LIBERTYTOWN MAN COMMITS SUICIDE.

Harvey Covell, 52-year-old farmer, near Libertytown, committed suicide, early last Saturday by shooting him-self through the mouth and head, with a revolver. Death was instantaneous. No cause has been assigned for his act, which occurred on the steps of a summer kitchen in the rear of his home. He was the father of six children and is reported to have been ill for several years.

SUIT FILED AGAINST P. R. R. FOR DAMAGES.

A suit has been filed in Carroll County Court by Omar Daniel Stouf-fer, near Taneytown, against the P. R. R., for personal injuries received by him as the result of an accident near Taneytown station, last April when the plaintiff's automobile was hit by a locomotive and tender at the grade crossing and carried about 500 feet, causing him serious injuries. The claim is made that the injury was due to "negligence and care-lessness" on the part of employees of the Company. The auto was also demolished.

-11-W. P. CHRYSLER IS DEAD.

Walter P. Chrysler, wealthy auto-mobile manufacturer, died at his home on Long Island, Sunday night, aged 65 years.

He had been ill for over a year, the immediate cause of his death being a circulatory condition and cerebral hemorrhage.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters, his wife having preceeded him in death about a year ago.

He had risen from being machinist apprentice with a railroad, to a posi-tion among the automobile manufacturers, and was a man of great wealth in the automobile business. -11-

-11---DEERFIELD PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the Deerfield U. B. Church at Lantz, Md, will be held on Saturday, August 31, when the "Rosenberger Sisters" and the Quincy Orphanage and Home Band will entertain with music and songs.

The committee plans to entertain a large group of people this year in thegrove near the church or on the grounds where the annual program of out-door religious services are held each summer and since these services attract people from a wide area it is believed to contribute the success of the annual picnic as many people annually attend who live a great distance from the immediate community Plenty of refreshments and light lunch in the way of sandwiches, coffee, etc., will be on hand. Additional parking grounds were added last year providing for more comfortable accommodations. It is an all-day picnic sponsored by the Church and Bible School of the Deerfield United Brethren Church, The "Rosenberger Sisters" will entertain in the afternoon while the Quincy Orphanage and Home Band will bring a concert in the evening. In case of rain, the picnic will be held on the nearest following clear . Saturday.

GRANGERS' PICNIC NEXT WEEK AT WMS. GROVE.

More than 200,000 persons are expected to attend the 68th. annual consecutive Grangers picnic, which will start next Monday, August 26, and run through Labor Day, at the Williams Grove Park and Speedway. From its humble beginning 68 years ago, this month, when a small group of Grangers gathered at Wil-liams Grove to hold a picnic, this annual event has grown until it is now recognized as the largest picnic in the United States.

According to Roy E. Richwine, president of the Grangers' Picnic Association, all records in exhibits, con-cessions and feature attractions will be broken this year. AUTOMOBILE STOLEN DURING FAIR WEEK.

Suspects are held for Trial at November Court.

A case of stealing an automobile parked along the state road adjoining the recent Carroll County Fair, will come before the November term of court. We have only a somewhat fragmentary account of the details and do not vouch for the correctness of the story. Apparently, three young men, Fred Baumgardner, Charles Delphy and James Emory, of Frederick county, were involved. The last two named are said to have left a CCC Camp, at Buffalo, N. Y., to which they planned to return by the use of an auto owned by Clarence Baechtel. It is stated that in Middletown, Frederick county, they ordered 12 gallons of gasoline from a supply station, and drove off without paying for it, and were reported to a state policeman, and the boys and auto were picked up about 15 minutes later. They were taken before Justice Wood, who had them committed to the Carroll County Jail in default of paying $500. bail for their appearance.

THE FARM DOLLAR.

Reading a report that farm equipment production and sales continued their downward trend in 1939, those who "view with alarm" will be inclined to paint a lugubrious picture of an ailing agriculture. But, as Middle West agriculturists found that even the dust storms of '33 and '34 had a "silver lining," the situation has a distinctly brighter side. (The survey is careful to point out that this fall-ing off does not extend to tractors, wagons, trucks and engines for farm equipment. Instead of implying that ruralists are hard-pressed financially, does not this demand in certain departments indicate that they, in contrast to the prodigality of 1929, are laying out their money wisely? At rural auctions, according to reports, there is a brisk demand for used but servicable farm machinery. Nor does resourcefulness end there.

Driving through the countryside, observant motorists notice a ten-dency to obtain "more mileage" from farm machiney. Cultivators, disc-plows, and harrows no longer are abandoned in open fields to gather rust, but are thriftily sheltered under

The steady falling off in sales of farm machinery need not imply scanty harvests as the result of drought and crop curtailment. In-stead, it seems to indicate that the

-11-"DALLYING" IN DELAYED ROAD BUILDING.

Frederick countians who are interested in the new highway between Frederick and Hagerstown, are saying that the State Roads Commission is "dallying with" the project for several years.

The same might be said of the rebuilding of the Bruceville bridge and the relocation of the road, to Keymar, that has been postponed for a good many years.

We have heard nothing about this project for quite a while, and we are wondering whether it is a case of "dallying" as much as it is lack of funds. At any rate, it seems to be time for another official citation, concerning what the matter may be. -11-

Theorists in this country have from time to time taken some pretty vigorous whacks at advertising, intimating that it places an unfair burden on the consumer. and various high officials in Washington have declared publicly that they believe government should regulate advertising; that too much money is spent for advertising by manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers; and that the cost of such advertising raises the price of goods or services.

It will be news to many readers, therefore, to learn that a brand new advertiser has now appeared in the paper match-cover field. The advertiser is a branch of the Federal government itself!

FAMILY REUNIONS.

One of the finest of present day customs is the holding of a Family Reunion once each year. Looking backward over a good many years, we believe The Rec-ord was one of the very first county papers to boost such gatherings, and to urge their frequency.

Since that time we have not changed our opinions on the subject, except to strengthen them; until now, hardly enough mid-summer Sundays can be found in the summer time to find desir-able places in which to hold them.

And now, we are suggesting that early summer-for instance, June-has its advantages; and there is really no good reason why Sunday should be the only day of the week on which to hold them

The main thing, is to hold them. They are clannish, in a way, but constructively so, and unquestionably help "the family" as a group of generations; are immenselv valuable; not only for the "picnickers" and the customary luncheons but for the "brotherhood of man" spirit.

And this, too, must be remembered; that families "die out" as a natural consequence of life, and that it is of the utmost importance that our younger generations should be encouraged to participate, and "carry on." P. B. E.

NO "NEIGHBORS" IN NEW YORK CITY.

One of the regular Radio broadcasters in New York City, in his contribution one day last week, made this startling statement-"There are no neighbors in New York City." He qualified this in various ways, but evidently as we in the rural sections consider our neighbors, he meant what he said.

For instance, he admitted that most N. Y. folks had friends, but in many cases the one, or family, did not know where the other lived, but confined their intercourse mainly to meeting at various programs, or places, or in a business way; and that cultivating the "neighbor" habit was often both too much trouble, and not desirable.

To some extent he indicated that what we sometimes call "caste," or "our set" played its part among established big city dwellers.

No doubt many leave the crowded and even fashionable sections and maintain real homes, and there do meet and encourage neighborliness, as we in the inter-urban sections do.

story the Editor heard a good many years ago, of a young man born and raised to approaching young manhood on his father's farm, told his father that he had decided to try his luck in the city, to which his father agreed, saying that a younger son who liked the farm was staying home and that they could get along.

The young man went to the larger city, and succeeded financially and otherwise, and at various times invited his father to come and see him. Finally, the latter made the visit in out his plans; but no doubt he meant that an exercise of Democracy, and government by the peeople, necessarily meant legislation by a Congress chosen by the people.

The preponderance of sentiment as expressed by Republican and Independent newspapers that come into our office appears to be either very favorable to the Willkie points of view.or at least commenting on them so far as the "third term" or many of the new "deals" are concerned. He said in part-

"I believe the forces of free enterprise must be regulated. I am opposed to business monopolies. I believe in collective bargaining by labor's own free choice without any interference and in full protection of these obvious rights.

I believe in the maintenance of minimum standards for hours and purchase at least one share of stock wages. I believe that the American farmer should be protected along with the manufacturer, and in collective bargaining and selling. But American liberalism does not consist merely in reforming things. It consists also in making things.

The little business men are victims subsist on what is virtually a dole, under centralized direction from Washington."

GERMANY KNOWS THE U.S. A.

It may not be generally known that Germany is maintaining an extensive publishing plant in New York City, that issues from what it calls the "German Library of Information" a 16-page publication called "Facts in Review.'

This plant, from time to time, issues books in promotion of German advised to see or communicate with interests, evidently for influencing the the secretary-treasurer of the progrowth of public sentiment in the duction credit association in his tercountry that it may see the best side of the German cause.

Of course, this means that Germany not only maintains a publicity department, but that it also knows about as much on such questions as "preparedness" for defense, as our own officials do. And, there is nothing to be done about this; but just the same, the American public should know about such activities.

Sometimes, we call this "espionage" which is only a more elegant word for "Spying"-and, war, is And this recalls to our memory a full and running over, with that. -11-

GOVERNMENT CREDIT TO FARMERS.

Baltimore, Md., August 19-Continuing their work of extending full short-term agricultural credit to farmers who have need for such services, the production credit associations in the Second Farm Credit District have rounded out their services further by adding the new feature of qualifying themselves to handle loans on stored wheat and cotton under the program of the Commodity Credit Corporation, it was announced today by M. O. Wilson, President of the Production Credit Corporation of Baltimore.

"Under this newly adopted plan," Mr. Wilson said, "the associations are qualified to lend to wheat farmers who own Class A or B stock, or who in the association. Interest is charged at the rate of 3 percent and there are no fees or other charges connected therewith. Under this arrangement, comparatively little wheat has been offered to the associations as yet but associations have shown their adaptability to meet the requirements because many of them are forced to of farmers for short-term credit needs and have qualified themselves to extend loans on wheat stored under the Commodity Credit plan."

The plan affecting cotton is not yet in effect in this section, Mr. Wilson stated. However, it is contemplated that associations in the district who operate where cotton is produced would qualify and prepare to operate under this plan. "Full details of this part of the program cannot be announced at this time, but those farmers who have cotton and who anticipate storing it would be well ritory," Mr. Wilson said. ------RAILWAYS NOW HAVE 1,050,254

EMPLOYEES.

Employees of Class I railroads of the United States, as of the middle of July, 1940, totaled 1,050,254, an increase of 4.77 per cent compared with the corresponding month of 1939 and 1.47 per cent over June, 1940, according to a report just issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

An increase over July, last year, is shown in the number of employees for every reporting group. The percentages of increase are: executives, officials, and staff assistants, 1.03; professional, clerical, and general, 1.39; maintenance of way and structures, 3.69; maintenance of equipment and stores, 9.03; transportation (other than train, engine and yard), 2.22; transportation (yardmasters, switchtenders, and hostlers) erally speaking, foreign-born persons 2.96, and transportation (train and engine service), 5.17 .-- R. Praise Encourages Good Behavior in a Child

All the bad little Tommys and naughty little Susies probably would do a much better job of going around with halos around their heads if given praise for their good behavior rather than continual blame for their misdeeds. Not that parents should try to smooth over a wrong doing, says Miss Alva Anne Owen, extension specialist in child development and parent education, University of Illinois college of agriculture. That would mean insulting a child's intelligence, for usually he knows when he has misbehaved and realizes that his parent knows it also. However, approval of a child as an individual even when he needs a scolding for the minor crime he has committed, will work wonders. In other words, it is as much as saying to the child, "What you have done is wrong, but you are all right (with emphasis on the you). We ought to know, because we have known you since you were a baby.'

Praise, which gives any adult confidence, does the same thing for teasing Tommy and sassing Susie who, after all, usually are looking for some outward means of public approval or trying to learn how to get along with people. While helping out with praise on one hand, parents might think about saving their children from unnecessary humiliation, too, said the authority. Slapping a child in public usually stirs up resentment against the adult rather than creating remorse for the deed. Humiliation may be forestalled by as simple a gesture as giving a child colored. glasses to wear if he has been crying over some childish difficulty and dreads the taunting "cry baby" jeers of his playmates. Substantial approval, the security of knowing that he is respected because he is a unique individual rather than for what he does and credit for trying hard although the accomplishment is meager all bolster up any inferior feeling a child may have. It was this feeling which perhaps made him naughty in the first place.

Breed New Lima Beans Intended for Freezing

With the growth of the frozen-food industry, consumers are demanding from the packers a baby lima bean of better quality than Henderson Bush, the variety now most generally grown. Scientists of the United States department of agriculture and of the agricultural experiment stations of Maryland and Illinois have produced varieties that show promise as good material for freezing.

The varieties are the Baby Fordhook, a cross between Henderson and Fordhook developed by the United States department of agriculture; Baby Potato, and Early Baby Potato, developed by the Illinois experiment station from a chance cross found in a field of Henderson; and Maryland Thick Seeded, developed by the Maryland experiment station from a single plant also found in a field of Henderson Bush All these varieties have small plants, small pods, and small beans that are thicker than those of Henderson. When frozen and subsequently cooked, these beans were tested by experienced judges and preferred to Henderson because of their generally more attractive shape, brighter green color, tenderness, and mild flavor. Early Baby Potato and Maryland Thick Seeded have been as early as Henderson. Baby Fordhook and Baby Potato are about a week later in reaching edible maturity. Under most conditions they have also been as productive as Henderson Bush and in some places have been more productive.

The registration of aliens is compulsory. A specific act of Congress -the Alien Registration Act of 1940 -requires all aliens to register during the official registration period, August 27 to December 26, 1940. All aliens 14 years of age or over must be fingerprinted as a part of registration. A fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for 6 months is prescribed by this law for failure to register, for refusal to be fingerprinted, or for making registration statements known to be false.

Registration is free. You should not pay anyone to register for you. It is not necessary to pay any person or group to assist you in registering.

It Is Stibnite Now;

Once It Was Alcohol

Several solid chunks of what was formerly known as alcohol are now on exhibition in the department of geology of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. With the display of this material it was pointed out by L. Bryant Mather Jr., assistant curator of mineralogy, that the name "alcohol" was once properly used only for a species of mineral

"When the word came to Europe in the Seventeenth century, from the Arabic, 'alcohol' was a mineral name," said Mr. Mather. "However, since this name has been usurped by the familiar liquid, the mineral 'alcohol' is now designated as 'stibnite.

"This mineral, long known, has been used as a cosmetic since ancient times. Among the Greeks it was known by a name derived from the words meaning 'wide' and 'eye,' since the powdered mineral was used to increase the apparent size of the eye. Among the Arabs it was known as kohl, from kahala, meaning to color or to stain. In the theatrical profession the black powder used for blackening the eyelids is still called kohl, perhaps the only vestige in contemporary language of the original Arabic usage."

Dangers in Explosive Manufacture The manufacture of explosives is so fraught with danger that the workmen are not even allowed to wear metal buttons for fear of a chance spark, asserts Collier's. Yet this industry, owing to its extreme safety precautions, has an accident frequency rate 38 per cent below the average for all industries.

Judge Frank C. Collier, Pasadena, Calif., has been called on to answer one that Solomon had the good luck to escape. He has been asked to rule whether, if a wife's dog bites someone, her husband can be held liable for damages. The damage suit is for $5,000.

Insect 'Manna'

Scale insects exude a sweet juice which, dropping to the ground, crystallizes into granules that are gathered by certain Arab tribes and used as food. Some say this was the "manna" on which the Children of Israel fed when they were cross-

Living Statues Save King's Pride Among the vaudeville acts of our vanished yesteryears, the "living acts posed by shapely statuary'' men and women in white tights, were more or less certain to come around each year. But there was one historic occasion when such "living statues" had to save a king's pride

The king was Stanislaus I of Poland. He was a slavish imitator of Louis XIV of France, and since the French king had erected the magnificent palace of Versailles, with its famous gardens and fountains, Stanislaus couldn't rest until he had a Versailles of his own, says the Milwaukee Journal. By means of heavy taxation the Polish king wrung enough money out of his people to build a palace, to import trees and shrubs from all over the world, to have a great canal dug, and terraces and paths laid out. Proudly the Polish king sent out many invitations to a grand fete at his imitation Versailles. Then he remembered that he hadn't any statues, whereas the French monarch had scores of them. It was too late to get real statues. But the resourceful Stanislaus hired many male and female models, dressed them in classical robes and made them pose for hours in the niches among his newly planted shrubberies. Some of these "living statues" almost died of fatigue before the last guest left the gardens.

We are glad for bright sunshine, clearer atmosphere, and delightfully cool air, for we were tired of that sultry stickiness; the doors and windows required an extra effort to get them open, the chairs seemed to have a coat of mucilage to hold one's clothing-but the steaming showers kept vegetation green and thriving.

On Saturday evening we heard the Alka-Seltzer Barn Dance at the opening of the Wisconsin State Fair at Milwaukee, where thousands were in attendance and seemed to enjoy the program. Eddy Peabody is certain-ly a wizard with the banjo; and the voice of Henry Burr singing dear old songs is all one could desire. Quite a number of persons from this vicinity attended the Hahn family reunion at Mt. Tabor Park, Rocky Ridge, on Sunday. The Union Bridge Fire Co. and equipment rushed through this town about 9 o'clock on Monday evening, called to a fire near the Pa. R. Just visit the big plant on Middle River to see practical results of a long dream. Only sticking at it counts. The lengthening shadows and all this talk about schools, brings the time of school-days nearer, so the children must see the Doctor and have their tonsils removed, the Dentist and have their teeth attended to. Some are counting the hours with eager anticipation, and others trying to prolong vacation but our books, slate and pencils, new Sun bornet and aprons-(none of which are in use now) were laid together long before this when we were young and every night we closed our eyes we were one day nearer the grand opening. The studies were wonderful, especially history and geography only arithmetic was too hard to understand, and algebra was a real headache-but the world moved on. at Elwood.

ELWOOD, IND. - Coming back to this, the town in which he was born and grew to young manhood, and before a wildly enthusiastic audien re of many thousands, Wendell Willkie accepted the nomination for President on the Republican ticket. In that acceptance Mr. Willkie promised the kind of leadership that will keep America a nation of free men, a nation of prosperous people a nation offering opportunity for all. He said: "An acceptance speech is a candidate's keynote, a declaration of his broad principles. It cannot possibly review the issues in detail. I shall, however, cover each of them frankly during this campaign. Here I give you an outline of the political philosophy that is in my heart. We are here today to represent a sacred cause-the preservation of American democracy. "Obviously, I cannot lead this cause alone. I need the help of every American-Republican, Democrat or Independent-Jew, Catholic, or Protestant-people of every color, creed, and race. Party lines are down. Nothing could make that clearer than the nomination by the Republicans of a liberal Democrat who changed his party affiliation because he found democracy in the Republican party and not in the New Deal party.

Thunderous applause greeted Willkie's statement that party lines are down. When he said the times demanded the help of Americans from every walk, the cheers came wave upon wave, the vast crowd having Collecting Guns Is Iowa Woman's Hobby Already Has Enough to Arm Small Blitzkrieg.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA .- Mrs. Rose Baum has guns enough to outfit a small blitzkrieg.

She has four-barrel pistols, threebarrel pistols, double-barrel pistols and a revolving shotgun.

She has a gun which is wound with a key, another that grinds its own powder and a cane with a pistol inside. And in her collection of firearms can be found almost every type of pin firing gun ever made.

Mrs. Baum is a collector par excellence. Besides her guns, she has pick axes, a Chinese beheading knife, grandfather clocks, music boxes, chairs, lamps-but the firearms are the most interesting.

his collection of guns, he had no idea that the rare two-barrel pistol, which he carefully encased in glass, was the beginning of the present Baum collection which covers two of the walls of a large room.

For at that time Mrs. Baum did not share his enthusiasm for collecting. Once she got into the swing of the thing, however, she acquired dozens of rare pieces-and branched out into the field of antique furni-

No, she isn't particularly bothered by shoplifters. Not after the incident which occurred after a man had made off with a beautifully carved pistol. Mrs. Baum missed the piece. Remembering the circumstances of the man's visit, she asked him about the gun. He denied knowledge of the weapon. When she persisted in her questioning he asked, "What did you use the gun for?" Her reply, "Oh, that's the one I killed a man with once," led to his hasty departure-and to the return, a few days later, of the piece. Her collection of antique furniture is equally fascinating. Three grandfather clocks chime the hours and in addition keep check on incidentals such as the day of the month and the phase of the moon. A music box made in 1889 plays the Blue Danube from a steel disk. A group of hand-carved ebony chairs also attract attention.

She lives along with her antiques -this interesting woman who has made a 40-year hobby out of a onegun collection.

Uncle Sam Has 78.000 Houses

Uncle Sam now has on his hands about 78,000 homes, taken over from private owners who turned out to be poor risks, says the Christian Science Monitor. The article continues:

The great majority of these belong to the Home Owners Loan corporation, set up in 1933, as a stop-gap in a bad credit situation when foreclosures on private homes reached a peak of 1,000 a day.

The HOLC today owns 77,229 homes, worth an average of $6,000 each. It already has sold 80,824 other properties, taking a book loss of approximately $78,834,000. The Federal Housing administration, with a more conservative credit policy, meanwhile has had to foreclose on only 1,188 small home properties and three large housing projects out of approximately 465,-730 mortgages it has underwritten to date. The FHA has sold about half of its foreclosed homes, with an average loss on each of between $400 and $600.

Palate Poll Shows

Variety of Tastes

The National Restaurant association recently took a "palate poll" of celebrities' ideas of a perfect meal. All of which brings a slightly bitter response from oldsters who have watched celebrities eat since the first World's fair was a new idea. John C. Holmes, 75 years of age and the oldest member of the Chicago Waiters association, prefers to remember when men were men at the dining table and no woman minded weighing 150 pounds in her leg-o-mutton sleeves.

His verdict on dining out in this era of calories and vitamin alphabets is simple:

"People don't know how to eat any more!"

And to prove it, he began recall-ing nine-course dinners in the gay nineties. There's even a moral note.

"Of course, both men and women were stouter in those days," he said, "but they were also friendlier, healthier and more sociable. Folks today are thinner, but they're jittery and sicklier than their mothers and fathers were-in the nineties. And it's all because they don't eat enough."

An old-time diner-out, it seems, would start with a cocktail and an assortment of hors d'oeuvres. Having put away a sizable quota of caviar, smoked salmon, deviled eggs, sardines and what-have-you, he would sit down, tuck in his napkin and start distributing tabasco sauce over a dozen oysters. Green turtle soup, enriched with sherry, followed the blue points or the cotuits.

His throat muscles properly loos-ened up by this little workout, your, gay nineties diner disposed of a fish course, sole, shad in season, or per-haps, if he was a delicate soul, a little lobster mayonnaise. Sweetbreads or some other relatively light "entree" followed, with the main course next and sixth on the card.

"If turkey or chicken was served," Holmes pointed out, "it would be followed by still another; course, a game dish such as partridge, pheasant or duck. Then came the eighth course-salad and an assortment of cheeses."

The ninth course was dessert. And then came the coffee, with brandy for the men and possibly, liqueurs for the ladies.

"And what do you get today?" asked Holmes. "You get a fruit cocktail, soup, probably a fillet mignon, some salad and a parfait. All they want to do is eat whatever you give 'em and be on their way.'

Subversive Forces. WASHINGTON .- The Federal Bureau of Investigation is operating against subversive forces in the United States under near-wartime authority granted by President Roosevelt. The Chief Executive followed up his proclamation of a national emergency last fall with an order designating the FBI as the clearing house for information concerning espionage, sabotage, subversive activities, and violations of the neutrality laws.

G-men ordinarily are constrained in their investigations to actual violations of federal law, but the additional authority permits them to place under surveillance persons suspected of subversive activity.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau, has established a general intelligence division within the FBI to direct its far-flung activities to preserve the national defense against foreign agents.

Special Inquiries Made.

He pointed out that the FBI has conducted special investigations of persons reported as being active in any subversive activity or in movements detrimental to the internal security.

In that connection, he added, the FBI has established a general index, arranged alphabetically and geographically, so that in the event of any greater emergency" in the United States, federal agents will be able to locate immediately persons who may need to be the subject of further investigation.

Without the presidential authority, the FBI could not have extended its jurisdiction to maintain surveillance over persons suspected of subversive activities. Hoover made this clear in a departmental memorandum in 1924, after he had been asked by another bureau to investigate alleged subversive activities of suspected persons.

"In this connection," he wrote, "it is, of course, to be remembered that the activities of communists and other ultra-radicals have not up to the present time constituted a violation of the federal statutes, and, consequently, the department of justice, theoretically, has no right to investigate such activities, as there has been no violation of federal laws."

List Has 2,500 Names.

Although there have been charges that Hoover is establishing a national police, the file of subversive forces contains only about 2,500 names.

During a single year, G-men touched approximately 60,000 persons in their investigations. This group comprises only .00004 of one per cent of the population.

FBI investigations, during the same year, resulted in 5,162 convictions-or one conviction for every 12 persons investigated. Considering the fact that G-men must investigate groundless suspicions and malicious charges along with bona fide complaints, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson did not feel that "the bureau has been throwing its net very far from the mark."

Republican Candidate for President.

sensed that it typified that very thought. Here were a hundred thousand Americans from every part of the United States, representing every faith, every station of life, yet carried away by a single devotion. Mr. Willkie briefly sketched his boyhood in Elwood and told of his ancestors who, "like the ancestors of millions of Americans, lived in central Europe. They were humble people-not members of the ruling or wealthy classes. Their opportunities were restricted by discriminatory laws and class distinctions. One was exiled because of his religion; another was persecuted because he believed in the principles of the French revolution; and still another was jailed for insisting on'the right of free speech. As their descendant, I have fought from boyhood against all those restrictions, discriminations and tyrannies. And I am still fighting.'

Foreign Policy.

Mr. Willkie compared the peace of America with the conditions in war-torn Europe, and defined his foreign policy by saying:

"No man is so wise as to foresee what the future holds or to lay out a plan for it. No man can guarantee to maintain peace. Peace is not something that a hation can achieve by itself. It also depends on what some other country does. It is neither practical, nor desirable, to adopt a foreign program committing the United States to future action under unknown circumstances. "The best that we can do is to decide what principle shall guide us. "For me, that principle can be simply defined: "In the foreign policy of the United States, as in its domestic policy, I would do everything to defend American democracy and I would refrain from doing anything that would injure it.

'We must not permit our emotions-our sympathies or hatredsto move us from that fixed principle.'

Again the crowd let out a deafening cheer. It was an exciting moment. A nation was waiting anxiously to hear Mr. Willkie's views on foreign relations. The enthusiastic response of the crowd reflected a nation thrilled.

National Defense.

From foreign policy Willkie turned to national defense of which he said in part:

LAIR occupied a studio in an lodging-house where rooms could be obtained without board for sums varying from two to seven dollars weekly. Blair liked the place because it was solitary, and had stipulated that his room was not to be cleaned. There he established himself with $95 and the paraphernalia of his trade.

He calculated that the money would last him just long enough for the completion of his great stained glass window for the Church of the Annunciation. The agreement was for payment upon delivery, and Blair knew that his first commission would lead to many others. He had eight weeks in which to complete the work, and he had spent two sketchideas took form in his mind.

He could not fix the image of the angel. His ideas, shadowy at first, had gradually crystallized into a woman's face that he had never seen. Sometimes he would wander through the streets looking for her, but he never found her.

However, even without this he could produce a satisfactory piece of work. He knew that and worked ed a chair and began to wipe the hard. His unintentional frown when he met other roomers on the stairs soon taught them to leave him alone. He had the reputation of being a crank. That was what Mrs. James, the landlady, told Miss Delia Dexter.

"I'm sorry that I must give you the room next to his, my dear," she said to the girl, "but as you can't pay more than two that's the only one I can let you have at the price. There's only his and yours on the top floor, but I guess he won't annoy you, if you don't mind his frown."

But Delia did mind his frownterribly. She had not been long in New York, where she supported herself as a stenographer in a law office. She was homesick and unhappy, and she had no friends at all. Blair scowled dreadfully when he gard-looking as the weeks went by. In fact half the allotted time had gone and the masterpiece was hardly begun.

Gradually a thought came into Delia's head. She would help him despite himself. He need never know who it was that watched over him, but, lonely herself, she would help others as lonely. She formed a very daring plan.

She had come to know the routine old-fashioned district of New of Blair's daily life. Every evening York, at the very top of the at six o'clock he would lock his door and go out to the cheap restaurant where he ate his supper. The rest of his meals he cooked in his studio, but the supper hour was unvarying. As he became used to her presence he ceased to notice her at all. And one evening a long-hoped for event happened. Blair left his door unlocked.

That was Delia's opportunity. He would not return for an hour. Softly she crept in, armed with a broom and duster. She was going to tidy his room for him.

When she had entered she looked round her in amazement. She saw the bed, without a sign of linen, in one corner; in another a little gas stove and a table, with a couple of ing and pacing the floor, smoking chairs. And the floor was a perfect innumerable cigarettes while his rubbish-heap of broken glass and paints and varnishes. She did not know that all these fragments of glass were the unpieced portions of the great window.

> First she sorted out the cans and placed them in orderly array against the wall. Then she gathered the glass fragments together and put them in a heap upon the floor. Then, taking her duster, she mountcobwebs from the walls.

All the while she was listening intently for a step on the stairs; yet so busily did she work that she did not know how time was passing until the sound of Blair's tread two flights down startled her. She lost her balance, tried to regain it, and toppled down with a crash upon the pieces of glass.

Panic-stricken, she picked herself up and fled, leaving the broom and duster behind. She ran into her room and locked the door, and waited in an agony of suspense to hear Blair enter his room.

She heard the door close, heard a loud exclamation, heard the door fly open. And there came a hammering at her own. Delia waited, breathless, silent. He would not go away. He rapped louder. In terror she sprang to her feet and opened. to his was taken, and by a woman. Blair was standing outside, red with anger. In his hands he held the

"I—I wanted to help you," the girl stammered. "I thought—"

But how could she tell him what she had thought-that he was as lonesome as she, that he had no one to care for him. The tears came into her eyes, and finding it impossible to restrain them she put her handkerchief to her face and sobbed.

Already disheveled by her long work in the studio, she felt that her hair was loosening, and, putting her hand to her head to make it secure, only succeeded in letting the whole auburn mass tumble about her shoulders.

There was a long silence. Delia dared not look up, but she dared not go back into her room, for she felt that her crime was too deep not to need requital.

Suddenly she felt two hands on her shoulders. Mr. Blair had actually done that; he dared to swing her round so that the light from the hall window fell upon her face.

"You are wonderful!" he exclaimed. "Mr. Blair!" said Delia indignantly. "Wonderful! You are my angel!" "How dare you say that to me!" cried Delia, and then it was Blair's turn to be apologetic.

/ "You don't understand. I don't mean that sort of angel," he ex-plained. "The angel that I was trying to do in glass when you so happily destroyed my efforts. Now you must sit for me. I have still time to do my picture."

And when he had explained they felt themselves to be fast friends for ever

But long before the great window had been completed and brought Blair the first of his many triumphs, he had decided that Delia was to be that sort of angel after all. And Delia thought so, too.

Wild-Life Sculpture

Brings Farm Boy Fame A Wisconsin farm boy who has caught something of the elusive realism of the wildlife of his native woods is causing quite a sensation among art critics by two new sculptured bas-reliefs depicting American moose and bison, in the first floor corridor of the new Interior Department building. The young sculptor is Boris Gilbertson, who says that he "got some of my best training in front of the Fond du Lac, Wis., post office." His best critics, he said, were farmers, woodsmen and tradesmen who met for Saturday afternoon "sessions" in front of the post office.

Critics are bestowing high praise upon the bas-reliefs carved on Missouri marble. They are 13 by 5 feet each in size and represent more than 18 tons of stone each. Some have acclaimed them the finest sculpture of wild life to be found in the United States.

picts a family of moose, the bull, his head raised apprehensively, standing guard over a cow and a calf. But, it was the story about Gilbertson that attracts the most attention. His studio is a shack in the woods on the shore of Lake Superior near Herbster, Wis. His training was at the Chicago Art institute and as an apprentice stone carver, farm hand, cow puncher and stone blaster for a railroad.

He has traveled extensively through the Northwest, studying native wild life at every opportunity. It was no luxury tour. He had to earn his way. He would sit for hours in a woods or on a mountain rock, studying animals.

"For the bas-reliefs at the Interior," he said, "I had to observe the bison in captivity, both in zoos and in our national parks. The moose, however, presented a different problem as they are never successfully caged. To obtain the proper sketches of moose. I had to stalk them in the Minnesota woods.' Gilbertson said that when he first set up his studio near Herbster that "the conservative farmers were curious but somewhat hostile," but that they later "warmed up" when they found he was selected to do the Interior Department sculpture through competition.

"In fact," he said, "by the time I had finished my work we all felt we had done the job together. Invariably, their own knowledge of local animals was a complement to my own, and their criticisms were always constructive. The Saturday afternoon sessions we used to have in front of the Fond du Lac post office, discussing my sculpture represents some of the best training I've ever had."

Danish Customs

In Denmark if you wish to do as the Danes do, you must remember several simple rules of etiquette. When you leave the table after a meal, for example, always say, 'Thank you for the food," and when next you meet your hostess always thank her again for her recent hospitality. Danes expect to be addressed by title, according to O. Evensen, American Express manager in Copenhagen, who advises travelers to put before a Danish name the profession of its owner. Thus, the conductor becomes Mr. Conductor Jansen; the baker, Mr. Baker Petersen. Men should also remember to raise their hats on entering a shop and to keep them off while there.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL CUNDAY JCHOOL Lesson

CONFESSION AND FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT-II Samuel 12:13, 14; Psalm 51:1-3, 9-13; 32:5. GOLDEN TEXT-Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed.—James 5:16.

If the Bible told us only of perfect people, we would recognize it as being not true to life and assuredly of no help to us who know our own sinful natures. The Bible, however, tells us in all truthfulness of the bad as well as the good, the weak as well as the strong, the humble as well as the mighty.

It honestly portrays the sins of its greatest characters, revealing the heart of man as "deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked' (Jer. 17:9). It tells us of a gracious God (when man repents and forsakes his sin) who invites the sinner to come and be delivered from his sin.

The lesson centers around David, the humble shepherd boy who became king; and in the height of his glory, being tempted of his own evil desires, fell into the lowest of sin, which he then sought to cover by a well-planned murder. He finds no peace until he repents and returns to God. Three words summarize the lesson.

I. Sin (II Sam. 12:13, 14).

That little three lettered word seems to have the hiss of the serpent in it-sin-the cause of all man's woes and the heartache of a loving God.

David had tried to hide his sin and he said, "My bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long. For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me" (Ps. 32: 3, 4). "Be sure your sin will find you out" (Num. 32:23) is just as true today as it was in David's time.

The nature of sin is described in Psalm 51, and if we may anticipate a bit, we note that it is described by three words: "transgression," meaning a rebellious "stepping over" God's boundaries; "iniquity," from the same root as our word "unequal," meaning crookedness of heart and life; and "sin," which means missing the mark, a life going the wrong way.

Note that sin, while it may bring sorrow and trouble to us and those round about us, is "against the Lord" (v. 13 and Ps. 51:4). The sinner must face and answer to God for his sin.

Nathan's straightforward dealing with David brought him to 1940 PROCLAMATION OF THE GOV-ERNOR OF MARYLAND PROPOS-ING AMENDMENTS TO THE CON-STITUTION OF THE STATE.

WHEREAS, at the January session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1939, the following Acts were passed, providing for the submission of said amendments to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection;

Chapter 40-proposing an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2-Court of Appeals," providing for appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court:

Chapter 163-proposing an amendment to Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, adding thereto two new sections, to be numbered 41-A and 41-B under a new subtitle "Part V-A-People's Courts," and to follow immediately after Section 41 of said Article, providing for the establishment of People's Courts; Chapter 200-proposing to amend

Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III-Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, providing for an additional Judge in the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Maryland;

Chapter 247-proposing an amendment to Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," regulating the period that the General Assembly may continue its session and the compensation of the members thereof; Chapter 371-proposing to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III-Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, providing for the residential qualification and method of selection of Associate Judges in the Third Judicial Circuit;

Chapter 381-proposing an amendment to Section 1, Article II, title "Executive Department," of the State Constitution, to provide that a Governor shall not be eligible to succeed himself for the term directly following that for which he was elected;

Chapter 771-proposing an amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, adding thereto one new section, to be numbered 35A and to follow immediately after Section 35 of said Article, providing that nothing in the Constitution shall exempt the salary or compensation of any judge or other public officer from the imposition of a nondiscriminatory tax upon income; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 40

CHAPTER 40 AN ACT to propose an amendment to Sec-tion IT of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," providing for appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court, and providing for the submis-sion of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adop-tion or rejection. Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is here by proposed as an amendment concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitu-tion of the State of Maryland, title "Ju-diciary Department," sub-title "Part 2--Court of Appeals," the same if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

-is more fully expressed in the great psalm of penitence which we know as Psalm 51. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith well says that "probably these verses have brought more comfort, and assurance of forgiveness, and hope for a renewed life after some terrible transgression, to a greater number of God's children down through the ages than any other single passage in the pages of the Old Testament."

To acknowledge one's transgression before God is to open the floodgates of His mercy, to receive His grace in forgiveness, cleansing, restoration, new joy, and (note it well) renewed usefulness (v. 13). God does not cast His people off because of their sin, nor cut off their usefulness when they repent.

Observe, however, that God did not permit David's sin to go unpunished. God is forgiving, but even repentance cannot wipe out the results of sin (II Sam. 12:14). God chastised David to declare before the people all of His divine hatred of sin. To sin against God is no light and casual thing. It cuts deeply into life, and only the grace of God is sufficient to bring a man up out of that pit. But there is

III. Forgiveness (Ps. 32:5).

How tender and sweet is that word -forgiveness. It speaks of the removal of guilt, the breaking down of the barrier which sin has created, and the restoration of fellowship. Where all had been wrong and troubled, all has become right and at peace.

These things are true even in the forgiveness of one man toward another who has offended, but infinitely greater when the heart of God meets the repentant sinner. He is so ready to meet such a man that even while he is thinking of confessing, God sees the attitude of his heart and forgives. "At this moment, without sight or sound that mortal ear can detect, or attitude that the eye of man can observe, even before the thing is said, when I make up my mind to confess, 'thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin'! Do you wonder that when this man was going to write a psalm about this matter, he had to begin, 'O the blessings of transgression forgiven, and sin covered'?" (G. Campbell Morgan).

Fidelity

It is only by fidelity in little things that a true and constant love to God can be distinguished from a passing fervor of spirit.

Fireflies Give Expensive Show

Their Light Duplicated by Science After Years of Experimentation.

WASHINGTON.—The flashing of a field of fireflies, one of the loveliest phenomena of nature on a summer evening, is an expensive show.

This is pointed out in the annual report of the Smithsonian institution by Dr. N. S. Rustum Maluf of the Osborn Zoological laboratory at Yale university.

For two generations one of the ideals of science has been to produce artificially "cold light"-radiation confined entirely to those wave lengths to which the retina of the human eye is sensitive and without any energy wasted in the form of heat or invisible light. Could the ideal be attained with the same expenditure of fuel and power as is required for light production at present, the world's bills for illuminating would be decreased enormously.

Emits Visible Light Only.

Actually the firefly has attained this ideal in one direction. It emits only visible light. Chemists can even duplicate the process to a cer-tain extent. Naturally a great deal of research has been devoted to the light-emitting mechanism, physical and chemical, of the insects. The findings have been rather disappointing, so far as practical application is concerned, Dr. Maluf points out.

The phenomena of luminescence is widespread in nature. It is found among crustaceans, centipedes and a few other insects. In each case it is a chemical process, developed by the animals themselves in the course of evolution and survival of the fittest, and finely adjusted to the needs of the individual species. But in no case, Dr. Maluf says, is it to be considered a cheap process, as some physicists have thought before intensive study of the factors involved.

The luminescence of the firefly, Dr. Maluf points out, is due to the oxidation-that is, the burning-of a chemical substance, luciferin. This reaction in turn depends upon a catalyst, a substance which activates a chemical reaction without taking part in it-known as luciferase. The same phenomenon can be brought out by appropriate mixtures of luciferin, luciferase, and oxygen in a test tube at the proper temperature.

Wasteful Process.

All these experiments have shown that it is, in one sense, a very wasteful process, considering the amount of oxygen necessary. It is far less efficient than most means of producing artificial light known to man -1 per cent compared with the 4.54 Save Money As You Spend It per cent of the carbon filament; 17.17 per cent of the acetylene flame, or 60 per cent of the sodium arc light. To illuminate houses or streets with firefly light would be a Phone 54-R pensive procedure indeed. Dr. Maluf quotes a calculation that "an area of firefly light six feet in diameter on the ceiling of a room nine feet high would give ample illumination for reading or drawing on a table three feet high." This would hardly interest an illuminating engineer, he points out. The light can, however, be used in an emergency. Maj. Gen. W. C. Gorgas, during the Spanish-American war, is reputed to have used the light from a bottle of fireflies to perform an emergency operation. But the average householder would rebel at the monthly bills. The actual light from a single firefly is very minute, averaging little more than 25 thousandths of a candle power. The combined courtship efforts of a whole field full of the insects would hardly light a single room enough for sewing or reading. The insect will sometimes glow steadily with a light as low as 200thousandths of a candle power in intensity.

Movie Conversation: "Can you see all right, precious?" asked the boy. "Yes, dear," replied the girl. "Is that lady's hat in your way, honey?"

"No, darling."

"Nothing to hinder your view?"

"Not a thing." "Would you mind changing seats with me?"

The 41 Little Pigs MERCEDES, TEXAS. — J. C. Lear, farmer, thinks his sow has given him a fair start in the hog business. In her first three litters she produced 41 pigs.

Tonsils Removed On Wholesale Scale

NEW ORLEANS. - The Lorio family here believes in having tonsils removed en masse. Four children of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lorio, ranging in age from 7 to 16 years, had theirs removed at 20-minute intervals and three others, 13 to 18 years old, planned to have theirs taken out two weeks later.

Ways Parted 45 Years,

Batton ROUGE. — They hadn't seen each other for 45 years and never had a courtship, yet Mrs. Neva Weir McKee of Long Beach, Calif., and Milton Reed of Baton Rouge are married happily now. Rouge are married happily now. The newlyweds went to Natchez, Miss., to spend their honeymoon after their recent wedding here. She was a widow. He was a widower with five children.

Forty-five years ago both were living in Natchez. Reed's half-CHERCHERCHER CONTROL brother was paying court to Miss Weir, and young Milton Reed frequently went along with his rela-tive to see her. Then their ways parted.

Reed and Mrs. McKee heard no more of each other until last March, when he located Mrs. McKee in Long Beach. In his first letter to her, Reed proposed marriage. In her first answer, Mrs. McKee accepted.

FUELENER

Durable Folks MOBILE, ALA .- "How old are you?" a hospital nurse asked a Negro woman whose leg was broken. "Eighty," she replied. "Where were you going?" "I was taking my mama's clothes to her at my cousin's house." Further questioning re-vealed that "mama" claimed to be 107 years old.

Wendell Willkie's Birthplace at Elwood, Ind.

preparing our sons to take care themselves in case the defense of America leads to war. I shall not indertake to analyze the legislation n this subject that is now before ongress, or to examine the intenons of the administration with egard to it. I concur with many nembers of my party, that these inentions must be closely watched. evertheless, in spite of these coniderations, I cannot ask the Amercan people to put their faith in me, ithout recording my conviction hat some form of selective service the only democratic way in which secure the trained and competent nanpower we need for national deense.

He stated in definite terms his elief in a policy of providing to he opponents of force the material esources of this nation, and our wn preparation for meeting any mergency that may arise, but critiized the President in his conduct foreign affairs at this critical me, saying:

"There have been occasions when any of us have wondered if he is eliberately inciting us to war. ust that I have made it plain that the defense of America, and of ur liberties, I should not hesitate stand for war. But like a great nany other Americans I saw what ar was like at first hand in 1917. know what war can do to demorlize civil liberties at home. And I elieve it to be the first duty of a resident to try to maintain peace. 'But Mr. Roosevelt has not done is. He has dabbled in inflammapry statements and manufactured anics. Of course, we in America ke to speak our minds freely, but is does not mean that at a critical riod in history our President ould cause bitterness and confuion for the sake of a little political ratory. The President's attacks on oreign powers have been useless nd dangerous. He has courted a ar for which the country is hopeessly unprepared—and which it emhatically does not want. He has ecretly meddled in the affairs of urope, and he has even unscrupuously encouraged other countries to ope for more help than we are able give. "'Walk softly and carry a big ick' was the motto of Theodore oosevelt. It is still good Amerian doctrine for 1940. Under the resent administration the country as been placed in the false posi-

"We must not shirk the necessity | of any group of Americans for any other group-except as the New Dealers seek to put it there for political purposes. I stand for a new companionship in an industrial society.

"Because I am a business man, formerly connected with a large company, the doctrinaires of the opposition have attacked me as an opponent of liberalism. But I was a liberal before many of these men had heard the word, and I fought for many of the reforms of the elder LaFollette, Theodore Roosevelt, and Woodrow Wilson before another Roosevelt adopted-and distorted—liberalism.

Opposed to Monopolies.

"I believe that the forces of free enterprise must be regulated. I am opposed to business monopolies. I believe in collective bargaining, by representatives of labor's own free choice, without any interference and in full protection of those obvious rights. I believe in the maintenance of minimum standard for wages and of maximum standards for hours. I believe that such standards should constantly improve. I believe in the federal regulation of interstate utilities, of securities markets, and of banking. I believe in federal pensions, in adequate old age benefits, and in unemployment allowances. "I believe that the federal government has a responsibility to equalize the lot of the farmer, with that of the manufacturer. If this cannot be done by parity of prices, other means must be found-with the least possible regimentation of the farmer's affairs. I believe in the encouragement of co-operative buying and selling, and in the full extension of rural electrification. But American liberalism does not consist merely in reforming things. It consists also in making things.

"And I say that we must hence forth ask certain questions of every reform, and of every law to regulate business or industry. We must ask: Has it encouraged our industries to produce? Has it created new opportunities for our youth? Will it increase our standard of living? Will it encourage us to open up a new and bigger world?"

New Deal Victims.

Mr. Willkie demanded that kind of legislation, that policy, that will encourage business to expand, to create jobs for the unemployed, saying:

"It is a statement of fact, and nc a political Orient's rirst Mis-Sancien island, scene of the establishment of the first Christian mission in the Orient, is the land in which St. Francis Xavier established a mission in spite of efforts to keep him and his band out of the Orient. And on this island he lies buried. In late August, 1552, he landed on the island, called Chang-shuen-shan, off the coast of Kwangtung, which served as a rendevous for Europeans. Soon after his arrival Xavier was seized with a fever and died there.

After impatiently waiting six days for a passenger ship to take him from Guernsey to Alderney, an English channel journey of 20 miles, resourceful Major L. Palmer solved the problem by "mailing" himself. He labeled himself "parcel" and was delivered to his addressed destination by a postman assigned to look after the "package."

Undaunted Courage?

Pat Hogan of Westwood, Calif., and Muriel Dwyer of Santa Cruz, went to Reno, Nev., to be married. Pat, after getting the license, was knocked down by an auto and his leg was fractured. Undaunted, he had the leg set at a hospital, summoned a clergyman and the marriage was performed on schedule at the bedside.

Election Forgotten

The mayor and aldermen of Ardmore, Ala., can't get rid of their jobs. It's all because everyone forgot to announce candidacies for office at the recent election, so that no election was possible. Therefore, the present officeholders have to serve four more years, until the tion of shouting insults and not even beginning to prepare to take the consequences.

Cheers Interrupt.

Several times the speaker was compelled to stop as applause and encouraging shouts drowned out his voice. The cheers grew in volume and frequency as Mr. Willkie, citing France as a tragic example, declared in a firm voice that our foreign policy must "begin in the United States" and be dedicated to making us strong "right here in our own land."

Referring to the defeat of France, Mr. Willkie said in part:

"And in this tragedy let us find our lesson. The foreign policy of the United States begins right here in our own land. The first task of our country in its international affairs is to become strong at home We must regain prosperity, restore the independence of our people, and protect our defensive forces. If that is not done promptly we are in constant danger. If that is done no enemy on earth dare attack us. I propose to do it.

. . I promise, by returning to those same American principles that overcame German autocracy once before, both in business and in war, to outdistance Hitler in any contest he chooses in 1940 or after. And I promise that when we beat him, we shall beat him on our own terms, in our own American way."

A Doctrine of Growth.

For our home policy Mr. Willkie proposes to follow a doctrine of increased production, of increased growth, instead of the New Deal 'doctrine of division," and said:

"We are not asked to make more for ourselves. We are asked to divide among ourselves that which we already have. The New Deal doctrine does not seek risk, it seeks safety. Let us call it the "I pass" doctrine. The New Deal dealt it and refused to make any more bets on the American future.

"Why, that is exactly the course' France followed to her destruction! Like the Blum government in France, so has our government become entangled in unfruitful political adventures. As in France, so here, we have heard talk of class distinctions and of economic groups preying upon other groups.

'As for me, I want to say here and now that there is no hate in my heart, and that there will be none in my campaign. It is my belief that there is no hate in the hearts of America."

the New Deal has failed in its program of economic rehabilitation. And the victims of its failure are the very persons whose cause it professes to champion.

"The little business men are victims because their chances are more restricted than ever before.

"The farmers are victims because many of them are forced to subsist on what is virtually a dole, under centralized direction from Washington.

"The nine or ten million unemployed are victims because their chances for jobs are fewer.

"Approximately 6,000,000 families are victims because they are on relief.

"And unless we do something about it soon, 130,000,000 people-an entire nation-will become victims. because they stand in need of a defense system which this administration has so far proved itself powerless to create anywhere except on paper.

"To accomplish these results, the present administration has spent $60,000,000,000.

Mr. Willkie Accepts.

"I accept the nomination of the Republican party for President of the United States.

"I accept it in the spirit in which I know it was given at our convention in Philadelphia-the spirit of dedication. I herewith dedicate myself with all my heart, with all my mind, and with all my soul to making this nation strong.

"But I say this, too. In the pursuit of that goal I shall not lead you down the easy road. If I am chosen the leader of this democracy as I am now of the Republican party, I shall lead you down the road of sacrifice and of service to your country.

"What I am saving is a far harsher thing than I should like to say in this speech of acceptance-a far harsher thing than I would have said had the Old World not been swept by war during the past year. I am saying to you that we cannot rebuild our American democracy without hardship, without sacrifice. even without suffering. I am proposing that course to you as a candidate for election by you.

When the speaker finished, the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. Hats went up in the air and shouts of "Hurrah for Willkie" came from many thousands. They left the great meeting repeating to each other the words "Willkie-the Hope
