Dear Friends: Lam just writing to tell all my friends that I really appreciate the things that have been sent to me by the Taneytown Community Fund. CONFUSION AGAIN

Assembly Delays Passage of New Tax Law.

Taxpayers have just received their blanks for State returns of income tax. The blanks are framed according to the present law as the Comptroller has no authority to change

But the assembly is in session to reduce the tax, so that persons making out returns and paying State income tax now will be wrong.

Returns must be made on or before

April 15. The only way to relieve the situation will be for the Assembly to act at once. The same situation existed two years ago, and the figures on the blanks had to be ignored.

Governor O'Conor said this week:
"The Maryland Income Tax return will not be due for another month but I believe a word on that phase of today's problems would not be amiss

"In 1941 we reduced the State Income tax. This year we shall reduce it again. The General Assembly has a measure, sponsored by this Administration and introduced by our Floor Leader, the Honorable John S. White, of Prince George's County, to reduce the income tax by one-third—a most substantial reduction, all the more welcome of because of the heavy Fed-eral Income Taxes. The bill is already on the way to final passage by the Legislature but I request now continued active interest of our taxpayers so that we can be assured that this reduction will be made. We plan to make the reduction apply on last year's income as well as for the two years ahead, representing a total saving to the people of $12,000,000. Legislature but I request now continng to the people of $12,000,000.

"A few points that I would stress in this connection are: first, the tax on earned incomes is down to 1 1/3 per cent. On unearned incomes the rate is 3 1/3 percent, but offsetting this, the separate tax on securities has been repealed. Our Maryland returns provide such generous allowances for de-pendents that many, many thousands who pay Federal income taxes will not be required to pay any State income taxes at all."

THE RED CROSS! WAR FUND DRIVE

Still Far Under Its Assigned Ouota

President Roosevelt, several weeks ago, stated that the American Red Cross is now engaged in "the great-est single crusade of mercy in all his-tory." This crusade is the drive for the 1943 war fund of $125,000,000, for the 1943 war fund of $125,000,000, for the sole purpose of aiding the mem-bers of our armed forces, wherever they may be located, and for the al-leviation of suffering in the event of catastrophies at home. In the theatre of war, the Red Cross bridges the gap between the service man and his family. Blood plasma for the armed forces is provided through the Red Cross, which is the sole collection agency for this priceless life-giving fluid. Through the Red Cross, centers of recreation and relevation are presented. of recreation and relaxation are provided for the service men abroad. Through the Red Cross, prisoners of war are able to get in communication with those at home, and without the Red Cross as an agent, it would be impossible to forward to these prisoners of war that small package of food that can be so much to alleviate the privations experienced by the inmates desperately need our help.

THE DILEMMA

President Roosevelt on Tuesday of this week indicated disagreement with those who want to frame international after-the- war policies now. It must be admitted that in the midst of the fighting it would not be possible to settle with any finality the problems of peace, and that it would be dangerous to undertake any formal discussions of these problems with others of the United Nations.

And yet there is an almost equal danger in keeping silent. We want to shorten the war by winning the confidence of the common people in the enemy countries. To keep silent will naturally lead to the fear that we are out for imperialism and the enslavement of conquered peoples.

HIGHWAY UPKEEP

The Keystone Automobile Club is alarmed about the future condition of Maryland highways, George E. Keneipp, manager of the Club issued a statement this week that is worth thinking about. He said:

"There is and will continue to be serious deterioration of neglected highways," he said, "and this will inevitably lead to higher tax burdens on the motorist when the State gets around to repairing the damage lack of maintenance has done to the road

"In our opinion, Maryland is making a very serious mistake in drastically limiting the funds for maintenance. The same criticism can be made of the District of Columbia, where another penny-wise-and-pound-foolish policy has been adopted.

There is a tremendous investment of taxpayers' money in the highway system. Common prudence dictates that this investment be conserved. Instead, it is being dissipated. Already some of Maryland's roads are deteriorating, due to lack of attention

"While the road system is suffering, motorist funds are being ear-marked for other purposes—notably the Gov-ernor's recommendation for use of $1,400,000 of the shrinking gasoline tax revenue for protection of bridges and 'other places' as a war measure. sion from Congress and from men and ing is listed by posterity higher that It would seem that such protection is a responsibility of all the taxpayers and that funds for guards should not be taken from motorist tax funds at the expense of highway upkeep."

"Certainly, no man in his right senses would be so gullible as to take on four marriages," the judge added.

Hitler Vitamin-Starved?

The world may have vitamin starvation to blame for Hitler. Fantastic as it may seem, this speculation has plenty of scientific support. It is well known that for years Der Fuehrer not only ate sparingly, but also avoided meats. So, by now, he must have built up some choice deficiencies, if he has been depending upon food alone for his vitamins and minerals. Just on the score of being jittery and irritable, Hitler certainly qualifies as a Grade A case of vitamin deficiency. not all. Recent medical research has established that lack of vitamins B1, thiamine; B2, riboflavin; and P-P, niacin, produces symptoms like those of the neurasthenia, which many psychiatrists have detected in Adolf. This leaves open only the question of whether he was born that way or starved himself into it.

Paint Supplants Galvanizing Paint is specifically excepted in Conservation Order M - 11 - b as Amended by the War Production board, restricting the use of zinc as a protective coating, including galvanizing, as well as other uses, for a variety of automobile parts, building materials and industrial materials. The order, which is a recent one, says: "No person shall apply a protective coating or plating (other than paint) of zinc" in specified classifications of metal items. Paint is already being used extensively on garbage cans and other metal items which prior to the present emergency were customarily galvanized with zinc.

Cook, Add Water, Eat

Pre-cooked and pre-mixed breakfast cereals are now available to United States troops overseas, the war department disclosed. A process, developed by the quartermaster corps, permits the serving of these dishes, chiefly whole wheat and oatmeal, merely by adding water. The cereals are cooked until they contain no more than 12 per cent moisture. They are then packed in containers and sent to the far flung outposts where by adding the water they are made as edible as the freshly cooked dish.

YOUR Electric Appliances

HAVE THEM INSPECTED BEFORE THEY FAIL

Yes---YOUR electric appliances should be inspected now! A few drops of oil or a small adjustment may mean the difference between continued use of your appliances and doing without for "the duration." Remember that, while we can repair most breakdowns, some repair parts are difficult or even impossible to obtain and that they all use vital materials.

Here we are—at half way mark of another month! Time hurries on but has left us some lovely memories. Snowing all morning again on Sat-urday, until everything was peppered with whiteness, and steadily falling flakes made a wonderful scene; but the silver frost on Sabbath morning on every tiny twig, and bush and tree, was glorious to start to church, it was certainly uplifting; then warmer in the afternoon and most of the snow gone till night.

After a delightful week-end in Washington with his family and par-ents, Roger W. Sentz last week suffered a severe attack of neuralgia of the jaw, and was only able to go to work on Friday—which seemed like a loss of time to such a busy person.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wolfe attended the funeral of their friend, Wilbur Smith, at Woodsboro, on Wednesday afternoon of last week. A former pastor, Rev. C. E. Shilke preached the sermon. The Church Bulletin gives an exortation for Lent for better living and better giving; and a nice message from one of the service boys-concerning Bible reading, which is more interesting now than when he was a lot younger; and the Lutheran and Reformed congregations at Baust Church are considering the purchase of American and Christian flags for their church auditorium. The weekly Lenten services will not be held this year, mainly because of gas rationing. Included with the Bulletin was an in-structive folder entitled "the Bread of Life ration Book," with all wise ints concerning this and Eternal Life-for daily use.

The annual talk of soft roads has been a popular theme the past week and some tales as big as fish stories were told. Many persons have been inconvienced not only for pleasurebut necessary use. The hard roads too have some badly worn or broken places; and it does seem with all the money spent in the county our public roads should be secure. How about less for movies and more for safe travel? You see there's money enough but not all spent right .

We are expecting some new neighbors in our town and losing good ones by removal. Times change but nothing in this world can last.

Certainly there is much comment on food rationing-especially meat which seems the staff of life for many persons; and there's many things we miss, or will do without, but some vegetables seem to be unusually good this season—as celery, lettuce, spinach, etc. We never had more tender, nor as sweet oranges and grapefruit. Southwestern German City

Was Jewelry Trade Center Pforzheim, Germany, normally has one of the world's largest jewelry industries. Until war's outbreak over 22,000 workers in this southwestern German city of 80,000 people were cogs in the mass production of gold and silver ornaments and jewelry, mostly for the popular price trade.

Spread over hillsides at the northeast corner of Germany's famous Black Forest, Pforzheim softens the hardness of its smoke-belching industries with 17th century gabled residences and business buildings, venerable bridges crossing the Enz and Nagold rivers that meet there.

Lying 20 miles southeast of Karlsruhe and 30 miles northwest of Stuttgart, Pforzheim is part of a region in which war industries have been feverishly developed in the past decade. In addition to its long-established jewelry and musical instrument industries, it has copper, chemical and machinery plants, forges, tanneries and paper mills. It is a timber center, dispatching logs down river to the Neckar and the Rhine. Its ancient trade in oil, fruits, wine and cattle continues.

Suspend Crow Control Contest

Indiana's annual crow control contest, which has accounted for nearly 400,000 black marauders since its inception in 1934, has been suspended for 1943, the division of fish and game has announced. "While there is need for continuous control measures against the crow," the announcement states, "it was felt that no organized campaign should be sponsored this year when gasoline and tires are being rationed and when ammunition for sporting guns is increasingly difficult to obtain. This does not prohibit the individual conservationist from killing crows, nor does it prevent a club from continuing activities against crows in its community.'

Oars and Sails

The corvette name belonged to peaceable craft until it was appropriated by the French navy for a type of war sloop in the 18th century. Some authorities aver that the name descends from the corbita, a slow, cumbersome cargo ship of ancient Rome named for the basket (Latin: corbis) carried atop its single mast to indicate cargo duty. Others contend the name goes no further back than a 15th century fishing boat of Flanders known as a corve. Corvettes of about 1700 are described as powered by long oars in addition to sails on the bowsprit and one or two masts.

Powder Puffs Are Puzzle to Bosses In War Factories

Question Is Does Smudge of Dirt on Her Face Lower Woman's Efficiency.

DETROIT.—"Does a smudge of dirt on her face lower a worker's efficiency?"

This question sounded strangely incongruous in its surroundings. Put by one serious-faced man to another, in a bare factory office masculine in every detail even to a spittoon-the query was met by a shrug of the

For there are no answers in the books to the hundreds of small problems, such as this, that the slacksclad woman war worker brought with her to the factory.

The question about dirty faces was brought up by H. J. Roesch, industrial relations director at a Briggs Manufacturing company plant in Detroit, after he had been asked by representatives of a cosmetic firm to sponsor their product.

"Show me a product that you say can be used once a day in the morning—and will last for eight hours, and we'll be happy," he said, add-ing, "we'd really like to know if it does make any difference to a worker whether she has a smudge of dirt or a spot of rouge on her face!"

Well aware that their workers carry compacts and the inevitable lipstick with them, personnel men and foremen in the nation's war industries are sometimes plagued by this question. Men, it seems, merely wash at the end of the day, while women often take time out during their work to clean up.

Try Women Counselors. Some companies, in striving for maximum production, have turned parts of their factories into "glamour plants" - pastel rest rooms, beauty bars, etc. Others have stood their ground, feeling that the working woman would come around to the working man's point of view. A brand new system is being tried in Detroit. Succumbing to the idea that only a woman can understand a woman, the Briggs company, making airplane parts, is introducing 20 woman counselors into its various

All over 40 years of age, the majority of the counselors are former housewives who have reared families. Having managed home successfully, these women have met and solved a barrage of problems peculiar to the feminine world; therefore, Briggs officials feel, such women make superior counselors. They will be able to help older workers with home problems so as to free them of domestic worries while on the job, and also to advise young girls who are getting what seems like fabulous pay for the first time.

Time Off for Beauty. Roesch, a medium-sized man with graying hair, said: "If a woman works better for having her hair done, then she should get it done and often-but we ought to be able to arrange it some way so that valuable time is not lost. This seems to be another matter now in the hands of the counselors," he added with a smile. In this particular case, he was referring to frequent absences on the part of women who give a visit to the beauty shop as a reason for tak-ing time off. One can imagine how some foremen, who could easily understand a man taking time off during the hunting season, reacted on hearing this explanation for the first

"Not that women can't and aren't doing a swell job," Roesch hastened to add. "They are. It's just that they go at things differently from

Big Dope Ring Smashed By U. S. Treasury Men

WASHINGTON.—The treasury revealed how undercover agents kept a rendezvous with international smugglers deep in the mountains of Mexico and with the aid of Mexican authorities broke up a gang which had been supplying the illicit narcotics traffic of this country.

Details of the investigation are contained in a report to Secretary Morgenthau by Elmer L. Irey, chief co-ordinator of the treasury's enforcement agencies

The report said a Mexican woman was the "brains" of a gang which supplied peddlers in New York, San Francisco, Seattle and other cities in addition to the border territory.

In gathering evidence, undercover agents arranged to meet the woman in the Guadalajara mountains, where, unsuspecting, she introduced them to two of her henchmen known as "The Chemist" and "The Law-These men subsequently were yer." arrested near San Antonio, Texas, and 55 ounces of morphine seized in a secret compartment in their automobile. They pleaded guilty in federal court and were sentenced to five years each in prison.

On French Morozco

Most of the more than five million inhabitants of French Morocco are Moslem Berbers and Arabs, with a turbulent past. There are large Jewish colonies, and a good many Negroes. In recent years, with striking modern buildings, have sprung up. Huge sums were poured into the construction of the new "show city" of Casablanca. Contrasts between the unchanging ancient oriental customs and 20th century civilization are seen on every Rabat, on the Atlantic coast north of Casablanca, is the seat of the French administration; capital of the Sultanate is Fez, in the interior. Marrakech, almost within the shadow of the high Atlas, is a colorful resort city. More than a thousand miles of railway link the chief towns of the colony and connect with Algeria's main lines. Of the 4,500 miles of roads, more than 2,500 are first class, with paving over long stretches. In normal times, there was daily air service between Casablanca and Toulouse, in France; another route reached to Dakar, jumping-off place for South Atlantic trans-oceanic flights.

France's authority in the colony is administered by a resident general. Nominally, French Morocco is an absolute monarchy, headed by the Sultan Sidi Mohammed.

Another Beats Off Subs WASHINGTON. - The navy released the story of a coastguard cutter and three storms.

The first storm locked the cutter in an icefield and held it there for 30 days.

The second broke up the icefield and released the cutter.

The third saved the cutter from an Axis submarine pack, which had surrounded the vessel, by forcing the U-boats to dive.

The story was told by Norman Thomas of Portland, Maine. Thomas, a Pulitzer art prize winner in 1939, was assigned to the cutter as a coxswain to paint pictures of the vessel's patrol operations. The paintings were transferred to the cutter Natsek for delivery. The Natsek is listed as long overdue and is presumed lost. During its trip Thomas' cutter delivered fuel and supplies to an Eskimo village which had been marooned by ice and snow and threatened with starvation. Thomas said a crew member, Lawrence Wright, 19, seaman of Chattanooga, Tenn., was operated on for appendicitis during a gale.

Wounded Pigeon Flies

90 Miles With Message WASHINGTON. — If there were medals for birds, "Lady Astor," a carrier pigeon, would rate the highest decoration, signal corps officers agreed. They told of "Lady" dropping exhausted at a French Morocco headquarters, wounded three times, but home with an important message from a unit 90 miles away.

"She'll never have to work again if I have anything to say about it," said Sergt. Adam Samson of Totowa, N. J., the bird's trainer. "Lady has done her bit."

Informed via the party line telephone that a birth was imminent in the home of a neighbor, the men proceeded to clear snow from 31/2 miles of road from the home to the hospital.

ST. PAUL.-When Elsie Mirkelher real name is Mirkovich—was six months old, she lost her sight.

Now she is seven years old, but Elsie has surmounted the tragic years of darkness and today this slim, blonde girl stands on the threshold of what may prove a rich musical career.

Public acclaim first came to her recently when she sat before her piano on the municipal auditorium stage here and drank in the reward of her work-5,000 cheering persons standing in her honor. She had just played three arrangements of her own-a ballad, a boogie-woogie number and a rumba. They were from her 44 compositions.

The program was part of the "Let Freedom Ring" show—St. Paul's wartime pageant. A noted orchestra leader whose band accompanied her, exclaimed:

JOHN O. CRAPSTER, Postmaster

Not So Conventional

By M. S. SCHOLL Associated Newspapers. WNU Features.

OR five days Ellery Brown had been wanting to speak to the girl in the red bathing suit. She had been coming to the beach alone every morning, and sitting in the sun with her back to a great boulder and reading a book. She was, Ellery thought, the most beautiful creature he had ever looked upon.

Twenty-five yards from the boulder, Ellery himself reclined in the sand every morning. But he didn't read a book. He spent his time studying the girl in the red bathing suit-surreptitiously of course-and contriving some means that would justify his speaking to her. But all his contriving proved fruitless. There just wasn't any way you could do a thing like that without appearing bold and brazen, and even appearing bold and brazen probably wouldn't have the desired effect.

The girl in the red bathing suit didn't look like a person who would approve of boldness and brazenness. Her features were too refined and cultured for that sort of thing. Moreover, she had a faint yet unmistakable air of aloofness about her; Ellery doubted whether she was aware of his presence on the sand there. Not once had she so much as glanced in his direction.

It seemed like a hopeless task. He had inquired around at all the hotels without success. He had even hoped she'd go in swimming and get caught in an undertow and call for help, but she never went near

Once someone had yelled at Ellery from a distance, urging him to join a party of swimmers, but he had feigned sleep. He wanted to be left alone—to solve the mystery of the girl in the red bathing suit. For tery she had become more desirable

On the sixth day he became desperate. Suppose, he thought, tomorrow when he came to the beach she weren't there? Suppose she went away and he nev-er saw her again? The thought tortured him and he was on the point of succumbing to the only apparent possibility of meeting her-that of being bold and brazen-when he heard the crunching of sand close to his ear.

Startled, he sat up, and his heart thumped. The girl with the red bathing suit was not twenty feet away and she was staring directly at him. And as she looked at Ellery a sudden, astonishing change took place on her features.

"Why, Ellery!" she exclaimed, as though overcome. "Whatever in the world are you doing here? Imag-

Ellery batted his eyes and swallowed. He didn't quite know what to make of it. Then reasoning penetrated his mind. She had mistaken him for someone else! Holy smoke, what a break! If he could only continue with the deception.

"Hello," he said, getting to his feet and trying to sound familiar. "This certainly is a surprise!"

"It most certainly is," said the girl. She extended her hand, and Ellery thrilled to the touch of it. "Why in the world haven't you looked me up?"

Ellery gestured, grinning. "You know how I am about those things," he said evasively. "Besides, how did I know you were coming down?" She laughed joyously. "Dear old Ellery. How did you know? As if our folks hadn't been talking of summering here for months. I declare, I believe you've been trying to avoid

"On the contrary," said Ellery. He smiled. "Let's not waste time squabbling. How about a swim?"

"Let's. I'm dying for a swim." Ten minutes in the water and Ellery found himself secretly amused at his planning to rescue her. Her aquatic accompashments were something to admire.

Later they sat on the beach. And still later Ellery casually suggested they dance somewhere that night. She was delighted with the suggestion, and delighted too, when, at the country club that evening, he suggested that the next day they go sailing. In fact, for a full week they were together constantly, she seeming as eager for his company as he for hers.

Ellery was deliriously happy, a happiness shadowed only by wondering who the other Ellery could There was no doubt about the girl's interest in the man. In fact, it was a little annoying to realize that she thought so much of someone else.

He wondered too who she could be. All attempts to learn her identity, other than to discover her first name was Nancy, had failed completely. The girl in the red bathing suit was almost as much a mystery as when he had first seen her on the beach.

It occurred to Ellery after a while that he was being a little unfair, that he was taking advantage of an unforeseen situation dishonestly. He felt somewhat like a thief.

Once, on the moonlit beach, thinking of the other Ellery, his arm had encircled her waist, and she had yielded, lifting her face to his. It was her willingness to be kissed that caused the surge of anger to flow through his blood and compelled him to say what he did.

"Listen," he said hoarsely, holding her by the arms. "Listen, I'm not the Ellery you think I am. You've mistaken me for someone else. I—I shouldn't have let you go on thinking as you do-onlyonly I'm mad about you. I couldn't help take advantage of your error. It seemed like a break after I'd spent a full week trying to think up some way of making your acquaintance. But now—"

He broke off, gripping her in his arms, crushing her to him. His lips found hers and covered them with passionate kisses.

After a while he released her, drew away, breathing heavily. There was misery in his eyes, and shame and guilt.

She said: "Dear Ellery. It isn't very flattering to know you think I could be so well acquainted with someone - and fail to remember

He stared mutely. "You mean-?" "Of course. I couldn't just walk on and introduce myself. That would appear too bold and brazen." "And so you-?"

She nodded. "After a week of contriving, I finally thought up the scheme of appearing to recognize you. I was pretty desperate-was afraid some day I might come down and find you gone. Then someone called you Ellery, and-'

But Ellery's arms were around her again, his lips shutting off her words. Only a woman, he was thinking, can contrive successfully.

Randolph Field Librarian Explains to Wrong Person

What a man thinks can be judged by what he reads, but all men look alike in a private's uniform, says Miss Frances Seaver, librarian at the West Point of the Air, Randolph Field, Texas.

Miss Seaver found this out the hard way. She explained the use of an index card catalogue on books in simple, five-cent words to a recruit who turned out to be a Ph. D. and a college professor.

Miss Seaver represents a new feminine touch in the Post library at Randolph. Until she took over recently, it was strictly a stag affair, directed by lieutenants.

Now, many of the young men who come in to read end up chatting with Miss Seaver. "That's the way I find out what the boys want to read," she said.

A recruit who "looked like a broken-down wrestler" complained to Miss Seaver that all the library had in it was technical war books, best sellers, detective thrillers and Western stories.

"I told him to make me a list of the books he'd add," Miss Seaver said, smiling. "He did. The list was six pages long, and it included Plato, Kant, Shakespeare, modern English poets, and ended with a little book titled "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing."

Miss Seaver added most of the recommendations to the library's already well-stocked shelves. A frail looking young man took out "Thus Spake Zarathustra," by Nietzsche, who wrote, "I teach you the Superman."

It turned out that the slight fellow was a volunteer human guinea pig in the pressure chamber experiments conducted in the school of aviation medicine. He wanted the book of Nietzsche's to read while scientists, seeking to learn more airmen's reactions at high altitudes, observed him in the chamber.

Off Tunisia's East Coast

Lampedusa, where United Nations fliers downed two Nazi planes, is an Italian island in the Mediterranean 70 miles off the east coast of Tunisia, 90 miles west of Malta. The island knows war. The Byzantines and Saracens battled there more than a thousand years ago. It had been occupied by Phoenicians, Greeks, and Romans. Although only six square miles in all, the strategic position of Lampedusa was recognized a century ago when both Russia and Great Britain considered its purchase for use as a naval base. The only village on the island is Il Porto, on the south. Its harbor is a half-mile indentation, with three small shallow bays with beaches. The only other beaches are in the southeastern part of the island; the coast otherwise rises in steep white cliffs, some of them 400 feet high.

Lost Both Legs in Crash

But Wins Place in RAF

LONDON.—Legless at 22, Pilot Officer Colin G. S. Hodgkinson has been assigned to a front-line fighter squadron by the air ministry. He lost his legs three years ago in a crash while blind flying. His determination to fly again finally won out and he was fitted with special steel legs and returned to the fleet arm. After flying with the fleet several months, the admiralty granted his request for transfer to the RAF. Hodgkinson is the first legless pilot in the RAF since Douglas Bader was captured by the Germans, who shot his plane down.

OUR LORD'S INTERCESSORY PRAYER

LESSON TEXT-John 17:1-8, 18-26. GOLDEN TEXT — "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are."—John 17:11.

There are some times and places so sacred that one is instinctively hushed into reverent devotion. When Christ prayed in holy intercession (as recorded in John 17) on the night before His suffering His disciples must have been lifted into the very presence of the Eternal One. It was a holy experience.

He prayed for Himself, but even more did He pray for His believing followers. To know that someone is praying for us is indeed an anchor in a time of storm, a strong help in the hour of conflict or of service for Christ.

But to know that the Master prayed for you and me-that is enough to send us, like the disciples of old, out to face an unbelieving world in His conquering name. He prayed for Himself-and He prayed

I. He Prayed for Himself (vv. 1-8). He looked up and said: "Father," and then He was ready to pray. So close was He to God that there was just this simple recognition of their communion. In Christ are we not as close as He?

What did Jesus ask for Himself? At first thought it seems a little unusual that He asked

1. For Recognition of His Divine Glory (vv. 1-5).

Why would He who had just given the disciples an example of and an admonition to humility desire to have His glory manifested? Be sure it was not a matter of selfish pride. He had finished His work (for He counted redemption as complete throughout His prayer), and now the glory which He laid down when He came to earth (Phil. 2:6-8) was to be resumed.

He wants man to see Him now not only as the compassionate Son of man, but the glorious Son of God, able to save. It is right that the glory of Christ should be magnified and recognized by the whole creation. He is worthy!

2. For the Manifestation of His Grace (vv. 6-8).

The Father had given Christ the heart devotion of those who believed in Him. Note that their faith rested on the name of God (v. 6), and upon His Word which had come to them and to us through Christ.

He recognized their position and standing in Him and established it before God and man. He then m (read vv. 9-17) that they might be kept in an evil world as a testimony to the grace and power of God in the human

This leads to His intercession for all believers.

II. He Prayed for All Believers (vv. 18-26).

Christians are not simply the avowed adherents to a particular form of belief, they are "sent" ones. As the Father sent Him into the world, "even so send I them into the world," said Christ.

Christ has gone to be with the Father, but He has left those who believe in Him as His witnesses, His representatives. For this they need holiness. He prayed:

1. For Their Consecration (vv. 18,

For their sakes He consecrated Himself. Surely if He needed it, we do far more. It is not only His will for us, but His prayer. How wonderfully that prayer was answered we see as we look back over the intervening 19 centuries, from His immediate disciples on through the martyrs, the missionary pioneers of all ages, the faithful preachers and teachers of the gospel, yes and "livers" of the gospel too. He knew, He prayed, God answered. Are you in that blessed host of consecrated believers?

2. For Their Unity and Glory (vv.

There is a refreshing simplicity about the Christian faith which is utterly different from all the complications which man has prepared and superimposed upon it. Essentially it is a matter of God having sent His Son into the world to be the Redeemer of men. He and the Father are one, He and His followers are one, and so we are all one. We who today believe are included (read

This is an inward unity of the Spirit, not an outward union of organizations. The answer to our difficulty is not the dissolution of denominations (although there do seem to be far too many subdivisions, too), but the uniting of all groups in a oneness of love and devotion to Christ, and a united emphasis on the gospel. There is something more here. This unity puts Christ's followers into the place where His glory may be revealed in and upon them. It is His prayer that we should behold in our Saviour the glory which God had given Him because He loved Him before the foundation of the world will depend upon the products of American soil in 1943 more than ever before.

Productive Power of Soil

Depends on Good Fertilizer Millions of people throughout the

The reserve of productive power in our agricultural soils is needed now, a reserve built up through legume crops, use of chemical and animal fertilizers, and wise tillage in the past years. Larger yields of food and feed crops per acre are the only answer, in a time when farmers have less labor, less machinery, even less in the way of repair parts, with which to do the job.

Proper use of fertilizers will probably do more to get this production than anything else the farmer can Nitrogen is the only essential fertilizer element that is scarce. Thrifty crops of legumes will help the farmer to fix in his soils additional nitrogen for his wartime crops, and also to build the soil value for future years. If all pastures and meadows in New York state contained as high a proportion of alfalfa, clover, or other legumes as practical, Prof. Richard Bradfield of New York State college says, these crops would fix in the soil of the state almost as much nitrogen as the entire United States has used in chemical fertilizers in

Market Steers Earlier,

4-H Club Members Told Getting the steer calves ready for market a year or more earlier than usual has been suggested to 4-H club members and livestock men.

The club members, by feeding out the calves for six to eight months instead of handling them in the usual way, will aid in increasing the total amount of meat available.

Calves from 2 to 10 months old and in reasonably good flesh are recommended. The animals should be started each February or March for fall sale, and in August or September for sale the next spring.

Fifty bushels of corn or its equivalent in concentrated feed are required to get a calf ready for market, which will account for gains of from 400 to 500 pounds. In addition, it will require from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds of good roughage to feed a calf six to eight months.

If possible, it is said, the calf should be started on grain before weaning. Because of the need for milk in the war effort and economy of gains, the calf should be weaned at about 500 pounds weight.

Nurse's Pledge The wording of the Florence Nightingale pledge follows: "I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of this assembly, to pass my life in purity, and to practice my profession faithfully. I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous, and will not take or knowingly administer any harmful drugs. I will do all in my power to elevate the standard of my profession, and I will hold in confidence all personal matters committed to my keeping, and all family affairs coming to my knowledge in the practice of my calling. With loyalty will I endeavor to aid the physician in his work and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my

Bloody History

Adana, where Winston Churchill and Turkish officials met, is Turkey's fourth largest city, with a population of over 76,000. It is situated about 30 miles inland from the northeast corner of the Mediterranean. The River Seyhan which flows through the city is spanned by a long, multiple-arch, masonry bridge over a thousand years old. Twice before in this century Adana made the headlines. In 1909 the Adana Massacre occurred, part of the general religious and political turmoil of that day. Three to four thousand persons, mostly Armenians, were killed in the streets or burned in their homes. During 1919-21 the city was occupied by the French army.

Primitive Island

Rennell island is the southernmost link of the 900-mile Solomons chain. Once a mere coral atoll it now is a cliff-girt plateau 50 miles long and from 6 to 12 miles wide. About 110 miles south of Guadalcanal and 100 miles southeast of San Cristobal island, Rennell has barely emerged from the Stone Age. Contacts of the natives with the outside world are Traders have passed up Rennell because its products never reached commercial volume. When they hired island labor they paid for it with mirrors, beads, fishhooks, steel axes and knives. Metals are curiosities. Weapons are limited to bone and wooden spears.

Students Ban Cars

Only physically disabled students at the Pennsylvania State college will be allowed the use of automobiles. Further clarifying its no-car ruling, the all-college cabinet—chief governing body of Penn State's student government-issued a proclamation designed to make hikers out of 99 per cent of the undergraduates or revert them to the use of the "one horse shay." Cabinet, with the sanction of local rationing authorities, has taken over full responsibility for enforcing the ruling and punishing violators. The ban also applies to the use of cars when leaving college or returning after vacation periods.

PLACING A GUTTER

A SHEET-METAL gutter along the edge of a roof should be set far enough out from the edge to catch the water that runs down from the roof; if it is too close to the edge, water will run over it, and if it is not far enough out, the water may go between the edge of the roof and the gutter. At the same time, the outer edge of the gutter should not be higher than the slope of the roof. If it is higher, it will act as a dam to catch snow and ice. When correctly placed snow and ice will slide over it; when not correct, water will back against the dam and flood upward. The pool that then forms may work its way under the roofing and leak through to the inside. The sizes of the gutter and of the leader pipe, of course, should depend on the area of the roof that is to be drained.

Chimney Sweats Question: The chimney in my old house sweats in the upstairs part of the hall, ruining the paper and making the wall unsightly. A contractor advised gypsum wallboard over furring strips, with an air space between. What do you sug-

Answer: If beads of condensation appear on the surface of the wall, the chimney may be too large for the furnace you are using, causing a downdraft of cold air that chills the wall. Check the furnace manufacturer's recommendation for the size of the flue. If yours is too large, reduce the size of the opening on top of the chimney. If there is an accumulation of creosote that seeps through the brickwork, your only remedy is to build a new chimney. However, if the trouble is only with condensation, the contractor's idea may be satisfactory.

Covering a Steam Boiler Question: Our steam boiler is bare to the iron, and we should like to cover it with asbestos. How should we go about it?

Answer: Mix asbestos cement thoroughly in a tub or similar container, using only enough water to make a workable mixture. At least two coats should be applied. Put on a one-inch first coat and a halfinch second coat. Apply the first coat with your hands or a plasterer's trowel, leaving a rough surface. A trowel would be handy for scratching the surface. When the first coat is fairly dry, stretch and fasten chicken wire netting over the surface to hold the first coat. The second coat should be troweled down hard and smoothed as it dries

Spot Cleaning Question: What is the best spot remover for men's garments? I often spot my suit and I don't always want to have the entire garment cleaned merely for a single bad

Answer: The kind of remover would depend on the nature of the stain; egg, coffee or ink, for instance, would require different treatment than grease spots. You can get excellent preparations, even for taking out lipstick stains, at a good drugstore. Many tailors and dry cleaners can "spot" clean a suit; that is, take out a spot without cleaning the entire garment.

Poplar Roots Question: I have three 12-year-old poplar trees in my yard. Their roots have grown about 30 feet toward the house, and I am afraid they soon will cause damage to the house. I plan to cut off these long roots close to the trunk of the tree without taking them out of the ground, then drive a copper nail into the root to kill it. Do you approve of this idea?

Answer: Cutting the large roots close to the trunk may damage the tree. To get first hand information on this question, I advise you to write to the Department of Forestry at your state capital.

Sticking Valve Stem Question: The radiator valves in my hot water system stick and are hard to turn. In fact, I snapped the stem of one when turning it with a pipe wrench. Can you suggest anything?

Answer: A new packing, the kind that contains graphite, may ease the valve stems. Your local plumber should be able to supply you with it. Sap Spots on Car

Question: My car had to stand outdoors for some time, and sap from trees dripped down on the roof, leaving spots. How can I take off these Answer: You may be able to get them off by light wiping with turpentine. If this does not work, use the well-known auto finish cleaner.

Oil on Garage Floor Question: I have considerable oil drippings on the floor of my garage. How can I remove that oil? Answer: Cover the oil stains with a thick layer of dry Portland cement or powdered whiting, allowing to remain for several days. After the powder has become saturated with the oil, scrape it off and repeat two or three times. Later, scrub the floor with a strong solution of trisodium phosphate or washing soda, about a handful to each pail of hot water. Rinse well afterward.

Colors Mark Departments Of Largest Office Building

The Pentagon, that monumental structure of the war department and the world's largest office building, located in Arlington, Va., across the Potomac from the capitol, is an awe inspiring edifice, both to visitors to Washington and to its newly arrived tenants. Especially is this true if they are seeking one of the individual 40,000 occupants which the Pentagon was constructed to

The Pentagon has five floors identified by their respective colors. The first floor interior walls outside of the offices themselves are painted "yellow buff." The second floor walls are painted in a green shade, the third floor walls in a rather deep red, the fourth in a gray tone, and the fifth in quite a decided blue -all done with flat paints. The painting of adjacent hallways and corridors on the respective floors has been done in corresponding color schemes to further reassure visitors and occupants of "where they are at."

Approaching the Pentagon building in a taxi, one wonders how he is going to get in. The taxi man solves this problem by driving right into a tunnel nearly 1,000 feet long under the building where you are startled by a collonade of seemingly interminable huge round columns of reinforced concrete with metal shells which are painted a brilliant, glossy red. When you alight in this highly modernistic tunnel at the Pentagon, you face multicolored doors, the color of which is to identify the entrance to the respective ramps which lead upward from the concourse to the five floors of the building.

Use Clever Substitutes For 1943 License Plates

The nation's civilian automobiles will be identified this year by an unprecedented combination of new and old plates, metal tabs, windshield stickers-and even wooden plates. Shortage of essential metals is responsible for these develop-

The largest number of states will attach metal date tabs to 1942 license plates. Pennsylvania, which last year had a license plate in the form of a geographical outline of the state, will use a date tab cut like a keystone. Vermont will use 1943 date tabs made from salvaged tin cans. Arkansas is providing date tabs for passenger cars and license plates of treated wood for trucks and motorcycles.

Only nine states are issuing new plates for 1943; in most cases they are reprocessing a single plate retained from last year when owners were given only one 1942 plate. Wyoming is the only state to issue two new steel plates, manufactured before the WPB order took effect. Illinois is issuing two plates made of fiber board. Delaware has put its registration plates on a permanent basis with expiration dates indicated by changeable inserts, following the practice of Connecticut, where plates have been used since 1937.

Strong New Fabric

To meet the need for an extremely tough uniform fabric for clothing for mountain troops, textile experts of the army quartermaster corps in cooperation with textile manufacturing companies have designed and developed a new sateen material with an extraordinarily high tearing strength, superior wearing qualities and excellent wind-resisting characteristics. The new material is now being used in trousers for mountain troops and other special forces, with the expectation that it may be extended to other military clothing uses where fabric of similar characteristics may be required. Exhaustive tests have proved its suitability for the uses now being made of it and have demonstrated that it affords an extra measure of protection from wind and cold to the mountain and cold weather troops now wearing it. It is treated with a water-repellent chemical material so that it will not absorb moisture, an additional measure of protection in cold climates.

Soybean Flour New bread containing soybean flour is coming to the grocers' shelves. Addition of the soybean flour makes the protein of the bread a more complete food, and more nearly equal in value to the protein of meat. Supplies of skimmilk for making bread may be short of the quantity needed under the recent food order of the secretary of agriculture, Claude Wickard, which establishes a minimum percentage of milk to be included in bread. Bread and potatoes will be two of the mainstays of life, he says, and will provide a great share of our energy

Save Soap

There are many ways of saving soap which will help in the war effort. Keep soap dry after each use and only use as much as is needed to overcome the hardness of the water. Use a soap shaker for soap scraps and pour boiling water over them in a bowl. The resulting jelly kept near the sink can be used in washing dishes and clothes. For the bath, small bits of soap in a thin bag are just as good as a large cake of soap. A thin cake can be pressed into a larger cake when both are wet and the small cake will become a part of the larger one.

"What type of question?" "Well," replied the alienist. "this sort of thing. Captain Cook made three voyages round the world and died on one of them. Which was it?"

"Oh, I say," objected the official. "I think that's a bit steep. I'm not very good at history."

DETROIT LETTER

More Views on Rationing by the Writer.

It is too early for me to tell you anything about the way the new rationing plan is working out in this city, and I suppose that all of you are too busy working out the many problems and angles it presents, to even take any interest in what is happening to the housewives in this city, so far away from your community, but I am going to tell you about some things that have come under my observation, in the little time we have had to use the new "doom" book, as one of the many small grocerymen has styled it. And from what I can gather from the columns of the dailies of Detroit, I am not sure but what it is truly named so far as these business men are concerned. It has been stated that over 10,000 small stores have closed their doors in this state, even before this new disaster has overtaken them.

Quite a few have thrown up the sponge at the very start of the program, and have gone to work in the War Plants, claiming that it will take a college graduate to figure out what the Government wants, and as they have not had such an education, it is simply impossible for them to carry on, as they cannot get any help, nor afford to pay wages that will compete with those paid by these plants, even if the help would be obtainable. So we see vacant store rooms everywhere
—indeed many more than there were
during the depression days of the ear-

But it is not about these stores that are closed that I want to tell you, for what is happening now is more interesting. It seems as if a good many people do not look ahead, any more than they did about the Income Tax—they do not seem to care if their precious coupons are all used up right at the beginning of the month and that when the 48 little stamps are used up, they will have to wait until the next month before they can buy any more of their favorite canned goods, but use the whole amount at once, as I myself have seen them do. For instance, I saw a woman use 43 of her stamps for four cans of goods, and a bottle of catsup. When she saw what the clerk took out of her book, she said "Are you taking them all; that is all I have for the whole month." The clerk patiently tried to make her understand, but she was very indignant, and went away in very bad state of mind, which, I am sure, will not improve very much as the month of March rolls around. We read of how many go into stores, pick out what they think they want, and when they are told how many points it takes for their selections, they simply put them back where they picked them up, and go back home, I suppose to study these new-fangled regulations the Government is imposing on them. Dried beans, canned soups, raisins, and fruits are what the most customers are selecting, and we read of one woman who wanted four pounds of raisins, taking 78 points, or 30 more than her whole allowance of points for the month. And there is the one who wanted all her allowance in dried beans, and another who asked for canned soup which would take two months' points; or all the points

Now, I do not want anybody to get under the impression that I am opposed to rationing, or anything that will help the war effort, or the equal distribution of food, as I want the Boys who are fighting our battles for us to have the best and plenty of everything they need, having two sons and two grandsons working for Uncle Sam, and I do not believe any one will suffer the pangs of hunger on account of these regulations. These instances are given only with the intention of telling you how people are taking them out here. It is not only from the scarcity of these rationed foods that we are suf-fering, and here is a little story that will illustrate this. The other day a young girl came out a store near us. and cried out. "I must hurry home and tell mother the good news—I have an eighth of a pound of butter." And meat is very scarce, too, as we hardly ever see the meat cases contain anything but lunch meats. and very little of those compared with pre-war days.

JOHN J. REID.

OUTLOOK STEADY

Secretary Wickard sums up the food situation in these words: "The over-all food picture, for the year ahead, looks about the same as it has for some time.
"On the basis of present indications, the fighting front requirements of military and lend-lease use for the various groups of foods in 1943 will take the following percentages of our total output: 20 to 25 percent of the beef (virtually all of which is for American armed forces), 30 to 35 percent of pork, 25 to 30 percent of eggs, 15 to 20 percent of butter, 40, to 45 15 to 20 percent of butter, 40 to 45 percent of cheese, 40 to 45 percent of condensed and evaporated milk, 25 to 30 percent of lard, 20 to 25 percent of other edible fats and oils, 50 to 60 per cent of canned fruits, 35 to 45 percent of dried fruits, 45 to 50 percent of canned vegetables, 10 to 15 percent of wheat, and 15 to 20 percent of rice.

"While sending these large supplies to the fronts, civilians will have for themselves an even larger supply than in 1942 of grains (except rice), poultry and potatoes. The percapita civilian supply of meats, fluid milk, eggs, fresh fruits, dry beans and peas will be about the same or slightly lower than in 1942. The civilian per capita supply of fish, cheese, fats and oils, condensed and evaporated milk, rice, commercially grown fresh vege-tables, sugar, coffee and cocoa will be lower than in 1942 and some of these supplies may even fall below the pre-war level. This is assuming that pro-duction goals for 1943 will be met."

It is not easy to understand why the small percentage of our population in the American armed forces should require nearly one-fourth of our beef, one-third of our pork or the other percentages stated, but Secretary Wickard says so.

USE OF LIME PRODUCTS

The Carroll County War Board nave received notice from the Maryand USDA War Board that award of the annual Agricultural Adjust ment Agency contract for lime products for the 1943 soil-building program of the Maryland Agricultural Conservation Committee brought a flood of applications from many of the state's 27,000 farmers cooperating the agricultural conservation prac

Soil experts estimate that the use of lime products on land under cultivation returns to the farmer three dollars for every dollar invested. Maryland farmers in the AAA program last year reported 180,000 tons used in that one year. Community committeemen of the Agricultural Conservation Committee are assisting farmers in making application to their County Agricultural Conservation Associations for these AAA conservation materials.

Under the Agricultural Adjustment Agency's contract farmers participating in the conservation practices program receive AAA benefit payments for applying conservation materials to their soil and also buy the materials through the State Committee.

Maryland school authorities have been asked by Claude R. Wickard, United States Secretary of Agriculture, to release all school children for temporary farm work when and where they may be needed in the planting of farm crops vital to the

FIRE WARNING

District Forester A. R. Bond, of State Department of Forests and Parks announces the opening of the lookout fire towers in Northern Maryland for the spring forest fire season. Past fire records reveal that with the approach of warm dry days, people will start cleaning property and burning brush and rubbish preparatory to spring plowing.

Attention is called to a decision handed down recently by Judge Wm. H. Lawrence of the Circuit Court in Towson. A careless brush burner allowed a fire to escape and damage property of another. In this case, $600 damages resulted and the defendant was required to the force. fendant was required to pay the $600 damages to his neighbor. This act, was in violation of Section 11 of the Maryland Forest Laws which says, woods, brush, grass, grain, or stubble (fire) resulting in damage to the property of another—or allowing it to escape to the injury of adjoining lands, shall be "prima facie" proof of care-

In order to prevent fires from escaping the District Forester suggests that if any burning is necessary, it should be done after 4:00 P. M., when the relative humidity rises and the wind settles. Brush piles should be kept small and away from woods; furrows should be plowed around the area burned against the wind.

Cardboard liners for concrete forms have been developed to add resistance to abrasion as well as to freezing

The dairy cow is a living factory, producing an almost perfect food for human consumption. Milk builds bone, brain, nerves, and muscle. It gives soldiers more stamina, aviators better eyesight, fortifies whole populations to better morale.

There are no problems of a 40-hour week in this efficient plant which keeps up a steady 24-hour production. Mechanized warfare may have toppled the horse and the mule from their former high status, but the dairy cow is still supreme.
