FIRST AID CENTER BUILDING To be Established on the County Home Farm.

The general committee, composed of citizens and physicians interested in the establishment of a maternity center for indigent families in Carroll County and providing a place where prompt first aid can be given victims of automobile and other accidents met on Tuesday evening in the Coun-cil Chamber, Firemen's building. The purpose of the meeting was to receive the report of the committee named at a previous meeting of the general committee for the purposes of investigating suggested locations for a maternity and emergency first aid center, with their availability and estimated cost. The following districts of the county were represented: Former State Senator, D. J. Hesson, Taneytown; Rev. Miles Reifsnyder, Uniontown; John B. Baker, Manchester; James M. Shriver, Myers; John Spencer, Woolerys: Ray Barnes, member of House of Delegates, Franklin; Senator J. David Baile, New Windsor; G. S. La-Forge, Union Bridge; Dr. J. S. Graybill, Mt. Airy; Rev. O. G. Robinson, chairman; Mrs. J. Edgar Hyers, secretary of the general committee; Mayor George E. Matthews, Mrs. Frank Mather, Mrs. Esther K. Brown, Mrs. Ivan Hoff, Prof. Lewis H. Brumbaugh, Mrs. Frank T. Myers, Mrs. John Spencer, Dr. S. Luther Bare, Dr. C. L. Billingslea, J. Albert Mitten, Mr. Samuel Jenness, H. Peyton Gorsuch, Westminster. The following districts of the coun-

For the information of those who had not attended former meetings, Rev. Robinson outlined briefly the purpose of the movement and spoke of the urgent need for the proposed maternity and first aid center. The special committee reported that after a full discussion they decided that it would in their judgment be difficult if not impossible to raise amount required to purchase and repair the Albaugh property, known as the Longwell Place which had been thought a desirable location, and if purchased a maintenance fund of several thousand dollars would have to be provided

SAFETY PATROLS IN CARROLL COUNTY SCHOOLS.

Over 200 boys and girls in Carroll County Schools are now serving on Safety Patrols according to Percy M. Burke, Branch Manager of the Automobile Club of Maryland and the A. The Safety Patrols assist the smaller children in getting on and off the school buses while traveling to and from home. They, in co-opera-tion with the traffic officers, also assist at many dangerous street inter-sections. If the motorists would only reduce their speed, be on the alert co-operate with these Safety Patrols in the cities and also in the school zones in the counties, we feel sure that many accidents can be pre-Saftey posters for the bulletin boards and loose-leaf lessons in safety education for the various grades have already been sent to the schools Additional material, including Sam Brown belts and badges are being supplied from time to time as the Safety Patrols are enlarged, Mr. Burke stated.

Few people realize it, but during the month of July American consum-ers actually paid the Federal govern-ment $85,654 in hidden taxes on chewing gum alone. CASES BEFORE JUSTICES Must be Held Open to the Public,

Everywhere. Attorney General O'Conor has ruled that Justices of the Peace must always have cases open to the public, and that preliminary hearings must be open.

The ruling appears to have grown out of the practice of some Baltimore Justices who heard cases privately. Mr. O'Conor says the law requires open hearings, and that the ruling ap-open hearings, and that the ruling applies throughout the State.

He quotes both the Sixth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and Article 21 of the Maryland Declaration of Rights, in S. R. C. L. Section 29, Page 75 title, "Public Trial." He says—

"The necessity for such a provision arose from abuses in England prior to the American Revolution and its purpose manifestly is to protect the pose manifestly is to protect the rights of a person accused of crime; that the public may see that he is fair-ly dealt with and not unjustly condemned, and that the presence of spectators may keep his triers keenly alive to a sense of their responsibility and to the importance of their functions. "The term public in its enlarged sense takes in the entire community, the whole body politic, and a public trial means one which is not limited or restricted to any particular class of the community, but is open to the free observation of all.

"This does not impose on the authorities a duty to provide so large a place for public trials as will accommodate every member of the community at the same time, for that would be plainly impracticable; but it does impose a duty to make reasonable provision in that regard."

LESS "BOOTLEG" COAL.

A State Commission in Pennsylvania reaches the conclusion that "boot-leg" coal mining in the anthracite region will die out naturally through exhaustion of the accessible surface deposits of the hard coal. Already such operations are commonly reported to be declining.

If the story of bootleg coal is entering a final chapter, it nevertheless offers a cogent lesson for many another industry today. Some years ago the anthracite industry became highly unionized and highly capitalized on the basis of high prices then obtaining for its coal. Wage scales and rates of returns to owners were set up which could not be maintained when competition from the oil burner came

Mines closed, and workers, instead of having good wages, had none. To feed their families, thousands of them began digging coal surreptitiously from company property for whatever they could get and without the protection of safety regulations. Legally it was theft, but in the view of their neighbors it was self-preservation and perhaps no more of a drain on company recoverses then relief to the self-preservation. pany resources than relief taxes might dren. have been.

Coal was trucked into New York City at prices consumers would pay. But the buyer could not be sure of een satisfactory to nobody, least of all to the legitimate anthracite industry, which has needed to adapt its sales methods to hold its own against fuel oil. A greater flexibility of price and wage structures and a fuller understanding with its employees would have made this possible. When labor and capital in any industry ask too much from the consumer they invite grief.—Christian Science Monitor.

SENATOR SASSCER ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY.

State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the State Senate, has formally announced his candidacy for nomination as Governor of Maryland, subject to the 1938 primaries. a Prince George's County Attorney, banker and business man.

He bases his candidacy not only on fitness, but on the feeling that he says pervades both city and county that the next Governor should come from the counties, because of the opinion that what he styles the "City" machine" should not be combined with the authority of the chief executive. He promises to present his views publicly and more in detail in ample time before the primary election is "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them."—Matt. VII, 12.

ANNAPOLIS WINS NEW OFFICE BUILDING.

Speculation as to whether taxpayers win, or lose.

It appears that all efforts toward defeating the erection of a $1,000,000 office building in Annapolis, has failed and that $100,000 worth of bonds will be sold October 6, to defray the costs of preliminary expenses.

The building naturally called for much objection on the part of Balti-more interests that had been renting office space for State departments. And just as naturally, Annapolis wanted the benefits to be derived from locating the building in that city.

The Court of Appeals held the bill as passed by the legislature to be constitutional, and that it was not subject to a referendum vote. And so the taxpayers of the State who will pay for the building, will have no di-pay for the building, will have no direct say in the case.

It would be interesting to know which is the most costly; State ownership of the building, or the rental plan heretofore made use of. And also what difference in the way of convenience, as against inconvenience will be sustained by those having business with the state departments.

ED TO FREDERICK.

An interesting case has been set down for trial in Frederick County Court, on Monday, October 4th. It is the suit of Michael E. Walsh, trustee for Mary Elizabeth Armacost, an incompetent, now deceased, against John H. Elseroad, Carroll County. The case was removed on a charge of venue from Carroll County, after the defendant claimed he could not obtain a fair trial there.

It is claimed that the Armacost wo-Shore of Maryland and a good deal of other sections of Maryland indicates that damage from the H that she received proper care and attention. #### CHILDREN'S AID WORK.

October 11 to 23 are the dates set for the Carroll County Children's Aid Society finanhial drive. This year the society will strive to grade or weight and the situation has CARROLL COUNTY CASE REMOV. to assist in the care of Carroll County's dependent children.

The county is being organized as it was last year and team captains and solicitors are being selected in their respertive districts. Mr. Harry G. Berwager, who served as county campaign chairman last year has consented to serve again in the same capacity. The society is fortunate in having such an enthusiastic leader and supporter.

Through the co-operation of every citizen the goal of $3000 will be reached. This is a real opportunity for Carroll Countains to assist these little children who need all the help we can give them.

Will you be a booster, too? Last week, a little nine year old boy was wandering the streets of Westminster. It was a cold, rainy day and officer Ray Yohn picked up this poorly clad, cold and hungry youngster who was sleeping in a store box at the railroad, and took him down to the jail. Miss Bonnie M. Custen-border, director of the Children's Aid Society was immediately called to interview the child. Miss Custenborder took the boy back to his home, talked with the parents and tried to help them realize their responsibility toward their son.

RUN AWAY AWHILE.

A lot of people suffer from too much confinement to one task. It may be too hard physical labor every day, or it may be confinement in a shop, store or office. We get all run-down, and as much so from mental work as physical work.
We go to the doctor, of course;

but we could avoid such visits if we would take more holidays and more rest—not at home, but away from home where new sights actually serve as rest, because they

STATE, OR COUNTY CONTROL OF ROADS-WHICH?

Without doubt, there is a great deal of dissatisfaction in Carroll and Frederick Counties over the present road system that is delaying the improvement of our large mileage of dirt roads. We hesitate to say that the County system would be an improvement, for when we had County supervision of roads, they were complained of as much as now, especially when under the district supervision system.

Besides, there would be a heavy initial expense for road making equipment. But we think the Counties should have more "asy" than at present, as to the distribution, of road money, or of the gasoline tax, whichever way it may be put.

There is this to be said in favor of a state system; that owing to extensive floods along the Potomac and other streams, the flood damage has been very great during recent years, and the repair of bridges seems to be the first consideration.

Whether it be a state system, or a county system, the question is sure to be "loaded" with trouble for either one, in the way of criticism; and as follows: there will always be just this. The need for more good roads is so general that each local section will still continue to want their roads made firstsomething that can not be done.

With a County system, the County Commissioners would inherit the present complaints directed against the State system; and inevitably, county politics, instead of State politics, would come in. If taxes are made high enough to build all of the roads wanted, then "high taxes" would be complained of.

The roads question is simply the old one of "distance lends enchantment to the view." We want a thing until we have it, and then straightway find fault with it. It is like running for a train, or bus, and after we "get on" we begin to criticise the service.

Our own opinion is, that we should continue to have a State Roads Commission whose chief business would be to construct roads, as and where the Counties want them. But before this is done, there should be a settled limitation of the building of so-called "boulevards," as being of greater importance that building of "farm to market" or dirt roads.

We see the great advantage of a State Commission, it not only has the equipment, but the "know how to" from experience. We think our County Commissioners have enough-to do at present, without adding the building of roads, but should have the authority to state where and what kind of roads are to be built in their counties.

In any County system, whether State or County does the actual work, there should be an increase of about 10 cents on each $100. levied on taxable property, for a beginning at least. And there should be a fair pro-rating of the gas tax revenue in accordance with the road mileage in each county. And then, full co-operation between the two bodies. And, all of this would require state legislation.

Underneath of the whole road question, there may be a tremendous under-cover influence, made up largely of pleasure seekers, or tourists, that wants to make long drives over fine roads, in short time, and is not at all interested in back-country roads. This class may have a "pull" stronger than we know, where "pulling" will do most good. At any rate, something covers ity"-meaning, likelihood of election. over the demands for what country folks most want.

A need not commonly mentioned in connection with improved county roads, is that connected with securing prompt medical service and the aid of Fire Companies, when both are needed promptly. It is unfair to deny good roads for these two purposes to some, and supply it to others. Actually, it is of more importance, and affects more people, that these services roads to market.

A UNIQUE CONTEST IN NEW YORK CITY.

Last week, at the primary election for candidate for Mayor of New York City, U. S. Senator Copeland (Dem.) ran as a Tammany Democrat and as a Republican, having the support of Al Smith, former Governor of N. Y. Present Mayor La Guardia, a supporter of some of the Roosevelt policies, was on the Republican ticket, and Jeremiah T. Mahoney ran as a Democrat.

As Senator Copeland was one of the leaders in the attack on Justice Black's Ku Klux Klan record, the election is held by some as a defeat for his opposition.

The outstanding feature of the result is the defeat of Tammany and the Smith influence. La Guardia received many thousands of votes on acount of his name being written in on the Democratic ballot, which is decidedly encouraging to him as a candidate at the regular election.

The fight also shows the high importance attached to the office of Mayor of the city, which tempted a U. S. Senator to try for it; but his so doing does not, of course, prevent his being a candidate for nomination at the Senatorial primaries, but is a handicap, just the same, to his chance in that direction.

In a very general way, this battle shows the very much mixed condition of the public mind, so far as old parties are concerned at present, and a condition very much like this applies throughout the country.

Normally, New York City is strongly Democratic, and has been so. for many years. The vote by parties, combining Copeland's and La Guardia's vote on both ballots, with 50 precincts missing, was as follows:

412,887 Mahoney Copeland 287.146 135,589 La Guardia This leaves Mahoney as the candidate for the Democrats, and La Guardia as the Republican candidate. The interesting questions, are, whether La Guardia can hold the Copeland vote, or how much of it; and what the Laborites, Socialists, etc., may do on general election day.

MR. HOOVER THINKS SOME MAY "SEE, A SEA SERPENT."

Herbert Hoover has a copy-righted article in the September Atlantic, that was written in July. It is quite well worth reading, Mr. Hoover undoubtedly understands the act of writing in a style that everybody can understand. His statements are not involved, though they may be styled as unusual, at times, and, like the late Calvin Coolidge, has a way of saying in a few words, what he wants to say.

In this article he uses this expression—"Lest some suspicious person see a sea serpent in this article, let me say at once that most public men fight for re-election to office, because they are not quitters."

This "see a sea serpent" in the connection used is not a bid for renomination so much as it means that he is "not a quitter" and that even a defeated candidate may, as he says later on that his concern with political parties sponsibility.

He also makes it clear why he opposes dropping the name "Republican" and one is inclined to accept his explained view, as it is clearly and convincingly stated. There is no excuse for a driver taking the wheel of his car after drinking. Here is a case where the law must be adamant, and must be exerted ruthlessly, impartially and immediately. It is a notorious fact that in many communities, prosecuting and police officials are lax about the drinker at the wheel, and are only too willing to reduce a charge of drunken driving to the less important charge of recklessness, if a little "pull" is exerted. The sole consequence of such a policy is to make these drivers America? #### WHY =

Scotland's Extreme Point Is Called John o' Groats.

Few people know why the most northerly point of Scotland is always referred to as John o' Groats. Some time during the reign of James IV of Scotland there came over from Holland three brothers, John, Malcolm, and Gavin, whose surname was probably de Groote, but their neighbors called them Groat. As time passed the families grew to eight in number, and they lived together on the estates of Warse and Dungisbay, at the extreme point of northern Scotland. Once a year the families met for a feast at the original house of John de

One day an argument arose about their order of precedence, relates a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine, and John said that he would settle the point to the satisfaction of all the families before the next year's feast. He built an eight-sided room with a door and a window behind each chair, and honor was declared satisfied.

From that day the house was famous the country over as John o' Groats house. Duncansby head, the extreme northeastern point of Caithness, Scotland, lies one and three-quarters miles due east of John o' Groats house.

Why It Is Less Costly

to Keep Machines Going There are some industries in which it is more costly to stop and start machines and furnaces than to continue running them over short periods, even if no work is done, observes a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine. Blast furnaces are never allowed to cool down during the week-end, for once they grow

Certain turbines, too, are allowed to run day and night for six months at a time, even if on very light load. They run on a film of oil, and the bearings and blades undergo comparatively little wear; whereas, if stopped and started frequently, there is danger of straining the

Why Vicuna Coat Is Expensive The fibers of the vicuna are the finest of any known animal, being less than one two-thousandth of a inch in diameter, with a count of approximately 2,500 to the inch, less than one-half the diameter of the finest sheep's wool. The amount of fine hair that can be obtained from a single animal is about a quarter of a pound, which means that pure vicuna cloth requires the hair of no less than 40 animals to make enough cloth for a coat.

Why Marathons Are So Called If the old Greek story is correct, Pheidippides was the original marathon runner. He ran to Athens from Marathon to bring the king the news of the Greek victory and dropped dead from fatigue after relating his story. The standard track marathon distance is 26 miles and 386 yards, which is said to be the actual distance run by the Greek runner Pheidippides. From this, the name marathon is now applied to all kinds of

Why Talking Is Healthful Talking is one of the healthful pastimes, declares a leading French lung specialist, who said in Paris that many human ills resulted from weakness or deterioration of the lungs. Intensive talking, he adds, strengthens these delicate organs. As woman is supposed to love gossiping, he suggests that this may explain why there are many more widows in the world than widowers endurance contests.

Why Fish Come to Top As a rule, when goldfish come to the top of the water and open and shut their mouths it is an indication that they are not getting the required amount of oxygen in the water. When this happens the water should be changed and steps should be taken to insure a balanced aquarium, that is, with sufficient plant life at least partially to offset the amount of oxygen being taken out of the water by the fish.

Why Oak Is Symbolic of Luck The oak was regarded as a sacred tree by the druids, and many curious beliefs in its power to bring good fortune are current. Among the Kentucky mountaineers, it is said that washing in water that stands in an oak stump will remove freckles. It is considered lucky for a miner to skin his back on an oak board.

Why Shoes Cause Trouble Authorities agree that the majority of corns, callouses and bunions are caused by shoes which do not fit and that a large percentage of arch and instep pains would not exist if the patient would walk more and do a few simple foot exercises now and then.

Why Cartoons Are So Called The paper used for cartoons was called in Italian cartone and thus arose the application of the term cartoon to all preparatory sketches of pictures.

The Four Kinds of Excess Fat

THERE are some overweights who conscientiously follow their physician's strict reducing diet for a week or ten days and find that the amount of weight lost is practically nothing. If one of normal weight follows that same strict diet, gets the same amount of sleep, and takes the same amount of exercise, there would likely be a loss of from 2 to 5 pounds. If, however, the overweight were to continue on the strict diet for another two or three weeks there would likely be a loss of 4 to 5 pounds at the end of that time. This failure to lose weight during the first ten days was because while some fat was lost all right, the body had retained more than its usual amount of water and so kept up the weight. But by the end of about three weeks, less water is required in proportion to the amount of real fat now present, and with the loss of this "held" water, the weight goes down. It would be worth while, therefore, for all who are trying to lose weight by reducing their food intake, to persist for not less than three to four weeks.

However, it is possible that even after keeping to the strict diet for three of four weeks, the loss of weight is very small-one or two pounds. If such be the case the overweight is justified when reporting to his or her physician in asking for some other method as even his severe or strict reducing diet has failed to bring results.

Physicians who treat patients for overweight first explain that to obtain sure results safely from 9 to 18 months may be required; that a reduction of one and a half to two pounds each week is the utmost to be desired or expected.

Make Metabolism Test.

It is very likely then that the physician will suggest one more month on the prescribed reducing diet and if results are disappointing he will prescribe other measures to get rid of the excess fat.

If this excess fat is distributed evenly throughout the body, he will make or have made a metabolism test which shows the rate at which the body processes are working. If they are not working at the normal rate (that is they are working slower) he knows that the thyroid gland in the neck is not manufacturing enough juice, and if processes are working faster than normal he knows that the thyroid gland is manufacturing too much juice. Thus when the individual is greatly overweight and the test shows that the body processes are slower than normal, which happens in about 3 to 5 per cent of all overweights, the physician will prescribe thyroid extract because the overweight is justified in requesting it.

If the excess weight is not dis-tributed evenly over the body but is across the shoulders, chest, abdomen, hips and thighs (no excess weight on forearms or lower legs) then instead of using thyroid extract, the physician will likely use pituitary extract, as the pituitary gland has much to do with growth, development and the handling of starch foods by the body.

Removing Local Deposits.

Thus when the excess fat is evenly distributed, thyroid extract is used in "stubborn" cases; when it is across shoulders, chest, abdomen, and hips pituitary extract is used.

However, there are cases where there are accumulations of fat in different parts of the body, maybe on chest, on hips, on back of neck, or elsewhere. What can be done to remove these "local" deposits of

When the individual is in good health, heart and blood vessels sound, then exercising the parts is the best method of getting rid of this local fat deposit. Slow jogging or running on the spot, skipping, and dancing are excellent exercises.

The use of the electric vibrator. striking the part with the sides of the hands and vigorous massage of the part will stir up the circulation in the part and help to break up the fat globules. In these cases with the local fat deposits, if there is any tendency to overweight generally then cutting down on the food is helpful, but if the individual is of normal weight it is better to depend upon the exercise and massage to remove the fat than take any chances on too great a loss of weight throughout the body.

Remember then that while over 90 per cent of overweight is due to overeating and underexercising there are these other types of overweight where gland extracts and local exercise and massage are nec-

Cynical Brutality

People were not only brutal but cynically brutal in the last century. The history of Italy recounts how, after a revolt, many Italians were executed and the bill of expenses presented to the nearest relations of the hanged men.

HOW=

ANTS MAY BE CONTROLLED ABOUT HOME AND LAWN.— To control ants, the first thing to do is to try to locate their nests, or the holes in the ground from which they are emerging. When these are found the ants may be destroyed by pouring a small quantity of carbon bisulphide into each entrance, and then closing this up quickly with the foot so that the fumes will descend and enter the galleries of the nest, where the ants are working. Or, if there is no danger of injuring the roots of trees or vines, try pouring boiling water into the nests, advises a writer in the Montreal Herald.

In using carbon bisulphide take every precaution to see that no fire of any sort is brought near it, as it is highly inflammable. To control the ants in dwellings we suggest that you scatter the powder known as sodium fluoride lightly in the places frequented by them, leaving it undisturbed until they disappear. Sodium fluoride is poisonous, so care must be taken to see that it is not placed where children or domestic pets would have access to it. Or, if preferred, parts of sponges dipped in sweetened water may be placed about the places frequented by the ants. When these baits are covered with ants, they may be destroyed by immersing them in boiling water.

How to Keep the Wooden

Handle Tight in Hammer Many mechanics have trouble in keeping wooden handles tight in hammers, hatchets, axes and other tools. A very common but rather ineffective method is to drive the handle through the eye until it is tight, split the end with a chisel, and then drive a thin hardwood wedge into the split. This holds for a time until the handle and wedge get wet and then dry, after which the wedge becomes loose

A much better method is to split the handle and drive in one or more of the thin feathered iron wedges sold especially for this purpose. If these are not available, writes a correspondent in Wallaces' Farmer, they can easily be made by hammering or grinding a narrow eighth-inch of iron into a tapered wedge, then nicking it lightly several times on the sides with the corner of a sharp cold chisel. These nicked places will hold the wedge from working out.

How to Make "Poor Man's Turkey" To make "poor man's turkey," according to a writer in the New York World-Telegram, skin beef liver and cut out veins. Line the bottom and sides of a baking dish with bacon, cover with liver, sliced onions, add another layer of bacon, liver, onions and cover the top with bacon. Sprinkle about 4 tablespoons of flour between the layers and season each layer with salt and pepper. Add cold water until it can be seen on the top side of the pan but do not cover with it. Bake in moderate oven for about one hour and serve with baked potatoes. The amount of flour used should beenough to thicken the water to the consistency of gravy, and depends on the amount of water used.

How to Test Teeth People who want to know how fast their teeth decay can get the bad news in a hurry with a new test developed by Northwestern university dental school, says Literary Digest. Saliva from the testee is introduced into a test-tube containing a weighed mass of powdered human tooth-enamel. After four hours at body temperature, the saliva is separated from the enamel particles and analyzed quantitatively for calcium. If there is little or no calcium change in the saliva, the lucky subject is immune to dental decay. But if the calcium content is considerable, an edentulous old age is indi-

How to Use "Paradi"

Paradichlorobenzene crystals form a gas that is heavier than air, so must be placed on top of the articles to be fumigated. Pack the clothing in the trunk, then put about one-fourth pound of paradichlorobenzene on top of the clothing. The crystals can be scattered about if desired. The easiest way is to tie the crystals in a piece of old muslin, but don't tie the bag too tightly. When the supply in the bag gets low, put in more crystals.

How to Store Clothing

Here's a good way to store winter clothes and bedding. Clean and air them thoroughly in the sun. Next pack them securely in newspapers. Then place them in boxes that are covered tightly. Label each box carefully and store those that may be needed in convenient places. Blankets, especially, are often necessary during the cool spells.

Linwood, Rev. Ankrum.

A short history of Mt. Union Church from its organization in 1857 told that the founders were: Abram F. Null, the founders were: Abram F. Null, John Angel, John Koons, John Feeser, John Wm. Angel. The building was dedicated in 1858, becoming a part of Taneytown Charge, under Pastor S. Sentman until 1860, when it united with Woodsboro; and in 1869 was made a part of the Uniontown Charge The church was remodeled in 1872, G. Anderson, Pastor; in 1889, Rev. W. S. Delp; in 1896 was damaged by storm and restored under leadership of Rev. G. W. Baughman and Jacob S. Gladhill; was torn down and re-built in 1905 under Rev. #### Tons of Oils and Fats Used to Make Our Soap

In large soap factories, tons of oils and fats and caustic soda are used every day. But it was not many years ago when every home made its own supply of soap. Fats from meats were saved and the ashes from the wood stove were kept dry in a barrel for soap making. Our grandmothers boiled the meat fats, and washed the ashes with water and strained them till the liquid was clear and yet contained enough potash to make soap. Then the oils and pure fats were mixed with the potash from the ashes, and cooked into white soap.

The same process is used in factories, only on a large scale. Instead of using fat from animals, relates a writer in the Washington Star, a great deal of toilet soap is made from fatty plants like coconut, olive and cottonseed oils. First, the pure oil is put in a huge vat and heated. Then cold soda-lye is added, and as the lye changes the fats into soap, more is added till all the fat and oil is used up. The soap is lighter than the other stuff in the vat and floats on the surface. It is drawn off to be made into bars and to be treated and refined into toilet soap, washing powders, or liquid soap.

Toilet soap is usually the best grade, although it is often made by a very simple process from coconut, castor or palm oil and concentrated caustic acid.

Term "Slush Fund" From a British Navy Custom

A slush fund in the political sense is a campaign fund collected to influence public opinion by improper means. This application of the term, however, is of recent origin.

"Slush fund" originated in the British navy, states a writer in the Indianapolis News. It was formerly customary on war vessels to sell slush and other refuse to raise a fund for the benefit of the enlisted men. Originally, the slush consisted of fat, grease, and other refuse from the cook's galley, which was not needed for slushing the masts and spars. There is an old verb "to slush," meaning to grease or lubricate with slush. Later, the slush fund was raised by selling worn-out equipment, and in some cases the personal effects left on board by deserters. Army camps and garrisons imitated the custom and also raised slush funds.

The slush fund now consists of money contributed by the enlisted men themselves and used to support athletics and other activities. The United States Navy department says slush funds have been largely done away with in the American navy.

ONE GOOD TURN

A kind-hearted old lady noticed a trampish-looking man gazing into an eating-house window, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. She found the sight touching, and wishing to give the man the price of a good dinner without hurting his feelings, pretendshe had picked up a coin from the pavement. "Look what I've found!" she said, as she handed him a florin. "You can have it; it was nearest to you."

The man made a grab for the coin. "Thank you kindly," he said with a grin of delight. "It's just dropped out o' my pocket! Wait a minute! I'll give you a penny for yourself!"

A Mystery Solved "I'm sorry I can't give you a bun," said Tommy's mother; "but I've lost the key of the pantry, and they are on a plate on the shelf."

"That doesn't matter, mother," said Tommy, promptly. "If I go round to the back and climb on the top of the water-butt, and reach right in the pantry window with the toasting fork, I can get as many as you want."

"That's just what I wanted to know," said his mother. "You go right up to your bedroom this very minute, and stay there till your father comes home."

"WOOF, WOOF!"

Hubby-Where did you buy your link-sausage? Wife-At one of the chain-stores.

Just as a Favor "Have you seen my dog this morning?

"Seen him? I should think I have," said the butcher. "He came in here and stole a leg of lamb, bit my leg and then upset a customer into some eggs."

"Dear me! Well, I wonder if you'd mind putting this 'Lost' notice in your window?"

Discipline

"Why don't you send your boy Josh to college?"

"I'm goin' to," replied Farmer Corntossel. "Not that I think a college education is necessary for success in life, but I want to get Josh cornered some place where he'll be compelled to admit there are a few things he doesn't know."

About Noses The nose that is squat or flat, or negro type, indicates an animal mind devoid of finer feelings. The nose that sags in the middle shows a similar nature, cruel and treacherous. Pointed noses are "sticky beaks," says a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. This applies to all sharp features. Like knives and spears, they penetrate. These subjects are objectionably inquisitive and are liable to read your letters if you leave them about. If the nose is long and thin as well it shows a narrow mind-sometimes found in the "religious hypocrite."

Union Bridge evidently had "off" day, or did not try very hard to win from Rouzerville, last Saturday. #### er over until the last man is out in the American Indians' Songs

Being Put Upon Records Philadelphia.—The literature, history and songs of the American Indian, dying under the stress of modern life, are being preserved in wax by a group of anthropologists and psychologists interested in the philosophy of the first inhabitants of America. Dr. Frank G. Speck, professor of anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania, an authority on Indian life, is helping to record for posterity the saga of the red races. Records are being made of primitive dances, hymns of praise and hate, the incantations of medicine men and all the rites of a war pow-

Modern mass production has taken Indians from the ancient trades of weaving and pottery-making and swing music and dancing have outmoded the age-old Sun Dance, sounding the death knell of Indian art and life as a distinctive part of America, according to Dr. Speck.

Indian tribes, including the Iroquois, the Delawares and other groups, at first feared that the records would be a source of ridicule at the hands of white men, but they assented to Dr. Speck's request when he assured them that learned men wanted to study their customs by that method.

Arctic Biscuit Devised for Russian Polar Trip

Moscow.—Among the novelties in food devised for a polar expedition is a special Arctic biscuit containing 35 per cent chicken and beef.

The foods for Arctic expeditions have to be light in weight and must take up little space. Most of them are cubes, weighing from 50 to 60 grams, which can be made into tasty, nutritive soups, gruels, stewed fruit, chopped meat and other dishes.

A full meal can be prepared from these concentrated foods in from three to five minutes. A special, slightly salty chocolate has been prepared because ordinary chocolate is too sweet for the Far North.

"Greased Pig" Rented Ashland, Ore.—Rental business is expanding on the Pacific coast. A pig was rented here for an annual greased pig catching contest.

Great Lakes Naval Agreement

The Convention of 1817, which limited the naval forces on the Great Lakes, was effected through the exchange of letters (April 28 and 29) between Richard Rush, acting Secretary of State and Charles Bagot, British minister at Washington. It did not consist of a treaty in which copies were signed by representatives of both countries, but consisted of the two letters with the one signature on each. The letters stipulated that each country should have one vessel not exceeding one hundred tons, armed with one 18pounder on Lake Ontario and two ships on the upper lakes and one on Lake Champlain, all of which were to be the same size and carry like armament. Any ships over that number were to be dismantled and no others built or armed. Either country could terminate the agreement by a six months' notice. Orders to conform to this agreement were issued by the British and United States governments.

Water Cress of Mustard Family Water cress is a plant of the mustard family which is a native of Europe. It usually grows partly or completely submerged in running water or ponds. The stems are spreading and rooting with alternate compound leaves composed of five to thirteen sounded leaflets. The white flowers have four petals, six stamens and a pistil that develops into a slender pod with two rows of seeds. The leaves have a flavor similar to radishes and are used for salads.

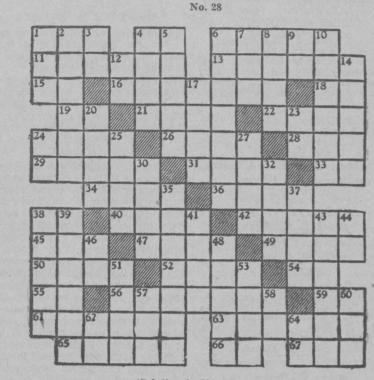

Quinine From Cinchona Tree Quinine is derived from the bark of the cinchona tree, which the early Spanish explorers found growing wild on the mountain slopes of Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia. The cinchona tree was not grown in England until 1858, but its virtues had been known for more than 200 years.

Cathedral Turrets Removed Two turrets on the top of the Christ church gateway of Canterbury cathedral, in England, were removed more than 100 years ago by a rich banker so he could see the cathedral clock from his home.

Hell's Half Acre Hell's Half Acre is located forty-five miles west of Casper, Wyo., and is one of the most remarkable spectacles in that section. The walls of the canyon are of a soft sedimentary rock.

Where Cork Comes From Cork comes very largely from Spain, but also from France, Portugal, Italy, Algeria and Tunisia. The tree is native to parts of Europe and Africa around the Mediterranean sea, covering a total of about 5,000,000 acres. Taking the cork does not harm the trees if properly done, for trees more than 300 years old are still being stripped about every nine seasons.

AS TO STUFFING OF VEGETABLES

Various Ways of Preparation Are Outlined.

By EDITH M. BARBER

WHAT about a stuffed vegetable as a headliner for a quick meal? Eggplant, green peppers, to-matoes or squash may be chosen. Some people like to parboil eggplant and green peppers before they are stuffed and baked. In my opinion, this first process is unnecessary, although it is a little easier to remove the pulp of the eggplant after it has been partially cooked.

Whatever vegetable you choose, part of the pulp should be removed and mixed with the bread crumbs or rice which furnish the foundation of the stuffing. Slices should be cut from the tops of eggplants, peppers and tomatoes. If small acorn squashes are used, they should be cut in half and the seeds removed. The stuffings should be very well seasoned with salt, pepper, minced onion and whatever herbs you like. In addition minced ham, bits of cooked bacon or any other meats which you have on hand will add to the flavor. Flaked sardines or anchovy paste may be used instead. If a plain stuffing is used, grated cheese may be sprinkled over the top of the stuffed vegetables before they are baked.

Both peppers and tomatoes are particularly good with a combination of raw corn, cut from the cob, well seasoned with minced onion, salt, pepper and paprika. You may like to drop an egg on top of each tomato or pepper stuffed in this way. By the time the eggs are set, the vegetables will be done to a turn in a moderate oven.

Special Stuffed Squash.

3 acorn squashes Salt, pepper 2 cups creamed celery 1 onion, minced 2 strips pimiento Dry bread crumbs

Wash and dry squash. Cut in halves, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until almost tender, about 30 minutes. Fill centers with creamed celery, to which the minced onion and chopped pimiento have been added. Cover top with crumbs and lay on slices of bacon. Return to oven and cook until the bacon is crisp and crumbs are brown.

Baked Tomatoes. Cut tomatoes in halves. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar. Arrange a few pieces of minced onion on each half, dot with butter or bacon fat and bake in a modern oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit), 15 to 20 minutes

Baked Stuffed Eggplant.

1 eggplant 3 tablespoons butter 2 tablespoons minced onion 3 cups soft bread crumbs 1 teaspoon salt Pepper

½ tablespoon lemon juice Wash eggplant and cook in boiling salted water 20 minutes. Remove from water and drain. Cut slice from side and remove pulp with a spoon. Melt butter, add minced onion and cook three minutes. Add bread crumbs, seasonings and finely cut pulp. Refill eggplant shell with stuffing, and bake in a hot oven, (450 degrees Fahrenheit,) until brown. Serve with baked halved tomatoes.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Salmon.

6 tomatoes cup flaked salmon

2 teaspoons minced onion 1 tablespoon lemon juice 2 tablespoons melted butter

Paprika Bay leaf

Select firm tomatoes of the same size, cut slices from the tops and remove part of the pulp. To salmon flaked add minced onion, lemon juice, melted butter, a sprinkling of paprika and the tomato pulp. Stuff the tomato cups with the mixture, place a small piece of bay leaf on each one, put in a greased baking pan and bake about 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) until the tomatoes are tender. Serve on a hot platter with a white or brown sauce.

Deviled Corn.

3 teaspoons butter 2 tablespoons flour 1 cup milk or stock

2 cups corn ½ tablespoon prepared mustard 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce Paprika

Salt 1/4 cup bread crumbs

Melt butter, stir in flour and when smooth stir in milk or stock (bouillon cubes or gravy will make stock). Cook until smooth and thick, add corn, seasonings and half the bread crumbs, pour into greased baking dish and bake about 20 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Quick Cucumber Pickles.

4 quarts cucumbers 1 gallon vinegar 1 cup mustard

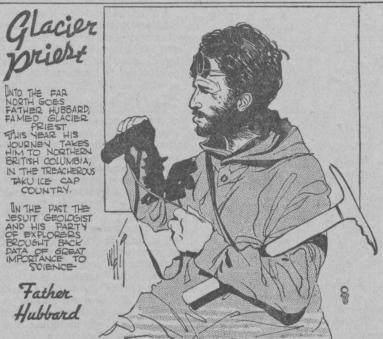

1 cup salt 1 cup sugar Soak small cucumbers in brine over night. Drain and soak in lime water if desired. Drain again, wash and place in clean jars. Cover with the vinegar mixed with the other ingredients and seal.

SHORT SHORT STORY

when he fell in love with Agnes Carter he did not rush into one of those haphazard courtships, those hit-ormiss experiments with the tender passion which the ordinary young man in like cases indulges in; but calmly sat down and formulated a system by which the prize he desired should be won. Agnes moved in his own set, and he, therefore, had abundant chances of seeing her and of putting his system into practice. He would see her just so often at first, gradually increasing these occasions, carefully preparing in advance what he would say to her, by what gradations the conversation was to grow into tenderness, just where the presents of boxes of candy and bouquets of flowers came in. It was all calculated up to the very moment when he should say "Will you?" and she would answer

"I will." Now it so happened that Agnes was in love with Andrew, and if Andy had gone right up and said "Agnes, will you marry me?" she would have answered, "Of course I will, Andy—why haven't you asked me before?" Andrew had a certain feeling that such was the case, but to have acted in such an emotional manner would have been taking more or less of a risk; and in a system there was no risk possible. So he began to put his plan into operation, with the result that Agnes wondered what in the world had suddenly come over him, and complained to her intimate friends that. 'Andy has grown so queer of late.'

"Andy," said she to him one day, "why haven't you been to see me

"I CALLED on you on the twenty-fifth," he replied; "another call will not be due until the tenth of next month."

"Why not? What do you mean?" she asked a little crossly. "Is,it because you can't stand my company except just once in so many days?"

"Oh, Agnes," he sighed. "Oh, Agnes, you know better than that.'

"Do I?" she retorted. "As a matter of fact I don't know any such thing; and I want you to tell me. here and now, why you have acted so lately. But you needn't. I see it all. You want to drop my acquaintance. Well, go ahead and do so. I won't stand in your way. And you needn't bother to send me any more chocolates. That last box you sent me was horrid."

"Agnes," said Andy severely, "I bought those chocolates of a confectioner who has the most perfect system of manufacturing chocolates that I have ever seen.'

"Indeed," replied Agnes; "then he had better get an imperfect system with more sugar and chocolate and less glucose and cornstarch in it. And where did you get those last' flowers you sent me?'

"They were raised," said Andy, "by a florist on the scientific plan developed by Professor Hochausen, the great German botanist.'

"HEY looked it," replied Agnes. "Your conduct has been so extraordinary of late that, hereafter, you need not take the trouble to call, you need not send me any more candy, nor any more flowers."

"Agnes, you don't really mean that do you?" he groaned. "Indeed I do mean it," she replied; "why shouldn't I?" "You-you-don't understand."

faltered Andy helplessly. "Possibly not, and again possibly I do," she replied. "I know this, any way, that you used to act like a human being, but now you are grown so-queer-that you are absolutely impossible. What's the matter with you, anyway? Why do you act so?" "I have a reason," replied Andrew stiffly, "and one which is perfectly valid."

"Oh, you have," laughed Agnes, but her laugh was a trifle bitter. "Of course you have a reason—and I know what that reason is. You have fallen in love with some girl. I know it. Well, good luck to you, Andy, any way," she tried to speak gaily, but her face turned pale and there was the suspicion of a tear in her eve.

Andrew could not stand it; his system was blown to the four winds of heaven.

"Yes," he cried, "I have fallen in love-and it is with you. I have been trying to work a system—but the system be hanged-will you have me, Agnes?"

"Why, yes," replied Agnes, blushing, "but tell me about this system." "Never mind the system," cried Andrew; "I'll tell you about that later.

Plan to Restore Last Home of Daniel Boone

St. Charles, Mo.—The house in which Daniel Boone died is to be restored to its original appearance. Colonel Francis Marion Curlee, of St. Louis, a direct descendant of Boone's brother, John, is the present owner. The stone house, which changed hands many times, was bought in 1904 by a farmer, Henry Bollman. Bollman sold it to Colonel Curlee in 1925.

Boone's youngest son, Major Nathan Boone, built the house in 1810, taking almost two years to complete the job because the plaster had to be buried during the winter to "ripen." All cutting and finishing was done with an adze. The walls are two-and-a-half feet thick. Their extraordinary thickness makes the house warm in wimter and cool in summer.

Most of the furnishing installed by Colonel Curlee are reproductions, some originals, of the pioneer's period. The dining room in the basement, is one of the most interesting rooms in the house. The sunlight enters from the south on a room with a ceiling of huge timbers, native brick floor and sparse furnishings-authentic Windsor chairs, table and an old-fashioned sideboard. Over the fireplace hangs a Kentucky long rifle. The five-foot-long rifle has a sharply curved, short stock fashioned to be fired from the elbow, not the shoulder. Besides the living room, which extends the breadth of the house along the east side, there are two other chambers on the first floor. Three rooms on the second floor are divided by a hall which has been converted into a library with some 2,000 books. There are many volumes on Boone and a quaint collection of old books on the code of dueling.

Explaining Name Tires

Townsfolk in Michigan Paw Paw, Mich.—Paw Paw filling station attendants are weary of explaining how this town got its name and particularly that the name has nothing at all to do with fathers.

"Southerners never ask about it," one attendant explained. "They know the paw paw is a particularly sweet fruit, something on the order of a small banana. But many northerners, and city people never heard of paw paws. The town was actually named by the Indians as it was the Indians who named the Paw Paw river because of the number of paw paw trees which dotted its banks. Then the town was named after the river. In 1867, the name of the township was changed from Lafayette to Paw Paw.

Howard's Nurse

By RUBY DOUGLAS © McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

EVER since Howard Norton had been laid up with a broken arm, he had found himself to be more popular than he had ever dreamed he was before.

He was in too much pain to care much about anything but his own ease, and he called for the night

"You go to bed, dear," he said to his wife.

Mrs. Norton knew that her husband was to be put under an anaesthetic to have the elbow bones adjusted again and she was reluctant to leave him even in the hands of so competent a person as the nurse they had secured for night duty-Miss Allen.

Miss Allen had been on duty since 7 o'clock, but she had not been needed until now. Instead, she had been sitting in the comfortable library waiting to be called and every man who had been up to see the patient seemed to find it necessary to inquire of her, on leaving, just how she thought Howard was.

"You've had quite a reception this evening, Mr. Norton," she said cheerily as she approached the bed. "I should say I had. Some of those chaps have been awfully good. They come every night."

MISS ALLEN agreed and then proceeded to make her patient as comfortable as possible for the night.

"You'll not be riding to the hounds again for many a month," suggested Miss Allen after a particulary painful effort at making him com-

one of the men who had been in that very night-Bert Bascombwas a splendid horseman. "Perhaps you saw him—tall and blonde—about thirty?"

Miss Allen thought she knew him. "Bert learned to ride on the plains in the West, where he was 'raised up' as he says," said Howard. Miss Allen, herself, used to ride the ponies on her father's ranch when she was a girl and there had been a small blonde laddie on an adjoining ranch that she had ridden with. She had forgotten the name. When the arm was all set again held it straight down at the pa-

He was irritable and ill and childish," and toward evening when the telephone began to ring and callers came to see the sick man, Mrs. Norton decided that the best thing to do was to ask Miss Allen to remain downstairs to see everyone for her.

THUS it was that when Bert Bascomb arrived to call on his friend, he found the pretty little nurse alone in the library.

"Mr. Norton does not feel like seeing anyone tonight. He had a rather bad time under the anaesthetic and feels pretty uncomfortable." she told him.

"I'll stick around. I might be of use, you know," he said.

Miss Allen broached the subject of horseback riding—and the West. "Oh, could it be possible," the man cried, boyishly, "that you are the little kid I used to race with on the pony? But no; her name was Burton-Carol Burton." Miss Allen stared at him. "What! Why that is my own name," she said. "My father died when I was eleven and my mother thought I had better take my stepfather's name to avoid explanations."

Bert fairly devoured her with his eves to see if he could find again the little tomboy playmate. "So you are Carol," he repeated.

Miss Allen nodded. "And to think that here, in New York-on Long Island-I should come across you again. Really, all my life I have fancied that little girl to be my sweetheart. I have never had another," he went on. Miss Allen was embarrassed at his boyish frankness. He asked her all the questions he could think of and she told him that she had been connected with the hospital at Mineola and that she was often in these villages doing private nursing. "Then I may see you often?" he asked.

She nodded. When Mrs. Norton came down to get the night nurse she looked from one to the other and they had to explain.

"Oh, won't Howard be glad?" she asked Bert. "He has always said that all you needed to make you human was a girl," she laughed. "And such a girl!" he added as Miss Allen went upstairs. "It is a real romance, Bert," ventured Mrs. Norton. "It is my one and only—if she'll have me," said Bert.

And she did.

HOW=

HAND BALL GAME CAN BE PLAYED IN THE WATER .-Have you ever played water hand ball? It is a fine game to play at camp, or when swimming in river, lake or ocean, says a writer in the Washington Star.

The game is much like basket ball, but goal posts are used in-stead of baskets. They are set up about 25 yards apart, and form the end boundaries. You can set stakes in the stream or lake bed to form rough side boundaries. They should be about 15 yards apart.

Each team is composed of five players. A referee and timekeeper also are needed. The game is divided into four quarters of from 5 to 15 minutes each. If all the players are good swimmers, the depth of the water is unimportant; if they are not, it is best to play in water that is chest deep at its deepest point.

The ball should be of rubber, from 6 to 10 inches in diameter, and inflated solidly. The game starts with a toss-up at center by the referee. The ball can be passed, or pushed along the water, but not carried. One point is scored when a player succeeds in making a goal by tossing it between the goal posts and over the cross bar. A toss-up at center follows each goal. Fouls are called much as in basketball, for holding, carrying the ball, etc., but there are no free throws. A foul simply gives the other team possession of the ball at the point where the foul was committed, with no opposing player closer than three feet.

How to Wash the Dishes:

Economy Experts' Advice One of the most frequent and most essential tasks of housekeeping is washing dishes. It comes regularly, three times a day. Hence the following dishwashing tips:

First, the task is easier if performed immediately after each meal before the food particles become dry and hard to remove. Then, home economics experts have found that the task is still easier if a certain procedure is followed. They recommend: (1) carefully stack the dishes on the table or sink in piles; (2) soak egg and milk dishes and silverware in cold water; (3) rinse sticky and greasy plates and other articles with warm water; (4) use plenty of hot water and soap suds in the actual washing; (5) wash glassware first; (6) the silverware next; (7) then the chinaware, and (8) finally, the pots and pans.

How Radio Beams Guide Fliers The radio beacon beam is a series of signals sent from an airport which aids in keeping the pilot on his course. Wearing earphones the pilot listens to the signals which are the two code letters A (dot dash) and N (dash dot). If the pilot is a little off his course to one side the A signal will predominate in signal strength. If he is a little off to the other he will hear the N signal more distinctly. If he is exactly on his course the signals will merge into one long dash. Therefore without even glancing at the beacon light ahead, or if poor visibility obstructs it altogether, he may follow a direct course by flying his plane so that at all times the long dash predominates in his earphones. How to Tunnel Through Mud In tunneling through soft clay, huge torches are sometimes used to bake the ground hard. #### Lesson for September 26

GOD IN THE MAKING OF A NATION

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 8:11-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day.—Deuteronomy 8:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—To Help Us Remember.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Giver of Gifts.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
God in the Making of a Nation.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
God in the Making of a Nation.

God in the making of the nation of Israel—this has been our general subject for a number of months. In this concluding lesson we meet up with a solemn warning that even though God's mighty works have been revealed on behalf of a people, it is possible for them to become proud and self-confident, forgetting him whose they are and whom they should serve, and perishing in their rebellion and sin.

I. "Beware That Thou Forget Not the Lord" (v. 11).

How could this people who had come up out of slavery and been led "through that great and terrible wilderness" (v. 15), who had been fed by God's hand, who had received "water out of the rock of flint," who had become a great nation by his grace and blessing, now forget God? It would seem unbelievable, did we not know ourselves. We need this warning as badly as Israel. Shout a stirring "Beware" from coast to coast as this lesson is taught, for America is forgetting God. Space does not permit a review of the appalling facts here, but they are enough to make one's heart sick with sorrow and fear for the future of our nation.

II. "Lest . . . Thou Say . . . My Power" (vv. 12-17).

How trenchant and altogether fitting are the words of Scripture. Nothing could describe our times more succinctly and accurately than v. 17. Men are glorying in their ability to do things. Science has made mighty strides forward. Industry has brought forth so many striking developments that a single company is able to present as a reflection of its own work a veritable "House of Magic."

We honor those who by skillful hand and brilliant brain produce ex-cellent and thrilling results. But our question is, "How many are there who say, 'God has done this thing. He gave the strength and the skill. His is the honor'?" Some there are who thus recognize him, but they are few indeed. Their name is legion who say in their heart, "My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth" (v. 17).

God, forgive us, cleanse us, and give us grace to walk humbly before

III. "Remember the Lord . . . He ... Giveth Thee Power." (v. 18). Joseph Parker points out that a deep conviction of the fact stated in v. 18 "would turn human history into a sacrament." He says, "What a blow this text strikes at one of the most popular and mischievous fallacies in common life-namely, that man is the maker of his own money!" He makes a stirring plea (see People's Bible. Vol. IV. p. 188) for bringing God, who has been "crushed like a rose leaf in the Bible," out into the market place, into the office and the warehouse, for if man will make "his warehouse into a church" he will never turn the church into a warehouse. Would that we could once and for all do away with all "Sunday religion," and bring the gospel of grace and the laws of God into the office, the factory, the school, and the home, for every day and every incident and transaction of life.

IV. "If Thou . . . Forget . . . Ye Shall . . . Perish" (vv. 19, 20). Reading this passage in the light of our knowledge of what did happen to Israel, we agree that the warning was needed, even though it was not heeded. Shall we then dismiss the matter with perhaps an expression of regret that they so disobeyed God and missed his blessing? If we do we miss the most important point in our lesson, for the fact is that our nation is just as dependent on God, and in just as much danger of forgetting him and perishing. God punished even his chosen people in the day that they forgot him. Let not America think that she will escape if she goes on her way, forgetting God. We plead again, as we did last Sunday, for a deep going revival among God's people, and a renewed zeal for the salvation of lost men and women.

How Americans Abroad Unconsciously Are Patriotic.

By EDITH M. BARBER

66 F THERE is anything we are I serious about, it is neither religion nor learning, but food. We openly acclaim eating as one of the few joys of this human life," pro-claims the Chinese author, Lin Yut'ang, in that fascinating book, "My Country and My People." He goes on to say that the question of attitude is very important, "for unless we are honest about it, we will never be able to lift eating and cooking into an art."

The author contrasts the attitudes of various nations toward the subject, insisting that the French and Chinese eat enthusiastically, while the English eat apologetically. The great Chinese poets and essayists do not hesitate to use cookery as subjects for their writing. Yut'ang insists that you cannot develop a national culinary art unless you are willing to discuss it and exchange your opinions on it your opinions on it.

There is more than a grain of truth in my opinion in the following: "Actually our love of fatherland is largely a matter of recollection of the keen sensual pleas ures of our childhood. The loyalty to Uncle Sam is the loyalty to American doughnuts and the loyalty to the vaterland is the loyalty to pfannkuchen and Stollen, but the Americans and Germans will not admit Many Americans while abroad sigh for their ham and sweet potatoes at home, but they will not admit that this makes them think of home, nor will they put it in their

The Two Classes of Overweight By

YOU may read from time to time about the "different kinds of obesity-overweight," and if you are overweight you may wonder to which class you belong.

As a matter of fact there are only two classes of overweight, and while they have odd names their meaning is very simple.

The first class is the exogenous-

"ex" meaning "out of," and "gen" meaning "beginning that is, the cause of the overweight begins outside the body. Thus taking extra food and not taking enough exercise is the common or usual type of exogenous overweight. It usually comes on with the ease and contentment of middle life. The second class is the endogenous ("en" within, and "gen" meaning "beginning,"-beginning within the body), which results from some gland disturbance or deficiency within the body. The glands at fault are the thyroid in the neck, pituitary lying on the floor of the skull, and the generative glands. Each gland has its own type of overweight but sometimes the overweight may be due to a deficiency in two or more of these glands. When the thyroid gland in the neck is not manufacturing enough juice there is an increase of weight in all parts of the body. It is six times as frequent in women as it is in men. "The onset may occur with mental dullness, impaired memory, and obscure pains in the legs. As a result of this thyroid gland deficiency there follows an increase in the bulk of the body, with a firm inelastic swelling of the skin which does not pit on pressure.'

Skin Becomes Rough.

The skin becomes dry and rough and wrinkles in the face smooth out leaving a childish or vacant expression. The mentality, speech and bodily movements become sluggish. Constipation is usually present and the rate at which the body processes work may be from 20 to 40 per cent below normal.

In deficiency of the pituitary gland lying on the floor of the skull there is sometimes a family tendency noted, and it occurs as often in males as in females. It usually begins in the very early teens just before puberty—the age at which girls and boys are entering into manhood and womanhood. Attention to this condition is first given because of the great amount of starch and sweet foods these youngsters can eat without having any disturbance in the stomach or intestine. They have a great craving for sweets and pastries. That these youngsters are going to be plump or chunky is evident even at this age. Fortunately the mental ability remains normal and there is no lack of alertness.

An X-ray of the skull may show changes in the gland itself or the structures about it. Late in the disease there may be eye trouble, blindness, headache or vomiting.

In this type of overweight there is a great increase of fat in the shoulders, breasts, abdomen and hips, while the forearms and lower legs are slender and hands and feet usually small.

In the generative or sex gland type of overweight, there is in the male wideness of the hips with also a great deposit of fat there. There is increased fat deposits under the skin of the chest, the abdomen and the hips.

Depends on Glands. In the female there is lack of breast development and irregularity of the monthly periods.

When more than one gland is at fault such as the thyroid and the pituitary, or the pituitary and the sex glands, the symptoms will of course depend upon the glands involved.

In the treatment of overweight, as more than nine of every ten overweights got that way from overeating, cutting down on the food intake is the chief method of treatment if these individuals are to escape the dangers due to overweight-heart, kidney, and bloodvessel ailments. However, in addition to cutting down on the food intake these "gland" types of overweight need to take the special gland extracts under the supervision of a physician.

"Thus restricting the food or energy intake to less than the requirements of the body, and increasing the energy requirements by exercise, the reserve energy depots of the body (where fat has greatly accumulated) are used to supply the required energy that is lacking in the food; thus, demands are made upon the fat depots of the body, and so the fat is consumed."

It would be well therefore if you think you are not the "common"

variety of overweight (due to overeating and underexercising) to consult your family physician who by examination, metabolism and X-ray tests will be able to place you in

Voice of Experience

A Thorn in the Flesh

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS © McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"HAT a world!" Mrs. Arden said, her lip curling as she tossed a letter half across the room. It barely missed Ray's nose-Ray, the irrepressible, prone on the couch, wrapped in a new Ray sat up, stared

hard at her mother

a full minute, then threw her gaze to the ceiling, saying reflectively:
"Must be the shepherd has escaped the fowler's snare. How'd he do it, J. J.? Must have had help—but "The wedding cards will tell you. Read them," said Mrs. Arden.

Ray whistled, retrieved the fat envelope and read aloud: "Mrs. George Gore announces her marriage to the Reverend Royal Talbot, Wednesday, September 16. At home after New Year's next at Pine-wood, Lester County."

"My! Me! Didn't I tell you, J. J., just how it would be? That lazy lout was looking for the softest lap to lie on. Physically and spiritually, the Gilded Gore is a heap more cushiony than ever you could be-also and further, her sole incumbrance was a lap-dog—"

"While I had a regular thorn in the flesh!" Mrs. Arden cried furiously. "Purposely, you did your worst whenever he came about.
Maybe you wanted him yourself."
"Good Lord!" Ray ejaculated.
"Are you out of your head, J. J.?

Why, I'd sooner murder than marry that bunch of conceit!" "You-you have no feeling," Mrs.

Arden sobbed. "Royal was the only man I ever loved." "Yet you married my father." "I didn't-he married me. I was only fifteen, with no mother nor father. He worshiped me—meant to be kind—but he tried to make me over." "Sorry for him," Ray murmured. Her mother ran on: "You are too much his child ever to be truly sorry for anything. He gave me every-thing but liberty. Now when that has come I wanted happiness as

"With a man ten years younger," Ray said slowly. "When you might have had one worth a million of

"Who?" worth a million of who?" Judge Reed said, coming in from the library. Mrs. Arden gave a little scream and ran away. Ray rose, blushing deeplyshe had quite forgotten the weekend guest. "Spatting as usual," she said, swallowing hard. "Poor Juliet! How did she happen to have a child like me?"

"Inevitably," the judge said, sit-ting down where he could stare at her. "Your father gave you everything. Spiritually that was all you got. Let me tell you about your mother. A real Juliet, the loveliest thing that ever stepped. We both ere mad about her, yet it didn't break our friendship. I loved him too well to grudge him even her. And I might have gone on loving her to this good day but for what came later. You know he lost everything-sight, strength, mind-saving a poor man and his children from burning alive. They said he couldn't live a year—instead he lived ten. L looked out for his wife and his baby daughter. Juliet was angelic to him; it ought to have made my love stronger, if anything could. Instead, as I saw her truthfully, soft, sweet, shallow, yet wilful and selfish, I realized my own escape and what I owed to that burned sacrifice."

"So that's why you have been our special providence," Ray said stonily. "She said it was-never mind what-but I believed her.'

"I knew all along her mistake," Reed said slowly. "But there was no use undeceiving her. It helped a lot to feel herself the object of an undying passion. The situation was rather awkward after her freedom came until the Reverend Royal appeared in the offing."

"And here I've been wasting sympathy on you because of him," Ray burst out. "But how was I to know when you kept doing things for us and pampering us so shamefully, especially J. J., that it was all a thank offering, instead of the most diplomatic lowemaking."

"M-M! Think it's very diplomatic for a tough old fellow to do his damnedest to fend off younger fellows from the girl of his heart?" Reed interrupted.

"I-I don't think anything," Ray faltered, rising and trying to run "Don't tell fiblets," the judge admonished. "Remember how I always told you they were what your dear daddy would have hated most if he knew." Ray buried her face in her hands. sobbing softly. Judge Reed bent over her, saying hoarsely: "Ray, I loved you first for his sake: now it is for your own. You are the most precious thing in the world to me. Don't let any pity for me sway you

But if—if you could find a little love for a crabbed old fellow-"I can't!" Ray cried, lifting her head. "Because, you see, already I love you so much, there's no little stray bit to look for." They were silent minutes, locked in each others arms.

BASEBALL IN TANEYTOWN NEXT YEAR.

It is much too soon to plan seriously for baseball in Taneytown next year; but the experience of the past season will have left with the managerial end some questions to think over, and that can best be done while they are still fresh in mind; for it is by experience that we learn.

The team's work this year has been admirable in both leagues, and games have been won and lost by all with the minimum of disorder and ill-feeling, both on the part of players and specta-tors, which in itself is highly credit-able in a game that is always full of exciting situations when well played.

According to the writer's individual opinion, the main question for decis-ion is whether or not both Saturday and Sunday games are either desirable or profitable, especially considering the attitude of a considerable portion of the public as to Sunday games; and it is the public that supplies the funds

Another fact worth considering is the rather poor attendance. There must be a reason for this that is worth trying to find out. Mere home-town pride should support home sports, as well as any other home effort.

We do not know how the financial end stands; but almost surely there is a deficit to be made up by somebody, and if so, the public will no doubt help, especially as the team won the pen-nant. One thing is sure—both Satur-day and Sunday games cost greatly more than Saturday games alone.

TANEYTOWN 4-N. WINDSOR 3.

Taneytown won its last game of the season, and the pennant in the Penn-Maryland League, last Saturday by defeating New Windsor 4 to 3. The game had about been given up as lost by Taneytown as the score stood 3-2 in favor of the visitors after their half of the ninth inning. But the home team's half of the inning changed the situation. Rommel entered the game to bat for Ecker, and promptly struck out. The head of the batting order then came up. Feeser made his third hit of the game. Althoff who had not made a hit in eight innings, won first an activities the control of the structure of the on a single, Blettner singled tieing the score. Campbell was given an inten-tional pass, filling the bases; and then the always dangerous Joe Rang made his second hit bringing in the winning run, with one man out.

During the game, both Bixler and

Ecker, for Taneytown, were liberally hit, to a greater extent than the score shows, as good fielding prevented scoring. Flater for New Windsor was more effective, but something went wrong for him in the ninth, that again demonstrated that a ball game is nev-(Continued on Fifth Page.)
