COMMUNITY LOCALS

This column is not for use in advertising any money-making program, fair, supper, party or sale. It is intended for news, personals, and such matters as may be of community interest.

Churches, Lodges, Societies, Schools, etc., are requested to use our Special Notice Department for money-making events. Churches are especially given free use of our Church Notice Column, for brief notices concerning regular or special services. Larger events will be cared for elsewhere in our columns.

Allen Jacobs, of Perth, Kansas, visited relatives here this week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Galt, Fairfield, Pa., visited her sister, Mrs. Margaret Englar, last Sunday.

Miss Bettie Ott, Hanover Hospital, spent Thursday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ott.

Mr. and Mrs. John Forney and Mrs. James Hoptrough and son, James, of Philadelphia, visited Mrs. Ida Landis this week.

Mrs. S. W. Wheatley and Miss Ethel Williams, of Eldorado, Md., are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stonestifer.

Miss Amelia Annan has returned home after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heidt, Sr., at Frederickburg, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Baumgardner, spent the week with their son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. George M. Baumgardner, of Baltimore.

Merwyn C. Fuss spoke before a meeting of the Harney P. T. A. Wednesday evening. Mr. Fuss will speak Sunday morning before Pleasant Valley Sunday School.

Mrs. Ray Miller, of Columbus, Ga., spent several days this week with her aunt, Mrs. Calvin T. Fringer and cousins, Mrs. Clyde L. Hesson and Miss Mary Fringer.

There were 123 passengers from Taneytown, last Sunday morning, who left on the P. R. excursion to the World's Fair, returning at an early hour Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Holland, of Towson, Md., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Newcomer over the week-end. Mrs. Holland remained and spent the week at the Newcomer home.

Taney Lodge will hold a get-together meeting tonight (Friday) in the I. O. O. F. Hall. Grand Master Leonard B. Mason accompanied by a number of the members of the Grand Lodge will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Combs, Emmitsburg, and Miss Frances Rowe, of Mt. Alto Hospital, Washington, D. C., spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ott. Mrs. Combs and Miss Rowe are sisters of Mrs. Ott.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Coolidge, the past week were: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Butterworth, Port Arthur, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Giles Ricker and Everett Ricker of Hudson, Mass., and Mrs. Park Murphy, of Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bender and son Penny, of Frostburg, Md., were guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Arnold on Monday. The Benders with Mrs. Arnold and sons, Joseph and George visited Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kirby, at Washington, D. C.

The Record has sent the small sum of $4.50 to Rev. Hallock's "little brownies" in China. We trust that this "mite" will help a good cause. We wish it could have been larger, but there are many asking for aid in these days of world-wide distress—and selfishness.

Mr. C. H. Brenneman, whose wife is the sister of Mrs. Guy P. Bready, died at his home in Lancaster, Pa., on Monday morning. Mr. Brenneman and his family have been frequent visitors in Taneytown. Rev. and Mrs. Guy P. Bready attended the funeral in Lancaster on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Harman have returned from Houghton Lake, Mich., and had their aunt Mrs. L. B. Stahl with them. All had a good time with the exception of a minor accident at Lansing, Mich., to their car and themselves. From there out and back home everything was lovely.

Taneytown District is considerably short of the quota asked from it for the Children's Aid Society. New Windsor, for instance, has greatly exceeded its quota. The Record will be glad to receive donations and turn the same over to the proper authorities. Taneytown is fully able to do its share in the matter. Why not?

Last week The Record contained a brief local telling of the growth of the Blue Ridge Rubber Factory, that included the statement that the Company expects to add about 150 more employees to its up-to-date plant. We wonder what some of our leading citizens, interested in the growth of Taneytown, thought of the importance of this statement? Was it just something to talk about?

Robert L. Zentz, of near town, who has for nearly a year been operating a goat dairy under the name of Spring Valley Goat Dairy has recently gone into partnership with the Raven Rock Goat Dairy, located near Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., and owned by Mr. David G. Fleagle. Raven Rock is a most modern goat dairy, passing all health department requirements for producing and selling Grade "A" milk. Visitors are always welcome. (Continued on Fourth Page.)

NEW ENLISTMENTS MADE

Young Men from Taneytown, and Other Locals.

Wilson L. Troxell, son of Mrs. Marie Barriek, LeGore, Md., enlisted for the 5th. Engineers, Fort Belvoir, Va.

Harry L. Ashbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Ashbaugh, LeGore, Md., enlisted for the 5th. Engineers, Fort Belvoir, Va.

Maurice C. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Martin, Ladiesburg, enlisted for the 1st. Medical Regiment, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Curwood G. Hill, colored, son of Mrs. Martha C. Hill, Taneytown, enlisted for 48th. Quartermaster Regiment, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Enlistments are still open for the Air Corps at Langley and Bolling Fields, the 36th. (Motorized) Field Artillery, Fort Bragg, N. C. Medical Department at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., there will also be a few openings in Panama and Hawaii during the month of November.

Sergeant Chop is in charge of the recruiting in Washington and Frederick counties and is at the Frederick Post Office every Saturday from noon until 5:00 P. M., applications will be filed through him when he is in the city or by writing to the recruiting office, Post Office Building, Hagerstown, Md.

ANNUAL CAN SOCIAL PLANNED

The annual Christian Endeavor can social will be held in the Sunday School room of the Grace Reformed Church, on Friday evening, Nov. 3, at 7:30 P. M.

The object of this social is to help secure supplies for the Hoffman Orphanage, therefore the admission to the social is one can or more of food, potatoes, and apples, etc. A goal has been set for 400 cans.

The program for this year is expected to be a very unusual one, which will include mainly, a one-act play entitled, "Elmer" by Beatrice Humiston McNeil, which will last close to an hour. The cast as follows: Elmer Collier, fourteen years old, Edward Reid; Susan Collier, sixteen tomorrow Rose Beall; Jeanie Collier, seventeen, Freda Stambaugh; Janie Collier, her twin, Mildred Eckard; Miss Luisa Pinney, a dressmaker, Ruth Anna Airing; Mrs. Collier, the mother, Mary Shriver; Fannie Belle, a colored girl who works by the day, Ruth Stambaugh; Hubert Brown, seventeen, George Motter; Pansy, a nondescript dog.

Special music has been arranged. All persons of the church and friends are cordially invited.

WARNING AGAINST MISCONDUCT ON HALLOWE'EEN.

In recent years not much misconduct has taken place in Taneytown on Halloween. Let us have another orderly record this year.

The fact is, misconduct and destroying property on this evening is as much a criminal offense as on any other evening. The date does not carry license with it.

It is never "smart" to do things that are wrong and injure the property of others. Taneytown parents should take this view of the matter, and not let their children be destructive, or disturbers of the peace. The marking of buildings, breaking of milk bottles, upsetting, movable property, defacing automobiles, destroying flowers, doing anything in the way of rowdiness, is not "fun."

A MAGNIFICENT AUTUMN.

The most magnificent scenery is being shown by Maryland and Pennsylvania's low mountain ranges. Perhaps it will continue over another Sunday; but last Sunday was a veritable panorama of floral beauty with the trees—some of them—standing as perfect red bouquets, while others were bright gold.

Perhaps the gray shocks of corn stark standing in open fields helped by contrast to bring out the beauty of foliage—miles of it—and sight-seers made good use of their autos many travelling too fast to take in the wonders of nature.

The coming Sunday will likely be equally as fine, but not later. We would suggest going by Rocky Ridge to Thurmont, to Sabillasville, Blue Ridge Summit, Monterey, Charming and Zora; then via Fairfield to Gettysburg, and home via Taneytown or Littlestown, would be a grand trip and plenty of apples along the way, to be bought at very reasonable prices.

The poets we think, have made a poor job of a beautiful subject, but Longfellow somehow had the right spirit when he wrote—

"There is a beautiful spirit breathing now
Its mellow richness on the clustered trees
And, from the beeches full of richest dyes
Pouring new glory on the autumn woods
And dripping in war on light the pillow'd clouds."

HERBERT HOOVER ON PEACE.

The finest article that we have seen on the United States keeping out of the war in Europe, is the one contributed by Herbert Hoover to the last issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

It is clear-cut, logical, convincing; and moreover, it is written by one who represents the "Voice of Experience."

Pete—My wife's diction is perfect when she talks.

Tubby—So is my wife's contradiction.

LOOK BEFORE SHOOTING WARNING TO HUNTERS.

Sportmen Requested To Exercise Extreme Caution.

With the approach of the Fall hunting season, E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, requests that hunters in quest of game exercise caution in the fields and woods, and "look before shooting" in order that other persons who may possibly be at work may not be injured—or killed.

In his bulletin issued the other day Mr. LeCompte pointed out that "there are a large number of CCC camps located in Maryland and the young men of these camps have done excellent work for our State not only for forestry but for wildlife and for the prevention of erosion and need your co-operation."

"Therefore, we appeal to you at this time to be careful, if you do spot hunting, not to shoot toward a CCC camp or in the vicinity where men are working. In fact, there should not be any hunting done within a half mile of any CCC camp or where men are at work either on the road or in the forest, and we request your cooperation in preventing the injury of anyone through negligence on your part."

"By cooperating in this manner you may save a life which is more valuable than any species of game you may miss or probably kill."

The Superintendents of all CCC camps have received orders from Mr. Robert Fechner, director, Civilian Conservation Corps, to post warning signs about one half mile in all directions surrounding said camps and where men are working and we request your co-operation in prohibiting hunting within said area.

"Also, we request your cooperation in preventing the 'red menace' (fire) from destroying our forest areas. Do not drop matches or empty your pipe or throw a lighted cigar or cigarette on the ground unless you are sure the fire is out and no danger can arise from your action before leaving the spot. Your cooperation will prevent serious forest fires and save not only wildlife, but covers and food on which wildlife must depend, and also save valuable timber areas which are very essential to our State."

IMPORTANT MEETING OF CARROLL CO. RED CROSS.

The following communication has been received from County Chairman Mr. David Taylor by Miss Anna Galt, chairman of the Taneytown Branch of the Carroll County Chapter, American National Red Cross.

"On Monday, October 30, 1939, at 8:15 P. M., at the Westminster Public Library in the Times Building, at Westminster, your organization is most cordially invited to attend a meeting of the Carroll County Chapter of the American Red Cross to discuss plans for the coming Roll Call campaign."

Mr. Gordon Stone, Field Representative, from National Headquarters will be the speaker of the evening. He will discuss the increased responsibility of the American Red Cross in the 1939 Roll Call and a probable change of the present plan of distribution of the Roll Call Funds that remain in the Carroll County Chapter and its branches. It is important that each Chapter Branch be represented at this meeting."

It would be helpful, especially to those who take part in the Roll Call, to attend this meeting. Any persons who can do so, notify Miss Anna Galt, as refreshments are to be served and the County Chairman has requested this information.

FIRE IN UNIONTOWN.

Last Saturday, about 11:30 A. M., the Taneytown Fire Company responded to a call of fire at Uniontown at the home of Edward Myers' family, the property of Walter Rentzel in the west end of that town.

Upon arrival of the truck and members they found the hog pen, with three large shoats consumed by the fire and the straw stack ablaze. The scarcity of water, (available only from wells and cisterns) handicapped the firemen in their fight but fortunately the house and barn were saved.

Two trucks from Union Bridge, one from Westminster and the Taneytown truck were present; each truck carrying a booster tank with water aided in extinguishing the threatening blaze.

OUR BUSY SEASON IS OPENING.

From now until after the Christmas holidays are over, is always a busy time in The Record office. From long experience it appears that advice to "place orders early" does but little good in abating "rush orders" but once more we make the appeal.

"Right away" or "tomorrow" orders will be filled when possible; but the rule of taking "their turn" as in a barber shop, will be enforced in most cases in our office.

We now have orders that will keep our linotype busy, and others on hand that will keep the presses busy. With reasonable co-operation all will be served. Remember too, that getting out The Record also takes much of the time of all hands, every week, and takes precedence over job work.

Every job is numbered and dated when it is given. Please remember too, that the front office, and not the work room is the place to transact business.

BOYS FOR FARM WORK

Farmers May be Supplied by the C. Aid Society.

We are informed that there may be a possibility of boys available for farm work, this coming Spring, or earlier, by applying to the Children's Aid Society.

It will be well for farmers to keep this in mind. Such boys would not be of an age for the heaviest of farm work, and would be inexperienced, but when rightly placed and treated, may help to solve the farm help wanted question.

The Record does not specially invite information concerning such opportunities, as the Children's Aid Society, Westminster, is easy to communicate with; but if for good reason it is preferred, we will report needs of this kind to the Society.

The Compulsory school attendance law may interfere with some such cases—we are not fully posted on that.

MD. LUTHERAN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Eighteen members of Trinity Lutheran Church, Taneytown, attended the convention of the Maryland Lutheran Sunday School Association at Waynesboro, on Thursday of this week. The convention was largely attended from all parts of Maryland and Washington, the total enrollment being announced as 465, from 33 churches.

Four banners were awarded for attendance. The first, to the church of Baltimore having the largest percentage of its enrollment registered, went to St. Stephen's Church. The second, to the church of Washington having the largest percentage of its enrollment registered, went to the Luther Place Memorial Church. The third, to the church in the counties having the largest percentage of its enrollment registered, went to one of the smallest congregations, St. Mark's, Sabillasville.

The fourth, to the church having credit for the largest number of attendance miles, was won by the Luther Place Memorial Church, of Washington, but as that church had won the second banner, and had been honored in the election, it declined the fourth banner in favor of the next highest, Salem Church, Cantonville.

The leading addresses were given by Rev. Theodore K. Finck, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Ralph D. Helm, Ph. D., of the Gettysburg Seminary.

The convention divided itself into four groups, one for pastors, one for adult workers, one for seniors and young people, and one for the children of the church. Each group held a morning and an afternoon session for conference with regard to its particular work. The leader of the first was Dr. Heim, of Gettysburg; of the second, Theodore C. Finck, of Philadelphia; of the third, a deaconess Sister, Pearl Lyver, of Washington; of the fourth, Mrs. Reba Alexander, of Harrisburg.

The new officers elected are as follows: President, Rev. Fred R. Siebel, Jr., of Walkersville; Vice-President, Lawrence Pederson, of Luther Place Memorial Church, Washington; Secretary, Miss Betty Werner, of Messiah Church, Baltimore; Statistical Secretary, Virgil W. Doub, of Middletown; Treasurer, Charles F. Alford, of Hagerstown.

The retiring president was Rev. W. C. Huddle, of Williamsport.

The convention decided to hold its session next year on Saturday of the week of the Synod's summer school at Hood College, Frederick.

CONCERT TO BE HELD AT BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, will present Mme. Marcelle Denya in a concert of French songs on Tuesday evening, Nov. 14, at 8:30 o'clock. She will come to us with the highest compliments from those who have heard her. Mr. Clarence C. Stoughton, President of Wagner Memorial Lutheran College, writes concerning her recent concert at that institution:

"Wagner College is still under the spell of the beautiful concert you gave us on Tuesday. You have aroused an interest in French song that I have not seen in this college before."

Mme. Marcelle Denya has appeared in Paris on the stage of the Grand Opera and the Opera Comique. She has held the title roles in Faust, Manon, Butterfly, Lohengrin, Marouf, Le Roi D'Ys, Pagliacci, Turandot, L'Arlequin, La Flute Enchantée (The Magic Flute), etc.

She has given many concerts in various musical centers of Europe, where the critics have been most praiseworthy. For instance, in March 1938, after her appearance in Amsterdam, the music critic of the "Telegraaf" wrote: "I should not be surprised in the least if in a very short time we should have to look forward to one of her recitals as to an extraordinary event."

The public is cordially invited to attend this concert as guests of the College.

A LUTHERAN RALLY TO BE HELD IN MANCHESTER.

A rally of the Brotherhoods of the Lutheran Churches of Carroll County and vicinity will be held in the Lutheran Church at Manchester, Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock. A visiting speaker and officers of the Mattingly Brotherhood will be present. Arrangements are being made for a delegation of forty or more from Trinity Church, Taneytown, to attend.

James Buchanan was the only bachelor President of the United States.

BRIEF NOTES ON THE EUROPEAN WAR.

The Main Activity seems to be in the Air and Sea.

French sentiment in Canada has voted strongly to follow the Canadian decision to support England in the present war.

There are indications that the war on the Western front may not proceed hurriedly, but that for a long while it may be confined to air and naval forces.

One of the surprises of the contest so far is the large number of German successes with submarines, as a contrast to England's great naval supremacy claim.

During the week, a U. S. trading vessel, the Flint, was seized by a German vessel and turned over to a Russian port. Over 20 U. S. ships have so far been stopped at sea for search.

Former President Hoover, speaking as with a "Voice of Experience" has contributed an article to The Saturday Evening Post, issue of Oct. 27, a most convincing argument "We must Keep Out"—meaning of course, out of war.

MARYLAND 4-H BOYS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Maryland 4-H Clubs are represented at the National Dairy Show in San Francisco this week by a dairy cattle judging team and a dairy demonstration team announces L. C. Burns, County Agent for Carroll County.

Members of the judging team are Robert Stiles, Montgomery county; Charles Hammond, Harford county; and George Gorsuch, Carroll county. Members of the team were selected because of their high score in the state judging contest held at the Timonium Fair. They will compete in judging cows and heifers of the Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein, Ayrshire and Brown Swiss breeds.

Since the state contest, the boys have visited many of the leading herds in the state for further training and practice in judging. They were coached by H. C. Barker, specialist in dairying for the University of Maryland extension service.

Robert Stiles is 17 years of age, has been in the club work 6 years, and owns 5 Jerseys; Charles Hammond is 19 years of age, has been in club work 7 years, and owns 4 Guernseys; Charles Davis is 18 years old, in club work 8 years and owns a number of Guernseys; George Gorsuch is 16 years old, has been in club work 6 years and owns Holsteins.

A dairy demonstration team from Maryland is also competing in the national contest at San Francisco. Members of that team are Vernon Bolte and Earl Uzzell, both of Baltimore county.

The subject of their demonstration is "Equipment and Practices Necessary to Produce Quality Milk for the Baltimore Market." The team was coached by J. Wheeler Ensor, assistant county agent for Baltimore county.

Vernon Bolte is 17 years old, has been in club work 3 years, and owns 5 Guernseys; Earl Uzzell is 16 years old, has been in club work 3 years and owns 5 Jerseys.

CO. MAGISTRATES' RETURNS MUCH SHORT OF COSTS.

During the past four months in which the new trial magistrates system has been in effect in Frederick county, a total of $1,615.95 has been paid to the County by the various magistrates, in fines, while expenses during the same period aggregate over $2,800.

The report of Justice Howard Marvin Jones, Frederick, for September, showed a remittance of $2.00 to the county from criminal cases. No civil cases were heard.

Magistrate Manuel M. Weinberg, of Frederick, reported 27 motor vehicle cases docketed, with 23 guilty verdicts. Fines of $22; and costs of $33.35 were remitted to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. Mr. Weinberg collected corporation fines of $73.50 and costs of $14.25, Sheriff's fees $6.60; fees in motor vehicle cases $2.40, and civil fees $5.80.

Justice Alton Y. Bennett, Frederick, reported 48 motor vehicle cases and 43 convictions. Fines totaled $350.50 and $55.10 in costs were remitted to the motor vehicle commissioner. In the corporation cases, Justice Bennett collected $66.00 in fines and $10.50 in costs; $17.90 in civil fees; $10 from criminal cases, and $7.20 in Sheriff's fees.

Justice F. J. Campbell, Emmitsburg reported four fines aggregating $116 and costs paid in motor vehicle cases, with remittance to the motor vehicle commissioner. Justice Campbell heard four criminal cases and three civil cases, remitting $20.65 in fines, costs and fees to the county.

Justice Wm. J. Stoner, Thurmont, reported ten automobile case convictions, with remittance of fines of $167 and $9.60 in costs to the motor vehicle commissioner. He heard five criminal cases, returning not guilty verdicts in two, and remitting $26.35 to the county from the other cases.

COUNTY WIDE REFORMATION SERVICE.

The Reformed Churches of Carroll County are sponsoring a Reformation Service to be held in St. Mary's Reformed Church, Silver Run, Sunday, Nov. 5, at 7:30 P. M. Dr. Oswald N. Frantz, Professor of New Testament Theology, in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed church in Lancaster, Pa.

NEW WINDSOR LIBERAL TO CHILDREN'S AID.

New Windsor District is the first to have reported their contributions to the Children's Aid office in Westminster. Their quota was $178.72 and they have already turned in $263.33, and are still collecting. Mrs. Clyde Morningside, chairman of this district, and all her solicitors deserve a great deal of credit for their splendid cooperation and work.

The contributions from the schools have been coming in nicely, having heard from Hampstead Elementary, Uniontown, Mechanicsville, West End and Taneytown Elementary Schools this week.

The Children's Aid Society thanks those citizens of Carroll County who have been so generous in helping support the Society's annual financial campaign. The Society finds it too expensive to mail each contributor a personal letter of thanks, but hopes that each one of you will accept this as due recognition of your offerings.

The final returns are not as yet ready for publication, but it is hoped that the goal of $3,000 will be reached.

All contributors should feel proud that they have done their share in this work, and that many an unfortunate child will receive care he would not otherwise have.

ANNUAL SONG SERVICE.

The annual song service of the Graceland Moravian Church will be held this year on Sunday evening, Oct. 29, at 7:30 P. M. Much time has been given for arranging the program by J. B. Pittinger the teacher of the Adult Bible Class which sponsors the song service.

There will be a chorus of 15 male voices and well trained for the occasion. The Whetstone quartet and orchestra, of Waynesboro, Pa.; quartet from the Church of the Brethren, of Thurmont; Saxophone solo by Jimmie Fisher; a solo by Skipper Dorsey, of Frederick, and others.

The song service is an affair of many years and is always inspiring to all who attend. Singing all numbers presented are by male voices which always constitutes a program well worth hearing. A message will be brought by the pastor in keeping with the service and as time permits. The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

MARYLAND UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS.

Baltimore, October 15—Maryland has passed the fifteen-million dollar mark in payments to the qualified unemployed, the figures of the Unemployment Compensation Board show. Indeed, at the close of business on Saturday, October 21, the figure was $15,115,316. This covers payments since the first claims were approved late in January 1938.

In 1938 the aggregate of benefit payments was $10,143,817; while the payments for this calendar year to October 21 were less than $5,000,000.

Payments have been steadily diminishing in volume as industrial employment has improved and for several weeks the verified claims have amounted to considerably less than $100,000 a week.

Now that all claimants in the Baltimore City area are getting their benefit checks from the local employment office instead of the letter carrier the saving of operating expense of the Unemployment Division is becoming large.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

George R. Slonaker and Louise N. Wilson, Hanover, Pa.
William J. Raleigh and Cora E. Hoffman, Baltimore, Md.
Herman Henning and Rachel McKenzie, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Stanford I. Hoff and Katharine B. Sharrer, Westminster, Md.
George D. Sprinkel and Anna I. Marker, Westminster, Md.
Harry F. Evans, Jr. and E. Elizabeth Bennett, Woodbine, Md.
Carl C. Ramsey and Mary E. Bowen, Johnson City, N. Y.
William A. Dodd and Louise A. Kricker, Baltimore, Md.
Harry D. Leppo and Mary G. Osterhus, Westminster, Md.

Random Thoughts

"BEHIND THE BACK."

Talking about persons "behind their back" is an old and expressive phrase, and does not mean—though there is a sameness in the words used—"talking back" at one another. In fact, one is a dodged encounter, while the other is a face to face quarrel, or "spat."

Surely, the English language furnishes a wide variety of combinations that we understand the meaning of, without waiting to hunt through Webster's to select the more elegant ones. That is left to the letter writers and students of sentence architecture. Sarcasm and satire are too slow when a quick knock-out is desired.

We use "cuss-words" for the same reason, just as we use fists instead of argumen. Of course, "talking behind the back" often means hypocrisy, or even cowardice. In nearly every instance it is a sneaking way of keeping under cover, and those who indulge are guilty of meanness and deceit. The "back talker" is a person whose company is to be shunned as an undesirable citizen—or friend.

"SHOO FLY DON'T BOTHER ME."

One of the numerous among Unionist leaders during our Civil War, was Gen. Benjamin F. Butler—mostly called "Ben" Butler. He was especially disliked in the South—New Orleans, we think referring to him frequently as "Spoons" Butler, growing out of some charges made against him following the close of the war, during the period of reconstruction.

He must have been quite a novel character, according to his biographical record. Following the close of the war he returned to his home state, Massachusetts and was elected to Congress, where he was disliked by some for his extremisms.

As the story goes, following one of his characteristic addresses, a young member attempted to belittle his argument at considerable length, perhaps hoping that he would ride "Ben," but in this he made a big mistake, for on the close of the speech he (Ben) merely rose deliberately, brushed a hand across his face and said "shoo fly," and that was the end of it.

This seems like going a good ways around in order to make a point, but we believe that this "shoo fly" incident should be revived. A song was written following the invention of the term, that was popular for a while but likely only a few remember it.

We are suggesting to our friend, W. J. H., Baltimore, that he write a "Shoo Fly" song for use now, for there are lots of things that need "shooing" in these later days.

A BIG SALARY INCREASE.

A news item appeared in the Baltimore newspapers the first of this week, to the effect that the salary of Mr. Ezra B. Whitman, chairman of the State Roads Commission had been increased by the Board of Public Works from $6000 to $10,000 a year.

All that we know about this is the plain stated fact. No doubt Mr. Whitman is a highly qualified man for the position. We do not know that he requested such an increase. We do not know very clearly what must have induced the Board of Public Works to make the increase.

The main points, are, how are personal value services arrived at? Will the taxpayers, and the State roads system be benefited to the extent of this increased $4000 a year in one salary?

There appears to be connected with the increase a subsequent likelihood that because of it, the State has now a better chance to secure the release of Federal funds amounting to $2,000,000 for the benefit of Maryland roads—funds said to have been held up because of "technicalities" required by the Federal government.

Evidently high-financing is a subject on which the general public is somewhat ignorant, and that Mr. Whitman holds the key to a lot of this information. It will be wise, therefore, for adverse comments on this subject be withheld for the present. He may deliver a service worth more than his cost.

LINCOLN MADE NO MISSTATEMENT AT GETTYSBURG.

An exchange, last week, carried the following, under the heading "It's Time You Knew."

"Abraham Lincoln made his greatest misstatement in his Gettysburg address, when he said, 'The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it will never forget what they did here,' and then continued, 'It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have so nobly advanced.'"

We do not like the use of the word "misstatement" used in the clipping. It seems more in proper company when used as representing misrule, misconduct, misuse. He may have erred in thinking for the moment that he was being misunderstood. The lack of applause that prevailed was disheartening, to say the least, and he must have temporarily felt that he was making a failure of a well meant effort, as President of the United States.

Mary Shipman Andrews, in her booklet "The Perfect Tribute" tells the whole story as it was being enacted, but she did not use the word "misstatement" at any place in her tribute. She leads up to the trying moment of the speech by first telling the actual background of it.

How the speech had been written on a scrap of waste paper while on the train coming to Gettysburg. How those who had preceded him on the platform had been cheered as though fascinated with eloquence as from men whom the crowd delighted to honor. Mrs. Andrews then writes—

"A tall, gaunt figure detached himself from the group on the platform and slouched slowly across the open space and stood facing the audience. A stir and whisper brushed over the field of humanity as if a breeze had rippled a monstrous bed of poppies. This was the President. A quivering silence settled down and every eye was wide awake to watch this strange, disappointing appearance; every ear alert to catch the first sound of his voice. Suddenly, the voice came in a queer squeaking falsetto. The effect on the audience was irrepressible, ghastly."

After hearing Everett's deep tones, after the strain of expectancy, this ordinary gaunt apparition, this high thin sound from the huge body, were too much for the American crowd's sense of humor, always stronger than its sense of reverence."

A suppressed yet unmistakable titter caught the throng, ran through it, and was gone, yet no one who knew the President's face could doubt that he had heard it and had understood. Calmly enough, after a pause almost too slightly to be recognized, he went on, and in a dozen words his tones had gathered Volume; he had come to his power and dignity. There was no smile on the face of any one who listened.

These were his people, was his only thought. He had something to say to them; what did it matter about him or his voice. After the closing sentence—"that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this Nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth" there was no sound from the silent crowd assembled.

Mrs. Andrews writes— He stared at them a moment with eyes full of gentleness, of resignation, and in the deep quiet, they stared at him. Not a hand was lifted in applause * * * His speech had been, as he feared it would be, a failure."

No, Lincoln had not made a "misstatement." He was merely mistaken. The whole country soon knew he had not, and we hardly think there is a crowd worth considering who need to answer to the "It's Time You Knew" used in the filler at the head of this. The world does "note" and does "remember" what was done, and said, at Gettysburg.

BUSINESS AND WAR.

The world at large knows—only too well—the appalling effects of war. Death, destruction and despair are the harvest it reaps. But these are not the only effects. Its repercussions extend far beyond the countries which bear the brunt of its scourge. The machinery of peacetime trade is thrown out of gear. Constructive energies are directed to destructive ends. World resources which should go to the building up of civilization are used to tear it down. Experienced business men know that they stand to lose more than they can possibly gain by these dislocations. The havoc and the ruin must be paid for—in the end.

The price of war is not only the immediate destruction it involves—the lives that are lost, the wealth that is shot away on the battlefields. Its aftermath is depression. Debts go unpaid, trade stagnates, industry halts, jobs decrease, while the world struggles painfully and slowly back to its feet. We know by experience, moreover, that the effects of depression are, like the effects of war, worldwide.

The United States is, happily, not at war. It can serve the cause of peace by staying out of war. The responsibility for keeping it out rests with the American people—all of the people. It is for them to choose the course to be followed and to foot the bills for whatever costs it may involve.

A situation such as this calls for the exercise of understanding, forbearance and sound common sense. This applies to employees as well as employers, to consumers as well as producers, to workers as well as investors. It applies to those who rely upon government for protection as well as to those who administer its policies.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, representing the organized activities of 800,000 American business men, recently said:

"An American people will endure as the great stronghold of representative democratic government in a world torn with dissension and distraught with suffering. As such it undoubtedly could play an important part in the solution of world problems that will follow in the wake of this war."

That might well be said of every community, every town and city of our country. All will play a part in withstanding the threat of war, in adjusting themselves to the inescapable circumstances which war brings, in strengthening the foundations, of a just and enduring peace.—U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

FIRST THINGS FIRST.

The cartoon at lower right hand corner of Oct. 20th. Carroll Record is the most timely bit of publicity that has come to my notice for quite a while. We have been fed up on war, and the process continues.

In fact it now looks like a war of words rather than of guns.

England and France and Germany and other allies of the opposing sides are "shooting off their mouths" continuously in an effort to catch the ear and ensnare the purse of America—the good old U. S. A.

We shall be fools again if we bite. We have no part in their quarrels. In fact those quarrels should not even concern us. We didn't start the fight, and it is not our business to stop it. We should stay neutral, and that neutrality doesn't mean to do things that will aid one side and hinder the other side.

A lot of us doubtless dislike Hitler and detest Hitlerism, but the fact remains, that aside from their present stupid following of the leadership of Hitler, the German people as a class are fine people, and once they get rid of this Austrian paper hanger and upstart, who like some other "great leaders" never did any worthwhile thing until he seized political office and assumed dictatorial power, they will fall in line and fit in in the general scheme of world progress.

The Germans are not welters as the English and the French have proved themselves to be. Why, therefore, should we take sides? The fight isn't ours, and we are but fools if we make it our fight.

We can be neutral and sell to all alike who can come and pay for what they want and carry it away. That would mean temporary prosperity. We can be neutral and refuse to sell war munitions to any one. That attitude would be rational, but it is not the American money-making way of doing business. You can answer in one guess what will be done.

Our Congress, and Executive department can serve us better if they will see to it that our domestic problems are settled right. We have had too much government waste, which has made too large our government debt.

We have too much interference with business; too many needless labor disputes, strikes and lock-outs. We have had seven years of repression of business, and name calling, until the slow down has created a need for supplies that, to supply which, would speed up the wheels of progress here, and bring on such an era of prosperity as has not been witnessed in this generation. We have the need, we have the material, we have the money, and left alone to attend their business, we have the brains among business men to put plans into action. Our greatest need is a moratorium of political interference.

Yes, the Record cartoonist is right, what we need more than anything else right now is "First Things First."

Explosive Manufacturers Exercise Great Caution

Some of the most interesting regulations concerning footwear apply in explosives works. The danger areas of explosives factories are separated from the rest of the plant by white lines, and workers are not permitted to tread inside the line without first putting on a pair of rubbers. No compulsion is needed to see that this regulation is observed, for every dynamite worker has a healthy respect for a product that might blow him sky high should it encounter a spark caused by a shoe nail.

Many workers in explosives factories even go so far as to provide themselves with nothing but stitched or cemented footwear in which not a nail is used. Other fashion conventions observed by dynamite plant workers call for pocketless overalls which eliminate the danger of stray matches or foreign materials being carried into the plant, a very necessary precaution in an industry where wooden tools are the vogue and much of the machinery is driven by compressed air.—C-I-L Oval.

Old Volumes Yield Data

On Ritchie's Expulsion

More information concerning the circumstances of the expulsion of George Gavin Ritchie from Madison university, now Colgate, in 1847, for editing a paper favoring abolition and equal suffrage, has been obtained through research in many old volumes. It supplements information turned up last January, according to the New York Times.

This student martyr, fighting for freedom of the press and the right to print his own opinions against slavery, left the university in disgrace and died six years later.

But there were those who fought for him. Howard Williams, instructor in history, has discovered minutes of a students' association meeting on February 5, 1847, at which the question of backing or repudiating Ritchie was brought up. These minutes record the proposition that was put before the association.

"Whereas, the faculty have permitted a paper called 'The Hamilton Student' to be started at the university and which has gone forth to the public bearing the name of the university and purporting to be conducted by its members,

"Whereas, Mr. Ritchie having violated the stipulation upon which said mission was granted and having been expelled from the university for contumacy and rebellion, is now publishing a paper by the same name and purporting to be from the university, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that we respectfully request the faculty to disavow the public of this imposition."

Even after being expelled Ritchie had continued to publish the paper, with such a noted abolitionist as Gerrit Smith of Peterboro, nearby, supporting him. When the question was brought to a vote before the students it was passed, 79 to 33.

An Echo-Less Dome

One of the few echo-less domes in the world covers the star-studded Planetarium at the New York Museum of Natural History. This famous dome duplicates the bowl of the sky; when a complex lantern slide machine on the floor below it projects images of stars and planets on its surface, an actual night sky is approximated. A lecturer identifies the various constellations with a pointer of light for his listeners. In order to enable the speaker to be heard, however, it was necessary to eliminate the discord and echo which would have been set up by the waves of his voice striking against the rounded surface of the dome. To eliminate the echo in the Planetarium dome, it was lined with mineral wool, a soft, fluffy material that is widely used to insulate the side walls and top floor ceilings of homes. The mineral wool acts like a sound cushion. Sound waves striking it are swallowed up and absorbed, instead of being bounced back to annoy those below.

How to Display the Flag

"When the flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost to the flag's own right, i.e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east-and-west street, or to the east, in a north-and-south street."

Subways for Imperial Rome

ROME.—Italy's plans for extending the city limits of Rome to Ostia, 30 miles away, include the construction of a subway system which will pass under the heart of Imperial Rome. The subway will be completed in time to serve visitors to the Rome 1942 World's fair, the site of which is midway between Rome and Ostia, ancient seaport. The buildings on the site of the fair will be part of the permanent city now rising on the site. Hourly capacity of 92,000 persons will be possible in the new subway.

SAGAS OF THE SKIES

By R. C. Oertel

CAPTAIN MARIUS J. LODEESEN, pilot for Pan American Airways, was all set recently for some concentrated relaxation at Pan American's Miami base.

Then, with characteristic rudeness, the telephone shattered his calm. And when Captain Lodeesen had put down the telephone he left the base in a hurry—on emergency duty for the Navy. Captain Lodeesen, Captain Robert Ford and Captain Frank Briggs, all three U. S. Naval Reserve officers, were called out to pilot Navy planes in a search for three civilian pilots—believed lost in the Everglades—and missing for more than 24 hours.

The emergency call for the airline fliers came as anxiety mounted. The civilian fliers were probably down in jungle territory infested with mosquitoes and rattlesnakes and the deadly moccasin.

The three pilots took off and headed over the jungles—their task made increasingly difficult by the wild terrain. It was the vigilance of Captain Lodeesen that made the rescue possible. The fliers were looking for the lost plane and unable to locate it. Captain Lodeesen had already flown past the men when he looked back along the tail of the plane and saw white specks about half a mile back. Without knowing that the specks were the men, nevertheless, Captain Lodeesen refused to overlook any possibilities, so he returned.

It was fortunate that he did, for doctors said that the three unfortunate men could not have lived much longer. Two of them were injured and all three suffered from the effects of exposure of two days and one night in the jungle.

Quick War Relief Given by Red Cross

Shipwrecked American Citizens, Wounded Poles, Refugees, Repatriates Aided

Washington.—The American Red Cross moved quickly at the onset of hostilities in Europe to organize relief for war sufferers and give aid to American citizens stranded in danger zones or rescued from sea-warfare catastrophes.

Red Cross officials pointed out that following contact of German-Polish forces on September 1, the organization made available medical relief for civilians and armies of Poland; provided aid for Americans repatriating from Europe as they landed in the United States ports; granted medical and maintenance assistance to American survivors of the "Athenia," first sea casualty of the war; gave financial aid to the American Hospital in Paris, France; and developed a comprehensive communications system to allay the fears of distraught relatives.

Norman H. Davis, chairman, cabled the International Red Cross Committee in Geneva on September 1 asking what relief would be needed from the American Red Cross. In a first step in consolidating Red Cross relief forces throughout the nation, 3,700 Red Cross chapters were authorized to begin producing refugee garments and to accept contributions for war relief.

A quick response from the Polish Red Cross to Chairman Davis' cable to the International Committee resulted in an American Red Cross appropriation of $50,000 for the purchase of 45 items of medicines, and for army blankets and a quantity of large hospital tents capable of housing 50 stretcher cases each.

A grant of $25,000 was also made to the American Hospital in Paris to evacuate American patients from the hospital and to purchase in the United States a 100-bed hospital unit for shipment to the American organization, it was said.

To meet needs which were thought likely to result from bombardment of rural villages and the passage of hostile armies, the Red Cross called upon 21 of its large city chapters to roll surgical dressings of a special new type for European warfare injuries. More than 500,000 yards of gauze were purchased and 40,000 pounds of cotton, enough to make 157,000 surgical dressings.

On September 2, the American Red Cross announced it was organizing to meet repatriating American citizens at seaport cities through chapter reception committees. Citizens without resources were given temporary shelter, and aided to resettle in their former homes or work.

Between September 5 and 7, the American Red Cross cabled $20,000 through the State Department to help American survivors of the "Athenia," who had been taken into Irish and Scotch ports.

"The Red Cross is not interested in the origins of the present conflict," Chairman Davis declared following his cabled offer of assistance to the International Red Cross Committee. "As part of the great International Red Cross it is our duty to do what we can to aid the helpless civilians who will suffer during the hostilities."

An Inquiry and Information Service was organized through which contact would be made with relatives of Americans in the belligerent countries.

Red Cross chapters were instructed to accept funds for the purchase of supplies for impartial distribution and funds for purchase of supplies for a designated country to be expended through the Red Cross society of that nation.

Family Works in High Places on Paint Jobs

DES MOINES, IOWA.—The Pettibones live a high life, traveling from "pole to pole."

Frank Pettibone, 37, has been painting the pinnacles of buildings and monuments since he was 20 years old. Three years ago he married Ruth Seydel, and since that time she and her son Jack have aided Pettibone in painting towers, clocks, poles and high girders.

His last job was applying three coats of paint to the 40-foot flagpole atop the 237-foot Des Moines building. He termed it a "small job."

Pettibone prides himself on the jobs he did on poles surmounting the 42-story Smith building in Seattle, Wash., and the 500-foot Claus Spreckles building in San Francisco.

"My only sensation when up high is that of work," he said.

Mrs. Pettibone adds that her only accident in the altitudinous work was a bite by a black widow spider while painting a flagpole at Stanford university.

Pershing's War Horses

Enjoy Peaceful Old Age

WASHINGTON.—At least two aged army horses need never worry about an untimely death because they have outlived their usefulness. Jeff and Kidron, mounts Gen. John J. Pershing rode in victory parades down the Champs Elysees in Paris and New York city, are now romping and frisking over the grass lands of the army remount depot near Front Royal, Va.

Their only care is "being on their dignity" when company comes. No visit to the depot is complete without a glimpse of the two horses which Col. Warren W. Whitside, commander of the depot, says are the "most photographed horses in the country."

Mileage Hints

By J. F. Winchester
Supervisor of Motor Vehicle Equipment, Esso Marketers

ONCE upon a time an automobile was a badge of wealth. Only the really well-to-do could afford automobiles twenty-five years ago. Today, however, even those in the low salary brackets are automobile owners. A committee of the American Petroleum Institute revealed not long ago that a majority of the cars sold in the United States last year were purchased by persons who did not put down more than fifty dollars as an initial payment. Obviously therefore, the average automobile owner is not wealthy. Equally obvious is the fact that an automobile to the average person represents an investment of an important sum of money. It should follow, therefore, that the average motorist is anxious to make his car last as long as possible, run as economically as it can be made to run and operate without the necessity of frequent or costly repairs.

Fortunately, these accomplishments are not difficult today. A little care in driving the car, plenty of oil and grease, water for the battery, immediate attention to and remedying of slight defects or faults before they grow into large, troublesome repairs; and a firmly carried out resolve not to abuse the car by reckless driving or by forcing it to operate on poor fuels or by straining the motor—these simple rules are virtually certain to result in an extension of the car's miles of usefulness.

Governor O'Connor signs the guest book at the RCA lounge before being televised from the gardens of the exhibit. The Governor, Mrs. O'Connor and a number of distinguished Marylanders saw the O'Connor children, Patricia and Jimmie, televised, the images coming over the screens inside the building. It was part of the entertainment offered the Governor's party on "Maryland Day."

By R. C. Oertel
Manager, Aviation Division, Sales Department

ON August 15, 1939, the 4,800-ton British freighter, Kensington Court, sailed peacefully from Rosario, Argentina, bound for Dakar, French West Africa, and her officers and crew looked forward to a pleasant voyage. Then things in Europe happened with spectacular rapidity. And somewhere at sea, sometime between August 15th and September 21st, the British Admiralty ordered the vessel to change her course.

The next thing the public heard of the Kensington Court she had sent out an S O S, reporting that she had been torpedoed in the Atlantic Ocean. Little did her crew realize, as they were attacked, that they were soon to play a historic role in aviation. They launched two lifeboats. One capsized; the other bobbed up and down on the water with the members of the capsized boat clinging to her sides. Unless help arrived quickly it looked bad for the unlucky members of the capsized boat.

The eyes of the crew were turned toward the sinking vessel, which was settling slowly. But suddenly they were cast skyward as they heard the rhythmic drone of airplane motors. Soon two planes hove into sight. They dived toward the water. One plane landed. The other kept watch from the air, seeking the submarine which had sent the Kensington Court to the ocean's bottom. The Royal Air Force's flying patrol boat, which landed on the water, pulled fourteen of the Kensington Court's crew into the plane, took off with her heavy load and kept watch while her sister flying boat landed and took twenty of the seamen aboard.

As the freighter disappeared from sight beneath the waves the flying boats were lost on the horizon, and for the first time in the history of flying an entire ship's crew had been rescued at sea by flying boats, according to Britain's official Ministry of Information.

CORRESPONDENCE

Latest Items of Local News Furnished
By Our Regular Staff of Writers

We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by Fast Mail, west on W. M. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach us in time.

All communications for this department must be signed, by the author, not for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributed are legitimate and correct. Items based on mere rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted.

FEESBURG.

That was a heavy storm on Saturday evening. So much thunder and lightning for this late in the season. Some rain fell—but not a down-pour and no hail here but it was reported from nearby places. Of course cooler weather followed, and now it looks and feels like autumn.

Colds, sore throat, toothache, bronchitis, etc., are in vogue; also the Doctors are in demand. The closing of our doors and over heating the rooms, bring their own results—to one's sorrow.

One of the good things of last week was the C. E. banquet at the Charles Carroll Hotel in Westminster, on Friday evening. About 70 persons were present, and besides the feast there was special music and addresses. One of the best orations was by a young lady on "why should youth observe the Sabbath day?" and it was good to stand squarely with her.

My! Didn't we have a grand time at Gettysburg on Friday, when Grayson Shank, Principal of the Elementary department of Elmer A. Wolfe School took the 7th. grade pupils to the battlefield for observation and study. The observatory on Big Round Top; the Jennie Wade House now a museum; and the rather new Peace Monument were some of the places of special interest, with a genial teacher to explain.

Recently Miss Edna Keefe with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Myers (nee Oneda Keefe) visited the Deaconess Mother House, in Baltimore, to see Sister Anna Albright, who once nursed in the Keefe home, and other places in this community. While she has been in failing health for some time—they found her alert and cheerful, and saw the fine home and surrounding.

Mrs. Edward Dayhoff with Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wolfe attended the funeral of Nora Arbaugh in the Church of God, at Carrollton, on Sunday afternoon. Rev. C. Sullivan conducted the service and also sang in solo, "Some time We'll Understand." Mr. Arbaugh was 83 years of age and many friends were present. Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

On Sunday afternoon Mrs. Addie Crumbacker and daughters with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crumbacker and daughter, Charlotte, of Clear Ridge, enjoyed a lovely drive across the mountains to Waynesboro, where they called on relatives, then onto Hagerstown to see Mr. and Mrs. Harris Frock, their sister, and from there to Frederick City and home for supper.

A special program has been prepared for the ingathering service at Mt. Union this Sunday evening sponsored by the young people. Their pastor Rev. M. L. Kroh will be present to lend assistance. All jarred goods as well as fresh fruits and vegetables will be brought to the church to be sent to the Deaconess' Mother House, Baltimore. For many years this has been an annual donation for the Sisters there. "Come thou with us."

Some of our neighbors have treated themselves to new cars; the 1940 models of Chrysler and Chevrolet are leading. They seem complete, and look fine. "Happy motoring."

On the evening of Oct. 30th., the Smiling Sunbeams will have a Hal-lowe'en Social in the Parish House of Mt. Union. They will give a play entitled, "Spooks" and have some real fun, with light refreshments on sale. Ederybody welcome. Admission 10 cents.

A few of the late flowers have rallied from Jack Frost's cold weather. So we have some beautiful chrysanthemums and Zinnias blooming; but he finished the vegetables and the acres of tomatoes have been disc harrowed.

A bob tailed dog of black and tan color, has appeared on the scene and sticketh closer than a brother and eats as much. If the owner is within reach why has he made no inquiry or search? The animal seems of good disposition, and killed two skunks last week.

Just four weeks until the earlier Thanksgiving Day. It will surely mix up some things, such as butchering the only day men are released from public works; but since time can be changed to encourage loungers to arise one hour earlier and throw the works out of gear, moving a holiday one week ought not to surprise us—but how about other holidays and other years?

You know it seems real quiet these days, with many of the men in the corn field husking, and the women house-cleaning; traffic has slowed down, and there's less sociability but time moves on.

I WAS WRONG.

There may be virtue in the man
Who's always sure he's right,
Who'll never hear another's plan,
And seek no further light;
But I like more the chap who sings
A somewhat different song;
Who says when he has messed up things,
"I'm sorry; I was wrong."

It's hard for any one to say
That failure's due to him—
That he has lost the fight or way
Because his lights burned dim.
It takes a man aside to throw
The vanity that's strong,
Confessing, "Twas my fault, I know.
"I'm sorry; I was wrong."

And so, I figure, those who use
This honest, manly phrase,
Hate it too much their way to lose
On many future days.
They'll keep the path and make the fight.

Because they do not long
To have to say—when they're not right—
"I'm sorry; I was wrong."—Selected

WHY NOT CASH AND CARRY
AND THE ARMS EMBARGO?

There seems to be a popular impression that the only neutrality legislation possible is either a law providing for a complete arms embargo without "cash and carry" for other commodities on the one hand, or a law without arms embargo but providing for cash and carry on everything else on the other hand—that it is an "either-or" proposition.

But this is, of course, not true. We seem to have forgotten that the present neutrality law prior to May, 1939, had not only the provision for arms embargo but also for cash and carry on all other trade to belligerents. The fact that cash and carry was not continued in the present law was due to pressure from the administration. Now the administration is demanding such a provision but apart from arms embargo. But what it really wants, apparently, is repeal of the embargo on arms and munitions, and is willing to accept cash and carry for the time being as a sop to the opposition. In other words, what the administration seems really to want is unneutral neutrality.

The sensible thing to do is to combine the present embargo on arms with cash and carry restrictions on other trade, adding if possible a limitation of this trade to peacetime quotas (to avoid the moral and economic implication of accepting "blood money"). Neither the arms embargo nor the cash and carry alone is enough; we need both.

We want to defend our peace and to remain at peace, but we are taking the first step away from that when we begin to take sides. At the meeting with Senators Tydings and Rad-cliff in the caucus room of the Senate Office Building last week those who were for retaining the arms embargo (about 200 present) asked the opposing group (about 100) why it was that those for repeal always left the impression that they were on the side of Britain. They called out, "We are."

Can we, dare we, take sides, and expect to keep our democracy and our peace? Let us continue to urge our Congressmen to strengthen rather than weaken the present neutrality law.

MARTHA W. BERTHOLF.

Lecturer—He drove straight to his goal. He looked neither to the right nor to the left, but pressed forward, moved by a definite purpose. Neither friend nor foe could delay him nor turn him from his course. All who crossed his path did so at their own peril. What would you call such a man?

Audience (in unison)—A truck driver.

Funeral services were held on Sunday, at the home, at 1:30, and further services in the Tom's Creek Methodist Church, in charge of Rev. Milton B. Crist. Interment was in the Keysville union cemetery.

FOX—In loving Remembrance of our dear parents, JOHN D. FOX, who passed away two years ago January 25, 1937, and MARY J. FOX who passed away 21 years ago Nov. 4, 1918.

TO MY MOTHER.
To my heart is heavy.
My thoughts are all of thee,
Oh, how I miss you, mother dear,
None but God in Heaven can see,
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true,
For one long year has passed, dear,
And my heart still aches for you.

Oh mother, dear, when you were here
We had your tender care,
And none can ever take your place
Or fill that vacant chair.

TO MY FATHER.
The golden sun is shining
Upon dear father's grave,
One we loved so dearly
And tried so hard to save.

When we lost you, dearest father,
We lost a wonderful pal,
We love you now and miss you
More and more and ever shall.

Loving Daughter and Son-in-law,
MURTY AND VICTOR.

CARD OF THANKS.

We hereby extend our most sincere thanks to all friends and neighbors who in any way came to our aid during the illness and following the death of Warren G. Devilbiss and for flowers received.

ANNIE M. DEVILBISS.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Toll gates, reminiscent of the long past, have reappeared hereabouts. True they are booths and not gates but there is no passage without payment, just as in former times when there was a real barrier. Because of these modern toll gates motorists who travel from New York up into Connecticut by way of the Henry Hudson drive, the Hutchinson River parkway and the Merritt highway, have to make three stops. The first is on Spuyten Duyvil bridge where a policeman, employed by the city of New York, holds out his hand for a dime. The cash register having rung, the driver can go on his way until he reaches the Hutchinson River parkway. There he must make another stop and there happens after that until he crosses the line over into Connecticut. Then an employee of that state, stationed on the Merritt highway, again takes toll.

This toll business was started by the city of New York. When the Henry Hudson drive was opened, the dime charge for the use of the bridge went into effect. Westchester residents made considerable complaint on the ground that they had spent millions for a beautiful parkway system which was free to New York drivers despite the fact that they hadn't helped pay for it. The matter of toll on Westchester highways, as a retaliatory measure, was discussed freely but nothing happened, Westchester drivers continued to pay 20 cents each time they went to and returned from New York. They might have skipped the toll by taking another route. But the Henry Hudson drive is much quicker.

When the Merritt highway opened in Connecticut, followed by scandal because of graft charges, there was no toll. It wasn't long before the taxpayers of the nutmeg state realized that the highway, which had cost them many millions, enabled New Yorkers and others to whizz through their state on their way elsewhere. That, of course, meant no return to those who had paid for the right-of-way, the concrete, the work and everything else that went into one of the finest drives in the country. So the necessary action was taken, toll booths erected and collections began.

It didn't take Westchester long to fall into line after that. With New York city collecting tolls and Connecticut doing the same thing, Westchester was right in the middle. So Westchester put up and manned toll booths. Motorists kicked of course and there were attempts to stop the collection through court action. But the motorists lost out with the result that now it costs 60 cents to go to and from Connecticut provided the toll routes are followed.

Though New Yorkers have complained about the present toll setup, they are accustomed to paying such charges. To drive through the Holland or Lincoln vehicular tunnels under the Hudson river costs 50 cents each way. There is the same charge for using the George Washington bridge over the Hudson. Eventually, however, there will be a reduction. The tunnels and bridge were built by the port authority of New York and charges have been set to pay all costs in a period of 20 years. Then the tunnels and bridge become the property of the states of New Jersey and New York and tolls will merely cover upkeep, etc.

One of those alert Hell's Kitchen youngsters who spring out when a traffic light stops a car and industriously polish windshields, has a new line. No matter the size of the tip handed him, he, seemingly, bashfully, asks if the donor can't be just a little more liberal. According to his tale, it's his mother's birthday and he wants to buy her a present. And according to a friend who frequently drives through that section, the kid's mother has had a birthday every day for the last two weeks. (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Kills Herself While

She Reads the Bible
FINDLAY, OHIO.—Mrs. Dorothy Hook, 29, took her own life while she sat reading her Bible, according to Coroner Harold O. Crosby who returned a verdict of suicide in her death after her body was found in her car on a lonely road near here.

Dr. Crosby said that Mrs. Hook parked her auto on the road and attached a hose to the exhaust and placed the hose through a crack. Then she sat in the rear seat and read her Bible while she was overcome by the carbon monoxide fumes.

The young mother was grieving over the recent death of her daughter, Joan, 12.

Guantanamo Is U. S. Watchdog

Controls Lane That Links North Atlantic and Caribbean Traffic.

WASHINGTON.—A sudden order recently for the American submarine Spearfish to abandon her South American shakedown cruise and proceed to Guantanamo, Cuba, calls attention to one of Uncle Sam's most strategically located naval bases. It lies on the south coast of Cuba only 75 miles from the island's eastern tip.

"Many tourists familiar with Havana's gay night life and Santiago's long history have heard little of Guantanamo," points out the National Geographic society. "For sightseeing lures in this part of the island are scarce, and civilian visits to the station itself are forbidden except by special permission."

"To the United States navy, however, the Guantanamo base is especially significant. Situated on the south shore of the far eastern end of Cuba, it controls the vital sea lane between Cuba and Haiti which links North Atlantic and Caribbean traffic."

Convenient for Navy.

"In case of emergency, ships of some European countries must travel for days to reach these waters. United States' vessels are not only within easy access of base supplies but also have the advantage of familiarity with the area, due to annual target-practice maneuvers thereabouts. Guantanamo is, in fact, a sort of 'winter home' for a considerable part of the U. S. navy that is in the Atlantic."

"Guantanamo bay, the entrance to which is commanded on both sides by the naval station, is one of the best harbors in the West Indies. Extending 12 miles inland, it is wide enough to shelter the entire American fleet. At the same time its entrance is narrowed by a spit of land which, together with surrounding hills, helps afford protection against both storms and enemy attack."

"Once a retreat for pirates, who used its protective shelter as a hide-out from which to pounce on shipping to the nearby port of Santiago, this harbor was also an English operating base against Spanish Santiago around the middle of the Eighteenth century. The British commanding officer at that time was one Admiral Vernon, whose staff included Lawrence Washington, brother of the man who was to become the first President of the United States. Later, Lawrence Washington named his estate on the Potomac 'Mount Vernon,' after his former superior, the name which stuck even after George Washington took over the property."

Rented From Cuba.

"Guantanamo bay came into American hands after the war of 1898, when U. S. marines were landed there for action against the Spaniards. Setting up camp on a nearby hill, they fought off Spanish siege for several days, until reinforcements finally gave them control of the area."

"In the early 1900s, land on both sides of the bay was leased to the United States by the Cuban government for the purpose of establishing the present naval base. Under the jurisdiction of the American navy department, this base is maintained solely for the use of the fleet."

"When the fleet is in, the normally sleepy little town comes suddenly to life. Then the numerous baseball fields, tennis and handball courts, and bridge paths swarm with sailors and officers. Club houses and cantens buzz with activity and at night the open-air motion picture theater is crowded with spectators."

Dog Enjoys Soda Drink

Without Using Saucer

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Mugsy, the nine-year-old mongrel dog owned by Ada White of Evansville, is more than just a mutt—he's a canine companion.

First among his accomplishments is the ability to drink from a bottle. He accompanies his mistress to a soft drink stand and waits patiently for the bottle. When she hands it to him, he wraps his forelegs around it and drinks directly from it. No straw or saucer is necessary.

He doesn't like hot weather. When the temperature rises, he barks for his cold bath. He likes a tub of cold water, and Miss White says he will lie in it for hours.

When he comes into a room, he remembers to close the door.

Soviet Russia Announces Its Gains in Population

MOSCOW.—The population of Russia is increasing twice as fast as that of other European nations, the publication of the Soviet's vital statistics showed.

During the past 12 years the Soviet population increased 23,500,000. The statistics also reveal that under the Communist regime the death rate has dropped by 40 per cent.

Last year Moscow had 117,000 births which is stated to be the greatest number for any city in the world. As compared with 1926 the urban population has more than doubled—reaching 55,900,000. Industrial output has increased six fold. During the two 'five-year plans' 210 cities have been built.

Cattle Branding Remains

Best Method of Marking

CHEYENNE, WYO.—The cattle brand, introduced in the early days of Wyoming's history when stock raising was its only large industry, still is the most practicable and humane method of marking the animals, Russell Thorp, secretary of the State Stock Growers association, insists.

Although the large herds that roamed the state's almost limitless expanses when "rustlin'" was the most serious crime no longer exist, Thorp said that Wyoming still has thousands of registered brands.

"The burned brand is the most successful method of marking cattle," he explained. "Reports that the brand is inhumane are false. An hour after the average calf is marked and returned to its mother, the scar no longer bothers the young animal."

"It is the most practicable because it makes possible the detection of frauds. Experts can tell instantly whether the brand scar is the original or has been altered by one of several methods."

Although rustling is not so common as when ranchers covered thousands of acres of Wyoming's prairies, "rubber tire" cattle thieves still carry on a lucrative business, he said. They load the animals into swift trucks, a few at a time, and rush them to distant points for sale. Gone, however, he said, are the large-scale operations of 70 years ago, when it was possible to drive off a herd of several thousand animals and evade capture.

New Dredge Is Designed

For Placer Gold Mining

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA.—A new type dredge, for the recovery of placer gold, will be tested this summer in the Bonfield district in the interior.

Differing from the standard connected bucket type of dredge, this boat uses only one bucket in the bow well.

The hull is of steel pontoons, and two Diesel engines power the boat.

E. W. Pringle, placer operator, is building the boat on Moose creek, in the Bonfield, a rough district.

The creek is littered with boulders, so the new dredge will receive a severe test.

If this light type boat is successful, it probably will mean that similar dredges will be used in other shallow creeks, Pringle said.

Firemen Use Lipstick

MT. SHASTA CITY, ORE.—Sooty-faced forest fighters with bright red lips required some explanation here. Supervisor M. H. Davis furnished it by explaining that several of the men and boys on the fire line reported painfully chapped and dried lips and the only thing found satisfactory for relief was lipstick.

Kills Coyote From

Speeding Motor Car

VALPARAISO, NEB.—Hans Hoffman could have held his own with the legendary dead shots of the Old West, his friends declared, pointing to his recent exploits with a rifle. Hoffman and his son saw a coyote in a field near their home, hopped into an automobile and set out to run down the animal. With the car traveling 50 miles an hour over a rough field and the coyote loping full tilt, Hoffman brought him down with a single shot.

EGGS FOR TWO

By STANLEY JONES

(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

THE June sun was just beginning to warm the red tiles of the terrace when a tall young man swung quietly up the steps. He wore a leather flying coat and there was a smudge of grease down the side of his lean face. Stretching behind him was a long slope of emerald turf that dipped into the dancing waters of Long Island sound.

Picking up a pebble, he chucked it against one of the screened windows in the great, silent house. "Hey, Lazy," he called guardedly. "Stick out your head."

There came, presently, the muffled click of mules, then startled blue eyes in a face lovely despite a certain imperious tension. "Why, Tom Proctor! I thought you were in town. What on earth—"

"Listen, Kay. Slide into something and come out for a whirl in the new amphibian—she runs like a charm."

"Gee, I'd love to," sighed the girl. "But I've got more things to do, Tom. A meeting at 10, Mrs. Shuttleworth at 11, school board for luncheon. And right after, the Garden club and—"

"Aw, let 'em wait," coaxed Tom, entreating in his face. "You can see that bunch of freaks any day."

"Well, 15 minutes, then," smiled Kay. "And they're no more freaks than you are, if anyone should ask me. Wait 'till I tell Miss McKay where I am, in case anyone calls."

Twice the graceful silver plane circled the fields and wooded clumps of the far-flung estate.

Kathryn peered out through the cabin window; for a time her eyes lost that intense, preoccupied look which Tom had come to note with increasing dismay.

"Why, it's lovely!" she cried, squeezing his hand impulsively. "Course it is," said Tom. "Things are always lovely when we get together, Hon! Why, no two people ever had more fun than we used to have. Until you gave me the air to run the whole doggone community out here."

"Don't be injured," said the girl, patting his hand with mock pity. "You are still the nicest man I know, Mr. Proctor."

Then, almost subconsciously, her eyes were drawn to the little silver clock in the cowl.

"Goodness, I must hurry. Home, James, if you please."

The man regarded her curiously for a long moment, shook his head. "Not today," he said quietly.

Kathryn flushed, stared. Then her jaw settled in a way reminiscent of her father, old "T. D.", the act of squashing a dissenting director. Her voice took on a quickened, exciting edge.

"What on earth ails you, Tom? I tell you I've no time for—"

"You're going to take a little time, Kay," he interrupted coolly. "Time for a little trip—where you can't be a big, important committeewoman to anybody but me for a change."

Now, if there was one quality upon which Kathryn prided herself above all others, it was self-possession. At the moment, with an overpowering impulse to wrest the controls from his hands, she bit her lip and shrugged.

"Very well, Tom. But I can promise you one thing; I shan't forget this in a hurry."

"That," he replied, with a certain grim sincerity, "is precisely what I am hoping. It's long overdue."

They had no more talk until the red afternoon sun began cooling itself to lavender in the blue mist obscuring the horizon.

Then, abruptly, Tom frowned at his map.

A glance at the instrument board, and the little plane curled straight out to sea. It was then that Kathryn's nerve broke.

"You take me back!" she cried fiercely. "I've had enough of this!"

She snatched at the stick—the ship dipped crazily.

She beat at his head, his arm, her breath hot and incoherent with sobs.

At length Tom released one hand to grip her shoulder.

"You sit still," he commanded in a voice she had never heard. "Sit still and shut up—for once. I'm running this, understand?"

Kathryn cried a little then, and sulked in the deep white folds of her polo coat.

An hour droned by. Suddenly she gasped and clutched the seat. The plane was nosing down. Blue water swung up at them; a deeper, clearer blue than the sound. Down, down, until the hull skimmed it lightly as a swallow's wing, rose, and settled again with a smooth, sighing "S-s-wish."

Tom taxied in slowly until they grounded on the white sand of a large wooded island.

"Well, that does it," he exclaimed with satisfaction. "Come on, hon—help unload." Kathryn glared at his eager face.

"What do you think you're going to do? Spend the night on this God-forsaken island—alone with me?"

He looked back at her, pausing on the little ladder. "Night, my eye," he said cheerfully. "Two months—unless you refuse to cook and I have to kill you."

He glanced at the white beach, the green tufts of palms nodding welcome in the soft breeze.

"Gee, isn't this swell? It's Ed Graham's island—he's got a knock-out of a cottage up on that knoll. Straw roof, running water from a well, supplies—everything, hon! And I've got your bags here."

"I could kill you," declared Kathryn. "My committees will be—"

"The deuce with 'em," said Tom, filling his pipe.

"Come on, lend a hand. 'Why,' he leaned on his elbows, smiling reminiscently. 'Why, do you realize how long it's been since you and I made a fire outdoors together?'"

"I won't lift a finger," said Kathryn fiercely. "I'll starve first."

Tom looked at her, shrugged. "Up to you, of course. But it's no fun."

She heard his feet plump on the sand, his whistle trail off into silence up the path.

It became dreadfully still, all at once. Kathryn peered out into the strange twilight.

She realized that she was famished, faint with hunger. She indulged herself in morbid satisfaction at the trouble and remorse which would seize Tom Proctor when he found her starved to death on his hands.

"Kay! Oh Ka-ay!"

She turned a deaf ear to the hail. It was repeated once. Eagerly. Boyishly.

"Oh, Lord, but I'm hungry," whispered Kathryn. "But I won't give in—I'll die first."

She had no idea how long she slept, leaning back in the cramped cockpit. Dreaming tortured dreams of eggs, burbling happily in bacon fat.

The illusion became agonizingly real. It seemed to fill the cabin, depriving her of all strength, all will-power.

Weakly, she struggled to stifle her senses, wondering if she were not losing her mind.

"Hey," said Tom's voice, pleasantly inquiring. "How do you poach an egg, gal? Bust it and mix it, or sprawl it out like a bath-mat?"

In the first pink flush of early morning, Kathryn rubbed her eyes and tried to remain aloof from the tantalizing skillet which he juggled.

After a final awful struggle she gave in.

"Not that way, you poor clown," she said scornfully. "Here, help me out before they're totally ruined."

"But," she paused, halfway down the ladder, "don't think that this is going to save you when I get home. When my father hears about—"

"Just suppose," said Tom impudently, "just suppose that I had already talked the thing over with T. D. Like to know what he said?"

"No," said Kathryn defiantly. "Yes. But you'd lie, anyway."

"Not me," said Tom, hooking her arm complacently. "Don't have to watch those eggs, there! Well, T. D. laughed so hard he nearly fell out of his chair. Then he slapped me on the back and said, 'Boy, that's the best idea you've had since you married her, 10 years ago!'"

Apache Foray Averted

With $65 Buffalo Hunt

The gods of peace must have smiled when it was revealed recently how an obscure Indian agent 64 years ago averted a war by spending $65 and organizing a buffalo hunt.

According to the report, written in 1874 by Alex G. Irvine to the Hon. Edward P. Smith, U. S. commissioner of Indian affairs, the Apaches went marauding one night and stole half a dozen horses from the Utes.

The Utes countered by preliminary thumps on their war drums. Irvine, a one-man league of nations in what was then a Southwestern wilderness, sensed the impending trouble and called the two tribes into council at Cimarron, N. M.

Representatives glowered across the room at each other in the agency building during which Irvine wrote that he did much perspiring to keep the pow-wow from becoming the beginning of a scalping spree.

Eventually Irvine got the Apaches grudgingly to agree to return the stolen horses. However, this arrangement failed to make peace between the tribes. The Utes demanded the lives of the thieves. The Apaches, of course, objected.

So the meeting broke up with each tribe waiting for the other to make a misstep to put on the war paint.

It was then that Irvine conceived the idea of the buffalo hunt. He reasoned that if the warriors of one of the tribes were busy in another part of the country there would be no occasion for friction between the two groups. The Apaches, for an unnamed reason, were chosen to go on the hunt.

Irvine's report revealed the following bill of sale:

1,000 lbs. of gun caps.	$ 2.50
1 doz. butcher knives	6.00
20 lbs. lead	5.00
10 lbs. gunpowder	10.00
1200 lbs. shot	42.00
Total	$65.50

Dickens' Chosen Name

Gad's Hill in England, forever associated as the last home of Charles Dickens, was the place Dickens had picked out to dwell in when he had arrived at the fullness of fame and prosperity. When yet a boy, he would often pass the house with his father, and frequently say to him:

"If ever I have a dwelling of my own, Gad's Hill Place is the house I mean to buy."

89 MILLION PHONE CALLS MADE EVERY DAY IN THE UNITED STATES IN 1939

20 Million Telephones Linked By 94 Million Mile Wire Network

The part the telephone plays in the life of the American citizen is revealed by the fact that telephone users have made an average of 89,600,000 calls each day so far this year. Of these, 2,930,000 were out-of-town calls, according to statistics prepared by The American Telephone and Telegraph Company. For the first six months of this year there was a daily increase of 2,400,000 telephone calls.

This volume of calls was made from 20,385,000 telephones now serving the United States through 18,809 central offices. There are 6,616 separate telephone companies operating in this country.

The calls were made over 94,000,000 miles of wire covering every section of the country, 77,530,000 being for local service and 16,470,000 for long distance communications. Of the total telephone wire mileage 60.8 per cent is in underground cable, 33.7 per cent in aerial cable and 5.5 per cent in open wire lines.

More than 318,500 men and women are employed in the telephone industry. This does not include 30,543 employed by the Western Electric Company and 4,632 employed by the Bell Telephone Laboratories, manufacturing and research organizations, respectively, of the Bell System.

Stockholders of The American Telephone and Telegraph Company now total 642,000, the average holding per stockholder being twenty-nine shares.

Snake Is Found in Body of Cricket

County Farm Commissioner Is Authority for Story.

ROULLARD, CALIF.—This is a fish story—about a snake.

What's more it's backed up by no less an authority than Fred Roullard, Fresno county agricultural commissioner.

Russell Troutner, county supervisor of neighboring Kings county, said he found a snake eight inches long living inside a cricket.

When he told this before a meeting of the board of supervisors, he was quipped unmercifully.

However, Roullard backed him up, explaining that "snakes," or worms, use the cricket and some other animals as a means of livelihood. The adults lay their eggs in water and they become attached to some insect and develop inside their host.

"Sometimes," said Roullard, "it is passed from one host to another, for example a bird would eat a grasshopper containing a snake and continue to live in the bird. At maturity the snake emerges. If its host is an insect its development to the adult stage kills the host. If the snake is near the water when it leaves its host it will live out its life span, otherwise it will die within a few hours."

A namatodes of the species gordius—that is the scientific term of this snake, it was explained, sometimes grows to three or four feet long.

Troutner has his cricket and the snake in a bottle—to remind people his "fish" story is really a scientific curiosity.

Policeman Wears

His Sunday Medal

LANCASTER, PA.—Police Commissioner Albert Carlson issued an order permitting World war veterans in the department to wear army citations. Policeman Al Farkas, too young for service in the war, showed up decorated with medals won in athletics—and one for perfect attendance at Sunday school.

Former Posseman Recalls Outlaws

Knew Robbers' Roost Country and Famed Killers.

PRICE, UTAH.—Tracking and shooting of Butch Cassidy, leader of the "Robbers Roost" gang which terrorized inhabitants of large sections of the inter-mountain West in the nineties, is recalled by Peter Anderson of Price, last remaining member of the posse credited with breaking up one of the most formidable gangs of killers in western history.

Anderson explains that he became well acquainted with the so-called Robbers Roost country before the Castlegate payroll holdup of 1894.

"I had spent three years riding all over the accessible parts of it just prior to the holdup," he said.

"A U. S. deputy marshal who persuaded me to lead him to the hide-out of the Cassidy gang, suspected of the robbery, retreated without making an arrest or even showing his face," when Anderson pointed the place out.

"We went after the outlaws," Anderson said, "three years later following a cattle-stealing incident in which two members of the gang ambushed and nearly beat to death two employees of the cattle firm from which the animals were stolen."

A posse of 18 men under Sheriff Charlie Allred of Price took the trail. Anderson served as a deputy under Allred at the time. Joined by a farmer at whom the gang had fired on early in the day, the party trailed the outlaws to a small canyon where they surprised them in bed.

In answer to a demand to surrender, the outlaws fired a shot into the ground just in front of Anderson, he explained. Possemen returned fire and picked off Cassidy as he made a break for his rifle, which was standing a few feet away. Two other members of the bandit gang died of bullet wounds during the fight.

'Seek and Ye Shall Find' Trips Old Gold Buyers

SPOKANE, WASH.—Old-gold buyers who employed a Biblical quotation to entice housewives into selling valuable trinkets and other gold-bearing goods incurred the wrath of police.

The purchasers placed gaudy posters on doorsteps that said in bold letters, "Seek and Ye Shall Find." The posters informed occupants of houses they would return in half an hour to offer prices for anything containing gold.

Police Chief Ira Martin warned housewives that such operations were violations of the law, since the purchasers had no licenses and all sales of second-hand goods must be reported to authorities.

Court Order Requested

To Sell Real Gold Brick

PASADENA, CALIF.—Mrs. Clara MacDonald has a gold brick on her hands that differs from the kind that usually gets into circulation.

The gold brick in question is a real one, weighs 52.84 ounces and is worth $1,097.20. It was presented to her late husband in 1904 by employees of the Alaska Gold Mining corporation in appreciation of his work with them.

Under the federal anti-gold-hoarding ruling of several years ago, Mrs. MacDonald had it exempted as a souvenir. Now she would like to have Uncle Sam buy it and has petitioned the courts to authorize its sale to the mint.

Motor Crash Hurls Baby

Into Arms of Pedestrian

CLEVELAND.—Bobby Dunn, three, found out just how it feels to be a football. Tony Galeto, 50, learned how it feels to make the catch that saves the game.

An automobile driven by Charles Hopson, 22, skidded into a group consisting of Dorothy Dunn, 13, pushing Bobby in a baby buggy, and her four small sisters. The car struck the buggy and hurled the child through the air—15 feet right into Galeto's arms.

Bobby's sisters were cut and bruised slightly—but he, unhurt, just put his arms around Tony and smiled at his new friend.

Canadian Makes World

Tour at Cost of $500

SEATTLE, WASH.—It's fun to travel and George Cadogan, 24-year-old globe trotter, can offer a pretty convincing argument that it's cheaper than staying at home, too. The young Canadian stopped in Seattle after 13 months of touring the world at a cost of only $500.

Sparrow Wages Terrific

Battle With Auto Bumper

KLAMATH FALLS, ORE.—Main point of interest in Klamath Falls for several days was an angry sparrow who had singled out a particular car to vent its spite.

For days the sparrow battled its own image in the polished surface of the bumper guard of an automobile parked in front of a newspaper office.

The bird ignored other bumper guards and bright spots that offered a reflection equally clear. When the car was driven away the bird would patiently wait for its return and resume its futile battle. The bird was saved further useless struggle when the owner of the car decided to park it in another place down the street.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 29

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

BEVERAGE ALCOHOL AND SOCIAL PROGRESS

LESSON TEXT—Micah 2:9-11; Luke 21:29-31, 34-36; 1 Corinthians 6:9-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?—1 Corinthians 6:9.

"International Temperance Sunday—October 29, 1939." Let us join with people the world over in making our protest against the sale and use of intoxicating liquors. If every Christian would declare himself on this matter now, there would be a tremendous impact made on this universal problem and notice would be served on the liquor industry, on politicians, and on unbelieving mankind that Christianity intends to do something about it. We are far too docile and quiet on such matters, when we ought to speak up for God and for our country.

The lesson portions may seem a little unrelated, but study of them yields three important truths regarding the use of wine and strong drink.

I. Lovers of Wine and Strong Drink Destroy Their Nation (Mic. 2:9-11).

That statement may surprise some of our self-styled patriots who like to wave the flag and speak swelling words of devotion to our country and who at the same time love their intoxicating drinks. Micah rightly points out that his people had come to the place where they chose men to be prophets because they encouraged the people in the use of wine and strong drinks (v. 11). They must therefore expect the result which follows, namely, the destruction of the home and of the nation (vv. 9, 10).

We are all familiar with the claim that prohibition retarded the advancement of our nation and that its repeal would bring a return to higher moral standards, reduce crime, bring in prosperity, etc. The facts reveal that none of these have come true. Crime has increased by leaps and bounds under repeal, a situation so well known as to call for no proof. Moral standards have gone rapidly downward with the free use of liquor. If you don't believe that, ask a policeman what goes on in our taverns, or just keep your eyes half open and you can see for yourself.

Just now much is being made of the many jobs which are supposed to have been created by the liquor industry. What are the facts? The Christian Herald tells us, "A million dollars spent for furniture would employ 339 persons, spent for boots and shoes 336 persons, for home furnishings 191 persons, for booze just 95 persons." And remember that jobs making the stuff that destroys other jobs, are not worth having. The man who drinks is helping to destroy his nation.

II. Christians Do Not Drink, Because They Look for Christ's Return (Luke 21:29-31, 34-36).

If we are not "looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ" (Titus 2:13), we should consider whether any of the things mentioned in these verses have gained control in our lives: the cares of this life, self-interest, or drunkenness. But why speak to Christians about that? Surely they do not use intoxicants. Sadly enough, some do. Taking advantage of the fact that the Bible speaks of temperance rather than of abstinence, they seek to justify an indulgence in these things which they (and their neighbors) know is dishonoring to God and destructive of their testimony and usefulness in the community.

Christian, Jesus is coming again! He may come today! In fact, the fig tree (vv. 29, 30), which is the nation Israel, has long been shooting forth new branches and bearing green leaves. The indications are that Christ is coming soon. Are you ready to meet Him?

III. Drunkards and Other Sinners Need to be Saved (1 Cor. 6:9-11).

Being drunk is not a joke, even though thoughtless people laugh and cartoonists and writers of jokes use such unfortunates as their stock in trade. Drunkenness is a foul and sinful thing, classed by the apostle Paul with the lowest of human vices. Review the list as it is given in verses 9 and 10 (and by the way, notice that covetousness is mentioned there too) and place drunkenness in its proper classification. Call it what it really is—sin, and then call on the One who can save from sin and then you will be washed from your sin, sanctified, and justified in the name of the Lord Jesus (v. 11). In Christ there is hope for the drunkard. A spiritual revival is the real answer to the liquor problem. Let us seek to promote it even as we at the same time give ourselves to an intelligent and constructive battle against this destructive force in the life of our nation.

U. S. Divorces on Increase As World War Aftermath

Divorces in the United States showed a heavy increase as an aftermath of the World War, maintained a high level during the prosperous years following 1922 and, for some unexplained reason, took a sharp turn upward to unprecedented heights beginning with 1934, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company have discovered.

They base their conclusions on a study of the divorce trend in New England, the only section of the country for which data covering a long period are available. In these states, the ratio of divorces in 1937 to the annual average of marriages for the preceding decade was 166 per cent greater than the corresponding ratio for 1929.

Many of the post-war divorces probably resulted from disillusionment after hasty marriages with soldiers bound for the front, the statisticians point out, while others were the result of opportunity presented by prevailing high wages and war profits, which furnished the necessary funds that would otherwise have been lacking.

The increase in divorces occurring in the prosperous period after 1922 ran true to form, it is explained, because it is well known that the incidence of divorces usually follows the business cycle closely. The record rise that started in 1934, however, is not so easily explained, as "no data are at present available which offer an authoritative interpretation of this remarkable development."

The statisticians suggest, however, that many of these recent divorces may have been "poor men's divorces," instituted on the grounds of nonsupport and abandonment, in this connection it is significant that the chief statutory cause of the recent rise was "cruelty," a convenient designation for concealing a variety of actual causes.

Survey Reveals Opinions On Criminal Punishment

Pardon and parole should be abolished and persons convicted of crimes should serve their full sentences except where injustice is revealed by new evidence, in the opinion of 83 per cent of the men and 88 per cent of the women covered in a survey of 25,000 Northwestern National life insurance policyholders. Death penalty for murder was approved by 86 per cent of the men and 75 per cent of the women; 88 per cent of the men and 93 per cent of the women favored sterilization of habitual criminals. Many expressed alarm over current conditions and favored "cracking down" on tender treatment of criminals. The first aim of penal and legal forces should be to protect the law-abiding by making crime dangerous and its rewards unpleasant, thought 81 per cent of the women and 78 per cent of the men, with rehabilitation of the criminal important, but secondary. The recommendations of those questioned included separation of first offenders from "repeaters" in prisons; closing of loopholes in procedure through which "smart" lawyers can free criminals at a profit; placing of more police powers in federal hands; and use of criminals sentenced to execution for purposes of scientific research, the latter suggestion proceeding from a number of doctors.

Official Oath of Office

The following oath is taken by all officers of the United States with the exception of the President. It is the oath of office "to be taken by any person elected or appointed to any office of honor or profit either in the civil, military or naval service, except the President of the United States": "I, ——— do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign or domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God!"

Ancient Colors Described

An ancient book concerning painting which was published approximately 250 years ago, refers in quaint language and spelling to colors used in that day. Among these, the author says of "Spanish Brown, the best of a deep bright Colour and free from Stones; it grinds well with pains, and is the only colour used in priming all manner of Timber-work, 1. because it is cheap 2. because it dries kindly, yet gives the oil sufficient time to pierce into the Wood. 3. because it freely receives all other Colours which are laid upon it. This of it self is a perfect horse-Flesh, colour, and a natural shadow for Vermilion: being mixt with white, it gives sundry varieties, according to the various proportions."

Noblemen's Club

Baron Suriani, of New York, N. Y., founded the Noblemen's club for the purpose of establishing the authenticity of all titled folk now living in this country, says the American Magazine. The club now has as members 150 bona fide counts, dukes, princes, barons, marquises who have virtually scared pretenders out of existence.

Swindler Hooks Four Britons in Fake Dope Ring

Respectable Citizens Led
To Put Up $7,500 in Imaginary Trade.

LONDON.—Victims of a swindler who pretended he was running an illicit drug traffic business with huge profits were criticized by Justice Charles at Gloucester session of court recently in England.

In sentencing the author of the swindle the judge remarked: "You managed to find four people who were willing with you to enter upon the foulest trade known just to make a little money."

"These four were willing to believe some of their money would go to bribe the police who were also connected with that foul trade."

"For these four men I have nothing but contempt. No one but dishonest blackguards would enter into such a contract."

The trial resulted in five years' penal servitude for Hartley George Grail, 44 years old, described as an engineer, and formerly proprietor of a guest house, The Hawthorns, Eastington, near Gloucester.

There were 11 charges of fraud against Grail involving a total of $7,500.

Charge False Pretenses.

They comprised obtaining by false pretenses $5,600 from John Goodwin-Morley Headlam of Marlborough House, Montpelier, Cheltenham, a company director; $5 from Joel Coupland, a lorry driver of Hill street, Stroud; $530 from Andrew Douglas Gordon, a retired major of the Indian army; $200 from Reginald Frank Rymer of Churcham, near Gloucester, and attempting to obtain $500 from George Henry Hill of Armscroft road, Gloucester, garage proprietor.

In each case, said Prosecutor A. J. Long, the false pretence was similar.

It was to the effect that Grail was in a position to execute illicit deals in drugs, that he was carrying on a drug trafficker's business, and that there was vast money to be made by people who went in with him.

Judge—"These were not ordinary medical stores, but heroin and cocaine."

Prosecutor Long—"Yes."

Another pretence put forward by Grail, which the prosecution regarded with exceptional gravity, was that quite innocent police officers were in this business, were conniving at it and profiting by it.

On another occasion, continued Long, Grail brought in a number of Scotland Yard officials and said they had put money in this wicked traffic. There was not a vestige of truth in that.

It All Comes Out.

It came to such a pitch that Inspector Berrett, a retired Scotland Yard officer, received a letter from solicitors at Cheltenham asking when he and his friend Lord Trenchard were going to wind up the business and divide the profits.

A more preposterous suggestion it was difficult to imagine. In the case of Gordon, Grail told him he could make money on heroin deals.

Various sums were obtained from Gordon, and in all he lost about $530.

"I am glad to hear it," observed the judge.

Long said Grail told Coupland he was carrying on traffic in cocaine, morphia, and ether, and that the police were in it with him.

Inspector A. V. Hancock revealed that Grail was born at Lydney, Gloucestershire, and was for a time in the army.

He was divorced in 1936. He had been convicted of fraud several times. It was stated Grail had made a clean breast of his frauds.

Merchants Can't Change Bills, Broke With $2,800

STOCKTON, CALIF.—He couldn't eat. He couldn't sleep. He couldn't even buy a package of cigarettes or even a postage stamp. In other words, he was "flat broke."

And yet he had $2,800 in currency. This was the quandary a Mr. Walters found himself in, so he went straightway to the Stockton police department and unloaded his problem on their shoulders.

"I got some money, but I can't use it," Walters reported. Accustomed to all sorts of moochers, the police officers prepared to give him a chill reception.

"Sa fact. I got lots of money." Thereupon Walters displayed the contents of his wallet. It contained: Two $1,000 bills. One $500 bill. Three $100 bills.

"I sold a horse in Agua Caliente, Mexico, and this is the way they paid me off," Walters complained. No one in Stockton Walters had contacted had been able to make change for the large bills.

Police then contacted a hotel manager who was able to "break" a $100 bill into smaller denominations and the stranger left town well fed and happy.

Choozy

BOSTON.—The thief who entered Mrs. Margaret Davis' provisions store was extremely fastidious. He took sample bites from at least a dozen cakes and pies before selecting two pies to take with him.

Sparsely Settled Norway Has Influenced World

Norway is a rugged, sparsely inhabited land whose effect on the rest of the world has been out of all proportion. In ancient times and in the modern world, a vitality has gone out from its savage mountains and fertile glens which few countries, sleeping in the sun, have been able to equal.

The Norse people, 1,000 years ago, bestowed their enduring blood on neighboring regions over an arc of thousands of miles. England in particular, but also Scotland, Ireland and northern France, are partly Norse. This infusion, to be sure, was not by choice of the peoples infused but was the consequence of red raids performed by the dreaded Vikings over two centuries. The Vikings were not called benefactors by their contemporary victims but such the centuries have proved them to be, for the Viking drops in the native streams have certainly had a quickening and strengthening effect.

Nowadays the Vikings sail no more, but the curious, vital principle which made them take to the lonely seas courses around the world in freshets of printer's ink. In the past half-century tremendous figures have arisen along Norway's stony coast; figures whose shadows stretch in all directions from the tropics to the ice. Ibsen is first of these; the passionate playwright whose genius struck shackles from the wrists of all who write for the theater, brought realism to the modern stage and proved that the playhouse might also be a social laboratory.

Genius of a gentler sort was Bjornson, less stern but also of enduring vigor. Most recently was Hamsun. Sigrid Undset is read everywhere on earth.

Durham Cathedral Owes Site to Vagrant Dun Cow

Durham cathedral, one of the oldest in Britain, owes its site to the wanderings of a lost dun cow. A mild, plump beast, she still looks on from a sculptured panel outside the Nine Altars chapel, commemorating the divine incident that told a group of bewildered monks where to build their church.

The legend goes that the monks, carrying the body of St. Cuthbert, came to a place where the body stuck fast and resisted all efforts to budge it. It was as though some magnetic force had clamped it to the ground. "Which strange and unforeseen accident produced great astonishment in the hearts of the monks," says an old chronicler, "whereupon they fasted and prayed three days with great devotion, to know by revelation from God what to do with the holy body."

The revelation came. It happened that a woman passed in search of her lost cow and they heard another woman shout to her that it was "in Dunholme." So the monks went there and set up "a little Church of Wands and Branches." Such was the founding of Durham cathedral in A. D. 997.

First American Flag

The tradition of the first American flag is that in May, 1777, Washington, accompanied by two of his officers, called upon Mrs. Ross, who operated an upholstering establishment, continuing a business left at the death of her husband, to make a flag of their design, and that this was the first American flag of the official pattern, adopted June 14, 1777. The matter is in dispute through claims that a flag of the same, or nearly the same, design had been used before. There is some rivalry for the honor associated with the origin of the flag; and confusion wrought by painters and colonial story writers, who drew upon their imaginations to add interest to the legend, has invited the pressing of some rather nebulous claims. There is no historical account meeting with such approval as to warrant the assertion that it is the truth.

Livingstone's Tomb

The marble slab on the tomb of David Livingstone, the explorer, bears the following inscription: "Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, Missionary, Traveler, Philanthropist. Born March 19, 1813, at Blantyre, Lanarkshire. Died May 4, 1873, at Chitambo's Village, Ilala. For 30 years his life was spent in an unwearying effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets, and abolish the desolating slave trade of central Africa, where with his last words he wrote: 'All I can say in my solitude is, May Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'"

Trick With a Purpose

They had a stand of steel tubular scaffolding to seat nearly 12,000 people—the largest ever put up in the country—which swayed alarmingly under certain conditions: for instance, when the whole audience rose to "God Save the King." It was, of course, perfectly safe, and intended to vibrate according to the principles of its special construction. However, says Sir Barry, "we arranged for the band to play one or two false starts for the national anthem, which had the result of making the huge audience arise at different moments instead of loyally all together, and this had considerable damping effect on the vibration."—Humorist (London).

MANY VARIETIES OF COOKIES
(See Recipes Below)

Household News By Eleanor Howe

Cookies in the Cupboard

What cookies do folks like best to eat?

A cookie that's rich, and spicy and sweet?

A soft, thick cookie with fruity flavor,

Or the thin, crisp wafer the tea drinkers savor?

A chocolate cookie that's moist and rich,

Or a tasty tidbit with nutmeats, which

May be flavored with honey, molasses or spice?

Any kind of a cookie is pretty nice!

There are as many varieties of cookies as there are occasions for serving them.

And what satisfying morsels they are for the school lunch box, for afternoon tea, or for a family meal at home. You'll find among the tested cookie recipes below one for any such occasion ranging from dainty tea cookies to thick, soft, molasses cookies for an after-school or bedtime snack. They're all grand recipes for the Girl Scout cookie sale you may be planning, or for the next meeting of the church guild.

Soft Molasses Cookies.

(Makes about 7 dozen cookies.)

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup New Orleans molasses
2 teaspoons soda
1 cup buttermilk
6 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger

Cream shortening, and add sugar gradually. Beat in the eggs and molasses. Dissolve the soda in the buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder and spices together and add to the first mixture alternately with the buttermilk. Drop from teaspoon onto a greased baking sheet. Dip the bottom of a tumbler in cold water, and press down gently on each cookie. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for about 8 minutes.

Even on Sunday evenings hungry families demand good food. It's simple enough to provide a meal that is temptingly different with suggestions such as those Eleanor Howe will give you in her column next week. Be sure to look for her article "Sunday Night Suppers!"

Butterscotch Brownies.

(Makes 2 dozen small cookies.)

4 tablespoons butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg (slightly beaten)
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup nut meats (cut fine)

Melt the butter in a small saucepan. Add sugar slowly, and cook for 2 minutes. Remove from flame, and add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pour into shallow greased pan and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 18 minutes. Cut in squares.

Chocolate Applesauce Cookies.

(Makes 3 dozen cookies.)

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon ginger
4 teaspoons cocoa
1½ cups applesauce (unsweetened)

Cream shortening, add sugar and beat well. Sift together the flour, soda, salt, spices, and cocoa and add alternately with the applesauce. Beat thoroughly. Drop by teaspoon-fuls on greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for approximately 15 minutes.

Orange Ice Box Cookies.

(Makes 5 dozen cookies.)

1 cup shortening
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup white sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon orange rind (grated)
2¼ cups general purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
½ cup pecan nut meats (broken)

Cream shortening and add sugars slowly, well beating constantly. Add egg (well beaten), orange juice and orange rind. Mix and sift flour, salt, and soda together and add to the creamed mixture, together with the broken nut meats. Form in rolls in wax paper and chill overnight in refrigerator. Slice thin, place on greased baking sheet and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 12-15 minutes.

Grandmother's Sugar Cookies.

(Makes 5 dozen cookies.)

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, and 1 egg yolk
½ cup sour cream
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon lemon extract
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Cream shortening, and add sugar gradually. Add the egg and beat until fluffy. Combine sour cream with flavoring extracts, and add to the creamed mixture alternately with the sifted dry ingredients. Chill for about ½ hour. Roll out and cut. Place on greased cookie sheet. Brush tops of cookies with unbeaten egg white and sprinkle generously with sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven (425 degrees) for about 8 minutes.

Pineapple Cream Tarts.

PART I—Tart Cases.
¾ cup butter
¾ cup granulated sugar
1 egg yolk (beaten)
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1¾ cups cake flour

Cream butter thoroughly and add sugar slowly while beating constantly. Add the beaten egg yolk and lemon extract. Then add the flour. Divide dough into 12 even pieces. Then lay one piece at a time in the left palm; press with the right hand until dough is large enough to fit a muffin tin. Then fit each piece into the muffin tin and prick well with a fork. Bake approximately 20 minutes in a hot oven. Fill with Pineapple Filling.

PART II—Pineapple Cream Filling.

3 tablespoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 whole egg (well beaten)
1½ cups milk (scalded)
1 teaspoon lemon extract
1 No. 2 can shredded pineapple
1 cup whipping cream (whipped)
Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add the egg (well beaten) and mix thoroughly. Pour on the milk (scalded). Return to a double boiler and cook until thick. Remove from flame, add lemon extract, and allow to cool. Fill tart shells and just before serving place one spoonful of crushed pineapple (drained) on top of the cream filling.

Direct Telephone Service Opened Between U. S. And Italy And The Netherlands

New Radiotelephone Circuits Link Bell System With Rome And Amsterdam

New direct overseas radiotelephone circuits have been opened between the United States and Italy and The Netherlands, according to a statement made by The American Telephone and Telegraph Company. While it has been possible for sometime to telephone to Italy and The Netherlands from this country, the calls were routed through nations now at war.

Radiotelephone service with Italy will be handled by The A. T. and T. Company through its short wave radiotelephone stations in New Jersey. The Bell System stations will work with radiotelephone stations of the Italo Radio Company near Rome, connecting there with the telephone network of the Italian Telephone Administration. The rate for a three minute call from telephones in the northeastern United States to those in Italy will be $24.00 on week days and $18.00 after 5 p. m. U. S. time and all day on Sundays.

Conversations with Holland will pass between the Bell System radiotelephone stations in New Jersey and those of the Netherlands Telephone Administration. The rate for a three minute call from telephones in the northeastern United States to Holland telephones will be $22.50 on week days and $16.50 after 5 p. m. U. S. time and all day on Sundays.

Thunder Stops Watches
SASKATOON, SASK. — Herb Buckle, local jeweler, remarked recently: "I wish there were more thunderstorms, for my business seems to pick up immediately after a thunderstorm. But there is one thing I can't explain. That is, why is it that one-third of the watches brought to me for repairs have stopped between the hours of midnight and three a. m.?"

KEEP AMERICA WHERE COLUMBUS FOUND IT

— on this Side of the Atlantic

Some geologists claim that the American continent was once joined to the Old World — and drifted away.

Now we hear in some quarters that America is inevitably drifting back to Europe — and into war.

Not if we anchor ourselves solidly to the principles of Washington and Monroe. America will then stay right where Columbus found it.

PREPAREDNESS

—a good policy for nations and for individuals

We believe that a good way for a nation to keep out of trouble is to be prepared for trouble. And we also feel that an excellent way for individuals to avoid worry, hardship and misfortune is to prepare for them in advance . . . with a bank account.

We are sure you will find that many of your fears for the future will dissolve into thin air as your bank balance mounts.
