OLD TANEYTOWN

Some New and Additional Information.

With some corrections and additions Daniel H. Fair owned the land now occupied by the Blue Ridge Rubber Co. The first house he ever built was that on York Street for quite awhile used by Thomas D. Thomson, a shoemaker, and the last one was the one now owned by John Hocken-smith, on Middle Street.

He also built the Edward E. Reindollar home, now occupied and owned by Mrs. R. H. Alexander, the N. B. Hagan house, now occupied and owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Leister, the Lutheran Church, the building used by The Carroll Record Office and George Harner, the Birnie Trust Co., buildings, from drawings supplied by Dempwolf, of York, Pa., and dozens of dwellings and other buildings.

Betsy and Honor Donnelly (two sisters) sold cakes and candy in a small house, with a draw-well in front, at about where Herbert Winter's family now lives.

Usually we have heard of "Betsy" Donnelly but "Honor" came in as an "addition." Both are buried in the Catholic cemetery.

(It is sure that other information will be received for some time to come. Let us have it.)

HOMEMAKERS' XMAS PARTY

The members of the Taneytown Homemakers' Club were entertained in the home of Mrs. Theodore Fair. This being the annual Christmas party, the house was decked for the occasion. A table, on which stood a beautifully trimmed Christmas tree, was laden with gifts. Eighteen members and guests enjoyed this party. Each person present responded to roll-call by naming her favorite Christmas song. One verse of each was sung by the group.

A short business meeting was held at which time the club voted to make and fill four kits for needy children. Mrs. Bower and Miss Virginia Bower and Belva Koons asked that they might make these kits, the articles to be furnished by the club.

Mrs. Smith reviewed the outstanding results of the year's work. Miss Virginia Bower sang, "O Holy Night"; Mrs. Ibach gave a reading entitled, "In the Shadow" by Margaret Sangster. Gifts were exchanged. Delicious refreshments were served by our hostess assisted by Mrs. Smith.

Those present were: Mmes. Theodore Fair, Margaret Nulton, Norville Shoemaker, E. W. Dunbar, W. E. Ritter, Mary Wilt, Charles Arnold, Carroll Dern, George Harner, Elwood Baumgardner, Walter Bower, Ellis Ohler, Robert Smith, Rein Motter, W. O. Ibach, Misses Virginia Bower and Amelia Annan; Master Robert Harner.

Use Care in Handling Game Meat

"Beware that the open season for wild rabbits does not also become the open season for tularemia," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, warns all who come in contact with the cottontails! "Remember" he said "that this serious disease, which is widely known as rabbit fever, is usually transmitted to human beings through contact with infected wild rabbits, or with the infected insects that spread it from one animal to another."

Since November 15, when the hunting season began in most counties of Maryland, the rabbit has given pleasure and profit to hunters, market men, and the harassed housewife who tries to give her family a varied menu. However, Dr. Riley emphasized the fact that this enjoyment is not safe unless proper precautions are taken against rabbit fever.

"To begin with," he said, "it is not only good sportsmanship but also good judgment to shoot only the frisky rabbit that can run away from you, for a dull and sluggish rabbit without the energy to run is very likely to be a sick one that will give tularemia to anybody who handles him."

"Once the rabbit has been shot or trapped all who handle the game, hunters, market men, and those who prepare the meat for the table, should make every effort to avoid possible infection. True, not all animals are infected; for only about one percent of the wild ones are believed to be sources of the disease, and so far those bred in sanitary rabbitries—the only kind that can be sold legally in Baltimore City—have been found to be free from the infection. However, it is safest to assume that every rabbit is a source of danger, and to take certain necessary precautions:

"Do not handle the animal or the uncooked meat with your bare hands. Use rubber gloves.

"Be especially careful to avoid absorbing any of the infectious material if there is any cut or scratch, however, small, on your hand.

"Keep your hands away from your face, mouth and eyes; wash your hands thoroughly as soon as you have finished preparing the game for the market or for home use.

"Burn the refuse and fur and any paper that has come in contact with the rabbit.

"Finally, cook the meat thoroughly; cook at boiling temperature for at least twenty minutes before cooking according to your individual taste; thorough cooking will destroy the disease-producing germs."

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET

Annual Dinner held at Sauble's Inn

The Taneytown Chamber of Commerce held its annual banquet at Sauble's Inn, on Monday night with about 300 members, wives and friends gathered about the tables. The banquet was a turkey dinner served in the courteous manner for which this eating place is famous.

The meal began with an invocation by Rev. Guy P. Bready, after which no program was needed for the next hour.

Following the meal the Harmony Aces, a male quartet from Harrisburg, Pa., was introduced and began the entertainment by singing "God Bless America," "Let Me Call you Sweetheart," and "My Wild Irish Rose." The group comprises Harry M. Eiter first tenor; LeVerne Phelps, second tenor; Robert H. Bagenell, baritone; Robert E. Dilworth, bass, with DeWitt Waters, pianist. During the program they were presented for two more periods of song, more extended than the first, because the diners would not let them quit. These two periods were filled with old favorites and new comics, the latter predominating, and the guests were just charmed.

Merwyn C. Fuss, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who was master of ceremonies, introduced the other officers, including Charles R. Arnold, treasurer; B. J. Arnold secretary; James C. Myers and David Smith, vice-presidents; also Mayor Norville P. Shoemaker; Associate Judge James E. Boylan, Jr.; J. Pearre Wantz, president of the Westminster Chamber of Commerce; Chas B. Gendell, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce at Mt. Airy; Raymond E. Selby, president of the Chamber of Commerce at Union Bridge; C. W. Shuckle, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Baltimore; John R. Byers, Westminster; Jacob Bornstein, of the Taneytown Manufacturing Company and E. W. Dunbar, of the Blue Ridge Rubber Company. Several of these made brief remarks, but most of them limited themselves to a graceful bow.

The guest speaker of the evening was Theodore R. McKeldin, of Baltimore, who had made such a hit here as the speaker at one of the banquets a few years ago. Mr. McKeldin did more than achieve another success. During the whole period of the address he kept everybody in a state of thoughtfulfulness, brightened with good humor.

The framework of his speech was entwined with a seemingly endless flow of amusing anecdotes and illustrations. The theme was "The Six Greatest Words on Earth." They comprised three maxims: "Know Thyself," from Greece, implying culture; "Control Thyself," from Rome, implying character; and "Give Thyself," from Judea, implying religion. The deep impression of the address was unmistakable.

It was announced during the evening that the Chamber has reached the largest number of members in its history, 176, of whom 33 were new members. These were asked to stand as their names were read and they were introduced.

The new members were: Thomas Blair, Froindio Basso, Samuel I. Bowman, Frank Butler, James C. Baumgardner, Herman Cook, Jr., Charles F. Cashman Francis T. Elliot, C. Leonard Gartrell, N. R. Galvin, A. L. Harbolt, Elmer Hahn, Ralph Haines, Paul F. Johnson, George D. Johnson, Albert Krasmer, George W. Koons, Robert J. Kenworthy, Arthur R. Luttrell, Louis Lanier, Edmund J. Morrison, Paul H. Myers, John T. Miller, Melvin Meredith, J. S. Marshall, William E. Orner, Frank P. Parrish, C. W. Schuckle, Byron Stull, N. O. Ternpenning and Raymond Wilson and Robert Gould.

WHO GREW THE BEST WHEAT THIS YEAR?

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 1—Who grew the best wheat in the United States this year?

The answer is a farmer named L. E. Peterson, of Victor, Montana, according to the decision of the judges at the International Grain and Hay Show held in Chicago this week, Nov. 29-Dec. 6, who awarded Peterson the newly established Philip W. Pillsbury prize for the best wheat grown in the United States in 1941.

The new national wheat king, who has exhibited his wheat and oats at the Chicago show for many years and has many times won high honors with his grain, won the Pillsbury prize with a hard red winter wheat known as "Turkey Red," which weighed 66.5 pounds per measured bushel.

Peterson took first place with his oats in 1924, 1925 and 1930. In 1940 Peterson's white spring wheat won first place, his white winter wheat second place, and his six-rowed barley second place at the Chicago show.

Pillsbury, a Minneapolis flour milling executive, established the prize for the best United States wheat this year, in order to further the improvement of wheat.

Peterson has been invited to come to Chicago as the guest of the donor to receive the award, a huge urn-like trophy and a cash prize of $50 for the sample of wheat exhibited.

Gentle to others, to himself severe.—Rogers.

Patronize the business men of your town who make these parties possible for you.

C. & P. NEWS

Despite special provisions to handle the largest volume of Christmas long distance calls ever placed in Taneytown, substantial delays are expected particularly on connections to more distant points both Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, according to Wm. B. Hopkins, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

This holiday traffic comes on top of the largest growth in long distance business in the history of the city brought about directly or indirectly by industrial activity resulting from the defense program.

Every piece of equipment and far more people than normal will be working Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, but if everyone attempts to make long distance calls, there will be delays on many calls and some will probably not be completed.

Uniontown Boy Honored

Charles H. Smelser, of Uniontown, a senior student in the college of agriculture at the University of Maryland, has been chosen for membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternity.

The Uniontown youth was one of nine students who were tapped for membership in the fraternity at colorful exercises November 27 when Lord Halifax, British ambassador, and Lieut. Col. Robert E. Wyser, Jr., head of the University's military department, were made honorary members.

Halifax was introduced by Gov. O'Connor, who praised the heroism of the British nation under "prolonged, dastardly assault."

The ambassador told the audience of 5,000 persons that British and American universities had the common responsibility of preserving "free learning and the unfettered search for truth."

The honorary fraternity holds two tapping services a year, at which students who have distinguished themselves on the campus are honored. Smelser was chosen because of his accomplishments as manager of the varsity boxing team and as a member of the Latch Key Society.

MAKE THIS A DEFENSE CHRISTMAS

Throughout the Whole United States.

Retail stores everywhere in the United States will concentrate the efforts of their vast sales organizations between now and the holidays to further the idea of giving Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps as Christmas presents, according to announcements made by Maj. Benjamin H. Namm, Chairman of the Retail Advisory Committee of the Treasury Department.

Using the most modern sales methods coupled with the most approved means or display and advertising, retailers of the Nation have enlisted in this defense effort for the duration. Major Namm explained.

"This idea of Defense Bonds and Stamps for Christmas in this land of freedom of thought and action and at a time when the holiday spirit pervades the minds of the people, is right and proper," the Major said.

"We can make of our effort both a holiday and a defense program, for here in America we are still free. But our future is no more secure than our willingness in the present emergency to defend ourselves. America's answer to the threat of totalitarianism is a mighty program of national defense. Only in military might is there assurance of freedom for the future, as long as Nazi power remains unbroken. The purchase of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps, therefore, is not only a financial investment, it is also an investment in freedom. Freedom for ourselves, for our children, and our children's children."

Throughout the selling organization of more than two and a half million salespeople in more than a million retail stores, the voluntary sale of Defense Savings Bonds, and in many stores, Bonds, too, is being pushed in a spirit of voluntary cooperation with the Federal Government.

In the field of Christmas cards, the industry has distributed more than five million attractive Christmas cards including Defense Savings Bonds albums to retail outlets for the Christmas trade. In this connection the Treasury is distributing Xmas envelopes for Stamp albums to be given free to purchasers of Defense Savings Bonds.

TANEYTOWN KIWANIS CLUB

The Taneytown Kiwanis Club held its regular weekly meeting at Sauble's Inn, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 3, at 6:30 o'clock. President Harry M. Mohney presided. Raymond Wright was in charge of the music period, with Mrs. Wallace Yingling at the piano.

Besides a number of ladies, guests of the members of the Taneytown Club, the following were presented as special guests: Mrs. Paul Wimer, President of the Westminster Sorority Club; Dr. Jones, Vice-President of the recently organized Rotary Club of Sykesville; Mr. Weigle, Vice-President of the Littlestown Rotary Club; Mr. Shriver, representing the Lions' Club of Emmitsburg; Mr. John LaMotte, representing the Baltimore Kiwanis Club; Mr. John Byers, Vice-President-elect of the Westminster Kiwanis Club; and representatives of the various Service Clubs above mentioned.

The program was in charge of the Inter-Club Committee, George Dodder, Chairman, and the Attendance Committee, Edgar Essig, Chairman. The Boys' Chorus of the Taneytown High School, accompanied by Miss Mary Louise Alexander at the piano, sang "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," "There's Music in the Air," and "The Freckled Frog." The Girls' Sextet of the School and the Boys' Chorus sang the theme song of the Taneytown High School. After the address, the Sextet sang "Rose of Tralee," and "Twilight Cradle Song."

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Ray Ehrensberger, head of the Department of Speech of the University of Maryland, and a member of the Rotary Club of College Park. The subject of the address of Dr. Ehrensberger, who has lately returned from a tour of European and Asiatic Russia, was some interesting phases of government and life in that interesting country, with some discussion of the meaning and implications of the part of Russia in the present World War.

4-H MEETING

The Senior 4-H girls met Saturday 29th., at the home of Alice Hitchcock. Their leader, Miss Belya Koons, gave the demonstration—the making of "Pomanders." They are made by taking an apple, sticking it full of cloves, then tying a ribbon around it and a bow on top. These little novelties are to be hung in the clothes closet and they give forth a spicy odor.

Plans were made for the Christmas party to be at the home of Susan Davis. Names were drawn for the exchange of gifts. The next meeting will be with Mary Louise Alexander, when Christmas suggestions will be given.

Material for dresses for refugee children has been received, and the girls have already started working on them.

Random Thoughts

"DRY" SENTIMENT GROWING

This is of course the attitude of temperance organization in general, but that of manufacture of intoxicants who find the bootleggers to be injuring the distilling and brewing interests.

In addition to these, too, is the great body of men in the U. S. that opposes the manufacture and use of liquors as an mitigated evil, only good use of which may be as a stimulant in certain physical diseases and then only when the most reputable physicians so advise.

We doubt whether liquors are ever justifiable as a medicine, as they are most likely to have their substitutes in the pharmacopoeia.

This would be a good time to revive all of the former anti-liquor organizations; except perhaps the hatchet using Carrie Nation and give the whole liquor business a knock-out. P. B. E.

THE FOOD QUESTION IN ENGLAND

Last week The Record carried a news article that pictured the scarcity of food in England. This week, with more freedom of the seas and the strike situation in the U. S. in a much better condition, England's food scarcity should be reduced.

We doubt whether England has suffered from this scarcity as much as most countries in Europe but only put up more complaint.

Their standard of living is normally higher in peace times than in most other countries, which would easily account for its complaint of less food.

THE CHRISTMAS RUSH IS ON

The Christmas rush is on, in the large cities, largely on the part of those who receive good wages, but no taxes to pay and no properties to keep in repair.

As there are exceptions to all rules, there may be some to this one.

The patrons of beauty parlors, the habitués of the "movies", etc., no doubt help father and mother when in need not on "relief" rolls.

And yet we wonder whether they liberally support "the church" and its needs for "benevolence" and pastor's salary as they should; or they may consider these objects unnecessary.

This is all speculative on our part, we admit, but it is all a part of what the "good Samaritan" did as he went out of his way to do it.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

The Christmas shopping season is on.

Business analysts all predict that it will be one of the biggest and busiest Christmas seasons in the history of this country. More people are working. Incomes are higher. And, in spite of the uncertainty about the future, or perhaps because of it, most people are expected to do more spending this year than they have done for a long time.

The tragedies abroad, the increasing threat of war for this country and labor difficulties will continue to be of deep concern to the people of this nation, but those stories will be skipped over a little faster as women hurry to the advertisements of Christmas gifts.

Americans never have let anything interfere with Christmas and Christmas giving. Even during the height of the depression, Christmas was a big spending season. But this year, with the nation's purchasing power being skyrocketed by defense jobs, the stores will be taxed to capacity to fill the demands of the public.

Popular gift items, which are made of steel, rubber, tin, chromium aluminum and other defense materials may be scarce or unavailable this year, but there will still be plenty of appropriate gift items for every member of the family. Cellophane wrappings may not be easily obtained, but that will be because of the defense program too.

None of us is going to worry about the few things we can't get this year when there is still such a wide choice of gifts in the stores. But because of scarcities, and because of the expanded purchasing power, it is expected that many gift items may be sold out long before Christmas arrives. So, more than ever, it is important this year to do your Christmas shopping early.—Catoctin Clarion.

(We give the above, that takes a somewhat different view from that given in The Record. Perhaps we are somewhat pessimistic on the subject? In believing that this year, although Santa Claus should, but hardly will be as heavily laden this year as in the past.—Ed)

CREEPING SICKNESS

Maybe we are not actually at war. No war has yet been declared upon us, tho we (our leaders) have been declaring war on others for a long time, and it is only the patience, or is it wisdom of the "enemy" that keeps us and them from a shooting war.

Our people—at least 85% of them do not want war with anybody, yet the vociferous 15% (or a noisy lot of them) seem to want war so badly they are itching all over to get into it.

Why cannot common sense prevail? Why cannot our leaders learn to attend the business for which they were elected and let others who desire to do so, do the fighting. This European war is none of our business, and our leaders have no commission to make it so, yet they are doing so, and daily we are getting closer and closer to the clash.

Wilson got elected because "he kept us out of war" and then put us in immediately he was elected. Roosevelt pledges "again and again" that our boys should not be sent to foreign war, yet already we have our nose sticking into it as far as Iceland, and if rumors are to be believed—even as far as the British Isles. Oh yes we are in it. Only a moron would believe we are not in it.

And, taxpayer, it is going to cost you and your children and children's children billions of dollars to pay the bill, and fathers, mothers, sons, it is going to require several million men to arm, equip and fight the battles on European soil, and a million of them who go over will not come back. It is worth it?

Russia and Germany are now locked in deadly embrace, and each side will sacrifice several million men before it is over, but what does that matter to a Stalin or a Hitler? They are not getting shot or even shot at. They see to that they are out of danger.

And, Mr. American Citizen, do you think the ones who are "planning it that way" that we get into the war, are going to go where bullets fly? Don't be silly. The brains that plan wars never do the fighting, not even the higher ups of Army and Navy. Fighting is vulgar and is for the rabble only. As for me, I am agin' it all, and shall continue to be until we are officially in it, then like all good Americans I shall be for it for "My county right or wrong, my country."

JAPAN'S CHOICE

The final concessions made by Secretary of State Hull in his discussions with Japan's emissary will be generally approved by the American people. But they may mean war with Japan, and the American people do not want war with Japan. But rather than yield the ground that Japan demands as a condition of amity, the American people will defend themselves against Japan.

Japan's agents should make that fact clear to the Japanese people. It may be the basis of peace.

Japan's leaders do not seem to realize that since they denounced the nine-power treaty ten years ago they have consistently offended this country's sense of justice. As time revealed their true attitude, the offense has been aggravated. Japan's attack on China four years ago was resented by the American people. Her open and explicit alliance with Germany and Italy against the powers to which the United States is extending aid in a world-wide war was a direct challenge to America's honor and integrity.

According to the devious ways of the Oriental mind, Japan may justify her course, but she must abide its consequences in terms of the effect on American opinion.

Today the United States is committed to a naval war in the Atlantic. The strength of its fleet is needed for this task. But the fleet can not function at full battle power as long as Japan so menaces the peace of the Pacific that the United States must hold itself ready to join with Britain and the Dutch East Indies in repelling a Japanese attack.

The Japanese have become badly involved in international entanglements which are beyond their comprehension and strength. They have invited a war which they cannot win.—Frederick Post.

OUR NATIONAL SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Annapolis, Md., November 28—A new campaign against a serious obstacle to the National Defense program—"off the job" accidents—will appear on the highways of Maryland under the direction of Governor Herbert R. O'Connor's Maryland Traffic Safety Commission in cooperation with local advertising companies, it was announced today.

A key effort in the drive is dramatic 24-sheet poster which will appear throughout the state on outdoor billboards. Under the heading "This Must Stop—Don't Kill Our Workers" the poster depicts a policeman holding an injured overalled worker with one arm, while rising a clenched fist in anger.

Pointing out that the poster is a plea not only for safe driving, but also for equal care among pedestrians who made up almost 40% of the fatalities in motor vehicle accidents in 1940, the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission said: "We are directing our safety campaign this year to pedestrians as well as motorists, both of whom are equally charged with observing safe practices in the use of the highways. This is more important this year than ever before. Many of our skilled workers engaged in national defense production are being killed in motor vehicle accidents after leaving factories. Among victims of these accidents are die and tool workers, draftsmen, scientists and other workers, vital to the national defense production plan."

One of America's leading artists, Hayden Hayden, prepared the striking poster shown above as his contribution to the safety-national defense move. This year's poster is another in the line of Hayden contributions which have been noteworthy among poster efforts on the safety front.

Owners of outdoor advertising plants in Maryland have contributed space on their boards to promote the cause of highway safety in cooperation with the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS MAY EXCEED 50,000

Accidental deaths of American workers may top 50,000 this year, representing an annual wage loss of approximately $75,000,000 to the families affected it was announced today by the Institute of Life Insurance.

With an upward trend in the accidental death rate and a large increase in the total gainfully employed, now exceeding 53,000,000, the death toll of workers may approach the peak in history, the Institute said.

The wage loss at least for the first year, is in large part made up by life insurance benefit payments, but the dislocations to the production program of the country, especially in this time of all-out defense production, cannot be avoided. Even though the worker casualties can be replaced in time, there is a huge temporary loss in the process of seeking and training replacement workers.

"When it is realized that more than 90 persons are injured for every one killed by accident, the total loss to the defense program from carelessness on the part of someone is immediately apparent," the Institute said.

Only slightly more than one-third of the accident deaths are from occupational causes. Nearly as many are due to automobile accidents and about one-fourth of all accident deaths among workers are due to carelessness about the home or other non-occupational, non-motoring activities.

"Greater care on the part of everyone could reduce this huge annual toll, which in 1941 alone may exceed the two-year battle toll of the American Army in World War No. 1," the Institute stated.—Life Insurance Prediction.

Speech Restored To Boy Made Mute By Bomb Injury

Silent a Year, Child Talks After Brain Operation By U. S. Surgeon.

LONDON.—Royston Curtis, seven years old, is a shy boy. Speaking rarely and then only in monosyllables, he is the most silent of the young victims of the Luftwaffe's bombing in a hospital in the Midlands.

But that he can speak at all is one of the miracles of brain surgery and a tribute to the skill of a young American neuro-surgeon, Dr. Henry Heyl of the British War Relief society's American hospital in Britain, whose home is at New Canaan, Conn.

Until a year ago Roy was a normal boy, leading the typical life of youngsters of his age in a small town in South Wales. He lived with his mother, grandmother and his sister Margaret, aged three, in Neath. Then one night the Nazi night raiders attacked Swansea, a bomb was dropped on near-by Neath and Roy's small world collapsed on top of him.

Unconscious Four Weeks. His grandmother was killed, but her supreme sacrifice saved the lives of the two children. Little Margaret escaped with scalp injuries, but Roy was all but killed. The left side of his skull was badly fractured and he was unconscious for four weeks. For a time he was paralyzed on the right side, but the paralysis disappeared during his convalescence.

As he regained his health, it became apparent that he had lost his power of speech. A story and photographs about him appeared in Life magazine and this attracted the attention of Dr. Heyl, who communicated with Roy's mother, Mrs. Winifred Curtis, and later consulted with the Welsh physicians attending him. As a result, Roy was taken to the neuro-surgical unit of the American hospital in Britain in a Midland hospital.

The British doctors and Dr. Heyl agreed there was a possibility of a blood clot pressing on the left frontal side of Roy's brain, where speech is controlled, and that this warranted surgical exploration. The operation, to hear Dr. Heyl speak of it was a simple matter.

Talks After Operation. A horseshoe-shaped trap door of bone was sawed free in Roy's skull. Then the dura matter, which surrounds the brain as a protective covering, was opened, exposing the brain. The operation was performed on July 31, almost a year after Roy's injury, and it was found that an old blood blot, technically known as a subdural hematoma, was pressing against the brain, distorting the section known as Broca's area, which has a great deal to do with the control of speech.

This clot was removed and exploration disclosed another clot in the brain's substance—a subcortical hematoma. After the second clot was removed the bone flap was replaced.

That afternoon, when his nurses asked him how he felt, Roy replied, "All right." Next day, when his aunt brought him some sweets, he exclaimed, "Choc-o-lates!" and in the afternoon, when Dr. Heyl left him, he said, "Good-by." Since then he has been adding a few words each day to his vocabulary.

Roy's operation is only one of some 2,000 performed by the surgeons of the American hospital. The hospital is divided into three sections, plastic surgery, orthopedic and neuro-surgery.

Soviet Guerrilla Oath

Asked Death for Failure

LONDON.—The oath of Communist guerrilla fighters was broadcast by the Moscow radio as follows: "I, a citizen of the Great Soviet Union and a true son of the heroic Russian people, swear I will not lay down my arms until the last Fascist in our territory is destroyed.

"I swear I will carry out the orders of my commanders without question and observe strict military discipline.

"For damaging our villages and country, for the death of our children and for terror and tortures inflicted on my people, I swear to revenge myself bitterly, mercilessly and ceaselessly on the enemy.

"I will take an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

"I swear I would rather die in a bitter fight than allow myself and my family or the Soviet people to become Fascist slaves. If by my weakness or cowardice or by ill fate I break this vow and betray the interests of my people, let me die a traitor's death at the hands of my comrades."

Boy Loses Both Legs

Taking Forbidden Ride

PITTSBURGH.—Eleven-year-old James Vaughn took a forbidden ride on a shifter engine after school and lost both legs.

The boy was riding on the running board of the shifter, unnoticed by the crew. He slipped as he decided to step off, and fell.

His legs landed across the rail in the path of the wheels.

At St. John's hospital attendants said the boy's condition was critical.

In the Christmas Rush

By Willard Hartwick

THEY had been doing their Christmas shopping together, and stood with burdened arms waiting to board a street car for home. Again and again they joined the line-up of would-be passengers only to see the car move off without them.

"Look here, Mrs. Young. I think we're crazy to try to get home in this crush," said plump Mrs. Older. "Let us go to the Purple Tea-room and have dinner and rest till the crowd thins out a bit."

"Oh, I couldn't do that," almost wailed pretty little Mrs. Young. "I simply must get home. Teddy would be so annoyed if he got home and found me out and no dinner ready."

"But you could phone from the tea-room," said Mrs. Older.

"Teddy wouldn't like it," objected Mrs. Young. "He would say I shouldn't have stayed shopping so late."

"What nonsense," scoffed Mrs. Older, with the license of an old friend. But Mrs. Young was firm. She was going to get home before Teddy if it were at all possible.

However, after a few more ineffectual attempts to board a car, during one of which she spilled her parcels on the pavement, Mrs. Young reluctantly accompanied the hobbling Mrs. Older around the corner to the Purple Tea-room.

Under the spell of the purple-and-gold shaded lights, the two weary women ordered substantial dinners.

Mrs. Young's body relaxed into ease, but her mind did not. She ought to be at home. She wanted to be at home. Home was the place for married women at meal-time.

"Teddy and I promised each other when we were married that we'd never eat dinner apart if we could possibly avoid it," she murmured. "I hate to be the first to break that promise—I know Teddy wouldn't."

"Well, six months is quite long enough to keep a promise like that," asserted Mrs. Older. You might just

She noted hungrily what an unusually attractive meal it was, as well settle down and enjoy yourself."

But Mrs. Young couldn't smile or even pretend an enjoyment she didn't feel. She wanted to be at home preparing a cozy welcome for Teddy. Just at her most homesick and contrite moment, she raised her misty eyes to the wall opposite and read on a little framed card—"If you want a taxi call Main 0000."

She rose to her feet, the light of decision flashing across her face.

"I'm going to ring for a taxi to take me home," she said.

"Don't be foolish," admonished the rather disgusted Mrs. Older.

"A taxi will cost you quite a bit and you said you were broke."

"I still have that $10 bill Teddy gave me to buy a Christmas present for myself. I'll use some of that—and I can yet be home in time to get dinner."

Mrs. Young gathered up her numerous parcels and on her way out she met a waitress carrying in her dinner. As she stopped to take her check off the tray she noted hungrily what an unusually attractive meal it was.

In an amazingly short time the summoned taxi whirled her home without notable incident—except the smash-up that occurred in the $10 bill when it came into collision with the taxi fare. Mrs. Young found that she had just 25 minutes to the good, and she did a meal-marathon that broke all records.

At the exact minute of Teddy's usual arrival she was ready for him with a smile on her face. And just then the phone bell rang. She could hardly believe her ears when she heard Teddy telling her over the wires that he would not be home to dinner.

"Go right ahead and have your own dinner, dearie," Teddy said, and his voice didn't sound a bit regretful. "I've had an extra hard day, and I don't feel like standing all the way home, as I know I would have to do if I got on a car at this hour. Older and I are going to drop into the Purple Tea-room for dinner. By-by, dearie."

First Printing of Christmas Carols

Christmas carols had a wide appeal from the very beginning. They pleased both the devout and the roisterers, and it was inevitable that they should find their way into print. The earliest printed collection is probably Wynkyn de Worde's "Christmas Carolles Newly Entered" (1520). Only a single leaf is extant. It contains two complete carols—one a hunting song, and the other a carol for the head of a

Honey a Favorite Food Since Ancient Times

Honey, most delicious of all sweets, ranks as one of our most wholesome foods.

In addition to being the "dew distilled from the stars and the rain-book" as one Greek philosopher claimed, honey is a fuel-producing food which furnishes energy to the system rather than flesh and bone. It is second only to dates in honey value, and ranks far above steak, fish, potatoes or bread in this respect.

The United States department of agriculture, in a release entitled "Honey High in Food Value," stated:

"Honey is one of the best of the high energy producing foods. Because it is composed almost entirely of simple sugars, it can be assimilated with ease. Most sugars require action by the gastric and intestinal secretions to break them down into simple sugars similar to those occurring naturally in honey."

"Because it is easily assimilated, honey is of importance where normal digestive activities have been impaired by disease or old age. Honey can be utilized by the body without placing much of a burden on an enfeebled digestive tract and is also recognized as a valuable food for babies and young children."

Cat Finds Way Home

A persian cat, its red hair matted and discolored with automobile grease, meowed insistently on the doorstep of Mrs. Charlotte Parker of Topeka, Kan. Mrs. Parker admits that when she opened the door she broke down and cried "just a bit."

Despite his disheveled appearance, Mrs. Parker recognized the cat as "Sammy," her former pet. She had purchased him at Topeka five years previously; took him to Los Angeles and a year later left him there in a pet shop that was to find him a home. Then Mrs. Parker returned to Topeka.

"I dreamed about Sammy several times in those four years," says Mrs. Parker. "I'll never leave him again."

THE PROTECTION MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE CO., OF LITTLESTOWN, PA.

It is worthy of note that this year marks the ninetieth anniversary of the founding of The Protection Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Littlestown, Pa., back in 1851. Its business has grown and expanded year after year until today it has insurance in force of approximately two and a half million dollars and is steadily forging ahead.

This local concern, which does business within a radius of six miles of its home office in Littlestown, writes a broad policy covering fire and storm insurance. It has no agents, no stockholders, no bondholders to make money for, but instead is operated strictly in the interest of policyholders who are adequately covered by insurance at a minimum cost. All risks are carefully selected, and as a result losses are comparatively low.

The business is conducted under the able direction of a strong board of directors with Mr. Frank S. Creager, secretary, directly managing the office. You will find this a good company to do business with, one that appreciates the patronage accorded it by people in Maryland as well as Pennsylvania.

The Directors include: E. Charles Matthias, Littlestown, Pa.; H. F. Dodder, Littlestown, Pa.; Harry Babylon, Littlestown, Pa., R. F. D.; Paul W. Harner, Littlestown, Pa., R. D. No. 1; Chas. D. Trostle, Gettysburg, Pa., R. D. No. 1; Emary O. Weikert, Littlestown, Pa., R. D. No. 2; Leo B. Fromeyer, Gettysburg, Pa., R. D. No. 9.

FRANK LEIDY, JR., PROPRIETOR OF THE WESTMINSTER HIDE AND TALLOW CO.

A concern that has consistently maintained the highest standard of service since its inception twenty-nine years ago is that of the Westminster Hide and Tallow Co., of Westminster, Md., which has been conducted under the able management of Frank Leidy, Jr., proprietor, right from the start. Keeping pace with modern progress Mr. Leidy has added to the equipment and rolling stock from time to time with an idea in view of rendering improved service.

This local concern has four trucks especially equipped and fitted up for removing dead stock which includes horses, mules, cows, etc. This dead stock removal service is available to people at home in Carroll and neighboring counties at no cost to the farmer whatever. Even the toll charge for phoning is remitted to the person calling for service. There is a decided advantage in calling a reliable and dependable local concern such as this that gives all telephone calls prompt attention and makes removal within a short time after the call is received.

The Westminster Hide & Tallow Co., maintains a modern reduction plant on the outskirts of the town from which it derives its name. It is a business that means much to farmers in the territory served for it assures them sanitary removal service of all dead stock in a most satisfactory manner and without delay.

UTZ POTATO CHIPS AND PRETZELS DELIGHT MANY LOCAL PEOPLE

Particular people in this and other sections of Maryland and Pennsylvania served by William D. Utz, head of the firm in Hanover, Pa., which bears his name, appreciate his standard of quality when it comes to potato chips and pretzels.

This is an old established concern that has built its business on the sound foundation of quality production and fair prices. In both the potato chip plant and the pretzel bakery will be found modern equipment, and all production work is carried on in a most sanitary manner. Only the choicest potatoes, flour and other ingredients are used which accounts for the superiority of the products produced which are the choice of discriminating people wherever Utz's potato chips and pretzels are sold.

W. G. WEIKERT, RELIABLE AND DEPENDABLE JEWELER OF LITTLESTOWN, PA.

In making mention of reliable and dependable concerns serving the local trade more than passing notice should be given the old established jewelry firm of W. G. Weikert, of Littlestown, Pa., which was started by the present proprietor back in 1905. Mr. Weikert founded the business on the sound principles of quality service and fair dealings and from that policy there has been and will be no deviation. By following closely the Golden Rule this enterprising jeweler has gained the confidence, good will and increasing patronage of people of his home community and many throughout this section of Maryland as well.

Mr. Weikert gives the business his personal attention and selects all the stock himself which will be found of standard quality carrying the guarantee of the manufacturer as well as his own guarantee. This is the patrons assurance of full value and satisfaction whether he or she buys an inexpensive pin or a costly watch of diamond ring. At this establishment will be found a carefully selected stock of leading makes of watches, clocks, diamond and other set rings for men, women and children, bracelets, necklaces, stickpins, and other items usually found in a well stocked, up-to-date establishment of this kind—all fairly priced.

Coffee Kept Freshest In Icebox

Freshest coffee is obtained easily by keeping your glass coffee jar in the refrigerator. Nationally recognized laboratories recently tested packages for coffee and found that coffee, vacuum-packed in duraglas containers, remained freshest when kept in the ice box and resealed after each using by simply screwing on the airtight, rubber-lined cap.

FEESERSBURG.

Monday, the air is cold and the sky looks like snow, and thus we welcome December the first month of winter, which awakens pleasant memories of younger life, when snow balling was fun and a snow man was a work of art, and going to school with heavy shoes, coats, and hoods was often a brave feat; but we had good teachers—so we learned reading, writing, and arithmetic. Best of all, the month brings Christmas with its message of "Peace on earth, Good will to Men," and only that can end war.

Last Thursday J. L. Sellers went to Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment of some head trouble of a serious nature; which we hope will prove beneficial.

W. G. Crouse was taken to Baltimore, on Sunday afternoon to Maryland University at the call of his surgeon for an operation on his afflicted eyes early this week. He has shown remarkable patience, and the neighbors have been very kind.

Another of our school-mates, Miss Clara Maybelle Mackley was laid to rest in the cemetery at Middleburg, on Sunday afternoon. Her pastor, Rev. Lowell Ensor of the Methodist Church, Westminster, conducted the funeral service, speaking from her chosen text—"She hath done what she could," which was quite appropriate for our faithful friend, as sickness had enfeebled her body for many years, and the past one her condition was very pitiful. She was in the Frederick Hospital a number of weeks, where her spirit passed away last Friday morning. She was a pleasant companion, a devoted daughter—even in weakness, and a loyal member of the Methodist Church since her youth. Her early life was spent in Middleburg, but after the death of her father, she and her mother lived in Thurmont, and after the passing of the latter, Clara went to Westminster with her youngest brother, Charles, and remained with his daughter after his departure. Of a hopeful disposition—she has entered into her reward.

Early Saturday morning, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stuffle received the shocking message of the sudden death of their cousin, C. B. They visited frequently in our town, and also he was a native of middle west, people had grown fond of him for his industrious, kind disposition. A private funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon at the J. W. Little and Son Funeral Home, with private interment in town cemetery.

On Wednesday of last week we received a short visit from our cousin, Mrs. John Barr (nee Grace Haugh), with her friend, Mr. J. M. Rutherford, the widow of her former pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Waynesboro, who spent her summer on the New Jersey Coast at Manasquan, but has come to Waynesboro for the winter—and all is well.

The three regulars of our town attended the sale of Mrs. Nancy Lansing, in Bruceville, on Saturday afternoon; where some household goods brought high prices—and the antique hunters were on hand.

Miss Arlene Grider passed her 16th birthday on Saturday, and was well remembered with splendid gifts and greeting cards. She enjoyed a long drive with her sister, Lucilla and friend over the eastern part of our county on Sunday—thru' towns unknown to her—and the writer.

Wilbur Miller, Sr., left home on Saturday for deer hunting in western Pennsylvania, and we haven't a doubt of his success. Many men love the hunting season—and call it sport.

On Sunday noon Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mitten, of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Zepp, of Chevy Chase, made a brief call at Grove Dale, when visiting relatives in this vicinity—all looking well and happy.

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Moore are tormented with whooping cough, and that's an unwelcome guest—that sticketh close.

Mt. Union announced the first rehearsal for their Christmas service for Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Viola Davhoff Baker and helpers in charge—the date of entertainment not yet decided upon.

We were pleased to hear the music of the new carillon in Baker Park, Frederick, on Sunday afternoon—a memorial to the late Joseph D. Baker—long regarded as the first citizen of Frederick—for whom the park is named, where the dedicatory ceremonies were held. Familiar hymns and songs rang out clear and distinct for miles around a great gift than many can enjoy.

The Maurice Late family killed four porkers last week assisted by relatives and neighbors. A big occasion it used to be at the various homes.

The mild sunny weather of last week tempted some of our citizens to rake lawns and have some small bonfires. Some local prophets predict a severe winter.

The little chip munks, are a busy folk—occupying all the nearby trees. The way they crack the hickory nuts and clean out the shells is beyond our skill—so to each is given a task.

Steps Necessary Before Shark Oil Is Produced

The hammerhead shark looks like just what its name says. It looks like you could just pick it up and use the elongated sides of its head to drive a nail in the side of your boat.

The porbeagle shark—grayish black and usually about six feet long, and the sleeper shark which will run about 18 feet are usually found in colder northern waters. This type feeds on the carcass of whales and has been known to attack the large mammals.

The spinous shark got its name from the spiny scales scattered over its body, is common along the Atlantic coast and will grow to a length of seven or eight feet.

What happens to these monsters between the time they are caught and the time they wind up in your medicine chest?

First they stick a fish-head on a big hook and toss it in the drink. Bang. A shark hits the bait and they haul him alongside. They are lifted aboard by a winch and the fishing continues.

When the sharks stop running, or when there is no more room on the boat, the sharks are taken ashore where their fins are cut off and placed on wire driers.

Next the liver is removed. These are placed in buckets for removal into the laboratory. Then comes the hide. This is removed and then scraped and salted down until it is ready for shipment to tanneries.

Old Taneytown 25 Years Ago

Fears were entertained of an epidemic of Hoof and Mouth Disease. Quarantines were being made among the cattle in Kansas City and Chicago.

Postmasters were to lend assistance to the United States Marines in securing recruits and were paid $5.00 for each accepted applicant.

Soldiers were being fed at 27 cents per day.

The question of a new postoffice building for Taneytown was being agitated.

On Nov. 28th., at the Presbyterian Manse, the Rev. Seth Russell Downie united in marriage Charles Stambaugh and Rena May Weant, both of near Taneytown. At the residence of the bride's parents, on Nov. 29, Alvia B. Hyser and Miss Grace C. Fogle, both of Taneytown district, were united in marriage by Rev. L. B. Hafer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church. A very pretty wedding was solemnized, Nov. 22, in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Bonneauville, when Miss Marie McMaster, of Bonneauville, with a high nuptial mass, became the bride of James Sanders, of Taneytown, the bride's pastor, Rev. J. B. Shanahan, officiating.

Mr. Francis Cleveland Null, a well-known citizen of near Harney, died Nov. 30, death coming to him while he slept. He left a wife, two sons and one daughter. Rev. Thurlow Washburn Null, of Kearsarge, Mich., LeRoy, in the U. S. Navy, and Mrs. E. S. Wolfe, Waynesboro. Mr. Null was 75 years old.

President Wilson advises farmers to raise "big crops" in order to keep down the high cost of living. Boycott on eggs and other costly foods. Newspapers were forced to raise their subscription rates from $1.00 to $1.50 a year due to advances in prices partly due to the European War Pot that was boiling at this time.

The Carroll Record was using all hand composition at this time but was considering the purchasing of the Linotype.

THE WESTMINSTER NURSERIES SETS STANDARD IN QUALITY STOCK AND SERVICE

One of the most interesting and pleasant places to visit in Carroll County is the Westminister Nurseries, at Westminister, Md., which was founded in a modest way back in 1893, by J. E. Stoner, who is president and general manager. With the flowing years the business has grown and expanded until today it is outstanding in its field in the East, and this firm carries about the largest variety of nursery stock to be found in this part of the country.

The main offices, packing plant, greenhouses and growing fields cover many acres, all operated in an efficient, capable manner. It is of importance that every item offered by this concern in its sixty-four page catalog is grown at home in their own nursery.

The Westminister Nurseries carries an extensive stock of plants, fruit, shale and ornamental trees in many varieties, and sizes, hardy perennials, flowering shrubs, evergreens in wide profusion and other items to delight the eye and add to the value of your home or community.

In addition to furnishing every needed nursery stock this well organized concern maintains a highly efficient landscape department and is in a position to execute expeditiously any order in this line for people at home or at distant points.

It is worthy of note that the finest stock and landscape work to be found in public and private places in Westminister, Taneytown and all Carroll County is the result of their service, and this service and quality stock is available to people everywhere and at prices that will be found by comparison to be fair and reasonable.

TO YOUR Good Health
 by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

BE CAREFUL OF BAD 'POLIO' YEAR

Take warning, parents, when your boy or girl suddenly develops a running nose, or a headache, drowsiness or loss of appetite during the late summer months.

Don't carelessly overlook these "summer colds," especially if your child is sicker than is usual with the ordinary common cold. Of course, your child may just have the "sniffles" but don't take a chance, for these are some of the signs of the dreaded infantile paralysis.

Infantile paralysis, known medically as "anterior poliomyelitis" from which it gets its nickname of "Polio," is a contagious disease caused by a filtrable virus. While it is true that in every year during the late summer months particularly there are numerous cases of Polio, it develops that in certain like 1941 are worse.

One of the oddities of the disease is that it is found more often in small towns and rural areas than in the big cities.

There are other signs or symptoms to watch for besides those already mentioned. For instance, if your child loses interest in his ordinary activities and gets irritable, restless and cross. Watch for twitching muscles and trembling hands, vomiting, a stiff neck, and tenderness over the spine.

The disease is most "catching" at this stage and it is during this "sleeper" period that the terrible damage to the nervous tissue, which finally results in paralysis, is being done. It is at this time, too, before paralysis sets in that it is probably most infective. At this stage, convalescent serum can do the most good. This is why parents must be watchful so that the serum can be given at the very first sign.

Not knowing just how it gets into the system, we are not able to prevent the poison spreading to others from infected persons. Because of this, it is of great importance that the sick person be quarantined completely and all clothing, eating utensils, etc., be sterilized. Also, every care must be taken to keep out flies and mosquitoes from the sick person's room.

We can't emphasize too much the importance of early recognizing the signs. No drug will cure infantile paralysis, but the convalescent serum will usually lessen disability and paralysis.

Doctors know that after paralysis sets in many of the nerve cells have already been permanently destroyed. Most other tissue cells in the human body can be regenerated but not the nerve cells in the spinal cord and brain.

However, even after partial paralysis in the muscles, proper treatment has been found to lessen deformity.

One of the great discoveries in this respect is the "Iron Lung." When the muscles of the chest and of the diaphragm are more or less paralyzed, the "Iron Lung" keeps the sick person breathing until the other muscles not infected become strong enough to take over the additional work. Various devices are in use for other parts of the body.

In this country infantile paralysis is recognized as the most dangerous of the diseases of the summer season, which is otherwise the healthiest part of the year. The reason is that other diseases which were formerly prevalent during the summer months have been largely eliminated.

A man does not live a hundred years, yet he worries enough for a thousand.

QUESTION BOX

Send questions to Dr. Nathan S. Davis, III, Winnetka, Ill. (Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Q.—My little boy broke his leg last April, and he had it in a cast for six weeks. It healed fine but he walks badly . . . limping and toeing out with that leg. He can walk straight if we scold him, but when no one is looking he walks like a cripple. What can we do for him? Mrs. B.

A.—The muscles supporting his arches became weak while he was in a cast. Proper exercises will correct this condition.

Hungry Men

By KARL GRAYSON

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

THE Alice Martin was heading north, carrying a heavy cargo and a crew of eleven men, besides Capt. Perry Haskins and his officers. She had run into unusually heavy weather, coming around the Horn, and had been driven far from her course. When once more quiet waters were reached, the vessel was several weeks behind schedule.

But Captain Haskins was confronted by a predicament far more serious than the damage done by the storm and the subsequent loss of time. Toivo Kling, the Finnish cook, had reported a food shortage. Many of the stores had either been rendered unfit to eat or had been washed overboard by the heavy seas.

Worse still, First Mate Roy Greeley reported that the crew was poignantly aware of the food shortage, and that there were rumblings among them.

"We'd better put in at Talamo," the mate advised. "We can replenish our food supply there and—"

Captain Haskins interrupted by pounding the table that stood between them with a powerful fist. "We'll keep our course, mister," he thundered. "And get along on what rations are left. You can tell that to the crew and tell them, too, that the first jack man of 'em who utters a word of complaint will be put in irons."

First Mate Greeley nodded submissively and withdrew. He was aware of the captain's predicament, and up to a certain point he sympathized with it. Putting into Talamo would mean a delay of another two weeks, and the owners of the Alice Martin weren't the type of men who listened to excuses, when every day's delay meant a loss of money.

Greeley descended into the crew's quarters and found Toivo Kling talking with the crew. The sailors' faces were ugly. Watching them it was not difficult for the mate to guess their thoughts. There was trouble brewing. "Blast you!" he roared. "Get on deck! The lot of you! And the first jack man that lets out a yip of complaint gets thrown in irons!"

The crew hesitated a moment and then sullenly filed up through the hatch. Toivo Kling was the last to go, and Mate Greeley stopped him with a gesture.

"Keep away from the men, Kling. If trouble comes you don't want to be in on it. You know the penalty of mutiny on the high seas."

The Finn knew it only too well. He had been compelled to consult with the crew against his will. But he was entirely in sympathy with their mood. "There isn't enough food to last a week," he explained desperately. "And the crew know it. They want to put in to Talamo."

"There'll be no putting in to Talamo. Cap'n's orders. Put everyone on half rations. It's up to you to make the supplies last another fortnight."

Kling gestured helplessly. "I've already put 'em on half rations, sir. And at best the supply wouldn't last over a week." He glanced furtively about. "We'd better put in to Talamo, sir. There'll be mutiny, sure as all git out, if we don't."

First Mate Greeley appreciated the seriousness of the situation a great deal more than he admitted to the cook. After a few more words, he went on deck and consulted Second Mate Bert Hart.

"The Old Man's goofy, if he thinks he can keep the crew from mutinying. It was bad enough being blown off our course and nearly losing the ship, let alone handing out skimpy half rations."

The second mate scowled. He was a big man with a tremendous appetite and a sharp temper, a temper which being deprived of food hadn't helped any. "There's trouble a-brewin' as sure as you're born, and I for one can't blame 'em any."

The first mate's eyes gleamed. "Better keep that talk to yourself, mister. It's up to us to stick with the Cap'n. Anyway, I've just been talking with the cook, and we're going to try a plan. Keep the crew as busy as you can."

The Alice Martin remained on her course for another day and part of the second. The usual three meals had been reduced to one, at noon.

And the food served was far from delectable and poorly seasoned. Even Captain Haskins glowered at the tray which Toivo Kling apologetically carried into his cabin.

Toward evening of the second day six members of the crew consulted in a corner of the fo'c'sle quarters. A burly Irishman named Harrigan did the talking and the others listened intently.

"Everything's set," Harrigan was saying. "Tonight's the night. If we wait longer we'll all be too weak to do anything. The six of us can take over the ship and put her in to Talamo."

"And be hanged for mutiny," a dark-faced Italian said.

Harrigan glowered. "It's either mutiny or be starved to death. One way we get a chance, the other we die whatever. Which'll it be?"

There was a deep throated murmur from the group. The dark-skinned Italian remained silent. He was hungry, and with Harrigan as their leader they might be able to succeed in their purpose. There were only three officers to subdue, besides the captain. The remainder of the crew would remain neutral, ready to jump to the winning side in any event.

Shortly after the time that supper was usually served, Harrigan strolled on deck and walked as far forward as custom permitted without attracting attention. A moment later the dark-skinned Italian followed, and then one by one the remaining four emerged from the companionway and assumed positions previously designated by Harrigan. As darkness shut down the six drew together. The glint of a revolver flashed in Harrigan's hands. The others produced belaying pins from beneath their jackets. They were grim-faced, gaunt, ugly of expression.

"O. K.," Harrigan whispered, "follow me." He started forward, keeping in the shadows near the port rail. The others flitted ghost-like at his heels. Suddenly Harrigan paused. Directly in his path loomed two figures, easily recognizable in the semi-darkness as the first and second mates. They were talking together in low tones.

Harrigan took a firm grip on his revolver, raised it to the level of the first mate's head, and was in the very act of thrusting forward, when a voice spoke out of the darkness. The voice was that of Cap'n Haskins, and it came from the bridge over their heads.

"Mister Greeley!" the voice shouted. "Oh, Mr. Greeley!"

The first mate started and looked up. "Aye, aye, sir!"

The captain's voice came down, sharp and crisp. "Change your course, mister. Immediately. We're putting in to Talamo."

There was a silence, a silence filled with astonishment and unexpectedness. Then First Mate Greeley called out an "Aye, aye, sir," and turned toward his companion.

"It worked," he whispered jubilantly. "Doggone if it didn't!"

"What worked?" The second mate was plainly puzzled.

"The scheme I talked over with the cook," he laughed softly. "The old man's human after all. Kling served him the poorest victuals of anyone. Cap'n couldn't eat 'em, they were so rank. And then that smart Finn went back to his galley and opened the port, which is directly beneath the old man's cabin and concocted enough appetizing odors to make a hungry man's stomach shrivel up. And the old boy couldn't take it. When he smelled them odors he had to have food or go crazy."

Seaman Harrigan held his breath, shrinking against the rail. But presently the officers moved away and he turned. Blank astonishment appeared on his face, for behind him the deck was empty.

American Poker Rates Most Democratic Game

The amount of money people make seems to have considerable bearing on the card games that they play. The popularity of Contract Bridge drops sharply from the richest to the poorest brackets and Pinochle seems to go the other way. Among those who pay little, if any, income tax, Pinochle gets the call over Bridge.

Good old American Poker, which is only a little less popular with Uncle Sam than Auction Bridge, is plenty democratic. It is a diversion which appeals to the millionaire no less than to the guy who's doing his bit in an army outfit for a dollar a day.

Just as he has for years, Uncle Samuel likes to peel off his star-studded tail-coat and try his hand at filling an inside straight—which he usually doesn't.

Next to Poker, which is a game more often played by men than by women although the gentler sex has a remarkable understanding of the differences between a full house and a bob-tail flush, comes Auction Bridge. For some strange reason Auction is very popular in New England—particularly in the lower income groups. It would probably take a smart psychologist to figure this one out.

Ex-Soldier Is Slain by Bride In Tickle Tiff

Cow Milking and Jealousy Contribute to Wrath of Angry Woman.

MASON CITY, IOWA. — "I'm dead," exclaimed the young man, and collapsed on the bed toward which a blonde young woman was leading him.

The young woman was Mrs. Jennie Decker Brunner, daughter of a truck farmer of Crystal Lake, Iowa, and a bride of six months.

Jennie grabbed a .30 caliber lever action rifle from the bedroom and hid it in the milkhouse. She jumped into the family automobile and drove a mile and a half to the home of her father-in-law. He saw her tearing up to his door and, rushing to meet her, he demanded: "What's the matter, Jennie?"

"I shot Sam," the woman answered. The farmer called his wife and drove with all possible haste to the Brunner home. There, lying dead on the bed was Sam Brunner, 26, native of Eagle Grove, Iowa, farmer, former soldier, firearms enthusiast, son of George Brunner.

Says He Was Jealous. Because there was no telephone in the Sam Brunner farm home, his father and mother had to drive to the farm of E. E. Doescher to call Sheriff Tim Phalen of Cerro Gordo county.

Deputies Cal Dwan and Walter Balek joined the Brunners and went back to arrest the widow.

They found Jennie Brunner still at the home of her parents-in-law. "I wish I still had him," she burst out when told that her husband was dead. "I don't know why I killed him."

After Sam married the hazel-eyed Jennie last spring, George Brunner rented for them the farm eight miles northwest of Mason City.

Jennie declared Sam was jealous and often abused her. She said she threatened to leave her husband after he "beat me up" two weeks before.

"He beat me," she said, rolling up the left sleeve of her house dress to exhibit a black and blue spot still there after two weeks, "to show off in front of his brothers. He beat me in front of other visitors. But we were happy when we went to bed Monday night."

"I Ticked Him." Mrs. Brunner related what happened before the tragedy.

"We were playing around in bed this morning," she said, "while I was trying to get him to go milk the cows. To get him started to dress, I tickled him under the arms where he couldn't stand it."

That made him mad, and he brought up the subject of my telling him I was going to leave him. He said if I didn't quit talking about that he was going to kill me.

"He got his pistol from under his pillow, where he always kept it, and we agreed to be friends and go into the kitchen to look at the clock."

"I had my arm around his waist urging him to get his clothes on."

"We got just around the kitchen door to look at the clock."

Upon seeing the clock, which said 8:15 a. m., she insisted it was time to milk the cows.

Her husband turned back to the bedroom, commenting that he "didn't care about the cows." At this point, and apparently without further words, the young wife seized the pistol from her husband and began firing. She said he didn't threaten her with the weapon; that it was customary for him to carry the gun with him always.

Hepplewhite Designed Chairs That Are Famous

When you see a side chair that has a shield back filled with open work designs of prince of Wales feathers or wheat ear motifs, a straight tapered leg or space leg, you can almost be sure that it is of Hepplewhite design.

These are some of the characteristics of the great Eighteenth century designer, George Hepplewhite, one of the trio of the great English designers of that period, Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton.

Although Hepplewhite designed many other pieces of furniture which were among the best the world has known, he was especially famous for his chairs. His work was characterized by a perfection of workmanship, lightness of construction and elegance of form.

The shield-back chair is one of his outstanding creations and one that is still popular today. It is light and graceful in appearance as well as strong and durable because of the construction features which have been made a part of its design.

Hepplewhite favored the use of mahogany and most of his chairs were made in this wood although there were some in satinwood, and others were lacquered or gilded. Some of the legs were veneered with contrasting woods. Others were inlaid with interesting motifs.

The fabrics he used were those popular during his time, primarily hair-cloths. Today the homemaker has a wide choice of fabrics—damasks, satins, rough-textured cottons in floral and striped patterns as well as leather and leatherette—all of which harmonize beautifully in present-day interiors.

Smell Doesn't Change

Jack Waugh's co-operative in Poag, Ill., grows from 500,000 to 1,000,000 cantaloupes a season—but to him they still smell like cantaloupes.

"You'd think I'd get used to that smell after all these years but I still hate it," Waugh says.

"And as for the cantaloupes on a table I never eat them. I can't stand them. The rest of my family eats them and I ship cantaloupes over a radius of 600 miles but I just can't relish them."

Waugh's season is short—four to six weeks—and provides employment for 200 persons. This year is average, meaning about 500,000 melons compared with 1,000,000 for a peak year such as 1933. Waugh is a member of the third generation of cantaloupe growers who have lived in the Sand Prairie section of Madison co. for 75 years.

Retraction

"Half the City Council Are Crooks" was the glaring headline. A retraction in full was demanded of the editor under penalty of arrest.

Next afternoon the heading read, "Half the City Council Aren't Crooks."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for December 7

THE NATURE AND WORK OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:41-47; Ephesians 4:11-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it.—Ephesians 5:25.

The church, which is so much the center of life for Christians, is not as well understood as it should be. We have come to regard it as just one organization among many competing for the attention and interest of men, when it is really a divine, living organism established by Christ as His Body and representing Him in this world. Our lesson presents significant truth for both study and teaching. The church is

I. A Fellowship of Believers (Acts 2:41-47).

The church is made up of those who are saved (v. 47), those who have received the Word by faith and witnessed a good confession of their faith in Christ (v. 41). This is a fact to be remembered in a time when there is so much laxness in receiving members into the church. It is not a religious or social club. It is not a rallying place for those who wish to work for some economic, political, or social project. It is not a gathering of good people who wish to share common interests.

The church needs to cleanse its rolls of all unbelievers, all hangers-on, and get back to the purity which it had when only those were received who were manifestly "added" by the Lord (v. 47).

Such folk have many interests which bind them together in fellowship, devotion, and service. The early church was interested in sound doctrinal teaching (v. 42), an excellent thing. They had fellowship in prayer (v. 42); we need that too. They had gladness of heart (v. 46); do we not need a renewal of the song of the Lord in our midst?

They had such fervent love for each other that they establishing a communal system of sharing with one another, something which God had never commanded and which apparently failed with them, for it was later abandoned. But the point is that they really did love each other and thus showed their true discipleship (see lesson of last Sunday).

II. A Center of Christian Ministry (Eph. 4:11).

The church is God's chosen depository for spiritual gifts, among them being the special ministries mentioned here. The Holy Spirit calls men as He chooses. Blessed is the church which recognizes His choice of teachers, evangelists, preachers, and leaders and gives them liberty to serve the Lord in their calling.

It is God who calls men for these various activities in His vineyard. Self-appointed or man-chosen leaders and preachers are destined to fail, but God's men may be assured of His blessing and power.

III. A Place of Spiritual Growth (Eph. 4:12-16).

The purpose of the gifts of the Spirit is the edifying and building up of believers. A church should always be evangelistic in its efforts. The pastor should be a soul-winner, but essentially his ministry is to so edify and instruct believers that they may go out and win others to Christ.

Verses 13 to 16 tell us how this "perfecting of the saints" moves forward. There is unity of the faith and a growth in knowledge, a steadiness which keeps believers from being led astray by error or the cleverness of men. Thus kept from drifting, and being steadily enriched in knowledge of the truth, the believer grows up to spiritual manhood.

Do not miss the beauty and helpfulness of verses 15 and 16. Like the body "fitly framed and knit together" the church of Christ is to be a perfectly co-ordinated organism, every member performing its perfect service in building up the body in love for the glory of its Head—Christ.

This figure of the Church as the body of Christ and the working together of the members for the glory of the Head is further developed in I Corinthians 12, which the reader is urged to consider, especially verses 12 to 27.

Watching to See

With the Christian who takes the deep true view of his religion as a guide in all earthly matters, material or spiritual, there is never any feverish, blind-alley skirmishing in the face of threatened ill. He just waits vigilantly, trustfully, upon God, ready to do His will the moment it is made clear to him. "I will watch to see what He will say to me." Watching to see! In those telling words lies the whole secret of the thing that mystifies non-religious folk so completely—the inviolate calm and courage with which real Christians meet the worst adversities that can befall them in the world.

Martha's Happiest Christmas

By BARBARA
ANN

MARTHA was dependable. Like a patient, willing and uncomplaining horse. Her life on her small farm was not different from a tread mill, always the same, day in and day out, month after month, year after year.

There had been a time when Martha was not alone. That was when her older sister Helen and her younger sister Nancy and her still younger brother Curt lived there at the farm. But that was a long time ago, longer still since their parents had died. The sisters were beautiful and had married well, and Curt, possessed of burning ambitions, had left to make his way in the world.

Frequently they came out to call, to "eat one of Martha's wonderful dinners" and "get a breath of country air."

It was on a Christmas day that Nancy brought Barre Howard out. "I knew you wouldn't mind, darling," she gushed. "Mr. Howard is a traveler and he's lecturing in town tomorrow night."

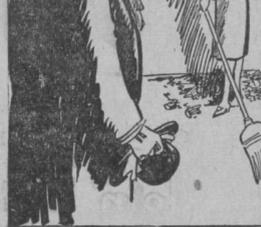

Martha smiled and nodded and looked up into Barre Howard's tanned face, a face that was strong and kind, with eyes that held a dreamy mystery in their depths.

But no one would have dreamed that there were any thoughts in Martha's head save those that centered around preparations for the Christmas dinner.

It was a sumptuous meal, one of the best Martha had ever prepared. She knew a vague sort of pride at the way her guests attacked it.

Martha sat with the others at the table after the dinner was over, listening to Barre Howard tell of his travels, of far away places he'd visited. He looked at her twice while he talked, directly, penetratingly, and she flushed.

After a while Martha got up and began clearing off the table. No one offered to help. She washed and dried the dishes and stacked them away. And when she came back into the living room, they were ready to go, all of them. After they left she closed the door and turned and went back into the kitchen.

Martha laughed, shrilly and piercingly, and struck again.

For a moment she stood in the center of the floor. An expression came into her face that was the unleashing of years and years of suppressed desires. She took a quick step forward, seized a broom by its handle, swung it toward the shelf of canned preserves with all her strength.

Martha laughed, shrilly, piercingly, and struck again. The shelf gave way this time, swinging on one hinge. Half a hundred jars of varying size crashed to the floor.

Directly following there was an instant of silence, and in that instant a voice spoke near the kitchen door. "In heaven's name, what are you doing that for?"

Martha whirled, and there, just inside the door, an amazed look on his tanned face, stood Barre Howard.

"Why?" she cried passionately, "Why? Because it's what I've wanted to do for years and years and years and it's just today I've had the courage. Because I hate this place, hate being cooped up here. Because I'm plain and unattractive and can't have the things my sisters have. Because Nancy's so selfish. Because she isn't satisfied with one man, but wants another, the only one—I—I—"

She stopped at last, breathing hard, leaning heavily against the sink, guilty, ashamed of what she'd almost said.

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean it. Really. If—if there's something you forgot, I'll help you find it."

"There's nothing I've forgotten."

"Then—why did you come back? Why don't you go and leave me alone, like all the others do?"

His eyes were steady, penetrating, a dreamy mystery in their depths.

"Why do you think I came back?" he asked.

"Why?" She brushed a hand across her eyes. Something was stirring inside of her, something she thought dead. "Why?" she repeated. "How should I know?"

"Why do you think?" he asked again.

Barre Howard laughed and stood before her, and suddenly the look in his eyes was no longer mysterious. It was like a picture, readily interpreted, telling her why he had come back.

HERE'S TO BUTTERY FINGERS AND A TAFFY PULL (See Recipes Below)

CHILDREN'S DELIGHT

If you want your children and their friends to give you a rating of "super," then give just one party for children alone, and make that party a good, old-fashioned taffy pull. Think back a moment and remember how you looked forward to a taffy pull just as much as going to a circus.

This party is exciting fun because the children have a chance to help in the making of refreshments. Yes, pulling taffy with their fingers all buttered, and watching the dark candy mixture get lighter and lighter each time it's pulled. They'll like this too, because a taffy pull isn't a fussy party. When you send out the invitations, let the mothers know it's a taffy party so the children will be dressed accordingly.

Unlike many foods which are iron sources, molasses when cooked does not lose its iron content.

If possible use a candy thermometer to test the candy so it will be cooked just right, neither too stiff nor too messy to handle. When the candy is cool enough, cut it just the right size for small hands. The piece should be large enough to work on, but not too large. When the piece is light tan and very stiff, pull into a long strip and cut.

Molasses Taffy.

2 cups pure New Orleans molasses
1 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ teaspoon vanilla, if desired
½ cup water

Cook the molasses, sugar and water in a heavy kettle slowly until the mixture reaches 200 degrees or until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water becomes brittle. Stir a little during the latter part of the boiling to prevent burning; pour into a buttered pan. When cool enough to handle, cut in pieces and pull until light and stiff. Butter the hands before pulling.

Refreshments can be simple for a taffy party, for children will be so excited about the taffy, they won't give their best attention to elaborate dishes. Assorted sandwiches will fill the bill perfectly and a hot chocolate milk drink will take care of their keen, lively appetites. As dessert you might have simple cupcakes iced with pink and chocolate icing, fruit, and of course, the taffy.

If you'd rather give them a hot dish in place of the sandwiches, here's a simple but elegant one:

Millionaire Gold.

(Serves 8)

2 egg yolks
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons paprika
3 cups milk
½ pound American cheese
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

LYNN SAYS:

Stop food wastes. Not only is this a matter of thrift but also a vital step in conserving this country's resources. It is estimated that tiny food wastes total up to a tremendous amount.

Wise shopping will prevent buying unwanted and not usable food. The wise shopper should also recognize between good and poor grades, by reading labels and markings, and by watching the scales.

Poor cooking causes much waste. Meat, for instance, shrinks when cooked at too high a temperature. Vitamins and minerals are lost when cooked too long or when air is stirred into them while cooking. Use short methods for cooking whenever possible.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

*Chop Suey, Rice or Noodles
Bean Sprouts
Apricot-Cream Cheese Salad
Bran Bread
Orange Chiffon Pie
Tea Coffee Milk
*Recipe Given

1 pound mushrooms
4 tablespoons butter
8 slices buttered toast
16 slices crisp bacon
Beat egg yolks, add flour, mustard, salt and paprika. Mix well. Add ½ cup milk gradually and stir until smooth. Put mixture in double boiler, add rest of milk, and cheese, cubed. Cook until thick, add Worcestershire sauce. Wash, slice, and saute mushrooms, slowly. Place mushrooms on toast and pour cheese mixture over them. Garnish with bacon.

Although the taffy pull will be the main event of the party be sure to have games planned to fill out the evening. Quiz games are popular and lists for these can be made up beforehand using questions on slogans, famous personalities, historical events, interesting facts, and riddles as questions.

Children will want some lively fun too, and for this you can have a sack race. The leaders of two lines of players are given two large paper sacks. They place the sacks on their feet and at a signal run to the opposite goal and back, take off the sack and give it to the person next to them. The object is to see which line finishes first.

Speaking of children, are you having a time with their school lunches? Variety is the big problem for packing a complete meal in one small box is hard to vary and doesn't have as many possibilities as the table at home. Having at least one hot food helps loads, and put this in the thermos bottle.

You can have cream soups, vegetable soups, then again hot milk drinks for variety. Sandwiches are a standby, but don't get into a rut with these. Don't have soggy fillings. Wrap each one separately in wax paper. Favorite fillings include:

Peanut butter and jelly
Chopped meat mixed with mayonnaise and relish
Chopped hard-cooked eggs with bacon
Cheese and luncheon meats
Vegetable salad sandwiches
Flaked fish with celery, lettuce
Chopped figs or dates, nuts, moistened with orange juice
Color peeps up the lunch box, so occasionally pack a salad in a paper container. Use fresh fruits often, or canned ones also packed in small glass or paper containers. Cornstarch puddings are attractive and nourishing, and simple cookies wrapped in wax paper will bring cheers from any child.

Economy is highlighted these days, but it needn't be dull if you use attractively garnished platters.

*Chop Suey or Chow Mein.

(Serves 6)
½ cup butter or shortening
2¾ cups cooked meat, cut in strips
1¼ cup onions, cut fine
1 teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon pepper
1 can bean sprouts, drained
2¼ cups celery, cut fine
1 cup hot water

For thickening and flavoring:
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
Melt butter, add onions, fry for 3 minutes. Add celery, salt, pepper, hot water, cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts and meat, mix and bring to a boil. Combine thickening and flavoring ingredients, add to first mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Serve hot with Chinese noodles for Chow Mein, or with steaming rice for Chop Suey. Garnish platter with thin strips of fried egg and green onions if desired.

Prepare Car for Winter

King Winter plays no favorites! Prepare your car now for cold weather. Care given now will help the car to withstand winter cold and snow.

The provident motorist realizes what proper maintenance means to a car and knows that every dollar he spends on the right kind of preventive maintenance will be returned to him many times over in full savings, lower costs of repairs and longer life of the vehicle—all very important items this year.

Among the most important operations that should be carried out to adjust the car properly for winter driving are:

Draining and cleaning of the cooling system, and checking and tightening of all connections to prevent possible leakage. The water pump should also be carefully checked. Some form of anti-freeze should then be used.

The oil in the transmission and differential should be checked and changed to lighter winter grade. Consult your service man and be sure you use the grade of crank-case oil recommended for your car during winter weather. This is very important as your car will be much harder to start if improper oil is used, and serious damage may result after starting.

The carburetor should be cleaned and properly adjusted for cold weather driving, and the fuel line should also be properly blown out.

The ignition system should be thoroughly gone over; points cleaned and adjusted; coil and condenser tested and the spark plugs should be cleaned and properly adjusted. One bad spark plug in a six-cylinder motor—or an equivalent number "mis-firing," due to pitted points or faulty adjustment of ignition or carburetion will mean the loss of one-sixth of all the fuel the motorist purchases for the car. That's a lot of gas at 19c per gallon.

The battery, generator and starter should be thoroughly checked. Be sure there is plenty of water in the battery and that the battery cables are properly tightened. The generator and starter connections should also be properly tightened. The charging rate of the generator should be increased in order to take care of the extra drainage on the battery due to winter starting and more night driving.

To complete preparedness for winter driving, a general inspection and tightening are essential.

"A young man has just telephoned me that he has married my daughter." I hope he is a good practical man—guess he is, the message was sent "collect."

Fifty-five thousand of the more than 65,000 radio stations licensed by the Federal Communications Commission in the United States are amateur stations.

PAGEANT OF SHAWLS

The Pageant of Shawls sponsored by the D. A. R. organization, Westminster, surpassed the expectation of those who enjoyed it. The Historical sketch prepared and given by Mrs. Pearre Wantz evidenced a great deal of research and was most interesting. Costumes and shawls were modeled by attractive young women, some which were worn were of especial interest to Taneytown folk as they were cherished possessions of Mrs. Roy B. Garner, Mrs. W. A. Bower, Mrs. Walter Crapster, Mrs. Francis Cunningham and the Misses Eliza and Eleanor Birnie. The three last named still Taneytown folk though residing elsewhere. The exhibit would have extended far into the evening had all available heirlooms been shown.

Among others not shown were two very lovely silk shawls brought by Mrs. J. T. Huddle, of Gettysburg, the property of her great-grandmother, Susan Little, daughter of Peter Klein (Little) founder of Littlestown.

Gowns were shown dating from as far back as the days of the Puritan maid in her Quaker bonnet down to the last word in present day styles.

One of the most intriguing features was Mr. Burrler Cookson, of Uniontown, coming down the stairway wearing the old man's shawl.

The fact that the pageant was put on at the Carroll Co. Historical House which by the way, has become quite a rendezvous, gave added interest. Refreshments were served to the 200 or more guests.

MEN NEEDED

Because of continued need of specialists to operate stations of the Air Corps and Signal Corps throughout the Army, the U. S. Army Recruiting Station at Hagerstown, Md., is urging young men who are interested in radio communications and aviation to make application for enlistment at once. A high school education is not required for entering these branches. Vacancies also exist in all other service of the Army in the United States and in foreign departments, the office states.

Applicants may apply at the office on any week-day in person. Or they may write for application and necessary enlistment papers.
