OUR CHANGE IN MAKE UP.

We believe that our readers in general are going to like our change general are going to like our change in make-up this week, in continuing the "Old Taneytown" articles on in-side pages, that will give us nearly two more columns on first page for general or County news. If we can improve on the new plan, after trial, we will do so. The cooperation of readers and contributors is desired readers and contributors is desired in the shortening of articles contributed, or not complaining when we do so.

The new plan will require more machine composition than heretofore which will mean that sending us ar-ticles during the first three days each week when possible, will help greatly. "Old Taneytown" articles will ap-pear in this new position, in this weeks issue.

FLOWER SHOW AND LUNCHEON

Taneytown Homemakers The Club held a Luncheon and Flower Show which was a gratifying suc-cess. The specimens containers, and flower arrangements were beautiful. Flowers were arranged on three sides of the Fire House. All who attended were surprised at the profusion of beautiful flowers. Visitors attended from Uniontown, Westminster and Emmitsburg. ## Endorses National Defense but Urges Keeping Out of War.

The National Camp of the P. O. S. of A, held its biennial convention at the Belevedere Hotel, Baltimore, this week, beginning with a reception on Monday night.

The business sessions were held on Tuesday morning and afternoon and Wednesday forenoon, Tuesday eve-ning a banquet was held with a fine attendance and a very interesting program.

Mayor Jackson welcomed the visitors for the city, and Mr. Early for the Association of Commerce. Lloyd Z. Cozad, of Cumberland, State President of the Maryland State

Camp spoke for the Order. Senator George L. Radcliffe gave the prinicpal address of the evening, speaking principally of world con-ditions and national defense. A considerable number of guests were introduced and among them Dr. I. Walter Eddinger, of Stroudsburg, Pa., and Joseph C. Kessler, Salis-bury, N. C., made brief addresses. National President Hugh G. Mitchell of Statesville, N. C., was toastmas-

The attendance was larger than formerly owing to a new and more liberal plan of representation. New Jersey, which has been separated from the National Camp for a number of years had a delegation of six present, but as that state has not completed action for re-affiliation they were admitted with voice but no vote. It is expected that within the present year that state will be restored to full membership.

The convention was a harmonious gathering and a pleasant affair. Quite a number of ladies accompanied their husbands and had part in the banquet, and also in a bus trip to Annapolis between the Tuesday afternoon session and the banquet. Among the resolutions adopted was one pledging support to Nation. al defense but urging the govern-ment to keep out of actual war if possible, Judge Albert W. Johnson, of Pennsylvania, however, in an address quoted a news item telling of action by students of the University of Pennsylvania, urging outright participation in war. Judge Johnson personally endorsed that attitude. Another resolution disapproved of broadcasts giving details as to the places where implements of national defense are made, and the nature of those materials.

The national officers were all re-elected except National Master of Forms, M, B. Kinnamon, of Temple-ville, Md., who could not be present. Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Taneytown was elected to thet office

COMPANY H NEWS.

Company H has completed one week of training at the A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va. The company will remain here for almost another week and then will proceed farther south. It is expected that the company will make a stop at Camp Lee, Va., and another stop at Fort Bragg, N. C, while enroute to their base camp at or near Morven,

N. C. Morven is situated very near the S. Carolina state line. Last week the company participated in a three day maneuver. The 115th. Infantry Regiment was given orders to keep a large number of enemy from gaining access to camp. Despite the fact that this regiment was outnumbered five to one, the enemy was held off for the best part of three days. This regiment caught many prisoners and likewise lost many men. Company H also lost a few men to the enemy but they rejoined the company and everybody was happy again and had learned a  $fe_W$  lessons in military tactics as well.

Natural Resources are to be Carefully Conserved.

May I at the outset of this assemblage express my sincere appre-ciation of the willingness of the gentlemen who have accepted service on the newly created Commissions and Boards, having to do with the ad-ministration of the natural resources of our State, and who have taken the time to meet together here to-day? In these troubled times of our national emergency, I can well appreciate that it is not an easy matter for you to find such time from your day-to-day occupations and responsibilities to render this service to your State.

It is owing to you, who have given evidence of your readiness to serve the State, that I make clear the attitude of the State Administration in this important connection. My sole purpose is to see that nothing interferes with intelligent and longrange planning so that the interests of the present and future generations of Maryland citizens will be enhanced. Therefore no outside consideration will be allowed to hinder the movement now underway to accomplisn worthwhile results in regard to the conservation of our natural resources. one. For instance, on what seemed good authority we mentioned the marriage of a couple that never took place, but do not say, why? Also, all ladies published as having been of their present age.

Some persons dislike their illness published, possibly being in a hos-pital. They do not like to figure in automobile wrecks and have a lot of questions raised.

That is what we call diplo-macy and good business com-bined, seldom manifested by the average go-getter after a particular object.

Some day, when he calls again -which will be in three or more months, we are going to try to get from him a history of his life, and how it came that he chose to be a bum, on the road.

THE END OF THE WAR IS COMING.

We are still of the opinion that the time taken for reports from Berlin, London, Paris and Tokio, either by telegraph or radio, are hardly worth their time taken in reading or listening to.

Sooner or later we believe that the population of the various countries involved will rebel and stop the war themselves.

At any rate, this guess is as good, as any other so far as the future is concerned.

Japan, for instance wants to transact business with the U.S. It is not, by nature, a warring country; and other of the smaller nations is of the same class.

They need the U.S. and we need them. Even Germany wants its submerged musicians, scientists and for our /course-disaster, destruction, scholars in geneeral do not want death. Hitler the arbitrary ruler.

A comparatively small number of leaders of his army followers, could stop the hideous war that has come upon a large portion of the whole world.

We believe that eventually Hitler will be banished as was Kaiser Wilhelm, and that peace within a year will be the result.

In our opinion Hitler has bitten digest.

one of them. His betters have failed to the lowest possible level.

But the lavish profusion with which God clothes the landscape is not an evidence of waste. It cheers the heart of man and makes the earth a fitting place for our temporary home.

"No room for waste" is a fundamental truth of God. Why will men refuse to learn the lesson? That we do not learn it is one of the surest things in the world. Mrs. Newlyrich must have a lot of new gowns, not because the old ones are worn out, but just to be always out in something new. The automobile grave yards have many models that would still render good service, but we must have a new car because the Joneses have one. High-pressure salesmen are paid big salaries to make us think that everything we have is out-of-date and things soon desire seems to be to smash prefind their way to the junk pile. We cedents. could illustrate in a thousand ways, we are a wasteful people.

between extravagance and miserliness. It will never be done without thinking, but it could be done. It ought to be done, and there have been and will be multitudes who will be driven to the doing of it. We plead now for a voluntary getting back to common sense economy-for a cheerful conformity to the divine plan for men.

The necessity for the recognition of this principal rests upon every individual, every community, every organization or group, every city, state and nation. Yet many who would adopt it for themselves still try to drive the larger groups or the nation to violate it. How many are looking for political jobs, and willing to live on the public, with little care about making any real contribution to the public good!

And so the waste goes on in national affairs to an unbelievable extent-to gigantic proportions until it reaches its culmination in the world's horrible waste of life and property through war. Unless a halt is called, there is but one end L. B. H. -12

TIME TO THINK.

Affairs are getting muddled. Our leaders are greatly concerned abcut checking depredations of totalitarian states, and are the while, building a totalitarianism right around our constitution and bill of rights

For my own part I want no such things. I do not trust leaders in our power any further than I do a Hitler, a Mussolini, or a Stalin who sieze such power in there own realm. Human nature is much the same the world over.

Even the bland Quaker Hoover, or a sturdy New England Coolidge (if alive) would be dangerous with despotic power. How much more than the danger when placed in the hands of a leader whose supreme

DEDUCTION

"Say, ma!" said little Johnny, "I think our ash man is a real good Christian man."

'What makes you think that?" inquired his mother, in some surprise. "Well," said Johnny thoughtfully,

"the other day when he came to Mrs. Smith's house next door, he picked up their wooden barrel and raised it over his head to dump in his cart, and then the bottom dropped out and the ashes fell all over him.'

"That was too bad," said his mother in a tone of sympathy, "but what has that to do with his being a good Christian?"

"Oh!" said the little fellow, "he then just sat down in the gutter and told God all about it, while he cleaned himself.

Then, Baker reported, Lyvers, bending over his wife, kissed her. She opened her eyes and slapped him.

Recruiting Marine Almost

Enlists Baby in the Navy PEORIA.—Sgt. Carl E. Hardy has a new one to tell the marines.

New chief marine recruiter here, he was standing the other day in the lobby of a downtown office build-ing. Seeing his trim uniform, a woman entering the lobby, handed him a baby and told him to wait, as she stepped into an elevator. Fif-teen minutes later she returned, took the baby, handed Hardy a dime. Almost speechless, he followed, started to protest, only to be asked sharply: "Isn't a dime enough? That's all I ever give any porter."

One-Way Traffic

First traffic regulation for oneway traffic appears to have been established in New York city, De-cember 17, 1791, when a regulation incidental to a performance at the John Street theater requested that 'Ladies and gentlemen will order their coachmen to take up and sit down with their horse heads to the East river to avoid confusion.'

TANEYTOWN OFFICIALS MAYOR.

The West End of Old Taneytown

Taneytown's "west end" has its full share of "old Taneytown" history. Ours goes back only to 1877, but there are a few, no doubt, whose memory goes farther back. We shall begin it with "Doctor

Sam" Swope occupancy of the loca-tion of Sauble's Inn. A part of the Inn, and the big barn as it now stands. Dr. Sam practiced medicine until, or near, the time he removed to the home of Edward E. Reindollar whose wife was a relative. Old "Billy Hill" (colored) was a sort of servant of Dr. and Mrs. Swope, the latter having a wide reputation for her generosity. When the writer was a clerk in Frank H. Elliot's store where the latter Eck-enrode building stood, "Billy" used to come in the back door very early in the morning, when he swapped Dr. Sam's red apples for a drink of Elliot's whiskey for them. At this time, liquors were sold on all four corners of the square. We earned how to play chess through Dr. Sam, but was never a great success as winner.

Another old-timer at the western Donnelly, whose exact location we can not clearly recall. There was a draw well in front of her place, where she sold, mainly to children cakes of her own baking and a little andy bought from storekeepers on which small profit was made. The late "Burgess" Miller receiv-ed his name from his father, who was the first Burgess of the town.

OLD TANEYTOWN 47 YEARS AGO.

Dr. C. W. Weaver bought the Elmira J. Shriner property on New St., last Saturday. The price paid was $1250. (Where was New Street n Taneytown located at that time?) The mentioned advertisement as The mentioned advertisement as published in last week's issue that appeared 47 years ago, of the "jolly merchant" of Gettysburg captioned "Wife Wanted" "received 1675 ap-plications from ladies all over the Union, who promised to make him good clerks, and all wanting to be merchants' mises. If he does not find merchants' wives. If he does not find his ideal of a wife in this batch of applicants, it will not be the newspaper's fault. The paper pressed the button, he must do the rest."

On Monday, Peter Shank, of near Greencastle, received word that his horse stolen several weeks ago had been captured in Washington and also the thief. The horse chews to-bacco when given it and was identi-fied in this manner.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 13, a Y. P. S. C. E., was organized at Keysville under the direction of Rev. A. Bateman, of Taneytown and Rev. Patterson, of Union Bridge.

A history of Taneytown was being prepared by Rev. W. H. Luckenaugh.

The work of the Registrar for the September sitting in this district, was as follows: Registered: Ernest W. Angell, Mahlon T. Brown, Wm. B. Crapster, Archie A. Crouse, Jeremiah J. Garner. Joseph A. Hill, Luther J. A. Hahn, Hezekiah Hes-son, John A. Klinedinst, Harvey T. Ott, James A. Reid, Amos Snider and Joseph H. Study.

The following were married: At the Reformed Parsonage, Taneytown Sept. 19, 1894, by Rev. A, Bateman, Mr. Edward Francis Brown to Miss Emma Blanche Whitmore, both of this county. Near Uniontown, Aug. 30th, by Elder Solomon Stoner, Mr. Theodore E. King and Miss Ada T. Boring, both of Carroll County. September 9, 1894, by Elder Solomon Stoner, Mr. William C. Stonesifer and Miss Nettie M. Shriner, both of Bankard's Mill. Sept. 11, near Uniontown, by Elder Solomon Stoner, Mr. Edgar B. Crumpacker and Miss Lottie I. Campbell, both of Carroll County.

of the item contained thereon be-

At first she had been frightened when she burst through some alders one morning and found him seated upon the river bank, fishing.

Her natural inclination had been to run. But Lloyd had only glanced at her casually and returned to his fishing.

He was different from the men she had known; kind and gentle and soft-spoken. He'd asked her not to speak of the fact to anyone that she'd found him there, and she had promised. She was curious at first, a curiosity that was satisfied when she saw the clipping. For a while, after that she was frightened. But for some reason, for which she could find no explanation, she had kept her promise. She tried to convince her own conscience that he was not a criminal. Yet she knew that men trying to evade the law came often to the McKenzie. But these men, unlike Lloyd, were rough and cruel and hard. They remained but a week or more and then went on.

And less than an hour ago he had kissed her! She crimsoned at the thought. Kissed by a criminal! Possibly a killer! Kissed boldly and fiercely! She shuddered. Anger

Doctor Tells How Cigarette Saved His Life in War

Dugout Demolished by Shell While He Was Absent Begging a Fag.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. - Smoking cigarettes is more than a habit with Dr. M. E. Gabor. It's a ritual performed with the whole-hearted enjoyment of a person who appreciates the full meaning of life because he once came so close to losing it. Dr. Gabor's joy in living is closely attached to smoking, for he credits his being alive to a cigarette. This genial, middle-aged doctor, who practices in Shorewood, a Milwaukee suburb, was reared in Austria. During the World war he was a lieutenant in the medical corps of the Austrian imperial army, spending four years on the eastern front. He did what he could to ease the suffering of the wounded and to combat the dread typhus and cholera.

He tells about one afternoon when he could control his craving for cigarettes no longer. He walked half a mile along the shell-torn trenches before finding a friend who gave him one. When he returned to his station his dugout was gone, demol-ished by a shell. No wonder that cigarette tasted so good. Lived in the Ukraine.

But war wasn't all hardship. Gabor recalls the happier days spent in Odessa, in the Russian Ukraine, recently the objective of German war planes.

"It's too bad it should be damaged," the doctor said. "The city was so beautiful. It had pretty parks, wonderful beaches and a splendid harbor."

Gabor was sent to Odessa in May, 1918, with 100,000 Austrian soldiers who were summoned to help the White Russians in their fight against the Bolsheviks.

Except for an occasional sniper, Odessa was the only peaceful spot in the embattled Ukraine. The Austrians occupied all of the available barracks, churches and schools. Although the fight against cholera continued, life was comparatively quiet. 'It was like a holiday for us," the doctor recalled. "We had plenty of food. There was bread from the rich wheat fields of the Ukraine. There was no fighting, and it was just like a picnic."

Troops Grow Restless.

But as the summer months passed, the idle Austrian soldiers tired of the foreign environment. They longed for their homeland.

One morning in October, Gabor was awakened by a soldier with the curt order: "Sir, you are my prisoner." Outside fellow soldiers were firing shots into the air and yelling, 'Long live the revolution.'

It seemed the Austrian soldiers had taken a tip from the Russians and revolted against their officers, who were disarmed and made prisoners. Gabor was locked in a hospital room.

The soldiers relented, however, and offered to call off the mutiny if the officers would lead them back to Austria. The officers were equal-

Scientists Discover New Micro-Organism Facts

New facts about the diphtheria bacillus have been discovered by Dr. Harry E. Morton, University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Thomas F. Anderson, research laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America. The new and powerful electron microscope, which uses particles of electricity instead of light and magnetic fields instead of lenses to let scientists see objects one-fiftieth the size of anything heretofore visible, enabled Doctors Morton and Anderson to record the location of chemical reactions within the diphtheria bacillus. They discovered in electron microscope studies reported to the Society of American Bacteriologists that crystals of tellurium metal are formed from tellurite salts within the diphtheria bacillus. The fact that the diphtheria bacillus and other micro-organisms could reduce tellurite salts to black tellurium metal has been known since 1900, but in the case of the diphtheria bacillus, it was explained, it was not known where the formation of the metal occurred. Crystals of tellurium are not only contained within many of the diphtheria cells, the electron microscope pictures showed, but in some cases the crystals perforate the cells and extend into the surrounding space.

Device for Weaning Calves An electric calf-weaner has been invented by Patrick Kelly of Anatone, Wash. The device consists of a small battery that fits around the calf's neck and a metal contraption that rests on its nose. A wire connects the two. When the calf is ready for food, the metal contraption touches the animal and closes an electric circuit. In this way the calf is shocked. The device should make it more pleasant for the mother and at the same time give the baby a quicker start in life.

Mary Celeste Mystery

The Mary Celeste was a sailboat which left New York harbor on November 7, 1872, under Capt. Benjamin S. Briggs. She was laden with alcohol and bound for Genoa. Five weeks later the ship was found abandoned in the Atlantic 300 miles west of Gibraltar. The crew has never been heard from.

Food for $1.87 Year

British nutrition problems appear solved with the discovery by an M.I.T. scientist of a wonder cereal which can supply all the vitamins necessary to health for $1.87 a year per person.

Disclosure of the pre-cooked cereal was made by Dr. Robert S. Harris. The United States government has been given the formula -composed of the simplest of foods -and it already has been sent to Britain.

Dr. Harris pointed out that when the preparation was used daily to supplement the present diet, it would bring 94 per cent of American diets up to highest nutritional levels and definitely improve the other six. Harris, who developed a new type of pemmican for the U.S. Antarctic expedition last year, said the new foods were a natural outgrowth of the pemmican work.

Art Development

Art development in America is intimately associated with Philadelphia since that city was the mecca of the first artists to arrive in the New World. Charles Henry Hart, Philadelphia art authority, and others claimed Gustavus Hesselius (1682-1755) was the earliest painter in America. Born in Sweden the same year Philadelphia was founded, Hesselius arrived in Christina (Wilmington, Del.) in May, 1711, and came to Philadelphia the same month. In 1717 he went to Maryland, remaining until 1723, his paintings including a mural for church of St. Barnabas in Queen Anne parish He returned to Philadelphia in 1735 and resided here until his death. He lived with his wife, Lydia, in a house on Market street near Fourth. Hesselius is also known as the first organ builder in America.

"Wait," she called. "I have a message for you to take."

She disappeared inside the cabin and returned a moment later carrying a sealed letter. "For the mounted police at the settlement," she explained breathlessly. "It is important, Jacques. Take care and see that it is delivered."

Jacques bowed beamingly, grateful for the honor which had been bestowed upon him by Andrea, flower of all the north.

Andrea stood in the doorway of her father's cabin and watched the bearer of her letter disappear from view. Her cheeks were now white instead of red. Her body trembled. She turned at length and reentered the cabin.

Ten minutes later Andrea paused in her work. A terrible thought had occurred to her. What if Lloyd were a killer! What if the mountie should come and take him away! What if he should be hanged!

Andrea stood as if stunned . She stopped not long enough to remove the steaming kettle from the stove. She cut across country, ignoring the trail. She fled through forests of underbrush, lithely vaulted tiny streams and brooks, scrambled up steep inclines and came at length to the ledge above the Mc-Kenzie where stood the old trapper's cabin.

She slowed her pace now to a walk, for Lloyd was sitting before his cabin in the noonday sun, mending fishing tackle. He saw her coming and stood up and waited. His face was grave.

"I'm glad you've come, Andrea. I wanted to apologize for this morning. I-I could not help myself. You were so lovely .

Andrea gestured impatiently, though her heart thrilled at the "There is no time for such words. talk. You must flee. They are coming to get you."

Lloyd stared. "Coming to get me? Who?"

Phyfe's Furniture an

'American Expression'

Few furniture styles are as appropriate in American homes as that known as Duncan Phyfe. Truly an American expression, it followed in the footsteps of the great Eighteenth century cabinet makers and carried on their traditional fine design and splendid workmanship.

A Scotchman by birth, Duncan Phyfe came to this country about 1783 when he was 16 years old. He settled with his family in Albany, where he plied his trade as a cabinet maker. Early in the 1790s he was attracted by the broader opportunities in New York and moved his business there where he was fortunate in securing the patronage of the John Jacob Astor family. Such auspices assured his success. At first his work reflected the current taste of the day, chiefly Hipplewhite and Sheraton, but soon the influence of French designers was felt in the young metropolis and Phyfe began to use Directoire and Empire elements gracefully combined with the English forms so familiar to him. Gradually he conceived a style unlike French and English furniture but stemming from both. This is what we know today as his own style.

Phyfe worked principally on chairs, sofas and tables, although a few original chests of drawers and sideboards are known to exist. Undoubtedly his style was copied by other, less well-known cabinet makers and therefore much of the furniture today called Duncan Phyfe is merely in the manner of the master.

Mahogany was his favorite wood and his love for certain ornamental motifs so effective in mahogany is well-known. The acanthus leaf is one and the urn shape another. Both appear on the pedestal of the table.

THE FULFILLMENT OF HIS-TORY: THE NEW JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT-Revelation 21:1-7, 10-12,

GOLDEN TEXT-He that overcometh shall inner all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.-Revela-tion 21:7.

A happy ending may not suit the fancy of modern writers of fiction, but it does suit God. He "who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will" (Eph. 1:11) will see to it that redeemed man shall "be to the praise of his glory" (Eph. 1:12) The eternal, omnipotent God will bring the history of His dealings with mankind to a glorious ending. The last book of the Bible comes to its last pages where, after dealing with the final struggle of man with his enemy Satan (which has gone on since the entrance of sin into the world in the Garden of Eden), we find the glorious, God-given revelation of the "divine, final restoration of the universe, a picture of the home where we who love the Lord Jesus will forever dwell."

I. "The Tabernacle of God Is with Men" (vv. 1-7).

Our God is always with His people, but there is a promise of the time when He shall "pitch His tent" (for thus we might translate the word "tabernacle") in their very midst and "be with them" in full and unhindered fellowship. This He once did for a time when "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1:14), or literally "tab-ernacled among us." In the day of which our lesson speaks He will come to live permanently with His people.

The blessings of His divine presence are beautifully described in verses 4 to 6. There will be no more tears, because every occasion for them is gone. There will be no death, pain or sorrow, for the one who sits upon the throne will have made everything new.

Christianity does not evade the question of sorrow and suffering, but it does point to a glorious day when they will be done forever What a precious promise!

II. "The Holy City . . . Having the Glory of God" (vv. 10-12).

The description of the holy city is differently interpreted, but perhaps the best one is that it will be in the form of a pyramid on a square base 1,500 miles in width and length (12,000 furlongs-v. 16), rising in terraces, and 1,500 miles high at the top.

The description of the city is glorious beyond words (read 21:1 day consist of exactly the same through 22:7), but the crowning fact of all is that it has "the glory of ed by the American-born signers.

For Fertile Farm Lands and Future Yield.

If we Americans paid as much attention to our soils as we do to our cars or radios, the matter of soil fertility would not be the mystic business we often think it is.

It is high time we learned a little about soil chemistry - at least enough so that chemical terms such as calcium, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash are no more difficult to comprehend than other terms like carburetor, differential, superhetrodyne, static, radio beam.

There is nothing really mysterious about the elements which combine to promote soil fertility.

Calcium, or lime, that serves as part of the growing plant's proteinmaking activity and is needed so badly by most soils before legumes can be grown, is so common it ought to be a household word on every American farm.

Nitrogen, the distinguishing element in protein for which all forms of life struggle, is getting scarcer in our soils and should be more fully appreciated for its elusiveness. Phosphorus, which enters into combination with nitrogen to make protein, the secret stuff of life, growth and reproduction, must likewise be added to other items about which we must familiarize ourselves further.

Phosphorus is likewise becoming more deficient in our soils, in spite of the fact that this country has more and larger deposits of phosphatic material than any other in the world. We must learn more, too, about potash which is the balance that promotes healthy wheel growth, enables the growing plant better to use the nitrogen supply and develop resistance to disease. Like the others, potash has been steadily drained out of our soils.

It is fitting that all of us should make closer acquaintance with the foundations of our farm crops and, in turn, the foundation of our very bodies-namely, the soil itself and the elements which make it productive.

48 Native-Born Signers

And 48 States in Union When the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence stepped forward to affix their signatures to that priceless document, it is quite improbable that any of them thought that the United States would some number of states that was represent-It is a curious fact that exactly all the glories of precious stones and of "pure gold, like unto clear glass." 48 of the signers were born in this country, which of course, exactly corresponds with the number of states in the Union now. Of those eight other signers, three came from Ireland, two each from England and Scotland, ending with one from Wales. The majority of the signers were men of law, the barristers narrowly winning out in the race, with 16 signers as against 15 lawyers. Another group won out with the same close margin of one, when as the record shows, farmers were represented by only eight of their number, while the merchants listed nine business men. Strangely enough, the military service had only two soldier-signers. The list ended with one college president, printer, brewer and a manufacturer. The oldest living member was George Wythe, a lawyer, born in Elizabeth City, Va., who versal and all-pervading as the light of day" (C. Anderson Scott). old.

III. God the Almighty and the Lamb Are the Temple (vv. 22).

As long as we live under the present conditions of life, we cannot do without a place to meet to worship God and to receive spiritual help and strength-a temple. But when the redeemed are gathered in the Holy City they will have no need for a temple. The place of meeting with God "which now has to be delimited from the world, and set apart for God-yes, and held with determination and force of will against invading hosts-has there expanded to cover the whole area of human experience and activity. God's presence has no longer to be sought; it is known; it is felt, uni-

IV. No Need of the Sun-the Glory of God Did Light It (vv. 23, 24).

The great need of man in this world is light. He rejoices in the sun as it sheds its lifegiving rays upon the earth. He does his work and finds his healthful recreation in the day. When darkness comes, he must have illumination, that he may read, study, work, or fellowship with others. From the flickering pine knot man went on to the candle, to the lamp; and now in most places maples. he floods his city and its homes with the light of electricity. But even so there is too much darkness in the world, and the men who love darkness rather than light (see John 3:19) are able to practice their evil deeds

In the New Jerusalem all will be light, for the One who is light (I John 1:5) and the source of all light, permits His glory to shine forth and "lighten it." Jesus, the Lamb, who is the light of the world (Johr. 8:12), is the never failing lamp of the city.

In such light not only the nations of the earth, but their kings as well, will want to walk, doing honor with all their glory to the One who is all-glorious. The verses which follow our lesson tell us that the gates of the city shall never be closed. but only that which is good and honorable shall enter in. Nothing sinful, vile, or false shall come within its blessed portals.

GOV. O'CONOR ON FUTURE PLANS.

(Continued from First Page.) tee of citizen which I appointed prior to the last session of the General Assembly, which committee had as its Chairman, Mr. Wm. F. Schluderberg. The personnel of this committee, representing a wide diversity of viewpoints and conser-vation interest worked long and diligently in studying the problem and in formulating recommendations which were in a large measure enacted into law. A very great debt of gratitude is due to all of these who served on this Committee for the public service they have render-

While some had other views as to the most beneficial program for the complete unification of our conser-vation administration, I believe the plan, as recommended by this committee and finally adopted, repre-sents a very great advance toward a more effective coordination of the work now being done by the various state agencies directly concerned with conservation matters. Through it, we can secure a closer community of interest among the officials charge of our conservation work and as expressed by the committee, it should point the way towards better understanding of the interrelation of our forest, fishery, mineral, game, water, mine and other natural re-Furthermore, it will serve sources. as a clearing house for constructive suggestions and recommendations with respect to conservation matters

The effective management of any of our natural resources is the prop-er concern of the people of the entire state and the establishment of this Board makes possible the focusing on problems affecting the State's natural resources of a viewpoint free from sectional interest or bias. The caliber of men who have agreed to serve on this Board indicates that citizens of broad vision are ready to assist if the venture is divested of political or ulterior considerations.

If we will examine each of the fields of conservation with which your Board has to deal, I think that we can find grounds for encourage-ment in recent progress made. But we do not have to look far to discover much useful and necessary work yet to be accomplished before we can be reasonably content that we have dealt effectively with these resources

Potentially one of our richest re-sources is our Chesapeake Bay and its tidewater tributaries. In terms of the improved administration of our existing laws and with respect to constructive egislation recently passed, there are grounds for satisfaction. Certainly our oyster indus-try has benefited very materially through the strict enforcement of the oyster cull law. This has resulted in an increased harvest through the greater growth resulting from small oysters being left on the bottoms for further growth, and in a better de-mand for the higher grade product which is being offered for sale. This has meant considerably augmented income for those engaged in the industry. There is no doubt, however, that we are very far from realizing on the full productive possibilities of our oyster producing areas. Our supply of shad and herring continues on a comparatively low level, but here again we have reason for optimism in view of the con-structive fishery legislation developed by the industry in cooperation with the conservation officials of the State and of the Federal Govern-ments. In fact, I am advised that this particular legislation is regarded as a model for the solution of similar

USDA Purchases Cheese On Wisconsin Exchange

Purchases of cheese under the Food-for-Defense program are in the future to be made on the exchange at Plymouth, Wis., according to an announcement by the department of agriculture. The new method follows the invitation of the Wisconsin Cheese exchange to use its facilities. The present method of buying cheese through the acceptance of bids from manufacturers and others will be continued in addition to purchasing on the exchange. Department officials said that by buying cheese on the exchange to supplement the present bid method, purchase operations should be more directly reflected in cheese market prices with increased benefits to milk producers. Exchange officials have indicated that trading rules would be modified to permit buying in accordance with the department's usual specifications.

Between March 15, when buying operations under the Food-for-Defense program began, and July 16 the department bought over 46,700,-000 pounds of cheese. Most of the purchases have been of large styles of cheese (cheddars and twins) which are preferred for export. Recent prices paid at midwestern points have been between 22 and 23 cents per pound, including differentials of age of cheese and kind of pack. Some daisies, or small styles of cheese, have been bought previously, with the usual trade price differential of one-half cent per pound over large styles, in order to make it possible for the industry to utilize all of its cheese-making facil-

Manufacturers are now urged by the department of agriculture to shift from the manufacture of daisies to large styles of cheese in order to meet export requirements more adequately. Cheese buying operations of the department will continue to be concentrated on the large styles.

Cheese and other foodstuffs bought in the department's program can be used for domestic distribution to public aid families and for school lunches, to meet require-ments for the Red Cross for shipment to war refugee areas, for transfer to other countries under the terms of the Lend-Lease act.

fishery problems in other states as well as by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The acute shortage of crabs in Maryland waters this year makes us very definitely aware, however, that we are far removed from an answer to the question as to how we are to restore our supply of this important seafood to something approaching its former abundance. This question of the depletion of our crab supply, however, serves to illustrate the difficulties of effective conservation practices with respect to our Chesa-peake Bay resources. The fact to which I refer is the joint ownership of the Chesapeake Bay with our neighboring State of Virginia. Our crab population is shared jointly with Virginia and is migratory between the waters of the two States so that only by effective co-operative action with Virginia can this and other fishery problems in the Chesapeake be managed in such a manner as to maintain the supply on a high-producing level. This question of developing a program for cooperative action between Maryland and Virginia with respect to the Chesapeake Bay would seem to be one of the important problems to be considered by this Board and one to which it may well turn its prompt attention

The Department of Tidewater Fisheries, under the very able ad-ministration of Chairman Edwin Warfield, has laid a solid foundation in the approach to the solution of the many admittedly grave problems facing his commission. I believe it would be voicing the sentiments of all those interested in conserving our seafood resources to say that our fisheries are in as capable hands as could be found today.
