The past ten days of extreme heat has been a hard time to secure best results from printing. The ink distribution rollers soften up and lack the necessary "tack" that means so much in making good impressions of type. However, our office was fortunate in being equipped with good summer rollers, and we have experienced but little trouble.

The extreme heat that has prevailed in the Taneytown section for about two weeks, when afternoon temperatures were from 92° to 96° during the day, and from 84° to 88° at night was broken for a short time by a heavy downpour on Tuesday afternoon; but on Wednesday and Thursday came back again. There were mosquitoes too, rather unusual for such hot weather.

The Taneytown Jr. I. O. O. F. Band will furnish music for a festival to be held at White Run, Pa. On Saturday, July 27th., band members will leave Taneytown, at 6:15 P. M. A LETTER FROM J. J. R.

A letter received this week from our good old friend and correspondent, in Detroit—John J. Reid—says he is not feeling in good trim, but still listens to baseball on the radio. He says in closing—Mrs. Ferris A. Reid and three children, Doris, Barbara and Ferris, Jr., have returned to their home in Springfield, Ill., after spending two weeks with the former's parents, and with Mrs. L. B. Stahl, at Houghton Lake.

In New York City, it has been announced that the four city-run colleges would limit enrollment of aliens to those who themselves or through their parents, have taken out first naturalization papers. Overcrowding, is the reason given.—Pathfinder.

WELL KNOWN MERCHANT CLOSING OUT BUSINESS.

D. J. Hesson Will Retire. See Advertisement in This Issue.

The retirement of Daniel J. Hesson from business in Taneytown will be received by his many friends and patrons with both surprise and regret. "Hesson's Store" has been the main mercantile establishment in Taneytown for thirty-seven years, always enjoying the highest reputation for fair dealing, courteous service and dependable stock in trade.

He has been wanting to retire for several years, but no doubt recent ill health has hastened the event. We do not know what future plans there may be, for this fine establishment, but this news will develop in due time.

Mr. Hesson had an additional 15 years business experience in Westminster and Harney, and found the time to serve as County Commissioner, Member of the House of Delegates and State Senator, as well as participating in numerous local, church, fraternal and social affairs. He has been one of the leading citizens of Carroll County and is widely known and respected everywhere.

We trust that Mr. Hesson may improve in health, and be able to enter upon a let-up in business activities that he so much needs.

FIRES YOU MIGHT HAVE STARTED.

Did you ever think of all the fires you might have started?

You've probably thrown burning cigarette butts out of your car window on hundreds of occasions. If luck was with you, nothing happened. Had luck not prevailed, one of those butts might have been the source of a fire that would have destroyed a fine farm grain stacked in fields or thousands of acres of irreplaceable woodland.

Remember the time you put a penny back of a fuse to get the electricity flowing? You were lucky that time too, as the house didn't burn down. There was a very good chance, however, that it would.

And how about all the odds and ends of junk you've stored away in attics, closets, basement, etc., figuring to get rid of them on some vague future day? Accumulations like that may go on for years and do no harm—or, if the breaks are against you, they may start or feed a destructive blaze any minute.

And don't forget those occasions on which you took it for granted that you'd get away with postponing necessary heating, wiring, chimney and similar repairs until another time.

All of us have come within an ace of starting fires on more occasions than it is pleasant to count. And every so often luck turns—and life and property are needlessly destroyed as a consequence. Keep that in mind—and you won't be taking so great a chance with fire in the future.

A CHANGE IN OFFICERS OF THE CARROLL RECORD CO.

P. B. Englar Retires as Business Manager, but continues as Editor.

To Our Patrons and Friends:

For several years Mr. P. B. Englar, the founder of The Carroll Record and of the printing business connected with it, who has carried the burden of responsibility as Editor and Manager for a period of forty-six years, has desired to have some of the burden lifted from his shoulders. The situation has been discussed by its Board of Directors from time to time, but no change has been heretofore made.

At the meeting of the Board July 15, the first meeting in the new fiscal year, the beginning of the forty-seventh, Mr. Englar presented his resignation. Instead of accepting the resignation, which would have terminated Mr. Englar's connection with the office, the Board, after careful consideration, decided to relieve Mr. Englar of the responsibility of Treasurer and Manager, but requested him to continue as editor of the paper, and accordingly elected him as Editor of The Carroll Record. Mr. Englar is to be under no fixed schedule of hours and days of service, but is to be free to come and go at times to suit his own pleasure and convenience.

The Board elected Mr. Charles L. Stonifer, who has been employed by the Company a little over twenty years, and who has for some time been assisting in the work of the office, along with his work in the plant, to the position of Treasurer and Manager. The new arrangement will take effect at the end of this week.

It will be the policy of the Company, of course, to continue the same high standard of family newspaper as has been published through all these years, and to render the highest possible type of service, at moderate rates as always, to the patrons of the printing plant. Courteously, promptly and efficiently, we will try to meet your needs. We ask the continued cooperation of all our friends.

Forty-six years of capable and conscientious service and efficient business management is a very unusual record, and it is due only to the advancing years of the retiring manager, that the Board consented to a change. We hope a kind Providence may permit him to complete a half century or more as Editor.

Very respectfully yours,
THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE CARROLL RECORD CO.
WM. F. BRICKER, Secretary. GEORGE A. ARNOLD, President.

FURTHER PLANS FOR FAIR

Arrangements being Completed for Annual Event at Taneytown.

Further plans are being realized for the annual Carroll County Fair which will open at Taneytown, on Sunday, August 11, and continue through Friday, August 16. One of the new projects of the Fair Association is the erection of a large horse barn to better accommodate the increasing number of exhibits during the 1940 season. Work is progressing nicely on this new barn which will house approximately 60 head of horses, bringing the total accommodations for horses to 80 head.

The second annual thrill day performance will be the opening event on Sunday. This performance will be staged by Jimmy Lynch and his Death Dodgers, nationally known feature of the 1939 and 1940 New York World's Fair. Carroll County Fair patrons who thrilled to the crashing and smashing events on Thrill Day at the 1939 Fair, may safely expect an even greater show than they witnessed at that time.

A new event at this year's Fair will be a series of beauty, personality and talent contests on Monday and Tuesday nights. The plans call for a Kiddie Show and talent contest on Monday night. The beauty contest will take place on Tuesday night, at which time Miss Carroll and Miss Frederick counties will be selected. The winners in these county contests will then be eligible to enter the State Beauty contest, which in turn leads to the National Beauty pageant at Atlantic City. A professional director will be on hand to assist the Fair committee in arranging these events.

The annual Horse Pulling contests are set for Tuesday, under the direction of County Agent L. C. Burns and State Fair Board Field Representative John E. Clark. Cash prizes of $25, $20, $15 and $10, will be awarded in both the light and heavy pulling classes.

Horse racing will take place on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons. Displays of fireworks are scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. A fine program of grandstand attractions will be presented for the annual public wedding on Wednesday night.

Political Day is to be marked on Thursday, when well known State candidates and officials will be present during the afternoon and evening.

The observance of 4-H Club Day is set for Friday, at which time special recognition will be given the exhibits of 4-H Club boys and girls. There is every indication that the exhibits in all departments will be the largest this year in the history of the Fair.

HESS-BUSHEY REUNION.

All eligible descendants are invited to be present. The officers are: President, Wilbert Hess; Vice-Pres., Mrs. Ruth Byers; Sec'y, Mrs. Ella Mae Slagle; Treas., Elmer S. Hess; Statistician, Mrs. Effie Hess Belt; Asst. Statistician, Phyllis Hess.

SENATE TO CONSIDER WAR PREPAREDNESS.

Both Army and Navy to be largely increased.

A bill will go to the Senate next week calling for universal conscription of U. S. eligibles to join our army of defense. The first group of 400,000 will be called for training early this fall.

There will be four age groups; those from 18 to 21 years; from 21 to 31 years; from 31 to 45 years, and from 45 to 65 years. The youngest and oldest will be called under present plans, and only a limited number in the third group. The principal interest is in the 21 to 31 classification. The National Guard totals about 500,000 now.

The Navy has been increased from 110,000 to 140,000, with 400,000 spoken of as a possible required number.

The word "conscription" means compelling men to enter the army or navy service—a draft system enforced by a government—in this case, the United States—either for purposes of defense or offense. The Senate will likely differ over details, but is sure to agree in the essentials.

FOREIGN TRAVELS.

Expenditures by U. S. travelers in foreign countries last year totaled about $469,000,000—a drop of about $63,000,000 of the normal year.

Expenditures in non-European areas with the exception of the West Indies, were larger in 1939 than in 1938. Increases in the volume of travel ranged from 10 per cent in the case of Asia, Africa, and Oceania, to 13 per cent in the case of Central America, and to 32 per cent in the case of South America.

The rise in outlays by visitors from overseas countries accompanied an increase in their number to an all-time high. At $63,000,000, their expenditures in this country, including fare payments to United States vessels, exceeded those in any year since 1929. The amounts expended in 1939 by foreigners visiting the United States for fare payments to foreign vessels, which do not constitute international transactions, are estimated in Government statistics at $32,000,000. A lot of it was due to war conditions.

KNOWING AND DOING.

(For The Record.)
To "do unto others as you would That they should do to you."
Are a couple of lines we often read, But a thing we seldom do.

Some things to us insignificant seem They trouble not our sleep,
While that same thing to another, May give trouble dire and deep.

The tares that flourish in our own yard
And scatter their seeds at will;
By winds that blow now East now West
Someone else's yard may fill.

So let us learn this adage old
And beat it well in mind,
For the wind that bears our tares away,
Will return with another kind.

—A. G.

Mrs. Stubblefield—When my sister was in Europe before the war, she saw a woman hitched to a mule.
Mrs. O'Jawish—That happened at my wedding, too.

MILLIONS OF BUSHELS OF WHEAT ON STORAGE.

It is estimated that there are over 300,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in the nation's elevators—the most of it being new.

The wheat price at present is several cents lower than the price the Government will pay in the form of a loan, but is about 13 cents higher than a year ago.

How much wheat eventually will be put up as collateral for Government loans will depend on the course of prices. Re-establishment of more normal international trade, now throttled by war, would have an important bearing on the price trend.

The storage program is an important phase of the Government's ever normal granary system. Thousands of farmers recall their profitable experience of last season, when they borrowed Government funds on more than 160,000,000 bushels at an average of 70 cents a bushel and sold at prices ranging in some cases to more than 20 cents above loan rates due to the war and crop scare boom.

Trade estimates of the amount of wheat placed in storage since harvest began ranged up to ninety per cent in some localities. With harvest uncompleted, the problem of storage space looms ever larger, particularly in localities where the glut is large.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

Whatever may be the final outcome of the war in Europe, England is surely emphatic in determining to fight against her enemies to the very end, and scorns the acceptance of peace terms.

Prime Minister Churchill says "We will not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others, is secure. We realize that the struggle may cost us everything, but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice, it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious."

Reports are conflicting as to losses by the British and Germans, both in the air and at sea. Apparently, both sides are paying a terrific price in both lives and war craft.

The British expects the U. S. to supply them with 3000 planes a month, as needed; 12,115 engines have been purchased in the U. S. since May 14.

Random Thoughts

RANDOM THOUGHTS.

We have been writing "Random Thoughts" for a long while, and are not sure that they have always been worthy of full acceptance. In fact, "random" acts of the mind may be as dangerous as random shooting with a gun.

It is better, by far, to use mature consideration when important matters are to be decided; but if we can think wisely, and quickly, we are apt to profit thereby.

We are therefore inclined to advise our readers not to take too seriously, this feature of The Record, of course, we write from the standpoint of averages, and not from that of expert testimony, nor from admitting that there are exceptions in almost all cases.

Frequently, we forget this little feature until notified by our linotype operator of the fact. And in such cases only a few minutes are given to "writing something," rather than omit the customary weekly stunt.

So, we feel that we should write this brief, confession for what it may be considered to be worth. We are not trying to compete with King Solomon.

FRIDAY, JULY 26, 1940.

NOT EDITORIAL-MINDED THIS WEEK.

The editor of The Record does not feel editorially-minded this week; but with cooler weather and the passing of events, we may become adjusted to the present order of things in our work shop that will require some time before final adjustment has been reached.

In the meantime, we trust that there will be full co-operation on the part of all concerned, and that both readers and patrons will help along the new deal, as all on the inside of the office are striving for.

There are so many needs in connection with publishing a weekly paper successfully these days. We have passed through the earlier years when conditions were not as at present—
when there was more favorable surrounding and contributing features
than now.

Briefly, the whole "know how"
must be reconstructed. And this is the experience of all Carroll County weeklies, and not alone that of The Carroll Record. But, more will follow later, on this general subject.

VICE-PRESIDENT GARNER GOES HOME TO TEXAS.

Vice-President Garner left Washington, Monday night, for his home in Texas, and declined to say when, if ever, he will return.

While Mr. Garner was openly a candidate for President, he did not lay plans for it, other than arranging for his name to be placed before the convention.

Since the convention he has remained in seclusion, declining to discuss the outcome of it. He locked the door to his office and declined to answer telephone calls.

Before leaving he met a few close personal friends, and treated newspaper correspondents courteously but told them that we our strictly "not in the news," and gave no hint as to his activities.

Unquestionably, he does not have
views and opinions, but only the future will unfold what they may be, it ever.

ONE ESSENTIAL.

The life of everybody should centre around doing good. Some have more opportunities than others, and some are good in an easy-going way, without much thought.

But, there is at least one outstanding opportunity for good works, open to all, and that is, being an interested, active, earnest, member of some religious denomination operated under the general name of "the church."

There are many of these "churches"
differing in forms and ceremonies—in non-essentials. Admittedly, some are extremists and lack real charity for all, but even so, it is better to be one of these than not to be affiliated with any.

An adult without such affiliation is like a ship without a rudder. He, or she misses the benefits of each frater-nalism, and belief in a Supreme being known as God, and his son, Jesus Christ.

Consider the question as you may,
if you want to fraternize with the best folks in your neighborhood, and to be considered religious minded,
there is no better course than to affiliate with some religious body.

THE BIG QUESTION.

The big question from now on to November 5th, it—which party will gain most, in the shifting from one party to the other. Admittedly, there are many former Democrats who will not support Roosevelt, and many former Republicans who will not vote
for Willkie?

We have the odd situation that until about two years ago Mr. Willkie was a Democrat; and not so long ago
Mr. Wallace, Democratic candidate for vice-president, was a Republican.

This situation, that extends to members of Congress and prominent political leaders in both parties, is due to the fact the two words—Democratic and Republican—have changed
in their meaning.

It is also due to the fact that big shots in politics now vote for their private business interests, rather than follow old-line distinctions. Labor Americanism has entered politics of this sort in a big way, and so have
"Unions" of other classes.

The tariff question—so long a big issue under—tariff for protection and tariff for revenue only—has been submerged by the "new deal" and much a question of barter though that much misused name, "diplomacy."

It is much too soon, as yet, to take much account of "polls." In fact,
they are worth next door to nothing.
But it is pretty sure that what we call
the "trend" in voting, will show itself
after the campaign gets warmed up, and going. Just now the question is which way is the trend going.

READY FOR THE RACE.

President Roosevelt's failure to take himself out of the contest for the Democratic nomination for President helped to persuade many Republicans that Wendell Willkie should be their nominee. They doubted the ability of other candidates to match
the President in political strategy and popular appeal. In the same way Democratic fears of Willkie strength argued for the nomination of Mr.
Roosevelt. At the Chicago convention the manifest and mounting popularity of the Republican candidate was plainly among the "dangers of these times" which delegates said required the overriding of Jeffersonian
objections to a third term.

Thus the two major parties face
the campaign with the candidates
they consider best equipped to win.
It is sure to be a lively and strenuous election. It should not be a bitter
one. This is no time for churning up partisan, sectional or class differences
o fa kind which will weaken the necessary national effort for unity behind the defense program. We believe the people will penalize politicians who forget the larger demands of patriotism.

Happily the party platforms and presidential nominees agree on many fundamental directions of policy. As Keynote Bankhead pointed out at Chicago the Republicans are not demanding the repeal of any major New Deal measure. The 1936 election and the new alignment of the Supreme Court—to say nothing of the new demands for American democracy to discipline itself and stand against Nazification of the world—have largely removed the old issues. In the domestic field the chief question will be application and administration of the laws adopted under the Roosevelt regime, the revival of business and effective carrying through of the defense program.

On these issues there are important differences in the platforms, in the unannounced but controlling aims of the parties, and in the candidates.
But none which will justify bitterness or the incitement of disunity.

Both parties have tried to play
both sides of the street in their plans on foreign policy. The Democrats, driven by their own isola-tionists, have dropped much of the advantage President Roosevelt had built up by vigorous diplomatic resistance to aggression and by favoring aid to the Allies. But the essential attitudes of Mr. Willkie and Mr. Roosevelt on foreign affairs are remarkably similar, and as the world situation changes, the candidates' and the people's views will become more important than the platform. Both may be expected to adjust themselves to new needs.—Christian Science Monitor.

POLITICS: G. O. P. MOVES.

With the Democrats last week preparing to open their Presidential nominating convention in Chicago, the Republicans got down to brass tacks.
Under the leadership of their candidate for the Presidency, Wendell L.
Willkie, they not only reorganized campaign fund policy but also their election campaign organization.

Traditionally, the Republican party has been the party with the largest individual and corporate campaign contributions, a fact responsible in part for the charge that it is the party of "Big Business." But in New York City, the straight-talking Willkie, the former Democrat, made it clear that the tradition would no longer hold water, and he accordingly
instructed party fund-raisers to accept no single contribution larger than $5,000 and to decline all contributions from corporations, whether they were disguised as advertisements
in campaign books or any other way.
What he wanted, he said, was a large number of small contributions, particularly $1.00 contributions.

The other Willkie innovation came after he had flown to Washington to meet for the first time his Vice-Presidential running mate, Senator Charles McNary, of Oregon, Republican members of Congress, and the Republican National Committee. At a separate conference with Republican master-minds, he set up the new campaign organization. Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., House minority leader from Massachusetts, was named campaign manager and Chairman of the National Committee. He replaced John D. M. Hamilton, who became the committee's executive director and who will continue to be paid $25,000 a year, the salary he received as chairman.—The Pathfinder.

Telephone Repeaters Play Vital Part In Sending Voice Across Country

Feeble Speech Currents Are Rejuvenated By Marvelous Network Of Apparatus

The amount of amplification of the voice on a telephone conversation between New York and Chicago is equivalent to one billion multiplied by itself five times—one followed by 45
ciphers.

The voice is amplified—that is, the feeble speech currents are rejuvenated
—by a marvelous network of apparatus known as telephone repeaters.
Each repeater along the line takes the enfeebled electrical energy received and transmits an amplified copy of it without in any way changing its quality.

Repeater stations are located about every 50 miles along the route and they serve to deliver the voice at its chosen destination in clear, natural and easily heard tones.

For a telephone conversation between New York and San Francisco,
you would have to put down the figure one and then add 89 ciphers in order to get the amount the voice is amplified by repeaters.

This is one of the many features of apparatus and equipment which makes possible the far and easy reach of one's voice by telephone today. The repeaters help in the efficient delivery of the voice anywhere on the 15,870-000 miles of toll and long distance
wire in the nation-wide Bell System.
Incidentally that one billion multiplied by itself five times looks like this: 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000, 000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

Recites Constitution at

69 and Wins Citizenship

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Reciting verbatim and without pause the Constitution of the United States, 69-year-old Mrs. Darinka Barach, almost totally deaf, was one of 190 persons constituting the largest class to be granted citizenship papers in the history of the federal court here. Mrs.
Barach, a Serbian immigrant in 1904, was taught reading and writing by her husband, who died last

Grandfather's Farm

Calls Woman Teacher

After a teaching career which progressed from the little red schoolhouse to the school of speech,
Syracuse university, Mrs. Grace S.
Bull of Syracuse has virtually returned to her birthplace on prolific
and historic acres among the Madison county hills. She owns the farm her grandfather operated almost a century ago, she did nearly all the mowing on the farm during the 1939
season and she saw her herd of Holsteins develop in two years to the highest rating in the county's history.

But beyond that, she finds that in spite of a long period of urban existence, the call of the soil is still strong and clear, the same call her grandfather answered back in 1852, writes
Joseph H. Adams in the Syracuse
Post-Standard. At every opportunity she rides eastward from Syracuse
through Fayetteville, through Chittenango, past the old stone cheese factory and then deeper and deeper down a rustic winding road to a spot
she has always loved through the years.

Over the gravel road which enters the farm on the fringe of sturdy trees she passes, to stop finally near one of a group of red barns. And there she is met by a flurry of joy
and animation as her collie, Trixie, leaps forward to greet her with such eagerness that the animal comes incredibly close to human speech.

And Mrs. Bull, who was born in the grand old homestead, is just as eager to be back where she spent a happy childhood and where she intends one day to take up her residence again.

Claim Palace in Haiti

Air-Cooled 130 Years Ago

To those who imagine that the idea of air conditioning is new it comes as a surprise to learn that an effective system was put in effect
over 130 years ago by the black Emperor Henri Christophe in his palace
at Sans Souci, in Haiti.

Christophe, the most despotic
king of his day, employed air conditioning to cool his regal palace
rooms as long ago as 1808.

Built over a rushing mountain
stream in order to permit the cool
waters to refresh the regal rooms,
this palace contained a sumptuous banquet hall and chamber of gilt mirrors that held a richly carved mahogany throne. Other rooms contained Gobelin tapestries and paintings of old masters, a great library brought from Europe, but never touched, as Christophe could neither read nor write.

Even in its present state of ruin
and decay, Sans Souci is splendid.
In its heyday it was approached through a huge gateway guarded by gold-colored sentry boxes, which are still standing, guarding this spectre
of a glamorous past.

From this palace tourists proceed
by mule or horseback through Haitian jungle, coffee, banana and orange groves to the Citadel of La Ferriere, also built by the black king, on the crest of a jungle-clad mountain.

War Makes Birth Decline

Deaths on the battlefield are not alone responsible for the decrease in population reported at the end of every war. In fact, the Journal of the American Medical association states in a recent issue: "Actual battle losses are matched by losses in future population due to reductions in the birth rate."

The depletion of young men and the resulting disturbance of the ratio of marriageable men and women constitute one of the most serious effects of war, the magazine says in quoting statistics showing that 72 per cent of German military deaths and 55 per cent of French military deaths during the World war were men under 30.

In 1910, both Germany and France reported they had about as many men as women. After the World war, however, Germany reported an excess of 150 women per 1,000 men between 25 and 29 years, 259 per 1,000 from 30 to 34, and 181 per 1,000
from 35 to 39.

For the same age groups, France
reported an excess of women, respectively, of 261, 206 and 176.

The Journal says:

"Some of the results, such as the great increase in the proportion of marriages in the postwar period in which the groom was much older than the bride, were quite obvious.
Another effect was the continued
fall of the birth rate after the war.
Clearly the actual battle losses are matched by losses in future population due to reduction of the birth rate."

Every Bedroom an Island

The islands themselves took their names from old legends or from events of long ago.

Dinosaur Hunt in Texas

Hints of 50-Ton Beast

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—A single footprint, as long as a bathtub and 40 inches wide, has convinced Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of a paleontological survey in Texas, that the world's largest dinosaur once roamed over what is now Texas.

From the size of the track, University of Texas experts construe existence of an animal 80 feet long, weighing nearly 50 tons.

The foot-deep track was uncovered at the water's edge of the Paluxy river, near Glen Rose, Texas.

Roland T. Bird of the American Museum of Natural History has been sent to the spot to supervise preservation and removal of the dinosaur track. To do so, men under Bird's direction will cut away a one-ton block of limestone on which the four-toed marks of the foot are imprinted.

Chemical Test Is Used

To Show Damaged Corn

WASHINGTON.—Grain specialists of the agriculture department have developed a simple and rapid chemical test to determine damage to corn by heating or fermentation.

That method consists of the chemical determination of the degree of deterioration undergone by the fatty oil in the corn. It is believed that the new test, which measures "the degree of soundness" in corn, is simple and rapid enough to meet commercial requirements.

In current grain-grading practices condition and damage are appraised by a guesswork appraisal by odor and by the percentage of weight of damaged kernels present in the grain.

"In the absence of more precise methods," a grain specialist said, "these methods of determining soundness may have been used successfully in grain-inspection procedure."

It was pointed out, however, that the new chemical test will indicate the degree of damage in the grain more accurately and will serve more fully as an index of market and processing.

Golden Eagle Is Given Clean Slate in Survey

COLORADO SPRINGS.—The golden eagle, only recently accorded protection by an act of congress in its capacity as the American national bird, does something besides occupy his perch on the "tail" side of a half dollar, findings of fish commissions and universities in Colorado, Wyoming and Idaho reveal.

Ascents high into the Rocky mountains to photograph eagles' nests revealed that the big birds feed primarily on prairie dogs during early summer.

C. C. Spencer, staff technician of the Pike National forest in Colorado, said that the rodents consume a total of 26.2 per cent of available grazing land each year. Other rodents bring the annual total to 35.5 per cent, he said.

The original purpose of the expeditions was to determine what effect eagles have in the increasing depletion of western Big Horn sheep herds. Spencer said no evidence had been found that eagles prey on the sheep, although further investigation will be conducted.

Statute Through Error Stabilizes Unemployment

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—There was quite a laugh when the assembly committee on unemployment insurance looked up the law governing jobless benefits.

The original act of 1935 plainly said that the purpose of the new law was to assist "in the stabilization of employment conditions."

But the 1939 act, as amended, was printed "unemployment" conditions. It was found that the inadvertent error slipped in when the act was amended in 1937 and was copied into the 1939 law.

Woman A Prison Refused Permitted to Serve Term

MANILA.—After four vain attempts a Filipino woman finally was permitted to enter Bilibid prison to begin a two-year sentence after she properly identified herself to the satisfaction of prison officials.

Sentenced in Camarines Sur province, the woman voluntarily came to Manila and surrendered at the prison but was four times turned away because she could not identify herself as the person described in the commitment papers she carried. Locating a Manilian who knew her, she induced prison authorities to let her begin her sentence.

THE BENNER FAMILY ANNUAL REUNION.

The 15th. annual Benner reunion was held on Saturday, July 20th., 1940 at Lost Creek Community Park, McAlisterville, Pa. President, Dr. C. M. Benner; Vice-President, Mrs. Arden Mertz; Secretary, Grace I. Benner; Treasurer, W. W. Benner; Song Leader, Prof. P. S. Mitchell.

After a business and entertainment program at 2:00 P. M., an address was delivered by Rev. Robert C. Benner, St. Paul Lutheran Church, Newville, Pa.

Some of the history of the Benner family from ancient records was given by Dr. C. M. Benner, Taneytown, Md. A short sketch of which is given below.

The history of the Benner family is the history of Europe since 841; Asia Minor since 1095 during the Crusades to the Holy Land and of America since 1695 or earlier.

The family is Teutonic—dates back to Frankish nation, which embraced most of present Germany, France and Italy and all of Austria and Switzerland and Belgium. It was the nation which produced Clovis, Charlemagne, Charles Martel, the Pepins and other founders of the culture, greatness and civilization of western Europe of today.

There is a record of an Artois Von Benner, who was a captain of armed horsemen under King Lothaire, grandson of Charlemagne in 841. There was a Benner who came to England with William the conqueror and fought with him at the battle of Hastings in 1066. 814 on the death of Charlemagne, Louis the Debonair succeeds to the throne of the so-called Roman Empire.

840, Louis dies, and his three sons, Lothaire, Louis the German, and Charles the Bald, claim the succession; they war for possession of the kingdom.

841. In a battle of the brothers fought at Fontenailles, Louis and Charles defeat Lothaire.

843. The three rival brothers make a treaty, at Verdun by which the empire is divided into three parts. Lothaire receives Italy and Central Frankish territories; Louis the German accepts Germany the "Eastern Frankish lands" and Charles the Bald takes France, or the western Frankish lands.

The treaty of Verdun marks the beginning of the national history for the three states, Italy, Germany, and France; also, the beginning of the middle land of Lorraine.

841. Artois Von Benner, who was a captain of armed horsemen under King Lothaire, grandson of Charlemagne fought under King Lothaire, at Fontenailles.

1066—Oct. 14; Battle of Hastings England William Duke of Normandy, called the conqueror, triumphs over Harold—King of England and establishes himself as King of England.

There was a Benner who came to England with William the Conqueror and fought under him at the battle of Hastings in 1066.

First Epoch of Crusaders. 1095 Councils are held at Placenza and Clermont by Pope Urban II. He proclaimed a crusade of Christians for the recovery of the Holy Sepulcher from the infidel Turks, who possess Jerusalem and levy a tax on all Christian Pilgrims visiting the City of Jerusalem.

1096 an army of crusaders, the Chivalry of Medieval Europe, set out for the East under Godfried, of Bouillon, Hugh of Vermandois, Stephen of Blois and others.

1097. Gurth der Benner, a direct descendant of Oluf der Benner, the first Knight of the Benner family who lived on the Benner estate in Upper Bavaria along the Rhine, Oluf's name has been preserved in the Chapel near his estate, called the Chapel of Oluf der Benner. The date of his death is registered as 1053.

Gurth der Benner, joined the army of crusaders, while still a minor under the guardianship of Godfried de Bouillon in 1097. He was made and called the "Knight of the Morning Star" in Antioch, the legend being that very early in the morning he rose and slew an antagonist of great size and ferocity.

1098 Antioch is stormed and yields to the crusaders, who in their turn are besieged, but rout their foes and open the way to Jerusalem.

1099 Bohemoid is proclaimed prince of Antioch: July 15th. Jerusalem is stormed and conquered: Godfried of Bouillon assumes the sovereignty of the city of Jerusalem: the Islamites are defeated at Ascalon by Godfried and Tancred.

Gurth der Benner, fought under Godfried of Bouillon in all these battles in the Holy Land and helped rescue the tomb of Christ from the Mohammedians.

1149 Christians, after attempting to storm Damascus are forced to retreat: they return to Europe.

Odo der Benner was a lineal descendant of Gurth der Benner, and as a knight, himself, was engaged in the tournaments of the age. It is said that at the tournament held at Mainz in 1263, Odo der Benner was awarded first prize.

The family represents vast estates and great wealth at the beginning of the fourteenth century. In 1322, Waldemar der Benner was one of the responsible leaders of the rebellion against King Ludwig. The family fortunes were greatly dissipated as a result of Waldemar's activities, and his four sons were obliged to enter the Venetian Army as professional soldiers. Of these, only one returned.

Waldemar entered the Cloister of Saint Laurentius which, in his earlier youth, he had manifestly endowed. Wernker der Benner, upon his return from the Venetian Army spent a few years endeavoring to regain the lost estates of his father, and failing to do so, also entered the Cloister of Saint Laurentius with his father. He had, at least, one son, Dietelm der Benner, who engaged in the feudal uprisings of the vassals and petty lords. He had one son, Ulrich der Benner, who in the year, 1387, removed to Holstein, the better to improve his pecuniary condition. He there served at court and gained certain privileges and grants which enabled him to regain some of the family's original possession. He had a son, Eustachius, whose sons and grandsons carried on the name and family in some of its old splendor until 1500.

In 1520 the Bavarian wars diminished the fortune of the family, so that they became scattered in Germany, upped Bavaria, Holland, Lorraine and a great many in Switzerland, and their history as a family lost for a time.

The last of the name to bear the armor of a knight was Dietrich Benner, who was appointed Field Marshal of a division of the Bavarian Army in 1620. Dietrich was a Protestant, and was, no doubt, the same General Benner who figures so conspicuously in the history of the Huguenots.

Among the earliest mention of the name in America appears in records of 1720 when Valentyn Benner made his residence in Rhinebeck, New York. He and his wife, Margaret, brought their eldest son with them from upper Bavaria. Some time later, Valentyn Benner bought land below Red Hook Village, where he established the Benner homestead, which remained in the Benner family for four generations.

Valentyn was the father of John, Henry, Margaret, Anna and Catherine. The Benner arms, as well as the name and family, is Frankish origin. The shield consisted at first of merely the six, bold and black stripes and was for purposes of identification only. The Red Lion was a later grant and was bestowed for unusual bravery, red being the color of courage and the lion rampant its symbol.

The crest or that portion above the helmet denotes class distinction rather than family, the black lion was the symbol of the Frankish Knights. They were known as "the black lions of the North" due to their almost ferocious bravery and to the fact that they wore dark armour rather than the bright or steel armour usually worn during that period. The most of the Benner family at present in Europe is in Switzerland.

Adolph Benner was president of Switzerland in 1901. The Frankish race has never been totally destroyed in all the wars it has passed through and is still the backbone of Christian civilization.

The Benner family had its origin in the German Palatinate along the Rhine which was formerly a part of the old Frankish nation. The original castle was near Strausbourg, now in Lorraine—branches of the original family also lived in Binger and Metz, others in Belgium and Switzerland.

During the latter part of the 17th. Century, due to the religious persecutions of Louis XIV of France and Leopold I and later Charles VI and VII of Prussia, the Protestant families in the Rhine district received the brunt of this intolerance from both the French and the German States.

Many of the leading families both on account of their religious beliefs and political affiliations were forced to flee their homeland and seek sanctuary elsewhere. The Palatinate along the Rhine had been ravaged by almost a century of intermittent war—finally in order to establish a vast desert between the French and German borders.

Louis XIV had ordered all the inhabitants of the Palatinate along the Rhine numbering half a million to leave within three days in 1709.

Some of the Benners were among these. Those near Strausbourg fled first to Holland thence to America. There are records of six of the name of Benner who sailed from Rotterdam between 1695 and 1720. Four of these landed at Philadelphia, one in Annapolis and one in New York. Two of those who landed in Philadelphia, did not long remain in Pennsylvania, but joined the great German, Scotch-Irish migration southward into Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina.

When the Baron de Graffenreid brought over his settlement of Swiss and Palatinate Germans to America and settled near Newbern, North Carolina in 1708, his two leaders were Mitchell and Benner—

Among those of the name of Benner who fought in the War of the Revolution were—Christopher, George, Henry, Peter and John, of Massachusetts; Lewis and Robert, of Virginia; Elias, Frederick, George, Peter, Henry, Jacob, Jonathan, Henry, Jr., Herman, James, Martin, Melchoir, Michael, and Philip Benner, of Pennsylvania.

Henry, John, Peter, Christopher, Jacob and George are some of the Christian names most favored by the family for its male progeny. Among the best known of the Revolutionary war period in Pennsylvania was Major General Philip Benner, son of Henry Benner, who was imprisoned by the British in Philadelphia during the Revolution, and Philip a youth in his teens, enlisted as a private under his neighbor and relative, General Anthony Wayne. After the revolution he went west and was one of the founders of Bellefonte, and contributed largely to the construction of the waterworks in 1808 and erected a number of houses in Bellefonte, his own residence being among those still standing (1927) and according to reports has been converted into a State Shrine by the Historical Society of Pennsylvania during the last few years. John Benner, of Gettysburg fought under General Harrison during war of 1812. Helped Commodore Perry build boats on banks of Lake Erie and also fought in the battle of Lake Erie when Commodore Perry defeated the British in the battle of the Great Lakes.

Old Times of Wyoming Exercise Fishing Rights

CHEYENNE, WYO.—Wyoming is a state of pioneer residents who believe in taking advantage of its fishing facilities, the game and fish department has decided.

Officials said they received an average of 50 applications daily for pioneer hunting and fishing licenses issued free to persons past 65 who have lived continuously in the state for 20 years.

Faces Shortage In Vital Metals

Government Acts to Build Reserves; Manganese, Tin, Offer Problems.

WASHINGTON.—Virtually complete dependence on foreign sources for tin and manganese may complicate efforts of the government's national defense administrators to build up a large emergency reservoir of strategic war materials for the United States, according to mineral experts.

Unlike chromium and tungsten, which the government plans to buy in large quantities, tin and manganese are produced in very limited quantities in this hemisphere. Large quantities of all will be needed for the defense program.

Heretofore, government experts said, more than three-fourths of the tin used in the United States has come from British Malaya, with the remainder divided between England, the Dutch East Indies, the Netherlands and Bolivia. Except for that of Bolivia, the supply from these sources is likely to be curtailed and even completely shut off because of the war, they believe.

Smelters Not Available.

Even if Bolivia could supply all the tin required by the United States, neither country has commercial smelters capable of refining what the experts termed "refractory and rebellious" Bolivian ore.

The situation in regard to manganese is similar. In 1939, American industries required more than 782,250 tons of the metal—essential for hardening armor-plate steel. Main sources of manganese ore have been the African Gold Coast and British India. Minor quantities are produced in the Philippines and Brazil.

Tin and manganese, the expert said, undoubtedly will provide Edward R. Stettinius Jr., materials coordinator of the national defense commission, with his most difficult problem. President Roosevelt has said fears of such shortages are hysterical and that Stettinius has the situation under control.

Under the strategic materials act passed at the last session of congress $100,000,000 was to be spent over the next 10 years for essential war-time commodities not readily available in this country. Approximately $13,000,000 has been spent in the current fiscal year.

More Funds Sought.

With the invasion of Belgium, Holland and France, the administration decided it was essential to the national defense to speed up purchases of strategic materials. Since May 10 the President has sent two requests to congress for $47,500,000 for the acquisition of such supplies. Another $100,000,000 would be available indirectly if needed under terms of the 1941 fiscal year military and naval appropriation bills.

Experts regard the tin situation as the most acute. During 1939 industrial consumption in the United States totaled approximately 70,000 tons of pig tin. Since last September the government purchased 6,124 tons at a cost of more than $6,000,000. But this would not be sufficient to last more than a few days if the country found itself at war, experts said.

The rubber situation is more indefinite, but probably not so serious, experts said. The procurement division has no quota on rubber, since all imports are handled on a barter basis for American cotton by the state and agriculture departments.

Chromium ore, necessary for the manufacture of armor plate and highly important in the manufacture of tool steel, is fortunately widely distributed over the earth's surface, the experts said, with the Philippines and Cuba among the major producers.

Falls Are in Lead In Home Accidents

Find Bathroom Is Not Most Dangerous Place.

CLEVELAND.—The safest place isn't in the home, according to the Cleveland Safety council.

Home fatalities for the first time in the past decade—figures before that time are unavailable—exceeded traffic fatalities in Cleveland.

According to the council's report, the comparative figures were 127 deaths in the home and 115 by traffic. The council warns to be careful going up and down stairs because that is the time that accidents are most likely to happen, which cause deaths.

By far, of all home accident deaths, falls were responsible for most. The council figures reported 83 in that manner. It reported that 29 deaths were attributable from falls while on stairs.

Contrary to popular belief, the bathroom is not the most dangerous place in the home or where an accident is most likely to happen.

Only one person in Cleveland suffered a fatal fall in a bathtub. However, two others slipped on bathroom floors and received fatal injuries.

Twenty-one persons died of burns in the second ranking cause of death, and carbon monoxide gas poison claimed nine lives.

In one of the oddest accidents reported, a wringer fell from the hand of a woman, struck her knee and foot, and caused an infection that proved fatal.

Check by Colored 'Hoppers'

If a Minnesota farmer finds a gold, violet or red grasshopper in his corn field he knows it's one of the 20,000 or more grasshoppers that the state department of agriculture painted and then turned loose over the state.

State entomologists naturally aren't solely interested in raising gayly colored grasshoppers. They want to learn the direction of hopper migrations.

Every now and then a batch of the colored hoppers appear in some section of the state. Whenever a farmer locates one of the colored flock he notifies the agriculture department.

The pests are sprayed with the lacquer of a chosen color, diluted with banana oil. Any of the various tints can be used.

New Ventilator Solves Fresh Air-Draft Problem

For the family that divides itself in winter into the advocates of fresh air and the enemies of drafts, peace is now possible with the perfection of a new ventilator, which has recently appeared on the market.

Every winter, particularly in sleeping chambers, a great many people feel that they are forced to choose between suffocating or resisting a freezing gale. The need of fresh air is recognized, and the danger of drafts is equally well established; the problem has been in selecting a lesser evil.

This new ventilator provides a solution by allowing air to enter the room quietly and effectively without creating enough movement of air to disturb the most sensitive person. Simple in construction, the ventilator consists of two vented plates which overlap, but do not touch and which have between them a copper screen. The edges of each plate are turned in such a way that they are opposite the opposing plate, so that the air is made to turn two corners by the baffle plates of the ventilator.

In this way, the force of the wind on the outside is checked so that the movement of air on the inside does not extend any more than four or five inches from the ventilator. While the baffle plates do not hinder fresh air from entering freely through the ventilator, they do prevent rain, snow and a large percentage of dust from passing through. Also, the installation of this ventilator will not interfere with the easy opening and closing of the window, because it goes on the outside, with a rubber composition flap which seals the space between the window frame and the ventilator.

They are easily installed without the services of an expert. Adjustable brackets at each end of the unit allow for variations in the width of windows and require but two screws each. The ventilator slips down between the brackets and can be inserted or removed effortlessly.

Changes in Industry Speeded Up by Science

Many years ago Lord Kelvin said that in order to understand anything one must measure it. Industry on the whole was rather slow to learn the lesson, but today there is a new standard of certainty, based on scientific measurement, which has invaded every branch of the industrial and engineering field.

To take a few examples from the railways: The comfortable riding of rail coaches, the sources of noise, the movement of a wheel along the rail, the vertical movements of the rails when under load, and the resistance of materials to wear—these are no longer left to personal impressions, which are so liable to error and leave no record for subsequent comparison. Measurement provides a new basis for progress.

"The sovereignty of man lieth hid in knowledge." There is every reason to be proud of the achievements of this country in the application of science to the needs of the world today, writes Sir Harold Hartley in "Technology Review." Americans were the first to realize for their own vast homogeneous internal market the immense potentialities of mechanized production—production which was made possible by scientific control and which has done so much in so many ways to diversify the pattern of life for this generation. But in our technical enthusiasm we must not forget that the human problems of management present much more difficulty than the choosing and working of inanimate material.

Women Run Hospitals

For many a year, women have claimed as their own the high executive positions in the profession of hospital administration.

Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, director of the American College of Surgeons, pointed this out recently. "The reason for this," said Dr. MacEachern, "is the close relationship between nursing and hospital administration. Nurse executives are concerned with the problems of hospital administration and thus are prepared for the duties of hospital management."

The high percentage of women in the profession, believes Miss Nellie G. Brown, superintendent of Ball Memorial hospital, Muncie, Ind., the famed "Middletown," is due to women who started as head nurses in the small hospitals, which total 75 per cent of the nation's general hospitals. A "small" hospital is one which has fewer than 100 beds.

"Often, a superintendent of one of the smaller hospitals is simply a head nurse with some idea of menu making, X-ray and the workings of the laboratory," said Miss Brown. "In time, the small place becomes larger. Her own abilities increase and she finds herself an important administrator of a thriving hospital."

Coyotes on Outskirts of Spokane

Coyotes on the outskirts of Spokane are increasing, according to Floyd Priest, trapper and cattleman. Last winter, Priest bagged 214 of the animals, 28 of which he got within six miles of the city limits. Priest has been trapping for years and said his catches close to the city were not so good as a decade ago.

PLATONIC

By VERDA JENSEN
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

THERE are some men, you know, whom no woman ever completely wins, and for whom all women instinctively do things . . .

The two women stood facing each other. For a moment neither of them spoke. The clock on the mantel struck out the midnight hour in twelve rapid exclamatory strokes. Shelia Davenport, the younger woman, gestured towards a chair.

"Won't you sit down?" she asked casually, apparently the complete master of the situation. Her guest, a heavy, richly dressed woman, was obviously disturbed; and as she spoke her voice was marked with the thickness of overwrought emotion and excitement.

"No. I'd rather stand." Shelia shrugged her shoulders in a deprecatory gesture and reached out a white arm, taking a cigarette from the box on the fireplace.

A log rolled over and snapped out a shower of sparks. Shelia tapped her cigarette on the back of one slim hand; lighted it. The older lady loosened her huge fur wrap. Shelia's eyes lifted in casual interrogation.

"Mrs. Netherby, is there anything I could . . ."

"I've come to bargain with you," Mrs. Netherby began, a bit uncertainly but with the distinct air of a woman whose mind is made up to see a thing through.

"That's interesting, of course. Won't you tell me a bit more?" "You insist on making this dreadfully hard for me, don't you, Shelia Davenport? It is hard for me to talk against your indifference, your hauteur . . ."

"Perhaps I can help." Shelia's voice was decisive. Her eyes were narrowed to peer through the thin veil of cigarette smoke which hung between them.

"It's about your husband, naturally." "Yes. Yes, Roderick . . ." The woman sank into a huge chair and Shelia poised herself almost birdlike on the edge of a divan.

"Do go on," Shelia urged. Mrs. Netherby set her lips in a determined line, and when her words finally came they sounded automatic, stilted—as though perhaps rehearsed many times before.

"In all my life, Shelia Davenport, I have been completely and irrevocably in love with only one person. And that is the man who married me twenty years ago. And now you are taking him away from me, as subtly, yet as surely as . . ."

"Oh, I assure you . . ." Shelia interrupted, graciously, flicking a bit of ashes into the grate. "I'm dreadfully sorry; but then you see I rather like the man, myself."

"But you don't love him as I do. You couldn't. You aren't capable of . . . that. You . . ." Mrs. Netherby stopped, a bit bewildered and at loss for words. "You see I worship him."

"Oh, my dear. No man deserves that." Mrs. Netherby ignored her and continued a bit wildly, "I'm not a coward in anything but this. Nothing in the world frightens me except the thought of losing Roderick. He's all I want; probably because I've never completely had him. If you really loved him I'm not so sure I couldn't let you have him . . ."

"Perhaps," commented Shelia dryly, without lifting her eyes from the fire. "But you don't really love him. You only enjoy overpowering him. Fascinating him. Winning him from me because you know I want him."

"Oh, my dear Mrs. Netherby, let's not over-estimate my ability," Shelia remarked straightening her slim shoulders. Her visitor ignored her attempted levity.

She plunged on, "So I have come to bargain with you. I'll do anything within reason, or without it, to keep him. Anything . . ."

Characteristically her fingers fumbled with the clasp on her purse. Shelia smiled.

A tense moment of silence caught between them. Mrs. Netherby watched Shelia's slender figure as she leaned towards the grate to toss away the end of her cigarette. Her eyes ran over the sleek flat waves of black hair; the lovely profile; the even pallor of her skin; her level brows. A perfect lady of the world, this Shelia Davenport . . . And somehow, envy her as she did, the older woman could not quite despise her as she felt in her heart she ought to do.

Mrs. Netherby broke the silence. "A trip abroad, perhaps?" she suggested warily. "If you really feel that way about Roderick . . . yes," Shelia answered quietly. "But with one stipulation."

"What is that?" Mrs. Netherby asked eagerly. "You must tell him quite frankly what you have done. I don't like Rod to think I've left him deliberately, you see. I've my pride, too, in a sense, to take care of . . ."

the desk. "Good night, Mrs. Netherby," she called as the older woman left the apartment. "Good-by, Shelia Davenport."

A limousine awaited Mrs. Netherby at the curb, and as she stepped into it a man leaned forward from the dark recesses of the car and took her hand.

"Well . . .?" he asked. "I got rid of her for you, Roderick. And cheaply, too," Mrs. Netherby announced, sitting beside him.

"Good old Marilyn," Roderick murmured appreciatively. "Did she throw a scene?"

"No. It was perfectly simple. I staged a neat little drama and it went off beautifully."

"My lord, I don't see how you manage them so easily, Marilyn. When I try it I always mess things up and they get hysterical and ruin my lapels."

Mrs. Netherby sighed; her husband continued talking musingly: "Well, anyhow it's great that you're such a sport. Even though you haven't been in love with me for a dozen years. You're a brick to stick around and help me out like this. I guess I'm lucky you've never fallen for anybody else since you stopped loving me . . . Or did you ever start?"

His wife started to answer, but Mr. Netherby's spirits were up and he felt talkative. "Did you tell Shelia I was sick and fed up with her? Or how did you handle it?"

"Oh, I just told her the plain truth," she answered calmly. "Thanks, old girl. It didn't hurt her much to know I was fed up, did it? You're great, Marilyn. People would probably never guess you didn't give a damn about me, would they?"

"No, I guess they wouldn't." And as the car passed under an arc lamp a glimmer of tears shone in her eyes.

American 'Swiss' Cheese Is Finding New Market

WASHINGTON.—A new merchandising method introduced by the federal bureau of dairy industry within the last year by which natural Swiss cheese is sold in cans, sliced and ready to serve, is expected to result in greater consumption of an American-made product.

Although much Swiss cheese is sold over lunch counters at present, the large wheel in which the cheese is originally made—weighing from 175 to 225 pounds—is not only unsuited to restaurant trade but is almost unknown outside of the producing centers and the larger cities.

By the new method, the cheese is cut into loaves, sliced, wrapped in moisture-proof paper and canned at the factory. Most of the waste can be processed and sold as processed Swiss cheese. This is a saving over the old method and more convenient for restaurant use.

Through co-operative dealers the canned cheese has been marketed through certain hotels and restaurants for a year. They report that the cheese remains firm and meaty, even though it is kept on hand for several weeks at a time. One company in Ohio already has established a business for canning and distributing the sliced Swiss cheese and other companies have indicated that they too will soon start distributing the canned cheese.

The idea of marketing cheese in cans originated with American cheddar cheese which also offered difficulties when sold for the sandwich trade. The bureau scientists developed a vented can in which the cheddar cheese could be cured and then sold in the container. One of the cans was about the size of a loaf of bread which gives a print from which sandwich servings can be sliced.

Swiss cheese should be carefully selected for canning and the fact the manufacturer will sell under a brand is an incentive for canning only quality cheese. The experience of the bureau has been that the flavor should be well developed and the texture firm and meaty. The eyes should be uniform in size and evenly distributed. The body of the cheese should be free from checks or cracks, a defect known to the cheese trade as glass. Glass, large eyes, and cheese that is overset are undesirable because the slices are fragile and difficult to pack and serve.

Merry-Go-Round Test

Models of bridges and other large structures are tested at the Columbia school of engineering on a whirling merry-go-round. Centrifugal force reaching 2,000 times that of gravity, substitutes for the stress that might be encountered in real bridges and tall buildings.

World's Largest Window

A window two stories high and 200 feet long, lights the interior of the new giant parking garage at Rockefeller Center, New York. The window is made of a new pattern glass known as louvrex and it would take two window washers a week to give it a cleaning.

Texas Oil Reserve

Texas has produced 6,118,000,000 barrels of oil since 1889. The oil reserve in Texas is estimated at 9,500,000,000 barrels, or about 50 per cent of the national reserve.

Double Value

Mrs. Walter Houston, Casper, Wyo., thinks she got her money's worth out of a dozen eggs she purchased recently. Each egg in the dozen had a double yolk.

Historic Points Attract Visitors to South Wales

The coast of South Wales between Swansea and Tenby, on the western side of Carmarthen bay, is varied. There are parts of the coast where the limestone cliffs rise to a considerable height, only to fall away again to the sand flats of such tidal estuaries as are formed where the Loughor, the Burry or the Towy rivers meet the sea.

To the west of Swansea the Mumbles Head curves protectively into the bay. From this windy elevation the view across the bay toward Swansea and Port Talbot has as a background the chimneys of innumerable industries, says the Sunday Times of London. A canopy of smoke drifts slowly across the scene. Dimly, through the haze, rise the rugged shapes of the Glamorgan mountains.

But turn toward the west and follow the undulating path along the cliffs and the horizon is limited only by the headlands of Pwll-du head and Oxwich point. In places the cliffs give way to snug sandy beaches, such as Langland bay or Caswell, where the surf-bathing is good, or again in the wide sweep of Oxwich lying below the historic little village and castle from which it obtains its name. At Worms head the cliffs end and the flats around the river mouths begin. But beyond Pendine sands toward Sandersfoot and Tenby the coast rises again and reaches a wild magnificence where the National Trust cliffs at Lydstep overlook Caldy island.

All this stretch of coast appeals to the visitor because of its quiescent charm. There are no great seaside resorts, but towns such as Tenby, Kidwelly, Llanelli or even Swansea, with their individual attractions, are excellent centers from which an interesting and historic hinterland explored.

Surgeons Shift Heart Of 7-Week-Old Infant

ANN ARBOR, MICH.—University hospital surgeons said today that a 10-week-old infant whose heart was moved from the right to the left side was recovering and gaining weight normally.

The delicate operation was performed three weeks ago, surgeons said, on Elneda Baumann, the daughter of Theodore R. Baumann of Hope, Mich. The child was under an anesthetic for more than an hour.

Surgeons said a misplacement of the intestines, due to an opening at birth in the upper part of the diaphragm, collapsed the infant's left lung and pushed the heart to the right side.

Transplanted Eye Proves Successful, Report Shows

NEW YORK.—The first successful transplantation of eyes was shown to the American Medical association.

The eyes are only those of salamanders, lizard-like animals, but the results are amazing. The same eye has been transplanted in succession to three different blind salamanders, and has given sight to each.

The work was shown by L. S. Stone and Frederick A. Wies, of Yale university school of medicine. The purpose is not yet to learn whether humans ever can have borrowed eyes, but to learn more of the structure of eyes.

Italians Rebuild Castles Of Old Ethiopian Chiefs

GONDAR, ETHIOPIA.—The Italian government is restoring the castles of ancient Ethiopian rulers. Reconstruction of many of the so-called Portuguese castles, built by half-castes from Goa for the emperors who reigned between 1632 and the middle of the Eighteenth century is expected to help make Gondar, near beautiful Lake Tana, a tourist center.

The largest, the Castle of Fasilidas, is the headquarters of the Italian governor of Asmara. Another has been made into a residence for the viceroy of Ethiopia, the Duke d'Aosta.

Italian Asserts Planets Verify Bible on Flood

ROME.—The flood actually took place in the time of Noah, according to Prof. Raffaele Bendandi. He bases his opinion on the movements of four new planets he has discovered beyond Neptune. "These bodies regulate our entire solar system," he said. "It is their huge power of attraction which causes all geological movements and earthquakes. I have reached the conclusion, supported by scientific proof, that the deluge actually occurred in 2887 B. C., as stated in the Bible."

Laborer 'Gets Air,' Bounces on Airplane

LONDON.—A six-foot laborer, working on a Scottish airfield, accidentally stepped into the slipstream from an airplane. He was blown through the air into another plane which was turning over. A spade he was carrying struck a third plane. The six-foot laborer was only slightly injured in this extraordinary series of mishaps.

WEIGHING CONSEQUENCES A Principle of Temperate Living

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 1:7-10; Isaiah 5:11, 12, 18-23; Galatians 6:7-9.
GOLDEN TEXT—Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.—1 Timothy 4:8.

An intelligent approach to life calls for an understanding of principles governing thought and action. Our lesson for today recognizes that every act and thought of man brings consequences, either good or bad. Man himself must make the decisions of life, and what he sows he must also reap.

Matters of crucial importance to modern young people are involved in our lesson. They are asking these days, "Shall I listen to God's voice, or is that just old-fashioned nonsense? What about obeying parents? Should I drink intoxicants? 'Everybody' does—why should I be different? Of course, I don't want to be a drunkard or ruin my future life, but I'd like to have 'my fling'—can't I have it and still avoid disastrous consequences?"

The answers to these questions are in our lesson. May God help young people to find the right answers, and enable every teacher to present the truth clearly and effectively.

I. Safe Counsel (Prov. 1:7-10).

No sane person wants to make a fool of himself. He is looking for the right way and will lend his ear to good counsel. Here it is—"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge" (R. V., "wisdom"). Fear of God is not a cringing terror, but a sincere appreciation of His wisdom and a desire to do His will.

The best counselors a boy or girl has are father and mother. Only a fool will pass up the golden opportunity of profiting by their experiences and avoiding their mistakes, and will miss the opportunity of carrying forward their high hopes. Those who fear God and honor their parents will not be misled by the enticement of sinners (v. 10). They just will not "consent," and that settles it.

II. Steps to Ruin (Isa. 5:11, 12, 18-23).

Isaiah lived and ministered in a time of prosperity, which led to drunkenness and immorality. This in time led, as it always does, to the decay and destruction of the nation. We face similar moral conditions today. Let us not shut our eyes to the lesson so oft-repeated in history and in false security go on to national ruin.

We need outspoken and determined opposition in civic, social and religious circles to the liquor traffic and to all the vices that follow inevitably in its train. The portion of our lesson from Isaiah vividly portrays the downward path of the drinker of intoxicants. Ponder it well, young man and young woman.

III. Seedtime and Harvest (Gal. 6:7-9).

Everywhere about him man sees the inexorable operation of the law of cause and effect, of sowing and reaping, and yet he listens to the lies of Satan and of his own lustful heart and tries to convince himself that the law may be suspended in the realm of the moral and spiritual.

Sowing to the flesh always brings corruption. No matter how well educated, no matter what his position in life, or his family connection, the man who takes his first drink has started on the road to a drunkard's grave. Statistics reveal that the victims of drink come from every strata of society and every circumstance of life. Young people, the sure way to avoid the consequences is to not take the first drink.

Sowing to the Spirit brings "life everlasting." That, too, is always true. There is also another precious truth: namely, that by turning to Christ the one who has begun on the downward path may stay the ruinous hand of sin upon his life. Taking Christ as his Saviour, he finds regeneration and renewal of life.

The Works of the Lord

Praise ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation. The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein.—Psalm 111: 1, 2.

As Lambs Among Wolves

Go your ways: behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves. Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes; and salute no man by the way. And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be unto this house.—Luke 10: 3-5.

One Point of View

If we can not hope that life will be all happiness we may, at least, secure a heavy balance on the right side.

The God Within

"God worketh in you." This implies the actual presence of God at the center of our being.

BUSY PHONE LINE MAY NOT ALWAYS BE IN USE

Two Calls To Same Party At Same Time Can Cause Unavoidable Delay

If you telephone your residence and find the line is busy, and if, subsequently, you learn no one was home at the time, naturally you feel the telephone company was at fault.

However, the folks may all be away and yet the telephone line may be busy. The house might even be boarded up and still the line could be in use. In other words, a telephone can be busy even if no one is at home because it is perfectly possible for two people to be calling the same number from different telephones at the same time, and if two people are calling the same person at the same instant, one of them will find that the line is busy.

Another way in which the line can be busy when not in actual use is when someone has forgotten to place the receiver on the hook. In such cases, no one can put through an incoming call. Also, in the case of party-line service, use of the telephone by any one of the subscribers on the line makes it busy, no matter which number on the line is being called.

Hankow Paper Published

In Cave to Escape Bombs

CHUNGKING.—Probably one of the world's first newspapers literally to "go underground" to be safe from aerial bombardment, the English-language Hankow Herald here has announced that it will suspend publication for two weeks this month while having its machinery installed in a bombproof dugout.

Taking advantage of the winter months, which in Chungking are so perpetually overcast and foggy that air raids are impossible, the Herald has blasted out a roomy "cave" in the side of one of the hills on which Chungking is situated. In this retreat it will from now on publish its daily edition, secure from worry of destruction by Japanese bombs.

Chairs Back, but Boss

Who Banned Them Isn't

IOLA, KAN.—Iolans now probably never will solve the mystery of a certain office manager who spent four years here. He's been transferred and the office is "back to earth." But the first thing he did when he took over, four years ago, was to banish all the chairs. He placed stumps on the desks. He did all his work, typewriting, bookkeeping, writing, and all, standing up—and never explained his aversion to chairs.

Severed Arm of Octopus

Proves Heroism of Youth

PORT ANGELES, WASH.—Thirteen-year-old Douglas Burgess has proof he saved the life of his friend, 12-year-old Howard Huffman, who was attacked by an octopus.

Douglas kept part of the devil-fish's tentacle that he cut off with his pocket knife as the octopus was trying to drag Howard into the water from a rock.

Douglas held his chum by the leg as he slashed more than two feet off the octopus' arm with his knife.

Happy Days for Dogs

BUTTE, MONT.—Butte dogs face the happiest summer they have had in years. Police Chief William H. Breen said there was insufficient money in the proper fund to employ dog catchers for the next few months.

Doubting Scientist

Dr. Fritz Zwicky, noted astrophysicist, of the California Institute of Technology, as the result of new astronomical photographs, tests and calculations, discounts absolutely the existing theory that the universe is expanding and may some day blow up.

Knitted Children's Garments

Mesh or knitted materials are said to be more desirable for children's underclothing than woven fabrics of the same fiber, because they are porous, they absorb moisture and are easy to wash.

Light Testing Device

The amount of light in a room may be determined with a light meter, a small instrument that gauges intensity of light as accurately as a thermometer tells the temperature.

Correct Use of Telephone Greatly Increases Value of Instrument

Slamming Receiver On Hook When Call Is Completed Considered Poor Manners By C. & P. Employees

When Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone he probably never dreamed it would develop into a service which would enter so intimately into the lives of millions of people or contribute so importantly to the progress of a great nation. But the importance of the telephone today is recognized. What is equally important, but not so universally recognized, is the vital necessity for correct usage of the telephone.

Statistics available from the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies show that proper telephone manners coupled with a pleasing telephone personality greatly enhance the value of this means of communication. Telephone employees are ever ready to point out that the same rules of etiquette used in face-to-face conversations should apply in telephone conversations.

Take, for example, the chap pictured above. Figuratively speaking he has just "cracked a customer or acquaintance on the ear." His telephone conversation and manners may have filled the bill right up to the time he put the receiver back on the hook, then he slammed it down and the listener's good opinion of him went tumbling. Telephone rules of courtesy emphasize that when you finish talking say "Goodbye" and place the receiver gently on the hook.

One telephone employee, in discussing proper telephone manners, stressed the importance of answering a call correctly.

"When answering calls," she said, "don't subject the person on the other end of the line to a 'third degree.' Such questions as 'Who is this calling?' or 'Who told you to call?' are impolite. Ask your question tactfully. Phrases such as, 'I'm sure Mr. Doe would like to know who is calling,' or 'When Mr. Doe returns, may I tell him who called?' are the best."

Another telephone employee brought out the fact that using a person's name in conversation is important.

"Everybody you talk to likes to hear his name spoken," she explained. "You should always be certain, however, that you can pronounce it correctly."

These rules on how to develop a pleasing telephone personality are just a few of the many set forth by C. & P. employees. Following them, employees point out, may mean the difference between winning or losing a friend or customer.

A TEA IN THE TIME OF ROSES

(See Recipes Below)

It's the custom, in a great many clubs, to draw the season to a graceful close with a charming spring tea. If you're chairman of the refreshment committee for that delightful social function of your organization, why not plan to make "In the Time of Roses" the theme song for your tea?

Use roses here, there and everywhere . . . a rose-pink damask cloth with rose pattern; rose-sprigged china; a great bowl of real roses for the centerpiece, and candied rose petals to decorate the tiny cakes.

When you plan the refreshments, allow at least three sandwiches and two little cakes (or cookies) for each guest, and a pound of mints or salted nuts for each 25 guests. If the tea is a large one, you'll need two platters of sandwiches, two of cakes and one dish each of mints and nuts, on the table at one time, and make sure that for each platter on the table there's at least one full one in the kitchen to take its place.

Choose an interesting variety of dainty sandwiches for your tea. Oblong brown bread sandwiches with cream cheese and marmalade are good, and combine effectively with round white bread sandwiches, with a blend of tuna fish and mayonnaise between them. Very thin, dainty slices of an unusual bread are excellent for plain bread and butter sandwiches.

An assortment of dark and light cookies, and very small cakes provide the sweet touch for your menu. And tea you must have, of course.

Tea, when properly made, is one of the most invigorating drinks you can serve. It is most important, especially when making tea for a group, to measure the amount of tea used and to brew it just long enough and not too long in order to insure its best fragrance and tang. (Three to five minutes is generally conceded to be just about right brewing time.)

It is a significant fact that more truck users choose Chevrolet than any other make of truck . . . because Chevrolet trucks could not have established their record of leadership in 1940 and maintained it for six out of the last eight years had it not been that Chevrolet trucks deliver more dollar-for-dollar value than any other make.

All models and types of Chevrolet trucks may still be purchased at today's low price levels, so it would be wise to consider replacing some of your trucking equipment with new Chevrolets now.

BACK ON THE FARM?

The farm population is now the largest in 24 years, according to estimates of the Department of Agriculture. It is close to the 1916 all-time high record of 32,530,000. The 1940 farm population figure has gained 186,000 in the past year. During the 1930's the farms lost 2,179,000 persons and 6,000,000 during the 1920's.

The largest increase in farm population during the past 10 years was in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi.

Said an excited citizen to a candidate: "I wouldn't vote for you if you were the Angel Gabriel."

To which the politician replied: "If I were the Angel Gabriel, you wouldn't even be in my precinct."

Believe in yourself, believe in humanity, believe in the success of your undertakings. Fear nothing and no one. Love your work. Worry, hope, trust. Keep in touch with today. Teach yourself to be practical and up-to-date and sensible. You cannot fail.—Dr. Riley D. Moore.

Keep your perspective

SURE, these are hectic times. But there is no reason why you should drift away from thrift. It is just as important as ever that you have a bank account, and make regular deposits. Individuals, like nations, need "defense programs" against insecurity and emergency.

TO HIS BEST FRIEND:

● The deceased's best friend, named in the Will as Executor, was bewildered and bowed to earth with the weight of unfamiliar duties thrust upon his shoulders.

He did his best — which was not very good. The inevitable mistakes and delays resulting from his mismanagement cost the estate and the heirs several thousands of dollars, all of which could have been saved by naming a Corporate Executor with the facilities and organization to cope with the intricate problems involved. Do not make this mistake in your will.
