

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Ramblings and ruminations: A vacant store with the windows, instead of being dirty as to be practically opaque, scrubbed to shining brightness . . . The interior also immaculate . . . A sign in the window, "Your store. Why not?" . . . and it's my guess the real-estate broker handling that property has brains and uses them . . . A short man, so obese as to be almost round, waiting until a revolving door comes to a stop before risking an entrance into one of the compartments . . . An astrologer who has Broadwayites and social luminaries as her clientele, putting a cent in one of those penny arcade machines to get a card telling her fortune . . . Wonder what those who consult her regularly would think of that.

A man with a white mustache and Vandyke jogging along Central park pathways clad in a track outfit . . . And a youngster on a bench remarking, "Daniel Boone must think he's a Boy Scout" . . . Two pretty and demure misses suddenly becoming interested in magazines as two sailors approach . . . But neglecting their reading when the young men of the sea pass on their way without a backward glance . . . Lads with balls, bats, gloves and other baseball equipment making their way toward an unused diamond . . . Maybe among them is another Ty Cobb or Babe Ruth . . . Mothers wheeling their babies in the sunshine . . . and gossiping with other mothers as they stop to wait the change of a traffic light . . . Squirrels begging for food but streaking away when a move is made in their direction.

The window of an Eighth avenue pawnshop filled with fishing tackle that looks as if it had been used . . . I still have a trout rod Hubert M. Long of the Grand Rapids Press gave me in Traverse City years and years ago . . . and though it has seen a lot of use, it still brings them to the creel . . . That is, when I get a chance to go fishing . . . A tottery old man, walking with the aid of a cane, threading his way through traffic at Forty-second street rather than wait for the light to change . . . and despite his handicaps, reaching the other curb in safety . . . Wonder what he'll do with that minute he saved . . . A smart miss with a hat decorated with what looks like celery stalks . . . Can't get excited any more about women's hats . . . I've become numb.

A huge truck loaded with pastebord boxes stopping in front of a wholesale dress establishment on Thirty-eighth street . . . Wonder what the garment center would do if there were no more pastebord . . . A young man shifting a big bundle from his right to his left shoulder . . . and thus exposing to those who care to look the fact that he is carrying a dozen women's dresses . . . Those windows filled with button displays still interest me . . . Hard to believe there could be so many different styles, sizes and shapes . . . and my tailor couldn't match the one I lost off my coat sleeve the other day.

A red-headed lass of 10 or so slapping the face of a big boy who joggled her elbow as she was about to bite into an ice-cream cone . . . and the lad sneaking away with face more fiery than the girl's hair . . . At Seventh avenue and Thirty-fourth street, a song sheet peddler attracting attention by playing bits of popular airs on a harmonica . . . A bearded ancient leaning against a building front, filling his pipe and then scratching a match on his wooden leg . . . Which reminds me that on that recent trip to Littleton, N. H., I noted that some New Englanders still strike matches on their trousers.

Remarks: Harry Salter says it's amazing how much talent leaves New York for Hollywood—and how little gets there . . . Xavier Cugat avers that theaters in Chicago are so large that if an egg is thrown from the balcony it hatches before it reaches the stage . . . Orchestra leader Mark Warnow's observation: A dictator is a guy who signs a pledge with invisible ink . . . James Snyder, photographer, overheard one of his models confide to another: "He told me he was a bridge expert but he don't know a thing about playing cards. All he is is a construction engineer."

Addenda: James Melton reports that a Newport News, Va., tire shop with a boarded-up window sports this sign: "Our 30,000-mile guarantee includes the chap who broke this window and stole two tires" . . . and here's THE END.

Brothers-in-Law Die

Within the Same Hour

GALVA, ILL.—Brothers-in-Law John Shipley, 76, and Charles Carroll, 88, both of Duncan, Ill., died within 15 minutes of each other at Mary's Nursing Home here. The two had entered the home the same day.

Shipley had taken care of Carroll, who was blind and crippled, until he became ill himself.

Flimsy Excuses!

Smoothest excuse-makers for liquor are the "traffic," people who make profits out of peddling a narcotic, and the addicts, people who hurt themselves and others by drinking a narcotic.

Anyone who has had anything to do with a drunkard—or a day-after-day "social drinker"—knows that he's as full of excuses as he is of rum.

The liquor traffic is that way too, the W.C.T.U. points out. When a business means money in a man's pocket, he'll find excuses, whether it's for liquor, slot machines, or naughty pictures.

Mr. Ordinary Citizen usually decides though that excuses aren't worth much when they are stacked up against the considered verdict of experts, whose only interest is mankind's betterment and not profits.

Morgan Cloud, a captain of the medical corps of the U. S. Army, published a book in 1934 to give an objective report on liquor. He quoted eminent opinion as follows:

DR. CHARLES W. MAYO: The only legitimate use of alcohol is in the arts and sciences.

MARSHAL JOFFRE: Alcohol, by diminishing the moral and material strength of the army, is a crime against national defense in the face of the enemy.

DR. RICHARD C. CABOT: Medically and socially the case against alcohol is just as clear as the case against opium.

DR. HOWARD A. KELLY: There is no disease in the world for which alcohol is a cure.

It does undeniably cause thousands of cases of disease.

HORSELY AND STURGE: Alcohol weakens the heart, lowers resistance to disease, shortens life, impairs one's judgment, reduces one's earning power, is harmful even in the smallest dose, delays and prevents digestion, is a poison, has become obsolete as a remedy, kills everything that lives, preserves everything that is dead.

SHAKESPEARE: O thou invincible spirit of wine, if thou hast no other name to be known by, let us call thee devil.

Mitzi Likes to Ride

And Sound the Horn

NEWARK.—A crowd gathered around a parked car in which a bull terrier was sounding the horn.

Mrs. Joseph R. Britting of Irvington, explained in embarrassed tones that "Mitzi insists on accompanying us, and when we leave her for too long in the car she calls us by blowing the horn."

Armless Man Uses His Own Gadgets

Does More Minus Arms Than Most Do With Them.

DANVILLE, GA.—Vincent Hart finds his armless condition scarcely a handicap. At least he has done more without arms than most people do with them.

The 50-year-old man lost both arms under the wheels of a train eight years ago. Friends thought he would take advantage of his World War record and spend the rest of his life in government hospitals. But hospital life bored him, and he came home to Danville.

Since then he has built a house, developed a fine garden and designed several tools that take the place of his missing arms and hands.

When winter comes Hart holes in and studies languages, mechanics, and electricity. He eats only fruits and vegetables he has raised and preserved and warms himself with firewood he sawed with an ingenious contraption.

Hart now had a reading and writing acquaintance with French and Italian. He began the study of Spanish and liked it. So he went to Puerto Rico for five months and came home speaking Spanish like a native.

Hart's mechanical bent and studies stood him in good stead. He has a room full of gadgets which he attaches to the stub of one of his arms, slings over his shoulder, or holds between his teeth. With them he can do almost everything except shave or break eggs. He lets the town barber shave him, and as for eggs, he said he never liked them much.

His hammer, saw and knives are fitted to stiff leather straps that tie to the stub of his arm. They do his heavy work. In addition he shoots a gun, cooks, weeds his garden, plants seed and writes legible hand with the aid of other gadgets.

Hart said he found his handicap a challenge which he couldn't let pass. And in overcoming it, he said, he discovered a new meaning and joy in life.

SHORT STORY

Too Much Admiration

By MEREDITH SCHOLL

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

GLENN and Stuart Nichols had been married nearly a year when Stuart began to be alarmed because of the attention shown his wife by other men. It had always pleased him to see other men admire her, and to know that she belonged to him; that she was all his for good and forever.

Now, it seemed that Glenna was getting too much of a kick out of being admired and complimented. She was, thought Stuart, more interested in the attentions of other men; of pleasing strangers, rather than her husband.

This wasn't so good. Other men could admire her, but he wanted to be the big shot. He wanted to be the one whom she tried to please most.

There was a remedy for cases like Glenna's. Just now the thing had gone to her head. Since their marriage they had, as is the way with most young married people, got in with a new crowd. They joined the circle of married folks. New faces, different kind of parties, a changed atmosphere. And most of all, a new group of men—married men—to admire pretty, vivacious, young Mrs. Nichols.

There was a remedy for cases like Glenna's, and Stuart decided her case needed remedying. His most effective weapon, he knew, was the fact that Glenna loved him. He could depend on that. And he could resort to it whenever need be. Now, for example.

And so Stuart said casually one evening, "Let's have the Laceys over tomorrow night. Inez is rather attractive, don't you think?"

Stuart could feel Glenna's eyes on him. He knew what she was thinking; knew that they had only met the Laceys once, and the fact that he had called Mrs. Lacey by her first name might mean anything.

But Glenna, after a moment, said, "I'd love to. Eliot suggested that we get together only last night."

Eliot! Only last night! Stuart fought a desire to leap to his feet and demand an explanation. Where had he seen Eliot Lacey last night? He glanced up, but Glenna was already at the phone dialing the Laceys' number.

The Laceys came on the following evening. But Stuart's well-formed plans went all to smash. It was quite useless devoting a lot of attention to Mrs. Lacey when Glenna wasn't even watching him, especially when she seemed so occupied with Eliot Lacey.

Stuart was bitter in defeat. But he wouldn't give up. The next evening they attended a party at the Laceys, and he singled out the pretty Mrs. Keyes and tried to give her a lot of time. But it was hard work, hard because he had to keep one eye on Glenna; and every time he located her she was dancing with one of the younger married men and seemed to be having a merry time. Once he saw her strolling in the conservatory with Ken Wilson.

The situation left Stuart in a helpless rage. He couldn't very well reprimand Glenna for what she was doing, not after he'd set the pace himself. And he couldn't very well admit defeat by quitting, either. No, he'd have to bring her to terms, have to show her how fortunate she was in having him for a husband.

It wasn't until after the thing had been going on for a week, during which time Stuart openly paid court to a half dozen of the prettier girls in their crowd—only to have his efforts totally lost on Glenna, who, in the meantime, seemed to be finding considerable pleasure and satisfaction in the attentions of as many young men—it was only then that a most alarming thought occurred to Stuart. Perhaps, after all, Glenna didn't love him! Perhaps she was seeking the things from other men that she had found lacking in her own husband.

The thought tormented him, tortured his soul, kept him awake nights, made him panicky with fear and desperation. To lose Glenna would be to lose life.

Quite desperate with himself, Stuart conceived one last scheme which, he hoped, would bring the sign or word from Glenna's lips that would lead to an explanation of the whole hideous thing. He came home early one night and rushed to his room, announcing that he was going out that evening. He offered no explanation as to where or with whom he was going or when he would return. If Glenna would only inquire. If she would only display that much interest, it would be enough.

But Glenna didn't. Instead, when Stuart came down to his dinner, he found Glenna dressed in her finest, waiting for him.

"You'll have to eat alone tonight, darling," she cried. "I'm going out."

And she went. Without another single word she went, and left Stuart alone with a poorly cooked dinner and his thoughts.

Stuart was thunderstruck! Aghast! Overcome! He sat for a long time thinking. At last he decided that it must be so. Glenna had ceased to love him.

Dispiritedly he got his hat and coat and went out. For more than an hour he walked the streets, and at last dropped into a movie to kill time and to try to still the maddening thoughts that harassed him. He found a seat and sat like one in a daze. He tried to concentrate on the picture in front of him, but it was like trying to listen to the ticking of a clock with an express train thundering past.

He sat for hours, through one performance and then another. People came and went around him. And at last, as the final performance of the evening drew near its conclusion, the audience began to thin out. Save for a handful of spectators Stuart sat alone, slumped down in his seat, from appearances asleep.

At last it was over. The lights flashed up and an usher came down the aisle to shake him gently by the shoulder. The usher had to shake him more than once, for at that moment Stuart was visualizing Glenna attending some gay night club in company with another man. He roused himself with an effort. He looked around, blinked, tried to recall where he was, and after a moment succeeded. He stood up, reached for his hat—and stared.

Someone else was occupying the seat next to him. Someone who looked at him with wide, startled eyes. Someone who tried to speak his name and couldn't. But it wasn't necessary. For the someone was Glenna, and Stuart, seeing that look in her eyes, knew that she had tried the same remedy, and she, too, had failed.

Early American Style

Simplest of Furniture

"Colonial" is a general term designating those architectural and furniture styles produced while America was still under England's rule and for a short time after the Declaration of Independence . . . the period from 1608 to about 1830. On the other hand, "Early American" designates only one period of this span of years—the very earliest, from 1608 to about 1720.

Early American is the simplest of all American styles. Few of the early settlers were from wealthy classes; they were unsophisticated pioneer people of humble origin, concerned primarily with providing for their families the simple necessities of life. Their first houses were built of pine because that wood was plentiful all about them. There was little thought of making those houses "showy" or "pretty" or "decorative." Their purpose was to keep out the weather, the forest animals and Indians. Walls were mostly wood paneled because plaster was expensive and hard to get.

The furniture that went into these houses was extremely simple and practical, features which are still its greatest appeal. There were few cabinet-makers among the settlers, so carpenters turned their hand to furniture making. Naturally they copied, from memory for the most part, the current styles in Europe, depending upon the country from which they had come. The Pennsylvania settlers, for instance, were originally from England and Germany; those in New England and Virginia were for the most part from England; those who settled along the Hudson and Delaware rivers were from Holland and Sweden. The furniture which they built, therefore, was provincial versions of the modes of their respective countries.

New Ore Fields

Alaska this year will produce between 50 and 60 tons of tin, and government geologists are reported to have found new fields of the ore in Arctic Alaska, Jack Underwood, manager of the Washington, D. C., bureau of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, announced recently. The known fields are being surveyed thoroughly and if the deposits are extensive enough a tin smelter may be erected in the Puget sound country. Underwood reports that a big force of government geologists is making a complete survey of Alaska's strategic mineral resources, with the hope also of finding chrome, which now comes from West Africa, and manganese, imported largely from Russia and Brazil. He declared that some chrome is being mined in the Cook's Inlet district and that quicksilver has been discovered in the Kuskokwim River area.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 5:9-13; Titus 2:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the salt of the earth.—Matthew 5:13.

The church has a grave responsibility regarding alcoholic beverages, but in recent years it has largely failed to meet it with intelligence and enthusiasm. Let us never forget that the first business of the Christian and of the church is to preach the gospel, winning men to Christ. It is not our calling to attempt by social or economic methods to right the wrongs of this world. Nor is ours a "social gospel" with the emphasis on "social." But have we forgotten that it is a gospel with serious social implications and responsibilities?

The man, and the church, who follows Christ should be vitally concerned about every influence in American life which is destructive to character, and right at the top of that list stands alcohol. To meet this gigantic (and growing) problem effectively the church must be

I. Separated From Sin (I Cor. 5:9, 10).
A church living in careless worldliness has no testimony against the sin round about it. In fact, its influence is definitely on the wrong side. The Christian is to be in the world, but not of it. He must live with the sinners, but he must never by word or deed, or even by his presence in the wrong place, seem to condone their sin nor fellowship with them in it.

Here we have one of the horrible weaknesses of our day. Men and women who profess to follow Christ (whether they really do, only He can judge) indulge in a social glass of wine, or sip a cocktail "for the sake of courtesy," or attend gatherings which are obviously non-Christian or anti-Christian. If there is to be effective dealing with any problem—with the liquor problem—we must have separated Christian living.

II. Cleansed of Wicked Persons (I Cor. 5:11-13).

Even a "man that is called a brother" (v. 11) may not be one at all, but may be a "wicked person" (v. 13). We are not able to judge any man's spiritual experience. His relationship to God is a matter between him and God, but if, in his life, he shows himself persistently to be on the side of wickedness, it is the duty of the church to have him "put away from among" them (v. 13).

We can only judge a man by his actions, but we are required to do that for the sake of the purity of the church and the effectiveness of its teaching. This is not to be done in self-righteousness, but in humility and with the constant effort to restore such a one (Gal. 6:1). But it should be done. We are woefully weak in the matter of church discipline, and it shows in the inability of the church to do valiant service for God and country.

III. Intelligent in Doctrine (Titus 2:1-8; esp. 1, 7, 8).

To be informed is to be wise, able to plan properly, balanced in judgment and action, useful and effective. Fundamentally every problem of life finds its solution in a proper knowledge of the doctrines of the Christian faith. It is of great importance that we have information about the liquor traffic, about the dreadful results of the use of alcohol, etc. Helpful material on such subjects is available, and the sources are known to ministers and Christian workers. However, we must hold and use this information in relation to Christian truth if it is to be fully useful. A temperance worker without Christ in his own life and in his labors against liquor is weak, lacking the real solution and the dynamics to proclaim it effectively.

IV. Consistent in Life (Titus 2:1-8, esp. 2, 5, 7).

It is what we are that speaks so loudly that folk do not pay any attention to what we say. This passage clearly states the fact that both young and old, both men and women—yes, even the preacher (v. 7)—are to present before the world the undeniable teaching of a consistent Christian life.

Read the exhortations of these verses again with great care and apply them first to your own life, and then to your own church. What great Christian graces we have here! Note that again and again there is the admonition to temperance. No user of intoxicants can be sober, temperate, discreet, chaste, sound in faith, and so on.

The writer of these notes is convinced that the only consistent position for the Christian (individually or in the church) to take regarding alcoholic beverages is that of total abstinence for himself and the legal elimination of temptation from others.

Alphabet Takes on New Meaning in War Uses

LONDON—The alphabet is overworked in this war. First the government went for A. B. C. tags. Now British boys have introduced initials into their love letters.

A British primer of the love-dovey alphabet would explain these abbreviations:

C.Y.K.: Consider Yourself kissed.

T.H.F.: Till Hell Freezes.

S.W.A.L.K.: Sealed With a Lover's Kiss.

F.L.A.K.: Fondest Love and Kisses.

A British primer of government A.B.C.s would include:

F.A.N.Y.: First Auxiliary Nursing Yeomanry.

W.A.A.F.: Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

W.V.S.: Women's Volunteer Service.

A.T.S.: Auxiliary Territorial Service.

N.A.A.F.I.: Navy, Army, and Air-force Institute.

Stop Sign Stolen

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS—The motorist didn't pay the fine.

Haled before a city traffic court on a charge of passing a stop sign at an intersection, the driver protested that there was no stop sign at the intersection.

So Sergt. C. L. Dobbs investigated. There was no stop sign. Someone had stolen it.

Bluejay Conquers Street; Town Appeals for Help

WESTWOOD, N. J.—The Westwood police requested the Bergen County Humane society to deal with a contumacious bluejay which has set up housekeeping in a tree on Center avenue and is trying to monopolize the thoroughfare.

Mrs. K. K. Latcher, whose home at 451 Center avenue is near that of the bluejay, complained to the police about the bird. It attacked everybody who passed, she said, flying at their faces with beating wings and driving beak. Children fled panic-stricken before the bird, she said, and the savage creature attacked adults also.

Charles Kemmlein of Center avenue, one of the adult victims, suffered a laceration of the scalp.

Ohioan's New Car Must

Be Stored for Whole Year

TOLEDO—Lester E. Shue, 19, of Perrysburg, bought a new automobile in the morning, obtained his driver's license in the afternoon and came here at night to practice driving.

A few minutes after he arrived in Toledo, a scout crew noticed his auto weaving and he was arrested on a charge of drunken driving.

Next day he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor before Judge Frank E. O'Connell. The youth was sentenced to the workhouse for 15 days, fined the costs and his driver's license was suspended for a year. He said he would place his new auto in storage.

Snake in Box Worries

Checkroom Attendant

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—The checkroom attendant at the Soldiers Service Center here heard a harmless-looking box that had been checked with him emitting peculiar noises. Upon investigation he found a note on the lid. It read:

"Beware—a snake inside. I will be back tomorrow to get it. Treat it nice and it won't bite you and even if it does, it won't hurt."

The attendant opened the box and there was a snake and a piece of bologna.

The snake was kept for the owner, but it was a skittish night for the checkroom operator.

Man-Made Cave in New York Is a Refrigerator

LETCHWORTH PARK, N. Y.—An unnamed cave in Letchworth park is a reminder of a $250,000 engineering mistake of many years ago.

The cave was started a century ago by ambitious canal builders who sought to extend a waterway from Nunda to Olean, N. Y. The builders tried to tunnel through the mountain rather than have the canal skirt the mountain, and nature had won a battle.

The canal builders had planned to extend the tunnel 1,082 feet, with a height of 27 feet and a width of 20 feet. After their ambitious dream faded, the cave served as a hiding place for fugitive slaves during the Civil war.

In 1882 when the Genesee Valley railroad was replacing the canal, using the same right-of-way, railroad engineers also dreamed of a tunnel at the same spot. But they, too, gave up the idea.

Chilling gusts of air strike anyone approaching the entrance. Inside is a natural refrigerator large enough to hold a dozen carloads of meat, though the entrance is only a little higher than a man's head. In the dark, unwholesome darkness, even a flashlight with a 1,000-foot beam makes little impression.

National Defense ALUMINUM COLLECTION JULY 24th and 25th

The National Defense Aluminum Collection campaign has been set for July 24-25. The Nation needs aluminum for planes and other vital defense items. There is scarcely a business house, institution, industrial plant, hotel, restaurant or home that cannot make a contribution of articles, no longer useful. All should contribute. The present need is to bridge the gap until new facilities are in operation when the supply will be adequate.

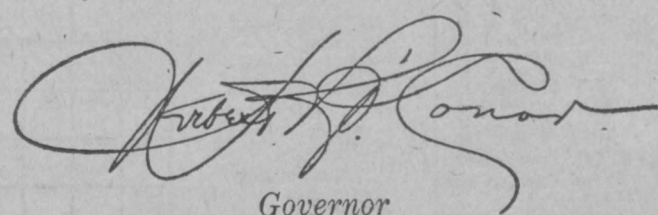

Let everyone remember that ALL used Aluminum is wanted—not merely pots and pans of housewives, but aluminum from any other source such as store fixtures and decorations containing aluminum—old unsaleable stock of aluminum items, aluminum window trimmings and display devices. All this means that our citizens must "rummage" for every conceivable article that can be spared which contains aluminum.

This is a National effort to produce approximately 20,000,000 pounds of used aluminum estimated to be sufficient to supply aluminum parts for upwards of 2,000 aeroplanes. In planning this collection the National Authorities have used every conceivable means to prevent any profit being made. The collection project is being operated on a voluntary basis throughout.

A word or two of warning—Collections should be made as directed by local authority on the days designated—July 24-25—otherwise unauthorized collections may lead to loss and confusion. No articles should be contributed which need to be replaced lest there ensue a shortage in other materials.

I have called on all County Commissioners and Mayors of larger cities of Maryland to accept responsibility for setting up organizations to make the collections in their localities. I call on all civil, fraternal, patriotic, religious and other organizations, as well as all individual citizens to assist and cooperate with these local authorities.

This is a country-wide campaign to aid National Defense. Let Maryland citizens make an all-out effort to equal and surpass our sister States. I am confident of successful results.

New Magnesium Sources Open to Late Process WASHINGTON.—A little factory in the Northwest holds the answer to a question defense officials here are asking anxiously—can the United States produce sufficient magnesium to meet the expanding needs of the defense program? In a small experimental plant at Pullman, Wash., bureau of mines experts are working to perfect a new process through which magnesium can be produced from an ore found throughout the West. Present production of magnesium, for which the OPM recently invoked mandatory priorities, involves the electrolysis of magnesium chloride, derived from saline wells or sea water. If the new process, a complicated electrothermic reduction of the ore, is successful, extensive new sources of supply of the vital metal can be tapped.

Abandoned Ship Reaches Dock Under Own Power

LONDON.—Without a crew on board, and with the engines still running, a ship was found by villagers berthed safely in a deep water inlet within a few inches of dangerous rocks.

They informed the lifeboat authorities, and an amazing story of the sea was revealed.

The ship had been set on fire, and the crew had abandoned her. They did not even stop to take their personal belongings, and wallets containing money were found on board.

The vessel continued with the engine running slowly, while the fire burned itself out. The vessel had traveled about 60 miles.

Japanese Firm Making Gasoline From Sardines

TOKYO.—The manufacture of gasoline from sardines was announced by the Japanese High Frequency Industry company after lengthy experiments.

It said preparations were under way to produce sardine gasoline on a large scale by summer.

No details of the process were disclosed.

Crash Airplane in Fight for Control

Suicide-Bent Student and Would-Be Rescuer Die.

WICHITA, KAN.—A suicide-intent flying student and his would-be rescuer crashed to their deaths after a dramatic struggle in the air for control of a pitching training plane.

Dead were William D. Woodward, 20, and John K. Blanpied, 21.

Coroner Lang P. Bowman said that three notes found in Woodward's automobile indicated that the youth intended to crash. One was addressed to a girl friend.

John Knightly, employee of the flying school who witnessed the take-off and crash, told this story: Woodward arrived at the school early and taxied out a two-seat, dual-control trainer of a type heavier than he was qualified to fly.

Blanpied, also a student pilot and employed as a ground mechanic at the school, ran across the field and climbed onto a wing of the advancing craft. He reached into the cockpit and cut the switch, but Woodward threw the ignition on again and managed to get the plane into the air.

Again Blanpied cut the switch, and again Woodward caught up the sputtering motor.

Then as the rocking plane alternately lost and gained altitude, Blanpied climbed into the unoccupied front cockpit, gesturing and shouting.

He reached back, struggled with Woodward, but the latter put the plane into a dive.

The ship crashed in a meadow near the airport, strewn wreckage over an area of 150 yards. It did not burn. Both bodies were mangled.
