CHILDREN'S AID CAMPAIGN NEARING END.

There remains but today and tomorrow for you to do your part if you have not as yet contributed to the Children's Aid Society Campaign Fund. The committees of the Society have been doing their utmost to make this another successful year and the contributions have been encouraging, but more funds are needed if we are to properly and ade-quately take care of the needs and necessities of our underprivileged children for the coming year.

Help us get these less fortunate children on the turn upstream; on the right side of the battle line. Remember that it is much easier to form proper habits when they are young than it is to reform them lat-If you haven't contributed, won't you do so before the Campaign closes tomorrow?

Each year the schools have a 5c day, at which time, the children are asked to bring a 5c contribution for the Children's Aid Society. This has proved very successful and the students seem to enjoy doing this for those less fortunate than themselves. Snydersburg School was the first to send their contributions in, and Lowe School was the second. It is hoped that all of the schools will respond before the close of the drive.

At the close of the worship period, the long-time accustomed invitation was given, for the whole congregation to retire to the social hall of the church, where dinner was cheerfully served to about 200, who thorougly enjoyed this good fellowship meal together, hospitality extended to them, by this old reputable congregation of the Brethren at Meadow Branch.

street and highway as an accident center, officials of the National Conservation Bureau report after a study of fatalities and injuries on the home

"Even after basements and yards have been cleared of rubbish, injuryprovoking obstructions removed from stairs and floors, and defective chimneys or flues repaired, the home can remain an unsafe place in which to live," warns Julien H. Harvey, managing director of the Bureau.

"Falls, burns, bruises and electric shocks may mean that a house is full of unremoved hazards, but they may also mean that little attention has been paid to avoiding such hazards as do exist," he adds. "Like the motorist who knows certain road stretches are dangerous and drives accordingly, parents and children can learn to keep out of trouble zones.

"It is doubtful if a house can ever be made entirely accident-proof, no matter how painstakingly material hazards are eliminated. But the adult as well as the youngster can contrib-ute to accident avoidance by reasonable habits of caution and an intelligent appreciation of possible risk. Part of safety can be built into a structure, but the rest must be built into the mind."

Urging exceptional care to ward off fires, now that fireplaces are in use in many homes, Mr. Harvey points out that, contrary to popular opinion, the bathroom with is slippery tub is not the most dangerous place at home. Nearly one out of four home accidents are reported to occur on stairs and steps, with the yard and kitchen closely following.—Safety Clips Service.

One of the big news items of the week is the announcement that Turkey has signed an agreement to aid France and England, against Ger-many, except in case of war in which England and France attacks Russia, then Turkey would remain neutral. It is now feared that the Turkish accord agreement may cause Italy to enter into war on the side of Ger-many, and should this happen, then Turkey, Greece and Roumania would be against Italy. England and France seem to applaud the new pact as be-ing in their favor.

THREE R.'S FOR CHILDREN.

Children brought up according to the three R's of mouth health, have a good chance to escape the discom-forts and accompanying ill-health that come from dental disorders, according to Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department

"This season of the year, when the children are getting adjusted to school routine, is a particularly appropriate time," Dr. Leonard said, "to give special thought to the physical as well as the mental aspects of a child's development. The child who is physically fit makes much better progress in school, than does the boy or girl who is below par. PEACE AT OUR PRICE.

Wars are not limited to the destruction of life and property; they are not always between Nations nor for acquiring more territorial area. A contest of any kind in which strength and skill are vieing, represent a battle

There may be a war of words; rivalry between minds; races to win, ends to gain. We may call our contests "a business," and our games "feats of skill", but the war spirit attends all of them -warfare without actual blood-

Business and endeavor of all kinds represents, pretty generally, a species of warfare in which the strong overcomes the weak. We want peace but do not always fairly strive for it. What a wonderful world this would be if we could have "Peace and Good Will Toward Men" dominating all of our acts. P. B. E.

There are exuberant characters who are adept in the making of this delicacy and spread it on thickly, perhaps with the best of intentions-but, they are injudicions, to say the least.

They not only embarrass the receiver, but raise the ticklish questionwhat is to be done in such cases for there is hardly ever one plain solution of it? It is very proper to give credit where credit is due, but not be so fulsome in doing it.

WHAT OF ENGLAND'S NAVAL SUPREMACY?

If all newspaper reports are correct, it begins to look as though England's naval supremacy over Germany, is not so sure. Evidently, the latter has been steadily preparing for war, while the former was engaged in trying to bring about peace.

In fact Germany has been preparing for war ever since the close of the World War, and during this period has no doubt greatly strengthened the navy-its submarines, and its bombing planes too.

Battle ships and other heavily armed craft once represented naval strength, but not so surely now. It assembling a large invading army. Canada, for instance, does not appear to be sending many thousands "over there" and other British dependencies seem to show the same lack of speed, which gives to German readiness a big advantage—as news reports appear to show. While peace parleys were taking up time. Germany kept on with its main job-preparedness.

TAX AND SPEND.

The following paragraph appeared in an editorial service this week-another "estimate" among the many being circulated.

"It is estimated that government in this country is taxing at the rate of $26,600 and spending at the rate of $36,150 during 1939.

Admittedly, we tax for this purpose. Government is not a free actuality. It could not possibly be; but taxing within reason and spending within income represents what a reasonably curious public expects- nancially. Like many another State, but does not always get.

THE PATHFINDER, ON THE PEACE-WAR QUESTION.

The Pathfinder is an able and sprightly little weekly magazine with more than a million subscribers. It does not "put on airs" but is printed on news-print paper and speaks in understandable language minus of frills, and mostly very much to the point.

Of course, like all good people and good agencies, it stands for PEACE, as against WAR. It says, in an article in its Oct. 14 issue-

"At this point, it should be made clear that the United States is of course not in any immediate danger of involvement in the European war. The President, the Secretary of State, and the whole executive branch of our government are all as one with members of Congress in wanting to keep America clear of the fire overseas. Naturally, there are differences of opinion as to just how this should be done, and that is why our Senators and Representatives are currently engaged in a history-making debate on the problem of neutrality. It may confidently be stated, however, that what Congress eventually decides will be decided with wisdom and for the best interests of the people as a whole. Whether it lifts the arms embargo or not, whether it applies the cash-and-carry principle or not, is really not germane to this appeal. This move by us for a mass vote against war has nothing whatever to do with that argument; it is concerned solely with the fundamental problem of maintaining a mood for peace in this country, irrespective of where the public's sympathies are."

And following this it carries a ballot headed-"I vote against War,"

"I join Pathfinder in a plea that the government of the United States make every effort humanly possible to safeguard itself against involve-ment in the European war. This action on my part has nothing whatever to do with the current neutrality debate. I am simply against war. I am against America's entry into war, and this is my way of saying so. I shall be frateful to you if you tell my Senators just how I feel."

The popular concept of a Communism more deeply rooted in America than even some of the most ardent so-called red-baiters believed.

But, it seems to us that the Pathfinder does not give sure advice as to how America is to proceed, in order to prevent war. We have not yet been able to find any argument, or policy, that will surely do this.

Congress is divided-not on whether it wants peace, or war-but on ways the most likely to bring peace about, and on this there are widely diverging opinions. Perhaps only Adolf Hitler has the answer?

DOUBTFUL ACCURACY.

We strongly doubt the correctness of the following paragraph clipped from a publication that comes to our

"There was less unemployment in August than in any month since December, 1937, the National Industrial Conference Board reported. From an estimated 9,852,000 persons in July, the number of jobless fell to 9,424,000 in August—a decline of 4.3 per cent."

No doubt this purports to represent close estimate, but as the present unemployed represents only a decline of 4.3 percent in a total of near 10,-000,000 persons it seems to us that the item might be taken as a guess to show the favorable operation of a present hoped for effect.

There are men holding down govthrough favorable reports. We ad-"guess" to father a hope.

STATE FINANCES CLAIMED TO BE IMPROVING.

Annapolis, October 17-That the entire country is interested in Maryland's successful efforts to 'put her financial house in order' is evidenced by an article that appears in this appears too, that Britain is slow in month's issue of 'State Government', he national publication of the Council of State Governments, lauding the State's recent 'all-time-high' achievement in its sale of State debentures.

Published following inquiries to Governor Herbert R. O'Conor as to the underlying causes of the high price yield, the article says that these Maryland bonds, instead of being 'As Good as U.S. Government Bonds" might reasonably be held to be better, because on the day on which they were sold, at the all-time-low interest rate for the State of 1.24 per cent, Government bonds of comparable nature were costing the Federal Treasury one-quarter per cent more in interest annually than were the Mary-

Under the pressure of continuing deficits in tax-yields, and increasing demands for public assistance, gasoline tax receipts had been diverted to purposes of general state needs, instead of to the roads construction and maintenance for which they were intended by law; borrowing to meet current State expenses had not only been resorted to, but had become custom; little or no attempt had been to balance the budget, and the general disposition would seem to have been to let future generations worry about such things, rather than to attempt corrective measures now."

To complete the picture of Maryland's splendid financial condition, the article could have mentioned (except that it went to press too early) the statement by Governor O'Conor regarding the $3,900,000 surplus enjoyed by the State as of the close of its fiscal year, September 30, and his even more important declaration that, judging from current tax receipts, the 1940-1941 budget would be balanced, with something to spare, barring entirely unexpected developments.

THE MORE DEADLY OF THE SPECIES.

Congressman Martin Dies, head of the Congressional Committee investigating subversive elements in America, has indicated that omer than 2,000 Communists may soon be removed from the Federal payroll. And Americans have applauded.

But in the midst of the enthusiasm over such a prospect perhaps the full import of the disclosure that this many "Reds" were holding Government jobs has been overlooked.

It is of tremendous import, not because it represents several million dollars a year out of the taxpayers' pocket for their salary, but because it reveals Communism more deeply

AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY.

It's high time the United States began to put its domestic affairs in order. A good way to begin, as has been pointed out by Philip A. Benson, President of the American Bankers Association, is by declaring a moratorium on radical legislation, bureaucratic excesses and industrial strife. 'Pump priming" and deficit financing will have to cease-the Federal budget will have to be balanced. The fallacious theory that America is through growing and expanding must be junked, along with the widely culernment jobs that they hope to be tivated belief that "the world owes us permanent, consequently there is a a living." The world owes nobody a temptation to prove their worth living. Either this country will tighten its belt and go back to work in a mit that this is a mere possibility, and same manner, or it will sink into the no more but it is possible to make a category of a decayed power with its people crushed under a political au-

Private enterprise and the labors of free men in the hope of individual profit, developed our country into a mighty nation with undisputed right to the title of the world's highest standard of living for the greatest number of people. History has proved that vital liberties-religious, political and economic-must go hand in hand with free enterprise. They are far more than idealistic luxuries. They are literally necessities.

A steady trend over the world toward abolishment of free enterprise has finally resulted in what we see abroad, subjugation of the individual to the state. And make no mistake, the same trend threatens our liberties and free enterprise in this country.

That is why it is imperative that America awaken. Our liberties must be maintained. To do that, we must maintain private enterprise. And to quote Mr. Benson again: "To continue to have a system of free enterprise, capital (savings) must flow in a natural course from private investors into private enterprises. We symptoms have got to release the creative forces of capital and industry if we are to keep our freedom."-Indus-

PUBLIC RESENTMENT THE ONLY CURB.

Since the World War, Great Britain's national debt increased only $2,000,000,000, up to the end of last

In the nine years since depression struck the United States, the national debt has increased more than $25,-000,000,000

In those two sets of figures you see vividly illustrated the magnitude and gravity of our debt problem. No nation in the world has been so prodigal as we in spending what we have not earned. In no nation has the not earned. In no nation has the national debt—which means a mortgage against all that we have, and all that may be produced by our children—soared so rapidly or so high.

Worst of all, the debt problem grows more menacing every day. The national budget is almost as far out of belance were as it was early in of balance now as it was early in the depression. In spite of the highest and greatest number of taxes in our national history the Federal Government continues to spend billions more than it receives in revenue each

It is obvious that we can expect no help from the politicians—they will spend and spend and spend as long as the voters acquiesce. The solution must come from public rebellion against wasteful spending. There must be an end to Federal competi-tion with business and financing projects which are purely local and ten years ago would have been paid for with local money. There must be an end to grab-bag tactics by counties, municipalities, states. There must be an end to the insane delusion that we can get something for nothing.— Industrial News Review.

Red Cross Nurse Reserve at Peak

Disaster Service, Home Nursing, Health Education, Keep Thousands Busy

Washington.-The Red Cross reserve of registered nurses qualified for immediate duty is stronger than ever before, Miss Mary Beard, director of the American Red Cross nursing services, announced.

"We now have a first reserve of 15,000 unmarried nurses under 40 years of age available for duty with the Army, Navy or government nursing services and subject to call by the Red Cross for disaster work," she said. This is 700 more than any previous first reserve registration."

Miss Beard pointed out that the increase has been gradual and that only registered nurses meeting rigid requirements of training and physical fitness are enrolled. All classes of nurse reservists, including nurses now employed by the Red Cross, bring the reserve corps total to 44,283. During the World War of 1914-18 the American Red Cross mustered nearly 20,000 nurses for duty with Army, Navy and Red Cross hospitals, at home and overseas.

"Maintenance of the Nurses Reserve is provided by our charter and is in line with Red Cross policies of prevention and preparedness, but the peacetime work of our nurses is equally important," Miss Beard said.

The director explained that more than 2,000 nurses, chiefly home hygiene and care of the sick instructors, were regularly engaged in visiting the sick, aiding physicians in examining school children, conducting inoculation programs to stamp out contagious illness, launching trial nursing services in outof-the-way communities, and carrying on important health education work to qualify family groups to care for sickness at home.

All nurses who are needed for Red Cross nursing activities are drawn from the Red Cross reserve of qualified nurses, Miss Beard said.

Last year Red Cross public health nurses made more than one million visits on behalf of the sick and gave skilled care to 272,729 persons.

Last year, in schools and clinics, nurses cooperated with physicians in examining 595,575 children, and aided in the task of correcting defects. Children examined were enrolled for the most part in rural schools where this type of preventive service is rare. There are 655 Red Cross nurses engaged in this work in 477 communities. In the field of health education, Red Cross nurses have instructed more than 1,000,000 family members since 1914 in how to care for the sick at home and have set new standards of hygiene for the family. Last year the Nursing Service held 4,505 classes in home hygiene and care of the sick and awarded certificates to 61,296 persons who passed examinations on the sub-Jects taught.

"Because the nucleus of all Red Cross nursing activity is our nurses' reserve, it is a source of great satisfaction that each month the list of applicants increases," Miss Beard said.

This service to the public is supported by the men and women who join as members of the Red Cross, through their local Chapters, during the Roll Call, November 11 to 30.

Bleak Finland Celebrates Flower Day Each Spring

It is so common to think of Finland as a bleak and barren land of the north that many visitors are greatly surprised to find Flower day, May 13, one of the most popular of Finnish holidays. It is a day when all Helsinki turns out to celebrate and the city is literally covered with thousands of geraniums, hydran-geas, fuchsias, pansies, violets and poppies. Housewives fill their windows with flower pots and hang wreathes of brightly colored blos-soms over their doors, while the university students and school children hold processions and singing festivals, all marked by lavish floral decorations. The day is historically the anniversary of the Finnish national anthem's first public performance, so that choral singing, for which the Finns are as famous as for their running, plays a big part in the celebration. The anthem is nearly a hundred years old now, and is dear to the heart of every Finn. Its words tell of the indomitable spirit of Finland in overcoming her natural poverty:

"Our land is poor, as all can tell, For those who seek but gold."

The visitor is bound to admit that if the country has little gold in its hills it suffers from no lack of golden buttercups, marigold, and nasturtiums upon their surface. For in addition to the boatloads of cultivat-ed cut flowers which are sold any spring or summer morning in the famous marketplace in Helsinki, the rural fields and woods are full of gay wild blossoms from May till August.

It is a curious fact that with all his love for flowers of every kind the modern Finn seldom sends any at all to a funeral. A movement has been under way for several years which provides a home for the aged from contributions made by those who, instead of buying flowers for a funeral, send their money to the foundation in charge of the

Assails Eyebrow-Shaving As Detrimental to Vision

Don't shave your eyebrows, ladies, if you would see better as well as look better. This bit of beauty advice is offered by no less an authority than Mr. Perc Westmore, famous Hollywood make-up expert. According to Mr. Westmore, when too much of the eyebrow is plucked away, the eye is deprived of one method of protection against excess light from the sun or artificial illumination. It is thus more subject to eyestrain and defective sight due to glare.

It is interesting to note the number of protective devices which have been provided for the eyes, observes Better Vision institute. The efficiency of each is nature's way of proving the importance of our seeing apparatus. For example, the eye, seeing an object approaching, closes almost instantaneously. Then, too, nature has provided the deep, bony socket into which the eye is fitted and the covering of lashes and eyebrows to protect the precious organ. Other forms of nervous protective development are the extreme sensitiveness of the surface of the eyeball and the expansion and contraction of the pupil in order to control the amount of light entering the eye.

'Scientific' Baseball is Yellow The astonished batter who sees vellow spots before his eyes will not be the victim of a hallucination. He will simply be looking at one of the latest examples of Twentieth century progress—the "scientific" baseball, which is a bright, lemon-yellow in color According to its sponsors, this new baseball has greater visibility when soaring through the air. Future "Caseys," they claim, will be in a better position to get the "first whack" instead of being 'whacked'' by speed balls. A yellow object moving through the air is more easily discerned than is a white object. The color also affords greater contrast with the ball-field background. Reports received by the Better Vision institute state that the new baseball may be used in this season's games upon the agreement of the ball clubs.

Pacific Trees Famous

The trees of Oregon have been used not only in the construction of great edifices and in the building of ships, but in counsels of war, in treaties, in judiciary proceedings, in courtships, in death; they even have been used as safety deposit vaults. Romance attaches to the ornamental and orchard trees, brought to Oregon by the saga-making pioneers in covered-wagon days. Science has been interested in Oregon's age-old trees, prehistoric giants, submerged beneath the waters of lakes and rivers; the fossilized trees of primordial forests.

Petrified Trees

Petrified trees are numerous throughout Oregon, being found in the Columbia river gorge, along the John Day, the Deschutes and the Ochoco rivers. The fossil remains of a ginko, popular as a temple tree in northern China, have been found near Tanner creek, which empties into the Columbia gorge. Within a few miles of the town of Prineville, is a petrified forest of giant sequoia trees that, according to some scientists, were overthrown by a cataclysm of nature in bygone ages.

Scientists Map De Soto Trail

Ethnologists Work for 20 Years Tracing Route of Spanish Captain.

WASHINGTON.—The 400-year-old trail of Hernando de Soto-first white man to penetrate the interior of America—has been mapped by ethnologists of the Smithsonian institution.

The ethnologists spent 20 years tracing the Spanish captain and his little expedition from the east Florida coast to northern Mexico. It took De Soto three years to make the journey that men now make by air in six hours.

The task of trailing De Soto, which historians had held was impossible because of the few records of the journey, was performed by Dr. John R. Swanton, chairman of the U. S. De Soto Expedition commission in preparation for the 400th anniversary of the expedition.

Dr. Swanton directed a staff of assistants that included Miss Caroline Dormon, of Chestnut, La., and Col. John R. Fordyce, of Little Rock, Ark. Colonel Fordyce died recently, soon after completion of his long and arduous task.

Changes Blur History.

During the four centuries that have passed since the Spanish captain landed on the Florida coast and undertook his expedition, the countryside has undergone profound changes. The last speakers of the tongues of some of the savage tribes he encountered have died.

No accurate journal was kept of the 1,500-mile trip. The trail had to be pieced together from scanty records and diaries of members of the party. These sometimes differ. The expedition moved through an unmapped and unknown territory. Names of rivers and other landmarks differ from one source to an-

Dr. Swanton concludes his report with a tribute to De Soto:

"We are paying tribute to an enterprise which has important historic, ethnologic and archeologic meanings for the people of the United States as a whole. We are paying tribute also to an enterprise which, in spite of its coarser aspects, did not lack something of knightly character, a theater for the display of real virtues albeit virtues of the sterner and harsher type.

Compared With Cortez. "In the leader of the expedition we have no Galahad, but one who, by the standards of his time and country, compared favorably with Cortez, Pizarro and other similar "His courage was unquestioned, his skill tested over and over again in the most difficult situations, and the cruelties in which he, like all of his contemporaries, indulged ap-

Kleber's Sword Is Back In the Town of Belfort

BELFORT, FRANCE. - After a century and a half, the sword of General Kleber, celebrated French military chief under Napoleon, has been returned to Belfort by American generosity and is now being shown in the exposition of relics of the French revolution.

Alfred Pardee, an American collector of Napoleonic historical objects, now residing in Cannes, is the present owner of Kleber's sword. He lent it for the exposition.

The sword was presented to Kleber in 1795 by the citizens of Belfort, and he kept it with him until 1860, when he was assassinated by a Mameluke in Egypt. The sword passed on to his heirs, but finally became the property of Pardee.

We spent last Wednesday at the Woman's Missionary Convention in Hagerstown, and it was a great meeting—in attendance, in funds, and speakers. 'Twas very pleasant to meet many good friends again, and be counted one of "The old Guard" Let counted one of "The old Guard." Let me tell you the theme of Dr. A. R. He said he found three things of beauty to he found three things of beauty in the far east: "God's Hand in Nature"—and gave a thrilling description of a Sun-rise, two miles up on the Himalayan mountains, "Man's handiwork in architecture"—as found in the Taj Mahal that marvelous memorial structure to the best-loved wife of an Emporer, so beautiful no words can really describe it—but he gave a fine explanation; but best of all—"What God can make of human lives"—then told of the faithful work and influence of the Missionaries and the native converts in the mission fields

Here is an item of interest for our many friends who visited New York this season. "Ellis Island, the port of admittance for thousands of immigrants to this country, was originally an oyster dinner spot for the Dutch citizens who used to row over to be fed by the proprietor, Samuel Ellis."

We've had several long drives lately and wish we had the pen of an Artist to portray our wonderful country at this changing season. The trees with various colored leaves looked like huge bouquet set among the green pines and all aglow with glory when the Sun shone on them. hard to believe other mountains are beautiful as the Blue Ridge—so well timbered and majestic, with grass, moss, or flowers beneath; the clear mountain streams, the great rocks and occasional glimpses of green meadows or wheat fields beyond, and the valleys between with sleek cattle grazing, and dotted with thrifty homes. And now a lot_of folks are off to the Hagerstown Fair and can see it all by the way.

Powers Depend On Battleships

Monster Fighting Vessels Made Less Vulnerable To Air Attacks.

WASHINGTON.—Despite the new factor of air power in naval warfare, battleships still are believed to be the backbone of the navy in every "big navy" country of the world. A survey shows that although Great Britain has the largest navy, her shipyards are working night and day to increase the number of her capital ships by about 50 per cent. The same is true of France, except that France seeks to add even more, about 90 per cent.

Italy's shipyards are found to be working to double the number of her battleships. The German navy seeks to add about half again as many as that country now has.

Less Vulnerable to Attacks.

The great strides that have been made in recent years to make such ships less vulnerable to attacks from the air are believed a prime reason for this situation, Rear Admiral William C. Watts, new commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, asserts.

This surge of reliance on the largest of the fighting ships is even more significant when the rising cost of these great floating fortresses is considered.

According to Capt. Jonas Ingram of the United States navy, "Of all combatant ships the battleship is the only one designed to stay and 'take it.' Nothing else is tough enough." For that reason, battleships must keep pace with the increasing effectiveness of shellfire and aerial bombs. Regardless of cost they must have such heavy armor and so many separate watertight compartments that they are virtually unsinkable.

Cost Mounting Steadily.

The battleships the United States is building today each cost 16 times as much as the American battleships built 30 years ago, and the cost is steadily mounting. The total tonnage of the latest type of American battleship under construction is 45,000 tons. Its main batteries will carry 16-inch guns, and its anti-aircraft guns have been upped in caliber from three inches to five inches.

It has been predicted by military authorities that naval action would probably decide a war in which Germany and Italy opposed Britain, France, and Poland.

In total tonnage the side of the British and French empires is overwhelmingly superior to the dictator powers. Britain's giant armada totals 2,079,863 tons and France, with the second largest navy in Europe, has 815,000 tons. The tiny Polish navy is reported to amount to 16,500 tons, or one-third the tonnage of a single modern battleship.

build the navy she lost after the World war, has 541,023 tons. Thus the empire powers have almost a 5 to 2 superiority over the dictator powers in tonnage. Even if Russia should add her 290,589 tons to the German-Italian side, the Britain-France combination would be superior by nearly two to one.

Youthful Art Is Good,

Asserts Head of Museum PITTSBURGH. - The youth of America is turning out some pretty good art these days, according to Dr. Andrey Avinoff, art connoisseur and director of the Carnegie museum. Dr. Avinoff has been studying art produced by high school students for several years. He's a member of the jury which judges the annual exhibition of art by secondary school students sponsored by a national magazine.

"I began to notice these young people sometimes produce work that approaches remarkable perfection," he said. "Some have a precocious ability on the borderland of the inspired, comparable in many ways, with professional artists.

"America," he said, "has produced more fine art by its youth than any other country in the world. It is a fountain of youth, a brilliant outburst of talent. These American young people have extraordinary ability.

The Russian-born scientist practices what he preaches. He already has purchased 40 paintings, prints and drawings for his private collection of American art by adolescent youth.

'The Old Maid' Is

'The Old Maid" allows an unescorted girl to cut in on a dancing couple. The three continue to dance together, the man in the middle with his arms around the waists of the two girls. The three take their steps in the same direction—something like a chorus routine.

Lights of New York by L. L. STEVENSON

It wasn't so long ago in New York that: Fifty-second street's nightclub district became excited over swing music. "What is it?" asked the public. Most practitioners couldn't define it. Now swing seems to be on the wane after several years of being dinned into public consciousness.

It wasn't so long ago that: James J. Braddock won a 15-round decision and the heavyweight title from Max Baer in New York. Today both are practically out of the active fisticuff picture while a young Negro named Joe Louis is taking on all comers and vanquishing them as he did Braddock and Baer.

It wasn't so long ago that: Women on Fifth avenue started to wear hats like inverted peach baskets. Today feminine headgear in the metropolis ranges from disclike creations no larger than an ordinary penny to wide-brimmed hats which allow one woman at a time to use a regular sized elevator.

It wasn't so long ago that: "Tobacco Road" was put on the stage in New York. Today after a run of more than six years, with three major changes in the top "Jeeter Lester" role, it is still attracting theater trade.

It wasn't so long ago that: Bank holiday; were generally declared throughout the nation. Today, judging by the financial appearance of many New Yorkers, it is still a bank holiday as far as they are concerned.

It wasn't so long ago that: The dual bill got started in film houses and Marie Dressler was rated the best box-office draw. Today, there are loud complaints about double features and Marie Dressler has passed on.

It wasn't so long ago that: New York was dotted with miniature golf courses. Today there is nary a sight of one but after watching some duffers on regular courses it's hard to understand why they didn't stick to miniature golf.

It wasn't so long ago that: The Wall street market began to break with $15,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 vanishing into thin air, and practically every one who had been caught vowing never to play with stocks again. Today more than half of them are dabbling in Wall

It wasn't so long ago that: Edgar Bergen was advertising in theatrical papers that he was signed up with RKO but his ads had hardly a mention of Charlie McCarthy. Today, Charlie McCarthy gets all the top billing although Bergen still collects the money.

It wasn't so long ago that: Blase New Yorkers thrilled to flagpole sitting, a craze for producing records of some sort. With it, the name of Shipwreck Kelly bounced into the headlines. Today flagpole sitting seems to have become a lost art.

It wasn't so long ago that: C. C. Pyle launched his bunion derby, a marathon walking contest in Manhattan. Today Pyle, ace promoter, is dead and so are walking marathons.

It wasn't so long ago that "Peaches" Browning was appearing in vaudeville. Today she's an heiress and a member of cafe society.

It wasn't so long ago that: money-making films were "Judge Priest" with Will Rogers, and "Dinner at Eight" with Marie Dressler and Jean Harlow. The pictures can still be revived but the stars are gone forever.

3,200-Mile Trip to Arctic

Is Goal of Two Canoeists

MINNEAPOLIS.—Two Minnesota outdoor enthusiasts are paddling their way through the Canadian wilds on a 3,200-mile canoe trip to the Arctic region's land of the midnight sun

The pair, traveling through country rarely seen by white men, are Dr. B. F. Ederer, Morris, Minn., former secretary of the Minnesota conservation commission, and Robert C. Bradley, Minneapolis highschool student.

The two planned to travel through the Arctic regions, expecting to reach Juneau, Alaska, about September 15. They set off from Edmonton, Alta., with their trip mapped through the Great Slave lake, and up the Mackenzie river to Fort McPherson on the Arctic ocean. The trip will take Ederer and Bradley through territories occupied by six distinct tribes of Indians and Eskimos. Indian guides will lead the canoeists most of the journey. The men are unarmed and depend Desire for Narcotics FORT WORTH, TEXAS.-Music has power to soothe human desire for narcotics, officials of the U.S. public health service hospital here believe.

To aid the 300 patients at the institution, Dr. W. F. Ossenfort, chief medical officer, announced, the hospital has ordered an "adequate supply of musical instruments including brass, reed and string types."

The civil service commission has advertised a competitive examination for a musical director for the hospital.

Fort Bliss to Be Army School

Will Expand Reservation as Laboratory for Big Problems.

EL PASO, TEXAS.—A vast cavalry laboratory of 51,300 acres for U. S. army training will be added to the Fort Bliss military reservation here under an authorization act passed by congress and signed by President Roosevelt.

An army land acquisition board is expected to survey the area within the next few weeks for selection of the acreage to be purchased as the first step in an expansion of the post. The proposed enlargement under the present authorization act would extend the military boundaries north and east to include terrain which is ideal for cavalry ma-

Terrain Considered Ideal.

This area was selected for the enlargement program, which it is hoped ultimately will comprise 150,-000 acres in Texas and 350,000 in New Mexico, because of military advantages not as easily obtainable in other sections of the country. Scattered population, accessibility to water and forage, climatic conditions and proximity to rail and highway were considered in the selection.

Although exact outlines of the authorized 51,300-acre acquisition await determination by the army land board, the area will include mountainous regions, foothills and level terrain-providing all types of land conditions for use in cavalry movement as well as for reconnaisance and scouting. Thus the territory will provide tactical officers with a vast laboratory for working out cavalry problems.

The scattered population of the desert area will enable long range firing practice for artillery and troops as well as bombing and ground strafing ranges for army air-

Further Extension Sought.

Chamber of commerce officials here, under the leadership of W. H. Peterson, president, and Capt. E. H. Simons, secretary, have pressed congressional and war department officials for enactment of the expansion plan. They hope within the next few years to encourage further land purchases by the federal government for enlarging Fort Bliss for an additional 500,000 acres. The land in New Mexico, of the same type as that to be acquired under the present authorization act, is largely federal and state domain and could be acquired at a relatively nominal cost, Peterson said.

With the post enlargement, the chamber of commerce head sees a probable increase in the number of officers and men stationed at Fort Bliss, strategically located on the Mexican border halfway between the Pacific coast and the Gulf of Peterson's present goal is a full corps of cavalry, whose mobility on the trackless desert along the border has not yet been proved inferior to any other armed branch, including mechanized forces. Ultimately he hopes to see a concentration of U. S. cavalry tactical schools at the site of the vast field laboratory.

'Don't Go Near Tracks;'

Betty Does, Stops Train GRAND BAY, N. B.—Mrs. Jensen's three-year-old daughter, Betty, had been warned repeatedly not to go near the railway tracks. So straight to the railroad tracks went Betty, and stood in the middle of them until she stopped a slow freight. The engineer and the trainman got off and walked up to her. "Get off the tracks and don't ever stand on them again or something terrible will happen to you," they told her.

For an answer Betty said: "Waaa!" and held her ground. They had to pick her up and carry her off the tracks.

Sweden Increases Sales Of Prefabricated Houses

STOCKHOLM.—Sweden is exporting the prefabricated houses which have steadily increased in popularity among its own people in the last few years. Official figures show that production increased from 1,546 units in 1933 to more than 5,000 in 1938. Two main classes are manufactured. One is the light summer cottage type. The other is the fully timbered house, manufactured in all types, including bungalow, cottage and villa for which cement and brick foundations are required.

Works for 50 Years Without a Vacation

Railroader, in All That Time, Has No Day Off.

KANSAS CITY, MO .- John J. Shine, who has sold railroad tickets to vacationers for a half century, is going to take a vacation.

It will be his first since he came to Kansas City from Carroll county, Mo., in 1889 to start selling tickets in the old Union depot.

He's now division passenger agent for the Wabash railroad, and the management of that line finally got tired of Shine's perennial "no" to vacation offers. He hadn't even taken a day off for sickness or any other cause since he first became a railroader. His "bosses" commanded his retirement, effective this Oc-

But for 50 years he has thought about other people's vacation plans, although during the early years of his career of ticket selling-before the turn of the century—he was more concerned with getting great hordes of pioneers and adventure seekers to the opens plains of the

"It was a wild era for the little Kansas City station," Shine said. "People from almost every place in the world jammed the depot as they poured through this funnel to the

Texas Starts Excavation

Of Huge Meteor Crater ODESSA, TEXAS.—Excavation of one of the nation's largest known meteor craters, eight miles southwest of here, has been started by a crew of 20 WPA workers. The crater, measuring 600 feet from rim to rim, is known to be exceeded in size only by the famed mile-wide Canyon Diablo pit in Arizona, Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the bureau of economic geology at the University of Texas and in charge of excavation, said.

It was Dr. Sellards who first announced in 1927 that the largely filled-in Odessa crater was actually caused by an "iron" meteorite, which appears to have smashed into the earth "thousands of years ago." Dr. Sellards said excavation was being pushed to study the effects on the earth under the impact of a large meteor. The Canyon Diablo crater has never been completely excavated, he said. He was unable, as yet, to estimate the actual size of the original meteor.

"It may easily have exploded at impact," he explained. "We have already found and examined several fragments." In accord with WPA plans to make the excavation accessible to the public for its educational value,

Baltic Sure to Figure in War

Furnishes Only Sea Outlet For Poland and Three Neutral Nations.

WASHINGTON.—The Baltic sea, on the waters and around the shores of which struggles may occur during the conflict in Europe, is the subject of a bulletin from the National Geographic society. The shores of the Baltic form as much of a political patchwork as those of the Mediterranean, the bulletin points out.

"In the days of the Viking fleets, the Baltic was a network of trading routes second only to the Mediterranean in commercial importance," continues the bulletin. "Today, the Baltic transports the great trade of the marginal nations, the bulk of which is among themselves.

"The northern inland sea furnishes the only sea outlet for Poland and for the three small neutral nations, Lithuania, Latvia and Esto-While Russia has other sea outlets, its Baltic frontage is none the less important. Finland has a tiny strip of land reaching to the Arctic ocean in the extreme north, but it is in effect dependent on the Baltic for a sea outlet.

"Sweden's Baltic sea coast extends for nearly a thousand miles, but it also has an extensive coast line on the waters of the Kattegat and Skagerrak, the channels which connect the Baltic with the North sea. The other Baltic countries with double sea fronts are Denmark, which lies practically across the water door to the Baltic; and Germany, which has two Baltic coast lines-in West Prussia and East Prussia-and a North sea coast line between The Netherlands and Den-

"While all the other countries fronting on the Baltic must send their ships through the Kattegat and Skagerrak to reach the North sea, Germany has the 60-mile-long Kiel canal connecting the two seas, through the Jutland peninsula. This waterway was enlarged just before the World war to permit the passage of dreadnaughts and other large vessels. By the Versailles treaty, the Kiel canal was made an international waterway; but two years ago Germany again took con-

Drains Huge Area.

"With an estimated area of about 160,000 square miles, the Baltic sea is more than half again as large as the five Great Lakes on the Canadian border. It extends north almost to the Arctic circle where the sun never sets for a period of seven weeks each June and July. It is nearly 1,000 miles long, with a width varying from 50 to 400 miles.

"So great is the flow of river water into the sea that it is increased in volume during the flood season. It drains an area about one-fifth that of the United States. The rivers are also responsible for lessening the percentage of salt in the water which freezes in the northern portions. Finland has one ice-breaking ship with 9,200 horsepower that can plow through three feet of ice. In the northern portions, however, is not navigable during months.'

The idea is, the mayor said, to provide a base for paving. Due to the low, swampy nature of city land, paving without an upholding base, often buckles and sinks.

Once before, Maestri experimented with a paving base. City workmen dumped sand into prepared ground in marshy sections of the city. Sinking was reduced to a minimum.

WHITE LIE

By R. H. WILKINSON

(Released by Associated Newspapers WNU Service.)

NGELINA looked at the letters and frowned. Their contents, of course, were none of her business. Yet wasn't it? Wasn't it your business to know why another woman should be writing to your husband, and who the other woman was?

Unaccountably Angelina's heart began to pound. Swiftly her thought traveled back over the five years of her married life with Dwight. Gay, happy years they'd been, filled with laughter and love and the things that make living worth That is, up until six months ago it had been like that. Six months ago Dwight had begun to change.

Angelina couldn't describe the change. It wasn't something that you could lay your finger on and say: "There. This is how you're different."

It was something more subtle, more elusive. Something that you felt rather

It was far less simple than that.

Angelina looked down at the let-Hideous thoughts rose in her mind. The letters, she thought, would explain everything. She had come across them this morning when getting one of Dwight's suits ready to send to the cleaner's. She hesitated a moment longer, then extracted one of the letters from its envelope and read: "Darling: It seems years since we were together. Yet it was only last night. I am writing you this before going to sleep, just to say that I love you. Your picture—"

Angelina stopped reading and sat very still, staring through the bedroom window.

Outside, the top branches of the great elm tree were blurred to her vision.

The sounds of automobiles passing in the street beyond were unheard. After a long moment she folded the letter carefully and replaced it in its envelope. With the others she laid it on the dressing table.

Already a plan was beginning to take form in her mind. After that first sickening shock, followed by thoughts of immediate escape of penning the usual note and leaving it pinned to the lamp shade, her thoughts were once more clear and

She wasn't going to be melodramatic about this thing.

She wasn't going to act as heroines acted in story books. This was 1939. And in 1939 young women on the verge of losing their husbands didn't go ranting around tearing their hair and screaming, or fainting, even.

No, they treated the situation calmly and sensibly. They did something about it.

And so Angelina went downstairs and started to clean the house as she had planned to do. It was a beautiful spring day and in the afternoon she was going to plant some nasturtium seeds in the bed under the dining room windows. She was glad now to have this to do, because it helped to keep her mind occupied with other things, helped fight against the awful emptiness and dread that tugged at her heart.

At four o'clock she went inside again and up to the bedroom. The letters were still lying on the dresser. But she didn't look at them. Instead she went to the closet and took down her new blue chiffon. She had worn the frock only once since buying it with her other summer things, and Dwight had said he thought it becoming to her.

She was surveying herself before the full length mirror when the front door opened and she heard Dwight come in.

Even before he reached the head of the stairs she knew that something had happened, something to make him tremendously happy and lighthearted.

She turned as he entered the room and said: "Why, Dwight, aren't you home ear-"

But Dwight had let out a whoop and rushed across the room and clasped her in his arms.

"Run up the flag! Call out the band! Darling I did it!" He kissed her and held her off at arms' length. "Sweetheart, take a look at your big, smart husband and feel proud! I just put across a deal that's going to land us practically on easy

For a moment the letters ceased to exist. Things were the same again. Nothing had happened to disrupt the beautiful happiness of their love.

And then, like a knife thrust in the back, she remembered. Behind her the letters still lay on the dresser. It was almost as if they had spoken, had laughed mockingly at her momentary lapse.

She released herself, tried to smile, heard herself saying: "Why, Dwight, whatever are you talking about?" "Talking about?" In his excite-ence, any change in her. "Why, the Bascon account, of course."

"He seemed to remember. "Say, that's right, I didn't tell you about it, did I? I remember now. Didn't want to get your hopes up. Well, anyway, I've been working on old man Bascon for six months. Frankly he had me worried. I was afraid at times I might have shown the strain in my actions around the house. Anyway, I landed him to-day. Got him to sign on the dotted line. And now, my sweet, you can buy yourself as many new dresses as you want and all the female accoutrements that go with them."

He paused for breath and grinned. "Get another like that blue only more expensive. You look grand in blue, honey."

Angelina caught her breath.

Something was wrong. This laughing, happy youth who was her husband couldn't be the black scoundrel she had believed him a half-hour ago. It wasn't possible. Men like Dwight weren't capable of leading such lives.

In that moment she almost convinced herself that she could love Dwight, go on living with him regardless of what he might have done. She was smart and attrac-

Must have laid them here when I changed this morning." He laughed. "Say, it's lucky you didn't read 'em. They're from an old girl of mine and they're full of mush." Angelina turned.

She came across to him and glanced down at the letters. Her eyes fell on the top envelope, the one she had read, and she saw plainly that it was postmarked 1929. Ten years ago!

She felt herself grow weak and reached out. Dwight's arm went about her waist.

"Say," he said. "Say, what's wrong?" He frowned. "Say, you didn't read 'em, did you, Ange? You didn't read my

Strange Squirrel Story Related by Ohio Author

A tale of how a horde of squirrels once stole a pile of shingles to use as boats in crossing the Ohio river is preserved in N. D. Jones' book "The Squirrel Hunters of Ohio." The tale appears at first as a likely entry for a whopper contest, but there may have been some truth in it at that. For it is known that these rodents did cross streams on pieces of bark and other floating objects.

The man whose shingles were stolen from the river bank said: "I got to the river just in time to know all about it. You see, the squirrels are marching and crossing the river at that point; and the commanding general is not much on a swim, and he carried one of my own shingles down to the water and rode over on it, and every colonel, captain, lieutenant and commissioned and noncommissioned officer did what they saw their general do, and finally the rank and file made a raid."

Explaining how the animals made the crossing, he said "an old squirrel came down to the water dragging a shingle, which he shoved into the river, jumped upon it, raised his brush for a sail and went over high and dry.

"And when near enough the other shore he leaped off and let his boat float down the stream. As soon as these observations were taken in, I went up on the high bank where the shingles had been stored and found there was not a shingle left."

To show that there may have been some truth in the tale, the author quoted George Buffon, the renowned naturalist, who observed: "They (the squirrels) go in large bodies, and when they want to cross a lake or river they seize a piece of bark of a birch or lime, and drawing it to the edge of the water, get upon it, and trust themselves to the hazaard of the wind and waves, erecting their tails to serve the purpose of sails; they sometimes form a fleet of three or four thousand, and if the wind proves too strong, a general shipwreck ensues . . . but if the winds are favorable they are cerment he hadn't noticed any differtain to make their desired port."

Balloon Tests Aid for Pilots

New Technique Cuts Down Errors in Studying the Tricky Currents.

TROY, N. Y.-Meteorologists who watch vari-colored balloons float into the sky are responsible for the most accurate method devised for guiding airplane pilots through hazardous winds, according to Elbert F. Corwin, Rensselaer Polytechnic institute meteorologist.

The new technique, with its narrowed margin of error, is expected to prevent pilots from encountering violent upwinds and treacherous downdrafts that sometimes suck planes into mountainsides. It guides them by enabling the pilots to know at which levels they may fly to avoid the currents.

Corwin said the new method utilizes a geometrical principle, determining distance through angles. Weather observers at present base calculations on an assumption that balloons always rise about 600 feet

Work With Weather Bureau.

Corwin and two student assistants, at the request of the United States weather bureau, for months sent colored balloons into the air and observed their flight to heights of five miles and distances of from 10 to 17 miles.

It was found that "up and down" winds accelerated, slowed or even reversed, the balloons' normal rate to climb. Thus, the Rensselaer findings showed, the pilot of an airplane might encounter violent winds by trying to avoid them, because winds, reported at 10,000 feet, might really be at 8.000 or 12,000 feet.

The R. P. I. meteorologist's method utilizes a small balloon tied by a 100-foot line to the main, "sound ing" balloon. A special theodolite, similar to those used by weather ob servers and surveyors to study angles, would then measure the angle between it and the two balloons Calculations then determine to within relatively few feet their height.

Error as High as 33 Per Cent. "We checked the positions of the balloons each minute and later compared these with what they would have been assumed to be under the assumption of constant rate of ascent," the professor said. "On still days we found the assumed rate correct enough, but on other days with up and down winds the actual rate was much faster or slower than the per cent. In one instance the error was 33 per cent. "The principal value of this new method is that we may learn more about the frequency and violence of high winds in different sections of the country, particularly in mountainous regions, and report accurately to those who fly what to avoid or take advantage of on any particular day."

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

Great and historic discourses are preserved with care and are read by succeeding generations with profit and interest even though they are recognized to be the utterances of weak and fallible men. The les-son before us presents what is "undoubtedly the greatest single discourse ever uttered by any teacher or statesman or philosopher in the whole history of the human race" (Smith). Take up your Bible and read the words of the text.

These verses are addressed to believers, to those who have actually taken Christ as king of their lives. These beatitudes are not a substitute for the gospel. They are not laws that the unbeliever can keep and thus be saved, for this would be utterly impossible for anyone to do, except the one who has been born again. Only he who knows and has called upon the power and grace of God in Christ can qualify to walk as a citizen of His kingdom.

I. The Christian's King (vv. 1, 2). The words which fell from the blessed lips of the Lord Jesus on that day as He sat on the mountainside were not the powerless declarations of an earthly philosopher or statesman, but of the Son of God who had humbled Himself and become the Son of Man who was still the King of kings and the Lord of lords. If you have not given glad and free allegiance to Him, do it now and you will then be ready to go on and learn of the Christian's character and influence which may be your possession in Christ.

II. The Christian's Character (vv.

The eight characteristics of the Christian here presented are worthy of extended individual attention, but we can offer only brief sugges-

"Blessed are the poor in spirit" speaks of humility as a commendable quality. How contradictory the present-day philosophy which calls for self-assertion and self-reliance. But Jesus is not mistaken. The way into the kingdom of heaven is not that of assertive self-sufficiency.

"Blessed are they that mourn." The world does not believe that statement. It shuns the house of mourning. It tries without avail to philosophize away the fact of sor-The Christian, on the other hand, feels with his fellow man and thus receives a blessing.

"I walked a mile with Pleasure, She chattered all the way; But left me none the wiser For all she had to say.

"I walked a mile with Sorrow, And ne'er a word said she; But, oh, the things I learned from her When Sorrow walked with me."

"Blessed are the meek." Ah, yes, poverty of spirit comes when a man rightly sees himself, and has a sympathetic touch with sorrow. Then he 'inherits the earth," because he truly comes to enjoy it as a place of service and Christian growth, and not because he has a deed to a single foot of its soil.

"Note that it is the hunger and thirst for righteousness, and not the possession of it, that is blessed" (Plummer). Self-satisfied people know nothing of the glory of having such a hunger and thirst filled by God.

Time fails us to speak of the Christian's spirit of mercy which invites divine mercy; that purity of heart and absolute cleanness of mind and sincerity of purpose which enable a man really to see God even in this impure world; that Christlike spirit which makes him a peacemaker in a fighting worldyes, that spirit which makes him like the Master in sweetly bearing unjustified persecution. These indeed are the marks of the man who follows Christ as King.

III. The Christian's Influence (vv.

"Salt" and "light"! What pungent and powerful folk are the real followers of Christ!

Salt fights against rottenness, keeps things sweet and fresh. Dr. J. H. Jowett says, Christians "are to confront rottenness in politics; they are to meet it in the realm of business; they are to make for it in the field of sport; they are to be its enemies in the crowded streets of common intercourse; they are to defeat it in the quiet and sequestered ways of art and literature; everywhere they are to provide the antidote to corruption, and they are to overcome and destroy

Light has one function, namely, to illuminate. Wickedness and sin always love darkness, because their deeds are evil (read John 3:19-21). If Christ really dwells in us we cannot help but shed light about us wherever we go-a divine light which drives out the darkness of sin, of ignorance, of superstition, and replaces it with the sunlight of God.

New Architecture Seen For Buildings of Future

Prof. Sherley W. Morgan, head of the school of architecture at Princeton university, says that "blind" buildings are contrary to the modern trend in architecture. "There may be some special cases," Professor Morgan says, "in which such a building would serve a particular purpose or location, but the architecture of today and tomorrow is decidedly on the other track, toward the more liberal and wiser use of daylight."

Students of architecture, Morgan says, are fascinated by the realms opened to them by recent developments in structural and architectural uses for glass-"and these students are the architects who will design our homes and buildings of tomorrow," he added. "Architecture today must conform to the demand for health and cleanliness. This means plenty of light and sun-

"In the Nineteenth century, architects designed their buildings to please the eye of those on the outside; today, they design their homes and business structures for those living and working on the insidelooking out."

Professor Morgan maintains the demand for more light challenges the architect to design his structures so that there will be no blank walls or dark recesses.

"The architecture of tomorrow," he says, "is being dictated in the main by the demand for light and fresh air; by demands for healthier and more sanitary living and working conditions. Our architects must meet these demands, always creating beauty as well as accomplishing the utilitarian requirements of their structures."

Military Drill Is Gaining In American Universities

Although only 139 out of a total of 1,706 American colleges and universities offer military drill, and a still smaller percentage of public high schools provide such instruction, 135,794 college and high school students received military instruction under United States army officers in the 1937-38 school year, as compared with 35,091 such students who received army-supervised military instruction in 1916. Another 18,729 young men received such instruction in eight military colleges and 46 military academies qualifying under war department reserve officers training corps standards, making a total of 154,523 R. O. T. C. trainees in the year 1937-38. A small increase in these totals is expected in the school year 1938-39. The training is generally approved by the vast majority of students, and as a result of its effectiveness, the U.S. now has a reserve of competent commissioned officers numbering just short of 100,-000 men. Of the 139 colleges and universities offering military training, 72 require attendance at military courses for two years by ablebodied male students, and offer an additional two years of training as an elective course; 67 schools offer either two or four years of military

Diabetes on Increase

Deaths among Americans from diabetes have increased by 400 per cent since 1900: over 30,000 deaths in the U.S. estimated from this disease in 1938. The American death rate from diabetes was 9.7 per 100,-000 population in 1900; estimated to exceed 23 per 100,000 in 1938. The U. S. has more cases of diabetes and more deaths from this cause per 100,000 of population than any other nation because diabetes is essentially a "prosperity" disease, flourishing in countries where living standards are highest. The death rate varies widely among the different states, but parallels per capita income with surprising exactness. Alabama with a per capita income of $189 in 1935, 56 per cent below the national average of $432, had a diabetes death rate of 9.1, 59 per cent below the 1935 national average of 22.2.

Thirsty Texas Land Will Be Irrigated

Huge Canal-Linking Job on Rio Grande River.

RAYMONDVILLE, TEXAS.—The largest concrete canal-lining job ever undertaken in the United States is being rushed to completion so 70,000 thirsty acres of the fertile Rio Grande valley may have water.

Contractors on the $5,000,000 Willacy county irrigation project pushed their employment totals past 1,600 as PWA Regional Director George M. Bull announced at Fort Worth that first regular deliveries of water would begin about September 1.

The irrigation project will be one of the most complete in the nation when it is finished. Between 20,000 and 25,000 acres will be supplied with water in September and addi-tional acreage will be watered from time to time until the entire 70,000 acres of its scope will be fed, beginning December 31.

Altogether, the project will include 150 miles of concrete-lined canals, 130 miles of underground pipelines, and reservoirs and pumping stations. The project's pumping station below Mercedes will take approximately 150,000 race feet of water from the Rio Grande each year.

Cement Gun company, of Allentown, Pa., the concrete contractor, has 1,300 men working on lining of the canals. The company's contract is the largest one of its nature ever awarded in this country. The only one larger was for a canal project in India.

The irrigation will enable this area to produce three or four crops a year. This is a principal winter fruit and vegetable producing section. The project also will help to make productive 7,000 acres of citrus fruits which heretofore have borne little marketable produce because of water shortage.

PWA fimanced the project with a 70 per cent loan and a 30 per cent

Border Patrol Will Have Extended Radio Network

EL PASO .- A United States border patrol radio network along the Mexican border which will enable 24-hour communication from the Pacific ocean to the Gulf of Mexico is nearing completion with the installation of a 500-watt transmitter

Another 500-watt transmitter has been erected at Laredo, Texas, and a third will be constructed at San Diego, Calif.

Intermediary stations of 300 watts are to be located at McAllen, San Antonio, Del Rio and Alphine, Texas, and at Tucson, Ariz., and El Centro, Calif.

When the network has been completed, exchange of information by border patrol stations at any point along the border will be possible.

Coupled with installation in border patrol automobile cruisers of portable radio telegraph sets effective up to 200 miles, the radio network will greatly aid in identification and law enforcement work. Present cars are equipped with portable telephone sets having a maximum transmitting distance of 30 miles.

Starfish Digests Food

By 'Reverse' Process The starfish reverses the usual gustatory and digestive procedure of fish and even humans, since instead of taking food into his stomach, he wraps his stomach around the food and digests it. When he gets through eating, he pulls his stomach back into his body and starts looking for another meal. Incidentally, oysters are his favorite meat.

"When a starfish finds a cluster of oysters, he wraps himself around it, with his star-like legs clutching the base of the cluster and the underside of his body, where his stomach is located, next to the tip of the oyster," said Dr. H. F. Prytherch, director of the United States biological laboratory on Piver's island, North Carolina. "The starfish then exudes a fluid that has the effect of anestizing the oyster so that the main muscle will relax and the shell open.

"After the anesthetic takes effect and the shell opens, the starfish then pushes his stomach out of his own body, into the oyster shell and around the oyster, leaving it there until he has digested it completely. Then he repeats the process on another oyster.'

In the northern oyster beds, and down as far as Chesapeake bay, starfish are among the worst enemies of the oystermen and eat up more than $1,000,000 worth of oysters a year, according to Dr. Prytherch. But starfish are not very numerous as yet in North Carolina waters and oyster beds, so that they are not yet doing much damage. Dr. Prytherch is trying to work out a method of getting rid of starfish without injuring the oysters.

To show how voracious starfish are and the rate at which they eat oysters, Dr. Prytherch has had nine starfish in a laboratory tank for slightly more than four months, during which time they have opened and digested more than 1,400 oysters.

Use of Colored Glasses May Be Habit Forming

Many colored eyeglasses are habit forming and should be used only on professional prescription, particularly by children. Few adults and fewer children have "supersensitive" eyes; normal eyes need the protection of tinted glasses only in extreme glaring sunlight, as when fishing, mountain climbing, or driving over long stretches of white pavement. Free wearing of colored glasses is liable to render eyes abnormally sensitive, and dependent upon artificial protection. Other vacation hints: Avoiding crowded bathing beaches may also avoid infantile paralysis and other dread diseases. Summer can be harder on children than winter, early sunrise and extended evenings making their active hours unduly long. Children often lose weight in summer, and reach school time browned but nervous, and far from rested. Special care is needed to see that they have adequate sleep; nine hours per night should be a minimum. Summer meals should be planned to assure the children their necessary milk, eggs, fish, etc., which they need to a much greater degree than desk-working adults.

Farm Land Loses Food

More than 54,700,000 tons of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash-the three major plant foods which make the production of crops possibleare removed from the soil of American farms every year by erosion, harvested crops, leaching, burning and other causes. Commercial fertilizers and manures are believed to restore only 18 per cent of the nitrogen loss, 44 per cent of the phosphorus loss and about 6 per cent of the potash loss. While programs to promote soil conservation are being effectively supported by the U.S. department of agriculture, soil scientists, teachers, agricultural colleges and county agents, the need for a more universal use of fertilizer is shown by the fact that the consumption of fertilizers in the United States annually is at the rate of a little more than a ton per farm.

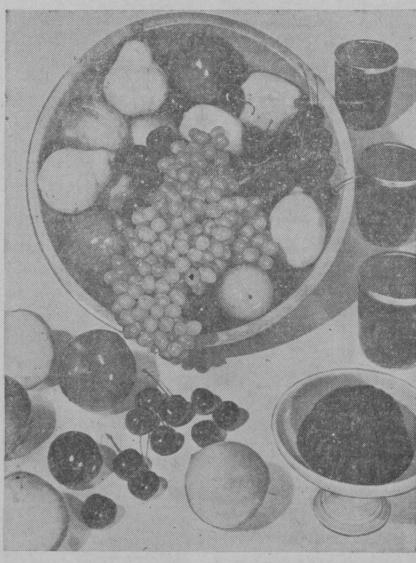

Old French Custom

Absence may make the heart grow fonder in other lands, but not so in southwestern France. When a young man there does not show up to kiss the waters of a famous well with his sweetheart the match is off. According to custom, betrothed couples often take themselves to the well in the La Double forest near Riviera, kissing the water as a symbol of their future union. If the young woman in the case becomes impatient at not being invited to the forest, she can test her sweetheart by suggesting the excursion. Should he fail to come, however, she knows that the match is definitely off.

Cricket vs. Baseball

This is "cricket"-and baseball! In baseball one swings the bat horizontally, in cricket vertically; in baseball one drops the bat when running, in cricket one carries it; in baseball the ball comes on the fly, in cricket it hits the ground before reaching the batter; in baseball the ball is pitched with bent elbow. in cricket it is bowled with a stiff elbow; in baseball the players keep up a steady line of "chatter," in cricket the players are expected to keep reasonably quiet.

HOME-CANNED FOODS ALWAYS WELCOME (See Recipes Below)

Sugar and Spice

I've long believed that one reason the art of canning and preserving has been neglected is that many of us have forgotten just how good some of the home canned foods can be. We've forgotten the teasing tang of pickling spices, the mellow aroma of rich fruit butters that used to make the air fragrant at canning time. Maybe we need only to be reminded of all this to restore a lost art to favor!

What pride of accomplishment row upon row of jewel-colored jams, jellies and marmalades can create! And how simple it is to make them in the modern manner! You'll find these tested recipes from my own cal as they are delicious. Detailed instructions are included in each recipe; you'll find these general suggestions helpful,

For Success in Canning and Preserving. 1. Make only a small amount of the product at one time.

Follow the recipe exactly. 3. Be sure that jelly glasses, jars, and covers are sterilized. 4. When they are to be filled with hot food, place the hot glasses or jars on a clean towel wrung out of hot water. 5. Use a small, inexpensive teapot for melting paraffin and pouring it. It eliminates dripping wax all over the glasses and your work table. 6. Store jams, jellies and preserves in a cool, dry place.

Apple Chutney. 2 pounds sour apples ½ pound onions (chopped) 1 pound tomatoes (chopped) Juice 1 lemon (strained)

1 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt 11/2 tablespoons ginger 1/4 teaspoon red pepper

2 pounds raisins 2 cups vinegar 1 cup brown sugar

Pare, core and chop the apples. To them add the remaining ingredients. Simmer gently until tender, then rub through a fine sieve. Seal in sterilized jars.

Peach Conserve. 3 pounds of peaches (peeled) 2 oranges (cut in small pieces) pound seedless raisins pounds sugar pound chopped walnuts Scald peaches, remove skins, cut into small pieces; discard pits.

Place in a saucepan with small pieces of orange pulp and peel, raisins and sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved.

Set over a slow flame and cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Add the chopped walnut meats, pour conserve at once into hot sterilized glass jars or glasses.

Amber Jam. (Makes 8 glasses).

3 oranges 2 lemons

4 apples

2 cups crushed pineapple Sugar

Grate rind of one orange and one Illinois. lemon. Then peel the remaining 2 oranges and the lemon, being careful to remove all of the white part of the skin. Peel and core the apples. Put all of these fruits through the food chopper and then add the grated orange and lemon rind, and the pineapple.

Measure this fruit and to it add an equal amount of sugar.

Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook, stirring frequently, for 1/2 hour. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and top with paraffin. Note: Amber Jam is delicious when used as a cake filling or as a copping for ice cream. Lindbergh Relish.

4 green) 12 medium sized onions 1 bunch celery

Whether your cookie jar is an old-fashioned earthen crock, or a brightly painted tin on the pantry shelf, it needs to be kept filled to satisfy a hungry family. In this column, next week. Eleanor Howe will give you some of her favorite cookie recipes-"Grandmother's Sugar Cookies," and 'Butterscotch Brownies' are just two of the delightful recipes you'll find here.

Bishop wakes rlis Rounds in Arctic

Latest Feat Is 1,700-Mile Trip Through Wastes.

CHURCHILL, MAN.-Life behind cloistered walls is not for the Rt. Rev. J. Clabaut, bishop of the Catholic Church mission diocese of Hudson bay. Worthy of an Arctic explorer's efforts is the trip through the icy barrens of Baffin Land in the Arctic circle that the bishop has just completed.

Arriving in Churchill, the missionary concluded a 1,700-mile trek by dog-team and canoe, during which all the rigors of the north were en-Near-starvation in storm-bound Eskimo igloos proved merely an accepted part of the bishop's church duties while on the trip.

During his tour he was accompanied by Father D. Dionne, a missionary from the Eskimo Point post, and by an Eskimo guide.

Leaving Baffin bay February 7, the missionary mushed over hardpacked snow barrens to Arctic bay, and then moved down to Iglooik, Repulse bay, Wagner inlet, Chesterfield, Baker lake and Tavana. He visited the various mission and trading posts along the route.

Largely dependent upon hunting for food, the party suffered hardship many times when storms prevented the shooting of game. During one storm which raged for four days the entire party was without food except for one small duck shot by the

Many bands of Eskimos were encountered, some of whom were suffering from famine owing to the unsuitable hunting conditions, caused by storms. The missionary left Churchill for Montreal early in July. Last year he made the northern trip in August, on board the S. S. Nascopie during its annual cruise.

School of Sharks Perils

Three Men in Small Boat LONDON.-Three men had narrow escapes when a school of 50 basking sharks surrounded their boat and one of them hurled it out of the water, off Peninver, six miles from Campelltown, Argyllshire, Scotland.

Blinded by water, Hugh Cameron, the owner, hung on the wheel and brought the boat back to an even keel. Struggling to beat the sharks, the three men managed to reach

"We had not got far out when the Maggie (their motor-fishing boat) was surrounded by sharks-40 or 50 of them," Cameron said.

"Suddenly a fin appeared right in front of us and I saw a shark rising to the surface underneath the boat. "I could have touched it with my hand. I swung the Maggie around, but the propeller was struck by the shark and we were flung out of the water.

Town Frightened by Boy;

Carries Poisonous Snake VRYHEID, NATAL.—There was a minor panic among pedestrians in Commissioner street, Vryheid, when they sighted a small native boy approaching with a 30-inch poisonous snake, twisting in angry fashion, in

The boy walked unconcernedly along until a cautious passerby, at a safe distance, asked him where he was going with the snake (a ring-

"I'm going to send it off from the post office," explained the boy, and said he had heard someone in Durban was buying snakes. Reluctantly he allowed himself to be persuaded that the post office would not accept the snake, and killed it on the pavement.
