This column is not for use in advertising any money-making program, fair, supper, party or sale. It is intended for news, personals, and such matters as may be of community interest.

Churches, Lodges, Societies, Schools, etc. are requested to use our Special Notice Department for money-making events.

Churches are especially given free use of our Church Notice Column, for brief notices concerning regular or special services. Larger events will be cared for elsewhere in our columns.

It's time now to buy apples for winter use. See our Special Notice column and patronize near-by dealers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, of Baltimore, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bankard, on Sunday.

Fred Garner is taking a course at Bliss Educational School, Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Jester, of Wilmington, Del., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Norman R. Baumgardner.

Mr. and Mrs. David Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Brown, spent from Sunday until Wednesday at the New York World's Fair.

Mr. Milton Myers, of Pleasant Valley, spent Sunday with Mrs. Lizzie Zepp and sons, and also called on other friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stonesifer visited Mr. and Mrs. Delmer McCleary, of York, Pa., Saturday afternoon and evening.

Augustus Crabbs is having a large 38x40 ft. garage erected on his recently purchased lots, on George St. extension.

The slight snow-fall of last Saturday, Oct. 18, was unusual, but not wholly unexpected, as very cool nights had preceded it for a week.

Miss Nettie Flanagan and Mlle. Jenne K. Farny, of Foxcroft School, Middleburg, Va., were guests of the Brining's, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin H. LeFevre and two daughters, Ruth and Margaret, of Baltimore, spent the week-end with Mr. LeFevre's grandmother, Mrs. M. H. Reindollar.

Last Sunday visitors at the home of J. Raymond Zent and family, were: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schamel and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schamel, of Baltimore.

Merwyn C. Fuss, Pres. and Charles R. Arnold, Cashier of The Birnie Trust Co., attended a zone meeting of the Md. State Bankers Association at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, in Frederick, Thursday night.

Miss Rosanna Keilholtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grier Keilholtz, returned home on Thursday of last week, after finishing a three years training course at the York City Hospital, York, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Walter L. Stonesifer entertained her Sunday School Class of the United Brethren Church at her home on Thursday evening. Delicious refreshments were served.

Those who called on Mrs. Sarah Keefe, of town, were: Mr. and Mrs. C. Hossler, of Frederick; Mr. Winer and Missouri Keefe, of York. All enjoyed their dinner at Sauble's Inn, on Sunday.

Mrs. C. R. Hockensmith, of town, spent a week visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Twisden, of Gettysburg, and also visited her cousins at Shippensburg, Orangetown and York, Pa.

Last Sunday there were 55 who went on the last excursion to the World's Fair from the Taneytown Station—and it was a cold day for such a jaunt. We have not learned the number from other stations.

The workers' conference of the Carroll District was held in the Lineboro Lutheran Church, last Sunday afternoon and evening. A luncheon was served to delegations from throughout the county, about twenty-five being present from the Taneytown Lutheran Church.

The Blue Ridge Rubber Company is again adding to its already large plant, by building an extension to the southwest side of the parent building. This addition is to relieve the crowded condition of the plant in the manufacture of rubber goods.

The Luther League will be the host at a Halloween party for the enjoyment of the congregation of Trinity Lutheran Church on October 31, 1940, at 7:30. Games will be played for young and old, and refreshments will be served. Come and meet the "Horrors of Death."

Sergeant Raymond M. Zent, of Quantico, Va., spent Sunday at home with J. Raymond Zent and family, of Keymar. He says that about all the men and planes have been sent to Cuba, and that all the old wooden barracks are being replaced with modern brick buildings. He expects to be transferred in the Spring, but does not know at this time where he will be sent.

There are still a few "hold off" Calendar buyers who have not placed their usual orders. Second and third choice must now be made, as we can not guarantee to be able to furnish all numbers. We have commenced printing orders that have been received by us from the manufacturers. A good large order came from Hagerstown, this week.

COUNTY C. E. CONVENTION

An Interesting Annual Event Held Last Saturday.

The Carroll County C. E. Union met in annual convention last Saturday, at Providence Methodist Church, near Gamber. The morning session was devoted to Junior work, in charge of Miss Gussie Blizard, former Junior Superintendent.

The opening service was in charge of Nancy and Esther Evans, of the Carrollton Church of God and Anna Mae Hartsock and Louise Foreman, of Grace Reformed Society, Taneytown, and others.

Miss F. Lillian Rodenehe, former State Union President, addressed the Juniors and Intermediates on the convention theme: "Christ Calls the World to Fellowship." The falling of snow interfered with the recreation period as planned.

The afternoon session opened with Miss Rose Beal, superintendent of the Taneytown Society in charge. Talks and greetings followed, and Mrs. Aaron Myers missionary on furlough, addressed the convention.

The entire session was both interesting and inspiring, but we lack both time and space to reproduce all features.

In the afternoon the vice-president of the Taneytown area, Edward Reid, presided. The Rev. J. B. Jones led the song service and the devotionals, Ray C. Hook, chairman of the nominating committee reported and the secretary, Miss Mary Shriver, submitted the following names, which were elected. For president, Rev. John Bailey Jones; vice-presidents for the various areas: Taneytown, Edward Reid; Silver Run, Irvin Flickinger; Manchester, Gerard Kauffman; Carrollton, William Mann; Deer Park, Howard Bonner; Westminster, Euodis Gonso; Wakefield, Clarence Staub; secretary-treasurer, Miss Mary E. Shriver, Taneytown; Junior Superintendent, Miss Rose Beall, Taneytown; intermediate superintendent, Mrs. Mahlon Grimm, Woodbine; Missionary Mrs. Gussie Blizard; publicity, Miss Mabel R. Albert; finance, Cleveland Bateman, Carrollton; Citizenship and Evangelism, Frank P. Bohn, Union Bridge; C. E. World representative, Cletus Dutterer, Silver Run; and the Advisory Board, the Rev. John N. Link, Smallwood; the Rev. Dr. Lawrence C. Little, Westminster; Rev. Guy P. Bready, Taneytown; Ray C. Hook, East View; Merwyn C. Fuss, Taneytown; Harry C. Gonso, Westminster; Charles Ritter, Keysville, and Rev. E. W. Simms, Finksburg.

Rev. Dr. Lawrence C. Little, dean of Christian Education, Western Maryland college, conducted a conference on "Efflowship." The county thru-the-year program was presented by a member of the advisory board, Rev. E. W. Simms, suggesting various monthly activities during the year. Carroll M. Wright, Boston, Mass., was in charge of an open forum, and answered various questions and problems of societies and members, and the closing meditation was given by Mr. Baker.

CHURCHES OF GOD CLOSE ELDERSHIP.

Pastors were assigned and the Knoxville Church of which Rev. S. A. Kipe, is the minister, was selected for the 1941 meeting of the Maryland and Virginia Eldership of the Churches of God, at the closing session held at Uniontown, Carroll county, Friday.

The meeting next year will be held at the Knoxville Church on October 16th. There were few changes in the ministerial appointments for the ensuing year.

The Rev. Preston Lucas, Boonsboro, was ordained at the session on Thursday night, at which Rev. Roy Schreiner, Harrisburg, Pa., spoke.

At the annual dinner of the Ministers' Wives Association, Mrs. Harry C. Gonso, Westminster was re-elected president; Mrs. F. H. Snively, Hagerstown, vice-president; Mrs. Clarence McGaha, Brunswick, secretary-treasurer.

Ministerial assignments are as follows:

Frederick, Rev. William P. Jackson; Brunswick, Rev. John Meyers; Samples Manor, Bakerton, Knoxville, Rev. S. A. Kipe; Martinsburg, W. Va., Rev. John Gonso and Hilda Gonso; Carrollton and Winfield, Rev. C. O. Sullivan; Uniontown, Wakefield and Frizzellburg, Rev. John H. Hook; Zittletown and Edgewood, Rev. W. A. Herpich; Germantown and Woodsboro, Rev. F. P. Brose, New Baltimore First Church, Rev. Levi Waggoner; Sharpsburg, Blair's Valley, Maple Grove, Rev. C. W. Fink, Mount Briar and Chestnut Grove, Rev. G. A. Taylor.

Blue Mountain, Broadfording, Fairplay, Rev. J. E. Stephens; Locust Valley, Antietam, Pleasantville, Rev. Clarence McGaha; Hagerstown, Rev. F. H. Snively; Mt. Lena, C. H. Barr, supply; Friendship, standing committee; Creagerstown, hands of Board of Incorporation; Bark Hill, Oak Hill, Friend's Creek, Rev. Preston Lucas, Rev. F. A. Frazer, general evangelist; Mrs. Hazel Beard, general evangelist, Rev. C. D. Cunningham, Rev. Wilson Hummelbaugh, Rev. S. B. Myers and Rev. Levi Carbaugh, superannuated.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES IN WESTMINSTER.

Evangelistic services are being conducted in the Church of the Brethren, Westminster, with song service each evening at 7:45 o'clock and the regular service at 8 o'clock. Rev. J. O. Winger, of Manchester, Ind., is in charge. Next Monday night will be family night, and next Friday night will be Young People's night.

REGISTRATION FIGURES AND THE VOTE CAST

A Problem that has Existed for a Great Many Years.

The following is the number of voters now on the books of the Registrations of voters of Carroll County, given by precincts, following the registration of 1940.

District	Prec.	Dem.	Rep.
Taneytown	1	282	438
Taneytown	2	225	466
Uniontown	1	155	273
Uniontown	2	220	241

New Windsor	2	481	282
Union Bridge	1	298	454
Mt. Airy	1	501	407
Berrett	1	416	448

Total 9783 8592

To the above is to be added 98 voters who declined to state affiliation: Prohibition 20; Independent 145; Progressive 1; Socialist 1; Union Party 1, a total of 266. Then add Democrats 9783 and Republicans, and the complete total vote is 18,641 in the county.

The total registered vote in 1938 was published, as follows:

Democrats	9590
Republicans	8403
Declined	106
Prohibition	26
Independent	141
Socialist	2
Total	18,268

It is noticeable that the Democratic candidates for State office, Senator, Member of Congress and Judge, carried the county by good sized majorities; but with county offices the situation was different, the following Republican officials having been elected in 1938.

State Sen.—Shipley, Rep.	6489
Conaway, Dem.	5917
Clerk Court—Levi D. Maus, Rep.	7843
Benson, Dem.	4922
County Com.—N. R. Hess, Rep.	6910
H. H. Wine, Dem.	6664
C. W. Melville, Rep.	6385
Sheriff—Shipley, Rep.	7272
Conaway, Dem.	5796
County Treas.—Paul Kuhns, Rep.	7060
Horich, Dem.	4584
Orphans' Court—Ebaugh, Rep.	6126
Green, Rep.	6123
St. Att'y—G. N. Fringer, Rep.	7052
Bair, Dem.	5484

The highest vote in 1938 was for Governor.

O'Connor, Democrat	6852
Nice, Republican	6554

Majority for O'Connor	298
Total Vote Cast	13,406
Total Votes Registered	18,268
Total not Cast	5,362

And so, registration figures are not to be depended on, as showing what may come out of the ballot box in Carroll County.

HELP CHINESE "KIDDIES."

Recently, we published Rev. Hallock's appeal for his Chinese "Kiddies," to which a few have been contributing, annually, for some years. It is necessary to send contributions now, on account of the long time taken to reach China, by mail.

We will make our remittance not later than Nov. 1. Please send us your donation, at once, if interested, even in sending a small amount.

WAR AND AGRICULTURE

Will be Discussed at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

"The effect of the war on American Agriculture" will be discussed by Chester C. Davis, Washington, D. C., a member of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank, at the second day's session of the annual meeting of Southern States Cooperative from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and North Carolina at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

This meeting, which will have as its theme, "The Use and Usefulness of Southern States Cooperative," will be devoted to discussions of ways in which the cooperative may serve rural people more efficiently and help them to attain a more satisfactory place in the economic world. W. G. Wyser, of Richmond, Va., general manager, explained in announcing the meeting. Southern States Cooperative, with a membership of 99,000 farmers, furnishes rural people with more than 200 supplies on a cooperative basis at approximately 700 localities.

Mr. Wyser will review the organization's annual report for the year ended June 30, and Hon. Ruth Bryan Hohde, of Alderson, W. Va., will deliver an address on "Agriculture Cooperation in Denmark." Governor Herbert R. O'Connor, of Maryland, will welcome the representatives at the opening session.

Employees who have been with the cooperative for ten years will be presented a service award by H. H. Nuttle, Denton, Md., another director.

Representatives of Southern States Cooperative in Carroll County who have been invited to attend this meeting include the following: E. L. Eichman, George B. John, J. Herbert Snyder, E. D. Peters, George M. Wachter, Lester F. Grossnickle and Charles W. Moore, Union Bridge; W. Roger Roop, Keymar; H. Clay Putman, Middleburg; F. A. Dorsey, V. C. Leatherwood, Jonathan Dorsey, Alton Wilson, J. S. Bushey, E. C. Davis, Sykesville; J. C. McKinney, Edwin Wyckoff, Willis Cissel, Griffith Jones, W. H. Hill, John C. Duval, Spencer Mullinix, and John Warfield, Woodbine; Russell Eckard, Percy Bollinger, Luther Harner, Geary Bowers, Taneytown; Harry Welk, of Westminster; Clarence Derr, Keymar; A. D. Shoemaker, Milton Flickinger, Wilson Crouse, William Bish, John Mummert, David L. Crabbs and Milton A. Crabbs, Littlestown, Pa.

PREPARE FOR NOVEMBER 5th.

You will perhaps never be called on to have part in such an election for President as that which will occur on Tuesday, Nov. 5th.

The issues are very unusual—the "new deal," the third term test, and at the same time the war in Europe, and how it may affect us.

Either one of the three, standing alone, involves our democracy as a Nation—rule by the people—and should call out a strong and unmistakable verdict. Such situations shake the very foundations of government, as Washington and Lincoln laid them.

No petty, selfish prejudices, should obscure the realities of what we are facing, for a mistake now is bound to follow into the future of our Nation.

Conscience, and a determination to make our X marks as independents and non-partisans—so far as previous party affiliation is concerned—should guide our use of the pencil on the ballot.

HISTORY OF THIRD TERM.

The Record publishes on the editorial page, this week, what is the most comprehensive article on this subject that we have ever read. It is non-partisan, and believe that it is entirely worth reading for the information it carries. It has been clipped from The Christian Science Monitor. If interested, and you should keep a "Scrap Book," we believe it worth preserving.

A MASON & DIXON RALLY.

A Mason & Dixon rally by Republicans of both Pennsylvania and Maryland, was held at Harney, Thursday evening. Speakers from Maryland were Mrs. Zerra Lewis of the Wendell Wilkie Club, Mr. Larry Hoffa, Theodore F. Brown, Republican candidate for Congress from Maryland, and one from Gettysburg. The event was well attended.

Albert Murray of Granite Hill thought he had killed the grandfather of all squirrels last week when he brought down a white one. But it was not so—the creature was of the albino variety, very scarce in this section.—Eastern Shore Times.

LUTHERAN CONVENTIONS HELD IN THE WEST.

Large Attendance at Des Moines and Omaha Gatherings.

The eyes of Lutherans and others interested were turned during the first half of October to Des Moines, Iowa, and Omaha, Nebraska, where four different conventions, representing the United Lutheran Church in America were held.

The first was a Young Woman's Congress, representing the younger branch of the Women's Missionary Society, which was held at Des Moines on Saturday, October 5th. This was followed by the triennial convention of the Women's Missionary Society, beginning with the Communion on Sunday, October 6, and with business sessions covering half of the following. This was a large and enthusiastic meeting, delegates and visitors totaling over three thousand.

The meetings at Omaha were for the men, but many of the women attended as visitors. First the Brotherhood held its convention at the same time as the women were meeting at Des Moines. Then the biennial convention of the U. L. C. A. followed at the same place and brought together 541 delegates and about 500 visitors.

The convention dealt in large figures. More than one and a quarter million confirmed members make up the U. L. C. A. The contributions for benevolence for the two years were over $5,750,000 and the total expenses of all congregations for the same period were more than $35,000,000. The Women's Missionary Society sent more than $578,000 for the general work of the Church, besides a large amount spent for special objects. The U. L. C. A. includes about 40 percent of the Lutherans of America, the other 60 percent, being divided among the Synodical Conference (Missourians), the American Lutheran Church, and smaller independent bodies.

The opening sermon of the convention was preached by Rev. Dr. F. H. Knobel, president, who took for his text Psalm 5:8: "Make thy way straight before my face." It was an earnest appeal to the whole Church to humility before God, that we may be able to see clearly what God wants us to do in this time of confusion and war.

The principal time of the convention was given to the study of the reports of the boards and agencies of the Church, and to making plans for the next two years. The volume of the business is indicated by the fact that the reports made up a book of 500 pages, printed in type the size of newspaper type.

Among the larger boards, the Board of American Missions reported that it had cared for 768 missions, congregations. That a new mission was established every 17 days during the two years, and that a mission became self-sustaining every 26 days.

The Board of Foreign Missions reported that total number of missionaries as 178, with 3,524 native workers, and a total baptized membership in the missions of 200,776.

The Board of Education, of which Rev. Dr. Gould Wickey, well known in Taneytown, is executive secretary, reported that the Church has 12 theological seminaries in the United States, Canada, India and Japan; also 14 colleges, one junior college, and 12 special high schools, with a total student enrollment of 12,337. The total assets of the schools is more than $26,000,000.

The Board of Ministerial Pensions and Relief reported the total pension family as 1,143. About one-third are retired or disabled ministers. The other two-thirds are ministers widows and orphans. The board has been paying to retired and disabled ministers 83 cents per day; to widows 54 cents per day; to dependent orphans 13 cents per day. This is far below other leading denominations, as the Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and others.

A new plan was adopted for the future, according to which pastors and congregations will each pay a percentage of the pastor's salary annually, somewhat on the insurance plan. The new plan will become operative when 500 pastors and their congregations agree to it. Those now on the roll must be taken care of in the old way.

The four boards mentioned above receive 88.64 percent of the total U. L. C. A. apportionment paid in. Other boards to report were the Executive Board, the Board of Social Missions, the Publication Board, the Parish and Church School Board, the Board of Deaconess Work, and about twenty-five or more standing committees and commissions.

The convention approved the appeal of the Lutheran World Convention for $500,000, to be used for refugee work, and for the sustentation of missions heretofore supported by other countries, and now left without support on account of the war.

The convention, for the most part, was harmonious, but there were occasions for sharp debate, as with regard to steps looking to closer relations or organic union with the American Lutheran Church, third body in size of Lutherans in America; the matter of conscientious objectors to military service; the proposal to have the U. L. C. A. take over the control of theological education, which is now vested in the separate synods.

The debate over relations with the

INSTRUCTION IN FIRST AID WORK.

The Carroll County Chapter of the Red Cross has organized a class in first aid, the instructor Dr. Billingslea meeting at the Armory in Westminster, Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30.

The only expense attached is the cost of the book used. This is a wonderful opportunity and it is the earnest hope of the chairman that there will be some representatives of Taneytown District attending. It would then be possible to have a class in Taneytown with a local instructor.

UNION REFORMATION SERVICE.

For some years the Reformed Churches of Carroll Co. have sponsored on the last Sunday in October of each year a Union Reformation Service in observance of the historical importance of the Protestant Reformation. It is the custom on these occasions to secure some outstanding leader in the Reformed Church as the guest speaker.

The service this year will be held on Sunday evening, October 27, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Reformed Church at Pleasant Valley, Rev. Charles E. Rebert, pastor. The anniversary speaker will be Rev. Dr. Lawrence E. Bair, Professor of Pastoral Theology in the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church at Lancaster, Pa. Dr. Bair is a noted teacher, a profound theologian, and an excellent speaker. Members of the Reformed Churches of Carroll County, especially, are urged to be present to participate in the service and to hear Dr. Bair's address on some phase of the Reformation, which resulted in the establishment of the Protestant family of Churches.

DRAFT BOARDS AT WORK.

No. 1, Carroll County, with temporary quarters in the Grand Jury room at the Court House, Chief Judge Parke will head the advisory Board, along with Theo. F. Brown and Ivan L. Hoff, Attorney Boylan, appeal agent.

No. 2 will have temporary quarters in the rear room of the Union National Bank, with J. Pearre Wantz, Sr., with Levi D. Maus and James M. Shriver, with D. Eugene Walsh, appeal agent.

The medical examiners are: Dr. Charles R. Foutz and Dr. S. Luther Bare, Westminster, and Dr. James T. Marsh, New Windsor. They will have charge of the men in districts: Taneytown, Uniontown, Myers, Westminster, Middleburg, New Windsor and Union Bridge; Dr. C. Levine Billingslea and Dr. Lewis K. Woodward, Westminster, and Dr. J. Stanley Grabbill, Mt. Airy. Their districts are as follows: Woolerys, Freedom, Manchester, Hampstead, Franklin, Mt. Airy and Berrett.

HISTORY OF THE THIRD TERM QUESTION.

There has been a great deal said during the past few months concerning the Third Term question, and among it possibly a lot of misunderstanding and lack of real information. As a matter of fact, it is a very old question in National politics and has a long history.

The best survey of it that we have seen, unimixed with present partisanship, is that written by Dr. William Masterson, Professor of Law, Temple University, Philadelphia, a Baptist institution. We do not know that we are violating any copyright, in publishing it, as follows:

"Two-term precedent! Washington set it, and Jefferson established it. How? Since Washington presided over the Convention and was thoroughly acquainted with the ineligibility proposals adopted therein, his retirement at the end of two terms was most significant. While President, he wrote to Madison: 'The spirit of government may render a rotation in the elective offices of it more congenial with (the public's) ideas of liberty and safety.' If earlier in 1788 he expressed doubt as to the advisability of ineligibility, it was because he believed that there could not be 'the least danger that the President will by any practicable intrigue ever be able to continue himself one moment in office, much less perpetuate himself in it, but in the last stage of corrupted morals and political depravity.'"

Jefferson was the most ardent opponent of a third term. "The service for eight years," he wrote while President, "with power to remove at the end of the first four, comes nearly to my principle as corrected by experience; and it is in adherence to that, that I determine to withdraw at the end of my second term." As to the future, Jefferson declared: "No pretext should ever be permitted to dispense" with the precedent, "because there never will be a time when real difficulties will not exist, and furnish a plausible pretext."

Since the Constitution did not limit the President to two terms, this was left to the wisdom of statesmen who were to launch and establish the new government, and to the unwritten law. Almost to the end of the Constitutional Convention, however, a single-term clause was voted, but this clause was omitted when it was decided by the Electoral College rather than by the national legislature.

Has any President before Franklin D. Roosevelt ever questioned the two-term precedent since it was established? Grant, a Republican, did, but he had been out of office four years and did not seek a third consecutive term. The Democrats likened him to Caesar, his party refused him the nomination, and the National Republican Convention and Republican Convention of six States passed anti-third term resolutions. Hayes, who thwarted his ambition, recommended a term of six years with ineligibility. Garfield opposed a third term. Cleveland, in accepting the nomination of the Democratic party in 1884, wrote: "We recognize in the eligibility of the President for re-election the most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent action which must characterize a government by the people."

Theodore Roosevelt did not seek a third full term. When he ran in 1912, he had served only one full elective term and part of another one; and he had been out of office for four years. Just before his election in 1904, he declared that it was a "wise custom which limits the President to two terms,—and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination." Taft noted that it "would have been a voter provision, as it was at one time voted in the Convention, to make the term of President six or seven years, and render him ineligible thereafter." Woodrow Wilson suggested: "Put the present customary limitation of two terms into the Constitution, if you do not trust the people to take care of themselves, but make it two terms." Coolidge declined to campaign for a third-term nomination after serving only one elective term.

For 125 years our national representatives have from time to time gone on record as supporting ineligibility. The Senate proposed an amendment in 1824 by a vote of 36 to 3 to make a President ineligible after two elections. By a vote of 234 to 18, the House passed a resolution fifty years later, declaring that "the precedent established by Washington and other Presidents,—in retiring—after their second term, has become by universal concurrence a part of our republican system of government." The Senate in 1928 repeated this resolution verbatim.

The two major political parties have likewise condemned a third term. In 1875, the Republican National Convention and six Republican State conventions passed anti-third term resolutions, and the National Convention repeated its action in 1940. At its National Convention of 1896, the Democratic Party resolved that it was "the unwritten law of this Republic." It took like action in 1912.

Have not these 150 years of precedent given us an unwritten law, a tenet of the unwritten Constitution? However, the antagonism to a third term is by no means merely a tradition.

It has been put into actual and definite words by no less an authority than the Democratic party itself.

In 1896, the Democratic party incorporated the following declaration of policy in its platform:

"We declare it to be the unwritten law of this republic, established by custom and usage of 100 years and sanctioned by the examples of the greatest and wisest of those who founded and maintained our government, that no man shall be eligible for a third term of the Presidential office."

SELFISH ADVERTISING.

It is almost an unbroken habit, for a newspaper publisher to enter into a contract for space at his lowest price, and then have the advertiser to follow up by coming along with a lot of "reading notices" boosting his product, and expect them to be used, free of charge, as "news," but is news only of the successful selling that newspaper and magazine have made possible.

The publisher, of course, can decline the contract for space; or, he can decline the news readers; or he can pursue the middle course of "throwing in," once in a while, one of the news articles.

But, this same scheme does not attach only to merchandise—notably automobile—but has a much wider scope of operation. The easy-mark editor-printer meets the advertiser in many lines of printing. It's a sort of game that is played, almost as though the printer's product nets him a large profit, and that "giving away" service costs him very little, and at the same time helps some activity or institution in this town and community.

And when he helps "subscribers," even free, that should be just in his line. And this shows that although we have fine schools and churches they miss the idea of doing home mission work as sometimes existing outside of their own special line.

SPEAK SOFTLY.

A quarter century ago, while he was president, Theodore Roosevelt said: "Speak softly, but carry a big stick."

It looks now like some one has been speaking blusteringly—but with no stick in hand nor in easy reach. That is not good diplomacy.

A Nation, as well as a man, should be able to make good all promises, and threats. Not much use to whine over lost billions—they are gone, and must be "paid by the sweat of the brow of every working man" as candidate Roosevelt truly stated, in his campaign in 1932.

Seven billion dollars, in seven years, has been spent on preparedness, and we are not prepared. Why? Who is to blame?

We are now getting a start, and if we keep it up we can, in a few years, be physically prepared to meet and repel any power that would attempt to invade our shores. Good, but let's not yell about it, but just go ahead and do the job with grim determination to see it thru.

If we stop this nonsense of setting class against class and all pull together, business will prosper, and when it does, labor will draw wages.

Labor can't draw wages from idle factories. So all together, and we will succeed. Speak softly. Why bluster and brag. W. J. H.

NOT THE SAME OLD AILMENTS.

The National Industrial News Service, that has been active in connection with the present campaign—mainly "anti-third term—now assures the country that while the third term is a puzzle, it further says:

"Let us ask you: 'Do you remember one of these presidential elections that was not described at the time as 'the most important election in all of our history?' Well, that's what is being said about this election. It may be a good guess. Anyhow, the race will be finished November 5. The United States Government has rocked a good many times over wars, depressions, panics, and faults of Administration. We have the same old ailments and diseases in 1940 that existed in the days of our grandparents—plus a lot of new ones."

We remember a good many presidential elections. There were always important questions; for instance the Bryan "16 to 1" silver doctrine; the "protection and free trade" years; the "World War" and the peace treaty, and then the promised "new deal" that would benefit the whole country.

Yes, every election had its "most important"—at the time problems; but we do not agree with the N. I. News Service that the election of this year is "just another" Presidential election with the "same old ailments."

The situation at present is more serious than that. Of course, somehow we will get through it, but the "some how" is more important than ever before. The "plus a lot of new ones" is our problem now.

SOCIAL SECURITY.

Frequent reference is made by speakers and writers to the social gains of the present Administration at Washington, but far too much is taken for granted with regard to what the gains are. When we take a name or a phrase at its face value, we are often permitting ourselves to be deceived.

When one asserts that he will try to preserve the good that has been accomplished, it does not follow that legislation as now on the statute books can be considered in any sense as final, or that it would even accomplish the end for which it is designed.

One of the things used as an argument for the success of the New Deal is the term "social security." It appeals to a large proportion of our people. In so far as it is a recognition of the responsibility of the people at large to care for the aged and unfortunate, in some more appealing way than by resort to "the poor house," it is a distinct gain; but the present set-up for social security is a delusion and a snare.

The same thing could be said with regard to the gain for labor and agriculture. There are few people who would deny the right of labor to collective bargaining; but that does not mean that the monstrosity known as the National Labor Relations Board is a worthy addition to our governmental machinery, or that its actions conduce to the advancement of the interests, even of labor itself, much less to the general welfare of the whole people.

In like manner it must be admitted that every farmer is entitled to his "share of the national income;" but it does not follow that we have been on the way to permanent justice for the farmer by the fanatical schemes of the past few years. Farmers, many of them, are coming to see that for themselves, and are demanding something more rational and more permanent to secure justice for agriculture.

But, to come back to "social security." We have been collecting a vast amount in taxes on employers and on wages, but where is the "security?" Established principles of insurance, or of banking, would require that this money be put into a reserve for the payment of the obligation on retirement; but instead of that it is poured into the general treasury and used for general purposes, and the "security" we have is an annual deficit amounting to billions of dollars.

More than that, while we are making promises of what we will do for people in old age—promises which can be kept only by further ruinous taxation,—we have been taking away their security, by forcing the income from savings to an unreasonably low point, thus making it impossible for many to help themselves, which is a far better way to security than by public doles.

We need to properly distribute the responsibility for the unsavory mess that has been created. Of course the head of the government must bear a large share of it, but the situation would never have come about without the votes of a "rubber stamp" Congress. Every member of both houses of Congress must give an account of himself, and of the way he has handled the public trust committed to him.

On November 5, let us not only select a sensible business man as president, but let us see to it that we choose congressmen for both houses who will support with all their power and ability, the crusade to bring the American government back to sanity and genuine democracy.

86% READ EDITORIALS.

Editorials are the number 1 attraction of the East Orange (N. J.) Record according to a recent survey of reader preference conducted by this suburban weekly.

Replies to a small questionnaire which outlined all the departments and features of the newspaper revealed that 86% of the Record's subscribers read the editorials regularly, and 13% occasionally. Personals ranked next with 73% regular and 20% occasional readership.

A miscellaneous item headed "Business Briefs" furnished the big surprise of the survey when it was found that 74% read these short items about local business regularly and 6% occasionally.

Letters took next honors with a 60% regular and 18% occasional readership closely followed by a column of reminiscences titled "Do You Remember," with 53% regularly and 24% occasionally.

Though not always read as a regular feature, better than 75% of all readers read the political columns at some time.

Interest in state and national politics outweighed considerations of local political affairs, but the fact that East Orange has a large population of commuters to New York and Newark may account for this submergence of local interest.—The American Press.

Poultry Pest Control

Will Increase Profits

Lice and mites know all the tricks necessary to put a poultryman's books into a maze of red ink, but an entomologist at Michigan State college knows how to take care of the pests.

Two treatments a year, fall and spring, are recommended, although commercial poultrymen find that it often pays to take necessary precautions more frequently.

Remember that lice live on the birds and that mites inhabit the coop and the roosts, for this means that two separate treatments are required.

A simple control for mites after a coop is thoroughly cleaned is to spray the interior with half crankcase oil and half kerosene. The spray must penetrate cracks and crevices and cannot be applied with a paint brush.

Lice are controlled by treating the birds. The simplest method, says Dibble, is to place a thin line of nicotine sulphate on the clean perches just before roosting time. The body heat of the birds releases the nicotine which penetrates the feathers. This treatment must be repeated in 14 days but it will kill most all forms of lice. The repeat treatment is necessary to kill those that hatch from nits or eggs present at the time of the first treatment.

New Types of Plants Are Disease Resistant

Agriculture department scientists have opened new fields of adventure and exploration in the development of new type plants.

Their discoveries have been worth billions of dollars to American farmers. One of the most recent of these points toward the development of a disease resistant tobacco through the crossing of American types with others.

Not all plant scientists work over test tubes and microscopes in big office buildings. The department sends men all over the world in search of new kinds of plants. Others work in fields to adapt plants to American soil and climate.

Bureau of plant industry scientists returned four years ago with native tobacco collected in Mexico, Central and South America. Many of those were crossed with American-type tobacco and the result has been amazing even to the scientists.

Irrigation by Electricity Is An Ideal Substitute for Rain

This overhead spray system provides "rain" when and where needed.

By IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

MANY farmers feel that the only purpose of irrigation is to meet a normal and recurring deficiency of rainfall in arid and semi-arid sections of the country. However, each year more and more are coming to realize that, with the occurrence and recurrence of droughts in many other areas, irrigation in regions where there generally is sufficient rain is not only financially sound but also often absolutely essential.

In such humid areas, irrigation most often is profitable and necessary for crops that are costly to produce, have short growing seasons, are quickly perishable when matured, and are appreciably affected by short periods of inadequate rainfall. The danger of losing the value of the great amount of labor as well as the cost of fertilizer necessarily expended upon special crops is greatly lessened if not entirely eliminated by the installation of an adequate irrigation system. Then too, it permits land to be prepared for planting at any time in the summer and seed to sprout despite dry weather.

For the foregoing reasons, truck farmers have been the largest users of irrigation outside the normally dry sections of the country. But, as knowledge of the methods, advantages and economy of irrigation has become more widely disseminated, its use for orchards, pastures and numerous field crops is being employed on a steadily-growing number of general farms.

There are three general types of irrigation: Surface, sub-surface and spray. The first of these is subdivided into furrow, flood and porous pipe methods; the second into ditch and pipe systems; and the last into revolving sprinkler, low-pressure perforated pipe, overhead pipe sprinkler and eyelet hose types.

Complete information on the various systems of irrigation, the conditions under which each is preferable, and whether or not you can use it at a profit, can be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, your state college or university, your power company or the manufacturers of irrigating and pumping equipment.

As it is economical, dependable, quiet and requires little or no attention, an electric motor is the ideal source of power for irrigation where high-line electricity is available. On those farms which do not yet have electric service, a tractor can be used. However, if it is too powerful for the job at hand, to avoid extremely high power costs and rapid deterioration of equipment, a gasoline engine of the correct horsepower should be installed. Whatever the power, the use of irrigation for crop insurance should be carefully considered by every farmer whose income has been affected by drought.

LIMING OF SOILS AIDS PRODUCTION

Process Is Necessary to Destroy Harmful Acidity.

By PROF. G. D. SCARSETH

(Soil Chemist, Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station, Lafayette, Ind.)

Liming the soil is like lathering the face before shaving. Lathering simply paves the way for a smooth, clean shave; liming only prepares the soil for better crop production.

Just as shaving requires a razor in addition to soap and water, so the best crop production requires, in addition to liming, the use of fertilizers carrying nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Not all soils are acid, nor do all soils need lime. But where soil acidity occurs it is "Public Enemy No. 1" and lime is the G-man that destroys it.

To use fertilizers on acid soils without first employing lime to correct the acidity is like trying to run a race with lead weights in your pocket.

But if neither liming, adequate fertilization nor legumes are used, then agriculture must inevitably fall back on the White Man and Indian rotation. The recipe is this: Let the White Man have the soil 100 years to destroy its fertility, and let the Indians have it 5,000 years to rebuild it with forests. The forest trees "limed" the soil naturally by pumping back to the surface, through their deep roots, the soluble plant foods which fertilized the earth as the leaves fell to the ground and decayed.

Soil acidity is due to the absence of calcium, magnesium and potassium. When the soil is virgin or very fertile, the clay particles in the earth were saturated with these soluble alkaline elements. But through continuous cropping and the prolonged movement of rainwater through the soil, these elements are loosened and washed out of the soil. Then hydrogen from the soil waters becomes attached to the spots on the clays where these food elements had been removed. Thus the soil becomes acidic and the clay particles themselves, are the source of the soil acids. And unless they are provided with alkaline elements, the soil will remain acid.

Since clays in the soils are the principal sources of acid, a heavy clay soil would have more acidity to be neutralized by lime than a sandy soil with only a small amount of clay.

To summarize the situation: If soils are acid, lime should be applied to correct this condition in order to secure best results from the fertilizer used.

Farmers Developing

New Saving Methods

Agriculture has greater assurance of permanency if it can maintain its soil and raise better crops, according to Dr. George C. Moore of the soil conservation service, United States department of agriculture.

In one instance, he said, 1,200 New York farmers aided, for the fourth year, in completing methods for saving soil and water on sloping agricultural land. A wealth of information has accumulated.

Results have become evident in increased yields, for potatoes and silage corn alike, Dr. Moore reported. He suggested other better-farming practices to go along with contour tillage, strip-cropping, and diversion ditches, such as pasture improvement, better care of woodlands, and greater use of alfalfa and permanent hay. He said these help toward a better live stock balance on a cash crop farm.

Root Zones Are Needed

For Good Plant Growth

Since air in the soil is essential for plant growth, a root zone 3½ to 4 feet should be provided for such common farm crop plants as wheat, corn, soy beans and alfalfa. This may be provided through an adequate system of underground drainage, in which the mains and laterals act as air ducts through which air circulates and from which it feeds out into the soil at the joints. Surface inlets aid in this matter of soil ventilation.

Root zones, which are above the water table, secure their moisture through capillary attraction. Capillary simply lines the soil pores with a film of moisture, leaving air space so that the plant food is then available to the growing plant, both air and moisture being present.

Fowl Paralysis

The outstanding symptom of fowl or range paralysis in poultry is disability of a bird's legs, wings or eyesight. This is because the disease affects the nervous system. An affected bird may gradually lose its ability to stand. Similarly, the wings may droop or drag and the head turn or twist unnaturally. If the nerves of the eye are affected, blindness sets in. As for treatment, about the only thing one can do is to kill off all affected birds.

Novel Electrical Device

Finds Buried Meteors

The invention of a mathematics professor has brought to Ohio State university what is said to be the finest collection of meteorites in any college in the country.

The meteorites were unearthed in Texas and Arizona last summer by Prof. Lincoln LaPaz with the aid of an electrical device which he had built. The instrument is believed to be the first ever used to record the presence of magnetic and meteoric material beneath the surface of the ground.

To the geologist the few meteorites which finally reach the earth after their flaming flight through space are valuable. One weighing a pound would be considered a prize. But with the aid of Professor LaPaz's instrument the university has increased its collection many times and it now contains meteorites weighing 40 pounds.

The professor first became interested in meteorites while tracing their paths mathematically. From this he turned to their actual collection and the invention of a device which at last puts the search for meteorites on a scientific basis.

Boy Conquers Mountain

With Mere Bicycle

Poor old Mount Si, maligned, libeled and blamed in the past for everything bad which happened around North Bend, Wash., including earthquakes, has at last been utterly humiliated.

The venerable peak, near the eastern King county line, has plumbed the humble depths; it has taken a swift kick in the pants; it has been hoisted upon a fearsome petard; it has drunk of bitter tea than General Yen ever sipped.

In short, Mount Si has been conquered by a bicycle, which automatically transforms the once-proud upthrust into nothing more than a 4,190-foot molehill.

All this was brought about by the rather awesome determination of George Kirchner Jr., young cycling enthusiast of North Bend, it was revealed.

Kirchner and 10 fellow members in the Pacific Northwest Cycling association were pedaling in the North Bend area Sunday when one of the party, whom you can blame for all this, suggested climbing Mount Si.

"If this is a cycling tour, it's a cycling tour," declared Kirchner firmly. And to illustrate the point, he began pushing his light touring model cycle up Mount Si's craggy flank.

Two and one-half hours later Kirchner, helped by two of his friends, carried the bicycle up the last few hundred precipitous feet to Si's bald pate, leaving behind him a trail of trembling lady hikers and popeyed gentlemen hikers.

Then, throwing a leg over the saddle, Kirchner declared:

"I'm going to ride this thing back down." Seven lady hikers swooned.

But Kirchner, undaunted, threw out an anchor, applied the brakes, dragged both feet and bounded down the mountainside. He managed to ride most of the downward trail, friends said, with the aplomb of a Mexican jumping bean riding a rubber ball.

Kirchner brought back several mementoes of the trip. He is painfully aware of them when he is not standing.

Courtesy and Justice

District Judge C. D. Murane of Casper, Wyo., one day complained of the noise from a truck engine being tuned up just below the courtroom window. After silencing the disturber, the bailiff of the court noted frequent locomotive whistle blasts near the courthouse. So he wrote a letter to the railroads ordering them to silence their whistles. Worried railroad officials called the judge and said they would be glad to comply with the order but there was a city ordinance that required them to blow whistles at crossings. The judge, who hadn't heard about the letter, told them to go right on whistling.

Balanced Diet

Ninety-five per cent of all bread fed to the patients of 12 leading hospitals of New York city is white bread.

No one food, not even milk, can supply the adult body with all the materials needed for growth and vitality. But, says Miss Kobe, dietitian of the Broad Street hospital, each of our chief foods—bread, milk, meat, fish, poultry products, fresh fruits, cereals and vegetables—taken in suitable combinations, accomplish this result. Diet is much a matter of temperance and variety in eating. Neither too much nor too little of any of its elements should be eaten.

CORRESPONDENCE

Latest Items of Local News Furnished By Our Regular Staff of Writers

We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by Fast Mail, west on W. M. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach in time.

All communications for this department must be signed by the author; not for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributed are legitimate and correct. Items based on mere rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted.

We thank our good correspondents for their very interesting news items.

FEESERSBURG.

We have an early beginning of winter, and a more beautiful vision of earth we've never seen than on Sunday morning. When the first snow flakes began falling on Saturday about 1 o'clock, we thought we were "seeing things" so rubbed our eyes, and then the glasses, but soon the flakes came so plentifully that we realized a snow-fall was here on Oct. 19, 1940 and by night the earth was clothed in white—pure and lovely as ever.

A good sized flock of wild geese flew southward last Wednesday. They first appeared in V formation then straightened out in a line. No wonder they were seeking a warmer climate.

The organized class of boys and girls of the Sunday School at the Brethren Church in Union Bridge, taught by Mr. Berkeley Bowman, hold monthly meetings at the homes of the members; so last Wednesday they met at Jean John's home and had a good evening together.

Services this coming Sunday at Mt. Union will be the Holy Communion following S. S. at 9:15 A. M., and in the evening at 7 o'clock the annual ingathering of fruits and vegetables for the Deaconess Mother House, Baltimore. There will be a special program of music, and talks by the pastor, Rev. G. E. Bowersox and Rev. Paul J. Sampson of the Methodist Church, who once labored among the mountains of southwestern Virginia will be the guest speaker. He has kindly given up his regular service and invited his membership to accompany him to this one—all are welcome.

Some of our neighbors attended Lovefeast at the Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren on Sunday evening. We are pleased that the general public does not make an outside picnic of this sacred occasion—as in our youthful days.

Mrs. Cleon Wolfe will represent the Women's Missionary Society of Mt. Union at the annual Synodical Convention meeting in the Lutheran Church at Catonsville this week. Rev. John C. Bowers, pastor, Mrs. B. Clinton Ritz, of Waynesboro, Pres.

Mrs. Bucher John spent Tuesday of last week at her family home in Westminster, the Geiman's on College Hill to visit their friend, Miss Leola Eddy, recently returned to her home from a Hospital in Baltimore after an operation, feeling much relieved and in fine spirit.

Edward Wolfe and daughter, Erma of Bark Hill, with his son Marcus Wolfe and wife, of Philadelphia, were callers at the C. S. Wolfe home early Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bohn, Washington, D. C. spent Sunday with his cousin, Russell Bohn and family, on Big Pipe Creek. We imagine there was plenty of music as all are musically inclined—with piano, violins and voice.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. David Abbott and daughter, Patty, at Spurrier's corner, came from Conn., and took them to their home for a week's visit promising to bring them home. Mr. Abbott is a victim of acute rheumatism, and this will be a fine vacation for him and his.

L. K. Birely and sister Sue with friends, spent Monday afternoon in Hanover on business.

On Monday morning, Mrs. G. B. John accompanied the Homemakers' Club of Union Bridge on their tour to historic Williamsburg, Va., and other points of interest along the route. The bus they chartered could carry 40 persons comfortably; and they returned on Tuesday evening.

About 25 cars were in the Republican tour as it passed through this town last week, enroute from Union Bridge to Middleburg—where they halted long enough to give a smile and hand-shake all around, then passed on to Keymar and other places.

The Smiling Sunbeams of Mt. Union consider their supper for the Kiwanis Clubs of Taneytown and Union Bridge last week a success for them; as they had plenty of food, decorated, pretty ladies to serve it, handsome fellows to assist them; and realized nearly $20.00 as there was only 20 guests—that seems generous.

We are in receipt of a copy of "The Maryland Endeavor"—after an absence of 15 years; but it is in print again, and will be published every six weeks if enough interest is manifested throughout the state. It keeps one informed of the C. E. work in the counties, as well as the Christian fellowship of the youth of Maryland.

We are "locking the door after the horse is stolen"—so since the snow and Jack Frost have nipped things we are busy taking the beets from the garden to cellar, gathering the last beans, and all the green tomatoes taking up the geraniums, etc.—and now we are ready for winter; but Indian Summer is yet to come.

Corn husking is in order, only Monday was too cold to continue the work, and maybe in a few days it will be too warm. We are hard to please.

Canada has no flag of its own. The Union Jack is flown there, usually with the tricolor when there are French Canadians. A special flag is used by the governor-general.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert DeJona, Sioux Center, Iowa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brendle.

Two of Adams Counties oldest squires in years of service, reside in the same locality of the county. It has long been a matter of dispute as to who has served the longest period of time as Squire. Settlement was reached when these two men Harry Snyder, Mt. Joy Township, and Howard G. Blocher, Littlestown met. It was finally decided that Squire Snyder holds the honors with 43 years continuous service. With Squire Blocher a close second with a total of 40 years service. Blocher handled many more cases than Snyder.

Election of officers in the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary of St. Aloysius Church took place. The following were elected: Miss Mary Reta Reddings, Prefect; Mary Weaver, first assistant, and Evelyn Althoff, treasurer.

J. J. Keller, McKnightstown, and Willie J. Wherley, Gettysburg, R. D. 1, automobiles sidwiped on the highway at Two Taverns. Keller was travelling south when Wherley who had been parked on the east side of the highway, headed north, and pulling away from the side of the road when the two cars collided. The car driven by Keller continued on for 72 feet west of the left side of the road, over a four foot lawn, struck a porch and then crashed against the home of Mrs. J. J. Eppley. Mrs. Eppley and her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Eppley who had called at the home were seated in the kitchen when the crash occurred, going into the living room to investigate, they came face to face with Keller who was seated in his car. The car had knocked down the stone wall of the dwelling, falling a section about six feet wide and eight feet high. Part of the wall was thrown halfway across the room, the wall was 18 inches thick. State Police took Keller to the Annie M. Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, where he was treated for lacerations of the face and head and right leg. Wherley was unhurt. Damage to the house was estimated at $400; the car was damaged to the extent of about $100; Wherley car about $10. Keller won't be charged with house breaking.

LUTHERAN CONVENTIONS HELD IN THE WEST.

American Lutheran Church had to do with three questions: the theory of inspiration of the Bible, whether verbal and "errorless" or of a broader interpretation; the exchange of pulpit and altar fellowship with pastors and people of other denominations; and membership in secret lodges. The U. L. C. A. has always taken a broad view on these matters, but a statement formed by a commission of the two bodies "admonished" pastors and congregations, in the hope of bringing the U. L. C. A. over.

After prolonged debate, and a plea from President Knobel, the statement was adopted by a divided vote; but the matter did not end there. Reconsideration was threatened, and a public interpretation of the statement which largely pulled its teeth, was forced from the president and ordered spread upon the minutes. This was led by the Maryland delegation and others, with Dr. Wentz, president of the Gettysburg Seminary, directing the movement. A formal protest was presented by the Central Pennsylvania delegation, led by its president, Rev. Dr. Hamsher, and signed by about 95% of the delegation, in which they declared that that synod would not be bound by the declaration. This protest was also spread upon the minutes.

Another battle took place over the control of theological education. A commission wanted to make the commission final examiners of students for the ministry, and to have the last word in granting aid to students for the ministry, instead of leaving these matters to the synods. After a sharp debate the convention rejected the report entirely and discharged the commission.

In the matter of "conscientious objectors" to military service, the convention took a stand recognizing the right of an individual to follow his conscience, but at the same time recognizing the duty of citizens to support their country in time of war. The convention followed the declaration of the Augsburg Confession, that nations may wage "just wars", and that Christians may serve in them.

The relation of America to the Vatican came up for consideration. President Knobel had sent a protest to President Roosevelt against the sending of a representative to the Pope of Rome, as "unnecessary," "un-American," and "disruptive of American unity." He asked that a committee be appointed to formulate a statement for the convention. It was decided that the protest of President Knobel should stand as the action of the convention.

The officers of the Brotherhood and of the U. L. C. A. were re-elected. The Women's Missionary Society gets a new president in the person of Mrs. Orville A. Sardeson, an outstanding church worker of New York, who was a delegate to the International Missionary Council at Madras, India, last year, and who visited our missions in India, China, and Japan.

An interesting side-light on the U. L. C. about one-fifth of the delegates had to register under the conscription law, showing what a part young men had in the deliberations of the Church. As the delegates could not be at home on that day, arrangements were made for them to register at the court house in Omaha.

The next convention of the U. L. C. A. will be held in Louisville, Kentucky.

Among those attending the conventions were George R. Sauble and Harry B. Fogle, who were delegates of the U. L. C. A.; Mrs. Harry B. Fogle, who was a delegate to the women's convention; Norman R. Baumgardner, who was a delegate to the Brotherhood convention; Mrs. George R. Sauble, Mrs. Norman R. Baumgardner and Mrs. Margaret E. Nulton who were visitors.

BABY AND FLOWER SHOW

A Contest Held at the Taneytown High School.

A very fine baby show was held in the Taneytown High School auditorium on Thursday evening, Oct. 17th. The show began at 4:30 and lasted about an hour. There were thirty-three babies in it, twenty girls and thirteen boys. It was a very hard proposition for the judges to select the winner in each class. There were three classes. Class 1, from 6 months to 1 year; Class 2, from 1 year to 2 years; Class 3, from 2 years to 4 yrs. The judges were Mrs. Sherman Flanagan, and Mrs. Irvin Ebaugh, Westminster; Mrs. Cyril Roterger, Emmitsburg. They selected Robert Teeter Cingan as winner in Class 1; Norma Jean Blum winner in Class 2; Evelyn Romaine Wilhide winner in Class 3.

The judges used several points in judging. First they considered personality; second health, under health there were several points. First color, second weight, third thumb sucking, fourth nail biting.

The babies who entered the contest were as follows: Barbara Cingan, Lois Brown, Billy Cranster, Joyce Putnam, John Skiles, Elizabeth Shoemaker, Sandra Koons, Michael Dorsey, Suzanne Lawyer, Robert Weller, Larry Eckard, Ray Eckard, Dorothy Rohrbach, LaMar Hilterbrick, Yvonne Lambert, Ray Hilterbrick, Evelyn Wilhide, Ronald Geisbert, Onedia Myers, Nancy Baker, Anna Reaver, Luanna Sentz, Elizabeth Becker, Patsy Becker, Patsy Stultz, Richard Harner, George Abrecht, Nora Abrecht, Bernard Abrecht, Jane Mahoney, Robert Teeter Cingan, Roberta Garvin, Norma Jean Blum. Each baby received a gift.

There were several exhibits that added unusual interest to the flower display. Mr. Tom Albaugh had entered a sunken garden which was very much of a curiosity.

The most unique arrangement was in the form of half a crooked neck pumpkin which was artistically decorated with lovely annuals. This exhibit was made by Miss Shirley LeBeau of near Taneytown.

The loveliest and most exquisite annual was presented by Miss Hazel Hess. This was a beautiful basket of large orchid cosmos.

Our show was surprised with a basket of large white chrysanthemums, which were unusually early for flowers of this type. They were exhibited by Mrs. George Newcomer.

Mrs. Walter Bower had the most extensive display of flowers and received the most honors with her exhibits.

The judges of the flower show were Miss Belva Koons and Mrs. Robert Smith.

HELP CHILDREN'S AID.

Everything is seasonal—even campaigns. The Children's Aid Society of Carroll County must make its annual plea.

This organization founded in February 1929 has done much throughout the intervening years to protect and keep the county's less fortunate children. Its program is one of improvement for the child in supplying its moral and physical, as well as material needs, and is executed by able and willing people.

Each Carroll County is proud of its Children's Aid Society, and wants it to thrive. Each knows it cannot without funds.

The goal this year is $3000 which according to his finances.

The drive ends this week. If you have been missed by the solicitor, please send your contributions to the local office at 84 East Main Street, Westminster, Md.

This marks the last week of the Annual Children's Aid Drive of Carroll County. To each and every one who has not already contributed we ask your earnest consideration of this worthy cause.

The aid you will give will go toward these unfortunate children who have not had the chance in life that the rest of us were lucky enough to enjoy. Ten or fifteen years from now these young ones should be taking an active part in our community. So that we may be proud of them, then let us GIVE NOW!

MRS. FRANK T. MYERS, Pres.

Snappy Comeback

Why is a ship always referred to as "she"? Asked this question while addressing a gathering in Washington, D. C., Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz replied, "Because it costs so much to keep one in paint and powder."

Navy Accidents

Statistics of the navy show that more accidents and fatalities occur to sailors on shore leave than when aboard ship. Motorcycles and autos are especially dangerous, according to a navy yard report.

TELEPHONE PLAYS VITAL PART IN LIFE OF NATION'S FARMERS

Instrument Saves Lives, Money And Time For Three Million U. S. Farm Families

Isolation is not a matter of time or place. It can happen anywhere. Many an American home, in some serious emergency, might be as isolated as a cabin in the Canadian wilds—if telephone service were to fail. This is particularly true in the case of three million U. S. farm homes where the telephone is considered as necessary to the average farm family as the automobile, radio, electric lighting and other similar goods and services.

The instances in which the telephone today serves the farmers of America are many. Hiring or exchanging help and equipment, ordering household goods, arranging deliveries of produce ready for market, and securing assistance in emergencies are all expedited by use of Alexander Graham Bell's invention.

A farmer's wife in Virginia recalls that twenty-five years ago her son's leg was caught in a mowing machine and so badly mangled that he was bleeding to death. Here the telephone played the role of life-saver by summoning medical aid . . . aid which would not have arrived in time had it not been for the speed of telephone service.

Such incidents, which in this day and age can be multiplied many times, illustrate the value of the telephone to the farmer. But there is still further proof of the faith America's rural families have in their telephones. Not long ago 27 farm families made a check of their calls for one month. They found that each family averaged 92 calls during the month, 41 of them being business calls, 10 household calls, 32 social and 9 of a miscellaneous nature. Mrs. Farmer made the largest portion of those 92 calls, with a total of 56. Mr. Farmer was next with 21, while the children and help accounted for 15 calls.

Those figures provide a basis for determining the great use the nation's farmers make of the telephone. As a time saver, a money saver, a protector, and a comfort Alexander Bell's discovery has contributed and will continue to contribute much to the progress of U. S. farmers.

Time for Religion

It isn't all work in the daytime and playing at night in Manhattan, for the New York Bible society announces that it printed and distributed 998,652 Bibles or sections of the Bible here last year.

A MONTH after Fritz Parker joined the navy and was assigned a berth aboard the U. S. S. Marlin he was dubbed "Daniel Boone," and the name stuck. There were two reasons for it. First, Fritz came from Kentucky, and secondly, he was an expert marksman. Quite seriously he admitted it.

"Shucks," he'd say, "I can plug a dime at 50 yards, if there's a glint of sunlight on it so's it can be seen. Yep, I reckon I'm about the best shot in the Pine mountain district in Kentucky."

At which speech his mates hooted and laughed. Their merriment bewildered Fritz. He couldn't understand what was funny about a man telling how he could handle a rifle. Good shots, he thought, ought to be pretty important to the military forces of a country, especially when there was a war on.

"You ought to have joined the army," Jake Russell told him. "There ain't much chance for a sharpshooter to do his stuff in the navy."

Fritz looked worried. "But, shucks, I been livin' on solid land all my life an' I had a hankerin' fer a boat ride. Don't the navy feller never get a chance to shoot?" He glanced around. "Yuh see that buoy out there, the one with the bell? Well, heck, I could ring that bell in one shot." Seized by a sudden inspiration, Fritz jammed a cartridge into his rifle and demonstrated. The bell on the buoy went "ping" and Fritz grinned. "See that!" he said. "Well, I guess there ain't anyone in the army could do better."

This was directly following a deck drill and there was quite a crowd around. Everyone laughed, and there were one or two exclamations of admiration, because the buoy was some distance away and its bell was small.

And then suddenly an ominous silence fell. An officer had come up and his face was dark. "Who," he asked, "did that?"

Fritz beamed. "That was me, sir," he said proudly. "These jiggers didn't seem to think I was much of a shot, and I—"

"So you pulled a Daniel Boone for 'em, eh?" the officer cut in sarcastically. "Well, sailor, you're not in this navy to plug at bell buoys. We've got bigger guns to play with. Come along with me."

Fritz spent a week in the brig. When they asked him where he'd got the cartridge he confessed quite frankly that he didn't see the good in carrying a rifle without having a couple of bullets along in case of need, and was promptly told a few things about military regulations.

The young Kentuckian couldn't understand it. The attitude of the officers puzzled him; the amusement of his mates brought a ponderous frown to his forehead. He had the good sense to keep his mouth shut, to try and figure the thing out for himself, but in this he was unsuccessful. Men without guns, and guns without bullets! And there was a war on!

Eventually the Marlin was detailed to join a convoy scheduled to escort the transport Bragatine to France. They weighed anchor in the chill of an early dawn and put out to sea. Aboard the Bragatine was a regiment of infantry. It was important that they be landed safely in France. Everyone knew this, every sailor and officer and soldier. And everyone knew that the accomplishment of the feat depended solely upon the alertness of the convoy boats.

Least affected, perhaps, was Fritz Parker. Fritz couldn't see the danger. He couldn't understand why a whole bunch of vessels like that, armed fore and aft, port and starboard with guns big enough to blow a whole city to pieces in ten minutes, should be afraid of one little U-boat. Fritz had been told about torpedoes, had read about them and heard endless discussions about them. He knew that if a U-boat ever got the chance to let one loose it might do a lot of damage. But, shucks, with all those guns he didn't quite see how they were going to get the chance.

But they did. It happened five days out of Boston harbor. There was a heavy sea running, and the air was murky. The lookouts didn't sight the periscope until it was too late. Whistles sounded, sirens screamed, bugles blared and orders were barked like the snapping of ships. The convoy began to maneuver. Deck crews rushed to their posts. Guns began slowly to swing into range. Depth bombs were released.

But the periscope had disappeared. And a white, irregular line of foam was marked across the surface of the sea, now invisible deep down in the trough of a wave, now skimming the crest of another. It came on at a relentless, furious pace, and its destination was the hulking broadside of the cumbersome Bragatine.

Below decks at a forward port-hole, Fritz Parker watched the progress of the torpedo, and into his mind flashed a picture of all the things he'd read and heard of the damage they could do. And into his mind, also, there flashed a picture of a swiftly flying grouse. There are few birds that can get through the air more rapidly than a grouse, few that are harder to hit. Only an expert marksman can bring one down when it's in full flight.

Fritz had accomplished that feat, and other feats equally as miraculous. Memory of it caused a wave of pride to surge through him. The torpedo, he thought, was traveling about as fast as a grouse. It would require quite a lead to bring it down on the wing, so to speak.

These thoughts raced through Fritz's mind in a split second, as thoughts are apt to do when a crisis is at hand. Even as he pondered the matter his hand reached back and seized the rifle that leaned close by. The rifle was now loaded and ready for use.

Fritz shoved the muzzle through the port hole, squinted along its barrel and got a bead on the torpedo. Then he swung about the same distance he'd do if it were a grouse, and pulled the trigger. He worked the lever frenziedly and shot again.

Officers and men standing on the decks of transport and convoy ships were abruptly amazed to hear a loud explosion and to see a great geyser of water stream into the air, fully 100 yards away from the Bragatine. There was a moment of awe, wondering silence, and then pandemonium broke loose.

Below decks, Fritz Parker eased the firing pin back into place, stood the rifle against the ship's side and sat down with an expression on his face that indicated he was obviously sunk in the depths of despondency. About him men were milling wildly, babbling incoherently, pounding each other on the back.

Jake Russell came up and whanged Fritz between the shoulder blades. "By God, Daniel, I never see anything like it! I never would have believed it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes! That's what I call shooting!"

Fritz looked up morosely and shook his head. His face wore an entirely earnest expression. There was a look in his eyes of misery and chagrin.

"Quit it, Jake, I could stand for your kiddin' me before, but I'm getting kind of fed up. Shucks!" He gestured dismally. "That there torpedo wasn't travelin' no faster'n a grouse, an' by jingoos it took me two shots to bring her down. Guess now I can't blame you jiggers for thinkin' I ain't as good a shot as I let on."

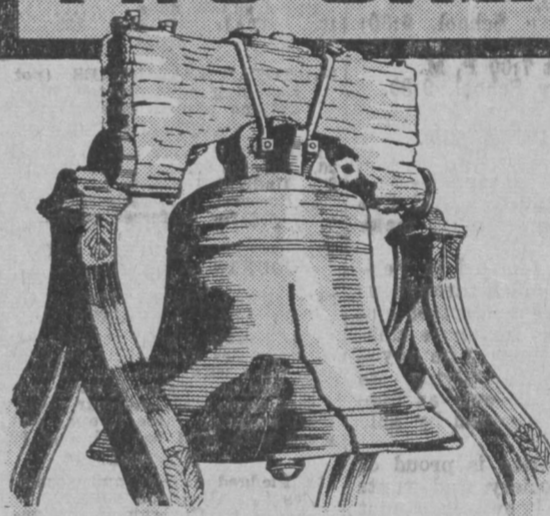

Where Profits Go

Department, dry goods and general merchandise stores throughout the country receive about 52,000,000 complaints a year, which cost merchants on the average one dollar each in operating expense and markdowns, according to William J. Pilat, professor of retailing at the University of Pittsburgh.

Aviation Motor Progress

While it took 15 years to develop the airplane motor from 200 horsepower to 400 horsepower, aviation motors of 3,000 horsepower may be possible within a few years as a result of the rapid improvement of steels, F. C. Crawford, president of Thompson Products, Inc., of Cleveland, predicts.

TWO GREAT SYMBOLS

THE LIBERTY BELL

On July 4th, 1776, the bell hanging in the tower of the old State House in Philadelphia pealed out to the world the news that the United States was a free and independent nation.

Known since that day as the "Liberty Bell," it still hangs in the Philadelphia State House, though no longer in the bell tower, a symbol of the freedom and liberty that every true American cherishes as his sacred heritage.

In these troubled times it takes on added meaning and significance.

THE I. E. S. TAG

In a very different way, the I. E. S. Tag has become a symbol of freedom—freedom from eyestrain and harsh glaring, unhealthy lighting conditions.

The I. E. S. Tag on any lamp is your guarantee that the lamp has been designed and built in accordance with good lighting principles and specifications as established by the Illuminating Engineering Society—a non-commercial, non-profit organization established for the advancement of lighting research and lamp construction.
