and the bay horse was drenched. So was Oliver, for he had neglected to take his slicker.

"Supper smells good," he remarked as he entered.

Nevertheless he ate so little that Nancy felt more concerned than ever.

"What's the matter?" she asked. "A trouble shared is half borne—you know the old saying."

She tried to smile, but her eyes were unusually serious.

"I've been putting off telling you in the hope everything would come out all right," Oliver replied. "It's just this: I can't get a cent to pay for the potatoes."

"Why not?" demanded Nancy in dismay.

"Mr. Barnes has no money. When he didn't send the check as he promised I felt mighty uneasy. I went to see him today. I think he's honest. But the bank has refused him another loan. And money is tight everywhere else."

Nancy dropped her head on her hand. Across the table the brother and sister regarded each other in troubled silence.

They were very young, brave, strong, very much alike in their slim, dark, honest-eyed way—never more alike than now when this mutual problem bothered them.

They had toiled from dawn to dusk over their potato crop. Three hundred bushels sold at the current prices would put them through the winter nicely. But now what were they to do?

"If you could get along here alone," Oliver said, "I could go to Texas with Mr. Sherman. He has bought a big tract of farming land and he wants a man to go down there with him and help him this winter. I saw him today. He said he'd board me and give me $100 a month. The fare wouldn't be anything because he's going to drive. He's going to start tomorrow morning at 3 o'clock. I said I'd talk it over with you."

"I can get along of course," Nancy said.

She knew how big that $100 a month looked to her brother, after what had happened to the potato crop.

"Why don't you go? I can get you ready in no time. Got everything handy for a good lunch. You better run right over to Mr. Sheldon's and telephone Mr. Sherman that you'll go."

Oliver sprang to his feet. A flush of hope made him look years younger than the worried man he had been a few moments before.

"Nancy! You're the best ever," was all he said.

He started for the door, but paused as a fresh thought smote him.

"I haven't got a cent of money to leave you. Meg's going to need some feed before the week is out and—"

With a laugh Nancy ran to the cupboard. Snatching down Grandmother Hale's cracked blue teapot, which was minus both spout and handle, she poured out a stream of silver coin upon the table before her brother's eyes.

"Butter - and - egg money saved against a rainy day," she said. "Don't worry about me, Oliver, I'll manage."

He almost laughed in return. Opening the door, he sped away into the rainy night, toward the neighborly light that beckoned from a distant hill-top.

Daybreak of a sunny morning so grateful after yesterday's rain found Nancy hard at work. She now had Oliver's tasks as well as her own—feeding the pig, milking the cow, caring for Meg and getting the place ready for winter besides looking after her flock of poultry, making butter and keeping house. But under the circumstances she was glad to be busy.

Mrs. Sheldon stopped on her way past the house that afternoon. "Well, I've no doubt you'll get along fine," she said. "But if you need anything you know where to look for friends. We'll do anything we can for you."

"I'll begin to ask a favor right now," Nancy said. "Last summer Mr. Sheldon wanted to buy my cow, Buttercup. I didn't think I could part with her then. But now that Oliver's going to be away all winter I shall be glad to sell her."

"I'll tell my husband."

Next morning Mr. Sheldon came, rope in hand, and led away the sleek, pretty Buttercup. Nancy stoutly tried to think only of the check he left in her hand.

With that check she bought feed for Meg and other necessary supplies and paid a bill that was due. These errands attended to, she went to the public library and stocked up with farm literature. She might as well study up about her profession. For, of course, farming was a profession nowadays.

All that winter the brightest moments for Nancy were those when running down to the mailbox beside the road she found the letter from Oliver which the rural postman had left there.

Once each month Oliver sent as much of his earnings as he could spare. Nancy always banked the money for him, although she did not tell him so.

A warm March brought fresh problems.

Oliver had not finished the plowing and it must be done now. Help was scarce, she could not ask aid of Mr. Sheldon, who had all he could do.

She decided to don a pair of old overalls Oliver had left behind, hitch Meg to the plow and see if she could turn a decent furrow by herself.

She turned one furrow with great difficulty. The soil stuck to the plowshare, resisted force.

Meg sweated with effort.

And Nancy's arms were fairly torn from their sockets. Releasing the plow handles, she let Meg rest while she leaned against the fence studying the situation. This land couldn't be plowed, that was plain. Queer soil. What was it, anyway?

She took up a damp clod and crumbled it slowly in her fingers. Something she had read flashed into her mind.

"Enough for today, Meg," she said. "We'll go back home." But she took the lump of earth with her.

Ten days later she received the analysis of her clod from the agricultural department of the state university, to which she had sent it. Her specimen contained a fine percentage of marketable clay, useful for building purposes. If she wished they would send her an expert, who could tell her more when he had looked the situation over.

One afternoon a dusty car stopped before the farmhouse door. From it stepped a gray-haired man. The expert! Nancy flew to welcome him.

Twenty minutes later she was running across lots to Mr. Sheldon's. Would he come, please? Mr. Owen wanted his help. This was the first the Sheldons had heard about Nancy's discovery. Both husband and wife left their work and went home with her.

"This field that's always kept you folks poor is going to take care of you now," said Mr. Sheldon, smiling. "You'll have some good news for your brother when he gets home."

"He's coming tonight," Nancy said breathlessly. "He hurt his hand so he can't do any more work for a spell. Oh, Mrs. Sheldon, don't you think we ought to have some sort of celebration for him?"

Mrs. Sheldon patted the girl's shoulder.

"I guess Oliver will think you've got up celebration enough when he finds you discovered what comes pretty close to being a gold mine in that old weed patch," she laughed.

Checker-Like Game Clew to Origin of Hawaiians

The fact that ancient Hawaiians were inveterate players of a game closely resembling checkers may prove the "missing link" to establish where they originally came from, according to ethnologists from the Bishop museum here, says a Honolulu United Press correspondent.

The game is known as konane, and so far as is known was played only in the Hawaiian islands and in no other part of Polynesia. Today there is only one person so far as is known, who knows all the rules of the game as it was played originally in the islands. She is Mrs. Kaahaina Naibe, ninety years old, of Kaila, Island of Hawaii.

Aside from checkers the only other pastime in the world it resembles is a Japanese game known as goban, which has been played there since the most ancient times.

This fact, it is believed, will have the utmost importance in bearing on the final decision as to the origin of the Hawaiian people. There is still the possibility that Hawaiians originated the game themselves, but in any event Captain Cook, who discovered the islands in 1778, reported that the game was a favorite among the inhabitants.

The "checkerboard" consisted for the most part of flat surfaces of rock or single lava boulders, and it is because of the durability of these that evidence of the game abounds in all parts of the islands. Many of the stone slabs with the designs on them have been uncovered by surveyors for the United States geological survey in all parts of the islands.

The principal difference from the modern checkerboard lies simply in the fact that instead of having the squares merely marked off they are generally hollowed out. The game was played with beach and white coral pebbles, much the same as checkers.

Lesson for July 25

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 12:21-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself.—Deuteronomy 7:6.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Ready for the Journey.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Ready to Start Home.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Prepares a People.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Equipped for a New Era.

"Let my people go"—such was the word of the Lord to Pharaoh through Moses and Aaron. "Who is the Lord, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go"—thus hardened Pharaoh his heart. The issue was so drawn for one of the great struggles of history. On one side was a bold and mighty monarch with all the resources of the empire of Egypt, and on the other an unorganized multitude of slaves. No, wait, on the other side was Almighty God! The outcome was never in doubt and through the unspeakable horror of the plagues we come to consider the last of the ten, the death of the first-born, with which is joined the establishment of the Passover.

The Passover is of sufficient importance to justify careful study simply as the perpetual feast of Jews, but to the Christian it is also a most blessed and instructive type of Christ who is, according to Paul, "our passover" (I Cor. 5:7). Let no one who studies or teaches this lesson fail to point to "the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

I. A Lamb Slain (v. 21).
The sacrifice appears, a gentle, submissive lamb, a male without blemish, which is separated for the giving of its life that the first-born in Israel might be saved.

Notice that God's instructions were explicit, and were to be obeyed if there was to be redemption. There are those in our day who would substitute any and every other method of salvation for God's revealed plan. They talk about character development, the redemption of the social order, peace and politics, and forget the Lamb of God.

II. A Blood Salvation (v. 22, 23).
The act of faith in marking the lintel and the doorposts with the blood, brought salvation to the families of Israel. Had they waited until they could reason out the philosophy of their promised redemption, or had they shrunk from the blood as their covering, their first-born would have been slain. It was when the destroying angel saw the blood that he passed over them.

Many there are in our time who speak disparagingly of the blood of Jesus Christ, but it is still the only way of redemption. "Without shedding of blood there is no remission." It ill befits an age that is so blasé and sophisticated as ours to attempt to cover its dislike for God's way of redemption by suddenly becoming too cultured and sensitive to hear of the blood of the Lamb of God shed on Calvary's tree for our cleansing from sin.

III. A Perpetual Memorial (vv. 24-28).

God wants his people to remember. We, like Israel, are to remember the bondage from which we were delivered. Down through the ages the Jews have kept the Passover. Our Hebrew neighbors do it today. Let us honor them for their obedience to God's command and at the same time seek to point them to the One who is the true Passover, Jesus Christ.

IV. Christ Our Passover (I Cor. 5:7).

Let us add to the assigned lesson text this New Testament passage which speaks of our Lord Jesus Christ as "our passover . . . sacrificed for us."

The bondage in Egypt was terrible in its afflictions and sorrows, but far more serious is the bondage in which men find themselves under sin and the rule of Satan. Surely there is need of divine redemption, and there is none to bring it to us but the Lamb of God. He was the One who without spot or blemish (I Pet. 1:19) was able to offer himself in our behalf that in him we might find "redemption through his blood" (Eph. 1:7, Col. 1:14).

"Is the blood upon the house of my life? Is the blood upon the doorpost of my dwelling place? Have I put up against the divine judgment some hand of self-protection? Verily, it will be swallowed up in the great visitation. In that time nothing will stand but the blood which God himself has chosen as a token and a memorial. The blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin" (Joseph Parker).

ALLEGHENIES HAVE BIG STONE CHIEF

Lo, these many years the destinies of White Sulphur Springs, once a famous hunting ground of various tribes of Indians during seasonal migrations from the East to the plains of the West, have been faithfully guarded unknown to white men by an old Indian chief, as yet unnamed.

Supreme for centuries in the stony silence of a wooded wilderness near the crest of the Alleghenies, this ageless Indian was recently discovered high up in the mountains by colonists of the Greenbrier while horseback riding on the nearby Bob's Ridge Trail, writes a White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., correspondent.

This old chief, formed of huge rocks, gives the Alleghenies an "Old Man of the Mountains," somewhat similar to the famous stone head seen profile in the Presidential Range of the White Mountains in New Hampshire. The old chief of the Alleghenies, however, differs, in that the likeness is a front view of his face, which reveals in a striking manner the high cheek bones and other facial characteristics of the Indian.

CODLING MOTH IS TRAPPED IN TREES

Traps to catch the codling moth, which causes extensive damage in apple orchards, were recently described by Prof. Harlan N. Worthley of the economic entomology division at Pennsylvania State college. Speaking before the American Association of Economic Entomologists in Atlantic City, Professor Worthley told of tests conducted with bait and light in trapping the insect pests over a three-year period.

Traps were placed high in every second tree in a circle of twenty-four trees in an unsprayed orchard and were rotated to complete the circle every twelve days, he said. Seventy-five-watt frosted bulbs provided the light and a fermenting mixture of molasses and water was used as the bait. Lighted bait traps caught 6.6 times as many female moths as the same traps without light, he reported, and over the three-year period lighted bait pans costing only a small amount were 2.27 times as effective as the more costly electrocuting type of trap.

Profit After Death

There was a time when the material profits of great artistry in the field of song ceased when the singer passed away. Then there were no such things as phonograph records to perpetuate the voice of a Jenny Lind, or Adeline Patti. The voice became a memory, and those who remembered it, soon became but a memory as well. But about the time when Enrico Caruso was at the height of his popularity, the discs were one of the most popular forms of entertainment, and even today, years after his death, the royalties from the sale of the records pay upwards of $50,000 a year to his estate. Thus does the voice of a great artist not only continue to thrill and inspire thousands, but to pile up material profits for his heirs.—Columbus Dispatch.

Cigar Tastes Corrected by Proper Soil Treatment

The poor taste and aroma of some cigars can be corrected by proper soil treatment, according to the Connecticut agricultural experiment station.

"Experienced cigar smokers," said Dr. P. J. Anderson, of the tobacco substation, "frequently correlate the taste with the appearance of the ash on the cigar. A dark muddy ash in most cases is associated with poor taste and aroma; while good cigars produce lighter colored ashes," reports the United Press.

The dark ash was found attributable to excess potash in proportion to other gases, causing incomplete combustion of the carbon, "and the gaseous products thus obtained are not so pleasant to the smoker as those resulting from full combustion."

"Good Luck" Eird Misnamed

Bird of good luck to many native tribes, the hammerkop has become an ill omen to people of Johannesburg, South Africa, who have goldfish ponds. Many ponds have been denuded of fish by the feathered fishermen. Haunting small creeks, they feed on frogs. Recently a Johannesburg resident put a frog pond near his pools of goldfish. Both frogs and goldfish began disappearing and soon all were gone. His experience has become the lot of many keepers of goldfish, but now that the hammerkop is fond of fish they do not know whether it will be worth while to restock ponds. The hammerkop builds a nest six feet in diameter with only a small opening for exit and ingress, usually on a hidden rocky ledge.

BANANA IS ONE OF THE OLDEST FOODS

The banana is probably one of the oldest of human foods. Its origin is in doubt. Some authorities say it is native to India and China; others that Columbus found it growing in America. As known today the banana is the result of centuries of cultivation, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bananas were practically unknown in the United States until shortly before the Civil war. Prior to that those reaching American shores were regarded as curiosities. In 1934 some 43,006,000 bunches came into the United States.

Although there are hundreds of varieties of bananas now on the markets, the principal commercial one is the familiar yellow-skinned fruit which comes chiefly from Honduras. Red bananas do not find favor because of their strong flavor.

Few foods can compare with the banana from the standpoint of economy; their average price throughout the past year being but 5 cents a pound. For this small outlay the purchaser gets a good amount of vitamins A, B, C, D, and G; an alkaline forming food; those minerals that are necessary to health, and wrapped in a naturally sanitary package.

The fruit with small brown dots covering the greater portion of its surface is riper than the clear yellow banana.

They should never be kept in an ice box, as this ruins the flavor and prevents maturing. One of the best methods is to place them in a paper bag with a string tied tightly about the opening, and hang them in a moderately cool room.

China Dropping Chopsticks

China is casting aside chopsticks for forks. The big Hongkong factory which turned out the wooden implements by the million has gone bankrupt, partly because of the steadily falling demand, partly because the Japanese have been flooding the market with cheaper sticks. In cities the call for forks is growing, while the chopsticks click a last defiance in rural districts.

VIRGINIA APPLES AN ANCIENT CROP

Virginia people have never been without apples, writes Vera Palmer in the Richmond Times-Dispatch. The colonists sent for home varieties in order to graft them onto the native crabapple stock, found here in abundance. In 1647 Sir William Berkeley had as many as 1,500 trees at "Green Spring," his plantation near Williamsburg, while a grower in northern Virginia had no less than 10,000 at about the same time. All of which, however, is a long way from the 6,500,000 trees standing today in commercial orchards, in addition to many thousands grown on the farms of every county in the state.

Because there was no method of transportation, most fruit in Colonial days and in the early years of the Commonwealth, was used at home. Many a bushel went into the making of good old apple brandy, for which Virginia early became famous. Large quantities also were used for cider. Virginia today has no less than 4,000 commercial apple growers whose orchards are scattered throughout the northern section of the state on both sides of the Blue Ridge mountains and all the way down to the North Carolina line.

Boy, Fishing, Catches Silver

With a bent pin and a piece of string, Raymond Harvey Bachelor, a small boy of Northcote, Australia, fished for yabbies but caught nearly $800 worth of silver ornaments. They had been stolen from the East Melbourne synagogue and had been thrown in to Darebin creek, where Raymond had gone fishing. After his first catch, which was a silver chalice, Raymond was too excited to wait for his line to catch what might remain. He jumped in and found several more ornaments.

Moon Phases Seen in Model

Every phase of the moon is shown on a papier-mache model as spotlights mounted on small carriages move in accordance with automatic controls installed on the lecture desk at Franklin Institute, Philadelphia. Lights of New York by L. L. STEVENSON

Those who, for one reason or another, do not care to mingle with the common herd at the cinema palaces or neighborhood theaters, have fallen into the habit of renting films for private showings in their own homes. Some have their residences fitted up with sound and projection equipment but most rent the entire outfit from films to operators. The practice is not entirely new but Variety reports that within the last two years it has grown into business of considerable proportions. Screen executives started it and others who can pay have fallen into line. Distributors do not care to rent pictures for private showings but there is nothing that they can do about it save jack up the price so that the cost may be as high as $600 a night. Few of the pictures are rented for large parties. Usually the renter and his family are the only ones who see them. Some of the addicts want only pre-views, while others rent pictures which have received rave notices.

Among those listed by Variety as frequently getting pictures for private showing are President Roosevelt, Jock Whitney, Irving Berlin, Eddie Cantor, Tony Sarg, T. Wallace Orr, John Mansville, Mrs. C. V. Whitney, Jules Bach, Walter Chrysler, Adolph Zukor, Harry M. Warner—and numerous other film heads—Frank Henderson, Marshall Field, A. C. Blumenthal, Paul Block, John Hartford and the McCormicks of Chicago. Jock Whitney is said to eye virtually every major picture, always getting them long before release. If the fact that the President had ordered a certain picture could be advertised the box-office response would be tremendous. But the Will Hays office refuses to permit such exploitation.

Many old-timers are extremely interested in the comeback of Gus Edwards by means of the radio. Edwards, who fostered the careers of Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Georgie Price, Groucho Marx, Eddie Buzzell and others, found it rather tough sledding a few years ago. The country scoffed at sentiment and everything smacking of lavender and old lace. Continual whispers that the stocky, gray-haired Gus was no longer in the chips went up and down Broadway and surely must have reached his ears. But Edwards merely smiled and hinted vaguely of annuities soon to become due. Performers, who started under his aegis and who had more dollars than they needed, endeavored to come to his rescue but Edwards declined all offers with thanks. Then came the turn, and recently he went to the West Coast to assail that front. Sixty years old and fighting with the stout-heartedness of youth!

Speaking of entertainers, there are Jack Benny and Jack Pearl. Whenever the two meet, there is a poker game. But when Benny came here from Hollywood, his time was so fully occupied that the usual sessions of the great American game had to be omitted. Recently, Pearl received a check from Benny for $100. A note explained that though there had been no game, Benny felt that he should pay his usual losses just the same.

Holding to the theatrical world, one more paragraph, the matter of cameras comes next. When John Gielgud returned to England, he complained that the candid cameras of theater-goers drove him almost insane. Up to that time nothing had been done about them though they were an annoyance to many theater-goers. Following the Gielgud complaint, however, there was action and candid cameras are now barred from most theaters. But recently a variety house reversed the rule by offering prizes for the best pictures taken in that theater by patrons. It seems that it would be much more to the point if something were done about match lighters.

Conductors Were Warned to Wear Shoes in 1897

Durand, Mich. — Seventeen rules for the instruction of employees and not for the information of the public are listed on Dayton Coal & Iron road time card for 1897, owned by Joseph C. Clancy, car distributor at the Durand Grand Trunk depot.

Some of the rules are: All trains will leave on time; no collisions allowed on this road; all trains must stop before running over stock of any kind; drink nothing but cold water while on duty; passenger conductors must wear shoes while on duty, socks not required.

'Yes!'"

"Now we can go ahead with our plans. I showed the Bank our financial statement and current orders; they liked our prospects for new business and agreed that things are looking better in our line. So they approved the application for our loan."

"This bank is always glad to make loans. Naturally, since it is lending its depositors' money, it must be satisfied that the loan is in accordance with sound banking practice."

It's no mystery
WHY A SPEED QUEEN
WASHES SO fast!

When you beat eggs or stir up a cake, you use a round bottom bowl. Because you know it will mix faster. The same principle applies in washing. A tub that is bowl-shaped washes faster than a flat bottom tub. And the Speed Queen is the only washer that has a Bowl-Shaped Tub!

Famous SPEED QUEEN BOWL-SHAPED TUB

In addition to its exclusive Bowl-Shaped Tub, the Speed Queen has double walls which keep the water piping hot through a whole washing. Since hot water cleans faster than lukewarm water—this adds further to the Speed Queen's high speed washing efficiency.

Come in and see the new 1937 models—priced as low as $39.50.
