COMMUNITY LOCALS

This column is not for use in advertising any money-making program, fair, supper, party or sale. It is intended for news, personals, and such matters as may be of community interest.

Churches, Lodges, Societies, Schools, etc., are requested to use our Special Notice Department for money-making events.

Churches are especially given free use of our Church Notice Column, for brief notices concerning regular or special services. Larger events will be cared for elsewhere in our columns.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin McIntyre, of Kensington, Md., were the guests of Miss Mae Sanders, on Sunday.

Miss Gladys Baum and Miss Elsie Reimann, of Baltimore, spent the week-end with Mrs. Emma Rodgers.

Roy Edwards, of New York City, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Ethel Edwards and sister, Miss Mary Edwards.

Heavy rains, this week, have effectively broken the drought for the present; not only locally but pretty general in many other regions of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baumgardner and son, Donald, of Front Royal, Va., spent Friday until Saturday noon with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baumgardner.

The 20th. reunion of the William E. and Mary Myers Sanders family was held at the home of James C. Sanders, near town, on Sunday, June 1st.

Guests of Mrs. Stott and Miss Anna Galt, on Friday evening were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Golding, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Haller Herwig, of Hagerstown; and Robert Stott, of Blue Ridge Summit.

Mrs. Vernon Mace and son, of Charles Town, W. Va., Mrs. Raymond Spangler and son, Raymond, and Miss Roberta Young, of Baltimore, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, over the week-end.

Memorial Day guests of Mrs. J. W. Witherow were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Carter, Mrs. George Klee, Mrs. V. B. Hartman, of Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Null and daughter, and Miss Grace Witherow, of Washington.

The Taneytown High School Year Book is unusually attractive, this year, and contains 34 pages. It is dedicated to Miss Dorothy Kephart, teacher of History and French. Of course, it was printed at The Record Office, as usual.

Prof. and Mrs. Milton M. Somers, Mr. John Gee, Mr. Henry I. Reindollar, Jr., of La Plata, Md., and Miss Margaret Reindollar, of Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Reindollar, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Forney, Philadelphia, spent from Friday until Tuesday with Mrs. Forney's brother, Charles E. H. Shriner, Mrs. Ida Landis, who also was visiting there, accompanied them home and will remain with them for awhile.

Mrs. Carroll Hess and classmate, Mrs. Harry Richardson, of Hershey, Pa., attended alumni banquet and the 30th. reunion of their class at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Saturday night. There were sixteen members of the class present.

Mrs. Calvin Fringer and Miss Mary Fringer, town, and Walter Fringer, New York City, spent Friday and Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hahn, at their summer cottage at Shady Side, Md., on the Chesapeake Bay. Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hahn over Saturday and Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Hesson, of town.

Mr. and Mrs. George Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frank, Mr. and Mrs. George Sell, Miss Louise Sell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sell, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Feldman, daughter, Miss Elizabeth; Miss Sally Mae Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, Dr. Artie B. Angell, all of Baltimore, came to Taneytown for the Mite Society supper, Decoration Day, and to renew old acquaintances.

An honorary degree of Doctor of Pharmacy was conferred upon Mr. Robert S. McKinney, Taneytown, by the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy during their centennial celebration. He received this degree at the Academic Convocation which was held at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, on Thursday morning, June 5th, 1941. He also attended a luncheon for the Alumni and was a guest of the Alumni Association at a banquet held at the Emerson Hotel, Thursday evening, Dr. McKinney graduated from the University of Maryland fifty-nine years ago.

The Mite Society of Trinity Lutheran Church held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening, at 8 P. M. At the conclusion of the devotional service and business meeting a program was rendered. Mrs. M. Ross Fair and Mrs. Harry Feaser had charge of the program which was as follows: Vocal solo, Dolores Eckard, accompanied by Miss Clara Devillibiss at the piano; Reading, Miss Mildred Stull; Vocal solo, Lorraine Sauble, accompanied by Miss Clara Devillibiss; Trumpet Solo, Francis Staley, accompanied by James Fair at the piano; Reading, Miss Mabert Brower; Several Accordion selections by Mrs. Martin Koons, accompanied by Mrs. Norman R. Baumgardner, at the piano.

STATE ROADS PROJECTS

Claimed to be Demanded by New Problems.

Forty-seven projects in all sections of the State, calling for an expenditure of $5,262,839.41, are under construction by the State Roads Commission, according to Major Ezra B. Whitman, Chairman. This work represents what is perhaps the greatest activity the State Roads Commission has been engaged in since its creation.

Many sizable projects are being planned by the Commission, in addition to those already in work, and it is expected that there will not be a let-down for some time.

"We are being confronted with more problems of major magnitude than ever before," Major Whitman declares. "We not only have the problem of keeping our highway system to modern standards, but also we must build military access highways and relieve the intensive activity which has been created in our industrial areas."

State Roads Commission officials are hopeful that the Federal Government shortly will provide some of the $11,000,000 that will be needed for the military "access" roads throughout the State.

Work is being rushed to complete plans for the North Point extension to relieve congestion to and from Sparrows Point; for the conversion of Eastern Avenue into a dual highway to speed the traffic to and from the Glenn L. Martin plant; on the building of the link connecting Eastern Avenue and Route 40, near Golden Ring; on the link connecting the so-called Army Plant on Eastern Ave with Route 40, near White Marsh.

Plans on the new bridge to be built over Back River, which is to be the main link in the new Eastern Avenue Route to Middle River, are expected to be finished shortly according to Wilson T. Ballard, Chief Engineer of the Commission.

Authorized by Governor O'Connor several weeks ago to add a number of engineers and technicians to the staff, the State Roads Commission is seeking out whatever capable men are available and putting them to work as quickly as possible.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE SOLD IN TANEYTOWN.

The brick building on the north side of Baltimore Street, long tenanted by Lumber Lodge I. O. O. F., Geo. L. Harner, heating and plumbing, and The Carroll Record Office, owned by the estate of the late Mrs. Anna M. Hafer, was sold at public sale, last Saturday afternoon for the sum of $10,200, to George R. Sauble.

Quite a number had gathered to hear the auctioneer perform, but the first few minutes of spirited bidding soon cleared the field of all but two contestants.

It is understood that all of the present tenants will remain, and that Mr. Sauble will make needed improvements on the property in general.

GRADUATION EXERCISES OF T. H. SCHOOL.

The twenty-fifth annual graduating exercises of the Taneytown High School will begin with the Baccalaureate sermon to be preached in the Reformed Church by Reverend Arthur Garvin, Sunday night, June 8, at 7:30 o'clock.

On the following night, Monday, June 9, the Class night program will be given in the school auditorium. It will consist of two one-act plays, musical numbers, and the presentation of the class picture and the gifts.

Dr. Fred Carrigan Holloway, President of Western Maryland College, will be the principal speaker at the Commencement exercises to be held Tuesday evening, June 10, at 8:00 o'clock, in the school auditorium.

Twenty-seven seniors will be awarded their diplomas during the exercises. These presentations will be made by Superintendent of Schools, Raymond S. Hyson. Members of the graduating class are: Alice Alexander, Ruth Anna Baker, Leona Baust, Richard Bollinger, Arthur Clabaugh, Louis Crapster, Mott Crapster, Paul Devillibiss, Roger Devillibiss, Blanche Doble, John Elliott, William Formwalt, Glenn Garner, John Harbaugh, Louise Hess, Fern Hitchcock, Jr., Marion Hymler, Albert Kelly, Margaret Lambert, Gladys Lippy, Norman Myers, Jr., Richard Reifsnider, Truth Rodkey, Vivian Shoemaker, Robert Wantz, Esther Mae Wilson, and Margaret Yealy.

MEDAL TO 4-H ACCOUNTANT.

4-H accounting work in Carroll County has been recognized, through an award received by County Agent, L. C. Burns, from the state leader's office.

It is a 10-karat gold medal and will be presented to John Scott, Jr., of Sykesville, Md., for meritorious work in the farm cost accounting phase of the contest. The medal is rectangular in shape and has embossed figures of the 4-H clover, account book, pens and a bottle of ink on the face, and is worn with a safety clasp.

Thirty-two top scoring county winners of the nation will be awarded trips to the National 4-H Club Congress also provided by the International Harvester Company. The trips are apportioned between the three phases of the contest. Twelve trip winners in farm and home accounting phases will receive grand prizes of $200 college scholarships each.

DECORATION DAY IN TANEYTOWN, A SUCCESS.

The Address of Gov. O'Connor published in Full.

The Decoration Day parade in Taneytown, last Friday, resembled somewhat the one held during the Washington Bicentennial on July 4th, 1932, in the matter of crowded streets. It lacked the elaborate floats, but contained numerous bands and other features going to make-up a colorful demonstration with bands, drum corps and other features.

The address of Governor O'Connor was delivered in the High School Auditorium to a good-sized audience; but like always, the main attraction to visitors to Decoration Day events, was the parade.

Rev. Guy P. Bready delivered the opening prayer, Merwyn C. Fuss, president of the Chamber of Commerce had general charge of the program, consisting of vocal numbers by pupils of the school, and selections by the Ringgold Band, of York, and formal introduction was made by Mr. Fuss.

The address of the Governor was a fine effort from beginning to end. He expressed his appreciation of the opportunity presented to him, congratulated the town for its fine appearance and stated that he was glad for the opportunity to express his feelings. The address follows—

Memorial Day, 1941, finds us standing, with mixed emotions, besides the resting places of our heroic dead. Even while we pay them respectful tribute, our minds cannot dismiss the thought of new wars now raging, of our Memorial Days now in the making.

We have come today to the graveside of patriots with a deep sense of reverence and a devout feeling of gratitude. We come with a full realization of the inescapable truth that all the blessings we now enjoy, the blessings of freedom and individual initiative, exist only because men have gone to war to procure and protect them for us. We come with a thorough understanding of the fact that we would be neither independent nor a united nation, nor the most favored Democracy under the sun, unless there had been men who died in battle.

AID SOCIETY MEETS.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Reformed Church met in regular session, Thursday evening, June 5th.

The meeting opened with singing "In the Garden". The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. John Devillibiss and Mrs. Edgar Essig; Hymn, "America the Beautiful". After the business session the following program was well arranged by the committee, Mrs. John Baumgardner and Mrs. Carrie Beall.

Vocal Duet, "Marching to Victory"; Gertrude and Dorothy Sulzer; Vocal solo, Dolores Eckard; Instrumental solo, "Chimes of Normandy"; Eugene Clutz; Reading, "Father," Irene Hesson; Instrumental solo, "Stars and Stripes Forever"; Jean Mohney; Father's Day Reading, Miss Ruth Stambaugh; Instrumental duet, "Taps"; Marv Lou Essig and Alice Crapster. The meeting closed with singing, Hymn, "Softly now the Light of Day"; Lord's Prayer in unison.

NEWLY-WEDS SERENADED.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Flickinger, returned home on Sunday evening from a motor trip to New York City, Niagara Falls and Pittsburgh, and were given an old-fashioned serenading on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flickinger, where they now reside. There were more than 150 persons present. After extending congratulations, the Junior I. O. O. F. Band played several selections. Ice cream, strawberries and cake were served.

When old wood siding on buildings has deteriorated to the point where repair is practically impossible, fire-proof building paper may be spread over it and new, fire-resistant siding applied.

Consider how few things are worthy of anger, and thou wilt wonder that any fools should be wroth.

IMPORTANT HEADLINES

Some of them Being of World-wide Importance.

The latest world war news is that German forces may invade Russia. Secretary Hull (U. S.) warns France against working more closely with Germany. Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court of the U. S. has resigned.

Army bills still continue to be sent to Congress, indicating preparedness for war or defense against it.

Kaiser Wilhelm, former ruler of Germany died this week after long exile.

Strikes still continue to interfere with industries, resulting in many thousands being unemployed, through choice.

INCREASE THE MILK SUPPLY.

"Dairies and defense" will be an important farm motto during coming months as the U. S. food for defense program gains momentum, says L. C. Burns, Carroll County Agricultural Agent.

He points out that the United States Department of Agriculture urges dairy farmers to increase their milk production by 6 to 8 percent so as to make larger supplies available for cheese, dried milk, evaporated milk, and similar concentrated dairy products needed both at home and in the democracies across the Atlantic. The Department hopes to bring about most of this expansion in the so-called surplus producing areas which turn much of their milk into evaporated milk and cheese. Farmers can increase their dairy production by more intensive feeding of cows during the summer. To protect farm prices during the period of expanded production, the Government will support the dairy market for a period ending June 30, 1943, through purchases on the open market.

The County Agent does not advise farmers to increase the size of their herds greatly because of the expansion program, since the Department believes most of the extra milk production can be brought about through better feeding.

Since dairying is an important industry in Carroll County, farmers can make a worthy contribution to the food-for-defense program, he declares. Approximately 25,000 families make their living entirely or in part from dairying, and there are more than 200,000 dairy cattle in the State. Food is a vital weapon for defending democracy Mr. Burns asserts, and dairy farmers have an excellent opportunity to strengthen the Nation by turning feed supplies into food supplies. By doing this they will be working hand in hand with poultry farmers, hog growers, and vegetable producers who are engaged in similar expansion programs.

TANEYTOWN KIWANIS CLUB.

The Taneytown Kiwanis Club held its regular weekly meeting at Sauble's Inn, on Wednesday evening, June 4, at six o'clock; Pres. Harry M. Mohney, presiding. Music was in charge of Raymond Wright, with Mrs. Estella Yingling at the piano. There were present 23 members and one visitor, Mr. Charles Graham.

The program was in charge of Charles Ritter, chairman of the agriculture committee. The program was furnished by a group of "Four-H" girls, twenty-four in number, with their leader, Miss Belva Koons. The feature of the program was a playlet, entitled "The Quest" and enacted by the girls. The group sang a number of 4-H songs. During the rendition of the playlet, the aims and objectives of 4-H work were demonstrated. Announcement was made that members of the local 4-H Club had won county, state, and national honors for excellence of work, and that the Carroll County Fair Board had awarded to a member of the Club a scholarship to the University of Maryland.

The Kiwanis Club will meet next week at the Hoffman Orphanage, of near Littlestown, Wednesday, June 11, at 6:00 P. M. On this occasion the Club will present an entertainment for the children of the Orphanage. Those who expect to attend are requested to notify Rev. Bready not later than Monday.

ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL AND TRACK MEET

To be held on the Western Maryland College Campus.

The annual Western Shore High School Track and Field Championships will be held this year at the Western Maryland College grounds on June 7, 1941. The meet is under the direction of the Maryland State Supervisor of Physical Education and Recreation assisted by other state and county officials.

The participants will include the winners of the county Track, Field, and Games Championships as determined in the individual county meets held in the counties during Spring, 1941.

The Meet has been held previously at College Park and at the Frederick Fair grounds. Prior to 1938 it was held as a state-wide event in the Baltimore Stadium.

The Meet will begin at 12:00 noon. Participants are asked to be present at 11:30 A. M.

The Meet is under the general direction of Thomas C. Ferguson, State Supervisor of Physical Education assisted by selected officials throughout the state. Local officials co-operating will be Mr. Charles Havens, director of boys' athletics at Western Maryland College, Miss Marie Parker, director of girls' athletics at Western Maryland College, Miss Maye Grimes, Supervisor of Athletics, Carroll County and Mr. Samuel Jenness, High School Supervisor, Carroll County. The public is invited to be present.

COMPANY H NEWS.

The company paraded twice on Memorial Day—in Westminster in the morning and Taneytown in the afternoon. About 80 men participated, under command of Capt. James S. Morris. The Taneytown parade was reviewed by Gov. O'Connor.

One squad from Company H paraded in Annapolis, together with detachments from other companies in the regiment.

The recreation hall of Company H is now shining, as though a few angels had visited it. Some ladies from Westminster spent an entire day last week decorating the room. Their time was not lost, for they made many friends, and the company again wants to thank them for their consideration.

Those who helped make the recreation hall so attractive are: Mrs. Paul Wimer, Mrs. John Fringer, (wife of Lieut. John Fringer), Mrs. Lee Hutchins, Mrs. Herbert Philip, Mrs. John Myers, Jr., Mrs. Rutan, and Mrs. Klyer. Mr. J. Clarence Staup tuned up the piano. Incidentally, one of the company's selectees is an expert pianist.

The Company is now occupying the first three barracks on Z Street, at the corner of Fourth.

Pvt. First Class William Ogle was sick in his quarters over the week-end. Three others are in the Hospital: Pvt. First Class William Horn, Pvt. Richard Click, and Pvt. G. W. Luckabaugh.

Pvt. First Class Lester Greene has been appointed personal chauffeur to Maj. Elderdice, who was at one time commanding officer of this company.

Corp. Jack Lemmon turned out to be a horseman last week-end. While waiting for the parade to start at Taneytown, he decided to ride a frisky horse that had just thrown its rider. The Corporal succeeded, too.

Corp. JAMES F. BOWERSOX.

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY.

The new issue of the telephone directory serving Taneytown and vicinity has just been delivered to more than 330 subscribers here, according to a statement by William B. Hopkins, Manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City.

According to Mr. Hopkins, the directory shows a gain of 12 pages over the previous issue, with a total of 72 pages. The directory also contains the listings of subscribers at Hampstead, Mt. Airy, New Windsor, Silver Run, Sykesville, Union Bridge and Westminster.

Mr. Hopkins emphasized the importance of consulting this new directory before calling because of the many changes. Telephone customers were also urged to carefully thumb through their old directories and make certain that all notes, money and personal papers were removed before they are turned in or destroyed. It was also suggested that subscribers review their personal telephone number lists with those in the directory in the event these lists may contain numbers which have been changed.

KOPPENHEFFER, KOPPENHAVER COPENHAVER REUNION.

You are cordially invited to attend the 16th. annual reunion of the Koppenhaver family to be held at Tourist Park, on Highway Route 15, north of Halifax, Dauphin Co., Pa., on Saturday, June 7, 1941. Opening services to start at 10 o'clock A. M. Eastern Standard Time.

Please tell all the Koppenhavers, their relatives and friends. Bring your luncheon or you can buy refreshments on the grounds. Free coffee. There will be music, addresses, games and a good time for all. Be present! (Rain or shine.) Evening program starts at 7:30.

THE BIRTH OF THE FLAG. (a legend)

The picture of Washington at prayer at Valley Forge is familiar to the average American, but it is not generally known that prayer was not an isolated case, but a general custom of the great and good Washington.

The legend is that one evening just as the sun was setting in the west that Washington was out alone as was his custom, and at prayer, when from his knees he looked toward the west and saw standing the trunk of a tall pine tree with limbs blown away, and at the top of this tree and to the right hand he saw a patch of the bluest of blue sky and as he looked in awe an admiration the evening star came out in the center of this field of blue, to be followed almost at once by another star, while off to the right of this field clouds streamed out upon which the setting sun cast its fleeting rays and painted each alternate red and white.

It was while gazing at this scene that the idea of a flag for the united colonies occurred to Washington. Hitherto the thirteen colonies had each their own flag and different companies from each colony often had a different flag.

With the picture imprinted on his mind while at that evening vesper Washington assembled his aides and hastened to Philadelphia where he sought out Mrs. Betty Ross, seamstress, and had her make the first flag of the country, fore-runner of all flags that have followed. What a wonderful flag! What a matchless journey it has made since first created in the mind of Washington!

That flag has carried us triumphant through the six major wars we have had—The Revolutionary, the War of 1812-14, the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish American War, the First World War and has triumphed in each. Shall it desert us now in the Second World War? No! The American Flag does not stoop to wrong! W. J. H.

AUTOMOBILE GRAVEYARDS.

America's No. 1 landscaping problem is in a fair way to becoming solved, but it's taking a war to do it.

Automobile graveyards, the most unsightly blots along U. S. highways, are being depleted of their stocks of ancient wrecks, the Keystone Automobile Club says, in supplying metal for war needs. "It may be too much to hope," said George E. Keneipp, Manager of the Club, "that the junk yards will lose all trace of their former unsightliness, but it is sure there will be fewer rusty piles of disintegrating hacks to offend the passerby."

For the last twenty or more years, the Club points out, the problem of the discarded motor vehicle has been increasing in seriousness. With hundreds of thousands of cars junked annually, the roadside graveyards have grown prodigiously—to the great distress of those who have been working for the beautification of our highways.

Two factors now work in favor of depleting the mountains of automotive junk, the Club points out. One is the growing demand for war metals and the other is the lowered production of automobiles. The first will use up the available stocks and the second will interfere with replenishment, because many motorists will hold on to their old cars longer.

FIRE PREVENTION AND CONTROL.

Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontum in an address recently said: "According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, now celebrating its 75th. anniversary, America is a backward nation, as regards fire prevention and control. Our average citizen has little sense of responsibility for conditions in his community which was cause the destruction of lives and property."

He does not realize that, if he and his fellow countrymen took proper precautions against fire, the United States would save enough money to build a Panama Canal every two years.

So long as we love, we serve. So long as we are loved by others I would almost say we are indispensable; and no man is useless while he has a friend.—R. L. Stevenson.

Joy is not in things; it is in us. Beauty does not lie in the face. It lies in the harmony between man and his industry.—Jean Francois Millet.

Random Thoughts.

OUR GO-GETTERS.

There is pretty nearly everywhere the man who wants everything his own way; who thinks, no doubt, that he is always right because he wants it.

He mostly gets to the front, whether others like it or not—which is a sure case of perseverance rewarded.

There are, of course, differences of opinion between equally good, go-getters, but sometimes the difference is hard to see.

Time is a great revealer of things that are dark, when the full light of time is turned on, and we must not be too hasty in our judgments.

It is as important to be a good waiter as a good goer, and when the clear light comes, we should admit it. P. B. E.

FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1941.

HOLIDAYS?

Yes, we favor them—in moderation.

In the beginning we had the Divine command, "Remember the Sabbath day and Keep it Holy, etc." It is also true that "all work and no play, makes Jack a dull boy."

But, if left to "Jack," we think it likely that there is danger in overdoing the beneficial effect of holidays, and of their appropriateness, as well.

Why, for instance, should all of the employees of a concern be compelled to quit work on the same date, and why should a farmer be compelled to quit work because he can not have a broken part to a machine repaired because the repair man is holidaying?

Why should an official declare holidays in order to popularize himself and why should all newspapers or printers be compelled to take holidays and displease customers?

Surely, we need holidays, but there should be fairness and liberty in not having too many of them.

THE STRIKE MENACE.

Strikes are still holding up a half billion dollars worth of naval construction work, and the government is not interfering to any effected extent, who wins and who loses, and why?

Perhaps all of the last Presidential campaign debts have not yet been paid to voters? And who among one big army of voters are paying the costs and high taxes, and the higher prices for many products? And who, and why, are the payers for government bonds, that merely put off the payment of public debt by individuals?

If we have real government by and for all of the people it is hidden by clouds. Not so long ago, John L. Lewis the leader of the C. I. O. threatened to call 40,000 miners out of one section, of our coal pits.

Talk about the wrong of "convoying" our goods to foreign countries to help end the war? Let us do straight thinking, and we may not need to do so much straight shooting.

NO SUCH THING AS A HUMANE WAR.

We are a Democracy. If we get a shooting war it will be the bounden duty of every American to stand by the Government and do all in his power to help win that war; but as we are a democracy, until such time as we are actually at war, it is the right and privilege of every American to oppose getting enmeshed in that war.

The President has a right to think we should be in it, and perhaps (we do not concur, however) the right to do all he can to mould American sentiment to push us into war.

Likewise Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Senators Wheeler, Nye and Clarke have like right to oppose entrance into war. The declaration of war with foreign powers is the exclusive prerogative of the Congress of the United States, and that right (constitutional) should not be usurped by any one else, not even the President of the United States, even tho he be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy.

There is no such thing as a humane war; when war starts it is carried out and carried on by trickery, chicanery, and double dealing. Might makes right and the mighty prevail, and the vanquished are forced to make the best peace they can get.

Non-belligerents have certain rights, at least under International Law, that should be respected. One of those is freedom of the seas, but belligerents see to it that those rights do not prevail if by doing so they worked to their own advantage. We saw to that in the Civil War, and the Spanish American War and the last World War, and will and are doubtless seeing to that now; while the enemy has equal right to be just as alert. The result will follow that there will be billions of dollars worth of vessels and food, and thousands of sailors sacrificed to the mad moloch of war. Our newspapers are filled with such news daily.

Will wars ever cease? Not while human nature remains as it is. Education has failed to convince humans of the futility of war; religion, priest, preacher and rabbi—have all failed to change the trend, and it is to be feared that in their zeal often to get into uniform they encourage rather than oppose war tendency. Where will it all end?

At the present moment Europe, Asia and Africa are all embroiled in war, and America—the two Americas, are the only remaining peoples and powers in the world not at war, and they are hovering on the brink and likely to be enmeshed at any moment. W. J. H.

DECORATION DAY IN TANEY-TOWN A SUCCESS.

Today flags wave anew in all our cemeteries; flowers brighten the narrow plots wherein sleep the heroes of past wars; bands play and remembrance brings reminiscent tears to the eyes of those gathered to honor our veterans of bygone campaigns.

Wars and memories of wars, honors of those wars, form that long line of history that reaches back so far with its repetitious pattern.

Down through the corridor of memories, each one here today could wander and read traced on the cold hard walls, the stories, and the causes, of these deaths which we memorialize now. No doubt, many of you remember the first Memorial Day after the Armistice. In every community citizens watched the long lines of khaki-clad soldiers march along, and there was a catch in many a throat for the gallantly-smiling disabled veterans, who rode with their crutches beside them or with empty sleeves pinned to their coats.

There were Gold Star Mothers in the watching throng, trying in vain to conceal the tears that blurred their eyes. And the cheer that went up for the few bent, old veterans of wars long past who insisted on marching with their grandsons. There was sorrow in that occasion, but there was glory as well.

The story of today's wars is not new. National pride, nationalistic ambitions will always be a source of conflict. Man must at all times be ready to defend his home. The soldier who dies in battle lives forever in the memory of his fellow-citizens. Our heroes' names carry on with escutcheon burnished bright by song and story.

So, again this year, the bands play, and guns and swords gleam and flash in the sunlight as the veterans march by. American youths newly in the service of their country, thrill in martial airs, while their loved ones gaze with pride and hearts filled with anxiety.

Memorial Day, yes, it is truly that! We salute the brave men who fought our fight in years long gone.

"In Flanders Fields, the poppies blow, beneath the crosses, row on row," but ever ringing in our ears, as we remember with affection the hero-dead lying 'neath the poppies, is their dread warning that "they shall not sleep," if we who survived them failed to achieve that peace for which they fought and died. And nations have failed, ingloriously! Instead of the peace among nations that was their elusive quest, today finds other youths keeping their "rendezvous with death," at some disputed barricade; today sees hate among nations revealed in new and terrifying forms.

As we contemplate the scene of far-flung battle, in Europe, along the Eastern Mediterranean, in Africa, in China; as we hear the cries of hungry children, the moans of countless maimed and dying; as we sit at ease in our homes at evening, while the overseas the night brings the whine of the sirens and the roar of exploding bombs in embattled England—well may we, on this Memorial Day, thank the Divine Providence which has preserved us from the tragedies that have befallen countless millions of humans like ourselves the world over.

Well may we say a silent but heartfelt prayer to the Almighty that the carnage of war may soon be ended, and that the war-torn world may have respite to mend the ravages of today's devastating warfare. Surely, as we stand beside the resting places of our dead, there can be nothing in our hearts but disgust and loathing for war, for here we see its effects in all their stark reality. But, terrible as war is, throughout the wide world today we see revolting conditions that, to anyone brought up in the tradition of America's way of life, are to be shunned even more than war, are infinitely worse than death.

We see entire nations enslaved that once were as free and happy as America. We see whole sections of populations torn away from their homes and banished to strange lands, deprived of their all, oftentimes separated from their loved ones, doomed to a future of despair and want. The only excuse for this heartless transplanting of national groups, is to insure that they will not interfere ever again with the nationalistic and militaristic ambitions of their conquerors.

No! War is terrible and to be avoided at all reasonable costs. But war is preferable, infinitely preferable, to a peace of degradation and enslavement, to life without the rights and privileges that we in America have enjoyed as possibly no other nation in the world ever enjoyed. To avoid war by agreeing to accept anything less than the Constitutional Rights we have known, would be to fail miserably to "keep faith" with those who died. To be derelict in preserving for generations to come after us that system of Government won and safeguarded for us by our forefathers, would be a submission that is unthinkable to every true-blooded American.

Today the eternal flame burns red under the Arc de Triomphe in a now German-dominated Paris, in bomb-scarred London, in peaceful Arlington. May that eternal flame always be symbolic of the flame of patriotism that wells in the heart of every American. May it signify forever to those unknown soldiers who have passed into the warrior's Valhalla, and to all the hero-dead who fought for us at Valley Forge, at Gettysburg, at Montfaucon, that we of this generation, and of all generations to come, will carry on the fight they waged so gloriously, will never yield a fraction of the heritage won for us by their valor.

In the light of the threats to our security today, Memorial Day finds us steeped in thought, leaves us with troubled emotions. The will for peace is dominant as ever in the hearts of American men and women. But no longer can we afford to be complacent; no more can we be cynical about preparing for war while declaring a will for peace. The irony of that paradox is already too clear, now that we have seen ruthless attacks become the order of the day. Now we know that a will for peace is not enough.

Ten years ago—five years ago—even perhaps two years ago, it was possible to entertain the conviction that the United States had seen its last World War, at least within our lifetime. No longer, we believed, was it necessary to make much of an issue of peace. It was already with us, everyone took it for granted, we all believed it was here to stay. Those public men who expressed doubts upon the subject ran the risk of being classed as sensationalists. We were complacent in our own security. We came to the Memorial Day, and we laid down our wreaths and went away saying to ourselves: "Thank Heaven, it will never happen again."

Just a few evenings ago, however, millions of anxious American listened tensely as the President of the United States, acting in his capacity as Commander-in-Chief of our military and naval forces, laid down the policy which he and his advisers had decided must be followed if the security of America is to be preserved. Here was no militaristic ranting, but rather a dignified expression of the well-reasoned conviction that only by the exercise of the utmost vigilance could America escape the tragic fate that had engulfed so many nations of the world.

No longer can we sit in false security, trusting to the natural defense of distance to protect us. Our old-time ideas about war have been out-moded, and with them ancient ideas of isolation and defense must be discarded.

Today, our Commander-in-Chief warns that not only must we be alert to repel the enemy when he is actually amongst us, but our defense patrols must range far and wide to detect attack and to intercept it before the enemy strikes. For this purpose, our people must realize every resource of our country, of our man power, of industry, of labor, must be directed to the common goal—the goal of thorough and immediate preparedness. No one can truly call himself American, no one deserves to continue in the enjoyment of his American rights and privileges, if he fails to heed and to comply wholeheartedly with that clear-cut rallying cry.

In the presence today of our hero-dead, we are reminded of the tremendous debt we owe them. To discharge that debt one must be ready to discharge to the fullest the responsibility he owes his country in the way of service. The most gratifying tribute our dead could exact from us today is the renewal of their democratic principles, of our spirit of fealty to our country and to them. Today at their resting place; on this, their day of tribute, we can do no less than assure them that their death was not in vain, that the burden they passed on to us will not be shirked.

America will live, the free principles upon which this great nation was founded will survive, because the spirit that sent our forefathers to Valley Forge, to Gettysburg, to the Poppy Fields of France, still burns brightly in the hearts of every American. We will respond to our Leader's call. We will take up the challenge that has been thrust upon us. We will assume every burden, every responsibility that American defense entails, and we shall not be deterred until once again the beacon of American Democracy shines undimmed and unthreatened before all the world."

Machine of 1,000 Cures

Amazes Skeptical Judge

An amazed circuit court judge in Indianapolis recently heard testimony about and saw a strange machine which witnesses said could "cure" baldness, locate oil wells and make a long distance diagnosis of Adolf Hitler.

The testimony was presented before Judge Herbert E. Wilson in a suit of Dr. Heil Eugene Crum, Indianapolis, seeking reversal of an order of the state board of medical registration which revoked his license as a "drugless" physician after Crum had advertised claims for the machine.

Testimony was vague on the mechanics of the machine—known as a "coetherator"—but Crum was definite in claims that it could determine the sex of unborn children, eradicate weeds, lengthen legs, fertilize fields, sound for oil and "cure" diseases, including cancer and tuberculosis.

He testified he had treated more than 7,000 patients with the machine and had failed in not more than six cases.

The machine is a wooden box with portholes covered with colored paper. It contains an electric light bulb, controlled by a dial, and a tube of chemicals.

Hieronymus said the machine was based on the science of "etheronics," a science of diagnosing human ailments through tuning in on the vibrations of a human. He said he had experimented and found a diagnosis could be made by having the subject place an unexposed photographic negative on his head and concentrate on a symbol in a dark room.

"If the subject concentrates enough the symbol will appear on the negative when it is developed," he said.

Such a diagnosis could be accomplished at long distances, he said, and, as an example, said such a diagnosis could be made even of Adolf Hitler.

Baby Death Rate Drops

One-Fifth in Five Years

Each year about 2,000,000 babies are born in the United States. One fact revealed in a report about them is that during the five years from 1934 to 1939 our baby death rate dropped 20 per cent.

Even at that, some 50,000 babies died between the second and twelfth month of their lives and, sad to say, many of them could have been saved. There has been little or no decline in the death rate of babies from one day to one month old, and there are still 75,000 stillbirths every year.

Under the social security act, approximately 800,000 children benefit from the program giving aid to dependent children. Because of the acceptance of responsibility for our children by the government agencies during the depression, some 8,000,000 children are at the present time receiving economic aid in their homes.

Surgeon-General Thomas F. Parran of the U. S. public health service, in his report, states:

"New horizons are ahead of us in the attainment of national health. New knowledge and surer weapons offer us, as parents, real hope for better health of our children and, as citizens, hope for a strong America."

Kentucky's Newest State Park

Kentucky's newest state park, which will contain replicas of the courthouse, jail and meeting house that figured in Constitutional conventions and the founding of the state at Danville, between 1784 and 1792, is in process of construction, work having been started late in October, 1940, with completion assured in time for the park to be used in the sesquicentennial celebration, in 1942, of Kentucky's statehood. In Kentucky, the very attractive quarterly published by the Kentucky department of conservation, states that the three buildings will be constructed of logs, with native stone chimneys. The jail, or gaol, will be located between the courthouse and the old Presbyterian meeting house. The courthouse, Kentucky history teaches, was the scene of eight conventions prior to the 1792 convention which formulated the fourteenth state's first constitution. The earlier meetings were held to determine whether the Virginia district, or county, of Kentucky should become an integral part of Virginia or withdraw from the mother commonwealth as an independent state. Here it was debated whether, should Kentucky withdraw, she should join the Union or affiliate with Spain.

Alexander Bell Honored

America honors the inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell, with the 10-cent stamp, fifth of the inventors group and final issue of the Famous Americans series. Although his invention of the telephone brought him fame and wealth, transmission of speech by electricity was not Bell's life work. He devoted most of his time to teaching deaf mutes to speak. His wife was one of his pupils. Bell's grandfather was an instructor in speech, his father invented a universal phonetic alphabet, which was devised to allow a person to reproduce sounds of any language. As a lad, Bell and his brother "invented" a mechanical speaking head, which attained a screeching "mama" before being abandoned.

U. S. Army's Strangest Recruit Gets 'Mastered Out' In Hurry

ARMY life is seldom a bed of roses for the newly enlisted, but W. T. Hazlett, of Atchison, Kansas, had a surprise that would shock even a more experienced campaigner.

Out on maneuvers with a cavalry regiment, and encamped near Grand River, Kansas, Private Hazlett had attended to his horse and was ready to turn in for the night when he remembered that his canteen had not been filled for the next day's journey. Pulling a flashlight from his saddlebag, he started for the nearby spring.

As he picked his way among the troopers lying on the ground under their blankets, he was hailed by one who was about to straighten out his bed and needed some light. Hazlett obligingly turned his flashlight on the blankets.

There, in the comfortable warmth, was coiled a full-grown copperhead snake. Without a light, the cavalryman soon would have been bedded down with one of the deadliest reptiles in North America.

"It was luck all through that saved him," Hazlett said. "My needing water, taking a flashlight with me, passing near this particular man on the way to the spring—all were pure chance. I'll take credit, though, for having the light in my saddlebag and also for having made sure its batteries were fresh and in good condition. That's one thing I always insist upon. And now I'm not the only one in the troop who feels that way."

General orders direct the men to remain calm in emergencies and avoid creating any excitement. True to Army training, the two privates simply killed the snake and reported the incident to an officer. The discovery of a reptilian fifth column in their blankets was apparently just one of the possible trials that go to make a hardened soldier.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Red Ears: The other afternoon, a business man whose reserve—his family calls it shyness—when it comes to meeting or conversing with the dear sex is well known, finding that appointments would keep him in his office late, telephoned his wife to meet him in a midtown restaurant for dinner. After the meal, they took the subway uptown and when they left the train, the wife remembered that they didn't have bread enough for the morning toast. After a little search they found a bakery that was still open. The husband, enjoying a smoke, said he would wait outside. Well, he waited and waited. Finally becoming impatient, he went into the bakery, the counter of which was crowded with women. But he spotted a back that looked familiar. Going up, he whispered, "Don't buy too much, sweetheart." And the young girl who turned around indignantly was not his wife.

Street Scene: A sign painter, working carefully with precious gold leaf, lettering a window. . . . A little girl, sitting on a nearby stoop, playing with a battered old doll. . . . A group of school youngsters sauntering along, their arms loaded with books, chattering about happenings in the classroom. . . . A vegetable dealer carefully turning tomatoes until green parts didn't show. . . . A locksmith busily turning out a key in his little open-front shop while a customer waits impatiently. . . . Two young men idling on the corner, discussing the Yankees' 1941 pennant chances. . . . The sign painter finishes his work. . . . Instead of putting his tools away, he takes the doll from the little girl. . . . After a few deft brush strokes, he hands it back with a smile. . . . and the little girl cries with delight. . . . seemingly by a miracle, her doll has golden hair.

Motor City Note: One of this department's Detroit scouts reports that the recent primary jogged her memory in regard to an election incident. A Woodstock avenue resident was so interested in the election that he remained away night after night working for his favorite candidate. Finally the votes were counted and the next night, instead of going out, he settled down in an easy chair. His six-year-old daughter stared at him in amazement for a little while, then asked him if he intended to stay at home.

"Yes, Carol," replied the father. "All evening, daddy?" "Yes."

"Well," remarked the child gravely, "thank God for that."

Merry-Go-Round: Staying away from B'way for another paragraph, here is a Washington happening as reported by Bill: As he was on his way to the office the other morning, a messenger boy came up and asked him how to get to a certain address. Bill had just started to give directions when an out-of-town car stopped and the driver asked the lad how to get to another address. Without hesitation, the boy told him and then turned to Bill for the rest of his instructions. And the incident, Bill maintains, still gives him a sort of whirling sensation.

World War Yarn: They were talking about the last war. Two American officers who had had a tough time at the front were relaxing in a French village where they were billeted in one of the few two-story houses. Lieutenant X had a dinner engagement which turned out to be quite a party. When he finally decided it was bedtime, the stairway rocked and slid under his feet so that his progress was a series of falls and partial recoveries. He finally made the room in which he and Captain Z had cots and, shaking the captain wide awake, managed to make him understand that a friend of theirs was falling upstairs and needed help. The captain investigated but found nobody. The situation began to clear up in the morning when the lieutenant was nursing his scraped and discolored shins. "You were negligent in not completing your report," the captain said. "A lieutenant had been falling upstairs but he had the right spirit and finished the job. Here's some arnica."

End Piece: Harvard boys recently got newspaper space again by nominating the girl with whom they would not like to be stranded on a desert isle. What several Yale friends of this department would like to know is what gal, in her right senses, would want to be stranded on a desert isle with a Hah-vahd man.

RURAL TRENDS

ROGER M. KYES
Director, National Farm Youth Foundation

GROWING YOUNG AMERICANS

Big farms grow crops—little farms grow Americans. Before our agricultural problems can be seen in true perspective we must determine what we, as a nation, wish to have as our national policy. We have grown so many crops that we have, so-called surpluses; yet today, our young people have been neglected more than in any generation. What we have done is to grow things of monetary value at the sacrifice of human value.

Kyes

History repeatedly indicates that a nation pursuing such a policy undergoes a period of irresponsibility and selfish greed, together with corruption of character. We have experienced such a period in this country and are now reaping the consequences.

The preliminary figures of the 1940 census indicate that America is on the way to suicide through diminishing rate of birth. For years most cities have not been able to replace deaths with new births. The result has been an aging urban population, with the children of rural areas replacing the ranks of those in cities. But the 1940 census for the first time shows a static rural population.

So America faces today a diminishing city population and a static rural population, which means we are approaching the peak of our population and will soon have a diminishing one.

The present national emergency will hasten this situation. Young men have been torn from their jobs by military draft. Many had planned to marry and would, no doubt, raise families. There is one other way to increase our population and that is to lift the restriction on immigration. There are many fine people among the population of war-torn Europe who would be grateful for the opportunity of coming to America.

The immediate reaction is this: Why bring more people to America when we already have unemployment in the cities and the problem of maintaining farm prices without further competition adding to surpluses? The answer to this is that Europeans in the war area have been family farm operators who care little for more than subsistence. The fact that they have large families is important, for it will mean a possible way of making America younger by lowering the average age of the population.

It should be remembered that depressions are longer and more severe in countries where the average age of the population is higher than middle age. Young people adjust more rapidly to environment than the old, and so it is with the nations having a young population. Nations create greater parasitic populations as they grow older—that is, a higher percentage live from income resulting from the labor of others. Examples are absentee landlords, political office holders, and the like.

History shows that the common tendency of nations growing old is a great increase in people working for the government. History also indicates that this group uses every device possible to maintain the overlapping government services which make their positions possible.

There is only one way to keep America young and virile—and that is, by growing young Americans so that young people will predominate our population. A youth movement of the proper type could accomplish this result. Let us go back to the greatest source of strong, young Americans—the family farm. There is no quicker solution to the dilemma of America than millions of family farms. We should train a million young Americans in family farm management. We should then make it possible for them to purchase a farm on a long-term loan plan which will enable them to pay as their operations will permit, thus making it possible also for them to grow young Americans as well as crops.

Dove Survives 10 Days

In Heating System Pipes

PRICE, UTAH.—Ten days in a heating system and still alive. That was the experience of a dove.

Special services were being held in the Price Hellenic Orthodox church that called for the release of the Holy Ghost upon the Master. The dove was released, flew around the interior of the church, then flew into a heat vent near the ceiling.

Church members thought they could do little about it—the furnace was roaring away because the temperatures were below freezing outside.

But 10 days later members of a church auxiliary were meeting in the basement. They heard a noise inside a heat register. The register was opened and out fluttered the missing dove.

A few feathers were scorched, but the dove seemed little the worse for the experience.

The Ladies' Aid Society held its monthly meeting on Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Cashman. The president, Mrs. J. A. Mason, presided. There were 19 members present. A fine program followed the business session. Some of the high lights were the devotional period, several duets by Emma Mae Carr and Virginia Cashman, the reading of poems, etc. Refreshments were served.

Only recently I heard people say, "if we could only get some rain." We are having it. Now we hear "if the sun would only shine." When we come to think of it we Americans are hard to please. Many of our farmers who cut down grass a week ago have not hauled any hay yet. This is not a new experience to them. What they learned long ago is still true. You can't make hay when the Sun don't shine.

Mrs. H. W. Spath, Baltimore, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mason.

Sunday guests at the Mason home were: Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Brown, Mr. H. W. Spath, Jr., Baltimore, and Mr. Earl Darsh, W. Md. College.

Englar (nee Helen Englar), returned on Wednesday to her home in San Mateo, California. Mrs. Englar was a former resident of Linwood and a number of friends of this vicinity enjoyed an evening with her and Ray, at the home of Miss Lotta Englar, Westminster. One of the pleasant things in life is the meeting of old friends and discussing old times.

WOODBINE.

Lightning struck in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Biddinger, on Friday evening and damaged one whole corner section of the house.

We were greatly inconvenienced by the fire in Elliott City, Tuesday, when the eight-story doughnut factory burned causing a lot of interference with the electrical current. Housewives had to stop ironing, pumps and ice boxes had to be turned off, as we were only getting about one-third of the usual current.

E. W. Pickett who had been a patient at Church Home Infirmary, Baltimore, has returned home, is slowly improving.

James Jenkins, Jr., Roscoe Dayhoff and George Wolbert motored to Washington to see the "fight" between Joe Lewis and Baer last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. King daughter, Sandra Lee, Cedar Grove, Montgomery County, called on Mr. and Mrs. A. Edwin Gosnell, Sunday evening.

FEESERSBURG.

Here is June—perhaps the loveliest of all the months with its wealth of green vegetation, roses and honey suckle to sniff along all roads; sweet clover—or new mown hay; many graduates, weddings—and living happy ever afterward; tourists from everywhere calling or passing by, strawberries and cherries—"all this and heaven too."

Also here is our expected rain—beginning with an alarming thunder gust on Thursday afternoon, then the best of gentle showers to soak into the dry earth and fill the cisterns and revive every growing thing and continued misty days. We never saw Mt. Union cemetery look better than last Sunday—with its newly painted fence, nicely mown ground, many floral decorations—all freshened by the rain.

Despite the inclement morning, Decoration Day was duly observed, with many flags in evidence, the placing of flowers in cemeteries, parades in the towns, band music, speeches, and festivals. Some of our citizens enjoyed the holiday doings at Taneytown in the afternoon, and in Union Bridge in the evening with crowds of people at both places.

Callers at Grove Dale the past week included Mrs. Jesse Englar, Westminster with Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Horich of Camp Hill, Pa., on Thursday; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Fogle and daughter, Mrs. Howard West, Uniontown; Mrs. Stella Koons and mother Humber, of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Emma Koons and daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Sentz, of Taneytown, on Saturday, and the Elvin Cromwell family, of Baltimore, on Sunday evening.

The funeral of John Addison Koons last week at his home near Hobson Grove, was largely attended, and many kind words spoken of the deceased. His pastor, Rev. Bowersox spoke from the text—"Is there no balm in Gilead?" two hymns—"What a Friend we have in Jesus," and "The Old Rugged Cross," were sung by radio. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Six nephews served as casket bearers: Chas. Crumbracker, Russell Bohn, Bruce Shirk, Andrew Graham, Homer Bair, Stewart Williams.

Interment was in Mt. Union cemetery—where his ancestors and many relatives are at rest.

Regardless of inclement weather there was a fair attendance at Sunday School at Mt. Union on Sunday morning, and a good C. E. meeting afterwards. Children's Day Service was announced for next Sunday, June 8, at 10:30 A. M.; and the Baccalaureate Service for the Elmer Wolfe High School in the evening at 8 o'clock, to which all are invited. Rev. George E. Bowersox, Jr., will preach the sermon.

Mrs. James Roop is comfortably located on the first floor of the San Mar Home for the Aged of the Brethren Church, near Boonsboro, where she has resided for some weeks; and her condition is reasonably well.

On Tuesday evening of last week the young people of our town indulged in a wienie roast in the orchard of the W. F. Miller home. Often our good times lie right at home.

The Firemen's festival in Union Bridge attracted much attention last week until the rain on Saturday evening interfered, and announcement was made for it to be continued on Monday evening when it was very damp and misty.

The property on South Avenue owned by Harry Spurrier and now occupied by Lewis Hann and family, has been sold to Wilbur S. Gladhill, of the Union Produce Co.

The piece of ground belonging to the late Charles F. Myers estate which contained a small cottage that was used by our colored friends, Dan and Julie Watkins, and after their departure the building was torn down, it is rumored has recently been purchased by one of the officials of the Cement Plant; and that was one of our favorite locations.

G. Scott Crabbs, of the Glen Martin Co., had holiday from Friday to Monday; and Wilbur Miller, Jr., was home from Camp Meade on Thursday afternoon over Sunday—his sprained ankle not too strong yet.

A number of women assisted by a couple men, met at Mt. Union Church on Thursday, with necessary tools and gave it a thorough cleaning.

Two new stones were placed in the cemetery at Mt. Union last week; one at the grave of Charles R. Hess and the other for William U. Lease—very nice memorials.

What interesting places there are for sight-seeing in this country! A card from Mrs. Nannie Ackler, only daughter of Daniel and Clara Newman Lynn (deceased), who was reared in this community, gives a fine view of the Canoe Landing at Suna Pee Harbor, N. H., wish I could describe it to you. Mrs. Ackler is with her only son, a graduate electrician, married and living in Springfield, Mass., but they were off on a trip to Bangor, Maine, at the end of last week.

LITTLESTOWN.

Due to the weather conditions on Thursday evening, the annual memorial day services were postponed. It was to have been held Sunday afternoon, but that was postponed. I always did like a parade as I remember well how I used to lead the children (for 23 years) when we lived in Taneytown and not one was hurt, but I feel sure that we were all glad for the rain. We did not have the heavy part of the thunder shower as the one went via Hanover, and the other one via Taneytown. Since then we are having a number light showers. It surely did come in fine and the garden things look so fine, and growing fast to make up for lost time. I have gardened for many years; never had such a hard time to get the seed to come up or grow after it was up.

Rev. John C. Brumback, pastor of Christ Church, has announced that the Sunday School will hold their annual Children's day program by the school on June 8, at 7:30 P. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Winthrope and daughters, left Thursday evening on an automobile trip through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, where they are visiting relatives.

Fifty-two young people were awarded diplomas on Thursday evening at the Commencement in the High School. The auditorium was filled with relatives and friends. The stage was decorated with flowers, and the class colors, blue and white; the class flower was the tea rose; its motto was "Knowledge is Power." The theme of the exercises was the American Home. The prologue, our home land. The first scene was the Happy lovers; the second scene was, earnest toil. It opened with the singing of Lullaby. The obedient sons was the theme of the third scene. The poem songs were given by Anna Renner; Home life portrayed by Doris Motter, Harold Harner and Jackie Stites. The fourth and last scene dealt with the security of home. The chorus song, "Send forth thy Spirit," Mary E. Baschoor gave the poem. The open door, by Grace Coolidge. This was concluded with a tableau, altar scene.

A group of the school teachers and friends of Miss Ethel Lindaman gave her a surprise shower at her mother's home on East King Street. The evening was spent socially after which refreshments were served. She received many gifts.

The funeral of Mrs. Edna N. Harman, wife of Calvin H. Harman, near Silver Run, who died suddenly at her home Monday noon, was held on Thursday afternoon in St. Mary's Reformed Church, her pastor Rev. C. Earl Gardner, officiated, assisted by Rev. S. Charles Hoover; interment was in the union cemetery.

In Memory of

who died 3 years ago June 3, 1938.

Our mother is sleeping so free from all pain;
Oh! wake her not sweet spirits to suffer again,
She slumbers so sweetly, oh! let her sleep on;
Her sickness is ended her troubles all gone
Oh! think how she suffered and moaned with pain,
In the long night hours how we soothed her in vain;
Until God in His mercy came down from above,
Angels that whispered a message of love,
Gone but not forgotten.

Daughter MARY & HUSBAND,
Children, once you had a mother,
Whom was near and dear to you,
But at last she's gone forever,
And has bid you all adieu.

Oh! remember how she loved you,
Many a tear for you she shed;
In our sickness she was loving,
Ever hovering round your bed.
Her busy hands are folded now,
Her work on earth is done,
Her toils are all ended,
Her heavenly crown is won.

Son ALBERT AND WIFE.

THE SIZE OF THE FARM.

Since 1930, surplus population has piled up in the country because jobs could not be found in the city. Observing this, together with the advance in technology in the industrial community, many people have been advocating national planning to keep more people on the land—on a subsistence basis if nothing better can be provided. "Cut down the holdings of the big landowners and divide the land up into smaller holdings for more people," they say. There is much merit to this suggestion, but it isn't the answer to the problem. It would be unsound to reduce the individual holding below the acreage that represents an economical operating unit; and if the splitting up process were carried no further than that, it is likely that only a part of the present country population could be taken care of, to say nothing of the unemployed in the cities. It is probably sound public policy to discourage unduly large holdings of land by one individual, but any nationwide paternalistic movement of this kind would probably be carried too far, with further spreading of poverty the only result.

It is also pointed out that we could keep more people on the farms if we would return to hand methods, and discontinue the use of mechanical power on farms. This suggestion has much less to recommend it than the one mentioned above. The only way that agriculture has been able to survive in our machine age has been to apply improved technology to its own productive processes just as rapidly as industry has improved its methods and its efficiency. If farmers were to revert to primitive methods, the entire industrial economy would soon break down for lack of customers. The thing that the wishful thinkers overlook is that agriculture is an industry, not a way of life, and that it furnishes the largest mass market ever known for industrial goods. The future of agriculture is inevitably bound to our industrial future, and vice versa, industry will continue to depend on agriculture.—National Agriculture.

THE NEW ALPHABET.

The "O's" are rapidly ousting the "A's" in the listing of Federal agencies known throughout the country by their initial letters.

In the early days of the New Deal nearly every new agency was designated as an "administration"—hence the PWA, NRA, CWA, FCA and so on.

But with the coming of the defense program the inclination is to "offices" and the citizen who has much dealing with Washington today needs to be familiar with:

OPM—Office of Production Management.

Ham Sandwich Is Real Lucky Order

Leads to Reunion of Long Separated Family.

BROWNWOOD, TEXAS. — Lon Parker, 65, had looked long for his three children, without success. Then he ordered a ham sandwich and his search was ended.

He was so happy he had to shout. So he ran out into the street and let go. A policeman stopped him and wanted to know what all the fuss was about. When Parker told him, the officer said he guessed the elderly man had a celebration coming.

Here's Parker's story: He had not seen his two daughters and a son, Goldie, Opal and Ellis Parker, since 1925, when they were living with their mother. He went to the Northwest, into Montana, Wyoming, and Canada and only returned here in late 1939 to look around for them.

"I came here trying to find my children," he said. "I knew they were in Abilene 15 years ago."

"The other night I went into a cafe here. It has good ham and I like ham sandwiches. So I asked the waitress to fix me a ham sandwich and use a double amount of ham."

"There weren't many customers, so after she asked if the ham was all right, we started talking. I figured it wouldn't hurt any, so I asked her if by any chance she knew of my children, and I named them for her."

"Did you say Goldie Parker?" she asked. "I told her yes and right away she looked at me closely and said: 'Why, I'm Goldie Parker, and you're Lon Parker, my father, aren't you?'"

The daughter then revealed that she now was Mrs. Goldie Mills. She told her father he was a grandfather and took him to her home to introduce him to her husband and show him her three daughters and one son.

Further, the daughter led Parker to her sister, Opal, Parker's youngest child. She and her husband, J. E. Haker, had been staying at the same Brownwood hotel at which Parker was living and he had not seen, or recognized, her.

The son, the two daughters informed their father, lives in San Francisco, Calif., and operates several cafes.

'Kindergarten'—German Heritage

A little over a century and a half ago, there was born a man who made a mark upon the educational systems of his time that has endured, undimmed, to this day.

He was Friedrich Froebel, considered by many one of the greatest of educational reformers, who, in 1837, in the little village of Blankenburg, near Keilhau, in Germany, started an institution whose fame soon echoed and re-echoed 'round the world.

Froebel's youth had been completely neglected—he furnished his own best and most horrible example of how not to be reared.

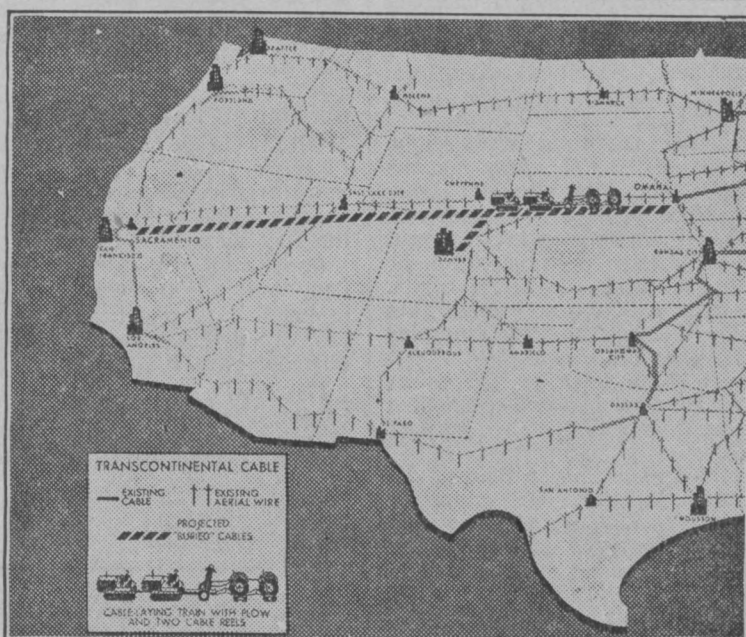

Believing that children should be educated through play, through occupations which delighted while they developed the senses and the body and guided the affections—ideas deemed revolutionary—Froebel conducted his class in a room opening on a garden.

For the name of his type of school, he invented the term "kindergarten"—a German composite meaning literally "children's garden."

Carlsbad Caves

Geologists estimate that the formation of the Carlsbad caverns began some 60,000,000 years ago at the end of the "Age of Dinosaurs." Water seepage into vast limestone deposits has caused their myriads of sculptured effects.

Adding To America's Voice Highways

The recently announced 1,600-mile underground cable line, to be constructed by the Bell Telephone System at a cost of nearly $20,000,000, will be laid along the route shown on the above map. Running from Omaha, Nebraska to Sacramento, California, the proposed cable will increase coast-to-coast communication facilities to meet future national defense needs. The line will consist of two cables buried for almost their entire lengths by a special tractor-hauled "plow train." The "cable train," able to travel over any kind of terrain except marsh land and solid rock, plows a ditch, feeds in the two cables, covers them with earth and moves forward—all in one continuous operation.

Ten Year Building Peak Reached in U. S. Cities

New home construction in 310 leading American cities in 1939 totaled the highest in value and volume in 10 years, according to the annual national home building survey of Investors Syndicate recently made public.

"Volume of new homes last year was more than 10 times (10.4) the 1934 total, the low for the decade," explained C. J. Ryan of the company.

"Value of these new residences was almost 10 times (9.8) the low total hit in 1934."

Contributing substantially to these record breaking figures was the smallness of the advance, only four-fifths of 1 per cent, in average cost per person provided with new housing over the preceding year.

"Rapidity of residential construction last year, the fifth successive year to record gains, is emphasized," said Ryan, "by the fact that both value and volume increase were the largest year to year rise during the decade."

The cities included in the survey, located in 41 states and the District of Columbia, have a population, according to the 1940 preliminary estimate of the United States bureau of census, of 49,134,705, or 37.4 per cent of the population of the United States.

This group includes the 92 cities with a population of 100,000 or more. New home building in these 310 American cities in 1939 provided housing for 867,664 people.

This was a gain of 202,032 people, or 30.4 per cent, over the 665,632 newly housed in these same cities in 1938.

New residential construction last year in these same cities provided for 67.1 per cent more people than in 1930, when only 519,192 were newly sheltered.

Scars of Draftee Bare Ritual Tale

Tells of Cruel Ceremony of Penitente Sect.

DENVER.—The last of 53 draftees was being examined for induction at the army recruiting station. Suddenly the sergeant whistled.

"Hey! Where did you get those marks on your back?" he asked.

"Those are scars I received about 12 years ago," Ben Padilla, 31 years old, the draftee, answered. His back was laced with a web of red marks.

"I'm a member of the Penitentes in southern Colorado," he explained. "Twelve years ago my father came to me and said that I was old enough to join the Penitentes on Good Friday. I was 19."

"We went with the priest about four miles south of Walsenburg in the hills near the Cucharas (creek) and began the ritual."

"We sang and prayed until 2:30 p. m. Good Friday. Then with whips of leather with seven wire tongues, we followed the procession for a mile to a hill. One of our party carried a cross, cut from a large pine."

"During the procession we whipped each other and prayed and did penance until we reached the hill. There the man with the cross was nailed—hands and feet—and the cross stood up. He was bleeding bad when we took him down an hour and a half later and he was unconscious. But our doctor—we always have one on the trip—took good care of him."

"You probably think it strange, but if more people were penitente, we would have less war."

"You never heard of Penitentes making war on anybody but ourselves. The Penitentes won't die—just as sure as this war won't be the last."

Spring Fever? Loaf with Leftovers!

YOU can loaf and have it too, when you make this luscious loaf for luncheon or dinner. Mix the ingredients, pop it in the oven and catch forty winks while it's getting done. This one's made with ham and pork (excellent sources of Vitamin B₁) and is something new and different in meat loaf circles. It's glazed with a spicy sauce—but why not find out for yourself—with the quick-n-easy recipe that follows:

Glazed Ham Loaf
1 lb. ground smoked ham 1 cup brown sugar

2 eggs
1/2 cup dry mustard
1/2 cup diluted vinegar
Have smoked ham and fresh pork ground together. Combine with bread crumbs and moisten with milk and slightly beaten eggs. Shape into a loaf in a dripping pan. Make a sauce of brown sugar, dry mustard and diluted vinegar. Pour over loaf. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 1 1/2 hours. Baste frequently with the sauce. Makes 8 servings.

The Eppey Sisters, left to right are Sarah, Mary, Verma, Lorraine and Pauline, are musical evangelists of Mechanicsburg, Pa. They will be present at Taneytown United Brethren Church, on Sunday, June 8th., for the Sunday School period at 9:30 A. M. and for the Memorial Service, at 10:30 A. M. At 2:15 P. M., will be held the annual Home-Coming Service with the Rev. Daniel J. March, of Dillsburg, Pa., a former pastor, will be the messenger. Miss Mary Shriver, Taneytown, will also be present during the afternoon to render several numbers on her piano accordion. The Eppey Sisters features in vocal solos, quintets, quartets and piano playing; also they have a vibra harp, violin, Hawaiian guitar, saxophone and two accordions. These girls will also have full charge of the program at Harney, at 7:30 P. M., Sunday. A real treat is in store for all who attend these services, and everybody welcome. There shall be a service at the Taneytown U. B. Cemetery, at 11:45 A. M.

Mother Disappears While on Search For Dead Infant

Leading Son, 3, She Wanders Into Oblivion as Her Husband Hunts.

SAN FRANCISCO. — Somewhere, probably in this city, a woman was wandering the other day in a daze of tragedy, and with her trudged her three-year-old son, unaware that his mother was leading him, and herself, toward an uncertain fate.

To prevent another and possibly greater disaster from descending upon the family, the woman's husband, discouraged and impoverished by a two-month search, journeyed to San Francisco and appealed to the police to help him. He is Thomas B. Crotty, 36, of Walla Walla, Wash., music teacher, violinist, one-time assistant concert master of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

The woman whom he asked them to help find is Mrs. Helen Schwartz Crotty, 32, former art student in Paris, France; mother of Charles Crotty, who died in his eighth month, and of Thomas Crotty, 3, fellow wanderer with his mother.

Once Happy Home. Until last November, the Crotty home in Walla Walla was as happy as you may. Mr. and Mrs. Crotty, who met in Paris while he was touring Europe, worked day by day to develop into reality their ambitious dreams for their children.

Crotty bought a rare and expensive violin for son Thomas and the child already had shown a talent for playing. Charles, too, was to be a musician, the parents agreed.

Then Charles died. Less than two weeks after the funeral, Mrs. Crotty took Thomas by the hand and walked out of her home.

For six weeks there was no word of the pair, and those six weeks were Crotty's first taste of what hell on earth can be like.

He closed his studio, packed a few possessions, ranged the coast cities, seeking some trace of his wife and child.

He went down to San Francisco, and at Christmas time his search was rewarded. A friend had seen Mrs. Crotty and the child—somewhere in the Fillmore district. That was all the friend knew.

Then Charles died. Crotty haunted the Fillmore area until one day he came face to face with his wife and his baby.

Unable to Explain Actions. She hardly remembered, Crotty said, how she and the child had lived. The past was a blur. She could think only of their dead child, something inside was urging her on, ever onward, where she could not say.

But happy again with her husband, she started back with him to Walla Walla. At Portland they stopped to visit friends. Mrs. Crotty suddenly arose from a chair, said that Thomas appeared ill and that she would take him for a walk.

"The air might do him good," she explained. Crotty could not know that once again his wife was answering an irresistible urge—the urge to seek something she could never find. The vision of the dead child, Charles, must have been before her as she led Thomas out of the Portland house.

She never came back. Crotty has never heard from her. He does not know what may have befallen his wife and their only surviving son, but he believes they are in San Francisco.

So he has taken up the long, weary search again. Once again it has brought him to San Francisco—shabby, broke, living on hope of the future and on memories.

Into His Hands!

When in your hard fight, in your tiresome drudgery, or in your terrible temptation you catch the purpose of your being and give yourself to God, and so give Him the chance to give Himself to you, your life, a living stone, is taken up and set into the growing wall . . . Wherever souls are being tried and ripened, in whatever commonplace and homely ways, there God is weaving out the pillars for His temple. Oh, if the stone can only have some vision of the temple of which it is to be a part, forever! What patience must fill it as it feels the blows of the hammer and knows that success for it is simply to let itself be wrought into what shape the Master wills!—Phillips Brooks.

Adjustable Curbs for Roads

Disappearing curbs, or metal "fins" running longitudinally in the street, can be set to give three-fourths of the roadway for an excess load of traffic in one direction on the North Side Outer Drive in Lincoln park, Chicago. There are three strips of these inverted U-shaped barriers, which are 8 inches high when hydraulically raised and level with the street when lowered. When the traffic rush is toward the business district of the city, the separations can be adjusted to provide three two-car-abreast lanes one way and one lane in the opposite direction. Three double lanes can similarly be established for the outbound evening traffic.

CAT CLUE

By JAMES FREEMAN
(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

INSPECTOR Will Hatch climbed the last of four flights of dirty stairs and paused. His chief aide, Detective Jed O'Brien, followed, puffing and blowing like a steam engine.

Will grinned. "That's the last, Jed. Catch your breath and let's go."

O'Brien chose not to reply. Silently, like a faithful dog, he followed his superior to a door.

Will knocked on the door, and then opened it without waiting for a reply.

A man had partly risen from a table in the center of the room. A man's hat and coat were thrown across the bed. A soiled shirt hung over the back of a chair. There was an ashtray on the table, a half-filled bottle of milk, a glass and a box of crackers.

The man was in his shirt sleeves. He must have been under thirty. His features were dark and swarthy. He watched Hatch from black, close-set eyes. His attitude was that of suspicion.

"Hello," said Hatch, easily. "Your name Volkoff? Leon Volkoff?"

"Well, what if it is?" The man at the table scowled and stood up to his full height, which wasn't a great deal.

Hatch advanced across the room, studying the man. His expression was not hostile, though he was wondering how difficult Volkoff was going to be to handle. For he was sure the man was Volkoff. The description fitted in perfectly.

Behind Hatch, O'Brien leaned heavily against the door casing.

"What about it?" the man repeated darkly.

"I'm looking for a man named Volkoff," he said. "Wanted for murder."

A man was sitting on the bed. He looked up, startled.

der." Hatch paused, and when the man made no reply, he went on, "I think you're him."

"Yeah?" the man sat down. "So you're a copper, eh?" And you're lookin' for a killer named Volkoff, an' yuh think I'm him? Well, what about it?"

Hatch shrugged. "Either you prove you're not him, or I'll take you along."

"Smart guy, eh? One of them coppers what never makes mistakes. I hate coppers."

"Start proving," said Hatch, "or put on your coat."

The man's eyes left Hatch's face and moved about the room, coming to rest at length on O'Brien, standing at ease by the open door.

A tom-cat had come in through the door and was stretching himself just inside the room. With a sudden display of savageness, the man picked up the ashtray and flung it at the cat, missing by inches. The cat looked at the man in sudden alarm, turned and fled from the room.

"I hate coppers," the man repeated, turning back to face Hatch, "and cats." He paused, studying Will's face with hatred in his black eyes.

"I ain't trying to prove nothin' to a copper. I'll talk to the judge; prove who I am."

Hatch shrugged, his face expressionless. "Suit yourself, feller. Get your coat."

The man stood up and walked over to the bed. Hatch watched him. O'Brien, standing by the door, watched him, too.

Presently the man was ready. They descended the stairs. On the second landing they paused. Hatch produced a pair of handcuffs and clamped them on the man's wrist.

He told O'Brien to wait. Then he began ascending the stairs again.

The man shouted a protest, but O'Brien silenced him by clamping a hand over his mouth.

Hatch came back up the stairs softly. He crouched before the door a moment, listening. Then stepped inside.

A man was sitting on the bed. He looked up, startled. He was small, compared to Will. His features were dark and swarthy. His eyes were black and close-set.

Hatch said, "Come on, Volkoff. You're wanted for murder!"

O'Brien was puzzled about it. Hatch had to explain.

"Murder is serious business," the inspector said. "In the first place, the man took it too lightly. He didn't want to get away. On the contrary, he wanted us to take him in. That wasn't natural. There must have been another reason. I figured he wanted to get us out of the room. It was the cat made me sure I was right."

"The cat?"

"Sure. Cats don't come into strange rooms and stretch and act like they lived there unless they expect a welcome. The man didn't own the cat, or it wouldn't have acted like that. The answer must be that Volkoff liked cats and owned one."

"What was the other guy doing there?"

"The other guy was a stall. Volkoff kept him there in case we came after him. When he heard us on the stairs, Volkoff hid under the bed."

The other guy got us out of the room by posing as Volkoff and letting us arrest him. When Volkoff was well away, the other guy would prove who he was, and we'd have to let him go."

Hatch threw away the butt of his cigar and thought of Volkoff's white, frightened face.

"Murder," he said musingly, "is serious business."

Most Vegetables Lose

Vitamins by Long Storage

Will cooking "kill" vitamins? This is a question that can't be answered by "yes" or "no." An article in the Journal of Home Economics summarizes research conducted at several colleges.

Vitamin A, which is an absolute essential to good eyes, is lost from most vegetables by long storage. In the case of sweet potatoes, however, storage definitely increased the A content. Ordinary boiling caused no loss and increased the A content in string beans and carrots! Freezing caused no loss, but drying robbed spinach of Vitamin A.

The researches indicate that vitamin C, which prevents scurvy, is destroyed to a greater or less extent by heat, light, alkalies and some metals. Acids and sugars have a tendency to protect C. But storing foods at room temperature, or boiling, caused high losses. Refrigeration seemed to conserve a goodly portion of this essential, while pasteurization and irradiation robbed milk of 50 per cent of its C content.

Less definite information was available on vitamin B1, although there are indications that it will withstand a considerable amount of boiling, according to the best authorities.

Hand Tap Code Devised To Serve Sightless Man

ST. LOUIS.—Joseph Murphy, deaf and blind for many years, has devised a code of taps by means of which his friends communicate with him.

Taps on the back of Murphy's hand take the place of speech which he cannot hear. One, two, three and four taps represent the first four letters of the alphabet. The remaining letters are divided into four groups with a tap series for each group.

'Sea Serpent' With Head Like a Horse Is Found

VANCOUVER, B. C.—The body of a 10-foot "sea serpent" with a horse-like head and bulbous nostrils, which was found on the beach near here, defied identification.

Dr. W. A. Clemens, F. R. S. C., biology professor at the University of British Columbia and director of the dominion biological station here, said he was unable to classify the specimen.

Huge Python Gives Up After Heavy Fusillade

MANILA.—Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Barrett hope to send their friends in the United States presents made from raw material picked up in the yard of their Manila home—skin of a 10-foot python which they found in their driveway one dark night.

The reptile was killed with the assistance of a neighbor and eight Manila policemen.

Relating the incident afterward, Barrett said he spied the glistening reptile stretched across his driveway as he turned his car into it after attending a party. He said his first impulse was to shut his eyes and try to recall how many drinks he had. Then he drove his car wheels over the python, hoping to crush it. This only aroused the snake.

Barrett summoned a policeman who, after one look, telephoned for reinforcements. Seven more patrolmen arrived and began shooting at it without success. Finally the police "lassoed" the reptile with wire and left it hitched to a post for the night.

The next morning a neighbor of the Barretts fired several shots into the python's head and killed it.

Talking 'Mute' Lands in Jail; Forgets His Card

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Four "deaf mutes" supposedly working their way through college recently ran afoul of Salt Lake City police when one of their number talked.

Police arrested the "mute" after a customer, whom the youth had tried to sell a 10-cent package of bandages, reported the matter. Taken to headquarters, the youth forgot all about a card he carried explaining that he was a mute and began to talk fluently.

His story led to the arrest of three companions at a tourist camp. All three carried the same kind of cards.

The suspects—two of them from Georgia and two from Wisconsin—told officers they had been averaging about $20 a day with their "rack-et."

Police said they believed the man carried more guns than any other person arrested here.

BEGINNING OF WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:15-19:12.
GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

Nineteen hundred years of "front line action" for Christ began that day in Antioch when the first missionaries of the cross were sent forth. There is no more thrilling story in all history than that of missions. The glorious thing is that it goes on year after year, and will do so as long as the Lord of the harvest continues to send forth workers. The writer of these notes is glad to be associated with a training center which in its half century of operation has prepared for service about 2,300 men and women who have been sent to the foreign field by their churches and missions, and of whom approximately 1,600 are still active on the field in spite of "peril, toil and pain."

Our lesson teaches us how "to fight the good fight of faith" (1 Tim. 6:12). First we must have

I. The Base of Operations (vv. 1-3).

Every army must have a home base; just so, the army of the Lord looks to the home church, the local gathering of God's people. An army would fail if those at the base of its action were asleep, or so interested in the pleasures of this world, or so indifferent to their responsibility, that they would not work hard in support of the active army. So the cause of Christian missions cannot go ahead if it has to depend on a home church which is spiritually asleep, indolent, indifferent, and worldly minded.

The church at Antioch prayed and fasted. It ministered the Word of God. It was responsive to the guidance of the Holy Spirit and ready to sacrifice by giving its leaders to the missionary cause. Is your church that kind of a church? If not, why not?

Observe also that it is from such a church that God calls His workers. Sunday school teacher, you may have in your class next Sunday one of the missionary leaders of the next generation. See to it that the message from God reaches that heart.

II. Good Soldiers of the Cross (vv. 2-4).

The army does not call for the weak or physically handicapped to serve. Just so, God's service calls for the strongest men and women of the church, not the misfits or failures. A girl was once heard to remark: "If I can't get married, I will be a missionary." Fortunately for God's work, she did get married. Some men who cannot succeed in business think that means they should be missionaries.

God wants our best (Deut. 15:2) and He wants the best a church can give, which means the best spiritually, but in other ways as well. Note also in verses 3 and 4 that the messengers of the Lord must be constantly led of the Holy Spirit.

III. The Heat of Battle (vv. 5-10).

Warfare is not a Sunday school picnic. It means conflict with the forces of the enemy. So the missionary of the cross must be prepared to meet Satanic opposition. Saul and Barnabas met this "son of the devil" (by the way, reader, we trust you do not belong to that family) who opposed the work of grace which had begun in the heart of the governor (vv. 8-10).

However, there are those who do seek to hear the Word of God (v. 7) as did Sergius Paulus. The business of the missionary is to preach to them, but not only to them. The city of Paphos was really a miniature of the world of that day. It was a Greek city of high culture and low morals. It was ruled by the Roman governor, a man of noble character and a "man of understanding" (v. 7). But right with him was Elymas the sorcerer, a wicked and ungodly Jew, a disgrace to his own people and a hindrance to the work of God. The messenger of God rejoices in the opportunity to minister the Word, whether to Roman, Jew, or Greek, of high or low estate, wicked or good, interested or antagonistic. They all need God's Word.

IV. Victory for Christ (vv. 11, 12).

The army goes into battle with the purpose of winning a victory, or it is defeated before it starts. The Lord's army is on a victorious march, certain of success, because He that is in us is "greater than he that is in the world" (1 John 4:4).

In dealing with the sorcerer, Paul brought down the drastic judgment of God. Note that this was not done because Elymas opposed Paul, or because he had some different belief, but because he in his wickedness opposed God. Those who fight against God are in a losing battle, the victory is always on His side.

There was another kind of victory here, and the soldiers of the cross are (or should be) far more interested in that type of victory; namely, the surrender of a sinner at the foot of the cross. God won a victory in the heart of Sergius Paulus.

Convicts Employ Skill to Create Chapel in Prison

Blacksmith Shop-Like Room Made Into Beautiful Place of Worship.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—While the cathedrals of Europe—symbols in stone and mortar of man's reverence—are damaged or wrecked by bombs, convicts at Ohio penitentiary here continue to make their "cathedral" into a beautiful place of worship.

Seven years ago St. Catherine's "Cathedral" in the penitentiary resembled a blacksmith's shop; today it possesses ecclesiastical beauty. The story of its transformation is the story of Rev. John A. Sullivan and of Norman ("Rubber Nose") Billig and other convicts like himself.

Billig turned his skill in wood-working to making the chapel of St. Catherine an aesthetic place for worship. Other inmates, skilled craftsmen, shared in the work.

Father Sullivan was appointed prison chaplain on July 17, 1933, and his dream of a more beautiful St. Catherine's was born on that day.

Shrine Once Bare.

"Standing there," he once said, "looking at the splintered floor, the crude pews and the gray brick walls, I felt something should be done. I thought there ought to be a place where men could leave prison behind them, a fitting place for worship."

He examined the floor of the sanctuary and found it would have to be relaid. He discovered the transoms of the windows were solid. It was impossible to open them for ventilation.

There were no doors, crucifix or images of saints. Only two unused doorways at the foot of the stairs that once opened upon adjoining classrooms.

Father Sullivan discovered there were inmates like Billig who were able and eager to help with the project. He made plans and consulted local architects for suggestions.

Renovation work began in earnest in 1938. Inmates tore out the rickety balcony from the rear of the chapel. Huge bronze-hinged doors were placed at the entrance. The idle doorways at the foot of the stairs were converted into niches, occupied by the images of Saint Theresa and Saint Francis of Assisi. A large cross, tooled in the machine shop, was placed above the entrance.

Rail of Solid Walnut.

It was decided to inlay the floor of the sanctuary with black walnut, set in geometric design. Billig and another convict, since paroled, laid down this parquetry.

A communion rail, which ecclesiastical architects believe is unique, was created by Billig. Built of solid walnut, it measures 50 feet. Upon four of its posts are carved the figures of the Apostles—St. John, St. Matthew, St. Luke and St. Mark.

Billig worked 393 days to carve the figures of the Apostles and other ecclesiastical designs on the railing. The windows were rebuilt and the openings closed with panes that look like stained glass. Two other convicts, both Methodists, worked on the walls.

And so the job of rebuilding goes on.

Fickle Dog Upsets the Dignity of This Court

NEW YORK.—Jacob Solomon and Irving Zimmerman went before Magistrate Joseph Flynn to prove the disputed ownership of a dog.

"Here Rudy!" said Solomon. The animal tore across the court room and licked Solomon's face.

"Here Captain!" shouted Zimmerman. Similar doings.

"Hey you!" the judge said from the bench. The pup bounded right up and licked his face.

"I give up," said Magistrate Flynn. "Case dismissed."

Plane Flights Aid in Fight Against Hay Fever

Medical science took to the nation's airways in 1940 on behalf of 4,000,000 Americans suffering from hay fever.

Transport planes participated in a coast-to-coast series of experiments, each carrying oil-smeared slides at altitudes ranging to 12,000 feet. The surveys were sponsored separately by Oren C. Dunham, a Chicago botanist, and the Hollister-Stier laboratories of Spokane, Wash.

If successful, the studies may provide the medical profession with one of its major achievements in the dogged battle against pollinosis. The full story of the experiments may emerge at winter medical meetings.

By studying the course and extent of wind-blown pollen migration, the investigators hoped to obtain additional data for the desensitization treatment of pollinosis victims. The treatment begins with injections of pollen extracts until the allergy is determined.

For a number of years, however, it had been recognized that hay fever in many instances could be traced to pollen from a plant not found in the victim's community. In these cases, the value of an index to local plants and hay fever prevalence was restricted.

A Health Toast— With Poison

Outstanding medical authorities agree that alcohol is a poison.

Which, to many thinking Americans, makes it "sort of funny" when a man raises a glass containing alcohol (a narcotic poison) and says: "To Your Health."

Social workers, medical researchers, church leaders, and others don't think it's "funny." They think it's tragic. They are logical people so they wonder why states and the nation prohibit the sale of the white drugs, such as opium and morphine, but permit the public sale and promotion of another narcotic, liquor.

What a Toast!

ALCOHOL CAN KILL

Bertha Rachel Palmer, director of scientific temperance instruction for the National W.C.T.U., says that, if alcohol is taken in sufficient quantity it will kill just as surely as a lethal dose of any other poison.

Taken in less than lethal quantity, alcohol's effect is to break down the body's physical defenses.

The average drinker's behavior is in direct proportion to the amount of alcohol in his blood—and not to whether he gets the alcohol from beer or wine or whisky.

If there are two parts of alcohol to each 1,000 parts of blood, the average drinker's normal inhibitions are numbed. He says or does the first thing which occurs to him. He may be silly or foolish, disagreeable, or unexpected.

When he absorbs four parts of alcohol to 1,000 parts of blood—well, his friends will have to take him home. He's at the mutter and stagger stage.

Another drop or so of alcohol—more than five parts to each 1,000 parts of blood—means a human blackout. It is the down-and-out or dead drunk stage. Not everyone survives the ensuing stupor. There is a real danger of death. A stronger concentration and death more frequently is a possibility.

Poisons can be depended on; they don't compromise. The drinker who proposes a toast to health is really saying goodbye to it.

"Human Blackout"

Strange Prisoner Keeps Silent for Five Years

PHILADELPHIA.—Five years ago Philadelphia police arrested a man for automobile theft and took him to court for a hearing. At his trial he gave his name as Joseph Luzer and since then, as far as prison officials know, he has not said a word.

Recently Luzer was eligible for freedom, having served his minimum sentence, but because he refused to break his strange silence, it was thought best to keep him for the maximum 10-year term. Probation authorities believe he may have been a cog in some spy ring. He was wearing a German-made coat when arrested and meager information admits the possibility he may have been connected with a foreign agency. However, definite evidence is lacking.

Physicians, psychiatrists, parole agents and guards have tried every conceivable means of making him talk, but their efforts are met with a blank stare. Medical reports show that he is capable of speech and officials are sure he is above normal mentality.

Young Vandals Must Go To Sunday School, Edict

AUGUSTA, KAN.—If Sunday school teachers see stray faces in their classes they can ask Chief of Police Jess McLin about it.

McLin caught a group of young boys destroying public property and defacing public equipment. He hauled them into his office. They were ordered to attend Sunday school for a specified number of weeks and bring reports weekly from their teachers.

Toy Pistol Fails to Cow Rail Agent in Robbery

MARYSVILLE, CALIF.—The underworld dodge of using a water pistol instead of a genuine revolver kicked back when a robber attempted to hold up Dick Griffin, Western Pacific railway station agent here. When the bandit walked into the station and demanded Griffin hand over all the money on hand, the agent, realizing the weapon was a toy, made a lunge for him. The man fled.

Cop Has More Than Traffic to Untangle

ROANOKE, VA.—Patrolman W. O. Jones had his hands full directing downtown traffic when the hurry call came from his wife.

Mrs. Jones had her hands full, too. Her husband had left his handcuffs at home and the children had snapped them on Mrs. Jones' wrists.

Saving Milk

These calves are eating PURINA CALF STARTER. They're just as good as heifers raised on lots of milk.

Yet they're much cheaper to raise than milk-fed heifers. Each bag of Calf Starter replaces 4 cans of milk.

With milk at $2.00 cwt., Calf Starter costs just about HALF the value of the milk it replaces. Calf Starter is cheaper to feed even when milk is $1.10 a cwt.

We invite you to drop in or call us for our latest price on Calf Starter.

'Live Alone and Like It'

Was Barred in Old Days

HAVERHILL, MASS.—In Massachusetts in 1672 you couldn't "live alone and like it."

When authorities discovered John Littlehals was a hermit they ordered him to settle in a family within six weeks, according to a WPA historical records survey.

The court record said Littlehals "lived in a house by himself, contrary to the law of the country, whereby he is subject to much sin." The court therefore ordered "that the said John Doe forthwith . . . within the time of six weeks next after date remove himself from the said place and solitary life and settle himself in some orderly family in the said time."

Sneeze Lesson Ends as

Professor Loses Teeth

SAW MILLS, N. C.—The professor reprimanded the loud sneezing pupil and asserted a person could sneeze in such a manner as to escape detection.

A voice piped up with "Let's see you do it."

And the professor threw back his head and gave forth a loud and noisy demonstration sneeze—which sent his false teeth hurtling across the room.

Quick as a flash he picked up his teeth, clapped them into his mouth and dismissed the class.

Farmer Loses His Hand

In Ghastly $5,000 Plot

ST. LOUIS.—Post office inspectors told of a ghastly plot whereby a farmer deliberately lost his left hand in order to file claims for $5,000 against accident insurance companies.

Chief Postal Inspector William H. Noah announced a warrant charging mail fraud had been issued against D. V. Mardis, Kirksville, Mo., insurance man, who was alleged to have taken part in the scheme.

Noah said Mardis intentionally battered the farmer's hand with a hammer after staging a fake automobile accident last April 18. Later, when it appeared the injury would knit, Noah said, the farmer manipulated the hand to prevent healing and make certain that amputation would be necessary.

He Sues After Arrest

As a 'Common Scold'

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Joseph R. Lamont of Summit seeks $57,500 damages as a result of his arrest and acquittal on a charge of being a "common scold," an offense which a magistrate ruled could be charged against only a woman.

Lamont charges that he was imprisoned falsely.

Over The Top in a Ford 'Blitz Buggy'

DEARBORN, Mich.—With Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, and Brig. Gen. C. H. Bonesteel of the U. S. Army as passengers, a Ford test driver puts a "blitz buggy" through its paces. Built by Ford for the army, this tiny reconnaissance car is a four-wheel-drive vehicle that will climb 80 per cent grades and travel 55 to 60 miles an hour. They can be maneuvered over all types of terrain. An initial army order for 1,500 Ford "blitz buggies" already is rolling off a Rouge plant assembly line.

FOX REUNION.

The fifteenth annual Fox Reunion, for the descendants of Baltzer and Nancy Fogle Fox, was held Sunday, May 25, 1941, at Mt. Tabor Park, at Rocky Ridge, Md. Many delicious picnic dinners were served.

All assembled in the Tabernacle for the program and business meeting. The meeting was called to order by Rev. Charles H. Corbett, who presided in the absence of the President and Vice-President. Following is the program: Hymn, "He Leadeth Me"; Scripture, Rev. Mr. Corbett; Invocation, Rev. Edwin D. Bright; Duet "Whispering Hope", dedicated to "Uncle Cal" Fox, by Doris Fox and Clara Stambaugh; Duet, "Alone the Saviour Suffered There for Me," Doris Fox and Clara Stambaugh; Piano Solo, Peggy Hays; Recitation, Doris Flanagan; Piano solo, Mrs. Thomas C. Hays; Recitation, "My Mother", Catharine Rhodes; Piano Solo, Peggy Hays; Talk by Rev. Mr. Corbett.

The oldest living member of the clan and historian, Mr. J. Calvin Fox known to all as "Uncle Cal", aged ninety-four years very graciously bowed and was given a rising vote of thanks by all.

The youngest member of the clan present was Francis Eugene Springer aged ten weeks.

Mr. Charles A. Wilhide came the farthest distance, travelling sixty-five miles.

Mr. Albert R. Smith, Fort George G. Meade, entertained with movies of interesting places and people.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected: President, Mr. John Franklin; Vice-Pres., Mr. Earcy S. Fox; Secretary, Miss Lillian E. Flanagan; Treasurer, Mr. J. Elmer Fox; Historian, Mr. J. Calvin Fox.
