-11-TO LOWER DRAFT AGE

Legislation is being prepared and will be put before Congress soon to lower the minimum draft age for the army to 19, and possible 18. It is not certain how the matter will be presented, nor how Congress will handle it, but if the war continues long, it is sure to come.

President Roosevelt has ordered a registration on June 30, of youths 18 and 19 years of age. Under present law they can not be drafted, so Congress will be asked to give the required authority.

It is estimated that this will make available an additional 2,450,000, which would make a very noticable difference. There will be opposition to the measure, but in the end the military leaders are likely to have their way.

This use of the poppy, was inspired by the poem, "In Flanders' Fields" with its immortal lines: "In Flanders fields the poppies blow, between the crosses, row on row." The poppies were the only touch of beauty that survived amid the desolation of the battle front in France. They formed the only floral tribute on the graves of the dead and became for the men fighting there a symbol of heroic sac-

Departments' and Boards Activities.

President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress, reduced his WPA request for fiscal 1943 from $465 million to $283 million. He said the war effort is drawing workers from every available source, there by reducing the need for a work re-lief program. To meet labor shortages, he said, even organized migraages, he said, even organized migration of workers may be necessary. The revised WPA program would provide for an average monthly employment of about 400,000 persons "who will not be hired by private employers because of age, lack of skills, or other handicaps."

Chairman McNutt of the War Manpower Commission directed the U.S. Employment Service to maintain lists of skilled occupations essential to war production in which a national shortage exists, and to make preferential referrals of workers to employers in war industries. He directed the WPB to classify war plants and war products in the order of their urgency to the war program. He also instructed Selective Service local boards to confer with local U. S. Employment Service offices before reclassifying any men skilled in war occupations.

Mr. McNutt said if it is possible to insure full utilization of manpower through voluntary means, "it will be unnecessary to put into effect legal controls" to limit freedom of action of workers and employers. He said compulsion "may from time to time be necessary," however, in the ad-ministration of the manpower pro-gram. He stated four-fifths of all jobs in vital war industries can be handled by women

The WPB said if Americans do not onserve the transportation miles in their tires it may be necessary eventually to transfer automobiles and tires to communities where they are eeded more. The Board reported no rubber can be spared in 1942 or 1943 to make new tires for ordinary passener cars, because the armed forces sener cars, because the armed forces need all the rubber the nation can muster from its stockpile, synthetic program and greatly curtailed crude sources. The synthetic program might produce 30,000 tons of rubber this year and 350,000 tons in 1943, the Board said.

President Prospect said the H. S.

President Roosevelt said the U. S. still faces the prospect of a long war, and overly enthusiastic optimism about its progress is not justified. The President presented the Congressional medal of honor to Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle who led the party of 80 men who bombed the Japanese mainland in Army B-25 bombers Apr. 18. No U. S. planes were shot down in the raids. Gen. MacArthur headquarters in Australia reported the sinking of another Japanese cruiser, two cargo ships and two enemy transports. United Nations planes in Australia destroyed 17 enemy aircraft and damaged nine others. Twelve more United Nations vessels were sunk by enemy submarines in the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico.

The office of defense transportation banned operation of all sight-seeing bus services and restricted use of chartered buses to such essential operations as transporting members of the armed forces, war workers and school children. Four bus lines operating between New York City and Washington, D. C., were ordered to pool their services, stagger schedules

The remarkable rains last which did some damage in Maryland, struck parts of Pennsylvania with much greater force. At Honesdale, Pa., twenty-nine persons were reported dead, with many others missing. #### FORGETFULNESS

Forgetfulness is not always a habit, or an indication of carelessness. Usually, there are good reasons for it that we can not always control. There is a similarity between one's brain and a pail of water. When either is full to capacity there must be a run-over when more is put in. Likewise, our mentality may be overloaded without willingness on our part. Circumstances over which we have no control may overwhelm us, and some things can not be carried out that we are expected to perform.

Certainly the mind can be cultivated to hold and understand more, and perhaps we have not made use of our best efforts to do

In some such cases we may rightfully be charged with care-lessness, while in others we sim-ply lack ability to build on weak foundations, and should get from under responsibilities that rest upon us, and give room to others more fully qualified.

As we grow older we inevitably grow weaker both physically and mentally. One can help prevent forgetfulness through adopting mental "ticklers" fixed rules, and a sort of pigeon hole system of notation and schedules to follow; but the trend toward forgetfulness is unavcidable, and certain extent held to be inexcusably—by an exacting and unsympathetic public. #### IF WE WIN-AND WE WILL WIN

If the Axis wins we will no longer be permitted to choose our government officials by the process of the secret ballot. We will not be permitted to listen to radio programs except those endorsed by the rulers. We will be slaves to the government that will be ruled by one arrogant man or clique of men-men that will place themselves first and the people last. We will no longer be permitted to worship God as we please. These and many more untold hardships we will be forced to endure.

But, if we win and with God's help we will win this war against the domineering, self-centered, God-less tyrant Hitler and his "cat's paw" partners Mussolini and Hirohita, we will continue our American way of "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness."

We have been living a full life in the past. Probably too full, not showing the due amount of appreciation of the wonderful things that we were permitted to enjoy.

It is unfortunate that we must have a horrible war to teach us a lesson in thrift and saving, and of selfdenial. It is a shame that we must have this terrible bloodshel to awaken our love for God and our country.

In winning this war we may not have anything material to show for our efforts, our losses in lives of young men, of broken homes, of ruined businesses, but we will have gained a fuller knowledge of the realizations of the wonderful things and opportunities that can be ours "for the asking."

Many fine things will be the result- brother. ant crop, after "weeding out" the many undesirables from the harvest following the war which can be truthfully called the sowing or planting C. L. S. of the Devil.

"A passenger car is not a necessity for a family living within a few blocks of a bus line or the shopping district," says the Dairymen's League News of New York, "but it is vital to the farmer living many miles from a community.

"These facts should be considered by the government and special consideration should be given to farmers need for gasoline."

In many small farming operations, a passenger car provides the entire transportation, and is the only means the producer has of reaching his market. Even in larger operations, use of trucks is often wasteful and uneconomic and absorbs unnecessary quantities of gasoline and rubber. The passenger car, in short, provides a farm service that nothing else can sufficiently replace.

Army Air Force Goal 2,000,000

Will Be Biggest in World; Million to Be Trained By End of Year.

WASHINGTON.—A 2,000,000-man air force—the world's largest—has been announced as the army's eventual objective, with half that number to be mustered before the end of the year.

This tremendous program, aimed at giving the United States crushing air superiority over all its enemies, was disclosed by Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war, who, before Pearl Harbor, had set a goal of 400,000 men in the air force by next June 30.

It compares with a reported strength of 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 in the Nazi Luftwaffe and of about 1,000,000 in the British Royal Air Force. It is, too, more men than the army had in all branches at the outbreak of the war.

As a part of the expansion plan, a number of cadets at the military academy at West Point will be graduated as pilots and thus save a year for air training, now required after graduation. The announcement was authorized by General George C. Marshall, chief of staff. He said flying instruction at the academy would be added at once.

Navy Has Program.

Mr. Stimson did not break down the over-all 2,000,000 figure into categories of pilots, mechanics and others. It is known, however, that the original goal of a 400,000-man force called for training of 30,000 pilots a year. Presumably, this training program will eventually be quintupled.

In addition to the army's plans, the navy is preparing an immense air arm. Frank Knox, secretary of the navy, announced a program for training 30,000 naval air cadets each

The 2,000,000-man air force was closely tied in with plans for producing 185,000 warplanes this year and next. It would work out to a ratio of 10 or 11 men for each plane. With the need for navigators, bombardiers and ground crews, as well as pilots, such a proportion has long been considered about right.

A million men for the 60,000 planes that are scheduled for production this year would give a ratio much higher than that and permit thorough training for a considerable number of men while their fighting planes are under construction.

Whence They Will Come.

The men are to come, it was assumed, from volunteers and drafted men. An important source of men lies in the graduates of the civil aeronautics commission's training courses. They have turned out 75,000 civilian pilots, all pledged to make themselves available to the army and navy when and if needed.

Elementary, basic and advanced flying training will be given at Stewart Field to all West Point cadets who desire pilot training and can pass the required physical examination. Cadets receiving flying instruction will receive the same academic instruction as others, but the flying training will replace certain parts of existing tactical studies.

The initial group to begin flying training will be members of the class of 1942, graduating this year. They will complete elementary instruction before graduation on June 10, and on July 5 will commence basic training. By November 10 they may receive their wings.

Qualified members of the 1943 class, however, will complete the entire schedule of training during their final year at the academy and on graduation in June, 1943, will be commissioned as full-fledged air corps officers.

Boss Is Getting Tired,

So Gives Store to Clerk OCONOMOWOC, WIS. - W. B. Stevens, for 20 years owner of a drug store, made an outright gift of his business to a 34-year-old clerk who had worked under him since 1924. Francis C. Madole, the new owner, now is the employer of his former boss.

The 82-year-old Stevens remarked: "I'm getting too old to wait on trade. All that I wish to take care of are the prescriptions. I hope he (Madole) won't be too hard a boss.'

Says 25,000 Tons of Wild Rubber Hidden in Weeds

BERKELEY, CALIF.-More than 25,000 tons of wild rubber is hidden in the stems and roots of rabbit brush, a weed that grows thick on alkali flats and other wastelands of the West, declares Prof T. Harper Goodspeed, University of California botanist. He has called attention to this unutilized resource in messages to the federal government and the governor of California. Rabbit brush is a shrub that grows from knee-high to twice the height of a man. Its rubber occurs in solid bits and shreds embedded in the tissues, as it does in guayule. Hence the same methods of harvesting and processing could be used that have been successful in extracting guayule rubber. It is not claimed that rabbit brush rubber would be good enough to compete with the East Indian product. and it costs more to prepare; Professor Goodspeed estimates about 45 cents a pound.

WPB Gives Pointers For Raid Defense

Tape for Windows Should Be Homemade.

WASHINGTON.—The War Production board passed on to the public directions for using homemade tape, of a type which does not employ materials vital to military and civilian needs, to prevent shattering of window glass from bombing.

The plan came from the Pennsylvania college of pharmacy and science, which tackled the problem after the health supplies branch of the WPB urged that adhesive tape, containing rubber and zinc oxide, not be used on windows.

Here are the directions:

Cut old bed sheets into one-inch strips. If old bed sheets are not available use a cheap material such as unbleached muslin. Lay the pieces on a board and with a paint brush generously daub them with the paste made according to the formula below.

Criss-cross the pasted strips on windows, keeping the pieces about an inch apart in both directions. Then make two diagonals clear over the corners of the pane. All ends should reach and overlap the edge of the window frame.

The formula for the paste is as fol-

Wheat flour, six ounces; powdered alum, half ounce; corn syrup, four fluid ounces (a quarter pint); water, two pints.

Rub the flour and alum to a smooth paste with the water and syrup. Heat quickly to boiling with constant' stirring to avoid burning. Remove from the fire at the first indication of boiling.

A slower method involves the use of the double boiler.

If this paste is to be held in storage, refrigeration will keep it sweet for several days.

Excelite May Solve Builders Problem

New Substitute for Wood Has Variety of Uses.

CLEVELAND. - Excelite, a new construction material somewhat resembling a plastic, has made its appearance as a substitute for critical war materials.

The product, announced by Designers for Industry, Inc., is expected to solve the problems of many manufacturers unable to obtain materials because of priorities.

Materials used in the new product include a major proportion of wood excelsior, water, a small amount of silicate of soda, soybean protein and quicklime.

Advantages claimed for the plastic-like wood are that it is strong and resilient, heat insulating, is easily handled without danger of breakage, can be sawed, planed or nailed, and will not swell or bulge. The use of long cut strands of wood that have not been acted upon by chemicals is responsible for the strength of the product.

The process of manufacturing excelite is said to represent the only known art of combining a major proportion of natural lingo-cellulose fiber with a minor proportion of thermo-setting plastic.

The new material may be molded in any density from four to 50 pounds per cubic foot, depending upon the pressure used.

Due to the use of waste wood material and by-product materials such as soybean protein, the manufacturing cost is low.

Besides molded products, the new material can be used for insulating building boards, doors, sash moldings, gutters, air ducts, furniture, roofing, refrigerators, truck and bus bodies, caskets and coffins. A number of military applications also are expected to be worked out for the wood plastic.

Indian Wants Uncle Sam

Drawn to 'Look Mighty' PHOENIX, ARIZ .- To Reg Manning, Arizona Republic cartoonist, came this unsigned letter from a member of the Pima Indian tribe: "I have notice the picture of my Uncle Sam, such a skiny being. *** In pease time our Uncle Sam was frail because he is gentle and pease and loveing of freedom. *** Now the U. S. Army is strong.

"So, Reg Manning, please draw our Uncle Sam to look mighty. *** Indians will be proud. Our brothers white will be proud all so.

"I rejected seven times on account of having old. Yet I am only 37 years. My chance will come."

'If We Lose, We Lose All,' Wails Goebbels

BERLIN. - The German home front must remain hard and calm, Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels said in a speech.

Pointing out that "the little nuisances and sacrifices" which Germans at home must make are of no importance compared to the heroism of soldiers on the front, Goebbels said that the important question is, "How will the war be finished?"

If "we win we win everything," he "But if we lose everything is lost."

MEMORIAL DAY

On Round Top's knob we meet today Our tribute true to bring, The memories of the years agone Are verdant as the Spring.

Assembled here were Boys in Blue And streaks of mingling Gray; Forgotten were the days of strife— Now most have passed away.

Memorial Day, what memories cling Around the sacred name; 'Twas not because these men were great, In glory or in fame.

Twas merely that they lived with us A quiet serene life, And as they trod our roads and hills They taught us of the strife.

That cost them years of sacrifice That we might live today Enjoying full fruition of
A Flag that e'er shall stay.

Oh, Men of Old thy deeds are done, Thy glory shall not fade! Those lingering on shall keep well

The path which thou hast made!

A hundred million people now With hearts that beat as one Enthrone your memory in their mind, Because of what you've done.

And the loud cannons roar, No more disturb your peaceful sleep You've reached the other shore.

The shrieking shell, the blazing gun,

Our Country now for what you've done,

Stands as the Sacred Thing Which shall endure thru centuries, While "Bells of Ages Ring." W. J. H.

What You Buy With

Aside from the sixty-mile an hour Mosquito Torpedo Boats, the Sub Chasers are the speedsters of our Navy. Light and fast, they are the eyes of the Fleet on the water. They displace approximately 1,500 tons and cost about $2,400,000 each.

We need many of these powerful, fast little boats to cope with the treacherous submarine type of naval warfare fostered by our enemies. Everybody can help pay for more Sub Chasers by putting at least ten percent of his income into War Bonds. Buy Bonds or Stamps every pay day. The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many re-spects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.

Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. ### Japanese Try to Wreck Morale of U.S. With Dope

New 'Secret Weapon' Seen In Flooding Country With Narcotics.

WASHINGTON. - Law enforcement officers throughout the country are mustering all their forces to combat Japan's newly disclosed "secret weapon"—the flooding of America with morale-wrecking, poisonous narcotics. The existence of this typically Japanese plot against American morale has been known to higherups in the anti-narcotic service for some time, but a recent statement by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. establishes it for the first time as a deliberate instrument of the enemy's national policy.

For the past ten years, it can now be stated, the principal source of illegal narcotics reaching America has been Japan.

Three-fold Purpose.

This deadly traffic-which has been interrupted, but not halted, by war-is declared by Harry J. Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics, to have a three-fold purpose: To gain additional revenue for war purposes.

To corrupt Occidental nations, which are regarded by the Japanese as peculiarly susceptible to the higher concentrates of narcotics, such as morphine, heroin and cocaine. 3. To demoralize and enslave the peoples of lands already invaded or marked for eventual invasion. For more than a decade, the cargo of nearly every Japanese ship reaching these shores is believed to have contained hidden narcotics destined for the American people.

Even a ship bearing Prince Chichibu, brother of the Mikado, was not exempted as an agent of the sinister traffic. Customs officers searched it at Seattle, and found morphine worth hundreds of thousands of dollars (at U. S. illegal prices) concealed beneath an apparently innocent shipment of soy Similar smuggled cargoes of dope, virtually all of it originating in government-licensed Japanese factories, have been found by government men aboard vessels docking in New York, Boston, Baltimore, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other large ports on both coasts.

Cargoes Slip By.

But it is admitted that many other dope cargoes, equally large, have inevitably slipped by—to be sold at exaggerated prices to dope

Only the strong preventive campaign waged by this government in recent years, according to antinarcotic officials, has saved thousands of Americans from falling prey to this vicious "secret weapon" of the enemy.

But the story is different on the Pacific, where the Japs have been able to operate without interference. In occupied China, hundreds of thousands of Chinese, who had been ared of the opium habit by the stern measures of the Nationalist government, have been seduced backed into it by the Japanese. The same fate, without question, awaits the people of Thailand and the Philippines, provided the Japs can gain even temporary control of those countries. By pursuing those insidious policies everywhere, the Japanese high command believes, resistance can be weakened so as to smooth the path of invasion, and to make it possible for a relatively small Japanese force to hold a conquered nation in subjection.

A Dog's

By R. H. WILKINSON Associated Newspapers-WNU Service.)

GROUP of us were gathered in the lounge of the Winston club and as usual someone had an experience to relate. Marlin, whose ability as a teller is rated high, told us

It happened (Philip began) two summers ago, up in Maine. A bunch of us had gone up to spend a fort-night at Freddy Damon's camp, which is situated on a small lake near the base of Mount Mohawk. Young Vic Moylan was with us that year. Of course, he was much younger than the rest of us, but he had a craving for the outdoors, and his delight and joy at being allowed to accompany us was ample reward for any inconvenience he might Young Vic, we discovered shortly after reaching camp, possessed two traits of character that were ad-First he was good natured, a willing worker, and was eager to learn. And second, he couldn't bear to see anything hurt.

The first trait, or traits, if you will, became apparent shortly after our sojourn at the camp got under-The second came into evidence about three nights after our arrival. We were awakened about midnight by the most plaintive, restdisturbing noise I believe I've ever heard. It sounded for all the world like a child or woman shrieking in mortal agony. We knew it wasn't, however, and when Joe Tucker, our guide, sleepily advised us there were probably a couple of bobcats fighting over a kill somewhere up on the slopes of Mohawk, we dismissed the thing from our minds and returned to sleep.

That is, we all did but Vic Moylan. The kid lay awake listening to that wailing and wondering what it could be. He'd never heard a sound like it before, but some instinct the rest of us didn't possess told him that Joe Tucker, seasoned woodsman though he might be, was wrong.

At any rate, after an hour had passed, young Vic slipped quietly out of bed, dressed, found and lighted a lantern and set off toward Mount Mohawk alone and unafraid.

Two hours later we were awakened by a pounding on the front door. Joe and I went down to investigate, and found Vic standing on the veranda outside with his arms full of dog. Literally. The mutt that he had carried three miles down that mountain in the dark, after first liberating its forepaws from a steel trap, was the biggest and most vicious-looking mongrel canine on which I've ever laid eyes.

'He Carried the Brute Inside.' Vic's face was a mask of wretchedness and pity. Without a word he carried the brute inside, laid it on the divan and ordered Joe and me to heat water and procure bandages. We watched them, mutely, while the kid went about the business of setting the broken bone and adjusting splints. After it was over Joe Tucker emitted a great sigh of relief and whistled through his teeth. I looked at him curiously, and he beckoned Vic and me into the kitchen.

"Don't blame you for being tender-hearted, kid, but you'll have to get rid of the beast in the morning.

Both Vic and I looked surprised, and Joe said: "That's Ray Thornton's dog. His name is Rusty and he's got the meanest reputation in the county. He's ugly and vicious. A mongrel. He's bitten half a dozen kids, and there's at least fifteen farmers who would shoot him on

Vic was astonished. "Why, that can't be so," he protested. "If he were as mean and ugly as all that he'd never have let me take him out of the trap or set his leg. Why, he never moved a hair."

"Probably too exhausted," Joe avowed. "I tell yuh that critter is a man-killer."

Vic's face grew worried. You could plainly see that he was skeptical about Joe, yet at the same time he didn't want to overrule his advice. Presently an answer to the problem suggested keep him inside till his leg's cured, and he won't bother anyone. It would be murder to turn him loose.' Joe argued, then turned to me and pleaded. However, I couldn't forget

"I'll tell you what," he declared the look in Vic's eyes when I first saw him standing on the veranda, and frankly, I had a soft spot in my heart for dumb animals myself. At any rate, we all three consulted Freddy Damon, and when I refused to support Joe, Freddy declared that if Vic would promise to keep the dog locked up at all times, it was all right with him.

And so that very night Vic and Rusty moved into the guide's cabin.
The next day Freddy and I went down to the village and made inquiries. All that Joe had told us, we learned, about the ugliness of Rusty was true. We returned to camp that night determined, despite fondness for dumb animals, to get rid of Rusty, thereby eliminating the possibility of being killed in our sleep by a maniacal dog.

However, we might as well have determined to blot out the moon. Upon arriving at camp we discovered Vic had gone off fishing, and decided that during his absence would be an excellent time to remove Rusty.

Freddy and I strolled over to the guide's cabin and opened the door -and closed it again immediately. A snarl, resembling the war cry of a Bengal tiger, set the goose pimples to racing up and down our spines. We consulted and agreed to abandon our plan till Vic returned.

Vic got back at sundown and listened to our story. His attitude was disquieting. It would be inhuman, he informed us, to turn the dog loose in its present condition, and under the circumstances he'd have to re-

The Situation Became Delicate. Well, to make a long story not so long, the situation became deliand in a sense amusing. Rusty remained as our-or Vic'sguest for the remainder of our stay. And long before we departed he was hopping around on three legs, tagging at the heels of Vic. The friendship between the two was something to run the flag up about. It was a friendship greatly accentuated by the contrast of Rusty's attitude toward the remainder of the group, an attitude which was not only ugly but downright hostile.

Now there was something hard to understand. We had done nothing to arouse the brute's animosity, yet he hated us as he hated all other men, except, possibly his owner. And if ever an animal loved a man Mongrel Rusty loved young Vic Moylan. You could see it in the beast's eye, you could feel it in the way he acted when Vic was

Joe Tucker was skeptical. He didn't trust mongrels at all and he positively accused Rusty of playing an underhanded game. "Wait," he said, "wait till the brute's leg is healed, and see. He'll kill the kid, sure as shootin'. He's got the killer streak in him."

Joe's prediction worried us. We were inclined to agree with him and we were afraid for Vic. For Mongrel Rusty wasn't pleasant to look upon. But Vic only laughed. He said we didn't understand dogs, and that our methods were wrong.

I tell you we all breathed a sigh of relief when the day for departure came and Vic took the car and drove Rusty down to the farmer who owned him and left him there. He came back with a long and

No one said a word. We all piled into the car and drove away toward home. At the village we dropped Joe and said good-by. "You're lucky," he said, in parting, to Vic. "If you'd kept the brute till he got fully well he'd have slashed your throat. Those mongrels are tricky."

We tried to put the incident from our minds, glad enough to be away and have Vic with us, alive and And so we returned home and settled back into the routine of our everyday lives. Things went along serenely for a week, and then Freddy Damon received a letter from Ray Thornton which he read to us. The letter said the dog Rusty had died, and as far as he could make it had died from nothing more than a broken heart. Ray, its owner, was puzzled. For Ray, like everyone else, thought the dog was a man killer.

Philip paused, and sighed. "Only young Vic Moylan," he finished, 'understood. And the kid never tried to explain to us."

Mountain Peak Named For Confederate Soldier

A hitherto nameless peak in the Great Smoky Mountains National park, N. C.-Tenn., has been designated Mount Lanier by the United States board on geographical names. This action was based on the request of the United Daughters of the Confederacy that Sidney Lanier, whose centennial occurs this year, thus be honored.

Mount Lanier, elevation 3,145 feet, is a peak on Hannah mountain. A few miles distant is Montvale Springs, where Lanier spent many boyhood summers. "Tiger Lilies," his first novel, depicts the Great Smokies and their people.

Sidney Lanier, poet, musician, Confederate soldier, was born Feb. ruary 3, 1842, at Macon, Ga. He died September 7, 1881, at Lynn, Pike County, N. C. During his life's brief span, the social order in which he was born and reared was overturned and his personal fortunes ruined. Yet his record for nationalism and his influence in the New South were so well recognized that in 1876 he was chosen to write the words that inaugurated Philadelphia's Centennial exhibition, marking the 100th anniversary of American independ-

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT-Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15: GOLDEN TEXT-Not my will, but thine, Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the night between Thursday and Friday as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday.

The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14:32-34). This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. But now His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's

As Krummacher says: "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he filled the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5).

We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

Pilate was convinced of His innocence, but because of the pressure by Jewish leaders he was in a difficult position. He was afraid to follow his convictions, feeling that it was more expedient to yield to the will of the populace. So he lost his great opportunity to write his name large among the heroes of Many there are who follow in Pilate's steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fearing the comments of friends or the possible loss of earthly advantage, they let Him be crucified afresh by their unbelief.

The Jewish leaders and those whom they had misled hated Jesus with a malicious hatred which made them relentless in their determination to destroy Him. Now they had their quarry at bay and they were determined to close in for "the kill."

They have their present day counterpart in those who have so long rejected Christ that they have become embittered against Him. | uct or not."

India's Game of 'Poona'

Grew Into Our Badminton Asia gave the world a game which in late years has grown rather popular in the western world. The game is badminton, and it grew out of an older game called "battledoor and shuttlecock," or simply "shuttlecock.'

A battledoor is a racket with a long handle. Usually it is strung with catgut, like a tennis racket. A shuttlecock is a cork with feathers stuck in it, or around the rim. All the feathers are pointed in the same direction; they follow the cork when the shuttlecock flies through Shuttlecock can be played in several ways. Sometimes a player sees how many times he can knock the shuttlecock into the air, without letting it fall to the ground.

In another form, two players bat the shuttlecock back and forth. The batting may be done with or without a net between the players.

This game appears to have been played in India as much as 1,500 years ago. In India it had the name of "poona."

A form of shuttlecock was played in France about two centuries ago. A picture made in 1760 shows a lady and a gentleman of France batting a shuttlecock back and forth. They are using rackets with much shorter handles than those employed in the modern game.

About 70 years ago, British of-ficers returned to England from India. With them they brought rackets and shuttlecocks which they had used in India while playing

People in England began to take up the game, and no one seemed to like it better than the duke of Beaufort. This duke lived in a home which was named "Badminton."

Roasting Meats Better When Left Uncovered

Low temperature, evenly controlled oven heat for roasting means tenderness, flavor, minimum shrinkage and all the available nutrients of meat. Tender cuts of meat for roasting are placed on a rack in a shallow uncovered pan. (By shallow, we mean not over two inches high on the sides.)

In this way the roast basks in the gentle circulating fresh warm air currents of the oven. The fat side of the meat is placed uppermost so that as the fat cooks the basting job is done without the touch of human hand. A lean piece of meat may be larded by the butcher, brushed with oil, spread with softened fat or topped with strips of bacon. For true roasting, meats should never be covered.

Roasting is a dry heat method of cooking and neither pan nor oven should retain steam. The browning results of uncovered low temperature roasting are extremely attractive. This browning takes place in the latter part of the roasting period without any increase of oven

Color for Women

Knowing that color in the home affects the emotions and is an aid in every woman selects colors carefully these days when planning the repainting of her home. Realizing that she herself is the mainspring of that home, it is not strange that the thoughtful woman selects tints and tones which are flattering to her own appearance. It has been stated that every colortype can use every color for decoration, but that the color intensity of the decorations must be accurate to assure harmony and flattery. The "All-American" type—having light brown to dark brown hair with blue, green or brown eyes—is flattered by the vivid shades or tints of every She should avoid neutral Research proves blondes should decorate with dark or medium colors, avoiding the vivid, unrestrained tones.

Army 'Hutments'

Conversion of permanent tent construction to "hutments," to provide more adequate protection for troops, has been undertaken in 24 U.S. army camps.

The tent camps to be transformed -at an estimated cost of about $25,000,000 — accommodate several hundred thousand troops. Six are located in the West coast area; 11 in the Southeast area and seven in the Southwest area of the United

The term "hutment" is used to designate a solid sheathed roof with a two-by-four bracing placed over the standard tent frame. Two sections of the screen wire are replaced by plastic screen which is weatherproof, but which admits sunlight. Over the other sections of screen wire, hinged plywood shutters are

Valuable Food Wasted

Thousands of tons of proteins, minerals, and other valuable food substances are wasted each year simply because the by-products of milk are not finding their way to the nation's dinner tables, according to Dr. G. A. Richardson of the dairy industry division of the University of California college of agriculture.

Dr. Richardson says, "Once the consuming public has become fully conscious of the value of the proteins, sugar, mineral salts, and vitamins in milk, there will be no occasion to quibble over whether a product derived from milk is a by-prod-

Wide Shift in Foreign Trade

Will Have Effect in Post-War World.

WASHINGTON .- Shifts in United States foreign trade of such major significance "that they must have a decided effect upon the pattern of world trade in the post-war world' are remarked upon by Secretary Jones in his annual report.

Mr. Jones said that the development which perhaps was of chief significance was "the sweeping extensions of government controls not only in this country but in nearly all the other countries with which wa now have trade relations.'

"Generally speaking, the goods exported to an increasing extent leave by permission of this govern-ment, and they are bought largely by, or with the permission of, the governments of the importint countries," he said. "Our imports are increasingly purchased by and imported by our own government. To an increasing degree, both exports and imports moved only as shipping space was allotted to them. Geographically, the currents of our trade were markedly altered by the loss of continental Europe as a market and a source of supply, and by its replacement by an enlarged trade with the British empire countries and Latin America."

Largest Exports Since 1929.

Exports of United States merchandise during the fiscal year 1941 totaled $4,043,000,000, the largest since 1929, while imports of $2,925,000,000 were exceeded since 1929 only by those of 1937. The export balance for the period thus, was $1,118,-

During the second year of the First World war (fiscal 1916) the export balance was nearly one billion dollars greater, due largely to the fact that while exports were a little larger then, imports were much less

But the difference between the two periods is much accentuated when the movements of gold and silver are included—because the net movement of merchandising plus precious metals in the fiscal year of 1916 yielded an export balance of $1,750,000,000 while in 1941 there was an important balance of $1.650,000,-000, resulting from the continuation. even though in smaller volume than in the two preceding years, of the gold inflow. Gains in Industry Income.

Not only in trade but as an income producer, observes Mr. Jones, the government is now playing an increasing role. Although manufacturing, as usual, contributed most to the national income-more than one-fourth of the 1941 total and an even larger share than in the boom year 1929-government, with roughly half its amount, was in second place, exceeding trade by a narrow margin. Prior to 1931 trade had ranked next to manufacturing as an income source.

In 1929, for instance, trade, in second place, produced 13 per cent of the national income while government, in seventh place, produced 8 per cent of the total. In 1941, the government and trade contributions were about equal. All major industry groups produced more income in 1941 than in 1940, with contract construction registering the sharpest

Genius Foresaw War With Japan

After 30 Years Experts Now Honor Man Navy Once Turned Down.

WASHINGTON.—Virtually ignored for nearly 40 years, Homer Lea, crippled, five-foot military genius, who, barred from United States service, is now coming into his own.

Lea is not alive to enjoy his belated honor, for he died in 1912, three years after he had penned startling predictions of war with Japan, which he saw as inevitable, and had forecast, with amazing precision, the course the war has actu-

It was in 1909 that the Colorado-born Lea's magnum opus, "The Val-or of Ignorance," was published; yet an astonishing number of his predictions have come true—among them the statement that the Japanese would capture Manila within three weeks after the declaration of war. It actually took them three weeks and five days.

Lea also predicted the treacherous surprise attack by the Mikado's min-

Foretold Nazi Rise.

He foresaw the rise of Germany as a great, aggressive military power and feared that this country, fat with prosperity and commercial power, would fall easy prey to combined attack from the Atlantic and Lea himself was a strange character. Born in Colorado, he was reared in Los Angeles and attended Stanford university. Curvature of the spine gave him a hunched back, reduced his stature to a mere five feet. Early drawn to military matters, Lea found it impossible to enter West Point because of his affliction.

He early developed a fondness for the Chinese and sympathized with them in the persecution they then suffered on the Pacific coast. Going to China, he became associated with Dr. Sun Yat-sen, father of the Chinese republic. He served in the revolutionary army, gaining the title of lieutenant general and practical application of his theories of war.

Aided Chinese Patriots.

On his return to the United States he set up as a military consultant, was often visited by Chinese patriots at his Los Angeles home.

The little general devoted many pages of "The Valor of Ignorance," published by Harper & Brothers, to demonstrating that there always had been wars, always would be. He also showed that nations rise to power, grow fat and contented, lose the militancy that took them to the top and finally bow to other nations whose militancy is on the rise. Like virtually every other writer who has studied the military history of the United States, he bemoaned our lack of militancy and of a large and well-trained defense force.

Not only did he call the turn on the speedy capture of the Philippine islands, but Lea also provided a map of Luzon, which revealed the very routes the little brown men would take in landing and advancing on Manila

Other maps showed the routes by which he thought the Japanese would try to invade the United States-first landing in the Northwest, then occupying southern California, and finally striking at San Francisco.

His predictions along this line were made, however, without knowledge of the fact that the outbreak of the war, 33 years later, would find this country already well embarked upon a huge defense program.

Refuses to Put in Claim For Goods Lost on Guam

WASHINGTON. - The Charles Fancy Slicing Tomatoes Green Sales company of New York has declined to accept reimbursement for merchandise in the marine post exchange at Guam which was lost when the island was captured by the Japanese, the navy said.

"We are not in the least bit interested in placing a claim for the amount due us from the post ex-change at Guam island," Charles Green wrote the marine corps.

"Under the circumstances, may we suggest that the amount due us be used to buy a good-sized shell to blow the aggressor nation back to hell.'
