Taneytown is noted for its "suppers" as held by various churches and organizations of the food served, but for excellence of the food served, but for large attendance—far and near. This is as it should be. It speaks volumes for a fine community spirit, and the absence of local ill-feeling.

Sample boxes of Christmas cards, 20 to box, all different—may now be seen at The Record Office and orders placed for later delivery. No cards sold except with name of sender printed on. Price per box $1.20. Very handsome cards, with envelopes ready for mailing. Only 20 boxes on hand. Reserve yours, now.

Those entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Welty, Wednesday were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Valentine and daughter, Miss Virgie and Mrs. James E. Mort, of near Emmitsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Martha Stitley, of Keymar. Four of the above named are over eighty years of age.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Arranges for Christmas Decorations and Banquet.

The Taneytown Chamber of Commerce met in regular session on Monday night in the Firemen's Building, Pres. Merwyn C. Fuss, presided. There were 24 members present. In the absence of the secretary who has been transferred to Baltimore, Vice-President, Harry M. Mohnhey was appointed temporary secretary for the evening. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Treas., Charles R. Arnold read the report of the Chamber's finances, which was accepted.

The President presented Mr. W. E. Ritter, one of the new members, who gave a short talk. Mr. Norman Hess gave a short talk in regards to the meeting held in Westminster in the interest of the proposed Medical Center for Carroll County. The Secretary was directed to write a letter to Rev. Paul Emenheiser, our secretary, who has been moved to a church in Baltimore, thanking him for the fine service rendered, expressing our appreciation and wishing him success in his new pastoral field.

Nomination of officers for the ensuing year were next in order. The result being as follows: For President Merwyn C. Fuss, Curtis G. Bowers; First Vice-Pres., Harry M. Mohnhey, John O. Crapster, Second Vice-Pres., David Smith, James C. Myers; Secretary, Bernard J. Arnold, Norman R. Baumgardner; Treasurer, Charles R. Arnold, Marlin E. Reid.

Curtis G. Bowers was appointed to fill the vacancy on the committee appointed at the previous meeting to draw up a schedule of hours for the closing of the stores. Rev. Guy P. Bready reported that as chairman of the committee that no meeting had yet been held.

It was decided to hold the annual banquet at Sauble's Inn, on Monday night, November 28th, at 6:30. Each member whose dues are paid will be presented with two tickets to this banquet, there will however be no extra tickets available. The matter of arranging for the program for the banquet and other incidental details was left in the hands of the executive committee.

The matter of the Christmas decorations was next considered, and it was decided that an earnest effort would be made to solicit for funds that would make possible a much more elaborate street lighting program this year. A committee consisting of Frank Mahoney, Norville P. Shoemaker, D. J. Hesson was appointed by the President to wait upon the Mayor and City Council at their next meeting to elicit their support for this project. It was decided that the business men would be solicited for funds to provide the prizes for the Xmas party and lighting of the streets; that the citizens of the town be contacted for funds to provide for the children's treat.

It was decided that a special meeting of the Chamber would be held on Nov. 21, at 7:30 at which time the regular monthly business would be transacted due to the fact that the banquet will be held on the regular meeting night. The election of officers will be held at this time and reports will be received from the committees appointed to take care of the banquet and Christmas celebrations.

The following committee were appointed by the executive committee to arrange for the Christmas festivities. Program—M. C. Fuss, Chairman, Dr. T. A. Martin, Rev. L. B. Hafer, Marlin E. Reid, W. W. Reindollar, Charles R. Arnold.

Treat—W. A. Bower, Chairman, C. G. Bowers, J. M. Cain, C. E. Dorn.

Decorations—Frank Mahoney, Norville P. Shoemaker, M. S. Ohler, Frank T. Powne.

Advertising—Rev. Guy P. Bready, chairman, John O. Crapster, Clarence Ohler, Carl B. Haines.

Merchants Finance—David Smith, Earl R. Bowers, M. C. Fuss, Delmar Riffe.

Children's Treat—C. L. Hesson, N. R. Baumgardner, Soldiers Monument to East Baltimore St.; James C. Myers, William Hopkins, Monument to the Square; Harry M. Mohnhey, Alton Boston, Middle St. and Mill Ave.; Thomas H. Tracey, Raymond Davidson, George St. and Fairview Ave.; Bernard J. Arnold, Murray Baumgardner, York and Frederick Sts.; James Burke, Roland Fleagle, Square to Sauble's Inn.

WILL VOTE ON LOCAL OPTION.

The Board of Election Supervisors has decided that as more than 15 percent of the voters of the county have signed a petition asking for a referendum vote on the sale of beer and light wines, according to law such a vote will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 8, "for" or "against."

PLAY TO BE PRESENTED BY DRAMATIC CLUB.

The Taneytown Dramatic Club will present a three-act comedy entitled "Introducer Susan" in the L. O. O. F. Hall in Taneytown, on Wednesday and Saturday evenings, November 9, and 12, for the benefit of the Carroll County Children's Aid Society.

They have been practicing for the past several weeks and are quite pleased with their progress made thus far. The play promises to be one of the funniest ever presented in Taneytown.

Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from any Club member or from the local Children's Aid Chairman. Watch next week's paper for the announcement of the cast.

ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF LEGALIZED LOTTERIES?

If you are not, then Vote Against Amending Section 36

Section 36 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland, prohibits lotteries, and their approval by state legislation. But it is now proposed that the Constitution be amended by striking out this Section, and a referendum vote on the subject will be taken at the coming election.

Should the vote be in favor of striking out the present barrier, this would at once be followed by the introduction of Lottery bills in the coming legislature, and in all probability, a state lottery law.

The only option that voters have now is to vote "for" or "against" a lottery law. They are given no opportunity to say what the scope of such a law should be; whether confined to a "state" operated lottery, or whether laws would follow that result in numerous ones, or how far-reaching they would be.

The proposal, in our opinion, should be voted "against." Unrestricted legalized gambling might follow. Why "take a chance"? We have too much of that now, under present laws.

Both candidates for Governor—O'Connor and Nice—are opposed to the repeal of the lottery laws of the state, and therefore agree on one important question. With such good leadership, the voters should know what to do about it, and vote "No."

As we understand the situation, no matter which candidate is elected, in case repeal should carry, a veto of a Lottery law would be assured.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF VOTERS.

In next week's issue The Carroll Record will give a condensed statement of the substance of several Referendum votes to be taken on important questions. It has been pretty wide practice to skip amendments and questions of like importance, but this should not be done.

The ballot will be very large and cumbersome to handle in the small booths, but the effort should be made to vote for all candidates as well as on all amendments. We will also publish a complete official list of names of all candidates.

A FRIENDLY CAMPAIGN THIS YEAR.

The campaign of candidates for the county offices, this year, has certainly been an unusual one for the display of non-partisan evidence. They appear to have advertised without bias or special preferment, in both Democratic, Republican and non-partisan county papers. Even many of the campaign cards, do not state the party of the candidates.

Their appeal has been made to "the voters" of the county in a good fellow manner, and ill-feeling—in so far as we have been able to judge of it—has been, what we sometimes say, "conspicuously absent."

We believe too, that voters are less partisan than in the older days, which will mean the marking of many "cut tickets" that will give the election officials plenty of work when totaling returns. Naturally, this is a condition that discourages betting on the winners.

And so, we think it would be best to have a big vote cast. This good-fellowship should not lead to apathy. Elections cost a lot of money—and we should all take a hand at getting out the vote, and getting as much as we can for our money—the taxpayers pay the bills.

ANOTHER BENTLEY CLOCK

Located Away Down South in Fort Worth, Texas.

The following letter, received this Friday morning, will be of interest to many, especially, fortunate Bentley clock owners. Truly, this is a case in which Mt. Bentley's "good works lived after him."

P. B. Englar, Editor: "Several months ago, my sister, who lives in Carlisle, Pa., sent me a clipping from a Baltimore paper which told of the interesting history of Taneytown.

Of especial interest to me was the account of the clockmaker, Eli Bentley, who made clocks in Taneytown around the year 1800.

I am the proud owner of a very beautiful grandfather's clock, of finely carved walnut, which bears this inscription on the face—"Eli Bentley, Taneytown."

The clock was brought to Texas by a Gettysburg family. It was in a home there, when that town was occupied by Southern troops.

It has several interesting stories told of it, most of which I imagine, are true. They are not, however, exciting enough to satisfy my eight year old son, whom I overheard boasting to his playmates that a soldier, a spy, had once hidden in the clock, a spy, had once hidden in the panes.

At any rate, I thought you might be interested in knowing that still another of these timepieces has been located, giving good service and giving that quiet comfort that only these old clocks possess. Sincerely,

MRS. JO. BEAUDRY, 1429 W. Humbolt St., Fort Worth, Texas.

ART EXHIBIT IN WESTMINSTER.

A National Art exhibit will be celebrated in Carroll County featuring the work of local artists. Such an exhibit was made last year and many of the same artists will exhibit, together with several who did not exhibit last year.

Clifford and LaVerne Zepp, of Taneytown, will exhibit several pictures. This exhibit will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 1, and 2, at the Charles Carroll Hotel, Westminster, between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock, P. M., and from 7 to 10:00 o'clock in the evening. On Wednesday evening a reception will be held in honor of the contributors.

The public is cordially invited to attend the exhibit as well as the reception. The plans are in charge of Mrs. John DeLashmutt, Woodbine, and Miss Adeline Hoffman, Westminster, as co-chairman, and those who will serve as hostesses are Mrs. Fred Holloway, Mrs. Reba Coane, Mrs. Charles Fisher, Mrs. William Lawson, Mrs. John Marshall, Mrs. Byrd Norris and Mrs. Anna Stem.

TWO INSURANCE MEASURES OF SOCIAL SECURITY.

Every employer in commerce and industry who has one or more employees under age of 65 is affected by old-age insurance measures of the Social Security Act; and his insured workers are protected under old-age insurance provisions.

Commercial or industrial employers in the State of Maryland are subject to the State unemployment compensation tax, and their employees are included under its benefit provisions. Employees do not pay tax under the unemployment insurance law in this State.

Unemployment compensation (or insurance) is one thing, and old-age insurance is something else—an entirely different provision of the Social Security Act. You might have a burial insurance policy, and you might also carry fire insurance. If your furniture should burn you would not pay on account of your fire insurance policy. Only workers who are employed by a firm subject to the State unemployment insurance law are entitled to job insurance.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING IN HAMPSTEAD.

The first in the group of buildings planned to be erected by the congregation of St. Mark's Lutheran Church is near completion and it is expected will be ready for use in about 30 days.

This new building will be the Sunday School department and has been erected in the rear of the new church site on the congregation's property North Main St.

Artisans are now at work trimming the interior and the installation of equipment will be made within a very short time.

Future plans of the congregation is to erect a new church edifice. It is estimated the cost of the Sunday School building will be about $9,000.00.—Hampstead Enterprise.

HELP THE BOY SCOUTS!

There seems to be difficulty in providing a place of meeting for the Taneytown Boy Scouts, as this is a very meritorious organization for boys, as well as beneficial to the community, it should not be left die out for want of a place in which to meet.

We understand that this does not require either a very large or fine building, nor even location with a street front; and that a building devoted for the purpose would be placed in proper repair by the Scout directors. Taneytown should take active interest in this need.

AMERICA TALKING PLAINLY TO EUROPE.

Says Interference with Americans Must Cease.

Washington authorities are now reported to be talking plainly, especially to Japan in China. First, notice has been given that "the Americans"—North and South—must not be interfered with in any unfriendly manner, evidently reaffirming the Monroe doctrine. And second that Japan "must" stop interfering with Americans, or their rightful interests, in China.

Suppose there are these "interferences"—and there is said to be a long list of them—and they are continued. Then what?

The word "must" in this connection may cause war, as at least three European nations feel more like saying "must," than hear it directed toward them.

Lord Chamberlain may not have done a good job, after all, in arranging what he thought was to be world peace.

At any rate, we think it would be very, very wise for American rulers and diplomats not to use many superlatives for a while yet, for sometimes they mean fight, or run—and we do not want to do either.

REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIER'S GRAVE MARKED.

On Oct. 20, 1938 at Elias Lutheran Church cemetery, in Emmitsburg, a marker was placed on the grave of Christian Close—by his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Wm. G. Buckley, Baltimore, through the Carter Braxton Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution—Mrs. Edward F. Davis Regent, presiding.

Mrs. Wilbur B. Blakeslee, Maryland State Regent, was present and accepted the marker on behalf of the Maryland State Society D. A. R. It was unveiled by Joan Close Venable, aged 4 years of Washington, D. C., a G. G. G. Granddaughter.

Christian Close was born 1758 in Pennsylvania, the first child of his emigrant father, Christian Close, Sr., of Reading Township, York Co., Pa. In 1776 we find Christian Close in Baltimore Town where he volunteered in training of that year—joining the 8th Co. of the 1st. Battalion of Md. Forces.

July 12th, 1776 he was enrolled in the Flying Camp under Capt. Jacob Good and was reviewed and passed by Baker Johnson. June 1st, 1778 he was enrolled at Valley Forge and February 1779 found him enrolled as "on Command."

He was discharged Aug. 16, 1780 after which his residence was in Baltimore where he was a flour merchant on Howard St. He moved to Frederick Co., in 1804, and died near Emmitsburg in 1825.

In 1786 he married Catharine Grund, in Baltimore, and on whose grave, a marker was also placed—she being a daughter, and wife of a Revolutionary soldier.

The above information was supplied by Ethel Close Buckley, (Mrs Wm. G.) 1815 Park Ave., Baltimore.

AAA ADVISORY BOARD MEETING.

The Advisory Board of the Westminster Branch of the Automobile Club of Maryland and the AAA held the first Fall meeting, after the summer recess, on Monday, at 7:00 P. M. in the Charles Carroll Hotel. Thomas W. Melville, president, presided. Other members present were: D. Eugene Walsh, Atlee W. Wampler, Jr., Raymond K. Wright, A. L. Loy, and F. Kale Mathias. Leonard E. Kolmer, General Manager of the Automobile Club was present, as was Percy M. Burke, Branch Manager.

Mr. Kolmer's report showed that the demands for School Boy Safety Patrol material has been greater during the past year than any two previous years in the history of the Club. Mr. Kolmer stated that eight teachers from schools in the territory covered by the Automobile Club of Maryland have taken the Safe Driver's Training Course at the University of Maryland Summer School the past season. It is hoped that this course will eventually become a part of each high school student's training, as officials of the Club believe this would go a long way in the promotion of safer driving among the younger set.

A general discussions was held in reference to a proposed north-south Dual Highway. By-passing Baltimore and Washington which would serve as a "feeder" from practically all of the main highways of the state. Nothing definite is available however at present, pending further reports of the State Highway Planning Survey Committee. Mr. Burke reported that the Westminster Branch continues to show steady growth.

KIWANIS HONORS FOR REV. M. S. REIFSNYDER.

Rev. M. S. Reifsnyder, pastor of Baust Reformed Church, and a member of the Westminster Kiwanis Club, was elected Governor of the Capital District of Kiwanis International, last Saturday morning at the annual convention of the Capital District, in Roanoke, Va. This represents an advancement from lieutenant governor of the Sixth District, in which position he served during the past year.

Business is said to be "picking up" but is it yours, or the other fellows? And do you pick up only that which belongs to you?

CHILDREN'S AID WORK

An Urgent Appeal to Meet the Society's Needs.

District leaders and workers in the Annual Financial Campaign of the Carroll County Children's Aid Society are reporting progress in their respective districts. The campaign leaders are happy to report that the public is responding to the appeals of the solicitors and that many better contributors have sent their contributions by mail before the solicitors have had a chance to approach them. It is gratifying and encouraging to the workers to receive this co-operation. However, it is impossible for the solicitors to see everyone and it is hoped by the workers that such prospective contributors will kindly mail their contributions to the Children's Aid Society headquarters, Westminster.

A few features have been inaugurated this year. With the approval of the employers in the factories of our county, contribution envelopes are being placed in the factories so that factory employees might be given an opportunity to contribute to the campaign. It is hoped that this means will reach many who otherwise would be missed by the solicitors.

The Children's Aid is campaigning for $3000 to aid in the care of neglected and dependent children. A neglected child is one who has a responsible parent or guardian who fails to meet his responsibility to provide a proper home, clothing, food, care or education; or who treats his child with cruelty. Dependent children are dependent as a result of various situations. Some are orphaned and homeless thus making them dependent upon the public for support. Some have no responsible guardian to care for them. Other dependent children are very often delinquent and defective. If we do not feel our responsibility toward such children while they are young, the expense upon the state will be far greater when they become men and women. The Carroll County Children's Aid Society is doing its best to care for these children. Give now to this worthy cause!

EXCITED OVER CATCHING A BIG FISH.

The Brunswick Blade-Times, this week, contains the following fish story, and of the chilling effect it had on the fisherman.

"G. Maurice Kaetzel, assistant cashier of the People's National Bank, in company with three friends, George P. Swank, Kermit Shewbridge and Leo Strippy went afishin' the other day, which was nothing unusual for the group, but the events which followed their cruise on the Potomac proved rather exciting, especially for Maurice.

While enroute to the fishin' hole, the group agreed that the member of the party catching the largest bass was to receive $1.00 as a prize.

After the party had been plying their lines for awhile, Maurice succeeded in hooking a nice fellow, which he landed with considerable difficulty, it was said, the specimen tipping the beam at two pounds, three ounces. It being the largest bass on the string, Maurice won the $1.00. It was also about the largest bass Maurice ever landed.

In landing the specimen, according to his fellow fisherman, Maurice became so excited that he began trembling as though he was suffering from chill, his knees shaking so vigorously that he rocked the boat."

At any rate—win or lose—a good many candidates for county office, will after the election, have acquired a better knowledge than they have had, of the many excellent features of Carroll County, and of the fine treatment accorded them by the residents thereof.

He is wise beyond measurement, who accords to others the right to hold opinions that differ from his own. Truly, there are "many men of many minds."

Random Thoughts

READ FOR MORE LEARNING.

There are more good newspapers and magazines to be had now, than at any previous time in history, but there seems to be less of careful reading. The product of the best minds is being actually wasted because we think we are "too busy" to read. Or, the reading we do is for pastime rather than for more knowledge; and this is the truth at a time when wider knowledge is one of the essentials if we would keep up with the times. Truly, our schooling should be kept up long after our school days have ended.

We say that a certain person is well informed but we take but little thought of how he or she became so, and keep on getting our information second or third handed by "word of mouth," and perhaps get wrong information then.

And when we do read we do so very largely for pastime, or about our own private business, forgetting that "our business" is to know about what others are doing, too.

We can live and learn—sometimes by hard knocks—but more frequently we can learn more, and work less hard, if we know how the big world is coming along, and our little world along with it. Ignorance is a matter of our own choice. P. B. E.

SHALL WE LEGALIZE LOTTERIES

An article came to our office last week, headed as above, asking for both publicity, and an opinion. The article is too lengthy for our use, but the question is not. It is a question that will come before the voters of Maryland on November 8 in the form of a "Referendum" vote.

Before answering it all voters should ask themselves this question—"Because something is legal, is it necessarily also right?"

A good many argue the question this way. We are all "chance takers" in one way or another. Crops are planted, investments are made in property, loans are made, we buy stocks and bonds, depend on mental or physical strength, and in many ways, "take chances."

But this sort of chance taking is not the sort of gambling that lotteries represent. As we are not omniscient, we must take certain more or less legitimate and carefully thought over, chances. There is nothing else for us to do, if we would be industrious and exercise our minds.

Such chance-taking should be, and is, as limited as possible. Our various forms of education and experimenting are directed toward eliminating chance. Medicine and surgery and the development of the sciences, have all followed along in this line.

We are fighting against gambling and uncertain futures. We do not toss up a penny to decide difficult questions. In almost every way, we are against the gamble, because this is right, as well as good business.

Maryland has laws legalizing and regulating horse-racing. Has been in partnership with it. These laws were passed on the assumption that "the end justifies the means." The state secures thousands of dollars a year from the four or five tracks in the State. If it was not for this state revenue, there would be no race track gambling.

The argument for "legalized lotteries" is of the same piece of cloth, embellished with the argument that the majority should have what it wants—right or wrong.

As our laws do not compel us to gamble, but do compel us to pay taxes, there is no doubt some favorable sentiment for legalizing lotteries, because of the thought that they might help to reduce our tax bills. Notice our use of the word "might" instead of the word "would."

The voting public will have the chance to express their inside sentiments at the polls, on this question. But, men and women should do more than vote—they should first decide whether they consider lotteries and gambling right, under higher laws than those of the State.

PREPARE FOR VOTING.

On Tuesday, November 8th., the voters of our country will have a serious duty to perform—that of voting intelligently, and right, as we conscientiously understand issues and men. The mere act of voting does not necessarily represent good citizenship, nor intelligence and fairness.

Between now and this important day, all voters should try as carefully and fully as they can, to understand what, and for whom they are voting. And this, is not a simple matter.

Read, ask questions, examine the list of candidates, and seek wise and honest council.

Voting for a party name is not necessarily always the best thing to do. Personal benefit, even, is not always a true guide. Our constitutional right to vote always meant the recording of popular sentiment as represented by intelligence, fairness and honesty.

"By and for the people" has always meant this. When the constitution of the United States was approved, and when Washington and Lincoln accorded thoroughly on self-government, they always had in mind intelligence and honesty as representing "the people."

The voting masses have greatly changed, since then. This country is not now, as then, an "American" country. It is not now, as then representative of fairness to all. Since then we have added many "isms" not American, that stand for self-interests and rule by arbitrary classes.

Voting should be general on Tuesday, November 8, and it should be for the general good, and in this everybody should prepare for within the coming ten days.

SOME "ISMS" DISCUSSED.

The Congressional investigations being conducted by a committee headed by Congressman Dies, of Texas, reveal startling results and prove beyond doubt that unless the American minded citizens are alert and protect our American system of government, soon we shall fall into some alien ways of doing things.

Four "isms" are before us from which to take our choice; Socialism, Fascism, Communism and Capitalism. Which shall America choose?

Some one has aptly said "the joy of life is striving, not arriving." Our American system is that of Capitalism—a system which the alein-minded leeches and barnacles that come here from the Old World, try to make despicable instead of adorable.

Capitalism is merely the right to private property—its acquisition and use unhindered. In new and unhabited countries property has little or no value because it has small use, and cannot be changed for value; that is why pioneers in the West accumulated their millions of acres of property at a few cents per acre, later to become immensely valuable holdings.

Capitalism stands for private property, and personal incentive. Personal property is a means of production, and is a sacred trust. When acquired honestly the title becomes absolute, but the state remains with rights of taxation even to confiscation.

In primitive times each man made what he could and needed; in capitalistic times, men join forces—money, means, etc., and specialize in particular things. If everybody respected the right to property honestly acquired, then Capitalism would be the ideal state of society. Something is wrong when 10 million citizens are unable to find work to acquire means to sustain life. No questioning the fact that the "haves" have too much, and the "have-nots" too little. While human nature remains as now, the condition will always exist. It can only be cured and then in part only by honest leaders not found often among politicians. A Washington or a Lincoln would so lead.

SOCIALISM STANDS for collective, or government ownership, with more or less equal income for all—a sort of Huey Long "share the wealth" fiasco. Socialism is the ideal of the have-nots who are loud in demands for sharing with others, best illustrated by the story of two Socialists who visited a well attended public meeting where one of the two, being a brilliant leader, was the speaker and got $10 for delivering an address to the Comrades. At the meeting he spoke long and eloquently on the beauties of comradeship where each shared with the other what he could not immediately use for himself. On their way home the companion declared the speech was the finest he had ever heard, and the eloquent one "went off" again on his harangue.

When thru, the companion asked, when this sharing should start, and was advised, NOW." Then said the companion, "I have half dollar in my pocket, and you have the $10 you got for the lecture, so let's stop and share our wealth now. Not on your life," said the eloquent one, "I earned that and intend to keep it, and spend it and enjoy it."

We believe this case typical, and that all Socialists, when their own acquiring are at stake, are capitalists.

COMMUNISM believes in and teaches government ownership of private property. Communism places the control of property in the hands of the proletariat (the masses) in theory; but in practice the property as in Russia now, is under absolute control of the few higher up politicians—Stalin et. al.—hence the Masses become "them asses" when the system gets going strong.

Communism is merely militant socialism where all property is in the state and its proceeds under control of the high-ups. Communism has never worked in practice, and doubtless never will. The human element is too strong, and human nature is not yet sufficiently God-like to be assembled in masses without an element of selfishness.

FASCISM (and Nazism) is merely a sort of combination of Communism and capitalism rolled into one, with the state being the real concern—a totalitarian state as far as political rule is concerned, while keeping to the right of private property and profits.

In Socialism, Communism, Fascism (Nazism) liberty, freedom of action-free speech, free press, free pulpit are all denied. The people think as the leaders think, and the leaders think as it pleases them.

In the capitalistic state (democracy) men think and act as they please so long as they do not interfere with the rights of others. Under proper legal restrictions as to use of property, if leaders are honestly chosen and then act honestly, then democracy is by far the best system of government. Under democratic despotism democracies are no better than the others and can be worse.

The world goes thru cycles of reforms. The Anglo Saxon race had its first reform under King John when Magna Charta was decreed. The French and their Revolution, and America had her own revolution. Those in government authority under our present trend seem leading us on to another revolution. What its end will be only TIME can tell. He will do a good turn for America who can promulgate and pass the slogan—equal rights to all, special privileges to none.

One thing is certain—"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." We get the kind of government we deserve. As we vote, so are we governed. So, don't forget to vote.

Baltimore. W. J. H.,

HOW BIG IS A BULLY?

You can't judge a bully by his size. That is one realization that comes out of the current land-grabbing in Central Europe. Post-Munich map-making discloses as much eagerness among the smaller powers as among the larger to take advantage of a neighbor's weakness.

Poland's Foreign Minister has now talked with King Carol, Warsaw reports say, about parcelling out Ruthenia, easternmost portion of Czechoslovakia, between the Hungarians and the Rumanians (enter a new annexationist!) Poland meanwhile discovers new cause for complaint against Lithuania which now falls heir to Czechoslovakia's role of minority "oppressor." The German press joins the anti-Lithuanian attack. Under this propagandist barrage a drive which would net Memel for Poland and would probably result in Poland's giving back the famous "Polish Corridor" to Germany is reported.

The right to national self-determination no doubt will be invoked if necessary to camouflage the renewed ascendancy of a familiar post-World War instrument of conquest—join bullying of Powers by Powers, large or small.—Christian Science Monitor.

IS AN UPSWING COMING?

Washington, D. C., October—It has been so long since the automobile industry, or any industry, has issued a statement calling 35,000 men back to work, and announcing a readjustment of wages to compensate for previous cuts, that Washington had a hilarious attack of enthusiasm when General Motors announced its program.

Supplementary statements appeared almost immediately from high Government officials stating that a million men have been transferred from relief rolls and absorbed in private employments. There was a chorus of unrestrained approval from Senators, saying that there "is a significant trend toward better business conditions in the nation," and that "the country is going ahead on the road to recovery." Among similar interviews collected by the newsmen from heads of the Government, there was one from Chairman Jesse Jones of RFC that expressed the hope that there is a "definite upswing."

Throughout the country the daily newspapers made first page news of Alfred P. Sloan's statement, but the newspapers of the National Capital arose full-height to the opportunity as the Washington Herald confidently announced in a big, bold first-page headline that declared: "All Nations Sees Upswing."

Senator Lundeen, farmer-labor Senator from Minnesota, said: "I don't know of any industry that I would rather see show a pick-up in business than the auto industry." Washington remembers and talks about the time the automobile industry shifted into high-gear several years ago. It led the country out of the depression. That exactly is the reason why the National Capital entertains a buoyant hope right now that this same thing can happen again.

The Administration has repeatedly challenged business to restore prosperity. Now the hope rises in political circles in all parties and factions that the upswing is under way, and that private business has accepted the challenge.

Meanwhile business, which has been hammered by investigations and prosecutions is assured by one of the Senators of the monopoly investigating committee the he believes "industry believes that the Government is not going to bear down on business," and he added: "It is a very fine move."

As this correspondence leaves Washington the vast audience that reads this weekly editorial will no doubt get comfort out of indications that the tension between private business and the Government has improved. That should be "a very fine move," and a blessing to the country.—J. E. Jones in National News Service.

"Read 'Em and Reap" OUR ADS

Westminster, Md., October 21, 1938.
To the Voters of Carroll County:
Recently I announced my candidacy for the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll County. It will be my earnest effort to call on as many of the voters as I possibly can, consistent with the due discharge of the duties of my office.
Following the death of Mr. Mellor, I was appointed Clerk of the Circuit Court to fill the unexpired term. The manner in which I have conducted the office is well-known to most of the residents of the County, and, particularly, to those who have had business with the office, and it is needless for me to say more concerning my record, of which I am justly proud.
It is my intention, if elected, to continue to conduct the office impartially, efficiently and economically and in the interest of the people whose public servant I am.
I have never held an elective office and will be grateful for your support at the coming election.
Sincerely,
LEVI D. MAUS

NICE RECEIVES BIG RECEPTION THROUGH STATE

CLAIMS DROPPING OF PARTY LINES SHOWN

In his triumphant swing through the counties of Maryland in the interest of his re-election, Governor Harry W. Nice has met with the most enthusiastic receptions in the history of political campaigning in the "Free State."

On all sides he has been greeted with open arms by the citizens, Republicans and Democrats alike, and the receptions have literally turned into old-fashioned political love-feasts.

Never before has there appeared, so vividly, in a gubernatorial campaign such an unmistakable trend of dropping party lines. That this trend is sweeping through the state is undeniable and clearly points to the advantage of Governor Nice and his running mates in the election of November 8.

The Governor has talked personally to thousands of persons on the streets, roads and in homes. He has addressed overflowing mass-meetings and has intelligently discussed the problems of the state—those which he has solved, those which he is studying and those which must be faced during the next administration.

Victory Forecast

While touring the counties the Governor kept in constant touch with the progress of the campaign in Baltimore City. Reports to him confirmed the fact that conditions in the city are the same as in the counties—a strong trend of dropping party lines. City leaders expressed to him their conviction that the Nice banner would be carried to victory there despite the strong Democratic registration.

Because of the conditions he found in the counties and the reports from the City of Baltimore, Governor Nice has declared himself confident of re-election. He and his running mates are certain that the majority will be far in excess of the figures in 1934. All signs point to this result.

Throughout the counties Governor Nice has found a keen interest by the voters in the platform of the Republican Party, which has been praised by The Sun. He has been told by many, both Republicans and Democrats, that it is the best document of the kind put out by a political party in Maryland in many years.

Platform Interests

Especially were the voters interested in that part of the platform covering the major projects of the State Roads Commission, educational facilities, labor, forestry, agriculture and conservation. The platform reported to the people that the oyster business is in better condition now than it has been in twenty years. It pointed out that during the season preceding the appointment of the present Conservation Commission the total yield of oysters was 2,148,000 bushels, but that since then there has been a steady and healthy growth in production until the yield at the close of the season last spring was 3,245,816 bushels.

On Monday Governor Nice will complete his swing through the counties with a tour of Worcester county, starting at 9:30 o'clock in the morning from the Court House at Snow Hill. Friday of this week he is due in Somerset county and Saturday he will spend with the people of Wicomico county.

Women Organized

From November 1st to election day Governor Nice and his running mates will stay in Baltimore City, with occasional trips to nearby points in the county. The Baltimore campaign has been saved until the last eight days and plans for several huge demonstrations and mass-meetings are under way.

While the Governor has been touring, party leaders have been forming a real working organization to function through election day and to take an active interest at the polls in all sections of the state. Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown, prominent attorney, chairman of the Women's Division of the Nice campaign, has formed a group with a membership extending into the far corners of Maryland. Its objective is to interest the women in the election and to see to it that the work at the polls is carried through efficiently and to aid persons in reaching their respective voting destinations. In addressing the women, Miss Brown said:

"Women's rights and women's problems were disregarded and ignored in Maryland until Governor Nice assumed office."

Whales Are Turned Into Radio Stations

WASHINGTON.—Development of a device which makes floating radio stations out of whales was reported by the commerce department.

Because many whales are lost by whaling expeditions after they have been harpooned, due to fog conditions, the device, consisting of a miniature ultra-violet wave radio transmitter mounted at the upper end of a flag harpoon, is now being used to mark the position of a dead whale. A Norwegian wireless operator was credited with the idea.

For Associate Judge - Vote For Linwood L. Clark

CARROLL, HOWARD AND ANNE ARUNDEL Counties constitute the 5th. Judicial Circuit of Maryland. Judge Clark of Anne Arundel County is one of the three Judges. His term expires this year. Vote to keep him on the Bench.

IT IS REPEATEDLY REPORTED in the news columns, controlled by Judge Clark's opponent, that "Judge Clark has not the written endorsement of a single member of the Bar." What amazing ignorance. Judge Clark would be justly condemned if he personally attempted such a thing.

JUDGE CLARK has been tested as a public servant, both in Congress and on the Bench, and has made good. In character and ability he exemplifies what the people want in the person of a Judge. Because of his character and ability, and his good record on the Bench, he is generally said to have the unsolicited endorsement of the entire Republican Bar of the Circuit and a substantial number of leading members of the Democratic Bar.

JUDGE CLARK, as a matter of principle, has not asked the lawyers to declare themselves for or against him, in writing or otherwise. To thus put the Attorney's practicing before the Judge on the spot, would be unfair to the Attorneys and unethical, or of doubtful propriety on the part of the Judge.

THE "SITTING JUDGE PRINCIPLE" is gaining universal non-partisan support. Both political parties in Maryland have adopted it. You are being urged, regardless of partisanship to elect SITTING JUDGES.

THERE SHOULD BE BETTER than political reasons for voting against a good Judge. "There is no sound reason for dispensing with the services of a good Judge. Good material for the Bench is not so easily found."—Baltimore SUN, August 27, 1933.

JUDGE CLARK'S record on the Bench has been so universally approved by the citizens of Anne Arundel County, that the most active supporters of his opponent dare not openly attack it. Such an attempt would be resented at once by the whole public.

Build Fort for War in 4 Hours

Army Officers Witness Demonstration of Vacuum Concrete Process.

WASHINGTON.— Before high ranking army and navy officials and foreign military attaches a new and revolutionary method of constructing concrete fortresses, bombproof dugouts, and machine gun nests was demonstrated at the bureau of standards.

The audience witnessed the construction of a 50-ton pill box fort with a so-called "vacuum" concrete. The fort was ready for use four hours after the concrete was poured. Ordinarily it takes several days for concrete to harden.

Point to Unusual Speed.

The process was used in the demonstration for the first time for military purposes. Witnesses agreed that the fortress of the future, particularly in those nations more interested in defensive than in offensive warfare, will take advantage of the unusual speed and strength possible by means of this most recent development.

The process was invented by Karl P. Billner of New York city. It has already been used to advantage in the construction of concrete houses, in public highways, and for other purposes, but it is expected to be of special service in time of war.

By means of "vacuum" concrete, bombproof shelters and fortresses could be built in one evening and harden and be ready for warding off attack at dawn on the following morning, Billner said. Not only does this new process save time in construction and otherwise, he added, but the resulting fortress is much stronger than those of other types and the cost of construction is less.

Standard Mix Used.

In the demonstration standard cement, sand and broken stone, mixed with water, were poured into forms or molds at 9 a. m. These forms were of wood, although in standardized construction they probably will be of thin steel or aluminum sheets, with the proper bracing, so as to be very light and easily transportable, in sections.

After the concrete mixture was poured into the molds, the vacuum process was applied and at 1 p. m. the forms were removed.

Briefly, the vacuum process is a method of removing from concrete, after it has been placed in the forms, all excess mixing water—the water which has been added to make the concrete liquid enough to flow readily into the forms, Billner explained.

Wild Burro, Barbecued, Better Than Roast Pig

REDLANDS, CALIF.—A new dish for epicures was discovered here when a band of desert enthusiasts ate two barbecued wild burros. They assert the meat was sweeter than that of a young roast pig and far superior to beef. The hills and mountains of southeastern Riverside county and parts of the Imperial valley contain small bands of wild burros, descendants of animals used by prospectors.

FRIZELLBURG.

Sabbath School will be conducted here next Sunday at 10:00 A. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Heltebride, served a dinner recently in honor of their only son, Eddie Ross, whose fifth birthday fell on October 12th. Those present besides the family, were: Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Heltebride and daughter, Anna, Westminster.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bish, two children, their nurse, and Mrs. Grace Bish, Washington, spent a day recently with J. Thomas Zile and sister Bessye.

One seldom sees a more enthusiastic group of relatives and friends than those who assembled at the home of Mr. Henry Kemper, last Saturday, to give assistance in husking out his corn crop. The recipient is a victim of paralysis and unable to do any work and merits the hospitality. In all it was a wonderful testimony of the esteem in which he is held. The guests numbering 44 began to arrive early and by 9:30 A. M. they had 34 barrels of corn out, the fodder on shocks, and most of the corn in the crib. Mr. Kemper takes this opportunity to express his sincere thanks and profound gratitude for the aid so cheerfully rendered. Those present were: Rev. M. L. Kroh, Mr. and Mrs. William High, George I. Custer, Glenn Haines, Monroe Wantz, Wm. G. Sullivan, David McKinney, Delmar Warehime, Arthur H. Master, Frank McKinney, Mrs. Robert Gonder, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bankert, Ruth High, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Haines, Billy W. Gonder, G. H. Custer, Howard Warehime, J. E. Null, Benton Myerly, Paul R. Warehime, Clarence H. Myers, John W. Warehime, C. Otto Myers, Charles Warehime, Roy L. Zahn, Kenneth Lambert, Edward Welk, Truman Babylon, Edward F. Hesson, Lloyd Wantz, Charles Stansbury, Edward F. Dickensheets, John Berwager, Russell Null, Mrs. Maude Lawyer, Edith Lawyer, Mrs. Anna Fritz, Paul Bachman, Walter W. Myers, Herbert Myers, Ralph Eyer, Lewis D. G. Wantz. The last named person was not present but donated tar rope to tie the fodder.

TANEYTOWN SCHOOL NEWS.

The Senior Class won the cash award which was offered to the class securing the highest number of subscriptions to "The Taneyette" the school paper, which will be published in November.

Final plans are being made for the chicken and oyster supper which will be served by the Parent-Teacher's Association, on Tuesday evening, November 1, in the high school auditorium.

Teachers are the only persons authorized to represent the school in taking the census; anyone else appearing in this capacity is an impostor.

She Understood

Lawyer (to woman on witness stand)—Now, Madame, please bear in mind that you are under oath. Do you understand the nature of an oath?

Witness (hesitatingly)—Well, I would think that I do. My husband has tended the furnace for 30 years, my father has dabbled in the market for the last 40 years and my oldest son is taking up golf. Yes, I would think I understand.

Still Safe

A New Yorker met a Scotsman, just returned from Florida golf courses, dragging an alligator up Broadway.

"What are you doing with that alligator?" he asked.

"The son of a gun has my ball," the Scotsman replied.—Santa Fe Magazine.

FEESERSBURG.

From the warm summer weather of last week we went into cool Autumn days, and now (Monday) a warm rain just fine for lately sown wheat.

The Crouse-Crumbaker's entertained on Sunday their cousins, Misses Laura, Carrie and Dolly Griffith with their niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Hoffman, all of Baltimore.

Elder J. J. John with his son, G. B. John, spent last week motoring through Virginia, stopping with relatives at Warrenton and Roanoke, and seeing their old home; then on farther South to the Great Smoky mountains, ascending the eastern spur of Mt. Mitchell which is 6711 ft. high. It took them one hour to reach the top, and the outlook was "breath taking and hair raising." America the Beautiful!

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wetzell, Mrs. Milton Dayhoff her daughter, Violet, and two sons, all from Mt. Airy, visited the Maurice Grinder family, Sunday.

Mrs. W. Lincoln Birely went on to New York City by R. R., on Saturday intending to return to her home in Brookline, on Monday. Her wrist that was shattered in an auto wreck about 3 months ago has healed nicely, though the fingers are stiff and her right arm still weak.

Mrs. Wilbur Miller and daughter, Josephine, are alright after the accident of crashing into a house in Woodsboro last week. A sister, Mrs. Lulu Main who stepped on the wrong pedal, drove back to her home in York the same evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bohn with the "Jolly Serenaders" appeared on a program at Camp Ritchie on Tuesday evening of last week.

The plays sponsored by the C. E. Union of Carroll Co., given in the Parish House at Mount Union, last week were splendid. "Pa's New Housekeeper" by the society of the Methodist Protestant Church, Westminster; and the "Bachelor's Baby" by the Reformed Society of Taneytown were each so well done we suspected professional talent was on the stage, and fun was abundant; but after many entanglements all ended well. During intermission Glenn Fickel sang—"Love sends a little gift of roses," Miss Mary Shriver, pianist, (also mother of the lost baby); and William Hall gave a reading of one of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poems "When Melindy Sang"—which was superb. Three violinists, F. P. Bohn, Ralph Bair and Earl Wilhide gave two selections of music, and all present enjoyed the evening.

The Geimans of College Hill, Westminster, spent Saturday evening with their sister, Mrs. Bucher John and children.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hooper and daughter, Loretta, of Newport, spent Monday with his mother, Mrs. Reese Hooper whose condition has improved.

"Tis said "Death loves a shining mark"—which we feel was true in the passing of Mrs. Mary Reese, who was laid to rest on Saturday. Her best eulogy was expressed in the love of her pupils and the teachers of the Elmer A. Wolfe School beside the many friends who sorrow for her going. "It is beautiful to be well known and well loved Life's Crown well Won."

There will be S. S. and Preaching Service at Mt. Union on Sunday afternoon; and a special program for the annual gathering in the evening at 7:30 o'clock, Franklin P. Bohn, presiding. The pastor Rev. M. L. Kroh will bring a message; the empty jars that were distributed throughout the season will be returned filled with vegetables and fruit, besides many fresh goods donated; to be sent to the Lutheran Deaconess Mother House, Baltimore. The money offerings will be for missionary work. "Come thou with us."

Have you ever been stalled along the highway when hurrying to catch a train or meet an engagement, no telephone within reach, and after measuring the tank report "Out of Gas"—and there you are nothing to do but await a car going in the right direction; every minute seems like ten, then you see a car approaching, and you wave a flag, or your red gloves—or both, and dance around in the road until it comes along side, and you beg the driver to send a garage man with some gas. More long waiting moments—and the rescue party appears, and after some coaxing your engine begins to purr again—and you are off to meet—or miss the delayed engagement, excited and jubilant, we've had a similar experience.

The Republicans on county tour made a fine showing and passed through our town on schedule time last Wednesday. Now both parties have had a ride, and about Nov. 9th, we'll learn the result of all the smiles, hand shakings, kissing babies, gift cigars, and graceful courtesies. May the best man win.

NEW WINDSOR.

The Department of Fine Art at Blue Ridge College gave the second exhibition of oil paintings and Gouaches by Herman Maril, Thursday evening, at 4:00 P. M.

Howard Doolittle, of Metuchen, N. J. and Roxanna Veeks, of Friends Academy, Locust Valley, Long Island were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Nusbaum, Miss Evelyn Buchanan was a Sunday guest.

Word was received here of the death of Minerva Roop, of LaVern, California. She was the last descendant of the late Jesse and Hannah Roop. The Roop family were residents of New Windsor, before going West.

Howard Carbaugh is improving his property by laying a concrete walk, which completes the street from the railroad to the edge of town on this street.

The New Windsor Alumni Association of the High School will hold their annual dance on this Friday evening.

On this coming Sunday Oct. 30th., College Sunday will be observed in the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Lynn Harris of the College will preach the sermon.

On Monday evening the Christian Endeavor and the Windsor Guild of the Presbyterian Church will give a Hallowe'en Social on Monday, Oct. 31 in the Sunday School room.

THE SOUTHERN STATES CO-OPERATIVE.

The members of the Board of Director of Southern States Westminster Service, and their wives, have been invited to attend the annual meeting of Southern States Co-operative to be held at 10:00 A. M., on November 3 in the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore, Md. The members of the Board are: Messrs E. L. Crowl, Scott Y. Garner, Arthur Naill, Walter W. Myers, and Sterling Baile, all of Westminster, and Mr. Harry Gaver, of Sykesville.

Farmers, delegates from Advisory Boards, and directors of affiliated co-operatives are expected to gather, 2000 strong, for this meeting in Baltimore, one of the organization's principal centers of operation. The chief speaker will be Murray D. Lincoln, Secretary of the Ohio State Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Lincoln is outstanding in co-operative circles, not only because of his good work in the consumer co-operative movement in this country, but also because he has won national recognition by the establishment of co-operative insurance business. Out of his effort to help the farmer attain financial independence have come the formation of co-operative automobile and fire insurance companies which are among the largest in the United States.

Members of the local Board who attend will hear reports on the program of Southern States Co-operative, a wholesale organization which does over 10½ million dollars worth of business a year and which represents the combined interests of 100,000 farmers according to W. G. Wyrwors, of Richmond, Virginia, General Manager, who will give the annual report. The financial statement will be made by O. E. Zacharias, Jr., Comptroller, and Dr. T. K. Wolfe, Director of Distribution, will talk on "Farmers in Business". H. E. Babcock, of Ithaca, New York, and the Co-operative Grange League Federation, will also speak.

Find Ruins in Peru Of Around 500 A. D.

Museum Aide Unearths Art Of Mountain People.

NEW YORK.—Discovery of dwelling places, temples, pottery and metal work of an ancient civilization was reported by Dr. Wendell C. Bennett, assistant curator in the anthropology department of the American Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Bennett recently returned from a six-month archeological expedition into northern Peru. The site of the ruins he uncovered is near the town of Huaraz in the upper part of the Santa river valley at an altitude of 10,000 feet, between the White and the Black Cordilleras.

From the evidence in the tombs, such as pottery, copper pins and discs, and arrow heads of flint and obsidian, this people of the Recuay civilization predate one branch of the Tiahuanaco civilization and the Inca civilization. According to Mead's method, the Recuay ruins would date around 500 A. D.

Subterranean Houses.

Dr. Bennett found whole villages containing as many as 60 subterranean houses, roofed with tremendous slabs of rock apparently cut from the mountain sides. The Recuays are built tombs of rock slabs, fashioned into boxes. How the rock was cut and transported from the quarries to the village site is unknown.

Many of the sunken houses extended two stories below the surface and contained five or six rooms on each floor with narrow passageways leading from one floor to another and from room to room. Two temples, each having three stories above the ground and rising to 30 feet in height, were discovered. Stone puma heads and statues representing human figures also were found.

In the ancient village 10 subterranean passageways with single openings were unearthed. Pottery found at the ends of the tunnels showed they were used as dwelling places.

COMMUNITY LOCALS.

Mrs. Charles Binnix mother of Mrs. Irvin Morris is visiting her daughter this week.

The Taneytown U. B. Church will broadcast a program over Frederick Station, Monday morning.

Henry I. Reindollar, recently elected director of the Littlestown Choral Society, conducted his first rehearsal on Wednesday evening.

The November meeting of the Homemakers' Club will be held in the Firemen's Building, Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Subject: "The Law and the Home."

The Women's Missionary Rally of the Lutheran Churches of Carroll County will be held in Trinity Lutheran Church, Taneytown, on Nov. 9, at 10:00 A. M.

Rev. Arthur Garvin and family, have moved into the United Brethren Parsonage, and will take up the work of his charge, at once. Welcome to Taneytown.

The Carroll Record Office will publish for a High School Staff, a school paper to be known as "The Taneyette" that will be issued four times during the school year. The first issue will be in November.

Another one—a tall young man wearing spectacles—rather ministerial looking—and well dressed, failed to connect, with a nickel or dime. We should like to know the real facts in his case.

Rev. Irvin N. Morris conducted the moving devotions over W.F.M.D., on Thursday. He was assisted by Henry I. Reindollar, baritone soloist and violinist, and Margaret E. Reindollar, trombonist, with Harry I., accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Shockey and son Joseph, east of town, have returned from a tour through Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Virginia and Maryland.

The Taneytown Jr. and Sr. 4-H Clubs held a Hallowe'en party, Thursday evening, at Arnold's Camp, with the Baust's 4-H Girls as guests. There was a special program followed by games and refreshments. Their leader, Miss Belva Koons planned the party.

Actually, a wandering Willie came into our office the other day and asked for money with which to buy a corn husker, and he came back the next day, showed us the husker he bought with our dime, said he had a job to go to work on, and would pay us back. We wonder—is it true?

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ohler entertained on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Carter Meldrum, of Toronto, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. John I. Ohler, Gettysburg; Edgar Fitz, son Junior, daughter, Anna Jane and Miss E. Pauline Ohler, of Zullinger, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Delmont E. Koons, son Delmont, Jr., and daughter, Doris, of town.

The Sunday School classes of Mrs. Edward Shorb and Mrs. Wm. Abrecht were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Abrecht, on Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments served to Mrs. Ray Crumbaker, Jean Mohny, Shirley Shorb, Alice Crapster, Harriet Feeser, Elizabeth Bankard, O'Neal Crapster, Doris Crumbaker, Norma Lee Shorb, and Alice Hitchcock.

A lady in Taneytown, who does not desire her name used, has contributed $1.00 toward the work of Rev. H. G. C. Hallowell, in Shanghai, China. She is always much interested in his letters that appear from time to time in The Record. This dollar, with another one from Taneytown and one from Uniontown has been forwarded to Rev. Hallowell's brother, in Rochester, N. Y., who attends to forwarding money received to China.

The following persons attended the I. O. O. F. Wm. A. Jones Demonstration Rally, in Baltimore, Maryland, on Thursday evening, October 27th, 1938: Rev. L. B. Hafer, Harry I. Reindollar, George Dutterer, Clarence Wilson, John W. Fream, Harry L. Baumgardner, Mervyn Conover, Franklin Fair, Charles Stambaugh, Walter Hilterbrick, Lester Cutsail, Wm. C. N. Myers, Merwyn C. Fuss, David Smith, Charles E. Ridinger and Norman S. Devillbiss.

Last Friday evening, shortly before store closing time, an auto driven by a colored man, containing three colored women, stopped before Hesson's Department Store, J. T. Miller's, Harris Brothers and Smith's Economy store, and while purporting to be customers for various articles, successfully got away with merchandise—mainly wearing apparel—valued at about $40.00. A state policeman was notified, but no trace of the autos or occupants has been found. Mr. Miller has not missed anything and thinks nothing was taken. The 10c Store was relieved of about 30 or 40 packs of chewing gum.

There will be a Luther League Workers' Conference of the Middle District, this Sunday in the Lutheran Church, to which all are invited, Registration at 2:45, followed by devotions by the Rev. H. H. Schmidt, of Woodsboro; departmental conferences; business; fellowship supper, at 5:30; Vespers at 7:00; special music: Anthem, and solo by Henry Reindollar.

CARROLL CO. MINISTERIAL UNION MEETS.

Both the County Ministerial Union and the County Council of Religious Education voted unanimously at meetings held last Monday in Westminster to go on record "for" the State Marriage Law; "against" the State Lottery Amendment; and "against" the sale of beer and intoxicating beverages in Carroll County.

Miss Wooden, President of the W. C. T. U. of Carroll County, announced at the Ministerial Union meeting that the local option issue on the sale of beer and liquor would appear on the November 8th. ballot.

George Crabbe of the Anti-Saloon League laid before the "Union" the moral issues of the coming election.

SHE SURE CAN

Sailor—Can't you do something for an old salt, ma'am—I'm in a box. Lady—Yes—shake you!

MARRIED

LAMBERT—FROCK.

Mr. Lloyd Ellsworth Lambert, son of Mr. Lloyd Lambert, and Miss Freda R. Frock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frock, all of the vicinity of Taneytown, were united in marriage on Saturday morning, October 22, 1938, at 8:00 o'clock, by Rev. Guy P. Bready, at the parsonage of the Reformed Church, in Taneytown.

BURKE—RICKELL.

REV. CHARLES L. RITTER.

Rev. Chas. L. Ritter, supply pastor, Pleasant Hill Lutheran Church, died Friday night at the Frederick Hospital, aged 71 years, after an extended illness. He was a son of the late Peter L. and Coranda Ritter, of Keysville.

He was a graduate of Gettysburg College and Seminary, graduating from the latter in 1894. He had served Lutheran charges at Fayette, Pa., Burkittsville, Md., Fairfield, Pa., Wheeling, W. Va., York, Pa., Mahanoy City, Shippensburg, Pa., Erie, Pa., and Centerville, Pa.

He is survived by one brother, William E. Ritter, Taneytown, a sister-in-law, Ruth Ritter, two brothers-in-law, George Ohler and George Clutz, and nephews and nieces, Carroll Ritter, Mrs. Edna Slagle, Nevin and Murray Slagle, Mrs. Emma Ohler, Mrs. Anna Stonifer, Mrs. Edith Ohler, Harry Clutz and Charles Clutz.

The following nephews acted as bearers, Luther Ritter, Charles Ritter, Lloyd Wilhide, Herman Baile, Harry Clutz and George Clutz.

He was a member of Good Samaritan Lodge A. F. & A. M., Gettysburg. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, in Frederick City Lutheran Church, with which he had united, in charge of a former classmate Rev. Stanley Billhimer, Palmyra, Pa., and Rev. Dr. Amos J. Traver, and officers of the Synod and Conference. Interment was in the Woodsboro cemetery.

Rev. Ritter had visited his brother and family, in Taneytown, shortly before his entering the hospital in July.

The greatest dividends you can pay to your county is to contribute to the Children's Aid Society. It will reduce taxes in the future, for we have kept from our streets in Carroll County, many boys and girls that would have been a public nuisance and forced into institutions which the county would have been responsible for.

This drive will continue another week. Please give - that we may reach our goal.

MRS. FRANK T. MYERS
President

CHARLES W. MELVILLE

Candidate For

County Commissioner

I Am In Favor Of—

1—A reduction in County taxes from 10c to 15c on the hundred dollars in 1939.

2—A new assessment of real and personal property.

3—The County roads, with 1½c gas tax money included, returned to the County Commissioners, to be spent by them in building more stone roads.

4—All Districts receiving the same consideration.

Giant Commits Suicide Over Inferiority Complex

BUDAPEST.—Peter Kovacs, a 28-year-old man, eight feet tall, weighing 300 pounds, died because of an inferiority complex. He hanged himself in a wood near Budapest.

A letter, found in his pocket, read: "My enormous size made me unhappy. Everywhere I went, I felt people looking at me with amusement. In the tramcar they made funny remarks. I was unhappy in love. I feel very, very unimportant and inferior. I had better die."

The unhappy giant began his career as salesman in a store. He had to give it up because customers did not like to look up at a shop clerk. He had various occupations, mostly in factories. He had always much difficulty in finding a room, because normal beds were too short for him.

Last year he fell in love with a pretty young girl, Mary Kiss. This name, in Hungarian, means "little." Whenever Kovacs went out with the girl, he had to hear the remarks of the neighbors: "There goes Mary 'Little' with her big friend." The girl became annoyed and refused to see him any more.

Navy Plans for Two Superships

45,000-Ton Dreadnaughts Envisioned as Most Deadly of Craft.

WASHINGTON.—High naval officials believe funds will be made available next year for the construction of two 45,000-ton superdreadnaughts, envisioned as the most deadly warships ever launched.

Because of radical changes in design and construction of new battleships, the proposed 45,000-ton vessels would be equivalent in striking power and over-all size of 60,000-ton men-of-war built along the lines of present day dreadnaughts to be laid down by naval construction experts.

Japan Building Three.

Japan reportedly has under construction three 46,000-ton dreadnaughts, but the navy department has no accurate information on the island empire's building program. If President Roosevelt asks congress for money to begin construction of two 45,000-ton ships at the next session of congress the United States would be the first known power to launch a program of superwarships.

Navy authorities do not believe that France intends to build to the tonnage limit of the recently concluded Anglo-Franco-American treaty, and Great Britain reportedly is not yet definitely decided on its future battleship building course. It is believed that the next dreadnaughts to be laid down by Britain will be of 40,000 tons.

Plans Being Drawn.

Meanwhile, the United States navy drafting division is going ahead with plans for the superwarships and they should be completed in time to start construction this time next year.

Although all details of the plans are being kept secret, it is understood that special attention is being given to means of increasing battleship speed to at least 33 knots and possibly more under forced draft. The two battleships now under construction, the North Carolina and Washington of 35,000 tons each, are expected to have speeds of about 27½ knots.

Funds are available to begin work on four other battleships. Although the President has authority to order them built to the 45,000-ton limit, it is generally believed they will be of the North Carolina-Washington class, with a few changes in the hull and propelling machinery to increase speed. These vessels probably will be on the ways before the end of this year, depending upon available facilities and the number of bids received from private companies.

Bitten by Snake Head He Had Chopped Off

TROUP, TEXAS.—When 13-year-old Voyt Hagerty saw a brown snake he decided to chop off its head with an ax so it would not bite anyone. The head stuck to the ax blade. The youth sought to brush it off with his hand. The mouth snapped and Voyt had to be treated for a copperhead bite.

Man Bites Cow to Get Quick Action

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—All the king's horses and all the king's men, assisted by a block and tackle, failed to get a cow out of San Diego river quicksand. Finally, Andy Gonzales had an idea. He bit the cow's tail. Bossy bawled, squirmed and shook herself right out of the quicksand.

ANCIENT CASTLES ABOUND IN FRANCE

Many Chateaus Leased by Wealthy Americans.

PARIS.—A "chateau census" just completed by the French government offers proof that France holds the world's record for ancient castles and palaces, both in quantity and quality. It boasts 761 chateaus, with or without fortifications, dating back to the days when knight-hood was in flower.

Of this number, 539 castles and 33 palaces are in a good state of preservation, while the others either have fallen or are falling into ruin. Not included in the unusual census are 13 fortified churches and one fortified cathedral, the latter the Cathedral of Palavas-les-Flots on the Mediterranean, a structure which has resisted time and tempest for 1,000 years and is now serving as a parish church. There is also a fortified mill at Nerac, Lot-et-Garonne, where Henry IV, when king of Navarre, used to hold his court before he ascended the French throne.

Touraine Richest in Type.

The touraine region, "Garden of France," is the richest in palaces and chateaus of regal type. Unlike the quantity of Burgundy castles built primarily for war in the days of armored knights, the Touraine castles were elegant residences for princes. Their narrow loopholes for defense gave place to wide windows, and their sentries could pace in magnificent terrace gardens.

One of the castles, that of Pierrfonds, was restored during the Second Empire and served for a while as a home for Napoleon III. Castles of the Dordogne region are all of ancient medieval type, having been built to receive and to give hard knocks. Many of them were built by the English in the days of Edward III and the Black Prince, and to travel in Dordogne is to wander back into ancient history when England and France were exchanging blows instead of bouquets.

Legends for Each Chateau.

Legends, ghost stories and varied folklore accompany each chateau, although it may not have been inhabited for centuries. Many of the old castles and fortresses have become the homes of wealthy Americans, Indian maharajas and retired business men of all nations. Ambassador William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, recently leased the Chateau Firmin, not far from Paris, for a week-end home.

Once-Lavish Hostess and Daughter Like New Life

SUFFERN, N. J.—Take it from a woman who was once worth millions, and now must earn her own living—she's better off without her wealth.

Mrs. Cobina Wright, known a decade ago as New York's most lavish hostess, gazed affectionately at her 16-year-old daughter, Cobina, and said:

"I'm almost glad we lost our money—Cobina seems so much better off. She's more interested in things and gets more out of life because she has to work for things. When we had five cars they didn't impress Cobina at all. But, this summer she got a new car and she's mad about it."

It wasn't so long ago that they had apartments in New York and Paris, a mansion in Newport, a country house on Long Island, and say nothing of their cars and jewels.

The market crash of 1929 and Mrs. Wright's divorce left them virtually penniless.

Instead of moaning, they began working. Mother Cobina has entertained at supper clubs and on the radio, while the daughter models, acts and poses for commercial photographers.

Grandmother Knew All About Cookery

Lessons Learned From Her Seem to Last Longest

By EDITH M. BARBER

THE most important thing in my professional career—if you can call it that—was not my "domestic science" training at Drexel institute or my work for my B. S. and M. S. at Teachers college, Columbia university, but my introduction to cookery in my early childhood. It was the finest game in the world to "help" my grandmother and then my mother in the kitchen. Of course I split the flour when I sifted it and greased the table when I measured shortening and probably spilled the milk.

My relatives, however, were well endowed with patience and received their reward in my enjoyment in the belief that I was useful. They tasted without a murmur the hard bullets which I called biscuits or rolls which I had been allowed to mold myself.

If you think it is important for a little girl to learn to cook and to like it, it will be worth your while to encourage her to help you in the kitchen when she is at the age when she enjoys a constructive game. I have a prize pupil, aged 9, who loves to use the measuring spoon and cup, the bowl and the wooden spoon which I gave her for her birthday and who has learned to use them accurately. You would have enjoyed as much as we did that huckleberry cobbler Jill Underhill made the last time I spent a week-end at her parents' home in the country. She has offered to come to my house for a lesson any time I would like to have her when she comes back to New York and says that she intends to be an "Olympic Cook," like me!

By the way, I think that you will be interested in a cook book by Helen Robertson which is known as the "Merry Mixer Cook Book." These recipes are taken from that book.

Blackberry Roll.
 1 tablespoon butter
 1 recipe shortcake dough
 2 cups blackberries
 ½ cup sugar

Melt one tablespoon of butter in shallow pan. Heat oven to high heat, 425 degrees Fahrenheit. Prepare shortcake dough. Roll out to one-half inch thickness, keeping the dough rectangular in shape. Spread with softened butter.

Have berries washed and drained well. Spread over dough, sprinkle with sugar. Roll dough as a jelly roll. Dampen edge of dough slightly so as to hold it in place. Place in greased pan, brush over top with milk. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, for the first 15 minutes. After that reduce temperature to 375 degrees Fahrenheit, and bake more slowly, about 20 minutes longer. Serve with crushed blackberries.

Roast Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb.
 3½ to 4 pounds shoulder of lamb
 3 cups stale bread crumbs
 ¾ cup finely chopped mushrooms
 1 tablespoon chopped onion
 1 tablespoon bacon fat
 1 teaspoon chopped parsley
 1 teaspoon salt
 Pepper

Have shoulder boned at the market. Wipe off meat with a dampened cloth. Rub bone pocket and outside of roast with salt. Prepare bread crumbs, which should be very coarse. Saute mushrooms with onion in bacon fat. Add to bread crumbs with parsley. Moisten slightly with water or meatstock. Season well.

Fill pocket of meat with dressing, packing it in lightly, allowing room for the dressing to swell. Sew or skewer opening closed. Place in an uncovered pan, fat side up, or lacking fat, lay strips of bacon over the top of the meat. Roast in slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit to 350 degrees Fahrenheit, allowing between 30 and 35 minutes to the pound. If not brown at the end of the cooking time, if desired, turn up heat and brown meat. Gravy may be made from fat in the pan if desired.

Beets With Lemon Sauce.
 1 pint beets, cooked or canned
 ½ teaspoon salt
 ½ cup sugar
 2 teaspoons cornstarch
 ½ cup water
 ¼ cup lemon juice

Cut the beets into slices. Mix the salt, sugar and cornstarch, add to the water, add the lemon juice and heat. Boil five minutes, stirring constantly. Pour over the beets and let stand half an hour. Add one tablespoon butter, reheat and serve at once.

Avocado and Crabmeat.
 3 avocados
 1 cup picked crabmeat
 ¼ cup finely minced celery
 1 teaspoon onion juice
 ¼ cup catsup or chili sauce

Cut avocados in halves and remove pits. Mix crabmeat with celery, onion and catsup or chili sauce and fill fruit with this mixture. Serve as a first course or as a luncheon salad.

BILLIONS of TOOTHPICKS

A Yankee Brought the Idea from South America; Now These Tiny Splinters Provide a Big Industry in the Busy State of Maine.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

BY WHATEVER avenue he enters the state of Maine, the newcomer promptly realizes that it can best be described as a land of trees. Forests cover more than three-fourths of the area. The present 15 million acres of woodland represent a shrinkage of less than 20 per cent from the primeval condition. In recent years the few salients slowly won along the forest border by newly cleared farms are much more than offset by the steady push of pine, spruce, fir, and hemlock seedlings, everywhere winning back abandoned fields.

At the first session of its legislature, Maine adopted a seal with the north star as the crest, below which the shield carries the white pine and moose, the two monarchs of the Maine woods. The description of the seal, in the 1820 laws of Maine, says of the pine: "It is as well the staple of the commerce of Maine, as the pride of her forests." Seventy-five years later, the pine diameter of two feet being the lower limit for "broad arrow" trees, the Maine sawmills turned out boards just within the limit, so that roofs of old houses of that period show splendid pine boards 22 or 23 inches wide, but almost never one of 24 inches.

Scores of "broad arrow" lawsuits were tried, but impartial juries were impossible to find for most cases. The prejudice against masts reached a climax at the outbreak of the Revolution, when the export of masts was violently stopped, the opposition at Falmouth leading later to the bombardment and burning of that town. Shutting off the supply of American masts for seven years so weakened British fleets in their rigging that they suffered unduly from storms during the Revolution.

One "broad arrow" inspector in his report mentioned one pine of over 17 feet in circumference. In time Bangor became the world's largest lumber-shipping port, and in 1830 Maine led all states in output of lumber. Throughout the timber states of the West many of the most skilled lumbermen hail from the Pine Tree state.

After the spring breakup in Maine, logs are drifted down rivers to the saw mills. It's the job of these log rollers, with caulked shoes, to keep the lumber moving.

one and tassel was declared by legislative resolve to be the floral emblem of Maine, having been selected by an informal popular referendum.

As early as 1656, the town authorities of South Berwick passed an order against waste of timber. In more recent times forest conservation was accepted as a business policy, and protective measures against fire were early adopted and generously supported by timberland owners, even before state laws were passed. Maine was the first state to erect lookout towers and also the first to build them of steel. The first lookout station was erected by private landowners on Squaw mountain in 1906. At present the state maintains 86 fire stations.

The first sawmill in America was built near York in 1623, and another at South Berwick in 1631; and 50 years later there were 24 mills in the province of Maine, including the first gang sawmill on the continent at a site aptly named Great Woods.

Opportunity for the infant colonies came from the depletion of England's forests. During the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, naval reserves meant oak, not oil, but Queen Elizabeth and her Stuart successors squandered the royal forests to provide increased revenues independent of parliament, while admirals protested. There was a scarcity of oak timbers, and the white pine of New England gradually became England's chief source of the masts sorely needed by its navy.

In a way the royal navy's timber policy contributed to the Revolution.

ON SECOND THOUGHT

By J. A. WALDRON
 © George Matthew Adams.

THE varied lights, the garish colors, the vocal buzz and the jazz were there. As the evening wore loudness increased, and here and there the gaucheries natural to the class that had made the Great White Way a naughtily descriptive phrase were noted.

John Blount and his wife, from the hinterland, like so many others who have made this metropolitan locality profitable to caterers and their hangers-on, were guests. They had finished a dinner in some details strange to them and, seemingly bored by each other, were watching the mildly exciting scene from a small table that had two empty chairs opposite them. While the Blounts were sipping mild drinks ordered to insure their places—for although they took no pleasure in each other's company they found entertainment in the place—a waiter placed another couple at the table.

As the four began to scan one another a surprise developed. Blount blushed as he sought recognition in the second woman's face and bowed to her with an air of embarrassment.

The other man also showed confusion, for Mrs. Blount had recognized him, and he smiled weakly as he held out his hand to her.

A clumsy introduction followed, initiated by the women, who nervously in turn made the men acquainted and included each other by incidental gestures.

The newcomers were the Ramseys. And then embarrassment settled on all four.

Blount and Ramsay eyed each other guardedly, with a suggestion of antagonism, yet tried to make conversation on subjects not related to the situation. The women, more adept, disguised a possible hostility under superficial smiles, and chatted aimlessly.

But the immediate matter absorbed the men, and Blount returned to it.

"Seems we know one another—in a fashion," he said, "or rather that I know your wife and you know mine!"

"So it seems," replied Ramsay unasily.

The women saw that the situation rested with them.

"Oh, I knew Mr. Blount in Chicago, ages ago!" said Mrs. Ramsay.

"Yes," confirmed Blount, "we met in Chicago."

"And I knew Mr. Ramsay in Pittsburgh," volunteered Mrs. Blount.

"The lady is correct," Ramsay admitted. "That was the place, all right." And then to Blount: "So you're from Chicago?"

"Not lately. Used to live in the Windy City, as they call it. We're from Kalamazoo. That's my headquarters if I have any steady place. I've made a little money and like to look around. Do you like Pittsburgh?"

"Oh, I don't live in Pittsburgh now," returned Ramsay. "Located in Kansas City. I've got a few iron men, too. We're here on a little vacation."

"Same here. We all come to the big town."

"New York's all right, eh?" Ramsay cracked a smile.

"For a few days—yes, but not permanently unless you've got loads of money. Millions. Nothing less will do here. I'll take Kalamazoo for mine with my stake."

"What's the idea? A man can get along all right here on a fair income."

"Perhaps—in a way. As a piker. I'd rather be a big toad in a smaller puddle, as they say."

The women had failed to negotiate mutual subjects, and tried to seem satisfied with things as they were, but unsuccessfully. Mrs. Blount was timing the music with an air meant to be unconcerned. Mrs. Ramsay, who had her vanity case out, was inspecting her latest powdering, forgetting that it was but a minute old. She seemed to doubt Mrs. Blount's detachment. Women have subtle ways, but these two could not summon ease.

The band crushed freshly, mauling an old dance melody into approved jazz.

Ramsay pulled himself together. "Perhaps you'd like to dance?" he ventured to Blount, indicating Mrs. Ramsay as a possible partner by a nod.

"I don't dance," replied Blount. "But Mrs. Blount lives on it. She's been ragging me about it. Want to renew old acquaintances?" he asked his wife.

scanning the passing dancers. "It appears you'll have to plead guilty too, Mary!" Blount encouraged her proximity by feeling for her hand.

"Yes. I married Ramsay a year ago. It seems an age!"

"So?"

"You know I took my maiden name when you and I were divorced, and moved to Kansas City."

"And he doesn't know you were married before?"

"No. Why should I have told him?"

Now she moved a little nearer. "I think he's a little jealous of you—thinks you're an old beau of mine?"

"Think so?"

"Yes. And you were a little jealous of him. You both showed it."

"But isn't dancing with my wife a funny way for him to show jealousy?"

"There are various ways of showing jealousy. You used to know a lot!"

"Some of my guesses were wrong, Mary. I admit that in sorrow. I used to be more foolish than I am now."

He looked at her admiringly. "Gee! You look good to me!"

Mrs. Ramsay's gratification sent the blood to her face. She tried to hitch a little nearer.

"Do I look as good to you as Mrs. Blount does?"

"Better! Beyond words. No comparison. But I wonder where they knew each other?"

"Pittsburgh. Didn't you hear?"

"I mean I wonder how well they knew each other?"

"Pretty well, I should say! Ramsay is a thirty-third degree philanderer."

Mrs. Ramsay looked again at the passing dancers.

"Just see 'em!"

Blount looked. Mrs. Blount and Ramsay glided past. They danced with the grace and intimacy of professionals—or lovers.

"They're enjoying it all right! Did Ramsay ever tell you he had been married before, Mary?"

"Yes. But I had to corkscrew it out of him. No detail. He may have been married more than once when I met him. He admitted having been divorced. But he wouldn't tell me who got the decree. Whenever he's angry he's a nagger. Says his first wife was more congenial than I am. And that she was better looking."

"She must have been a peach then!"

"John! Don't flatter me!"

"I'm not flattering you! As I've said, you look good to me!"

"Do you think Mrs. Blount is better looking?"

"Haven't I tasted the contrary? And I mean it. Tastes differ, of course. You used to say I was homey—when you were angry!"

"John! Please don't! We say things we don't mean when we are angry. I always thought you were an upstanding man. And you and I were so congenial—when you weren't jealous of me!"

"Then you and Ramsay aren't congenial?"

"Not so congenial as we used to be, John—honest!"

"Do you mean that?" Blount sighed. "Seems like old times—good old times—Mary, to be sitting here with you!"

He squeezed her hand. Her fingers closed on his. She hitched a little closer, looking furtively at the passing dancers.

"To tell the blessed truth, John—dear John—I've wished many times—"

"And I wish now. I know what you're thinking! And I wonder! Do you know, Mary, I feel like picking you up and running away with you!"

"John! She sighed and looked again at the dancers. "John! If we only could!"

Their hands remained locked. Both scanned the dancers. Mrs. Blount and Ramsay were not in sight. In fact they were not dancing. They had just emerged from the cloak room with their wraps.

"Isn't it lucky, Billy, that I always keep my check? It's a habit with me." Mrs. Blount was excited, and looked behind her nervously.

"A commendable habit, I'll say!" responded Ramsay. "Things are coming our way! And then to a porter: "Did you get a cab?"

They hurried to the street, both looking behind and entered a taxi.

"I'm a little frightened, Billy!" said Mrs. Blount, as she settled back and felt for his hand. "And yet—"

"And yet what? We both wish we had never been divorced. What follows? Don't worry! We'll fix this up in some way. And didn't they look chummy, too?"

Sends Typhoid in Cake

To defraud insurance companies and, at the same time, obtain material for a doctorate thesis by observing persons in the agonies of typhoid fever, an eye, ear and throat specialist of Kawaguchi, Japan, gave typhoid germs in cakes to his wife and the families of three other physicians. When his wife became ill he called in a physician who refused to treat the case. The specialist thought he was suspected and tried to murder his way out. He sent germ-ridden cakes to three physicians and their families. The specialist's wife recovered, but another woman and her daughter died. Meantime the ailment was traced to the cakes and the specialist was arrested. He confessed.

PERSONAL RIGHTS AND WHERE THEY END

LESSON TEXT—Ecclesiastes 2:1-3, 10, 11;
Romans 6:17-23; 14:21.
GOLDEN TEXT—What shall we say then?
Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound?—Romans 6:15.

"Personal liberty"—what endless misuse was made of that expression in the days when men seeking the right to again flood this country with intoxicating liquors were attacking prohibition. One would think that some of our political leaders and our newspaper editors would blush for shame when they see what has now been accomplished in the name of personal liberty.

My liberty ends, as someone has well said, where yours begins. I have the personal liberty to swing my arms as far as the tip of your nose, but there my liberty ends. All of life is, and necessarily must be built on that principle. For the Christian there is an even higher measure of responsibility—his relationship to God and his consequent heart interest in the welfare of his fellow men.

Our Scripture portions for today present a sharp contrast. Man without God, but with every earthly advantage is pictured in Ecclesiastes in his fruitless search for real joy. Then man as the glad bond-slave of Jesus Christ is spoken of in Romans as truly free and joyful.

I. The Way of Emptiness and Disappointment (Eccles. 2:1-3, 10, 11).

1. Physical pleasures do not satisfy (Eccles. 2:1-3). Men who have tasted the distress and disappointment of life are prone to think that if they only had all the money they wanted, and an opportunity to partake of life's "thrills" they would be happy. Solomon had everything.
He deliberately set himself to prove the pleasures of this world. He planned to "enjoy" intoxicants—doing it "with wisdom"—that is, not in a drunken debauch that would bring remorse. Note it, you who advocate the moderate use of alcohol (whatever that may be) Solomon found it to be only vain emptiness. (See Prov. 23:31, 32.)

What is true of wine is also true of the attempt to satisfy oneself by the gratification of any physical appetite. Those who live for the pleasures of the flesh can reap only corruption (Gal. 6:8). The hectic search for such satisfaction by countless men and women today reveals that they, like Solomon, cannot find it. If they did, they would cease their wild searching. It just is not there.

2. Pleasures of the mind do not satisfy (Eccles. 2:10, 11). Solomon sought real joy in labor, in accomplishing worthy ends. There is a satisfaction in work well done, but that joy is only lasting when the doing of the work is for the glory of God. Work for its own sake—yes, even wisdom for its own sake (Eccles. 1:12-18)—is not enough to satisfy the soul of man. The great poet Goethe, who set himself to enjoy the higher pleasures of life—art, science, and literature—came to his seventy-fifth year to testify that he had "never had four weeks of genuine pleasure." Satisfaction is not in the pleasures of the aesthetic nature.

II. The Way of Victory, Peace, and True Joy (Rom. 6:17-23; 14:21).

We say with Paul "God be thanked" that there is a way for men to find freedom from the sin and disappointment of life. It comes by

1. Personal allegiance to God
(Rom. 6:17-23). Clear thinking on spiritual matters recognizes that the man who boasts of his personal liberty, his freedom from God's control over his life is in reality the slave of sin (vv. 17-19; Titus 3:3).
On the other hand, the one who is a willing bondservant of Jesus Christ is free. The way of victory and peace is to yield to God, even as the way of defeat and disappointment is to yield to sin. The first way leads to joy in this life and eternal fellowship with God. The other way results in ultimate ghastly disillusionment in this life and eternal spiritual death and separation from God.

2. Recognized responsibility for others (Rom. 14:21). It should not take two minutes of intelligent consideration for any man to understand that "none of us liveth to himself" (Rom. 14:7). Yet that is the obvious assumption under which men live, leaving behind them not only their own wrecked lives, but carrying along in the stream of their personal influence their acquaintances, friends and members of their families.

The principle stated in Romans 14:21 should govern all of our actions. Paul was speaking of meat offered to idols, which he could have eaten with a clear conscience. But if he ate it someone else would be caused to stumble, and he was rather willing to do without it as long as he lived. One wonders what would happen in the Christian world if every professed follower of Christ would thus evaluate not only the use of intoxicants but also his every personal habit.

Key, Noted Song Writer,
Was Native of Maryland

Francis Scott Key was born August 1, 1779, on the family estate, Terra Rubra, then in Frederick but now in Carroll county, Md. He was of English ancestry, his great-grandfather, Philip Key, having come to Maryland from England about the year 1720. Key was educated at St. John's college, Annapolis, and commenced the practice of law in Frederick city. Subsequently he removed to Washington, where he was for many years district attorney of the District of Columbia.
He wrote a number of songs, recounts a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, but is chiefly known for his lyric, "The Star Spangled Banner."

He was detained on board the British fleet during the bombardment of Fort Mchenry, near Baltimore, in the War of 1812, and while watching for the result of the attack, the idea of writing the poem
"The Star Spangled Banner" occurred to him. It was partly written before he left the British ship.
A collection of his poems was published in New York in 1857.

On January 19, 1802, Francis Scott Key was married to Miss Mary Taylor Lloyd, daughter of Col. Edward Lloyd of Annapolis, by whom he had six sons and five daughters. He died January 11, 1843, of pleurisy, at the home of his daughter, Mrs.
Charles Howard, Mount Vernon Place, Baltimore. His body was placed first in the Howard vault in St. Paul's cemetery, Baltimore, then transferred in 1866 to Mount Olivet cemetery, Frederick, where the United States government keeps a flag floating continually over the grave.

Stripes of Barber Pole
Recall Early Surgeons

The barber pole with spiral stripes is a relic of the days when barbers were also surgeons. When the London barbers were incorporated in 1461, they were the only persons practicing surgery in the city. During the reign of Henry VIII, parliament passed a law providing that barbers should confine themselves to minor operations such as bloodletting and drawing teeth, while surgeons were prohibited from "barbery or shaving." It was not until 1745, only 30 years before the outbreak of the American Revolution, that the barbers and surgeons of London were separated into distinct corporations.

The practice of surgery by barbers was not abolished in France, Germany and other European countries until much later. The symbol of the barber-surgeons was a spirally-striped pole from which was suspended a brass basin with a semi-circular opening in the rim, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News.
The fillet around the pole indicated the bandage or ribbon around the arm in blood-letting, and the basin represented the vessel used to receive the blood. Barbers have retained in a modified form this ancient symbol of their profession. In the United States the brass basin is generally omitted from the barber pole, but it is common in England.

Area of Sahara Desert

The Sahara desert has an area of approximately 3,500,000 square miles. A portion was under water at one time, most likely in the Creta-ceous period, but some of the surface was later elevated so that water remained only in some lakes near the coast of the Mediterranean.
The belief in the marine origin of its vast quantity of sand has been supported by the theory that rock and soil disintegration occurred during the great Ice age, at which time the desert lay in a warm, moist climate. The recession of the ice brought about changed meteorological conditions which caused the winds to become dry and the soil to lose its moisture. Without this moisture it was impossible for vegetation to survive and the entire area became barren.

Fish Hook Is Alive

The sucking fish, or Remora, although a sucker in the literal sense, is really a very cute fellow and he can make "suckers" out of sharks and whales. On his head is a flat, oval sucking organ by which he fixes himself to the side of a whale, shark or large fish—sometimes even a ship—that will take him to the vicinity of food. But his favorite trick is to slip inside the mouth of a shark or whale, fix himself to the roof of its mouth and then as his host feeds, Mr. Sucking Fish grabs all the grub as it enters. Natives of the South seas use the sucking fish instead of a hook. They attach a line to its tail, throw it overboard and then, when it fixes its head on a fish or turtle, pull in the catch.

Tribute to Ordinance of 1787

Daniel Webster, in 1830, paid his tribute to the ordinance of 1787, the code for the Northwest Territory:
"We are accustomed to praise the law-givers of antiquity; we help to perpetuate the fame of Solon and Lycurgus; but I doubt whether one single law of any law-giver, ancient or modern, has produced effects of more distinct, marked and lasting character than the ordinance of 1787. We see its consequences at this moment, and we shall never cease to see them, perhaps, while the Ohio shall flow."

Town Has Buckeye Tree
That Foretells Weather

CHARDON, OHIO.—Call for Western Reserve university scientific professors and the Cleveland weather bureau!

Chardon has a mystery.
Al W. Timm doesn't need a barometer. A 55-year-old buckeye tree in his front yard foretells accurately within five to six hours when rain is coming, and has done so for the last two years.

His neighbors actually depend on this tree when planning picnics.
When rain is coming, although skies may be cloudless, wet spots begin to appear on the bark about two feet from the ground, and they increase until the bark is wet all the way to earth.

After the storm the tree becomes dry and remains so until ready for another forecast.

William Facey, who lives in the Timm home, and Timm discovered the phenomena. Charles Repp, retired farmer and a neighbor of Timm, said recently that, in all his long farm experience, he never had seen anything like it.

The tree was struck by lightning several years ago, and the course of the lightning shows plainly. Whether this has anything to do with the tree's propensities is not known.

"Maybe some of these college and weather bureau scientists can figure it out," Tim said. "I can't and they're welcome to the problem."

Study of Malaria Goes
Forward With Canaries

ATLANTA.—Beneath the golden feathers of the singing canary may lie the secret of new methods of treating malaria, according to the theory of Emory university medical students.

Officials of Emory have announced a $3,000 grant from the Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., to continue present research work on canaries. Dr. Elizabeth Gambrell, instructor in bacteriology, will direct the research, which was begun several months ago on a preliminary $1,000 award from the research organization.

Dr. Gambrell said that the research would be conducted on more than 50 canaries. The canary is the only animal known to be affected by malaria in the same way as human beings.

Blind and Deaf Girl,
Age 6, Learns to Talk

EVANSTON, ILL. — Six-year-old Joan Higgins is laboriously learning to speak her forty-first word. The only reason that is news is because Joan is blind and deaf. Until a year ago, she could not talk. Now her vocabulary includes 40 words and she rapidly is learning more.

Abandoned by her parents when she was an infant, Joan was for four and one-half years a charge of Cook county hospital. Then a private home was found for her and for the past year and a half she has been a protegee of Prof. Robert Gault, Northwestern university psychologist, under whose painstaking speech training she at last is learning to use her voice.

A year ago, Joan spoke her first word, which was not "mama" but "go." Before that, she had expressed herself only with babyish squeals and grunts. Unable to hear a human voice or see the moving lips of another person, she could not sense speech differences or the use of her vocal organs.

Under Gault's supervision, and in a home with other children to play with and learn from—largely by the sense of touch, Professor Gault thinks—she now knows the names of the things about her, can ask for her food, play with blocks, and is beginning to group her few words into simple, hesitant sentences.

Farmer 'Blue' for Years
Is Still Able to Smile

BATON ROUGE, LA. — Sidney Woods, farmer living near here, has been blue for the last seven years.

His body lost its natural color after he took silver nitrate for a stomach ailment. During warm weather the blue tone is intensified by the heat.

Woods has become accustomed to his condition and even declined to take a treatment which might have restored him to normal. There was, however, a chance that instead of being successful, the treatment would have left him with several other colors.

His temperament is cheerful and he's used to being questioned about the change. Woods held a public position at the time of his illness, but quit because his new appearance frightened people.

PRINCESS, FORMER
COED, QUITS GUM,
CHEWS BETEL NUT

Education of Moro Girl at University an Experiment That Failed.

JOLO, SULU, P. I.—Princess Tarhata Atik Kiram, whose education at the University of Illinois was an experiment that failed, apparently is not sorry she declined to help speed the change in civilization for 300,000 Moros in the Sulu archipelago.

American lipstick, fur coats, football games and evening dresses are things of the past to the princess,
who was to have been a "missionary"
in the westernization of the Filipino Mohammedans.

She is living alone in apparent contentment in a simple dwelling on Jolo island like thousands of other Moros. She refuses to be questioned about her collegiate interlude in America in the early 1920s.

Sarongs Replace Skirts.
Her short skirts from Urbana have been replaced by Moro sarongs. She has abandoned chewing gum for betel nut, which has blackened her filed teeth.

The Americanization of the princess was the idea of Frank W. Carpenter, then governor of the Department of Mindanao and Sulu of the Philippine government. He sent Tarhata, still in her teens, to Manila for preliminary education.

In the hope that education by example would hasten the transition of the Moros from their warlike ways, Governor Carpenter sent the princess to Illinois. She was accompanied by Miss Carmen Agui-naldo, daughter of the Philippine revolutionary leader, Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo.

Has Second Native Husband.
Tarahata abandoned her American civilization in record time when she returned to Sulu and the experiment has never been tried again.
Western ways are seeping into the Moro civilization, but gradually.

Princess Tarhata is living with her second husband, Datu Buyon-gan. She divorced her first husband, Datu Tahil, while he was in prison for sedition. She is the only wife of Datu Buyongan. Datu Tahil was a polygamist.

ODOR WAVE MACHINE
LEADS TO COON DEN

Also Smells Out Diseases, or What Have You?

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C.—Luther Shipman is planning to revolutionize the smelling-out industry—and all because his coon dog's nose was not as keen as it might have been. Shipman came in from an all-night hunt one time, coonless, tired and with failing faith in old Rover.

With a flower pot-stand, the rim of an auto headlight, a number of flashlights, Luke set about inventing himself a machine which, he vows, will smell out the varmint in his lair.

And from that to the now perfected and versatile "Odor Wave machine" was only a matter of a few steps and a few dozen batteries.
The finished product is designed not only to track down wild critters, but also to ferret out humans—both the quick and the dead—and also discover metals and other objects.

Detects Human Ills.
Everything has its odor, and even odor has its wave length, argues Luther Shipman. Standing upon the horizon of a scented world, Shipman noted more fields of service.

Thus was born the idea of smelling out the various ills suffered by mankind. His machine first smelled out his father's kidney trouble, and from this humble beginning, Luke's machine discovered that nearby neighbors (many of them all unsuspecting the fact) had catarrh, cancer, tuberculosis, etc.

His machine now has 76 smelling cells, each with its own battery. In addition to locating the elusive coon and its success in diagnosis, Shipman says it recently located some old guns for a man.

Police authorities are overlooking a potent aid in the machine. Shipman now has a battery which he says can locate dead people. It is,
he explains gravely, a dead battery.

After months of patient work, the odor wave contraption has been improved both in precision and distance. The inventor claims it is accurate up to a distance of 7,850 miles—there is a mileage indicator on the thing to convince skeptics.

DON'T BE CAUGHT.

Prefacing some reasonable advice on common sense ways of avoiding colds, with the remark that it is a mistake to say you "catch" a cold, Dr. R. H. Hiley, Director of the State Department of Health, added "As a matter of fact the cold catches you when you are not up to the mark, physically. Therefore:

1—Keep yourself as physically fit as possible. Eat nourishing food. Have your meals at regular times. Avoid rich, indigestible combinations. Include plenty of milk, other dairy products and fruit in your diet. Remember to drink plenty of water—several glasses during the day, every day.

2—Dress according to the weather. Add a sweater to your outfit, or a heavy coat when the frosty days come. Avoid sudden chilling. Don't expose yourself unnecessarily to draughts. Don't sit around in wet clothing. If you are caught in a drenching downpour, change to dry clothing, including shoes and stockings, as soon as possible.

3—Take some outdoor exercise every day. Be out in the sunlight as much as possible. If you have a job that keeps you indoors most of the day, you will find it pays to spend a few minutes two or three times a day, at an open window, flushing your breathing apparatus with fresh air. Hold your head up, and learn to breathe deeply.

4—Get plenty of sleep. Have a good time but don't have it too strenuously. Strike a balance between work and play. Don't fool yourself into thinking you can play at all hours of the day or night, day after day; snatch a few hours sleep, and be entirely fit, physically, and ready for your profession, your job, or for school, or household duties, when morning comes.

5—Colds are spread by the discharges from the nose and throat. Every time the victim of a cold has a coughing spell, germ-laden droplets of mucus are brought to the surface and spread around. Every sneeze throws germ-laden spray into the air. Avoid these hazards. Don't mingle unnecessarily with persons who have colds. You can show your sympathy in other ways.

FREDERICK FAIR BIG SUCCESS.

The Frederick City Fair, this year, was a success, financially.

With the best attendance of a decade and with receipts exceeding by about $3,000 those of a year ago, the Fair just past is expected to show one of the most favorable balance-sheets in a good many years. While a definite report cannot be made until all expenses have been listed, the belief has been expressed that profits of the 1938 exhibition may reach $10,000.

Mayor Lloyd C. Culler, president of the Fair Association, said he hoped for the profit of the Fair to be near the figure. A year ago the Fair showed net profits of $7,107.80.

He Chose His General Manager Out of Forty Applicants

...THEN HE MADE AN INEXPERIENCED FRIEND HIS EXECUTOR

Of those who served him in life he demanded the highest efficiency. Yet strangely enough, he did not seem to think that the one who would manage his affairs after his death need be of high business caliber.

Choose YOUR Executor with no less care than you do your living lieutenants. Our experienced, permanent Trust organization would assure you of performance that no individual could equal.

WE HAVE MONEY TO LEND FOR Seasonal Needs

One of the sound purposes for which businessmen borrow is to buy stocks of seasonal merchandise. This is an ideal type of bank loan—one which we are always glad to make to qualified borrowers.

If your plans for the fall or winter include the purchase of new goods, and if you can profitably employ bank credit for this purpose, come in and see us about a loan.
