A VISIT TO "SAN MAR" Old Folks Home of the Church of the Brethren.

Through the courtesy of O. J. Stonesifer, Editor of The Pilot, Union Bridge, and his son, Roland and wife, the Editor of The Record and daughter, Ada, were given an enjoyable mountain drive, last Sunday afternoon covering about 130 miles in 4% hours

The trip was via Emmitsburg and Thurmont to Sabillasville, Blue Ridge Summit, Rouzerville, Smithburg, Cavetown, Sharpsburg Burkittsville, Ellertown, Ringgold, Wolfsville and other places, the return trip having been varied somewhat.

Near Sharpsburg a U. S. Army reservation was found marking the position of U. S. Army troops during the Civil War on July 14, 1862, and marked by a granite archway and

The main objective of the trip was "San Mar" the Fahrney Memorial Home for the Aged, near Mapleville. This was originally the summer nome of Dr. P. D. Fahrney a wealthy resident of Chicago. The Church of the Brethren had been considering the question of establishing an old folks home, and it was through Jesse P. Waybright, Detour, that this property was secured after about 8 years of effort, as a gift, in 1905, that included the Fahrney home and contents and several acres of land.

In 1907 a three-story addition was added at the south end of the original huilding. This is our understanding building. This is our understanding as to the origin and development of the home, which is well equipped throughout and beautifully situated.

Among other advantages a spacious auditorium has been provided that can accommodate near 300 persons. At present, religious services are conducted in it each Sunday morning, or at least a regular Sunday School, and is open not only to Stonesifer wanted to visit an unclebrother of Judge Green of the Carroll County Orphans' Court, but found him to be on a visit to relatives in New Windsor, but would be back at the Home, on Monday.

Another interesting inmate was H. S. Caylor, a native of Carroll county, but had lived for about 40 years in the far west, returning about two years ago. He showed the male members of our party through the Home, and especially what he calls his "office" and workshop on the third floor, where he showed us many that the transfer of artistic wood workshop that the transfer of the fight the Tiggers are well as in the fight the transfer of the fight the Tiggers are specimens of artistic wood work that belongs in the antique class. He is quite pleased with the home in every way, which has now about 38 guests,

A DETROIT LETTER TO TANEYTOWN FRIENDS

Business, Politics, Baseball, War and Weather

After a long silence, I am going to try and write a letter to the Record. I am doing this, not because I am feeling better than for the past six months or so, but because I feel like doing something to repay the many kindness I have received from the Editor, in the past 23 years I have lived in Detroit. What the letter will amount to, or how interesting it may be to the readers of the Record, I do not know, but at least I will have

Of course, in the course of so many months of silence, many things have occurred, which might be written about, but I do not feel like going back so far. There have been strikes and settlements, and even now we hear talk of the former, for higher wages, or for other reasons, but for the most part, matters in the industrial line are pretty quiet.

Whether it is war talk or because the employees are getting near to the end of their demands, I do not know, but except for small shops, everything is moving smoothly.

Maybe the leaders, of the Unions, in their endeavors to aid the would-be Dictator in his plans, have called their followers off. Anyhow, from the amount and size of socalled defense contracts recently awarded to the large automobile companies, and to the parts shops, it looks as if there ought to be lots of work ahead. But that prospect does not prevent the addition of thousands to the ranks of the PWA, etc. Of course every one of these is expected to do his duty not so eagerly at labor, but at the day. It is a sad thing to even think about, to me, at least, to see so many work at something else, sell them-selves, and think so little about it. And the new dealers are working at it, full force, just the same as in former national elections.

The automobile factories have made an early start on 1941 models and now practically all of them are on full production. How long this will last I do not know, but it seems

The most talked of thing out here, outside of the fight the Tigers are making for the pennant, and which may be over by the time this is printed, is the draft, the first ever made in time of peace, in the history of our country, and which, in my opinion, would not be necessary if the war Continued on Fourth Page.

BRUCEVILLE BRIDGE BADLY DAMAGED.

(For the Record).

You recently published several letters regarding the unsafe condition of the Bruceville bridge. These letters are now proved to have been justified. The bridge has again been put out of use by a flood and the damage is so serious that it cannot be easily repaired.

On Wednesday morning last the heavy rains caused the water to rise rapidly and drift wood began piling up against the network of little piers and uprights resting on these piers. About noon a large dead tree came down and lodged against the upright. This held nearly all the drift wood that was still coming down and about one o'clock the angry water shoved nearly all the piers and underpinning down stream. As far as can be seen at the time of writing this, there are only five or six uprights left.

Apparently the ends of the bridge itself are not tied into the abutments and the south end of the bridge was shoved westward about three feet. would probably have been shoved clear off the abutment and dropped into the stream had it not stuck against a very large sycamore tree that grows near the bridge and leans slightly outward. As it is the south end of the arch that originally supported the west side of the bridge has been shoved completely off the abutment and its weight has caused the south half of the bridge floor to sag down about three feet. In its present condition the bridge forms a sorry spectacle.

Fortunately Mr. F. Lieb whose farm is close by was watching the bridge when it collapsed. He at once assumed the responsibility of blocking the bridge. Otherwise a fatal accident might have occurred. On account of the curve in the road at the south end an auto coming north would probably have been on bridge before the driver noticed that anything was wrong. It is doubly fortunate that the collapse did not take place after dark. The road is a main highway and hundreds of cars and trucks make daily use of it.

For years back the bridge has been repaired several times per year. This time the damage is more extensive and repairs will be more costly. What Does this mean that one of the main highways of Carroll County is to remain blocked for a half year or more? Cannot the Taneytown Board of Trade exert some effort either to have the present bridge repaired or work on the new bridge rushed ladies in charge promise all a most delicious supper.

THE GALLUP POLL or May not Foreshadow November Ballots.

Nobody knows to what extent the poll of votes being taken by Dr. Geo. A. Gallup, is correct, or whether it will eventually be as far off from will eventually be as far on the election day facts as were the polls taken by the Raleigh, N. C., Star on the chances of Andrew Jackson for election, or of that of the Literary election, or of that of the Literary Bicset in 1936.

Digest in 1936.
Dr. Gallup says he has no personal interest in the result, but is strictly non-partisan, and does not claim that the publication of his figures will influence voters. A writer in the Christian Science Monitor says:

"Of course, there is something in Dr. Gallup's claim that an adverse the satisfaction of knowing I have tried to discharge the obligation—to me at least.

Yet when all these allowances are made, the fact remains that the poll returns give New Dealers something to crow about, to look wise and confident and say, "The election's in the bag," and they give Republicans an up-hill psychology to meet. To that extent, the poll has been an actual and palpable interference with the democratic tracers in the United democratic process in the United

The poll may be entirely accurate. That is not really the point. Nobody will deny the interest, the elaborate technical skill, and the many desirable social aspects of the public opinion polls. They are literally the ingenious products of a partnership of genious products of a partnership of theoretical professors and advertis-ing agencies, and they do credit to the researches of campus and merchandiser. But perhaps Americans, as this writer has suggested before, may consider whether or not Dr. Gallup hasn't got a rather large bear by Bair was on the stand in his own behalf for three and a half hours. Four divorce cases figured in the testimony, and centered around the question of unprofessional conduct.

The investigating committee had charged that Bair filed a divorce suit in a woman's name without being engaged to do so; wrongfully alleged grounds for divorce in another case; filed a divorce suit on the wife's be-half after first instituting for the husband a suit still pending before the court; and for representing both the husband and wife in a fourth -----

> Few programs in the past decade have won more general approval than the C. C. C.; few have had more last ing benefits in the way of producing a sturdy young manhood. Much has been said, and justly so, about the values of the roads constructed, the flood-control dams built, the land re-forested, the erosion of valuable land that has been checked, and the wild life that has been protected through the work of the C. C. C. Little has been said about the human values conserved and improved through this program; human values that loom ever more important in an age when skilled and intelligent man-power is State such a decisive force in shaping the efense course of things to come. The C. C. ortant c. program is a tangible recognition of the fact that the youth of America cannot afford to become soft, either physically or mentally, if this nation is to grow in wisdom and in statute.

> Life in the triple C's is not an easy one: there is work, hard work to be done, 40 hours of it every week. But the work is done in the open air, with adequate protective clothing, and with plenty of good food lining the ribs and supplying the necessary nourishment and energy.

But the life is not all work. There is plenty of morrostion athletics is plenty of recreation, athletics, musical programs, dramatics, motion pictures, dancing, picnicing outside of working hours. Any boy can improve his education by taking special study courses. Skilled trades can be learned. Discipline is the minimum amount necessary for a town of 200 boys. What is even more important, each boy learns self-discipline. He becomes more of an individual and, at the same time, learns that his strength is multiplied many times through cooperation with others. through cooperation with others.

Boys are not recruited for the C. C. C. They are not even particularly encouraged. Enrollment is entirely voluntary. But any boy who wishes to enroll may file application for enrollment at the County Welfare Board Office in the county where he is living. Application in Carroll County should be made not later than October 1, 1940.

DRAFT ELIGIBLES.

If some of the "unemployed" tramp beggars are as able as they look to be, the draft age should be raised a few years and compel them to serve in the army in some job where real work is required. This new army, that will cost many new billions of debt, must be paid for, along with many bil-lions paid and unpaid. Why should we not have a "clean up" draft provision that will relieve those who happen to have property to tax? It might also be a good chance, through an increased draft age limit, to give older men inside of-fice jobs, and not make young men monopolize the opportunity to serve this country.

The likelihood is that the present draft is largely a money-spending proposition, and none will not be called on to fight? In all probability, we will have clearer light on this after the November election.

TOURING CANDIDATES.

From now until Election Day, voters will be solicited by candidates for their votes. This is as it should be. And the individual votes will cast his or her ballot for the candidates they most like, or think deserving of the faver--and this is also as it should

We are not now practicing as we once did, the "stick to the party" plan; for parties do not mean as much as in the old days when political dividing lines acted as "fences." Instead of voting for all Democrats, or all Republicans, because their names are on the ballot, we vote for "the man" self, but by so-called "brain-trustwe believe to be the best qualified.

There are but three × marks needed this year for candidates; but there are "Amendments" that make in the banks showing a lack of pathe ballots large, but need not be trictism, it is anything but that. Men marked unless desired.

Be sure to vote for your choice. Help to make up our majority rule plan. Begin now, to think it over. If not posted, become so by asking friends in whom you trust.

There is every good reason for being fair in our expressed opinions of candidates. Their public utterances should not be misquoted nor misconstrued. Naturally their record misconstrued. Naturally their record of the banks in pay off honest debts of the banks, in pay off honest debts of the banks. in the past has become public property to be inventoried for real values but we should be careful to value them aright.

SENATOR TYDINGS TALKS BUSINESS.

The Record has always admired the ability and straight forwardness of Senator Tydings. We believe him to be Presidential candidate material of the first class. What he says pub- can not understand how persons who licly, is easily understandable and to the point—and he talks "business," rather than politics.

We believe it would be better for all concerned if more confidence were placed in the people of the United States by Washington.

If there are good and cogent reasons for the first peace time draft in the history of the nation, and the people knew what they were, there would not be a single voice raised in protest against such a measure, we are sure. Such good reasons may exist. If they do we have not been informed what they are. We expect, of course, that professional military men will say, always, that we must increase our armed forces. What else could they say? But we do believe that candor is the better course, ro matter what the emergency.

THE MACHINE AGE—MORE JOBS.

The machine age started on the day one of our ancestors picked up a club to kill an animal for his dinner. Up to that time he had always used his hands. Then, through a fortunate and perhaps accidental use of his brain powers, he found himself in possession of a new tool-a clubwhich made the business of acquiring living ten-fold easier.

With this as a start, man kept adding to his collection of tools. Some made his work easier, some made his pleasure more enjoyable, some increased his prowess in battle. Wars and famines and bad government interfered with progress, but gradually men were able to put their brains to more and more work and their muscles to less and less.

When Watt discovered the steam engine a little more than one hundred and fifty years ago, a whole new set of tools was made possible. Men Lv were able to make familiar goods in As for the large amount of money larger quantities and they also found it possible to make a lot of things they never had before-luxuries they can not be expected to invest their they never had before—luxuries they money when they are being constant—called them then, although they are

All of this didn't take place without a lot of argument. Whenever less any reasonable income from their one machine was set up to do the work of two men, the extra man figured that someone was trying to do him out of a living. What he didn't realize was that when the rest of the people found out that goods were easier to get and could be had for lower prices, he would get a job running a machine himself, making more goods to meet the demand.

We had scarcely learned to use the tools that steam had made pos-I was brought up a Democrat. I am sible when electricity came along. still registered as such. The demand for more luxuries, more conveniences and more comforts will never cease. Before we shall be able to make all the goods the world wants and needs, we shall have many more machines and many more persons to run them. As Charles F. Kettering of General Motors phrases it, "The world isn't finished—at least not in America. Hundreds of thousands of boys and oung men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine.

FARMS REAL FIRST DEFENSE

WELL-PLOWED furrow and the things that eventually come from it create any nation's REAL first line of defense. Such a barrier is the greatest obstacle an enemy. Recent photographs from England have shown that nacountryside marred by deeply cut ditches, so made to keep enemy planes from landing troops. But I do not mean that when referring to "well-plowed furrows." I refer to the food that comes from farm

Armies may take the field; diplomats—the rostrum. Staff officers burn the midnight oil, poring over plans for attack or strategic retreat; armament plants go on 24hour schedules. But food and food alone is the basis for any defense. Without it, planes, siege guns, high explosive shells, and other instruments of destruction are useless. And, since farms supply our food needs, plowshares, not bombs, will decide the issues.

The strength of any nation is its ability to deal advantageously with the victors in any conflict. History indicates that no matter who accepts the sword of surrender, famine is the eventual winner. America's future as a world power lies not only with its basic wealth that finds its origin in the soil to finance the materials of warfare. In addition to this, this nation's future lies in its ability to open its stores of food and again become the nation to which the world turns for subsistence.

When the heat of battle subsides, starving persons turn to the man or power who can supply them food. And the nation possessing that food becomes more powerful in determining future political paths than all the militaristic powers on earth. The success of any national political plan of life is directly dependent upon what that ideology can give the governed. No group of people with empty stomachs have ever been successfully ruled. The statement that "an army marches on its stomach" applies equally to people outside the military arms of defense. Briefly, there is a direct relationship between the economic and political problems of the world. There is neither army nor navy large enough nor strong enough to whip the world, but you can build an agricultural structure sufficiently powerful to dominate the world. The real power of a nation depends upon its food plus wealth created from the land. But food is the basic element in any economy. Without it everything else would become and remain impotent. During its lifetime, America has derived a majority of its leadership from men and women whose background is that of small towns and farms. They learned their lessons of the sounder things of life from the land-ON THE LAND. American clear thinking, soundness of judgment, and resourcefulness have come largely from persons who have grown up with those essentials at the very seat of fundamentals which is in the rural communities of this nation.

The one outstanding difference between America and other nations of the world is the individualism found in this democracy. Vitality and initiative have marked America's forward progress. Those characteristics have stemmed from the land; from the rugged independence that has flowed from a rural background. Compare it if you like to an artesian well: the deeper it is, the better in qualities of taste and coolness.

The high morale of our nation springs from long generations of men and women who have con-sistently battled the vicissitudes of nature to create the wealth of this nation. And its food is this nation's greatest wealth.

City-County Co-operation

Small cities can save by cooperating with their county government in establishing a central purchasing office to obtain quantity prices for municipal supplies, according to the National Consumers Tax commission whose 5,000 units seek municipal economy.

Dangerous Firewood

Mrs. L. Marais of Cyferkuil, Western Transvaal, picked up a piece of firewood while lighting her kitchen fire and found to her horror that she had seized a deadly night adder. With great presence of mind, the housewife struck it against the floor and battered it to death.

Shellac in Sports

Shellac is not only used over and over again on skis, but it takes a prominent part in almost every sport. It is used on golf club heads and shafts, fishing rods, baseball bats and on tennis rackets. Bowling pins and bowling alleys are also finished with shellac.

FORDS FOR 1941.

The new Ford line is released for public inspection. There has been a lot of advance discussion of changes. And changes there are, starting off with a considerable increase in for the Ford V-8's, DeLuxe and Super DeLuxe. Designers have taken full advantage of increased wheelbase and overall lengths to give added spaciousness and Ford engineers have worked right up from bigger tires through to luxury seat cushions and new softer springs for the solid enhancement of riding comfort.

A new four-cylinder truck and commercial car engine is part of the economy features included in the Ford working line.

The wheelbase of these big new DeLuxe and Super DeLuxe Ford V-8's is longer and the overall length greater. The designers have taken advantage of this extra overall to increase the inside body length both in foot room and seating width. In fact, the front seat of the sedan is seven inches wider than last year. The head room is greater and the window area, already large in previous Ford cars, is even larger this year Running boards have practically disappeared from sight, due to the width of the new bodies. But they are there to step off when the doors are opened. The new Fords have big 12-inch hydraulic brakes, for quick, smooth action and long service. The emergwheels and operated by a steel cable. The brake lever is under the instrument panel, at the left of the driver. The new hood lock knob is located under the instrument panel near the brake lever. This protects the engine, battery and accessories from theft.

Among the refinements which are new this year on all models are the speed lines on the side of both front and rear fenders, the new hidden gasoline filler cap, electric light on the luggage compartment lid which automatically lights whenever the lid is raised if the car lights are burning, ventilating front windows, a new wide tempered glass one-piece rear window radio grilles in all cars, twin wind-shield wipers with speed control, twin sun visors, fender top parking lamps, and two-spoke, clear-vision comfort type steering wheels. There is a center front license plate on the Super DeLuxe.

We are back to the foot-hills of the Blue Ridge mountains, and it is good to be home again, and find kind friends here too, and plenty of work for busy hands to do, and no one can steal our fond memories from us. On Tuesday evening of last week a group of our citizens attended a birthday party at the home of Claud Grinder, near Linwood in honor of his wife. Do not know how much of a surprise it was—but there were games, fun and plenty of refreshments. Mrs. Grinder received a num ber of useful gifts.

Some of our ladies attended the community sale in Middleburg on Saturday, where a lot of people assembled, and those who didn't purchase any bargains met friends and all had a good time.

L. K. Birely and Frank Snyder attended a lumber sale at Sabillasville, on Saturday afternoon which was not crowded, and didn't reduce the size of their pocketbook.

The Russell Bohn family, accompanied by Miss Bettie Williams, of Union Bridge, attended the Hoke-Roelkey family reunion at Mt. Tabor

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fair, of Hanover, visited friends in our town, on Sunday. His mother, Mrs. Samuel Fair, a former member of this community, is 86 years of age and recently entered the aged, People's Home of the Brethren of Huntsdale, near Mt. new year. The hay packer was with us last week, and that machine is interesting to watch, and quickly reduces piles of hay into bales; then a huge truck arrived and nearly 10 tons was put on it, making a load 38 ft. long, 12 ft. 9 inches high. Enormous—but it was cautiously driven.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. John N. Starr and sister, Mrs. J. H. Stuffle attended the funeral of Edward P. Brundige at his late home in Westminster, where services were conducted by Rev. Nevin E. Smith, of in Westminster, where services were conducted by Rev. Nevin E. Smith, of St. Paul's Reformed Church, with interment in Westminster cemetery. His wife (nee Caroline Starr) survives, also two brothers.

Last week we heard of a woman repairing the road; and now we have the report of two men who decided last Spring to make the branches and leaves of a willow tree grow upward instead of hanging down; so a frame was made and it was carefully trained. The tree grew rapidly the past season, and both the fellows say they've learned that lesson—and the answer is-"it can't be done."

SOUTH AMERICAN AND PACIFIC PHONE CALLS REACH ALL-TIME HIGH

Messages Over Bell System's Radiotelephone Circuits Hit 2,000 For Month Of June

Smashing all previous records, telephone calls over the Bell System's radiotelephone circuits to South America and across the Pacific reached a new high with a total of nearly 2,000 messages for the month of June, according to figures of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The report shows that overseas traffic generally is less than 15 per cent below what it was a year ago, despite the sharp drop in transatlantic business due to the imposition of military censorship.

South American business is at present averaging about three times what it did last year at this time, while transpacific business is more than double the figure for the corresponding period last year.

At the outbreak of the war, military restrictions abroad shut off all private and commercial telephone service with Great Britain and continental Europe. Within ten days, however, general service to continental Europe, except France, was restored over two new

Hamlet Had to Know If Ghost Was 'Honest'

Much has been written about Hamlet and there is considerable literature also about the ghost of the murdered king, round which the plot of Shakespeare's play revolves. Shakespeare believe in ghosts? The great dramatist does not reveal himself. He does introduce a skeptic in Horatio, young Hamlet's closest companion. Hamlet himself, however, is analyzed by Dover Wilson, the great Shakespearean scholar, as accepting a belief in the return of spirits of departed, but remaining uncertain of the character of the spectre. In Shakespeare's day, those who believed in the Protestant view held that most ghosts were agents of the devil who assumed the appearance of beloved souls, and came for no good. Only in rare instances were there "honest" spectres. According to Wilson, Hamlet's dilemma was to make up his mind about the "honesty" of his father's apparition. Did the ghost speak the truth or was it some devilish purpose to mislead him and make him erroneously believe his uncle had committed fratricide? In Shakespeare's day, most people accepted as a fact the existence of

"As Europe freezes over in the grip of one of the severest winters on record, increasing numbers of troops-offensive and defensive—have been reported using sleds, skis and snowshoes, and even 'sled tanks,' " says the National Geographic society. "The Russo-Finnish conflict, especially in the bitter battles of the Far North, has been a spectacular testing ground for winter-sports implements turned to war uses. One new and startling development is credited to the Russians who are reported to be using an armed and armored machine, set on skis, and driven at high speed by means of airplane propellers. Another newly developed Soviet practice is to make airplane landing fields smooth by flooding them with water which then freezes. As defense measures, frozen lakes on various European frontiers now are guarded by troops on skates."

By VERONICA A. SEXTON (McClure Syndicate-WNU Service.)

HE man might have posed for Edwin Markham's "Man With the Hoe.

He stood ankle-deep in soft, freshly plowed loam. Sweat poured unheeded in salty, irritating streamlets down cheeks of weathered parchment. Great, hairy handsthe swollen knuckles mute witnesses of gruelling toil (for the man was young) gripped the handle of his passive hoe, and the big shoulders, conspicuous in the clinging, sweat-dampened shirt of faded blue, hunched over it.

The man might fitly have posed for Markham's "Man With the Hoe." Music, with a complement of conversation in its interstices, drifted across the field.

The man looked steadily at the charming old-fashioned farmhouse whence the babel came.

Nor did his look alter at the sight of a slight, girlish figure which waved a greeting to him from the vine-shadowed veranda and then came toward him.

She planted her white-shod feet daintily and accurately between the rugged furrows and stood before

The ready smile of greeting froze before the smouldering cheerlessness of his look. "Raymond sent me after you,

John," she said quietly. He regarded her somberly. "What right did he have to send you for "Hesitatingly he reached out a huge, toil-grimy hand and touched her shoulder. "Answer me, Virginia. Is it fair?" His moody eyes ranged about the glistening, fertile field, the dignified colonial dwelling and the neat, freshly painted barn, but found no pleasure in the survey. He spoke slowly and bitterly: "At the most heartbreaking crisis we ever had on the farm, when the chances of breaking or winning were dead even, Ray went off and left me flat; mortgage, taxes, debts, blighted harvests; dear Lord, what a hopeless bitter task it was! "The monotony was killing him he said. But I—I'm not a beast or a stone. I'm as human as he is-wasn't the monotony killing me, too? For seven long years, Virginia, I walked in double harness. Now, with the titles all clear he comes back. They hold a reception for him. Mother wants me to take him back into partnership, and you —you ask me to go up and shake hands with him. It's unfair, I tell

"When I asked you five years ago to marry me you said you didn't know your own mind. I took you at your word and waited. Now, answer me; was it because you were waiting for him?'

The shocked blue eyes looked back at him fearlessly.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," she said deliberately. She struck aside his detaining hand, and, turning, left him.

Resident in the hearts of all men, even in those the world calls good, are lurking demons of wilfulness and self-love. In the hour of dearest frustrated desire or profound disillusionment these muster their unholy forces and tempt the good heart to despair. In that grim hour the best and the worst in man strike a balance of strength and for whole minutes or hours victory, the salvation or perdition of a soul, hangs suspended.

It was in the homely, undramatic setting of the barn, whither he had lashed his startled horses from the field to their stalls, that John Lawless fought out his Armageddon.

In bitter kaleidoscopic vision he reviewed the past, the stunned, incredulous moment when his brother had told him of his intended deser-He envisioned the savage, tion. soul-draining years with himself, the unthanked-yoke-fellow of mule and horse, fighting his way from the crowding abyss of debt to the mountain where at last he could look the whole world in the face and say he "owed not any man."

And now, the last straw had been flung on the straining back. The prodigal had returned. He might find it in his heart to forgive the welcome home, the calf and the ring, but the wastrel had stolen Vir-

A cow lifted her ungainly head from the pail held by his shaking hands. The stupid peace in the limpid, trustful eyes pricked him to an accent of fury. With all his power he struck at the huge soft face with his clenched fist.

The unmanliness of it instantly shamed him to regret. Never before today had he abused an animal. Falling from the apex of his passion, he suddenly felt as cold as ice and wholly master of himself. The prodigal had robbed him of the sweetness of youth and the fondest desire of his prime-he should not steal his manhood! A strong resolution, the hardy birth of his soul's travail, rose and drove the last lingering shreds of madness from him. He had fought

In the open doorway he paused a moment and looked aloft. Enormous amorphous clouds, like Chinese junks, drifted across the clear sea of the twilight sky. His lips moved, then, with jaw set, he strode resolutely up to the house. The incessant twitter of conversation in the room died down to a constrained murmur. He sensed the wary tension and resented it. The mother, dim-eyed and timidly smiling, came toward him. Before she could reach him he strode unceremoniously to the center of the room. The clustered company parted like water before his quick, strong approach, then, like the charmed attendants in the fairy tale of the princess, they stood staring at the tableau. The dark faced invader stood for a frozen moment before the weak-featured, handsome wastrel who had wronged him so. Then the firm set lips parted in a warm, whole-hearted smile. "Welcome home, brother," he said, and, catching the other's limp hand, he gave it a quick warm grasp. Turning to the company he smiled down at his soiled overalls and heavy broken shoes. "You must excuse me," he said. "I couldn't wait to change before speaking to Ray."

The smile left his lips as he stooped his head beneath the lintel of the low doorway and fumbled his way into the kitchen. He found a chair and sat heavily down, bowing his head in his hands.

It was an illusion, he thought, this imagined impression of a hand on his shoulder. But he looked up to see Virginia, her eyes bright with unshed tears.

"It was magnificent, John," she She bowed over him and "Don't you know, spoke softly: dear, that's what I waited so long to see? You were so loyal and fine, but you were too hard, too unforgiving.

He caught her hand against his cheek and spoke brokenly, groping for words:

"My mother—forgave one prodigal—Virginia, can you forgive another?

Easy Arithmetic Makes People Dizzy in Head

Most people have heard of the smart young man who offered his services to a prospective employer at the ridiculously low figure of one cent for the first day, two cents for the second day, four cents for the third, and so forth. The employer quickly accepted the offer to teach the "foolish" young man a lesson. But the boss should have done a little figuring. A few minutes work would have shown him that although the fifth day would have netted the young man only 16 cents, the tenth would bring him in $5.12. And at the end of three five-day weeks, the young man would have been making $163.84 a day, very likely several times more than the employer.

This story illustrates certain principles of mathematical progressions. Savings accounts involve a form of these progressions. For example, money earning 3 per cent interest and compounded twice a year would double itself in a little over 23 years. Money earning 6 per cent-a rare thing today-would double itself in almost 12 years. A penny deposited at 6 per cent interest at the beginning of the Christian era and compounded semi-annually would now be worth about $660,000,-000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,-000,000,000,000,000. This huge figure even makes our national debt seem insignificant.

Here's one you can use at your next party. Suppose an ordinary checkerboard with its 64 squares was filled with grains of wheat following this system: Place one grain on the first square, two grains on the second, four on the third, eight on the fourth, and so on until all 64 squares are filled. Ask your guests how many grains of wheat will be required to fill the checker-

No doubt someone will reply, "It will take a good many." Then point out that there isn't enough wheat in all the world to fill up the checkerboard when that progression is followed. Amid many "I don't believe you" and "You are crazy" remarks, explain that it takes 18,446,-754,821,865,199,835 grains of wheat. There are about a million grains of wheat to a bushel, so in round numbers about 18,000,000,000,000 bushels would be needed.

Now the wheat crops of the entire world during the last 30 years have averaged about 4,000,000,000 bushels per year. On this basis it would take an accumulation of all the wheat crops of the world for about 4,500 years to fill the checkerboard.

But there is much land not now producing wheat. Suppose all of the 57,510,000 square miles of land on this earth were planted to wheat. Assume that each acre produced 14 bushels (approximately the U.S. average during the last 20 years). This great expanse of "golden grain" would produce about 500,000,000,000 bushels per year. But at this rate, about 35 years would be needed to fill the checkerboard. If your guests are still skeptical, give them a pencil and let them figure it.

FARM LOPICS

U.S. HAS 'SLUMS' IN RURAL AREAS

Serious Conditions Revealed By Housing Survey.

A department of agriculture survey of almost 600,000 farm houses scattered through 46 states discloses that many families live in houses as bad as, or worse than, those found in city slums. Only 14 per cent had water piped into the house. In many cases the water supply was inadequate and insanitary. Only 9 per cent of the houses surveyed had indoor toilets. Many of them had no toilet facilities whatever, even of the most primitive sort. As a result, in some rural areas as high as 50 per cent of the school children are infected by hookworm. More than 25 per cent of the houses had no screens to keep out disease-carrying insects. Forty per cent were unpainted. Serious conditions in rural housing have not attracted as much attention as city slums, and comparatively little has been done to alleviate them, says the Farm Security administration. But the FSA, in connection with its program for rehabilitating low-income farm families, has had to face the rural housing problem. It has built or directed the building of more than 12,000 houses in the last few years.

In an effort to find good but cheap housing materials as well as plans and construction methods, the FSA has done considerable experimenting. It has tried conventional lumber houses of many different kinds, steel houses, adobe houses, native stones, brick, and even cotton in one or two cases. No final appraisal of these experimental houses will be made by FSA engineers until they have been thoroughly tested under actual living conditions. Meanwhile, the engineers point to their simply constructed and planned lumber houses as the best low-cost rural housing ever developed.

Grasshopper Threat

Is Less Than 1939

Grasshoppers are a much less serious crop threat this year than in 1939 or 1938, according to Dr. Lee A. Strong, chief of the United States department of agriculture bureau of entomology and plant quarantine. Nevertheless, enough hoppers will hatch in many parts of the great plains to do a great deal of damage, unless adverse weather or control measures stop them. Dr. Strong says that concerted efforts by all farmers in the grasshopper infested states, aided by federal and state agencies, are needed to control a plague that has cost U. S. farmers millions since the first settlers entered the West.

The co-operating state agencies estimate that crops valued at $128,-000,000 were saved by the co-operative control work of last season which cost $2,500,000, exclusive of labor and other contributed assistance. More than 153,000 tons of poison bait were spread over about 25,000,000 acres in 24 states, through the co-operative efforts of the United States department of agriculture, the states, local agencies, and 235,-000 farmers.

Crop damage by grasshoppers in 1939—estimated at $48,000,000—is materially less than in any year since 1934, when these insects became a national problem and the federal-state control program was

Fence Post Tips

For fence posts pick the tree which grows where the "going is is a good rule suggested by tough" T. E. Shaw, Purdue university extension forester. Trees grow faster in the open than under crowded conditions but their wood is less durable than that of trees grown in competition with others. Aside from osage orange, which is not so plentiful, the black locust, red cedar, mulberry, northern white cedar, catalpa and chestnut are the best sources of fence post material in the order named.

Eradicating Fleas

To rid a farm of fleas, give close attention to the two favorite hosts, the dog and the hog. Destroy all old bedding from the quarters of these animals. Turn the hogs out on pasture and spray their pens and shelters with a strong dip of equal parts of kerosene and used crankcase or crude oil. Repeat the spray after a few days. The dogs meanwhile can be treated with a good flea powder.

Life of Dams

Check dams of brush have a relatively short life while rock dams last the longest, according to experience with soil erosion control work. Although check dams may hold only two and one-half to three years, they are in long enough for vegetation to grow on the silt accumulated in the gullies behind them. Better than brush dams are pole dams, which may last a year or so longer. Eventually, however, the poles decay.

THE USE AND ABUSE OF WEALTH

LESSON TEXT-Proverbs 11:24-31; Luke GOLDEN TEXT—Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.—Matthew 6:20.

Money-its making and using-is a matter which constantly concerns all of us as long as we live in this world. It is the medium of exchange whereby the labors of one man may be exchanged for the labors of another, in the purchase of goods and services. It may be used to send a messenger to the ends of the earth with the good news of salvation or, on the other hand, it may be the ready instrument to destroy both body and soul of those who abuse it. Man may have money, and be a blessing, or money may have a man, and be a curse.

I. The Right Spirit in the Use of Money (Prov. 11:24-26).

What a man does with his money is only a reflection of what he is in his inmost life. The spirit which withholds unless there is a return to itself in pleasure or profit is a selfish and ungodly spirit. To attempt to present one's self before the world as a follower of Christ and to have that attitude toward what one possesses is to deny by one's acts the testimony of one's

Not all "scattering" (v. 24) is commendable. It is possible to be careless and wasteful, and that neither honors God nor helps our fellow men. Then, too, a man may scatter liberally, as the farmer does when he sows seed, knowing that he will have a richer harvest for himself. That is only a different type of selfishness.

The man who knows "God, that giveth to all men liberally" (James 1:5), scatters not only his money, but his riches of mind and spirit in his life and service. He gives himself and what he has to God-and to man as he serves God-and rich is his reward. In sad contrast is the man who keeps his possessions, but finds that withal he has only barren leanness of soul and life.

II. The Good and Bad Use of Money (vv. 27-29).

The man who looks for good finds it, and the one who looks for trouble finds that, too. That is true in the use of money as well as elsewhere in life. One way to end up in certain disappointment is to put your trust in money, for, while it opens many doors, it cannot open the door to heaven, and, while it can buy most things, it cannot buy health and happiness. To seek good, seek the Lord and His righteousness, and you will "flourish as a branch." You may not have the riches of this earth, but you will prosper in those things which are of eternal val-You will be wise in the conduct of the affairs of your own house (v. 29) and life, because you are "wise of heart."

III. The Best Use of Money (vv. 30, 31).

One of America's leading business analysts and statisticians said some years ago that the best investment of funds was in the winning of souls to Jesus Christ. Had man expended the money which should have gone for that purpose, at the right time, we might have been spared the spending of billions of dollars for war in these latter days.

"He that is wise winneth souls" (v. 30 R. V.). "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever" (Dan. 12:3).

The glory that awaits the believer in this life and in the life to come, as well as the judgment which inevitably must fall on the sinner (v. 31), should urge us on in the winning of souls. But even more than that, the love of God, and "the love of Christ" which "constraineth us" (II Cor. 5:14), should cause us to put ourselves and our money into His hands, to be used in the winning of souls. Could there be any better use of money?

IV. The Test of the Use of Money

(Luke 16:11-13). Ultimately each one of us must give an account to God of the manner in which we have lived. These verses and others indicate that one of the matters for which we must answer is the manner in which we have used or abused the money or other possessions with which God has blessed us.

We are stewards, and only as we demonstrate our faithfulness and wisdom in the use of the "unrighteous mammon" (v. 11); that is, the money of this world, can God entrust us neither here or in the world to come with His true riches.

Let us be very clear about this point today. It does make a vital difference to your spiritual life how you regard money. You cannot separate your life into compartments, with a spiritual Sunday religion and a do-as-you-please weekday, business or social life. The dollar you spend on Monday is of as much concern to God as the dollar you put in the offering on Sunday.

In case any two candidates for associate judge in any one of the circuits, residing in the same county shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidates for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may after or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and

TRIAL MAGISTRATES REPORT TO GOV. O'CONOR.

Annapolis, Sept. 24—Looking to possible adjustment at the next leg-islature of the Trial Magistrates' Act under which the minor courts of the counties have been functioning for little more than a year, Governor Herbert R. O'Conor met here yester-day with magistrates from all over the State, coming to report on the first year of their administration.

This new State set-up with regard to its minor courts was promised by Governor O'Conor during his election campaign, as a means of correcting the admittedly unsatisfactory, and in many cases absolutely disgraceful, functioning of these Courts in the State up to that time. Previously the magistrates had worked on a "fee" basis, which made it to their interest to handle the greatest possible number of cases, and to impose fines in proportion. In some instances this had resulted in great competition on the part of magistrates in the same locality, and had occasioned many uncomplementary comments about the administration of justice in the Functioning of the courts under this new Trial Magistrates System, has eliminated entirely such criticisms and has given the State intimate control over the finances of these Courts for the first time in alsory. Undoubtedly, however, as a result of the frank discussions at yesterday's meeting, ways will be found to bring the new system even more closely into line with the ideal which Governor O'Conor had in mind when the Act first was

AID TO CHILDREN.

The Carroll County Children's Aid Society has just passed through a very successful season. It cares only for unfortunate children who would otherwise have no one to look out for them. The organization, in every way possible, acts as a parent for these children; clothing them, feeding them, and attending to their health. Also, placing them in suit-able home if their own home conditions are found undesirable.

Very soon now each and every citizen of this country will be asked to help in this work by contributing to the annual financial drive which will open on October 7.

May each one of you do your utmost to fulfill your obligation to these

"SURE" AND "O. K."

Typical American answers, being given in plants and factories all over the United States today, are "sure" and "O. K." For American business which must produce the "sinews of war," is on the march!

We have a genius for organization and production in this country born of our conquest of the continent. We know how to "get things done" and we're getting them'.

Tungsten is needed for tank construction and a supply is located in far-away Turkey. Two American ships are in the neighborhood but one hasn't enought fuel to stop for the ore. American business men in the National Defense Commission who know the Near East get busy. Cables are sent. 'Phone calls are made.

"Sure, we can pick it up."—the tungsten is soon on its way to this

It takes from 400 to 600 sub-contracts to produce the parts and acessories for a single bombing plane. A job that would ordinarily take months must be put through in weeks "O. K. we'll step on it"-and in American business men know how to work under pressure. Plant expansion and new tools are needed to produce other equipment. means an investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars; perhaps millions. A manufacturer must be able to pay off this investment and make a reasonable return to his stockholders, but red tape often hinders the necessary governmental assurance from coming through as soon as is

"O. K. we'll take a chance—." In dozens of cases manufacturers are saying this—going ahead with the necessary expansion before contracts are signed. For American business men, who have the responsibility for building our defense, know how important it is to get going. Our national security may depend on speed.

It took initiative and a lot of hard work to build a nation like this in 150 years. There wasn't a city west of the Mississippi in 1800 and now look at it! The men and women who made this country weren't afraid of danger or toil. They said "sure—" and as our slang developed they said, "O. K." HOW TO TELL COUNTERFEIT MONEY-BILLS.

Detecting counterfeit bills is not easy, and is often a job for an expert—and remember that "expert" engravers and printers are in the counterfeiting business.

A special paper is used, in making genuine government bills, but there are experts also in the paper making

The following general rules in detecting counterfeits, are— 1. Compare the suspected bill with a genuine note.

3. Note the portrait. A genuine one is lifelike. Notice particularly the eyes on both bills. On counterfeit money they are dull, smudgy, scratchy, or unnaturally white.

3. Check prongs on circle for evenness of size and shape.

will prove whether it is counterfeit. This is not true, as the ink will rub off both genuine and counterfeit bills. If at any time you find a counterfeit bill among your notes, immediately report it to the police, for if you knowingly pass a counterfeit note, you are subject to fine and imprisonment.
