I'm writing this evening to thank you sincerely for the Record and want you to know it brings me closer home than you can realize. I enjoy the local column and the letters from the fellows in the service.

SUGGESTIONS IN REGARD TO AIR RAIDS

Emphasizing that if Baltimore were bombed our "most vulnerable public service would be the intricate network of water pipes beneath the city streets," Judge Robert France, executive director of the Maryland Council of Defense, urged householders to observe nine water-supply precautions.

The precautions were drawn by the Office of Civilian Defense in Washington for the protection of the public in the event water systems were damaged during an air-raid.

The rules citizens are urged to follow are:

- 1. Keep available at least one quart bottle filled with drinking water for each person in the house.
2. Always turn water faucets off everywhere in the house when water service has failed. Service may be restored when you have forgotten about the open faucet, wasting water and possibly lowering water pressure.
3. Do not fill bathtubs with water following air raid alarms during air raids. Such action if taken simultaneously in many homes would seriously reduce water pressure in the mains and limit the volume of water.
4. Leave valves alone; trained men will shut the valves when necessary.
5. Remember that the Water Departments knows that the service is off in your area. Your telephone report is not necessary.
6. Protect your health by boiling the drinking and cooking water if the Health Department so advises. Disruption of water mains by bombing may draw sewerage from sewers or house plumbing into the water mains. It is advisable to boil all drinking water and cooking water for five minutes during the first twenty-four hours after water service is restored.
7. Accept chlorine tastes in your drinking water without complaining. It is a sign of safety.
8. Do not drink water obtained from other sources than your tap or drinking water carts operated by the authorities.
9. Do not believe or repeat rumors concerning water. The health authorities know the water supply facts and will advise you.
All citizens should follow these directions because "what you do may effect the health, comfort and property of each citizen," Judge France said. (The rules can be applied to Taneytown.—Ed.)

THE MANY NEW RATIONING RULES That Citizens Should Read and Carefully Observe.

Institutional users of coffee are hereby notified that they must register at the local Rationing Board in Westminster either on Monday, Nov. 23; Tuesday, Nov. 24, or Wednesday, Nov. 25 for their coffee.

An institution as defined by the Office of Price Administration includes the following establishments: Restaurants, hotels, drug stores, school lunch rooms, soda fountains, hospitals, prison, sanatoria, asylums, etc.

Each institutional user will be required to give his inventory of coffee on the registration dates. Each institution will count as part of his inventory the following, coffee which has been ordered by him and shipped, expected, coffee which has been used by him as security in a credit transaction, coffee which is in the possession of his vendor if the coffee has been paid for and earmarked for delivery to him.

Office hours at the Rationing Board on these three dates will be from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Dealers' Tire Application. All tire dealers in Carroll County who want to sell the new Grade III Victory tire are notified that they must fill out an application in order to secure a stock of these tires.

Any dealer interested may obtain these applications either by writing or by coming in person to the Rationing Board, in Westminster, Md.

Gasoline Coupons. Every person who now holds or will receive an 'A', 'B', 'C', 'D', or 'T' coupon book will be required to write in ink the license number and state of registration of the vehicle on the back of each coupon before they will be allowed to purchase gasoline. All gasoline dealers will be on the lookout for this number, and unless every motorist complies with this rule, no gasoline will be delivered. It is suggested that motorists sit down now and fill this information on the back of each coupon in their possession.

Every person who now hold or will be issued 'E' and 'R' books or bulk coupons will be required to write in ink his name and address on the back of each coupon before buying gasoline. A dealer may not accept a gasoline ration coupon in connection with the transfer of gasoline unless the coupons have been marked in accordance with these instructions. Every dealer and intermediate distributor, on and after November 22, will be required to clearly write in ink on the reverse of each inventory coupon the name and address of his establishment.

Every dealer or distributor who has in his possession, or control "S" coupons will be required, beginning the first of December and not later than the 7th, to surrender all such coupons to the local Board in exchange for inventory coupons. It is suggested that dealers turn these coupons over to their distributor soon after December 1 and that no "S" coupons shall be accepted after that date. This applies only to gasoline rationing.

Fuel Oil Consumers. All people who have submitted a fuel oil application blank to the Rationing Board No. 8 will receive on or before the 23 of November their fuel oil ration book. Upon receipt of this book they should immediately sign their name on the place so designated. When submitting coupons to their dealers the owner of the ration book should insert the serial number of the book on each coupon.

When a fuel oil or kerosene delivery is made the consumer should make sure that the dealer fills in on the ration book the record of the delivery. After November 22 no fuel oil may be bought without coupons. New Truck Registration. All truck operators of Carroll Co. are hereby notified that they must register their trucks with the local Rationing Board in Westminster, Md. The Rationing Board will be open for truck registration on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 23, 24 and 25, at which time assistance will be given in filling out the new application.

We are making these plans so that truck operators will have an opportunity of securing the necessary information in filling out these forms. Positively and under no circumstances will any gas be issued after the 1st. of December without the completion of these forms. When you come to register be sure to bring your Certificate of War Necessity. Ample provision will be made for those who have not received this certificate. This registration is extremely important and we should appreciate your informing your neighbors to do this effect.

CHILDREN'S AID CAMPAIGN. Taneytown District has just completed a very successful campaign for funds, due in a large measure to the interest and efficiency of the canvassers.

We greatly appreciate the work done by Mrs. James Lord, Mrs. Lloyd Strickhouser, Mrs. William Hopkins, Mrs. Fern Hitchcock, Mrs. Edward Reid, Miss Belva Koons, Miss Maude Myers, Miss Ruth Stambaugh and Miss Jean Mohney. BERTHA R. BOWERS, Chm. for Taneytown Dist.

LUTH'N CONFERENCE Held Sessions Wednesday at Myersville

The Western Conference of the Maryland Lutheran Synod held its annual meeting in Myersville, Frederick Co., with morning and afternoon sessions.

The meeting began with the communion service conducted by the president, Rev. H. H. Schmidt, of Woodsboro, the secretary, Rev. L. L. Hare, of Clearspring, the treasurer, Rev. Roy L. Sloop, of Hagerstown, and the local pastor, Rev. Ralph H. Miller, Treasurer Sloop preached the sermon.

All the discussions except one were led by visiting ministers. The group was twice divided for these discussions. In the morning Rev. Warren D. Bowman, D. D., of the Brethren Church, of Washington, discussed "Anointing for Healing" before the ministers while Rev. C. F. Sanders, D. D., of Gettysburg, discussed "The Healing of the Nations" before the laymen and lady visitors.

In the afternoon there was another separation for discussion, when Rev. Raymond C. Sorrick, president of the synod discussed "The Church in Action" before the ministers, and Rev. Amos J. Traver, D. D., of Frederick, gave "Louisville Echoes" before the laymen and the ladies.

Rev. Dr. Earl S. Rudisill gave an address on "Adult Education," and Rev. Dr. Harry F. Baughman gave the closing address. The president of Synod installed the new officers. Between the sessions a bounteous dinner was served by the ladies of the church.

The conference was largely attended, both by the ministers and lay delegates, together with quite a group of the active women of the church, Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe, Albert J. Ohler and Rev. L. B. Hafer attended from Taneytown.

Bethany Church Brunswick, Rev. Karl L. Mumford, pastor was selected as the place of next year's meeting.

TANEYTOWN KIWANIS CLUB

The Taneytown Kiwanis Club held its regular weekly meeting at Sable's Inn at six o'clock on Wednesday evening, President Robert W. Smith presiding. There were present twenty-two members; also one visitor, Herbert Anders, of the Westminster Club.

The period of group singing was in charge of Wallace Reindollar, with Mrs. Wallace Yingling, as accompanist.

The program was in charge of Charles Ritter, Chairman of the agriculture committee. Mr. Luther Ritter, of Littlestown, showed four reels of interesting moving pictures, illustrating his tour of the far West, with a side trip into Mexico. The program was greatly enjoyed by all the members and visitors.

The program next week will be in charge of the committee on support of Churches, George L. Harner, chairman.

TIRE REGISTRATION

Dr. Fred G. Holloway, Chairman of the local War Price and Rationing Board, announces to motorists of Carroll County that they must register serial numbers of the five tires on their cars. This means that anyone holding an "A" book on a vehicle, and "A" and "B" book, or an "A" and "C" book must comply with this rule.

Applications may be secured from filling stations or garages. These applications are supposed to be filled out by the applicant and the complete form mailed or brought to the Rationing Board. A certain portion of this form will be returned to the applicant and will be his inspection record.

On or after the first of December, each motorist will be required to go to one of the inspection stations set up by the county and have their cars inspected. This law does not conflict with the local state law of periodical examination. Inspection stations will be announced at a later date. It is imperative that motorists comply with this law immediately.

ANNUAL UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES

The annual Union Thanksgiving Services will be held in the Lutheran Church, Thursday, November 26th, at 7:30 P. M. The preacher, the Rev. Charles Owen, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of town. The offering will be divided between the Children's Aid and Kits for the Boys in the service.

APPRECIATION OF BOOK SENT TO SOLDIER

NOTICE TO OUR PATRONS. Next week, we will observe Thanksgiving Day. Please have all copy in our office one day earlier. THE RECORD OFFICE.

CHRISTMAS MAIL AND PRINTING Should Be Attended to Early This Year.

The Postoffice Department has issued a circular intended to show why early mailing of Christmas letters, cards and packages is necessary. The same facts apply to Christmas printing, with the additional reasons that it takes time to get the printing done before the mailing begins.

Smith W. Purdum, Second Assistant Postmaster General says: "It is physically impossible for the railroads and air lines, burdened with vitally important war materials, to handle Christmas mails as rapidly as in normal times," Mr. Purdum said.

"If the bulk of parcels and greeting cards are held back until the usual time—the period of about December 15 to 23—they simply cannot be distributed in time, and thousands of gifts will reach their destinations after Christmas."

In 1941, about 21,950 mail cars were required between December 12 and 24 to deliver mails—enough cars to make a train 270 miles long. This year, the extra cars needed to move holiday mails are largely being used by the armed services, and a severe shortage is in prospect.

The postal service usually borrows about 2,500 trucks from the Army and other Government agencies, and rents about 10,000 from private owners, to handle the Christmas mails. This year, it will be extremely difficult to obtain enough of these vehicles to meet even a substantial part of the need. The Army needs its own trucks and private owners are reluctant to let someone else use their tires.

Railroads are cooperating by converting some hundreds of steel box cars and similar equipment for mail transportation, and Joseph B. Eastman, Director of Defense Transportation, has ordered that unnecessary travel be curtailed to the limit during the holiday season. But these measures cannot assure deliveries of gifts on time unless the public cooperates by mailing early and thus spreading the transportation load over a longer period than usual.

Random Thoughts

(This is a reprint of an article formerly published. Owing to the popularity of these Random Thoughts we will for a time reproduce others of the same type.)

OUR NATIONAL DUTY

Notwithstanding our numerous troubles in this country, it is still a good place in which to live, as compared with Europe of today. No people are ever fully contented, whether judged by large or small divisions. If there is too much monotony in life, and how we are "getting along" we can usually find something to squabble over.

But, as a Nation, we are at least enjoying peace, so far as firearms and killing are concerned, and life and property is safe from war destruction. Thankfulness, if not reigning supreme, is at least present to a greater degree than we give it credit for.

We have political and industrial unrest to perhaps a greater extent than ever before in our history; but it is largely self-made, and can be remade when we choose to do so. And some day, in all probability this choice will be in operation. Truthfully, we think, much of the trouble we have is prevented by our immense foreign population, who have brought along with them too many un-American ideas and practices. What we need more than ever, is an united assertion of our own "isms"—a house-clearing, and notice to other "isms" to get out, and stay out. It is a National duty and opportunity.

CLEANING UP

The scrap drive is serving a double purpose. It is helping the war effort and at the same time cleaning up piles of rubbish about home premises, which have marred the looks of the places without being of much actual use.

The old pile of junk from which you expected to find something which "would come handy some day," often was untouched for months or perhaps for years. Now the place looks better, and would make a better impression if you wanted to sell.

What you received for the junk if you sold it, or what some one else received if you gave it away, does not matter so much. The point is, you have cleaned up your property and you have helped the war effort. Let the good work go on, and finish the job now.

Here are some interesting facts on scrap:

"Scrap metal is in the national spotlight. This country, which never fully realized its importance to peace-time life and progress, must now learn to think of it as a basic, indispensable raw material in war.

A few facts, compiled by the WPB Conservation Division, regarding scrap metal consumption since 1900 present a striking example of the pressing need for scrap to meet production requirements of our World War II fighting machine.

Prior to 1942 the peak scrap melt was 33,006,000 tons in 1937 as against an estimated melt of 57,000,000 gross tons for the year 1942. The domestic scrap melt in 1900 totaled 5,100,000 gross tons and this was considered a large scale consumption in that era.

In the banner year of the first World War, which was 1917, consumption was only 26,800,000 tons, or less than the consumption in the first half of 1942. Estimates for next year are conservatively placed at 600,000,000 tons.

The mining of iron ore to meet the terrific junk consumption has been stepped up accordingly to meet these new demands, but it is also imperative to speed up the collection of scrap to keep our war industries going full steam ahead.

Our steel mills, now called on for maximum production, must depend increasingly on scrap. They are using it such a rate that their stock piles are dangerously low. So here's a job for everybody—get in the scrap. Do your part to see that your home, your community, your industry, and your store starts every available ounce of scrap off to war at once. L. B. H.

COMMANDER HARRY E. HUBBARD

Our boys are dying bravely by the thousands, but to most of us it don't mean a thing until it hits close to home. Recently in the battle off Solomon's Islands his vessel—the destroyer Meredith was shot from under him, and it may be accepted as axiomatic—he was the last man to abandon ship.

A great guy, Harry E. Hubbard, and his wife, Erma, a fitting companion. Each loved the water and they spent much time in and upon it, during his few leisure hours. It was but child's play to either to swim the half mile stretch across the Severn river at its widest point above Annapolis.

Whether saved after the loss of his ship, or lost with it, depend upon it Harry Hubbard acted according to the best traditions of the Naval Academy. Erma, his wife, is my cousin, so I feel very anxious to know how fares the Commander. W. J. H.

CONTROL TEMPER

Very few of us weak mortals have a sure control and complete strangle hold on our tempers and sometimes go off half cocked, get angry and say and do things we would not do if we had not boiled over.

We should and can, if we really want to correct this unfortunate and often costly habit. A habit that often results in the loss of friends, the respect of others, and own self respect, sometimes a loss in our business affairs.

During the campaign heard two men, friends, allow their tempers to get away from them, in a political discussion, one of the most foolish subjects to quarrel about, as both parties have black sheep, often men unfit for the jobs they were nominated for and it is the kettle calling the pot black when a member of either party claims his party has a monopoly on having intelligence, ability and character.

These men began in a friendly way, joking about some of the candidates but one citizen said some unkind things about a candidate on the other ticket, said he was lacking in both ability and character for the office.

This the other man resented, both tempers went out of bounds, nothing was accomplished, a friendship cracked and the ugly things said could only cause regret, when the anger cooled down.

Why should friends, neighbors or any one quarrel over politics? What difference except to candidates or officials, does the party or the political affiliation of the persons nominated and elected to office if they are capable, intelligent and of good moral character and we know the candidates for county affairs and can form our own opinion for or against as our better judgments dictate.

Anger is as a rule a boomerang that hurts and brings back regrets that are unfortunate and means loss to the one who hurls it.

If you must get angry, get over it quickly. If you hold your temper it will help to hold your self respect and the respect of others, your peace of mind and perhaps your job and you will sleep better.—The Times.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE HAVE ISSUED A MANDATE

Many reasons are being given by politicians for the widespread Republican gains in last week's election, but we believe that Senator Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, hit the nail on the head when he said that the failure of Roosevelt's Administration to conduct the National Government with more efficiency and economy in the face of heavy taxes and large expenditures was one of the principal reasons for the upset. There is no doubt about it; the American people are tired of the New Deal bungling in Washington and the wasting of the taxpayers' money on projects which are not essential to the winning of the war.

The American people have made up their minds to win this war, regardless of their feelings prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japs, and at the same time to retain their democratic form of government, which means they want a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people," instead of by executive order.

Along with the excuses being offered by the New Dealers for the turning of the tide, we believe that the one great reason for the Democrats retaining a bare majority in the House of Representatives is the fact that the American people are disgusted with Congress being a "mere rubber stamp" and turning its powers over to the President, which they felt was fast leading to a dictatorship. We can see no comfort to our enemies in last week's election, but on the other hand we are certain that the new Congress will insist on a more vigorous prosecution of the war, which will mean victory far sooner than many of us ever anticipated.

However, now that the election is over, and the American people have spoken at the polls, let us hope that politics can at last be side-tracked until victory is won. By side-tracking politics, we are speaking of the kind of politics whereby a man in office puts his party ambition ahead of the interests of his country.

There is, however, a broader kind of politics which we don't want to see put aside, as has often been the case during the New Deal Administration. That is the kind which influences a man in office to keep in close touch with the people he represents and to speak for them. Most men in office do only a half-way job of this. They merely keep in touch with the members of the party who elected them and do not attempt to represent the people who voted for their opponents. By asking our representatives to forget politics, we actually mean that they should be better politicians—that they should think of all of the people in their state and their nation, and not just those people who put them in office.

From now on, particularly in Congress, it is necessary for the Democrats to realize that they also represent Republicans and for the Republicans to realize they also represent Democrats. Our recent elections were held to determine which man would represent all of the people of the state—not which party would be represented in Washington.—Catoctin Enterprise.

"I SHALL NOT WANT"

"I often repeated the Psalm, 'The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want,'" wrote Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, lost in New Guinea jungle for six weeks. "I would be unable to go one step farther, and then I would remember, 'I shall not want,' and sure enough, there'd be some berries or chewable grass or a creek with good water just ahead."

Many a British or American lad is having occasion to remember his early training these days and to rely on the truths he was taught at his mother's knee or by some consecrated Sunday School teacher. This courageous correspondent says he knows God saved him.

"Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies," runs the best known of all the Psalms. Though it was only berries and grass, yet "the table" was sufficient to preserve Vern Haugland. And did he remember, when he took off his socks and gave them to a shoeless companion, "I shall not want?"—The Christian Science Monitor.

Janey

Janey closed the bedroom door and locked it. Alone at last! She threw back her head and heaved a deep sigh. Then she peeked out of the corner of her eye at the mirror to see whether she really did look like Hedy LaMarr. Quite a lot, she decided.

And now to business. She drew forth from the bottom of her top bureau drawer the sheet of pink writing-paper and the envelope that she had been saving for this day. She sat down at the table by the window and dipped the pen into the bottle of green ink that her sister Rose was such a pig about. She wrote, with beautiful arabesques, "Dear Mr. Morgenthau," and held her head back to admire this effort of the best pupil in penmanship class.

"Here are my stamps for a bond. $18.75. I started last Christmas when I got $3.00. Not counting 50 cents, I have earned all the rest, working one or more days a week at a local grocery store, and I'm quite proud to say I worked hard to get it." Janey stared out of the window at Peterson's house and beyond at the big yard where the kids were playing football. She held her pen elegantly in air.

"Sitting here looking out the window, I see a peaceful little town, and I wonder how the world can be in such a turmoil and the people of this world can have such hate for their fellow men. So I'm proud to send these stamps because I know I'm helping to make the whole world peaceful again like our little town." She signed her name with an important flourish, not forgetting a conspicuous "Miss" in front of the "Janey." After she had sealed the letter she went on staring out of the window. It really was awfully peaceful. Overhead she heard a plane go humming by through the sunny afternoon air.

Then the voice of her best friend, Betty, called from outside—"Janey!" In an instant Janey was on her feet and tearing downstairs and out. She was not Hedy LaMarr nor a deep philosopher any more, but exactly twelve years old.

(Letter from an actual communication in the files of the Treasury Department.)

Grown-ups and children alike should all help the "breadwinner" of the family to budget for War Bonds. Let's all join a payroll savings plan and "top that 10% by New Year's."

Smilin' Jack says—

"You know, it's swell of the folks at home to buy War Bonds the way they're doing. I understand everybody is going to be signed up for 10% of their pay by New Year's!"

Harold Teen says—

"On the level folks, we've all got to buy more War Bonds! Let's top that 10% by New Year's."

Fishing Craft Equipped With Ship-Land Phones

C. F. Fauci operates two Diesel trawlers in the New England offshore fishery. In June, 1932, writes D. W. Tucker in Scientific American, he had one of them equipped for radio telephone service and shortly afterward made the following statement:

"We use the telephone not only for routine reports to and from the trawler at sea, but also for weather conditions, market information, time of arrivals, delays or other changes in plans."

While the equipment aboard ship must obviously be more extensive than that with which the telephone user on land is familiar, operating the equipment is little different. To a great extent, the system works automatically and requires only casual attention.

A loud speaker in the pilot house takes the part of the telephone bell in the land telephone system. The receiver, left on a fixed setting, is turned to the transmitter on shore. Consequently when a boat is called its name or number issues from the loud speaker with sufficient volume to be heard in the pilot house.

When the pilot hears the name of his own boat he merely removes the hand telephone set from its hook and is ready to start talking. The only difference between talking over the marine radio telephone and an ordinary telephone on land is that the person on shipboard presses a button when he desires to talk and releases it when the other party to the conversation is talking.

Farmers to Rent and Swap Farm Machinery

By swapping the use of farm machinery or by renting it out to neighbors, Massachusetts farmers should be able to make their present supply of farm equipment last for the duration, says Roy E. Moser, extension economist at Massachusetts State college.

Moser warns farmers to treat their machines as though they were the last ones to be made. That means keeping the machines protected from weather and misuse and making repairs at the proper time, seeing that the machinery has plenty of grease and oil, and is not subject to unreasonable loads and strains.

But making farm machinery last longer is only half the job, says Moser. Machinery should be kept busy as much as possible because some machines wear out about as fast being idle as they do in use. By using them more hours a day and more days a year farmers can save labor, earn more money, and produce more of the food needed in our victory program.

Machines that ordinarily have been used only a few days a year can be kept on the job by using them on a larger acreage on the same farm or by swapping or renting them out to neighboring farmers.

Various Capital Locations

The first capital of the United States under the Constitution was New York city. Congress moved from there to Philadelphia on December 6, 1790, remaining there until May 4, 1800. Washington became the capital in November of that year.

Various cities were used as the meeting place of the Continental Congress and the seat of the government during the period of the Revolutionary war and until the founding of the national capital. They were: Philadelphia, September 5, 1774; Baltimore, Md., December 20, 1776; Philadelphia, March 4, 1777; Lancaster, September 27, 1777; York, Pa., September 30, 1777; Philadelphia, July 2, 1778; Princeton, N. J., June 30, 1783; Annapolis, Md., November 26, 1783; Trenton, N. J., November 4, 1784; New York, January 11, 1785.

Time to Think of Milk

Dairymen are asked to continue to produce to the utmost as part of the war effort to help keep Americans healthy. This works a hardship on them during periods of surplus production. The peak of production is reached in June, and it seems only logical then that consumers take some responsibility to help relieve the pressure. Those who drink more milk and eat more dairy products help themselves to better health at the same time. Milk is called the almost perfect food, and the experts say that milk and dairy products are among the most economical purchases that the family can make. For good health they recommend one quart daily for children and at least one pint daily for adults.

Army Blackout Orders

All manufacturing plants and establishments must comply with the blackout instructions issued by the commanding generals of the defense commands in which they are located, even though this means a temporary cessation of production, the war department announced today. Certain munitions plants, or portions of them, may be designated by the commanding general, services of supply, through the office of provost marshal general to continue production during blackouts. These, however, must provide for the blacking out of all light openings, in order to comply with blackout regulations issued by the commanding generals of the defense commands in which they are located.

THANKS!

I wish to thank the taxpayers and voters of Carroll County for the courtesy shown me during my term as tax collector and also for the splendid support given me on November 3, 1942.

Heroic U. S. Nurse Assists Wounded Men Under Fire

This Is the Story of a Pretty Girl Who Set Heart on Serving Her Country.

NEW YORK.—This is the saga of pretty Helen Loretta Summers, born at the close of World War I, who as a second lieutenant in the army nurse corps, has won the plaudits of her fellow Americans for gallant conduct amid the battle horrors of Manila, Bataan and Corregidor.

Now she is stationed with Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces somewhere in Australia, carrying on the good work with other "Florence Nightingales" of the ANC.

Ever since she was a little girl, said her mother, Mrs. John V. Summers, dark-haired, brown-eyed Helen has shown an ambition to be "in the thick of things doing something important." Her love of country also has been an outstanding trait.

At St. Mary's hospital, Brooklyn, where she won her "R. N.," she was leader of her class and was graduated with the highest honors in 1938.

She Sees Action.

No one could have wished for more action than Helen got in the Far East. Stationed at Fort McKinley, she was in the thick of Japanese bomb attacks from December 7 on. Nurses at the Fort McKinley hospital slept in shelters deep underground because of the almost constant rain of bombs.

Day and night Helen toiled with other American and Filipino nurses to help the stream of soldiers and civilians wounded by the enemy. Not a word of complaint, of weariness ever left her lips.

But during all this excitement she managed to seek new thrills. Her letters mentioned:

"Went up in a bomber. But I didn't get half the thrill I expected."

And—

"Had dinner on a submarine."

The day following the fight in the bomber hospital at Fort McKinley was bombed and everybody there was evacuated to Manila. That was on last Christmas morning.

Just as the nurses had seated themselves at dinner that evening, an air raid alarm drove them to shelter, she related, in a letter.

Stays on Bataan.

Then came another hairbreadth adventure—the evacuation next day to Corregidor. Aboard a barge loaded with 500 sick and wounded, she and other nurses set forth for the island fortress. For 24 hours they were forced to lie off Corregidor, with air attacks threatening momentarily. Then some were landed and others, including Helen, went to Bataan peninsula.

Throughout the entire Japanese siege of Bataan, Helen remained on the peninsula. Then, on April 8, she and others were transferred to Corregidor—just a few hours before Bataan was forced to yield.

The last letter Mrs. Summers had from her daughter was dated "Somewhere in the Philippines, February 6, 1942."

Weeks more with no word. Then came the good—the big—news. It was from the war department and said:

"This office has been notified of the safe arrival in Australia of your daughter, Helen Loretta Summers, and our gratitude for this information is, I believe, second only to your own."

"We are, indeed, proud of the heroism and devotion to duty which the nurses in the Philippines have displayed and our hopes and prayers are for their safety and well being."

Fish Story of Big Swede Ends Up in Rabbit Climax

CADILLAC, MICH.—This is a "fish story" only because the hero started out fishing. The hero will have to be designated only as "Big Swede" because he made his catch out of season.

Big Swede had pulled only a couple of small "keepers" out of Buttermilk creek on the opening day of trout season when a rabbit ran toward him. Big Swede lashed out an expert cast. The leader of his light line looped twice around the rabbit's neck and the hook made a fast noise by snagging over the leader.

After a few minutes of battle with a four-ounce rod Big Swede "landed" his catch. He put it in the trunk of his car as proof for his story to the boys back at the Legion headquarters.

But, when Swede got back to town and opened the trunk he had more proof than even he had expected. His rabbit was now a mother, with six little bunnies cuddled beside her.

Lonely Soldier Needs Lesson in Geography

ROXBORO, N. C.—A Roxboro matron has received a letter from her husband, whom she married several months ago, just before he was drafted into the army.

"Please come to see me at once, honey," wrote the lovesick soldier from an army post somewhere in Texas. "I've just heard that I'm going to be transferred to some place called Camp Butler and I don't know where in the world that is."

Camp Butler is 10 miles from Roxboro.

ATTENTION HUNTERS!

A CARELESS SHOT TOWARD A TELEPHONE LINE MAY INTERFERE WITH THE SHOOTING SIDE OF THE WAR

Shots fired at birds on telephone wire and cables, or even aimed in the general direction of lines, may miss their mark and accidentally cut a wire or damage a glass insulator. If a careless shot breaks these vital voiceways, calls are interrupted—the shooting side of war may possibly be delayed.

Mr. Sportsman, we're counting on you to watch out for telephone lines more closely than usual when you're enjoying the shooting this season.

formed Church in Salem Church, Harrisburg, Pa., Wednesday of last week. The churches of Manchester and vicinity will join in observing Thanksgiving by holding a union service in Immanuel Lutheran Church on Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 7:30. The sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. John S. Hollenbach on "Thanksgiving in Troubled Times."

Mrs. E. G. Alcorn who had been a surgical patient at Md. University Hospital returned home, last Saturday.

It appears that there was one deliberate violation of the blackout by a resident on York St., Monday night. "Dawn Boy" an Indian Operetta in two acts will be presented by the Elementary School on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week.

FEESERSBURG

Monday, Nov. 16, Half of the month gone, and we've had a taste of winter, considering it was quite cold last week when everything out doors was frozen and the grass doesn't look as green; and several very stormy days that stripped most of the leaves from the trees, but one can see much farther and recognize the homes in the distance. Some one has said we can only see the form and real tree in the winter-time when even the smaller limbs and tiny twigs give us expression.

Some of our folks attended the turkey and oyster supper at Haugh's church on Saturday evening, where they enjoyed their annual feast of good things to eat.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stuffle and their three well-grown sons living on one of the A. W. Feeser farms along the Westminster-Littlestown road, visited his father, J. H. Stuffle and family, in our town on Sunday.

Mrs. Cleon Wolfe is out again, and took charge of her class at S. S. on Sunday morning; but pain doesn't leave one so readily, and getting quite well again is slow work.

The young women of Mt. Union Church are busily preparing this week for their annual chicken and oyster supper in the Parish House this Saturday evening, where you are invited to be present. To have anything worth while, some one must work hard.

The last Sunday evening of this month Mt. Union will have their Thank-offering Service, Nov. 29 when Rev. Paul F. Warner of the Methodist Church and Mr. H. B. Fogle, both of Uniontown, will be guest speaker. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

We have always been interested in Iceland—that little island country in the North Atlantic—bordering on the Arctic Circle; its area about 40,000 sq. miles (Pa. has 45,000 sq. mi.) its population 120,000. It is mountainous has lakes, glaciers, and big lava fields—as it is counted the most volcanic country in the world. They export fish, mutton, Iceland ponies, Eider-down—as the Eider-duck is a source of income to many farmers. In a letter from our friend, Miss Margaret Singer, of Uniontown; Secretary with the Asst. Red Cross Director on the Island we learn that she finds her work with the soldiers in the hospital there very interesting, and has made many friends among the Icelanders—a fine intelligent people, who are very proud of their country, with the many beautiful public buildings, parks, churches, hospital, and university in the capital—Reykjavik, and scattered over the island—Miss Singer says; "I like the snow-capped mountains, the green valleys, and many picturesque waterfalls, the Sunrise and Sunset—such as I've never seen in my life; the Northern Lights and so many interesting features. The other day after a shower I counted 7 lovely rainbows. Nearly every one speaks good English, and there is no illiteracy at all—which is a great deal more than can be said about the U. S. On Easter Sunday the Icelandic Junior Choral Society composed of children from 8 to 14 years came to the Hospital and sang for the patients. We gave each of them a big chocolate egg afterwards, an apple and an orange which they loved as these three items are practically unknown here, especially fruit. Their main food is fish." Thanks.

The Smiling Sunbeam Class were invited to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bair on the Uniontown road on Tuesday evening of this week. The usual program is the transaction of business, then some music, games, or stunts, and generally winding up with delicious refreshments when in private homes. No wonder they have good times.

We saw several bunnies scurrying to their nests before the 15th., no squirrels are in sight. There go two hunters across the field as we lift our eyes—but they'll find no partridges nearby. Already our sportsmen are planning a trip to North Western Pa. for Deer hunting when the season opens Dec. 1. One year a woman from N. Y. was in full rig, and swift on the trail and not a man suspected her gender until they got into conversation with her—and they had a hearty laugh on themselves. Her husband was with her.

Speaking of the high wind of last week it scattered the corn fodder over the ground, and even blew a man off the fence and hurt his shoulder, beside many minor damages; even so it is doesn't seem we have as much stormy weather as when we were young and had to buffet the wind walking one mile to school and church.

What about the surprise "Blackout" on Monday evening just when one was lost in an interesting book or other occupation, and a signal warned "lights out," so here we sat watching the houses suddenly darken—and it is surprising how obedient we can be to the laws demands—only 30 minutes seemed unusually long.

The topic for Thanksgiving lesson this year is "Count your Blessings" a splendid subject for America, when other Nations are in distress of all the horrors war brings. While we give sincere thanks for the blessings of another year, let us pray earnestly for peace.

The scrap drive has come to a close and if you look at the piles of iron you would wonder where it all came from; besides the amount that the Junk dealers gathers. British Work on Device

To Uncover Live Bombs

LONDON.—A device that will record the presence of unexploded bombs is now being perfected, according to a ministry of home security official. The instrument will reduce to the minimum the chances of tragedies such as that which occurred at Elephant and Castle when a bomb, undetected for 13 months, exploded and caused fatalities.

Officials made an investigation at the scene of the explosion today. It is expected that an inquiry will be held.

Vessel Is Cut in Two

And Lengthened 48 Feet

MANITOWOC, WIS.—Cutting a boat in two, a procedure which a few years ago was considered rare, but quite commonplace now, is in progress at the local shipyards. The 418-foot freighter, A. E. Cornelius, owned by Boland and Cornelius of Buffalo, N. Y., will be separated at about midship preparatory to being lengthened 48 feet and then converted into a self-loader. It is planned to have the freighter in service carrying ore and coal before the end of June.

Never a Dull Moment

For Young Master Roger

OMAHA, NEB.—Chronology of four-year-old Roger Wilson (his mother, Mrs. Keith Wilson, says he's very active):

At 18 months he swallowed two safety pins.

Not so long ago he lost one of his best front teeth trying to get up some cement steps onto his dog's tail.

Last week he was stung by a wasp.

Last night he fell out of a second story window and escaped injury.

Profligate

"You tried hard to work that swaggy for a tip. Did he give you one?"

"Yes, he gave me two. He handed me a dime and told me to never judge a man's wealth by the clothes he wore."

Sissy

"I read this morning of a woman who applied for a divorce because her husband struck her with a baseball bat."

"Gee, but women are getting tough."

THE WEEK OF WAR REPORTS.

Departments' and Boards' Activities.

President Roosevelt ordered the Lend-Lease Administration to make available as soon as possible food, clothing and weapons of war to the armed forces and the citizens of the areas in North Africa occupied by U. S. troops. "No one will go hungry or without other means of livelihood in any territory occupied by the United States," the President said, "if it is humanly within our power to make the necessary supplies available to them. Weapons also will be supplied to the peoples of these territories to hasten the defeat of our common enemies."

By late November 13 Allied forces had extended the Algerian zone of occupation as far east as Bone, just 50 miles from Tunisia. When French destroyers at Casablanca put up strong resistance against American naval units protecting U. S. troop landings there, the U. S. surface forces and dive bombers destroyed an entire flotilla of French destroyers and light craft and left the 35,000-ton French battleship Jean Bart a burning hulk. All hostilities in French North Africa ceased Nov. 11, 77 hours after the U. S. offensive began. In many places the local population and U. S. troops joined in Armistice Day ceremonies. The War Department said American casualties were light.

The President described the African campaign as a smaller second front launched in lieu of a big-scale offensive against the Axis forces across the English Channel. He said that during Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington in June it was decided a major offensive across the channel could not have been started until next year at the earliest. The African offensive was decided upon by the end of June, by late July the number of men necessary and points of attack had been determined, and the approximate date was set by the end of August.

War Secretary Stimson said that despite the fact that the Germans must have been aware some sort of large operation was in immediate prospect in North Africa, Axis efforts to intercept it with numerous submarines were futile. All U. S. forces moved to their points of attack only one transport was torpedoed, and troops from this ship proceeded in their landing craft more than 100 miles to their destination. Under Secretary of War Patterson reported 700,000 different items of equipment and supplies were required for the North African operation. Navy Secretary Knox said it took five to seven times as many ships to carry men and goods around Africa to the Middle East as it would to carry them straight through Gibraltar and into the Mediterranean.

In a 10-hour offensive on Jap shore positions on Guadalcanal November 12, air and surface forces of the Navy destroyed at least 30 and probably more of 75 landing boats found at Tassafaronga, shot down 30 out of 31 Jap planes attempting to attack U. S. ships, silenced shore batteries and started large fires. The U. S. heavy cruiser San Francisco was damaged slightly and 30 members of the crew were killed when a disabled Jap plane crashed into it. The U. S. destroyer Buchanan was damaged and five of her crew killed by a 5-inch shell from an enemy shore battery. A Navy communique in the afternoon of September 14 said the naval engagements in the Solomons area were still in progress.

Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to President Roosevelt, said aircraft carriers, large and small, escort vessels, landing boats and other kinds of naval units are about to be built "with a timing almost equal to the pre-war mass production of motor cars." He said the U. S. is building submarines in a little more than one year, twice as fast as before the war; aircraft carriers are being built in 17 months; battleships, that used to require five years, now take three; destroyers require six months, one-third of the former time.

Economic Stabilization Director Byrnes said the ceiling on farm wages has been lifted until Agricultural Secretary Wickard can determine: (1) the effect of farm wages on farm production in the more critical farm labor shortage areas, and (2) where increases in farm wages may threaten to cause an increase in the price ceilings on farm products. The first Agricultural Marketing Administration contract for dehydrated pork for shipment overseas—calling for approximately 110,000 pounds, to be processed and delivered within the next few weeks—was awarded to a Midwestern meat packer. The Agriculture Department said the use of hybrid seed added 300,000,000 bushels to the 1942 corn crop. Marketing quotas will apply to the 1943-44 cotton marketing season if approved by a more than two-thirds vote of cotton growers in a referendum on December 12, Secretary Wickard stated.

The Office of Defense Transportation postponed its mileage rationing program for commercial vehicles from November 15 to December 1, after the Office of Price Administration postponed its nation-wide gasoline rationing program for passenger cars from November 22 to December 1. The OPA also postponed its fuel oil rationing starting date from November 1 to 23. The OPA said all oil-burning equipment in structures other than private homes will be regarded by OPA as convertible to other fuels and therefore ineligible for fuel rations, unless satisfactory proof is furnished to the contrary. The ruling will be enforced after the second rationing period.

Labor Secretary Perkins, at the request of the War and Navy Departments and Maritime Commission, lowered the minimum age for women employed in war industries from 18 to 16 years. The war agencies stated

SERVICE MEN'S LETTERS

 Dear members of Taneytown
 I wish to thank you for one of your kits which is very useful in many ways. I am glad you are thinking of the boys back home and again thanks very much.
 PVT. RICHARD F. BAKER.

Dear Mr. Stonesifer:
 This is just a few lines to inform you of my change of address.
 Now that I can't get home every week-end or see my friends from Taneytown, the Carroll Record will be appreciated more than ever.

As you can see from my address, I am going to Parachute School here at Fort Benning. The training here is what I've needed for a long time. So far I like the training very much.
 Yours truly,
 PVT. FORREST E. SKILES,
 Co. "K" 2nd Bn.
 1st Para. Training Reg.
 Fort Benning, Ga.

Having received by kit before entering camp, I wish to express my sincere gratitude to the sponsors of this worthwhile project. Through reading and hearing about the value of the kit from my experienced soldier friends, I am sure it will be beneficial to any recruit. I can easily see how this project tends to boost the morale of a service man. I gratefully appreciate the effort of the community. Sincerely,
 PVT. ROBERT E. BANKARD.

I want to take this opportunity to thank you very much for that most useful kit. Indeed only those in the service can realize how useful they are, when being away from home.

I am stationed at the Marine Hospital and living here at the Club. My room faces Lake Erie which is a beautiful sight.

I am assistant dental surgeon at the hospital with the rank of Lieutenant Junior Grade in the service. Again thanking you very much for the kit. I remain, sincerely yours,
 CARROLL D. DERN.

The Carroll Record Co.
 Dear Sirs:
 I do want to thank you so much for sending me my home town paper. A bit of news from home is sure a help to a soldier a long way from home.

Pfc. FRED L. SHANK,
 Co. M, 13th Inf, 3rd Bn A. P. O. 8
 Nashville, Tenn.

The Carroll Record Co.
 Dear Sirs:
 Received two copies of the Carroll Record while at Miami Beach, Fla. It was greatly appreciated and I thank you. Am now stationed at Amarilla Field, Texas, I may be at this place for several months, but I still think that Maryland is the best place to be. Sincerely,
 PVT. LAVERNE M. ZEPP,

THE SLOOP ON THE BAY

The moonbeams fall upon the bay, Far out beyond a white sloop lay; The water is so smooth and clear Not once does a ripple appear.

Far to the East a fleecy cloud Comes forth the evening Star to enshroud; Soon then the wind with increased power Rolls o'er the sea the thunder shower.

The sloop now dances on the bay Twixt us and it the white-caps lay; The angry waves roll on and on, We look again, the sloop is gone.

GREASE - FOR THE GUNS OF VICTORY!

When cooking fumes turn kitchen walls yellow... Don't worry, that happens in nearly every kitchen. And, if you've used a good point, it's probably not the point that's turned yellow but it's the accumulation of cooking greases.

What to do? Well, if it happens to be a cheap point that can't be washed satisfactorily—then all you can do is to repaint the kitchen.

If that's necessary, this time use a good WASHABLE wall paint like Devco Velour Gloss or Semi-Gloss. Grease, fingerprints, pencil marks, etc., are removed easily, quickly with mild soap and water. And washing will save repainting.

TIME OUT FROM THEIR WAR JOB

Aberdeen-Angus pause briefly in one of the many streams on Cold Saturday Farm at Finksburg. Their job of helping produce the Nation's food needs from grass and other farm crops is essential to the war effort. The Maryland Aberdeen-Angus Association has selected a number of breeding animals from this and other Maryland herds for their annual show and sale of foundation stock at Frederick on October 12 when additional farmers can secure a foundation for the expansion of this important industry.

Library Romance

By MEREDITH SCHOLL
 Associated Newspapers-WNU Features.

AFTER being snowed in for two days at the Winter Haven Ski club, Ben Montgomery made two surprising discoveries.

The first was that the clubhouse boasted a circulating library, set off in a little alcove behind a trophy display cabinet. And the second was that its attendant was a girl with natural curly hair, blue eyes and a nose that tended to turn up (attractively).

"Well, well," said Ben happily. "And once more well. What have we here?"

The girl, who had been leaning against a shelf, with her turned-up nose buried in a book that seemed absurdly too large for her to hold, looked up with a suddenness that indicated she had actually been reading.

"This," she said, "is a zoo. Please don't feed the animals." And her nose disappeared once more behind the book.

"You know," said Ben, grinning, "it's a joy as well as a surprise to find something in this joint besides skis and skiers."

"Help yourself," said the girl, inclining her head toward the bookshelves without looking up again.

"I wasn't," said Ben, "referring to the books."

The girl turned a page. Ben leaned against the edge of a desk and watched her. Life had become pretty boring during the past two days; it would take more than a mere snubbing to abash him. He said: "I would think you'd have a tough time trying to make a go of renting skis with nothing but a lot of skiing hounds to cater to."

The girl looked up and Ben grinned. "Oh," she said, "you would? Well, in another week

"This," she said, "is a zoo. Please don't feed the animals."

there'll be twice as many people here and . . ."

Ben shook his head. "You don't seem to get me at all. I was referring to the number of people who come to a place like this who can read."

"Oh!" said the girl pursing her lips in exaggerated enlightenment.

Ben nodded. "Catching on, eh?" He stood erect. "Well, don't lose hope. From now on I'll be your most loyal customer. By the way, I'm glad to see that you can read, too. If it weren't for the fact that you were reading that tripe . . ."

The girl's eyes blazed. "Tripe. Why, Bruce Kendall is considered an authority on the American drama. He's . . ."

Ben made a gesture of distaste. "Drama! Pacha! Why don't you read something with some originality to it, not what another man says about the efforts of his fellow!" His eyes swept along the row of books.

"Ah! Now, here's something . . ."

He flicked a volume out of its stall and handed it to her. "Something to set your blood tingling. Love! Intrigue! Adventure! Mystery! A real rip-snorting good novel by that master of fiction, Philip Stone."

The girl's nose turned up even higher. "Fiction! I assure you my interests go much deeper than that."

Ben wagged his head. He felt a little wave of triumph. He had succeeded in arresting the girl's attention and engaging her in conversation. He must take care to maintain her interest.

"To me fiction is the very spice of life. It offers something that this material world we're living in can't provide. Anybody could do what Bruce Kendall is doing. It's easy to criticize, you know."

He paused. The girl was watching him coldly, and he feared that what little advantage he had gained was slipping. "Anyhow, everyone to his own tastes. I don't suppose you'd mind if I rent this book for a week or so?"

"If you think," said the girl, "that I mind if you climb to the top of Old Baldy and jump off the other side even, you're greatly mistaken." Which observation failed in its designed purpose, for Ben became more chummy than ever.

The storm continued for two days longer, and when half a hundred people are forced thus into close contact, depending on one another for diversion, an atmosphere of intimacy and mutual sympathy is bound to prevail.

Waste not fresh tears over old griefs
 —Euripides

The fact of the matter was that Susan and Ben were the only two young people at the club, this being a pre-season outing and a pre-season blizzard, and were perforce glad of each other's company. They discovered that they each had a good many common interests, besides books, such as believing that skiing shouldn't be taken nearly as seriously as all the Winter Haven club members seemed to consider it, but only as a casual pastime.

Yet for all her congeniality Susan's attitude toward Ben bore a vague reserve, a fact which puzzled him profoundly. Indeed, it wasn't until the evening when the storm began to abate that he was given an inkling of its cause and nature. They were sitting in the little bookshop, smoking an after-dinner cigarette. Ben nodded toward the copy of Bruce Kendall's American Drama and grinned.

"It seems ages ago that I came in here and found you reading that thing. Honestly, when I think of it, I actually have a feeling of benightedness for the old coot."

Susan's eyes flashed. "It doesn't seem so long ago to me but what I can remember how insulting you were. I still maintain that Bruce Kendall is much higher type of reading than . . . than . . . Philip Stone!"

Ben, on the point of laughter, suddenly checked the impulse.

"Listen, Susie, I didn't know you were taking it so seriously. I'm sorry. Honest. If you say Kendall's the last word in literature, I'm for him. That's the way I feel about you." He paused. "Perhaps I've been a little unfair. Perhaps I should have explained that I'm Stone, Philip Stone, the guy who wrote that novel I spoke about. I don't like to use my own name, because if anyone finds out who I am . . ." He gestured distastefully.

"So that's it? You just can't stand popularity, eh, Mr. Stone?" She laughed scornfully. "You seem to have forgotten that no one up here can read; or according to your ideas they can't. Well, let me tell you something. You're not so smart as you think you are. In the first place I'm not the attendant at this circulating library. It isn't even a circulating library. It's free. And besides, I don't have to make my living renting books."

"I happened to be here when you appeared because I like to read and wanted to be alone. So there! And I don't care if you're Philip Stone or William Shakespeare, I will maintain that Bruce Kendall writes much better literature."

"Good. And now that that is over with and we've both had our little fun surprising the other, answer me one question." He swung her around to face him, held her firmly by the shoulders. "Will you . . ."

"Wait a minute. I'm not through with my surprises. I've one more, and when I tell it perhaps you won't want to ask me a question."

"Try me," said Ben.

"All right. I'm Bruce Kendall." Ben swallowed and blinked. But he recovered himself with nice technique. He grinned. "All right," he said. "That makes it even. I'll bet our children will never want to look at a book. What do you bet?"

"I'll bet," said Susan, contrarily and with conviction, "they will." Which, of course, was the right answer.

Vichy Will Shut 1,300 Plants to Get Farmers

VICHY—Chief of Government Pierre Laval met with his cabinet to draft final decrees for industrial and labor changes.

The department of industrial production announced in Paris that the first phase of the program would be the closing of 1,300 factories employing 20,000 workers.

The workers will be diverted to a labor pool to man farms expected to produce food reserves for next winter and provide volunteers for labor in German war factories.

IMPROVED

MOTIVES THAT STRENGTHEN FAMILY LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 2:1-4; Joshua 24:14, 15; Ephesians 5:28-31; 6:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love never faileth.—I Corinthians 13:8.

Last week we saw the things which mar the life of the family, now we turn to those things which give strength to the home and to daily life. This is a lesson much needed just now when so much of our normal home life is thrown out of joint. We begin at the right place when we say that there must be a

I. Recognition of God in the Home
(Exod. 2:1-4; Josh. 24:14, 15).

Failure at this point is without question the great mistake of our day. Christianity touches every phase of life, but nowhere is its blessed influence of greater importance than in the home.

Our lesson suggests that this is to be done in two ways in our homes.

1. By Faith in God (Exod. 2:1-4). The story of the birth of the babe who was to be Moses, possibly the greatest civic, social and religious leader of all time, reminds us that the Jewish people, who had found favor in the eyes of the Pharaohs in Joseph's time, were now being persecuted. A decree had gone out that all boys were to be destroyed at birth.

Here were two parents faced with the awful fact that their baby boy was condemned to death. Did they weep in fear and despair? No, they trusted God and sent the little one forth on a venture of faith, the charming story of which follows the verses of our lesson. God honored their faith by using their enemies to serve them.

2. Service for God (Josh. 24:14, 15). Joshua, who followed Moses as the God-appointed leader of Israel, was giving his last admonition to his people. He knew how they had repeatedly turned from God in unbelief and sin; yes, that even now some were worshipping false gods.

He pleads with them to turn to the one true God, but notice that his plea is made effective by the fact that he and his house were serving the Lord. Every man who has a position of leadership in this world is responsible for the use of that place of power, as a testimony for God. Now and then we hear of a high public official in our own land who loves and serves Christ in sincerity, and our hearts rejoice. The faith of a whole nation may thus be strengthened.

Every one of us has a sphere of influence, and our family life counts for or against God in our own community and among our own friends. The members of a family that recognize God have a high

II. Regard for One Another in the Home
(Eph. 5:28-31; 6:1-4).

It is pure hypocrisy for the family to parade an outward show of religion which does not effectively touch the relationships within the home. Incidentally, it is the kind of hypocrisy which is strikingly ineffective—men see through it too easily.

What then does Christianity do for the home itself? It determines, directs, sweetens—yes, glorifies the relationship between

1. Husband and Wife (Eph. 5:28-31). This passage puts marriage on the highest plane, comparing it to the relationship between Christ and the church. Thus marriage is the joining of man and wife in a sacred union which calls forth love in its highest and noblest sense.

This means that the husband cherishes his wife as his own body, against which no man would do any harm, and for which he makes every possible provision for its comfort, health, usefulness and attractiveness. Such love between parents will lead the entire home life along in a serene, happy and wholesome way. It will not only double the joy, but will give strength in the hour of sorrow, dividing the griefs and burdens of life.

It will set the pattern for the right relationship between

2. Parents and Children (Eph. 6:1-4). The first, and one might almost say the only, law of childhood is obedience. It is God's way to joy and a satisfying life experience for the child in the Christian home. The command to obey carries with it the understanding that the parents are "in the Lord." What father or mother is competent to direct a child apart from faith in Christ?

Notice too, that the parent has an obligation to deal intelligently and kindly with the child. We need a great deal of improvement, and perhaps instruction, at that point. Authority asking obedience is necessary, but it can be wise and kind.

Above all, there is to be a divine nurture, a guiding of the tender child life in the ways of God. Here is life's greatest opportunity and its mightiest challenge. How surprising that fathers (and mothers) who are looking for the greatest measure of usefulness to their generation fail to see it in the privilege they have to rear intelligent, godly children.

Pigeons Flout Laws; Protected by Friends

The pigeon is a noisy bird, especially when it begins to bill and coo in the early morning. Its habits, too, are anything but cleanly. Ordinances against keeping pigeons in congested districts probably are justified, but their enforcement is all but impossible.

Because the pigeon, like the English sparrow and the starling, finds its self-preservation in the instinct to live with men. The pigeon is a free agent. Everywhere there is a building, or a steeple, or overhanging eaves, there is its safe harbor. In the very cities that prohibit the raising of pigeons, pigeons belonging to nobody make free with the city itself. They are the most indefatigable of squatters. They make friends with men. They are fed by children. They are as tame as puppies.

For protection, their wings, on which they swoop and curve and lift and drop as animated poems. A sudden noise sends them whirling into the air, but their confidence is soon restored. They cannot be hunted or poisoned or exterminated because they have learned that for his own safety man cannot threaten their successfully.

And after all what is more eye filling than a flock of pigeons in the sunlight, or strutting on a lawn, or driving in wide circles in the sheer joy of flight against a background of clouds!

'Keep Your Hens Laying,' Poultrymen Are Advised

Because the war has greatly increased the need for eggs, it will be unusually important for poultry flock owners to keep their layers in full production this summer, if possible, rather than permit them to slump in egg yield as the hot weather comes.

Layers now entering the last few months of the laying year are producing a maximum number of large eggs. These are particularly valuable eggs and their production must be encouraged and enhanced.

Feed prices are relatively high so poultrymen should be sure that they maintain in their flocks for the summer months only strong, vigorous, healthy hens capable of good egg production if given the proper chance.

There is always a tendency for egg yields to drop with the coming of the summer months. New pullet flocks are scarcely yet ready for large egg production. The older layers must furnish the needed eggs during June, July and August.

Keep 'em laying. This can be done by providing comfortable quarters which are well ventilated, clean, sanitary and well lighted.

Identify Army Planes

Walt Disney, producer of animated motion pictures, is utilizing the facilities of his studios for the United States army signal corps in the production of a training film, "Identification of United States Army Aircraft," the war department announced recently. This film, to be used by the army air forces, will combine aerial photography, animation, and models. Its primary purpose is to facilitate identification of United States planes under various conditions. Mr. Disney acquired experience in this type of production in his recent film, "The West System of Aircraft Identification," which was produced for the navy department.

It is planned to make the army training film available to the armed forces of the United Nations.

Aussie Airmen Lose Kangaroo

A group of Australian airmen visiting Canada are worried that their kangaroo mascot will not survive the cool nights of the Province of Quebec. They lost the animal while passing through the city.

The airmen were coming in from Halifax to Montreal by rail, with the young kangaroo comfortably berthed in a dunnage bag. At St. Lambert, a suburb of Montreal, the kangaroo was placed with other baggage on the rear platform of the train. Annoyed at some rough handling, the Aussies' mascot got literally hopping mad, jumped from the bag and, clearing the train in one leap, disappeared.

Rigger Requirements

A rigger in a shipyard is required to tie several kinds of knots, the following being among those in greatest demand: single blackwall hitch; double blackwall hitch; clove hitch; becket hitch; single becket bend; double becket bend; stopper hitch; barrel sling; shorten sling; anchor hitch; single bowline; double bowline; sheetbend; sheepshank; square knot; timber hitch; two half hitches; catspaw; fisherman's bend.

The short splice, long splice and eye splice are required for splicing wire and manila rope.

Ireland's Worst Storm

The big wind refers to a storm which began January 6, 1839, and raged for two days and nights along the coasts of Ireland and England. It was the most devastating storm in Ireland within the memory of man. Many lives were lost in Dublin and Liverpool, the Irish sea was strewn with wrecks of ships, and hundreds of houses were blown down in Galway, Limerick, Athlone and other places. Much additional damage was caused by fires started and fanned by the gale.

KNOW THY CONGRESS
By DR. GEORGE S. BENSON
President, Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

(Editor's Note: Dr. George S. Benson is the president of Harding College of Searcy, Arkansas, a co-educational institution noted for having no unemployed graduates. Dr. Benson found himself catapulted into the headlines in 1941 when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee, and Senate Finance Committee, and offered a concrete plan for cutting non-defense expenditures by two billion dollars. Self-reliant Harding College students recently hit the headlines when they asked the National Youth Administration to accept the return of funds allotted to them, requesting that the sum be invested in "tools for MacArthur's men.")

Are you critical of Congress? I was before going to Washington and having direct experience with various Congressional committees.

For years I read the good-natured wise cracks of Will Rogers about Congress. I also read numerous other articles which deliberately criticized Congress. Then I watched the aggressive executive branch of the Government making ever greater and more detailed demands of Congress, and finally found myself wondering whether Congress was still a capable, independent, representative law making body.

Having a measure of Scotch blood which has always given me considerable appreciation for the value of a dollar, I was also disturbed about the huge appropriations, which, from 1930 to 1940, averaged about $3 billion a year above National income, and which were creating an unfavorable background for a long hard war, which was evidently before us.

Putting all of this together made me wonder if there was not some truth in statements made by "cracker-barrel philosophers" to the effect that Congressmen were only a group of professional politicians, whose chief concern was keeping their jobs.

In May 1941, I decided to go to Washington and personally request the Ways and Means Committee of the House to reduce extravagant non-defense expenditures of the Government about $2 billion. While I knew that any private citizen had that right, I nevertheless started to Washington with grave misgivings. Why should that group of Congressmen be interested in me—an average citizen with only one vote. Moreover, I wanted to talk common sense, straight from the shoulder, and wondered if that would make them want to throw me out. Having bolstered my courage with a sense of public duty, however, I faced that august body, determined to speak my mind and take the consequences.

My turn came toward the close of a long weary day of hearings, and I was almost frightened to observe every member of the Committee following me closely, and apparently analyzing my every sentence. Having finished, I stood almost breathless, awaiting their reaction, and expecting criticism of my suggestions.

Then came the most astonishing moment in my life. Not a single question was asked or a single statement made for the purpose of confusing or embarrassing me. On the contrary, I was thanked for coming and the testimony was complimented. Sympathetic, intelligent, comprehensive questions were asked, demonstrating both their genuine deep concern in the general welfare of the Nation and their familiarity with economics and National budgets. They were thoroughly aware of the need for greater National economy, and interested in proper steps to achieve it.

That one experience completely revolutionized my opinion of Congress.

Three months later, I appeared before the Senate Finance Committee. Again I was treated with unsurpassed courtesy. My growing esteem for Congress was further enhanced.

Still more recently I appeared before a third group—a Senatorial subcommittee. This time one member of the group spent about an hour, apparently trying only to heckle, embarrass, confuse, or discredit me. His conduct was quite different from that of his colleagues, and I later found that he had not been elected at all. He was a recent appointee, who evidently had not yet become familiar with the dignity and honor which customarily characterizes the distinguished body of which he had suddenly become a member. He was the type I had heard so much about, the rare exception—not the rule.

During this most critical period in our history, national unity is of extreme importance. For the purpose of winning the war and protecting our National interests, it is imperative that Congress receive the respect and enjoy the confidence of the public to which it is justly entitled, and of which it is proving itself worthy.

In later articles I want to explain why I believe that Congress is the most important of our three branches of Government; why I believe a Congressional Committee is the best jury in the world; and why I believe a respected Congress is positively essential to the future of democracy in America. These statements will be proven by first hand factual information.

Women AT WAR

Margaret

Margaret turned off the humming vacuum cleaner, and straightened the slipcovers of the armchair and the daybed that she had pushed up to go over the rug. Then she stood quite still in the doorway and looked at the small bedroom with its southern exposure. It was as neat and impersonal as a pin. It might never have been lived in. The door stood open on the clean, bare closet. There was not a pennant, not a team picture, not even so much as an old

Arithmetic book left to show whose room it had once been.

Margaret stared at the walls, the furniture, and deeply, slowly, she realized that no matter what lodgers with their own trinkets and pictures might occupy it, she would always see it the old way. It was the old way that she saw it now. A pair of hard-worn gray pants lay on the floor where they had been dropped. Three baseball bats were stacked with a fishing rod in the corner. A battered red cap with a letter on it lay on the bed. And through the bed, as though it were transparent, Margaret saw another bed, smaller, and with high slatted sides.

She put the vacuum cleaner away and went down to her desk in the sitting-room. She took the fifteen dollars rent that the new lodger had paid that morning in advance for the room, and added to it, from her purse, three dollars and seventy-five cents more. Then she drew out a sheet of paper and began to write on it, slowly, gravely.

"To buy a bond to help train a young man to replace Don, Jr.—killed on June 6th in the Battle of Midway."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Actual experience on the world's war fronts has proved the collapsible boat an essential safety feature for both Naval and land based planes. They are made of rubberized material, easily inflated.

At the Battle of Midway an Army Lieutenant, after bombing a carrier, was forced to bail out of his bomber. He was able to get a "fish eye" view of the entire battle from his collapsible boat and was later picked up by an American plane. Your purchase of War Bonds with at least ten percent of your income every payday will help protect the lives of men who are flying for you. Get behind them today.

PUBLIC HEARING ON BUDGET

Annapolis, Nov. 18—Establishing a precedent in this direction, Gov. O'Connor conducted a public hearing Wednesday on the various phases of the State Budget, which is being prepared for submission to the Maryland Legislature when it meets on January 6th. for its biennial session.

The meeting, held in the State House, was attended by members of taxpayers' groups and other civic bodies, members of the legislature, and other interested citizens. Gov. O'Connor presided, assisted by Walter N. Kirkman, Director of the budget.

Discussing the hearing, Gov. O'Connor declared: "With the increasing burden of Federal taxes incident to the war, it is more necessary now than ever before that we scrutinize closely every appropriation, so that allotments made will represent the necessary cost of administration, and nothing more. It was with this idea in mind that I suggested several weeks ago the desirability of public hearings, to which the general public would be invited and at which members of the Legislature could, if they so desired, obtain information that would be helpful in determining their action on the budget when it was presented to the Legislature."

"From the information developed at the hearings, I am confident there will come a better understanding of the State's needs in many directions and that the frank discussions that will be encouraged will go far to assure the public that not only are the amounts allotted in the budget wisely determined but also that their expenditure will be in capable hands."

War workers on night shifts have clubs specially organized for mid-night and early morning recreational programs.

The aircraft industry will produce more than $4,000,000,000 worth of airplanes, engines, and propellers during 1942.

WE ARE FIGHTING FOR THE RIGHT TO BE THANKFUL

For several hundred years we have taken our right to be thankful for granted. Now even that is challenged. Covetous nations have their eyes on the blessings of which we have been so proud. Now we must fight, and win, or never again have reason to give thanks. So this Thanksgiving Day, while we are expressing our gratitude for the things we still have - including our freedom - let's pledge our every effort to preserve those things for ourselves and future generations of Americans.
