Messrs. A. Jennings Green and Alva E. Basler, of Manchester, Md., explored the famous Endless Caverns at New Market, Va., while on a motor trip through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

The February number of The Taneytown Record is especially well edited, and shows a grown-upness often missing in school papers of this class. It is well balanced and full of a variety of excellent articles.

Mrs. Ruth H. Little, formerly of Union Bridge, widow of the late Samuel H. Little, who is making her home at the "Rebekah Home" 17th St. and Allegany Ave., Philadelphia, writes, "I am enclosing $1.00 for my subscription, as I would miss The Record very much, as I still read of some I used to know, but so many have passed on. I am just getting over an attack of laryngitis. (I am sure Mrs. Little would appreciate a card or letter now and then.—Ed.)"

Each guest, not including the newly weds, were asked to bring some groceries. During the course of games and contests Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowers were sent on a grocery hunt that ended at the range, in the oven they found a decorated cake with a miniature bride and groom on top. There was a decorated birthday and anniversary cake. There were several vocal and instrumental duets and group singing. Everybody enjoyed the evening, which was well planned. Refreshments were served to twenty-five guests.

OLD PRINTING FORMS

The Maryland Journal and a Sale Bill.

We have received from Mr. George Koons, of Keymar, two copies of old printing, one of which is a fac-simile, and not genuine. It is a copy of The Maryland Journal, dated August 20, 1777, Baltimore, which was succeeded by the present Baltimore American. The first facsimile of this paper was issued by the Baltimore American in 1876, and we think, once since. As both paper used and the type, were old style, it easily leads to the conclusion that it is as old as it appears.

The second specimen is genuine, it is a Public Sale bill, very much like those in use today, but smaller, for farm personal property. It reads as follows:

The subscriber, as executor of Joseph Koons will sell at public sale at the late residence of said deceased, near Bruceville, on the Taneytown road, on Monday the 16th. day of March instant, part of the personal property of said deceased, consisting as follows: One three-year-old colt; three cows with calves by their sides; 2 heifers, 4 or 5 shoats, one sow and pigs, also 75 bushels of wheat, 16 bushels of rye and a lot of corn and oats by the bushel, 3 acres of wheat growing, together with a parcel of Farming utensils, and Household and kitchen furniture, also 1 sleigh.

PETER KOONS, Executor.
March 3, 1846.

(It will be noted that no terms of sale are given, nor hour of sale.)

VOL. FIRE COMPANIES AND THE PUBLIC.

The Taneytown Volunteer Fire Company has been called out quite a few times in the past year to extinguish chimney fires. These fires, in themselves, are relatively harmless if kept under control, and perhaps do much good in cleaning out the chimneys to prevent future recurrence of the mishap.

However, a chimney fire has been the beginning of many serious fires, and are not to be considered lightly. It is in this interest that the speedy responses of our fire company to these calls is to be lauded. Thousands of dollars are saved annually right here in our community by our fire department, by preventing waste and destruction.

In the past, conditions have been noted that would seriously hamper the good work of our fire department. One of these is the failure to give the fire truck the right-of-way on its way to the fire. Another one of the many violations of laws is the following of the truck too closely, endangering lives of the men on the truck as well as the driver and passengers in the vehicle following the truck.

There are penalties for the infraction of these laws, and for the benefit of all, we are reproducing here with the legal regulations in regards to fire engines on the road.

We quote below the Rules of the road relating to fire trucks, taken from Section 235 of Article 56 of the Annotated Code: "Upon the approach of any fire department vehicle giving audible signal by bell, siren, or exhaust whistle, the operator of every other vehicle shall immediately drive the same to a position as near as possible and parallel to the right hand edge or curb of the highway, clear of any intersection of highways, and shall stop and remain in such position unless otherwise directed by a police or traffic officer until the fire department vehicle shall have passed. It shall be unlawful for the operator of any vehicle other than one on official business to follow any fire apparatus traveling in response to a fire alarm closer than six hundred feet or to drive into or park such vehicle within six hundred feet to the place where fire apparatus has stopped in answer to a fire alarm."

Any person operating any vehicle in a manner contrary to any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction, subject to a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense."

TANEYTOWN PASTOR RECEIVES CALL.

The Rev. Irvin N. Morris, pastor of the Taneytown and Piney Creek Presbyterian Churches has received a unanimous call to the Clintonville Presbyterian Church, Clintonville, Penna., it was learned last week. Clintonville is 70 miles north of Pittsburgh. Mr. Morris has been the pastor of the local Presbyterian Church for four years. It was made known this week that Mr. Morris has declined the call to Clintonville.

A HAGERSTOWN AIRCRAFT PLANT TO BE BUILT.

An Aircraft Company in Hagerstown promises to supply 100 war planes monthly instead of 100 a year, as at present. About April 1, it is reported that a $1,000,000 factory addition, will be at work, increasing production to 50 planes a month.

About 1400 workmen will be employed, or 1000 more than at present. The Company now has a lot of unfilled orders totaling $10,000,000. Practically all of the planes will be military but some commercial planes will be built. The project is being backed by a $982,000 government appropriation.

The outdoor advertising industry in America, in the course of a normal year, distributes about $30,000,000 in annual payrolls.

PARI-MUTUAL BILL HEARING THURSDAY.

Held at Annapolis with large Delegations present.

At the hearing before the Ways and Means Committee of the House, Thursday afternoon a large delegation appeared opposing the pari-mutual betting at the Fair. The main speaker was Rev. Luther B. Hafer who said they would rather see the fair discontinued than have it carried on through gambling. This was the main discussion as expressed by all opponents appearing.

Truman B. Cash, representative of the Fair board spoke in favor of the bill as introduced. He said the Fair Board had debts of about $30,000, and that the side of the for "has as many Christians as the other," and added that betting is permitted at other fairs in the state, each of which turn into the state treasury an average of $13,000 a year, and that if this form of racing is approved, the same amount would be received from Carroll County, as well as greatly benefit many local interests.

NO HIDDEN BILLS IN CLOSING RUSH.

Gov. O'Connor says there will be no hidden bills in the closing rush hours of the legislature that is growing to an end. The Baltimore Evening Sun of Wednesday, comments as follows: "For the present session, Governor O'Connor announced today, plans have been completed to provide mineographing equipment in the State House that will make it possible to put on every member's desk within one hour every amendment proposed to bills in which the administration is interested, and probably those affecting all bills. The new system will be ready to go into action as soon as the Assembly reaches the rush stage, Mr. O'Connor said.

Although the announcement drew no applause from professional lobbyists, it was received with gratitude by members who have been overwhelmed during past sessions in their efforts to keep up with the deluge of bills and amendments pouring through the Senate and the House of Delegates in the closing jam.

It was pointed out that the Governor's virtually revolutionary innovation will enjoy only a semi-official status, because the executive branch exercises no officially constituted control over the legislative arm of the government. This lack of official status, however, will not prevent the executive department from making up copies of amendments as fast as they are drawn and distributing them to the desk of the members.

"I think it only fair to the conscientious members of the Senate and the House of Delegates," said Governor O'Connor.

GOV. O'CONNOR SIGNS STATE REVENUE BILL.

Governor O'Connor, on Wednesday, signed a state tax reduction bill, which is believed will reduce the state tax $1,500,000. It is said that the income tax revenue was reduced from 6 to 5 percent, and the levy on earned income dropped from 2½ to 2 percent.

A few other measures were included in the reduction. The Governor warned, however, that the State Roads Commission is faced with the problem of building access roads to Fort Meade or other National Defense parts, but felt sure that taxpayers would be willing to put up money for such purposes.

NATIONAL DEFENSE TRAINING.

The National defense training program is functioning in the county at three centers, Westminster, Hampstead and Union Bridge. Three courses, two in acetylene welding and one in electricity, are being given at Westminster, an acetylene welding course is set up at Hampstead, and an auto-tractor repair and maintenance class has been organized at Union Bridge. These courses are financed 100% from federal funds and are designed to train more men for technical positions in war industries and for emergencies in case of actual war conditions. There is no cost to the student taking these courses, and anyone who is interested in self-improvement should deem it a great privilege and a patriotic duty to enroll in these classes. Courses run from eight to twelve weeks and are being conducted during evenings. Certificates are issued to trainees at the conclusion of courses and records of accomplishments are forwarded to Washington where they are filed.

With the war industrial expansion developing as rapidly as it is there should be no difficulty for industry to absorb all and even more than is possible to train under this program. Trainees so far have experienced no difficulty in securing work in the so-called war industries.

Anyone interested in defense training and self-improvement should contact the office of the Board of Education or S. P. Caltrider, supervisor of national defense training, Westminster High School, Westminster, Md.

S. P. CALTRIDER.

A study which was recently made of the American machine tool industry—whose production is, absolutely vital to national defense progress—has revealed the possibility of a total production of $750,000,000 output for the present year, though present orders total but $423,000,000.

HARRY W. NICE DEAD.

Stricken with Paralysis while Visiting in Virginia.

Harry W. Nice, former Republican Governor of Maryland, and long prominent in Republican state politics, was the victim of a heart attack early Tuesday morning, in Richmond, while returning to Baltimore by easy stages after a vacation in Florida.

Mr. Nice had been very popular both within and outside of his party, and was what is termed a "good campaigner." He had been a candidate twice for Governor in 1919 and 1934. He lost in 1919, his first defeat being by only 169 votes. His defeat last year represented his only campaign for U. S. Senator.

He started early in his political aspirations, first after becoming of age he became a candidate for the House of Representatives from Baltimore County, but was defeated by 21 votes. In 1903 he was elected to the City Council by a margin of 2 votes.

To years later he lost re-election by 16. He was next Republican candidate for Orphans' Court, but while all other candidates were defeated by a landslide, he was defeated by only 360. By that time, young Nice had established a record for a "vote getter" and was thereafter steadily in politics—even to Nationwide.

Funeral services were held at his home in Mount Washington, this Friday and interment will be in the Mausoleum at Greenmont cemetery, in charge of Rev. Daniel L. Edlies, pastor of the Methodist Church at Mt. Washington. Tuesday evening's Baltimore Sun said of him, editorially, in part:

"Baltimore, which has seen Harry Nice rise above all but insuperable difficulties to the Governorship, has naturally accumulated a wealth of anecdote and tradition about him. His career as a lawyer was peppered with entertaining stories and Nice sayings, most of them doubtless apocryphal. But all of them added to the general affection for Harry Nice, even among citizens who could not convince themselves that he ought to be elected Governor. A man who has enormously entertained so many, helped so many more and been elected to the highest office in the gift of his State has achieved more than most men do. Not even Harry Nice's severest critics would take any of it away from him."

HIGH SCHOOL ORATORIAL CONTEST.

The Department of Maryland of the American Legion is sponsoring a High School Oratorical Contest under the direction of the Americanism Commission in connection with the National-wide scholarship contest.

The high schools of every community have been invited to select a contestant to compete in the district contests to be held during the month of March. The winners of the district will be the guests of the American Legion when they attend the State contest to be held week of March 25.

The state winner will receive a gold medal and $25.00 in cash, and the opportunity to compete in the National contest for the $4000.00 Cantor scholarship in any college or university in the United States as well as the expense free trip to the National contest. The winner will also be presented with an engraved wrist watch. There are also valuable awards to second, third, and fourth place awards in the National contest. The department of Maryland offers a silver medal and $15.00 in cash to the second place winner; silver medal and $10.00 to the third place winner; and a bronze medal to the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh place, respectively.

The fourth district of Maryland county and district contest for Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties are being organized under the direction of Charles Shipley District Vice-Commander of the fourth district of the American Legion and Arthur H. Griffie, Chairman of the High School Oratorical Committee with the assistance of the county superintendents of the public schools, high school principals, teachers, and Americanism chairman and post commanders of the several Legion Post of the fourth district.

The public is invited to attend the county and district elimination contests and to encourage the students of their local high-schools to participate.

The contest designed to encourage our young people to take increased interest in our form of constitutional government and its blessings is an outstanding opportunity for our youth.

The contest is open to all students in the 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th grades. Further information can be obtained by applying to the local high school principal, Post Commanders of the American Legion, Americanism Chairman, or direct to Arthur H. Griffie, Sykesville, Md.

CONGRESSMAN BYRON LOSES LIFE IN AIRPLANE CRASH.

Congressman William D. Byron, of the Sixth Maryland District, whose home was at Williamsport, Md., was one of seven killed in an airplane crash at near Atlanta, Georgia, on Thursday, shortly after 1:00 A. M. A number of passengers were seriously injured, one of them seriously. He was 45 years of age.

Research has now developed a new process by which wood, in a manner similar to industrial plastics, can be heated and then shaped to any desired form.

JAMES E. BOYLAN ASSOCIATE JUDGE.

Appointment made by Governor on Monday.

James E. Boylan, Attorney, Westminster, was appointed Associate Justice by Governor O'Connor, as had been thought likely for some time. He succeeds Judge William H. Forsythe who recently became Chief Judge.

In announcing the appointment the Governor following the recommendation of the State Bar Association, and on the belief that he is fully qualified for the honor by both Judges and Attorneys of the Fifth Circuit to perform the duties of the office.

Judge Boylan has been a practicing Attorney in Carroll County since 1923 and has lived his entire life in Carroll County, and had been associated with the law firm of former Frances Neal Parke and Judge Bond.

TANEYTOWN KIWANIS CLUB GUESTS OF DR. LEGG.

The Taneytown Kiwanis Club held its weekly meeting as the guests of Dr. T. H. Legg at his cottage near Union Bridge, on Wednesday evening, February 26, at 6 o'clock. President Harry M. Mohney presided. Mrs. Wallace Yingling led the period of Club singing.

After the members of the Club had enjoyed a sumptuous oyster supper, served in buffet style, Dr. Legg as Chairman of the Underprivileged Child Committee took charge of the program.

Dr. Legg introduced the topic of Underprivileged Child Activity by calling attention to a movement begun in 1909, which has for its objective a national conference to stimulate interest in and to provide care for underprivileged children. The conference meets every ten years the last conference having been held in 1939.

Dr. Legg thinks that there is an opportunity and a responsibility on the part of the citizenry of our country for the underprivileged child, especially in view of the contemplated changes to be expected in the American way of government and living after the present war, and the unusual and abnormal economic and social conditions which now confront us on account of it. In order to prepare for these changed conditions, anticipated for the future, Dr. Legg suggests the need for a thorough child survey from the following points of view:

BABIES ARE LIKE PLANTS

Comparing babies to plants in their common need for sunshine, proper food and intelligent care, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said:

"Sunlight helps in a very wonderful way to convert certain elements in the baby's food into bone strengthening substances. But because of clothing and our modern ways of living we are all of us cut off to a large extent from the direct sunlight that is necessary to build strong healthy bodies. Babies in particular are affected by the lack of the necessary direct sunlight and special efforts have to be made to safeguard them against the results of this lack.

"When we look at plants that have been deprived of direct sunlight we can understand better what happens to babies similarly situated. The plants soon show it in weakened stems, poor color and in other ways. Babies deprived of sunlight react in much the same way. They are pale; their bones are soft and pliable; and deformities develop. The whole system lacks strength and the babies develop what is known as 'rickets.'

"Bowlegs, knockknees similar deformities of the arms and chest and of other parts of the bony structure of the body are all associated with rickets and are usually due to the lack of the necessary strengthening substances in the bones. Fortunately such deformities are unnecessary and can be prevented—and further development can be checked and brought under control by adding cod-liver oil to the baby's diet.

"Because it is useful in helping to convert certain food elements into bone strengthening substances, cod-liver oil is sometimes spoken of as 'liquid sunshine'. There are also certain other oils that have been specially treated and that have the same effect. Your doctor will advise you about them.

"Be sure your supply of cod-liver oil is fresh. Buy only a small quantity at a time. Keep it in a cool place. Wipe the bottle thoroughly before using."

LETTER FROM ANNAPOLIS

Concerning the Different Steps taken in Passing Bills.

(To The Carroll Record)

The County Roads Bill (Senate Bill 71), providing for the maintenance and control of our roads by the County Commissioners, has been passed by the Senate. The Bill was then sent to the House. Ways and Means Committee and we are now awaiting by that committee. The Carroll County Delegation is now attempting to have the Ways and Means Committee take immediate action.

As an example of the complexities involved in passing a bill through the Legislature it may be of interest to list the various things that may still happen to our roads bill, even though it has passed the Senate where it has already gone through one of the channels outlined below:

1. Favorable Report: This means that the Ways and Means Committee has approved the Bill and has sent it to the floor of the House. The House may accept or reject the "Favorable Report." If accepted the Bill will later be brought up for third reading and final passage. It may (Continued on Fifth Page.)

Random Thoughts

BE CONTENTED.

The most of us should be contented with our lot—or at least be grateful that it is no worse. By comparison with many we know, we are quite apt to agree that we are better off than they.

The world is full of major and minor ills and misfortunes, and while many suffer physical ills, there are almost sure to be others worse off.

We should spread about us the gospel of content. Perhaps one personal interest manifested helpfully, may help ourselves and others.

If we have a good home, for instance, not incumbered with debt; if we are able to get about, not as cripples, we are fortunate. Making a survey of our situation is almost sure to lead to thankfulness.

"JOB-BOSSSES."

Every community has its would-be boss-jobs—those who like to run things public and political, and to figure as a leader, socially that have a political trend—some matter of government, if you please.

He believes thoroughly in the Josh Billings' motto, of "Always play to win—a game that ain't worth winning ain't worth playing."

These boss-jobs are not gutters but apt to be harmless. It's a kind of police job grown into a habit. True, he has not had many watches and chains given to him for his services and popularity.

On the whole, we think he adds more of profit than loss to a community, and naturally there are some who do not like his ideas of things and of what ought to be. Sometimes it is worthwhile to have a strong dissenter in a community. Even if we disagree with them we may, learn something by doing so.

AT CAMP MEADE.

Young men at Camp Meade are reported to be having a good "soldiering." There are reported to be about 15,000 there, of which some 5,000 spent a holiday in Baltimore, while many others found different attractions, and some just went on explorations.

As there will soon be 27,000 in camp, of course the leaves will be increased. Arsensals at Aberdeen, Holabird and Edgewood will be a place for the draftees, and of wider interest to others, as training camps cover a wide variety of education necessary to play the war game.

Being away from home naturally places them among many restraints. They are away from many pleasures and indulgence in many customs, social or otherwise.

Some, undoubtedly, are having the best time in their lives, but many very decidedly are not; and what the future contains for them, nobody knows. And what of the parents, sisters and brothers—and best girls.

A STORY, AND A QUESTION.

Here is a story and a question asked by an Accident Insurance Company. It seems to us that other questions might be properly asked in like cases. One is, whether the pedestrian is given a fair deal by a lot of non-taxpaying speeders—perhaps half drunk, who act as though they own the highways? Here is the story.

"When the white man first set foot on our shores he was beset with many perils, not the least of which were the resentful Indians. Many a Pilgrim chest was pierced by an arrow winging its way apparently out of nowhere and many a skull was split by an unseen tomahawk. Yet the white race survived to dominate in America."

Why? Because the white man recognized danger and strove to meet it. He learned to walk with the stealth of his red brother, to avoid open spaces in the forest, to sharpen his senses, to move quickly and surely. Then he taught these precautions to his children. And the red man, lacking his initiative, all but vanished from the face of the earth.

Something of this Pilgrim spirit and fortitude is needed among pedestrians today. All around them are dangers, far from insurmountable, but pedestrians heed them not. Instead, they cling to the out-dated idea that they can use the streets when and how they please, disregarding the fact that their ranks are thinned by many thousands every year. Is the pedestrian to become "the vanishing American?"

HOOVER AND PERSHING SHOULD KNOW.

Former President Hoover has appealed to people of America to care for 300 million people short of food supplies, and he has proposed a plan to feed one million adults and two million children in Belgium, "to test out whether these people can be saved without military advantage to either side." He recalls World War history, when the German Government and the Allies were kept away and did not "grab" any of the food contributed for relief of the hungry.

General John J. Pershing has issued a statement supporting Mr. Hoover, in which he says: "I have every confidence that the salvation of these people can be worked out along the lines proposed by Mr. Hoover, without military loss or benefit to either side." And the General said: "The interest of this committee of maintaining American ideals and the friendship for America of these nations by saving these millions is worthy of the support of every American."

The former President suggests a food plan for the "small democracies," and he tells how it can be done, and how the work could be stopped within two weeks if Germany tried to butt-in, or capture any of the food supplies.

Opposition to sending American food overseas, even from supplies that are now going to rot, has been based upon the general belief that it would not reach the real sufferers in the small democracies. The former President has the confidence of the American public, and so has General Pershing. "There are things in this world not silenced by ideological argument or armchair strategists or declamation," Mr. Hoover said, and he asks: "Can you believe that American public opinion or the spiritual leadership of America has so lost its bearings as to be opposed even to an effort to aid those who lie in the ditch of war?"

The war-crats in Washington think they know better than Mr. Hoover! But they don't!—Industrial News.

WHEN THE SHADOW TURNS.

For some years designers of men's clothing have been trying to convert the male American to a livelier sartorial palette, with slow success. The recent preview of spring fashions in New York, however, predicts an approaching "era of elegance" in men's attire in "jewel" tones, including twilight blue, Capri blue, plum, wine, maroon, and green. Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar, it is noted complained that the men she saw about town were only "blue-gray shadows timidly following in the wake of their wives."

If the forecast proves accurate, the facile pen of the copy-writer will be leaping more exuberantly than ever across the half-page advertisements of the retail stores. No longer will the seller of worsted suits be permitted the modest announcement that "these are offered at substantial savings" or that his wares are "year 'round weights." He will be gurgling instead, "Let us clothe you with the suit that fits your character. No more conservatism! Wear our Beau Brummel model in sapphire, amethyst, or ruby. A suit to please even that critical woman-in-your-life."

For the man of affairs he will offer the "career costume." Casual as a stroll at Palm Beach, yet smart as a walk through the Bois de Boulogne before the occupation. Watch the contracts roll in. Prosperity by day and popularity by night! "Choose the color that 'does things for you.' We have it in spinach green, ice blue, coral pink, and shirred aqua."

What an "elegant era" it will be when the "blue-gray shadow" begins to take the lead!—Christian Science.

THE BUDGET AND TAXES.

It is difficult to see on outside of Annapolis, and to the average person on the inside too, the exact facts concerning the "tax" situation; or, if we choose to get at it the other way—the "spending" situation. One thing is sure—that the Citizens State Tax Emergency Committee, Baltimore, is loudly calling Economize!

We are sure that Governor O'Connor must be interested making a good record for this, his first session; and it may be that the spending going on will be more than compensated for, otherwise than by taxes.

We confess our inability to decide. The latest summary of expenses, as presented by the "Citizens' Commission," is as follows:

Aid to local Governments and Institutions not State-owned or operated $36,732,022. University of Maryland which cannot be analyzed and classified because it is in lump sums, except a few relatively small items, $7,271,270. Capital Items* (practically all of this is constructed and reconstruction work by the State Roads Commission and its contractors,) $14,505,752. Debt Service (includes $1,065,280 State Roads debt), $13,125,508. State Employees' Pensions* (Includes $2,339,671 teachers' pensions, also retired judges' salaries), $2,890,677. Miscellaneous special agencies and purposes (See Note 1) $527,316. Salaries, wages, lump sum personal services* (See Note 2)

$17,425,427. Departmental Expenses $14,177,049. Total $106,664,021.

*Includes some services given as aid to local Governments.

In addition to this amount there is $8,142,612 (making total State aid $44,874,634) which is given in the form of personal services, material, supplies, etc. and combined in the budget detail with state departments' own expense items under highway, school, health and other appropriations and in the above summarized items as indicated.

FEESERSBURG.

A cold week since last we mentioned it; plenty of strong wind, and some light snow, which disappeared over night, what drifts we might have had with the next day's wind—but all's well.

Mrs. Addie Crumbacker with Mrs. Wilbur Miller and her daughter, Miss Josephine went to Westminster last week to witness the military parade of Company H, 115th Infantry before the boys were transferred to Camp Meade. They liked the parade, and saw some familiar faces in line and were shown their quarters and equipment at the Army.

Mrs. Robert J. Walden tripped over their dog, fell and broke her arm above the wrist one day last week. She has suffered several breaks of the same arm. Mr. Walden is sick with the grippe—and we are sympathetic.

Mrs. Charlie Hyde (nee Elsie Coleman of Middleburg), was taken to a Baltimore Hospital on Saturday, suffering with a herina of long standing.

Mrs. Ercy Klein on the Daniel Repp farm along Little Pipe Creek, while helping to saw wood on Saturday had the misfortune to get her hand caught in the circular saw and badly cut, but no bones broken which is remarkable, and a cause for thankfulness.

Mrs. Addie Crumbacker spent several days over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. James Kelbach, of Bark Hill, as Mrs. Kelbach is disposed since her return from the Hospital.

Some of our folks attended the minstrel show sponsored by the P. T. A. of Elmer Wolfe School, on Friday evening, where there was a good attendance, and the performers did their part very well—all local talent in music and play with a solo by Rev. Sampson's brother who was visiting him.

Callers at Grove Dale the past week were Mrs. Ida Devilbiss Balfour, Mrs. Ruth Reifsnider Balfour, Mrs. Lizzie Bowman Eyler, Miss Ruth Minor and Fred Crouse from Camp Meade in his natty new uniform and outfit, expecting to be sent into camp elsewhere this week.

The first Lenten Service of the Lutheran Uniontown on Wednesday evening of this week under care of the pastor Rev. George E. Bowersox, Jr. The theme was "The Forgiving Christ"—next week at Baust Church on "The Knowing Christ."

To continue a winter of sickness we are having a siege of Arthritis in the left arm from shoulder to finger tips and much can be said of the aching pain of that ailment keeping one awake at night in misery and destroying appetite, etc.

We are still celebrating birthdays in our little village. Only its among the older ones this time. Mrs. J. H. Stuffle had a birthday on St. Matthias Feb. 24th., and had a few of her neighbors in to celebrate and eat ice cream and cake with her and her hubby.

MEETING OF KIWANIS CLUB.

state of health, environment of home and school as they relate to the physical well-being of children.

2. Mental, paying attention especially to the fact that so many children are handicapped mentally, the survey to include an accurate classification of the mental abilities of children with reference to their fitness to fill the place in society in which they will find themselves as they grow to adult age.

3. Spiritual, with special reference to the opportunities of children to develop themselves spiritually and morally by their contact with and use of the various religious agencies, such as Sunday School, Church, home religious training, etc.

4. Welfare, with special reference to food, clothing, and shelter, looking toward making of the child a citizen rather than a delinquent or a dependent.

Dr. Legg gave the results of a recent survey which he made in four public schools in what he called his survey district. The objects of the survey were children in the lower grades in the Union Bridge, New Windsor, Taneytown and Uniontown schools. The statistical results are as follows:

School attendance: Union Bridge, 85%; New Windsor, 92%; Taneytown, 98.6% and 90% (Two grades surveyed); Uniontown, 87%.

Church attendance (Sunday School) Union Bridge, 70%; New Windsor, 85%; Taneytown, 60% and 80%; Uniontown, 95%.

Attendance at movies: Union Bridge, 25%; New Windsor, 90%; Taneytown, 60% and 80%; Uniontown, 99%.

Physical condition (percentage of perfect): Union Bridge, 10%; New Windsor, 85%; Taneytown, 10% and 80%; Uniontown, 90%.

Bed-time prayers: Union Bridge, 90%; New Windsor, 98%; Taneytown, 95% and 100%; Uniontown, 85%.

Bible reading: Union Bridge, 25%; New Windsor, 60%; Taneytown, 80% and 100%; Uniontown, 50%.

Familiarity with Church songs, including ability to sing them: Union Bridge, 10%; New Windsor, 75%; Taneytown, 90% and 80%; Uniontown, 90%.

In view of the information revealed by the survey, he makes the following recommendations:

Physical: Establish and maintain a baby welfare clinic, a yearly follow-up clinic, promote safety and health programs, care for the wholly and partly deaf and blind, contact tubercular prementoria and clinics for separation of diseases, treatment for prevention of diphtheria and kindred diseases.

Mental: Try to prevent marriages of feeble-minded persons, classification of diseases and institute home training or institutional care according to degree.

Spiritual: Promote Sunday School, church and religious education, restriction in attendance at movies, and encouragement of the reading of safe and better literature.

Welfare: Better food, better clothing, better shelter and housing.

At the conclusion of the program, the Club adopted a resolution of thanks to Dr. Legg for his genial hospitality. There were twenty-four members present at the meeting.

SOME SWORD HISTORY.

Mameluke swords are the traditional blades worn by officers of the Marine Corps. Today they are seldom used in battle, as the use of automatic pistols and changing methods of warfare have made them nearly obsolete.

But the Mameluke still remains as a side-arm of the sea soldiers and is used for parades or ceremonies and on formal occasions. The fighting Mamelukes, after whom it was named, were prominent in Egyptian affairs more than 500 years ago.

Tradition as well as sentiment accounts for scores of blades of various types in the museum of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Some of them were used by naval heroes in actual warfare; others were gifts made to commemorate some outstanding episode in naval history.

Swords carried by John Paul Jones in the stirring days of the Revolution by Stephen Decatur, hero of our war with Tripoli, and Isaac Hull, gallant commander of the fighting frigate, "Old Ironsides," are in the collection. Others belonged to either Oliver H. Perry, George Dewey, or some other naval leader.

At the close of our war with the Barbary States early in the last century, Lieutenant O' Bannon of the Marine Corps, returned from the shores of Tripoli with a handsome sword of the Mameluke type, and many believe that his heroic exploits helped to make the sword popular with the Marines.

Distinctly oriental in type, the sword has a grip which is fashioned somewhat like that of an old-style duelling pistol, a straight cross guard and a slightly curved blade about 32 inches long. The name of its owner as well as the words, "United States Marines" are usually inscribed on its blade.

still be defeated by the House on "third reading."

2. Unfavorable Report: This report shows that the Ways and Means has disapproved of the Bill. If the House concurs in the "unfavorable report" the bill is dead. If the House rejects the "unfavorable report" the Bill will be placed on "third reading" for final passage or defeat.

3. Unfavorable and Hold: This means that the Bill is retained in the Committee and does not go before the House. This action amounts to a sort of "pocket veto" by the Committee and kills the Bill.

4. No Action: This also acts as a sort of "veto" and has the same effect as an "unfavorable and hold" report.

5. Favorable With Amendments: This shows that the Committee has changed the Bill before sending it to the House. The House first votes on the amendments and, if approved, the Bill as amended is placed on "third reading." If the House approved the Bill and not the amendment the Bill as originally written is placed on "third reading."

6. The Bill, if not acted upon, may be "blasted" out of the Committee by a petition signed by 15 Members of the House. A Bill forced out by petition goes to the House without recommendation by Committee.

LOCAL BILLS.

All of the Bills introduced to repeal or re-enact our obsolete local laws have been passed by both the Senate and the House and now await the signature of the Governor.

The Bill increasing the annual appropriation to the Carroll County Firemen's Association from $8,000.00 to $10,000.00 has been passed by the House and will probably be passed in the Senate within a week. (H. B. 124.)

The Bill prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages in Carroll County on Sunday has been passed by the House and Senate and awaits the signature of the Governor. (S. B. 143.)

The Bill reducing the amount which the County Commissioners may borrow from $200,000.00 to $100,000.00 has been passed by the Senate and the House and awaits the Governor's signature.

All other local Bills introduced are still in the various Committees to which they were originally referred.

HEARING ON FAIR BILL.

The public hearing on the Bill authorizing the use of pari-mutal betting machines at the Carroll County Fair was scheduled for Thursday, February 27th, at 12:30 P. M. This Bill was referred to the Ways and Means Committee and it is this committee that will conduct the hearing. The committee is expected to take some action on this Bill within a few days following the hearing.

Both sides of the question will be heard. The opponents of the measure will probably present their views under the leadership of Rev. Luther B. Hafer, of Taneytown, and Carroll C. Hess, President of the Taneytown District S. S. Association. Those favoring the Bill are being organized by George E. Dodder, Secretary of the Fair Association, Truman B. Cash, and others.

The hearing will be presided over by John S. White, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, who is also the Floor Leader in the House. It is expected that the presentation by both sides will take up all of the allotted time of 1½ hours.

Details of this hearing will be presented in next week's issue of this paper. Sincerely,

STANFORD HOFF.

Use for Surplus Crops

Studies are being planned by the federal government for new outlets for surplus crops, it has been announced by Dr. Henry G. Knight of the department of agriculture. It is planned to put 200 scientists to work to discover more outlets for tobacco, dairy products, apples, vegetables, white potatoes, animal fats, hides, skins and leather. Expanding the uses of nicotine from tobacco will be one of the important researches. Nicotine is highly toxic to insect life and is useful both as a contact insecticide and stomach poison. Knight said. New uses for apple surplus, such as the development of an apple juice, new dried-apple products, pectin, cuticle wax, seed oil and residual pulp of apples, are being studied.

'Blackout' Glasses

Sun glasses that really do block out things are the newest of sun-protectors devised to aid the wearer guard his eyes effectively in any form of brightness. They are lenses of polaroid glass, set in spectacle-style shell frames and are immovable. A movable lens is behind each lens which can be turned to admit more or less light. At the present time they are expensive, the manufacturers say, but are invaluable in preventing eyestrain and headaches caused by extreme outdoor brightness in any season.

Pins Handmade

At one time pins were handmade and were so expensive that the money received or set aside by a woman for her personal expenses came to be known as "pin money."

Fewer Deaths

Despite an increase in population, there were 1,146 fewer deaths in Alabama last year than in 1933, the state health department reports.

Prehistoric Route

A prehistoric trade route has been traced by geographers, running across Europe from Denmark to northern Italy.

STILL FIGHTING THE BUDGET.

Annapolis, Feb. 18—Over a hundred Baltimore taxpayers, members and heads of associations, numbering upward of 25,000 citizens, appeared before a special session, lasting until almost midnight, of the Senate Finance Committee at the State House and protested the proposed $6,000,000 increase in the State Budget.

Under the leadership of Dr. Douglas H. Gordon, former delegate, ex-president of St. John's College, and chairman of the Citizens' Tax Control Committee of Baltimore, the taxpayers presented their demands through selected spokesmen. Dr. C. I. Winslow, Professor of Government at Goucher College and president of the Citizens League; Orris S. Byrd, president of the Mount Royal Protective Association; Mrs. Calvin Gabriel, legislative officer of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs; A. Francis Ritola, president of the Park Heights Civic Association; and J. G. Kaufman, president of the Park Heights Improvement Association voiced the demands of their various associations to cut the budget.

Constant interruption by Senator Dudley G. Roe created the atmosphere of a round table discussion, during which more than one senator indicated a desire to cut the budget as soon as they could determine where best to do so.

At one point Senator Wilmer Carter, of Baltimore City stated he thought the best approach might be to cut each department a certain percentage and leave it to the department heads to apportion the reduction as they saw fit.

This followed Dr. Gordon's remarks pointing out that nearly $4,000,000 could be saved by keeping relief cost to what was actually spent in 1940, cutting department expenses ten percent, postponement of ten percent of capital outlay, and reduction of proposed salary increases and new personnel by $1,000,000. To show possible sources of economy Dr. Gordon pointed to one item, that of office equipment—disclosing that in addition to all office equipment bought prior thereto in 1936 not less than $27,000 was spent, in 1938 another $39,000, in 1940 $51,000 and the proposed budget allows $116,800 more for the same item.

Mr. Kaufman told the Committee the State Budget had grown from some $11,000,000 in 1920 to a proposed $53,000,000 for 1943. "This cannot go on indefinitely," he said, "with out ruining the taxpayers and the time to call a halt is now when we are faced with the mountainous cost of national defense."

The women's solution of budget reduction, presented by Mrs. Calvin Gabriel, was as she said, "the same problem every woman has in her own home every day. Sweeping aside technical discussion" she continued, "if you have only so much money to run your home you find ways of doing it on that amount. Apply this rule in the state government and no increase will be needed during the present emergency."

Rates Increase

Marriage rates have increased in the United States and a few other countries since the depth of the depression.

Frozen Foods

Current problem in frozen food research is developing uniform standards of quality and production conditions.

An economical layout in a home is one which has the greatest proportion of usable floor area in relation to the gross floor area. For example, if a hall area is included in the plan and is larger than necessary, then the layout is, in some degree, uneconomical. Large entrance halls, galleries and similar spaces are considered desirable and necessary in homes in the higher cost range.

Old Magazine Predicted Terrible Warfare in 1933

"Terrible explosions," wrote Arthur B. Reeve, "will rend huge, jagged holes in the earth; tons of metal will crash suddenly from the clear blue sky."

The year was 1908, and Reeve was writing a magazine article on "Newest Man-killing Devices and the Warless Age."

Among the devices, he said, would be aerial torpedoes, anti-aircraft guns, mine-laying motorcycles, electric artillery.

"This," he declared, "is war—war in 1938."

The prophetic article, which appeared in the November, 1908, issue of Hampton's Broadway magazine, has been brought to light by J. N. Farrar, a salesman who discovered the issue in a collection of old periodicals.

Some of Reeve's predictions for the 1938 war:

Dirigibles advancing under the protection of manufactured clouds.

Spectroscopes used to detect presence of aerial gases.

Tiny submarines which would be launched from battleships.

Describing a battle scene—in the war of 1938—where "a constant rain of steel bullets whips about everything that moves," Reeve wrote:

"Nothing can be seen in that valley of death except effects; the causes are hidden with all the ingenuity of which the human brain is capable."

"Everything is tense with a nerve-wracking suspense such as ancient warfare never knew. Heroism has taken on a new meaning; it consists in being here at all."

'Styles' That Irritate And Climax in Divorce

Husbands and wives can hurdle a crisis, pick themselves up and be on their own united way. But it's the little things that irritate to the breaking point. They may seem inconsequential at first, but daily repetition of annoying habits frequently lead husband or wife to confess, "I want a divorce."

There's the fellow who was probably a star halfback at college. Right now he follows the old Indian custom of letting his wife walk five paces behind him, never holds a door for her, and always lets her carry the groceries.

There's the sloppy woman, her house usually in a mess, ash trays flowing over, and never a clean towel in the bathroom.

Then there's the energetic male who is always going to do great things, gets up early Sunday morning and fools around under the car until wife calls breakfast. After breakfast he retires to the living room and lounges in her best chair, eventually dropping ashes on the new rug.

And that frivolous female whose feelings are easily hurt. She can't make up her own mind about anything. Wants to be pampered.

The Battle of the Sexes starts from just such annoyances as these. You can probably think of many others. Like the energetic wife who won't let her husband relax, and the rover boy who never knows when to come home. But stop. Check your own marital habits against these minor irritations before the light of your life starts mumbling something about "I want a divorce."

Liquid Saves Hosiery

To make sure you get the most out of your stocking budget, try carrying a certain little tube of stocking-saver in your bag. Its name is Run-R-Stop and it's a godsend to every woman who's had the annoyance of sprouting a run in her best (or even second-best) hose, either in a public place, where it's embarrassing, or at home where she's dressing against time.

To apply this quick-drying, convenient preventive, just squeeze a drop on the damaged spot. If it's a run, seal the ends with the fluid; if it's a snag, be sure to catch all the loose threads.

Tests have shown Run-R-Stop to be just as effective on Nylons as on silks.

First Church Introducing Chanting

The honor of being the first church to introduce chanting into this country is divided between Christ church, Philadelphia, and the church in Marblehead, Mass., where it was first introduced in 1787. The popularization of chanting was the work of the Rev. William Smith, a Connecticut clergyman. The first Sunday School in New York was started in 1803 by Mr. and Mrs. Divie Bethune and Mrs. Isabella Graham. In 1809 the movement reached the West with the formation of a Sunday school in Pittsburgh.

University Gets Ancient Manuscript

Yale university has been given a musical manuscript written in 1470. The donor was Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh. The manuscript was written for the court of St. Charles the Bold and contains 57 compositions in five languages. It was lost for about 500 years. It is designated by the French name, "chansonner" and is initialed and bordered in gold, crimson and blue. Three of the languages are in English, establishing Great Britain's influence on the music of the continent. Fourteen original pieces are included in one of them, "L'Homme Arme," has been sought for almost a century.

WESTERN SHOW By VIC YARDMAN (Associated Newspapers.) WNU Service.

KEITH DUNCAN learned that Flint Norton and his outfit were, on the very day of Marianna's arrival scheduled to be in town. Norton's cowboys, Keith learned, were to end a 30-mile drive of cattle on that day at the freight yards, and would undoubtedly spend the night celebrating.

That meant trouble. Norton's Single T crew and the Bar X outfit had been at sword's points for more than a year. Trouble over water rights. And usually when they met in town there was a fight.

It was partly because of this and partly because Keith wanted to welcome Marianna in true western fashion that he rode into town on the evening of Marianna's arrival, surrounded by six of his best riders, men who were equally handy with six-shooters. But as he stood on the tiny station platform and watched the westbound draw near, Keith frowned to himself as thoughts of Marianna flitted through his mind.

Marianna had always ridiculed his letters, letters in which he told of rustler wars, six-gun fights, lynch-party parties and what not. She had never taken him seriously.

"Too much like the days of the last frontier," she'd written him. "Twenty-five years ago we easterners might have swallowed that sort of stuff, Keith dear. But not in these days."

Marianna, who by this time had been allotted a more gentle steed by her brother, saddled up and headed directly for the Single T.

these days. So don't try to frighten me, brother. I'm coming out to visit you anyhow."

Marianna was the only passenger to alight from the west-bound. For an instant she stood on the pullman's steps and surveyed the group of six serious-faced punchers who surrounded her brother.

"Whoopee," she cried, rushing into Keith's arms. "Darling, this is a real western welcome. Cowboys here to meet me with guns, chaps, ten-gallon hats and everything. Do we ride out to the ranch in an old-fashioned stage-coach, or am I scheduled to ride astride a bucking bronco?"

Keith grinned in spite of himself. If he had entertained thoughts of trying to impress Marianna with the fact that these men were armed for a purpose, he promptly dismissed the thought. Followed by the cowboys he led the way to the big ranch touring car. He laughed at her expression of disappointment at not being conveyed in at least a buckboard, grasped the wheel and wheeled the big car into the main street.

Marianna promptly forgot her disappointment at sight of the truly story-book looking buildings. False-fronted saloons and everything. They had, in fact, come to a stop before the very door of a saloon to allow the passage of a slow-moving wagon. Laughing and jostling men were moving in and out of the swinging doors. One of them stopped to stare at the car. And Marianna, all innocent, shouted a "whoopie, cowboy," in gay fashion.

Keith groaned. The man was Flint Norton himself, and he was already within two paces of the car. "Hello, girlie. That's terrible company you're with." He leered drunkenly, and Marianna, assuming that it was all a part of the show being staged by her brother, smiled into his face and winked broadly.

Norton reached out a hand, grasping her arm. Instantly one of the cowboys who had piled into the big car's tonneau, was out and had grasped Norton by the shoulder, whirling him about. The Single T owner turned with a snarl, one hand darting to his hip. There was suddenly a roar of six-guns. Norton staggered back, one hand clutching the arm of the other, from which the gun had dropped.

Marianna clapped her hands in glee. "Bravo!" she shouted gaily. The car leaped ahead at a terrific pace. Behind them could be heard angry shouts, a fusillade of shots.

Keith tried to explain that the fight was in all seriousness, the result of her own actions—and was laughed at.

Marianna liked the ranch from the first. She was up at daybreak the morning after her arrival and persuaded one of the hands to saddle her mount. He complied almost too readily. Marianna climbed aboard and five seconds later found herself sailing through the atmosphere, en route to a haystack. (Fortunately a haystack.)

But the girl was game. She knew it was all a part of Keith's way to show her what a tenderfoot she was. But she declined to ride again that day. Keith drove her around the place in the car, and took advantage of the opportunity to explain that the Single T range bordered on his own and it would be exceedingly dangerous for Marianna ever to ride in that direction alone.

Marianna promised, secretly telling herself she'd ride over and call on Flint Norton, at her first opportunity.

The opportunity came three days later. Keith was in town on business. The cowboys were out on the range. Marianna, who by this time had been allotted a more gentle steed by her brother, saddled up and headed directly for the Single T.

The Single T ranch buildings, she discovered, weren't as western-looking as Keith's, nor as neat. But Flint had prospered, apparently, in a country where others failed.

The first person Marianna met was Flint Norton himself. And that individual, seated on his veranda smoking a brown paper cigarette, gave a tremendous start at sight of the girl and disappeared inside the house. He came out a moment later, carrying a rifle.

"Hello, neighbor," Marianna said, "wanted to congratulate you on the part you played in the show the other night."

"Show?" Norton's jaw opened, and then snapped shut. "Come up an' set, sister. I'll be with you in jig time."

Marianna dismounted and seated herself on the veranda. Norton disappeared. Minutes later Marianna saw him coming across the ranch yard. At the same instant she heard footsteps behind her and turned in time to glimpse two ugly faces, before a bag was thrust over her head.

Marianna was held captive two days. Then a distracted Keith and a bunch of Bar X riders located her in a deserted camp up in the hills. In the fight that followed one Single T cowboy was killed, another wounded. And a Bar X boy stopped a bullet with his forearm.

"Norton wanted ransom," Keith explained, when Marianna had been placed astride one of the Single T's horses and they were en route home. "But I called his bluff. I knew he wouldn't dare harm you, and I had a hunch they'd hide you up here. Norton and his gang quit after the first five minutes of fighting."

Marianna's eyes were shining. "It was perfectly swell, Keith. Real western stuff and all that! But I must say your hired actors are a bit rough at times."

Keith looked at her in amazement. "Good heavens, Marianna! Don't sit there and tell me you thought it was a put-up job!"

Marianna smiled at him. "Dear old Keith, you always were the best of brothers, always trying to show me a good time, the real thing! But always, as now, a bit rough on a girl."

Keith tried to speak and found that words wouldn't come. He stole a glance at the cowboys riding along behind, and saw that their faces were filled with disgust, especially the boy whose forearm had stopped a bullet.

The next day Keith drove Marianna to the station in the big touring car and put her aboard the east-bound.

"So long, kid. Come out again sometime. Hope you enjoyed it."

"You bet I did, Keith. Couldn't have enjoyed it more. Swell time. You couldn't have made it seem more real, though a bit rough. You bet I'll come again. It's the real life. Good-by, Keith dear, and thanks!"

Keith watched the eastbound out of sight. "A bit rough," he repeated. "And she thought we were kidding her all the time. Well, I'll be—!" And he turned away, feeling, for the first time in a week, quite relieved and at peace.

Many Cities in America Have Interesting Names

For more than 12 years John A. Christmann of Mount Pulaski, Ill., made a study of various city-name stampings and grouped them under many interesting and surprising headings. He has, altogether, more than 900 of these American postmarks, arranged in groups representing some 60 subjects, besides a lot of odd unclassified names such as Rollingstone, Minn., Crowheart, Wyo., Widenmouth, W. Va., Busyhead, Okla., and Bummer, Ky.

An example of how he has grouped what he terms, "language of postmarks" is the following:

Eyes Unnecessary, Professor Asserts

Maimed at 7, He Finds Loss Of Sight No Handicap.

ALBERTA, CAN.—With flint-headed arrows seven-year-old Jake and his friend, Tim, were playing Indians on a prairie in Alberta. They had found the stone points about their parents' homesteads.

Jake rose in his hiding place to peer through a hole in his tent just as Tim let fly an arrow. "Tim's aim was very good," says Jacobus ("Jake") tenBroek, 35 years old, a doctor of jurisprudence, tutorial fellow in the University of Chicago law school, former Brandeis research fellow at Harvard university, in whose eye that arrow stuck June 8, 1911.

"Medical facilities on the Alberta prairies at that time," Mr. tenBroek recounted the other day, "were few and far between. Physicians had to ride many miles for each visit, and by the time a doctor reached me I had lost both eyes."

Mr. tenBroek, who teaches legal research and writing to first year students in the law school, goes about the campus as easily as a person with normal vision.

Mrs. tenBroek reads to him each morning and he takes notes on a Braille typewriter. He then reads the notes with his fingers, dictating articles and letters to her. Thus he keeps abreast of current events in the legal profession, is active in original research and grades more than 40 class papers a week. His door is always open to eager students with whom he consults daily.

Mr. tenBroek does not regard blindness as a handicap in the pursuit of his chosen field, but dislikes sympathy, however well meant. "I would be much better off," he says, "if they would regard me as just another person."

Fertilizer Use
Only one out of every six acres planted to farm crops in the United States annually is fertilized in any one year, yet the increased production from fertilized lands amounts to about 15 per cent of the nation's total crop output, according to figures compiled by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Nothing Stops 'Em
No emergency is too great for Gardiner, Maine, firemen. They extinguished a church fire two minutes before a couple was to be married. Then they attended the wedding as guests of the bride, who was perturbed because only 13 persons were present.

Food for Crops
Less than 13 per cent of the 2,000,000 pounds of soil in an average acre of farm land represents plant food in a form available for growing crops, according to Dr. William A. Albrecht, of the soils service department of the University of Missouri.

Dream Becomes Reality As 160-Mile Road Opens

Completed after two years of actual construction work, the Harrisburg-Pittsburgh Tunnel turnpike is a 160-mile invitation to drive fast and safely under perfect conditions.

The Dream Road is a practical demonstration of how safety can be built into highways, leaving only the human element—the driver, himself—as a potential cause of accidents. Into this unsurpassed example of engineering and construction skill have gone all known methods of eliminating accidents—two-lane divided construction; wide shoulders to take parked cars off the roadway; grades and curves reduced to the absolute minimum; clover leaf interchanges to avoid traffic friction at points of entrance and exit; and nearly a thousand specially designed signs to tell motorists just how fast they can go and give them complete information about tunnels, curves and traffic interchanges they are approaching.

In planning the conditions under which the toll highway will be operated, the Turnpike commission has even taken steps to reduce accidents caused by the human element. The sale of intoxicants, for example, is prohibited at all of the service stations and restaurants along the route; pedestrians are barred. The latter step obviously will enable the Turnpike to produce accurate and enlightening information regarding accident frequency when only motor vehicles are using a public highway.

LET THEM WORK

Farmer McTavish fell in a well where the water was seven feet deep, and cold. His wife, who had seen him fall in, called down to him: "I'll ring the dinner bell so the boys will come and pull you up."

"What time is it?" McTavish yelled back.

"Bout half-past ten."

"No, dang it, let 'em work till dinner time. I'll swim around until they arrive."

WAR is hell!
Gen. William Sherman

This phrase is inseparably linked with Sherman's name, although he could never remember having uttered it. It was vouched for by John Koolbeck, aide-de-camp to General Winslow. Koolbeck claimed he overheard Sherman say it while watching his Fifteenth Corps cross a pontoon bridge over Pearl river.

THE AUTHORITY OF CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:41-44:3.
GOLDEN TEXT—And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?—Luke 6:46.

"By what authority doest thou these things?" The question of the scribes was a proper one, even though their spirit and purpose in asking it may have been wrong. Any man who claims to have authority over others should expect to be asked that question and be prepared to give an honest answer.

I. Authority Rejected (vv. 41-44). On the previous day our Lord had made His kingly triumphant entry into the city and many had acclaimed Him (see vv. 37-40); but the city as a whole—and especially its leaders, both religious and governmental—had rejected Him.

As He came toward the city the next day and it spread out before Him in beautiful panorama, His tender heart was broken and He wept. His tears were not for Himself, but for the people who had rejected Him. We are told that the word used "for weeping here does not mean merely . . . tears" but "rather the heaving of the bosom, and the sob and cry of a soul in agony" (Morgan).

That is how He feels about you who reject His authority today, for the city of Jerusalem represented the attitude of all unbelieving humanity. He loves you, sinner, and weeps over your rejection of Him; but just as He ultimately had to reject the city because it rejected Him, He will have to condemn you in your sin if you continue to reject Him. Why do it?

II. Authority Asserted (vv. 45, 46). The act of Jesus in cleansing the temple was very bold, for He held no position in the temple and He had no police powers. Only a man with a disordered mind or in a frenzy of anger would assume such authority if it did not belong to him. This means that Jesus acting as He did here, quietly, deliberately, and intelligently, was declaring by His deed that the one whose authority is above and back of all human authority had come to cleanse His Father's house.

It is a striking scene. Let us see in it all the gracious majesty, power and authority of the Son of God, our Saviour and Lord.

III. Authority Accepted (vv. 47, 48).

The people "were very attentive," or more effectively, as in the Revised Version, they "all hung upon him." How remarkable it is that "the common people heard him gladly" (Mark 12:37), while the learned leaders, both in religious and political circles, hated and rejected Him.

That situation has continued throughout the centuries. Let us not be disturbed or confused by the fact that so many "leading" men and women (thank God, not all of them, by any means) reject or question the claims of Christ. It is the very thing we ought to expect.

Young people, be not at all disturbed by that supposedly conclusive statement, "scholarship is agreed," for usually it proves to be wrong. Don't be surprised if some leading novelist, or tycoon of the business world, is not a follower of Christ.

Meet Jesus yourself and you will learn to love Him and want to serve Him. Get the balanced judgment of "the common people" who have really met the Lord, and you will find the right way—God's way.

IV. Authority Defended (20:1-8). Humanly speaking, the priests and scribes were right when they challenged Christ. He had no official position which justified His acts and His words. But note carefully that the very fact that He, in return for their "Tell us," replied, "Tell me," indicates that the human authority which had a right to challenge other human authority had now met the One who is "the head of all principality and power." He had a supreme right to say, "Before I answer you, tell me."

We are apt to regard the answer of Jesus to their question as a skillful evasion of a difficult situation, but it was far more than that. If they had replied honestly to His question regarding John, and admitted that His authority was from heaven, Jesus would probably have said, "Then what did he say of me?" He would have reminded them of the statement of John that he was not worthy to loose the latchet of His shoes, of his prophecy of the judgment to come, of the baptism of fire (see Luke 3:16-17), of the day when John called Him "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

Here was proof concerning His authority, but they did not dare to ask for it because they did not want it. You too, reader, if you have questions regarding the claim of Christ to authority over your life may have a satisfying answer, but only if you honestly want it and will receive it with open mind and heart.

Glycerine Gives Relief To Aching, Tired Feet

Before you begin your shopping for new shoes, you might well give your feet some thought and attention. One of the nicest ways of coping with tired, aching and unattractive feet is to give them a glycerated treatment. (Glycerine, you know, is an essential ingredient of many preparations used in chiropody.)

Start by plunging the feet into a tub of warm soapsuds. With a stiff brush, scrub briskly to soften callouses and bumps and take the aching weariness out of your tired feet. Dry thoroughly with a turkish towel. If you are the unhappy possessor of a bunion, paint that enlarged joint with a mixture of equal parts of glycerine, tincture of iodine, and phenol. It will not banish the bunion entirely, but it will give almost immediate relief. Bumps on your heels caused by wearing opera pumps as well as other annoying callouses respond to a pure glycerine rub which acts as a softening agent.

The toenails should be shaped with the rough side of an emery board and finished with the smooth side. Then you are ready to apply the polish—glycerated, of course. It may match the polish you are using on your fingernails and should be applied to the entire surface of the nails to give the appearance of long slender toes.

Top off the foot treatment by massaging with a good hand lotion. Most hand lotions contain glycerine because of its ability to absorb and retain moisture and this quality means much in preventing dryness and harshness of the skin texture. Massage the lotion, working it in with an upward rotary motion over the entire foot and up over the ankle. Finish by a dusting of talcum powder.

Position of Eyes Vary In Different Animals

Eye arrangement shows a wide range of variation among the various animals. Human beings and apes have eyes which are set in the same plane so that the rays of light entering each eye are approximately parallel to each other. In such an arrangement the visual axes are said to be parallel, says the Better Vision Institute. In various animals the eyes are set in positions ranging up to a divergence of 170 degrees, or more than half a circle, between the two eyes.

The hare has eyes which are set at nearly right angles to its nose. Because of this it actually can see to some extent what is going on behind it. The rodent family, of which the hare is a member, have eye arrangements with divergences of visual axes from 50 degrees to 170 degrees between both eyes.

Nearest to man come the carnivores, which include the cat and dog. The lion has a divergence of only 10 degrees in eye movement, and the cat has about 18 degrees. Eyes of dogs are set with 30 to 50 degrees of divergence between them. Pigs have divergence of 66 degrees; cows, 104; camels, 124, and giraffes, 144.

Cure for 'Dope' Addicts
Two doctors of Grace hospital, Detroit, have been experimenting in "frozen sleep" as a cure for morphinism, or drug addiction and recently announced the experiments as successful. They are Dr. J. M. Berris and Dr. M. K. Newman.

These eminent physicians have declared that medical science has proved that morphinism, or drug addiction, to be purely a psychic condition, one in which only the mind and not the body is affected. They say: "By making a morphine addict's mind blank for a period of several days—as is done in the refrigeration treatment—the condition entirely disappears and the brain returns to normal."

The doctors cite the case of a 23-year-old girl, who was a morphine addict, who after a three-day refrigeration treatment showed no symptom of addiction and no longer craved drugs.

Smell That Bacon Fryin'
If you are one of the countless homemakers who like old-fashioned flavor combined with modern convenience you'll sing a song of joy when you learn that it is now possible to buy bacon on the rind in breakfast size packages of approximately one pound each. This new bacon, recently introduced on the market, is sliced in thin even slices to the rind. All the housewife needs to do is to run a sharp knife blade along the top of the rind, then remove the number of slices required for immediate serving.

Still Pray to Idols
Many natives of Guatemala still offer prayers to ancient idols such as one on a hill outside Chichicastenango. An article in Natural History tells that the Indians guard this shrine zealously, and have been known to stone foreigners intruding during a ceremony.

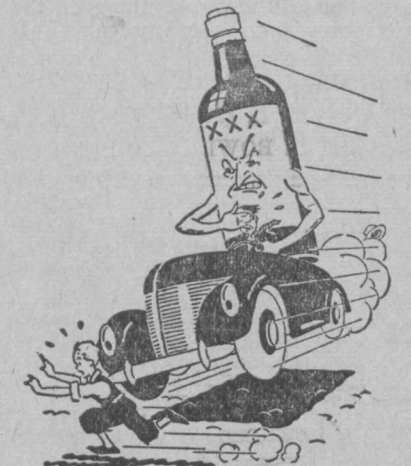

Inmates Studious
Warden Charles Clarke says the New Hampshire State Prison library has the largest per capita circulation recorded in the country. The 275 inmates made 42,092 calls for books and magazines in 1933.

Real Liberty!

You can do almost anything you want to under the American conception of personal liberty—just as long as your actions do not hurt others, or you don't step on their toes!

In other words, and despite the liquor traffic's misrepresentations during the campaign for repeal, the American ideal of liberty gives you no right to get tanked up, climb into a car, and risk not only your own life, or those of your passengers, but the lives—and property—of other citizens.

It gives you no right to anesthetize yourself with liquor until you perpetrate moral or physical crime, nor to dissipate the money necessary to the lives of others, nor to wreck your own life to the point where other citizens have to pay their money to support you or to hospitalize you, according to the W. C. T. U.

There is a rising clamor throughout the nation against the highway deaths which result from driver or pedestrian drinking. The call is to "keep liquor out of the man, or keep man out of the automobile."

The National Safety Council, disinterested authority, estimates that one of every four fatal highway accidents during 1940 involved a driver or a pedestrian reported to have been drinking. The Council believes that this ratio may even underestimate the true situation!

Students of the situation stress the indication that the so-called moderate drinker is the danger on the highway; that the actual drunk is less likely to try to drive.

A majority of Americans are sane, sober folk and they now are demanding their own rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—all of which can be wiped out in a flash by the action of an alcoholic, social misfit!

Churches Raised Money By Lottery Century Ago

Threatening to keep pigs in private pews was a favorite means of forcing church fathers to adopt more popular courses of action in the early Nineteenth century, according to a study of the Episcopal church in the United States from 1800 to 1840 issued by the Columbia University Press.

Financing the parish was accomplished mainly by the sale and rental of pews, and the purchase of a pew, according to many contemporary authorities, conveyed full property rights, Dr. William Wilson Manross, fellow and tutor in General Theological seminary, New York city, reports.

The sale of pews took place as soon as the church was built, and the proceeds usually went to defray the cost of construction, Dr. Manross says. Lotteries had been a common method of raising money for churches in the colonial period, but their use declined in the 1800s because of the growing opposition to gambling. Normally the pews were auctioned off, but sometimes a fixed price was set, proportioned to the desirability of their location.

"The pews were nearly always inclosed, with straight backs and high sides, occasionally surmounted by a small railing from which a curtain was suspended to discourage those who might be tempted to look around during the service," Dr. Manross continues. "The use of 'slips' or open pews did not become common until much later, when the spread of 'free churches' had caused the seats to become public instead of private property."
