

GREAT FIRE SWEEPS THE BLUE RIDGE RUBBER PLANT

I wish to thank the Taneytown Volunteer Fire Company; other Fire Companies and neighbors and friends in saving my houses from threatened disaster by fire last Saturday evening.

MRS. JAMES BUFFINGTON.

The Carroll Record has received numerous messages of sympathy and appreciation from business men and firms with which Mr. Englar had dealings during his long career in newspaper work. Further notice of these will appear in a later issue. By his constant fair dealing, business associates often became warm personal friends.

The Navy urges its men to write home at least once a week.

Corned beef requirements for the U. S. Navy during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1942 are estimated at 1,796,000 pounds.

The Navy is considering the possibility of plastics instead of metal for pipes.

The county ministerial union will have a special program at its meeting in Seminary Chapel, Westminster, Monday, at 10 A. M.

There will be a panel discussion on keeping the Christian Sabbath. Participating will be Revs. R. E. Carl, H. C. Gonso, Arthur W. Garvia, W. A. Ledford, J. Edmund Lippy, R. M. Lundberg, S. Earle Mitchell, C. S. Owen, Dr. Paul Warner and Mr. Merwyn C. Fuss.

Each church is invited to send two laymen and two laywomen to the meeting.

Dr. John S. Hollenbach will conduct the panel discussion.

LOOKING AT TWO SIDES

In almost any event that occurs within our experience there is more than one side to the picture, but we often fail to see more than one side.

When the flames were sweeping through the factory Saturday evening we heard only one idea expressed. It was the thought of calamity—of loss to the town, of large numbers suddenly put out of work, of the effect on property values. It can never be replaced, many were saying.

People forgot that out of fire ruins there often arises something finer and better. They looked only on the dark side. It required the prompt announcement that the company would rebuild to start a scanning of the other side of the picture.

There is an abundance of grounds for gratitude as we recall the facts about Saturday evening. It is fortunate that the loss, which runs into large figures, is properly covered by insurance, thereby distributing the burden over so wide an area that it will scarcely be felt. Taneytown investors will lose nothing.

It is fortunate that there was little wind blowing, else some of us would have found our homes gone. You may attribute this to mere chance if you will, or you may take the nobler view that a kind Providence was taking care of us.

It is fortunate that volunteer firemen are so willing to play a heroic part at a time like that. It required their united effort and their best endeavors to save the homes in the vicinity.

We do not believe that "of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, it might have been." There is another side to the picture. There might have been a more serious story to tell of Saturday evening's horror.

As we lament the losses of life, let us not forget the compensations. Let us give hearty thanks to a kind Providence for protection in time of danger as well as for blessings in time of need.

WARMONGERS

Perhaps the readers of Carroll Record may be tiring of war stuff, I know I am, but the fact remains that the daily press, the weekly and monthly magazines are weighted down with it. There seems to be little else now left to think about or talk about and all this turmoil is caused by one cracked brain. Adolph Scheckelgruber, Alias Hitler. Hitler may have been honest in the beginning, and doubtless is sincere now in his endeavor to better the condition of the German people.

One thing seems apparent—he has the whole German nation hypnotized with the ridiculous super-man idea and doubtless considers himself the leading example. Let us consider for a moment what Hitler is doing for and to the German people.

In spite of the fact that he has overrun and deliberately stolen the property and food of most of the Nations of Europe and thus impoverished them, he has failed to enrich greatly the people of Germany itself.

To create and perpetuate his war machine he has had to deny the whole people (himself and perhaps a few of his Nazi War Lords excepted) the necessities and luxuries of life that the German people crave. He has therefore lowered the health and stamina of whole people. That is bad, and if it were all, the war would not prove to be so calamitous to the German people. If the press reports are to be taken at face value, he has killed and wounded several million German soldiers. The total casualties to date are at least five million and may actually be twice that many, and the pathetic thing about the whole ghastly business is that these casualties are the young men who would have become the fathers of the next generation.

Even if Hitler were to be successful and win the war (I still think he will not do so) no amount of reparation that he can squeeze out of the conquered people can ever fill the gap caused by war casualties.

Win, lose, or draw Germany will require a century to regain the lost ground, and recoups the losses that Herr Scheckelgruber has brought upon his people.

The late Kaiser Wilhelm, deformed in body and warped in mind brought great calamity and humiliation to his people, but this calamity was naught to what the paper-hanger is preparing for them.

One thing must be credited to his astuteness and that is he was prepared, when he struck, and all his opponents, including us, were unprepared, tho we all had ample warning, if the state departments were efficient. Ambassador Dodd gave us ample warning but we refused to heed it; preferring to squander our substance in multi-millions in easy living for those in power. We are now in it up to our ears and will spend two hundred billion dollars or more before it is thru, and will leave a burden to be born for a century. We are still paying pensions to widows of Mexican war soldiers, and that war was fought but a few years short of a century ago.

Of course we must all—130 millions of us—see this war thru, and we mean to do it and will do it unless we defeat ourselves by permitting union labor to thwart our defense efforts as they still seem inclined to be doing, and largely because our state department and our Congress for political reasons refuse to put them in their place. As far as Congress is concerned, the people have a remedy.

Labor may have eight million votes but the people have twenty million, and of these twenty million, a majority of them—mothers of the soldier boys—are going to remember when election times roll around, and are going to vote to protect those soldier sons. To these "statesmen" we would quote Lincoln's immortal words "You can fool all the people part of the time, and part of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time."

The real big determining war factor—a long or a short war—will be settled when Russia and Germany clash this summer.

FARMERS, PLEASE HELP!

We have been reading of the efforts of John L. Lewis to unionize the dairy farmers in certain large sections of the country. Knowing just a little about farming we venture to question whether that would be a source of benefit to the farmers. However, our sympathy goes out to poor John, and we suggest that the farmers forget their own interests and extend a helping hand.

Here is the situation that confronts poor John, according to the declaration of James A. Wechsler, a Washington writer for a New York newspaper. He alleges that poor John, his daughter, a brother, four brothers-in-law, a nephew, a niece, a cousin and a brother's sister-in-law must all get along on the paltry sum of $112,500 plus expenses. Only $32,500 and expenses goes to John L. and his daughter. This tale of poverty ought to touch the heart of anybody. Farmers, please fall into line and help the cause.

A LONG WAR

Nobody knows how long the war is going to last and only a few foolish ones are willing to even hazard a guess.

Seated on the bench during the last war in front of a country store in one of Maryland's most rural communities a country youth nearing twenty who had doubtless been doing some reading and a lot of thinking, abruptly in the conversation, called! If an irresistible force meets an immovable body what will happen?

Well of course no one there could answer, just as no one had answered the same question down thru the ages, further than to say it would be a long struggle.

We read various guesses, some say the war will end in 1942 and 1943, others that it will last five years, or ten years, others say it will last until one or both sides are exhausted, and I am guessing that this last guess is pretty near the right one.

And the cost? Some say one hundred billion dollars, why bless your soul it has cost that much already and we here in the United States have scarcely begun to prepare. Guesses as high as 300 billion dollars will be the amount, and this is about the income of all the people from all sources for at least three years. What a great smoke a little fire kindleth! Our opinion (not worth much of course) is that it is time to stop talking and get down to the business of winning the war, for win it we must or we will all be slaves.

RATION THE RATIONING RUMORS

The American people can and will take rationing in their stride; they cannot and will not stand for many more rumors about rationing. They should not be whipsawed by conflicting estimates of gasoline and sugar shortages.

They do not yet know how relatively unimportant it is whether there is two and a half gallons of "gas" a week for the family car—enough to do the shopping and make some calls—or five gallons—enough for a little trip on Sunday. They do not have quite the same sense of values as the men of Bataan who knew their ration was two meals or less, or the defenders of Leningrad whose supply lines could manage either food or shells. But they are ready to make sacrifices—when they understand what is necessary.

The American people have made allowances for the tremendous complexities of rationing in America and for the discussions by which a democratic system seeks to act justly and wisely. They may even sense that their own taste for newspaper controversy is partly responsible for rationing rumors and conflicting estimates of shortages by officials. But they are fast reaching the point where they will demand a rationing "czar" and a complete censorship of shortage estimates.

The tweedledum-tweedledee game over gasoline supplies began last summer when Mr. Ickes' predictions of shortage produced little curtailment but much hard feeling and uncertainty. Now the Secretary of the Interior is disagreeing with some unnamed OPA official who thinks rationing must be very strict. And the head of OPA, Mr. Henderson, differs with his own subordinate on gasoline.

It's something to have Mr. Ickes and Mr. Henderson agreeing, but why should the OPA subordinate even have given out a rationing figure which both his chief and Mr. Ickes declare too low? In Britain, when they were preparing to ration soap, it was officially listed as "nutmeg" to prevent publicity which would aid the hoarders. The soap ration was applied before it was announced. No officials were allowed to say, "There's plenty of soap," or, "There is only a month's supply."

There should be no repetition of the sugar rationing mess, which started with rumors in December and has been stirred up nearly every week since by announcements of new dates or new amounts for the ration—or assurances that no rationing was required.

Let Washington get together with itself. Let one official make all public statements about rationing. If in the best judgment of officials rationing is necessary, let it be applied as it was with automobiles and tires—quickly and without public debate among officials, whose conflicting estimates confuse the people and prompt hoarding.

Rationing will bring civilians into much closer association with the men who are making unstinted sacrifice on the fighting fronts. On those fronts commanders thrash out their different estimates of the situation among themselves. They issue order, not rumors. Something of the same approach is required if there is to be confidence and unity on the rationing front.—Christian Science Monitor.

OLDER PEOPLE'S VALUE

The requirement that men from 44 to 65 years of age register under the Selective Service Act for some possible work for the benefit of the nation, is a reminder that men of these ages still have great power. There has been a too marked disposition to discard the older people in civilian life. It has often been difficult for a person over 50 years, or even over 40, to obtain work.

The people of these ages are at the top of their powers. They may not work so fast on some jobs, but their judgment and experience have been perfected. The nation will probably ask many of them to perform some work useful to the country in wartime. They should be equally useful in times of peace. Some kind of national plan is needed after the war, which will help people keep working as long as they are physically and mentally able to do useful things.—The Frederick Post.

LOOKING AHEAD

We think primarily of oil as something which lubricates machinery and fuels engines. We think primarily of coal as a source of energy for industry and as a heating agent.

But these two natural resources are capable of other jobs as well—jobs which are mightily important to this nation in wartime and peace-time alike.

The oil industry will supply the basic ingredient for the manufacture of artificial rubber. Now that we have lost our supply of natural rubber the synthetic product must be developed with maximum speed. The oil industry, therefore, is going to have a great deal to do with keeping our military machine running—and, in time, in supplying rubber for civilian use. The oil industry likewise is the producer of toluene, which is the basis of TNT. So the bombs which blast enemies have their start in the oil industry's wells and refining plants and laboratories.

From coal, we obtain one of the miracles of this age—plastics. There are plastics which are stronger than metal. There are plastics which are flexible and easily handled. There are plastics which are suitable for airplanes, motor cars, and a thousand and one other things. And plastics are essential to the war effort.

Oil and coal represent the development of American natural resources at their best. These industries are always looking ahead, in search of new processes, new worlds to conquer. They will play a major part in the winning of this war. And they will play a leading part in the peacetime world of the future.—The Caroline Sun.

THE FALL ELECTIONS

The Republican pow-wow in Chicago seems to have included a challenge that "now is the time for all good men (and women) to come to the aid of their party." Wendell Willkie as Republican leader furnished a resolution about the war, and it was approved by the National Committee of the party.

Republicans who have to face the voters this Fall are trying to avoid being called "isolationists." The situation puts a good many of them in a hole; but they succeeded, at least, in laying out a workable program at the Chicago gathering.

Many Republican leaders are struggling with confusing issues and troubled consciences. President Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie are pretty close together in their war-opinions, which leaves Republican candidates facing a hard, uphill fight.—National Industries New Service.

What is advertising, anyway?

A lot has been written about advertising.

A lot of speeches have been made about it.

But the whole fact in a nutshell is—advertising is simply a time-saver.

It saves time for the man or woman who wants to buy something—and for the store or factory with something to sell.

And like most time-savers, it's a money-saver too.

WOODBINE.

Virginia Haines was an overnight guest of Jewell Haines, Tuesday night.

Woodbine Scout Troop, No. 364, spent the week-end at a Camp on the estate of Edwin W. Warfield in Howard County.

Mrs. Millard Clark who has been confined to her bed suffering from an attack of the grippe is better and able to go outdoors.

The Rev. Walter Wallace who has been serving as pastor on the Morgan Chapel Circuit for the past year, will be graduated from Westminster Theological Seminary, Tuesday night. Many of his parishioners will attend the services.

E. W. Pickett who is chairman of the Defense Pledge Campaign for this district, had the largest representation at a meeting in Westminster last Thursday night. A member of the Treasury Department from Washington, D. C., was present to give information about the campaign.

The following ladies are serving on Mr. Pickett's committee: Mesdames E. W. Pickett, Robert Lewis, John Lewis, Emma McCaffrey, Jane Chaney, E. Willard Pickett, A. E. Gosnell, Edward Fleming, George Pickett and Miss Doris Grimes.

Little Miss Betsy Gosnell celebrated her sixth birthday with a party on Friday afternoon, April 17. About 20 guests were present including the mothers of her little friends. After Betsy looked at her gifts the children played games on the lawn until they were called into the dining room. The color scheme was yellow and white. In the center of the table was a crystal bowl filled with daffodils. At each end of the table was a crystal double candle holder with yellow candles. The birthday cake was all white with six yellow miniature candles. Ice cream, cup cakes, cookies and lemonade were served.

LITTLESTOWN.

The High School Band and the Chorus will present their annual concert in the High School auditorium on May 15. There will be no admission charge, but a collection will be taken. The greater part of the program will consist of patriotic numbers. There will also be a clarinet solo by Paul Krammer; a baritone solo by Beverly Clewell; and a trumpet quartet by Anna Staley, Alethea Rider, Donald Feaser and Rudolph Garland.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Weidner and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bushey, Arendtsville, and Miss Blanche Bender, of Altoona, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blocher. Mr. Weidner was 95 years old on Monday. Despite his age, enjoys good health and is very active. He drives his own car.

Clair Gerbrick, 21, Glen Rock, R. D., 3 was critically injured when a roadster owned by him and said to have been driven by David S. Baum 20, Codorus, turned over along the Hanover and Littlestown pike. Gerbrick is a patient in the Hanover General Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, laceration of the scalp. He has not regained consciousness on Friday noon. Baum according to the State Police was driving toward Littlestown, when the car failed to negotiate a curve. The auto ran into a two-foot ditch, continued along the ditch for 105 feet, knocked down 17 feet of fence and turned over.

Mrs. Calvin Crouse, of the Riley Apartment, Center Square, was removed in the Littlestown Community ambulance to the Hanover General Hospital, where she was admitted as a medical patient.

The resignation of Dr. Richard Phreaner, President of the School Board was accepted with regret. Dr. Phreaner is serving in the armed forces. The board appointed Wilbur A. Bankert and elected him president; two teachers resigned, Miss Dorothy Taggart, the Art Supervisor and English teacher, and Mrs. Louise Nickey Hoffacker, Home Economics. Both were accepted with regret.

P. Emory Weaver, has been accepted for enlistment in the U. S. States Naval Reserve, in Class V 6, clerical services. Weaver concluded his services as manager of the State Liquor store.

Walter Brendle, I. D. Couse and the P. R. R. Company with a frame warehouse was sold to Ervin A. Rebert for $4,150; the cottage at Brown Dam was sold to Clark March for $1,860.

St. John's Church was filled Sunday evening for the special service in which the I. O. O. F. Lodge participated. Rev. Kenneth D. James had for his subject, "The Greatest thing in the World."

Miss Kathleen Smith returned to Cambridge, Mass., after spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith.

Horace M. Leckliter, a veteran of the first World War, died suddenly on Sunday evening at his home, E. King St., at the age of 43 years. Mr. Leckliter had been in his usual health when he retired; when his wife heard him breathing heavily she tried to arouse him but was unable to do so. Dr. H. F. Goeken was called; upon his arrival death had already occurred. The body was prepared for burial by J. W. Little and Son, and was sent to Lenox, Iowa, where interment will take place.

Mrs. Gladys M. Bemisderfer, wife of Ralph Bemisderfer, died Monday morning at her home, Littlestown R. D. 2, following an illness of a month. She was aged 33 years. She was a member of the Otterbein United Brethren Church, Hanover. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon, the Rev. Paul R. Wineka her pastor, officiated; interment was made in Cedar Hill cemetery, Greencastle.

The Reformed congregation during the past week-end celebrated the 4th. anniversary of the building of the new church. A chicken and waffle dinner was served in the Social Hall on Friday evening. The Rev. Theodore Bollz, conducted anniversary services on Sunday morning; the music and sermon was appropriate to the occasion. Sorry that I am unable to give the full services.

FEESERSBURG.

We've had another week of clear skies, warm weather, open doors and a beautiful world to see! Trees in bloom, and taking an armful of apple blossoms to the city attracted much attention—tho' some did inquire what they were, and one said—"Now will they have apples?"

Miss Sue Birely attended the picnic in Middleburg last week and enjoyed the program of entertainment, meeting familiar friends, and the good things to eat. We trust they had profitable results.

Mrs. Addie Crumbaaker had a pleasant week-end visit with the Frank Farver family, at Winfield.

Elder Joseph Bowman who was badly injured in an auto accident in a western state last summer, now gets around with the aid of crutches, and is a real soldier in bravery and courage. Tho' his leg is in a cast at this time—he is alert and cheerful, and we hope for his full recovery.

On Tuesday evening of last week as Mrs. Lulu Grindler was going to the cellar again struck into her knee which caused her to take a vacation from some of her heavy work; but this is a busy season for an ambitious mortal to rest.

Many persons are complaining of painful and lame feet, so this must be a harvest for the foot specialists. Men, women and children from this locality are visiting them for help.

A painter is doing some work on the house belonging to Mrs. W. Gladhill, purchased of Harry Spurrier a year ago, and now occupied by the Lewis Hann family, on South Ave.

Sunday School and Preaching service at Mt. Union on Sunday morning were well attended, when the church was decorated with baskets of lovely spring flowers—lilies, bridal wreath, flowering almond, magnolia and apple blossom. The newly-gowned choir sang "The Awakening Chorus," and Rev. Bowersox spoke on "Abounding in Love, Knowledge and Judgment" from Phil. 1:9, 10. Fourteen persons were added to the church of the Uniontown Charge during the Easter season, 1 at Baust, 4 at Mt. Union, and 9 at Winter's.

Wasn't that a pretty title for the S. S. lesson, "Parables (Stories) by the Sea?" It was requested that the school pray that their Superintendent and others be not called to work on the Sabbath. It is hard to keep the Commandments when compelled to break one of the most important, "We ought to obey God rather than Men."

Mt. Union had no representative at the Missionary Conference held in Emmitsburg last Thursday, for lack of conveyance; but a group of ladies from Westminster called to see us on their return from the meeting, and gave us some of the high lights. A fine attendance, good reports given, instructive addresses, a number of missionaries present, officers in charge were re-elected. The Fall rally will meet in Uniontown and the next conference in Taneytown. Mrs. Calvin Schildtnecht, Frederick, president.

On April 16, Miss Mary Belle Crumbaaker, the second daughter of George and Ella Koons Crumbaaker, of Waynesboro, was united in marriage to Charles Shatzer, of Zullinger, Pa., at Trinity Lutheran parsonage, in Hanover, by the pastor, Rev. Wilson Ard, with the ring ceremony. The bride wore a powder blue dress and hat, and a corsage of yellow buds. There were no attendants. A farewell dinner was given them on Sunday at the home of the groom, who left on Monday for a Military Camp. Good wishes for both.

Sorry, sorry for the fire in Taneytown on Saturday evening, the alarm, terror and awful loss; and we wonder if any of the citizens had a fair night's rest? It seems that nothing is more unexpected and alarming than fire. To see good buildings and their contents go up in flames seems too dreadful to endure; but thankful that no one was killed or badly injured, but hundreds of people out of employment—and life must go on.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stuffle attended the last of the Souder's sales at Littlestown on Saturday, and returning in the evening were not allowed to pass through Taneytown because of the jam at the fire of the Rubber Plant, so they had to turn back to Littlestown and come home through Westminster.

Bicycles are much in favor again very popular with the young people, and another mode of rapid transit. We smile at talk of return to the horse and buggy days—for where would we get the horses and the buggies? Sooner believe we'll all ride on tractors, they seem to be in use for all purposes now.

If fruit trees now loaded with bloom is an evidence of abundance of fruit we'll surely have a full supply this year.

We've had to put screens at doors and windows for the bumble bees are out, and even some mosquitoes. Most of the gardens are made and seeds sown, and now we are saying "A little rain would come good."

FRIZELLBURG.

As I was about to begin my news letter for the week I was surprised and deeply moved when I picked up the Hanover Sun and read of P. B. Englar's death. Having been associated with the Record and its staff as correspondent over a period of years I learned to know him intimately and admired his personal qualities. As an editor he was capable and sincere in his work. His chief ambition was to put out a clean and newsy paper. My respect for him never wavered always finding his counsel worthy to follow. I extend my deepest sympathy to the family and Record staff in their sad bereavement.

J. E. Null who has been ill suffering from a flu condition mends very slowly.

HOW WILLIE SNORED

Did you ever go on a vacation, And feel yourself quite bored, Because the friend who was with you Just snored and snored and snored?

Well, that was my fix one summer When up to the mountains I hied And the companion I took with me Was my recently acquired bride.

We stopped at a famous hotel Located on the shores of a lake About which we daily would hike, All of which we did for health's sake.

There was fishing to do in the morning And rowing to do afternoon— One day thus merged to another— Our vacation, it ended too soon.

Yes, the days were joyful and pleasant, No ills came along to despoil The good times enjoyed by all present We were resting each one from his toil.

Don't ask how the nights there were numbered, Or if people slept well as they slumbered— Some grumbled, some roared, some rages outpoured And all because our Willie had snored

It was long before mid-night when he went to bed, And he scarce had time to touch pillow to head

E'er the snoring sounds from him would outpour It was our own Willie who'd snore and then snore.

He ran the full gamut from low "C" to high "G" But none could e'er guess what that rumbling might be; Whatever it was, and however it came

It would rattle the window and rafters the same. Hard by was a railroad, Engines whistled, bells rung, But the noise that they made And the tunes that they played Were naught to the noise That our own Willie made.

One evening they say, And the guests all declare, That a great thunder-storm Filled full the night air. The thunder it roared, The lightning it flashed, The rain fell in torrents—

Gainst window-pane dashed, Yet when 'twas all o'er And starlight again came Our Willie snored on Thru the night just the same.

He snored so loud That he drew a big crowd Who would bet on the noise that he made; And when it was o'er And the betting was done, Each one was agreed that Willie had won.

He would roar like an engine He would bray like a mule, And the noise that he made Any jack-ass would fool; But the worst of it all, Let it kindly be said— He had robbed all his neighbors Of desire for bed.

Yes he snored, and he snored, He roared and he roared, And such hideous sound From him was out-bound That his neighbors and friends When time came to depart Each patted his back

When with grip he did start, To go to the station To take the train home. Well done, said they all, Now our peace it has come

And so it was said When he left them that day Each one to his bed Went there to stay To enjoy rest and quiet Until the next day.

But tis said that each one That night in his bed Lay back on his pillow And rested his head And waited with patience To hear the sweet sound Of the snore that had come When WILLIE was around.

HOW SOLDIERS CAN VOTE

Attorney General William C. Walsh has advised Isaac S. George, Executive Director of the Maryland Council of Defense that Maryland has a law permitting absentee voting by those in the Military Service.

Attorney General Walsh, stated that such voting is provided for by Sections 304-315, both inclusive, of Article 33 of the Annotated Code of Maryland, title "Elections," sub-title "Voting by Mail," as amended by Chapter 198 of the Acts of 1941. Section 304, as amended, provides that the Governor may, by proclamation, place the provisions of the law in operation for the benefit of those actually absent because of military service, and the succeeding sections, after providing for the certification of nominations at dates earlier than is usually provided in the election law, set forth the following requirements which must be complied with:

The voter must apply in writing for

Forty-Seven Years Ago.

Mr. Walter Wilt, our enthusiastic base baller and telegraph operator has arranged to receive the result of the Baltimore game each evening.

In last week's Forty-seven Years ago we stated that Mr. George A. Arnold purchased a lot on Middle Street. This was an error—Mr. E. E. Reindollar was the purchaser.

Mr. George E. Koutz, who was much afflicted with rheumatism, left for Hot Springs, Arkansas, in hopes that the change of climate would give him relief.

A wedding of great interest, both parties being well-known in their respective communities, took place April 25, 1895. Miss A. Katherine Weaver, of Kingsdale, Pa., became the bride of Mr. George A. Arnold, of Taneytown, Md. The Nuptial Mass was celebrated in the Catholic Church, in Littlestown, Pa., by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Crotty, assisted by Rev. T. D. Mead, of Taneytown. Miss Maggie Weaver was the bridesmaid and Mr. Robert V. Arnold, of Philadelphia, Pa., a brother of the groom was best man.

The jurors drawn for the May Court were: Taneytown District, Jos. Clabaugh, Wm. W. Witherow, Thos. D. Thomson and Preston B. Englar.

ORPHANS' COURT PROCEEDINGS

A copy of the last will and testament of Alexis B. Blanchard, late of Bronx County, State of New York, deceased, was filed in the Orphans' Court and letters of ancillary administration were granted unto Pius L. Hemler, who received order to notify creditors.

An account and distribution among creditors in the estate of Mary Waunetta Yingling, deceased, was finally ratified by the Orphans' Court. D. Eugene Walsh, administrator of the estate of Robert L. Weaver, deceased, received orders to sell stocks and filed petition to assign mortgage.

The last will and testament of Richard Kelbaugh, deceased, was admitted to probate and letters testamentary were granted unto Harry R. Kelbaugh and Edna May Bull, who received order to notify creditors, warrants to appraise goods and chattels and real estate and returned inventories of real estate and goods and chattels, money and debts due.

Bertha M. Babylon and Roger Gilbert, executrix and executor of the estate of Harry J. Babylon, deceased, returned inventories of goods and chattels and debts due, received order to sell goods and chattels and returned report of sale.

D. Eugene Walsh, executor of the estate of Reuben F. Shipley, deceased, returned inventory of debts due and settled his first and final account.

J. Edward Hewes, executor of the estate of George E. Brandenburg, deceased, returned report of sale of real estate and received order nisi thereon.

Westminster Deposit and Trust Company, guardian of Raymond E. Wentz, settled a final guardian account.

George W. Mayers, administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. of the estate of D. Wellington Mayers, deceased, received order to sell real estate.

Elmer B. Porter, administrator of the estate of William O. Porter, deceased, received order to transfer stock and settled his first and final account.

Gilbert Wesley McMillan, received order to withdraw funds.

Horatio T. Wentz, administrator of the estate of Daniel D. Fuhrman, deceased, returned report of sale of goods and chattels.

James H. Allender, et. al., administrators of the estate of Samuel C. Stoner, deceased, settled a first account.

Letters of administration on the estate of Theodore S. Zepp, deceased, were granted unto Elmer W. Zepp and Jonas S. Zepp, who received order to notify creditors and warrants to appraise goods and chattels and real estate.

TANEYTOWN KIWANIS CLUB

The Taneytown Kiwanis Club held its regular weekly meeting at Sauble's Inn, on Wednesday evening, at 6 P. M. In the absence of the president, Dr. T. H. Legg, Vice-President, presided. There were present twenty-one members, and three visitors: Messrs Truman B. Cash, John Byers, and Ray Hollinger, all members of the Westminster Club.

The music period was in charge of Raymond Wright, with Mrs. Wallace Yingling at the piano. The program was in charge of the Committee on Vocational Guidance. Norman Graham, a member of the committee, introduced Mr. S. M. Janness, Assistant Superintendent of Schools of Carroll County, as the speaker of the evening. The subject of Mr. Janness' address was "What the Schools of Carroll County are doing in Vocational Guidance."

The matter of vocational guidance began to challenge the attention of educators about the year 1920, but it was hard to convince people generally that the schools had any other function, especially high schools, than to prepare boys and girls for higher education in preparation for the professions. Now it is well understood and accepted that a function equally important is to prepare pupils for the activities in which they are going to engage in life. Of course, the matter of preparation for college is still important in the scheme of education.

The State of Maryland, through its Department of Education, became conscious of Vocational Guidance about twenty years ago. Where it has been financially able the State Department has sponsored vocational training in vocational schools, especially in the larger urban centers. It has appointed a State Director of Vocational Guidance whose office is to visit schools, confer with principals and teachers with a view of setting up in each school as far possible a program of vocational guidance. However, in Carroll County, the work has been only of a general nature, chiefly on account of the expense involved. It has been found that no less than one thousand occupations are represented among the people of the county. Provision has been made for training in only two or three of these in the schools, as Commercial Education, and Agriculture, both of which are now offered in the Taneytown school.

In the matter of guidance, a number of difficulties are encountered, such as the inability or disinclination of boys and girls of thirteen or fourteen years of age to express any vocational preference. In the Taneytown school, each pupil several times during his course is given the opportunity to express his preference in the way of occupation, and to secure more information concerning it by conferences with principal or teachers. Guidance in the schools must include more than attention to preference for and preparation for future occupations; it must include such things as etiquette, cleanliness, neatness, sanitation, disposition to get along with superiors, co-operation with others in the same occupation.

The Kiwanis Club can further the interests of Vocational Guidance by a sympathetic interpretation of its objectives in the community. The program next week will be in charge of the Board of Directors, in observance of Lieutenant-Governor's night.

SHORT CUTS

THE secret of making good coffee is to be sure your coffee pot is absolutely clean. An easy way to assure this is to wash the coffee maker thoroughly, rinse with hot water and dry with a paper towel instead of a tea towel. The paper towel quickly absorbs all moisture and also polishes the glass, leaving no lint, as you dry.

Do your baking tins often tarnish? Try moistening a paper towel with vinegar and polishing the tins with this. You will be amazed at the new-like sparkle your tins attain.

Eskimos Have Almost Perfect Teeth; Chew Food

The modern Eskimos are giving scientists a clue as to what biological conditions are. The Eskimos have a frightfully unbalanced diet, live in unhygienic conditions, and apparently do not give their jaws or teeth much attention. But they have almost perfect teeth. Scarcely one Eskimo out of a hundred has a decayed tooth, while four out of five civilized white men have several decayed teeth.

The secret seems to be in the way the Eskimos chew. They have to chew or starve to death. The walrus and other meats on which they live are about as tough as elephant hide. An Eskimo is busy all day long chewing his food to soften it enough to be swallowed. Sometimes they put the children to work on this softening process, having the youngsters chew the food until it is soft enough for the older persons to swallow without work.

This man-sized chewing assignment results in the development of powerful jaw muscles, a healthy jaw bone, and good teeth. The average Eskimo, for instance, has a force of over 300 pounds in his bite. In contrast, the typical American can bite with a maximum strength of only around 125 pounds. These are not guesses, but scientific figures obtained by the use of a gnathodynamometer which registers the strength of a bite.

Obviously an Eskimo would be a tough adversary in a biting match, but the important thing is how this continual workout of heavy chewing improves jaw and teeth. The teeth benefit since they are squeezed up and down a fraction of an inch in their cushions on each bite. This gives a sort of suction action, like a plunger in an electric washing machine, which souses the root up and down in the vital juices and improves the nutrition of the tooth itself.

Library of Congress Serves Whole Nation

The Library of Congress, which was established in 1800 primarily for the service of congress, has become, in effect, the national library of the United States.

Its main support is congressional appropriations, but it also has use of income from funds received from foundations and private sources. The librarian, appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, is vested with direction of the library and is authorized to make all rules and regulations for its operation and to appoint all members of the staff.

Its functions include all matters relating to procurement of material and making it useful to congress, the governmental establishment in general and the public at large. Use of the library for references is free to the public and its services are extended through an inter-library loan system, photoduplication of books, manuscripts, the sale of printed catalogue cards and the maintenance of a Union catalogue.

Hens Harm Hogs

It is very bad for pigs to let chickens stray into their pens, the U. S. department of agriculture warns. Not that the hogs are henpecked. But chickens are carriers of avian tuberculosis, to which swine are more susceptible than the fowls themselves. This has been proved in experiments carried out by scientists of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry at the Beltsville, Md., Research center.

Fifty chickens and 31 hogs, all reacting negatively to the standard tuberculin test, were penned with 50 chickens known to be tubercular. They were kept together for a year, when the tuberculin test was repeated. Positive reactions were obtained from 93.5 per cent of the hogs, whereas only 54 per cent of the previously nontubercular chickens reacted.

The remedy, department scientists point out, is obvious and simple. Keep all chickens, even apparently healthy ones, severely away from the pigpens.

Cranberries

Long ago, and far before any white man stepped on our shores, the shrewd native Indian recognized cranberries as a wholesome "medicine berry" and anticipated its health and vitamin values by several hundred years. It was the Indian squaw who taught the Pilgrim Mother how to cook this sour berry growing outside her door, and how to serve it with wild turkey, rabbit and game. Later, the New England sea captains took barrels of cranberries along with them on their sailings around the Horn, and observant ones noted that the crew seemed less subject to scurvy.

Cause of Peru's Infertility

The seacoast of Peru is a desert of rock and sand, because no rain clouds from the Atlantic can cross the high Andean summits, while the cold waters of the Humboldt current sweeping up from the Antarctic make the winter climate foggy and dismal—and winter in this latitude means the time from June to August. Yet Peru lies entirely within the tropics, and wherever there is water along the otherwise barren coast, the soil yields rich returns. Each river valley, every irrigated section, is green with fields of cotton, sugar-cane, corn, vineyards and fruits.

He Had the Betting Fever

By
STANLEY CORDELL
(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

PEOPLE of ordinary means who come into sudden wealth sometimes have difficulty in adjusting their lives to a more leisurely mode of existence. It was so with Maria and Duncan Spencer who had just inherited a small fortune from an uncle of Duncan. They had, of course, always talked of what they'd do if they ever "had money." And now that overnight, they had become wealthy, it was a little difficult to grasp the full extent of the possibilities at hand.

The inheritance came in August. A month later Duncan quit his job. And two months after that the Spencers closed their suburban home in Rainsford in New England and set out for Miami, Fla. By January they felt reasonably acclimated, had acquired a number of friends and were enjoying themselves.

Now, not far from Miami there is a race track known as Hialeah, which begins operations in January, and serves the winter tourists of many nearby resorts for more than two months. Betting is carried on on a large and profitable scale—profitable for the winners, who, it usually turns out, are the stake holders.

The Spencers attended the Hialeah races with a Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Graves, whom they had met at their Miami hotel. The Graveses were weathered tourists, and knew all about Hialeah. They were bettors of the first water, and smiled when the Spencers expressed a preference to observe the activities from the grandstand.

However, after watching from the grandstand for two consecutive days, the monotony of Hialeah horse racing began to pall. Duncan Spencer consulted the Graveses, and received firsthand information about betting. A "show" ticket, they were informed, would pay winnings if the horse on which the bet were placed came in first, second or third. A "place" ticket would pay if the horse were first or second, and a "straight" ticket paid only if the horse came in first.

"And," Mrs. Graves explained, "if you play the favorite to show every time, you're bound to come out a winner, though your profits are small."

What Mrs. Graves had said was the truth. What she failed to mention was the fact that few amateurs are contented with playing the favorite to show each time. After they acquire the "feel" of the thing they inevitably succumb to a combination of betting fever, natural ego and instinctive restlessness, which usually has dire results.

However, inspired by the enthusiasm and winnings of the Graveses, and despite Maria's emphatic disapproval of indulging in any type of entertainment which remotely resembled gambling, Duncan placed a two-dollar "show" bet—and won. After that it was merely a matter of time. For two days running Duncan adhered to Mrs. Graves' advice by playing the favorite to show. His winnings were small, but the satisfaction derived therefrom was great.

On the third day Duncan took a flier by betting two dollars on the favorite to place—and won. On the fourth day he became more reckless than ever and bought a straight ticket, with satisfactory results.

Within a fortnight Duncan considered himself a seasoned race track enthusiast and looked with scorn and contempt upon grandstand sitters. Maria still wore a fretful look, provoked, no doubt, by her innate New England conservatism, but even her constant admonitions against recklessness failed to dampen Duncan's ardor.

Another week passed and Duncan threw all caution to the winds. He bought several fifty-dollar place tickets at a crack, and was only mildly satisfied when the day's receipts netted him a total profit of three hundred dollars.

It was when Duncan took a long shot on an unknown horse by buying two $100 straight tickets that Maria gave way to impulse and voiced a complaint. Even the fact Duncan won didn't change her ideas on the subject.

"We can't afford to take the chance, Duncan," she told him. "Why, if you should lose four or five times, it would mean the end of our fortune. We'd better not come out here any more."

But by now Duncan was very sure of himself. He knew, he said, his horses. Moreover, after he'd cleaned up they could live just so much higher than heretofore planned.

And so Duncan, much to Maria's consternation, began to plunge. He bought hundred-dollar straight tickets in bunches. And it wasn't long before the fact that the worth of acquired experience, touts and tips and dope sheets was practically nil. Favorites didn't always win, and old-timers' advice was about as good as nothing at all. No one, Duncan discovered, knew a great deal more than anyone else about which horse would win a certain race.

Duncan lost $6,000 on a single race. Before the day was ended his total losses had risen to $10,000.

That night he consulted his most reliable dope sheet, made certain notations on a block of paper and the next day journeyed out to Hialeah with a vengeance. Before the last race was run he had contributed $30,000 more to the fund that supports the pink flamingoes in the park's center green. A sort of desperate feeling kept him awake that night. And when he dropped another $5,000 on the day following the desperate feeling changed to panic. His losses now were serious, and unless he made a final plunge in the hopes of cleaning up—well, things looked pretty bad.

Duncan was standing all alone by the paddock railing when the horse on which he held a straight ticket came in third, and the feeling that came over him was similar to that which comes to men who contemplate suicide. He felt suddenly old and broken and sick at heart. Realization of what a fool he'd been swept over him and brought a tremor of disgust to his lips. He thought of Maria, remembering her quaint old New England custom of being conservative, deriding himself for scoring it. New England seemed very far away just then.

He turned away, dreading the moment when he would have to face his spouse; he turned and found her standing two feet away, watching him. Duncan gulped and tried to meet her eyes and couldn't. She took a step toward him, placed a hand on his arm, and smiled.

"I know, I know," she said. "We'll go away tomorrow. I guess we're not gamblers, Duncan. We're—we're New Englanders, conservative folks."

Duncan looked at her miserably and shook his head. "We can't go away, Maria. We've lost—everything."

But Maria still smiled, and then Duncan saw that her other hand held something in it. He stared, and heard her voice as if from a distance.

"I told you to be careful, Duncan," she said, faintly admonishing. "It was all right so long as we played the favorite to show. That—was conservative betting. I was sure of it. That's why I bought a show ticket on every favorite every time you played the horse to win. It was safest." She paused. "I've figured it up, and we're right back just about where we started. But—we've certainly had a thrill. We'll have something to tell folks back in New England."

Duncan gulped and grinned. "Yes," he said, "we will, but we won't."

War Causes Development Of New Plastic Eye

A plastic eye almost impossible of detection from the real thing is the latest development of the laboratories to meet war's complete shut-off of the source of supply, according to Dr. Theodore J. Dimitry of New Orleans, writing in the Journal of the International College of Surgeons.

Some 170,000 artificial eyes are used in the United States each year, Dr. Dimitry states, and of this number Germany supplied 150,000 before the war started.

However, American ingenuity has already forestalled the necessity of returning to the ancient patch over the eye when the stock of not more than 250,000 artificial eyes the United States had on hand at the outbreak of the war is completely gone, Dr. Dimitry says. The new type of artificial eye, made from acrylic resins, is fully 80 per cent machine-made and can be turned out in mass production. Not only is the plastic eye capable of being turned out in huge numbers if necessary, but it is many times better than the best glass eyes which heretofore have come almost exclusively from Germany. The new plastic eye will move in harmony with the companion eye, writes Dr. Dimitry, impossible with the old type of glass eye which was set in a fixed position in the eye socket. The iris coloring and the size of the pupil of the new plastic eye can be made to match the real eye perfectly by means of color photography.

Down to the present day, Germany has had a virtual monopoly of the artificial eye industry. With one exception, all eye making firms in the United States used German glass before the war. But the discovery of the use of plastics in the making of artificial eyes will eventually make our country entirely self-supporting in this market since all the materials for the synthetic resins are found here. Plastic artificial eyes, states the article in the Journal of the International College of Surgeons, are immediately available and only await commercial production.

THE DAY OF ACCLAIM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.—Mark 11:9.

The last week of our Lord's earthly life had come. "Normally, in fact almost universally, the last week of a man's life is of practically no significance. In many cases he is too sick to speak with any clear intelligence, and, of course, when ill, is incapable of doing any noteworthy deeds. In our Lord's life, the last week was the most important of all, and to it more space is given (in Scripture) than to any one whole year of Jesus' ministry" (Dr. Wilbur M. Smith).

The first day of that week found our Lord riding into Jerusalem in humility, and yet in royal majesty, to present Himself as Israel's King and Messiah. We find

I. The King Seeking Man's Help (Mark 11: 1-7).

How surprising that the One who made and upholds all things (Col. 1: 16, 17) should have to say, "The Lord hath need of him," in sending for a humble beast of burden. Yet therein lies a marvelous truth. He has graciously so ordered the universe that He has need of us and of our possessions. That was true in the days of His flesh, when He had voluntarily become poor for our sakes. In a somewhat different sense, but nonetheless precious, it is true today.

To be needed by anyone—to have that which can be used—is always encouraging, but to find that the Master needs us and what we have to give, is truly inspiring. Let us learn to give as readily as the owner of the colt (vv. 5, 6), and let us also learn the important lesson of unquestioning obedience taught in verse 4. "They went their way" to do what the Lord told them to do. How greatly simplified and glorified would be the lives of Christian people if they would thus obey Christ.

II. The King Receiving Man's Homage (Mark 11:8-11).

Presenting Himself as their Messiah, Jesus received the enthusiastic acclaim of His disciples and friends, who were probably joined by others who were drawn by the excitement. But the Pharisees did not join in (see Luke 19:39, 40) nor did the city, not even knowing who He was (Matt. 21:10, 11). So it is today; some love and praise Him, some hate Him, others just ignore Him. Of which class are you?

He gave Jerusalem and the nation a final opportunity to receive Him. It was not yet too late, but it was their last chance. Such a time comes in the life of everyone of us. They rejected Him. What do we do? But let us not forget that there were those who shouted, "Hosanna," who cast their garments down before Him and waved palms of victory and joy. Thank God for their holy enthusiasm. Pray God that we may have a little more of it. We have come to the place where nobody shouts "Hosanna" or "Hallelujah" except the church choir—and they do it only in carefully modulated tones. We cheer at ball games or at a political rally, and while we surely do not want that same kind of confusion in the church, it would be quite appropriate to bring some real enthusiasm into our Christianity.

Our Lord knew that it would not be long ere the multitude would be changing their cry to "Crucify Him," for He knew their sinful hearts. So in the midst of His day of acclaim we see

III. The King Weeping Over Man's Sin (Luke 19:41-44).

In times of great joy or under unusual circumstances we are prone to think only of our own pleasure or our own need. But with Christ the need of the souls of men was never for a moment forgotten. He might well have gone on to Bethany to rest and rejoice with His friends over His triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

This constant and tenderhearted concern which Christ had for the city which hated and was soon to crucify Him; this remembrance of their need even in His brief hour of public acclaim, may well teach the church a much needed lesson. Many churches are prosperous, well cared for, and even popular. They are prone to rest back and ride the crest of the wave of popularity, forgetting the souls of men and women in need, many of whom live under the very shadow of the church. Shame on us for such callous indifference in the light of our Lord's agonized weeping—for such is the meaning of the word in Luke 19:41.

Others may observe that their city or community is hostile to the gospel, that men would rather crucify the Christ than receive Him. And so they are content to have their snug little spiritual retreat where they meet to comfort one another and to congratulate themselves on their spiritual haven. Again we say, shame on us!

A WEEK OF THE WAR

President Roosevelt sent to Congress a seven-point program of wartime economic controls including heavy taxation, general rationing of all scarce commodities and stabilization of wages. He proposed that the net income of any individual be limited to $25,000 a year, after payment of taxes. The President described the program as one of "equality of privilege" for all Americans in bearing the burdens of total war.

Mr. Roosevelt said two points of the program require legislation, imposing heavy taxation to keep profits at a low level and stabilizing farm prices. The other five points proposed by the President, adequately covered by existing legislation, call for general price ceilings on commodities and rents, wage stabilization at present levels, increased savings through purchase of War Bonds, rationing of all essential commodities of which there are scarcities, and further curtailment of credit and installment buying.

The President told his press conference the War Production Program launched in January, is working out extremely well. He said the announced goals might even be expanded. The steel plate shortage has retarded the shipbuilding program, he said, but on the whole there is no very great slow-down in ship production.

The WPB ordered the cotton textile industry to convert specified percentages of its looms to war production within 60 days, in order to increase output of materials for sand bags, camouflage cloth, agricultural bags, etc. The Board said the automobile industry during February produced almost 27 percent as much war material as it did during all of 1941. A total of 600 plants in 32 States reported formation of voluntary labor-management committees.

The Office of Price Administration issued instructions for the sugar rationing program, calling for registration of industrial and institutional users at high schools April 28-29, and of consumers at elementary schools, May 4 through May 7. Retail sugar sales, banned throughout the nation for a week, will be resumed May 5 when rationing goes into effect. Consumers may purchase one pound of sugar with each of the first four stamps in the War Ration Books. These stamps cover approximately two-week periods from May 5 to June 27.

Registration for gasoline ration cards will be held in elementary schools in 17 Atlantic Coastal States and the District of Columbia, May 12, 13 and 14. Gasoline rationing will go into effect in these States May 15, OPA said. The amount of the ration will be determined by the petroleum supply situation at the time of registration.

The President told his press conference he had been advised officially of the interment of an American plane and its crew in Siberian Russia—apparently one of the planes which reportedly raided Japanese cities. U. S. troops arrived on New Caledonia to aid the Free French in the island's defense. General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia reported another raid by Japanese and Australian bombers on Japanese-held Rabaul. American gunfire from Corregidor Island broke up a Japanese troop concentration on Bataan. The Navy reported the torpedoing of eight more United Nations' merchant vessels by enemy submarines in the Atlantic.

Selective Service Headquarters instructed State Directors to place men with dependents into two classifications—3-A for those not engaged in essential work and 3-B for those who are engaged in essential war work. No men with dependents will be taken until all available physically fit men without dependents have been called, Headquarters said. When men with dependents are taken, those in the 3-A classification will be called first. The Army said persons with disqualifying physical defects which can be corrected will be classified 1-A (Suspended) and reclassified as 1-A when the defects are cleared up.

The WPB reduced the number of sizes and models of storage batteries from about 75 to 15, and ruled purchasers must turn in to retailers a used battery in order to get a new replacement battery. The Board also curtailed new telephone installations. Only persons and organizations engaged in direct war work are certain of obtaining new telephone service, the Board said.

Manufacture of commercial laundry equipment was prohibited after June 1 and of commercial dry cleaning equipment after July 1. Manufacturers can not equip new farm machinery with rubber tires after April 30, with certain exceptions. The Board said a person supplying materials used in the construction of a defense housing project may now extend a preference rating at any time within three months after he becomes entitled to apply it.

Defense Transportation Director Eastman prohibited all special deliveries, beginning May 15, and limited to once daily to any one person deliveries of local carriers. He said present uniform business hours should be staggered, school hours changed, labor shifts rearranged and group riding instituted to effect steady use of mass transit facilities and to eliminate several hours overload.

Officers of the U. S. Navy qualified for submarine duty wear golden dolphins as part of their uniform.

Murder Decreases; Less

Shooting, More Knifing
WASHINGTON.—Your chances of being murdered are going down—but they're still a lot higher than you may think, the census bureau says. Latest figures show that one out of every 173 deaths was classed as "homicide." Six years before, the odds were 116 to 1 against being murdered.

Methods of murder are changing, too. In 1934, 64 per cent of all murders were caused by firearms, and 18 per cent by cutting or piercing instruments. Six years later, 57 out of every 100 murders were by shooting, and 25 were committed with cutting or piercing instruments. During the six years, the number of murders annually fell from 12,055 to 8,208.

Most Lethal Weapon

The torpedo is the war's most lethal weapon. It was first demonstrated by Robert Fulton, and it was named after an electric ray fish.

Salt in Grapefruit

If grapefruit is unusually sour, add a pinch of salt. It will surprise you how much the flavor will be meliorated by salt rather than sugar.

96, Auto Driver

J. N. Pride of South Windsor, Maine, passed a stiff examination for an auto driver's license when he was 96 years old.
