MRS. MURRAY BAUMGARDNER.

The man who whistles at his work is going places and moving fast—especially if he's a railroad engineer.

Each one answered to the roll-call by giving their favorite form of recreation. The Treasurer's report was quite encouraging.

Miss Hoffman gave a very helpful talk on "Good Health and good Shoes." The meeting then adjourned to meet again in April.

Russia is uncertain because of the Chinese-Japanese situation, and another country Yugoslavia may be joined with one or the other side.

British advances in Italian Africa have also continued. But no direct bombings or other warfare of destructive effect have taken place between Germany and England proper.

A representative of the Navy Recruiting Service will be at the Post office in Westminster, each Tuesday in March from 11:00 A. M. to 2:00 P. M., for the purpose of interviewing anyone interested in the naval service.

Rubber may be as hard as bone or as yielding as the well known band that will stretch to suit many uses, certainly our virtues need to be used effectually, but usually, we think, making a parade of them is a sign that we need watching.

FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1941.

CHURCH AND STATE.

We used to hear a great deal of opposition to the "Union of Church and State". This is a sentiment now that requires more exact qualification. We must ask what sort of union, and how much of state?

We must go to the state, evidently, for our laws. The so-called "church" people are good people who occasionally must go to the state for what they call "good laws"; or, we may say, to defeat the likelihood of bad state laws.

We confess to being somewhat mixed-up on this subject. Apparently the state may pass either good or bad laws, which means that when laws are passed that are good, should not oppose union of church and state.

The same logic must then apply to individuals; as, if one church member pays liberally to the church, he is a good member, but if the same member favors a bad law, then, what is he? Is this measuring of goodness and business a matter of individual opinions—or what is it?

FARM LABOR SHORTAGE.

A recent survey seems to show that there is a decided shortage of farm labor. This is a very serious condition, and what can be done about it, is a serious question.

One of the efforts being made in that direction is to have farm help exempt from the draft, and this seems to be sensible for all good reasons, and is not entirely disconnected with war itself—if we must have war.

The February issue of Maryland Farm Bureau news letter, contains the following comment very much to the point:

"This situation probably will continue during the war emergency, although there should be a slackening of the demand for labor when the new camps are completed. As the war industries expand plants and increase their force, farmers will face a continued competition for help. A surplus of farm labor is reported in the South and Midwest giving the public the impression that there is a surplus of farm labor. Farmers in Maryland and other eastern states will have to tap this surplus if the present trend continues. Dairy men are already buying more milking machines and taking other steps to make more efficient use of the help available. Some farmers are planning to curtail their corn acreage; to reduce labor requirements."

A question closely allied to this, is the attitude of the CIO and other labor organizations, that are practically holding up our government itself in the prosecution of our war preparations. Labor is plentiful in manufacturing areas, but one must wonder whether labor leaders may not be in the employ of Germany.

The boys—and girls too—should stick to the farm as long as they are wanted there. In the end, it will pay best.

AIRPLANES AND SUBMARINES.

Aviation in war—bombing from the sky—has out-modeled the world war of twenty or more of years; just as has the modern submarine revolutionized war at sea.

Just now, Germany has a great air force in warfare because it started right after the world war in preparing for an immense outfit of modern ways of killing and destruction.

The public war mind has responded to this new form of destruction, rather late by comparison with Germany; but now with considerable eagerness there is a demand on the part of would-be pilots in the flying field, and the manufacture of this form of war paraphernalia is booming industry.

Whether or not it is second to submarine manufacture, is doubtful but probable. Estimating such facts with surety in this big world of ours, is impossible; and when the end will come—and how—is about equally in doubt.

Gettysburg and Waterloo are almost forgotten, but the man bravery shown in the old days, still lives in history, and the old heroism is the most genuine, by comparison with what is going on in a large portion of Europe.

UNEMPLOYMENT REDUCED.

Baltimore, March 1.—The low mark for benefit payments by the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board was recorded at the end of February when it was found that the total for the month was only $267,784, which was fifty-one percent below February of last year and twenty-four percent below the preceding month, January, 1941.

The lowest preceding monthly total was $300,176, thus February was about ten per cent below the previous record.

Monday, March 17, has been set by the Board as the earliest date for the reception of new claims for unemployment benefits based on earnings of employees in the calendar year 1940, which is the new base year. New benefit payments will not begin until after April 1st.

MARYLAND ROADS.

Annapolis, March 4.—That Maryland is assured a generous slice of Federal roads funds to bolster its own appropriations for roads purposes, and thus bring our State highways into line with defense requirements, was announced by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor.

Because of the immediate likelihood of such Federal assistance, Governor O'Connor declared, "the State Roads Commission had been advised by an official of the Federal Roads Bureau that increased engineering and right-of-way personnel should be provided as promptly as possible, in order that the Commission may handle the greatly increased roads expenditures expeditiously."

A special roads committee of the State, appointed recently by Governor O'Connor, reported that it had assurance from Thomas H. McDonald, of the Federal Bureau of Roads, that recommendations already had been submitted to President Roosevelt that Federal funds totaling $150,000,000.00 should be made available for the various states. Of this total appropriation at least $10,000,000.00 will be allocated to Maryland, it was declared, which amount, added to funds already available, makes a total of approximately $20,000,000.00 that probably would be designated for specific purposes within the next few months.

Improvement of the Eastern Avenue Road section adjacent to the Glenn L. Martin Plant is a leading phase of the new plans, Governor O'Connor announced; and improvements also will be provided for roads leading to Camp Meade and other Government Reservations.

With these new funds in the offing, it seems more evident than ever that the present administration will achieve by far the greatest advance in roads building in the history of the State.

BRITISH WAR AIMS.

What are Great Britain's war aims? This question, in the opinion of close observers, is raised by some in good faith, but is pressed by others who would confuse the issue. The latter do not discuss Hitler's war aims. These are too obvious. Moreover, he has declared them. Germany, as a self-appointed superrace nation, is to be the center of the social, economic and political world. Democracies, the light and hope of the individual, are to be destroyed even to the last man who holds to that form of government. Hitler has issued his challenge to them: "Our capacity for work is our gold, our capital," he says, "and with it we will defeat the entire world." The military conquest is but the prelude to imposing upon the world an overlordship of the Nazi economic system. This means a life and death struggle between two philosophies of life, Nazism and the only civilization we know.

Some, whose motives are honest, would like to know whether the British Empire, if victorious, will compel Germany to make full reparation to the countries which it has despoiled. They hope to see full justice done these countries, even if this means stripping Germany and putting it under bondage for years as it is even now doing with the countries it controls.

Others, equally honest in their inquiry, would have Great Britain pursue a more lenient course. While they believe that Great Britain should force Germany to restore the seized nations to their previous status as sovereignties, they would make the terms of reparation short of those of the Versailles Treaty. Pointing to the present cataclysm following so closely upon the World War, they argue that nothing is gained by severe terms in peace treaties. Still others with high motives are anxious that Great Britain implement as her terms of peace a United States of Europe, wherein Germany would be but an integral part.

Many British writers and publicists envision a federal continental Europe free from a morbid nationalism and those elements that make possible a tyrant's lust for conquest. This idea more than any other dominates the fighting spirit of Great Britain and those for the most part who, from the nations now under German control, are fighting under the Union Jack.

The answer of the keenest observers to those who honestly question Britain's peace aim is: If we do not give all-out aid to England, the war can end badly for the United States. Possibly the greatest single event in the most desperate hour of recent British history, they point out, was the rise of Winston Churchill to the Premiership and, later when he announced as the essence of his program the four words of the French tiger, "I am making war." It is upon the continuance of this war to victory that our whole national policy is now shaping and in which lies the hope of our civilization.

Without our assistance the war could end badly for the United States if Hitler won by a complete collapse of the British Empire. This would leave the United States open to military attack by the Axis powers, both in the Atlantic and the Pacific, and would result in a disastrous economic war.—Scottish Rite Service.

New Type Bomb to Blast Submarines Gets A Test

LOS ANGELES.—A new type of bomb designed to blast submarines was demonstrated by Russell Hart, Los Angeles inventor.

It is fashioned from an alloy which Hart said is highly explosive in water. To demonstrate, he placed a bit weighing a tenth of an ounce through a small iron pipe into a can of water. There was an explosion. Hart said the explosion equalled that of two ounces of black powder. The water, he said, liberated hydrogen in the alloy and caused the explosion.

"A 100-pound bomb of this material," Hart asserted, "would be equal to a 300-pound depth bomb of the type now used by Great Britain."

The cost would be about 35 cents a pound instead of the present $1, Hart said.

Hart related that he discovered possibilities of the alloy only by accident in removing bark from trees on a farm near Portland, Ore., in 1933. He said a piece of the alloy used in the bark remover slipped and plunged into a water well, causing an explosion.

Youth, 18, Buys Store

With Live Stock Profits
STAPLEHURST, N.E.—Earnings from 4-H club live-stock activities have enabled Arden Aegerter, Seward county farm youth, to purchase a half interest in one of Staplehurst's three grocery stores.

Aegerter, who is 18, had the reserve grand champion Hereford in 1936, grand champion lamb in 1935, reserve grand champion lamb in 1937 at Ak-Sar-Ben shows. At state fair exhibitions he had a grand champion in 1937 and prize pen of lambs.

Aegerter said his gross earnings and winnings have been about $3,500, for a net of approximately $800.

Arden and his brother, Harold, 23, pooled their finances and bought the store in the town of 300 population.

Voltaire Listed Hazards In Invasion of England

DETROIT.—Three reasons why Adolf Hitler—or any European belligerent—should hesitate before attempting an invasion of Great Britain have been discovered in an unpublished letter of the Eighteenth century French writer Voltaire, written in 1759 when a force was being organized in France for a coastal invasion of the island.

Of the projected invasion, Voltaire wrote, "Three miracles are necessary so that it should succeed. The first is that a landing force may be allowed to get ashore. The second one is that they should remain in England any time at all without being exterminated. The third one is that they should get back."

U. S. Distributes Load in Defense

Borrows 'Farming Out' Policy as Now Employed In Great Britain.

WASHINGTON.—Borrowing from British experience, the war department announced that the policy of "farming out" arms contracts to small firms would be applied vigorously in this country to distribute the defense load as widely as possible.

Holders of defense contracts will be encouraged, the announcement said, to sublet substantial parts of the work, and each will be expected to select his own sub-contractors.

Announcing the appointment of Joseph L. and Francis Trecker of Milwaukee as special advisers on "farming out" methods, Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, said the policy would be employed "more and more" as the burden on larger firms increases.

'Bits and Pieces' Policy.

The British government first turned to the "farming out" principle, known in England as the "bits and pieces" policy, late in the summer of 1938 when the aircraft industry there was asked to sublet a minimum of 35 per cent of its work on government orders.

The announcement said Germany also has been applying the formula with "even more intensive thoroughness."

This explanation was given of the German system. In connection with its rural electrification program, the German government stimulated the sale of portable electric motors of from 1 to 10 horse power, ostensibly to provide means for the electric utilization of feed grinders, milking machines and other farm appliances.

As far back as 1937 sealed crates of machinery were delivered to these electrified farms, the owners of which were told to hold the crates in storage as they contained machinery for making toys or some other similar product.

Brings Up Reserves.

When the march into Poland began instructions came to unpack the crates and turn out the machinery. The machines set up to be a drill press or a punch press or a drop forge tooled up to produce some small product needed for armament.

Next, supplies of semi-finished materials arrived at the farm and the farmer was taught how to make a rivet for use in airplane assembly, or how to punch rivet holes in a plate for tank armor.

A war department spokesman said adoption of the "farming out" principle in this country was important as a means of bringing into use reserves of idle equipment. In addition, he said it was hoped it would have the effect of preventing the migration of workers from their homes to the great industrial centers, thus forestalling serious housing shortages.

Ancient Schooner Takes On Sail After 22 Years

CAMDEN, MAINE.—Wars have twice given a new lease on life to the three-masted schooner George E. Klinck.

Built in 1904 at Mystic, Conn., the windjammer plied out of New York in the granite trade for years. She was ready for the boneyard when World war created a shortage of ships and kept her in service. She retired to a Camden wharf when the armistice was signed.

The European war now has created a new demand for bottoms, and a Portland lumber dealer ordered the Klinck reconditioned for coastal service between Portland and Jacksonville, Fla.

Capt. Lewis MacFarland, who supervised installation of auxiliary gasoline engines, found trouble in shipping a crew of "old salts." Most of the experienced windjammers, he discovered, were too old for service on slippery decks or aloft in a blow.

Only other three-masters still in the American Mercantile Service are the Lucy Evelyn of Jonesport and the Rebecca R. Douglass of Calais.

POTOMAC EDISON CO.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Fate: Since he does not care to have his name known, he may as well be identified as Smith. Ten years ago, a Chicago doctor in the course of a physical checkup informed Smith that quite possibly he would not live more than five years. Smith left the office stunned but, recovering, decided that having such a short time left, he might as well get the most out of his remaining days. So he gave up his insurance business and came to New York to study piano. In the course of time, he became proficient enough to play in an amateur orchestra which was all he wanted. He also re-established himself in business and is now in comfortable circumstances. As a matter of fact, he might have forgotten the dire prediction entirely if he hadn't encountered a Chicago friend recently. The friend informed him that the doctor had died within a few weeks of the time he had set for Smith's death.

Encroachment: Male sanctuaries have become fewer and fewer. For some time, women have had possession of barbershops. Recently, the University club, after years of stolid male dignity, let down the bars and held a dinner dance and the walls echoed with feminine laughter. Then the sedate Union club gave way with a reception and tea to which each member was allowed to take two women guests. Now the New York Athletic club has bowed to the feminine influence. Up to two years ago, women were not permitted to pass the portals except on very special occasions. Then the dining room was opened to them Saturday and Sunday evenings. Finally that restriction was removed. And as if that were not enough, what was once a broker's office has been turned into a cocktail room for women.

Past Tense: Eugene O'Neill was a gold prospector in Honduras. . . . Jimmy Dorsey swung a pickaxe in a Shenandoah, Pa., coal mine before he began swinging the blues. . . . Harry Salter was an Oklahoma oil-well digger. . . . Carol Bruce was a lingerie salesgirl. . . . Ethel Merman was a stenographer and still keeps a notebook handy. . . . Margie Hart, strip-teaser, was a milkmaid on a Missouri farm. . . . Ruby Foo, who now owns a string of Chinese restaurants, was once a dishwasher in a Chicago hospital. . . . Erskine Caldwell, who wrote that long-lived "Tobacco Road," was a stage hand in a burlesque theater. . . . Henny Youngman was a job printer in Brooklyn. . . . Donu Edmond, society beautician, was a tourist guide in Cairo, Egypt. . . . Ben Hecht was a handy man with a midwestern circus. . . . Lucile Manners was a private secretary. . . . and I used to sell Columbus and Cincinnati papers on the streets of Kenton, Ohio.

Switch: Over in Jersey, there is a roadhouse patronized largely by Germans. The other evening, two of this department's scouts, M. A. and S. S., dropped in just to see what was going on. It was a quiet night with family parties sitting around sedately eating and drinking. Just to see what would happen, M. A. went up to the orchestra leader and asked him to play the "Horst Wessel" song. The reply was that that couldn't be done. So M. A. asked him if he could play "La Marseillaise." Without delay, the orchestra swung into the French national anthem and all the Germans present stood up and sang it lustily.

Macabre: He is a big speed cop who patrols the Boston Post road in the vicinity of Marmaroneck. Many motorists know him and speak to him when they pass or when they happen to be stopped by a light beside where he has taken a stand. He's always smiling and affable except of course when there has been some infraction of the law. Then, despite the salutations of the past, there is a ticket or an arrest. Even that he makes as painless as possible. So his hobby may come somewhat as a shock to many of his acquaintances. He never misses an execution at Sing Sing. The night one or more condemned men have to sit in the electric chair, he so arranges his tour of duty that he may proceed on up to Ossining and be a witness.

End Piece: Pretty, dainty, she is one of the season's most charming debs. Recently, a hostess who had arranged a dinner in her honor, asked her how she enjoyed being a debutante. The girl replied that it was fine; that she liked the attention shown her and the dances. There was just one drawback—at every dinner, she had to eat chicken, green peas and ice cream. The hostess reddened a bit, and as you may have guessed, a little later the debate came down to a dinner of chicken, green peas and ice cream.

RED CROSS NURSING.

While the need of men and war materials is stressed in publicity relative to the armament program of the United States, adequate nursing staffs will be just as important if this country ever becomes involved in war. For this reason, the American Red Cross Nursing Service has embarked upon a drive for 10,000 new enrollments, a goal it hopes to reach by June 30, 1941.

This organization had 18,000 members enrolled at the first of the year. Between 3,000 and 4,000 of these nurses will be called for active duty by June 30th. For this reason, the Nursing Service must have an additional 10,000 enrollees by that time if it is to be in a position to meet possible Army and Navy demands and at the same time continue normal service to civilians.

To enroll in this service, nurses must be under 40 years of age, single, physically fit for all types of service, high school and accredited school of nursing graduates, and members of the American Nurses Association.

Plans have been worked out to get in touch with all prospective First Reserve nurses, but some may inadvertently be passed over. Any registered nurses who believe their qualifications meet the above requirements should get in touch with either her local or state Red Cross Nursing Service Committee, or write to the American Red Cross Nursing Service, Washington, D. C.—Scottish Rite Service.

WOULD REPEAL BLUE LAW IN FREDERICK CO.

A bill, designed to repeal the Blue Laws of 1723 and to legalize Sunday sports, was introduced into the House of Delegates Wednesday night by Delegate J. Tyson Lee, Urbana. The measure has the support of nearly a thousand city and county sports devotees, who affixed their signatures to a resolution, seeking to legalize athletic contests that are now played on Sunday, but which are technically outside the law.

Delegate Lee said Wednesday night after he had introduced the bill that it provides for the playing of such games as baseball, soccer, softball, football, golf, basketball, badminton, tennis, volleyball on Sunday between the hours of 2 and 7 and 8:30 and 11 P. M. Barred by the bill are such forms of recreation as boxing and moving pictures.

The Sunday sports measure would supersede the Blue Laws, which were adopted by a Provincial Assembly more than 50 years before the Revolutionary War. The Blue Laws prohibit any form of recreation or labor on Sunday. The laws have been repealed in Montgomery, Washington and Allegany counties.

Baseball, soccer, softball and football have been played here for more than a decade on Sunday without interference from law enforcement officials. However, officials of the various athletic teams seek to have games legalized during hours that are not in conflict with established religious services.

Members of the Frederick County delegation to the Legislature have been invited to meet with representatives of the City and County Ministerial Associations to talk over provisions of the Sunday sports bill. It is understood a conference is planned on Saturday.

Mr. Lee said Wednesday night that "I have heard of practically no opposition to the bill and don't believe there will be any when contents of the bill are understood." He said there is no desire upon the part of anyone to commercialize Sunday.

The delegate said last night that one of the organizations backing the Sunday sports bill is the Frederick Junior Chamber of Commerce.—Frederick Post.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Thousands of Americans who have landed in New York after a trip to Europe or South America know Alexander McKeon. The reason is that Mr. McKeon, who retired recently, was in the United States customs service for 42 years and for more than 35 of those years spent much of his time on the piers of the various steamship lines supervising the inspection of the baggage of homecomers. Most travelers, however, do not know that Mr. McKeon, according to certain close friends, more than any other one man, has been responsible for demonstrating that the collection of duty on various articles purchased abroad, if not wholly an enjoyable proceeding on both sides, can be done courteously and fairly.

Happened to encounter Mr. McKeon while at luncheon with a mutual friend, just before his retirement. He looks as bronzed and rugged as a sea captain. That is due, he explained, to the fact that he has spent so much of his life right at the edge of the sea waiting for ships to dock. Trained as a jeweler, but with a longing for a life in the open, one day he quit and joined the customs service as a weigher. A few years later he was transferred to the baggage division. In 1917 he was put in charge of baggage inspection with the rank of deputy surveyor. He was due to retire 12 months ago but because of his knowledge of European conditions, his experience gained through contact with travelers during the first World war and because he had so much detail at his finger ends as it were, he was retained in the service.

Out of his long experience, Mr. McKeon holds the case of forged customs stamps to be the most striking. Back in 1928, customs authorities became aware of the fact that large quantities of narcotics were being brought into the country. They also learned that customs stamps that show that baggage has been inspected and which are cancelled before the baggage can be taken from the enclosure, were being removed from baggage that had undergone inspection and affixed to other trunks and bags, thus permitting uninspected articles to pass the guards. Later they discovered also that customs stamps were being forged. But not until March, 1930, did anything happen despite all the efforts that were being made to catch the offenders.

One day the Ile de France arrived with the usual heavy passenger list and mountains of baggage. Specially selected agents scrutinized every piece of baggage that came from the ship. One noticed two trunks under the letter "B." They were marked "John Bell" but their owner did not seem to be near. Nothing unusual about that. The agent had a hunch, however. He soon returned and found that in his absence, customs stamps had been affixed to the trunks. The agent watched. A porter came, loaded the trunks on a truck and started to leave the pier. He was stopped. The fact that the trunks had not been inspected was quickly and easily verified. They were opened and found to contain narcotics that would have brought peddlers several hundred thousand dollars. The customs stamps were found to be forged.

It wasn't long before the customs agents discovered that John Bell was Jacob Clum, who had fled from the White Star liner pier the week before after he had been tipped off that his baggage was believed to be "hot." Blum managed to get started for Europe on the liner Berengaria but a wireless message kept him from landing at Cherbourg. At Southampton he was arrested and sent back to New York where he was convicted and sentenced to seven years. He refused to "sing" but the higher-ups were eventually captured and jailed and that of course resulted in the end of the ring.

Still keeping to the water front, there are those English sailors who, when they are about to leave on the return voyage, stock up with all the onions they can carry. England imports her onions and the war has made them scarce. A stew isn't a stew without an onion. So the sailor's home-coming gift is a bag of onions.

In a snow fight in Central park after the first snowfall, the participants were Nani Todd, Lehua Paulson and Leinaala Kihoi. Being native Hawaiians on their first visit to this country, they had never seen snow before. Nevertheless, they had a good time . . . and of course got their pictures taken . . . They are hula dancers in the Lexington hotel. (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Safety-Pin Death Toll

High Among Children

PHILADELPHIA—Open safety pins—swallowed or inhaled—annually cause more deaths in the United States among children than playing with firearms, according to Dr. Jackson.

The inventor of the bronchoscope and his assistants have removed more than 4,000 foreign objects from windpipes and gullets.

CO. WELFARE BOARD MEETS

The Carroll County Welfare Board met on Wednesday, March 5, with the following present: Dr. Charles R. Foutz, H. H. Wine, H. G. Englar, L. Pearce Bowles, Paul J. Walsh, Jonathan Dorsey, Mrs. E. K. Brown and Wm. E. Royer.

Dr. Foutz, chairman, reported on a State meeting which he attended with chairmen of all counties on Feb. 24, 1941. It was brought out that County Welfare Boards are now performing the following services under supervision of the State Department of Public Welfare.

1—Administration of public assistance including old age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the needy blind, and general public assistance.

2—Referral to work projects.

3—Selection for enrollment in the civilian conservation corps.

4—Distribution of surplus commodities to assistance recipients, to State Institutions in the county, to school lunches and clothing from W. P. A. sewing room.

5—Investigation of ability to pay for care in Children's Institutions, State Mental Hospitals, and General Hospitals.

6—Licensing foster homes for children, Children's Institutions, child-placing agencies, and home for aged.

7—Service to State Institutions, Draft Board, and other public and private agencies.

8—Child Welfare Services to children in foster homes, service to the courts, administration of laws prohibiting separation of mothers and infants, and bringing into our county dependent or defective children.

Each dollar spent for the welfare program is divided as follows: 91c of each dollar is received by recipients, 9c for other services and administration; other services performed by the Welfare Board include all of the eight items mentioned above.

Of twelve applications for old age assistance which were presented: 9 were approved for grants ranging from $8.00 to $22.00 each. Two were rejected because of children's ability to help. One was rejected because of a transfer of personal property to children prior to making application. One burial was authorized to be paid.

Dislikes . . . 's Jokes, He Tries to Choke Her

NEW YORK—Stanley Koprowski, 55, thought his wife's jokes were terrible.

"So," she testified in magistrate's court, "he tried to choke me."

It happened after they had gone to bed in their home, the 50-year-old Mrs. Koprowski told Magistrate Charles E. Ramsgate.

The magistrate ventured the opinion that jokes had their place in a troubled world, but Koprowski interrupted.

"I don't like her jokes," he said. "Aren't your wife's jokes any good?" the magistrate asked.

It was Mrs. Koprowski's turn to interrupt.

"Sure, they're good," she said. "Only he doesn't know how to take them."

The magistrate dismissed Mrs. Koprowski's disorderly conduct charge against her husband but made him promise to behave. Then, to help Koprowski keep his promise, the magistrate ordered Mrs. Koprowski to stop telling jokes in bed.

At Last!

The village policeman was passing the local inn, and although it was well past closing time he saw a man sitting in the bar.

"That man should be outside," he said.

"Yes," replied the landlord, "but I can't get him out."

"I'll see about that," replied the constable, promptly, and pitched the unfortunate man into the street.

"Thanks," replied the landlord. "I've been trying to get him out for a long time. You see, he's the bailiff."

Praise

The judge who was about to deliver a severe sentence looked at the defendant in the dock and began: "This robbery was consummated in an adroit and skillful manner."

The prisoner blushed and interrupted: "Come now, your honor, no flattery, please."

Not the Gasoline Station
"Fill her up," said the absent-minded motorist to the drug clerk as he parked himself at the soda fountain counter with his sweetie.

Average U. S. Family Now Numbers Less Than Four

WASHINGTON—For the first time in history the average American family now numbers less than four persons.

The census bureau, analyzing the results of the 1940 census, reported that the contemporary household has an average of 3.8 persons.

These statistics meant a continuation of the steady decline which has been in progress since the first family computation was made 50 years ago, and corresponded with annual figures of a declining birth rate.

British Plan to Make Rayon Out of Seaweed

LEEDS, YORKSHIRE, ENGLAND—A method to make rayon from seaweed is announced by Prof. O. B. Speakman, of Leeds university.

Professor Speakman says the seaweed rayon is cheaper to manufacture than the present rayons. He did the research for an unnamed British firm. Production of the new material is expected to start within a month.

MAKING CERTAIN

Simpson had suddenly become keen on fishing.

"One day as he was preparing for a few hours on the river bank he turned to his wife and said: 'Maud, I hope you remembered to put the cooking outfit in my bag. I'll want to fry some fish I catch for my lunch.'"

She nodded. "Oh, yes, dear," she replied; "and you'll find a tin of sardines in there as well."

BURGULARS, MAYBE

Hubby—The moths have eaten everything in this closet.

Wife—I don't know they could get in. I kept the door locked all summer.

In the Same Line

Dinner was finished and the three men were settled in the smoking room of the hotel. "Yes," said the Englishman, "my family is fairly good. I have traced some of my ancestors and found that one held up Queen Anne's train."

"Speaking of trains," put in the second man, "it isn't so many years ago that my grandfather held up a mail train in Texas."

"Beggarrh, and we all seem to be in the holdup business," put in Pat, the Irishman. "My father manufactures handkerchiefs."

TOUGH ASSIGNMENT

"Darling, I have come for your answer."

"Well, ask papa, and as soon as you're out of the hospital, I'll marry you."

Stamp Valued at $50,000 Uncovered in New York

A tiny, black-and-magenta bit of paper valued at $50,000 changed hands recently after an 84-year history rivaled by only the most precious of diamonds.

It was the world's most valuable stamp—the only known one-cent British Guiana cover of 1856 in existence.

Macy's department store in New York city purchased it for an unnamed client at an undisclosed price from Mrs. Ann Hind Scala of Utica, N. Y.

Thus the little sticker sought by leading collectors the world over entered a new chapter of romantic peregrinations that might be envied by the Hope or Jonker diamonds.

Chronologically, the saga of the stamp leads through several unidentified owners before its discovery in 1873 as something out of the ordinary.

That year L. Vernon Vaughan of Demarara, British Guiana, found it while looking over some old family papers. He sold it to a collector for six shillings.

It found its way into the collection of Count Philippe la Renoitte von Ferrary. It remained there for 44 years—the count shrugging off incredible offers for it. He never sold a stamp.

In 1917, however, Count Ferrary died and willed his collection—valued as high as $25,000,000—to the postal museum in Berlin. At the close of the first Great war, the French government announced the collection would be sold for the reparations account.

Three years later the auction was held. The bidding was spirited for the world's rarest stamp, with Arthur Hind (late husband of Mrs. Scala) competing with a wealthy Alsatian manufacturer.

Paul Revere Not Alone During His Famous Ride

Paul Revere was not alone on his famous ride, but was accompanied by William Dawes, an ancestor of former Vice President Dawes, and Dr. Samuel Prescott, who overtook them on the road to Concord. On the night of April 18, 1775, the head of the Sons of Liberty, Dr. Warren, noticed the mobilization of the British troops near Boston and he summoned Dawes and Revere to alarm the countryside. Dawes was the first to start and his route to Lexington was through Roxbury and Brighton Bridge. Revere went by way of Charlestown and Medford to Lexington, found Samuel Adams and John Hancock and gave them the message, then waited about half an hour until Dawes came. They set off together for Concord and were overtaken by Dr. Prescott, whose home was in that place. About 2½ miles from Lexington Common, when Dawes and Prescott had stopped to give the alarm at a house, Revere was about 100 rods ahead when he saw two men in the highway. They proved to be British officers and others came forward. Prescott jumped his horse over a low stone wall and escaped to Concord, and Dawes escaped to Lexington, pursued by three or four officers. Revere never reached Concord, but the alarm was given there by one of his companions.

Haym Salomon
Haym Salomon, who helped finance the American Revolution, was of Jewish and Portuguese ancestry. He came to New York as a young man, opening a broker's and commission merchant's business. His activities as an American patriot led to his imprisonment by the British in 1776 and again in 1778. He escaped to Philadelphia where he became a financial broker with Robert Morris, secretary of the treasury. He raised large sums to pay Washington's army, much of the money being his own, and charged no interest; paid the salaries of Monroe and Madison while in the Continental congress; paid the expenses of Lafayette's army, also Pulaski and Von Steuben. He never made any demand for the return of the money. He suffered financial reverses after the war and died almost penniless in 1785.

Perfect Grooming

All feminine feet are pretty feet, these days. They must be—skirts are very short and correspondingly foot-revealing. Seldom do we see a stocking with a run in it; seldom a shoe with a run-down heel; seldom a white shoe, or a beige, or a gray, that is not immaculate. The fastidious footgear may be wedges, or fancy high-heeled pumps, or low-heeled sandals or oxfords. It may be of leather or fabric or straw. Whatever they are, they require time and work from the dainty wearer.

Each night she cleans them or brushes them, and puts them into shoe trees to help keep their shape. She knows they are an important factor of perfect grooming. And perfect grooming is the order of the modern day.

Colored Frogs

There are in Central America very small frogs which appear in large numbers at the close of the dry season. These frogs are highly colored, having reddish backs or coats, white chests or vests and bluish legs or trousers from which they are given the designation soldier frogs. They live only a few days.

HOUSE PARTY MURDER

By JAMES FREEMAN
(Associated Newspapers.)
WNU Service.

IT WAS a high-pitched, ear-splitting scream; the scream of a woman.

Following it there was a shot, a series of groans, a heavy, thudding sound.

Then silence. A profound, heavy silence.

Clyde Greene was the first to reach the corridor. Clyde's room was next to that occupied by Marie Leland. As the youth opened the door he switched on a light button and the corridor was brilliantly illuminated.

Clyde pounded on Marie Leland's door. There was no answer, and he decided to force the lock. By this time, the corridor was filled with people. Doors opened and frightened, curious faces looked up and down. At sight of Clyde opening Marie Leland's door, they came running.

Clyde paused just inside the room. A shapeless bulk on the floor obstructed his passage. He felt along the wall, found a switch and snapped it on.

The bulk on the floor was a dead man. Blood oozed from a wound in his temple. Clyde recognized him at once as one of his week-end guests. His name was Howard Lund, and he was known to be madly in love with Marie.

Marie lay on the bed, unconscious. A dressing gown partly covered her form. Her face was white as chalk. Clyde kept his head. It was his house; he was, in a sense, responsible.

The bulk on the floor was a dead man. Clyde recognized him at once as one of his week-end guests.

sible. He kept the crowd back, turned to look at them. Jack Chase seemed the calmest.

"Go down and call the police, will you, Jack. And the rest of you please get back into the corridor. We don't want to disturb anything until the police get here."

It was fully a half hour before Inspector Oscar Bean and his chief aide, Bert Ross, arrived on the scene. They went immediately to Marie Leland's room. Minutes later they came back downstairs and confronted the scantily-clad guests in the drawing room. And with them came Marie Leland, still pale, frightened looking. She flung herself on a divan and immediately broke into sobs. Homer Dunlap came and sat down beside her, and Marie clung to him.

Inspector Bean spoke to Clyde. "You're Greene, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"You'll save yourself a lot of trouble, Greene, and a lot for your guests, by answering my questions unrestrainedly. You understand what it will mean if I clear this thing up tonight?"

"Of course. Ask your questions."

Bean glanced sidewise at Marie. "Was this man Lund in love with the girl?"

"I believe he was."

"Did she love him?"

Clyde looked uneasy, but Marie wasn't watching him.

"I don't think so."

"Possibly she loved someone else, and Lund was forcing himself on her?"

Clyde glanced meaningfully toward the divan. Bean nodded and strode in that direction. He sat down, close by the girl, ignoring the threatening look with which Homer Dunlap regarded him.

"Miss Leland, will you please tell me exactly what happened?"

The girl dabbed at her eyes. She was holding Dunlap's hand, and when he looked at her reassuringly, she turned to Bean.

"I don't know how long I'd been asleep. I was awakened by a noise. I looked up and saw a man's wrist watch glowing in the dark near the door. I screamed. There was a flash, a loud report. The door opened and closed. I saw a figure dart into the corridor. Then I must have fainted."

"You didn't recognize the figure, have no idea who it was?"

"No."

"Had Howard Lund been forcing his attentions on you?"

"Yes." She paused, seemed to consider, and went on. "We used to be engaged. It was a silly love affair. I soon got over it. Then I met Homer and fell in love with him. Howard kept hounding me."

that Homer was a no-good rich man's son."

"Did you tell him he could come to your room?"

"No!"

Bean spoke musingly, looking at Homer Dunlap. "It might be possible that someone who thought a good deal of Miss Leland overheard Lund make that threat. That same someone might have anticipated Lund coming to Miss Leland's room; might, in fact, have been there himself, or in the corridor nearby and—"

He broke off, got to his feet. "However, that isn't what happened—Greene, you'd better have your guests leave the room. These things are upsetting."

Greene nodded. He didn't understand, but he was glad to comply with the request.

Greene remained in the room until after the guests had gone.

"I'm sorry you didn't get anywhere with your questioning, Inspector."

Bean shook his head. "On the contrary, Greene, I got a long way. It didn't take a great deal of ingenuity to identify the killer."

Clyde's face was a mask of astonishment. "You don't mean you know who the culprit is?"

"That's exactly what I do mean."

"Well?"

"Marie Leland!"

"Marie! But good heavens, how could it be? When I arrived in the room she was lying on the bed unconscious."

"How do you know she was unconscious?"

Clyde bit his lip. He regarded the inspector steadily, wanting to believe, fearful of what the man knew.

"She identified herself as the murderer when she told her story. She mentioned awakening and seeing a man's wrist watch glowing in the dark. A man's! Why not a woman's? She knew it was a man's because she was expecting a man. And she wanted that man out of the way because of what he might tell. Besides, how many men who were in this room tonight wore wrist watches? None. All but Howard Lund had removed their watches for the night."

Bean paused. "She shot him. The gun was lying close by his hand. She had wiped it off with a handkerchief. I have the handkerchief in my pocket. It's spotted with grease marks from the gun. She had barely time to feign unconsciousness on the bed when you arrived. She must have been breathing heavily. It's odd you didn't notice."

Clyde sank into a chair. He turned his head as a sound came from near the door. He opened it and Detective Ross stood there. Behind him was Marie Leland, fully clad, miserable of expression, frightened, sobbing hysterically.

Clyde turned away. It was a nasty business.

Family Trouble Starts Over Handling Finances

Nothing causes more friction in the American family than the question of who shall handle the family's finances. Man is traditionally the provider, so of course, his self-esteem makes him unable to bear the thought of a woman telling him how to handle his money.

The thing to do, according to one expert on financial problems is to treat the problem as a business concern treats it. A business concern makes its purchasing agent the shrewdest bargainer it can dig up and to hire the best bookkeepers it can find for its auditing department. It doesn't give the purchasing job to a good contact or idea man, or the auditing jobs to a bunch of good salesmen.

Do the same thing in your home, the expert advises. Take stock of each partner—rule out the vanities and taboos—determine which of the two firm members is the better at stretching a dollar and keeping track of all the dollars that come in and go out, and then simply elect that partner chancellor of the home exchequer.

Run the business side of the family as a business, unemotionally and shrewdly and you will likely detour a lot of emotional upsets, not to mention a lot of inefficient use of what money you have to use.

Why It's Stonewall Jackson

Time: July 21, 1861.
Place: Manassas, Prince William county, Virginia.

Dramatis Personae: Generals Thomas Jonathan Jackson and Bernard Elliott Bee, Federal and Confederate troops.

It was the first Battle of Bull Run, or as the South prefers to call it, Manassas.

Under the withering fire and irresistible charge of the Federals, the Confederate General Bee's brigade had broken and was on the verge of utter rout.

As from nowhere, appeared General Jackson with five of Virginia's crack regiments, who, though confronted by superior numbers, were holding their own, were indeed beginning to press forward.

"See, there is Jackson standing like a stone wall!" shouted Bee to discouraged soldiers.

Suiting their actions to his stirring words, which passed from lips to lips, the fast faltering troops reformed their ranks and put up such a stiff fight as to contribute materially to shifting the tide of battle, the Federals coming off second best.

General Bee was killed leading the fresh rally; but his sobriquet, "Stonewall" for Thomas Jonathan Jackson survives today.

Just a Little Smile

Young Rubenstein dashed into his father's shop, breathless with excitement.

"Fader," he said, "the rain's coming down in torrents! Shall I bring in de men's trousers vot's hanging outside?"

"Vot you say?" queried the old man.

"De men's trousers!" screeched Isaac. "Dey're getting vet!"

"Somebody wants some flannel-ette?" said father.

"No," yelled Ike. "It's raining. Shall I bring in de men's trousers?"

"No, my boy!" he cried. "Never mind de trousers—dey'll sell for running-knives. Bring in the waterproof coats or dey'll get soaked trough!"

OLD RAKE

First Gossip—So Clara married that old rake after all! It's a big mistake to marry a man to reform him.

Second Gossip—Still there are few men in whom a girl couldn't effect some improvements.

A Generous Disposition

"Friend," said Plodding Pete, "I want to ask you a favor."

"I haven't time to listen to you," said the pedestrian.

"I suppose you're expectin' me to ask you for money."

"You needn't. I'm broke."

"Well, jes' to show dat I'm a good feller an' don't carry no ill-will, jes' wait here till I panhandle up an' down de block a couple o' times an' I'll lend you some."

Got His Answer

A school inspector entered a classroom and put the following poster:

"If a road is 100 yards long and 20 yards broad, how old am I?"

After the usual silence, Johnny put up his hand and replied, "Forty-four, sir."

The inspector asked how on earth he arrived at the answer, and Johnny replied, "Well, sir, my brother is twenty-two, and he's only half-daft."

No Bugs

"Good morning," said a stranger to a woman who had answered the door bell where a room was advertised to let. "Would you like to buy some insect powder?"

"No," she snapped. "I have no use for that stuff."

"Good," replied the stranger. "I will take that room you are advertising."

Early Bible Papyri Found in Holy Land

Extensive Fragments of New Testament Unearthed.

BALTIMORE. — Discovery of some of the most extensive fragments of New Testament manuscript that have yet come to light was announced to the American Philological association at its annual meeting.

The find was made on the ancient road to Mount Sinai, at Auja-el-Hafir, not far from the modern Egyptian border and the last village on the route of the pilgrimage to the holy mountain. It was regarded as of prime importance in that it may throw additional light on the character of early Biblical texts.

Three fragments of manuscript were unearthed in the excavation of ruins of a church and monastery at Auja-el-Hafir.

One of the fragments consists of some 30 consecutive pages of The Gospel according to St. John. There is a second smaller fragment from the same book, while the third contains scattered pieces of the epistles of St. Paul.

Dr. Lionel Casson, a New York university archeologist, announced the find in a paper on New Testament fragments and other Christian pieces unearthed in southern Palestine by the Colt Archeological expedition.

Although the expedition returned to this country in 1936, the manuscript fragments were not identified until late this summer and still are being studied by scholars at New York university.

H. Dunscombe Colt, a New Yorker, was field director of the expedition and the discoverer of the papyri.

Dr. Ernest L. Hettich, who is working on the manuscript fragments with Dr. Casson, Dr. Casper J. Kraemer and other scholars, dated them as "apparently the late Seventh century A. D."

CHRIST REJECTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 20:9-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.—Matthew 5:11.

Rejection of Christ by Israel as a nation is pictured in our lesson. We know how the judgment of God has come upon that nation because of its failure to receive Him and believe on Him. God had to take the vineyard from them and give it to others (v. 16).

Men today reject Christ, and we find that the sin which causes them to do so and the judgment which follows are essentially the same as in the case of Israel. There is a reason for Christ rejection, and there is a certain time of answering to God for that sin.

I. Why Men Reject Christ (vv. 9-15).

Self-will, the very heart of all sin, underlies every refusal to let Christ have His rightful control over our lives. There are two forces which may dominate and direct my life—God's will or self-will. Just as love of God is the essence of all virtue (Matt. 22:37-38), so love of self is the essence of all sin.

The leaders of Israel, both political and religious, had one great fear which dominated all of their thinking concerning Jesus; namely, that they would lose all their authority if He were recognized by the people for what the leaders must have known Him to be—the Son of God, and their rightful King. God had entrusted to them as underservants the care of His vineyard, and in their wicked greed they had determined to have it all for themselves, even though it meant destroying the Son and rightful Heir.

We need only a moment's reflection to realize that this is exactly what occurs every time someone now rejects Christ. It is because in self-will that person decides that the one who has a right to his life is not to have it. There are many sins, but this is the root sin of them all.

II. What Happens When Men Reject Christ (vv. 16-18).

Judgment. It came to Israel, as all history even to this dark day so strikingly testifies. Just so, it will come to every one who rejects Christ.

It is not a slight matter of comparative unimportance whether a man accepts or rejects Christ. He likes to make it appear so, saying that it is just something about the local church that he does not like, or the preacher does not exactly suit him; or perchance he hides behind the time-worn excuse that there are hypocrites in the church, when in doing so he proves that he is himself the worst of hypocrites.

All of these excuses do not hide the fact that in self-will he is rejecting God's will for his life in Christ. At the end of that road he will have to meet the judgment of God upon sin. God reads the heart, knows the falsity of every excuse and the real rebellion against Christ, which may be hidden from fellow men by smooth words and polite manners.

Tear off that mask, unbelieving friend who may read these words. Face the truth that you are refusing Christ's authority because you are self-willed, and look squarely at the fact that "it is appointed unto men once to die, and after this cometh the judgment" (Heb. 9:27, R. V.).

III. How Men Reject Christ (vv. 19, 20).

Deceit and treachery of the vilest kind marked the rejection of Christ by Israel's leaders. They feared the people, and lacking the authority to condemn Him themselves they had to obtain some evidence under which the Roman law would have to sentence Him. It is significant that they could not find one bit of real evidence against Him and had to proceed by trickery and treachery.

Christ rejection in our day is just as deceitful and treacherous, although it does not often appear so outwardly. As a matter of fact, the leaders of Israel were outwardly polite and careful. They sent spies who could "feign themselves to be just men." They "feared the people" and did not dare to speak openly against Him.

Men cover up their motives today. Some would wish to excuse themselves on the ground of lack of knowledge, but in our land at least that is largely their own choice. Others might say they have only been careless, but on what ground can one justify neglect of a life and death matter? Some blame the sins of professing Christians, but this is an individual matter—you must answer for your own soul.

No matter which way man may turn in seeking for an excuse for his rejection of Christ, if he is honest he will have to admit that he has dealt deceitfully with God. When he does that, he is ready in repentance and faith to take Christ as his Saviour and Lord.

Any Amateur Can Catch Columbia River Salmon

It does not require an expert to catch salmon on the Columbia, it is pointed out by the Oregon State Highway commission. The Pacific salmon rarely feed, if ever, after entering fresh water on their way to the spawning grounds after three years at sea, but he will strike a spinner or wobbler. These are trolled from boats, and it's largely luck which determines who hooks into the biggest fish.

But while he does not eat in fresh water King Chinook is vicious and mean. Anything which he believes may thwart his determined trek to the gravel bar where he himself was spawned angers him thoroughly and he will fight it with all his fury. And once hooked he is far from beaten. With amazing strength and tenacity he will fight until he is half drowned before he can be brought to gaff.

Salmon fishing is almost a year around sport in Oregon streams. Running in different streams at different times the silver horde is in the rivers from February until the winter freshets in December. Somewhere there is nearly always good salmon fishing to be found in one or more Oregon rivers.

The Columbia river's commercial salmon industry amounts to around $10,000,000 a year. From it comes the world's finest canned and smoked salmon. By law, nets are removed from the river from August 25 to September 10 each year, and during this period the sports fishermen have their field day at the mouth of the river where great schools of the fish congregate.

Half of Noise in Seattle Traced to Street Cars

When street cars in Seattle discontinued their rumbling journey, one-third of the city's traffic noises were eliminated with them, according to sound measurements taken by Dr. F. A. Osborn, University of Washington physics professor.

Professor Osborn set up his sound level meter in front of the main post office at the same time of day as when he took previous readings with street cars running, so he could compare the results.

"Traffic noises are more than 30 per cent less with buses," Professor Osborn said. "When the trackless trolleys are completely installed the amount of noise will be cut in half as compared to street car days, for most of the noise now is created when buses start up."

Sounds are picked up in all directions by a microphone attached to the meter. Their intensity is measured in decibels—the unit of measuring sound. A low whisper brings the recording needle up to 10 decibels. The rustling of leaves registers 20 decibels.

A train announcer in one of Seattle's stations when he calls out, "A-L-L A-BOARD!" makes more noise than Seattle's new transportation system. His calling measures 80 to 88 decibels, while traffic noises in front of the main post office range from 80 to 86 decibels at their present maximum.

Not All Are Children

On duty at the New York World's fair lost persons' desk was Mrs. Helen Moses, one of the fair's dozen policewomen, when a feeble but boyish voice on the telephone complained that he had lost his father.

"We'll find him for you, son," Mrs. Moses replied. "Just don't get frightened. You go to the nearest man with a uniform and ask him to bring you here. We'll have some nice things for you to play with while we find your father, sonny." "Sonny" the voice came back, tartly. "Don't give me any of that kid stuff. I'm old enough to find my way around. My father's 80 and I'm 62, so I don't need any young upstart of a cop." Everything turned out all right when the father came around later to report the loss of his son.

Motorist, Pedestrian Blamed

Both motorists and pedestrians are to blame for the high pedestrian death rate, the Michigan State Safety committee states. Twenty-six pedestrian deaths accounted for a fourth of the state's June traffic death toll. "When blinded by approaching lights, motorists must slow down," the committee's statement said. "There is no excuse for maintaining speed when visibility is seriously reduced. Pedestrians share the blame when they fail to walk on the left side of the highway as required by law. Three-fourths of all pedestrian deaths occur between 5 p. m. and 1 a. m. By concentrating upon the factors known to contribute to such night fatalities, it should be possible to reduce the death toll."

Town Sells City Park

Legend has it that farmers, from time to time, have been sold the Brooklyn bridge, the Empire State building, or a gold brick, but it remained for the town of Ada, Okla., to pull a prize boner that should be given top honors. Walter Brooks bought 10 acres of ground from a tax resale list. After buying the property through a bidding sale, he went to look at the property. He discovered that he had purchased part of the city park. How the park property was listed on the tax rolls was not accounted for, so now the town is seeking some means of cancelling the sale; giving Brooks back his money and the town keeping the park.

Dollars & Sense!

Turn off the faucet of the liquor traffic and a net financial total of $4,500,000,000 will be immediately available for worthwhile business—and for defense financing.

This summation of a national "drink bill" survey was released recently by Mrs. Ida B. Wise-Smith, president of National W.C.T.U., who added: "Diametrically opposite to money expended for liquor, every dollar invested in legitimate industry would add to the permanent wealth of the nation."

The defense program now in progress "will require the most stupendous sum of money ever appropriated by the Congress," Mrs. Smith declared. "The resources of this country will be strained as never before and generations yet to come will bear the burden of taxation. Already families feel the restrictions which will multiply as time passes."

"Is it not sensible to survey the ways in which some of the funds of this nation are wasted?"

"While the government debt and public relief expenditures were mounting the relegalized liquor traffic took out of the people's pockets $20,165,850,000 at a conservative estimate, based on the 12 billion gallons of liquor sold (figures 1933 to mid-1940).

"But that is only one cost. Crime accidents, disease, loss of earning power caused by liquor since repeal estimated at about $18,850,000,000. The direct and indirect cost of liquor in this most trying financial situation in our history has been $39,015,850,000."

"The drink bill of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, was approximately $3,350,000,000. If this amount could have been used for wholesome and helpful commodities and activities, the income of the industries indicated could have been enlarged and expanded—in the following fashion:

MILK, 10 million more quarts daily
BREAD, 10 million more loaves daily
SOFT DRINKS, 50 million more bottles weekly
MEAT, 5 million more $1 orders weekly
MOVIES, 20 million more attendance weekly
CHURCH support, 10 million families 75c a month more
SUITS and dresses, 10 million more suits, 20 million more dresses
SHOES, 20 million more pairs
HATS, 15 million more
AUTOS, used, 250,000 more
BOOKS, 50 million more
HOUSEHOLD appliances, 10 million homes could invest $25 more each
DRY GOODS, jewelry, perfumes, etc., $300,000,000 additional MUSIC, additional expenditures of $50,000,000
EDUCATIONAL aid, 3 million youth $100 more each
HOLIDAYS, 10 million more family outings at $25 each
TOTAL, estimated, $3,350,000,000."

Defends Self in Murder,

Sleeps as Jury Frees Him

CLEARWATER, FLA.—The judge rejected Jacob Stephens' offer to plead guilty to manslaughter. Then Stephen declined to have an attorney defend him and acted as his own counsel.

He carefully drew from state witnesses the admission that the murder victim was carrying a gun.

While the jury deliberated, Stephens slept peacefully in a chair. No emotion did he show when he heard the verdict of acquittal.

"The next time another Negro runs at you—you run. Do you hear?" said the judge.

"Yassuh," replied Jacob, meekly, as he shuffled back from the bar of justice.

University Develops

Big Red Raspberries

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—The University of Tennessee's horticulture experiment station should get the "raspberries" on its latest patent. Red raspberries "as big as the end of your thumb" have been perfected.

The new berry is a cross of an American and an Asiatic plant and then of a British raspberry (the Lloyd George.)

Hospital Patient Chokes

To Death on a Hot Dog

ST. LOUIS.—A patient at the city sanitarium choked to death on a hot dog.

An attendant noticed the inmate, a 57-year-old man, topple from his chair while eating lunch and he was dead before a staff physician could be summoned. A piece of frankfurter had lodged in his throat.

Struggles 7 Years To Clear Her Son

Mother Refused to Believe Him Guilty of Robbery.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—A tale of the love of a mother who refused to believe her son guilty of bank robbery came to light here when Glenn Davis, 30, Herschel McCarn, 34, and Bill Hathaway, 33, were freed from Alabama prisons after serving seven years for a crime they never committed.

The mother is Mrs. Lulu M. Davis. For seven years she worked to prove the innocence of her son, convicted of robbing the bank of Berry, Ala., of $5,237, in 1933.

After numerous trips to Montgomery to appear before the pardon and parole board Mrs. Davis last April brought before the board a "seedy, nervous individual" who, although declining to sign a confession, readily admitted that he and two others had committed the robbery and not the three men serving time in prison.

The board checked the man's story and sent an investigator to the federal prison in Atlanta where one of the men named was serving a term. This man also admitted that he participated in the robbery. It was discovered that the third man had been killed in an attempted bank robbery.

The board, entirely satisfied, instituted steps to free the men and said "that the crime was committed by three men, who by strange coincidence, were very similar in appearance to the men convicted."

At the trial the men were identified by witnesses as the robbers and after Davis and McCarn were convicted and sentenced to 25 years, Hathaway on the advice of his counsel pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 years.

None of the men appears to harbor any malice toward the society which chopped seven years from their lives.

Streamlined Army Relies on Infantry

Foot Soldiers Still Are Indispensable in War.

WASHINGTON.—The infantry still is "queen of the army" so far as the high command is concerned. And despite the emphasis on aviation and mechanization in modern war training, the infantry is not being neglected in modernization plans.

Tanks may break through the enemy line, disrupt supplies and communications and throw the supporting force into a panic. Planes may carry a bombardment far beyond points where the artillery formerly could reach. But the infantry still is the arm which moves into the breach, seizes the territory and holds it until able to advance or forced to retreat, according to army tacticians.

Despite swift advances in other service branches, only two major developments have taken place in the infantry. One is to get it more quickly into the breach at the front; the second to arm it more heavily so it can strike more powerful blows and repel counter-assaults.

Speed has been given by streamlining the motorization of the infantry. Strength has been given by increasing the number of weapons.

At its present contemplated potential the streamlined division will have a war strength of 13,567 of which 8,910 will be infantrymen—the rest artillery and other incidental troops.

Each streamlined division will have 144 heavy .30-calibre machine guns, 108 light machine guns, 36 .50-calibre machine guns, 162 automatic rifles, 5,076 infantry rifles—the new Garand—12 155-mm. howitzers, 36 37-mm. anti-tank guns, 81 light mortars, 36 81-mm. mortars and eight 75-mm. anti-tank guns. This is a vast increase of firepower over the older streamlined division.

Baby Indulges Taste

For Secreting Money

KANSAS CITY.—Mary Josephine Wonseller, two years old, has developed a taste for money.

She found 40 cents in a dresser drawer and swallowed a quarter. Then she downed a dime just as her parents rushed in.

Later she returned to gulp down the remaining nickel. Her dad took her to a hospital.

LETTER FROM ANNAPOLIS.

the Committee would have to be based on the economic necessity for the license requested rather than upon the moral issue raised.

That the public is interested in this Fair Bill is being demonstrated by the volume of correspondence received by the Carroll County Delegates. To date we have received 178 postal cards and 18 letters protesting against the measure, while those favoring the Bill have sent 76 telegrams, 117 letters and 10 postal cards.

(We are occasionally flattered by letters asking us to vote against the "Lease-Lend Bill," to increase the "A. A. A" appropriation, and to do other things with respect to matters now before Congress.)

Members of the Judiciary Committee of the House were informed this week that an attempt will be made to change the present Court of Appeals. It was shown that Maryland and Delaware were the only two States in the Union that required their Court of Appeals Judges to hold trials in the County or Circuit Courts as well as perform their Court of Appeals duties.

In order to permit the Judges of the Court of Appeals to devote their time exclusively to appellate work it has been proposed, by House Bill 347, to revise the present system. The method now being considered would net up a new Court of Appeals consisting of six Judges instead of the present eight. These six Judges would be elected as follows: two from Baltimore City, one from a Circuit composed of the Eastern Shore Counties, one from a Circuit composed of Carroll, Baltimore and Harford Counties, one from the Southern Maryland Counties and one from the Counties of Western Maryland.

The present Circuit Courts would not be changed if this plan becomes effective, the only difference being that the Chief Judge on each Circuit would not automatically become a member of the Court of Appeals as he does now. Each Circuit or County Judge would be able to devote his entire time to matters before his own Court.

As this change would require a Constitutional Amendment it will have to be presented to the voters of Maryland for their approval. As the plan is expected to be approved by the Legislature the matter will probably appear on the ballot in the general election in the Fall of 1942.

Under the present State Boiler Inspection Laws all persons having steam boilers are subject to inspection twice a year and have to pay a fee of $3.00 to $25.00 for each inspection. The farmers in Carroll County who have steam boilers in their dairies are subject to this law at the present time.

In some parts of the State this inspection has turned into a racket on the part of the inspectors. Inspectors have been known to go into a farm dairy, glance into the five box, pass the boiler as O. K. and send the farmer a bill for $20.00 and expenses.

Investigation for my own information has shown that so far as explosions of boilers are concerned there are more accidents in the counties in Maryland where this inspection law is in effect than there are where there is no boiler inspection.

In order to relieve the boiler owning farmer from this expense that has no visible effect of promoting safety, an attempt will be made to exempt Carroll County from the present Boiler Inspection Law.

Yours sincerely,
STANFORD HOFF.

POTATO GROWERS WARNED AGAINST RING ROT.

The attention of potato growers in Maryland is called to a new and dangerous disease, recently introduced into this country from Europe and which is seriously threatening the potato industry of this state, according to Dr. Robert A. Jehle, State Plant Pathologist.

The disease is known as ring rot and is considered extremely serious in that it wilts the vines and rots the tubers. It cannot be detected in the field until the vines are almost mature. It may be recognized at digging time, but quite frequently it is not detected until one or two months after the potatoes have been dug.

Dr. Jehle says that the disease is carried in the seed and produces a yellow ring in the flesh near the surface of the potato. Pockets form in this ring and become filled with an odorless, cheese-like substance. Cracks often appear on the surface of the potato and the entire center may disintegrate and leave only a shell. Organism frequently invade the infected potato and cause soft rot.

If ring rot gets on the farm, it is difficult to get rid of. No potatoes grown on the farm should be saved for seed. The storage house and all implements which were used to plant, cultivate or harvest the diseased crop should be thoroughly disinfected with a strong solution of formaldehyde (1 pound to 30 gallons of water). It is not safe to use any bags, barrels, or other containers for potatoes which were used to handle the diseased crop, but if any must be used they should be disinfected with the formaldehyde solution. For further information about the disease consult your county agent or the Department of Plant Pathology at the University of Maryland, College Park, Md.

'TIS EASTER MORN.

'Tis Easter morn. The stone is rolled away.
The Christ has risen from the dead
Let all with bowed heads pray,
And worship on this day.

Let all mankind in future time
His message well proclaim—
Salvation to all who do believe
And worship in His name.
