ROLAND FORNEY INJURED In An Auto Wreck near Taneytown and Keymar Road.

The Fire Company was called out Wednesday night at 11:40 to a burning auto that had been driven by Roland Forney, son of David Forney, Copperville. He was driving toward Taneytown from the Keymar road, and in making the curve just beyond the abutment of a concrete culvert,

The report is that Forney received broken leg, and was otherwise painfully injured, and that the auto was a complete wreck. He was taken to Gettysburg Hospital. Just why the Fire Company was called, we have not learned, but it is reported that just following the mishap another car came along, and there may have been a small fire along the side of the road, and that this person called the Fire Company.

TANEY AND KEY FOR THE HALL OF FAME.

Among the distinguished Americans nominated for the Hall of Fame at New York University in New York City are Roger Brooke Taney, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States from 1836 to 1864, and Francis Scott Key, author of the National Anthem.

Chief Justice Hughes has said in reference to Chief Justice Taney:
"He bore his wounds with the fortitude of an invincible spirit. He was a great Chief Justice."

President Harding said in reference to Francis Scott Key: "No concern for self narrowed his thought. No glorification of the individual marred his vision. No pursuit of fame set his soul ablaze. No personal advantage hindered his pen. His country and his concern for its safety were combined in his all-consuming thought; the Nation was the great his all-consuming uplifting and exalting love. In his impassioned, anxious, self-sacrificing, exalting, and exulting love of country, transcending all else, Key reached the sublime heights, and wrote the poetic revelation of an American soul aflame.

HEALTH OF CHILDREN

Some "Musts" Before they can Enter School.

Parents of the army of first-graders who will be tackling the three R's for the first time when the schools open in the fall, are reminded by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, of certain "musts" that should be attended to before the children start off on this, their first big adventure.

"First in order of importance," he said, "is a general health examination. The correction of unfavorable conditions comes next. Health conferences for the examination of children who will enter school in the fall, have been held in all of the counties and our records show that a great many youngsters have already been exam-

"Special attention is paid in the health examination of prospective first-graders to the general health and development of each child, to the throat, nose, chest, teeth, vision and hearing.

"If you have put off having your child examined don't wait any longer. Take the youngster to your family doctor for a thorough checking up. If the doctor finds something that needs attention go ahead and have it done, so that your small boy or girl may enter school as free as possible from conditions that might be responsible for ill health later on.

"There are two other 'musts': Be sure that your child is protected against diphtheria and vaccinated against small pox before he starts to "Our State law requires all children to be vaccinated against smallpox before they may be accepted at any public school in Maryland. The State has been kept comparatively free from smallpox, largely through the observance of this law. The disease is widely prevalent in other parts of the country, but because we hear so little about it in Maryland, parents have to be reminded that the children must be protected against smallpox before they start to school.

"Diphtheria is as preventable as smallpox. You can have your child immunized—that is protected against diphtheria through the use of toxoid. You can have your child safeguarded against these diseases either by your own doctor or at one of the county health department

"If you have neglected any of the essential health measures just look at your calendar to see how soon the schools will open, and have them at-tended to, without any further de-

THE PEACH SEASON

Some Practical Information, About Canning Operation.

With the peach season at hand in Maryland, Old-Line housewives should give serious consideration to canning some of this crop for consumption next winter, it is suggested by Adeline M. Hoffman, Home Demonstration Agent, Carroll County, When the snow is on the ground, the canned peaches are more than welcome as a breakfast fruit, in salads, and in all winds of desserts.

"The quality of canned peaches depends largely on the quality of the fresh peaches used, "explains Miss Hoffman. "Canning does not improve the quality of the fruit, and only the peaches are suitable." very best peaches are suitable."
To make sure of the quality, look for peaches that are firm and ripe but not soft. Avoid those that are badly bruised, those with brown spots of decay, and those that are uneven in shape and have punctures made by worms. The pink blush which is found on many varieties of peaches tells little about the quality, but the rest of the color on the outside of the peach is very important. If this background color is green, the peach may ripen with a poor flavor or it may be come shriveled. But the peach is a safe buy if this green color has changed to a yellow or whitish-yellow

Miss Hoffman points out peaches are easy to can but are likely to turn an unpleasing brown color if they are not handled correctly. The best way to avoid this brown discoloration is to heat the peaches in the syrup for 3 to 5 minutes and then pack in the jars or cans while they are hot. Heating the peaches this way makes them pack better and cuts down the time needed to process them. Process quart jars of peaches about 15 minutes in the water-bath.

MY COMMUNITY!

We wonder how many practice being a booster for his, or her, own community, or town? We have "random thoughts" this idea for a long while, and make no excuse for continuing to do so. There is but little real need for the "knocker" anywhere. If

And so it is with what we think. We need to be community-minded, working together, one for all rather than all for one. This is the only right sort of one-ness. Selfishness is almost criminal, in some, if not most cases. P. B. E.

THE EDITOR'S JOB.

Like the greater number of items of merchandise of consequence, the newspaper is produced in an assembly plant. The operation of production is that of putting many different ingredients together to make a complete whole.

The paper comes from one plant, the ink from another, and these items are again combinations of ingredients that have been produced in other assembly plants. The content of the newspaper comes from correspondents, from staff writers, and if a daily, over the wires from many sources. Feature material comes from syndicates that specialize in producing that class of material.

All of these various items are put together in the newspaper plant by the workmen there, and under the direction of the editor and publisher.

Renner, of New York Teachers College charged at a New York educational conference on July 22nd.

The danger to democratic ideals comes from coddling aliens in the public schools more than from the threat of armed invasion. "We have had a very extensive and real penetration of America by European rot and decay," he declared.

To remedy the situation, an aggressive program designed to educate aliens in Americanism is favored. It is admitted that the Government has no right to compel belief in its philosophies and ideals, but it does have the right to place all children "under systematic exposure to the cardinal points of the American way."

It is pointed out that many immigrants to this country, even after several generations, have not become Americanized. Large blocs of immigrants of the same nationality settled in groups, brought their own language, culture and ideals, and were followed by "bunds, Christian Fronts, fellow-travelers, fifth columns, anti-Semites and other Old World mildew." Political power, because of their mass votes, enabled them to continue to exist as separate nationali-

Professor Renner submitted a plan that a frank, dynamic and fearless presentation of the American case be made in all public schools, instead of the inadequate apologetic attitude that has been used heretofore. This would necessitate a national school department to coordinate the work of the various states.

This reorganization is based on a ten-point program which was formed originally by early Americans. It includes abolition of the caste system; separation of Church and State; exaltation of the individual above the institution; development of public education; personal liberties; faith in majority rule; delegation of authority to elected leaders; intellectual and religious liberty; tolerance of minorities, and the responsibility of every American to bear arms for his country.—Scottish Rite Service.

"REFORM" THE "REFORMS."

For the past few years, "reform" has been a dominant governmental policy. Under the banner of reform it by renewing the pledge heretofore necessary and desirable to the crackpot and dangerous, have been proposed and passed.

"Reform" has caused us to put government into business competition with its citizens. "Reform" has caused to saddle industry with a maze of conflicting regulatory laws which even the proverbial Philadelphia lawyer can't fathom in many instances. "Reform" has been the alibi for legislation which, in effect if not intent, has encouraged labor racketeering and created industrial chaos. The result of all this has been to discourage industry and investment at precisely the time when stimulated industrial production for defense as well as peaceful purposes, is most needed. The job that faces America now—and it is a job that cannot long be deferred—is to "reform" the "reforms."

We should adopt a definite policy which will prevent further excursions of government into business. Existing government business projects, such as tax-subsidized hydroelectric plants, should be used to support, not destroy, private power developments in the future.

We should adopt a labor policy which will make genuinely equitable dealing between management and labor, possible. Even as labor is entitled to its fair share of the fruits of industry-so are the people whose invested savings employ labor.

We should adopt as our general governmental philosophy the proven principle that our national strength comes from the strength of productive industry and agriculture-from worker, manager, inventor, field hand, cap_ italist, merchant, and all others. We should encourage industry and business to expand and go ahead, undeterred by the fear of unfriendly political action or government competition. That is the road to prosperity in peace--and the road to security in a warring world. Finally, we should turn again to the constitutional concept of our gov_ ernment-a government of limited powers, acting as an umpire, not a participant, in the affairs of the people-a government which is the servant, not the master, of its citizens. That is the democratic way-and that is the only way some form of ruthless total government which would slaughter our liberties, can be prevented from taking root here.-Industrial News Review.

Lights of New York by L. L. STEVENSON

America: One of this department's most efficient and valued scouts dropped into Henry Rocano's sporting goods store up at Danbury, Conn., and in the course of a friendly conversation casually inquired if he'd had any demand for rifles or shotguns on the part of customers who wished to be ready in case any German parachute troops landed in their vicinity. Rocano replied that an aged and quite wealthy woman who lives in the neighborhood had bought a rifle and a large supply of ammunition because of the possibility that Nazis might land in Connecticut. He didn't want to give her name because it might embarrass her but added that if any Nazis did pick her property for a descent, they would meet with a warm reception. Somehow the vision of a grayheaded woman on guard gives one a warm and comforting feeling about Amer-

Fame: Nineteen-year-old Carol Bruce, who until the debut of the new musical comedy hit, "Louisiana Purchase," was merely another struggling young singer, now finds herself the center of attention of velvet-voiced venders who besiege her with wares and suggestions as to how she should dress and make up in a befitting manner for her new importance. Here are some samples of advice she has received from those who would part her from her money:

Don't be prosaic. Try a panther lap robe for afternoon motoring, a laprobe of silver foxes for evening. This is the season for whopping big jewels. Six bracelets on a wrist, a pin as big as a powder puff, an emerald necklace with a clasp the size of a doorknob.

For afternoon wear, one pink, one blue glove. And so on and on and on.

Street Scene: An old man with a long white beard peacefully slumbering on a Central Park West bench . . . A ragged colored man going along slowly and stopping to swiftly retrieve a cigar butt of considerable length . . . Ragamuffins scaling the park rocks like young goats . . . A pretty nursemaid pushing a perambulator with her eyes apparently demurely on the side-Yet taking notice of a big truck driver who is waiting for the light to change . . . An enormously fat woman with one of those tin-cup size hats perched jauntily over her left ear . . . Boys and girls on bicycles zig-zagging through the traffic . . . A vender of ice cream stopping to ring his bell . . . and the sleeper jumping to his feet and scuttling away muttering.

Ethics: Now that golfers are out in full force, a New Yorker who spent several months in the Florida winter belt recalled an incident at one of the stylish clubs where the caddies are all colored. While playing with his daughter one afternoon, he knocked the ball into the rough. As he approached it, he noticed that the caddy was teeing it up. Somewhat sharply, he ordered him not to do that as it was against the rules. The caddy looked at him amazed and replied, "Well, mister, I've been a caddy for this club two or three years and some of the members like to have their ball set up and some don't but mostly they And that, the New Yorker holds, is a tip-off on honesty.

Advice: Sometime ago, in this space a cure for tired feet was mentioned. J. A. Baror of Harrisville, Mich., holds that I should have advised that when drying the feet, they shouldn't be sawed with the towel but dried by standing on it else there might be "needle corns" which feel like a red-hot needle being driven into the sole of the foot. As for "needle corns," he says to draw about three inches of cold water, not ice water, into the tub and soak the feet for 20 minutes. Then stand on the bath mat or towel. He doesn't know how long it takes for a cure but declares that his method finally brings results.

Panhandling: Noted a panhandler at work. His clothes indicated that he had slept in a park all night and his step was unsteady. But seemingly he was a shrewd judge of human nature as almost every man he tackled, instead of shaking his head, dug into his pocket. After plying his trade vigorously for possibly a half hour, the moocher walked away rapidly and, screened from the view of his customers, counted his take. Evidently satisfied, he lighted a cigar butt and strode away rapidly in the general direction of the nearest filling sta-

End Piece: The other afternoon at a bridge club, a gentleman who wished to open a fresh pack of cigarettes drew from his pocket a small pair of scissors and carefully cut the cellophane wrapper instead of vainly scratching. He always carried scissors, he explained, and that led May to remark that after all, he might be a merchant tailor.

U.S. '39 Income Seventy Billions

Increase of $5,400,000,000 Over 1938 Total and 75% Over 1932.

WASHINGTON.—The national income in the United States for 1939, according to a commerce department statement, totaled nearly $70,-000,000,000, an increase of $5,400,-000,000, or 9 per cent, over the 1938 total and nearly 75 per cent over that for 1932.

Since the 1939 production of goods and services was valued at prices considerably less than in 1929, when the peak income of $82,900,000,000 was achieved, it was asserted that the "real" national income, the quantity of goods and services produced, in 1939 was at least equal to and probably exceeded the previous all-time high.

Accelerated expansion in business activity after the outbreak of the war in September was in large measure responsible for the rise. It brought the "real" national income in 1939 to a point from a third to a half above that of 1932.

Cost of Living.

The dollar income in 1939 was 16 per cent lower than in 1929, but prices showed even larger declines over the 10-year period. The cost of living of urban wage-earners was 17.4 per cent less than in 1929, while wholesale prices in 1939 were down slightly more than 19 per cent.

The flow of income during the first half of 1939 was only moderately above the rate prevailing in 1938, but the increased physical output and higher prices as a result of the war brought the flow of national income by the end of the year to a rate which annually would be in excess of $75,000,000,000.

Manufacturing, construction work done under contract, mining and agriculture, industries which generally contribute about a third of the national income, accounted for more than 80 per cent of the income decline in 1938 and two-thirds of the increase in 1939.

The manufacturing and contract construction industries increased by about 25 per cent last year. Mining showed a gain of 15 per cent and transportation increased 13 per cent.

Others Increased.

All other groups increased, from less than 1 per cent in the case of government to 7 per cent for the communications industry. The moderate expansion in regular government activities was offset by a drop of nearly $300,000,000 in work-proj-

In 1938, total income disbursed by all producing units in the United states was nearly $1,500,000,000 more than the national income, indicating that part of the income dis-tributed came from existing resources of business enterprises, rather than exclusively from current production. In 1939, on the other hand, the national income exceeded income disbursed by about $750,-000,000. The national income increased $5,800,000,000 in 1939, while income distributed rose $3,600,000,-

Disbursements for the services of employees increased from $44,300,-000,000 in 1938 to $46,800,000,000 in 1939. Exclusive of work project wages, this total rose $2,800,000,000, or 6.5 per cent. Dividends increased about one-sixth in 1939, whereas interest payments declined slightly.

Average earnings per full-time worker were higher than in any year since 1931.

ENTERTAINING WHEN THE WEATHER'S WARM (See Recipes Below)

If the mercury seems likely to | cup cold water, and let settle until thermometer, and guests are coming for dinner, you can still keep out of very cold water.

Plan your menu to permit as much preparation as possible in the cooler hours of the morning. Remember, when you plan the meal, that quality rather than quantity will please your guests, and that a beautiful, cool, crisp salad will be more appetite-tempting, by far, than all the complicated hot dishes you can name!

It's wise, of course, to include one hot food in your menu, even though the weather's torrid. There's something about the contrast of hot foods and cold that makes a meal more pleasant to the taste (and to the digestion, as well).

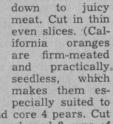

A cup of clear, hot soup, which might be prepared the day before and reheated just before serving, a hot main dish that's not too hearty or just a hot beverage, if you prefer it, will do the trick.

You'll find menus and tested recipes for all kinds of summer entertaining in my cook book, "Easy Entertaining." There are menus (and recipes) for teas, for buffet suppers, children's parties, and for a wedding reception, too.

Largest Date-Palm Grove

Elche in Spain boasts one of the largest date-palm groves in the world, variously estimated at from 80,000 to 110,000 trees. The fruitbearing palms are pollenated by hand, men scaling the trunks by hoisting themselves with a rope tied loosely around the tree and their waists. Many of the leaves are blanched and sold throughout Spain for Palm Sunday, and as a protection against lightning.

Life-Saving Canary

Eight lives were saved by the terrified twittering of a pet canary when a fire broke out in the Colonial Bank hotel in Melbourne, Australia. The people were sleeping on the upper floors of the building and were awakened by the bird. They were rescued by the firemen. Fish Sleep, Don't Hear
The questions "Can fish hear?"
and "Do fish sleep?" are often asked, says Maj. George Cornwallis-West, ardent angler in his fishy book. Edwardians Go Fishing

"I am convinced that they do sleep," the major declares. "After all, why should not a fish require rest as much as any other creature which has to expend energy on seeking its food?"

On the other hand: "A fish cannot hear," he reports decisively. "Obviously ears are given to animals primarily to assist them to communicate with each other, and as fish make no sound, Nature has seen no reason to give them facilities to listen to conversations which don't take place!"

The oldest fishing club in the world-unless you know one olderis the Fish club "inaugurated in 1730, on the Schuylkill, a tributary of the Delaware river, near Philadelphia, under the Hon. Thomas Stretch," to quote Major Cornwallis-West.

"Some years ago I found myself in Philadelphia," reminisces the major. "By courtesy of the members I was able to look through some of the old records, which I found most entertaining." In 1832, the Fish club celebrated its first centenary, and many were the toasts drunk, including one to the memory of Izaak Walton, and another to the ladies, "the Fair-that when angling for hearts may their hooks ever be baited with modesty and good nature." Gentlemen—a bumper!

Father Stickleback Fish Protects Eggs in Nest

Man does not know at just what stage in the evolution of life parentanimals begin to develop a desire to help their children through the tender and dangerous stage of their lives. We have, however, observed a few instances where the protective instinct is found in animal life as low as the fishes.

One of the most interesting and familiar illustrations is that of the sticklebacks, writes Frances E. Potts in Nature magazine. The males of this group build nests of waterweeds, binding them together with mucous webs or threads secreted from the kidneys. When satisfied with the nest, the male looks around for a mate to occupy it. If he does not succeed in attracting a mate, he resorts to force and drives a female—or several of them—into the nest until he has a satisfactory number of eggs.

After the female deposits the eggs in the nest her responsibility for her children is over. In fact, she would enjoy eating the little fish and probably would do so except for their vigilant father. Never during the period of incubation does he forsake his vigil, often fighting off enemies, and even the female, with the use of the stickles on his back. Not only does he guard his precious treasure, but, with the use of his tail and fins, he circulates water through the nest to provide plenty of oxygen and maintain purity. In case the current spills an egg, or a young fish strays out, he rescues it and returns it to the nest.

There is a marine catfish, the gafftopsail, inhabiting the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, the male of which assumes a remarkable family responsibility. Unbelievable as it may seem, he protects the eggs during incubation by holding them in his mouth. The incubation period may be a full month, and the eggs nearly an inch in diameter; the male may carry at times as many as 50 in this manner, although 25 might be nearer the average. Some scientists maintain that these fish may reach a length of four inches before being thrown out from under the parental

Hare Runs Circles, Then Gives Hounds the Slip

The story of a European hare which played "rings around the rosy" with pursuing beagles is told by William H. Bennett in a recen'. issue of the Canadian Field Natur-

"An interesting experience which happened one winter in the Caledon Hills of Ontario was the loss of a hare in a cedar swamp," says Ben-"After about an hour's run over hilly country, the hare had entered the swamp and immediately had proceeded to make a large oval of about a mile in circumfer-

"The hounds carried the line about six times around and finally came to a loss. Tracks in the snow told the story. What had happened was quite simple. The hare had completed the oval three times and lap when, with a bound, it had left the oval and waved farewell for parts unknown. The hounds had continued to run the oval until all scent had been lost. "Time and again when a hare had been run for three hours or so and was beginning to tire, another hare would come in from the side and follow it. Invariably, after a short time, it would become aware of its plight and leave the trail of its weary neighbor. What would the hounds do? They almost always followed the newcomer, and the tired hare escaped.

"Some days we would travel 15 or 20 miles in nearly a straight line, because a hare running in a big circle would pass on its trail to another hare at the extreme of its territory; and the same thing would happen repeatedly, one hare after another," says Bennett.

'Swiss Navy' a Kitchenette

Wearied of answering questions about a barrel-like structure they are building in one of the American Airline hangars at LaGuardia field, New York, several airplane mechanics posted a sign over it reading:

"Mock-up for submarine of Swiss Navy.

The authors of the sign enjoyed the joke thoroughly although they found that they had more questions to answer than before because of the term "mock-up," which is aviation slang for a form or pattern. What the men are doing is building an experimental model of a new Douglas transport in which it is hoped meals can be cooked. At present meals served in the air are prepared on the ground.

"We're just trying to make all our mistakes beforehand," N. K. Wilson, supervisor of passenger services for the airline company, explained, when asked about the

The green grass of the park reminded him of the green pastures of his old home back in Wisconsin. If he had only listened to his widowed mother-stayed on the small though profitable farm-beat down the impossible dreams of becoming a millionaire and remembered the sweetness of Dorothy's laughing, teasing lips—the movies three nights a week, with a cool drink and a plate of home-made ice-cream at George's afterwards - hay-wagon parties, barn dances.

What an ass he'd been-passing up everything that made for happiness-Dorothy's eyes, clear and shining; cheeks like June roses; lips sweet and eager for his shy kisseshis mother's loving adoration-his sister's good-natured teasing-the welcoming bark of old Rover. Why, the farm was his heritage! And he'd sold it for a mess of pottage.

A smartly attired middle-aged lady, leading a blue-blooded Peke, hurried by as if fearing her pet would be contaminated by the kinghts of the bench. Johnny half turned his head to gaze at the welldressed stranger seating himself nearby. When his gaze returned to the sidewalk the lady and her dog had disappeared.

Johnny was far more hungry than he had ever been in his life. He was about to forget his pride, and ask the well dressed stranger for a coin, when his roving eyes opened wide, stared for a moment, then gleamed brightly. Springing to his feet he snatched up hurriedly the black leather purse lying on the pavement.

For several minutes after resuming his seat, Johnny turned the purse over and over in his trembling hands. It was an expensive affair.

He had noticed the lady with the dog, carrying it not so long ago. He looked fearfully in the direction the lady had gone-she might have discovered her loss and re-

A powder puff first met his gaze. Desperate fingers pushed it aside.

His heart seemed to stop as he made the discovery that the purse was devoid of money. Not even a dime nor a penny rewarded his search. For a moment Johnny was tempted to toss the purse in a convenient refuse can. If he had known more about the value of purses he would have hied himself to a pawn shop. But being a not too worldly wise youth from the country, he remained dejectedly on the bench. Hope dies hard within the human

After his eyes had reverted to the sign across the street, for the fivehundredth time that morning, Johnny opened the purse again. His breath came heavily. His fingers discovered a small compartment he had previously failed to see. His eyes were the size of saucers a moment later. He was holding in the palm of his hand three handsome rings—the brilliance of their settings dazzled him. He didn't know much about the value of diamonds. but he knew the three rings must be worth much money.

A pawn broker's sign caught his eyes. He rose hastily. A clock in the distance was striking twelve. It was time that he filled the aching void in his midsection with roast chicken.

A lump rose in his throat. The hand on his shoulder seemed to be choking him. He turned his head, to meet stern steel gray eyes. The stranger he had noticed before was at his side.

Desperately Johnny forced his eyes to leave the sign on the other side of the street. He tightened up his belt another notch.

"Let's see those rings." It took three minutes for Johnny's hand to sway about, find a pocket, and finally emerge with the rings. The stranger appraised them with experienced eyes. "What are you going to do with them?" Johnny was so hungry he felt as if he would faint unless he ate soon. "Pawn them, and then eat," he confessed.

Even Bathing Beaches Can

Be Safe From Lightning Engineers will complete a 20-year study of lightning this year. What have they found? They are still uncertain as to what causes the storms but they are able to make any structure safe from lightning

Here is how Dr. K. B. McEachron of the lightning research department of the General Electric company sums up the results:

"We are able today to make any structure safe from lightning damage. Open land, like bathing beaches, also may be made safe with lightning masts, and ammunition dumps, which unfortunately are becoming more important, may be made proof against the bolts."

The theory of lightning now accepted is that moisture in a column of warm, rising air condenses when it reaches the cool upper strata and forms heavy drops. These fall back through the rising column and become so unwieldy that they are shattered into droplets again and the process begins once more.

As the drops are shattered, electricity is generated and stored in clouds-the positive electricity at the top and the negative in the lower part. When sufficient tension is attained a lightning flash results.

Fireballs, however, which many persons insist they have seen, may not even exist, according to the scientists. The human eye is too uncertain to believe, they say. They add that for centuries everybody "saw" lightning flash down from the sky, but now modern instruments have proved that it strikes up with the greater force.

For every unit of electricity in a thunder cloud, the scientists say, there is a mate of the opposite sign in the earth beneath it. charges follow the cloud like a shadow and when the tension becomes great enough, the flashes shoot either up or down.

It is because of this affinity that persons in open spaces are electrocuted so often. The electricity climbs through the person's body until he is saturated with earth current-then he is the jumping off place for the discharge.

Although most persons think of lightning in terms of destruction, Dr. McEachron says that the 20year study shows it does one good thing for mankind.

"Lightning," he says, "is not a complete waste of natural energy. Thunderstorms are in reality great outdoor nitrogen-fixing plants. They fertilize the soil with 100,000,000 tons of nitric acid a year, thus adding to the fertility of the earth."

In Days of Circuit-Riders

Up to a few years ago in certain mountainous sections of this country, many small communities were in such remote places that the circuit-riding minister sometimes was unable to visit them for months, even years. Hence when he did arrive, says Collier's Weekly, it was not uncommon to hold the funeral service for a wife long dead, perform the marriage ceremony for the widower and his second wife, and baptize their baby.

To Mark Discovery Of Soil Chemistry

100th Anniversary of First Advance in Farming.

CHICAGO.-A milestone in agricultural history will be observed this year with the 100th anniversary of the discovery of modern soil chemistry and the principles of plant feeding by Justus von Liebig, according a bulletin issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee.

"Toiling with crude implements in his makeshift laboratory at Giessen, Germany, in 1840," says the bulletin, "Liebig pioneered the way for an epochal advancement in farming methods. His experiments proved that plants get carbon, hydrogen and oxygen from the air, while they must depend on the soil for nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash and other elements.

"He learned that while the supply of elements from the air is inexhaustible, the plant food resources of the soil are limited and must be replenished if fertility is to be maintained. He analyzed the ashes of various crops and discovered what elements they remove from the soil in their growth. He prepared artificial manures—the forerunners of modern, commercial fertilizerscontaining essential mineral substances, and carried out extensive experiments on a 10-acre plot near his laboratory.

"Before Liebig's discovery, the science of agronomy was still in the dark ages. On the basis of the facts he established, the modern fertilizer industry came into existence. In this country the production of mixed fertilizer first began in 1850. Ten years later, production amounted to about 20,000 tons. Today farmers in the United States use nearly 8,000,000 tons of fertilizer annually.

"Knowledge of the soil and its needs has grown tremendously since Liebig's time. Today modern facilities make it possible for agronomists at state agricultural colleges, or county agents, to make tests of a farmer's soil which reveal its requirements of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. On the basis of such information he can select the fertilizer analysis best suited to his land and the particular crops he intends to grow.'

Reports 18-Hour Revival of Life

British Medical Body Is Told Of Rare Case.

READING, ENGLAND.—In a remarkable case reported to the British Medical association by Dr. Gordon L. Bohn, a dead man's body really was revived and lived again, but his brain was dead forever.

During a surgical operation the heart of a 72-year-old patient gave out and he apparently died. Using the opening already made into the body, the surgeon tried the procedure usual under these circumstances, reached into the chest, and rhythmically squeezed the motionless heart. A few irregular beats followed, but did not continue and hope was abandoned.

Merely as an experiment, an assistant continued squeezing the heart rhythmically for 29 more minutes. Meanwhile another assistant used the anesthetic apparatus to fill the "dead" man's lungs rhythmically with fresh oxygen. The combination evidently provided the heart itself with oxygen.

After 29 minutes, heart beats began again naturally. Some hours later, natural breathing also began. The "dead" man's body obviously had revived, but tests showed that the 29 minutes without fresh, oxygenated blood had killed forever all the higher centers of the brain. Consciousness never was restored. Only the lowest and most primitive reflexes, such as breathing and the heart beat, recovered. Eighteen hours after the operation, the re-vived body "died" a second time.

THE WORKS AND THE WORD OF GOD

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer.—Psalm 19:14.

Consistently beautiful and beautifully consistent is the revelation of God, whether it be in the glory of His works, in the perfection of His Word, or in His gracious dealings with man. The spiritually minded man sees God in all of His works, whereas the blind materialist sees only matter and natural laws which he may use or abuse. He makes of God's creation things for his own comfort or for the destruction of his fellow men, not recognizing "the Creator, who is blessed forever." This is a serious matter, for in so doing the unbeliever has "changed the truth of God into a lie" (read Rom. 1:20-25).

The psalmist here presents God as He is revealed in nature, in His Word, and in the heart of man.

I. God's Glory Revealed in Nature

"The heavens declare the glory of God." The sun in all its glory and power and the starry stillness of the night all "utter forth a glorious voice," as Joseph Addison expresses

'Forever singing, as they shine, 'The hand that made us is divine.'

Nature speaks eloquently of God without saying a single word. The eye, the mind, and the heart of men may see in and know from nature alone the "eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse" (Rom. 1:20). "No man living beneath the copes of heaven dwells beyond the bounds of God's court preachers."

Those who do not hear or heed these voices, whether their ears "are stopped with the clay of earthly tastes and occupations, or stuffed with scientific wadding of the most modern kind" (Maclaren), are described by Paul as having their foolish heart darkened: "Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools" (Rom. 1:21, 22).

Nature gives only a limited revelation of God, showing His existence, power and wisdom; but to really know Him we must see

II. God's Perfection Revealed in

His Word (vv. 7-11). Nowhere in the book of nature is it written that God is a Redeemer, a cleanser from sin, a restorer of the soul. That truth is found only in His Word-the Bible. What folly then for sinful men who need redemption to see God only in nature, but never look into His Word or go to church that they may hear His truth proclaimed. The final and perfect revelation of God is in His Son, Jesus Christ, the Redeemer. The psalmist with the eye of faith saw the perfection of God revealed in His law. We are privileged to know the Son of God who came not "to destroy the law . . . but to ful-

Little wonder that the psalmist says that the words of God are sweeter than honey, more precious than gold, and worthy to be heeded and kept. The great reward of thus knowing God's Word is that we may learn of

III. God's Grace Revealed in the Heart of Man (vv. 12-14).

Man is a sinner; sometimes he sins unwittingly and ignorantly; sometimes deliberately and in presumption; and sometimes both. What shall he do with his sin? The psalmist says to bring it to God in repentance and prayer for cleans-We may add to his invitation the admonition to come for cleansing in the blood of Christ.

"Come to this fountain, so rich and sweet; Cast thy poor soul at the Saviour's feet; Plunge in today, and be made complete; Glory to His name!"

God's grace not only cleanses—it keeps us. He is able and willing to make not only the words of our mouth, but the very meditation of our hearts acceptable in His sight. That means holy living. There is nothing more needed in our day than a revival of Christian living in the daily responsibilities of life. Personal purity of heart and motive, recognition of God's Word in thought and life-these things will make the believer "upright" (v. 13) and reflect honor and glory on the Lord who is our "strength" (R. V. "rock") "and redeemer" (v. 14).

Principle Holds Good

Except a man become like a little child, we are told, he cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven. This principle holds good in other kingdoms as well. Unless we become as humble as a child and are willing to be taught we cannot enter into the kingdom of music, or art, or knowledge, or scientific agriculture.

Artificial Earthquakes Now Used in Search for Oil

The making of artificial earthquakes as a means of locating possible oil deposits has been employed in some of the most inaccessible parts of the mandated territory of New Guinea. By exploding dynamite, a clue to the kind of rock in a given area is afforded by the duration and magnitude of the tremors at various distances. These tremors are measured by the seismome-

Exploration by geophysics has been employed to trace with gravimetric instruments the formations below the surface. The magnetometer is used to detect and measure the magnetic attraction of underground bodies.

Australia's lack of a domestic oil supply has caused the dominion to interest itself particularly in these investigations. Shell and the Anglo-Iranian Oil company have spent large amounts on prospecting. Some 140 whites and 1,400 Papuan natives are regularly employed on the investigation. The Australasian Petroleum company, a group backed by the Vacuum Oil company, the 'Anglo-Iranian Oil company have spent large sums on prospecting. The Shell company spent £430,000 before abandoning the search last

The Australasian concern spent £150,000 on an aerial survey, in which 28,000 square miles of country were photographed. It took several geologists and six draftsmen more than a year to prepare maps from the aerial photographs. On its drilling rig for boring, it has spent £200,000. The equipment has to be taken some 80 miles inland. About 2,000 tons of drilling and other equipment have been landed at Port Moresby, the capital of Papua, and a third of it is now 25 miles up the Vailala river. As no crane at Port Moresby could lift more than five tons, a heavy crane had to be imported from Sydney, and river transport had to be provided at an expense of £30,000. The gear had to be taken 25 miles up the river. Then a road had to be built through the jungle, over which it will be hauled by tractor and trailer. The drilling rig, 136 feet high, will be capable of boring to a depth of 10,000 feet, and boring is expected to begin this year.

Brain in Youth Needs Less Care Than Heart

It is probably next to impossible for a boy or girl to overwork the brain during school years. Such is one of the conclusions of a report on child development prepared for the National Education association by Dr. Charles D. Flory, professor of education at Lawrence college in Wisconsin.

When a child enters school, Dr. Flory asserts, the brain is about 93 per cent its maximum size. It can hardly be looked upon as an immature organ in the process of growth, says the Rocky Mountain Herald. At the age of 12 years, however, the heart is only half the mature size and will still be growing in the twentieth year. Teachers, Dr. Flory stresses, should keep these differential growth rates in mind. The growing heart needs careful protection, he declares, "from overzealous coaches who use athletics to win games for the school rather than to develop pupils. The lungs, unlike the heart, are in little danger of overexertion, since their development seems to keep pace with the strains they receive.

Girls, Dr. Flory says, are rela-tively more mature than boys at No. 1 New Potatoes every age from birth to maturity and can be subjected to quite different schedules. This is especially true, he says, in respect to skeletal development, where "the sex difference is about one year at school entrance, about two years at entrance to the junior high school and at least one year to 18 months during the high school period.

Hazards at Home

How awful, people say, to live in a city that may be bombed at any minute. Yet a study of hazard ratios recently made by a leading insurance company shows that a person's chances of being killed when dodging across a busy American street are almost exactly the same as those of a person being killed in a European city under air bombard-

Moreover, the automobile driver who has been drinking places himself and his passengers under about the same hazard of death as if they were all passengers on a contraband-carrying ship in the submarine zone. Learning to fly a plane seems risky, but the housewife who drycleans at home is subject to almost double the hazard that the student flyer faces.

So, before you begin pitying the folks abroad, look around you and see death flash by and be a bit more

Ivory Gull

The plumage of an adult ivory gull is of a striking snowy whiteness, without spot or mark of color. Its legs and feet are black and its beak is chiefly dark with a bright orange tip. Ivory gulls frequent the most northerly parts of the world, nesting on Melville island, northern Greenland, and Spitzbergen. A beautiful specimen is now on exhibition at the Quebec Zoological garden. It is said to be the only one of its kind in captivity in North America.

GASOLINE TAX PAYMENTS REACH NEW HIGH.

Maryland motorists used 28,926,140 gallons of gasoline during the month of June of this year and paid gasoline taxes in the record amount of $1,446,307, according to information received today from the Comptroller's Office by the Maryland Petroleum In dustries Committee. This is the largest amount of gasoline tax paid the motorists during any single month since the inception of the gas-oline tax in 1922. It exceeded by $79,000 the month of August 1939, the previous high month.

Of the total of $1,446,307, the State of Maryland received $1,157,045.60 from its tax of 4 cents per gallon and the Federal Government received $289,261.40 from the Federal gasoline tax of 1 cent per gallon.

After the payment of refunds and After the payment of refunds and the deductions made for debt service, a total of $1,042,759.95 in gasoline tax was distributed by the State Comptroller. The State Roads Commission received $461,915.59. Baltimore City received for its streets a total of $299,258.20 and the twenty-three counties of Maryland were given. three counties of Maryland were given $281,586.16.

Baltimore City receives each month over 25 percent of the entire state gasoline tax paid by Maryland mo-

License for Contraption

Baffles Highway Bureau CHARLESTON, W. VA.—The state road commission will lose no more sleep over the classification of Robert Duke's "whatchamacallit"—the contraption he drives daily between Bakerston and Shepherdstown. Here's the reason (or reasons) the commission was baffled: The frame took shape out of old iron girders salvaged from the Harper's Ferry bridge after it crashed in a flood in 1936. The springs were once part of a radio wind charger, and a cream separator gave up the drive chain tightener. The motor was discarded from a motorcycle, and the exhaust pipe was an erstwhile integral part of a vacuum cleaner.

So the commission pondered, the commission puzzled, and finally the commission said a motorcycle license would suffice.
