NEEDS OF CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY URGENT.

Many Appeals for Support are urgent ones.

Again this Fall the Children's Aid Society is calling upon the good citizens of Carroll County for contri-butions toward the care of under-privileged children. Each year the demands upon the Society increases, and its resources are taxed to the ut-most. Without the help of the more fortunate citizens of our county this vital work of caring for needy children could not be carried on.

At the present time we hear many appeals for the aid of children in warring countries abroad. Let us not forget our own little ones here at home. Our first duty is to them.

You have been generous in the past! Won't you give again this year in accordance with your means in order that the plea of these mfortunate children may not go unheard.

Our Children's Aid Society comes in contact with many heart-rending cases. Most of its work can be grouped as follows:

There are certain children who come from homes that have been broken up or are so undesirable that it was thought that they be separated from their parents. These children have been given the care possible by the society with its limited funds. They are placed in private homes where they are boarded for a very small sum. Or, if they are old enough, they may work out their board. The director of the society makes regular visits to see that these children are being properly cared for. She takes them cloth-ing and other essentials they must have. Our society has approximately fifty children who are being taken care of in this manner.

Besides these children who have no homes, there are many who live with their parents but still have needs, both material and environ-mental. The director of the society tries to see that these conditions are improved; however, only by aiding the children. No assistance is given to the adults.

The Society receives no govern-mental aid. Its good work can only be continued through the wholehearted support of each and every able citizen of our county. Please give it great thought and considera-

FROM "SAN MAR HOME". An Inmate Again Commends Home for Aged.

DEAR MR. ENGLAR:

It was was indeed quite a pleasure to entertain you and Mr. Stonesifer in our Home. I say "our Home" for that is what it is. After being a guest, ("Guest is what we are)" here for five years, do not know of any place (except one similar) that 1 would be as well contented. We have all modern convenience, and nothing to do unless we want to.

Well do I know many of the aged would be better satisfied in a home of this kind, than with their kin. I realize many do not like the name, "Home for the Aged." That is due largely because they do not know anything about them.

Here we come in contact with folks of wear our own age and can discuss the happenings of years ago. Many chats did I have with dear aunt Mollie Selby we were acquainted in our childhood days. It is quite difficult for the aged to adapt themselves in the modern home.

If father or mother is in a home occupied by husband and wife, both cannot leave at one time. It is as if father or mother feel as though they are in the way. I know of our father who has two good children. He says are in the way. I know of our father who has two good children. He says they do not want him in their homes and he does not want to live with them. They are supporting him in a composition of the year, them. They are supporting him in a composition of the year, about 3,400,000, but the Act permits no more than 900,000 to be trained at any one time. The first draft, set for mid-November, will induce 75,000. By the end of the year, or possibly by January, 1941, about

This evening Mrs. Rinehart came to room to borrow pair of phiers. Next to come was Uncle Davy Green. Very hard to entertain—cannot read nor write and very hard of hearing. I will be away from the Home from

Oct. 10 to 15fh With kindest regards, H. F. CAYLOR.

ANSWERS FOR DRAFTEES OF WIDE INTEREST

To All Men between the ages of 21 and 35 years.

What is the purpose of the Select-we Training and Service Act of 1940? To empower the government to select men, on a compulsory basis, for a military training.

Who must register? When?

All men living in the United States or its possessions who have passed their 21st. birthday but not their 36th. As proclaimed by the Presi-dent, the date of registration will be October 16th. Only a few groups are exempt from this—members of the armed services or reserves, veterans of three years' service, students in government military schools, men in the Coast and Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service, and foreign diplomatic representatives.

How many men will be inducted into the armed services?

About 3,400,000, but the Act per-400,000 will be in training.

Do all registrants stand an equal chance of being conscripted?

No. Married men or men with other dependents, and men essential to industry or agriculture, are not likely to be drafted as long as other men are available. Ministers and divinity students will not be called, nor will most public officials. Service of college students will be deferred.

Can men who fail to register or report for service be penalized? The law provides a 5-year prison term and $10,000 fine.

How much will recruits be paid? $21 a month for the first four months and $30 a month thereafter.

Do recruits have to pay for their own board and equipment? No. The government will pay for verything except personal items everything except personal items such as shaving cream, cigarettes, and the like.

Will camp life be drudgery? The Army hopes to make camp life as pleasant as possible. In lei-sure time, conscripts will be allowed the read, play games or musical instruments, see movies, and receive

What will recruits learn at camp? In addition to learning the use of weapons, and acquiring knowledge of life

When a man's number is called after registration, does he automatically enter the Army? No. He must first pass physical and mental examinations. To be selected, a man will have to be in general good health.

Will the draftee be able to choose the branch of the Army in which he wants to serve? No. However, his preference will receive consideration.

Will the draftee be able to serve in There can be no assurance on this #### where possible. How long will each conscript be required to serve?

He will spend 12 months in camp but if Congress declares a national emergency, this period may be extended. Barring a crisis, he leave camp after a year to go back into civilian activities. For 10 years thereafter, or until aged 45, he will remain a member of the reserve, and as such will be liable to a short period of additional training each year.

After he has had his year of training, will the draftee be entitled to benefits now received by war veter-

Yes-the same benefits, compensation and disability allowances re-ceived by enlisted men of similar grade and length of service.

Generally speaking, the draftee's income will all but vanish. Thus, questions like these arise: (1) If he cannot meet payments due on his life insurance policy during his service, will he lose the policy? or similar obligations, will he lose out to his creditors?

No is the answer to both these questions. (1) If the draftee cannot pay them, the government will meet all insurance premiums falling due. After his discharge, the draftee will have a year in which to repay the government, and if he fails in that, the government will turn in his policy for its cash-surrender value, deduct what it has paid out, and then give the balance to the draftee. (2) Fair deals will be made with creditors.

GOV'T CONTRACTS BOOST EM-PLOYMENT IN BALTIMORE.

Up to August 31, 1940, various firms in Baltimore had been awarded Federal contracts in the amount of $75,000,000. A survey of these contracts serves to emphasize the diversified industries which make this city their home. Among the many items so listed are ammunition parts, work suits, motors, booms, steel conduits, coal, foodstuffs, solder, gun carriages, cotton duck, tractors, cement, acety-lene, khaki shirts, metal dies, lacquer, gas mask cans, fuel oil, rivets, wire, brass, copper, steel plate, and con-struction and repair of tankers, cargo and passenger ships.

The Bethlehem Steel Company,
Sparrows Point, Maryland, heads the list with awards amounting to over $68,000,000. Its enormous plant and shipyard are currently employing 30,000 persons in all classes of work. The Bartlett-Hayward Division of the Koppers Company brings home-the grim reality of war preparation with its contract of $3,700,000 for gun carriages.

The Revere Copper and Brass Company's contract of $855,000 for ammunition parts leads in the brass and copper division.

Another link in the defensive chain with which this country is surrounding itself, is the expasion program of the Glenn L. Martin Company, the home of the Martin bomber. Although exact figures are not available, it is known that investments in new plant space and machinery will run into millions of dollars with an attendant rise in employment which will almost triple the present number of employees.

SEE MARYLAND FIRST. You need not go the Sky Line-Drive in Virginia for colorful mounntain scenery, which will be at its best from October 15th. to 25th. Just try a trip via Rocky Ridge and Grace-ham to Thurmont, and then on via Sabillasville to Blue Ridge Summit, it varies the monotony of the sky-

Random Thoughts

CURIOSITY.

Do not make things your business, that are not your business. We do not know whether "curiosity never actually killed a cat,' but venturing into a trap, or stealing a bait to satisfy hunger, has killed armies of varments of one kind or another, and caused others a lot of trouble.

The search of knowledge, in its legitimate sense, is not curiosity. Desire to know things by study and experiment, is a legitimate pursuit of education. We not only live and learn, but live to learn, when worthy objectives are Without good schools, good books and good newspapers, the world would be empty of helpful knowledge and wise teachers. So, we should be curious to know things worth knowing.

Asking questions indiscriminately is quite a different phase of curiosity, and merits the "none of your business" reply it sometimes receives.

The Record has received a letter from a subscriber in California concerning the chances for Willkie to carry the Coast states. It is not as optimistic as many reports, but this subscriber is a business man and not politically active, and his opinions likely represent contacts made. He

"In reference to Willkie here the Coast, Oregon I think is safe for him, with Washington and California in the balances, and a great deal will depend upon the impression he makes and the reactions from the campaign trip he is now making.

His radio talks have not been as good as I had hoped; as his delivery ends his program by saying "It is not is flat and I am inclined to believe that he is lacking in campaign management and campaign advice.

Our Senator Johnson (Rep.) has not publicly announced himself as to Willkie, but I am sort of convinced that he will do so before the campaign is over. I know that he is very anti-Roosevelt, particularly difficulties, and any that may rise in since F. D. R. tried to purge him in the future. I am convinced that if he (Sen. Johnson) would make a statement to the press that he is 100 per cent for Wilkie, it would influence 100,000 or more votes to Willkie."

OVER-REACHING.

Confidence and courage are fine qualities when backed by wise judgment. They are very different from conceit and ambitions but in many instances look very much alike. Chance-taking too, is a somewhat distant member of the same families.

Success, at best, is a skittish creature. We enter upon a certain venture with certain possibilities seemingly in sight, but before we go far e meet with unexpected happenings and results, and our good prospects are wrecked.

Then we meet with the "I told you so" wise ones who never venture away from home, nor into any prospect that is short of a plain guaranteed sure thing result.

WHO HATH DONE THIS THING?

"This is incredible! This is not like the Germans we knew. They always loved children. German family life centered about the home and little ones. Germany every year sent to children the world over gifts to make them happy. How could men from a nation of such people deliberately destroy so many young lives?"

Such were first reactions to the torpedoing of the British liner, with its percious cargo of young refugees, so many of women perished in a stormy sea.

"But," came the answering argument. "these are not the Germans you knew. They are not the Germans anyone knows. What has sunk without warning this shipload of child evacuees and other refugees is not German at all. The guilt belongs to an ism, a mitaken belief, a madness which has temporarily possessed a generation and which must disappear when, like all other madnesses, it destroys itself."

Necessarily this is true. The Insanity which has beclouded the thinking of so many Germans has substituted cruelty and persecution for a traditional kindness and gentleness. It has crowned materialism and dethroned religion. It has put the State above Deity and sought to rob man tics, wholly apart from the fact that of his birthright of conscience, selfgovernment, and ability to think for the side he favors if he wants that himself. Its victims it has sought to reduce from a point "a little lower than the angels" to the depths of brutality.

miles of service car.
The reasons for the increased life expectancy of automobiles are manifold. day's cars are more durable. They are more scientifically engineered. They incorporate various features and structural ideas which have been designed to reduce wear. Then, too, our roads are vastly improved over the roads of twenty years ago. Too, the motor fuels of today are superior, and modern lubricants contribute a great deal to longer

Added to all these factors is the rn driver. He is with an automobile than was the driver of twenty years ago. He knows that to give trouble-free service it must be taken care of. He takes it to his service station periodically for check-ups. He changes his oil frequently. He is meticulous about lubrication, He drives more intelligently, not racing his motor before it is warmed up, not skidding around corners or forcing his engine to climb steep hills in high-speed and bringing his car to gradual stops instead of slamming on the brakes and coming to jarring rattling stops. That is, today's driver does these things if he is a good driver and if he has his own best interests at heart. Most motorists do not drive their cars anywhere near 90,000 miles before they trade them in: but good drivers do not use this as an excuse for not treating their cars properly and getting maximum smooth performance from them during the time they use them.

PREPARING FEED IMPORTANT JOB

Popular Methods Are Not Always Justified.

By DR. GEORGE TAYLOR

The digestibility and food value of the various concentrates and roughages used in rations for dairy cattle can be influenced by the way the feeds are prepared, experiments at the New Jersey college of agriculture indicate.

The practice of grinding, cutting, cooking and soaking feeds is often advocated. Some of these practices are warranted and some are not. There is no doubt but what they add to the cost of the feed.

The practice of grinding or crushing such cereal grains as barley, corn and oats is a good one, however. Older animals do not chew grain thoroughly when eating. When whole grains are fed, between 20 to 35 per cent of whole corn or oats will pass through the digestive tract Experiments have undigested. shown that crushing or grinding to a medium fineness gives better results than pulverizing or fine grinding. In such experiments, finely pulverized feed produced 5.4 per cent less milk than medium ground feeds, and in addition pulverizing costs more.

The grinding of roughage for dairy cattle has been advocated by some who claim increased digestibility, but many experiments have shown that grinding sometimes decreases digestibility. In the few cases where increased digestibility has been reported, the difference was so slight as to be insignificant. Ground roughage is less palatable than whole roughage and cannot be justified from a cost standpoint in the case of good quality hay.

Equipment for cooking feeds for dairy cattle have been offered on the market, claiming both more palatability and digestibility, for the cooked feed. Numerous experiments have proved such claims to be false. In fact the protein in cooked feeds is rendered less digestible by heating. The labor and cost of cooking feeds are, therefore, wasted.

Hen's Eggs Are Used

In Producing Vaccines Hen's eggs are being used as experimental material and are supplanting larger animals in producing vaccines. Eggs are doing a better job than horses in producing a vaccine for treating a serious disease among horses.

Many diseases of horses, chickens, swine, dogs and cats are now being treated with egg vaccines produced by a method worked out at Vanderbilt university a few years ago. The method has been adopted by the federal bureau of animal industry, which reports that a more reliable and uniform product is obtained in this way.

Fertile eggs are inoculated when they are 9 to 11 days old. In 16 hours enough virus can be grown in one chick embryo to kill 5,000,000 guinea pigs. The viruses are not used in their virulent form, They produce two effects in the living body. One is to produce their particular kind of disease and the other is to stimulate the body to produce the agencies that protect the body against this disease. They have to be put in a state in which the diseaseproducing property is eliminated and the immunizing property is re-

This is accomplished by treating them with formalin, which has the property of producing rigidity in organic substances, a kind of living rigor mortis.

Farm Notes

Weed out defective, diseased or undesirable kinds of trees from your farm woodlot. Cut fuel or post needs, when possible, from crooked or poorly formed trees. Keep stumps low, so that sprouts will come out near the ground.

The United States department of agriculture has developed incubators equipped with a wavelike motor-driven mechanism that tilts the eggs every 15 minutes, just as Biddy used to.

Dairy experts say it pays a farmer to be on friendly terms with his cows, as they respond to kind and gentle treatment. High producing cows especially are of a nervous temperament.

An acre of good pasture used by spring pigs from weaning time until they are ready for market should save from 800 to 1,000 pounds of corn plus 500 pounds of tankage. An acre of legume pasture will carry 15 pigs.

Rural customers make greater use of electric power for household tasks than city residents. The average consumption in farm homes was 1,084 kilowatt hours, as compared with 779 kilowatt hoursin city homes.

The Selection and Operation of A Farm Electric Refrigerator

By IRA MILLER

Farm Electrification Bureau

THERE are few farmers who enjoy I high-line service that need be told of the many advantages of an electric refrigerator-how, without attention, it dependably and cheaply protects the family's health, and saves food, money and work. A majority of those who do not already have one are planning its purchase as soon as finances permit, for its many benefits-most marked during the hot days of summer and fall-make it a year-'round necessity. However, there probably are many farmers who do not know how to choose the proper size and type of electric refrigerator for their particular needs, or how to operate it at greatest efficiency and lowest cost. For them, some hints on those points should prove helpful.

Whatever you do, do not buy a refrigerator too small for your maximum requirements. That is a serious mistake and one often made either because the unit is purchased purely ance is made for the possibility of additional mouths to feed or extra perishables to store. A good general rule to follow is to allow two cubic feet of storage space per family member but, in no case, should farm refrigerator have a capacity of less than six cubic feet.

The type (and also size) of electric refrigerator you need will depend upon your marketing and buying habits, the kinds of foodstuffs you raise, buy and sell, and whether or not you wish to keep supplies of fresh meats and frozen foods immediately on hand at all times.

Proper management is the most important factor in keeping the operating cost of any good electric re-frigerator at a minimum. Despite the should be allowed to cool to room as to oiling-many units do not need temperature before being placed in it.

Should your refrigerator stop, see if the power is on, if the cord and plug are in good condition or if any fuses have blown. A Tribute of love to a faithful wife and loving mother,
SARAH I ANGELL, who departed this life Oct 6, 1937

Although my wife traveled far. Through sickness and death to the star; That shines above the Golden Stair Where everlasing life is there.

Out in a lonely cemetery, Which seems so far away; There they laid my dear wife, Three years ago today. BY HER HUSBAND.

Today recalls the memories, Of a loved one gone to rest; And those who think of her today, Are those who loved her best.

Some say time heals aching hearts But no, it isn't true: For three long years have passed, Mother And our hearts still ache for you.

You were so very good, dear Mother, Until the day you died; God must have loved you dearly, When he took you from our side.

Far above in the silent Heaven, There is a beautiful soul, we know: If we could only hear you speaking, As we did a short while ago.

He is waiting by the river, Just across the silent stream; Where sweet flowers are ever And the banks are ever green. A bitter grief, a shock severe, To part with one we loved so dear: Our loss is great, we'll not complain, But trust to meet our Mother again.

BY HER CHILDREN. -----A Tribute of love to the memory of our dear sister, SARAH I ANGELL, who departed this life three years ago, October 6th, 1937

Weep not, that her toils are over, Weep not, that her race is run; May God grant us rest as calmly When our work, like hers, is done

When we yield with gladness Our loved one, to Him to keep, He will share the blessed assurance God gives his loved ones that sleep

Not dead to us who loved her, Not lost, but gone before; She lives with us in memory, And will forever more.

Somewhere back of the sunset, Where loveliness never dies; You live in a land of glory Mid the blue and the gold of the skies. BY HER SISTERS & BROTHERS.

AT SUN-DOWN, SLOW DOWN.

Annapolis, October 1-Because of the lengthening nights, Governor Herbert R. O'Conor's Maryland Traffic Safety Committee, in an effort to reduce accidents caused by night hazards, suggests again its slogan "At Sun-Down, Slow Down." In addition to the accidents caused during the winter evenings by glaring headlights, icy roads, etc., Safety Committee points out that pedestrian deaths particularly begin to mount at this season of the year, reaching their peak in December.

More traveling calls for more caution. Pedestrians are warned to walk facng traffic, and motorists are requested to slow down. In order to keep abreast of latest developments in Safety efforts, Governor O'Conor is sending the Traffic Safety Committee's Executive Secretary to Chicago next week, where ten thousand safety-minded citizens representing the Safety Councils of all states will join with the annual National Safety Congress in Chicago. It seems somewhat ironic that so many people must make so much effort to prevent thousand of American citizens from being killed each year in motoring accidents. However, until every resident of our State, motorists and pedestrians, really awaken to the dangers of traffic, and really try to avoid occasions of accidents, such continuing traffic safety efforts will

The Traffic Safety Committee asks the cooperation of every citizen of Maryland towards reducing the deaths and accidents on our highways.

"NO THIRD TERM" CAMPAIGN SPREADS.

New York-Ten thousand huge "No Third Term" posters were set up this week in the principal cities of 37 states, from Maine to California, a nation-wide barrage in the battle which Democrats-for-Willkie are waging against the effort of President Roosevelt to destroy a tradition which they regard as vital to American democracy.

"Thumbs Down," the Democratsfor-Willkie symbol of disapproval, is the keynote of the posters, which measure 9 by 20 feet. Done in red, white and blue, they show a gigan-tic figure of Uncle Sam, arm extended and thumb pointing down. At his left, in red letters a foot and a half high, are the words "No third Term!"

The key ceremony was the unveiling of one of the posters in Times Square, New York City, at 1:00 P. M. Wednesday last week. A parade and a band gave a holiday aspect to the event which attracted a huge throng of cheering spectators. Thousands of other identical posters were revealed simultaneously throughout the nation and it was announced that within a few days the entire 10,000 will be on view to be seen by many

"Sentiment among Democrats against a third term and in favor of Wendell L. Willkie has swept the country," said Alan Valentine, President of the University of Rochester and Executive Director of the National Committee of Democrats-for-Willkie, whose headquarters is at 122 East 42nd. St., New York. "Every day, more leading Democrats swell the ranks of the Democrats-for-Willkie, volunteering their services Pipe Creek Methodist Charge, H. G. #### MARYLAND FARMERS SHARE ROOSEVELT BENEFITS.

licity, N. Y.

Maryland has shared generously in the benefit of the Roosevelt-Wallace farm program. Stated in dollars, direct and indirect benefits flowing to Maryland farmers by way of Federal expenditures under the farm program have amounted from 1934 to the current year, to a total of $86,076,820.

But to attempt to describe the benefits received by the farmers of this State in dollars is inadequately to portray them. Fundamentally, in-creased farm income in Maryland, as elsewhere, may be attributed to the operation of the soil conservation policy, readjustment of finances, in-cluding a reduction in interest rates, introduction of scientific farming methods, an approach to parity between agriculture and industry and greater control of surpluses.

In each of these directions toward farm security and prosperity, Mary-land's share has been generous, with the result that the farmers of this State have sound reason to regard the Roosevelt-Wallace farm policy as one of the outstanding achievements of the period of National reconstruction instituted by President Roosevelt at the end of 12 years of Republican con-trol—years during which farm economy consistently declined.

Confidence of Maryland farmers in the Roosevelt-Wallace farm program is evidenced by the fact that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is now serving 25,000 farmers in this State. They have willingly co-operated in all the requirements of that Administration in connection with the reduction of acreage, etc., with the result that a total of $11,-459,196 of Federal funds have been devoted to agricultural rehabilitation in Maryland since 1934 up to the current year.-Roosevelt-Wallace Pub-

Study Wardrobe Problem To Be Well Dressed

When a woman can be complimented on her ability to look "well dressed" on all occasions, it is probably because she has studied her wardrobe problems carefully, comments Miss Mary C. Whitlock, textile and clothing authority, department of home economics, University of Illinois college of agriculture. Looking at last year's left-over summer garments in relation to present needs and in relation to the whole wardrobe should give any would-be shopper a basis on which to make her purchases, eliminating much of her indecision even before she reaches the store, Miss Whitlock said. The problem of securing becoming clothing can partially be solved if each homemaker will make a thorough study as to the texture, line and color of garments which appear the most becoming on her, the authority said. Thus the new garment may be fitted into the old wardrobe, yet it will have an up-to-date 1940 appearance and will appear to advantage in seasons to Another point in the good clothing policy is to try on the garment and test it while moving around in a normal everyday manner rather than standing like a statue.

Homemakers are in an encouraging position today because manufacturers and retailers are gradually recognizing the wishes of consumers who are seeking information about the merchandise for which they are spending time, energy and money. By asking for specific information. the consumer can give the manufacturer some clue as to what she really desires in the way of merchandise.

The Brewster Murder 83

By CARLTON JAMES (McClure Syndicate-WNU Service.)

OME on," said Inspector Jeff Carlton, "there's been a murder up at the Fairview apart ments. This may be your chance for a story.'

I picked up my hat and followed We taxied to the Fairview.

A butler admitted us to Glen Fer nald's apartment. The butler's face was white, and there was a wild look in his eyes. He gestured to a door that opened off the hall. Carlton stepped toward it, beckoning to me to follow.

Inside were three people, two men and a woman.

One of the former, a young, fairhaired youth, got unsteadily to his feet and leered at us. He held a half-filled glass of liquor.

"Evenin', gent'muns," he said hickly. "Thish ish a pleasure. Have-a-drink."

Carlton turned away from him and addressed himself to the other

"Hello, Doc," he said. "What's happened?"

Doctor Jordan nodded familiarly He was a nervous little man with a red face and spectacles. I had seen him occasionally about headquarters.

"Hello, Inspector. There's been a Man named Brewster. murder. Stabbed. He's in there.'

He nodded toward a door behind the fireplace.

Inspector Carlton went through the door. He was gone about five minutes. When he returned he stood near the fireplace and looked around the

"What happened, doc? Who's

He pointed toward the woman. She was about thirty years old, I judged. Her face was so white that the makeup on her cheeks looked like ghastly blotches.

Doctor Jordan said: "That's Mrs. Brewster. It was she who called me.

"I see." Carlton looked at the woman. "You're the dead man's

"Yes." Her voice was low, frightened.

"Tell me what happened." She clutched at her throat and looked sidewise at the fair-haired youth, but he had sat down and closed his eyes. His head was lolling to one side.

"Mr. Fernald," she said, still looking at him, "was giving a party. There were five of us here: Mr. Brewster and myself, Mr. Fernald, and a young couple named Raymond. Mr. Raymond was a business associate of my husband. They were leaving tonight on the midnight train, and this party was a sort of farewell."

"Where are they now?" The woman gestured helplessly. ne, I suppose. when it came time to leave, my husband seemed to be missing. I remembered seeing him go toward the kitchen. The Raymonds couldn't wait because it was nearly time for their train. They left and we began searching for my husband. We found him in —in there—. Dead!" "Were the Raymonds drunk when they left?"

"No. There'd been no drinking. When Mr. Fernald discovered what had happened he became dreadfully upset. I called Doctor Jordan. Mr. Fernald ordered some whisky, and has been drinking ever since."

Carlton nodded. He gestured to Doc Jordan, and the pair of them withdrew into a corner and carried on a low-voiced conversation. I watched them for a while and then gave my attention to the room. It was quite a large room, tastefully appointed. In the center there was a large table, with books and magazines and a cruet of whisky. Besides the door leading to the den behind the fireplace, there was another which, I judged, led to the kitchen.

Presently Carlton came back to the center of the room.

Dr. Jordan went over to Fernald and began shaking him.
"Mrs. Brewster," Carlton said, "in your opinion, was it the Ray-monds who killed your husband?"

She stared at him, terrified. "I-I don't know. It was the first time I'd met them."

"Where do they come from?" She gestured vaguely. "Somewhere in the West. My husband was a mining engineer. met Mr. Raymond on one of his many trips to the Coast. They became interested in some sort of mining venture, and, I believe, invested together. The venture turned out well, according to what I gathered from their conversation of the past few days.'

"I see. How long have you known Mr. Fernald, Mrs. Brewster?"
"How long? Why—ever so long. My husband and Mr. Fernald have been friends since childhood."

"I see," Carlton said again. He turned and crossed to the butler. We couldn't hear what was said, but I saw the serving man shake his head.

Presently, Carlton turned and came back. There was a glint in his eyes. He looked at Mrs. Brewster.

"Very, very nice," he said. Suddenly he jabbed a finger at the woman. "Mrs. Brewster," snapped, "you're a liar!"

She caught her breath and drew back a step, staring wildly. Carlton turned from her and went over to Fernald. Surprisingly, he reached down and grasped Fernald by the coat collar, lifting him clear off his "Stand up, you! You're no more drunk tham I am."

Fernald's eyes came open. He leered, but anyone could see that it wasn't genuine.

Carlton was right.

Fernald was cold sober. "Keep your eye on this jigger," Carlton said to me. "Don't let him get away."

He swung back to Mrs. Brew-

'Mrs. Brewster, that story you told about the Raymonds is one of the cutest I've ever heard. No one knew anything about them but your husband, and your husband's dead. They left tonight on the midnight, but you weren't sure of their destination. In other words, it would be quite a job to locate these Raymonds. In fact, you knew they never would be located, because they don't

"You know who killed your husband, Mrs. Brewster. It was Fernald. And you helped. You inveigled your husband to come here tonight so Fernald could kill him because you loved Fernald and Brewster stood in your way. It was all nicely planned, nicely arranged."

Mrs. Brewster uttered a fright-Her knees gave way and she slumped to the floor. Fernald took advantage of the moment to make a swing at me; he almost connected despite the fact that I hadn't permitted my attention to be diverted. The momentum of his blow carried him off balance for an instant and I drove my fist hard into his stomach.

Carlton had done a good job but still I was puzzled.

I wanted to know how he knew that Fernald wasn't drunk.

"That," Carlton explained, "is the crux of the whole thing. As soon as I discovered Fernald was playacting I knew there must be some reason for it. So I began adding things up."

"Yes. But how did you know he was sober?"

Carlton laughed.

"The whisky cruet was nearly full. The amount of whisky in Fernald's glass would have filled it to the top. Mrs. Brewster had already told me that no one had taken a drink but Fernald and then not until Brewster's body had been discovered.'

"Clever," I said. "And the butler?'

"Too late to pin anything on him. He may have been bribed, but now that he knows we've apprehended the murderer it isn't likely he'll substantiate Mrs. Brewster's story,'

Migrant Farm Worker Can

Live Cheaply in Yakima Ten cents goes a long way for services in the government's new farm family labor camp at Yakima, Wash.

The migrant farm worker can bring his whole family into the camp and live for 10 cents a day. The dime pays for use of a frame shelter with stove, and if the family requires two shelters they can have them, if available, for the same initial rental fee.

But that isn't all the dime buys. There's a community wash house for the use of the women of the camp, and bathing facilities for men and women.

That's a lot, but there's even more, including the privilege of using a community center and the services of a camp clinic for everyone, and a camp school teacher for all children from the first to the fourth grades.

Who gets the money? Not Uncle Sam, who built the camp. The rent fees go into a camp fund administered by a community council. The council uses the funds for whatever purposes it deems necessary for the best interests of the camp's occupants. The council has often bought food which is distributed among the campers. It authorized the purchase of a piano for the community center, and it pays for the entertainment provided at dances in the clubhouse. The Yakima camp is one of a number established throughout the United States by the Farm Security administration, and is considered one of the best of its kind.

There are 200 one-room shelters in the camp area of 150 acres, and 125 tent platforms. In addition there are 48 three-room houses, each of which has a quarter-acre of ground for a subsistence garden.

The Yakima camp and others like it were built to improve living conditions for migrating farm families of meager means. Conditions under which some of them lived in the past in various parts of the country were deplorable, according to FSA

Government surveys made in many agricultural sections showed that some of the farm laborers lived without bathing and toilet facilities and without most other conveniences of modern housing.

The camp manager can take single persons in at his discretion, but they are admitted only with the understanding that if their quarters are required for married couples, they must vacate.

"Vicalloy," a new magnetic alloy of remarkable qualities, was recently announced to the American Physical Society by E. A. Nesbitt and G. A. Kelsall of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, New York. Composed of cobalt, vanadium and iron, the alloy can be made to hold more permanent magnetism than any commercial material. In addition, it can be drawn and rolled-a property of decided advantage in many applications, and not possessed by other permanent magnet materials of importance in the art. Taking its name from the initial letters of its three components, the new material is composed of 6 to 16 per cent vanadium, 30 to 52 per cent iron, and 36 to 62 per cent cobalt. From the molten state it is cast into an ingot, and then drawn into wire or rolled into tape, as desired. When in final form, it is heat-treated to develop its magnetic qualities.

Bell Labs Find Wink Takes Fraction Of A Second

Most of us know how to wink but not many of us know how "quick is a It took the Bell Telephone Laboratories to answer that question. They developed apparatus to check the action of fast-moving mechanisms, such as tiny electric switches which go into action whenever one uses the telephone. With the same device they have timed a wink and according to their findings, if you do something as "quick as a wink," you're doing it in eleven-hundredths of a second.

LUKE AND HIS GOSPEL

LESSON TEXT-Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:1; Colossians 4:14; II Timothy 4:11a. GOLDEN Text-It seemed good to me also . . . to write . . . that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed.—Luke 1:3, 4.

Reading a book is a privilege and should be an illuminating and stirring experience. What a pity that so few read good books in our day! To study a book is a far more fruitful and interesting experience. Few are the books worthy of prolonged and repeated study. Therein do we find one of the great differences between books of men and God's Book -the Bible. Again and again we turn to its pages and find its truth inexhaustible, ever interesting, informing, and soul-stirring in its beauty and power.

In reading any book, we want to know who wrote it, what kind of a man he was, why he wrote, what he wrote about, and what kind of a book he wrote. We recognize that the Holy Spirit is the real author of the Word (II Tim. 3:16; II Pet. 1:21), but He chose and used human writers. As we begin a six-month study of the Gospel according to Luke, we properly ask about both the author and his writing.

I. The Writer-Luke.

Our information regarding Luke is found in the New Testament, in the introductory words of the books he wrote (Luke and Acts) and in the writings of his friend and coworker, Paul. There we learn of his

1. Nationality and Religion. His name, "Luke," is a contraction of the Greek name "Loukios" and, since we know from Colossians 4:11 and 14 that he was not "of the circumcision," we know he was a Gentile and evidently a Greek. When, where and by whom he was won to Christ, we do not know. We do know that this intelligent Greek, versed in all the philosophies of the perfection of personality, found in Christ the fulfillment of all his desires and dreams.

2. Profession-a Physician (Col. 4 14. See also medical terms in all his writings). Luke wrote scholarly Greek; he was familiar with the life of a sailor (Acts 27); he joined with his scientific accuracy an esthetic culture often revealed in his writings.

3. His Friends. A man's friends indicate his character. Luke had a close friend and possibly a patron, "his excellency" Theophilus (Acts 1:1; Luke 1:3), evidently a man of standing and ability. He was also a close friend and fellow laborer with perhaps the greatest man of all time, Paul the apostle.

4. His Activities. Fellow missionary with Paul (Acts 16:11; 20:5, 6, and elsewhere), physician, preacher of the gospel, and author.

II. The Book-the Gospel by Luke.

To have written a book may be a doubtful distinction, but to have been used of the Holy Spirit to write such a book as this Gospel-what an honor and privilege! Following Dr. 'G. Campbell Morgan, we note:

1. Its Subject. "The Word" (Luke 1:2). He wrote about the perfect personality of Jesus Christ, but he, like John (John 1:14), recognized that it was the divine and eternal Word which became flesh in the perfect humanity of Jesus Christ. 2. Its Sources. He doubtless read what many had written (Luke 1:1). He also talked with "eyewitnesses" (Luke 1:2) and "ministers of the word" who had known the Lord. His sources were excellent and unimpeachable.

3. Its Method. He "traced the course" (for so does the R. V. properly translate Luke 1:3) of the material he gathered; that is, he did original research and investigation, always under the control and guidance of the Holy Spirit. This resulted in a placing of all things "in order." After gathering, sifting, investigating, the Holy Spirit saw that Luke put all things in proper order (see I Cor. 14:33, 40).

4. Its Purpose. Luke wanted Theophilus (and others who read his Gospel) to know with "certainty" (Luke 1:4) those things in which he was already instructed by word of mouth. Important matters must always be written down, carefully and in order. To pass things on by word of mouth inevitably results in change, conscious or unconscious. So desperately vital a matter as our eternal salvation calls for writings, exact and complete. Luke, who had a knowledge of all these things, was moved by the Holy Spirit to write, and thus we have this glorious Gospel which we are to study from now until the end of

What would you do without it?

• The best way to visualize the importance of banks in your daily life is to imagine carrying on without them. How would you protect your money? How would you pay your obligations? Where would you keep your cash reserve? Without banks our whole economic machine would stall. We would go back to the primitive, unsafe and uncertain financial procedures that existed at the time of the Revolutionary War. Whether or not you are a depositor, banks are important to you and deserve your full cooperation and support.

We will gladly give you full information about any of our modern services.
