This column is not for use in advertising any money-making program, fair, supper, party or sale except for non-denominational charities or Fire Company or Public Library support.

Mrs. James B. Galt, spent Sunday with her grand-daughter, Mrs. Lauren Schott, Hanover.

The Presbyterian S. S. will hold its picnic, Wednesday afternoon, the 20th, at Big Pipe Creek Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Verley Sheeley, of Washington, D. C., spent Wednesday with Mrs. Sarah Albaugh.

Mrs. Hugh Penbrook, of Fairhaven, Md., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. Norris Gallagher for two weeks.

C. F. Cashman reports sale of J. L. Currens farm on Littlestown road to Lewis Reifsnider, on private terms.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Stover, of near Westminster, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Stover, near town.

Mrs. Robert Bankert, daughter, Shirley, of Hampstead, spent Thursday evening, with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bower.

James Elliot and Fred Garner are attending the two weeks session of the Senior Boys' Camp at Camp Nawakwa.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koons, of Baltimore, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Ohler and family, East End.

Miss Irene Lawyer, of Spring Grove, Pa., spent several days this week, with her grand-mother, Mrs. Grant Yingling.

Dr. and Mrs. Carroll D. Dern, recently visited Dr. and Mrs. Buckley Clemson, of Baltimore, at Gibson Island, near Annapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Shipley and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shipley, of Bird Hill, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shipley, near town.

Rev. Robert C. Benner is spending seven weeks at Camp Shikellini, the Harrisburg Y. M. C. A. Camp which is about 20 miles north of Harrisburg, as Religious Director.

The Record office takes orders for Sales Books, or Order Books, sometimes called. Usually, about six weeks time is required before such orders can be delivered.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Brown, near town, entertained at dinner on Sunday, in honor of Mr. Brown's birthday; Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Stonesifer, and Mr. — Bohn, of Union Bridge.

A game of baseball will be played Saturday, July 16, at 2:30 P. M., at the Sauble Field between Taneytown and Lewistown CCC Baseball Club. This is a newly organized team—not the regular Taneytown team.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brower, near town, entertained at dinner, on Sunday; Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Reifsnider, of Detour; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Reifsnider and son, David, and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Crum, near town.

The baseball team of the colored CCC, Gettysburg, was too strong for a new Taneytown team, made up chiefly of young members. The score was 17 to 4 in favor of the visitors. The game was played on the Sauble field.

Mrs. W. O. Ibach and Mr. Wilmer Naill will leave Saturday afternoon to spend a week at the Summer School for Church Workers sponsored by the Maryland Synod of the Lutheran Church, at Hood College, Frederick.

The J. O. U. A. M., will hold their annual picnic at Mt. Tabor Park, Rocky Ridge, on July 23, 1938, afternoon and evening. Amusements of all kinds. Music by Jolly Serenaders of Station WMFD, Frederick. Everybody welcome.

A card from John W. Fream, dated July 13, Tomah, Wisconsin, says: "Wheat and barley harvest is just on in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and corn looks very fine. They have had plenty of rain in the northwest this Spring. Pasture is good and cattle look fine and fat. We expect to go to Houghton Lake, Michigan."

Our readers will no doubt fully understand that the large advertisement in this issue, of Senator Tydings' candidacy for nomination as U. S. Senator, is strictly a paid notice at regular political rates. An advertisement of this character of the candidacy of David J. Lewis, or of any Republican or Democrat for any office, will be published on the same terms.

Recent visitors to Big Pipe Creek Park, especially those who have not followed its gradual development—are loud in praise of the Park as it is now, and as it is going to be. Its natural beauty has been developed and the additions to its pleasure equipments have been numerous. A considerable number of dates have been arranged for reunions and picnics, but the Park is actually open at any time during the day, every day, as a nice place to visit for recreation or rest. If you are not sure of what the Park has offer, just call and look it over, or send a scouting party.

GRAIN CROP PROSPECTS

Increase Indicated Except Corn is yet Uncertain.

College Park, Md., July 12, 1938—A Maryland winter wheat crop about 4 percent larger than that of last year, 13 per cent above the 10-year (1927-36) average production and the largest since 1931 is indicated by the July 1 crop survey made by the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. According to the survey all July 1 crop prospects were above average.

The average of winter wheat for harvest which is estimated at 471,000 acres is 5,000 acres below last year's acreage but 22,000 acres above the 10-year (1927-36) average. The indicated production of 9,420,000 bushels compares with 9,044,000 bushels produced last year and the 10-year (1927-36) average of 8,372,000 bushels. The recent dry weather has been very favorable to threshing. Early threshing returns indicate yields higher than expected. The July 1 carry-over of old wheat on farms is much larger than either that of last year or the average.

The 1938 rye crop is expected to be about 4 per cent less than that of 1937 and 19 per cent below the average.

The estimated 1938 corn acreage of 506,000 acres is about 2 percent below that of last year and the same as the 10-year (1927-36) average. The indicated production of 17,710,000 bushels compares with last year's crop of 18,576,000 bushels and the 10-year average of 15,477,000 bushels. Growth is very uneven. The recent warm weather has favored corn but rains are now needed in most sections of the State especially in Central and Northern Counties where June rainfall was deficient and only scattered showers have occurred since the first of July. July 1 farm stocks of corn of 3,689,000 bushels are fairly large. Oats yield prospects are the best in years. The 1938 barley crop is estimated at 1,152,000 bushels as compared with the 1937 production of 1,188,000 bushels and the 10-year average of 695,000 bushels.

The present outlook is for a tame hay crop of 536,000 tons. This would be about 3 per cent greater than last year's crop, 15 per cent above the 10-year (1927-36) average and the largest since 1928. July 1 pasture condition was reported at 84 per cent of normal. This compares with the July 1 condition last year of 86 per cent and the 10-year (1927-36) average of 77 per cent. Pastures need rain.

NO MORE "BINGO" NOTICES.

The Record has been informed, unofficially, that the Bingo game is now considered a Lottery, or gambling game, and as such, is not entitled to be carried either as a news item, or as an advertisement.

The Record believes in obeying all laws, consequently will hereafter bar Bingo from its columns. At the same time, we are wondering why the dailies—some of them—still continue to publish notices of the "lucky" ones in the Irish sweepstakes drawings; and why the law enforcement departments do not give all newspapers notice of what is legal, and what illegal, to publish.

It also seems to us that if publishing notices concerning Bingo, and other drawings, is illegal, it should also be illegal for printers to turn out tickets, or advertising matter, concerning them. To the best of our knowledge, the job printing end of the business is still legal.

Also, why should not those who participate in games of chance, be placed under arrest? A thing that is illegal, in one respect, should be illegal all along the line.

HOW WOULD YOU INVEST $10,000?

Suppose you should, by inheritance or otherwise, receive $10,000 in cash, how would you invest it? This is meant to be a sensible question, as well as an effort to measure the public mind as to its present attitude toward financial matters.

Naturally, those who are in debt would say, "first, pay my debts." Should the $10,000 amount appear too small to arouse much interest, a larger amount may be used, or be in mind, in making reply.

The Record invites thoughtful replies. No names will be given. In fact, if the replies sent in appear to be sane and thoughtful, they need not be signed. If sent in a trivial vein, they will not be given space at all. Replies will be published as received, and be marked, A, B, C, etc., and on throughout the alphabet. Let us have your personal thought on this important question, at this particular time.

NEARBY STORMS AND RAIN.

Rains and storms visited many points in the state, especially in the neighborhood of Frederick, from Sunday until Tuesday. Thirteen buildings were reported as being struck by lightning, several having been set on fire.

In addition to lightning damage, storms blew down fences, trees, broke windows and small buildings. Some of the smaller streams were at flood stage, but very little damage was done to crops.

Carroll County missed most of the rain, as well as storms but temperatures dropped slightly from the record of Monday.

The heat record, as well as drought, was broken by a heavy rain early this Friday morning, that was fortunately not accompanied by a storm.

There's just no use in worrying about the future of Utah's dead sea or of its Salt Lake, either.

BOARD OF EDUCATION REGULAR MEETING.

Appointments made, and other general information.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education of Carroll County was called to order in the office of the Board, on Tuesday, July 5, 1938, at 9:25 o'clock. All the members were present.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

The list of paid bills presented to the Board were approved.

The appointments of the following teachers were approved by the Board: Earl Palmer, Elementary Assistant; Ernest Lung, Agriculture; Charles Hoover, elementary assistant.

The resignation of Paul Hyde, elementary assistant at the New Windsor school, because of his appointment to a position in the State Teachers College at Salisbury, was accepted.

The Board approved the installation of agriculture courses in the Mt. Airy, New Windsor, and Elmer Wolfe schools, and the installation of vocational home economics at New Windsor.

The Board also approved the organization of an opportunity class at the Westminster Elementary School. As a result of the competitive examination held on June 24, Ruth Ora Caltrider was recommended by the Board of Education to be awarded the Senatorial scholarship to Western Maryland College, and John E. Ainsworth a similar scholarship to St. John's College. These recommendations have been approved by Senator David J. Baile.

The following were appointed by the Board to fill the vacant district tuition scholarships to Western Maryland College: Taneytown, Robert R. Stone, Jr.; Union Bridge, Esther B. Rupp; Freedom, William Melville; New Windsor, James Langdon; Middleburg, Etta Maye Staub; Mt. Airy, Theresa Hare; Berrett, Lucille Grim; Franklin, (one year) June Lippy; Miriam Jane Bond. The tuition scholarship to St. John's College was awarded to Alva Basler, and Carol Jones was awarded the Saturday scholarship to the Maryland Institute.

The bus contractors and their contracts were approved by the Board as recommended by the Superintendent.

The offer of $3500.00 to Ernest Crowl by the committee appointed at a former meeting for the purchase of the land opposite the Westminster High School was confirmed by the Board.

The Board approved closing the Hobson Grove school.

The Board decided that the Winfield, Linwood, and Detour school buildings should be sold at public auction at the Court House on August 2, 1938.

The school calendar for 1938-39 as submitted by Mr. Hyson and as given below in part was approved: September 2—Bus drivers meet at Westminster, at 9:30 A. M. G—Teachers' Meeting, at 9:00 A. M. 7, Teachers report to school. 8—Pupils report—full-day session.

The regulations for transportation equipment were discussed and adopted by the Board.

The meeting and adjourned at 2:30 P. M.

Two thousand, six hundred and seventy-two boys and 2426 girls were enrolled in the white elementary schools. More girls, however, were enrolled in the high schools; a total of 881 as against 791 boys. The colored high school enrolled 58 girls and 39 boys, and in the colored elementary schools 163 boys and 173 girls were enrolled. A grand total for the county of 6770 white pupils and 433 colored.

The percentage of attendance was the highest in many years, averaging 93.3% for all elements, 95.1% white high, 93.1% white elementary, 87.4% colored elementary and 94.1% colored high. In elementary schools, the lowest percentage is found in the one teacher schools and the highest in the large graded. Lowest had the highest percentage among the one teacher schools, Oakland Mills of the two teacher schools, Sykesville, Manchester and Hampstead each had a percentage of 94.5%, and Taneytown High and Manchester High each had the high percentage for the year of 96.3%.

A total of 3998 pupils were transported during the year. School buses averaged 2400 miles each day or approximately 400,000 miles for the school year. Forty-six buses are in operation. The average per pupil cost $19.00 for 1937-38. In 1936-37, the average was $19.40.

Seven hundred and thirty-six high school girls were enrolled in Home Economics, 652 boys in Industrial Arts. About 95% of the high school enrollment took music. Art was offered only in the Westminster High School. Sixty-four boys were enrolled in Agriculture and sixty girls in Vocational Home Economics.

REV. WM. E. ROOP IN FAR WEST.

Elder Wm. E. Roop, who is touring the West, writes to The Record, as follows: "As now arranged, expect to be away from Maryland two whole months. Revival of two weeks I just closed here (Seattle, Wash.) with great interest. Since here am booked for another revival in North Dakota, as I stop off on my way home. Berries and vegetables a fine crop this year. Went through a Frigidaire plant here that freezes peas, etc., which are kept frozen until eaten. With kind regards."

REV. WM. E. ROOP,

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

Employees Do Not Contribute to Unemployment Fund.

Baltimore, July 13—The tax levied by the Federal Government on employers for old age insurance has been confusing to many employees it has been found, who think it has something to do with the unemployment compensation system.

Chairman William M. Maloy of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board, said he has learned that many employees have been under the impression that the one percent deducted from their pay by the employer is a contribution to the unemployment fund.

"The one percent tax deducted from a worker's wages," said Mr. Maloy, "has nothing whatever to do with unemployment insurance in Maryland, and any employee who thinks he is entitled to unemployment benefits because he has had one percent deducted from his wages, is in error. This deduction is made under another provision of the Social Security Act and relates to the Old Age insurance benefits."

Mr. Maloy emphasized the fact that the unemployment insurance tax in Maryland is paid entirely by the employer, and no deduction therefor can properly be made. He also called attention to the fact that the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Act now applies to employers of four or more. "For example," said he, "an employer in commerce or industry, having only two employees, would not be covered by the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Law, and therefore would not be required to pay taxes levied by that law. But he would be covered by the Old Age section of the Federal Social Security Act and so would his employees. Therefore the one percent deduction."

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE APPOINTS DEAN OF WOMEN.

New Windsor, Md.—Dean W. Roscoe Slack announces the appointment of Miss Mary Meares Galt, at present a member of the faculty of Cornell University, to the important position of Dean of Women and Associate Professor of French.

Miss Galt is widely known in this section. She comes from one of the finest families in Virginia, a family eminent in patriotic achievement and social grace. Her father was the late Commodore R. H. Galt known here and in naval circles.

Miss Galt holds the Bachelor of Arts degree from Randolph Macon, the Master of Arts degree from Columbia University, and has done additional graduate study at Columbia University and Johns Hopkins.

She is an experienced teacher. Miss Galt taught French at Rockford College in 1919 to 1920, at the summer session of Hunter College in 1920, at Mount Holyoke College in 1920 to 1922, at Hood College in 1922 and 1923, at the University of Toledo in 1923 to 1927, and at the American University in 1927 to 1937.

She has had wide experience as Sorority Advisor and Assistant Social Director at Columbia University. Did welfare work overseas with the French Army and lectured in French to the French soldiers in the Foyers d'etat, and has an enviable knowledge of the French language and literature. Her broad culture enables her to impart to others an enthusiasm for the subject.

Socially she is gifted with much personal charm and is widely known for her remarkable ability as a hostess. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Colonial Dames, the Huguenot Society, and the Modern Language Association.

MARKER CLAN REUNION.

The 12th. annual reunion of the Marker clan was held at Mt. Tabor Park, Rocky Ridge, last Sunday afternoon. There were 50 members present. The meeting was presided over by the Pres., Wm. H. Marker, Hymn, by the clan; Prayer, by M. C. Fuss; Remarks by the President.

Election of officers as follows: Pres. H. C. Marker, Middletown; Vice-Pres., Wm. H. Marker, Westminster; Sec., M. C. Fuss, Taneytown; Treas., C. S. Marker, Westminster; Pianist, Isabella Marker, Westminster.

It was decided to hold the reunion on the second Sunday of July 1939, at Mt. Tabor Park. One member of the clan was deceased since last year: Wm. Jesse Halter. The secretary spoke very fittingly of the loss sustained, and paid a tribute to the memory of Mr. Halter. Three new members were admitted: Mr. Lawrence Trimmer, of Hanover; John Merwyn Skiles, Taneytown; Dorothy Marker, Middletown.

The following program was rendered—Song, Louise Marker; Song, children of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marker; Recitation, Isabella Marker; Reading, Marion Marker; Reading, Mrs. H. C. Marker; Solo, Frances Ray; Reading, Louise Young; Address, Merwyn C. Fuss; Hymn, Clan.

THE RODKEY REUNION.

The annual Rodkey reunion will be held at Pine-Mar Camp on Sunday, July 24th. A basket lunch will be served at noon. A program will be rendered in the afternoon. All members and friends of the family are invited.

In an unusual French village, called Bourre, many still live in houses hewn out of the limestone of the Touraine hills more than 1,000 years ago. These caves are often most comfortable and fitted with modern devices.

HUGHES BEATS ROUND THE WORLD RECORD

New York to Paris, via Omsk to Fairbanks.

Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days" written many years ago would not be a drawing title for a book in these latter days. It would not even attract attention, except as a common place occurrence that needed explanation.

Even Lindbergh's more recent flight, and Amelia Earhart's bold ventures, Wiley Post's record, 1933, are now largely in eclipse from the present breaker of all records for long flights, that begun last Sunday evening, from New York, by Howard Hughes—several times millionaire—and his crew of four assistants who started in an up-to-date plane and equipment, for the first stop at Paris.

There was, however, a tremendous difference between the Lindbergh and Hughes flights. The former was a solo flight in a comparatively small plane in which the driver was the whole crew, and in 1927 instead of 1938.

The Lindbergh time from New York to Paris was 33½ hours, while Hughes cut the time in half by making the flight in 16 hours and 31 minutes less time. Considering improvements made in planes within the 11 years intervening, the Lindbergh record has not been beaten on equal terms. Post's time over nearly the same route as taken by Hughes, was 7 days, 18 hours, 49 minutes.

Briefly, the record of the Hughes trip was as follows: left New York, Sunday, at 6:20 P. M. On Monday arrived in Paris at 10:55 A. M., 3641 miles in 16 hours 35 minutes. Arrived in Moscow at 7:24 P. M.; on Tuesday arrived at Omsk, Siberia, at 7:00 P. M.

The flight continued from Omsk to Yakutsk, and then to Fairbanks, Alaska, all in 72 hours and 58 minutes, covering 11,329 miles. After spending 78 minutes in Fairbanks, the flight was continued to New York.

The plane arrived in New York, Thursday afternoon, at 1:37 P. M., having made a circuit of the world—14,824 miles in 91 hours, and 17 minutes—or 3 days, 19 hours and 14 minutes.

GOV. NICE AT CAMP RITCHIE ON SUNDAY.

A news dispatch from Camp Ritchie to the Baltimore News-Post, on Wednesday, says:

"High-ranking officers of the Maryland National Guard today are completing plans for activities at the camp during Governor's Day Sunday. Governor and Mrs. Harry W. Nice will arrive here Saturday afternoon and will be the overnight guests of Major General Milton A. Record, command officer of the Twenty-ninth Division.

The program will include a review of the Fifty-eighth Brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Amos W. Woodcock, including the First and Fifth Regiment of Infantry, a reception at the home of Maj. Gen. Record, and a military ball, held in honor of the Governor.

With the completion of target practice late today, it is expected that the Fifth Infantry and Fifty-eighth Brigade Headquarters Company, Maryland National Guard, will have chalked up new high records for themselves in the matter of marksmanship. The cooler weather that followed heavy showers put new life into men on the ranges and an exceptional number appear from preliminary records to have qualified as marksmen and expert riflemen."

MT. LAKE PARK METHODIST INTERESTS FOR SALE.

The extensive holdings of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions, known as the "Mountain Lake Park Association" are offered for sale, first as a religious center, but if not sold, then to the general public.

Not all of the properties are owned by this Association, but many are owned individually. Originally this Park was known as the Mountain Chautauqua, and after the abandonment of this feature, the grounds have largely been used as Methodist gathering place for various activities of the Methodist church.

There has at times been conflict between the property owners, and the Association authorities, growing out of conflicting interests, financial and otherwise, between the two.

It is a beautiful and healthful spot, and under a more liberal co-operation between interests, should in the course of a few years become a popular resort during the summer season. The Park site covers approximately 800 acres, and is the natural center for patronage for West Virginia, and from Pittsburgh to Washington. It is along the main line of the B. & O. R. R., and is adjacent to the once popular and fashionable Deer Park, and is about two miles west of Oakland, the county seat of Garrett County, and is within easy reach of the National Highway.

TO BROADCAST AT YORK.

Rev. Dr. John S. Hollenbach, pastor of Manchester Reformed Church, is scheduled to broadcast devotions over W. O. M. (1300KC) on Saturday, at 8:00 A. M. A mixed quartet will sing.

Temptations are a file which rub off much of the rust of our self-confidence—Fenelon.

GETTYSBURG BATTLEFIELD FACTS.

A folder was circulated during the recent 75th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg that contained many facts that are of interest, and worth preserving. As it bears no evidence of having been copyrighted, we publish a portion of the most interesting facts.

Approximately 159,000 men (84,000 Union and 75,000 Confederate) were engaged in the fight.

50,000 men (23,000 Union and 27,000 Confederate) were killed, wounded and missing, 5,747 men were killed outright, 4,500 to 5,000 horses were killed.

8,654 Union soldiers are buried in the National Cemetery, (of which 1608, are unknown). All of the Confederate dead buried there were disinterred and removed to the Southern Burial Ground.

Approximately 2,888 Confederate soldiers were killed, captured or missing in Pickett's Charge. 569 tons of ammunition was used during the three-day battle.

The Gettysburg National Battlefield Park was established in 1895.

There are 25 square miles of battlefields.

There are 36 miles of improved roads through the park.

$3,500,000 has been expended on the development and maintenance of the Park.

415 mounted guns, 845 monuments, 7 equestrian statues and 5 steel observation towers are on the battlefield.

The site of the National Cemetery was a cornfield at the time of the great battle.

Immediately after the battle it's seventeen acres were purchased by the State of Pennsylvania, and later presented to the National Government on the condition that it be preserved for all time.

The known dead are buried in eighteen different groups, each state having its own individual group. 867 are buried in the largest group (New York) and 6 in the smallest group (Illinois).

Near the exact spot where Lincoln delivered his immortal masterpiece is erected the National Monument. Lincoln's Speech Memorial contains two bronze tablets. One gives the letter of invitation sent the President by the citizens of the Cemetery to participate in the dedication of the cemetery on November 19, 1863, and the other, the address he delivered.

PROCEEDINGS ORPHANS' COURT.

James Herbert Steele, administratrix of John LeRoy Steele, deceased, returned inventory of real estate.

The last will and testament of Manetta Smith, deceased, was admitted to probate, and letters testamentary were granted to Willis R. Tracy and Charles A. Shorb, who received warrant to appraise personal property and order to notify creditors.

Isaac N. Stoner, administrator of Charles R. Wilson, deceased, returned inventories of real estate, personal property, debts due and current money.

Herbert B. Miller and William E. Miller, executors of Thomas Miller, deceased, settled their third and final account.

Random Thoughts

STAYING TOO LONG.

Among the least to be envied human beings are those who are commonly estimated as "staying too long" in a position of service or trust. Specified limits to a term of office is a very wise policy.

Unfortunately, too, resignations are not frequently resorted to, for the reason that good jobs are not waiting in abundance. One bird in hand is worth a whole flock of birds in the bushes.

But, the public that is interested either surely, or through opinion should be extremely careful that it does not err in its verdicts, and that it is deserving of what it wants. It is about as easy to think and act wrongly, as it is to be always right.

"Missing our Calling", as we say, is a misfortune with double effect. It is a result of a desire with no justifiable background. And this desire often overtakes the youth going to school—preparing for something beyond the likelihood of proper equipment developing in the mature man or woman.

Many a good mechanic has lost himself, and his greatest usefulness by trying to succeed in a profession for which he is not fitted.

LONG-RANGE PRACTICES.

The whole country seems engaged in indulging in long-range practices. Or, is it shouting, or a new sort of mental aerobics for scouting purposes? "Johnny is not only on the spot," but is making "spots" where none have heretofore existed.

This is apparent, and not phantasmal. Not only is business of most kinds decidedly fore-minded, through high pressure salesmanship and tricks of the trade, but beating the other fellow to it, is the order of the day. Everywhere do we find this start early, and hoped-for get there, early.

Of course, the change has gotten into politics. Candidates for nomination at primary elections now start their propaganda six or eight months before the primary dates, while in not so long ago former times, two months was considered time enough to "announce" themselves as willing to serve the people. In fact, for such offices as Governor, U. S. Senator, the starting time is still longer.

And, just now, with the election of President over two years in the future, speculation is rife as to who the candidates will be, and whether it will indeed bring along a crashing of the gates for a third term for President Roosevelt.

This too, includes speculation as to what Vice-President Garner is thinking about. Will he try to be elected as President, or will he be considered on the ineligible list, in case it is considered that the President is ineligible, through unbroken precedent? It is being said in this connection that while Garner has been quietly carrying on in his present office, and not openly disowning some at least of the new deal policies, he is nevertheless involved because he has not done so; and if President Roosevelt is "out of it," he (Garner) is in the same fix.

We guess the only thing to do, aside from more or less rambling speculation, is to wait and see what happens, at the coming November elections, and thereafter, until something very different turns up.

GIVE BUSINESS A CHANCE.

For several years past those in high places have been hurling anathemas at capital, and handing bouquets to labor, unmindful of the solemn fact that capital and labor are interdependent, and that when one prospers the other also prospers; and when the one is in distress, the other cannot be prosperous. Wise Abraham Lincoln wisely said: "You cannot fool all of the people all of the time," yet that is just what the so-called New Deal has attempted, and for a time, was gotten away with it.

Some time ago, a booklet of 50 pages entitled, "The men who made Steel" gave some illuminating facts which it might be profitable to consider.

E. G. Grace, President, says: The industry has three objectives, (1) To preserve fair treatment for labor; (2) To deal fairly with the buying public; (3) To exercise an intelligent trusteeship of the funds invested in the industry.

Carrying out these ideas Mr. Grace breaks down the steel dollar and alleges the following: 41c goes to payrolls for labor; 41½c to furnish materials; 7½c to depreciation; 2c to pay interest in investment; 1½c to pay dividends; 1½c to surplus, and 4½c to pay taxes.

Steel has paid pensions since 1910 to more than 25,000 employees, in the amount of more than $61,000,000, and not a penny of it comes out of the employee's salary; (Under the New Deal Social Security Aid. The employee must "chip in" an equal amount with the employer).

From the facts before stated, it looks like big business was of its own accord doing more for labor than the political New Dealers are attempting, and promising to do. But politicians are like that.

Many other big business concerns do likewise, while some make possible labor ownership of stock in the firm. If labor ownership were more general strikes would be less frequent.

There are doubtless crooks in business, big and little, just as there are crooks in politics, big and little; but the average man in business who knows he is dependent on the work done by labor, for his profits, is not such a fool, as not to realize that where each makes profit there is gain, and that where one attempts to gain at the expense of the other, means loss to both. Labor and capital are interdependent.

Our opinion is that the people are going to wake up, and give business a chance; and that when they do, the employable unemployed are going to find jobs. This will happen when the people decide that government should attend the functions of government, and let business men run business. Baltimore, Md. W. J. H.,

RAILWAY TRESPASSERS SHOW BIG INCREASE.

More than a million trespassers were ejected from railroad property in the first four months of 1938, an increase of 13.8 per cent compared with the same period last year, it is shown in a report just issued by the Committee on Trespassing of the Protective Section of the Association of American Railroads.

Trespassers ejected but not arrested in the first four months this year totaled 1,040,760, an increase of 128,853 compared with the same period last year, and 48,019 or 4.8 per cent over the corresponding months in 1936. The number of trespassers prevented from getting on trains or ejected from railroad premises in the first four months of 1938 follows: January, 211,561; February, 211,035; March, 273,810; April, 344,354.

Reports as to casualties among railroad trespassers in the four months' period are not complete, but in the first three months of 1938 fatalities to trespassers on railroad property resulting from accidents totaled 440, and 439 were injured. In the same period in 1937, 496 trespassers were killed and 457 were injured.

"The above-mentioned figures," the report points out, "depict the magnitude of the trespassing problem, but from the personal injury standpoint this situation presents a more serious aspect. This is readily apparent when one considers that trespasser casualties comprise approximately 50 per cent of all casualties on railroads, including accidents at highway grade crossings, over which the railroads have little or no control. Another point worthy of serious consideration is the fact that approximately 50 per cent of all trespasser casualties result fatally.

"Your committee is strongly of the opinion that in order to effect an improvement in this situation, education of the public, as to the hazards of trespassing on railroad property, is the most effective. The sooner the public in general, and young boys and girls in particular, realize the danger incidental to trespassing on railroad property, the sooner we will see a material reduction in the casualty figures."—Railroad Data.

DEMOCRACY'S VIRTUES TO BE EMPHASIZED.

A non-partisan organization, to be known as "National Re-Dedication," with headquarters at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York City, has been formed to conduct a campaign for liberty and democracy. The acting director and the acting chairman of the organization are, respectively, Hermann Hagedorn, and James R. Garfield, former Secretary of the Interior under Theodore Roosevelt. Victor C. Ridder is treasurer of the organization.

Mr. Hagedorn said the movement is entirely non-partisan; that it is not interested in criticizing anybody or attacking anybody. The aim is to state the case for liberty and democracy, in the face of the open and secret efforts of alien revolutionary forces who are seeking the overthrow of free Governments, through the glorification of violence and the stirring of racial and religious intolerance.

Emphasis will be placed upon the meaning of liberty and democracy as expressed in the Declaration of Independence and guaranteed by the Bill of Rights in the Constitution, Mr. Hagedorn said.

The organization will carry forward its work through the radio, the press, schools, the pulpit, movies, and other channels, the acting director said. Among the persons already selected to serve on the national committee of the organization are: James Truslow Adams, Richard E. Byrd, John W. Davis, Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Alfred M. Landon, the Rev. Daniel A. Poling, Roger W. Straus, Herbert Hoover, Norman Thomas, James E. West, William Green, the Rt. Rev. John A. Ryan, and Mrs. Harper Sibley.—Scottish Rite Service.

COUNTRY PRESS CONDEMNS PUNITIVE LEGISLATION.

The National Editorial Association, meeting in convention at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, adopted a resolution of nation-wide importance concerning penalty legislation affecting business. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, there has been a tendency both at Washington and at the capitals of many states for legislative measures to be introduced and sponsored which are discriminatory and punitive in their application, and

"Whereas, there is considerable fear and hesitation among business men because of the uncertainties arising from such a tendency, and

"Whereas, we believe it the duty of the Congress of the United States and our state legislatures, in view of unemployment and other distressed conditions and uncertainty among business leaders, to encourage, aid and assist business rather than take any action through discriminatory and penalty taxes which, in our opinion, would further retard commerce and would tend to increase living costs, therefore be it

"Resolved that the National Editorial Association goes on record as opposing such legislative enactments and

"We further recommend that the Board of Directors be requested to dispatch a copy of the above action duly signed by its officers to the members of any legislative committee at Washington or at a state capital at such time when united action by the non-metropolitan weekly and daily papers of America is deemed, in the Board's judgment, to be prudent."

That resolution, coming from the country press of America, is highly encouraging. These newspapers have become more and more concerned with legislation and taxation which unfairly penalize business. And the majority of editors have come to the sound conclusion that all such laws and class taxes are indefensible in a democratic country.

A "REBIRTH OF PUBLIC MORALITY."

At the time of the 1929 crash it was widely said that there must be a moral recovery in American business before there could be sound economic recovery. Much of the "Roosevelt revolution" was based on that thesis. The people supported laws which promised to reform business. Today the United States is again seeking recovery. And there are many who believe that this time the principal reform required before confidence and prosperity will be firmly based is a reform in government.

A very great number of Americans are deeply disturbed over the new "money power" represented by huge federal expenditures. It is open to the same abuses and can exercise the same evil influences as the power represented by unreformed business. We believe the decline in President Roosevelt's popularity shown in the recent Fortune and Gallup polls is largely due to a loss of moral leadership in this and other governmental affairs. We believe an increasing number of Americans agree with the demand Alf M. Landon made in his speech at Council Bluffs on Wednesday:

We need a change in something far more fundamental than a mere changing of political parties. We need a fundamental change in our attitude toward life and government. We need above all else a rebirth of public morality.

This morality will demand honesty in government as well as business, freedom from oppression by "big government" or "big business."—Christian Science Monitor.

15,000,000 AT THE TROUGH.

"People who are receiving checks from the Government are really not in position to pass on the fiscal questions of taxation and balancing the budget. They are affected with an interest. They want the money, and the more the Government does for them the more it will have to do.

Let us count up the number. Nearly a million people are on the payroll as officials, clerks, and all that sort of thing; the United States army numbers perhaps 160,000; the navy, I take it, numbers at least 150,000 more, and we are to enlarge it and enter upon a great program; there are 6,000,000 farmers, each one getting a check; there are 2,000,000 unemployed on WPA, and that number is being lifted to 2,500,000 perhaps to 3,000,000. Then there is the payment of pensions, the demand increasing all the time. There are the payments to the States. There is the old-age relief and Social Security unemployment payments to the workers.

I take it we are taking money now out of the treasury every day which goes directly to not less than 15,000,000 people of the United States who are over 21 years of age, and all of them can vote.—By Senator Josiah W. Bailey, of North Carolina, in the Senate.

Pineapple Is Fit Dish for the Gods

An Attractive Party Dessert Easily Prepared

By EDITH M. BARBER

"A FRUIT worthy of the Gods and of such excellence that it should be picked only by the hands of Venus." In these words Jean De Lery in 1555 described the pineapple. Before the end of the Sixteenth century this native fruit of the American tropics had been introduced into the Old World for cultivation where the climate was hospitable.

The original name of this fruit was Na-Na, which meant fragrance. It probably received its modern title because of its resemblance to the pine cone in appearance. Our supply of canned fruit, which we have throughout the year, comes largely from Hawaii.

Nothing is better than shredded, sugared pineapple which has been allowed to stand in the refrigerator for a number of hours before it is served. When the housekeeper plans it for use as dessert, she will do well to prepare it one day for use on the next. It will not be scorned if it has not had this treatment, but it will be appreciated more if forethought has been used.

An attractive party dessert may be prepared by scooping the pineapple from the shell and refilling it with ice cream and sugared pineapple to which brandy has been added.

Shredded Pineapple.
Cut pineapple into six slices. Pare and remove eyes and then shred with fork. Cover with sugar, set in refrigerator for several hours before serving.

Pineapple Cucumber Salad.
2 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups boiling water and pineapple juice
½ cup vinegar
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cucumber
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 can pineapple
Soak gelatin in cold water. Add the boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add the vinegar and salt and pour into molds. Set in ice water and when it begins to thicken add the cucumber, which has been cut into dice and allowed to stand an hour in salted water, the onion and the pineapple, cut into pieces. Chill until set, unmold on a bed of lettuce and pass sour cream salad dressing with it.

OTHERS YOU'LL LIKE

Chocolate Bavarian Cream.
2 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 squares chocolate
½ cup coconut
1 cup whipped cream
Soak the gelatin in water. Place the milk, sugar, salt and chocolate, cut in four or five pieces, in the top of a double boiler and cook until the chocolate is melted. Beat with an egg beater a few seconds to insure smoothness. Add the gelatin and stir until dissolved. Remove from the fire, stand in cold water, stir occasionally, and when it begins to thicken fold in the coconut and the whipped cream. Pour into a mold, chill, and when set serve with whipped cream.

Raisin Conserve.
4 pounds raisins
2 grapefruits, peeled and cut into pieces
4 oranges, peeled and sliced thin
6 slices canned pineapple, cut into pieces
1 lemon, juice only
Sugar
Mix the fruit with lemon juice and chop one minute. Weigh and add three-fourths as much granulated sugar as there is fruit. Cook until clear and thick, about one hour. Stir frequently to prevent burning. Pour into sterilized glasses and seal.

Savory Canape.
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons capers
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
12 strips toast
1 hard-cooked egg
2 ounces caviar
Cream butter and mix with it capers, parsley, onion juice and lemon juice. Spread on toast. In the center place one slice of hard-cooked egg and a small round of caviar.

Pinwheel Sandwiches.
Remove all but bottom crusts from a loaf of bread. Spread bread lengthwise liberally with cream cheese which has been beaten smooth with a little cream and mixed with chopped chives. Slice and remove bottom crust. Roll tightly and seal with butter. Wrap each roll tightly in moisture-proof paper, chill in refrigerator and slice.

Hollandaise Sauce.
½ cup butter
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Few grains cayenne
Divide the butter into two pieces, put one piece in a saucepan with the yolks of eggs and lemon juice, hold the saucepan over a larger one containing boiling water, stir constantly until the butter is melted, then add the second piece of butter and stir until it thickens. Remove from the fire, season with cayenne and serve at once.

Why Kiln Dried Lumber Adds to Cost of House

Kiln drying of lumber is practiced in many large mills, for lumber to be used for finished flooring, interior finishing and for furniture. A large percentage of the framing and rough building lumber is of course air seasoned, as kiln drying adds to the cost.

Two types of kilns are commonly used: one is known as the "progressive" type of kiln, in which trucks loaded with lumber are pushed into one end of the kiln and are progressively moved toward the other end, from which they are removed when dry. The temperature is not the same all over these kilns, but is considerably warmer at the finishing end than it is at the end where the lumber is put in. Steam heat is generally used for this work, exhaust steam from the power plant being frequently the source of heat.

Why Fundy Bay Tide Is High

The high tide in the Bay of Fundy is due largely to the configuration of the bay. When a tidal wave from a deep water enters a broad, deep river mouth or bay and spends its energy up a narrow channel at the far end, the momentum of the water forces a tremendous mass of water inland.

Spinach Preferred
Next to Ice Cream

Survey Shows Children Really Rank It Thus

By EDITH M. BARBER

SPINACH for a number of years has been the topic for jests and has almost replaced the classic mother-in-law joke. It was rather interesting to find that the children, instead of disliking this vegetable, actually chose it as one of their favorite foods, according to a recent survey. Spinach actually ranked next to ice cream.

Because of the two types of spinach which are on the market at different times of the year, and because seasons in city markets are long extended through shipments from various parts of the country, we can find it in its fresh form throughout the year. And, of course, we can always call upon the canners. In the preparation of spinach for the table, perhaps the most important point is the washing, as every grain of sand must be removed. No one likes gritty spinach. The easiest way to handle this question is to use two large pans of fresh water and to continue this until no more sand is deposited on the bottom of the pans.

Spinach will need to be cooked in boiling salted water to half cover. It should be cooked just until the leaves are tender, usually not more than six to eight minutes. It should then be drained. Butter or cream which is used for dressing should be added to the hot vegetable. If you like, you may chop or puree the leaves before dressing them. Salt, pepper, a little nutmeg, lemon juice, vinegar, horseradish, sweet or sour cream, as well as butter, all bring out the flavor of this delicate vegetable.

Spinach on Toast.

Wash one peck of spinach and cook in boiling salted water five to eight minutes. Turn into collander and press out as much water as possible. Mince very fine. Melt three tablespoons butter in a frying pan, add two teaspoons flour and stir until well blended. Add spinach and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add one cup cream, salt and pepper, cook three minutes and serve on toast.

Spinach Nests.

6 bread cases
Melted butter
2 cups cooked spinach
Salt, pepper
½ cup grated cheese
Make bread cases by cutting bread into three-inch squares and cutting out the centers. Brush each case with melted butter. Chop the spinach, mix with seasoning and fill the breadcases. Sprinkle with the cheese and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) until bread is light brown and the cheese is melted.

FAVORITE RECIPES

Baked Stuffed Eggplant.

1 eggplant
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
½ tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup sliced nuts
Wash eggplant and cook in boiling water 20 minutes. Remove from water and drain. Cut slice from side and remove pulp with a spoon. Melt butter, add minced onion and cook three minutes. Add bread crumbs, seasonings, finely cut pulp and one-half cup of nuts. Refill eggplant shell with stuffing, sprinkle with remaining nuts and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) until nuts are brown. Serve with baked halved tomatoes.

Baked Stuffed Fish.

1 three-pound fish
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
4 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 small tomatoes
6 onion rings
Salt, pepper
Split and clean fish. Mix crumbs, and seasoning, add 2 tablespoons of melted butter and lemon juice. Mix well and stuff fish with mixture. Sew split edges together and place fish on oven-proof platter. Halve tomatoes, place around fish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and arrange an onion ring on each half. Pour remaining butter over fish and tomatoes. Bake in a hot oven, (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes until fish is tender. Remove from oven and garnish with sliced lemon and parsley.

Asparagus With Cheese.

1 bunch asparagus
½ cup butter
¾ cup grated cheese
Cook asparagus. Arrange on platter and dress with brown butter. To prepare brown butter—melt butter in frying pan and brown slightly, add grated cheese, stir well and pour over asparagus.

Lettuce With Bacon Salad.

6 strips bacon
1 head lettuce
½ cup vinegar
Cook the bacon until light brown but not crisp. Cut in small pieces and add with the hot fat over the shredded lettuce. When well mixed, add the vinegar. Mix well and serve.

Why Singing Is Recommended

Singing as a health restorer, especially for those having high blood pressure, is being recommended by Dr. M. Biehle, a medical expert of Berlin. When he examined 83 professional singers and found that no one had high blood pressure he concluded that singing prevents and relieves the ailment. Continuing his experiments with patients in several of Berlin's leading hospitals, he put sufferers from high blood pressure on a "diet of song," varying the diet according to the condition of the patient.

WHY

Corn and Some Other Plants Grow Faster at Night.

Other things being equal, corn probably grows most rapidly on warm nights. Many plants, including corn or maize, continue to grow after dark, notwithstanding the fact that photosynthesis takes place only while the plants are receiving sunlight.

The rate of growth in plants, says the United States bureau of plant industry, is influenced by many factors other than the formation of food materials through photosynthesis, and the photosynthetic products themselves may require further change before being utilized in growth. Thus it happens that some plants not only continue to grow after nightfall, but grow more rapidly at night under ordinary conditions than they do during the day. Apparently, however, this is not true of all plants.

There is no particular period in the course of 24 hours of the day during which all plants grow most rapidly. Even among those that reach their maximum rate of growth in the night, the period of most rapid growth in some species seems to begin in the early part of the night, while in other species it does not begin until after midnight. Certain plants will continue to elongate rapidly even in prolonged darkness, but in such cases the type of growth differs materially from that which takes place when the plants are exposed to sunlight.

Why City of Washington
Has No J, X, Y or Z Sts.

Many visitors to the national capital cannot quite get over the fact that there is no "J" street. They travel on "G," "H" and "I," but the next one is "K." What happened to "J"? Official records show no reason for this slighting of the letter "J."

Some persons claim that letter was left out of the street alphabet because in the old days the letter "J" was written very much like a "I" and the latter was left out to avoid confusion. Anyway there never has been a "J" street in the capital, although there is a "Jay" street, named after John Jay, first chief justice of the United States Supreme court.

As a matter of fact, says Pathfinder Magazine, there are no X, Y and Z streets in Washington. Various reasons are offered to explain why these three letters of the alphabet were skipped in naming streets. Some claim it was because these letters were too closely identified with mathematics, especially the unknown quantity. But whatever the reason, the fact remains that even in the second, third and fourth alphabets of streets are only two of these three letters recognized—X in Xenia street and Y in Yuma street.

Why It Is Equality State

Wyoming is nicknamed the Equality state because it was the first state in the Union to grant equal suffrage to women. Wyoming was created a territory in 1868, and the first territorial legislature which met in Cheyenne in December, 1869, granted women the right to vote in all elections. In 1889 when the state constitution was drawn up it contained an equal suffrage clause. Wyoming entered the Union on July 10, 1890, as the forty-fourth state.

Folsom Men Ousted
as Oldest Americans
by Other Primitives

Los Angeles, Calif.—Discovery of strong evidence that America had two prehistoric waves of pioneers before the famous Folsom hunters arrived on our shores is reported here by the Southwest museum.

The discovery is pronounced "of major importance to American archeology." It is as surprising an addition to our prehistory as if two boats earlier than the Mayflower had been found bearing colonists to New England shores in our historic era.

A joint expedition of Carnegie Institution of Washington and Southwest museum, led by M. R. Harrington of the latter institution, unearthed stone relics of the long departed and long-lost Americans. Investigating the shore of a brackish pond in Lake county, California, where C. C. Post of Berkeley had found spearheads of one of the oldest cultures of America, the archeologists found brand-new chapters of prehistory opening before them.

The surface layer, turned topsy-turvy by recent plowing, contained spear heads, knives, drills, and scrapers typical of the Folsom hunters. With such implements, Folsom men killed the mammoth and giant bison and prepared the kill for food and clothing. Seven to twelve thousand years ago is the loosely estimated antiquity of this Folsom era.

May Date to 13000 B. C.

With Folsom man's handiwork the archeologists found quite different stone spearheads and other implements. These different tools had recently been turning up at Lake Mohave and another western site, leaving archeologists doubtful as to whether they had found people older than the Folsom hunters, or not. Now the mystery is believed solved, since digging into the Lake county site revealed the Mohave type of tool in a camp deposit definitely below the Folsom tools—and therefore older than the Folsom tools.

There may have been not merely one but two kinds of primitive pioneers inhabiting America in those pre-Folsom days, at the same time. For Mr. Harrington reports finding a new type of spearhead, which he calls the Borax Lake type, which was found buried at about the same levels as the Lake Mohave tools.

Most surprising of all was the discovery that below all these relics lay still older weapons, made by people "as yet entirely unknown quantities in American archeology." These dawn men of America made crude and coarse stone implements, described by the archeologists as mainly large scrapers and hand axes which they clutched in the fist, using no handle.

Finding the deep levels of the site thus undisturbed after thousands of years convinced Mr. Harrington that these unknown ancients lived about 13000 B. C., or perhaps earlier.

HOW

PLUMBER GOT HIS NAME FROM LEAD OR PLUMBO.—Compared to glittering gold and shining silver, lead is a humble metal. Yet it deserves the respect due to an honorable ancestor. From an early date lead was associated with the planet Saturn, and since in mythology Saturn was considered the father of the gods, lead was known as the father of the metals, says a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Persian religious writings likened the revolution of the celestial bodies to "Seven stairs connected to Seven Gates, each of a different metal. The first was of lead and the leaden Gate had the slow and tedious motion of Saturn."

In astrology the characteristics of men born under the influence of Saturn are described in terms that might be lead itself: gray, heavy, cold, and slow—i. e., Saturnine.

Yet lead has always been a steadfast friend to man, and the Romans, great builders, recognized this. For water-pipes and cisterns; roof-coverings and decorations; panels and statuettes; coffins and coins, lead was used in large quantities. The famous Colosseum in Rome was so named because of the colossal leaden statue of Nero standing at one entrance. The lead mines of Britain were one of the objects that tempted the Romans to capture and hold this country. Their name for lead was plumbum—whence our plumber.

College to Use Ancient Gold Mine in Class Work

Santa Rosa, Calif.—The Junior college here believes it is the only one in the world that owns a gold mine, complete in every respect, except for gold.

The exhausted mine, with all its installations complete, was discovered near Carson City, Nev., last year when Jesse Peter, curator of the Junior College Geological and Anthropological museum, was on tour for specimens.

Something attracted his attention at once, and as the mine was being sold at a tax sale, Peter bought it in for $2.85.

The "something" which had attracted Peter's attention was not the possibility of exploiting the mine but the fact that one of the shacks on the property had for its foundation a vast collection of Indian mortars that presumably at some time in the past had been made by some tribe at a near-by Indian village.

They had been turned upsidedown and used as supports for the superstructure of the shack. Many of them were worth hundreds of dollars each to collectors.

The mine itself is to be worked by classes from the college who are studying mining for the practical experience even if no gold is found.

Why Kneading Helps Dough

If bread is to be porous and light, the dough must be kneaded to develop the gluten in the flour. The gluten becomes elastic and stretches to hold in the gas released by the yeast. The dough is kneaded lightly and gently until it is smooth and satiny.

WHY

Grasshoppers Are Changed Into Flying Type.

The locusts of the Bible were not locusts at all. Just grasshoppers. They did not hop. They flew. Our grasshoppers hop. Query: Why don't our grasshoppers fly? And why didn't the biblical grasshoppers hop? Dr. J. R. Parker of the Department of Agriculture thinks he has found the answer. It has a bearing on drouth.

Ask Dr. Parker and he will tell you that hopping grasshoppers can be changed into fliers, thereby clearing up the biblical mystery. He kept Western grasshoppers in his laboratory, juggled temperature, humidity, food, and noted the effect. Heat and hunger changed hoppers into fliers. Wings became longer and finer, bodies slimmer, colors brighter.

What is the reason? Dr. Parker explains in terms of the survival of the fittest. When there is no food—the case in hot deserts—hopping and walking are accomplishments of little aid in the struggle for existence. Flying ability counts. So the hoppers develop it. Fifty years ago—in 1880 to be exact—clouds of grasshoppers darkened the European and American sky. The insects clustered three inches thick on some railroads. Wheels simply slipped.

Three Writers Credited
"Fourth Estate" Authors

The press is called the fourth estate because of its influence upon public affairs. Formerly in England and France, the church, the nobility and the commons were known as the three estates of the realm.

There has been much discussion as to who first called the press the fourth estate, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. Authorship of the phrase is variously attributed to Burke, Carlyle and Macaulay. In 1840 Thomas Carlyle published his "Heroes and Hero Worship." In Lecture 5, of that work, he says: "Burke said there were three estates in parliament; but, in the reporters' gallery yonder, there sat a fourth estate more important far than they all. It is not a figure of speech, or a witty saying; it is a literal fact—very momentous to us in these times."

Carlyle's style of writing is such that it is not clear whether or not he intended to give Burke's exact phraseology. The phrase "fourth estate" does not appear in any of Burke's published writings and it is not known where Carlyle obtained his information. Some authorities have suggested that he may have coined the phrase, himself. Three years earlier he published "The French Revolution." One chapter in the work is entitled "The Fourth Estate." It contains the following sentence: "A fourth estate of able editors, springs up." But Macaulay had used the phrase as early as 1828. That year Macaulay wrote in the Edinburgh Review:

"The gallery in which the reporters sit has become a fourth estate of the realm."

A correspondent to London "Notes and Queries," stated that he heard Lord Brougham use the phrase in the house of commons about 1823 or 1824.

The fifth estate is defined as a class of estates, next after the traditional four. Scientists have been termed the fifth estate.

The S. S. at Mt. Union on Sunday morning voted to adopt a Missionary project not to exceed $50.00 per year expense as requested by the Lutheran Church Board—to aid the work. Miss Ruth Reifsnider conducted the C. E. meeting at 7:00 P. M., and Rev. Krom had preaching service at 8:00 P. M. Speaking from the closing portion of the sermon on the Mount.

The C. E. outing at High Knob on Sunday evening has been decided by one who was present as the most inspirational meeting he ever attended.

Wm. Brush, of Baltimore, State Sup't., and other officers were there; Edward Reid, of Taneytown led the devotions; the song service was conducted by Glen Fieckel, student of Westminster Theological Seminary. The Dutcher sisters of Silver Run sang in duet; the Olympic Quartette of Manchester, lent sweet strains; also one man with a trumpet. The stories of old and familiar hymns were told, and all engaged in a hymn sing. As to location, the setting was ideal—over looking Middletown Valley on the West, and Frederick valley on the east. Carroll county had members present from Manchester, Carrollton, Silver Run, Westminster, Taneytown, Union Bridge and Mt. Union.

A car containing four young people crashed into a electric light pole and broke it off, ran into a new barbed wire fence and broke through, dug up the side of the bank at intersection of Middleburg and Union Bridge road—about midnight on Friday; but somehow made their escape. For awhile lighting conditions were disturbed, and darkness prevailed, but the linemen were promptly at work and a new pole placed by noon. Four "some bodies" must have had an awful jam and arousing.

The funeral cars following the remains of Miss Carrie Koons passed thro' our village about 11:00 A. M., on Saturday enroute from her home near Winters church, where the service was held, and then to the cemetery of the Reformed Church in Taneytown for burial. Her parents and grand-parents were residents of this community in early life and highly respected.

The wheat is all cut, some of the farmers are threshing out of the field, but with the price of wheat so low it is hard to be enthusiastic over results. Next will be pic-nic time.

KEY TO FARM PROSPERITY.

Greater co-operation among dairy farmers holds the key to better economic conditions, said Fred H. Sexauer, president of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, recently. He added: "From beginning to end the milk industry needs an overhauling. Not to throw it into control of bureaucrats, nor to leave it under the thumb of buyers, not to grind farmers down, but to bring them together and to give consumers every break to which they are entitled."

That is a vital and immediate need today, with consumer purchasing power at low levels, and with a large milk surplus on hand. The leading dairy co-operators are fighting an aggressive battle to keep the industry on an even keel as possible—but they can't win without loyal, undivided support from all producers.

DEERFIELD OPEN-AIR SERVICES.

The third program of the 4th. annual Open-Air Religious Services at Deerfield, Md., will begin on Sunday evening with Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Vinaroff, noted Evangelistic singers of Chicago, assisting. Rev. Vinaroff is the most outstanding evangelist of the U. B. denomination. He is an ordained minister and a professor of music with eighteen years experience. They are an extremely popular couple and of winsome personality. They have assisted in twelve such series of services since last September and in these services over 600 persons accepted Christ. Some of the recent ones were held in nearby communities as Elizabethtown, Johnstown, Pittsburgh, and Parkersburg, W. Va. Others were Toledo, O. and Beach, N. Dakota. In all these services there was a marked success realized and in one instance, over 200 accepted Christ. Mrs. Vinaroff will accompany her husband and address a woman's mass meeting to be announced. They have worked in every state north of the Mason & Dixon line and most of those south, as well as in Canada.

Services will be held nightly at 8:00 o'clock with spirited gospel singing. Many visiting choirs and choruses have been booked as well as visiting ministers who will bring many of the sermon messages, especially during the first week. The services, also promise, besides extra ordinary programs, the cool auspices of the open air on the grassy slope of the Deerfield Grove. However, in case of inclement weather, services will be held in the Deerfield church, or "The Little (grey) Church in the Valley."

This series of services will continue nightly from Sunday evening, July 17th., until the end of the month.

TROUBLES WITH WIVES.

An early visitor says that a man out West got himself into trouble by marrying two wives.

A western editor replied by assuring his contemporary that a good many men in that section have done the same thing by marrying one.

A northern editor reports that quite a number of his acquaintances found trouble by merely promising to marry, without going any further.

KNOW THYSELF
by Dr. George D. Greer

SHOULD WE OBEY OUR IMPULSES?

THIS was a popular slogan some years ago; for a time some thought it might have some scientific standing, but it is now repudiated by the best students of human nature. It is unwise procedure, because it ignores the fundamental laws of habit formation. When we obey an impulse two or three times, we have started a habit. Every repetition makes the habit stronger. So we must ask if we want that impulse to become one of our life habits. Impulses should be examined. Ideas are really better guides than impulses. We have found out that the ideas of respectability and peace are better rules of living than the impulse that we have at times to do bodily injury to the one we do not like. Savages obey their impulses; and remain savage. Children obey their impulses and get spanked or scolded.

Why Fishes Were Used

The fished, roughly corresponding to our month of February, was sacred to the Babylonian fish god. The Babylonian calendar had but 360 days and every six years the calendar was adjusted by inserting an extra month after February, and that, too, was sacred to the fish god, so two fishes were used to signify the double month.

Lady in Black

The mysterious Lady in Black, who has on numerous occasions visited the crypt of Rudolph Valentino in Hollywood cemetery, continued her mournful adoration of the Latin screen idol when she made a visit to the Four Star theater in Hollywood, where Valentino's greatest triumph, "The Sheik," was revived.

MARYLAND EMPLOYMENT IS IMPROVING.

The ten offices of the Maryland State Employment Service located outside of Baltimore City put 347 men and women back to work during the past week it was revealed today by D. L. B. Fringer, Director.

The service as a whole took 671 persons from the ranks of the unemployed, returning 547 of them to private industry, and placing 124 on public projects.

The office in Cambridge lead the State with private placements during the week, putting 195 out of 200 placements in private industry. Commenting on this, Mr. Fringer said, "The office in Cambridge has made remarkable strides forward during the past three months. Those responsible for the office are to be congratulated particularly for the large number of private placements that they have made consistently during this period. The Cambridge office is now one of the most active in the State."

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

OLD MR. TOAD IS VERY HUMBLE

WHEN Old Mr. Toad saw Mr. Blacksnake and turned his back on Buster Bear and the fine dinner to which Buster Bear had invited him, he had but just one idea in his head, and that was to get out of sight of Mr. Blacksnake as soon as possible. He forgot to ask Buster Bear to excuse him. He forgot that he was tired and hot. He forgot all the pride with which he had been so puffed up. He forgot everything but the need of getting out of sight of Mr. Blacksnake as soon as ever he could. You see, Mr. Blacksnake has a fondness for toads when there is nothing better to fill his stomach. So away went Old Mr. Toad, hop, hop, hipperty-hop, hop, hop, hipperty-hop! He heard Peter Rabbit and Jimmy Skunk and Johnny Chuck and others of his old friends and neighbors shouting with laughter. Yes, and he heard the deep grumbly-rumbly laugh of Buster Bear. But he didn't mind it. Not then, anyway. He hadn't room for any feeling except fear—fear of Mr. Blacksnake.

Peter suddenly threw his head up high and strutted past as if he didn't see Old Mr. Toad.

Hop, hop, hipperty-hop!
Old Mr. Toad felt he never could stop. He had lost all his pride. And away down inside Fear made his heart give a terrible flop.

But he had to stop after a while. You see, his legs were so tired they just wouldn't go any longer. And he was so out of breath that he wheezed. He crawled under a big piece of bark and there he lay flat on the ground and panted and panted for breath. He would stay there until jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun went to bed behind the Purple Hills.

Then Mr. Blacksnake would go to bed, too, and it would be safe for him to go home. Now, lying there in the dark, for it was dark under that big piece of bark, he had time to think. Little by little he began to understand that his invitation to dine with Buster Bear had been part of a plan by his old friends and neighbors, whom he had so snubbed and looked down on when he had been puffed up with pride, to teach him a lesson. At first he was angry, very angry, indeed. Then he began to see how foolish and silly he had been, and shame took the place of anger. As he remembered the deep, grumbly-rumbly laughter of Buster Bear the feeling of shame grew.

"I deserve it," thought Old Mr. Toad. "Yes, sir, I deserve every bit of it. The only thing that I have to be proud of is that I'm honest and work for my living. Yes, sir, that's all."

When darkness came at last and he crawled out to go home he was feeling very humble. Peter Rabbit happened along just then. Old Mr. Toad opened his mouth to speak, but Peter suddenly threw his head up very high and strutted past as if he didn't see Old Mr. Toad at all. Mr. Toad gulped and went on. Pretty soon he met Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy went right on about his business and actually stepped right over Old Mr. Toad as if he had been a stick or a stone. Old Mr. Toad gulped and went on. The next day he went down to see Danny Meadow Mouse. He meant to tell Danny how ashamed he was for the way he had treated Danny and his other friends. But Danny brushed right past without even a glance at him. Old Mr. Toad gulped and started up to see Johnny Chuck. The same thing happened again. So it did when he met Striped Chipmunk.

At last Old Mr. Toad gave up and went home, where he sat under a big mullein leaf the rest of the day, feeling very miserable and lonely. He didn't have appetite enough to snap at a single fly. Late that afternoon he heard a little noise and looked up to find all his old friends and neighbors forming a circle around him. Suddenly they began to dance and shout:

"Old Mr. Toad is a jolly good fellow! His temper is sweet; disposition is mellow! And now that his bubble of pride is quite busted, We know that he knows that his friends can be trusted."

Then Old Mr. Toad knew that all was well once more and presently he began to dance, too, the funniest dance that was ever seen.

DO YOU KNOW—

"That the word dollar is from the 15th century. The ruling count in the valley (thaler) of Joachimsthal, Bohemia, struck off large coins from silver produced in his domain. These came to be known as "Joachinsthaler", which was abbreviated to "thaler". The "low Germans" made this "daler" and soon dollar found its way into the English language. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

IS THERE A REAL MOTHER-IN-LAW PROBLEM?

POOR mother-in-law does get joked about a great deal. Yet behind all her troubles she is her goodness. She has been a mother and a housekeeper; the way the new generation does things does not seem best to her, since she is used to the other ways. She tries to help and gets herself in "Dutch." And, of course, she cannot look on her son or her daughter as just an ordinary person; she feels very keenly their difficulties and problems. All her life she has managed things, and it is almost impossible to quit, even though she may be a member of a household of the younger generation. But there are some perfectly "swell" mothers-in-law who have seen the point and live serenely in the midst of things that are not done as they used to be.

Pansies for Thoughts

JOHN LINDEN signed the little green slip with a flourishing hand. Then, chuckling, he held the bit of paper aloft and waved it gently to and fro, a smile of satisfaction on his whimsical face. When John Linden chuckled you could be sure that there was something in the wind, for he was not given to promiscuous chuckling.

SHORT STORY

There was no question but that John Linden was a very successful business man. Financially he was rated high among the big fellows in "bankers' row."

John looked annoyed as Miss Ginn, his secretary, entered and took her accustomed place at her desk.

"Kindly see that this check is mailed by noon to Mrs. John Linden," he said curtly. "South Park avenue, Larchmont district. And by the way, Miss Ginn," severely, "you haven't been very punctual at the office lately."

Miss Ginn flushed and started to speak, but thought better of it. Picking up the check, she took it, along with notebook and pencil, into her own little cubbyhole, where she hastily fished an envelope from a pile and stuck it in her typewriter.

Mrs. John Linden... Well, what of it? It wasn't her affair. But she had thought... He had been so kind... Tears welled into her eyes. And John Linden, coming suddenly in from his private quarters just then, saw a tear splash upon the keyboard of the typewriter.

Now, Miss Ginn was a nice little thing, smart and capable. Maybe he had been too harsh.

"I—er—" floundering helplessly, "where are you going tomorrow?" She looked at him coldly, mistress of herself at once.

"Home!" with emphasis. "Home, sweet home," amusedly. "To spend the day with mother. Nice little girl," he beamed. Then he noticed a large tissue-wrapped parcel on the desk. "Ah, flowers," benignly. "Pinks?"

She shook her head. "No? Roses? Or orchids?" banteringly.

She held his eyes a moment bravely. "It's a pimpy-palmy show. What would you give to see it?"

He laughed at that, quaintly reminiscent of kid days.

"Well, pins are out of date. But," brightly, "I might rustle up a few marbles, aggie's perhaps." Frisking in his trousers pocket he gleefully brought forth two gayly colored glass marbles. "Found 'em this blessed morning. Now, if that isn't luck!" gloatingly.

She unwrapped the parcel, exposing to view half a hundred smiling flower faces that nodded to him in the most friendly way, then set the basket on the sill of an open window nearby.

"Pansies are for thoughts," said John Linden slowly. "And you're bringing them home to your mother. I see."

She seemed surprised. "My mother died when I was born. They're for somebody else's mother. For a dear little old lady whom I've adopted. A lovely lady who is as kin-hungry as I've been at times. She has the pansy-est eyes. And she has a son," eyeing him steadily, "who lives at his club in town here. He never goes to see her out there in the suburbs, though he sends generous checks regularly. Once she called upon him at his place of business and—she was annoyed. It—hurt—dreadfully."

"Ah," The word was very expressive.

"She keeps his baby picture in a little pansy-embroidered frame on her bureau. It means a lot to her. Especially since she became ill."

She faced him squarely. "That is why I have been late mornings, Mr. Linden. She was drooping—they do when they're old—and they have nobody who cares..."

His face suddenly whitened. "What is her name?" he asked tensely.

"Mrs. John Linden. You see, I didn't know myself until last week, when she was taken ill. These big checks," holding the addressed envelope aloft, "they pay her bills, of course, but otherwise they don't mean a thing to her. She is heart-hungry for a sight of her grown-up baby."

John Linden tore the envelope in two and thrust it into the waste basket.

"Get your wraps, and we'll take the pansies to her—together."

Miss Ginn jumped up, her face radiant. "I knew it. I told her so this very morning. That you weren't as callous as you pretended. That if you knew the ache in her dear mother heart—" she hesitated, embarrassed.

A bee buzzed in through the window and hovered above the pansies. "Look," she said, suddenly, to hide her confusion, "a bee singing his honey song to our own little democratic flowers. Now watch the bold pilferer dip into their sweetness."

His whimsical eyes followed hers to the blooms nodding socially in the rustling breeze. "They are as sweet as ever grew in the field of old romance," he said tenderly.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

"Now that the children are past the destructive age," writes Mrs. M. H., "we want to do the house over. We're starting with the room the girls occupy. I've purchased a maple bed and chest for it and there is an 8 by 10 taupe rug on the floor here with an all-over design in green, black and brown. The walls of this room are painted a light cream with dark woodwork. There are three windows, and space for a home-made dressing table with skirt and mirror which I think girls of ten and twelve will enjoy. I'd like a chintz bedspread but maybe candlewick would be cheaper and more practical. What would you suggest for spread, curtains, dressing table skirt and chairs?"

"The room for my sixteen-year-old son is larger. It has painted cream walls and a light beige rug that I'd like to discard. I'll have to get a new spread and curtains here, too. The furniture includes a walnut Jenny Lind bed and a walnut chest to match with a mirror above it. What kind of a rug would you suggest for this room when we can

Why Control Counts in Sports, Business, Habits

On the baseball diamond, the difference between a great pitcher and a dub who can merely throw a ball hard, is largely a matter of control, asserts a writer in the Washington Star.

Fire, when under control, turns the wheels of industry. When out of control, it is one of the most destructive forces in the world.

A brilliant scientist, making revolutionary discoveries in his laboratory, may be changed into a helpless madman, simply by losing control over his mind.

Sounds pretty important, doesn't it—this matter of control? And it is. The motorist, the airplane pilot, the locomotive engineer—the life of each one depends absolutely on his ability to control his machine.

But that isn't all. Control is important for you, too—control over your habits, your temper, your undesirable impulses, your unworthy thoughts. If you have it, you'll be like the good baseball pitcher, and win a lot of games. If you don't, you'll be like the dub who not only never gets to first base, but who never even makes the team.

Why Shooting Star Has Tail

The reason why a shooting star appears to have a tail trailing behind is that an image remains in our eyes for about one-sixteenth of a second, says Pearson's London Weekly. Since the falling meteorite (wrongly called "shooting star") is moving very quickly, it has covered quite a distance before that one-sixteenth of a second has passed; so there appears to be a tail. It is the same phenomenon that makes the spokes of a whirling wheel look solid; and it is also the basis for the apparent continuous action on the cinema screen on which sixteen pictures are flashed every second.

Why Top of Wheel Moves Faster

When you see a motor-car at speed, take a good look at the top and bottom spokes of the wheels. The top spokes will appear blurred because they are moving fastest, while the bottom spokes will be much clearer because they are moving much slower. The explanation is that the part of the wheel which touches the ground does not move at all for a brief instant, otherwise it would slip and skid. The top of the wheel moves that much faster to compensate.

IN THE kitchen of their California bungalow, the Simpson family were preparing for the day's struggle for existence. Margaret was adjusting a fresh morning supply of makeup before a little mirror, which still bore the crack received when it fell out of the car coming over the Rocky mountains, when the Simpsons migrated from Iowa; Allie, sleepy and cross, stood at the sink, munching a piece of dry toast and surveying the others through large gray eyes fringed with heavy lashes.

A horn sounded outside.

"There's Bill, Margie," said Allie, "and you haven't had your coffee." He tried hurriedly to pour her a cup, but the percolator top fell off and rolled under the sink.

"Never mind, dad; I gotta go. Good-by." Margaret pulled down her scant black satin dress, shifted a white fox fur from one slim shoulder to the other, and was gone.

"Daddy," said Ellen, "you're darn good to us. We'd lose our jobs without you."

"Tut, Ellen, don't be silly. Eat your breakfast. You haven't eaten a thing."

"Food," said Ellen, yawning, and pulling up her stockings, snapping the garters above her knees, "should be either exotic or nourishing."

The percolator top fell off again, and this time it broke. Allie didn't mind getting breakfast for his daughters, but he was flustered when they said clever things he couldn't understand.

After the girls were gone, Allie washed the dishes and tidied up the little house. Then he burned the trash in the back lot. He took a long time doing that, because he wanted to put off the moment of going in and facing the fact that he had no job to go to and nothing to do. On Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays Allie worked at the gas station. He liked it there; there was life and excitement. All sorts of people came by, and Allie liked people. He didn't earn much, but these days saved his self-respect, and they meant more to him than anyone knew. But this was only Monday, and an empty week stretched out ahead.

At ten o'clock the postman's whistle sounded, and Allie's kindly wrinkled face lit up. Little things pleased Allie; he made occasions of little things because he had only little things to do.

He took the mail out of the box and sorted it slowly and carefully. Advertisements, a card from the library for Margie, a fat letter from China for Ellen, a slim, gray envelope for Mr. Allie Simpson. His glasses fell off as he opened it nervously.

"Dear Allie: I hope you haven't forgotten me. I am coming to California next week and hope to see you. Will you come to the Ramona hotel Wednesday at three?"

"As Ever

"Nellie."

Allie held the note listlessly in his hand and read it over and over, asking if he had forgotten her. Nellie, who had said good-by to him 25 years ago!

"I know you'll make good, Allie. You'll be rich some day, but I can't marry you. I'll always love you, though, and remember, I'll expect big things of you."

Big things! Success! What was it, anyway, this illusive thing, success? Why had he never had it? Over and over, every night since his wife died, Allie had struggled with the problem, questioned himself, blamed himself—and yet he was never sure for what he was blaming himself. He'd been good to the girls; he had tried to earn money. He couldn't. And now Nellie was coming. Nellie would know.

Well, if Nellie was coming, he'd have to meet her. "Go through with it, daddy, get away with it," that's what Ellen would say. But he wouldn't tell the girls; he'd go through with this alone, and he'd get away with it, too.

He pulled an old suitcase out from under the cot on the back porch where he slept, and took from a worn pocketbook his savings from the gas station. He counted the money slowly, over and over, his head aching dully.

By quarter of three on Wednesday, Mrs. Nellie Anderson had seen enough view from the Ramona hotel to last her, she felt, for some time. She had been waiting for Allie since two. Mrs. Anderson had been a slim, wistful sort of girl; she still thought of herself as of that type, and wore clothes that were lacy and tight, despite her 180 pounds.

There was the sound of gears crunching, and Nellie went to the door. A man with a plaid cap and a striped suit was parking a shiny new roadster; he seemed to be having trouble with the gears, and the door man reluctantly went out to help. Nellie watched him absently; it did not occur to her then that it was Allie. But it was Allie. Allie with five dollars equity in a striped suit; Allie in bright yellow-tan shoes from the Dollar-Down clothing store; Allie with a rented car from the U-Drive-er garage.

There was an awkward moment, and Allie wished that he had gotten a plain blue suit, and Nellie wished she had not gotten fat.

"Nellie," said Allie, "it's good to see you. It's sure good to see you."

"And you, Allie. You're just the same. And, my, you look prosperous! What are you doing, Allie?"

Allie coughed. "Automobile business, Nellie. What everybody else is doing these days. Automobile business."

"Allie, you know Frank died?"

"No," said Allie. "No. Yes, I did hear—seems like I did hear. How long ago, Nellie?"

"Five years ago—in Boston. I went back to Iowa, you know." Nellie picked nervously at a bead bag she held in her lap. They were sitting in the foyer of the hotel. Allie felt uncomfortable in the deep cushions of the big davenport, and kept pushing himself up. He coughed again, and spoke slowly.

"You've had everything, I guess, Nellie. I guess you—your husband was very successful."

"Oh, yes," answered Nellie, and Allie did not see that she flushed. "Oh, yes, we traveled all over. You know, I always wanted to travel, Allie."

"Well, I ain't traveled much," said Allie. "But I can't complain. I got the girls. But I ain't traveled much, just came out here. Seems like you can't travel much and be successful in business. That is," he corrected himself hastily, "not most businesses."

When Allie left, Nellie waved the bead bag from the hotel doorway. No, she wouldn't see him again. She had murmured something about visiting Frank's people, and it had been nice to see him.

An hour later, Allie had returned the rented car, changed into his old clothes at home, and put the new ones away in the suitcase under the bed. He started supper, and then sat down and counted his money. He had less than a dollar left, and there was very little food in the house. Figuring the payments to the Dollar-Down Clothing store didn't help. Five dollars a week—and weeks stretching ahead into eternity. But he'd manage somehow.

It was over, anyway. Nellie had come and gone and she did not know. She thought he had been successful. She thought his life had been rich and interesting like hers. Nothing mattered, really, as long as she thought that.

The doorbell rang, and he turned the gas down on the rice cooking for supper, and went to the door. A stout woman stood there, a woman in a big lace hat.

"Nellie, it's not you!" Allie felt conscious of the shabbiness of the little house and of his old clothes. "Nellie, won't you come in?"

He could see that she had been crying. "Oh, Allie," she blurted out. "I lied this afternoon. We weren't rich. Frank wasn't good to me. We had a hard time. Oh, Allie, you don't know what a hard time I've had." Allie stared at her incredulously.

"I wasn't staying at that hotel, Allie. I haven't any money for any hotel. I came out here—Oh, Allie, please take me in. I haven't anybody—"

And Allie suddenly understood. He patted the fat lace shoulder.

"Why, Nellie," he said, and there was a strange new confidence in his voice. "Why, Nellie, you take off your hat and stay right here. It will be all right." He led her into the girls' room, and went into the kitchen to see about supper.

"After all," he said to himself, stirring the scorched rice vigorously, "that new suit now. I'll need a new suit to get married in."

Sport-Minded Dog Rates as Leading College Fan

All-America, as well as All-Waynesburg, Pa., football honors have been claimed for Skippy, the only dog believed to have come up for such an accolade, writes a correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. Skippy, according to students at Waynesburg college, attended every football game played in the city, fair weather or foul in the last ten years. They say he is of the same warp—and woof—as any other football fibert in that he obeys all the rules for spectators.

Fans cannot recall a grid game in the past decade that Skippy has not watched from start to finish. No one takes him to the games, they say, but he always appears. He races up and down the sidelines, but never crosses the sideline stripes. When the ball actually is in play he doesn't move.

Waynesburg football fans also like to say that when no game is on tap Skippy shows up at the drug-store corner where the curb-stone quarterbacks go into action. Sometimes he goes inside, they say, where the "gang" is listening to broadcasts of an out-of-town game.

Once in a while, Skippy strolls down to the baseball diamond, but when he does, his nose is in the air and he rarely stays for the full nine innings. He will have no part of track, and tennis is equally ignored.

Pedigree papers show that Skippy is descended from a long line of German shepherds (police dogs). He originally was owned by a high school football star, later was given to a successor and now every football fan in Waynesburg claims an equity in him.

DEBORAH: EMERGENCY LEADERSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Judges 4:1-9, 12-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?—Ezra 4:14.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Deborah Sang.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why Deborah Sang.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ready for Emergencies.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Emergency Leadership.

"Every man did that which was right in his own eyes." Such is the divine summary of what was wrong in Israel during the period of the judges (Judges 21:25). "There was no king in Israel," no competent and inspiring leadership. The people lived according to the whims of the day, and, as always, humanity left to itself drifted to lower and lower levels. This was true morally and spiritually and ultimately politically, for they came repeatedly into bondage to other nations and were only delivered as God raised up judges to lead them to repentance and victory, as well as to rule over them.

I. A People in Disorder (vv. 1-3).
Any people that forgets God and begins to live after the dictates of the flesh will at length come to the place where some strong man with "chariots of iron" will rule over them. We, in America, look at the other nations of the world, viewing their plight with sympathy but ever assuring ourselves that "it can't happen here." We ought to arouse ourselves and face the facts lest our own land, happy in its possession of God's great blessings of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," abuse those privileges, neglect the worship of God, spurn the leadership He gives us, and become "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof" (II Tim. 3:4, 5). If we do not awake and repent the Lord may have to "sell" us, as He did Israel, into the hands of the oppressor.

II. A Leader Called of God (vv. 4-9).

God always has His man ready for the hour of need—only in this case His man was a woman. Glorious indeed is the record of faithful and capable womanhood in annals of God's work on earth. Deborah was a woman of unique gifts—a poetess, a prophetess, and withal "the wife of Lapidath," evidently a woman who cared well for her own household.

Brains and natural ability are much needed, especially in a time such as ours when few there are who even care to think for themselves and few who have any desire to develop native ability except for the purpose of "making money." But true leadership calls for more than talent and intelligence; it calls for a burning in the soul, a divine zeal, the urge of God in the heart.

Deborah had this fiery touch upon her life. Barak, while undoubtedly a man of ability, evidently did not have it. Many excuses have been offered for the weakness indicated in verse eight. It has been said that he was cautious, or that he wanted to give the place of honor to Deborah as the leader of her people. These suggestions may be true, but somehow one has the feeling that what he really lacked was the "flaming heart." May God give it to us, that in our much doing of His work the divine fire may warm and inspire us!

III. A Divine Victory (vv. 12-14).

God gave Deborah and Barak a great victory, but note that it was God and not man who brought about the defeat of Jabin (Judges 4:15, 23). It was a complete victory and the enemies of Israel troubled them no more for many a day.

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith aptly points out that we should look "upon these conflicts in the book of Judges as certainly symbols of the great conflict that every Christian knows as he wrestles, not with flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the world-rulers of darkness and spiritual wickedness in heavenly places. Victory is certain only when the Lord is with us and only when we walk in His will and contend against evil in His power. We are more than conquerors, but only through the Lord Jesus Christ" (Peloubet's Select Notes).

In closing this lesson the writer of these notes wishes to recognize the blessing of God in enabling him to complete two years of this service to Him and to His people. He also wishes to thank those readers in every state of the Union and in a number of foreign countries who have written to him words of appreciation, encouragement and counsel.

Value of Meditation

It is not he that reads most, but he that meditates most on Divine truth, that will prove the choicest, wisest, strongest Christian.—Bishop Hall.

Attaining Perfection

The warm loves and fears, that swept over us as clouds, must lose their finite character and blend with God, to attain their own perfection.—Emerson.

RE-ELECT SENATOR TYDINGS ON HIS RECORD

HIS REPUTATION

Senator Tydings has relied upon one rule by which to measure his vote on vital national legislation:

"Is this legislation for the permanent betterment of the people of our country?"

As a result, he has upheld the tradition of Maryland statesmanship, written his name permanently in the history of the nation, won the outspoken respect and admiration of his colleagues in the United States Senate, and attracted unstinted praise from prominent newspaper columnists and commentators, who are not given to placing credit where it is not rightly deserved and richly earned.

Senator Tydings consistently has taken the position that the interests of neither the country, the people, nor the party will be served best by viewing legislation solely through the narrow portal of partisanship. He takes his guide from Andrew Jackson's philosophy: "He serves his party best who serves his country best."

He has come to be recognized as an able, earnest and conscientious leader. This is shown by the fact that within the past several weeks he was singled out by Frederick William Wyle, nationally known news commentator and political analyst, as a dominating figure of national proportions. Wyle, who had studied Senator Tydings' ability and record for a num-

SENATOR MILLARD E. TYDINGS

HIS CAREER

A wage earner at 14—a student in the University of Maryland, then the Maryland Agricultural College, at 16—a lawyer before the Maryland Bar at 23—a buck private on the Mexican border at 26—a Lieutenant Colonel of the 29th Division of the American Expeditionary Forces in France at 28—Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates at 30—State Senator at 31—Congressman at 32—and United States Senator at 36!

This, briefly, is the record of public service of Millard E. Tydings, Maryland's Senior Senator, now seeking reelection for the second time.

Today, still in his 40's, Senator Tydings has the enthusiasm of youth. He is sympathetic, easily approached, unassuming and, to a marked degree, an independent thinker. He is unwavering in acting upon his own decision. No faction controls him. None can influence him against his own convictions. High as he has mounted, the peak of his career lies ahead of him. His sense of public service is as fresh today as when he shouldered a musket on the Mexican border. His ability to render it has increased with the years.

ber of years, listed him in his column as one of the 16 Democrats in the United States who is likely to be nominated by his party for the office of President of the United States in 1940.

How to Clean Powder Puff

Watch your powder puff. You may not notice its lack of daintiness but other people will. Every day isn't a bit too often to change to a fresh powder puff. When you have collected a week's supply, dip them in a thick lather of soapsuds and scrub them with a hand brush. Rinse thoroughly, roll in a towel for a moment and let them dry overnight. Rub between the fingers to bring up the nap and you have practically a brand-new batch on hand.

How to Wash Ivory

If the ivory articles for your bureau have yellowed a bit, wash them with white soap and water and place while wet in the sunshine. Keep wetting with soapy water several times during the day and letting dry in the sun. Continue this process for several days. Then rinse and the ivory will be as white as when new.

How to Mend Torn Book Back

The torn back of a book may be mended with adhesive tape and then painted or tinted the same shade as the binding. Do it as soon as discovered so it will not tear further.

How to Rescue Drowning Man

A drowning person gets a death hold on the nearest object, tries to climb over it out of the water. Hence best rescue plan is to throw something, a piece of wood or clothing, by which the person can be towed. Only as a last resort should you get within arm's distance. Approach the person from the back, if possible. If you can't break his hold, take a deep breath and submerge. That may make him let go.

How to Test Feather Pillows

Pillows do not live forever. The best of them should not be expected to live more than five or ten years. Feathers dry out, lose their natural oil and become flat and lifeless. To test a pillow, rest it over your arm. If it droops it is time to replace it with a new pillow.

How to Reopen Envelope

If you have forgotten to inclose some article in your letter, you can reopen the envelope by laying a wet cloth over the flap and pressing with a warm iron.

How to Drive Nail in Plaster
To drive a nail into plaster without cracking the plaster, heat the nail.

How to Make Rice Flour Whitewash

A formula for whitewash made with rice flour follows: Lime, clean and well burnt, 6 quarts; Spanish whiting, or powdered burnt alum, 4 ounces; white sugar, 16 ounces; rice flour, 3 pints; glue, of good quality, 16 ounces; water, boiling, 5 gallons. Shake lime in vessel about 10 gallon capacity, with hot water, keeping vessel covered to retain the steam, and pass through a sieve to clear of coarse particles. Make up the rice flour to a thick paste and boil well, and dissolve the glue in water over a water bath; then mix the liquids with the remainder of the water, and add the whiting or alum and the sugar. The mixture should be applied warm on outdoor surfaces, and cold indoors.

How to Make Porch Seat

An attractive seat for the kitchen or porch can be made from a discarded auto cushion. Make a low wooden bench, the size of which depends on the cushion at hand, and place the cushion on top. Use a strip of bright-colored cloth to cover the ends and front of the cushion, and another piece of the same material to form a "skirt" for the bench, letting the cloth extend almost to the floor.

How to Lure Fishworms Out of Holes With Light

When you wish to go fishing it is generally quite a task to dig up enough worms for bait. But if you just remember certain facts about such worms, you will not have to do any digging at all, according to a writer in the Washington Star.

Fishworms come out of the ground of their own accord at night, so that's the time to get your supply of bait without digging. But if you go out with just any old light to do your worm hunting, you are quite likely to return with an empty can. You must know more facts about these worms.

The color of your light makes the difference between capturing plenty of worms and none.

Fishworms have no eyes, yet if a white light is turned upon them as they come out of their holes at night, they will quickly retreat into them. A blue light has the same effect. But a red light brings an altogether different result. They pay no attention to it, and you can proceed to fill your can.

So, before going out on your night worm hunt, put red paper over the globe of your flashlight, and you can get your supply for the morrow's fishing without digging.

Why Stockings Have "Runs"

The bane of woman's existence seems to be "runs" that occur in stockings. If a single thread is caught and broken the damage is not confined to that spot but extends upward and downward the full length of the stocking, unless some kind of an adhesive is quickly applied to both ends of the run, but as a rule the damage is done too quickly to permit the application of any remedial measures. The reason for the run is apparent if one studies the fabric under the microscope. A photograph of what is seen under the magnifying glass is a good substitute.

Why Silk Dress Has Electricity

Silk, when dry, is an excellent insulator of electricity. The rubbing of a dress against other garments produces electric charges by friction which cannot leak off and produces the effects noted. Silk is much more likely to show these effects than rayon, linen or cotton. Such effects are noted in summer because the normal humid air makes even silk a partial conductor of electricity. The air of a heated house is very dry in winter.

TANEYTOWN TEAM WITHDRAWS FROM BALTO-CARRO. LEAGUE.

Representatives from the Taneytown Baseball team withdrew the team from the Balto-Carroll League at a meeting at Reese, on Monday night, as it will not hereafter play games on the Big Pipe Creek field. As the team decided early in the season that Saturday games on the Sauble field were not profitable; and as that field was not available for Sunday games, the decision was reached to play only Sunday games, and at the Big Pipe Creek field. The sports writers, however, always said "at Taneytown," whereas, the B. P. C. field is two miles from the town. The record of games so far played appears at the head of this article. The four remaining teams will likely finish out the season.

THOMAS M. HARRINGTON AND AMOS A. HOLTER, SOLICITORS ASSIGNEES SALE OF VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a mortgage from Preston J. Smith and Edith B. Smith, his wife, dated December 20, 1933, and recorded among the Land Records of Frederick County, Maryland, in Liber No. 389, Folio 577, and among the Land Records of Carroll County, Maryland, in Liber E. M. No. 90, Folio 409, which said mortgage was duly assigned to the undersigned Assignee for the purpose of foreclosure and collection, default having occurred therein, the said undersigned Assignee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder in front of the Court House in Frederick, Frederick County, Maryland, on WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1938, at 10:30 o'clock, A. M., all that farm containing 163 ACRES and 35 poles, more or less, in Emmitsburg Election District, Frederick County, Maryland, and Taneytown Election District, Carroll County, Maryland, located near the Emmitsburg-Taneytown Highway at Bridgeport, Maryland.

Being all and the same land which was acquired by the said Preston J. Smith, et al., by deed from John W. Ohler and wife dated September 2, 1924, and recorded among the Land Records of Frederick County, Maryland, in Liber No. 350, Folio 156, and among the Land Records of Carroll County in Liber No. 159, Folio 306, being also the same property covered by the mortgage first herein mentioned.

To which said deed and mortgage and the references therein contained reference is hereby made for a more particular description of this land.

This farm is suitable for cultivation with crops raised in this county and locality, and is particularly adapted for dairying. There are 110 acres suitable for cultivation, 20 acres in pasture land and the balance in wood-land. The property is improved by a large 17-room 2-story brick dwelling, large bank brick and frame barn, silo, hay barrick, machinery shed, garage and numerous other outbuildings.

The property will be sold subject to the legal operation and effect of a prior mortgage, the terms of which and the balance due thereon will be announced at the time and place of sale.

TERMS OF SALE—$500.00 cash will be required at the time and place of sale, balance upon final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Frederick County. Taxes and other charges will be adjusted to June 30, 1938. Costs of conveying, including U. S. Internal Revenue Stamps and State of Maryland Relief Stamps shall be borne by the purchaser.

2 out of 3
are dependent on others at 65

Two-thirds of the aged depend upon Government aid, private charity or relatives and friends for all or part of their support. This finding was made by the Federal Social Security Board in a study of 7,816,000 persons of 65 years or over.

On the other hand, well over a million aged men and women are independent, through their own thrift and foresight. Another million still work, and the balance receive pensions and annuities.

To which group will you belong at the age of 65? Now is the time to start providing for your later years with regular deposits in your bank account.

Social Security
CAN NEVER REPLACE
Individual Thrift

You may in your later years be eligible for a Social Security pension. But that does not relieve you of your personal responsibility to do everything you can now to provide for your own future comfort and independence.

No mass legislation, however sound and beneficent, can fully meet your later financial needs. Thrift, therefore, is still as necessary as it always has been. The first one to whom you should properly look for a sustaining income, is yourself.
