Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Eckard, returned from their trip to Florida, last Sunday.

Dr. Percy Mehling and daughter, Lois Jane, of Springfield, Pa., visited his brother, Luther Mehling, on Wednesday.

Miss Helen Mahoney, of Washington, D. C., spent the week-end with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mahoney.

Mrs. George R. Baumgardner returned home from the Hanover General Hospital, on Monday and is getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clabaugh, son and daughter, of Good Intent; John Harman, of town, were callers on Tuesday evening at Mr. and Mrs. Geo. I. Harman's.

Mrs. James Lord, Jr. and daughter, Ruby, near town, returned home on Monday, after spending ten days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd N. King, Forsyth, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Null and children, near town, and Mrs. Lizzie Zepp of town, visited Mr. and Mrs. Michael Groves, near Marietta, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hossler, near Mount Joy, Pa., on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Angell, of town; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shorb, of near town; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Clabaugh and little daughter, Carrie Ruth, of Black Ankle, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. I. Harman.

Has it occurred to Radio listeners, that for the past six months there appears to be a large number of vocalists, male and female, who are being given free "try-outs," as many of them are surely not in the professional class?

Merwyn C. Fuss was the guest speaker at the Wakefield Church of God, on Sunday evening. A quartet of C. G. Bowers, Edgar Fink, Earl Bowers and M. C. Fuss, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar Fink, furnished the special music.

We are selling a lot of single copies of The Record each week—more than ever at any previous time. We do not object to this and are glad to do so. But, some weeks the supply may run out—it is safer to subscribe for 6 months or a year.

James H. Stavelly, a former employee of the Men's Clothing Factory, Taneytown, died in Frederick, on Monday, aged 61 years. He was a tailor in the employ of the Frederick Tailoring Company, and is survived by his wife and four children.

Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Clyde L. Hesson, Luther Ritter and Wallace Reindollar attended the annual Alumni banquet of Gettysburg College, for Frederick and Carroll Counties held at Clear Ridge Inn, on Monday night.

A. C. Hess, of York, Pa., who among other members of the Hess family attended the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Wm. E. Bowers, here, on Monday, paid our office his customary visit when he comes to town. He is looking fine and healthy, as always.

The following directors and officers of The Birnie Trust Co. were elected, on Monday: Directors, Merwyn C. Fuss, George A. Arnold, Edward S. Harner, Ernest W. Bankard, Carroll C. Hess, Harry M. Mohney and John L. Leister; Officers, Merwyn C. Fuss, President; Geo. A. Arnold, Vice-President; Charles R. Arnold, Secretary.

Emmitsburg's officials are pretty active in trying to "get things" for the town. They are now urging that the "blinker" in the centre of the square be replaced by a regular traffic light, and give a long list of arguments for it. Taneytown needs such a light as much as does Emmitsburg, and for the same reasons—greater safety to our citizens, and to strangers passing through. Which place will add the improvement first?

Mr. and Mrs. G. Zeiber Stultz, entertained the following at a chicken supper, last Saturday in honor of her daughter, Naomi, who was recently married. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. G. Zeiber Stultz and son, John William; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, Mr. and Mrs. David Stultz, daughter, Doris; John Stultz and Edward Hyle. Mr. and Mrs. David Stultz gave a dinner, on Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith. Mr. Wm. Aaring was a guest at the same place.

Those who spent Sunday March 6, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Duple and daughter, Blanche, were: Rev. and Mrs. Paul Emenheiser and daughter, Louise; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Angell, Mr. and Mrs. William Copenhaver, grand-daughter, Marian; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bowers, all of Taneytown; Mrs. Louise Redding, Hanover. Those who spent Sunday, March 13, at the same place were: Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Mort, son, John Mort, Violet Casey, of near Emmitsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Duple, of Emmitsburg; Maxine Nusbaum, of Taneytown.

THE CALIFORNIA FLOOD

Part of a Letter from H. Clay Englar on the Subject.

The following letter was received this week, from H. Clay Englar, son of the Editor, dated March 9, Ontario, California, giving information concerning the flood.

"You no doubt read of our recent flood. It was quite bad and not exaggerated as to damage done. Ontario is about the centre of the damaged area but we as a city, escaped any damage whatever. The mountain ranges which furnished the run-off of water are quite close to us and many normally dry flood channels lead from the mountains into small streams in the valley.

Nature engulfed our community with a natural uninterrupted gradual slope for about seven miles from the mountains to the immense flat farm lands. The mountains were covered by snow and the four days rain were warm, so you see why so much water. Under separate cover I am sending you a few damage scenes largely in Los Angeles. Our citrus industries, orange groves, etc., are quite hard hit and ruined in this vast territory, and few pictures are available of the damage. So far as life in Ontario was concerned our 14 inches of rain did no damage except swell up the streams further off to the South, and of course flooding prairies to the ocean.

Another wind storm is predicted for tonight, and a quite heavy snow fall in the mountains, though we were quite comfortable here in our shirt sleeves today.

I have not made any effort to see the ruins because there is something in my make-up that does not urge me to do so. Ugly things and misfortunes of other people never have attracted me; so I suppose I am one of the few people who know really little about the calamity. You may recall that I saw very little of the two earthquakes I experienced."

KIWANIANS WILL CELEBRATE AT SAUBLE'S INN.

The Kiwanis Inter Club will hold a Maryland Day celebration at Sauble's Inn, on March 27th. The principal speaker will be Irvin Diener, of Alexandria, Va. Governor and Mrs. Nice Senator and Mrs. David J. Baile, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Rudy will be invited guests.

Among the attractions will be the Baltimore City Police quartet; T. K. Harrison and Charles Crawford will engage in a three-round boxing contest, with Truman B. Cash as referee.

A group will conduct a mock wedding—I do, I do, I do. An accordion soloist from Blue Ridge College will present several selections, and accompany "The Merry Men of Windsor." All other attractions will hold forth. Kiwanians from Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland will make up the major portion of the group.

TANEYTOWN VOL. FIRE CO. ANNUAL SUPPER.

The Taneytown Volunteer Fire Co., held their monthly meeting, Monday evening, March 14th, 1938, with the President, James C. Myers, presiding.

Final plans were made and considered for the Annual Supper to be held Saturday, March 26th, 1938, from 5 o'clock, P. M., on, in the Firemen's Building, Taneytown. Person or persons wishing suppers sent out should send or bring dishes for same.

In addition to the many committees appointed necessary to make this supper a success, the following committees consisting of members of the Fire Company will call at your home next week, (March 21 to 26) for donations:

Raymond Davidson, chairman, Emmitsburg road and West Baltimore St., Raymond Davidson, M. S. Ohler, Kermit Reid and Wilson Riffe; York St. and Littleton road; Edwin Baumgardner, Birnie Babylon, Ray Shriner and Donald Tracy; East Baltimore St. to Fair Ground, T. H. Tracey, Delmar Riffe, B. W. Crapster and Chas. Baker; Fairview Ave and Keysville Road, David Smith, James Burke, Paul Shoemaker and Ellis Ohler; Harney and Walnut Grove roads, Mervin Conover, Carroll Frock, Elmer Crebs and Leo Zentz; Westminster and Mayberry roads, Charles Rohrbaugh, E. R. Bowers, Harman Albright and Chas. Clingan; Uniontown and Otter Dale roads, C. G. Bowers, Chas. Cashman, J. J. Wolfe, Herbert Smith and Roy Baker; George St. and Mill Avenue, Alton Boston and Roy Smith; Frederick St. and Middleburg road, Norman Devilbiss, W. Z. Fair, Elwood Baumgardner and Clarence LeGore; Middle St., Cleve LeGore, Delmont Koons and Howard Sentz.

It is hoped that everyone will respond with donations as freely and willingly as the Fire Company responds to the call of fires and with the fact in mind that a Volunteer Fire Company is less expensive and just as efficient to the community as a paid company.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

PHOEBUS IS OUT.

State Senator Harry T. Proebus, of Princess Anne, was ousted from his $3,000 a year post as state labor commissioner by Governor Nice, on Monday.

William D. Bloom, chief inspector of the department for more than ten years, and a Democrat, was named acting commissioner. A permanent appointment will be made by the Governor later, with A. Stengle Marine, Cambridge attorney and well known Shore Republican, prominently mentioned for the place.

TRADE AGREEMENT AND SHOE BUSINESS.

Nearby Manufacturers Reported to be Seriously Affected.

Secretary of State Hull, representing the Roosevelt administration, has signed another trade agreement with Czechoslovakia, that will be advantageous to the already immense shoe business that country now enjoys in this country, due largely to cheap labor and hides.

Czechoslovakia has equipped its factories with American shoe making machinery, or building its own, taking no account of American patent rights.

These shoe trade agreements also affect the manufacture here of a large number of accessories, also factory buildings, transportation, salesmen, the homes of workmen hides, linings, etc., etc.

It is claimed that this additional favorable agreement will greatly affect shoe manufacturers in this country, including Hanover, McSherrystown, New Oxford, Littleton and Westminster, which if true means lower wages for American employees, if American manufacturers are to successfully compete with those of Czechoslovakia.

D. OF A. WILL PRESENT PLAY.

The play "Mama's Baby Boy" is being produced by the Daughters of America, Taneytown, Council No. 107, on Wednesday evening, March 30th. The play is a highly entertaining one, and the parts are well taken. The cast of characters is as follows—

Mrs. Shepherd, McLean; Young Widow, Lillian Demmitt; Shephard McLean, her young son, Genevieve Reever; Luther Long, a widow, Walter Hahn; Juliet Long, his young daughter, Verma Vaughn; Mrs. Matilda Blackburn, Mrs. McLean's mother, Rhoda Dayhoff; Wilbur Warren, Shephard's young pal, Quintin Eckenrode; Sylvia Kline, Wilbur's girl friend, Anna Wolfe; Mrs. Carlotta Anglin, a friend of Mrs. McLean's, Ester Moser; Cynthia Anglin, her young daughter, Hannah E. Eckenrode; Max Moore, a real estate agent, Eugene Eyer; Minnie, a colored maid, Mattie Hahn. Director Mrs. Norville Davis.

MAYOR MATTHEWS DEAD.

George E. Matthews, Mayor of Westminster for the past twelve years died at his home, Wednesday night, from a heart attack, aged 71 years. He had been ill for about a month.

In addition to being Mayor he was a director of the Westminster Deposit & Trust Co., Member of the Westminster Cemetery Board, Knights of Pythias and the Masonic Lodge, and of Centenary M. E. Church.

He is survived by his widow and by two daughters, Miss M. Louise Matthews and Mrs. Helen Matthews Smith, of Westminster, and by one brother, Frank Matthews, Baltimore. Funeral services were held this Friday afternoon at Centenary M. E. Church.

ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE OF HOLY NAME SOCIETY.

On Sunday, March 20th., the regular monthly pilgrimage of the Central Maryland Section of the Holy Name Society will be resumed.

Reverend John Francis Leary of St. Mary's Church, Hagerstown, has graciously extended the section an invitation to meet in Hagerstown on this occasion.

The Vesper Service will be held at 4:00 P. M., and at this will also inaugurate the drive for new members which will be conducted at the request of the Archdiocesan Director, Very Rev. Msgr. Harry A. Quinn.

Please urge everyone of your members that you possibly can to attend this meeting:

1. To show their love and devotion to the Holy Name of Jesus.

2. To show their appreciation of the invitation extended by the new pastor of St. Mary's, Hagerstown.

WHAT A BILLION MEANS.

The following clipped from the Baltimore Evening Sun's Mail Box, gives some figures that may be interesting.

"Figuring 60 minutes to the hour, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, from the birth of Christ to the end of 1938 there will have elapsed 1,018,612,800 minutes. If it had been possible to lay aside, without interest, $35 each minute through those 1938 years, we would have accumulated $35,651,448,000, a sum just too small to liquidate our present Federal debt of approximately $37,500,000,000.

If we are able to repay that debt at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, it will require 37,500 days, or 103 years, to discharge it. In other words, we can be out of debt by 2041. Of course, that takes no cognizance of interest, which, at two percent, amounts to $750,000,000 annually.

Mr. Roosevelt recently made the statement that the Federal Government cannot operate efficiently on an annual budget of less than $7,000,000,000. That means that we must expend money at the rate of $19,178,082 a day, including Sundays and holidays, or $13,318 a minute."

BASS IN THE MONOCACY

Announcement of Considerable Interest to Local Fishermen.

The Monocacy river, through the efforts of sportsmen, has been freed of pollution. The time is now propitious for restocking this naturally fine stream. Through the efforts of the Taneytown Sportsmen's Club arrangements have been made for the sportsmen of Taneytown-Harney-Littleton and Westminster to purchase 1000 large mouth bass, from 1 to 4 pounds, through the Maryland State Conservation Commission, for $125.00.

Half of these bass will be put in Myers' Dam, the other half below the dam at selected locations. The canvass of the sportsmen for the $125.00 is now in progress and meeting with such success that the bass will be purchased. Any good sportsman who has been missed in the canvass, can contact C. M. LeFevre, who will gladly receive such contributions.

General Wildlife Federation, Washington, D. C., March 20 to 26 is National Wildlife Restoration Week. Our national organization has a very definite program for wildlife restoration. This program consists of seven objectives as follows:

1. Establish government responsibility for restoration and conservation of wildlife.

2. Establish standing committees in both houses of Congress to further conservation interests.

3. Strive for adequate funds for the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

4. Establish co-operative research between the Federal and State governments on matters affecting wildlife and earmark for state wildlife restoration projects the revenues taken in excise taxes (amounting to $3,500,000 annually) from the sportsmen of America.

5. Strive for adequate Federal custodianship over our waters to the end that pollution may be cleaned up and droughts and floods minimized.

6. Strive for adequate appropriations for wildlife research.

7. Support the program for continued and better enforcement of all game laws.

A sizable portion of the three and a half millions from excise taxes will reach Maryland next year. These yearly portions should develop many projects in our state. Remember these funds are earmarked.

The sportsmen of Taneytown are now advocating that Minnow bait fishing be eliminated. More fish are destroyed thoughtlessly in this way than is excusable. A minnow bait fisherman will catch from 100 to 200 minnows. Those he does not use die. Multiply this number by many fishermen, and you will know why our small streams are soon robbed of minnows. Be a good sport. Fish with Plug, Fly, or the Wiggly Worm.

C. M. LeFEVRE.

AUTO DEATHS LOWER THAN LAST YEAR.

The second month of this year has ended with eleven less deaths than the corresponding period of (1937), a decrease of 30 per cent. The first two months of this year (1938) show a decrease of 31 percent over the first two months of the year (1937).

According to our summary, 14 or 54 percent of the persons killed for the month of February were pedestrians, 8 or 31 per cent were passengers, 3 or 11 per cent were the operators themselves, and one bicyclist.

A majority of the accidents occurred on straight, dry, concrete roads, with the next largest number at intersections during clear weather. Most of the accidents involving deaths occurred during the hours of darkness (7:00 P. M. to 8:00 P. M.) and on Fridays and Saturdays. Twenty passenger cars out of a total of twenty-two vehicles involved, led the list, with the remaining 2 vehicles as trucks.

All of the operators involved, appeared to be in apparently normal condition, and most of the operators were white, and between the ages of 20 to 29, with 5 years or more experience and a resident of one of our counties. A majority of the pedestrians were walking in road, on right side with traffic, and stepping from in front or behind a vehicle. There were no Hit and Run cases during February.

Baltimore City is charged with 7 deaths involving 7 accidents, whereas 14 accidents occurred in the Counties, involving 19 deaths.

WALTER R. RUDY, Commissioner.

WESTMINSTER FIRE CO. ANNUAL SUPPER.

The Westminster Fire Company, will hold its annual chicken, waffle and oyster supper, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, March 24, 25 and 26th. in the Firemen's building. The firemen appeal to the public to help to make the supper a success as funds are needed to operate the department. Supper will be served from 5:00 to 8:00 P. M.

When there is the will there is always a way. All should exercise good wills, and good ways will follow, notwithstanding a gloom ahead that is not easily penetrated, but may not be as bad as first sight appears.

The most costly losses in the world, are to lose friends and a good reputation.

THE EUROPEAN WAR SITUATION CRITICAL.

Indicated line-ups that may Develop in near future.

The probability of a European war has been growing since the annexation of Austria, last week, by Germany, and Italy's agreement thereto. In Spain it is clearly apparent that both Italy and Germany are supporting the insurgent forces in Spain against Spanish loyalists. In this is seen a threat against the southern boundary of France, should Italy and Germany combine in war against France.

Following the annexation of Austria, the opinion is growing that Czechoslovakia might be next in the mind of German leaders, and as France has treaty obligations to support the Czechs in case of invasion, this would practically represent war against France.

As Russia too seems to have such a treaty with Czechoslovakia, it would come to the aid of that country, as well as France. Poland is also a friend of the Czechs, as well as are some other smaller countries that could hardly keep from lining-up, in case of war movements eastward.

For the time being, the war between Japan and China is rather in the background of interest; with Japan the winner so far. A possible eventual line-up seems to be—

On the one side, England, France, Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, the Spanish loyalists and China. On the other side, Germany, Italy, Japan, Austria, and the Spanish insurgents, now in the ascendancy in Spain strong German population in Czechoslovakia that might make its line-up in doubt.

England seems determined not to interfere with the Civil War in Spain, as the situation now stands; but that France, on its own account may feel compelled to openly support the insurgents. The whole situation represents a deep game, very much under cover, but of such seriousness that a few days may lead to very radical changes in the situation.

The indications are that Congress will easily pass the enlarged Navy program, practically as presented, calling for one Billion of dollars. The main opposition is to building battleships instead of smaller armed cruisers that are argued to be better for defensive purposes.

FOR ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION.

A conference on world economic co-operation, will be held in Hotel Washington, Washington, D. C., March 23, 24, 25 and 26th.

This conference is not just for speech-making. It is more than an opportunity to listen to the statesmen and experts who are seeking ways of halting, by economic action, the mad course toward war. It is a conference in which all together can recommend concrete national and international economic policies for peaceful change. Issues to be discussed:

1.—How can the nations turn from economic warfare to economic co-operation?

2.—How can a world economic policy be formed which will prevent war and raise the standard of living of all peoples?

The conference expects to be broadly representative of the country organizationally, geographically and occupationally thru the presence of:

1.—Delegates from farmers, workers, churches, women's organizations, business and professional groups and youth.

2.—Experts in industry, farm, and labor problems and general economics.

All groups should plan to send delegates.

W. C. T. U. PROGRAM NEXT WEEK IN TANEYTOWN H. S.

(For the Record.)

Miss Lily Grace Mathesen, a public speaker of national reputation, who is touring the country speaking in churches, high schools, colleges, and before various clubs and organizations for men and women, will be in Carroll county next week. Her work is a part of the educational program being sponsored by the National W. C. T. U. judging by the testimonials that have come to us from high school principals and school superintendents, her talks have been most enthusiastically received by the young folks as well as those of more mature age.

Miss Matheson will speak in the Taneytown High School auditorium, Thursday, March 24, from 2:45 to 3:15 P. M. The meeting will be open to the public. It is hoped, that the citizens of the community will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this talented speaker, especially those who have helped to make her coming possible, by contributing to this educational fund.

ENGLAND CALLS 1,000,000 MEN.

England has issued a call for 1,000,000 men to strengthen air defense and other military needs, following Germany's occupation of Austria that may threaten Czechoslovakia and other mid-European nations.

France has promised aid to the Czechs should invasion be extended to their country, in accordance with the treaty between the two nations.

What Russia may do is a big open question, but it is believed that in case of war it will be found along with France and England.

SPRING CLEANING FOR FURNACES IMPORTANT.

"Now is the time to use your good common sense to avoid burning your home. Run your furnace so it will keep you warm, but not burn you up!"

This is the warning given by a fire prevention engineer, who says that the way you operate your heating plant at the end of winter, after months of hard use, may decide whether you will have your house a week from now—or a blackened ruin instead.

As the National Board of Fire Underwriters points out, "Cold weather brings an increase of fires every year. Homes are burned, people are maimed for life and others die in agony as the fire losses mount higher."

"Don't force your furnace or stove. If you can't get enough warmth, call in a heating expert. Also call him if you find any broken parts or other defects such as holes in the smoke-pipe, or a dirty or defective chimney."

You know what would happen to your car if you neglected to have it properly lubricated, and necessary repairs made. Your furnace is in the same category. It can't operate efficiently and safely without periodic expert attention and cleaning.

The use of common sense will save lives and property from destruction by fire now.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS.

Baltimore, March 16—More than 100,000 persons have asked for benefit payments under the unemployment compensation act administered by the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board, which began to receive claims on January 3 last. Of these 72,000 have been verified and more than 143,000 payments have been made. The average weekly payment to date has been about $8.74 and the total now runs up to $1,500,000.

The number of checks sent out each day varies from 4,000 to 10,000, the latter figure having been reached for the first time last week.

There are to date about 10,000 disputed claims which are in the course of adjustment. It is these disputed cases—which cause complaints from the prospective beneficiaries many of whom in filing their claims failed to give all the necessary information. The most frequent omission is the Social Security Number without which no benefit payment can possibly be made.

Beneficiaries are, on the average, getting paid for eight weeks of unemployment but payment is stopped when the beneficiary is reemployed.

In recent days new claims for benefits have been coming in at the rate of about 1,000 a day. Baltimore City supplies by far the largest number, with Cumberland second.

The work of the Claims Division of the Board is now about current by the aid of much overtime work.

Random Thoughts

FORGET NOT, TO BE KIND.

There are times when exact professionalism and rigid business ethics should be strictly enforced, and times when circumstances require the exercise of leniency, if one has within his being a spirit of kindness.

The plan of strictly following one's own self-interests, and condemning everything contrary to them, may not be "best interests" at all, but pure bull-headed determination to have one's own way, regardless of facts.

One gets no real credit in the end for being dictatorial, always. No matter who the person may be, nor what his strong desires, he is bound, at some time, to need friends; and to be sure of having them, he must be a friend of others.

We win when we lose, in more ways than we think. Our reputation for being close, and hard, is bound to become known, and we are shunned because of it.

A pretty and comprehensive prayer puts it this way—

"Keep us, oh Lord, from pettiness. Let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put off all pretense and meet each other face to face, without self pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment, and always generous.

And, oh Lord God, let us forget not, to be kind."

WANTING THINGS.

This is an age of wanting things "our way" and we want them right away. This might be all very nice, providing our wants were desirable and right, and if others did not want things too, but not our way, but want them just as positively. Very often those who do the "wanting," do not want to do much of the "giving." We are decidedly stronger in asking and taking, than we are in giving, and the most natural result follows—somebody either "gets left," or must wait a more auspicious time.

The matter of roads, for instance, is one of the wants that loom up large as among others. Whether it be the State Roads Commission, the Board of Public Works, or the County Commissioners we are usually more than just disappointed when our efforts do not bring about desired results. For there are things that just can't be done, as we would all like them to be done. We do not personally do everything somebody wants us to do; why expect it from others?

If we were the dispensing agents, we would wonder why others were so unreasonable and disinclined to help us. The County Commissioners, for instance, can not do the undoable—please everybody. No Judge nor Jury can decide favorably to both plaintiff and defendant. Even if the Commissioners were strongly inclined, or really anxious, to play Santa Claus to everybody, they are faced with the question—Where will the money come from?

And with practically everybody complaining of "high taxes" and urging that they be reduced, it is silly for anybody to think that lower taxes, yet increased expenditures, can play together. No thrifty farmer, nor wise business man would agree to buy a new equipment of machinery or expensive fixtures without first knowing how he would be able to finance the venture.

Our public officials are supposed to represent us in this like manner. When they do not do so, public disapproval will eventually take their jobs away from them. Individuals, as well as representatives of the people, are expected to use good business sense.

It is perfectly proper for one community that feels that it has not had a square deal in public improvements, to protest at unfairness shown, if a good case can be substantiated by evidence. It is creditable enough, too, to work for our interests, in order to make sure that they are not being trifled with. But, justice and equity should always prevail, and no bad names be called, merely because the power that we try to influence in our favor, honestly, and with good business purpose, finds it impossible to grant our wants.

CREDIT SHOULD BE MASTERED, NOT FEARED.

"Use of credit is not something which we should teach the farmer to fear, but something which we should teach him to master," Dr. Thomas E. Symons, acting dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland, told directors of the Frederick Production Credit Association at their recent annual meeting.

He asserted that "more than half of all the farmers in the United States get short-time credit each spring, or at some time during the year, for their normal operations." "Far more farmers," he said, "use short-time credit—loans on chattels, purchases on time, unsecured borrowing—than the number who use farm mortgage loans backed by real estate security."

He stated that "estimates show less than one-fourth of all American farmers who use short-time credit obtain it in the form of cash loans from banks, production credit associations, or others whose business it is to lend money." He declared that

"merchants would rather sell for cash than on charge accounts," and urged that "the farmer can save himself a good many hard-earned dollars each year by getting his credit from a bank or production credit association, paying cash for his purchases, and saving his cash discounts."

Dr. Symons emphasized that credit is like fire—when used properly, it can be of great value, but when used blindly or improperly, it can quickly lead to ruin. In order to use it properly, he urged, it is essential that a farmer keep careful records and know just where he stands at all times, that he give the greatest attention possible to planning his farm management, and that credit be used only to the extent that it appears safe in line with the plans adopted. He pointed out that financial planning requires most careful budgeting in order to carry out the plans.

During the first eleven months of 1937, it was stated, the six production credit associations in Maryland made 1,580 loans, amounting to a total of $2,224,200.

THE SQUARE DEAL.

At Dallas, Texas, April 5, 1905, Theodore Roosevelt made an address on the Square Deal at a banquet held there, and as introduction said: "When I say I believe in a 'square deal' I do not mean—it is possible to give every man the best hand—and all I mean is that there shall not be any crookedness in dealing. It is not in the power of any man to devise legislation or administration by which each man shall achieve success and have happiness; it is not in the power of any man to do that, and if a man says he can do it distrust him as a quack.

All any of us can pretend to do is to come as near as our imperfect abilities will allow to securing thru governmental agencies an equal opportunity for each man to show the stuff that is in him; that must be done with no more intention to discriminate against the rich man than the poor man, or against the poor man than the rich man. In foreign policies I have this strong belief, which I am sure will appeal to every cow-man present—never draw, unless you mean to shoot. If I find any subordinate of mine doing an injustice against a railroad, or doing an injustice for it, I will clinch him just as quickly in one case as in the other."

At Denver, Colorado, May 9, 1905 before Chamber of Commerce on Regulation of Railway Rates he said in part:

"When you give the nation the power, remember that harm and not good will come unless you give it with a firm determination not only to get justice for yourself, but to do justice to others.

"Whether the man owns the biggest railroad or the greatest corporation in the land, or makes his day's bread by the sweat of his daily toil he is entitled to just and fair dealing, to no more and to no less. A spirit of envy on the part of those less well off against the better off is as bad as and no worse than a spirit of arrogant disregard for the rights of men of small means on the part of men of large means. The arrogance and envy are not two different qualities, they are the same quality shown under different circumstances.

"If I have the appointment or retention of any commission and power to administer a law I shall neither appoint nor retain men who will fail to do justice to (all.)"

If we attack unjustly the proper right of others because they are wealthy, we shall do ourselves just as much damage as if we permitted an attack upon those who are poor because they are poor. In times past republic after republic has existed in the world and has gone down to destruction, sometimes because the government was turned into a government of the poor who plundered the rich, sometimes because it was a government of the rich who exploited the poor—the fall was just as certain in one case as in the other. (In every number of cases President Roosevelt in his public addresses reiterated to different audiences this statement, thus showing how important he considered the danger.—(W. J. H.)

exploited the poor. In either case just as soon as the republic became one in which substituted loyalty to that class for loyalty to the republic the end of that republic was at hand. No true patriot will fail to do everything in his power to prevent the growth of any such spirit in this country. This Government is not and never shall be a government of plutocracy; this government is not and never shall be a government of the mob."

(Again we wonder what the great Theodore might think or say, if he could revisit us now and study the trend of things.)
Baltimore. W. J. H.

They lived for the love of improvement, To do this they used keen discernment, They lived not for self, but to please, And to lift heavy burdens with ease, They used the great talents begot them, But the world will not soon forget them; Their passing the world will regret, This wondrous immortal quartet.

There was John Burroughs, known far and wide, Who took in Grim Nature at one single stride. He knew all the trees, and the life of the bees, Wild flowers and vines, that climbed o'er the trees, The fish in the brook, wild beasts in the wood, All Nature to him was created for good.

He was the great man, the last of his kind, Who saw in all Nature, work of Divine Mind.

There was Wizard, Tom Edison, who made work into play, And with Electricity turned night into day, He harnessed the elements, mastered them well, Now a night lighted world his story does tell. He next turned to the problem, made it his choice, To preserve in some manner the sound of the voice, If he had done naught else in his simple life span Thomas Edison would still be a very great man.

And for Harvey S. Firestone, one of the four, For his work in rubber, his name will endure, He started out small with seventeen employed, At his end, in wages, forty thousand enjoyed, His properties stretched to the ends of the earth, But his greatest concern was the land of his birth, He was simple in taste but had a keen mind, And always and ever to others was kind.

The lone survivor of this matchless quartet, Is the Great Henry Ford who remains with us yet, To His great perseverance, thrift, honesty, zeal, He has by his sole effort, put the whole world on wheels, His care by the millions now circle the earth, And men by the millions know now his full worth, Honest treatment, high wages, keen discernment and zeal, Are blessings from him the whole world must feel.

So we doff our hats proudly to these great honest men, Who each started lowly, but rose higher when Each resolved in his way to do his full part, To progress by the head and to rule by the heart, They have done a great work—each of the four— And in years to come will inspire many more To do right always, hence we may be sure With such inspiration civilization will endure.

NO HOLIDAY FOR DEATH.

Last year accidental deaths in the United States declined 4 per cent from 1936. But there's nothing in that to cause us to throw out our chests—Nature, not man, was the cause of the drop. The mild, cool summer, according to the National Safety Council, was responsible for almost all of the decline, inasmuch as heat deaths were 4,500 below normal.

In fields where man is the governing factor, the death and injury total, with the exception of home accidents, continued to rise. The greatest killer of all time, the automobile, claimed 4 percent more victims than it did in 1936, for a total of 39,700. Occupational deaths climbed 6 per cent, to 19,000. The grand total of deaths from all accidental causes was 106,000—with 375,000 persons permanently injured and 9,400,000, 8 per cent of the whole population, temporarily injured. The direct cost of these accidents is estimated to have reached the staggering total of $3,700,000,000.

There is 1937's accident record, expressed in cold figures. It is bad enough looked at that way. It is infinitely worse if you regard it in terms of human values—mutilated bodies, widowed mothers, orphaned children, blinded and crippled individuals, gore and carnage. And perhaps the most sombre reflection of all is that 90 per cent of the accidents were in all probability easily preventable —somebody was careless, somebody was ignorant, somebody took a chance and there was no holiday for death. Will 1938 repeat this bristly toll of life, health and dollars? It's up to us, all of us, to answer that question through our actions.—Industrial News Review.

LIBERTY CONFUSED.

Liberty has been confused in the minds of many people when associated with "Liberals."

Liberty is freedom of action without constraint or coercion, and is the main thing the Founding Fathers had in mind when they wrote the Constitution of these United States. As stated by the Jailor to Paul "At great price obtained I my freedom," so WE citizens of the U. S. may exclaim with Paul; But I was born Free!

Absolute freedom can be had only in an anarchistic state; but who wants anarchy? Freedom and liberty are for the combined greatest good to the greatest number deserving that freedom and liberty.

Freedom guaranteed,—a man's home is his castle, his farm is his kingdom; when freedom to do as he pleases with his own is denied him, he becomes a serf (servant) and not a freeman.

The LIBERALS, keen connivers of Camouflage, have named themselves Liberals, because they were and are "slick" enough to know the similarity of terms would confuse the rabble, and they could put over their schemes before the difference was detected. They have done just that thing. These Liberals are no more the advocate of Liberty (except for themselves) than is the devil for heavenly ways.

Liberals desire, and demand regimentation; American citizens desire liberty. Our Farmer population will have a taste of domination of Liberals, and loss of Liberty soon, when told to do or not do certain things about their own farms, which hitherto, and for 150 years they had farmed to their liking. We shall watch the outcome.

The Ford effort to make your dollars buy a constantly better car is well illustrated in the Standard Ford V-8. It has all the basic Ford advantages. It is built on the same chassis as the De Luxe Ford V-8. It gives you a choice of smooth 85-horsepower or 60-horsepower V-8 engines. But it sells at low prices, and includes bumpers, spare tire, cigar lighter, twin horns and other equipment that make it a still bigger bargain. With the thrifty 60-horsepower engine, the Standard Ford V-8 is priced especially low and gives the greatest gas mileage in Ford history. Hundreds of owners report averages of 22 to 27 miles a gallon—or even more. Your pocketbook will approve of the Standard Ford in every way. And so will you when you drive it!

GIVING DAY AWAY

Mr. and Mrs. Bibby were entertaining friends. "I think I shall get a car next year," said Mr. Bibby, during a lull in the conversation. "I haven't decided what make, but it's no use getting a cheap one. I suppose I could get a little serviceable affair for five hundred or so," says the El Paso World News.

While the company was gasping at the careless mention of such a sum, the host's youngest son remarked:

"And will that funny little man with the black whiskers call every week, like he did when you bought my bike, dad?"

The Name Doris

The name Doris is of Greek origin. Two authorities agree on it. But when it comes to the meaning of the name, these same authorities disagree widely and strangely, for one says that Doris means "a sacrificial knife" and the other that it means "of the sea." No reason is given for the first meaning. The second is explained by the fact that in Greek mythology Doris was a sea goddess, daughter of Oceanus and Thetis and mother of the sea nymphs.

Doris is also the name of a small mountainous district of Greece and of a genus of mollusks. So it may likewise be a Greek word for a sacrificial knife. But as a name, it would seem that "of the sea" is the more logical meaning.

FRIZELLBURG.

If my memory serves me correctly it has been more than thirty years since my news letters appeared in the columns of your much valued paper. After engaging in business for myself I soon found time and opportunity lacking and correspondence was discontinued. After this long period of silence I can recall very vividly the warm friendship that existed between myself and the worthy editor. I am proud to say that after all these years that friendly disposition remains true and loyal. Since time and opportunity permits I resume the task with much pleasure, hoping I can contribute something of interest to your weekly issues. In the last two weeks I notice something which I cannot refrain from commenting on. If it is a definite plan to be continued then our village should feel honored in having its news letter to appear first on the news page. Many thanks Mr. Editor for your kind consideration.

Sabbath School will be conducted here next Sunday at 10:00 A. M.

USED CAR SALES.

To the billion-dollar U. S. auto industry, no problem is more constant than that of the second-hand car. Two-thirds of the 13 1/2 million passenger machines sold and resold each year in this country go to people who never buy a new car. On 85 per cent of the new autos and 50 per cent of the used vehicles he sells, the dealer takes a used car as part-payment.

With auto-selling thus largely a replacement business, steady turnover of used car stocks is imperative for the health of the auto industry in general. This fact has never been better demonstrated than during the present business slump. Normally some 500,000 used cars fill the lots and garages of auto dealers. Today the number exceeds 800,000.

Swamped by this glut of "second-handers," dealers have been unable to offer attractive allowances on trade-ins, and their sales of new machines have dropped off drastically. Falling sales have cut factory orders, slashed production, and thrown tens of thousands out of work.

In Memory of G. MILTON FISHER.

Who died September 22, 1937.

My beloved is mine and I am his. How sad and lonely it is here To be in this world when husband is not here. I hope my time will come soon when I may go and be with him.

It is long, but not forgotten. Husband has gone to Heaven to rest. Where I want to go to rest and be in Heaven together.

Love thinking of him and hope the time will come soon to be in Heaven.

MRS. G. MILTON FISHER.

MARYLAND DAY, MARCH 25.

The history of Maryland is so full of interest, and Marylanders are so proud of their State, that they are always ready to celebrate "Maryland Day," the 25th. of March, the date in 1634 when the first colonists under Leonard Calvert, the first governor of the Province of Maryland, landed on St. Clement's Island in the Potomac River. Two days later these colonists sailed back down the Potomac to the mouth of the Saint Mary's River, and up the latter about six miles, and there established the first settlement in Maryland and the first home of religious freedom and toleration in America, at Saint Mary's City.

The location of this settlement on the banks of the Saint Mary's River, which was naturally a very beautiful one, was purchased from Tayak, "Empero" of the Piscatawa and Yaocomic tribes of Indians, by Gov. Calvert for a few trinkets and garden tools. The charter granting the Province of Maryland, which is said to have been written by George Calvert, the First Baron of Baltimore, and which is a most interesting and remarkable legal document, was to have been granted to the First Baron for public services rendered by him to James I. King, of England, and to his son and successor on the throne, Charles I, but unfortunately he died on April 15, 1632, after the charter had been submitted for the signature of King Charles, and the affixing of the Great Seal of England, but before it had been actually signed and sealed. So the grant was made to

Freedom of Religion

NEW YORK—This chaste figure of a young girl lifting her face to the skies will be dedicated to freedom of religion in the "Four Freedom" statuery group on the Central Mall of the New York World's Fair 1939.

Religious Rights Stressed at Fair

NEW YORK (Special).—A tribute to the constitutional right of freedom of worship will have a prominent part in the statuery to be placed upon the $60,000,000 Central Mall of the New York World's Fair 1939, Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair corporation, announced.

Part of a group known as "The Four Freedoms," the statue will depict a chaste, young girl, her face raised to the skies, holding a prayerbook in her hands. On the base of the statue, a number of churches of various denominations will signify that freedom of religion in this country is not confined to any one sect or creed.

Many Odd Street Names

Paris has the Street of the Fishing Cat, the Street of Bad Boys and the Street of the Little Pebbles. At Besancon, in the Jura mountains, a square bears the name of Bacchus. At Epinal, in the Vosges region, is the Allee of Vain Effort, while in Toulouse there is a thoroughfare known as Jealousy street. Another has the unusual appellation of Street of Watch Your Step; still others, the Street of the Four Billiards, the Street of the Three Banquets, and finally the Street of the Thirteen Winds. In another part of France, in Beauvais, famed for its cathedral, is the Street of the Salt Attic and the Street of Climb With Regret. In Strasbourg is a street with a smelly name, at least, for it is known as Garlic street; there is also a Square of the Milk-Fed Pig.

First Free Rural Mail

The first free rural mail delivery in the United States is said to have originated from the postoffice at Thibodaux, La., 60 miles west of New Orleans. It comprised territory between Thibodaux and Labadieville Crossing, and also on both banks of the bayou. The service was established as an experiment and proved successful, due to the dense population of the section. The territory from Thibodaux to Race Land, along the south bank of Bayou Lafourche, is the most thickly settled rural population in the world.

Science Beats the Sun

INDUSTRIAL engineers have now developed the device shown above. Consumers Information reports, to test colorfastness of fabrics, so that manufacturers can make sure in advance that their materials won't fade in the sun. Women never used to be sure that their dresses and draperies would retain their original brilliance until they had actually been exposed to sunlight. But through the use of this machine, developed by industrial research experts, it is now possible to tell whether dyed fabrics will hold their color. This is just one more of the many examples of how industry helps the consumer.

TANEYTOWN FARMERS UNION COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

SOME CHANGES MADE In Magazine Combination offer

THIS OFFER IS MADE UP OF THE PICTORIAL REVIEW, McCALL'S MAGAZINE, WOMAN'S WORLD, GOOD STORIES, FARM JOURNAL, BREEDER'S GAZETTE—WITH THE CARROLL RECORD.

- 1—Any regular subscriber to The Record who is paid in advance for at least 6 months, will receive the six magazines for one year on payment of $1.50.
- 2—Any regular Correspondent for, or advertiser, in The Record, will receive the 6 Magazines for one year, on the payment of $1.50.
- 3—Any regular subscriber, now paid in advance, will have his subscription to The Record extended for one year, and will receive the 6 Magazines for one year on the payment of $2.50.
- 4—Any new subscriber to The Record for 6 months will receive The Record for 6 months and the 6 Magazines for one year, on the payment of $2.00.
- 5—Any subscriber in arrears will be credited with one year's subscription to The Record, and will receive the 6 Magazines one year on the payment of $2.50.

The Record has been notified by the Chicago Agency handling this offer, that the Magazine subscriptions may not commence for about 6 weeks. As they come from 6 different publishers, in order to save expense in handling the subscriptions, they are held up and allowed to accumulate. The Record, for the same object, holds the subscriptions for about a week before sending them to Chicago.

The Record is financially responsible to subscribers for this combination offer; and makes this explanation to those who may have expected to receive the Magazines within a week, or short time.

It must be remembered, too, that the Magazines are published monthly, consequently subscriptions may be received by the publishers just after a number has been printed and mailed.

This offer will be good until April 1 or 15th. Those who want to take advantage of it, should do so at once. Any present subscriber to either of the Magazines will have his or her subscription extended on accepting this offer, by stating that fact. These are all cash in advance offers.

WE NEED GOOD USED CARS AND TRUCKS!

CHEVROLET DEALERS' USED CAR STOCKS WERE GREATLY REDUCED DURING NATIONAL USED CAR EXCHANGE WEEK

Now's the time to trade your car for a NEW CHEVROLET ... Come in today and get our liberal offer

So great have been Chevrolet dealers' sales of used cars and trucks—so low is our supply of certain makes and models—that we need good used cars and trucks to balance our stocks. This means we are in an excellent position to talk "trade-in allowances" on the purchase of new Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks.

Come in—this week! ... See the beautiful new Chevrolet for 1938—the car that is complete—and the new 1938 Chevrolet trucks—the thrift-carriers for the nation! ... Learn how easily you can purchase a smart, new, modern-to-the-minute Chevrolet by letting us take your present car or truck in trade!

Mastitis Hits Two Rear Quarters of Dairy Cows

Which of the udder quarters in milk cows are most frequently involved in mastitis or garget infection?

On the basis of observations made at the Wisconsin experiment station, and reported in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association, F. B. Hadley, station veterinarian, has concluded that the two rear quarters are more often affected than the two front quarters, but that there is no significant difference in occurrence of the disease between the right and left halves of the udder. Furthermore, when the two front quarters were compared with each other, and the two rear quarters were similarly compared, little difference also was noticed.

It is Doctor Hadley's opinion that the rear quarters are more subject to contamination on account of being in closer proximity to the filth of the barn gutter and usually more pendulant, thus likely to become injured when the cow steps over high door sills or passes over rough ground. The location of the rear quarters between the thighs subjects them to greater pressure when the cow walks or lies down, which results in more disturbance to the circulation of the blood. Moreover, they produce 60 per cent of the milk, so are more active functionally, thus rendering them more susceptible to infection.

Depleted by Overgrazing

Of the 728,000,000 acres of range land in the United States, supporting about 55,000,000 head of cattle, sheep, and other live stock, large areas have been depleted by overgrazing, and must be restored by better methods of range management, W. R. Chapline, chief of the division of range research, United States forest service, told the International Grasslands conference at Aberystwith, Wales. Programs of restoration of depleted ranges will require years of determined co-operative effort, Chapline said.

Where to Keep Eggs

On the average farm it is difficult to have a satisfactory place in which to hold eggs, since they should be held at a temperature of about 55 degrees. Such a temperature will prevent germ development and retain, to a great extent, the interior quality of eggs, yet it is not cool enough to cause the eggs to sweat when they are removed from these quarters. A well ventilated basement usually affords the most desirable place to hold eggs.

Snakes Do Not "Dance"

When a snake sways to the thrills of an Indian snake charmer's flute it isn't "dancing"; it is in deadly earnest. The snake has no respect whatsoever for music, sways only to aim a blow at the charmer, who too, is swaying. The only reason India's snake charmers, indeed, most charmers, don't succumb to the attacks of their "pets" is because the snakes' fangs have been removed. It's a rare snake "tamer" who plays around with a creature capable of doing much harm.

NEW YORK—A stirring scene in front of the Administration Building at the New York World's Fair 1939 as the Union Jack of Great Britain is hoisted aloft signifying that John Bull will be represented at America's exposition. The British exhibit will occupy 140,000 square feet, the largest of the 64 foreign displays now being prepared, and will cost several millions.

War Caused by Bucket

Wars are often caused by the most insignificant events. In countries like India, for instance, it needs merely some tactless act to send a searing flame through the country. The Indian mutiny was precipitated by the belief that pig's grease was rubbed on the cartridges that Mosley sepoy had to bite. But in the past, even in Europe, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, wars have been caused by sheer hot-headedness. Sweden once fought Poland because the king of Sweden found that he was given two eteteras after his name while the king of Poland had three. Turkey once sent an army to Venice because someone at the court made a joke about their ambassador's beard, and six hundred years ago a conflict which devastated half Europe began because a bucket was stolen from a public well at Bologna.

TOO FRIVOLOUS

By STANLEY CORDELL

AT FIFTY-TWO Noel Winthrop became a self-appointed member of that vast and pitiable army of misunderstood husbands.

Noel had achieved an early success in life, and possessed a tidy fortune to prove it.

He had also achieved a noticeable bulge at his waistline, tufts of gray hairs behind his ears, a bald spot and an occasional touch of rheumatism. But for all this Noel wasn't old, or thought he wasn't.

He didn't feel like settling down and enjoying his wealth as most self-respecting men of fifty-two might be expected to do.

He didn't like golf or bridge or stilted parties or even a moderate amount of travel.

He had been a stern, hard-thinking business man all his life and he wanted to be—well, frivolous.

Noel's wife, Erla, was in favor of the quiet retirement.

Erla was large and capable and sensible. She had married Noel when he was a clerk in an advertising agency office.

She had stood by him through a great many crises, had advised and comforted and suggested.

Rightfully enough she felt that credit for at least part of his success was due her.

She felt, too, that she knew what was best for her husband.

And that was the crux of the whole thing.

That was why Noel felt that he was misunderstood—because Erla wanted him to retire and live a quiet life, because she didn't think he ought to be—well, frivolous.

Noel grieved over the matter, brooded over it, pitied himself and eventually decided that he wouldn't retire from business. No, sir. He'd continue going down to the office every day.

Most anything was better than staying at home under his wife's wing.

Erla didn't object.

On the contrary she agreed that in these trying times the office probably needed him.

There wasn't much for Noel to do (the office routine had long since been entrusted to younger and capable hands); he found plenty of time to sit around and talk to people, and to notice Miss Clow.

He had, in fact, been noticing Miss Clow for some time.

She had been employed by the office manager a month before to assist Miss Fisher, who was Noel's personal secretary.

There was something about her that made Noel feel he wasn't old at all. Not even fifty-two.

She had a heart-shaped face and dazingly attractive eyes, and sometimes the way she looked at him when he asked her a question made Noel remember the days of his youth when he was good looking and considered somewhat of a lady killer.

Obviously, he thought that charm which had made him that once had not left him.

Miss Clow had been attracted by it; there was no mistaking the admiration and distant, modestly concealed worship in her eyes.

Noel twiddled his mustache and thought.

It occurred to him that here was a girl of intelligence, a girl to whom he would enjoy talking, one who understood him and appreciated his qualities, one who didn't think him old and doddering and ready for the shelf.

Yes, he was sure that Miss Clow would be like that.

He knew women, did Noel.

It took a lot of courage for Noel finally to get around to mentioning to Miss Clow what was on his mind, and he made a rather clumsy job of it.

But what little embarrassment he may have felt was instantly dispelled by Miss Clow's round-eyed and emphatic response.

"Why, Mr. Winthrop, I'd just love to go out to dinner with you! I think it would be wonder-ful!"

Noel called Erla on the phone and told her he wouldn't be home because he had to entertain a client at dinner.

Then he went down to the club, changed into the tuxedo he always kept there, hired a taxi and drove to the corner where he had arranged to meet Miss Clow.

She was waiting, and she insisted that they walk to the night club.

It was such a nice night and she just loved to walk, she told him.

Then she tucked her arm in his and Noel, even at fifty-two, felt a thrill.

They walked an extra two blocks to reach their destination, and Noel thought it was because Miss Clow wanted to be alone with him.

He thought so even when she stopped abreast of a women's dress shop window with an exclamation of wonder and awe.

The object of the exclamation was, of course, a dress.

A wistful look came into Miss Clow's eyes.

It pleased Noel, gave him a feeling of superiority and self-confidence to promise her that on the morrow the dress would be hers. And when she squeezed his arm and laughed delightedly he received thrill No. 2.

The night club was crowded; they had to stand in the foyer for fifteen minutes before getting a table.

And Noel, already beginning to feel a little stiff from the long walk, eased himself into his seat with a little suppressed groan of relief.

The stiffness, however, was forgotten when Miss Clow began to order.

He marvelled that such a tiny girl could want so many things to eat all at once.

It amused him and he laughed.

The champagne came and they drank a toast to each other.

Noel glanced around, smacked his lips and felt a warm glow of contentment.

Here was life, gaiety, youth, the sort of thing he wanted and needed.

This was—well, being frivolous.

The orchestra began to play and Miss Clow began hopping around in her seat.

"Oh, let's dance!" she exclaimed.

"Let's do!"

But Noel smiled and shook his head.

"Let's wait for a waltz," he suggested. "These new dances—well, I'm not used to them."

But Miss Clow didn't want to wait, and when she saw a boy at a nearby table whom she knew, she smiled at him and he came over and asked Noel if he might dance with Miss Clow.

Noel winced.

The boy was the son of a business acquaintance, and the business acquaintance was only fifty-one!

Noel drank some more champagne, and when the next number was played he got to his feet with something like grim determination written in his eyes.

"Let's dance," he said to Miss Clow.

And Miss Clow looked a little frightened; she looked as if she hadn't expected that Noel would go that far. But she assented, and Noel swept her out on the floor.

"Sweet!" is the proper word, for when Noel danced he required space, and woe be to any unfortunate who got in his path.

They circled the floor once and then Noel got a twinge. A sort of sinking sensation took hold of him.

He remembered his rheumatism and recognized the symptoms.

The twinge repeated itself.

One knee buckled and then straightened again.

Noel suddenly became aware that people were staring at him and grinning.

It made him mad and he hung on to Miss Clow quite desperately.

The same knee buckled again.

At the moment they were lumbering past a mirror and Noel caught a glimpse of himself. The glimpse revealed a doddering, baldheaded old man whose clothes didn't fit him very well and whose knees seemed to be giving way.

It required several minutes before he realized that the reflection was that of himself; that the slip of a girl who was clutched in his arms was Miss Clow.

The thought flashed across his mind that Miss Clow was young enough to be his daughter, but probably had been mistaken for his granddaughter.

Breathing heavily and with sweat pouring down his cheeks, Noel gained the sanctity of his table and sat down.

He glanced at Miss Clow and glanced away again.

From the corner of his eye he could see people looking and grinning.

Erla was waiting up, as always, when Noel finally arrived home.

One look at him and she went running for mustard and hot water and towels.

She scolded mercilessly while helping him get undressed, but for once the scolding was exactly what he wanted to hear.

He eased his feet into the basin of hot water with a great groan of relief, and smiled up at his wife.

"Erla," he said happily, "did I ever tell you you were the most wonderful, beautiful, understanding—"

But Erla cut him short with an impatient gesture. "Oh, Noel, act sensible. Don't be so—well, frivolous."

Curious Tale of Turkish Woman Who Passed as Man

An extraordinary story of a twenty-three-year-old Turkish woman, who was brought up as a boy and refused to regard herself as a girl, has been unfolded in an Istanbul court, says the Montreal Herald.

The woman, whose name, Melek, means "Angel," was charged with posing as a man and courting and proposing to a lovely Smyrna heiress who is barely sixteen. Melek, who is of athletic build and outstandingly good looking, appeared in court dressed in a well-cut man's tuxed suit. It was revealed during the case that Melek had been brought up in masculine attire since her earliest childhood. She went through school as a boy, and was eventually admitted to the faculty of law at the university without her real sex being detected. While at school she played games with the other boys, and excelled as a center forward in football. She even took up boxing. When the court decided to bind her over she burst out, "I will not be a woman. I am a man."

KEEPING THE BODY STRONG

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:53-56; Judg. 13:12-14; 1 Cor. 3:16, 17; Rom. 12:1, 2.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink not wine nor strong drink, and eat not any unclean thing.—Judg. 13:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Body God Gave Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—For Jesus' Sake.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Liquor, Drugs, and Tobacco Do to Health.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Intemperance Affects Health.

The universe of God is perfectly organized in every respect. Beings that function in the spirit realm are spirit beings, not subject to the limitations of the physical world. We who dwell and serve in the physical world are equipped with physical bodies which are ideal instruments for our present existence.

With all their shortcomings and frailties, our bodies are indeed marvelous machines, intricate and delicate, yet unbelievably hardy and durable. They are a gift from God, and it is our express responsibility to glorify God in our bodies (1 Cor. 6:20).

I. How to Have a Strong Body.

It is obvious that not every one has equal physical strength and health. In some measure this is by divine providence or at least by God's permissive will, and those of us who find ourselves thus limited do well to count on His grace for patience to use what we have for His glory. But not one of us wants to yield hopelessly to our inability. Rather we will do our best to overcome it. We want to know

1. How to cure weakness (Mark 6:53-56).

God alone can heal the sick. Even in our day when science has made such strides in the healing art, we note that the most successful remedy or system of treatment is the one that clears the way for what men call nature, but we know to be God, to work. Jesus healed the multitudes in the land of Gennesaret; He heals in America.

2. How to prevent weakness (Judg. 13:12-14).

The mother of Samson, who was to be a Nazirite, was to drink no wine and to observe careful dietary regulations before he was born.

Note also that if it is bad for a man to have such poisons in his veins before he is born, surely it is poor judgment to put them in after he comes to the age where he controls his own life. We need to watch our diets, and we have much valuable help on that point. We also need to give serious attention to the use of narcotics. It may surprise some to know that the term narcotics includes not only drugs and alcoholic beverages, but also tobacco, and such common things as tea and coffee.

Other abuse of the body, such as overwork, neglect of rest, etc., may well be mentioned. The besetting sin of some Christian workers is the destruction of their bodies, the very temple of the Holy Ghost, by overwork.

II. How to Use a Strong Body.

Unfortunate as it is to observe that some who would serve the Lord have to struggle with the weakness of the body, it is far sadder to note that all too often those who have strong bodies forget to use that strength for God. Our Scripture portions give us two excellent guiding principles. Our bodies should be

1. Kept for God (1 Cor. 3:16, 17). These verses refer to the body of the Christian, for only of him can it be said that his body is the temple of the Holy Ghost.

The Holy Spirit is a person, the third person of the blessed Trinity. He comes to dwell within the soul of the Christian immediately upon his being regenerated, thus making his body the temple of the Holy Ghost. A clear grasp of that truth solves the problem of what we should do with and for our bodies. We must keep them well and clean. We dare not defile them in any way. The body of the Christian is kept for God.

2. Yielded to God (Rom. 12:1, 2). It is a high and noble sacrifice to die for Christ.

But our call just now is to be a "living sacrifice." There are times when that may seem harder than to be a martyr. We do know that it is not always easy to live through the drab, difficult, and sometimes dreadful days, with a clear and shining testimony for Christ. But it can be done and is always to His glory. It is by the transforming grace of God that we are enabled to live such a life.

Meditation

It is the mark of a superior man that, left to himself, he is able endlessly to amuse, interest and entertain himself out of his personal stock of meditations, ideas, criticisms, memories, philosophy, humor and what not.—George Nathan.

Like Unto Him

"There should be no greater comfort to Christian persons than to be made like unto Christ by suffering patiently adversities, troubles, and sickness.

Old Mayan Customs and Costumes in Guatemala

One of the customs of Guatemala is the holding of frequent fiestas, when whole communities participate in some religious ceremony and then relax into merriment. One of these celebrations is the Fiesta de los Voladores, or fliers, which takes place each year in Chichicastenango, an Indian town in upland Guatemala.

This ceremony has been observed for thousands of years and represents the descent to the earth of the messengers of the Chacs, who are the Mayan gods. A ladder-like mast, made from tree trunks lashed together, is erected in front of the church in the town's plaza. Two fliers in costumes and masks climb to the top and seat themselves in the looped ends of two ropes which hang from a revolving frame. Swinging out from the mast, they descend in wide circles as the ropes unwind from the top until they reach the ground.

Market days also provide a colorful spectacle. Natives from many miles around bring in produce and handicraft to the cities on certain days each week. At Solola, above Lake Atitlan, the market is held on Fridays, and at Chichicastenango the market days when 5,000 natives assemble in their tribal costumes, are Thursdays and Sundays.

The men wear aprons and woolen breeches, curved and slit at the knee, with embroidered pocket flaps, and boleros harking back to the Andalusian conquistadores. The members of one tribe will wear full, white trousers and aprons in contrasting color; those of the next will have costumes utterly different. The women all wear blouses called "huipiles" and skirts with contrasting sashes of brilliant pattern, yet each is quite distinctive and typical of the woman's village.

How Soldier Read Bible

From His Playing Cards

The story of a soldier reading the Bible from a pack of playing cards follows:

A soldier is said to have gone to church without his Bible. He was observed toying with a deck of cards, and when arrested described each card to the magistrate by allusion to Biblical characters, explaining the cards served as a Bible as follows:

Ace, there is only one God; deuce, Father and Son; trey, Trinity; four, the Evangelists; five, the Wise Virgins; six, heaven and earth made in six days; seven, He rested on the seventh day; eight, the eight righteous persons saved during the flood; nine, the nine lepers cleansed by the Saviour; ten, the Commandments; king, God of Heaven; queen, Queen of Sheba who visited Solomon. "And what is the knave?" asked the magistrate. And the prisoner answered, "The greatest knave I know is the policeman who brought me here."

"He may not be the biggest knave," commented the magistrate, "but he is the biggest fool." "There are 52 cards," continued the soldier, "the number of weeks in the year; there are 12 picture cards, the number of months; four suits for the seasons; 13 cards to the suit, the number of weeks in the quarter; so you see the cards are alike a Bible and an almanac."

Dogs Travel on Ice

Arctic sled dogs pull sleds over all types of country. There are gravel and rock stretches swept absolutely clear of snow, ice caps and yawning descents. They pull heavy sleighs through the bush country, harnessed two by two on a main line, or across windswept sea ice in fan shape formation from the main trace connecting the heavy sleds. They travel barefoot, or moccasin shod over bare sea ice to protect their feet which would otherwise have the skin torn off by the extreme cold of the ice. They must even fight sand storms in the extreme north where the fiercest winds sweep island shores clear of snow and choke dogs and men with stinging sand. The Arctic sled dog has great endurance. Even though those dogs may not have been fed for days they can still travel far distances over ice and snow.

No Place Like Home

"I've just had the most delightful holiday," said Jones. "No regular hours for meals. No extra charge for baths. As much as you want of food, with plenty of fresh fruit; no tips for waiters."
"Good gracious! Where did you go, Jones?"
"Simple!" replied Jones. "I just stayed at home."—Providence Journal.

SURE SIGN

The farmer took his small son to market. A prospective buyer was minutely examining some cattle, and Johnny inquired interestedly:
"Why's that man pinching those bullocks, Dad?"
"He's thinking of buying them, son, and he's making sure they're good, sound meat," replied his father.

The following day, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, the farmer was busy in his yard when Johnny came tearing towards him, yelling at the top of his voice:
"Dad, Dad, come quickly! The postman's going to buy cook!"

FARM TOPICS

POULTRY HYBRIDS MAY BE VALUABLE

U. S. Investigators Report Two Kinds for Farms.

Supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture—WNU Service.

In testing the hybrids produced from thirteen crosses of standard breeds of chickens in various parts of the country, poultry investigators in the United States Department of Agriculture have found that at least two of the hybrids may be valuable on many farms. One hybrid came from a cross of Rhode Island Red males with White Wyandotte females. The other, Barred Plymouth Rock males with Rhode Island Red females, is the one commonly used now for broiler production.

Knox and Olsen, of the department, say that if a poultry breeder wants to get high quality hybrid chickens, he must cross high quality parent stock in the first place. The investigators find that whenever the parents come from the flocks of good poultry breeders, the hybrids are better than those from flocks where no particular breeding work is under way. Compared with those from poor breeding flocks, hybrid progeny from the stock of the better poultry breeders lay an average of from twenty-five to fifty-five more eggs in a year, the eggs weigh more, and the layers show less broodiness.

Both hybrids are superior to Rhode Island Reds for broiler production. At the broiler age of ten weeks, the Rhode Island Red and White Wyandotte hybrids average about a third of a pound more, and the Barred Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red hybrids about two-fifths of a pound more than the pure Reds.

For the poultryman who likes to sex his chicks at hatching time, the Red-Wyandotte hybrid offers an opportunity for a good job of sexing, simply on the basis of color. The females are predominantly red and the males predominantly white.

GOOD BYE, BARRELI

Many Kinds of Sponges, Suitable for All Uses

There are more than eighty varieties of usable sponges, and thousands of useless ones. The kind used in the bath is known as wool. Another sort, called velvet, is used to wash automobiles, and in Holland cows just before they are milked. The reef sponge is used in gas masks and in hospitals, and shipped in enormous quantities to Japan. Englishmen use this variety after shaving. The grass sponge is the cheapest grade. The hard head is used by tailors and potters, and the yellow sponge by painters.

Sponge fishermen locate their prey through a "water glass," which is an inverted bucket with glass bottom that smooths out the ripples when it is held on top of the water. The fishermen pull the sponges out of the sea with a pronged staff. When taken from the mud, the sponges are put in kraals, where they are kept until the flesh decomposes, when it is beaten out with sticks.

At Nassau the sponges are taken to storehouses, where they are sorted and graded, trimmed and pressed. Some are dyed and perfumed. When royal persons visit Nassau they are given rose-scented pink sponges.

There is a place in the Bahamas called the Mud, unromantically and libelously named, for the water is clear as crystal. It is from the Mud that the sponges come.

Oh Deah, No!

The Market Man—I have some very fine shell oysters, all fresh and alive.

Mrs. June Bride—You may send me enough for my husband and myself and have them killed and dressed. I couldn't bear to chop their heads off myself.

"Kitchen Cabinet" Made Up of Jackson's Friends

The name "kitchen cabinet" was applied by John Randolph, of Roanoke, to a small group of intimate friends of President Jackson. Although these men held no important offices at the time, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News, they seemed to influence the President's political actions more than did his official cabinet.

The moving spirit of the "kitchen cabinet" was Amos Kendall of Kentucky, who was fourth auditor of the treasury, although he later became postmaster general. Other members of this coterie were Gen. Duff Green, editor of the United States Telegraph, the administration organ at Washington; Maj. William B. Lewis of Tennessee, second auditor of the treasury; Isaac Hill, editor of the New Hampshire Patriot, and later Francis P. Blair, Sr., who was editor of the Globe, which in 1831 superseded the United States Telegraph as the administration organ at the capital.

It is said that when these men visited President Jackson they went through the back or kitchen door in order to avoid public notice. Randolph declared that this little coterie of intimate friends of the President decided the great affairs of state while the members of the official cabinet were asleep.

No Doubt About It

Father was sitting in the armchair one evening when his little son came in and showed him a new penknife which he said he had found in the street.

"Are you sure it was lost?" inquired the father.

"Of course it was lost! I saw the man looking for it!" replied the youngster.—Royal Arcanum Bulletin.

Body Needs Plenty of Water

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

GENERALLY speaking most of us should drink four to six glasses of water daily, in addition to the water in foods and in beverages such as tea and coffee.

Some idea of the great need of water in the body can be gathered if we remember that every cell is really like a tiny fish and must have water to nourish it, and to receive and carry away its wastes.

Fortunately Nature had this in mind because every foodstuff, no matter how dry in appearance or taste, contains some water—peanuts as low as 8 per cent and lettuce as high as 90 per cent. Thus even if one drank no water whatever he could get sufficient in foods such as tomatoes, string beans, cabbage, carrots, apples, oranges and other fruits. Lean beef contains almost 80 per cent of water.

Why It Is Necessary.

"Water is necessary to life for two main reasons—(1) because the chemical changes required to sustain life can take place only when the reacting substances are dissolved in water, and (2) because water is needed for flushing away the waste products formed from the various processes going on in the body." Thus the cells from a chick which Dr. Alexis Carrel has kept alive for nearly 20 years are enabled to grow and multiply only because they are kept in a tank of water containing a little salt which nourishes the tissues and allows the waste products to escape into it. The water is of course changed periodically.

Water also regulates the body temperature, retaining heat in cold weather and carrying the heat out of the body in the form of perspiration during hot weather.

There is no hard and fast rule as to how much water or liquid an individual should drink daily. If there is a tendency to cold, a rise in temperature, an attack of diarrhoea or vomiting, severe bleeding or other condition causing a loss of water from the body, more water should be taken to replace it. Water is also very helpful at the beginning and during an illness in carrying wastes from the body more rapidly. A little salt added to the water enables the tissues to hold more water.

Overweight individuals do not need as much water as those of average weight as fat tissue holds more water within it than do other tissues.

Leave the Normal Fat.

One of the leading heavyweight wrestlers has a beautiful physique and is a fast, strong, intelligent, good-looking fellow. Although his weight is announced as 202 to 205, it is likely that his real weight is 10 to 15 pounds less. His muscles stand out on all parts of the body—the abdomen like a "washboard," the upper back like a rectangle, and the arms and legs like whipcord. And he knows how to wrestle.

However as his wrestling engagements take him to all parts of the country, with a great amount of fast traveling—motor, train, and airplane—it is just a question how long his "nerves" will stand up under the strain.

Why?
Simply because he may not have enough fat on and in his body.

If he were a boxer, getting ready for an important bout, to be down as "fine" as he is at present would be wise because the boxer has to make a certain weight at a definite time. Also a boxer allows himself to accumulate a little fat between bouts.

Practically all the heavyweight wrestlers keep themselves comfortably overweight—a little layer of fat covering their muscles. They lose 5 to 10 pounds during a 30 to 60 minute bout, but have that 5 to 10 pounds back on the body for their bout the following night. Of course much of this 5 to 10 pounds that comes and goes is made up of liquids as wrestlers drink a great deal of water and sometimes beer; very few if any indulge in hard liquor. But to enable them to get rid of this weight, perspire properly during the bout, and have the weight back the next evening, there must be a comfortable layer of fat under the skin and throughout the body to hold this water. Every pound of fat can hold three pounds of water.

Another benefit to the athlete of a little fat on and in the body and also the use of a little fat daily in the diet, is that fat "spares" to some extent the muscle tissue which is burned up during the exercise. That is, fat on or in the body supplies the heat and energy during work or exercise and thus preserves the muscle tissue—the strength giving or strength part of the body. Of course when all the fat is used up and work continues then the muscles of the body have to supply the fuel for energy.

the Difference!

AND that's what you'll say, too; just put your chicks on Purina Chick Startena and see! Whenever you choose 14 of the highest quality ingredients that can be bought . . . then take exactly the right amount of each one . . . and then mix them over and over again, 950 times . . . —Doesn't that sound like a chick starter that will make a difference?

Come around and let us tell you more about Purina Chick Startena. We've also got one of the new Purina Poultry Books for you, too. Stop by for it the next time you're in town.

HOME INTERESTS FIRST

● We have always tried to make this bank useful to the community in two main ways: (1) To help safeguard its present wealth. (2) To promote its future growth.

We are not satisfied merely to be the "watch dogs" of the community treasury. Our officers and directors consider themselves as "salesmen" who are working hand in hand with you to develop and market local products.

Our interests—like yours—are here, nowhere else. You can count upon our active cooperation in anything that will serve you and the community.

PLANNING

WHEN alert business men lay their plans for the future, they very often bring their bank into the picture. Why? Because a progressive bank can provide valuable financial information and advice. Frequently the bank can offer important suggestions based on experience with similar problems. A wealth of information on trends, financial matters and business conditions is always available.

Helpfulness is a guiding policy of this bank. We invite you to use our facilities and services not only in making your plans, but in carrying them forward to completion.
